BE SURE TO VOTE ON NEXT TUESDAY.

The Tax-payers Must Pay the Costs of this Great War.

Next Tuesday, Election Day, will be a test of how men value their right—the duty, of voting. The strenuous times have so distracted and filled men's minds with new problems, and the influenza epidemic has further added to their serious cares, that there may be a strong inclination "not to vote" especially as only (?) representatives to Congress will be elected.

We use the word "only" because the people are inclined to use it, not because it is proper to do so. There is, in fact, no election more important than our election of a member of the House of Representatives of the U. S. And this year—at this particular war period—all voters should go to the polls grimly resolved to do their best to elect the best and safest men, in order that this country may have this class of men to represent the people "back home" in matters of taxation and finance, the outcome of the war.

We are spending Billions of Dollars where Millions formerly were spent. Eventually, "the people"—we, right here in Carroll County—must pay our share of these Bond-issue billions. The Government will never have the money to pay the bills; the people must furnish it.

We ought to then, exercise our right, our preference, as to who shall sit in the halls of Congress when these vitally personal matters of ours come up for adjustment. Vote for your choice next Tuesday.

If you believe, with the President, that Republicans are not as safe in Congress as Democrats, vote that way. If you believe the President is wrong, vote that way. For the past two years, the people have had orders laid down to them, without any chance to exercise their own voice. This is the first opportunity they have had to express their own opinions, and they should accept it eagerly, if they believe in the "self-government" that this war is claimed to stand for. Vote your sentiments, next Tuesday!

The Sample Ballot.

The Record publishes a "Sample Ballot" this week, without pay, in order to make the matter of voting clear to our readers. There are two groups of candidates for Congress; the first for the full term, and the second for the short term caused by the death of Mr. Talbot.

For the Democratic Mr. Benson is the candidate for both the full and the short terms, while the Republicans have Mr. Hull for the full term and Mr. Wooden for the short term. Democrats must therefore X mark Mr. Benson's name twice—once in each group—while Republicans will make one X mark for Mr. Hull, and one X mark for Mr. Wooden.

The Amendments may be voted for, or not, just as the voter pleases. An explanation of these amendments appears on the ballot.

Red Cross Workers Wanted.

The Red Cross is urgently calling for volunteers, not only for work in the field, but at home. Good positions are available for both men and women, in Washington, and at Divisional Headquarters in other large cities, and at military camps—positions which call for high character and ability.

Among those needed are men experienced in commercial lines, capable accountants, buyers of drugs, medicines, instruments and hospital supplies; trained men and women for publicity work, competent stenographers, secretaries and clerical workers.

Those who want to go to France, can find positions. No influence is necessary—appointment is made on personal worth and qualities. Application in writing can be made to any divisional headquarters, in Washington, Philadelphia, New York, and other large cities, or to any local branch.

Sugar Allowance Increased.

The sugar allowance has been increased from two pounds per person a month to three pounds, beginning Nov. 1. And the monthly allowance can be purchased at one time if desired. A number of modifications of the food rules for eating places have also been issued, largely covering a more liberal use of meat combinations. Eight pounds of sugar may be sold for curing meat, on the basis of four pounds per 1000 lbs of meat, but a special statement must be signed.

Paper Still Going Higher.

Paper prices are still advancing, and prospects are for scarcity of stock this Winter and next Spring. The Record does not expect any inconvenience, as large purchases have been made, during the past six months, sufficient to meet all probable needs, though some substitution may be necessary, which will not result in serious objection by customers.

The Government has ordered the discontinuance of some weights, sizes and colors, of paper, the tendency being toward lighter weights; and there may be difficulty in getting shipments from the mills and wholesale houses, all of which, this office has largely guarded against by having an increased stock either in our office, or on the way.

UNITED WAR WORK CAMPAIGN.

Amounts Apportioned to the Districts of the County.

Preparations are now being made for the coming United War Work Campaign, which is to combine the efforts to provide funds for seven organizations all of which are co-operating in looking after the physical, mental and spiritual needs of the soldiers, and others of our American people, who are engaged in, or are vitally affected by, the war.

The inclination of some, at first, is to object to the combining of all these efforts in one, but the more people come to study the matter, and the more they know about the plan, the more they will come to realize that it is by far the wisest thing that could be done.

We have become accustomed to big things, and this is by far the greatest voluntary effort of them all. And yet it is altogether a necessary effort. However bright may be the prospect for an early peace, to close up the war and return the people to their homes will be the task of months upon months, no matter how rapidly the process may be pushed. If we will, then, have fixed in our minds the vital necessity of the work, a long step will have been taken toward the accomplishment of it.

The campaign does not come by surprise, but has been announced in advance, and widely discussed, so that everybody is expecting it. The amount to be raised is the largest ever undertaken in a similar movement, and is about the same as was gathered in the remarkable Red Cross campaign last Spring. The amount to be received by each organization is definitely fixed, so that every contributor knows in advance just how the money is to be used. The seven organizations and the amounts they are to receive are: Y. M. C. A., $100,000,000; Y. W. C. A., $15,000,000; National Catholic War Council, $30,000,000; War Camp Community Service, $15,000,000; American Library Association, $3,500,000; Salvation Army, $3,500,000; Jewish Welfare Board, $3,500,000; making a total of $170,500,000.

The share for Maryland is $1,500,000. Carroll County has been apportioned $33,500, and this has been apportioned to the districts as follows:

No. 1—Taneytown	$ 2600
2—Uniontown	1600
3—Myers	2000
4—Woolery's	1900
5—Freedom	1500
6—Manchester	2500
7—Westminster	10,000
8—Hampstead	1700
9—Franklin	500
10—Middleburg	1800
11—New Windsor	2300
12—Union Bridge	1800
13—Mt. Airy	1300
14—Berrett	1400
	$33,500

The quota for Taneytown district, as for most of the districts of the county, is something less than would be required if figured according to the taxable basis, while our adjoining districts of Myers and Middleburg have been given a slightly higher proportion, and Westminster has assumed a quota about 40% above its proportionate share.

The campaign will begin on Monday, Nov. 11, and last just a week, but to make it successful there must be careful preparation in advance. Everybody is urged to get ready for a fast, short drive which will put the county "over the top" early. The work of each day will be reported to Westminster, where it will be displayed in a very conspicuous way, and the reports will be in all the districts in the first mail the following morning. Let us remember that Taneytown is the first district, and let us make it first in this drive! Everybody to the wheel!

War Work Meeting Postponed.

The county meeting that had been arranged for, in Westminster, next Wednesday night, to plan for and boost the War Work Campaign, has been called off. The get-together luncheon, in the evening, will be held, in the Firemen's building, as announced.

The purpose of this luncheon, at which the District Chairman, their committees and soliciting teams together with the Advisory Campaign Committee, composed of prominent men from each district will be present; is to have the plans of the work clearly outlined and an informal interchange of views as to the most effective methods to secure the best results. It is earnestly urged that all who are to take part in the active work of the campaign attend this meeting. Everyone must work in accordance with the bigness of the task. This campaign means 70 per cent. more must be contributed than ever before and this means that all must work 70 per cent harder and give 70 per cent more than ever before.

A Big Yield of Potatoes.

What is claimed to be the world's record production of marketable potatoes on 1 acre, 49,531 pounds, or 825 bushels, has been made on an acre of land near Kanab, in the southwestern section of Utah, just a few miles from the Arizona State line. The record yield was made in response to a competition fathered by the Mormon Church, and the church authorities drew a check for $1,000, payable to a representative of the Kanab Stake of the church, which is responsible for the production.

PRESIDENT WILSON WANTS DEMOCRATS.

Says Election of Republicans Would Discredit His Leadership.

President Wilson, last Saturday, issued an appeal to "my fellow countrymen" asking for the return of a Democratic majority to Congress, next Tuesday, claiming that a failure to do so would impair his power and be interpreted abroad as a repudiation of his leadership.

He said that while the leaders of the Republicans have been for the conduct of the war, they have been against his administration; that they have sought to take the conduct of the war out of his hands, and that this is no time for a divided leadership.

The Republicans, both in Congress and out, bitterly resent the coming of the President into partisan politics, following his very recent statement that "politics had adjourned," and claim that his appeal is not only a misstatement of facts, but an insult to all Republicans, in Congress and out, who have been almost unanimously supporting all war measures and voting unlimited powers to the President.

Democratic leaders and candidates, as a rule, defend the President's stand, but some Democratic papers, and the independent and Republican papers generally, are outspoken in the belief that the President has made his greatest political blunder, and that even if his statements are partly true, they should have been made by somebody else, and not the President of the whole people.

However the affair may be viewed it is generally regarded as a signal for throwing down the barriers of "adjourned politics," and that no matter how the election goes hereafter the President has invited more difficulty in putting "his politics" through, and that the floodgates may be opened against many of the features of the administration of the war that have purposely been kept in the background, for fear of giving the enemy comfort.

The President's defenders claim that several Republican Presidents made similar appeals, and that Mr. Wilson has done nothing worse than follow their example.

Ex-Presidents Taft and Roosevelt have joined in a public appeal against the President's appeal, making a general denial of the soundness of his argument, alleging that the work of reconstruction must not be done by one man according to his academic theories, but must be approved by the great body of American people and not necessarily, or properly, by the representatives of one party.

Hog Price Put at $17.50.

Washington, Oct. 26.—A minimum price for packers' drove hogs of $17.50 a hundred pounds was announced today by the Food Administration after a conference between the live stock subcommittee of the Agricultural Advisory Board, which includes members representing the swine industry, the Food Administration and 50 packers. The following undertaking is given by the packers:

"In view of the undertakings on the part of the Food Administration with regard to the co-ordinated purchases of pork products, it is agreed that the packers participating in these orders will undertake not to purchase hogs for less than the following agreed minimums for the month of November, that is a daily minimum of $17.50 per hundred pounds on average of packers' drives, excluding 'throw-outs,' to be defined as pigs under 130 pounds, stags, boars, thin sows and skips. Further, that no hogs of any kinds shall be bought except throw-outs at less than $16.50 per hundred pounds. The average of packers' drives to be construed as the average of the total sales in the market of all hogs for a given day. All the above to be based on Chicago."

Frederick City Hotel Robbed.

Two men "held up" the night clerk of the City Hotel, Frederick, early Monday morning, secured nearly $1000, in cash from the safe, walked out of the well-lighted hotel, with the clerk between them, proceeded down Patrick St., two blocks, then disappeared. The daring act was accomplished by placing a revolver close to the clerk's side and compelling him to keep quiet, as well as to walk away from the hotel with them. During the proceedings a bell-boy was asleep in the coat room, a few feet away; and two men were in front of the hotel when the three men passed out, but noticed nothing unusual. The authorities of surrounding towns were notified by telephone, but the robbers apparently got away without leaving any clue.

Christmas Cards and Folders.

We have a special line of samples of Christmas cards, and folders, for those who want to send out printed Christmas Greetings, in quantity of 100 or more. Orders should be placed, now, for any of these special items. Do not wait, or you may not get them. The designs are very attractive.

Election Day, next Tuesday, Nov. 5th. Take the time, and vote!

THAT $100,000 BOND ISSUE.

Are the Tax-payers Posted on the Real Situation?

Very little information seems to be public with reference to the Amendment providing for a Bond issue of $100,000 for the purpose of building and equipping public schools in Carroll County. In common with others, The Record has not inquired a great deal into the matter, forgetting that the County Commissioners, last May, agreed to raise $100,000 by direct taxation, for this purpose.

At first thought this Bond proposition might be taken to legalize the action of the Commissioners referred to, and to represent a single expenditure by the county, of $100,000 extra for schools; but such is not the case, as it represents an additional $100,000, to be secured by bonds, ultimately to be paid by the tax-payers.

In May, this year, at a joint meeting of the Board of Education, with the County Commissioners, the latter agreed to raise, by direct tax, $20,000 a year for five years, the amount to be applied for extra school improvements, and a portion of the levy for this year goes to that object.

This Amendment now comes along, and if passed by the voters next Tuesday, the Board of Education will, in due time, get another $100,000 for new buildings, furnishings, etc. We feel that the tax-payers of the county should be given the facts in the case, in order that they can vote their will on the subject intelligently. Further than this, at this late hour, we do not care to comment, except to say that in these days of abnormal public expenditures and taxation, this amendment becomes one of more than ordinary importance.

Section 4 of the Bond issue law says: "That the Board of County Commissioners shall, when notified by the Board of Education of Carroll County, that they desire to avail themselves of the provisions of this act and of the approximate amount of money that they will require for the purpose aforesaid, advertise and sell said bonds, as above provided, and so many thereof as shall be necessary to produce the sum designated by the Board of Education, but in no event shall the credit of the county be pledged to an amount in excess of $100,000, and the Board of Commissioners shall pay over the entire proceeds of the sale of bonds to the Board of Education, etc."

As the $100,000 Bond issue was provided by the Legislature before the Commissioners agreed to raise that sum by a direct tax, it is reasonable to suppose that the latter act took the place of the former, so far as the needs of the schools are concerned. It may also be fair to presume, that, had it been known that this sum would be available through the County Commissioners, the Bond issue would not have been asked for. But, the fact seems to remain that if the voters, next Tuesday, approve the Bond issue, the Commissioners will be required to obey the law. To the best of our knowledge, the facts given above are substantially correct.

Fills Carroll Jury Vacancies.

Westminster, Oct. 31.—The following jurors were drawn by Chief Judge Thomas yesterday, to fill the vacancies of those excused: Woolery's district, Frank A. Frick in place of Albert L. Davis; Freedom district, James P. Carter, Jr., in place of Irvin Buckingham; Wooloughby Allport in place of Herbert Oursler; Manchester district, Geo. A. Leister in place of Chas. E. Trump; Franklin district, Thos. A. Barnes in place of John T. Farver; Middleburg district, Luther T. Sharetts in place of Wilson L. Crouse; New Windsor district, Truman C. Smith in place of Chas. D. Bousack.

Proceedings of the Orphans' Court.

Monday, Oct. 28, 1918.—Ivan L. Hoff, executor of Mary E. Sentz, deceased, returned an inventory of personal property and received orders to sell personal property and real estate. George L. Stocksdale, executor of Eliza J. Stocksdale, deceased, returned inventories of personal property and money and settled his first account.

Letters of administration on the estate of Bernard F. Shriver, deceased, were granted unto M. Madeline Shriver and James M. Shriver, who received warrant to appraise and an order to notify creditors.

F. Neal Parke, executor of James W. Reese, deceased, received an order to transfer mortgage, returned an inventory of money and settled his first and final account.

Tuesday, Oct. 29, 1918.—Letters of administration on the estate of Jos. H. Kefauver, deceased, were granted unto Geo. W. Kefauver, who received warrant to appraise and an order to notify creditors.

Mary H. Hood, administratrix of Harvey H. Hood, deceased, reported sale of personal property, and settled her first and final account.

Milton E. Koontz and George L. Stocksdale, administrators, d. b. n. c. t. a., of William T. Smith, deceased, returned an inventory of money and settled their first account.

TURKEY SURRENDERS ON TERMS OF ALLIES.

Austria Likely to Collapse, and Germany Also.

Turkey has definitely quit fighting and accepted the Allied terms for an armistice. Austria has been so badly defeated, this week, that the end of her resistance seems very near; the whole Italian front is one great Austrian rout. With her Allies out of the contest, it is believed now to be a matter of only a few days when Germany must unite with Austria in accepting whatever peace terms they can get.

The war continues favorable to the Allies, the chief gains during the past week having been made on the Italian front, where 33,000 Austrians were captured, and their whole army may be thrown into a rout. The 332nd U. S. Regiment, composed of men from Ohio and Pennsylvania, are with the Italians. The Austrians are fighting hard, but have been beaten by superior force and fighting ability.

The American forces have been active in Alsace, but all along the Western front there has been a let-up in severe fighting, likely in preparation for more active plans, the Allies improving their positions.

In the meantime, various peace manoeuvres are being made, Germany apparently being anxious to know on what terms a surrender may be made. Reports as to political conditions in Germany and Austria are somewhat vague, but sentiment seems to be growing there in favor of overturning autocracy, and making the best peace terms possible.

Allied representatives are said to be engaged in formulating an offer, which will be presented at the proper time, and it will not be an easy one for Germany to accept.

Survey Parties Needed.

Washington, D. C., October 28th., 1918.—The Construction Division of the Army is without doubt the most extensive organization of its kind in the history of the world. The approximate value of construction projects undertaken by this branch of the Government since the United States entered the war, is one billion dollars. The figures representing the material used and the men employed are staggering. 250,000 workmen have been under the control of the Division at one time.

Among the Division's present urgent needs are 50 chiefs of survey party at $2,700 to $3,000 a year; 50 transit men at $2,400 a year; 25 levelmen at $2,100 a year; 125 rodmen at $1,800 a year; and 50 topographic draftsmen at $2,100 a year. These positions are open to men only except the drafting positions, which are open to both men and women. All of the positions are in the civil, not the military, service.

Persons interested should apply to the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., or to the secretary of the local board of civil service examiners at Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Paul, St. Louis, New Orleans, Seattle or San Francisco.

Applicants will not be required to undergo a written examination, the examination being of the "non-assembled" type; that is, the ratings will be based upon education, training, experience and physical ability as shown by the applications and corroborative evidence. The positions offer an excellent opportunity for patriotic service, and the Civil Service Commission urges qualified persons to apply without delay.

200,000 in November Call.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Men of the new draft ages will be mobilized in large numbers early in November, under a draft call now in preparation at Provost Marshal-General Crowder's office. It calls for the enlistment of more than 200,000 men qualified for general military service. They will be furnished in proportionate numbers by every State in the union.

Draft calls suspended during October because of the influenza epidemic have been renewed in sections where the epidemic has moderated, and enlistment of all men under the October call probably will be completed before the November quota is started to the cantonments.

A section of the American army played a "Yankee trick" on a bunch of Germans the other day, by inviting them to come over and "get five bags of tobacco each." Fifty-one "came over" and received the tobacco, but were told they must remain as prisoners. The Germans indignantly demanded to be left go back safely, but were finally persuaded that even tobacco has its use for ending the war.

The Westminster Sentinel, last week, adopted the smaller, six-column form, now so generally the standard size for weekly papers, and will thereby save considerable in its paper bills, as well as save paper, both desirable items at this time.

Examine the "Sample Ballot," on page 3. It is reduced in size, but shows the form. Read the Amendments, and decide what you want to do with them.

THE FLU HANGS ON.

Conditions Better, But Disease Varies Up and Down.

The influenza conditions vary considerably in different localities. While there is no big increase in new cases, there is still an increase, and while deaths lower, there are also places where they increase. The weather is not so favorable, the general opinion being that cold, clear weather, will best stamp out the disease.

The State Board of Health, on Wednesday, reported 1,033 new cases in the counties. Of these 328 were in Baltimore county and 314 in Frederick county. Dr. C. Hampson Jones, chief of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases, said the high figures plainly indicated that the cases were old ones, and that the reports had been delayed. Total cases for other counties were given as follows: Allegany, 68; Calvert, 10; Carroll, 47; Charles, 9; Dorchester, 63; Garrett, 2; Harford, 13; Kent, 30; Prince George, 80; Queen Anne's, 6; Somerset, 6; Talbot, 27; Washington, 28, and Worcester, 52.

The schools in this county will not be opened on Monday, but will probably open on the 11th. Church services, on Sunday, one service during the day—but not in the evening—are permitted in some of the districts. Public meetings seems to be still prohibited.

Reducing Fire Danger.

The fire hazard should be considered in the location and construction of all new farm buildings. Many groups of farm buildings are so located and constructed that any fire which might break out in one building would be almost sure to destroy the whole group. When a new building is to be erected it is worth while at least to consider placing it where it will be reasonably safe from fire starting in any other building and where it will not be a menace to other buildings.

Concrete construction is being used on many farms, and it is especially desirable for smokehouses, incubator rooms, and any other small buildings which are exceptionally subject to loss by fire. The first cost of a well-constructed concrete building generally will be greater than that of a wood building of the same size, but the concrete will last practically forever, and will seldom need paint or repairs.

A fire in such a building can do but slight damage to the building itself, and there is very little likelihood of its spreading to any of the adjoining buildings.

Large Casualty Lists Coming.

The recent fighting in France on the American front, has been very severe, and while the Americans have been winning, the cost has been great. Large casualty lists are said to be coming. Whether they are held back for any particular purpose, or as a matter of necessity, does not seem clear, but we are warned to expect them.

The Germans are making a machine gun retreat, which is reported as masterly, and it is through this means that our boys are mostly suffering. The German artillery and stores are being removed, but nests of concealed machine guns are left behind to retard pursuit and cause as much loss of life as possible.

That the war losses are not one-sided, are again shown in the British statement made this week, showing that casualties for the week ending Oct. 28 to have been 32,249, as compared with 37,150 the previous week. The losses are divided—killed or died, 5,743; wounded and missing, 26,506.

Considering the severity of the fighting on the American front, and also the British losses, it seems altogether probable that the American losses, as they appear from day to day, are not the total figures.

Whiskey no Preventive of "Flu."

Army officers in charge of the United States Ordnance, quartermaster and aviation depots at Marsh Run and Middletown, near Hagerstown, have denied stories circulated in saloon circles that the camps during the last few days have received "carloads" of liquor and that the soldiers at all three camps are served whisky rations four times daily as a preventive against influenza and pneumonia.

"When it is necessary to give sick men whisky we do it," said the camp commanders, "but we have no 'trainloads' or 'carloads' of liquor, nor do we serve grog four times daily to all soldiers."

The story is declared to have been put out by agents of liquor sellers as part of their open-the-saloon propaganda. It has been quite generally believed, until the commanders put a quietus on it.

Stories all over the country, as to the large use of whisky in "flu" cases, likely all originate from one source.

The Hughes report on the aeroplane question, the holding back of which has caused much criticism, is being gone over by the Attorney General, who is expected to offer his individual findings and explanations in connection with it. The publication of the report has been urged by Democratic leaders, and it is expected any day.

The wages of shipbuilders and anthracite coal miners have been raised, this week by Government administrators.

"Tis the Star-Spangled Banner!
Oh, long may it wave
O'er the land of the free, and the home of the brave."

The election, next week, should not be characterized by lack of interest, even in this time of war and epidemic. As individual trials increase, public interest in National affairs should not decrease. There is a burden and responsibility attaching to the exercise of citizenship, more important, if anything, than our own individual affairs.

When will the war end? is getting to be a more and more interesting question, as the end apparently comes nearer. How will it end? is perhaps the best form in which to put the question, as it may end, now, because of political issues in Germany, rather than as a fought-out contest. At any rate, it is going to end right—and the sooner the better.

The next ten years is sure to be a most interesting period in which to live, and have part; or perhaps it would be more to the point to say, the ten years beginning with August three years ago. No like period in the long history of the world since the first century has been, so far, so full of great events, and the remainder of the ten-year term will be fully as important, though in a more peaceful way, as it will show the realignment and rehabilitation of Nations.

Bold Mr. Roosevelt.

Col. Roosevelt knows as well as anyone, the dangerous chance a man takes in criticizing the President of the United States, at this time, on the conduct of peace negotiations, especially as apparently the whole country is accepting the President's "notes" as being about the right sort. Notwithstanding this knowledge, the Rooseveltian boldness and initiative, metaphorically speaking, "takes the bull by the horns" and goes at the "fourteen points" of the President's address of last January, criticizing them in general, apparently without any fear of public condemnation, or caring whether any one will follow.

Broadly speaking, the President has had a wonderfully free "backing up" for the entire course of the administration in all of its war plans. Every now and then, somebody in Congress "sees red" and talks as though the temperature of public affairs was normal, without caring for consequences; but the press, especially has been "mum" almost unanimously, no matter what it has had in mind to turn loose, for fear that in some way the Kaiser might get comfort and aid through a criticism of "the powers."

As peace prospects loom up more clearly, however, this "amen" chorus is likely to fade away, and the bottled up warm stuff is quite apt to show itself in a flood, notwithstanding fears of what may happen through running counter to the various restrictive agencies regulating what may be said and done, through the press, and otherwise.

It would be very strange indeed, should such a big thing—such an overwhelming new proposition—as this war, be conducted without mistakes and without just grounds for criticism. It would be just as strange, we suppose, for such a period to go through, to the end, without somebody "spilling the beans" at a time when somebody else thought they should not be spilled. The thing that is not strange, though, is, that Mr. Roosevelt is not overwhelmed with the enormity of the crime of performing the spilling act.

Whether his present stirring up of the "fourteen points" is justifiable, is not so interesting as whether it is to represent a signal for the deluge that has been banked up for several years—whether it will give the required courage and inspiration to others who have long been like-minded. It would no doubt be a hard matter for Mr. Roosevelt to pick out many things he really admires in President Wilson's administration; but certainly he has not selected something easy to direct his first broadside against, if he desires popular backing-up, because the attack is against the President's generally recognized strong point—his skill as a word architect. Mr. Roosevelt is bold, undoubtedly.

Where Did the Influenza Come From?

This is a question that has been frequently asked, of late, as though somebody, somewhere, should be able to answer it authoritatively. Perhaps some who have been reading Luke 21, recently, and trying to fit the signs therein portrayed to the present world war, may see in the epidemic the fulfillment of "pestilences" listed in verse 11, and if that be the proper answer, no more need be said.

However, the lay mind, especially, is apt to ask for a more scientific explanation, and at least one such with some degree of plausibility attached, comes from Capt. Joseph King, of the Medical Corps, in an article in the Medical Record, who suggests that the epidemic may have been brought to Europe by the 200,000 Chinese coolies employed as laborers in France, and brought to this country by returned soldiers.

In China, the disease is known as pneumonic plague and is very fatal. It visited Europe during the present war, and was epidemic in the German army and spread to Spain. Capt. King declares that the pneumonic plague and the influenza have many characteristics in common, and it may be that this is as good an explanation of the origin of the unwelcome guest as can be given.

The President's Appeal.

The President has at last made his confidently expected plea for the election of a Democratic Senate and House, on the ground that a Republican majority, in either, would represent "a repudiation of my leadership." He says "I have no thought of suggesting that any political party is paramount in matters of patriotism," and further states that "the leaders of the minority in the present Congress have unquestionably been pro-war, but they have been anti-administration."

In connection with these somewhat mixed statements for backing up the plea to prevent the "repudiation of my leadership," he says: "I am your servant and will accept your judgment without cavil, but my power to administer the great trust assigned to me by the Constitution would be seriously impaired should your judgment be adverse, and I must frankly tell you so because so many critical issues depend upon your verdict."

He then goes on to argue that a Democratic Congress should be elected because the Allies in Europe are watching and "would find it very difficult to believe that the voters of the United States had chosen to support their President by electing to Congress a majority controlled by those who are, in fact, not in sympathy with the attitude and action of the administration."

We cannot help but believe that the President has made what looks like a display of partisanship at a very inopportune time for one who has so recently advised that "politics be adjourned;" and for one who admits that "no political party is paramount in matters of patriotism," yet who so easily and strongly intimates, in the same effort, that each of the 435 Republican candidates for Congress is more dangerous than their opposing Democratic candidates.

The Pastor's Salary, Again.

This subject, it appears, is having quite wide publicity through the press, and on the theory that "continual dropping may wear away a stone" we take the liberty of again commending the subject to our readers in general. This is what "The Christian Workers' Magazine," Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, has to say:

"The Literary Digest did a big thing in one of its issues last August, in devoting a whole page to a plea for a general increase in the salaries of pastors. A few pastors have very large salaries, but the majority are shamefully underpaid, many receiving indeed less than the crudest of unskilled laborers, while the nature of their calling restrains them from the common measures of bettering one's material conditions.

There are not many congregations either in farming or industrial communities, where the incomes of the occupants of the pews have not been considerably increased as the result of war activities, and where consideration should not be given to the fact that no such advantage has come to the occupant of the pulpit, whose expenses nevertheless have grown like those of other people.

Pastors today are bravely doing their work as bearers of the griefs and carriers of the sorrows of others while often heavily burdened with their own; and those to whom they minister in spiritual things, and who are blessed with more of this world's goods, ought to feel more keenly than they do the duty of ministering to them in eternal things.

We heartily second the motion of our influential contemporary that pastors' salaries be raised."

An Endless Program.

The four leading railway brotherhoods have resumed their request for pay and half pay for overtime work, and are now pressing the issue before the Railroad Administration's Board of adjustment of such claims. Apparently, this is a never ending program. One request, or demand, and adjustment, follows another, as a sort of endless chain, whether it be a government controlled activity, or not, and usually with greater zest, apparently, if the former.

The program is likely to begin with a general demand for an advance in wages; then for a shorter day; next for improved working conditions; next for extra pay for overtime, and perhaps several other variations before the whole list is started over again.

Get the idea, fellow citizens—"In union there is strength." Then go carefully into who ultimately pays the freight, and how long such a program can righteously and safely be exploited? Evidently, a lot of things in this country need a "stopper."

Advertise Continually.

Among the timely topics that the wise business man has not permitted to slip by unnoticed during the strenuous war days is that of advertising. At no time has the man behind the bank account and pay roll permitted consistent advertising to receive only "necessary" attention. Intensive advertising, now as well as in times of peace, is the slogan of the successful merchant, for he properly deduces that unless he constantly appeals to his customers he will lose them to his competitors who do go after the business competitors who do go after the business.

It is needless to state that there are times when the ordinary newspaper reader is more interested in some big piece of war news—but war news is only good for the day, or the hour, as it is constantly changing. But store news is good today—all day—tomorrow, the next day, the next week, the next month and, in fact, for years to come; but this advertising must be dished up freshly and attractively in each issue of newspaper to get the results.

A wise advertising manager once said: "Allow me to have a quarter, half or full-page talk with the readers of the home newspaper every week—every week, I said—and I do not care who is president of the United States I will get the business. It takes constant and careful appeal to the common sense of the newspaper readers—they will do the rest."

Advertising under no conditions should be permitted to miss an issue if the business man hopes to hold his trade, for there is always some one else looking for the business that the merchant does not want—the business that he does not advertise to get.—Publishers Auxiliary.

AMAZON LEGEND IS GREFK

Stories of Wonderful Feats of Warlike Women Had Their Origin in That Country.

When Russian women, following the revolution which deposed the czar, took up arms in behalf of their country, it seemed that the ancient Greek myth of the Amazons was close to realization. The legend of the Amazons was a favorite among the Greeks, who loved to weave stories of the wonderful feats of these warlike women.

According to the legend the Amazons, who were irresistible in war, lived on the shores of the Black sea. The first Amazons were women whose husbands had all been killed in war. The widows decided that marriage was a condition of servitude, and determined to have no more of it. So they trained themselves in the use of arms and became the terror of their masculine neighbors, according to an article in the People's Home Journal.

Three famous queens of the Amazons are mentioned—Hippolyte, who was conquered by Hercules; Penthesilea, who was slain by Achilles while aiding the Trojans; Thelistris, who visited Alexander the Great, accompanied by three hundred of her warriors.

The Amazon river was so named because early Spanish explorers who were floating down that great stream believed they saw a race of women warriors on the land bordering the river.

CAN LEARN TO LIKE TASKS

Quality Once Acquired, Many Men Will Find Their Life Take on a Brighter Hue.

It is a remarkable fact that most men are engaged in occupations that they dislike. We know many a doctor who would far rather be an author, and, by the same token, we know some authors whom we would like to be doctors or something else. There are statesmen who always wanted to be blacksmiths, and blacksmiths who wanted to be statesmen. In many instances they could trade and the country would be the gainer.

But that's neither here nor there. The thing to be considered is that we can make life a whole lot easier by learning to like tasks that we now do not like. It can be done, strange as it may seem. Many a man has learned to like to play croquet or to eat greens. There are instances of men who actually fell in love with their wives.

It will not do to merely assume a grin-and-bear-it attitude toward the unpleasant task. Eat it up. Go at it as though there were not half as much fun in doing anything else in the world. You will then certainly discover that you were not nearly so badly off as you thought you were.—Los Angeles Times.

King Named Pennsylvania.

It was Charles II who gave the name Pennsylvania to the American colony. The founder would have named it New Wales on account of its rugged and beautiful scenery. A good story is told of how Charles once turned the tables on his Quaker subject when they met in the park. "Why dost thou remove thy hat friend Charles?" asked William Penn. "Because wherever I am it is customary for only one person to remain uncovered." Penn was much at home with kings. James II used to go to Quaker meetings to hear him preach. He knew Anne as a little girl and that queen counted him as an old friend, but William III was not so cordially disposed. When Peter the Great was occupying Evelyn's residence at Deptford he went to Quaker meetings and knew Penn. Indeed, that destructive tenant and absolute monarch and militarist said that whoever could live as a Quaker would be happy.

Britain and British.

It was not until their occupation by the Romans that the word Britannia came into use as a name for the British isles. The name Great Britain was applied to England, Wales and Scotland on the accession of James I in 1603, when the king of Scotland succeeded Queen Elizabeth, and the crowns became united. The expression had been used for some time before that event to distinguish England, Wales and Scotland from Little Britain—Britannia Minor—which was the French province of Bretagne or Brittany, across the channel from England. On January 1, 1801, when the legislative union of Great Britain and Ireland took place, the name adopted was the "United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland." It is a mistake to refer to the United Kingdom as England, England is a part of the United Kingdom, as Saskatchewan is a part of the Dominion of Canada.

Color Blindness.

"Many persons have the mistaken idea that color blindness causes a considerable number of the railroad accidents," said a veteran of the line recently. "During the early part of my life, when I was in railroad work, a physician who examined 700 applicants for positions as railroad men found only one who was color blind. Several of the applicants, however, did not know the proper names of the colors. They were able to group and match test samples accurately enough, but were uncertain when asked to pick out certain colors and name them."

Orchard Information

IRRIGATION OF AN ORCHARD

Fruit Growers Are Installing Better Ditches for Distributing Water Without Waste.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

High value and scarcity of water for irrigation purposes has made it necessary for many fruit growers in the West to install better ditches for distributing the water they are entitled to, with least waste. Many orchardists have installed pumping plants to raise water from underground sources when natural streams could not furnish an adequate supply. In some parts of the West reservoirs are being built to supplement the late summer flow of streams which fail to supply enough water.

The most common method of irrigating orchards is by means of furrows. The water is carried by gravity or forced by pumps from its source in wooden flumes, concrete lined ditches or concrete pipes, to various parts of the orchard, and is distributed in the open furrows.

Expensive devices for distributing water into furrows are not warranted in orchards of little value and small annual returns. On the other hand, it may prove an economical investment to provide valuable orchards, yielding high annual returns, with the best known devices for successful irrigation. Such a device is unquestionably the concrete or other underground pipe fitted with suitable standpipes. At the other extreme is to be found the earthen ditch.

Permanent ditches at the head of orchard tracts should be located by a surveyor. The proper grade depends chiefly on the soil. If the soil is loose and easily eroded, a slow velocity is best. On the other hand, the velocity must be sufficiently rapid to prevent the deposition of silt and the growth of water plants. In ordinary soils, a grade of 2 1/2 inches to 100 feet for a ditch carrying 2 cubic feet per second is not far out of the way. The amount of water to be carried varies from 1/2 to 2 or more cubic feet per second. A ditch having a bottom width of 24 inches, a depth of 6 inches, and sloping sides, ought to carry 1 1/2 cubic feet per second on a grade of half an inch to the rod or 3 inches to 100 feet. Such a ditch may be built by first plowing four furrows and then removing the loose earth with either shovels or a narrow scraper.

Canvas dams, metal tappoons, or other similar devices are inserted in the head ditch to raise the surface of the water opposite that part of the orchard where furrows have been made and which is about to be watered. The chief difficulty in this mode of furrow irrigation arises in withdrawing water from the ditch and in distributing it equally among a large number of furrows. A skilled irrigator may adjust the size and depth of the ditch bank openings so as to secure a somewhat uniform flow in the furrows, but constant attention is required in order to maintain it. If the water is permitted to flow for a short

FACTORS IN KEEPING BEES SUCCESSFULLY

Honey Is Splendid Substitute for Sugar, Now in Demand.

Failure to Provide Proper Care in Winter and Spring May Result in Almost Total Failure—Plenty of Stores.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Beekeeping can be made a profitable side line on the farm. When properly managed bees make a good supply of honey, which is a splendid substitute for sugar—now in great demand. While the essentials of beekeeping are simple and easily understood, it is highly important that the keeper understand the bees and give them the care they need at the proper time. Too many beekeepers work by rule of thumb, but the most successful are students of bees who understand their needs in the different seasons.

Success in beekeeping depends on the beekeeper's skill in two lines of effort. First, he must see to it that every colony is strong in numbers at the beginning of the period when nectar is secreted. This is often not accomplished, for if the colony is weakened by poor care in winter the secretion of nectar may begin so early in the season that the bees have not time, without aid, to gain sufficiently in strength. An example is found in the white clover region, where nectar secretion usually begins about June 1, and most beekeepers lose much of the white clover nectar from bad management. In the alfalfa region many colonies fail to get nectar from the first crop from the same cause, even though this often comes in July. It is evident, therefore, that a failure to provide proper care in winter and spring may result in almost total failure. This one factor is responsible for heavy losses which should be guarded against at this time.

In order to obtain strong colonies in time for the honey flow, the beekeeper must see that every colony is sufficiently strong in bees the previous fall to winter successfully. This can be done by leaving plenty of stores for the bees to feed on, and space for breeding. The bees also require protection from cold and wind during the winter. This applies also to the care of bees in spring, for at this time they should have abundant food and protection. The failure to take the proper care of bees in winter and spring is a source of the greatest loss now experienced by beekeepers, and this applies to almost all parts of the United States; yet it is a simple matter to protect the bees from wind and cold. To do so will put more dollars in the farmer's pockets and more bees in his hives.

A second, and in some regions an equally important, consideration is keeping the colonies from swarming. Where a colony divides itself into two parts by swarming, neither part is able to gather as much surplus honey for the beekeeper as the original colony might have done. The old-time beekeeper counted his success by the number of swarms which issued, but the modern beekeeper realizes that unrestricted swarming is one of the greatest sources of loss. To prevent swarming entirely, or even to handle swarms so as to overcome this source of loss, is the most difficult task confronting the beekeeper in some regions, while in others the problem is almost absent. No infallible method of swarm prevention has been found, owing probably to the fact that the cause of swarming is not yet known in spite of the strenuous effort to solve this mystery of the hive. However, practical methods of prevention and control have been evolved, so that in profiting by the work of others a beekeeper can largely overcome this difficulty. Unless the beekeeper realizes the necessity of having colonies strong in time for the nectar and of keeping up this strength by every means at his command, his beekeeping endeavors will fall to yield the greatest profit—a condition which is particularly undesirable at this time.

Conserve Moisture.

Weeds use up moisture. When they grow in a crop they compete with the crop for the moisture, and weeds usually keep on growing after the crop is cut, thus using moisture that should be saved up for next year's crop.

The KITCHEN CABINET

In good society a woman is known not by the company she keeps but by the salads she serves. Instinctively, the accomplished hostess puts forth her best effort in the preparation of a salad.

MORE SALADS.

ALAD which is a little different is the following: Cut small ripe tomatoes which have been peeled into quarters without separating them from the stem end, so the tomato lies on the salad plate like an open flower.

Lettuce may be used or not for a nest for the tomato. Heap over the tomato finely chopped apple and celery which has been well mixed with a highly seasoned dressing. Garnish with shredded bits of green pepper.

Golden Chestnut Salad.—Shell, blanch and boil until tender one pint of chestnuts. Drain and dust and set aside to cool. Arrange in a salad bowl on a bed of water cress or of lettuce and sift over them lightly the yolks of two hard-cooked eggs. Hold the egg yolks in a sieve over the nuts and rub them through. Serve with a good flavored dressing.

Tomato Salad.—Scald, peel and chill six firm tomatoes and cut in halves. To one cupful of whipped cream add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and the same of grated fresh horseradish, season with paprika, mustard and salt. Place the tomatoes on lettuce, heap on the dressing and sprinkle with a bit of chopped red pepper.

Bacon Salad.—Cut six slices of tender bacon into squares and fry until brown; drain on paper; heat six tablespoonfuls of this fat and two tablespoonfuls of vinegar; beat the yolks of three eggs and one-fourth of a teaspoonful each of paprika and mustard and cook in the fat until thick. When the dressing is cold, toss the bacon over crisp head lettuce and mix with the dressing.

Sweetbreads and Celery Salad.—Mix equal parts of cooked sweetbreads, diced, with celery, also diced. Add a nicely seasoned dressing and serve. The dressing and seasoning is the important point in a good salad.

All vegetables served fresh should be crisp and free from moisture. Nuts of various kinds add to the flavor and nutritive value of any salad. Corn oil used with the yolk of egg and vinegar as mayonnaise makes a most tasty salad.

THOUGHT HE WAS DIPLOMATIC

But Father of Rookie Couldn't Just See Point About His Son's "Financial Condition."

The other day a rookie, just out of college, married a girl who lived in the town where his company was in training. The young man knew he must inform his family of the event, and also that he must do it in the most soothing way possible.

"Dear dad," he wrote, "I always thought that when I married I would choose a girl who could support herself if necessary, and then if anything would ever happen to me, you wouldn't have to be burdened with her. Now, Marion is that kind of a girl. She knows all about my financial condition and—"

But when father read the letter, he paused here to reread it. "Financial condition," he snorted. "That young cub hasn't any financial condition. Why, he doesn't own the clothes on his back. Nor did he ever own them. Financial condition—well, I'll be hanged."

Another rookie had likewise married a girl who was a stranger to his mother, who boasts of Irish descent. He, too, wrote home a letter to mother. "I have told Frances all about my family, so that now she feels that she really knows you. So I'm going to tell you all about her. She is now an orphan, but when her father was alive he was a big railroad man."

Her mother commented to the rest of the family. "Don't be excited by that," she advised them. "Your father and I used to know a very fat fireman."

REQUISITE HOURS OF SLEEP

Acknowledged Fact That Brain Workers Need Less Than Those Engaged in Manual Labor.

Periodic sleeping is undeniably an essential to the continuance of life, but sleep is required more as a means of recuperation from physical weariness than from mental activity, an exchange of nerves. The best thinkers are the shortest sleepers, and on the other hand the manual laborers require the longest periods of sleep. The classic example cited to prove that the thinker does not need as much sleep as the ordinary man takes is Thomas A. Edison, who during the most active years of his life is said to have slept only four hours a day. It is not so generally known that Herbert Spencer, the philosopher, in his later life did not average more than three hours of sleep a day.

These instances should not lead to ill-advised efforts to emulate the extreme examples. One should not attempt to do better thinking by keeping longer awake, but the effort should be made to do better thinking, which will result in keeping longer awake. For if the body be not fatigued or drugged with poison, sleep comes chiefly from the slowing down of the mental processes until consciousness lapses. If an adult is not tired or full of fatigue poisons from physical labor, or if his system is not otherwise burdened with poisons from faulty diet or overeating, it is possible in many instances to cut down the sleeping period from 20 to 40 per cent of that commonly indulged in.

Busy Days.

"There have been some changes in the styles lately."

"Yes," replied the designer, "and it has been hard work to keep getting up new styles in the little time we had left from regular work."

"What was the regular work?"
"Rewriting price tags to keep up with the cost of material."

time unattended the distribution is likely to become unequal. Parts of the ditch bank become soft, and, as the water rushes through, the earth is washed away, permitting larger discharges and lowering the general level of the water in the ditch so that other openings may have no discharge. Some of the orchardists of San Diego county, Cal., insert in niches cut in the bank pieces of old grain sacks or tent cloth. The water flows over these without eroding the earth. Another device is to use a board pointed at the lower end and containing a narrow opening or slot through which the water passes to the furrow. Shingles are also used to regulate the flow in the furrows. The thin ends of these are stuck into the ground at the heads of furrows.

Formerly head flumes for orchards were built of wood, but the steady increase in the price of lumber and the decrease in the price of Portland cement have induced many fruit growers to use cement instead.

A head flume composed of cement, sand, and gravel costs as a rule about twice as much as a wooden flume of the same capacity, but the early decay of wood, especially if it comes in contact with earth, makes the cement flume cheaper in the end.

Letters From "Our Boys."

We will be glad to publish letters, or parts of letters, from "our boys, over there," as they are bound to be very interesting to all, even if they are from other boys than ours. This war has made us all one great family. As Shakespeare has put it, "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin," and we have only to substitute a more fitting word for "nature" to realize the present truthfulness of the expression. We will omit all purely personal references from letters, as these are not intended, nor proper, for publication.—Ed. Record.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Davidson, of Philadelphia, received a letter from their son, who was seriously wounded in the great victory won at Chateau-Thierry, given in his own words, Oct. 23rd. 1918:

The ship on which I sailed, has arrived in New York, safely. I was wounded on the 30th of July, in the drive at Chateau-Thierry. No one is allowed to see me now. I am not able to walk yet, but everything will come out all right. I only hope I get better soon and Uncle Sam would send me back, so I can get another shot at the old Kaiser. I am in the hospital, on the Island, feeling fine. With love and best regards to you, and all inquiring friends.

Sincerely, your son, BENJAMIN R. DAVIDSON.

MIDDLEBURG.

Mrs. Washington Shaffer met with a very painful accident, on Friday evening, while stirring scrapple for S. White Plank. It being cooked with steam and the steam pressure being 100 lbs, the plug flew out in the vat, throwing the scrapple all out, it coming down on Mrs. Shaffer and scalding her very badly, especially the right hand and arm.

Daniel Repp received a telegram, on Friday evening, from a camp in Texas, where his son, Alvie, is, that he was ill with pneumonia. On Saturday evening he received another that he was better.

Mrs. Alice Erb, of near Middleburg, is spending a few days in Harney, with her sister, Mrs. George McGuigan.

Resolutions on the Death of Orestes S. Fox and Samuel D. Wilson.

The all-wise Providence has lately laid the hand of death heavily upon Union Lodge, No. 28, I. O. O. F. Two of our members who were called to the colors of the nation have now been called away from earthly scenes and earthly strife and welfare. On October 12, 1918, at camp A. A. Humphreys, Va., Brother Orestes Samuel Fox fell a victim of influenza. Two days later, October 14, 1918, at the same place and of the same company, Brother Samuel David Wilson was cut down by the same disease. The Lodge desires to make record of their sacrifice, and of the esteem in which they were held.

Brother Fox was one of our younger members, but had been among us as a member for considerably more than a year, and had proved himself worthy. He had learned to appreciate the meaning and the value of the three links. His loss is keenly felt by our Lodge.

Brother Wilson had been a member of the Order for a longer period. By attentive interest and study he had risen to the highest rank in the Subordinate Lodge. He was a highly valued member. His going, too, filled us with surprise and sorrow.

Resolved, That the Lodge hereby records its sense of loss in the death of these two Brothers, yet bows in submission to the great Ruler of all men, who can not err.

Resolved, That we extend our hearty sympathy to the stricken families, and commend them to the Comforter who knows all our sorrows, and carries our cares.

Resolved, That this action be recorded in the minutes, be published in The Carroll Record, and copies sent to the families of the deceased.

L. E. HAFFER, CHAS. E. CASHMAN, U. H. BOWERS, Committee.

In Sad but Loving Remembrance of my dear husband, HOWARD A. FROCK, who departed this life, Oct. 6th., 1918.

Dear husband you have left me: Can it be that we must part? Oh the pain, the grief and sorrow. That has come to fill my heart. The days are sad and oh, how dreary. Since you have left me here to weep. Still I know you're sweetly resting. In that calm and peaceful sleep. Your work is done; your service rendered. And you have entered into rest. Help me how to love, dear Father. Thy will be done; Thou knowest best.

We shall meet again, dear husband: Yes, we'll meet to part no more; Where there is no pain or sorrow. On that bright eternal shore. By His Loving Wife, MRS. ROBERT THOMSON.

I desire to express my sincere thanks to all neighbors and friends for their help and sympathy during the illness, and following the death, of my husband; and also for the very liberal financial aid they have since given me.

Only One Way. Doctor—You must be careful and follow the right directions for taking this pill.

MASTER CARROLL A. ROOP.

Master Carroll Arthur Roop, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Roop of Motter's, died on Sunday, Oct. 27, being ill only about 10 hours, aged 6 months, 6 days. Funeral services were held at the home on Monday, by Rev. Prechett, of Thurmont. Interment being at Keysville.

MISS CORRINNE DERN.

Miss Corrinne Dern, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Dern, of Emmitsburg, died on Sunday, Oct. 27th., from a short illness of about 10 hours, aged 3 years, 19 days. Funeral services were held at the home, on Tuesday, by Rev. Prechett, of Thurmont. Interment in Keysville cemetery.

MR. HARRY C. SMITH.

Mr. Harry Smith, better known as "Dick" Smith, passed away at his father's home, Union Bridge, last Saturday, aged 48 years.

Funeral service was held on Tuesday morning, by Rev. W. O. Ibach. He was a member of the Railroad Brotherhood and the Masonic Lodge, which organizations conducted their impressive services at the grave.

MR. BENJAMIN PHILIPS.

After a short illness, Mr. Benjamin Philips, a long respected citizen of Union Bridge, was summoned to his rest last Monday, aged 75 years. Mr. Philips was a veteran of the Civil War, and was a soldier in that conflict for more than four years.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon, by Rev. W. O. Ibach, at his late home. Mrs. Philips, four sons and four daughters, one brother and two sisters survive. He was a consistent christian and highly respected.

MRS. FANNIE MYERS.

Mrs. Fannie Myers, wife of C. Edgar Myers, died at her home in Uniontown on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 26th., 1918, of pneumonia, following an attack of "Flu". She is survived by her husband, C. Edgar Myers and four children; Ralph, Preston, Ruthellen and Virginia, her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Myers, one sister, Miss Nettie Myers, and one brother Mr. Howard Myers, of Baltimore.

A short funeral service was held at her late home by her pastor, Rev. R. K. Lewis, this service being followed by interment in the M. P. cemetery. A number of beautiful floral designs testified in a measure to the love of friends. Pall-bearers were: Messrs Nevin Hitesheer, Melvin W. Routson, B. L. Cookson, Harvey Erb, W. F. Romsper and Hugh Heltbride.

MISS ZONA THERESA SMITH.

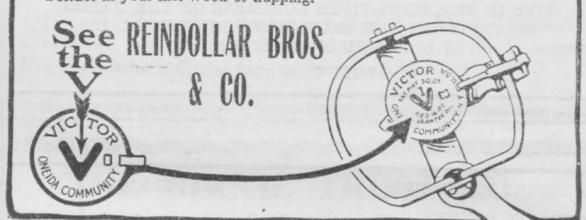

After impressive services at the Immaculate Conception church the remains of Sister Edith of the Sisters of Charity of St. John's hospital, Lowell, Mass., formerly Miss Zona Theresa Smith, of Taneytown, were last Friday morning tenderly consigned to their last church, where at 10 o'clock a solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Dennis A. Sullivan, O.M.I., assisted by Rev. Owen P. McQuaid, O.M.I., as deacon and Rev. James B. McCartin, O.M.I., as sub-deacon. Seated in the sanctuary were Rt. Rev. Mgr. William O'Brein, P. R., of St. Patrick's church; Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe, O.M.I., Rev. D. J. Heffernan, Rev. E. J. Vincent, Rev. R. J. McCoy, O.M.I., Rev. P. J. Phelan, O.M.I., Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O.M.I., Rev. James J. McCartin, O.M.I., Rev. Peter T. Linehan. Attending the funeral also were the Sisters of Charity of St. John's hospital Sisters of St. Mary of the Sacred Heart school and Grey Nuns of the Cross of the Immaculate Conception school as well as numerous physicians and other professional men. The choir, under the direction of Chas. P. Smith and augmented for the occasion, rendered the Gregorian mass, the solos being sustained by David P. Martin and Mr. Smith. At the offertory Mrs. Hugh J. Walker, who presided at the organ, rendered "O Sponse Mi." The bearers were: Dr. Leonard F. Huntress, Dr. William P. Lawler, Dr. Fred R. Murphy, Dr. Joseph A. Mehan and Dr. James F. Loughran. Burial was in the Sisters' lot in St. Patrick's cemetery, where the committal prayers were read by Rev. Dennis A. Sullivan, O.M.I., assisted by Rev. John P. Flynn, O.M.I., Rev. D. J. Heffernan, Rev. T. Franklin Wood, O.M.I., Rev. Owen P. McQuaid, O.M.I., Rev. Peter T. Linehan, Rev. James B. McCartin, O.M.I., and Rev. P. J. Phelan, O.M.I. Funeral arrangements were in charge of Dr. James B. O'Connor, while burial was under the direction of undertakers James F. O'Donnell & Sons.

CONDITION OF THE MARKET.

Fun and Money trapping muskrats

FUR is getting more and more valuable. Every farmer is content to have lots of fur walking around the farm loose on the backs of skunks and muskrats. Follow the example of those farmers and their boys who set a dozen Victor traps in lik ly spots every evening through Fall and Winter and collect two or three hundred dollars in cash for the fur before Spring. And it's a spare time job at that! The Victor grabs the animals by the leg and holds them tight. Start with a half dozen Victors. (We make a specialty of Victor traps.) They will pay for themselves—and a good profit besides in your first week of trapping.

JUST TO PLEASE HER.

"Do you think, darling," she asked when they had returned from their wedding trip, "it is possible for anybody really to love more than once?" "No, sweetheart," he replied. "You are not saying that just to make me happy, are you?" "Of course not." "But you would say it to make me happy, even if you didn't believe it, wouldn't you, dearest?" "Certainly. I'd do anything or say anything to make you happy." "There, now I shall never be able to believe anything you tell me. Oh, why—why did I ever marry a liar?" Dayton News.

Other Worries.

"Does golf improve your health?" "No," replied Mr. Githersby, deponently. "But I should think fresh air, exercise and the interest one naturally takes in the game would help you forget your business cares." "Oh, it does, but I play such a poor game that my golf cares keep me in a bad humor all the time."

CONDITION OF THE MARKET.

Jack (quoting Hamlet)—If thou wilt needs marry, marry a fool. Maud—Oh! Jack, this is so sudden.

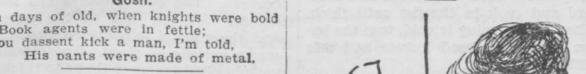

Speed.

The mysteries of money are Not easy to unravel. But, oh, how fast they travel!

A Different Matter.

Wife—We just had a visit from a black cat. Hubby—That's nice. Black cats are lucky, you know. Wife—Yes; this one certainly was. He ran away with the steak I was going to cook for you.

CHILD LOGIC.

Mistress—What are you doing, Martha? Martha—The doctor told me to take iron for me blood and I'm trying to melt the poker. Mistress—But, Martha, you can't drink melted iron! Martha—Then I'll have to wait till it cools.

Too Much.

The Club Man—What's this I hear about you and your wife having trouble? Before you were married you told me you would go to the ends of the earth together.

The Married Man—Yes, but I didn't know she wanted to go there in a taxicab.

Compensation.

His Wife—Mother's going to make us a little visit. I know you don't object to having her here for a short time. The Jokesmith—Oh, I can stand it. Out of a week's visit I get enough material for a year's supply of mother-in-law jokes.

Great Man Yielded.

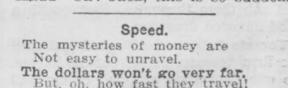

"What'll you gimme for an interview with Senator Wombat?" "I'll pay you well if you really got an interview. But everybody knows that Senator Wombat never talks." "I got an interview, though. I raised my eyebrows and he nodded his head."

His Qualification.

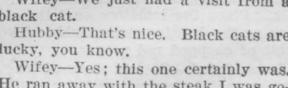

"That horse is too sensitive to use for hunting." "All the better. He will be quicker to take a fence."

Jack (quoting Hamlet)—If thou wilt needs marry, marry a fool. Maud—Oh! Jack, this is so sudden.

Mistress—What are you doing, Martha? Martha—The doctor told me to take iron for me blood and I'm trying to melt the poker. Mistress—But, Martha, you can't drink melted iron! Martha—Then I'll have to wait till it cools.

Teacher—Now, children, which one of you can decline the word "sick"? Katie (in a tragic voice)—Sick-worse-dead.

Not on the Dot. She was a lazy, lazy girl, And, too, a trifle snippy. No wonder that she failed to dot The i's in Mississippi.

Accounting for It. He—I tell you, the rich dress that trust millionaire's wife is wearing was paid for by blood money. She—That accounts, then, for the gore in the skirt.

His Qualification. "That horse is too sensitive to use for hunting." "All the better. He will be quicker to take a fence."

The greatest opportunity ever presented the American people to put their dollars where they will do the most good, will be offered in the coming

UNITED WAR WORK CAMPAIGN

NOVEMBER 11th to the 18th

Carroll County must give $33,500

Of course, we will do it gladly, willingly and quickly.

The seven organizations authorized by the United States Government to care for the physical, mental, and spiritual welfare of our boys in cantonments, in the Navy and Overseas, are the Young Men's Christian Association, Young Women's Christian Association, Knights of Columbus, Camp Community Service, Jewish Welfare Board, American Library Association, and the Salvation Army.

These organizations, at the request of the President, have united in a campaign to raise in this Country, the week of Nov. 11th to 18th, $170,500,000.

The Red Cross cares for the wounded and sick, but these organizations go with the men from the time they first enter the camps, and provide them with comforts, clean entertainment, and places to spend their leisure time in wholesome recreation and a touch of home.

With your Liberty Loan Uncle Sam provides fighting material, but these organizations give the fighting spirit.

Everybody must do their part to back up their boys.

HELP THE HOME TO FOLLOW THE FLAG.

The KITCHEN CABINET

A sweet temper is to the household what sunshine is to trees and flowers.
A little bit of patience often makes the sunshine come.
And a little bit of love makes a happy home.

WAYS WITH LEFTOVER FISH.

HERE are so many dainty dishes using leftover fish which are both palatable and wholesome.

Fish a la Creme.—Put two tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan; when melted add a tablespoonful of flour; when well cooked add two egg yolks and a cupful of milk which have been beaten together. Add slowly and stir constantly; when thick and smooth, add a teaspoonful of salt, a few drops of onion juice, a few dashes of paprika and the fish. Fill the ramekins and cover with buttered crumbs. Place in a hot oven for a few minutes, or until the crumbs are a light brown. Garnish with parsley.

Escalloped Fish.—Take three cupfuls of any cooked fish; flake it. Butter a baking dish, sprinkle with bread crumbs, then cover with flaked fish, from which all skin and bones have been removed, then add more crumbs. Cover with a cream sauce to which has been added a tablespoonful of chopped onion, a tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce, two tablespoonfuls of chopped parsley, two tablespoonfuls of sauce and pepper to taste. Use two cupfuls of white sauce. Bake uncovered for half an hour.

Fish Souffle.—To one cupful of flaked fish add a cupful of cream sauce, three egg yolks beaten light and two cupfuls of rice potatoes. Fold in the beaten egg whites. Brush a baking pan with sweet fat, put in the mixture, rough it on top and bake until a light brown. Serve at once.

Fish Salad.—Mix a cupful each of rice, celery and one-half cupful of mayonnaise and a tablespoonful of chopped onion. Place any leftover cooked fish, like halibut or haddock, in the center, mixed with a half cupful of the mayonnaise and the rice and celery around it. Garnish with tomato jelly cubes or with parsley.

A cupful of flaked cooked fish of any kind added to a cupful of good white sauce, served poured over buttered toast, makes a most nourishing luncheon dish.

Month of Harvest Moon.

Aside from the autumnal equinox, September each year is marked by another astronomical event of considerable interest, namely, the so-called harvest moon. It being the full moon nearest the autumnal equinox. The harvest moon rises at nearly the same time for several successive evenings instead of nearly an hour later from night to night, as is usually the case, and it is from this continuous run of bright moonlight nights that this moon is said to derive its name, farmers as a rule taking advantage of the extra light to gather in their late summer crops and store them away for the winter.

Patience—Has Peggy got her divorce yet?
Patrice—Not yet.
"Why, she expected to get it last week. Hasn't the case got in court yet?"
"Oh, yes."
"She asked for $25,000, didn't she?"
"Yes, I believe so, but the amount asked was so large the case was compromised."
"Compromised? She'd never take a penny less than $25,000, I hope."
"Well, her husband said he couldn't pay that much."
"How much did he pay?"
"Nothing; it seems they just kissed and made up."

"What have the Gadsburs named their country home?"
"Bide-a-Wee."
"Rather a pretty name."
"Yes, but they have confided to intimate friends that the significance of the name seems to be lost on some of their relatives who think nothing of staying all summer."

A Defendress of the Faith

By W. J. B. MOSES

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

I was never more surprised in all my life. You see, this was the way it happened. Professor Norton was the dearest old man with white hair and his face rosy and smooth and his eyes clear and blue and serene. He lost his wife when he was a very young man and he never married again, but remained true to her memory through all those many, many years. We girls just revered him on that account.

Nowadays, you know, there are so many who have given up their faith in love and their hope of finding just that one soul that it does one good to meet a man like that who has loved and lost and not forgotten, but has lived in perfect faith that some day he will find his loved one again.

Some say you should be sensible about love and fall in love with a man who can support you in the style of living to which you have been accustomed, and others try to convince you that it is all a matter of science depending upon a sort of general attraction more or less modified by accidents of adaptability, compatibility, contiguity, environment and other things.

You see, it was this way about Professor Norton's wife. He married her when they were both very young and she was very beautiful. He had never loved anyone else, not the least little bit, and he didn't know so very much about girls or women, but just thought they were all good except that of course the one he married was ever so much better than any of the rest.

They were abroad when she died and he remained there for several years until he had recovered from the more manifest tokens of grief. Feeling as we girls did about it and reverencing Professor Norton as we did for the strong faith in his first love, we girls were all as angry as could be when Harriet Nelson began to make up to him in the most outrageous fashion. You see, there were not very many men who came into the routine of our daily life at the academy.

"Gertrude, I Love You!"

Some said that Harriet did it because she was just a born flirt and could not help it, but there were others who thought that she deliberately intended to have him marry her. She was poor and not pretty at all, not smart, nor agreeable, nor attractive, nor anything that she should be.

At any rate, she began to take a wonderful interest in mathematics and to stay almost every day after class or to go in at the consultation hours and ask Professor Norton to explain things to her. And she would pretend she couldn't see very well and had to get close to him in order to make out the figure to which he was pointing out in the book.

It made some of the other girls and myself just boil with rage and indignation the way she acted and then to see him lift up his dear old white head and look around so helplessly as if he knew he was being drawn into a net but could not understand how nor why nor by what means to escape. It was just pitiful!

At last it became so outrageous, this carrying on of Harriet's that four or five of us got together and made up our minds to stop it at any cost. At first we thought of going to Harriet directly and either appealing to her better nature and pointing out the harm she was doing, not only to herself and to Professor Norton, but to the sacred ideal of love and the faith of undying devotion.

But some of the girls said Harriet had no better nature and that she could not be appealed to on grounds which were above her understanding.

Then we thought of coercion, and various means of making Harriet stop her wicked scheming. But none of them seemed to be exactly the thing, and we had about decided to give it up.

It was then that Carrie Jones had an inspiration. All at once she laughed and clapped her hands.

"I have it, girls," she cried. "We'll fight fire with fire, that's what we'll do; red fire with black, brown fire with blue."

"Whatever do you mean, Carrie Jones?" we all asked her at once. "Why, just this," she said, still laughing, and pointing one finger at me. "We'll have Gertrude cut Harriet out."

You see, Harriet had red hair and brown eyes, while my hair is black and my eyes blue.

So it happened that as soon as the girls understood what Carrie meant they all clapped their hands and declared it would be the very thing. I didn't want to do it at first because it would seem almost as if I were no better than Harriet, but the girls all said that it was not the things Harriet did that were so hateful, but just her object.

So of course my object was good, was above reproach, and the more I thought about it the more willing I became because I knew that I could soon supplant—or rather, I mean neutralize—Harriet.

I finally promised to do what I could. At first Professor Norton had two of us enthusiastic students of mathematics on his hands, or rather, I should say, at his elbows, and of course he could not very well do anything else than explain things to both of us as courteously as possible. After a while it began to be perfectly apparent that he was getting tired of Harriet's questions. She did ask the most silly things, anyway, while I always tried to make my questions difficult enough to seem reasonable, at least. And once he said to her more sharply than I ever heard him speak before:

"Miss Harriet, I have explained that to you just nine times." He was always very precise and accurate about every thing that could be counted. I suppose it was because he was a mathematician. "I really believe, Miss Harriet, that a mind that has so much difficulty in understanding a proposition so elemental had better be devoted to some subject less profound."

It wasn't long after that when Harriet stopped coming for explanations. The victory was won.

Of course there was no need for me to keep on after Harriet had been driven from the field, but I did not like to stop too abruptly for fear Professor Norton might think I was put out at him about something. What I intended to do was to stop consulting him gradually and then after a while not go at all. But before I had a chance something happened that no one had dreamed of.

I had stayed after the algebra class as usual and gone to the desk with a problem. Everyone else had gone out of the room. I was standing beside Professor Norton leaning over the desk and rather close to him in order to see the work better. Every once in a while he would look up at me to see whether or not I understood and when I caught his eye I smiled to show that I did.

Gradually he began to explain more slowly, as if his mind were wandering a little from the problem, and then all of a sudden he pushed the paper away and at the same moment he put his left arm around my waist.

"Gertrude," he said, looking at me in a way that made me almost shudder, "Gertrude, I love you. Surely you cannot be ignorant of my feelings towards you."

Then all at once he jumped up and put his other arm around me, too. That broke the spell and I tried to pull away, saying with as much dignity as I could muster:

"Why, Professor Norton, I am astonished. Please let me go at once."

But he would not at first and I grew as cold as ice and I felt as if I was turning into stone. Then he saw by my eyes that it was no use and he let his arms drop slowly to his sides and dropped back in his chair.

"Nobody loves me," he said. "Nobody ever did and nobody ever will."

"Why, Professor Norton," I said so surprised that I almost forgot to be angry with him. "What do you mean? Have you forgotten your wife?"

"My wife?" he said rather vaguely. "Oh, no, I have not forgotten her, but she has been dead 50 years. I have lived all those 50 years without love, and I have always hungered for it. Oh how I have hungered for it! But everyone whom I have loved has been like you. As soon as they knew I loved them they turned cold and most scornful of me."

"How many have there been, Professor Norton?" I asked.

"How many?" He did not seem to feel that I was impertinent at all, but he was always that way where anything that could be counted was concerned. "There were five in Europe, and since I came here 127. I cannot understand it, Gertrude. For I was not always old as I am now. But of all the young ladies who have attended Newbury in the past 45 years there has not been one who would marry me."

"I think Harriet Nelson might," I suggested as icily as possible, for I felt perfectly disgusted with it all.

"But I don't like Harriet Nelson," he said plaintively.

And at that I turned and marched out of the room. I never asked to have any more problems explained to me, but I never told the girls what had happened, either, and in that I guess I must have been following the example of the other 127.

CALLED FOR QUICK THINKING

Skipper of Burning Ship, With Cargo of High Explosives, in No Position to Hesitate.

The Cephalonia was deeply loaded with shells, and her chill-rooms were filled with T. N. T. for the Italian army, writes R. E. Cropley in the Atlantic. She was well in the midst of the convoy proceeding down the Thames, and had just passed beyond the submarine net, when a thin pencil of smoke was seen to rise from the corner of No. 1 hatch. It happened to catch the third officer's eye first, and he called Sammy's attention to it. In two shakes Sammy had sounded four blasts on the siren, and a flag fluttered from the yard-arm, which caused all other ships to give him a wide berth, as the propeller of the Cephalonia churned up the sea in her frantic effort to back and turn as if to return to London. A ship on fire should return to port, but Sammy, with a cargo of T. N. T. wasn't the kind of a skipper to risk blowing cottages and kiddies into the next world in an effort to save his own skin. No; he turned the Cephalonia till her stern was head to the breeze, and slowly kept her backing seaward to restrain the fire, if possible, from spreading aft to his chambers of T. N. T.; backed her away from port and other ships, so that, if she did blow up, the military loss would be confined to the Cephalonia alone. And all the while he was wondering what moment a U-boat would pop up and send a torpedo into him, or he would strike a drifting mine.

DUBLIN BOOTBLACKS IN 1780

Polish Used at That Time Was a Combination of Lampblack and Rotten Eggs.

Among the populace of Dublin in 1780 the shoeblacks were a numerous and formidable body. The polish they used was lampblack and eggs, for which they purchased all that were rotten in the markets. Their implements consisted of a three-legged stool, a basket containing a blunt knife, called a spudd, a painter's brush and an old wig.

A gentleman usually went out in the morning with dirty boots or shoes, sure to find a shoeblack sitting on his stool at the corner of the street. The gentleman put his foot in the lap of the shoeblack without ceremony, and the artist scraped it with his spudd, wiped it with his wig and then laid on his composition as thick as black paint with his painter's brush.

The stuff dried with a rich polish, requiring no friction, and little inferior to the elaborated modern fluids, save only the intolerable odors exhaled from eggs in a high state of putridity, and which filled any house which was entered before the composition was quite dry, and sometimes even tainted the air of fashionable drawing rooms.—University Magazine.

Playing Duckboard.

Do you know what duckboard is? It's a kind of a game first played in a primitive and mild sort of fashion by Rocky mountain goats and since modernized and made difficult by the American army. The apparatus on which one plays duckboard is a mixed breed contrivance, by Washboard out of Corduroy Road, to use the racing vernacular. It is made up of narrow, slippery strips of rounded wood laid crosswise about two inches apart, and is supposed to keep one's feet out of the mud. It does! While playing duckboard one's feet are usually in the air. It is called duckboard, I suppose, because of some silly belief that a duck could walk it without falling. Even airplanes flying at a height of less than 5,000 feet have been seen to wobble and dip drunkenly while passing above trench lines floored with duckboards. And when it is laid upon the surface of the earth and there are no handy trench walls to help out—well, it's lucky for Charley Chaplin that the wide world didn't see me operate. Nothing could ever again be funny to a man who saw me play duckboard out there in the comparative open of that wood!—William Stevens McNutt, in Collier's Weekly.

Soldier's Appreciation.

Recently a woman well known in America, who has devoted all her time to relief work since the war began, was visiting a hospital. The commanding officer had sent a military car for her. She entered the car just as an ambulance filled with wounded passed by. As she noticed the thin, pale faces, tears came into her eyes. The soldier-chauffeur asked if she was ill.

"No," she said, "these are tears of gratitude and pride."

"Madame," replied the boy, simply, "if I thought that my being a soldier was worthy of but one of your tears, I should feel that I had not lived in vain."—Red Cross Magazine.

Huns to Wear Bark Shoes.

To help out in the present great scarcity of leather and the consequent dearth of footwear, a German army authority recommends the introduction of linden bark moccasins such as are worn by the Russian peasantry. Made from the bark of young twigs, these shoes are said to stand two years' wear; yet they are light and easy and can be made to fit well. The linden forests of the prince of Monaco, near Laon, France, Germans say, would supply sufficient bark to make 1,000,000 shoes, and the making of them would furnish excellent light occupation for prisoners and slightly wounded.

TREAT INSANE LIKE BRUTES

Damascus Authorities Keep Men of Deranged Mind in Chains in Full View of Passers-By.

"Other sights and sounds, by no means so agreeable, meet the modern traveler, and doubtless those who journeyed through Damascus in Paul's time as well," writes Dr. Francis E. Clark, founder of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor. "Never have I seen more hideous objects than the insane men of Damascus. Some of them, probably those who are particularly violent, are fastened with a heavy chain to a ring in the wall of some house or public building. There they sit upon the sidewalk day and night, covered, if at all, from the blistering rays of the sun or the dews of evening, by a little awning of burlap, almost naked, gnashing their teeth, or perhaps with a stupid, dull indifference in their eyes, depending upon the charity of the passers-by."

"The last spot we can visit," Doctor Clark says in concluding the chapter, "is the ancient wall through whose windows it is said that Saint Paul escaped. Here is his brief account of this adventure: 'In Damascus, the governor, under Aretas the king, put guards about the city of the Damascus, thinking to arrest me, and through a window, in a basket, was I let down by the wall and escaped his hands.' 'We looked with interest and reverence upon the ancient wall, which very likely was standing in the apostle's time, and at the window, from which it is possible, but by no means certain, that he was lowered in a basket.'"

MARBLE STONES ABOVE PETS

Grieving Owners Erect Costly Monuments in Dog Cemetery Near Center of London, England.

It may not be known to everybody that in London there exists an exceedingly pretty cemetery devoted principally to man's best friend—the faithful dog. Near the Victoria Gate, Hyde Park West, stands the gatekeeper's lodge, attached to which there is a fair-sized garden, the last resting place of many a favorite pet.

Several years ago a favorite dog ("Poor Little Prince"), which belonged to the duke of Cambridge, was run over in the park, brought to the lodge and afterward buried in the garden. A marble stone shows the place where he lies. After this many who had heard of the event requested to have their dogs laid to rest in the same plot of ground, and thus it came about that the permission of the duke and the deputy ranger was obtained to allow the garden to become a cemetery for dogs.

It has now been in existence many years, and there are several hundred graves, all beautifully kept. Some people pay a certain amount per annum to have the little graves properly attended to; some only pay when the dog is buried; many call regularly. The tombstones are pretty nearly all of the same size and mostly of marble.—London Graphic.

Ranches Converted Into Farms.

A correspondent in the West writes that the most notable change now taking place in that country, especially in the southern parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan, is the passing of the ranch. These large blocks of land are being dissolved, so to speak, into farms of ordinary size.

"Today," writes this correspondent, "thousands upon thousands of acres of land, vast stretches of clean prairie that have for a quarter of a century known little more than the trample of the herds and the swish of the cowboy's lariat, are blossoming out into golden wheat fields and neatly plotted farmsteads, and the timeworn romance of the cowboy and the corral is giving way to the modern romance of the reaper."—Montreal Herald.

Rocky Land Breeds Sailors.

The best sailors in the world come from Brittany, and the best sailors in Brittany hail from Ouessant island, the land farthest west in France. This island, which is named Ushant on the American charts, is rocky, forbidding, almost barren of trees, so much so that the Breton fathers tell their children not to climb any trees when they go visiting. North, west and south of the island is open water, which in winter is almost constantly in a turmoil because of the frequent storms. The channel, the Atlantic and the Bay of Biscay vie with each other in vain efforts to overwhelm the island and prevent its inhabitants from wresting a living either from the land or the water.—Chicago Daily News.

Trees Firmly Anchored.

The great limbs of the tree are full of leaves and every leaf acts as a sail to catch the wind. Tremendous pressure is exerted against an old tree when the wind is blowing. It bends a little from the top; its limbs wave in the air, but it stands erect. It is anchored in the ground by the roots, of course; that is understood. But imagine, if you please, what great spread the roots must have, how they must be interlaced in the earth, to hold the great tree upright as the winds press against it.

Friendly Caution.

"My husband goes out every day to get plenty of ozone for his system." "You tell him he had better be careful about taking them drugs."

STATE OF MARYLAND EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT PROCLAMATION

Whereas, the Honorable Joshua Frederick Cockey Talbot, Representative in the Sixty-fifth Congress of the United States of America from the Second Congressional District of the State of Maryland, died on the 5th day of October, 1918, thus creating a vacancy in the Sixty-fifth Congress of the United States in the Second Congressional District of Maryland;

And whereas, it is necessary that a Representative in the Sixty-fifth Congress from the Second Congressional District of the State of Maryland should be chosen before the regular time for the election of such Representative in order to fill the vacancy thus occurring for the balance of the term in said Congress for which the Honorable Joshua Frederick Cockey Talbot had been elected;

Now, therefore, I, EMERSON C. HARRINGTON, Governor of Maryland, under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by Section 153 of Article 33 of the Code of Public General Laws of the State of Maryland, do hereby proclaim and direct that a special election be held on Tuesday, November 5, 1918, to fill the vacancy in the representation from the Second Congressional District of the State of Maryland in the Sixty-fifth Congress occurring by reason of the death of the Honorable Joshua Frederick Cockey Talbot;

And I do further require and direct that the Boards of Supervisors of Elections of the City of Baltimore and of the Counties of Baltimore, Harford and Carroll shall give at least twenty days' notice of said election to the sheriffs of Baltimore city and of said Baltimore, Harford and Carroll counties, respectively, said Counties of Baltimore, Harford and Carroll and the Fifteenth and Sixteenth Wards of Baltimore city comprising the Second Congressional District in which such vacancy exists;

And I do further direct that the Supervisors of Elections of Baltimore City and of Baltimore, Harford and Carroll Counties place upon the ballots to be used at the Congressional election to be held on November 5th, 1918, the names of those who may be nominated according to law for election to fill the vacancy in the Sixty-fifth Congress caused by the death of the said Joshua Frederick Cockey Talbot.

In Testimony Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the Great Seal of the State of Maryland, at the Capitol, in the City of Annapolis, on the 9th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighteen.

(Signed) EMERSON C. HARRINGTON, Governor.

By the Governor: THOMAS W. SIMMONS, Secretary of State.

Announcement

We wish to announce to the Public that has associated himself with us, in the capacity of General Sales Manager.

PROF. LYNN STEPHENS

As is well known, Mr. Stephens has had a life-long experience in the music business, and is an authority on judging Piano quality. This connection has been brought about after long consideration between Mr. Stephens and Mr. Cramer. It has been the desire of both to handle the Old Reliable Line which they sold for many years at Birely's Palace of Music. This connection brings together two of the widest experienced Piano Men in this section.

Remember, we are in a position to save you money; we buy in immense quantities for cash, and our expenses are cut down by our Variety Stores. We do not depend entirely on the Piano Business. Buy from an old reliable Piano man, who sells an old reliable line, with an old reliable house. Then you know you are right. Let us send one to your home, on Free Trial.

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 3

APPETITE AND GREED.

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 25:27-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—Every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown, but we an incorruptible.—I Corinthians 9:25.
DEVOTIONAL READING—Romans 14:13-23.
ADDITIONAL MATERIAL FOR TEACHERS—I Corinthians 8:1-13; 10:23-33; Hebrews 12:15-17.

I. Boys With a Difference (v. 27).

Esau and Jacob were in decided contrast. They differed in appearance and disposition. Esau was a cunning hunter, a man of the field. Jacob was a plain man, dwelling in tents. They were born that way. Every child born into the world possesses a peculiar bent which we call individuality. No two are exactly alike, even twins like Esau and Jacob. The wise parent, the wide-awake teacher, the educator, seeks diligently to discover that peculiar individuality, and to give it direction according to the laws of its own being. This bent is the basis of character. Neither Esau nor Jacob is an ideal personality. Both are selfish.

II. Parental Favoritism (v. 28).

Isaac loved Esau because he did eat of his venison. He ought to have loved him because he was his son; but it is a sad commentary upon a father that his love for his son had such a sordid basis as that of his stomach. Isaac, however, was like many today whose love is secured through their appetites. Rebecca loved Jacob, though we are not told why. Perhaps it was because of his cunning. In this respect he was like his mother, who practiced craftiness to a finish on her husband. Cleverness is a bond which strongly binds together many people. Many hold the respect of their friends because of their shrewdness, irrespective of their moral qualities. Parents should treat their children alike. To show partiality is both unwise and unjust. Even when children possess peculiar qualities which call for parental affection, it should never be made manifest that preference is made.

III. A Birthright Sold (v. 29-34).

1. Esau's profanity (Heb. 12:16-17). He sold his birthright for a bowl of pottage. The birthright was the right of being at the head of the patriarchal family, a position of honor and influence, as well as being the inheritor of a double portion of the father's estate. This being a gift of God should not be despised. He came from hunting physically exhausted. In this moment of distress, he thought only of that which promised immediate satisfaction. He was willing to relinquish all claim upon the future, if only his present desire could be gratified. A profane person is one who for the enjoyment of the present will forfeit all claim upon the future. He would gladly gain both worlds, but seeing that mess of pottage he lets go of the future for the present. Swearing is profanity, but not the most common. To be under the sway of appetite is to be profane. What profanity about us! For a moment's sinful pleasure men and women are throwing away innocence, happiness, and their souls eternally.

2. Jacob's cunning. It was right that Jacob should have the birthright, for it was according to God's plan which had been pronounced (v. 23), but his scheme to get it is to be condemned. He took advantage of his brother's weakness to drive a sharp bargain. The same thing is practiced when under the force of necessity unlawful interest is exacted, or property is bought under price because one is obliged to sell.

To get rich at the expense of another is to practice Jacob's sin. Modern competitive business methods to a decided extent are of this type. Let each one ask: "Is my name Jacob?" The end never justifies the means. God said that the elder should serve the younger. It was his plan that Jacob should be at the head, but God was able to bring his own plans to pass. He did not need the scheming of Jacob and his mother to further his plans. To do evil that good may come is always wrong.

Understanding the Bible.

I believe that the Bible is to be understood in the plain and obvious meaning of its passages; for I cannot persuade myself that a book intended for the instruction and conversion of the whole world should cover its true meaning in any such mystery and doubt that none but critics and philosophers can discover it.—Daniel Webster.

Public Good.

There never was found in any age of the world, either religion or law that did so highly exalt the public good as the Bible.—Bacon.

With Christ's Aid.

With the power of Christ perfected in my weakness, I am equal to every temptation, competent for every duty, equipped for every struggle, the master of every fear.—W. L. Watkinson.

THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

From
The Christian Workers Magazine,
Chicago, Ill.

All for Christ—Our Time
November 3
Ecclesiastes 12:1-7.

One of the things from which we have been redeemed is a "vain manner of life" This is the plain teaching of 1 Peter 1:18, where the words "vain conversation" in the Authorized Version, are in the Revised Version, rendered—"vain manner of life." So then redemption is only from sin and Satan and condemnation and death, but also from a vain or empty life.

Now the opposite of a vain or empty life is a Spirit filled life, a fruitful life, a life that is positive and aggressive, a life in which time is invested wisely and well. If we are to be "All for Christ" our time must be well spent.

First, time must be spent in getting acquainted with God in His Word. The knowledge of God leads to fellowship with God, and this fellowship is of all things most precious. "Acquaint now thyself with him and be at peace, thereby good shall come unto thee" (Job 22:21). "Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God and of Jesus our Lord" (2 Pet. 1:2). Bible study is the way into the best things of life—breadth of vision, strength of character, willingness to undertake and power to achieve, all come along this way. "The people that do know their God shall be strong and do exploits (Dan. 11:32).

"Take time to be holy,
Speak oft with thy Lord;
Abide in Him always,
And feed on His Word."

Secondly, time must be spent in getting acquainted with God in His world. "Lift up your eyes and look on the fields," the great missionary fields. Look on them through a good missionary magazine. Look at the Orient. Mr. Mott tells us that Japan is leading the Orient and the Eastern nations follow Japan. What Japan is doing today the others will do tomorrow. Look at Africa. There are more opportunities in Africa than we are willing to take, districts as large as several of our states thrown together, where there is not a single missionary. Facts are the fuel for missionary fires. Subscribe to a good missionary magazine or study carefully the missionary items recorded in such a periodical as "The Christian Workers Magazine." Our God is marching on in the evangelization of the world and the gathering out of His Church. Take time to read about it.

Unused and misused time constitutes one of life's great failures. To talk of "killing time" is nothing short of sinful. As Christians, we are bidden not only to use our time, but to redeem the time, (Eph. 5:18). This means that we are to buy up the opportunities to do good, as a purchaser would quickly pick up a good bargain in the market place.

UNITED THOUGH FAR APART

Ceremony Known as "Handschoen" Recognized Under the Dutch Law as Legal Form of Marriage.

Not so very long ago a Boer in Pretoria was married to a girl in Amsterdam, Holland, the ceremony constituting what the Dutch call handschoen, or glove marriage.

In spite of the fact that a distance of 6,000 miles lay between the bride in the Netherlands and the bridegroom in the Transvaal they were just as effectively married under the Dutch law as if both had been present in the same church.

The bridegroom sent to his friend, or best man, in Amsterdam a power of attorney to represent him as his proxy at the ceremony, and at the same time forwarded his glove, which at the proper moment, when the two were made one, was held by both the bride and the proxy. The wedding was duly registered at Amsterdam and at Pretoria, where the bridegroom filed an affidavit with the proper magistrate.

This curious form of marriage is a purely Dutch institution, the custom having originated, it is said, in the old times of Dutch-Batavian rule. It is, however, a dead letter in the Transvaal since the English took over that colony.

Thirsty? Use Belt to Get Drink.

When Oliver Herford comes to a babbling brook and wants a drink, he does not throw himself prone on the mud and try to get water on the vacuum-cleaner principle adopted by the cow, nor does he use his Panama on the Gungha Dhin principle. He might use a straw or a drinking cup, if he could ever remember to carry them with him. A hundred things he might do, if he could think of them.

But what really happens? Oliver takes off his belt and winds it up as tightly as he can. The coils are wrapped around one another so that a cone is built up. That forms a cup with a hole in the bottom. Oliver uses a finger as a stopper for the hole, and proceeds to dip up his drink in the fashion set long ago by the first civilized man.—Popular Science Monthly.

Illustrates Red Cross Needs.

Twenty thousand dozen pillow cases, 11,000 dozen pairs of bed socks and 19,000 dozen face towels, just reported as being on hand at one American Red Cross supply house in France, gives an idea of the size of the stocks maintained by the organization.

AIR CHOPPED UP BY SHELL

Aviator Describes Effect of Heavy Missile Which Passed Some Hundreds of Yards From Airplane.

A British aviator who had been flying in France since the beginning of the war told the story of meeting a shell from a German 17-inch gun while he was in the air, says Popular Mechanics Magazine.

"I was at an altitude of about 6,000 feet one day and climbing higher at an easy angle, when one of those big fellows, almost at the end of its long flight, came plowing along in the opposite direction," he says. "First a dark little blur appeared ahead at an angle of about 35 degrees above me. At first it seemed to be coming right at me and I swerved to the left in an instinctive effort to dodge the threatened blow. Then a sort of droning hum became audible and that sound increased during the two or three seconds that elapsed before the big missile came up to me and swept past. It was probably several hundred yards away at its nearest, but the distance seemed less.

"A few faint stirrings of air began to rock my machine even before the shell went by, but the full force of the 'air wash' came a fraction of a second later. Then an almost solid wall of air nearly threw me on my beam ends and I was really hard put to it to get the reeling machine back on an even keel. For the next mile or two the air was like water in the wake of a big sidewheeler—all chopped to pieces—and the machine rocked like a springless lorry going over cobbles. The air was disturbed for some seconds after a loud roar astern had told me that the shell had come to earth."

CONSIGNED FLAG TO OBLIVION

Youngsters First Burned German Emblem and Then Solemnly Buried the Ashes in the Earth.

"The war is making a wonderful impression on the mind of American childhood," remarked Dr. Edgar DeWitt Jones, a Bloomington (Ill.) pastor, discussing current topics with some friends the other day.

Doctor Jones relates a little story about his young son, age ten, to illustrate. In 1910 the pastor made a tour of Europe and brought home with him a flag of every nation visited. Occasionally they would be brought forth to exhibit to visitors, but for the last two years had been kept undisturbed in a box in the doctor's study. "One day two months ago the little son very earnestly said to his father: 'Papa, haven't you a German flag?' The pastor replied that he thought there was one in his collection, at the same time explaining to the lad that the Teutonic banner was not popular these days and was not to be exhibited.

A few days later the little son was more insistent. "Papa," he said, "I want that German flag; please get it out for me."

"I got the boy the flag," said Doctor Jones, "and through the window of my study watched what followed. First the boy called his sister, Dorothy. The children took the flag into the yard and with much ceremony burned it. When it had been reduced to ashes the children carefully gathered them and put them in a cigar box. Then they dug a little grave and buried the ashes. There is a little mound in the yard to show where the ashes of the kaiser's colors are resting. I have never mentioned the incident to the children and they do not know that I watched them."—Indianapolis News.

Popular Prince.

The bearing of the Prince of Wales all through the war has won him the admiration, respect and affection of the British peoples, here and overseas. We need not enlarge upon this, for every one knows that to say so is no courtly form of words. The prince will go to the overseas countries of the empire when the time comes with the unique advantage of having seen with his own eyes the shining qualities—revealed during the ultimate test of character—of the races that make up the empire. He will go, too, for his own instruction and enlightenment, as the king said frankly of himself last year when he foreshadowed his visit.—London Times.

Here is a story told by an Indianapolis woman:

"The other evening as I was walking over the long bridge that extends back of the Union station in Baltimore, my eye, searching for something interesting, caught sight of a small newsboy—just a little, dirty-faced chap that one does not look at twice. What especially drew my attention to him, however, was something unusual in the way he drew out one of his papers, folded it into very small compass, and tossed it over the railing into the freight yard below. My eyes involuntarily followed the direction of the paper, and as I peered over the balustrade I saw a stirring scene, numbers of big army trucks and scores of 'our boys' bustling round busily and cheerily unloading and reloading them. One of the soldiers was in the act of waving his hand in thanks to the boy whose paper he had just picked up.

"Much interested, I moved over to the little fellow. Under cover of buying a paper and getting change, I put a casual question: 'How do you expect to get your money from that soldier down there?' My little friend looked disgusted. 'I gave it to him! He instantly retorted. Then he turned to gaze again on the fascinating scene below, and added very softly: 'He'd doin' more'n a cent's worth for us.'"—Indianapolis News.

SAVAGE METHOD OF WARFARE

Germany Broke International Agreement When She Began the Use of Poison Gas.

Poisonous gases are produced by some explosives which have been commonly used in warfare. They are the products of the explosion. The direct use of poison gases, however, was specifically inhibited by The Hague convention. They were used deliberately for the first time on April 22, 1915, on part of the Ypres salient. A poison gas cloud (chlorine) was there launched by the Germans against the French and British, where they joined, the Turcos and Canadians receiving the brunt.

Frustrated in the quick accomplishment of their aims, the Germans again threw all honor aside, as they had done in Belgium, and used poison gases. In this way they proposed to end the war quickly. The immediately bitter purpose was to kill and affect the morale of the colonials. Written and spoken narratives of the effect of that great greenish-yellow cloud on the minds of those soldiers, as it rose right out of the ground, rolled toward and enveloped them, the first whiffs choking, then producing spasms of agony, are thrillingly terrible. Many died a horrible death; many who raced away ahead of the weird waves got sufficient of the gas to affect their health seriously.

The morale was not broken, however, and the war was not soon over. If the Germans had done the vicious thing more thoroughly the war might have been over long ago.—American Review of Reviews.

CAME OVER TO ITS FRIENDS

Eagle in France Quickly Naturalized When Made Prisoner, and Went Into Battle Against Huns.

This story is told by Stars and Stripes, the American army paper printed in France:

On Bastille day a group of French and Yanks were celebrating in a little town not far behind the lines. The Yanks were doing their part by pitching small coins into a tin can when a big eagle swooped down from the north and alighted on the ridgepole of a barn. He was so black and rapacious and altogether militaristic in appearance that he looked as though he might have flown squarely out of the Prussian coat of arms.

"Fritz, la!" shouted a French soldier, and the game stopped. Somebody got up on the roof. The net was too short and the eagle just looked at it, yawned and went to sleep. A young French soldier who started a second offensive was foiled when the eagle awoke and flew lazily to a neighboring roof. Another tried. This time the eagle flopped off and alighted on the American billet.

He seemed to think he was safe there, or perhaps he didn't mind, for the next attempt to snare him succeeded.

That night the battle began. A rain of shell fell on the town as Yank and French went up into the line. And Fritz-la went in, too. He had become naturalized overnight.

TANEYTOWN LOCAL COLUMN

Brief Items of Local News of Special Interest to Our Home Readers.

Elvin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arkansas C. Fink, near Harney, is very ill with pneumonia.

Join the First Hour Band. Watch for information by mail and in these columns next week.

Miss Helen B. Shaum returned to Pennsylvania Business College, Tuesday, where she will resume her studies.

Tuesday was the warmest Oct. 29 on record, the mercury rising to about 80° at noon, and remaining over 70° until late in the evening.

The near approach of the hunting season, should add largely to our list of advertisers against trespassing. These days, especially, there should be little time for hunting.

Read the article on first page concerning the proposed $100,000 Bond issue for Carroll County, to be voted for or against, on Tuesday. It may give you information that you do not have now.

Virginia Edna and Ruth Althoff, Arthur Rife, Walter Fogle, Oliver Lenhardt and Arthur Kelley, all of York, motored to Union Mills, on Sunday, and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Randall.

Chas. E. H. Shriner has opened an overall factory, in the Grange building, and has a force of hands at work. The work is more simple than making shirts, and operators are likely to be more plentiful.

Eighteen March sales have already been registered with The Record. It is a good plan to have dates on file at this office, in order that those who still have a date to select, may know when other neighborhood sales will be held.

Make a note on your calendar, and be ready to attend the big meeting in the Opera House, Taneytown, on Monday evening, November 11th, at 7:30 o'clock. The Taneytown Band and a choir of 30 voices will furnish the music. Full information will be given next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Baumgardner and family have been severely afflicted with the influenza, for the past two weeks. Four of their boys have been sick, and this week both Mr. and Mrs. have been confined to bed, the latter with pneumonia. All are getting better.

Herbert R. Wooden, Republican candidate for the short term in Congress, visited Taneytown, last Friday afternoon, modestly looking after his prospects. He is quite anxious to have a big vote in his home county, and feels that he will, if the vote, generally, comes out on election day.

Please do not depend too surely on buying extra copies of The Record at the office. Last week we ran out, an hour after the press stopped running. We always aim to have a few over, for sale, but in a year unsold copies may run into a considerable sum of money, and just now "save paper" is the rule.

Merwyn C. Fuss and James Myers have both been wounded, in France, and are in a base hospital. While the particulars are not known, both have been able to write home, indicating that they are not seriously injured. Merwyn says he will have to use crutches for a while but expects to get all right.

The Enoch Pratt Free Library, of Baltimore has sent about 170 old books to the Taneytown Public Library. The books are, of course much soiled and used looking, but will be found of much interest, especially to the younger folks. There are fairy tales, Henty Books, the Pepper Series, etc., also books for grown folks. These books will be loaned free.

Complaint is already heard of the poor quality of hard anthracite coal, especially. Considering the high prices of coal, it seems to us that the coal operators should at least be compelled to furnish consumers with real coal, and not "horse-back," as it is called at the mines, but which we commonly call "slate." The stuff is black, like coal, but is unburnable and the writer "knows whereof he speaks."

Let us not balk on the coming war-Work Campaign and say "it can't be done" or the "War is costing too much," or "I can't afford to give." We have been buying Bonds and War Savings Stamps, which has not been "giving," but "investing." Now, let all turn in, willing and expecting, to raise this quota for Carroll County. It can be done, easily, without hurting anybody, and all who give liberally will feel better for having done so.

Miss Amanda Staley spent Thursday in Hanover.

A new barn was raised, last week, on the farm of James D. Haines, near Linwood.

Read the Church Notices for Sunday service announcements. The schools will not be opened next week.

Miss Lillie M. Sherman gave a Halloween dinner, on Thursday evening, to a few of her friends. It being a surprise for her mother, Mrs. Alice L. Harnish.

Mrs. G. Walter Wilt won fourth prize for small gardens, $25.00, in the War Garden Contest in this county, the prizes being given through the Food Administration by private individuals.

Christmas Gifts for Soldiers.

The attention of persons desiring to send Christmas gifts to relatives and friends in the army on the other side of the water is again called to the rigid and necessary rules with regard to this matter. Instructions were printed in full on the first page of The Record, of October 18.

Mr. Robert S. McKinney and Miss Jennie Galt, at McKinney's Drug Store, will be the official distributors and inspectors of Christmas boxes from Taneytown. Here are some things to remember:

1. Packages will be accepted in the official boxes only. Boxes are 3x4x9 inches in size, must not bulge and must not weigh over 3 pounds when wrapped.
2. Unless you have the official label, sent by the soldier himself you can not secure a box. Only one label is furnished to each soldier, and labels lost, delayed or destroyed can not be replaced.
3. Packages must be sent not later than November 15. Boxes will be ready for distribution after today.

CHURCH NOTICES.

All persons having canned fruit, vegetables, or anything they have been giving to the Lutheran Deaconess Home Baltimore, please bring them to Baust church, or to Mr. Lambert's, Uniontown, within the next two weeks, as after that date the shipment will be made.

In Trinity Lutheran church, on Sunday morning, the Sunday School will be resumed, meeting at 9 o'clock. The regular preaching service will be at 10 o'clock. The pastor's sermon topic will be "Shall we profit by the war?" There will be no evening service.

Piney Creek Presbyterian Church holds morning service at 10:30 and receives the annual offering for the College Board. The sermon relates a notable truth taught by a long and inglorious reign of an evil-minded king. Bible School, 9:30.

Bible School in the Presbyterian (town) Church, 9:30 A. M. No other town service.

Reformed Church.—Taneytown: Holy Communion, Sunday morning, at 10:30; Sunday School at 9:30. Preparatory service, Saturday afternoon, at 2:30.

United Brethren Church.—Town: Sunday School, 9:30, and preaching, 10:30 A. M. Harney: Sunday School at 1:30 and preaching at 2:30 P. M.

About Croup.
If your children are subject to croup, or if you have reason to fear their being attacked by that disease, you should procure a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and study the directions for use, so that in case of an attack you will know exactly what course to pursue. This is a favorite and very successful remedy for croup, and it is important that you observe the directions carefully.

Some Knock.
Bell—Was that your brother I saw you with yesterday?
Beulah—Yes; don't you think we look alike?
"Not a particle. Say, he's pretty good-looking, isn't he?"

Not the Same.
"Time is money, you know," observed the almost-philosopher.
"Perhaps so," responded the near cynic, "but I have learned that the chap who has plenty of one rarely has much of the other."

More Expense for Him.
"Pa, what's a pseudonym?"
"I don't know, son," replied the man whose car is in the repair shop a great deal of the time, "but if it's a thingumbob that belongs to an automobile, I'll have to buy it sooner or later."

Odd.
It's exceedingly odd, But it can't be denied— To have money ahead You must put it aside.

What is a Specialist?
Jones—Doctor, you are a general practitioner. What is the difference between that and a specialist?
Doctor—A general practitioner, sir is a man to whom you pay a fee for telling you to what specialist you should go.—Typographic Messenger.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.
Do not imagine that because other cough medicines failed to give you relief, that it will be the same with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Bear in mind that from a small beginning this remedy has gained a world wide reputation and immense sale. A medicine must have exceptional merit to win esteem wherever it becomes known.

Couldn't Hear Herself Talk.
Mr. Gotham—Were you down to the meeting of the Woman's club today, dear?
Mrs. Gotham—Yes, I was.
"Did you speak?"
"I did."
"What did you say, dear?"
"Well, to tell you the truth, I really don't know. There were so many all talking at once that I couldn't hear myself speak."

Was a "Cad Study."
"I must have a part for Flossie Fantoe. In the last revue she used to say 'Hurrah for the prince!' Couldn't you write that into this play?"
"There is no prince in this play. We might have her say 'Hurrah, boys! Here comes the handsome captain!'"
"I don't think she could learn as long a part as that."—London Answers.

Sure Enough.
Yeast—I understand for the convenience of travelers there has been invented a pocket electric heater, taking current from a light socket, which will boil a quart of water in three minutes.
Crimsonbeak—Well, tell me, if you can, what good is a quart of hot water for a bath for a traveling man?

Sharp Retort.
He—Did you know the mails are allowed to carry soft soap?
She—I did not know the capacity of a box for soft soap had ever been questioned.

Professional Advice.
"And what did the doctor say about your eyes, Pat?"
"Bedad, he said it's such a condition they're in O'll have to kape off thim fer a week."

Food for Thought.
Mr. Matter—You ought to see the play I was telling you about. It certainly made me think.

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF Valuable House and Lot!
By virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for Carroll County, sitting as a Court of Equity, in the cause wherein Mary Jane Kiser and others are plaintiffs, and Minnie Aberilla Staley and others are defendants, being No. 5090 Equity, the undersigned was appointed Trustee to sell the Real Estate mentioned in the proceedings, namely the Dwelling House and Lot, situate in Taneytown, Carroll County, Md., on the left hand side of the public road leading from Taneytown to Emmitsburg, 53 feet front on said road, and 200 feet deep, bounded by an alley, known as "Miller's," containing 110 ACRES AND 91 PERCHES, more or less, and of which about two acres are in good timber. The improvements consist of a two-story BRICK DWELLING HOUSE, 7 rooms, with slate roof, big out-kitchen attached, extra good barn, hog pen, chicken house, large wagon shed with corn crib and buggy shed attached, other outbuildings, all under good roofing. The land is under a high state of cultivation with practically new fencing over the farm. There is an Artesian well with water works and water run into the house and the barn.

This is one of the most desirable properties in Adams County and makes a very pleasant home and a profitable farming proposition.

Lot No. 2, an unimproved lot in same Township, about a mile and one-half from No. 1, adjoining land of Jacob E. Sharrett, Ezra Shoemaker, Bush Horner and A. T. Lookenbaugh, containing about 4 acres and 50 Perches. This lot has been farmed and consists of good farming land.

Sale to commence at 1:30 o'clock, P. M., when terms and conditions will be made known by

J. W. MARING, Administrator, Gettysburg, No. 2
J. L. WILLIAMS, ESQ., Attorney, 10-25-2t

I offer at Private Sale, my property, situate on Baltimore St., Taneytown, a corner lot, with public alley in rear—adjoining the property of Hubert T. Spangler. Improvements are a weather-boarded Double Dwelling, containing 10 rooms; chicken houses and hog pen.

Possession will be given April 1st, 1919. Interested parties can view same by calling at residence. If not sold, both sides will be for rent.

EDW. B. ADELSBERGER. 10-18-tf

HAD STOMACH TROUBLE OF THE WORST KIND—TONALL PUT HIM BACK TO WORK AGAIN.

Barton Lutz, of Intercourse, R. D. No. 2, Lancaster County, Pa., whose occupation is butchering, says:

"I had stomach trouble of the worst kind and suffered all that went with it. I dosed in vain. At last I bought Tonall, and after reading about the roots, herbs and barks thought it was just the medicine I needed. This proved true.

I have been helped as I never was before.

I now recommend Tonall as the medicine for all ailments of the stomach, which is so common a complaint nowadays, to many people. They can't get it too soon, if they want health."

This testimonial was given July 10, 1918.

Tonall is sold at McKinney's Drug Store Taneytown.

JOHN R. HARE, Watch & Clock Maker, Pike Hill, New Windsor, Md. Orders left at Wolf's Drug Store, will receive prompt attention.
