I desire to return my sincere thanks to the District Committees of the Council of Defense, the Ladies' Com-mittee, the Boy Scouts, the officers of the Banks and all others, who solicited subscriptions, for their hearty co-operation in making it possible for the county to exceed its appor-tionment of the Fourth Liberty Loan by $92,300.00 This, in connection with the fact that with a population of 34,000, there are 7,189 subscribers, conclusively proves that the people of Carroll county can always be depended upon to respond generously to the patriotic appeals of the Govern-ment. In answer to the call of their country to do their full share in raising the largest amount of money asked for at one time by any nation in the history of the world; 7,189 peo-

Grand Rally in Taneytown.

Grand rally in the interest of the United War Work Campaign will be held in the Opera House, in Taneytown, next Monday evening, November 11th., 1918, at 7:30 o'clock. The doors will be open at 7 o'clock, and the Taneytown Band will render inspiring music before, and during the meeting. This will be an occasion for spiring music before, and during the meeting. This will be an occasion for real inspiration, information and entertainment. A choir of 30 voices will sing a considerable number of several properties. Holsopple, president of Blue Ridge College, there will be a four-minute speech by the local pastors, Rev. Guy P. Bready, Rev. S. R. Downie, Rev. D. J. March, and Rev. H. A. Quinn. Rev. L. B. Hafer will preside.

This will be a meeting well worth attending, and will doubtless be largely attended. Come promptly, as you will want to hear the music, and that will begin early. The teams of solicitors are all requested to be present. They can give their reports for the day just before the meeting, instead of sending them by phone.

The Ban is Lifted.

The County Board of Health has directed that the schools be opened, on Monday next, and that all church and public services and meetings may be resumed, as before the epidemic of influenza. Conditions appear to be almost normal throughout the county, so far as new cases are concerned; and it is thought that with proper care the dreaded "flu" need no longer be feared as an epi-

READY FOR THE CAMPAIGN. Let all Co-operate in the Coming War Work Drive.

The United War Work Campaign, which is to be conducted next week, will probably be the most satisfactory effort of its kind ever held in this community. When the Red Cross Campaign started last Spring, many said it could not be done. Yet it was done in magnificent style, and solicitors reported it easy to secure sub-scriptions. Many were given without the asking. Now the people are ready The amount of money is a little larger than the amount contributed for the Red Cross, but people have stop-ped saying, "it can't be done." The campaign will begin at 9 o'clock Monday morning. It is to be ushered in by the ringing of bells and the blowing of whistles all over the four counties of this section. Exactly at 9 o'clock on Monday, all churches and schools are asked to ring their bells for a period of five minutes. Farmers are asked to ring the dinner bells. Factories and threshermen are asked to blow their whis-tles. It is probable that other sec-tions will adopt the idea. The purpose is to remind everybody of the campaign, and to secure immediate

When you hear the bells and whistles, if you have not already attended to the matter, get in touch at once with a member of the team nearest you, or any solicitor whom you can conveniently reach. The solicitors are requested to canvass their own divisions only, but they are to accept subscriptions from any who offer them, without regard to place of residence. If you attend to the mat-ter promptly you will be in the First

All solicitors are requested to re-port at noon on Monday to the chairman, Rev. L. B. Hafer, either by phone or in person. All subscriptions received up to that time will be enrolled and announced, and these subscribers will constitute our First Hour Band. Let all join in seeing how large we can make it. After the first report the solicitors are requested to report every evening not later than 6 o'clock, until their sections have been canvassed, and all subscriptions have been given. The report for the whole district will then be given to Twenty-six teams have been appointed to gather the subscriptions. They are as follows: 1 J. A. Hemler and Rev. H. A. Quinn; 2 Robert V. Arnold and E. F. Smith; 3 Carroll C. Hess and Ellis G. #### Billions Will Be Saved.

Washington, Nov. 7.-The cessation of hostilities and the coming of peace within the next few weeks will save the American people between $18,000,000,000 and $20,000, Government officials estimated today. For the prosecution of the war until the end of the current fiscal year, June 3, 1919, Congress has appropriated approximately $25,000,-000,000. It also has authorized the War and Navy Departments and other agencies to enter into contracts for military supplies which aggregate $9,000,000,000, making the grand total $24,000,000,000.

The signing of the armistice, under the terms of which Germany must demobilize her armies and lay down her arms, will open the way for the United States to call a halt on its war expenditures. Governmet officials believe approximately $15,000,-000,000 will be sufficient to pay the expenses of the nation's war business until peace terms are signed and the American army is brought home and

It should be borne in mind, however, that there will be no let-up in this country's war activities until the armistice is officially signed and Germany has demobilized her army. Until that time the War Department will continue its war work with all its energies and the war industries will continue to run day and night as though the country had two years or more of war ahead of it. No chance will be taken. Even the calling to he cantonments for training of the draft registrants of September 12 will proceed as if the war had a long ime yet to run.

Rioting and revolution of a serious character have broken out in various parts of Germany. The whole country is full of deserters, striking workmen, and confusion generally, back of the main battle lines. The army is still holding together fairly well.

DIED IN THE SERVICE. Corporal Raymond L. Hesson a Victim of Pneumonia.

A cablegram was received on Saturday morning, by Mr. D. J. Hesson, giving notice of the death of his son, Corporal Raymond L. Hesson, from pneumonia, in a base hospital in France, on Oct. 6th. A letter had been received, previously, from Clyde L, an older son in France, that Raymond was ill with a bad cold, which constitutes all of the information the family has.

A second letter was received from Clyde, this week, dated Oct. 15, in which he evidently had not heard of Raymond's death, as he said they expected him back in his position any Raymond was a Corporal in the 313th. Infantry, Headquarters Company, 79th. Division, and would have been 25 years old had he lived until-Oct. 31st. The news of his death was a great shock to his family and many young friends. Both brothers were in the same branch of service and were presumably in close touch with each other.

He was a graduate of Pennsylvania College Gettysburg, a member of Monocacy Lodge A. F. & A. M., Taneytown, and Principal of St. Petersburg, Pa. High School the past year. He was a young mean of fine character and promise, so many of whom will not return to elevate the future citizenship of our land.

Mr. Fred. Nulton Died in Russia.

A telegram was received here, on Thursday afternoon, announcing the death in Russia, of Mr. Frederick Nulton, from Pneumonia. Mr. Nulton was the husband of Miss Margaret Englar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Englar, of Taneytown. They were married in Potland, Oregon, about a year and a half ago.

Mr. Nulton went into the Navy service at Bremerton, Wash., following which his wife came home to Taneytown, and later, when her husband arrived in New York, via the Panama Canal, she went to New York to see him off, and is now there expecting his return.

Mr. Nulton had previously served six years as first-class gunner's mate on a war vessel, consequently his services were in demand for war needs, and on June 18th., 1918, enlisted, rather than be drafted. He secured his previous rank, and was on board an armed merchant vessel, "West Gambo," which had taken a cargo of wheat to Russia. He sailed about six weeks ago, and recently a card from the Navy Department announced his safe arrival in Europe, which is the only word his wife has had since he

INSANE PATIENTS WORK.

Report of Springfield Hospital Shows Good Results

Patriotism and war industry impelled patients at the Hospital for the Insane at Springfield, near Sykesville, to great efforts during the past season, according to the report of Dr. J. Clement Clark, Superintendent of the institution, in his annual report submitted to the board of managers.

"Owing to the shortage of attendants," says Dr. Clark, "we could not get as many patients out to work as formerly, though our patients have cut our own crops and have also cut corn for our neighbbrs to the amount of $818.80. ### PEACE DRAWING NEAR THE PRESENT OUTLOOK

Premature Report that Armistice Has been Signed.

A dispatch cabled from France to the United Press, on Thursday afternoon, that an armistice had been signed at 11 o'clock, and fighting ended at 2 P. M., was false. The State Department announces that the German envoys did not meet General Foch until 5:00 P. M., and that as yet no news of acceptance of the terms has been received.

There has been no cessation in the fighting. Everywhere the Allies are advancing and the Germans retreat-of Germany is whipped without any possibility of being able to "come back." She can possibly continue fighting on the defensive for some months to come, and cause further great loss of life and property, but her drawn of world domination is her dream of world domination is ov-er for all time. It commenced to be over from the timeAmerican forces begun in numbers, to brace up the exhausted French and English, and take full fighting place in the front

Peace terms agreed upon by the Allies, have been presented. Germany must either accept these, or be crushed completely by further war. Marshal Foch has been authorized by the Allies to represent them, and to communicate the terms to Germany The reply is reported not later than

The terms offered to Germany, this week, were worked out at Versailles, France, by an allied war council, the same council having drafted the terms for Austria, which, although drastic, were agreed to, the same as in the case of Turkey and Bulgaria.

The belief persists in Washington that Germany will accept the Allied terms, despite the warning that she must compensate the Allies for all damage done to civilian property during the war by land, by sea and by air. The compensation will amount to a stupendous sum-a sum which will require Germany years and years to liquidate—but it is argued here Germany can only hope for more severe terms in the future if she fails to grasp the opportunity the Allies are holding out to her now to end the war.

The whole question of peace revolves about the armistice. If Germany accepts it peace is assured. If she rejects the armistice the Allies and the United States will press the war to a conclusion. They will fight through the winter, for the Allied armies have reached good fighting ground on most of the front and will not be deterred by the floods of Flanders, the mud of the Somme and the plowed-up battlefields which so often have limited their offensive in the

If Germany does not accept peace now the Allies will fight on until Ger-many is invaded, until all the horrors of war are actually brought home to the German people.

The Italians and Austrians continued fighting up to the last minute, on Monday, the former having captured, in all, about 100,000 prisoners and not less than 500 guns. The Italian army although badly demoralized at one time, bravely pulled itself together, with the aid of the Allies, and during the past few months has bravely prosecuted the war on the most difficult front of the whole war. The Austrian army was practically destroyed before peace terms were accepted.

On Wednesday afternoon Nov. 6, the neighbors and friends of Mr. Frank Nusbaum of Keymar, Md., met at his place and husked 15 acres of corn. Mr. Nusbaum has been sick in bed, for over a month, and is still in poor health. He is very grateful for this great help in time of need. FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 8th., 1918.

All articles on this page are either original, or properly credited. This has always been a fixed rule with this Office, and we suggest the adoption of it by our exchanges.

"Tis the Star-Spangled Banner! Oh, long may it wave O'er the land of the free, and the home of the brave."

One's imagination has had plenty of range to see "politics" in various happenings before Election Day, but "evil to him who evil thinks" has led to a suppression of many good guesses as to the whyfore of events that "just happened" to come along a few days before election—and not for the purpose of influencing votes.

It will be a glad time when this gets to be the "Land of the free" once more. Too much big and little official authority is getting to be decidedly oppressive. The whole country is fairly strutting with it, as dispensed by an army of positivespeaking, "I am it," director's general of many varied customs, habits and occupations.

The weekly newspaper job is an unusually hard one, just now, because articles written up the first of the week are apt to be out-of-date by the last of the week. News items do not "stay put" but reverse themselves from one day to the next, or require very different handling. Things expected to happen a week ahead either come along earlier, or not at all.

We will be glad when the Kaiser stops filling our mail with "official" letters. We don't want the situation to become a habit, not to be shaken off. We want him to stop calling for our boys to go into the trenches and for our girls to go to nursing, and our laborers to go into ammunition factories and camp construction, and for the cost of living to go skyward, and for a lot of other things that belong

It seems not impossible that the property devastation and ruin that is due Germany, in repayment for the ruin that country has inflicted on Belgium and France, may come to her from within. The fear now is that Bolshevikism and anarchy may run rampant there, and that the establishment of a Democracy may be attended by the same disorderly scenes as in Russia-"the sins of the fathers being visited on the sons."

We must keep on paying big bills until "our boys" get back home, but at the earliest possible moment this country ought to shut off planning ahead for war expense that means more bond issues. And our men at home, should be turned out of the camps and sent back to peaceful employment at the first real sign of the real end of the war. The present condition should not continue a day longer than absolutely necessary.

A Lesson From "Drives."

The war drives have shown communities, large and small, what great things they can do, by united effort, without seriously burdening anybody. Many movements heretofore considered impossible, have been demonstrated to be possible. "Doing things," after all, is a sort of joint stock company proposition, a combination of capital and effort, and unless we greatly mistake the lessons so plain before us, there will be many more such efforts in the years to come.

In some of the drives, even those most favorable and interested, have said, "It can't be done," but have had to admit, afterward, that they simply lacked confidence and failed to measure the vastness of community power when aroused, and focused on an ef-

This lesson will be of splendid value to the country, if properly used. If labor can play profitably at unionism, why can not neighborhood interests play as successfully at the same game? One big class can wield as much power as any other like big class, and perhaps the knowledge of this thought may be operated very effectively later on in our country's policies.

It can, of course, be overdone. The the "State's rights" theory, which is not different in principle from trade's are having too many unions of a selfish character, but it is just as probable that we must have more of them, to cure the growing menace of #### Future Political Issues.

There will be no greater problem, after the war, than our trade relations with our Allies in Europe, as well as with Germany, and this will involve the almost equally great question of wages at home. Abnormal wages must drop; in fact, there is a strong possibility that it will be difficult to maintain wages at the old normal level, and they will likely drop before prices in general drop.

There will come up for early consideration, the part the Government will continue to play in wage-fixing, and it may be one of our big political issues-big enough, if entered into, to cause parties to split up, and occupations to become the determining factor in deciding political affiliations. Wages at home, and tariff on imports, may be set down as the great political issues of the near fu-

Every country engaged in war will want to retire its war debt. All will can be taxed. All will want to pick up income wherever the opportunity offers, and these opportunities are bound to conflict, between countries. It is just as probable that the tariff question will stir up a lot of conflicting interests in this country. There will be no more an agreement over it, in the future, than there has been in the past; and it must be remembered that right now our tariff Occasionally we hear the argument laws are a closer approach to "free

Japan has not been in the war sufficiently to disarrange her home industries, and is ready, at the first opening, to supply our demands for thousands of articles made by her cheap labor.

Another Liberty Loan Coming.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo has announced that, no matter what the results of the pending overtures for peace may be, there will be another Liberty loan. To use his expression: "We are going to have to finance peace for a while just as we have had to finance war."

There are over 2,000,000 United States soldiers abroad. If we transport these men back to the United States at the rate of 300,000 a month, secession of the South was based on it will be over half a year before they are all returned. Our Army, therefore, must be maintained, vicunions. The probability is that we tualed, and clothed for many months after peace is an actuality.

The American people, therefore, having supported the Liberty loan with a patriotism that future historians will love to extol, will have an opportunity to show the same patriotism in financing the just and conclusive victorious peace whenever it comes

Not for a moment, however, is the Treasury acting on any assumption that peace is to come soon. [Intil peace is actually assured the attitude of the Treasury and the attitude of the whole United States Government is for the most vigorous prosecution of the war, and the motto of force against Germany without stint or limit will be acted up to until peace is an absolute accomplished fact.

One more Liberty loan, at least, is certain. The fourth loan was popularly called the "Fighting Loan"; the the conditions, the loan must be prepared for and its success rendered certain and absolute. Begin now to pre pare to support it .- U. S. Official Bul-

When the boys come home there will be rejoicings and fetes and receptions. In city and village there will be bands and addresses and honwant to make money so their people ors for those who have bravely and willingly done all and more, than was required or could be expected of them. Secretary of the Interior Lane, A phase of the war that has been with admirable foresight, has worked for 1919.

At the close of the Civil War there were vast areas of the choicest land numbers. All for only $2.50. ment lands in various states its total is a mere garden compared to what was available then.

The problem of supplying productive lands in both our warm and colder climates becomes one largely of reclamation. Take the swamp and overflowed lands of Florida and the Gulf States, and a few other states, of which there are some 60,000,000 acres of the richest soil. There are also the cut-over lands which still lie waste, and other now barren lands in the far West, rich as the valley of the Nile when water is poured upon

These three classes of land are all capable of enormous production, once they are reclaimed and tilled. This work of reclamation would immediately offer the inducements of outdoor activities, and when accomplished, a permanent home and occupation attention to the vastly improved early homestead days. Then the homesteader was also a pioneer, who was often a day's journey distant; ress was slow for want of money. The more abundant the crops, the less the price per bushel. There are most unknown; the settler's life was hard in the extreme, and in some

Under the proposed plan all this is to be reversed. The government would finance and engineer the reclamation; would build roads and farm buildings; would equip with necessary machinery and stock; would establish rural delivery. Where the pioneer did everything by the hardest work, scientic farming would reduce manual labor to a minimum; where he had to wait several years to move from his sod hut into something better, under the new plan the settler would commence with every essential to comfort and success. With these new districts fully settled as fast as developed, and with automobiles, the buyer of these reclaimed lands would be anything but isolated or remote. New towns will spring up to supply stores, and with so large a percentage of young people, conditions will be ideal. The above plan is an expansion of one already used with success in some other

Nobody is to receive something for nothing. The government would use the returned soldier and pay him; as fast as one reclaimed section was completed and ready for occupancy, farms would be sold on easy-payment plans, the payments extended over a very long term of years if necessary. With their natural enterprise, the large portion of buyers would work out of debt in a few years.

While the actual work of reclamation would not be undertaken during the war, the details of the plan should be, so that, immediately on return to civilian life, those who desired to go into the reclamation work could do so. To accomplish this, Secretary Lane is asking Congress for a few hundreds of thousands of dollars. Seldom has a more deserving approprianext loan may be a fighting loan, too, or it may be a peace loan. Whatever Windsor, in the November Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Into the Valley of the Shadow

INDER the candles of the village church the American wounded lie in close even rows. Straight down to the door they are packed together. Outside an ambulance arrives, and deftly, quietly, the Soldiers of Cheer slip out to help the Army's litter-bearers lift out the wounded and carry them into the yard or the church or the school—wherever there is room.

Why you should give twice as much as you ever gave before!

The need is for a sum 70% greater than any gift ever asked for since the war began. The Government has fixed this sum at $170,500,000.

By giving to these seven organizations all at once, the cost and effort of six additional campaigns is saved.

Unless Americans do give twice as much as ever before, our soldiers and sailors may not enjoy during 1919 their

100 Leading Stage Stars
2000 Athletic Directors
2500 Libraries supplying 5,000,000 books
85 Hostess Houses

15,000 Big-brother "secretaries"
Millions of dollars of home comforts

When you give double, you make sure that every fighter has the cheer and comforts of these seven organizations every step of the way from home to the front and back again. You provide him with a church, a theatre, a cheerful home, a store, a school, a club and an athletic field—and a knowledge that the folks back home are with him, heart and soul!

You have loaned your money to supply their physical needs.

Now give to maintain the Morale that is winning the war!

The ambulance whirs off again along the shelltorn road, and still these messengers of friendliness pass in and out among the soldiers—holding cups of steaming chocolate to their lips, giving them lighted cigarettes, shifting their positions.

From one corner a boy's voice calls out:

"I got it pretty bad. Will you send home a message for me?"

A friendly face bends over him. He whispers his mother's name and her address. He asks that she be told where he was struck and how.

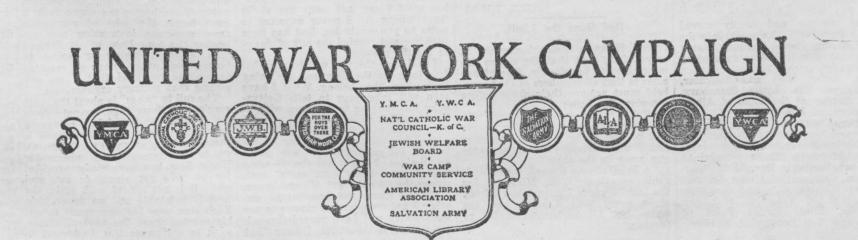

"Is there anything else?" asks the man above him. He hestitates a moment. Then, so softly that the older man can barely hear, he murmurs a girl's name, and dies.

To be there when a wounded soldier needs them, is a privilege which comes to your representatives in the seven war work organizations. After every push, when the field hospitals are full to overflowing, there are calls for every available worker in the area.

They come from miles around, after their day's work is over at their own huts and canteens. And then through all the night they help the wounded fight their battles.

The grief of many a mother or a wife or sister here at home has been made easier by the letters which these men have written there beside the stretchers.

Keep the Soldiers of Cheer on the job—the 7,000 who are there already and the 1,000 a month for whom Pershing calls.

In Memory of Our Loving Son, HOWARD A. FROCK, who died one month ago, October 6th, 1918

Gone but not forgotten. Our hearts in deep sorrow return to the day,
As memory recalls how death bore you away.

And left us in tears, in grief and in woe,
As we stood by your grave one month ago.

God called him home; it was His will,
But in our hearts we love him still.
His memory is as dear today
As in the hour he passed away.
BY HIS DEVOTED PARENTS. A devoted brother we once had,
How sweet his memory still.
But death has left a vacant chair,
This world can never fill.

Prof. H. E. Slagen, Principal of Stevens High School, Lancaster, has received a letter from his son, Lieut. John A. Slagen, of the 371st. Infantry written from a hospital in France, from where a cablegram was received about three weeks ago saying Lieut. Slagen had been received. The letter goes far to relieve the apprehension of his parents. His command has very evidently been in some of the hottest engagements. The letter fol-

Well, I guess I'll close for this time but I'll write again in the next few days.

(The following are parts of two letters, dated Oct. 9-10 from Carl F. Demmitt to his mother.) Somewhere in France. Dear Mother:-

I received your letter of Sept. 9 today, just a month after it was written. I am sorry so many of the Taneytown boys are drafted, but they are too slow in doing their part. I would be in it now, if I had not enlisted and spent a year in the army listed and spent a year in the army before the draft came.

There is pretty strong talk of peace now, and I believe they are getting enough of the Yankee boys, but if I had my way they would get more before they stopped. The Dutchmen have burned several of our balloons, and just burned one a few days ago; we only have a balloon from 10 to 12 days before something happens to it days before something happens to it. I am still well, though nearly onefourth of our Company are on the sick list, and nearly dead with the cold. We have so much rainy weather that it is a wonder we are not all sick. It was nice to read my old letter in The Record, and if I could write one now, with everything in it, it would be some letter. I must say our Company has been lucky, for we have got paid every month so far, the same as in the U. S. We have fresh beef every day, so we are not very bad off, and we fine. The only thing that worries us are the Huns shells which go over us once in a while. I am enclosing you a Christmas box coupon, as it is the only way we can get a present from hardly know what I want but a pair of fur-lined leather mittens and a spool of heavy brown thread would come in fine, and fill in the rest with chewing gum. Except for a little cold we had more fun last night than any comic show in existence. We have an Italian, who can not talk plain, and he got into a card game for money and at the end he had a bad Franc, two Bull Durham tags and a lead 10c piece. He made more fuss than two dozen chickens in the night, and all laughed until we could laugh no more. We have been having bum weather for ballooning and do little but build camp fires. We are bothered every night by the German bombers, and one came over just a few minutes ago; but we give them a warm welcome when we get the searchlights of Trinity Reformed church, Han- on them. Hope you get this in time to send the package.

Fun and Money trapping muskrats

FUR is getting more and more valuable. Yet some farmers are content to have lots of fur walking around the farm loose on the backs of skunks and muskrats.

Follow the example of those farmers and their boys who set a dozen Victor traps in likely spots every evening through Fall and Winter and collect two or three hundred dollars in cash for the fur before Spring. And it's a spare time job at that!

The Victor grabs the animals by the leg and holds them tight. Start with a half dozen Victors. (We make a specialty of Victor traps.) They will pay for themselves—and a good profit besides in your first week of trapping.

I will go to a fine city from here, but contain a mixture of potatoes and I don't know. There are none of my other things. But since we put it all

PLANS TO BUILD STORAGE HOUSES

Wooden Structures Are Preferable Because Cheaper and Easier to Keep Dry.

ALLOW CIRCULATION OF AIR

"Dugout" Is Not Satisfactory on Account of Moisture-Foundation May Be in the Form of Pillars or Solid Walls.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Sweet-potato storage houses may be built of wood, brick, hollow tile, cement, or stone. Wooden houses are preferable, because they are cheaper and easier to keep dry than the other types. It is difficult to keep moisture from collecting on the walls of a cement, stone, or brick house. Where such houses are built for sweet-potato storage they should be lined with lumber so as to keep the air in the house from coming in contact with the masonry walls. It is best to build sweetpotato storage houses on foundations that allow a circulation of air under them. The "dugout," or house built partly under ground, is not satisfactory for storing sweet potatoes in the South, because it is practically impossible to keep this type of house dry, and moisture in the storage house will cause the crop to rot.

Foundation of House.

The foundation of the storage house may be in the form of pillars or solid walls and should be of such a height that the floor is about on the level of the bottom of the wagon bed, while the footings should be carried below the frost line or to solid ground. Girders 6 by 10 or 8 by 8 inches in size are usually placed on the pillars.

Where cement, brick or stone foundation walls are built, they should extend 18 to 20 inches above the ground level; and plates 2 to 3 inches thick and 8 to 10 inches wide should be placed on the wall. In using walls for the foundation it is necessary to provide means for ventilation under the house. This can be done by placing small windows in the foundation every 10 to 12 feet. Even where solid outside foundation walls are used it is advisable to use pillars for the center supports. The rows of pillars should be not farther apart than 8 to 10 feet.

The space between the walls should be left open, because any material used to keep out the cold will absorb moisture. Many storage houses have been built with sawdust, shavings, or simflar material between the walls, but this practice should never be follow-Sawdust will take up moisture ed. and when once wet will never dry out. This moisture will keep the house damp and cause the walls to rot. The air space is a good insulator if the walls are made tight.

Ventilation is important.

Thorough ventilation is necessary in a storage house. This is provided by means of windows, doors, and ventilators in the floor and through the roof. The openings in the floor around the stove prevent overheating the potatoes near the stove. The bottom of the windows should be within 18 inches or two feet of the floor. The windows and doors must be made so as to close tightly to keep out the cold. All windows should be made to open from the outside, as the bins will interfere with opening them from the inside. Where glass windows are used, outside shutters are put on, and these should be well padded. Some of the windows should be made of glass, so as to admit light without letting in cold air, as it is necessary to have light when working in the house and in cold weather the house should not be kept open.

Arrangement of Interior.

The arrangement of the interior of the house depends upon the methods of storage used. Some growers store potatoes in boxes, crates, baskets, or hampers, while others store in bins. The smaller containers are to be preferred to bins where it is practicable to use them, because they eliminate considerable handling and reduce the amount of decay. Many growers store in the hampers that are to be used for marketing the potatoes. This is a satisfactory plan, as it requires no outlay of money for storage receptacles, and the packages for shipping must be provided in any event if the crop is to be marketed.

SHORT BUT EVENTFUL LIFE

Marie Pauline Bonaparte Crowded Many Adventures Into Her Few Years of Fortune's Smiles.

Marie Pauline Bonaparte was one of the numerous family of brothers and sisters of the great Napoleon. She was quite the most beautiful of the girls and the gayest in naturetwo qualities that endeared her to her illustrious brother, but that also brought her more or less into trouble.

Like the rest of them, she was born in Ajaccio and shared the rise of the family fortunes. When she was seventeen she married one of Napoleon's staff officers, General Le Clerc, and went to live at St. Domingo. He died in 1802 and, as a young widow, a mere girl of twenty-two, she came to enjoy the society of Paris. She was exceed ingly popular, had her portrait done as Venus reclining on a couch after the artistic fashion of the times), and married the Prince Borghese. She went to Rome with him, but tired of it here and went back to her beloved Paris. Various escapades started gossip about her—especially her rather offhand treatment of Marie Louise which caused her removal from court. This sobered her a bit, and she accompanied her brother in his first exile to Elba and begged, after his overthrow, to live with him at St. Helena. But this request was denied her and she died in her favorite city, Paris, of cancer. She was about forty-five and still young looking and exceedingly beautiful.

SETTLED QUESTION OF VOTE

Decision of English Registrar Almost Worthy to Rank With That Made Famous by Solomon.

Not since the days of Solomon, perhaps, has a more perplexing problem confronted a judge than that recently presented to an election registrar in England. A certain voter possessed a house which stood half in one parish and half in another. The question consequently arose as to in which parish, or whether not, indeed, in both, the householder was entitled to vote. After some discussion a ray of light was vouchsafed to Solomon. In which parish, he demanded, was the man's bedroom? Unfortunately, in both. Then was it that Solomon stood fully revealed; the infant, of mature years, should be cut in twain. The parish in which the head of the bed stood should have the honor of the vote. Which is all very well, except that there are many voters whose feet take them to the polling booth, but whose heads are no good when they get there. Does not the Italian proverb say, "If a man has not a head he should have feet."-Christian Science Monitor.

King Victim of His Own Jest.

Probably the greatest admirer of perfumes among the old Asiatic monarchs seems to have been Antiochus Epiphanes the Illustrious, king of Syria, according to Don Martin, who has gone into this perfumery question for the Los Angeles Times. At all Antiochus' feasts, games and processions perfumes held the premier place.

The king was once bathing in the public baths, when some private person attracted by the fragrant odor which he shed around, accosted him, saying: "You are a happy man, O king, you smell in a most costly man-

Antiochus, being much pleased with the remark, replied: "I will give you as much as you desire of this perfume." The king then ordered a large ewer of thick unguent to be poured on the flatterer's head and a multitude of poor people soon collected around to gather what was spilled. This caused the king infinite amusement but it made the place so greasy that he slipped and fell on his back in a most undignified manner, which put an end to his merriment.

The Tomato in History. Edward Albes of the Pan-American union, in discussing the matter of the tomato, said a number of years ago that the word "tomato" seems to be of Aztec origin, and given as "tomatl" by some authorities and as "ixtomate" by others. The word still persists in some of the older Mexican town names, as, for examples, "Tomatian" and "Tomatepec." The weight of opinion among historical botanists is that the plant and culture for edible purposes began in Peru, whence it spread to other parts of tropical America. It is known that it was cultivated for its fruit in the warm climates of America centuries before the coming of Columbus to this con-

The Mule.

To our mind the one breathing thing in creation that has been the most cruelly maligned is the mule. No more hard-working creature walks the earth; none with a more faithful past record; none now more in demand in the world's service. What would we do in this war without the mule? What can we do without him after the war is over? Still he is despised and kicked around worse than though he were a hound dog. It is a shame. In the readjustment of things, let us right this wrong and, if we have anything to say to the mule, let us say it to his face, which is wiser than saying it to his hecls.—Los Angeles Times.

Why He Sobbed.

"Shut that door!" yelled the tough farmer. "Where were you brought up -in a barn?

The man addressed meekly and silently implied, but the speaker, looking at him a moment later, observed that he was in tears. Going over to his victim, he apologized. "Oh come," he said, soothingly, "you shouldn't take it to heart because I asked if you were brought up "That's it; that's it," sobbed the other man. "I was brought up in a barn and it makes me homesick every time I hear an ass bray."

John Houch, living at Mount Ver-non, Lancaster County, Pa., cannot get done praising Tonall. This was what he has to say:

"I suffered from pains in my stomach due to indigestion in whatever I would eat. Had to be very careful what I did eat. Since taking Tonall I can eat anything, have no pains any more. "I bought Tonall because it had

HOME-MADE FOOD RULES TO WIND UP THE WAR.

Without the food which America sent overseas during the past twelve months, the Allied cause would have been imperilled, if not lost. The Hun would not be whimpering and whining so plaintively if he hadn't had enough of being on the losing side of a contest between empty stomachs and wellnourished bodies. But lest Uncle Sam spends too much time putting himself on the back for saving Democracy, he is going to get a new Home Card from the Food Administration showing him why he must save and ship fifty per cent. more food this year in order to keep Democracy safe. The main reason is that there are already two million Sammies over in France-an army still growing by hundreds of thousands — and for reasons which need hardly be explained to the people of Maryland, the Food Administration is going to send them all the food they need even if we at home have to eat wisely instead of wastefully in order to do so.

The new Home Card will contain nelpful hints. But it will be left to the individual to frame his own rules. The food problem has shifted so that it is no longer solvable by saving one commodity such as wheat and filling up on substitutes. There must be saving all along the line.

The new regulations which are be ing enforced in every public eating place in the U.S.A. can be adapted for home use. Easier still is it to remember that conservation is called for in everything that has to do with food-including the labor of preparing It and the packages in which it comes, Otherwise the 17,000,000 tons of promised foodstuffs will not go over seas. And if Maryland fails in its part of that gigantic job, how shall its ivilian population ever look its soldiers in the face? One item of the huge order is for ,600,000 tons of meat and fats. A lot f that is still in the corn cribs, a lot still in the pastures and the hay stacks. It has to be eaten by animals before it turns into the kind of food our armies need, our Allies ask, and we ourselves The meat must be so handled want. that although a million tons is shipped more than last year, the herds will continue as large as ever. ess to say the U.S. Administration is not following the German plan of devouring a whole herd with no thought of the future except the hope of beating up some weaker people and robbing them of their cattle.

The supply of meat and fats for our soldiers and Allies will be released Just insofar as it is saved from the American table three times each day In taking the further step of abandoning definite rules in favor of a general but urgent plea for still further thrift, the Food Administration shows that it possesses complete confidence in the public's wisdom.

How to save now half as much more again as we have been in the past, is a problem in whose solution every soul in Maryland is asked to help. It is a test of head as well as heart.

MORE SUGAR ALLOWED THREE LBS. A MONTH.

The amount of sugar allowed per month to each individual has been increased from two to three pounds. The whole monthly allowance can be bought for a family at one time.

The amount allowed to public eating places is increased to three pounds for ninety meals.

This increase is made in fulfillment of the Food Administration's promise to set free extra sugar as soon as possible.

This increase is possible because of the very satisfying condition of the Louisiana crop and of Western refin-ing, because railway freight space is more available while men, rather than munitions, etc., are being shipped to Europe and because the restrictions upon manufacturers and the self denial of private consumers have built ap a temporary reserve.

PUTTING FAT ON THE TURKS.

A few extra weeks in seed-and-bug feeding adds a lot of weight to a young turkey. And the turkey does not begrudge the time. The Food Administration therefore asks, in the nterest of greater food production that hens be not marketed under six pounds dressed or gobblers under FRENCH CROP FALLS SHORT. The United States Food Administra tion is in receipt of a report of an address by Monsieur Boret, the French Food Controller delivered in the Chamber of Deputies in which he declared that the total nutrition value of the 1918 crop of cereals as well as of beans and potatoes in France is below the total nutrition value of these products for last year.

The wheat crop fortunately is larger and of better quality, but the maize barley, oats, beans and potato crops are considerably smaller.

"The potato situation is particularly grave," said Mr. Boret, "for whereas the average for the last ten years is 12,000,000 long tors, this year the potato crop will not exceed 7,500,000 long tons. Despite this shortage, we must supply the Allied troops fighting in our land. We cannot possibly refuse this indispensable food to English and American troops who are constantly increasing in number."

GREEN TOMATO CONSERVE.

One pint salted green tomatoes, one tart apple, diced, not pared, two cups syrup, juice of one lemon, grated rind of one-half lemon.

Soak the tomatoes for two hours, and dice them. Cook the tomato and the apple in a small amount of water until they are tender. Do not drain them. Add the other ingredients, and cook the mixture until it is thick and clear. If desired, about one tablespoon of preserved ginger may be added.

There is no ice to waste here, but there's lots less where the Kaiser is going.

NO NEED OF SUCH REFINEMENT. Of course it was public property that the Takeiteesi railway trains did not dash along like a hurricane being pushed, nor did they travel as fast as rumor, but the journey in question had just about put the "lid on." Mr. T. Raveller was one of the long-suffering passengers on this occasion, and was getting anxious about the time, as he had an appointment at the other end. "Say, porter," he shouted, leaning his head out of the window, "what time is it?"

"lime? Sorry, sir, I don't know," replied the luggage lifter.
"Don't know!" shouted Raveller.

"Hang it, man, how is it you don't carry a watch?"

"Well, sir, you see," said the portmanteau pulverizer, "we hardly ever need a watch on this road; what we need is a calendar."-Stray Stories.

Could Do No Less.

"Does Mrs. Dubwaite object to your using profanity?"

"Well," replied Mr. Dubwaite, with a thoughtful air, "she used to object strenuously when I addressed a few appropriate remarks to our motorcar on the occasion of a breakdown fifty or sixty miles from the nearest shop, but she permits me to express myself rather freely about the kaiser."

MERE PLAY.

Howe-What's the differnce between a flying fish and a swimming fish? Wise-Oh! easy; one flies to rise and the other rises to flies.

Black-No, I haven't got any. Singular Woman. "Do you know, I think Mrs. Jumply is peculiar in some ways?" "Specify." "For one thing she always tells her exact age. In fact she does it boastfully."

A DEFENSE.

Bronson-Most of the airs people put on about the benefits of foreign travel are all a bluff.

Woodson-Yes. But you've got to travel yourself in order to be able to call the bluff.

Larry's Lighthouse

By JOHN TRENT

(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

When Larry Delmore was ten years old he had stood on the beach at Quetchet and flung a taunt at the little girl with flaming red hair who had wrinkled her nose at him.

"Redhead!" taunted Larry ungallantly. "Lighthouse!" he added, as the little girl pulled her white sunbonnet over her gorgeous curls and scurried away to her nurse.

"Nurse!" pouted Jean. "Am I a lighthouse because my hair is red?"

"No-no-Miss Jean," laughed nurse, looking up from her sewing; "your hair is very pretty, indeed, just like your mamma's; you musn't mind what that naughty little Delmore boy says!"

"I shan't mind a bit," said Jean, comforted; but in spite of her resolution the memory of the taunt lingered and rankled, so that as the years went by she grew positively to dislike the name of Delmore-especially Larry Delmore—and she was always hearing it, although they never met after that

Larry Delmore was the sort of young man whose name is always confronting one. He excelled in everything. He was honor man of his class at college, a famous halfback, the driver of a winning automobile in a famous race, an aviator, a musician, and last, but not least, an excellent business man.

Jean Lloyd heard of these things in her remote boarding school and later at the fashionable finishing school, but always she discounted his cleverness by her bitter recollection of his taunt that midsummer day 15 years ago.

"I could never endure him," she told her best friend one day. "A horrid, grubby little tow-headed boy! I can fancy just how disagreeable he must Miriam Smith looked wide-eyed at Jean. "Haven't you met him since then?" she wondered.

Jean shook her glorious, ruddycrowned head.

From his towering height Larry Delmore looked across the hotel ballroom and saw a tall, graceful girl gowned in white. About her snowy throat was twisted a wonderful string of pearls, and, save for the high-piled masses of her hair, there was not a bit of color about her.

"Who is that girl?" he asked the first man he met.

The man glanced in the direction indicated by Larry's eager gray eyes, "You mean the one with golden hair?" he asked.

"No, no," protested Larry, "the tall girl in white-the girl with auburn "Oh, you mean Miss Lloyd-Jean Lloyd. May I present you?" "Not just now," decided Larry, and for some inexplicable reason he turned his back on Miss Lloyd's beautiful face and wandered out to the balcony.

"There is something very striking about that girl," thought Larry, plucking at the geraniums in the flower boxes. "Confounded funny feeling I had when Morton offered to introduce me. I wanted to go like the dickens, but-somehow, she had such a haughty poise to her head that I'm deucedly afraid she wouldn't be as charming as she looked. I'm going to find out

When he returned to the ballroom Miss Lloyd had disappeared, and he saw her no more that night. By careful inquiry he learned that she and her father were stopping at the Quetchet hotel for the season.

The next morning he arose with the sun and went down to the ocean for his early swim. He had the beach to himself save for one lone swimmer who was breasting the surf with easy grace. It was a woman wearing a red bathing cap he decided at first. A further inspection revealed that the glistening copper glory was crowning the head of Jean Lloyd and that her head was uncovered.

So Larry plunged into the sea and disported himself like a young porpoise. Larry Delmore was a swimmer of note in addition to his other accomplishments, and when he saw Miss Lloyd's glowing 'lead turned steadily out at sea while the flash of her white arms cut the blue-green surface of the waves like a veritable mermaid, he followed her, in the masculine spirit not to be outdone by a mere woman.

But the water was cold that morning and perhaps Mr. Delmore was not up to his usual form; at any rate, he suddenly stopped his long, steady strokes, blanched at the agonizing cramp that seized his limbs, uttered a low cry of alarm and went down.

The girl heard the cry and turned just as he disappeared. When he came up she was calling to him to hold up -that she was coming-coming-Through the flying spray and the rocking green and white of the waves he caught the glimpse of her red hair and her white face coming nearer.

When he rose to the surface again, still writhing in that awful cramp, it was to see the solacing red of her hair close beside him, to feel the support of her arms under his shoulders.

"I cannot carry you in," she panted, "but I can hold you up until help comes. Can you shout?"

He nodded and shouted hoarsely. A boat put hastily off from shore and two or three life-savers took them

"I declare, if it isn't Mr. Delmore!"

marveled one of the men as ne applied a flask to Larry's pale lips.

Jean, white and exhausted, sat up and looked at the young giant she had rescued. Was it possible that this handsome blond youth had been the tow-headed little boy whose taunt had rankled so long? It could not be possible that she, Jean Lloyd, had been the means of saving this champion swimmer's life!

About that time Jean fainted away, and it was a half hour later in her own room at the hotel that she sat up in bed, warm and dry, and uttered a remark that caused her worried father to stare.

"I suppose I must have looked like a lighthouse to Mr. Delmore," she said. "Then you are all right, my dear?" asked Mr. Lloyd.

"Right as can be, daddy," she

It was late in the afternoon when Larry Delmore was admitted to the Lloyds' private parlor to express his Jean, pale and lovely, met him with a curious look in her eyes.

Larry stumblingly expressed his thanks. No man, he declared afterward, could govern his tongue while that vision smiled at him.

"You looked like an angel to me," he finished in a rush of words; "you were a lighthouse of hope, toward which I tried to swim!"

Jean laughed musically. Her eyes sparkled. "Do you know, Mr. Delmore, that this is not the first time you have referred to my hair by calling me a lighthouse?"

"Oh, you don't understand," he protested. "I never thought of your lovely hair. I swear I never saw anything save your eyes, and those are blue. You never heard of a blue light-"

"No, I never did," interrupted Jean, "but I have been on Quetchet beach before, Mr. Delmore. Fifteen years ago I was a five-year-old girl with red curls; you were a tow-headed boy who called me a lighthouse, because of the color of my hair. I've hated you ever since," she ended

Larry Delmore stared. "I remember," he confessed. "I was a little duffer in those days. Believe me, Miss Lloyd, I've gotten over it, really! I recollect that you pulled your sunbonnet down over your curls and ran away crying. I was ashamed of myself. Why didn't you slap me?"

Jean laughed, and with her laughter went the last flicker of her smoldering resentment toward Larry Del-

One morning he went down to the sea again and as it had happened before he saw Jean's head far out in the surf. He plunged into the water and soon came up with her. They faced each other in the golden glory of a

"Jean," he said quietly, "I'm going to call you my lighthouse once more. You have shown me a safe harbor of love; the light of your eyes has guarded its entrance. Shall I have a safe voyage home?"

And the steady glance of her eyes wavered for a moment and then met his fairly. Their first kiss was bathed in the golden rays of the rising sun.

INTERIOR OF CHICKEN HOUSE

Kind of Floor Most Suitable Depends Greatly on Soil on Which Structure Is Located.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.) The kind of floor which is best suited for a particular poultry house depends upon the soil on which it is located, and the use of the house. On light, sandy, well-drained soils a dirt floor is satisfactory, especially for small or colony hen houses. Such floors should be from two to six inches higher than the outside ground surface, and it is advisable to renew them each year by removing the contaminated surface down to clean soil. and to refill with fresh sand or fine gravel and earth. A board floor is generally used where the level of the floor in the house is from one to three feet above the ground surface and in portable houses on land which is not well drained. Board floors harbor rats and rot quickly and should be raised some distance off the ground so that cats or dogs can get under them, which also allows a free circulation of air to prevent the wood from rotting. Cement floors are adapted to long permanent buildings, brooder houses, incubator cellars, and to all permanent houses where an artificial floor is required and can be built on the ground level. These floors are easy to clean, very sanitary, rot proof. and comparatively inexpensive, if one has a cheap supply of gravel or sharp

Wooden floors are usually made of matched flooring and are generally doubled in cold climates to make them tight and warm, in which case the lower layer of boards is usually laid diagonally to strengthen the floor. Floors of one thickness give good satisfaction in most sections of this country and in growing houses. Three-quarter-inch mesh wire may be used under wooden or dirt floors to keep out rats. In making concrete or cement floors and walls select Portland cement of known reputation, which should be kept in a dry place; use clear, coarse, sharp sand or gravel which does not contain over five per cent of clay or silt and crushed stone or gravel onefourth to two inches in diameter. The gravel should be screened through a one-fourth-inch mes' wire screen and the coarse particles used as stone, while the material which passes through the screen is sifted through a 40-mesh wire screen in order to separate the sand, and any material which goes through a 40-mesh wire is thrown away. A mixing board with a smooth surface and a box for measuring the sand and gravel are necessary. Spread the sand on the board and add the cement; mix these thoroughly together; add three-fourths of the required amount of water and then the gravel or stone; mix thoroughly and add water to the dry spots, making the mixture just wet enough to be jellylike Thorough mixing is very essential, as the mortar should completely coat all particles of the mixture. Only enough water should be added so that when the concrete is tamped on laying the water will nicely flush the surface.

POULTRY FOOD FROM WASTE

Fowls Convert Materials Into Feed That Cannot Be Utilized by Any Other Kind of Stock.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Keep this thought in mind in considering the growing of more poultry as a war necessity: Poultry is a means of converting into good food materials that cannot be utilized by man, that cannot be eaten by any other kinds of stock, and that without the poultry would be absolute waste. Very clearly it becomes a national as well as an individual duty to keep enough poultry to take up all such waste materials. As long as fowls take the bulk of their feed from such sources and require to be fed on grain or other garnered feeds only as a finishing process, additional food is being cre-

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 10

JACOB DECEIVES HIS FATHER.

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 27:18-29.
GOLDEN TEXT—Speak every man truth with his neighbor,—Ephesians 4:25.
DEVOTIONAL READING—Ephesians ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Genesis 27: 1-45; Proverbs 12:17-20; Zechariah 8:16-17; Acts 5:1-11.

I. Isaac's Purpose Regarding the Birthright (27:1-4).

The infirmity of old age reminded Isaac that he should set his house in order. The particular matter needing attention was the determination as to who should be the head of the house when he was gone. As to whether Isaaa knew what God had told Re bekalı concerning Jacob's priority we are not told (Gen. 25:23), but it is evident that he lacked spiritual discernment, being under the sway of his appetite. Even though he was ignorant of God's plan as revealed to Rebekah, Esau's action in marrying heathen women (Gen. 26; 34, 35), ought to have convinced Isaac that Esau was unfit to be the head of the house which was in line of the covenant blessing.

II. Rebekah's Scheme to Frustrate Isaac's Plan (vv. 5-17).

Having heard Isaac's instructions to Esau, she took steps to divert the father's blessing from Esau to Jacob, She I aw it was God's will that Jacob should have the birthright, but had no scruples as to what method should be used in its accomplishment.

1. Rebekah's instructions to Jacob (vv. 5-10).

She sent Jacob to bring two kids from the goats, promising that she would make savory meat, such as Isaac loved. She knew that Isaac's weak spot was his stomach.

2. Jacob's hesitancy (vv. 11-17).

He foresaw the difficulty and danger which confronted him. His hesitancy was not because he had conscientious scruples against doing the deed, but was afraid of being found out. Some have a desire to do evil, but refrain from it because they are afraid of being caught. Rebekah undertakes to bear the curse that may come, so Jacob's scruples are set aside. She clothes him with Esau's raiment, and places into his hands the food.

III. Jacob Deceives Esau (vv. 18-29). 1. Interview between Isaac and Jacob (vv. 18-25).

The quickness with which the savory meat was brought, aroused suspicion in the mind of Isaac. In order to allay that suspicion Jacob deliberately lied. He not only lied, but blasphemed the name of God in declaring that his success was due to the help of Jehovah. This lie is again repeated when Isaac questions him further. One lie calls for another. Having started on the road of deception he obliged to lie in order to cover up his deceit.

2. The paternal blessing (vv. 26-29). It embodied the following particulars: (1) A fertile soil and abundant products (v. 28). Man is dependent upon God for the fruitage of the soil. Few stop to consider their obligation to him for temporal blessings. (2) National pre-eminence (v. 29). God was to give him a numerous and powerful offspring. This has in a large measure been fulfilled, but in a still larger measure it remains to be fulfilled. (3) Pre-eminence among his kindred (v. 29). "The elder shall serve the younger." (4) The object of God's especial care (v. 29). Being God's choice, God obligates himself to care for him. Those who would misuse Jacob would suffer; those who would favor Jacob would be favored. Those who are chosen of God enjoy his special care, and woe be to him who would dare to molest them. This included temporal and spiritual blessings. Happy is he who enjoys the friendship of God.

IV. Esau's Remorse (vv. 30-38). Scarcely had Isaac ceased blessing Jacob till Esau came for the blessing. The secret was now out. Lying and deceit cannot long be hid. In the face of what had been done, Isaac shakes with fear. No doubt this is due to the manifest presence of Jehovah. Esau gives forth a terrible wail. While shedding bitter tears of disappointment, he rages with passion and plans to murder Jacob after Isaac's death. This is a most bitter experience for Esau, but he is merely reaping what he sowed. For a brief indulgence of his flesh he sold his birthright. May Esau's folly warn us of choosing fleshly indulgence rather than spiritual blessings. Whenever one turns from the love of God to the gratification of worldly lusts, he is guilty of Esau's profanity.

— THE — CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

--- From --The Christian Workers Magazine, Chicago, Ill.

> "Are You Afraid?" November 10 Luke 12:1.12

The worlding has enough knowledge of God to be afraid with the fear of dread, the Christian believer has enough knowledge of God to trust Him. With Paul, he triumphantly cries: "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day

What are the causes of fear? 1. A guilty conscience. Conscience may be active and sensitive, it may be trying to serve God with dead works, burdened with the effort to atone for its own sin. This gives rise to fear, because of uncertainty. For this there is just one remedy—only one. It is the blood of Christ. "Shall not the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God?" (Heb. 9:14.) Indeed it does lift the burden and dismiss the fear. Once urged by the blood there is "no more conscience of sins" (Heb. 10:2). Unless this is clear to your own soul do not leave it. Tarry with it, it is God's remedy for sin, and the ony antidote for the fear arising from a sense of sin.

2. The second cause of fear is some anticipated evil coming upon one. Ignorance of God's Word is largely responsible for this kind of fear. you know what is written in Psalms 121:7? If not, how can the Spirit stay your fear of evil? "Are the consolations of God small with thee?" Eliphaz asked of Job. They are with many people because of neglect of Bible reading.

3. Then there is the fear of circumstances that may follow a course of action. The only proper thing to do, if persuaded that the course is right, to trust God with the circum stances. Recently a soldier told the writer of these notes, an experience that illustrates the point. When he first went to camp he found himself in the company of godless men. What should he do? Accommodate himself to his surroundings and be moulded by his new environment, or continue to live as a devoted and active Christ-ian? He decided on the latter course and definitely committed the consequences of his course to God. For two or three weeks it was "hard row-There was much ridicule and opposition, but he remained stead-fast—"made good" and won the re-spect and esteem of the men. "Trust in the Lord and do good, dwell in the land, and feed on his faithfulness" (Psalms 37:3.R. V.)

Unbelief in some one of its many forms is the cause of all our fear. The word of our divine Lord is, "Fear not, only believe." "Said I not unto thee that if thou wouldest believe thou shouldest see the glory of God?" (John 11:40.)

Monarch's Costly Whim.

King Alfonso's ruined palace of San Ildefonso at La Granja is one of the freaks and one of the glories of Spain. It was a Bourbon monarch who invented it—at the beginning of the eighteenth century. Philip V was out hunting one day and rested at a sunny farm called the Grange, occupied by monks. The monks had humored the mountain upon whose slopes the farmhouse was built and had made their beautiful gardens conform to the ways of the

But the king compelled the mountain to obey him. He blasted smooth places on precipitous slopes, carrying away thousands of tons of earth and stones, and from the valley below he brought up miles of fertile earth to form new fields and gardens. By the time he had finished creating a new landscape and filling the new Versailles with the best pictures his taste suggested, Philip was ready to die in debt to the tune of 45,000,000 pesetas. For that is the sum which the monarch spent on San Ildefonso.

Borneo Not Yet Civilized.

Although civilization has made excellent progress in some parts of the East Indies, barbarous practices by the natives on the island of Borneo still continue, according to O. K. Hoey, a merchant of Batavia, Java. He said that traders who visit isolated sections of Borneo found it necessary to remain constantly alert in order to guard against attacks by Dyaks, who, however, are gradually being driven farth-

"On the island of Bali the men still load themselves up with many jewels and heavy chains as ornaments," he declared. "The natives make good incomes from their rice fields and traffic in pearls, but until a short time ago the sight of an automobile caused great amazement."

Waging War on the Rabbit.

Australia has spent millions in fighting a pest of rabbits, for which a man who turned loose three pairs of rabbits in New South Wales, in 1850, is responsible, and which has made necessary a woven-wire fence 1,200 miles long, shutting off the fertile agricultural regions from the central and eastern semi-desert areas, where rabbits most abound. We have a few rabbits in our own country west of the Rockies. According to the biological survey of the department of agriculture, fully 200,000,000 wild rabbits are annually killed in this country, yet men touring across the continent invariably speak of the number of rabbits seen.

SMART FALL SUIT

Outfit Is Attractive in Navy Velours or Broadcloth.

Severely Plain and Narrow Suit Skirts Now in Order-High-Priced Garments in Demand.

The sketch shows one of the very smart suits developed for fall. As will be noted, the back of this coat is rather long, the center reaching below the knees. The sides slope gradually up, so that the skirt of the coat is approximately 38 inches long at either side front, and a vest in contrasting fabric and color gives a real style touch to the garment. This suit would be very smart made of navy velours or broadcloth, with vest of white cloth, braided in black. Or the suit might be attractively developed in a dark red with vest of white braided in black or with braid matching the color of the suit proper.

The use of vests makes it possible to remodel a last season suit attractively and at little expense.

Suit skirts are nearly all severely plain, and all are comparatively narrow, but the ultra-narrow skirts, measuring a yard and a quarter or less, bulletined for fall and winter wear are really seldom seen, except in garment manufacturers' showrooms.

Manufacturers make their model garments very narrow, but buyers nearly always stipulate that the garments they purchase shall have skirts that are of reasonable walking width, and very few that are less than a yard and a half wide are actually shown in the shops.

In regard to the possibility of a strong vogue for suits during the season the present indication seems to be that very high-grade and high-priced suits will be in great demand, while the medium and cheaper grades (none are really cheap) will not be so popular. The reasoning is that wealthy women will indulge themselves in garments of all kinds-suits as well as dresses for street wear-whereas women who spend less will be more inclined, following the custom of the last two or three seasons, to favor the onepiece dress.

HOME DRESSMAKING HINTS

Dissatisfaction With One's Own Work Results From Desire to Hurry the Job Through.

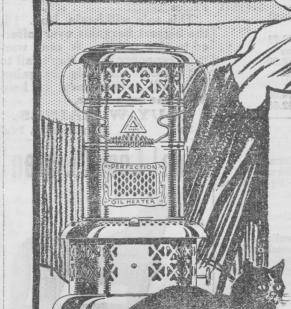

When the modern girl makes a dress for herself she is apt to say that she does not feel comfortable in She is afraid that it does not look right, or that it looks home-made, and she feels that the freshness has all gone from it. In fact, she does not take any pleasure at all in wearing it.

Little does she realize the true reason for this feeling of dissatisfaction. It is simply because a girl in these modern days of hurry and bustle wants to finish a dress too quick-She does not allow herself sufficient time to finish it well. While she is still wrought up over the finishing touches and all on edge from sewing the hooks and eyes on in a hurry, she puts the dress on and then wonders what's the matter.

This is all wrong. A dress should be finished carefully, pressed and put away for a week at least, before it is worn. Then when it is taken out again the difficulties encountered in the making will have been forgotten; the dress will seem entirely new, and will have all the freshness of one coming from a store.

Model of Black Alpaca.

A smart model of black alpaca was made on Russian lines, the peplum extending almost to the skirt hem. The sides of the peplum were slit almost to the waistline and were faced with white cloth. There was a white collar and the bodice opened to the waistline to show a vest of white cloth.

LIVE ON ARTHFICIAL ISLAND

Salt Water Natives Who Wage An Almost Constant War on Solomon Head Hunters.

Built up artificially on reefs or sandy pits, numbers of miniature islands dot the tranquil waters of sheltered coves among the Solomon islands, Gertrude Emerson writes in Asia Magazine. Here live, separate from the head hunters who inhabit the unhealthful mangrove swamps and undulating grasslands of the interior or the lofty spurs running down to the sea, a salt-water people more or less at enmity with the bushmen. Yet these salt water people are as fond of their fruits and vegetables, for which there is no room on their narrow, crowded island, as the junglefolk are of their fish. Truce is declared on regular biweekly market days and on neutral erritory along the coast the women of both peoples meet and do their bargaining. The dwellers on the artificial islands are skillful in all things pertaining to the sea, especially in the building and handling of cances. For upon this slender thread their existence hangs. The elaborately carved, crescent-shaped canoes may always be seen plying busily among the islands. Frequently they are the only sign of human habitation in a world of otherwise empty sea and rooted palms. When the interminable circle of the horizon softens and disappears and the fever-laden evening mists creep in, when the pale waters reflect as in a mirror the burnt-out sky of day, the canoes, silhouetted against the luminous water, slide swiftly to the methodical beating of paddles, accompanied by the low barbaric chanting of darkskinned men.

FROM MINDS' SECRET PLACES

Come the Materials for Dreams Which Sometimes One Finds So Hard to Explain.

You read a book and forget every word of it. Years later a scene from the same book will come into your mind as a dream; you will not recogly on the street and be perfectly un- new conscious of it. But every experience is registered in the mind somewhere, and some day you may see that same person in a dream. Perhaps some of the great store of impressions hidden away in your unconscious mind will come to the surface in a dream in such a way that you will feel that there is something mysterious about it. An old lady once told the writer of a dream she had, citing it as a complete justification of her belief in spirits. While on a shopping tour she mislaid a valuable umbrella, and for the life of her could not remember what she had done with it. It worried her considerably, and that night she had a dream in which she saw herself go into a restaurant, hang up the umbrella, and after eating her lunch go away, forgetting it.-New York World.

Parted Company. "Yes," said the stout man, "I went into the deal with $10,000." "And how did you come out?" "Alone."-Boston Transcript.
