Billy Sunday picniced on the battlefield of Gettysburg, on Monday. As the guests of Carl R. Gray, president of the West-ern Maryland Railway, Mr. and Mrs. Sunday, with a dozen members of their party and personal friends went by rail and were conveyed over the field in the usual tourist wagons. At noon they had luncheon on top of Little Round Top, adopting the usual picnic fashion of stones for seats and the grass for a table cloth. Sunday declined all invitations to the county's unused portion of the State speak, saying it was a trip purely for Aid Road fund. The signing of the bill The return trip to Baltimore was made in the evening.

Our Old Stone Roads.

H. G. Shirley, Chief Engineer of the Maryland State Roads Commission, is authority for the statement that a resurauthority for the statement that a resurfaced and asphalt-bound macadam road near Baltimore, a road subjected to very heavy traffic of all types, has had practically no maintenance in the last four years and that he doubted whether there had been any expenditure prior to that time. The road was resurfaced in 1910.

The practical significance of Mr. Shir.

The practical significance of Mr. Shirley's statement lies in the fact that here was an old and thoroughly compact macadam road made to serve as a founda-tion for two or three inches of stone held in place by a natural asphalt binder instead of the rock dust or fine material constituting the customary binding ma-terial of macadam. This used to serve its purpose well under horse traffic exclusively, but is sucked out and dispersed by the rubber tires of the motor car, resulting in rapid destruction of the road. An analysis of the statement made by Mr. Shirley shows that our old stone roads are, after all, a valuable asset in the way of stable and unyielding foundations. To cover them with a few inches of stone costs no more than automory resurfacions. costs no more than customary resurfacing of macadam. The distinction between ordinary repairs of macadam and the road to which Mr. Shirley refers is only a matter of adding a binder that is more enduring and tenacious than rock dust. Maryland and Virginia alone have 2,233 miles of stone roads that could be used as

The United States Office of Public Roads, in Bulletin 48, gives the average cost of resurfacing Maryland roads in the manner described as 64 cents a square yard, which would be equivalent to about $6,000 a mile for roads 16 feet wide. This is a third the cost of some types of new roads and only half the cost of the vsry cheapest types of so-called permanent roads when newly built from the founda-

If a resurfaced asphalt-bound macadam road will stand up under six years of the heavy traffic always found in close proximity to a large city, it certainly suggests an economical solution of the road problem as it applies to old stone roads sub-jected to lighter traffic. The fact that they can be used as foundations for durable tops offers a money saving compromise between the huge cost of new high-ways and the difficulty and expense of maintaining plain macadam. — Good Roads Press Bulletin.

.0.63.0. The Publishers' Problem.

Last week "The Register" ordered a lot of newspaper from the Antietam Paper Company, Hagerstown, and it cost us just $13.79 a ton more than the last lot we bought. We can get no further prices quoted on print paper, as the raise is still going on and paper is extremely scarce at that. When it is taken into considera-tion that we use over 10 tons of paper a year on which to print "The Register," the increased cost of production in this one item alone is heavy.—Middletown

The question of procuring paper and supplies, and the great advances in the prices of these necessities, has become a most serious one for publishers and printers. It is not only a matter of paying advanced prices for these articles-in some instances advances are as great as one hundred per-cent.—but it is almost an impossibility to get some things at any price. Protective measures must be taken to conserve all supplies.

The management of The Post has found it necessary to discontinue a number of complimentary papers and to cut off some persons who have failed to respond to requests on their subscriptions. Prompt attention to subscribers statements will be appreciated.—Frederick Post.

District Meeting.

(For the Record.)
The Church of the Brethren will hold its regular yearly meeting, in the Meadow Branch church, near Westminster, April 18 and 19. One new church, near Pocomoke, Eastern Shore, is added to the District this year, making seventeen congregations now in all. Thirty-seven delegates compose the voting body to deter-mine the policy of the church on ques-tions of missions, education, charitable institutions as well as church discipline. This body will also elect a delegate at large to represent this District at the annual meeting of the general brotherhood, which will be held in Winona Lake Park, which will be held in W. E. Roop. W. Trim Newly Planted Trees.

All trees purchased from nurserymen and planted should be trimmed back, when planted, or they are apt to die. An authority on this, says:

"The reason is, that when the young trees are taken from the nursery many of the small rootlets, which take up water from the soil to supply the branches and the leaves, are broken, and the latter would evaporate more water than the roots can supply, with the result that the tree would dry up and die. Therefore, the branches must be cut back to balance the loss of the roots.

Cut the side branches so that not more than two or three inches will remain beyond the stem, and cut off the main stem of fruit trees at least one-third, leaving the tree two-thirds of its original height and with short stubs of branches around the main stem."

Interesting Contest for Delegates to State Convention.

The following is the list of candidates to be voted for at the primary election in Carroll County, on Monday, May 1.

For U. S. Senator. Republicans, Joseph I. France, Phillips Lee Goldsborough; Democrats, W. Cabell Bruce, Blair Lee,

David J. Lewis.
For House of Representatives. Republicans, Newton D. L. Allen, Linwood L. Clark, William J. Heaps, William H. Lawrence; Democrats, J. F. C. Talbott, For Delegates to State Convention. Republicans, Dr. Roland L. Diller, J. Brook Miller, William L. Seabrook, Edward M. Mellor, Walter H. Davis, Elwood L. Murray, William H. Flickinger, William

Democrats, J. H. Sherman, Dr. N. A. Hitchcock, William D. Lovell, Jacob A. Frederick, Joseph B. Boyle, Charles Jones, Albert L. Davis and John O. Denrice. For delegates to State Convention, five

are to be chosen from each party. The chief interest in this contest centres in the fact that the State Convention will elect delegates to the National Convention. The Democrats have a three-cornered fight for Senator, and a straight fight between Talbott and Wilkinson for the House. The Republicans reverse the sit-uation by having a straight fight for the Senate, but a four cornered one for Congress. At this stage, it is impossible to pick winners so far as the county vote is concerned, especially for the Senate. For the House, Talbott will likely carry the county, while Heaps has a large follow-ing of personal friends in the county that gives him a decided advantage over the other candidates. For delegates to State Convention, there is a sort of free for all race, largely friendly and without special significance, though on the part of some there will be seen a factional coloring, but the more conservative element is disposed to let such contests drop in both parties.

The situation may yet warm up into open fights between rival Camps, but the time of the year is not favorable to much political exertion or excitement, so the "still hunt" form of campaign is likely to largely prevail on both sides. ----

Stone Roads Near Unionville.

Unionville, Frederick county, is on the map for stone road building, as it proposes to build nine miles on the 'two and one" basis. The road will be in three sections; toward Liberty, toward Union Bridge, and the other east toward Baltimore. At least three miles will be built this year, for which about 10,000 made, the Courts will be asked to define perches of stone have already been quarried and hauled to the roadside. Selection of Seed Corn.

College Park, Md., April 1.-Instructions regarding the selection of seed corn as prepared by Prof. Nickolas Schmitz are being furnished by County Agents to the members of the State Boys Corn Club, who are now preparing for the competi-tion of 1916. As a result of the interest aroused last year, there will be keen com-aroused last year, there will be keen competition among the boys who have enrolled in practically every county in the State. The proper selection of seed will play an important part in their success, the directions issued being as follows:

In securing seed corn from which to grow a profitable crop, it is a mistake to go far from home for it, particularly if a heavy yield the first year is desired. a heavy yield the first year is desired. Seed brought in from a long distance and

Seed brought in from a long distance and grown under different conditions from those in your neighborhood, will not, as a rule, yield as well the first year as good seed of a good variety grown near by.

Usually, the larger-growing and later-maturing varieties of corn will yield more than the earlier and smaller growing sorts. Be careful, however, that the variety you select is not too late in maturing and that the cob is not too large and ing and that the cob is not too large and has not high a percentage of moisture because a late-maturing, large cob variety may mean a lot of rotten corn for you, and hence, a much lower yield.

In sections where the season is long enough, such varieties as Boone County White, Collier, Excelsior, Giant Beauty, Yellow Dent, Johnson County, if grown near by, the long yellow variety grown in Frederick county and the white cap corn grown in Baltimore, Carroll, Cecil, and other nearby counties, are as good as any for large yields. These varieties re-quire from 125 to 135 days to mature.

The Tree Cutting Law.

There is some doubt as to whether the new roadside tree law amendments apply to incorporated towns, or not. It is perfectly clear that the provisions of the law are repealed, so far as "unimproved" roads are concerned—that is, roads not surfaced with stone, or concrete, com-monly called "state" roads—but it is not clear whether the streets of towns are exempt, or not.

The law in general is not interfered with, except as of the cutting of trees, which lets all of its provisions relative to the law as to the streets of incorporated towns. The streets are not "state highways," neither are they "unimproved. ----

MEXICAN SITUATION GROWING MORE SERIOUS

Carranza Asks Withdrawal of American Troops.

A serious crisis is at the front in the Mexican situation, due to a double cause. The Carranza government has asked that the pursuit of Villa be abandoned, as the constitutionalists are now able to look after the situation. The claim is also made that the Villa force has been broken up and scattered, and can not again be a menace to the American border.

Closely following this was an attack by Mexicans on an American column of 150 men at Parral, in which 50 Mexicans were killed and one American killed and one wounded.

Major Tompkins, whose command is reported to have entered Parral, is the American commander, who at the head of a small body of American cavalry, chased Villa and his whole band across the border at Columbus and for a number of the interest Marine following Villa's ber of miles into Mexico, following Villa's attack on the American town.

American scouts going in advance of the cavalry column had found evidence that Villa but a short time before had been in the vicinity of Parral. The scouts had been told by Mexicans that Villa was in Parral and was being hidden there be the receipt with the highest day of the attack on the American town. by the people with the knowledge of the small Carranza garrison.

The Americans entered Parral without evidences being shown by the people of the town or by the Carranza soldiers there that their presence was resented, the advices say, and it was not until Americans began searching for evidence of Villa that the excitable townspeople began to show animosity. Later, as the Americans were leaving Parral in response to the request to do so made by the town officials, Mexican snipers from windows and housetops began firing upon them. The serious clash came later when a considerable body of armed citizens, following the Americans, opened fire. The fire was quickly returned and the Mexicans fled, leaving many dead and wounded in the streets.

It is reported from Washington that the pursuit of Villa will be continued, and that a general vigorous American policy will be pursued. The opinion is growing in this country that it is apparently useless to continue the pursuit of Villa with Pershing's little Carranza's attitude makes it hazardous to continue the search in the interior of Mexico, unless we send a much larger force. We were not ready to pursue until the trail had grown cold and Villa had ridden far into the interior of Mexico, in a country familiar to him, where he could not possibly be caught without the aid of the natives who were of the Carranza faction. They gave no aid and will give none, and the continuation of this pursuit, even if Carranza did not object, seems to be a wild and vain proceeding. -----

April, and House Cleaning. When April comes with its "showers sweet," its glinting sunshine, and its fresh and fragrant winds, it is a dull sort of a housewife who does not try, every means at her command, to make the inside of her home as sweet, whole some and beautiful as are the sun-warmed sky and the rain-washed flowers of the great, clean world without. Emma C. E. Bankert, administratrix d. b. n. c. t. a. of Alfred W. Bish, deceased, settled her first and final control of the strenuous business it was a generation ago. We have fewer heavy and final control of the strenuous business it was a generation ago. And happily for all of us nowadays, than our grandmothers and our mothers had, fewer useless ornaments, fewer cum bersome hangings, and fewer carpets. With our polished floors, our more simple furniture, and our curtains of plain muslin, scrim, or net, dust does not accumulate as it once did, and one no longer needs to turn a house upside down for days at a time to get rid of the rubbish and dirt of winter. Our spring cleaning in these days consists merely in a week or more of concentrated following up of the cleaning methods we use from day to day the whole year round. For along with the blessing of our present-day fashions of simple home furnishings we housekeepers of the present generation have been provided by modern science and invention with countless aids for lightening the burden of household drudgery. Many of these are simple, and most of them entirely successful as everyday savers of both time and strength.—Betty Lyle Wilson, in April Southern Woman's.

Walter O'Neill, twenty-six, a member of the Young Men's Christian Association, Baltimore, was badly injured in a friendly wrestling bout in the gymnasium when Max Siegel, powerful but unskilled, got a full-Nelson on him and dislocated severa! vertebrae in his spinal column. .... Through the failure of the State Senate to confirm two of Governor Harrington's appointments of Supervisors of Elections for Montgomery county, the board will continue to be controlled by the Republicans for at least two years.

Some speculation is being aroused as to how the furniture basis for taxation purposes will be replaced on the books of the county. Some of the district collectors advance the claim that it can best be done through their aid, a percentage alowance being made them for their services on the basis of new property added. ----

With the Anti-saloon League outlining its campaign to make Frederick county and city "dry as chips," and with the saloon men and liquor dealers preparing to wage a fight to protect themselves, the contest over the local option measure re-cently passed by the Maryland Legislature is already beginning to assume a keen aspect in Frederick. Where The Money Goes.

The RECORD gives below, in condensed form, the chief appropriations carried by the so-called "omnibus bill," and passed by the legislature. These appropriations, except in a few cases in which special appropriations were made for buildings, are for the year 1917, and a like sum for 1918. To the best of our information the figures given represent the amounts actually appropriated, after the bill was

The Newspapers' Burden.

Perhaps it has not occurred to the readers of The Post that the war could affect a commodity so indirectly related to the demands of the European war as the paper upon which it is printed. It is one of the ramifications of the conflict to permit a reduction in the tax rate of 8 abroad that the publishers of newspapers are seriously embarrassed these days. The higher price of paper stock and the difficulty of obtaining it at all in England was a chief factor in the discontinuance in March of the London Standard, after a career of sixty years, mary election May 1. We ask these questions because we believe every state should have a well-defined state road policy as affecting such projects and we believe the people of the state should know what that policy is.—Pennsylvania

----Safe Medicine for Children.

"Is it safe?" is the first question to be considered when buying cough medicine for children. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has long been a favorite with mothers of young children as it contains no im or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. It is pleasant to take, too, which is of great importance when a medicine must be given to young children. This remedy is most effectual in relieving coughs, colds and croup. Obtainable everywhere.

.0.53.0. Portable Telephones.

Washington, April 10:-A portable telephone, made of aluminum and weighing 2½ pounds, the invention of a Forest officer, R. B. Adams, of Missoula, Montana, will be part of the regular equipment of patrolmen on the National Forests the coming field season. This insrument is regarded as a great improvement over the set formerly used, which weighed ten pounds.

It is said that a field man equipped with this telephone, a few yards of light emergency wire, and a short piece of heavy wire to make the ground connection can cut in anywhere along the more than 20,000 miles of Forest Service telephone lines and get in touch with the headquarters of a supervisor or district ranger. To talk, one end of the emergency wire is thrown over the telephone line, the two ends are connected to the portable instrument, and the instrument is connected to the ground wire, the end of which must be thrust into the damp earth or in water. Contact with the line wire is made possible by removal of the insulation from a few inches of the emergency wire. The Adams instrument does not ring the bell of the receiving telephone, but instead causes a screeching sound from a small megaphone-shaped apparatus descriptively known as a "howler." This instrument is installed at the ranger station telephone and is said to give effective notice that some one is on the wire. If the field man needs to talk with som elsewhere on the line, the ranger station instrument can be used to ring up the person wanted, when the conversation can be carried on.

Forest officers say that these portable phones are especially valuable in reporting fires and other emergencies with the least possible delay, and also in sending instructions to field men and keeping the district rangers informed as to the progress of work going on in the field, thus supplementing the regular telephone sets installed at lookout points, ranger stations, and at convenient intervals along Forest Service roads and trails.

----Shall We Have More Good Roads?

Farm and Fireside tells us that the House Committe on Roads has reported the Shackleford bill for federal aid to the States in building country roads. Substantially the same measure has been before Congress several years, and demand for some federal participation in roadbuilding is getting stronger.

"The Shackleford bill in its present form provides that not over $25,000,000 a year shall be appropriated, to be distributed among the States in the ratio of their population and of their mileage of country roads over which mails are caried. Thus Maine would get $276,000 a year, New York $1,594,000, Kansas $747,000, Texas $1,070,000, Calfornia $504,000, and so on. The money is to be expended by the state highway department, building roads selected by the State and approved by the Secretary of Agriof the best types of road, and to provide object lessons in the construction. Twenty five millions a year would not go far, but newed effort, in order to insure that they

DAIRY and CREAMERY

SPRING DAIRY PROBLEMS.

Cows Need Especial Care as Warmer Weather Approaches.

Every season has its peculiar dairy problems, and if we are wise we will | * take these up as we come to them seriously and not try to run all operations which have to do with our cows in the same mold, writes E. L. Vincent! in the Iowa Homestead.

For example, the cow needs different feed and care as we get along toward spring than she does when she first comes into the stable in the fall of the year. To be at her best and to do her best through the season a cow should go to pasture in good flesh and with vigor unimpaired by the long confinement of the winter.

We have learned that careful grooming is a very great aid in strengthening the cow and helping her to lay on flesh. It is the time of the year when the hair naturally falls off. As it loosens if we do not take some pains

While the Ayrshire seems by nature adapted to the production of milk to be used on the table and for food in its original form, still she is no mean butter cow, her milk being rich in butter fat, but as the cream rises slowly it is much more profitable to use a separator, for with a separator the cream is as readily extracted from Ayrshire milk as from any other, and there is no noticeable difference in the churnability of Ayrshire cream from that of any of the butter breeds. The bull shown herewith is an Ayrshire.

to remove it the body becomes clogged with impurities, the pores of the skin being stopped up and the poisons which should be eliminated that way are turned back into the system, producing more or less debility and directly affecting the efficiency of the ani-

It may seem at first thought that it would make no difference with a cow's flesh if she were not brushed and curried down regularly. How can it make a cow fat or thin to groom her or not to groom her? By repeated experiments we have settled it for ourselves that the cow which is not cared for in this way will actually grow thin on the same feed which will make another cow which is well attended to in this respect, lay on flesh.

The reason for this is not far to seek. The cow which is not groomed is not comfortable. She is all the time working with her tongue and against every bar post she comes to to free herself from dust and hair that needs to come off. Any man who has watched his cows at all knows how uncomfortable they appear at this season of the year. And, more than the bodily comfort, she does not get the good out of her food that she would were her system in good working order.

Another good thing for the dairy in the spring of the year is regular exercise in the open air. There will be days when the wind will be chill and raw, but there are no days when it does not do a cow good to get out and exercise some. Exercise sets the blood to tingling and freshens up the breathing apparatus. It sends the cow in feeling good and ready for her meal. We ought not to expose our herds unfeat the purpose we have in providing the daily outing, but some chance to stretch the limbs and breathe the pure air certainly is a great help in the dairy

And then as juicy and laxative feed as possible should be furnished in due measure. It is especially essential that the bowels be kept open. This would her grooming, exercise and water. We argue that we should watch the droppings behind the cow to see if they be hard and packed or soft and easily voided. These things all call for the expenditure of some time, but it is time well expended.

Only Good Cream Makes Good Butter. The buttermaker at the creamery is usually thought of as the man responsible for the quality of the butter produced. The facts are, however, that the responsibility lies with the producer of the cream. The making of a careful creamery patron out of the average farmer is one of the big questions that confronts the creamery man. The price at which butter sells depends upon its quality, and this quality depends almost entirely upon the cleanliness and quality of the cream when it reaches the buttermaker. The most skillful buttermaker cannot make good butter out of poor cream.

Cow Testing Associations.

Wisconsin now boasts of having more cow testing associations than any other | milk samples were brought to school state in the Union. She has forty-five and the teacher by the use of a Babassociations that have a total membership of over 1.200 dairymen and 25,000 cows. The highest average production | profitable cows of the district have for any association is held by Sheboygan county, with 8,279 pounds milk been valuable work in an educational and 298 pounds fat per cow .- Hoard's | way, but has actually resulted in profit Dairyman.

DAIRY WISDOM.

Dairying produces a human & food for which there is no substitute and for which there will always be a constant demand and an opportunity to supply at reasonable prices.

The colder the milk when separated the greater the loss of fat in the skimmilk

The animal that pays the best is bound to be in evidence as * dairymen become better inform-

Old cows that have passed their days of usefulness lower * the average production of the * herd quite as much as young *

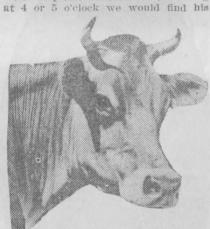

Don't trust any bull, no matter how gentle, but treat him kindly.

A DAIRYMAN WHO IS GETTING GOOD RESULTS

Recently we received an inquiry from one of our subscribers in Oregon, says Kimball's Dairy Farmer. He said: "We have forty Jerseys, of which seven are on official test. Will you please give me a ration suitable for I am feeding about twelve pounds of oats, bran, barley and beet pulp mixed with about twenty-five pounds of corn silage and what oat and vetch hay they will clean up daily. I am also feeding about two pounds of oilmeal per cow per day. I milk twice a day and am getting on an average from thirty-eight to forty pounds of milk testing from 5.8 to 6.2 per cent. We have a three-year-old that made 100 pounds of butter her first official month."

It is gratifying to see occasionally an inquiry such as this one. Here is a man that is securing from his cows phenomenal results. He is feeding the same kind of ration that we have recommended over and over again and a ration such as is being fed by thousands of other dairymen. The question arises, Why is he getting such exceptional results? The answer is that to secure great results feed is but one of the essential requirements. It is very evident that this man is mixing great quantities of brains and love with his ration.

We venture the assertion that were we to drop into his barn some morning

The Jersey cow still holds an honored place in the regard of all true dairymen. R. M. Gow reports that, taking her of every age and condition, as shown by 4,297 tests, her average is 7,784 pounds of milk and 415 pounds of butter fat per year. In these days of phenomenal yields when every breed is strainyields, when every breed is strain-ing to its utmost to beat the rec-ord, it is well to consider that the above figures represent first class business performance. Any dairy cow of any breed that will come up to those figures is worth tying to.

cows comfortably housed in a well ventilated, clean, sanitary stable and we would find him talking softly and encouragingly to his cows as he went til they are chilled, for that would de- about his work feeding, milking and caring for them. We would find that he was systematic, that he had a time to do everything and everything would be done on time. We would find him studying every cow and catering to her likes and dislikes not only with regard to the amount and kind of feed she should receive, but also with regard to would find here a man who has time to do the little things that are so necessary to unqualified success. All dairymen have time to do the big things, but it is the one who gives just a little more time to his cows and does the little things who secures great and unlimited success. It is the doing of these little things, which, by the way, require less than half as much labor as the big things, that is responsible for doubling production.

With a man of this caliber on the job and with his cows daily we, 2,000 miles away, have no right to offer suggestions other than to say by way of encouragement. Keep right on feeding and caring for your cows as you are studying individuals from day to day. learning their likes, dislikes and needs, that you may be able to cater to them even better than you already are.

Value of Cow Testing.

A teacher in a Nebraska district in terested the boys and girls in keeping records of the milk produced by each cow on the farm. On regular days cock tester tested for butter fat. As a result of this work most of the unbeen discarded. This has not only to the school patrons.

What O. T. Shoemaker

has to say about cream separators this week

REMEMBER that a cream separator has to be used 730 very year. If it runs hard, or isn't easy to wash, L Ullies or doesn't skim clean, it is a constant annoyance and bother. No machine or implement on the farm receives such constant use and there is no other machine on the farm where quality of work means so much and first cost means so little.

A little loss of cream with a cream separator, multiplied 730 times, soon runs into money. It's too big a handicap for any cow owner to try to Creamerymen all over the world long ago came to the conclusion that the De Laval was the only machine they could afford to use. That's why 98% of the cream separators used in creameries the world over are De Lavals.

You will find the biggest and best dairymen almost invariably using De Lavals

Experience has taught them that it is the most

You can't afford to take any chances with your cream separator, and we know that if you will come to us and let us put in a De Laval for you, 730 times a year you will say to yourself "I made a good move when I bought that De Laval."

Sooner or later you will buy a DE LAVAL

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Cor. xv, 1-28. Memory Verses, 3, 4-Golden Text, I Cor. xv, 20-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

It is a great privilege to have before us so constantly in the lessons of this year the great fact of a risen living Christ, so that we may be said to have many Easter lessons instead of, as in other years, only one in the year. The lesson chapter for today is pre-eminently the resurrection chapter, leading us on to the resurrection of the righteous Head and the translation of the righteous who shall then be alive and encouraging the saints to constant victory through our Lord Jesus Christ and to be steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord (verses 50-58).

Let us notice first what the messenger says of himself. Although he has been forgiven, he cannot forget that he was once a persecutor of the church of God, but he always magnifies the grace of God which saved such a sinner, and he calls himself the least of the apostles. Later he says that he is less than the least of all saints. and still later he calls himself the chief of sinners (verses 9, 10; Eph. iii, 8: I Tim. i. 15). That is true growth in grace, for as we learn to know our Lord better we cannot but sink lower in our own estimation. The whole world is guilty before God, and "sinner" is the only fit name for every one. without exception. But He came to save sinners, and only by His merits can any one be saved, so that it is never a question of what we are or what we can do, but only Who is He and what can He do?

As to the message, the gospel by which we are saved, it is that Christ died for our sins, was buried and rose again the third day and was seen alive many times by His disciples and, last of all, by the writer of this epistle, who saw Him after He had ascended to heaven (verses 1-9). Paul did not think out these things, he received them and delivered them as he received them (verse 3). No minister of the gospel is expected to think out his own thoughts and put them into the form of a sermon or essay and give them to the people as bread from heaven. But the true messenger of God must receive the message from God and deliver it as such, not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power (I Cor. ii, 4). The prophets were to speak only what God told them, and even our Lord Jesus was told by His Father what to say (Jer. i, 7-9; Ezek. ii, 7; iii, 4; Deut. xviii, 18; John xii.

The messenger who speaks merely out of his own heart his own message is not a true messenger (Jer. xxiii, 16, 26). As well might Israel think to manufacture their own manna as for a preacher to get up or think out his own discourse. Then notice how Paul repeats the words, "According to the Scriptures" (verses 3, 4), and remember how the risen Christ opened and expounded the Scriptures by Moses and the prophets and also the Psalms (Luke xxiv. 27, 32, 44; Acts i, 3). There are four great truths which we cannot magnify enough—the supernatural birth of Christ by the Holy Spirit, His bearing our sins on the cross as our substitute, His resurrection from the dead and His coming again to set up His kingdom of righteousness and peace on this earth. Apart from His resurrection from the dead there is no forgiveness, no salvation, no glorious future for any one. but that great event secures all and enables us to see ourselves as risen with Christ and seated with Him in the heavenlies, He our life, our affections there and we waiting with Him for the completion of His body, the church (verses 14-20; Eph. ii, 4-6; Col. ili. 1-4).

Believers now being gathered from all nations to form His body must have their resurrection bodies in order to be fit companions for Him when He shall come to reign. Christ the first fruits rose from the dead three days after His crucifixion and forty days later ascended visibly to heaven, where He waits for His completed body, which the Holy Spirit is gathering. At His coming all the bodies of His redeemed shall be raised and the living believers changed, and all together meet Him in the air for the judgment seat of Christ and the marriage of the Lamb. Then He shall return with His saints to judge the living nations and to begin His reign, for He must reign till He shall have subdued all things unto Himself and conquered the last enemy-death (verses

The "afterward" of verse 23 covers all the present age between the resurrection of Christ and that of His redeemed. The "then" of verse 24 covers all the millennial age when He. with His saints, shall be reigning and subduing all things unto Himself (verse 25; Rev. v, 9, 10; xx, 4). He will not begin His reign till we come back with Him in His glory. Then shall be fulfilled Isa. xxxii, 1, 17. All the discipline and the training of believers now is to fit us to reign with Him in His kingdom. The last clause of verse 28, "That God may be all in all," is the highest peak in Scripture.

PROPER PLOWING OF THE GARDEN IMPORTANT

Affects Both The Plant Food Available As Well As The Soil Moisture.

E. F. STODDARD,

Maryland Agricultural College.

Plowing modifies the physical conditions of the land considerably. The degree of benefit from this operation will be determined by the condition of the land when it is plowed, the type of soil, and the kind of plow that is used. Since the land should be thoroughly pulverized, the soil should be somewhat moist but never very wet as is often the case with clay soils. On the other hand, the top 3 to 5 inches of soil should not be dried out completely for the plow would turn this down and make it more difficult for moisture and roots of plants to go deep. Sandy soils are usually so open and porous that they dry out early in the spring and sooner after rains than heavy soils; and for these reasons the gardener encounters less difficulty in plowing the land. Ordinarily heavy soils with stiff clay subsoils should be broken up rather deep; for good drainage is just as important here as in the seed bed. It may be advisable in some cases to lay lines of tile drain in order to carry off excess water, and thus aid in the amelioration of the land. Surface ditches will help to carry off excess water but not so well as will the tile drain. Sandy soils, however, tend to let too much moisture pass on through the subsoil; and for this reason plowing need not be so deep and should be about the same depth every year in an effort to compact the under soil and prevent leaching. The physical condition of clay soils will be improved if they are plowed in the fall and left rough over the winter. They will also absorb more water for the use of the spring crops and can be worked into shape earlier than spring plowed land. Heavy clover sods and manure plowed down in the fall will be better decayed and more valuable to the spring crop. When rotten manures are used, however, they may be plowed down in the spring. In case a cover crop is sown on the land toward the end of the garden season, plowing should be deferred until early spring. When a cover crop is being turned under it is best to have the furrow slice lap and stand somewhat on end (rather than to be turned clear over) in order to maintain a connection with the subsoil and aid in capillary rise of soil moisture.

> MAKING THE HEN MOTHER COMFORTABLE.

R. H. WAITE, Maryland Agricultural Experiment

Station.

To hatch well, a hen must have a good nest. If she has to jump down into the nest box she is apt to break some of the eggs. Fix it so she can get on from the side. Use some soft straw, hay or like substance for the nesting material. Be sure it is clean want to give the chicks any of the diseases caused by moulds. If you are not sure it is clean, give it a thorough spraying with some disinfectant and let it dry out before putting it in the nest. The eggs, while in the nest, should form a saucer shape. If the nest is too deep the eggs from the outside will roll on the top of the others in the center and then those underneath cannot get the proper heat. If the nest is too flat the eggs will roll apart and those on the outside will be too cold. Be sure there are no corners left, just outside the nesting material, for the eggs to roll into. It pays to spend plenty of time arranging the nesting material. Too many hens are set on poorly prepared nests.

Use Care In Feeding. Feeding sitting hens is a rather simple matter. Keep fresh water before them and feed them regularly. It is probably best to keep some feed where they can get it whenever they wish. Corn and wheat or either grain alone is all the sitting hen requires. All she needs is some heat and energy producing food which contains only enough protein to repair her waste tissues. If you give her a stimulating feed (feeds high in protein are usually considered stimulating feeds), she is apt to get into laying condition again and leave off sitting.

Do not put too many eggs under one hen. Too many persons take a chance by putting "just a few" extra eggs under a hen thinking they will get a few more chicks. If the extra eggs alone were affected it would not be quite so bad; but the whole nest full will be treated alike by the hen for she moves the eggs about and is constantly changing their positions. The number it is safe to set varies with the size of the hen, season of the year, size of the eggs, and value of the eggs. Naturally, a small hen cannot cover so many as a large one, a hen cannot keep so many warm during cold weather as during warm weather, she connot cover the same number of large ones as small ones, and naturally one would not care to trust many very valuable eggs with one hen. For some reason an odd number of eggs is usually used in setting hens. This may be due to superstition but it is also partly due to the fact that thirteen or fifteen eggs fit the nest better. About thirteen eggs in winter and from fifteen to eighteen in summer would be about right for a medium sized hen on me dium sized eggs.

Philadelphia and Carpets.

More than a third of all American carpets are woven in Philadelphia which, it is claimed, leads any other city of the world in the volume of production. Wilton, in England, has given its name to one of the most widely known and useful rugs in the world, but now the Wilton rug producing center of the world is in Philadelphia. Axminster, too, gave its name to a carpet, but it long ago ceased to produce any of it. Brussels likewise is known all over the earth for its carpet, but Brussels does not begin to produce the carpets and rugs which are turned out in Philadelphia. Philadelphia enterprise embarked in the carpet business while Washington was president of the United States, but it was not until more than half a century later that Pennsylvania led all the states in carpet production. As early as 1791 there was a factory in Philadelphia engaged in the manufacture of Axminster and Turkey carpets. China and Russia send to Philadelphia most of the long, coarse wool used in the manufacture of the finest Wiltons .- Argonaut.

Getting Up In the Morning.

The truth is that there is no time at which it is pleasing to get up. Getting up in the world is a pleasure, but we refer to getting up from anything between a fifty cent cot and a forty dollar mattress after having tried to indulge, to a point of satiety, a normal appetite for sleep. To get up willingly is, as Lord Dundreary would say, "something no fellow can do." It simply isn't done and can't be done. Absolutely nobody does it.

Early rising is with some persons a sort of religion, like flagellation. But they, like the rest of us, unless they are afflicted with a loss of the normal capacity for sleep, find the moment of rising painful, however compensating the pleasure of boasting their early r'sing, the joy of bullyragging and belittling persons who frankly do not like at any time to get up, although they do it heroically every morning.-Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Flag of Denmark.

In the year 1219 King Waldemar of Denmark, when leading his troops to battle against the Livonians, saw, or thought he saw, a bright light in the form of a cross in the sky. He held this appearance to be a promise of divine aid and pressed forward to victory. From this time he had the cross placed on the flag of his country and called it the Dannebrog-that is the strength of Denmark. Aside from legend, there is no doubt that this flag with the cross was adopted by Denmark in the thirteenth century and that at about the same date an order, known as the order of Dannebrog, was instituted, to which only soldiers and sailors who were distinguished for courage were allowed to belong. The flag of Denmark, a plain red banner bearing on it a white cross, is the old est flag now in existence. For 300 years both Norway and Sweden were united with Denmark under this flag.

The Gegenschein.

The Gegenschein is the name given to one of the most inexplicable objects known to astronomers. It is visible in the night sky under favorable conditions, is rounded in outline and is situated always exactly opposite the place of the sun. It has been termed by one eminent astronomer "a sort of cometery or meteoric satellite" attending the earth. He supposes it to be composed of a cloud of meteors situated about a million miles from the earth and revolving around it it in a period of just one year, so that the sun and the meteors are always on opposite sides of size of this ghostly satellite may be nearly the same as that of the planet Jupiter-i. e., about 86,000 miles in diameter.

Dolls as Scapegoats.

The earliest dolls found were the "Answers" of the ancient Egyptians, which were buried with important per sonages in order that they might ful fill such duties as the rulers of the nether world might impose on the dead dignitary in his next incarnation. The more important the dead the larger the number of dolls buried with him Even to this day the doll plays its part in the folklore of the banks of the Nile. When the river does not appear to rise properly a doll is thrown into its waters, representing the living vir gin or boy who used of old to be thrown in to propitiate the Nile god. and a similar performance takes place on the banks of the Tiber, where a doll made of plaited rushes is used as a substitute for the human victim .-Westminster Gazette

Lord Byron in his "Ode to Napoleon" calls him "the Cincinnatus of the West." having a new world on his shoulders he was called the "Atlas of America." The English soldiery called him by the sarcastic nickname of "Lovely Georgius." Red Jacket, the Seneca Indian chief, called him the "Flower of the Forest." Republican Candidate for Congress.

To All Republicans Voters.

At the urgent and insistent requests of many political friends throughout the Second Congressional District I hereby announce my candidacy for the nomination for Congress at the Primaries to be held on May 1, and pledge my friends and supporters if nominated to make the same vivorous campaign on Republican same vigorous campaign on Republican Principles and Doctrines that has characterized my public addresses and campaign utterances in the recent cam-My claim for support of the Republicans in my district is based upon the fact that in 1914 at a late hour (but one month before election) I entered the campaign as candidate with the understanding that if I made a fair run I would receive the backing of the party for the coming election. The excellent run of 1914 is a matter of history.

My claim is founded furthermore on the strenuous work done for the party in the mayoralty campaign last spring, and in the representation of the strenuous work done for the party in the mayoralty campaign last spring, and in the gubernatorial campaign last fall. If nominated I will enter the coming campaign with the same vigor for Protection, Preparedness and Prosperity that has characterized all former campaigns. I shall make my fight if nominated on straight Republican doctrines as laid down by the Chicago platform, and consider myself bound if elected to work for their fulfillment. As I cannot in the short time between now and the primaries see all the voters

Baltimore.-Hell, a region of terror inestimable, an eternal home for the sinners after they leave this earth, was painted in realistic fashion by Rev. Billy Sunday in his sermon to 12,000 men Sunday.

"What will be the end if you obey not the gospels of God," was the text Sunday selected for the sermon, and Sunday answered the text in the one word, "Hell."

"I believe in hell and heaven: I live and try to avoid hell and get to heaven; I die and I go to heaven. You believe death is an eternal sleep; you say there is no hell. All right. You die-and you find out I was right. Where do you head in then?"

This was the way Sunday summed up in the sermon his opinion of those who refute the doctrine of eternal punshment for the unrepentant sinner.

Sunday's defense of the doctrine of that region where Satan rules supreme was an eloquent one. It was replete with appropriate stories of famous men and incidents of those who, in life, boasted their disbelief in a hell for the sinner and who, at death, spent their last hours in agony-agony brought on by visions of the suffering they would undergo for eternity.

Billy also touched on the question of whether or not hell was literally a place of fire. "When God said fire," he declared, "He may have meant it literally; He may have meant it as man knows. In any case, He meant it as a place of terror. And I don't want to go there to find out if God meant fire literally. It doesn't make any difference if there is really fire there if you once get there; you're going to suffer. It doesn't make any difference to me whether or not the streets of heaven are literally paved with gold. I know heaven is a grand place and I want to get there." In the audience was a delegation of about 3,000 Knights of Pythians, some of them in uniform. When, at the conclusion of his sermon, Sunday issued his invitation for trail-hitters, more than 100 of these, led by their flag-bearer, waving Old Glory, came down the saw dust path.

service. The greater part of the audience last night was composed of delegations from various stores, factories, lodges and churches. Many requests for an appearance of the Sunday sextet came from these delegations, and the choristers finally answered the call. "Know thyself a man," was the text the evangelist selected for his afternoon sermon. And this text gave him his best opportunity to show his contempt, his disgust for those who are called 'men by brevet"-those made notorious by T. R.'s denunciation of them as "mollycoddles."

On the platform, about the streets in his home-wherever he goes, in fact -the most noticeable characteristic of Sunday is manliness. The bitterest critics of the evangelist cannot find anything sham about his contempt for the male of the "mollycoddle" type; it is one charge, at least, to which Sunday has never been subjected by his critics. Therefore, Billy's attack on those who are men by name and courtesy only, was bound to be virile; bound to have in it all of the interest, the instruction that Sunday could put

The sermon which Sunday delivered to a mixed audience of about 10,000 Westminster, Md. in the tabernacle in the morning, was one replete with typical Sunday epigrams. It was thought then that Sunday had reached his height in this re-

Proved on the ROADS of AMERICA

Last November a Hundred Studebakers went "4 times around the earth in 48 hours," the most convincing

Stock car test that America has ever seen.

To the man who is going to buy a car, the significance of this Studebaker Reliability Run can not be overestimated for the simple reason that this was a test not of a car especially prepared, on a race course—but a Stock car, the kind of car You get, on the very roads You use.

From towns scattered all over the country, a Hundred Studebakers were off on the task of making 1,000 miles each in 48 hours. Weather and roads everywhere were far below normal even for November. Yet over such roads the 100 cars averaged 1,078 miles in 36 hours and 36 minutes. Over such roads they raced along at an average speed of 27½ miles. Over such roads they averaged nearly 12 miles to the gallon of gasoline. Over such roads with 4 to 7 passengers, they distanced many of the country's crack "Limiteds." Over such roads they ran along without one car experiencing the slightest mechanical troubles.

Over the roads of America, the very roads that Studebaker owners use, Studebaker has overwhelmingly proved its Power, its flexibility, its stamina, and speed and economy. Over the roads of America, Studebaker has proved its unfailing reliability and its undeniable superiority of mechanical design.

More than 228,000 Studebaker cars produced and sold.

The afternoon audience of 10,000 | tion. men responded to the sermon with rounds of spontaneous applause and cheers through the sermon and with trail-hitters at the conclusion of the address.

When Sunday issued his invitation for trail-hitters in the afternoon the first man to respond was the flagbearer for the delegation of 1,000 members of the Junior Order United American Mechanics. This man carried with him down the aisle the big silk. American flag, and it was the signal for cheers from all sections of the house. This delegation sent quite a number of trail-hitters down the saw dust paths. A large number of students from the various colleges and high schools about the city was also on hand in a section reserved, and, when Sunday made a special plea to them to take their stand for Christ, about 25 hit the trail in a body.

Threw Down Gauntlet.

Rev. William Sunday threw down the gauntlet to those who use that statement that tabernacle crowds are only curiosity-seekers, the basis of their criticism of the evangelist.

"Down from your curiosity!" he cried, jumping on his pulpit chair. "Do you want to know why the great majority of people here don't hit the trail? They're too proud to admit that anything vile has come into their lives! They're too proud to admit that they have done anything for God to forgive! But, let me warn them, that unless they are forgiven by God they will rot in hell for eternity!"

Then Billy pointed his attack especially for the church members. "Do you know that, after I had spoken in this way here in another sermon, an old deacon, leaving the tabernacle scratched his chin whiskers, and whined: "I wonder what he means!" And another old deacon answered: 'I didn't quite understand him; but, of course, he dián't mean us officials!' The old sinners! That't it! You're too proud to admit you're an old sinner:"

Billy let up on the deacons and turned to society.

"You're afraid!" he cried. "You're afraid of what your rotten social gang will say. You're more afraid of the sneers and scorn of some old twolegged devil than you are of the frown of God Almighty! You'd rather slap $450. God in the face than slap the face of

BRITISH MUSEUM GETS GEMS

Sir Arthur Herbert Church Bequeathed Rare and Valuable Collection to Famous Institution.

For many years the late Sir Arthur Herbert Church devoted himself to collecting precious stones, with the result that when he died he had one of the finest collections in Great Britain. Whatever speculation may have arisen as to what would become of the collection has been finally laid to rest by the announcement that it has just been given to the British museum. Sir Arthur was long the president of the Mineralogical society and in his exploration work discovered several new minerals. The collection consists of more than 200 stones, mostly mounted Sir Arthur devoted his attention par-The tabernacle was packed to its ticularly to the products of Ceylon and pick of the rarer species of gems that came to light there. To the mineralogist the pride of the collection is a magnificent aurora-red specimen of spessartite, a variety of garnet that seldom provides stones large and clear enough for jewelry purposes. Weighing over six karats and beautifully cut in the modern fashion, the stone stands practically alone in the literature of gems. A Happening at Quince Harbor

By CLARISSA MACKIE Emmonsons

In Quince Harbor village every man is a fisherman. We, the inhabitants, have been brought up as one people, and when anything happens here we all have to hear about it. Perhaps if there were newspapers published every day for us to read about what is going on in the big world we would be less interested in each other's affairs.

Captain Barnabas Fish-every man who owns a boat, be it motorboat or tug, is called captain—has the principal there is nothing to do and the fishermen, their wives and daughters get together, dependent on one another for smoldering there. In some way the amusement, we usually rely on the captain to help us out.

One evening just before supper a lot of us were at Captain Fish's when smoke some one said that nothing had been going on in the village lately and it would be a relief even if there'd be a fire or something to wake us up. Captain Barnabas Fish slowly filled his pipe and packed the tobacco tightly in the bowl with one huge thumb.

His weather beaten countenance was always a barometer of his mental condition, and now, as I watched his blue eyes twinkling merrily, while his generous mouth endeavored to keep itself straight and in proper order, I scented interesting happenings in Quince Harbor village.

Mrs. Fish was sewing rags for a carpet which she said was much needed in the spare bedroom, which I as paying guest was occupying after my custom, and I was sitting idly enjoying the lovely panorama of the village snuggling among the hills that ran down to the harbor, which was half embraced by lines of sandy bluffs.

Captain Barnabas emitted a throaty chuckle. Maria Fish glanced at him sharply, and I inclined my best ear in "For the land sake, Barnabas Fish, what's the matter?" ejaculated Maria "You've been actin' all mornin as if you was chuck full of somethin' funny and was dyin' to tell it out. Did anything happen at the engine company's meetin' last night?"

Captain Barnabas scratched a match lighted his pipe and puffed slowly for several moments.

"It was something I heard at the meeting," he admitted; "something that happened to Ananias Sline."

"Why is it," I asked, with interest "that wherever Ananias Sline is things begin to happen right away?"

"Because he's so deceitful and catfooted that he's always making trouble for somebody," was Maria's prompt answer.

"Likewise amusement," added Caped last week while we was over to camp meeting at Rockybrook, so we missed it. I was in the bank the very next morning, and as I came out Ananlas was polishing the front windows. I thought he looked mighty sour, and. says I in kind of a joking way, 'What you been up to now, Ananias?' And he turned on me like a spiteful little cat, and, says he, 'None of your goldarned business!' So I shifted my helm and steered clear of him, but I knew something had happened to upset him. That night he came to me for help, but he was close mouthed about his trouble.

"Last night at the engine house when the meeting was over some of 'em got to telling stories about fires. and all to once they fell to laffing fit to kill over the fire that started in the widder Rowell's house the night we was over to Rockybrook camp meeting. So me, not being there and not knowing about it, the chief told me the story, and it explains why Ananias is so glum just now and why he looks on all the world as his enemy.

"To begin, it seems that the widder has staying with her a woman can vasser from Little River, her name being Phoebe Pringle, and for looks she's quite a trim sailing little craftnot so tubby as the widder-with a tongue as sharp as her shoulder blades and little black eyes that snap you up

I remembered the episode of the canvasser, and I had enjoyed her battle of wits with Maria Fish, who justly prided herself on her culinary tri-ing her to pudding sauce three times and forgetting all about the widder Rowell, who didn't get any.

"Then, the widder watching them like cat and mouse, it seems Ananias took to writing poetry to Miss Phoebe and leaving it around where she'd be likely to find it. One day he made poem and dropped it in one of her rubber overshoes in the hall rack, and Miss Phoebe were that poem underfoot al one rainy day before she found it, all damp and muddy. Another time he dropped a poem in her umbrella, that being handy, too, in the front hall, and when she opened it in front of the postoffice some silly girls got hold of it when it dropped out, and Miss Phoebe had to pretend she didn't know where it came from.

"I guess Miss Phoebe as well as An anias was having a hard time, both of 'em being under the widder's eagle eye. But it was worse for Ananias, for he had to keep two jealous females apart

"I told you he was double dealing and cat footed," interrupted Maria.

"Well, to make my story short, i seems that the night of the fire the sense of humor among us, and when widder Rowell had been burning some rubbish in her kitchen stove and when she went to bed there were some rags flue was stopped up-swallers' nests in the chimney, I guess-and along about midnight the house was filled full of

> "The widder screeched 'Fire!' and ran out into the road in a blue flannel nightgown, and Miss Phoebe screamed herself hoarse as she stood beside her, she wearing a pink flannel-ahem!' said the captain hurriedly, in response to a warning glance from his wife's

"I don't see why them details are necessary," chided Maria severely. The captain scratched his chin & thoughtfully. 'Seems funnier to think of the two of 'em, one in blue and t'other in pink -well, Maria, I'm going on with the

"Seems Ananias had been out to a lodge meeting and he was just getting home when it happened, and he found them hollering fire. Cap'n Charlie Willis had already telephoned to the engine house, and there was nothing for Ananias to do but try to save some of the valuables.

"It was an exciting scene, Cap'n Charlie says. The widder was hollering for Ananias to go in and save her pocketbook and her gold watch from under her pillow, and Miss Phoebe was screeching at him if he loved her to go and do the same kindness

"So Ananias, being brave in some ways, tied a handkerchief over his mouth and sailed into the house. He had to grope his way around upstairs to find their pillows with the treas-ures under them and not trying to save anything of his own he staggered downstairs again and gave the widder a bundle tied in a handkerchief and another one just like it to Miss Phoebe. Then, being a little man and not much stamina to him, he just fainted away from swallowing too much smoke. Just then the fire company arrived, towing the engine, and by the time they'd flooded the widder's dining room tain Barnabas. "It seems this happen- and kitchen they discovered that the fire was in the stove and nowhere else, but the smoke was all over the house.

"Cap'n Charlie says that them three was the maddest people he ever saw. Both the wimmen being caught dishabilly, as Miss Pringle said, was bad enough, but it seems that Ananias had mixed up the bundles under their pillows, and while the widder had Miss Phoebe's watch and pocketbook and a small cargo of Ananias' poems to her (one of them was called, 'To my Phoebe Bird,") why Miss Phoebe had the widder's watch and money and a package of Ananias' love letters tied with a blue ribbon-Maria, do you sleep with my love letters tied with a blue ribbon under your pillow?" demanded the captain, turning to his good wife.

"Do go on, Barnabas. We're dying to hear the rest of it," urged Maria. "Well, the rest of it was a terrible wrangle between the widder and Miss Phoebe Pringle when the two ladies exchanged private and personal property and private and personal opinions of each other, and their opinions wasn't flattering, neither. As for Ananias, when he found out what had happened he give himself up for lost, and naturally he come to me to weather the gale. Miss Phoebe went hot foot back to Little River, while the widder's been busy cleaning up her house.

"And where's Ananias been keeping himself all this time?" asked Maria suspiciously

Captain Barnabas removed his pipe from his lips and pointed out to the bay where his ship, the Indus, lay at anchor, enjoying an idle old age in her home port.

"Ananias shipped aboard the Indus the very next day, and if you look you will see his little dory bobbing out toward her now. I reckon he's got his victuals in a basket, and he cooks for himself, and he'll have a quiet, peace ful time till the widder Rowell for-"Well, it seems Ananias met this gives him and sends for him to come back again.'

"How about Miss Phoebe Pringle and her blighted affections?" I asked curi-

"Homely as a scrag fence!" interpolated Maria.

"Miss Phoebe-why, she took her and she's having the poems that Ananias wrote to her all printed in the Little River Echo with her own name signed to 'em, and Ananias is bitter word.

"That's the punishment of the deceitlittle attentions, like passing the but- ful and the cat-footed," said Maria as

NE OF THE most persistent advertisers in the history of success was ROBINSON CRUSOE. He knew what he wanted—a ship—and he put up an "ad" for one. He tied a shirt on the end of a pole, stuck the pole in the ground on the highest point of his island—and his "ad" flapped in the ocean breeze. That, in the language of the sea—was very plain to every seafaring man. Despite the fact that he got no inquiries for a long time—R. C. kept at it. In the end, he got what he wanted, was happy, and his name and fame are with us today. We've put up our signal—and intend to keep it flung to your gaze. Shall we call, or will you send, or call? This office received a shipment of paper, this week, such as is used for the RECORD, that cost just $88.50 more than the same quantity cost two months ago. Without some increase in revenue from the RECORD itself, this means a clear loss of the amount named. The same shipment, if the order was placed now, would cost us just $88.50 more, or an advance of 3 cents per pound.

A largely signed petition was circulated, this week, favoring the building of a pike from Taneytown to the Pennsylvania line on the Taneytown and Littlestown road, which would be a continuation of the Taneytown-Keymar road, connecting up Frederick with Hanover and York, Pa. The length of the road is about six miles. As there is a macadamized road part of the way from Littlestown toward the Maryland line, the completion of the Pennsylvania end of the road would be a small matter.

The Westminster Times says: "The causes as much hard feelings in a locality as for chickens to wander on a neighbor's premises and garden. Some say they do not do any harm. That makes no difference, your neighbor does not want to be annoyed with your chickens and you should not cause trouble by allowing your fowl to run at large. A hen that will not stay in the enclosuae will usually make a fine Sunday dinner."

Luxury In Puritan Days.

At no time, of course, was luxury completely absent from America. Men spend when the purse is full, even though the purse be small. Not all the sumptuary laws of seventeenth cenmry Massachusetts could prevent so ber Puritans from launching into extravagance, from purchasing apparel-"wollen, silke or lynnen with lace on It, silver, golde, silke or threed." Even the pious slid back into embroidered doublets with slashed sleeves into "gold or silver girdles, hatt bands, belts, ruffs, beaver hatts," while women of no particular rank appeared in forbidden silk and tiffany hoods. A century later we encounter disapproval of John Hancock's "show of extravagance in living." of his French and English furniture, his dances, dinners, carriages, wine cellars and fine clothes. Washington starved with his soldiers at Valley Forge, but lived like an English gentleman in his home at Mount Vernon. Luxury, pomp, ceremoniai were not absent in the eighteenth century.-Walter E. Weyl in Harper's Magazine.

WM. J. HEAPS-FOR CONGRESS.

Dr. William James Heaps, of Baltimore, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Congres in the Second Congressional District. Mr. Heaps is a Carroll County boy, and for a number of years was the principal of the Winfield Academy. He is one o the leading educators of the State and as President of Milton University, Baltimore, has contributed much to the equipment of many young men for their work. Prominent and active in fraternal work, he is well known not only in Maryland but nationally has won for himself a position of influence in many directions.

The writer, in the absence from duty of his father, who is the editor of the Sen-tinel, now confined to his bed with a severe attack of illness, does not assume to speak for The Sentinel officially, expresses simply his own positive and fixed conviction that Mr. Heaps should be given the Republican nomination without a primary contest, and that should there be any other contestant for the honor, be should be given an overwhelming majority in the primary. He bases that opinion on his personal knowledge of the man and of the circumstances under which Mr. Heaps accepted his party's nomina-tion and made such a splendid canvass and such a magnificant showing in the election two years ago. It will be remembered that at that time the nomination "went begging," and that there was no aspirant for the honor. With little hope of success, the party managers in the dis-trict urged Mr. Heaps to lead the almost forlorn hope. For ten days he considered the matter, and then against the advice of many friends, among whom was the writer, he made the sacrifice of time. money and strength, and accepted the nomination. In view of these facts, it seems to the writer that it is beyond all question the duty not only of all Mr. Heaps's personal friends, but of the leaders of the party in every section of the district, to stand by him as loyally at this time as he stood by the party two years ago. No possible stronger candidate can be named, and possessing some elements of strength which no other possible candidate has, i the party will give him ardent support from now until the election in November, with him as the party standard-bearer, his rallying cry "Protection, Progress and Prosperity," William James Heaps will be the next Congressman from the Sec-
