Turn the Clock Ahead.

Don't forget to turn the clock ahead an hour, on Saturday evening, before going to bed, then let youreslf be fooled, thereafter, into doing everything an hour ahead of time. It will mean getting up an hour earlier, going to Sunday School and Church, and to trains, an hour earlier; and if and that by restricting unnecessary one does not go to bed by the clock, an hour earlier, there will be an hour less sleen.

The six and twelve o'clock bells and whistles will be an hour earlier—but you mustn't think of it that way, and spoil the plan. "Quitting time" also come an hour earlier-if the camouflage works. Council of Defense Notes.

The question often arises: What relation has this, that or the other woman's society to the Woman's Committee? It may be said that the The New Rules That Everybody is Woman's Committee of the State Council of Defense is a sort of clearing house for the patriotic activities of women. It is in no sense a rival of any organization, nor has it any desire to detract from the activities and prerogatives of any other. Its idea is to help build, not to pull down. It stands ready to help any other existing organization in its work of conversing the force of all women for war work. ## The Third Liberty Loan.

The Secretary of the Treasury has announced that the amount of the third Liberty Loan will be $3,000,000,000 (three billion) dollars, and that the rate of interest will be 4½ per-cent, the campaign to begin April 6th. The Secretary will accept all over-subscriptions, there being no limit to the total to be raised. The Secretary's statement is in part, as follows:

"It is the belief of the Secretary that the rate now proposed is sufficient capital issues and by inducing the people who subscribe for Liberty Bonds to save and keep them for investment, and by purchases with the sinkng fund from those who find them-, and selves compelled to sell, future in-will creases in the interest rate may be avoided. ## A GREAT BATTLE NOW ON

The German Army Makes Quick Drive Against the Allied Forces.

The long expected great German drive against the Allied forces, commenced a week ago. Opinions differ as to whether it represents German victory, although the Germans have captured and killed many thousands, and captured a large number of guns. The attacking army lost very heavily in killed and wounded—likely many more than the Allies—and while the British and French were driven back, and a number of towns captured, an actual break in their lines does not seem to have been accomplished.

The battle is taking place on a 50 mile front and is the greatest effort of the war. Both British and French refuse to admit that the drive has been a great German victory, but that it represents an important advance, is beyond question, and shows apparently greater German strength in men and

A surprise of the week was the bombardment of Paris by a concealed gun, apparently over 70 miles distant. It is likely that London can also be reached by such a gun. The bombardment has not caused much damage. It remains to be seen whether the German guns can again be brought forward and another over-powering drive made. If so, the outcome of the war must be admitted to favor the Germans.

American reinforcements have been called for, at once, by Premier Lloyd George, who says "The crisis of the war is at hand; it is impossible to exaggerate the importance of getting American reinforcements across the At-Intic in the shortest possible space of time."

The general situation, at this time, is very much involved, and almost anything may happen in a few days. The Germans are apparently opening new and extensive operations, while the Allies are bringing up reserves and planning for counter attacks. As the situation stands, unless the Germans succeed in administering crushing defeat, they stand a good chance of having the situation turned into a rout for themselves.

The Austrian forces are reported to be assembling on the Italian front for a great drive; 40 new divisions, and artillery from the Russian front, are being brought forward, which indicates that the drive against France will not interfere with this second effort.

The Russians appear to be re-forming an army, and report that Odessa has been re-taken from the Germans, but little is expected from this source to be in time to cause any interference with present German plans.

Upon motion, it was agreed that a committee (or delegation) not limited in number, wait upon the County Commissoners will promptly will open the county Commissioners at their office, in Westminster, Wednesday, at 10:30 A. ## The Champion Public Sale.

The public sale held by J. Calvin Dodrer, near the Westminster State Road, on Tuesday, was the record breaker for Carroll County, this seas-on, the amount of the sale being $10,-417.07. Auctioneer J. N. O. Smith did the job in exactly five hours, being assisted by a fine day and a large crowd of ready bidders.

The cattle brought approximately $5000.00 and a team of about $1400., while the large assortment of farm machinery, which was in excellent shape, sold at the prevailing high figures, The sale was practically all cash, which has been the rule at all public sales this year, the number of notes given being very

The Anti-betting Bill Killed.

The House, on Tuesday, killed the anti-race track and betting bill, by a vote of 46 to 44, much to the prise of those who had been fighting for the measure, and who had expected the main opposition to come from the Senate. After the vote was taken, the customary "clincher" was put on the bill, which will prevent its reconsideration this session.

Although the $3,000,000 road bill This, in our opinion, is the most has been advanced, in the Senate, in segraceful act of the present sesa big fight in the House, which seems was made that those favoring the defeat of the bill wanted gambling to continue, urging that betting was absolutely necessary to racing, and that racing at this particular time was of great benefit to the Nation straighten out.

Mr. Zouck, of the State Roads Commission, favors the $3,000,000 loan bill, and is out in a lengthy statement in this Friday's papers. He especially urges the value of state roads, at this time as furnishing facilities. at this time, as furnishing facilities for haulng freight, thus relieveing the congestion of railroads. He says in "The state roads are now delivering more freight to Baltimore than the railroads and without our roads Baltimore city would be short of food supplies. As an example. I might say that over 100 trucks, carrying produce, are now making daily trips to Baltimore over the Westminster-Reisterstown-Baltimore road, which was constructed by the present commission in 1916 and 1917. A number of people thought that it was unwise to build this road then, owing to the the previous year and they deemed it advisable to wait a year or two. In taking positive action the State Roads Commission saved the state in the above-mentioned road alone $250,-

"There is an uncompleted gap in the Westminster-Reisterstown-Baltimore road about two miles west of Bridgeport, which, if built, would bring a very much greater amount of freight to Baltimore city from that section of Maryland and also from Pennsylvania and would make a very much better route for bringing in the much better route for bringing in the large number of government trucks to be sent abroad, but it has been found impossible to bring trucks over this small gap. There are a number of other gaps throughout the state which are in a similar position, and there are also many wooden bridges which the government desires to use but which it cannot do at the present time and they should be reconstructed immediately.

Care of Sitting Hens.

The kind of care and attention given a sitting hen during the process of hatching eggs, plays an important part on the number and condition of the chicks when hatched. See that John S. and Edward E. Stuller, executors of Ezra D. Stuller, deceased, est; allow them to come off once a day to receive feed and water. If to receive there are any that do not desire to come off themselves, they should be taken off. Hens usually return to their nests before there is any danger of the eggs chilling, but if they do not go back in half an hour in ordinary weather, they should be put on the nest. Where a large number of sitters are kept in one room it is advisable to let them off in groups of from 4 to 6 at a time.

The eggs and nests should be examined and cleaned, removing all broken eggs and washing those that are soiled; in the latter case the soiled nesting material should be removed and clean straw added. Nests containing broken eggs that the hen is allowed to sit on soon becomes infested with mites and lice, which cause the hens to become uneasy and leave the nest, often causing the loss of valuable settings of eggs. In miteinfested nests, the hen, if fastened in, will often be found standing over rather than sitting on the eggs

Many eggs that are laid in the late winter and early spring are infertile. For this reason it is advisable to set the war for 20 cents a pound, have several hens at the same time. After been as high as $4.50, and are now the eggs have been under the hens from 5 to 7 days, the time depending somewhat on the color and thickness of the shells-white shelled eggs being easier to test than those having brown shells-they should be tested, the infertile eggs and dead germs removed, and the fertile eggs put back under the hen. In this way it is often possible to put all the eggs that several hens originally started to sit on under fewer hens and reset the costs $120, and calomel itself, which others. For example, 30 eggs are set sold before the war for 50 cents a under 3 hens at the same time, 10 pound, is now being sold for $1.85; under each. At the end of 7 days we Cologne alcohol, which sold before the war for $2.60 a pound, now sells that 10 are infertile, which leaves us 20 eggs to reset, which we do by putting them under 2 hens, and have the remaining hen sit over again buchu, which sold before the war for after she has sat only 7 days. In this way considerable time can be saved in one's hatching operations. In order to secure greatest success and make the hens comfortable when they are sitting, great care should be taken to keep the nests free from cerine, which sold before the war for | mites. To do this effectively is not an easy task. If oil from crude petroleum, which is good for controlling mites, is sprayed freely about the house at that time it may soil the eggs and prevent successful hatching. In-About 300 bars in Baltimore, or fested quarters, therefore, should be about one-fourth of the whole num- treated thoroughly before hens are set, so as to start them in nests which are absolutely clean. Beneath the straw of the nest a layer of lime and sulphpr will tend to prevent mite breeding, and the entire nest may be dusted occasionally with pyrethrum. Broken eggs and the straw soiled by them should be removed promptly, as they tend to attract mites.

"Tis the Star-Spangled Banner! Oh, long may it wave the land of the free, and the home of the brave.'

The big farm sales, this Spring, surely indicate farmer prosperity. Those who are retiring are getting the abnormal prices, while those who are doing the paying, have "the price" with which to do it-and all are farmers, or farmers' sons. When "backing" is needed, farmer fathers and fathers-in-law are furnishing it, which looks as though they are not afraid of the financial outlook in the near future for the farmer job.

DON'T DO IT!

There is a pretty strong inclination manifested on the part of many, who for one reason or another are "tired of the war," to indulge in unwise expressions-if not actually mis-statements-with reference to the war, or some of its many accompanying agencies. Being "tired" of the war, at all clear to the country that farmor suffering inconvenience or sacrifice on account of it, will not end the war, "hard times," nor that their balance cure—and perhaps do not intelligently understand-don't do it!

There are thousands of others much more "tired" and much greater sufferers from the war than you are, and they are not saying half so much about it-they are too patriotic, or too wise, or too patient, to do it. And this is true, too; that those who complain and criticise and circulate "they say" reports most, are usually those who have done precious little through their pockets, or their services, to help make the war a little less of what Sherman said it was. This sort of talk is not only rank disloyalty, but a dead "give away." Don't do it!

Those who have a right to indulge in helpful criticism, or who try to prevent waste of energy, or may differ as to the advisability of methods, are those who prove their right by earnestly helping this government to prosecute the war-by giving and boosting, and then giving and boosting some more. The others, who give nothing, and do nothing, and make excuses to get out of acting as Americans should—perhaps in order to save a few dollars—are helping to prolong the war. Don't do it!

The Weekly Newspaper Not A Profiteer.

credit of the weekly newspapers of this country, and especially of Maryland, that they represent almost the sole specimen of a great industry supplying a widely distributed product at the old price—the Dollar subscription rate—and that in every branch of their output, prices, when advanced, have been absolutely forced by the necessities of the situation, and not to the extent of showing increased

In addition to this, no other public utility has in such a purely voluntary manner offered their services, free, to the government and to the suffering growing out of the war. This is remarkable, because it is rule of profiteering; in fact, we do the same opportunity, that has neglected to accept it. There may be causes within the fraternity itself that detract somewhat from this outstanding fact, but we are of the opinion that the course of the weekly paper has largely been one of its own choosing.

Whether this position of ultra philanthropy can be much longer maintained, is doubtful. Self-preservation is a powerful instinct; and besides, the preservation of the weekly paper as an institution, intact and healthy, is a very necessary help at this critical time in the history of our country, and if a general advance in subscription rates should come, it is justly entitled to general acceptance as a forced and absolutely necessary last resource to preserve a life and moral force fully worthy of ### . What is the Explanation?

There is a strong suspicion that the recent vote in the Senate on the $2.50 wheat price may have been, in part, political in its explanation, as it must represent a strong appeal to the farmer vote, and this Fall a new Congress is to be elected. However, reproducing President Wilson's pronouncement on the wheat price, seems to place still another view on the Senate's vote, which is, that it is anti-administration. He said:

"To increase the price of wheat above the present figure, or to agi-tate any increase of price, would have the effect of very seriously hampering the large operations of the nation and of the Allies by causing the wheat of last year's crop to be withheld from the market. It would, moreover, dislocate all the present wage levels that have been established after much anxious discussion after much anxious anxious discussion and would therefore, create an industrial unrest which would be harmful to every industry in the country.

Whether it be a political play, or a slap at the President, or just an honest conviction that the farmer should get a higher price, it must meet the objections of wheat consumers, both here and abroad, and be considered, as the Prsident states it, as "hampering the larger operations of the Na-

There is no question that farmers vould welcome a higher price for wheat, as well as for corn, hay, oats, produced on the farm—but it is not ers as a class are suffering from

This thing of legislating high-prices and prosperity, to classes, is getting to be monotonous, and disagreeably so to those unfortunate classes not in line with this benevolent sort of work. Unless the latter, in some way, prove their just complaints, form an organization and "kick," it begins to look as though they will continue to play the under dog.

If it be necessary to make a demonstration for the information of lawmakers, that can be done. If those who can't help themselves are to have no advocate in court, the fact ought to be known. It begins to look as though nothing can be accomplished, any more, without the use of something approaching knock-down force, and that the proposition to suffer quietly, and bear the hardships of high-cost existence, can be endured to the limit, without anybody stopping long enough to speak even a word of sympathy. Certainly, nobody can properly object to legitimate prosperity coming to farmers, through the necessities of the war; but the interpretation of the word "legitimate" should be well weighed, and not be made play of as a political expedient for partisan benefit. High war prices are too serious a burden on the poor, and largely helpless masses, to be made capital It must stand eternally to the of; and wanting a price, and being able to get it, should depend solely on the righteousness of the proposition, onsidering all classes and conditions.

The Government and the Country Weekly.

When it comes to handling the small own weeklies, the government news men appear to be utterly at sea. The waste is almost criminal. There appears to be no knowledge of the requirements of the small town press. There is no knowledge as to the plate situation, the only thought being to jam free publicity at the publisher until he becomes nauseated at sight of an envelope bearing the government stamp.

Mill Feed Profiteers.

What is the legal price of bran, shorts, middlings and wheat byproducts? This is the question which has troubled farmers in several parts of the State for some time, due to the act that some millers apparently have been selling these products at prices considered exorbitant.

In reply, G. E. Wolcott, of the State College Extension Service, has issued the following statement regarding the Food Administration ruling and price of which dealers may sell the above lairy feeds:

"The price of mill feeds such as oran, shorts, middlings, etc., is based upon the price of wheat at the mill. The price of bran is allowed to be 38 per cent of the price of wheat; the price of brown shorts $2 more per ton than bran; the price of grey shorts $4 per ton more than bran; and the price of white middlings $9 per ton more than bran.

"If we suppose the price of wheat at the mill to be $2 per bushel, or $66 per ton, then bran at the same place should sell for $25.33: brown shorts for $27.33 and so on. Brokers may not charge more than 25 cents a ton prokerage for bran and shorts.

"Commission merchants may not charge more than 50 cents per ton for sale, delivery and collection. Wholesalers and jobbers may not charge more than a reasonable advance over the average bulk price at the mill plus brokerage and other costs."-M. A. College Service.

In the latter respect it will be generally agreed the law has utterly failed of its purpose. It has been the invariable experience that the more publicity service properly organized elaborate the machinery governing nomiantions and elections the more complete is the control of the party organization; and this for the very good reason that the organization exists for the express purpose of working the election machinery, whereas sequently, that which conducted in an independent unorganized voters are at marked disadvantage whenever a contest arises. It would be untrue to say that the primary system as a whole has been an utter failure. There have been times when the people have taken the opportunity the primary affords to express their own will as against the dictation of bosses; but these have been exceptions rare and far between. The primary has increased instead of diminishing the power of the men who run the machine and command the army of minor politicians, who are taught that unquestioning obedience is the open sesame to advancement and reward.

It is evident that where the primary has failed to fulfill the expectations of those who originally hailed it as a sovereign remedy for bossism, it has been due to the same causes which "Loyalty demands that wherever bring about the election of unworthy fraud or graft exists in war contracts and incapable men to public office, namely, the negligence and indifference of the great body of our citizenship to their duties and resposibilities. If every person possessing the franchise, fulfilled his or her responsibilties, if all the voters took the trouble to register and to vote at primaries, as well as at the elections, the organized 'regulars" would not have things their own way and bosses would be more careful about the sort of men they bring forward. After all, there is no piece of election machinery fashioned ever so adroitly that is going to be a substitute for a watchful and conscientious electorate. If the primaries have failed, it is not so much the fault of the system as of the people who work it or neglect to work it.-Phila. Ledger.

His letter to the Democrats of New Jersey breathes the spirit of enlightened leadership, but that it is addressed solely to members of one party deprives it of that level of exalted statesmanship to which it might properly have arisen. The President has never seemed to recognize the fact that in making and keping his administration a strictly party one he is depriving himself of an element of inestimable strength. He is surely not unaware that in more than one crisis in his dealings with the Congress which is controlled in both branches by his own party he has had to contend with a divided support and that but for the loyal patriotism of members of the 'opposition" he would have met inevitable defeat or would at least have been seriously hampered in the performance of his task.

If it be true, as he writes, that "the old party slogans have lost their significance and will mean nothing to the voter of the future," would it not be the part of true and statesmanlike leadership to seek the hearty cooperation of all right-thinking men instead of striving ever to maintain, in the face of a foreign foe, partisan divisions which he admits have lost their old meaning ?-Phila. Ledeger.

ment of Agriculture.) Although the raspberry will succeed on a wide range of soil types provided suitable moisture conditions prevail, the best results will be secured only by studying the peculiar requirements of the different varieties. A fine, deep, sandy loam is perhaps the most desirable soil for growing raspberries, because it is managed so easily. Equally good yields of some varieties will be secured on clay and on sandy soils if they are well managed. In general, however, though the black raspberries seem to do best on sandy soils, they are grown extensively and succeed well among clay soils. Among the red raspberries the Ranere does best on sandy types, but the June prefers a clay soil. Other varieties, such as the Cuthbert and King, succeed on a wide range of soil types. There the soil requirements of varieties are known, they are indicated in the characterizations given on later pages of this bulletin.

The same thorough preparation of the soil should be given for a raspberry plantation as for corn or similar crops. For the best results the plants should never be set in a field which has just been in sod, but should follow some hoed crop. Land which produced a crop of potatoes the previous year and which has later been plowed and thoroughly pulverized is in the best physical condition for settling the plants, and any field on which crops have been frown which leave the soil in a similar condition is prepared properly for rasp-

The time of planting raspberries varles in different parts of the United States, according to local conditions. In general, however, the plants should be set in early spring in the Eastern part of the United States, but on the Pacific coast they should be set during the rainy season, whenever it is possible to do the work.

Because better plants of the black and purple varieties can be secured Department of Agriculture to Assist in in the spring, that is the best season for setting them. Red raspberries, however, may be set in the autumn with good success in sections where the winters are mild or where there is a good covering of snow to protect the Occasionally when growers wish to set a new plantation they wait a month after growth starts in the spring and use the suckers that come up during that month in their established plantation. If the season is favorable, this practice may prove satisfactory. If, however, a drought occurs soon after, the young plants will suffer severely. Only in sections where the climate is favorable is this practice to be recommended.

Handling Nursery Stock.

It must be remembered that the root systems of nursery plants of the different varieties vary greatly, and what constitutes a good nursery plant of one variety may be a poor plant of another variety. Thus the Royal, a purple variety, rarely makes as large a els of small potatoes wasted in the Consequently a good nursery plant | could be used in making bread.

In order to work the soil thoroughly about the roots of each plant it will be necessary to open the bundles and spread the plants along the trench. Sometimes it is desirable to wet the roots, or, if they are very dry, to soak them for a few hours before heeling in the plants.

Just before setting it is well to dip the roots of the plants in a puddle imade of clay and water or cow manure and water. The roots are thereby partially protected from the wind and sun.

Plants affected with crown-gall should not be set. This disease can be recognized by the knots and swellings which appear on the roots and about the crown. Such diseased plants are very much less productive than healthy stock.

Agriculture.)
Root-rot, a very destructive storage rot of onions, occurs in many states, losses of from 25 to 75 per cent in white onion sets having been recorded in the onion-growing districts in the vicinity of Chicago and in northern Indiana. Red and yellow onions are not attacked as seriously as the white varieties. In order to combat this malady, the United States department of agriculture next season is to assist growers in testing a method of controlling the disease with the hope of putting the method on a practicable basis for commercial use. Specialists of the department will be assigned to the districts affected to advise the farmers and to help in the installation and equipment of necessary structures.

COUNTY HEADQUARTERS AT "OVER THERE" CANTONMENT

A Glad Welcome to Be Extended to All Persons From This Locality.

Big Advance Sale of Tickets.

That the folks from "down home" may feel perfectly at home and welcome at the Fifth Regiment Armory when they visit the great Liberty Loan Cantonment, "Over There," arrangements have been made by the committee to establish a county headquarters at the Armory.

Each county will have a committee, which will be in the nature of a reception committee, and when Jim Jones or Mrs. Martha Simpson visits the cantonment and finds herself unable to locate any of his or her friends, and when that little lonely feeling threatens to spoil one's good time, then Mr. Jones or Mrs. Simpson can go to the county headquarters, pick out the county from which they hail, and there be given the "glad hand" by those in charge of that particular county booth.

Nine times out of ten both Jim Jones and Mrs. Simpson will know intimately those in charge of their county booth, and in less time than it takes to tell they will soon get rid of the lonely feeling, and find themselves in the midst of old friends, and ready to enjoy the numerous attractions at the cantonment.

Through this arrangement it is probable that many old friendships will be renewed, and impromptu family reunions will be "the thing," by having the county folks meet at county headquarters.

Visitors to Baltimore on the opening day of "Over There," March 30, will be given an opportunity to not only see the war tank "Britannia" but also see it in action-doing stunts which caused consternation in the German Army when those monsters of destruction first made their appearance in battle. The tank will not be shown at the Fifth Regiment Armory, on account of its great weight -thirty-four tons. The Maryland Jockey Club, however, has consented to the use of the Pimlico Race Course for this purpose, and at its own expense, will erect a building fifteen by twenty feet, have trenches dug, mounds thrown up and other obstacles placed, it being the idea of those who have charge of this feature of the War Exhibition to make it as realistic as possible. The tank will be in Baltimore only on the opening day of the

The advance sale of tickets to "Over There," which is said to be the largest for any one show ever known, is still rapidly growing, approximately 400,-000 having been disposed of so far. The committee on admission of which Judge John C. Rose and Albert G. Towers are city and county chairmen respectively, are using every endeavor to give the tickets the widest possible distribution. Upwards of 8,000 letters where she had been a life-long mem- ing and loan Associations, clubs, dentists, educational institutions, merchants, etc. Just how the committee in charge will take care of the vast Mrs. Emma, wife of R. J. Mathias, crowds which the stupendous sale of tickets denotes will attend the Cantonment, was at first a question which gave much concern, but arrangements have now been made whereby there will be practically no difficulty experienced in handling the enormous

There will be three exhibitions daily. The first will be from 10 A. M. to 12 M.; the second will be from 1 P. M. to 5 P. M.; the third from 7 P. M. to 11 P. M. This means that the Armory will be actually closed for one hour at the end of each exhibition during which time the building will be cleared of all visitors. All the exhibits which will feature the Cantonment will be vivid and impressive. They will include demonstrations of practically every phase of war work there is. The Red Crosswill have a field dressing station 22 years, 11 months and 11 days, after an illness of about two weeks. By MARCIA MEREDITH

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Will you please get off the wire?" The voice, though young and feminine, was not entirely pleasant. "I believe I took my receiver off first," came back good-naturedly. "I am trying to get the janitor. Are you the janitor's wife?"

"How ridiculous! Where is the elevator boy to answer the 'phone? I want the janitor."

A laugh came back through the telephone. "Everybody wants the janitor. The last I heard he had gone out to try and buy soft coal. I dare say you're in the same boat that I am-frozen to death in your apartment. You know it won't do any good to kick, but, like me, nothing else will keep you warm."

There was no answer. Freda Tilson's receiver slammed back on the hook that held it, and if she had been inclined to talk to herself in her little apartment she might have muttered something about an impertinent creature who dared to talk to a girl when he did not know her, and that she hadn't the most remote idea who it was. That would have been a fib, however, for she really did know that it was the young man who dwelt in bachelor state in the somewhat more spacious and luxurious apartment in front of her own, the greater luxury and higher rent of his apartment being due to the fact that while he managed to draw to himself a weekly check for $75 for writing "thrillers" for a popular weekly, she pounded a typewriter somewhere in the "downtown" district to the tune of sixty a month.

To her, having an apartment of her own, with a little place she could call home, was a luxury that she had earned by much economy in the way of amusement and pretty clothes. His living there was put down to his New England origin, for Victor Paige was more of a miser than a spendthrift, and he would rather dine alone on the simple fare that his visiting colored housekeeper made for him than to spend many ducats in alluring restaurants. Now it happened that the typewriter that Freda Tilson pounded was located in the very office whither Victor Paige occasionally strolled to deliver his manuscript, and mayhap chin with the editor. Perhaps she felt a secret grievance, because, though she had noticed the coincidence that he frequented her office and also abode under the same roof, he had sought no excuse to speak to her as they passed in the halls going home or venturing forth. It does seem strange that Victor never sought the excuse, for Freda would have been good to speak to. And there was nothing repelling in her round blue eyes. But then, Victor came from New England.

As Freda performed the task of dusting and straightening up her little apartment, clad to the chin in a sweater and wearing gloves on her hands as she worked, she listened intently for a ring at her doorbell that would mean that the letter she was waiting for had come. When all chance of the delivery was over she descended to the entrance to make sure that the boy in attendance there had not failed to deliver it to her.

Strange that Victor Paige should have gone forth at the same time. He waited while she made her complaint.

"In the first place," she said, "it is perfectly ridiculous that on the one day in the week when we have to be home and when it would really seem that apartments and houses ought to have enough coal to make them comfortable, we should be made to suffer in this way. How I am ever going to write on my typewriter, with hands stiff from cold, is more than I can tell. It seems most extraordinary that my manuscripts did not come by the mail this morning. My office is closed, and it is absolutely necessary for me to typewrite some revised manuscript that the editor was sending by special delivery. Are you quite sure nothing has come for me?"

The dusky skinned attendant nodded in the negative.

"And is there no hope of any heat?" Again a negative nod.

"Well, then, the only thing for me to do is to go and get some oil. Thank goodness, I bought a stove."

Now it was Victor's inning. Having heard Freda's plaint and the unsatisfactory replies, he did not mention the frigid atmosphere that prevailed in his apartment as well as in hers.

"I say, Obadiah-beg pardon, I forgot your name was Hannibal-you haven't seen anything of a stray messenger boy with a typewriter, have you? Of course you haven't. But, you see, the place I usually dictate my copy is closed, and I was going to pound it out for myself today, so I sent for a typewriter. But I guess they had too many orders before mine. Well if there's no hope for heat I'll have to burn oil."

And he returned to his rooms, calling the name of Dinah, who came every day at noon to keep house for him, blessed, because she had suggested to him that when steam heat failed the temperature could be improved by burning oil stoves. The fact that fate had some deep design in choosing to have Victor Paige and Freda Tilson take apartments in the same house really might have been suspected when, a quarter of an hour later, another accidental meeting occurred. It was at the corner grocery. Freda came hurrying in with the base of an old stove, her selfconsciousness at having to earry this awkward burden only making her cheeks pinker and her eyes rounder.

"Please fill this with oil," she told the grocer's boy, and then blushed a little rosier as she realized that Victor Paige was standing at her elbow. He took his hat off, and then, when Freda averted her look he awkwardly waved his hat in the air and stroked the cat with the brim of it to try to convince himself that he had meant to take it off anyway, and that he was not a bit embarrassed by Freda's hauteur.

"We ain't got no oil-all sold out," came from the grocer's boy, just as Victor Paige was inquiring of the grocer himself whether it happened that oil stoves were a part of his equipment. In the grocery store back in his New England home town he recalled that such trifling articles were always sold. And as the grocer assured him that the only places to get such things were the household furnishing stores, and they were all closed because it was coalless Monday, he confided to him. He knew the grocer didn't care, and he didn't care whether he did care, but he spoke in a loud, clear voice. Could it have been that it was for Freda's benefit? "You see, the woman that keeps house for me suggested that if I bought some 'oil I could manage to keep warm, even when the steam was not up in the apartment, and I was such an ass as to forget that one really needed something to burn it in. I have a gallon of oil, but what good does that do?" Freda did listen, and for just one moment she was tempted to tell her neighbor that between the two they might manage to get some sort of result. But she didn't tell him. She hurried home, walking faster and faster as she heard his footsteps behind her. He overtook her just as she reached the landing off which both their apartments opened, and would have spoken to her only that she closed the door rather unceremoniously in his face. She knew she had been rude, but for some unaccountable reasons she took satisfaction in her heart-

A half hour later, when Victor Paige answered a slight ring at his doorbell, he wore a skating cap, a bathrobe, an overcoat, hockey stockings and galloshes. He found Freda Tilson on the landing. She was very sorry to disturb him, she told him, but she had received word from the editor in the office where she worked that, because he had been unable to dispatch some copy for her to do at home, he would like her to put in the day taking dictation on the typewriter from Mr. Paige. Wasn't it funny that Mr. Paige happened to be connected with the same office? Did he wish to come into her apartment, or should she come into his? There was small choice; both were arctic.

Ten minutes later Victor Paige, carrying an odoriferous gallon of kerosene, some ill-kempt notes on stray bits of paper, and a dish of apples-Victor could not write without apples for refreshment-went into Freda's small apartment. When lunch time came Freda had forgotten her resentment. and Victor, truth to tell, was as much in love with her as he had ever been with any girl.

"If I had some eggs I'd make an omelet and ask you to lunch," she said, just a little timidly.

And although Victor knew that his Dinah was coming to make lunch in his apartment that day, he hurried to get some eggs that he was right in guessing she had left in his ice box. And so they lunched, and so they worked on through the afternoon.

"What's the use of resisting the inevitable," he said as she handed him the last page of his manuscript from her typewriter. "We can't either of us get along without the other. We would both have been miserable today

"It does seem strange. Do you believe in fate?" And apparently Victor did, for he was always sure it was fate that threw him and his wife together that coalless Monday.

APRIL 1 LAST DAY FOR FEDERAL RETURNS

Penalties for Income Dodgers Are Severe-Get Your Return in if You Are Liable.

April 1, 1918, is the final day allowed under the federal income tax law for the filing of cederal income tax returns. Persons who are required to file returns under the provisions of law and who fail to get their returns in on time are subject to severe penalties, as follows:

For making false or fraudulent return, not exceeding $2,000 or not exceeding one year's imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court, and, in addition, 100 per cent. of the

For failing to make return on time, not less than $20 nor more than $1,-000, and, in addition, 50 per cent. of the amount of tax due.

If on account of illness or absence from home you are unable to render your return within the time prescribed by law you may obtain an extension of 30 days if a request therefor is filed with the collector of your district before the due date of the return. In this request you must state the reason why the return cannot be filed within the time prescribed by law.

Collectors of internal revenue are not authorized to grant extensions of more than 30 days, but the commissioner of internal revenue has authority to grant a reasonable extension beyond 30 days in meritorious cases. If you desire an extension of more than 30 days your request should be addressed to the commissioner and should contain a detailed statement covering the reasons which make it impossible for you to file your return on or before April 1.

The internal revenue men are now completing their tour of the country, during which they were in touch with the people of every city and town. If you failed to get in touch with the deputy which visited your section it is not too late to get advice. Consult your postmaster as to where the nearest deputy is now. Get your blank form, study the directions and the requirements as shown thereon and make your return without fail if your income was sufficient to come within the bounds named in the law.

It is pointed out by Commissioner Roper that it is important that the people comply with the federal laws as fully as they are complying with the drafts for men and the conservation of foods and fuel. "The war must be paid for," says Commissioner Roper. 'Congress has as much right to conscript a just portion of income as it has to conscript our boys. The tax for 1917 is designed to reach moderate as well as large incomes, so that all persons who are in financial posi tion to bear a portion of the heavy government expenses can be assessed in proportion to their ability to pay.

"The man who is barely making a living or barely supporting a family is not affected by the 1917 law. But the man who is able to bear a share of the burden has been reached by budget incres spirit that our young men have shown in offering themselves for this great | liament. purpose of the country to make the world safe for people of all kinds to live in and to govern themselves."

This tax is one which recognizes women as on an equal basis with men. The unmarried woman or the married woman with a salary must make tax return just the same as any man. Only the woman supporting her mother or other members of her family may take out $2,000 exemption.

Under the law the head of the family is the one whose earning power contributes to the family's support.

Similarly a widow with small children to support can take out $2,000 exemption and $200 additional exemption for each of her children under eighteen. Thus it is intended that the law shall work no hardship to women having to struggle to get along. But each must file return if her income is $1,000.

A man whose wife dies and who is left with small children to support upon a moderate income may also take full exemption under the new tax law and also claim $200 exemption for each of his children under eighteen.

The widower under the law is a single man and must make tax return accordingly. Married men need not file returns unless they are earning $2,000 or more.

"This is as much a national obligation as the reporting for duty of a man drafted for service with the colors,' says D. C. Roper, commissioner of internal revenue. "As it stands, it is much a matter of the man or woman's own conscience. It is for him or for her to determine just how far he is liable to the tax. He must figure his own income and if it reaches the figures named in the law must make faithful report upon it to the proper authority. "This tax is distinctly a war measure and will be in effect during the

BREEDING SHEEP FOR FUR

Production of "Persian Lamb" May Be Added to the Industries of the United States.

In far-away Bokhara, a town and district in Asiatic Russia that has a half-mystical sound to American ears, "Persian" lambs have been grown for ages for the tightly curled, lustrousblack fleeces that constitute the warm cover of the natives. And so the fashion of wearing Persian lamb and astrakhan has come down from the ages until women in all civilized lands where the winters are cold seek their warmth, and fashion's decree has made them so popular that the cost of Persian lamb has gone up 142 per cent in 15 years.

It must have been instinct—it could not have been foreknowledge that a world war would curtail commercethat made an American decide a few years ago to try breeding the sort of sheep that bear the highly prized fleeces, on his 1,900-acre ranch near Cottonwood Falls, Kan. He reasoned that if they could be bred in Asia, they could be bred in Kansas, and so thoroughly dia he believe in the proposition that he invested $35,000 in karakul sheep from Bokhara. These he crossed with native Lincoln-bred sheep, and the lambs of this cross bear the valuable pelts that hitherto have been imported almost exclusively from Russia.—Robert H. Moulton in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Clear Roads for Dispatch Bearer. After grazing upon the auto truck cover of a recent issue a saddened and cynical reader wrote to Collier's Week-

"You have made a great mistake You have placed all the army trucks on the side of the road, leaving ample room for trucks going in the opposite direction to travel without going down in the ditch. My experience with army motor trucks is that they always travel on the crown of the road, and when you see one on the side of the road you can figure that it is broken down."

Collier's replied: "Be this observation true or not, there is one being before whom even the ruthless and disdainful truck driver quails—the dispatch rider. There is no more soulsatisfying sight for a harassed pedestrian in the French war zone than that of a dispatch motorcycle shooting down a road at 80 miles an hour, with a two-mile line of motor trucks and staff cars scuttling hastily into the ditches to get out of the way."

This power has been used effectively three times to break down the resistance of the reichstag-in 1878, when it refused to pass the bill to suppress the socialists; in 1887, when it would not agree to fix the size of the army for seven years, and in 1893, when it declined to change the military system. In each case the new body did what the government demanded. Since the principal financial arrangements are matters of standing law, if the reichstag refuses to pass a new the new law, and he should accept his passes one reducing them, the governresponsibility in the same patriotic ment can be carried on on the old basis without any action on the part of par-

Lesson 1.—Second Quarter, April 7, 1918.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES

Text of the Lesson, Mark 7:24-35-Memory Verse, Mark 7:37-Golden Text, John 8:36-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

It is probable that Jesus' discourse on the Living Bread, as recorded in John 6, was given between the last lesson and this one, emphasizing the Bread from Heaven as the great need of all, even himself, apart from whom there is no life, and giving assurance that his words are both spirit and life.

The first section of our lesson chapter (vss. 1-13) deals with those who know and have nothing real, but only (vss. 6, 13). They are spoken of in the prophets as those who draw near to God with their mouth and honor him with their lips but their heart is far from him. They hear the words of the Lord, but will not do them. With their mouth they show much love, but boastful but a few days before and had their mouth they show much love, but their heart goeth after their covetousness (Isa. 29:13; Ezek. 33:31).

peats one of his great sayings, "If any man have ears to hear let him hear" (vs. 16), sets before us the truth that real defilement comes not so much! from what we eat or drink as from the wicked heart within us all, for, "The heart is deceitful above all things and desperately wicked: Who can know it?" (Jer. 17:9). Consider our Lord's own words concerning the wicked heart and what it is capable of in vss. 21-23. As the age draws to a close the manifestation of the evil that is in the heart of man will greatly increase, for he said that at the time of his coming again as the Son of Man, which means his coming in glory to set up his Kingdom on earth, after the marriage of the Lamb, things will be as they were in the days of Noah (Luke 17:26). It is written that in the days of Noah "God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually, for all flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth (Gen. 6:5, 12).

We do not wonder that he went away from all this hypocrisy and formalism of the Scribes and Pharisees to be refreshed by the faith of the Syrophenician woman (vss. 24:30). The account of this incident in Matt. 15:28 is a little more full in some respects than the record in our lesson; but, takheal her daughter. Note that she heard of Jesus; that is the great thing we are here for, to make him known, our lives are not bearing the fruit desired, and we are in some measure failures, and may be ashamed before him woman having heard of his wondrous works believed that he could surely heal her daughter, and with humble persistent faith, came to him, addressing him first as Son of David, but to this appeal he made no reply, perhaps because as Son of David he could do nothing for her. Then his disciples, for their own comfort, asked him to send her away, for they said: "She crieth after us."

Her next word was, "Lord help me," to which he replied that it was not meet to take the children's bread and cast it to dogs. Even this did not discourage her, and she said: "Truth, Lord; yet the dogs eat the crumbs which fall from their master's table." Now she prevails and is rewarded by his word: "O woman, great is thy faith, be it unto thee even as thou wilt." From that hour her daughter kept up with no stop. It was taken was well, and so she found her when on the run. In all the submarine fired she went home, and lying upon the bed. Another instance of the faith of one prevailing for another; but oh, such faith, the kind that takes the lowest place, but will take no denial. Giving him his right place, and taking raising her out of the water. The Silour place as sinners, but, like Jacob, clinging in our weakness with, "I will not let thee go except thou bless me" (Gen. 32:26).

The remainder of our lesson chapter (vss. 31-37) tells of one who was deaf and could not speak plainly. This man he took aside from the multitude, put his fingers into his ears, spit and touched his tongue, looked up to heaven and said, "Be opened," and instantly the man could hear, and he spoke plainly. This healing was after he returned from Tyre and Sidon to the Sea of Galilee. Why he took such not tell unless it was to deliver us and King Archimadus regarded the from expecting to be used or blessed like some one else. ### — THE — CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

--- From --The Christian Workers Magazine, Chicago, Ill.

Acts 1:1-11 may well be added to the Acts 1:1-11 may well be added to the Scripture given above. Jesus showed Himself alive after His death being seen of His disciples for a space of forty days. During this period the disciples companied with the Conqueror of Death and the Lord of Life. What a wonderful experience! Yet it is ours, for we know Him not after the flesh, but as the Risen One, the beginning of the "new creation." See 2 Cor. 5:16-17.

He is not only the Lord of our life, but

He is not only the Lord of our life but of our service too. This is the lesson in John 21. Our walk and work must spring from faith and fellowship, not from Impulse, or Imitation of others. "I go fishing"—Impulse. "We also go with thee"—Imitation. "And that night they caught nothing"—Result. Then across the intervening distance comes the voice of know and have nothing real, but only an outward form of religion, consisting of ceremonial washings and doctrines of men which make the word of God of no effect. Vain worship from the lips only, and not from the heart (vers. 6, 12). They are now and the result. Then across the intervening distance comes the voice of the Master, saying. "Children, have ye any meat?" They answered film. "No." Confession of failure is made But over against their failure is His faithfulness and power. He directs their labors now and the result. and the result is a net full of fish.

Did they learn the lesson? Have we learned it? Is He Lord of our labor as well as of our life?

Another lesson follows, it relates to said. "Though all men should be offended because of thee, yet will I never be offended." That had been Simon's boast, The second section of the lesson others may fail but not he. Now came chapter (vss. 14-23), in which he rether the words of Jesus: "Simon, lovest thou me more than these (other disciples love me)?" In his reply Simon drops all comparisons with others as he replies: "Lord, thou knowest that I love thee." After a pause Jesus again asks the same question but without the boastful com-Peter answers as before using as on the former occaion a humbler word for love than Jesus used. Again Jesus asks the question using that humbler word for love, saying—"Do you love me even with that love?" Receiving Simon's assurance of devotion, the commission to feed and tend the sheep is renewed.

What then are the lessons? First, that the Risen Christ is Lord of our life and of our service. Second, that service in order to be fruitful must issue from faith and fellowship. Third, that our commission must be discharged in humility Fought and Destroyed Submarine.

Sighting a submarine, the armed guard of the United States navy aboard the steamship Silver Shell was ordered by its commander to haul up the American flag and wait. The order was given by Chief Turret Capt. William J. Clark. The guard obeyed and 60 shots were exchanged in a running fight lasting an hour and a half. The enemy was sighted at about 2,000 yards. As the German approached, the vessel, with Stars and Stripes flying and her men at the guns, fore and aft, opened fire. The submarine responded at once with her deck guns, and a sea duel of remarkable fierceness on both sides was started and 35 shots and the armed guard 25. Here, however, is where the sustained gunnery of the American man of war's man outdistanced his foe. He had the last shot. It struck the submarine, ver Shell held her position for a while and the U-boat not coming to the surface it is believed she went down. Clark is an enlisted man and has been in the navy 12 years. His home is at Peabody, Mass. Recommendations have been made for his promotion.

New York.—The persistence shown by France in the dressmaking houses in continuing a certain trick for several years, deserves more attention than is usually accredited it, writes the critics of women's apparel that fashions are not as flighty as they seem. The weather vane turns, it is true, but it swirls back into the same quarter so frequently that at times there is a feeling that it changes little.

We have millions of women to dress, where France has thousands, and we have a population that is quite capable of indulging in its desire for new clothes from the rim of the arctic circle to a line above the tropics.

It is a well-known fact that the American buyers who go to Paris to get new clothes often refuse lovely gowns if they bear a close kinship to those that were sold the year before. They wave such frocks away with the remark that American women must have novelty.

This act has always depressed the designers in Paris, who care for beauty and detail rather than for startling changes, and it is the French designers who say that they rack their brains for eccentricities to give to America far more than they would if their clientele were only Rome, Paris and London.

It is this underlying trait in the French dressmakers that gives them the desire to persist in a certain line -which is coming back to the original discussion

Last autumn the immense bulk of the American public looked with a shrug of the shoulders at the pink and blue taffeta skirts that were tucked up at the hem and caught here and there with a formal little bouquet of roses. How stale and stupid Paris is! was the comment. Can't she ever get it into her head that America does not want that loose, overfull skirt with its ungraceful line about the ankles? > cepted as the leading silhouette among certain houses that establish fashions.

The first French gowns that come fur factor in the shaping of the new it is that it entirely changes the silhouette. This seems to be in contrast with the stated fact that France is persistent in certain things and maintains time than America. The truth is that changes the silhouette and still uses the trick, and that is what she has done in the new Algerian skirt.

It is difficult to say whether the trousers of the French troops in Algiers give the clew to this new skirt or whether it was the entire array of men in baggy trousers which curve in | coast. The French only established a below the knees to fit the legs.

Here Is the Silhouette.

The waist is normally large, the line down the hips is either straight or slightly bulging through the fullness of the material, and the hem is exceedingly narrow and tucked under. A woman wearing the most fashionable of these skirts, with high boots added thereunto, will look at a slight distance as though she wore baggy trousers and army boots.

To the majority of women this news may not be welcome. They will fancy a far more sensational garment than what actually exists. That mild revolution against the sheath and the hobble skirt may also crop up against this Algerian skirt, but both the other features of fashion were incorporated in our ordinary apparel'after a while, without creating disturbance.

There is so little fullness in this new skirt that it does not seem to be even a first cousin to the skirt of Jenny with its tucked-up hem. That skirt, which pervaded the continent for two years, had a tendency to flare out, to fling itself away from the ankles: this skirt goes in so rapidly from knees to hem that it does not need to undergo the same treatment that was accorded the other skirt.

For instance, to be technical—the fullness at its hem is not caught up and gathered to a short, narrow lining. This is not considered necessary. It is merely turned under and run into the conventional hem, allowing its fullness, slight as it is, to fall about, the narrowest silhouette we have had in years. When the hem is not tucked under, it is only wide enough to provide free movement in walking. The skirts are necessarily short, for their narrowness would greatly impede progress if they were manner half a dozen years ago. Jenny long.

It seems to have once formed the bed of a great inland sea, of which Lake Chad, in the southwest, is the shriveled remnant. In fact, the Sahara is steadily encroaching on it from the northward. It is crossed by the old channels of several rivers, but without a single flowing stream. At no very remote geologic epoch of the future Wadai will apparently become a part of the great desert to the north.

OUTSIDE PALE OF HUMANITY

That German Spies Can Be Classed Only as Dangerous Reptiles, Is Opinion of One Writer.

It is not dishonorable to be a spy, says the Santa Fe New Mexican. One of the Americans we most revere, whose only regret was that he had but knew about that, but I do know that one life to give to his country, was shot as a spy. The spy must be most daring and courageous, must face extraordinary perils, must have remarkable nerve and resourcefulness.

That, at least, is the conception of the spy which we had until the German spy got into the game and made the word synonymous with all that is most execrable in treachery and cunning, dishonor and all forms of evil. A spy has come to mean an incendiary and murderer, an assassin of women This extreme skirt has brought and bables, a poisoner of food and water, a dynamiter and train wrecker, Educated Finland.

The new republic of Finland starts its career with one invaluable asseta highly efficient system of education. Finnish elementary schools are models of excellence, and in an international competition some few years since Finland won the coveted distinction of having the highest educational standard of any country in the world, beating even the United States and Germany. Particular attention is given to the teaching of languages. The two state languages, Finnish and Swedish. are taught in the elementary standards, and until recently Russian also. A knowledge of five or six languages is reckoned nothing exceptional among even middle-class folk in Finland.

Truth Will Out.

In the schoolroom the teacher was trying to illustrate a phrase found in the reading lesson, "a debt of gratitude."

Odd Fellows Celebrate.

Taney Lodge No. 28, I. O. O. F., of Taneytown, celebrated its 25th anniversary on Friday night, March 22. The usual banquet was omitted and a program, mostly humorous, was rendered for the entertainment of the members and friends, among whom were a large number of the wives and were a large number of the wives and lady friends of the lodge. The audience, at the opening of the program, sang "America." Rev. Seth Russell Downie, with a vein of fun running through the whole address, spoke on "Neighborliness." With Harry C. Brendle as master, and Earl Crabbs, Ellia Obler and Ira Snider as pupils Ellis Ohler and Ira Snider as pupils, a farce was rendered, entitled the "Little Red School-house." Rev. G. P.
