BRIEF NEWS NOTES

OF GENERAL INTEREST.

Gleaned from the County and State and our Exchanges.

All Chicago newspapers are expected to advance to two cents next week.

An attempt was made, on Tuesday, to assassinate Emperor William of Germany, while he was riding in an automobile in Berlin. Two bullets struck the car, and another went wild. The news comes by way of Rome and details are lacking.

The P. O. S. of A. Reserves, of Pennsylvania, have established a Camp at Scranton, Pa., where the different divisions will be assembled preparatory to being regularly mustered into service. There are at present about 1000 in the Camp. A Company from Hanover left for the Camp, on Monday night.

Tillable land belonging to the United States Government around Gettysburg will be given to pupils of the local public schools for cultivation during the summer months. This fact was made known in a letter to Dr. H. B. Moyer, principal of the schools, from the Gettysburg National Park Commission.

One of the American industries said to be suffering from the war, and the times generally, is professional baseball. The attendance at games so far this season has been small, by comparison, and managers are said to be about to get together to arrange, not only to cut salaries, but to reduce the number of players.

A verdict of $10,000 was rendered in the Gettysburg Court in favor of Mrs. Annie K. Eline, Baltimore, who brought suit against the W. M. R. E. for alleged negligence in causing the death of her husband, J. Frank Eline, on May 13, 1913, when his automobile was struck by a train of that company at a crossing, west of York.

The wooden fleet whereby the United States was to float a thousand ships a year to carry commerce to the Allies seems in danger of falling through. Major General Goethals, head of the shipping program, is steadily opposed to the wooden ships and in favor of steel craft which would stand up better, and because of greater numbers of available workmen, could be built more quickly.

Official wheat crop estimates announced this week show that with the world facing a bread shortage the United States, unless it cuts its present consumption, probably will produce only enough wheat this year to supply its own population. The forecast, compiled by the Department of Agriculture on conditions May 1st, put this country's winter wheat yield at 366,000,000 bushels, the smallest in 13 years.

Estimates that 308,749 negroes have quit the South within the last 8 months to seek employment in the North, have been compiled by the Colored Citizens' Patriotic League. It is said most of the negroes went to munition plants and that 73,000 went to Pennsylvania alone. The departure of negroes has raised such a labor problem in the South that employers are alarmed and the Federal Department of Labor has been investigating.

Louis Chevrolet in his Frontenac car, which won the race at the opening of the speedway in Uniontown, Pa., last December, lowered the track record of ninety-nine miles per hour when Monday afternoon in the qualifying and elimination trials for next Thursday's race; he made the trial lap at the rate of one hundred miles per hour. Thirteen drivers qualified in the elimination trials, Ira Vail in a Hudson being second, with a record of 98.1 miles per hour.

A bill recently signed by the governor of Iowa makes it a misdemeanor to advertise in any manner by signs, circulars, newspapers, magazines or otherwise any liquor whatever, or to publish or circulate any periodical, circular or other written or printed matter, or permit any sign on one's premises containing a liquor advertisement. Buildings, etc., used in producing, exhibiting or keeping for distribution any such advertisements or any periodicals containing them are declared public nuisances, subject to injunction and abatement.

Enforcement of the dog license law in many of the counties of Pennsylvania last year reduced by 50 percent the losses in sheep killed and injured by dogs running at large, as compared with the figures of 1915. In 1915 there were 5808 sheep killed and 4764 injured, but last year this number was reduced to 3723 killed and 2891 injured. This damage to the sheep raisers of Pennsylvania resulted in $53,969.44 being paid by the counties in 1915 and $49,401.54 in 1916. The greatly increased price of sheep makes the proportion paid per sheep much greater last year than in 1915. The average price was $5.23 last year, as compared with $6.70 in 1915, for sheep killed, and $3.70, as compared with $2.87 for sheep injured.

OUR NEW "MODEL K" LINOTYPE.

The RECORD has felt compelled to add to its equipment, a Linotype. The purchase has been in contemplation for several years, and within the past six months conditions practically forced the materialization of the thought in mind. Our machine is known as the "Model K," and is of the double-magazine type, supplemented by an additional magazine, which gives us a very versatile machine, covering a very wide range of work.

The Linotype is not, as some may think, an office luxury, or ornament, but a very expensive piece of labor and time saving machinery. It not only means a heavy initial investment, but considerable additional expense for operation and maintenance; but this we think the business of our office justifies, and we hope to find it not only a big addition to the facilities of our office, but profitable as well.

Like any other complicated piece of machinery, it will take time to become familiar with it, and for a while there will likely be a good many typographical errors, but in due time we hope to have it going as a fully established fixture, and wondering how we ever got along without it.

Just now, we are not courting visitors, but in a few weeks, when the going is easier, we will be glad to have our friends come in and see the wonderful composing machine work.

A Meeting For Farmers.

This Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, Grover Kinzy, County Agent, will hold a conference in the Opera House, Westminster, on "Agricultural Efficiency" along the lines laid down by Gov. Harrington. It will be noted that the hour of this meeting has been changed from 2 o'clock to 11 o'clock. All of the farmers of the county are invited to attend.

Governor Harrington, fresh from the Conference of Governors, will speak at 11 o'clock, sharp, on questions of vital importance at this time to the Nation, State and County. Pres. Patterson and Miss Pritchard, of the State Agricultural College, will speak in the afternoon. The County Preparedness Committee and the County Agent's Advisory Committee will have a joint meeting at the close of the public meeting.

District Sunday School Rally.

Myers' District Sunday School Rally, third of a series of rallies to be held throughout the county, will be held on Sunday, at 2:30 P. M., at Silver Run, May 13th, under the auspices of the County Association, in St. Mary's Reformed church. Among the Speakers will be Rev. C. W. Walck, Pastor of St. Paul's Reformed church, Westminster, and Rev. S. R. Downie, of Taneytown, and the Department Officers of the Association.

Paper to be Higher.

From a careful reading of a lengthy article on the paper situation, which goes very extensively and in detail into paper manufacturing costs, the indications are for considerably higher prices, as well as for many less grades of paper, within the coming year, especially if the submarine warfare interference with foreign commerce continues, and our preparations for war at home are uninterfered with.

Very much of the information we now get, as to trade conditions, is of the suspicious character as to truthfulness, but, so far as the paper question is concerned, we are of the opinion that those who may be contemplating "holding off" placing orders for printing, on account of present prices, will make a mistake if they do so, but had better place their orders now, and be glad if they get just what they want, or near it.

Even at the present advance of from 50 to 100 percent over old prices, we believe paper of almost any kind would be a good investment for surplus money. The trouble with most printers is that they don't get money enough ahead with which to make anything like worth while investment.

The Gladfelter paper mills, at Spring Grove, are temporarily closed down, it is said because of inability to secure shipments of the right kind of pine wood needed. Shortage of freight cars is said to be the main trouble.

THE CARROLL COUNTY G. E. CONVENTION.

To be held in Taneytown, this year Beginning May 31.

The following is a brief outline of the County G. E. Convention to be held this year, as definitely as it can be given at this time.

May 31, at 10:30 A. M., address of welcome by Rev. Seth Russell Downie, response by Harry B. Fogle, County President, followed by reception of delegates and enrollment of the same. These services in the Presbyterian church.

In the afternoon, at 1:30, in the Lutheran church, the annual Junior Rally will be held under the leadership of Mrs. John D. Belt. In the evening the convention sermon will be delivered by Rev. W. H. Hetrick, of Westminster, topic "Prepare Ye the Way."

On Friday, June 1, at 8:30 A. M., in the U. B. church (doors closed) the quiet hour, Rev. G. E. Snyder, Middletown, Md. At 9:00 A. M., (doors open) devotional program, Rev. F. M. Cliff, Union Bridge. At 10:30, address by Cortland B. Springer, State President, Baltimore; Conference on "Our Standard," by E. Spencer Sisco, Baltimore.

At 1:30 P. M., in the Presbyterian church, business session of Executive Committee; 2:00 o'clock, address "Young Peoples' Need," by Rev. Edgar T. Read, Westminster. Conferences "Comrades for the Quiet Hour; Prayers and Their Earnestness," by Mr. Elmer Gentz, leader. At 3:30 special program in C. E.

At 7:30 P. M., in the Lutheran church, Devotional Song Service—Prayer Meeting, 8:00 P. M., address "Spiritual Fitness," by Rev. J. H. Kistler, D. D., Baltimore.

Anniversary of Col. Goulden's Death.

A Solemn mass of requiem was celebrated in the Church of our Lady of Mercy, New York, on Thursday morning of last week, in memory of the late Hon. Jos. A. Goulden, who died two years ago, May 3rd. The Evening Bronx mentions the event both in a lengthy news article, and editorially, showing that the Colonel is still held in memory there, as in Taneytown and Carroll County.

Smaller Daily Papers.

It is noticeable that many of the issues of our daily papers are much smaller than they were formerly, and that when they are large, it is usually to accommodate advertising. The bulk of reading matter has been greatly reduced, and much that is given is of the class that is not expensive to get.

Spring Care of Bees.

In view of the probable shortage of the domestic sugar supply this year, it is highly desirable that beekeepers increase the production of honey to the greatest possible extent. To this end immediate steps should be taken to insure the proper building up of the colonies before the honey flow begins.

Bees need just three things during the spring, and all of these can be readily supplied by the beekeeper. These are plenty of stores, plenty of room for brood rearing, and plenty of protection. The stores should have been provided last fall, but in case colonies are found which are not abundantly supplied a sirup of granulated sugar should be fed. Small quantities from day to day are usually less valuable than a considerable quantity all at one time. This may be given on any warm day, and should, if convenient, be fed in a feeder entirely inside the hives.

Room for breeding usually can be given by providing each strong colony with two hive bodies as soon as freezing weather has passed. The one-story 10-frame Langstroth hive is usually not large enough for a good queen during the spring, and of course, smaller hives cramp the colony still more. Extra room will be valuable unless abundant stores are provided and unless the queen is prolific.

In any locality where the temperature drops to freezing in winter bees need winter protection, but many beekeepers fail to realize this. If proper protection has been given during winter, this should be left on the hives as long as possible. Even if colonies have been neglected during the winter, spring protection may help wonderfully in permitting the bees to build up in time for the honey flow. Protection from wind is quite desirable.

If the bees have been adequately cared for, spring manipulations usually are not necessary, but every beekeeper should be sure that his bees are well supplied with the three essentials for intensive brood rearing. Every beekeeper should bend every energy this year to increasing the production of honey. He will not only find it profitable since prices will doubtless be good, but he will be aiding the country by providing a product of high food value when other sugars are scarce.

Johns Hopkins Summer Courses For Teachers.

The momentous changes in the international affairs of the country will not interfere with the plans for the Summer Courses which the University has announced. The season will open on Tuesday, June 26th, and close on Tuesday, August 7th. The educational needs of the State, particularly as indicated in the new school law, have been kept in view in planning for the session. Provision is made whereby superintendents, supervisors, attendance officers, high school principals and teachers, elementary school principals and teachers, rural teachers, and persons planning to teach in public schools the first time, will be able to secure the courses they need to make suitable professional advancement and meet requirements for certificates. The program includes over one hundred courses, an increase of forty per cent over last year.

The Rural Demonstration School of seven grades, which has been a leading feature during recent years, will be continued. A new feature will be the Graded Demonstration School, including separate classes in various grades. Practice teaching in classes in drawing, modelling and designing will also be offered. Supervisors, principals and teachers will thus have special opportunities for becoming acquainted with new methods and devices for meeting their particular problems.

The scope of the courses includes graduate and undergraduate work. The departments will be biology, chemistry, classical archaeology, domestic sciences, economics, education, English composition and literature, Fine Arts, French, geography, German, history, Latin, manual training, mathematics, philosophy, penmanship, physics, politics, psychology, Semitics, and Spanish. Teachers wishing to do work for the Bachelor of Science and Master of Arts degrees, which are open to men and women, may select their courses according to this purpose.

The University is now enabled for the first time to hold the summer session at Homewood. The new buildings and the extensive grounds, with woods, gardens, and athletic field, offer the most favorable conditions under which summer work can be conducted.

To "do its bit" towards industrial preparedness, the University will have school gardens on the campus for increasing the supply of vegetables.

District S. S. Institute.

On Sunday afternoon, May 20th, in the Reformed church, Taneytown, a Sunday School Institute of marked interest will be held. All schools in the Taneytown District should be fully represented by properly accredited delegates. Attendance, however, is not restricted to delegates only.

Everybody is most cordially invited to be on hand. The County President and Secretary, as well as several heads of departmental work, will address the gathering. And of course, there will be plenty of good music by our own home folks. Mark the date on your calendar—and be sure to bring your friends and neighbors with you.

DRAFTING TO BEGIN WITHIN THREE WEEKS.

Roosevelt Volunteer Divisions are Ruled Out.

Washington, May 10th.—The long deadlock of Senate and House conferences on the Selective Draft Military bill was broken today with agreement on a compromise measure under which a great war army would be raised by selective conscription of men between the ages of 21 and 31.

Authorization for recruiting Colonel Roosevelt's proposed volunteer division for service in France, written into the bill by the Senate and defended stubbornly by the Senate conferees, finally was thrown out on the insistence of committeemen representing the House.

The conference report is expected to be given approval by both Senate and House in a few days, and within two weeks after the President has affixed his signature registration of those eligible for conscription will be under way throughout the country. Some states already have selected their registration boards and the War Department has erected a vast and intricate war machine for assigning and organizing the men drafted. They will be assembled at training camps in September.

The compromise bill is understood to be generally satisfactory to the Administration and to the Army General Staff, on whose advice the measure was framed. The most important changes made in Congress was in the age limits, fixed by the staff at 19 and 25, inclusive. The Senate made them 21 and 27 and the House 21 and 40. The ages named in the conference agreement are 21 and 30, inclusive, making the draft applicable to all male voters under 31.

Republicans in the Senate who have favored giving Colonel Roosevelt authority to raise and take American troops to France declared tonight that an effort would be made on the floor to have the Senate insist on the retention of the feature. Another vote on the proposal may also be forced in the House which has once rejected it. The general expectation, however, is that the conference decision will prevail.

The prohibition provision agreed to exclude liquor, beer and wines from any military post, but does not forbid selling or giving these beverages to soldiers except when in uniform. It may not suit some of the radical prohibitionists, but in view of its broad character they are expected to accept it without a fight.

The House provision for the advancement in the pay of enlisted men of the Army by a horizontal increase of $15 per month for the period of the war was materially modified. Under the compromise provision the advances in the pay of soldiers will be as follows: Enlisted men of the Army of the United States in active service, whose base pay is $30, $36, or $40, per month, shall receive an increase of $10 per month; those whose base pay is $24, pay is an increase of $8; and those whose base pay is $45 or more, an increase of $5 per month.

The Senate also accepted the provisions inserted by the House to the effect that under no circumstances were bounties to be paid to recruits or substitutes accepted for service in lieu of the men conscripted.

Charles Mahanna and Mary A. E. Leister, both of Roseville.

Board of Education News.

The Board of Education met in regular session May 2, 1917. After the reading of minutes of previous meeting and approval of bills, the regular order of business was taken up.

Among the items considered was the report of the Committee regarding the leasing of the Academy Building at Manchester, for the expansion of High School facilities in the community.

Requests were made by the following teachers who had raised various sums of money locally in their schools for contributions from the Board for libraries and other purposes: Frankie Wetzel, teacher, Hood's Mills; Harvey T. Rill, teacher, Fairmount, and Virginia C. Merritt, teacher, Deep Run.

The Board next proceeded to the appointment of Trustees for the coming years, one for one year, one for two years and one for three years, according to the law.

The Board authorized the purchasing of specially prepared song books from Thomas L. Gibson Publishing Co., Baltimore, Md., to be furnished to all the schools next year.

The bids for coal received from various coal dealers throughout the county were presented to the Board and the Superintendent was authorized to accept these various bids and order the coal.

Requests were granted for the use of Mt. Airy grounds for Chautauqua purposes and the Silver Run school building for Boy Scout meetings during the summer months—these were granted.

Commissioner Allender laid before the Board the desirability of purchasing the lot adjoining the Hampstead school property, and action upon this matter was postponed until the next meeting, for further action.

A committee of colored people came before the Board for the purpose of calling the Board's attention to the necessity of new or repaired school buildings at White Rock, Hood's Mills, Johnsville, and Fairview. These matters were postponed for further consideration at the next meeting.

The Board authorized the Superintendent to prepare the annual budget to be presented to the County Commissioners before the next annual levy.

There being no further business, the Board adjourned.

Probable War Taxes.

Among the new war taxes the following are forecasted:

An increased tax on liquors of $2.20 instead of $1.10 a gallon, and other increases on beer and wines.

An increase on inheritances and incomes generally, of a much wider scope than at present.

Stamp taxes on medicines, perfumery and a long list of proprietary articles.

Pullman car tickets, sporting goods, jewelry and theatre tickets.

Playing cards, and increase on tobacco and cigars.

Letter postage probably 3 cents instead of two cents.

Postage rates on newspapers and magazines likely further increased—not definitely decided.

A general increase in import duties—commonly called "the tariff."

Freight 3 percent of freight rates.

Heat, light and telephone bills.

Automobiles taxed 5 percent at point of manufacture.

Musical instruments exceeding $10 in value, to be taxed 5 percent.

Fire, Life and Accident Insurance Policies.

Newspaper advertisements 5 percent.

The Revenue bill has not yet been passed, and there will be many changes and amendments up to the last minute, as every interest affected will oppose taxation.

No Indications of Early Peace.

Two items are now apparently standing out prominently in the war news, both of which are against the allies, and largely discount the recent gains made by the English and French against the Germans.

The one is that the Russians are doing very little fighting, and show a decided disposition to quit. At least, the new Russian government is not prosecuting the war with any vigor, and the people are not united, while many of the Russian troops are openly fraternizing with the Germans, at the various fronts, and this fact is reported to have left the Germans shift many divisions of their western front against the allies.

The other is that the German submarines are succeeding in destroying very many vessels loaded with supplies for the allies, and this feature of the war is unquestionably very serious—more serious perhaps than even the news reports indicate, which may be so much censored that this country does not have a fair presentation of the exact situation.

At any rate, an early end of the war is not in sight, and hope in this direction is not nearly so bright as it was a few months ago. The central powers are holding out miraculously, in spite of all predictions of internal dissension and need.

Former President Taft, in an address Saturday night on the aims of the League to Enforce Peace, declared nothing can be accomplished permanently for peace until Emperor William of Germany and Emperor Charles of Austria "have been relegated to the rear." "We are in the war," said Mr. Taft, "to say: 'Mr. Hohenzollern and Mr. Hapsburg, you've got to get out the same as Mr. Romanoff got out, so we can have peace.'" Mr. Taft said that "if ever this nation will be in a League to Enforce Peace, it is now." "We don't expect to abolish war," he said "We do intend to make it as improbable as human nature will permit."

The Aftermath.

The close student of the times in which we live finds abundance of the world's worst war, as it relates itself to what will surely happen
when peace is once again restored.
He is told of war's total abolition, of the passing of monarchies and crowned heads, of a league to enforce permanent peace, of a world court which shall police all nations into self-respecting conduct toward each other, of a greater unity among the English-speaking race, of the reign of democracies from one end of the earth to the other, of the final and complete overthrow of King Alcohol; of Europe's riddance of the unspeakable Turk—and what not.
So, the glories of peace become far more honorable than the glories of war. All this is glad news for a war-worried world.

But what of the evils that of dire necessity must inevitably fall to mankind's lot? Devastated lands, despoiled cities, demolished shrines,
depleted populations, the nightmare of national debts, shattered homes, crippled men, broken-hearted women—where ends the train of ghastly toll?

And there's race-hatred! Think,
if one dare of the bitterness between the government and peoples of Germany and England—not to go any farther on our count! The world's next great challenge must of necessity address itself to race prejudice
to show cause for its existence, no matter how evident is the argument
put up by despisers of their fellows.
Old as national life itself, why shall race-prejudice not find itself on the scrap-heap of the many things that the bloodiest of wars has been slowly piling up?

Why has this spirit of hatred survived in a rapidly developing world anyhow? Is it not because race prejudice has cheated men into thinking of itself as something inevitable—something fundamental—
a sort of self-preservation instinct,
a social safe-guard, or, worse yet, a fine large loyalty like patriotism?

This old barbaric dislike for men
of another tribe, another race—
negro, Japanese, Jew, peasant immigrant—and now, German—this notion that men unlike ourselves are no men at all—can that idea hold up its head when men are today fighting
a bloody warfare in defense of national fraternity, for friendly reciprocity, of esteem among all peoples, for a possible "parliament of men"? If America is to make indelible impress upon the world in her fight for humanity's rights, she can do no better thing than make clear the silliness
and disaster of national selfishness
and vanity which by reason of race hatred repudiates the spirit of the reign of universal democracy and contradicts the rule of a clear chance for the people of the earth to rise to the highest pinnacle of real human brotherhood; not inter-racial hatred
but inter-racial friendliness is to help
the destiny of all humanity always upward.

Heaven speed the day when every social force helps bring in this great idealism. And yet, much of the force of this great lesson which the world was teaching us will be utterly dissipated in desert air unless the voice of democracy accepts the great obligation and begins now to make itself heard with convincing, yes, compelling earnestness above the roar of hatred's hellish howl on the fields of a battle-torn world. It is America's chance. Let us help her seize it.

Make Prompt Payments.

In this mix-up of conditions that makes high prices, and which does not equally distribute receipts and expenditures, it will help a great deal if everybody is punctual in meeting his financial obligations.
"Pay as you go" will be a better motto than ever, for if one's income is slack as compared with outgo, getting into debt will be much easier—
and that is always to be avoided—
while if there is something like equality between the two—income and outgo—paying prompt may help
the other fellow who is not so fortunate.

We want to urge, again, the truth,
that bills are sent out to be paid.
When a business man sends a statement, he means that he wants the money, and usually that he needs it.
There is greatly too much carelessness in the matter of paying bills;
and we fear, not always carelessness
but design, in holding back payment
as long as possible. Don't do it; it is not fair, and it hurts.

Just now is a good time for the exercise of good business rules—sound financial practices. There is perhaps no need, yet, for the practice of rigid economy, but it is at least a good time to look around and stop a lot of indulgences and practices that cost money, without any real benefit in return. Before complaining of high prices and big expense, be sure that you are not to blame for part of your "shortness," at least.

Good Roads and the Cost of Living.

No matter how heavy taxation for war purposes may be the community must keep up its ordinary everyday facilities for doing business. Good roads are the foremost of those facilities. They are a part of the general scheme for national preparedness.
The country can not be efficient unless it provides highways over which our produce can be hauled at the least expense for truckage.

One of the items in cost of living is the expense of hauling produce over bad roads. Whenever a community improves its roads, it can put its produce on the market for less money. If it gets the same prices that other people get, its producers are able to do business for the minimum expense and they prosper correspondingly.

Labor, horseflesh, gasoline, and motor trucks cost high. A pair of horses working on a smooth hard road will do the work of two pairs on a bad road. The cost of help is likewise cut in two.

Many places that are some distance from the railroads, yet are able to get their farm produce to market chiefly by having a good road over which to draw it. They get all the advantages of inexpensive living that go with the country, and at the same time pay only a reasonable charge for hauling. It is a sound basis for prosperity and can't be beaten.

Rough, uneven pavements in the business portions of towns also add to the wear and tear and expense of doing business. Horses haul loads over such streets with difficulty, and can not draw heavy weights. It takes more gasoline for motors, and increases the strain on the machinery of a truck. All these expenses are finally settled by the consumer. But because people do not get it in tangible form like a tax bill, they do not realize that they have to pay it.
These are things to ponder when the time of year comes for work on the roads, and when some people are inclined to growl about the heavy bills.—Frederick News.

As To War Taxation.

One of the most important commercial bodies in the United States,
after expressing entire sympathy with a great war bond issue, and with a great plan of raising revenue for the purpose of meeting the indebtedness thus created, and especially with the plans for the taxation of things in common use, whether these articles are for pleasure or for business, intimates very clearly that it will be found opposing any movement calculated to bear upon excess profits. It is remarkable that such an institution as the one here referred to should be so obtuse to the trend of popular thought in the United States as not to see that any system of Federal taxation that does not strike directly, and even mercilessly, at excess profits will be popularly condemned.

However it may be put, what the people of the United States are determined upon, unless all signs are misleading, is that the surplus wealth
the unearned increment of that wealth, the wealth that is piled up from year to year from accumulations of excess profits, shall be taxed to pay its full share, and this a mighty share, of the cost of the war.

The man on salary or wage, even if it barely exceeds $1,000 a year;
the man who owns a little home, or
a few securities; the man who consumes taxed necessities, or taxed luxuries in a moderate way, the ordinary or average fairly well-to-do citizen will be found willing to shoulder his share of the war burden; if he shall be accorded a square deal,
in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred
he will be found bearing his share,
and sometimes more than his share,
cheerfully, but he will not willingly bear a part of the share of those who
who have already taxed his industry
and the industry of millions like him,
excessively in order to pile up profits to the aggregate of billions. The capitalists of the country would do well to consider that the people who are forced to contribute toward the pyramiding of excess profits are not submitting to this exaction willingly and that only a sufficient amount of provocation is required to cause them completely to break away from a system which makes such profits possible.

It is not good policy, it is not good judgment, it is not even good sense,
for any body of men representing or speaking for capital at this time, to hint, or allow it to be understood that those who have become multi-millionaires, though sharing in excess, and, in some cases, dishonest profits, are not willing to do their full part for the country in the present crisis. They should carefully study the President's appeal to the people.—Christian Science Monitor.

Road to Happiness

Be amiable, cheerful and good natured and you are much more likely to be happy. You will find this difficult, if not impossible, however, when you are constantly troubled with constipation. Take Chamberlain's Tablets and get rid of that and it will be easy. These tablets not only move the bowels, but improve the appetite
and strengthen the digestion.

Shut Out The Luxuries

"Stop luxury imports," says the New York Evening Mail:

During the last eight months we imported more than $300,000,000 of goods whose consumption might be heavily curtailed without injury to ourselves. Some of them are art works, $17,000,000; handkerchiefs
and other manufactures of linen,
$48,000,000; hats and bonnets, $9,
000,000; diamonds and other precious stones, $32,000,000. The European belligerents long ago forbade the importation of luxuries. We cannot ship to England today anything except what is necessary for her protection of the war. The reason is that she refuses to give us a claim upon the labor of her country necessary for the national defense. The need in England and France is no greater than it is here. There is no earthly reason why we should give the silk exporters of Japan and the owners of Diamond mines in Kimberly a right to direct the labor of the United States in this emergency.
There is a bill to empower the President to forbid such exports as he sees fit. Let him be empowered to forbid imports as well.

Still better, let the President urge upon Congress an all-round increase of the Tariff on all competitive importations. Put the rates of duty back to a protective basis. As a matter of fact all imports are luxuries which consist of goods which we can and ought to produce for ourselves. Yes; stop luxury imports.
Stop them by a tariff that is inten-
tally and effectively for Protection.—
American Economist.

Country Publishers and Subscrip- tion Prices.

Sound business judgment demands that country publishers give serious and immediate thought to the question of raising subscription prices.
The cost of newspaper production is increasing rapidly, and indications are that it is not a temporary condition. Facts must be looked squarely in the face. Everything that enters into the manufacture and handling of the newspaper is higher in price than it was a year ago, and there is a strong probability that higher prices will prevail a year from now.
The paper situation alone warrants serious consideration of raising selling prices. There is no doubt that high rates of paper will continue for some time, and as the war situation develops the difficulty of getting paper
even at high prices will be great.

Railroad transportation is bound to be increasingly difficult. Government demand for transit of munitions and foodstuffs must take precedence, and so deliveries are likely to be less frequent. If the situation becomes acute and the government demands on the railroads grow here as they have grown abroad the four-page newspaper in place of the eight page newspaper is plainly in sight.
Then, too, an increase in the postal rate seems to be a certainty. Efforts made to fool country publishers into the belief that the proposed rates will not affect them may succeed to some extent, but they will not alter

the facts.

Once the postal rates are up for the metropolitan dailies and the national weeklies, the country publisher can look with certainty for an attack on his preserves from every point of the compass. So far as the second class postal rates are concerned, publishers must hang together or they will hang separately.

Soaring prices, however, need not be a cause of serious worry to the publisher, if he meets the issue fairly and with decision. The butchers have not gone out of business because the price of meat has mounted to the sky, and there is no reason why the publishers should go out of business or even worry about the situation if he fixes his prices fairly to meet conditions. Newspapers are no longer luxuries. They are necessities, and an honest price must and will be paid for them. It will be paid, too, without complaint if the paper be worthy of consideration.
Reports from varying sections of the country show that where prices have been raised little or no loss of circulation has been felt, and unless there are local conditions of an unusual character to be taken into consideration the likelihood is that most communities will be willing to pay a fair price for their home newspaper.

Certainly, if subscription rates
are to be raised, now is the psychological time to raise them.

An opportunity to put the newspapers of the country on a business
basis such as exists today has not occurred in fifty years, and it is not likely to be as propitious for the publisher six months hence as it is today.

If transportation difficulties make smaller newspapers a necessity the raising of prices at the time of reducing sizes might lead to serious complications. But if prices be raised now and subscribers become used to their small additional payment the increased income, coupled with the reduction in the volume of paper used, will place publishers on a business footing on which they can stand without worry.—American Press.

ABOUT INSECTS.

Why They Are Strong Out of All Proportion to Size.

Recent experiments with insects have demonstrated their remarkable muscular power. A wood beetle weighing 1.86 grams and less than two inches long can pull a little wagon loaded with fifty-six grams, or thirty times its own weight. When a load of eighty-four grams was piled on the wagon the beetle pulled it an inch. This was forty-five times its own weight.
When its legs were attached to a small dynamometer the insect exerted a force of fifteen grams, which is as if a man weighing 200 pounds were able to raise a ton.

A hercules beetle proved his right to the appellation, for, though he weighed only 6.5 grams and was only three inches long, he pulled 115
grams and walked off with a weight of five pounds on his back. If a proportionate weight were put on a man
he would be crushed to death.

A housefly, held by the wings and brought close to a match, lifted it up by its feet. To perform a proportionate feat a man would have to lift a beam twenty-six feet long and thirteen inches thick.

It is an old story that a flea can jump 200 times its own height in the air. A man would have to jump over the 1,000 foot high Eiffel tower to equal the feat.

The muscles in insects are actually much larger proportionately than in man. Professor A. Schmidt estimates that if an ant can pull an object of ten times its own weight a man would equal the task if he lifted a weight one-twentieth that of his body. This is explicable on the basis of the far greater muscular equipment of the ant,
as compared with man.

How to Cleanse Curtains So They Look Like New.

After shaking out the loose dirt cover curtains with cold water. Cut up half a bar of good white soap, add a large tablespoonful of borax and melt to a jelly with hot water. Take this from the stove and add half a cupful of kerosene. Make a thick hot suds with part of this mixture and boiling water. Squeeze curtains from cold water and dip one at a time into the hot suds. The dirt will simply run out.
Put through a second lighter suds,
rinse in hot water, starch, adding a little bluing, and put on stretchers.
The result is curtains which look almost like new and are not worn out in washing. With two large pans this can be done in bathroom or kitchen.
This mixture is sufficient for four pairs
of curtains.

Poultry Farming

CARE OF A SITTING HEN.

Suggestions That Should Prove of Value to Poultry Raisers.
[Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

The care given a sitting hen plays an important part in determining the number and condition of the chickens when hatched, and the following suggestions should aid poultry owners to obtain better results.

If several hens are sitting in the same room see that they are kept on the nests, allowing them to come off only once a day to receive feed and water, the feed to consist of corn, wheat, or both. If there are any that do not desire to come off themselves, they should be taken off. Hens usually return to their nests before there is any danger of the eggs chilling, but if they do not go back in half an hour in ordi-

INCUBATOR HINTS.

The incubator room should have an abundant supply of fresh air without drafts and without too great changes in temperature.

When warming up the machine do not try to get too much heat at first.

When filling the egg trays do not double deck the eggs or stand the eggs on end.

Turn the eggs morning and night. Turn trays end for end in the morning and from side to side at night.

Remember that burning twenty-four hours a day for more than three weeks is pretty hard on any kerosene lamp and that it needs careful attention.

Don't handle hatching eggs with dirty, oily hands.

CARING FOR CHICKS.

Location of Brooder and Improper Feeding Cause of Most Trouble.

Chicks that die before they are two days old are usually weaklings, which could not be saved easily. They probably come from eggs that had too hard a shell or else from eggs laid by diseased hens, writes a correspondent of the American Agriculturist. The remedy is proper care of the breeding flock from which the eggs for hatching are gathered. From the time the chicks are forty-eight hours until a month old it rests largely with the poultry raiser as to how many of the chicks will die.

In my experience I have found that poor location of brooders or pens and overfeeding are at the bottom of most of the trouble. Formerly I selected some grassy spot in the yard. Every morning the chicks would run about in the cold, wet dew. This is something that kills the chicks. Every day I noticed a few which stood shivering in the corners of the brooder, looking as though they stood on stilts. In a short time they died.

Now, as soon as the sitting is hatched I take the chicks to a dry, bare plot of ground. There is a fence to the north so that all warmth of the sun may be obtained without bringing in the wind.

WHITE CORNISH COCKEREL.

As it is rather higher up than the rest of the yard, water flows away quickly. If it is muddy for a half day I place slabs to prevent the chicks from getting outside.

In order to cure troubles of the digestive tract, such as white diarrhea, I feed the chicks only enough to keep them healthy. Overfeeding can be noticed at once, for the chicks will lie down a large part of the time. A healthy chick will always scramble into the thick of the crowd when food is offered. The food should be hard—that is, it should not be the kind to swell or become soggy before thoroughly digested. Occasionally a drink of sour milk will be beneficial, as the lactic acid in sour milk attacks the organism which causes white diarrhea.

I emphasize in the care of chicks lots of light and warm air, a south exposure and light, dry soil for scratching. The pens or brooders must be roomy and built so that sunlight will get in. By cleaning these often chicks are not liable to suffer from lice and other vermin.

Controlling Scaly Leg.

The common disease known as scaly leg is caused by a tiny mite which grows beneath the skin, causing the enlarged rough scabs on the foot and shanks. It is quite easily controlled, but individual treatment is necessary. Unless the case is far advanced and hurry work is necessary, a penetrating oil is applied without removing the scabs. This may be applied with a stiff brush, such as a discarded but clean toothbrush. The feet may be soaked in warm, soapy water before treatment. Oil of caraway, one part to five parts white vaseline, is a good treatment. It is rubbed into the leg and foot every two or three days until the disease disappears. Vaseline and zinc ointment in equal parts are also recommended; also one part of coal oil and kerosene and two parts of raw linseed oil. Do not wet the leg feathers.

Laying Qualities of Brahmas.

Some strains of Brahmas come up to American or general purpose breeds for laying; but, generally speaking, they do not. It is odd, though, that almost the first trap nested 200 egg hen was a Brahma, which laid 268 eggs in one year. Brahmas are bred more extensively for meat.

Feather Pulling.

When fowls begin the practice of "feather pulling" they become almost worthless. See that they are provided with meat before they get the habit.

FLOCK OF NEWLY HATCHED CHICKS.

nary weather they should be put on the nest. Where a large number of sitters are kept in one room it is advisable to let them off in groups of from four to six at a time.

The eggs and nests should be examined and cleaned, removing all broken eggs and washing those that are soiled. In the latter case the soiled nesting material should be removed and clean straw added. Nests containing broken eggs that the hen is allowed to sit on soon become infested with mites and lice, which cause the hens to become uneasy and leave the nest, often causing the loss of valuable sittings of eggs. In mite infested nests the hen, if fastened in, will often be found standing over rather than sitting on the eggs. Many eggs that are laid in the late winter and early spring are infertile. For this reason it is advisable to set several hens at the same time.

After the eggs have been under the hens from five to seven days, the time depending somewhat on the color and thickness of the shells—white shelled eggs being easier to test than those having brown shells—they should be tested, the infertile eggs and dead germs removed, and the fertile eggs put back under the hen.

In this way it is often possible to put all the eggs that several hens originally started to sit on under fewer hens and reset the others. For example, thirty eggs are set under three hens at the same time, ten under each. At the end of seven days we find on testing the eggs from all the hens that ten are infertile, which leaves us twenty eggs to reset, which we do by putting them under two hens and have the remaining hen sit over again after she has sat only seven days. In this way considerable time can be saved in one's hatching operations.

POULTRY NEEDS RANGE.

Hens Keep Thrifty and Produce More Eggs in Outside Yards.

Since hens on range produce more eggs at lower cost and fewer young hens die than do those kept in confinement the Ohio experiment station urges poultrymen to provide outside yards with plenty of green feed for laying hens. The annual value per acre of range for laying hens was found to be from $10 to $31, even though some other live stock was also pastured in the blue grass pasture with the chickens.

Three experiments were conducted by the experiment station to determine whether hens need range for best results in egg production, one lasting a year, one two years and the third nearly two years and a half. From these tests it was found that during the first two or three years more hens are likely to die if kept in restricted quarters, and the hens on range produced 15 to 44 per cent more eggs at a feed cost of 15 to 36 per cent less per dozen than hens kept in confinement. The difference between cost of feed and value of eggs was from 27 to 71 per cent higher for the range lot than for the confined lot.

Care of Eggs For Hatching.

Eggs intended for incubation should be collected from the nests as soon as possible after they are laid, says the Ohio experiment station. Eggs for hatching should be kept at a temperature from 50 to 60 degrees F. Keep them in a clean place that is free from musty odors. There is a distinct disadvantage in washing eggs which are to be incubated, because washing eggs has a tendency to lower their hatching quality. If the eggs are carefully handled there does not seem to be any appreciable loss of vitality up to the age of two weeks.

VESTS ARE NOTABLE

Mannish Feature of New Styles Wins Wide Popularity.

Many of the "Weskits" Are Quite Independent of Suits or Frocks With Which They Are Worn.

The 1917 season is one of contradictions. It is quite easy one moment to decide definitely that all apparel developed for femininity is distinctly feminine, and in the very next moment run into something so mannish that decision number one is completely reversed.

In the line-up of things masculine or mannish the clever little vests are notable. Neckwear or accessory designers and manufacturers have contributed their quota to popularizing the gilet or vest, as "weskits" galore have been turned out quite separate and apart from the suits or frocks they are destined to adorn. A woman may possess modish plain white vests of pique, linen, broadcloth, etc., in one tone high color or rakish, sporty affairs in broad and striking checks suggestive of the racecourse togery. These vests are sometimes complete in themselves, being in fact merely little sleeveless jackets to be worn underneath the coat, and again they must be sewed or hooked into the garment and made a very real and definite part of it.

A modish tailored vest of black and white checked faille silk is here shown, accompanying a suit coat of navy serge. The blouse and collar, or stock, worn with a severely tailored vest is usually quite mannish, in order to agree with the general suggestion. But soft stocks and jabots and ruffle front shirts are also worn. The vest or gilet is featured as a part of many smart spring coats and dresses as well as suits.

SHIRTTWAISTS WILL BE WORN

Women Will Not Give Up This Conventional and Satisfactory Raiment at Mere Dictate of Fashion.

It is quite evident that women will wear the conventional shirtwaist this summer, although the short satin tunic has been the preference for the winter. The delightful feeling of something fresh and washable next the skin is not to be given up for mere fashion. One might summarize the exhibition of spring blouses as follows:

Heavy Chinese silk in narrow candy stripes, in different colors, is made up in a severe style, with a rolling collar and pearl buttons.

Flesh-colored chiffon, georgette and fine voile are trimmed with filet, Irish crochet and honiton laces, and made up with long sleeves, sailor collar and groups of fine tucks in front.

A hundred blouses will have a deep sailor collar edged with lace, to ten that are arranged otherwise at the neck.

White crepe de chine is made into blouses, with broad panels of filet lace extending down the front. There is a flat, turn-over collar. The sleeves are long and gathered into deep, tight cuffs of filet lace.

White chiffon is knife-plaited from shoulders to waist, with two wide bands of lace forming the front. The sleeves are full, with a tight cuff of lace and a wide band of it placed at the back from shoulder to cuff.

Crude tones of blue, red, green and yellow in a thick weave of Japanese silk are simply made and offered for use with dark tailored suits.

Camphor Keeps Silver Bright.

Silver articles may be kept quite bright when not in use if they are put in an air-tight box with a lump of camphor in it; when spoons get spotted with mildew, they may be cleaned by rubbing with a flannel dipped in whiskey and finely powdered salt.

Plush Dotted Voile.

A very pretty novelty is of cotton voile with dot stripes in self-tone plush. The dots are about three-quarters of an inch across and set just that distance apart. This voile comes in rose and ivory and green and pale blue.

The Shoestring Republic.

Chile is as long as from New York to San Francisco and as narrow as Lake Erie. Truly a "shoestring republic." She is squeezed tightly between the mountain range and the coast. Her cities look up to the hills and down to the sea, with, as Arthur Ruhl puts it, "the Andes hanging like a beautiful drop curtain at the eastern end of every street." Chile contains twenty-four provinces, and the largest province is big enough to hold all Pennsylvania, Vermont, Rhode Island and Massachusetts. The Chileans are the Yankees of South America, aggressive, keen, making fortunes from nitrate, erecting a chain of wireless stations from the near tropical north tip of the Chilean shoestring to the Antarctic south tip and preparing for Panama trade by expending $12,000,000 on port and dock improvements. Chile is elbowing her way in among the most forward pushing nations of the twentieth century.—World Outlook.

Is Lacquer Ware Doomed?

The ancient Japanese art of lacquering is in danger of extinction, for the supply of lacquer is threatening to give out. Lacquer is made from the juice of the lacquer tree or varnish tree. It forms a very hard surface and stands heat to such an extent that the Japanese use lacquered vessels for hot drinks. They consume about 1,000 tons of lacquer every year for all sorts of articles, both for export and home use—work boxes, tables, fire screens, trays, bread baskets, carriages and musical instruments. Three-fourths of the lacquer comes from China, but so much has been used of late years that the demand exceeds the supply.

The lacquer tree is something like an ash and takes a good time to grow to maturity. The method by which the sap is handled is wasteful, it costs a great deal to get the varnish to a market and the native exporters have the monopoly of it. These causes together account for the shortage of the supply.—London Standard.

Bell With the Wail of a Child.

A queerly shaped gong which occupies a position of honor in the center of the city of Seoul, Korea, is said to be one of the largest in the world and is called "the bell with the wail of a child in its voice." When first cast the bell sounded with a harsh and cracked note, and the superstitious emperor, fearing an ill omen, consulted with his magicians. These gentlemen held a long confab and finally stated that the bell would never sound right until a live child was given to it. The mass was then melted again, and a live baby was thrown into the molten metal. The wail of agony uttered by the little tot as the bronze engulfed it seemed to be repeated every time the bell was tolled, and today the Koreans still claim that the wail of a child can be heard in the voice of the metal.

Uncalled For Courtesy.

The Vicomte Toussaint was formerly a colonel in the French army and mayor of Toulouse. He was a brave man and a dashing officer. During one of the hottest engagements of a terrible year of war, noticing that his troops were bending forward under a galling fire to escape the bullets of the enemy while he alone maintained an erect position, he exclaimed, "Since when, I should like to know, has so much politeness been shown to the enemy?" The sarcasm took instantaneous effect, for the soldiers rushed forward and carried everything before them.

Selenium Is Sensitive.

By substituting a selenium cell for the human eye at the telescope M. Fournie d'Albe believes it would be possible to detect stars five magnitudes fainter than any now observable, thus enormously increasing the powers of the greatest instruments. Theoretically a selenium cell of sixteen square inches would register the light of a twenty-eighth magnitude star, but this would require longer exposure—several days—than would be practicable.

Philip's Reminder.

Philip, father of Alexander, had a servant whose sole business it was to remind him that he was human. It is said accordingly that he never went from the house and, having returned, never gave audience to any one without first this servant saying to him three times in a loud voice, "Philip, thou art but a man!"

"Have your millions enabled your children to marry well?"

"Rather. My daughter married a cabaret dancer and my son is engaged to a prominent chorus girl. We're headed for the best society now."—Pittsburgh Post.

No Enthusiasm.

"Your friend did not appear to be enthusiastic when I spoke of a coming wireless age."

"No wonder. He is a wire walker in a circus."—Baltimore American.

A Cumbersome Cure.

"Eat a gumdrop every time you want a drink," advises an exchange, but who the dickens wants to go tagging around with a water bucketful of gumdrops on his arm?—Macon Telegraph.

Putting His Foot In It.

She—Don't be downhearted, Richard even if father does say you'll be young enough to marry five years from now. He—Oh, I don't care for myself, but how about you?—Exchange.

God does not comfort us to make us comfortable, but to make us comforters.—J. Lowett.

Proper Food for Weak Stomachs.

The proper food for one man may be all wrong for another. Every one should adopt a diet suited to his age and occupation. Those who have weak stomachs need to be especially careful and should eat slowly and masticate their food thoroughly. It is also important that they keep their bowels regular. When they become constipated or when they feel dull and stupid after eating, they should take Chamberlain's Tablets to strengthen the stomach and move the bowels. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect.

MR. JAMES SHILDT.

Mr. James Shildt, one of the best known of the older residents of Taneytown, died early last Sunday morning at his home on Emmitsburg St., after an extended illness. Mr. Shildt was a blacksmith by trade, but had retired from the business for a number of years. He was a genial and kindly man, and the last representative of the older members of his family. He was a veteran of the Civil War, having served in the 8th Maryland Infantry, Co. L.

He is survived by the following step-children: Misses Mary and Emma and Tobias Hockensmith, of Taneytown, and Mrs. John Shreeve, of Waynesboro. Funeral services were held at the home, on Tuesday afternoon, by his pastor, Rev. L. B. Hafer. His age was 78 years, 4 months, 2 days.

MR. JOHN BALL.

John Ball, native of Ireland, and a veteran of the Civil War, died last Friday morning at the home of his son, Richard, on the Goulden farm, near Taneytown, after an illness of six months. He was aged 81 years.

Mr. Ball came with his parents from Ireland when he was only 11 or 12 years of age. The family settled in Buchanan Valley and he lived there until 1892, when he moved to Gettysburg. He lived in and near there until the spring of 1916 when he moved to Taneytown. During the Civil War he served in Company H, 49th Pennsylvania Infantry.

He was married to Miss Clara Brady, of Buchanan Valley, who died about 37 years ago, and he leaves one son, Richard Ball, of Taneytown. He also leaves a brother, Peter Ball, of Cambria County. Funeral at 9 o'clock, Monday morning, from St. Ignatius Catholic church, Buchanan Valley.

MR. JAMES A. HELMAN.

Mr. James A. Helman, of Emmitsburg, died Wednesday afternoon at his residence, after an illness of about four months of pneumonia. He was 77 years old. He was born at Emmitsburg and spent his young days there, later removing to Baltimore, where he was a salesman for several houses, afterwards returning to Emmitsburg where he engaged in merchandising. He married Miss Clara Green, of Baltimore. He was an elder in the Presbyterian church for many years. He leaves his wife and four sisters.

Mr. Helman took an active interest in public questions, and was a frequent contributor to the press on the side of justice and morality, his articles frequently appearing in the Record, signed "Alpha."

IN MEMORY OF

My Mother, Mrs. Clara Hiltbrich, who died May 12th., 1916.

Oh mother dear, can it be
No more thy look of love we'll see?
Those eyes that never are closed in death
We'll think of till our latest breath.

Oh mother, must we give you up
You whom we loved so well?
How can we drink the bitter cup
And say a last farewell?

When you pass my lonely room
And see my vacant bed
May you then always think of me
And know your dear mother is dead.

A precious one from us has gone
A voice we loved is still
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.

She is sleeping, calmly sleeping,
In a new-made grave today;
We are weeping, sadly weeping,
For our loved one gone away.

Farewell, my loving children,
Brothers and sisters dear,
For me you should not shed a tear.
My suffering was short, blest is my sleep,
In Jesus trust, why for me weep.

Farewell, my friends and neighbors all,
I left you and obey my call:
I am now, so you will be,
Remember, you must follow me.

RAYMOND C. HILTBRICH.

IN SAD BUT LOVING REMEMBRANCE
of our dear mother, Emma Baumgardner, who departed this life two years ago today, May 12th., 1917.

Rest in peace, dear mother,
Two long years have passed away,
Thou art gone but not forgotten,
We think of thee day by day.

Through our home we wander sadly,
Through our home so dreary, dear,
In each room we find some token
Of our darling mother, who is not there.

In the graveyard softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we loved so dearly,
In her lonely, silent grave.

By her HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

CARD OF THANKS.

The sincere thanks of myself and daughter are gratefully extended to all friends and neighbors for their sympathy and kind assistance during our recent great bereavement.

SAM'L D. SLAGENHAUPT.

Maryland's Recruits.

Since the first of April 3,001 Maryland men have voluntarily enlisted in the different branches of military service, including the regular service and the National Guards.

The navy leads in enlistment, because the city and State concentrated more recruiting effort on that branch than on any other. The National Guard units have nearly reached the maximum authorized peace strength and recruiting for them seems to have settled down to a general daily average, which, if continued, will fill them up within a few days. Some infantry companies have waiting lists, which they will utilize to jump to war strength when the order is given.

Maryland has furnished fewer men for the regular army than for any other branch of the service. This is attributable to several causes, not the least of which is the failure of the regular army recruiting officers for Maryland to co-operate in giving publicity to the army's needs.

Home Baked Bread.

If home-made bread were uniformly well made it would be used more extensively than at present in place of more expensive foods, says specialists in the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and this would be a distinct economy. From the standpoint of nutrition it makes very little difference whether breadstuffs are served in the form of bread or in the form of breakfast cereals, side dishes with meat, or desserts. A man engaged in moderate muscular work can profitably consume about three-quarters of a pound of breadstuffs in any one of these forms. This quantity is the equivalent of one pound of baked bread.

As a matter of fact, however, it is not probable that in the average family this quantity is consumed and the deficiency is made up by the use of more expensive substances. Of course, bread alone is not sufficient for the maintenance of health, but from both an economical and a hygienic point of view should be used more extensively than usually is.

In a new publication of the Department, Farmers' Bulletin 807, detailed directions for the making of bread in the home are given, together with a number of convenient recipes for home-made biscuits, rolls and bread in which rice or potatoes are used with flour.

Lack of house-help has caused many families to discontinue home-baking, and from this and other reasons the art is being lost to some extent.

A YOUNG HOSTESS

She Entertained a Great Man Unawares

By F. A. MITCHEL

"Gladys," said John Oldershaw to his daughter before setting out from the family residence in the province of Ontario, Canada, "General Herbert is coming to see me this morning by appointment to talk over military matters pertaining to our Canadian part in the great war. I have been summoned to another conference of equal importance. I must rely upon you to keep the general engaged until my return. We have important matters to talk over, and I don't wish him to leave without our having the conference."

"What kind of matters?" "Herbert has been fighting in Belgium and has greatly distinguished himself. I need the information he is able to impart. While recovering from a wound he has been sent over here to instruct us in the needs and necessities of the Canadian troops at the front."

"How long will you be gone, papa?" "It may be an hour; it may be all day."

"Well, papa, I'll do what I can with him, but I don't see how I, a mere girl, can entertain a general."

The last few words were not heard by the father, who was hurrying away to catch a train. Gladys Oldershaw proceeded to execute certain household duties which devolved upon her as her father's housekeeper. They were not onerous, and did not take up much of her time. When she had finished them she went out on to the porch and looked about her for some out of door occupation or amusement. The croquet ground looked inviting, and, taking out a box of balls and a mallet, she went there and began to play alone. But she found playing croquet without an opponent a very unsatisfactory amusement, and was about to give it up when, looking aside, she saw a small, slender young man whose clothes fitted him badly looking over the fence at her.

"Beg pardon," he said. "Is this Mr. Oldershaw's place?"

"It is."

"Is he at home?" "No, he has gone to the city."

The young man looked disappointed. He asked how long Mr. Oldershaw would remain away.

"Father expects a man to see him today, a general who has come back from the war. Father told me before going to tell this man that he might be gone an hour and he might be gone all day."

A curious expression passed over the stranger's face at the mention of the great man who was expected.

"I don't know," he said, "that Mr. Oldershaw will have any time to devote to me, having the general with him."

Gladys made no reply to this; she evidently thought the man was quite right.

"What is your idea of a general's age?" he asked.

Gladys considered the question irrelevant but concluded to answer it. She said a general must be an old man; forty at least.

"I think I'll wait awhile," said the little man, looking interestedly at the nearby tennis court.

"You might put in some time at tennis," suggested Gladys; "that is, if you play the game."

"One can't very well play tennis without an opponent," was the reply.

Gladys told him that she was disengaged and would accommodate him. She procured a racket for him, and, climbing the fence, he took position for the game. He appeared to be an expert player, but was at a disadvantage in getting over the ground, dragging one leg after him with some slight difficulty.

They played several sets, and during the time occupied in doing so Gladys' opinion of her opponent was being improved. He seemed to be rather gentle for a man, but amiable as well, and he was quite original in his way of saying things.

The game was interrupted by the approach of a very large man with gray moustachios, in uniform, who stopped and asked if Mr. Oldershaw was at home.

"Are you General Herbert?" asked Gladys.

"No, I am Colonel Waterman."

"Papa expects General Herbert today. I supposed you were he."

The colonel passed on, and Gladys turned again to her opponent in tennis and suggested that he might be tired and would like to go the house and rest. He admitted that it was rather tiresome playing with a game leg, as he called it, and he wouldn't mind a rest. Indeed, he seemed to be quite exhausted with the efforts he had made. Gladys led him to the porch, pointed to a swinging sofa, and when he sat down on it insisted that he lie at full length and covered him with an afghan.

"I think you played too long," she said.

"Tennis is an active game," was his reply.

Gladys went into the house and brought out some refreshment for him, of which he partook and seemed to feel stronger.

"What made you think that man who asked if your father was at home was General Herbert?" he asked.

"Oh, he was so big and fierce looking. Then, too, he was about the right age for a general."

"All generals are not old. There are generals in the armies in Europe not over twenty-five years of age."

"Why, I thought the captains and lieutenants were about that age."

"Usually they are, but sometimes a man gets to be a general earlier."

"How does he do it?"

"Oh, he loses his head and does something he wouldn't dare do in his calmer moments. It is mistaken for an act of bravery, and they promote him. If he does it often enough and doesn't get himself killed he may reach the grade of general."

"I don't think that's a very nice way of putting it."

"It's about true."

"How do you, a civilian, know anything about such matters?" There was a touch of irony in this.

"Oh, I have friends who have been there."

"I suppose they wouldn't take you in the army."

"Why not?"

"In the first place, you're lame; besides, you don't look very strong. And all the soldiers I've seen are rather large men."

"I don't fancy," said the little man, "that if I were to present myself for enlistment as I am today I would be accepted. I couldn't even be a private in the rear ranks. Funny, isn't it?"

Gladys did not see anything funny about it, but she refrained from saying so.

"I wonder," she said instead, "what is keeping General Herbert? Father said he had a special appointment."

"I wish for your sake," said the little man, "that General Herbert had come instead of your humble servant."

"I don't."

"Why?"

"How do you suppose a girl like me could entertain him?"

The little man laughed.

"What amuses you?" asked Gladys.

"That you should suppose that a man is a great big noble creature covered with glory simply because he is a general. How many generals' reputations have lasted as long as that of Alexander Pope, the poet, who had a miserable body and never a well day?"

"Papa contends," said Gladys thoughtfully, "that persons admire their opposites. That evidently isn't true in your case."

"I don't deny that I would prefer a more imposing stature."

"I don't mean that at all. What I do mean is that you, a delicate, sickly man, don't seem to set any great store by bravery."

"There are different kinds of bravery. Moral bravery is always admirable. Physical bravery is as liable to be found in a savage as in the most civilized man. That it is akin to the courage of a beast is evidenced by the fact that most men when they go into a fight are frightened out of their senses. When they get into it their brutal nature comes to the surface and they fight like brutes."

"How do you know how men feel when they go into battle?"

The little man showed a bit of confusion at the question, but was equal to the occasion. He said that he had read a great deal about soldiers.

"So have I," the girl retorted. "When I read about a battle I always wish I were a man and were in it."

"I once read a description of a battle written by a man who had just come out of it. He was writing at the field hospital where the surgeons were at work. His battle pictures made me glad that I wasn't in it."

"Oh, I suppose if one is not!"

She got no further. Hearing the gate close, she looked around and saw her father hurrying up the walk. On reaching the veranda he said:

"I am sorry, general, to have kept you waiting for me. But I see that my little girl has taken good care of you."

"Your little girl has knocked me out at tennis."

"What! Tennis? With that wound of yours? Gladys, what in the world did you permit General Herbert to play tennis for? You have endangered his life."

Meanwhile Gladys stood mute with astonishment, to say nothing of confusion. It is said that all the scenes of a man's life are rushed before his eyes when he is drowning. Certain it is that everything Gladys had said to General Herbert came up to mock her. He came to her rescue.

"Oh, Miss Gladys didn't know that I was even a soldier. She has an exaggerated view of what a general should be and what many of them are. I am sorry to say—an old fool too old to fight and too stupid to show others how to fight. But we have been getting rid of those fellows on the other side, and nearly all our generals are now good men. As for me, I have never yet had a general command, and I'm not in a hurry to get one. A brigade is all I'll get, anyway."

Gladys retired, leaving her father's guest to instruct him with regard to the necessities of the Canadian troops at the seat of war. By dinner time she had recovered from her embarrassment, and General Herbert had become in her eyes a greater man than if he had appeared as a six footer, booted and spurred, covered with decorations and swinging a big sword.

So long as Mr. Oldershaw was present Gladys was tongue tied. But after dinner the father found it necessary to attend to certain matters that called him to his study. This left the general and Gladys alone, and she came out from her shell.

General Herbert has since rejoined the army and left a bride in Canada, nee Gladys Oldershaw.

FOR TEN-YEAR-OLD

Daintiness of Finish Marks New Frocks for Young Girls.

Pique Strongly Favored, Among Other Sturdy Tub Fabrics, for Children's Dresses This Season.

The little frock shown in the accompanying sketch designed for a girl of eight to twelve years, is made of fine white pique and is trimmed with a very narrow soutache braid applied in conventional design. The oddly shaped little coat or jacket is separate from the frock proper. The latter is cut on simple, straight lines. The waist fits easily and extends a trifle

Tub Frock for Ten-Year-Old.

lower than the normal waistline, where the skirt is attached by large flat or box plaits.

The flat plaits are more effective, and are also more easily laundered, which is a feature worth considering. The sleeveless jacket is exactly alike back and front, and it fastens with small buttons on the left shoulder and at the side. This is really not necessary, except that when opened and laid flat on the board it can be more easily ironed than when the shoulders are seamed. Daintiness of fit distinguishes this little frock, and the same holds true of all apparel designed for members of the younger generation this season.

The frock may be braided in color if desired, although as designed all white is used, and this would undoubtedly prove the most satisfactory. A bright touch of color may be given an all-white frock by a bow of bright ribbon at the throat, and the frock in question is toned up by using a soft sash of wide taffeta ribbon, which ties about the waist, peeps beneath the jacket underneath the arms, and falls in loops and ends at the back.

To make this frock for a ten-year-old girl four and a half yards of material 36 inches wide will be required.

Pique is very strongly favored for children's dresses this season, and another fabric that is accorded approval in the selection of sturdy tub fabrics is a washable crepe.

Ginghams, chambrays and various heavyweight linens are also good, but pique ranks well at the top of the list.

PARAFFIN HAS VARIOUS USES

May Be Utilized for Freshening Velvets as Well as Cleaning Metals or Scrubbing Floors.

When the sides of an enameled bath or lavatory basin have gotten corroded with soapuds, take a piece of house flannel, dip it in paraffin and rub the whole inside of the bath with it, and then wash it all over with soap and warm water, and the effect is good without the risk of injury to the paint.

A little paraffin in a pail of water is excellent for scrubbing floors clean. If beetles or any crawling things infest the place, the paraffin should be stronger. It is one of the best preventatives against insects that there is, indeed, only one other thing—common salt—is better for cleansing purposes and keeping woodwork and floors free from spiders and any of the insects that abound during the summer months.

When cleaning brass or metal work of any sort, if a few drops of paraffin are added to the metal paste, a better polish is more quickly obtained.

Paraffin may also be used as a restorer of pale as well as black velvet and velveteen! It sounds risky, but is effective, and is done by dampening—not wetting—a piece of flannel with paraffin and rubbing the pile of the velveteen quickly and lightly with it, then immediately rubbing it off with a clean, dry flannel. As soon as the damp flannel looks dirty, a clean piece must be used. It takes some time to do a costume, but the result repays the labor.

OYSTERS FORCED TO WORK

Japanese Scientist Conceives Idea of "Teaching" Bivalves to Produce Pearls.

The Japanese conduct great oyster farms where the bivalves are "taught" to make pearls. It was Doctor Mikimoto, a well-known scientist, who conceived the idea that oysters might be educated and made to work for man. After many years of costly experimentation he discovered the method in use today.

The farm has an area of about 50 square miles and the water varies in depth from 5 to 15 fathoms. The farmer selects the spots where the larvae of oysters are most numerous and then he plants small rocks and stones. These are soon covered with oyster-spats. They are then removed and placed in special beds, where they lie undisturbed until the third year.

It is said that an oyster will not produce a pearl unless it be irritated by some foreign substance. As soon as it feels this it proceeds to cover it with nacre, layer on layer, until after a few years it has made a pearl. When large enough the oysters are taken from their beds and carefully opened; a tiny speck of some foreign substance is introduced into their bodies, and they are replaced in the sea. By the end of from three to five years the oyster has coated the foreign substance with nacre and this has become a pearl.

WHERE PICNIC IS A PASSION

In Australia People Obtain Maximum of Recreation Without Country Clubs or Amusement Parks.

As in the United States, the "movies" often constitute the chief indoor amusement, but the universal recreation in Australia is the picnic which reaches a high development. Men, women and children, families, clubs, churches, lodges and miscellaneous groups are out on picnics afternoons, Sundays and holidays.

Two picnics a week are not unusual; a young lady of my acquaintance had five to her credit. The picnickers walk, ride horses, take wagons, or go by motor, street car, train or boat. They go to the shore, to the woods, to rivers to picturesque hillsides, or to the zoological and botanical gardens, which in Australian cities are used, not guarded by "keep off the grass" signs. The time is occupied by gossiping, reading, sewing, writing letters, playing simple games, eating lunch or supper, fishing, swimming, studying flowers or insects, or "plain resting."

America has much to learn from the southern continent of the use of parks and the attainment of recreation without the expense of country clubs and Coney Islands.—National Geographic Magazine.

A Humble Worker.

He does not look like a very important part of a big automobile organization, this stooped, grizzled man, but the president of a great motorcar company, according to Popular Science Monthly, says that Magnet Bill saves his salary a dozen times over every day he works. Rain or shine, summer or winter, Magnet Bill may be seen walking slowly about the automobile plant, his eyes fixed on the ground.

He gets his nickname from the fact that his tools consist solely of a tin bucket and a big steel magnet, strapped to the end of a shovel handle. It is his duty to save automobile tires by removing from the roadway every nail and piece of metal that might cause a tire puncture. Thousands of cars are run over this roadway to the testing place, and without the precautions taken by Magnet Bill the cost for cut and punctured tires would amount to many thousands of dollars yearly.

Discovering Columbus.

During a recent campaign a Tammany leader on the East side, a self-made man and one not entirely completed yet in some parts, was addressing a mass meeting of Italian-born voters on behalf of his party's ticket.

"Gentlemen and fellow citizens," he began, "I deem it an honor to be permitted to address you upon the issues of the day. I have always had a deep admiration for your native land. I venerate the memory of that great, that noble, Eytalian who was the original discoverer of this here land of ours."

"Why, gentlemen, at me mother's knee I was taught to sing that inspirin' song, 'Columbus, the Jim of the Ocean!'"

Whereupon there was loud applause.

City of Many Names.

No capital city has changed its name so often as Constantinople, which was originally known as Lygos. In B. C. 658 this name was discarded for that of Byzantium, which remained in use until the capture of the city by Septimus Severus, who rechristened it Roma Nova. On making it his capital, Constantine the Great endowed it with his own name, and it is still Constantinople among western nations. This name, however, is ignored by the Turks, who since they obtained possession of Constantinople have preferred to call it Stamboul.

Success.

"My first rich patient was the making of me," confessed the doctor.

"Did you make a marvelous cure?" "Oh, no. But I got enough money to move into a fashionable neighborhood, and then I called myself a specialist."

FRENCH SEEK FOOT COMFORT

Talk Is Heard of Introduction of Round-Toed Oxford Among American Women

There is a talk of introducing the round-toed Oxford shoe among American women for spring use. There are still some sensible minds among women in this country, and the tendency toward the medieval shoe of the twelfth century with a point that has grown almost long enough to roll up and touch the instep, does not meet with their approval, says an authority on woman's shoes.

The American manufacturers have elongated the vamp of the shoe until it is out of all proportion to any foot, and they have balanced it on such high heels that the entire forward part of the foot is thrown down into this toothpick vamp. All of which is good for the chiropodists and foot specialists, but not for the sweet temper and endurance of women.

The French have forsaken the French heels; they have high, sturdy, Spanish heels going from ground to foot on a straight line that entirely supports the body and keeps the spine in a correct position. They have shortened the vamp of the shoe so that it allows free play to the spring of the foot where the toes begin and they have rounded the vamp as nature rounded the foot at that place. Their feet not only look better than they have looked in a century, but the French women are learning to enjoy walking.

The American woman is wearing a shoe that is neither comfortable nor good-looking. It is wrong in every particular. It does not support the foot and it does not add to the attractiveness of the silhouette.

DOTTED SWISS WIDELY USED

Dearth of Other Desirable Fabrics Makes It Very Much in Evidence in Little Girls' Wardrobes.

No material lends itself more to originality in fashioning the little girl's clothes than the dotted swiss. And now, when there is dearth of desirable fabrics on account of the foreign war, dotted swiss is distinctly in evidence. Not only is it obtainable in white with dots of various sizes but in a wide range of colors, from pastel shades to vivid yellow and pink. Pale pink, cerise, white and white with pale blue dots are the most suitable for the little girl's wardrobe.

While the dotted swiss is most desirable for the little girl's dress, there are many other uses for which it is adapted. For instance, ecru swiss is most attractive as a lining for a pongee coat. White dotted swiss combined with China silk also makes an effective outside garment for summer wear.

Then, too, there are many other ways in which the dotted swiss is found to be a valuable factor in the child's outfit. Canning aprons are made of the swiss. These aprons are made in envelope fashion and trimmed with a narrow edge of Valenciennes lace.

In addition, collars suitable for wear on a coat or silk dress are made of the swiss; sashes, bonnet strings, and, indeed, hats and bonnets as well, are all made from this durable material.

TOUCH OF THE ORIENT

Here is the advent of a charming fashion. The gown is of Chinese embroidery on black net. The colors of the embroidery are emphasized in triple chiffon foundation of green, purple and mustard. There is a freshness of youth and a richness of antiquity which make this costume most stunning.

Velvet's Origin.

Few persons realize that velvet was developed and originated in China. Thence velvet-making was introduced into India and, in the fourteenth century, into Italy, where that sort of fabric especially appealed and where the art of velvet making reached its height. It is said that velvet was first inspired by fur and that it was in order to make a silken fabric on the same order as fine fur that man set his wits about to invent this.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Mirth continually upsets the glass of Time and mocks the solemn sower Discontent.

Words are forces in the realm of life. Be careful of their use. —Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

MEALS FOR THE FAMILY.

A good filling for pies and tarts is cranberries and raisins, cooked together, using two parts of the berries and one part raisins. This combination also is good for steamed fruit pudding.

Filipino Beef.—Take one and a half pounds of round of beef, one-half pound of fresh pork, one onion and two peppers, all chopped fine; mix well, add a cupful of dried bread crumbs and salt to taste. Knead for a few minutes to blend well, then form into a roll and place in a greased baking pan. Lay three slices of salt pork over the top and pour over a can of tomatoes. Bake in a moderate oven for an hour and a half. Remove the meat to a hot platter, add a little hot water to the liquor in the pan, thicken, season and pour round the meat. This is very good sliced cold. Take the sirup left from pickled peaches, drop into it well softened prunes, and allow them to stand until well spiced. Serve as pickled peaches. Very delicious.

Cabbage Cooked in Milk.—The following is a most digestible dish of cabbage: Cut the cabbage with a sharp knife into the finest shreds, cover with milk and seasonings, and cook for 20 minutes and serve hot.

Rice With Meat.—Boil a cupful of rice, line a buttered pan with the hot rice. When it is cold fill the center with chopped, well-seasoned meat with gravy added. Set into a pan of water and bake an hour. Turn out on a dish and serve with tomato or brown sauce.

Rice Corn Bread.—Take two-thirds of a cupful of boiled rice, well salted, a tablespoonful of butter and a cupful of milk. Beat two eggs, add two tablespoonfuls of sugar, then the rice and two tablespoonfuls of flour, sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking power, a saltspoonful of salt, and a cupful of cornmeal. Mix well and bake a half hour in a moderate oven.

Sausage Rolls.—Make a pie crust, roll out and cut in four-inch squares, lay in each a pork link sausage which has been skinned, draw up the sides of the square and pinch them together. Bake in a dripping pan until brown.

Lesson VIII.—Second Quarter,
For May 20, 1917.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Isa. xxviii, 1-13.
Memory Verse, 7.—Goden Text, I
Cor. 9-25.—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns

The title of this lesson is "The Importance of Self Control," and that fits well into the last lesson, for we cannot be faithful unless Spirit controlled. According to the Golden Text and its context, the self life must be persistently reckoned dead if we would win the incorruptible crown. Paul in that passage had no thought or reference to the loss of his soul, but was speaking only of service, which he knew might be rejected or disappointed, and he suffered loss, according to I Cor. iii, 14, 15.

This is called a temperance lesson, I suppose because of its references to drunkards and strong drink (verses 1, 3, 7, 8), but the whole chapter and the context refer to those who scorn the word of the Lord and take refuge in lies (verses 14, 15). No doubt the priest and prophet, as well as the people, were given to wine and strong drink and thus were out of the right way, drinking themselves drunk like those in I Kings xvi, 9; xx, 16. The filthiness and beastliness of actual drunkards are seen in lesson verse 8, and those who continue such cannot enter the kingdom of heaven, but there are forgiveness and salvation for all kinds of sinners if they will only turn to the Lord, according to I Cor. vi, 9-11. In the next chapter (xxix, 9) there are a drunkenness and a staggering with which wine and strong drink had nothing to do. It was the religious, scholarly kind so prevalent today, a sleep from the Lord because they turned away from His word and said that they could not understand it. He called it drawing near to Him with their mouth only, while their heart was far from Him, and they were giving heed to precepts of men and not to His precepts (xxix, 10-13). They said to the seers, "See not," and to the prophets, "Prophecy not unto us right things; speak unto us smooth things. Prophecy deceits. * * * Cause the Holy One of Israel to cease from before us" (Isa. xxx, 8-11). According to Ezek. xxxiii, 31, they hear, but do not; with their mouth they show much love, but their heart goeth after their covetousness. It was just the same when our Lord was on earth, for He quoted from Isaiah and said, "In vain do they worship Me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men (Matt. xv, 8, 9).

There is only one true foundation, and that is the tried stone, the precious cornerstone, the sure foundation of xxviii, 16, spoken of so plainly in I Cor. iii, 11. All else is lies and from the father of lies, the devil, but all shall be swept away by the judgments (verses 17, 18). There is no rest for weary souls but in Him who said, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest" (Matt. xi, 28). But He still has to say, "Ye will not come unto me" (John v, 40). So in our lesson, verse 12, "This is the rest wherewith ye may cause the weary to rest, and this is the refreshing, yet they would not hear." Again in chapter xxx, 15, "In returning and rest shall ye be saved; in quietness and in confidence shall be your strength, and ye would not." The failure is ever on our part, and He has to say, "I would; * * * ye would not" (Matt. xxiii, 37). These scornful men mocked the Lord's messengers, saying, Does He think that we are children just weaned, that he must be ever repeating precept upon precept, line upon line, not knowing that there is no other way for such slow people as we are? But they were proud and rebellious (verses 9-14). They mocked the messengers of God and despised His words and misused His prophets until the wrath of the Lord arose against His people, till there was no remedy (II Chron. xxxvi, 15, 16). There was a restoration from Babylon after the seventy years' captivity, but there is to be a greater restoration, which is ever drawing nearer, after which shall never be scattered again nor see evil any more (Isa. xi, 10-12; Jer. xxxi, 33-40; Zeph. iii, 15). Then shall Israel blossom and bud and fill the face of the earth with fruit, and the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the Lord, and a king shall reign in righteousness and the work of righteousness be quietness and assurance forever (Isa. xxvii, 6; xi, 9; xxxii, 1-17).

The father of lies and all his deceived ones shall go to their own place, and there shall be one king over all the earth (Rev. xix, 20; xx, 10; Matt. xxv, 41; Zech. ix, 9). Until that time only the meek shall increase their joy in the Lord, and the poor among men shall rejoice in the Holy One of Israel (xxix, 19). As in Matt. v, 3, 5, "Blessed are the poor in Spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven; blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth;" also in Matt. xi, 29, "Take my yoke upon you and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls." All other beauty but His is a fading flower, for all flesh is grass, and all the goodness thereof is as the flower of the field. The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, but the word of our God shall stand forever (verses 1-4; chapter xi, 6-8). There has always been a remnant, a little flock, to whom the Lord has been their all in all—the Abels, the Enochs, the Noahs.

In a French War Hospital.
Serving a community of fifty a three course meal—soup, meat and vegetables and dessert—is a man size proposition, says Elizabeth Frazer in the Saturday Evening Post. Serving it on bed tables, often cutting up the food and feeding the armless patients, further complicates the task. The first day I completely lost my head. My clamorous young brood, nine of whom were under twenty-two, reminded me of nothing so much as a nestful of yawning baby robins waiting to be fed.

It was: "Look out for my leg, mees!" "More bread, mees!" "My serviette, mees!" "Have you forgotten me, mees?" "My soup's tipped into my bed! I'm afloat, mees!" And all in a rapid bubble of French that made my head spin. At last in sheer desperation I addressed them in the American language: "You darned kids—shut up!"

The Little Oyster Crab.

The captain of a foreign ship, in port at Baltimore, at an entertainment given by friends was delighted with the oysters which were on the menu. Just before the ship sailed these friends sent to it several barrels of these oysters as a present to the captain. When he made the trip back to this country his friends asked him how he liked the oysters. He said: "Don't you know, we had to throw nearly all of them overboard. They were no good. Practically every one of them had a live insect on the inside, and, knowing they were not fit to eat, we let the whole lot go to Davy Jones." Investigation showed that the insect was the little oyster crab, which is a great delicacy, preferred by many to the oysters themselves, and which the epicure knows as a sure guarantee of the quality of the bivalve. It was a good joke on those sending and the one receiving the present, at which neither side laughed very much.—Christian Herald.

Living Icicles.

A problem of the zoologist is the endurance of freezing by many animals. Collecting the records, Mile, France and Paul Portier, entomologists, of Paris find that fish have survived 5 degrees F., frogs 8 degrees below, mollusks 184 degrees below and bacteria have come out alive after exposure to 300 degrees below zero. The two French experimenters froze certain caterpillars—Cossus cossus—at a temperature just above zero. They became quite solid and brittle and could be broken like icicles. On warming, however, even broken ones returned to life. Several freezings and thawings were endured, but recovery became slower each time and ceased after the sixth thawing. Other genera showed like results. There seemed to be some physiological preparation for the cold, for caterpillars that survived the winter freezing all succumbed to similar temperatures in the spring.

The Magnetic Needle.

There are two places on the earth's surface where the magnetic needle must point due south. They are not easy places to reach. One is in the arctic regions north of the northern magnetic pole on the line between that pole and the geographical north pole. The other is in the antarctic regions, south of the southern magnetic pole, on the line between that spot and the geographical south pole. In the first case the point of the needle is attracted to the northern magnetic pole. In the second case the other end of the needle is attracted to the southern magnetic pole.

Wanted a Studious Air.

A certain widely known character of the Rialto appeared on Broadway the other day bearing a huge pair of tortoise shell glasses athwart his nose. "Didn't know you wore glasses," a friend told him in surprise. "I never have," he answered, "but I think they give me a studious air." "But don't they impair your sight?" persisted the other. "Oh, no," was the response, "I can see as well as ever when I look over the rims."—Exchange.

Doesn't Know How.

Albert, aged three and a half, had failed to respond to verbal reprimand, and at last his mother said: "If you don't behave you will have to be spanked. You would not like that, would you?"

"I wouldn't like daddy to spank me," was the quick response.
"Why not?"
"He doesn't know how. He hurts."—Life.

Restraint of Trade.

The Dentist—I'll have to charge you $2.50 for pulling that tooth. The Patient—I thought you charged 50 cents. The Dentist—Yes; but you yelled so loud you scared four other patients out of the place.—New York Times.

Tenacity.

"Grain has been found clutched in the hands of an Egyptian mummy." "It beats all," commented the Chicago man, "how some of those speculators will hold on."—Washington Star.

A Pedestrian Once More.

"I see Brown riding on the street cars. I thought he owned an auto." "He does, but he made the mistake of teaching his wife to drive it."—Detroit Free Press.

Real Optimism.

Our idea of an optimist is a farmer who thinks he could live happily in town on $40 a month.—Galveston News.

Sincerity is the basis of all true friendship. Without sincerity it is like a ship without ballast.

NAVY COMBINATION

With distinct military cut, this nobby spring and Palm Beach fashion, called the "Navy Combination," is simplicity in itself. The jacket or coat part of the suit is made of navy blue serge stitched with white silk twist and trimmed with plain white serge collar and cuffs. An original touch is the loose flap pocket that hangs just a little bit below the bottom of the coat. The belt is made of white leather. A white serge wide skirt stitched with white silk in three thin bands around the bottom completes the model.

BLOUSES SENT FROM FRANCE

Many Handsome Ones Are on Exhibition Despite Disturbed Conditions Caused by the War.

In spite of the war and in spite of the fact that French women are practically carrying on the industry and agriculture of their country at the present time, many of the shops are showing perfectly delightful French handmade blouses at a price that seems, compared to the advanced price of most everything else we wear or eat, very reasonable.

Imagine a waist made of substantial, though sheer, cotton batiste with finely hemstitched sailor collar and cuffs and fine hand-inserted cording at the seams, for $2! Yet that was the price asked for such a blouse a week or so ago. The sleeves were long and well shaped and cuffs were tight—a characteristic almost never seen in waists as cheap as that. The buttonholes were made by hand and there were numerous other little hand touches and—bless the economical French sister that made the waist—a neat little square of the batiste folded and tacked to the inside of the waist for future mending. Why, we Americans would never think of mending a two-dollar waist.

For higher prices other exquisite French waists could be bought, including many made of French voile and many made of a soft, dull shade of pink and an equally soft shade of blue. There was a profusion of tucks on the higher priced of these waists, and one that showed a low neck line that spread quite wide at the shoulders was finished at the top with a quaint little upstanding ruffle.—New York Sun.

NEW BAG REALLY PRETTY

What Might Be Called a Daring Combination Has Been Made Remarkably Effective.

It wouldn't have seemed a possible thing, but the moment we laid eyes upon it we knew. The top's of peacock taffeta; so far usual enough, but at the middle begins the newness. Minute feathers, mere downy dashes of fluff, are fastened to the silk in lovely peacock color combinations, which result in an iridescent effect which is lovelier than anything so far and which puts all the rest of the bag baggage out of consideration.—Kansas City Star.

Indian Shawls Worn.

Indian cashmere shawls are in great demand this winter. They are bordered with narrow bands of fur and cleverly draped into evening cloaks. Sometimes they are cut up and fashioned into waistcoats for tailormades or panels on black or blue satin frocks. When these beautiful shawls are arranged in evening cloak fashion the fringes are brought into prominence.

Some of the Paris dressmakers are introducing large motifs cut from the Indian cashmere shawls on gowns made of coarse black net and with excellent effect. The motifs are outlined and sometimes worked over with very fine metallic threads.

FLYING JOB OF YOUNG MEN

Not Everyone of Proper Age Is Physically Fitted for Work—Airmen Face Many Perils.

From leakage of petrol spray the pilot may become dizzy, and the exhaust gases from the engine—carbon monoxide and dioxide—may cause headache, drowsiness and malaise, says a writer in the Lancet, discussing diseases familiar to airmen. The rarefied air at great elevations may induce the symptoms well known in balloonists, and Wells refers to a case of frostbite in an airman who had been exposed to 34 degrees of frost at an elevation of 15,000 feet. Psychasthenic symptoms—namely, loss of self-confidence and the resulting mental worry (aerosthenia)—are not uncommon, and prove that the victim has mistaken his sphere of activity.

Flying is undoubtedly the job of a young man under thirty years of age, and not every young man is temperamentally or physically fitted to carry it through. Perfect eyesight is necessary to insure safe landing, correction with glasses being not without its dangers; perfect hearing is essential to detect the first indications of engine defect, and free movement of the joints of the lower limbs to control the steering gear. Fits and tendency to faint absolutely deter the aspirant from the air service. In one remarkable instance at Haslar an airman who fainted, with the result that the airplane dived nose downward 1,200 feet into a plowed field, escaped with such minor injuries that he was at first extremely loath to give up this branch of the service.

WASHINGTON'S WILL POWER

Kept His Pugnacity in Subjection, but Occasionally He Allowed Passion to Have Sway.

It is related of John Adams that when Stuart exhibited his portrait of General Washington, Mr. Adams went to see it. After gazing at it for several minutes he exclaimed, "That's the portrait of a man who knew how to hold his tongue, which this old fool never did!"

The portrait does indicate that the original could be reticent, but it also shows that he could control himself. The square, massive jaw, the full, broad-based nose, and the compressed lips express pugnacity and passion, such as require a strong will to keep them in subjection.

Sometimes even Washington allowed his passion to have sway.

When Glover's Marblehead fishermen and Morgan's Virginia riflemen were engaged in a rough and tumble fight, Washington leaped from his horse over the bars of the camp fence, dashed among the rioters, seized two brawny riflemen by the throat and, shaking them at arms' length, subdued not only them, but the whole band.

It was the victory due to commanding strength, presence and manner. The men saw that they must obey, and they obeyed.

Appreciation of Authors.

That Americans are not without appreciation of their great authors—after the great authors are dead—was demonstrated at a sale in New York city, where a collection of 33 holograph letters of Nathaniel Hawthorne, with engraved portraits, brought $2,000 from W. H. James. In the collection were letters to Hawthorne and his family from Emerson, Whittier, Bret Harte, Browning, Eugene Field and Irving.

Two thousand dollars is a good, round price to pay for a few old letters, even if they were written by or to an author of the repute of Hawthorne. It is easy to imagine what Hawthorne would have thought on the subject if he could have foreseen this transaction when he was writing juvenile classics like the "Tanglewood Tales" and "Grandfather's Chair" for S. G. Goodrich, and receiving in remuneration sometimes no more than $50 a volume.

Irish English.

Many persons seem to see, or to hear, rather, something to be amused at in the soft Irish brogue. As a matter of fact, most of the words of the Irish "dialect" are not Irish at all, but the purest of English—English a trifle antiquated, it is true, but nevertheless the real thing. The ears of Milton, Dryden, Spencer and Chaucer would not have been surprised to hear an Irishman speak of "a rough say" or "a clane shirt." At the court of good Queen Bess the cultured Englishman carefully garnished his conversation with "goolds" rings and brave "swoordes" and bored his friends with accounts of the smart sayings of the "childe" at "hoom." This was the English originally imported into Ireland by the cultured Irish, and the Irish have found it good enough to preserve.—Chicago Tribune.

Bacon as Bait.

"We find baiting our mouse trap with bacon is a great advantage over using cheese," advises a woman known as a good housekeeper. "Not only does the cheese become dry in a few days, but after a mouse has once been caught with a piece of it you can seldom use it a second time, for it seems to retain the mouse scent and scares the rest of them away."

"Bacon, on the other hand, remains savory and enticing to the end. Never has our mouse trap been so popular. Since we first baited ours with bacon, about two months ago, we have not changed it once, and I am sure in that time more than twenty mice have been caught in the trap."

Got Something You Want to Sell?

Most people have a piece of furniture, a farm implement, or something else which they have discarded and which they no longer want.

These things are put in the attic, or stored away in the barn, or left lying about, getting of less and less value each year.

WHY NOT SELL THEM?

Somebody wants those very things which have become of no use to you. Why not try to find that somebody by putting a want advertisement in THIS NEWSPAPER?

TANEYTOWN LOCAL COLUMN

Brief Items of Local News of Special Interest to Our Home Readers.

William H. Yingling and wife, of Frizellburg, visited at the home of Mrs. Jesse Myers, on Tuesday.

Dr. R. S. Seiss, who has been housed up with a case of grippe, and other infirmities, is getting around again.

George H. Mitten, of Washington, spent last Friday and Saturday here, visiting at John E. Buffington's.

Miss Josephine Fink, and Edward, Wesley and Robert Fink, of Palmyra, Pa., visited friends here, this week.

J. Albert Angell is teaching out the term for Miss Alice Clousher, who has given up her school since the death of her mother.

The unusually cold and cloudy weather, for the time of year, is greatly retarding Spring growth, and to some extent the Spring work.

Some one broke into the auto shed of O. T. Shoemaker, on Wednesday night, and stole two good blankets. If they were only "borrowed," Mr. Shoemaker would like them returned before Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Adreon, of Washington, D. C., and Dr. and Mrs. Fowle Smith and daughter, Frances, and Mrs. Wm. E. Evans, of Brunswick were guests, of Mrs. Lavina Fringer, on Sunday.

Luther T. Sharets, of Keymar, who has been quite ill, went to Baltimore, on Monday, for examination by a specialist. He is home, and while weak, the prospects are that he will slowly regain his former health.

Rev. Elmer Harner and family, who have been visiting relatives in Littlestown and vicinity, leave today, Friday, for their home in Canon City, Colo. Rev. Mr. Harner is a brother of Rev. Harry O. Harner, of Thurmont.

Rev. Wm. E. Wheeler has removed from Chicago, and taken up his duties with his new charge in St. Louis, Mo. His work in Chicago was very successful—the building up of a mission; in St. Louis he has an old established congregation.

Those who spent Sunday with A. A. Froek and family, Gettysburg, were Geo. Stitzel and wife, Chas. R. Angell and wife, and Chas. Garver, of Clear Springs, Pa.; also Anna Menchey and John Fleshman, of Gettysburg.

Rev. Paul D. Yoder, wife and children, of Union Bridge, and Rev. Boomershire, from the West, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Koons last Friday. Dr. and Mrs. Kemp, of Uniontown, were also guests at the same place on Tuesday.

In crediting the authorship of editorial matter in last week's issue, to Rev. S. R. Downie, we also initiated a little poem sent in by him, but not his by authorship, and he desires us to make the fact clear. The quotation marks should have been used, but were not.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schwartz and little daughter, Kathryn, of York, Pa., have returned home, after spending two weeks at the home of Mrs. Schwartz's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Eckard and family, near Mayberry. They also visited Mrs. Schwartz's brother, Charles Eckard and wife, near Marker's Mill.

Do not cut down your contributions to the church, or to charities, in order to "make ends meet." It costs more to run the church, and benevolences, just now, as well as it costs more to run other things; so try to economize in matters of lesser importance—in things not necessary.

As the Spring weather permits, there is a noticeable absence of farmers in town, as most of them are busy as they can be, putting out the corn crop and doing other farm work. The big out-of-doors is now demanding time and work, both in town and country, and this helps to make news scarce. Everybody who wants work, has plenty of it.

The type of our new machine is particularly clear and easy to read, and just slightly larger than our old type. We think that for "green hands" our operators did particularly well, this week, in producing practically all of the type matter on the machine—except that purchased in the form of plates—and in a little while we will be setting more fresh copy than ever.

Mrs. Levi Flickinger, who recently died in York, Pa., is survived by her husband and five daughters: Mrs. William Haas, Miss Florence Flickinger and Mrs. Jesse Heilman, all of York; Mrs. William Shipley, Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. Harry Dunlap, of Baltimore. She is survived also by one brother and one sister, Joseph Hesson and Mrs. Annie Robinson, both of Littlestown. We make this correction by request.

Mrs. Arthur Angell and Mrs. Lloyd Lambert visited Mrs. A. L. Clingan, in Littlestown, on Monday.

On Thursday night, a thief entered the automobile shed of Charles E. Sell, and stole both the inside tube and casing of one of the wheels of his machine.

Twelve members of Monocacy Lodge A. F. & A. M., attended a meeting of the Gettysburg Lodge, on Thursday night, and report having a very enjoyable time.

This Sunday is "Mother's Day," a day becoming pretty generally recognized, often by special services in churches, and individually by wearing a white flower.

Many things happen in and about town that we would like to mention locally—when of the kind that ought to be used as newspaper items—that we never hear of. Our friends, by a little exercise of thoughtfulness, could help wonderfully to make the Record more newsy. The larger happenings we can get much more easily than the small ones, and it is the latter that are most wanted by many.

200,000 Men Are Ready To Go With Roosevelt.

New York, May 7th.—Col. Roosevelt's military plans, revealed in detail today for the first time, will surprise the general public, including even that portion of it which hails the Colonel as the most strenuous and influential campaigner of the age.

While it has been supposed that he was raising one volunteer division for service on the battle line in France under his command, if the War Department should grant his application, the Colonel has in reality tentatively recruited an army approximately of 180,000 men, exclusive of officers, and has perfected arrangements so that this entire force could be mobilized in six weeks, and its first units started on the way to France for intensive training there.

The offers of personal service, which have come from men of every walk of life—from banker and broker and clerk—have in many instances been accompanied by further offers of financial aid, if that be needed. Thousands of dollars have poured into the headquarters, some of which was needed to prosecute the preliminary work of recording applications and investigating the records submitted. One prominent man from a Southern city sent his check for $1000 and with it the message that seventy-five others had promised to do the same, and that the city would raise $1,000,000 if the money would be of assistance in getting the Colonel to the front. Women have volunteered by the hundreds, also, most of them seeking hospital work.

While the War Department, as far as could be learned, has remained silent, the Colonel and his enthusiastic followers have been going ahead with their efforts, hoping that the chance may come. Captain Dame said yesterday that enough applications would be on file shortly to raise an entire army corps of men who probably would not be subject to service under the conscription law. At least he feels—and the Colonel is sure of it—that two divisions or more could be mobilized and ready to move on to France for training within six weeks after permission was obtained to set the movement in full operation. Colonel Roosevelt has made it known that he is ready to go as sixth, seventh, eighth or ninth in rank, and is not seeking to command an army corps or even a division; that he will be more than satisfied with the opportunity to head a brigade in order to get where the fighting is the hottest.
