WAR MEMORIALS FOR EACH DISTRICT.

Let the State and Counties Keep Only Official Records.

The legislature at Harrisburg is considering the proposition of legalizing the appropriation of moneys by counties for the erection of war memorials. This is a movement of the wrong sort, and we trust that it will not prevail in Maryland. We heartily approve of the permanent memorial idea, not only because it represents public gratitude and praise for our boys who fought so nobly, and because so doing deserves permanent recording as a historical fact; but we do not want the state, with its customary double-cost standard, to do such work, nor do we want that should properly be done by home people in their own way.

We believe thoroughly in the district plan of providing such memorials. Each district had allotted to it certain sums to raise for Bonds, Red Cross, War Work, and other purposes, and each did its best, or tried to, for objects that did not appeal as closely to them as will the memorial project. Each district furnished its quota of recruits for the army, and in almost all ways the district plan has been the one for supplying the needs of the war. Let us follow it for memorials.

We want these memorials in each district, at some central and public place where they will be of easy access and reference, and constant testimonials of the district having had its part in the great war. We want them "at home" where the boys who are coming out—and the girls too—can see who had part in the conflict, even a century hence. They must not be anywhere else, if we want to carry out the memorial idea in its best and most practical sense.

If the state, and each county, thinks it must "memorialize," let them do so in some inexpensive permanent way, as a matter of record but not through expensive monuments or bronzes, and then turn the cost back on the taxpayers. We have greatly too much of running to "the state" for everything local units want. It may be a quick and easy plan for disposing of such questions, but it destroys home sentiment and improperly creates big public burdens.

If the purely monumental or ornamental idea, properly enters in at all, the districts, even then, should get the benefit. There is too much of the sentiment to centre attractions in the larger places, at public expense. The districts have been building up big institutions for ages, in the cities and county towns, and paying the cost through tax bills. Let us stop it, and get some of the benefits in our home districts, for the taxes we pay.

Fire-hose Fund Soon Stops.

The Committee in charge of the solicitation of funds for the purchase of fire-hose will complete the canvass in time to report to the Fire Company next Monday night. Those who have not as yet "done their bit," are urged not to "hold off" and thus hamper this most necessary project. Any who may want to increase his subscription need feel no hesitation in making such intention known to any member of the Committee by that time. Here is a matter for the good of all, and ought instantly to meet with popular compliance.

Much remains to bring Taneytown's fire-fighting equipment up to even a reasonable standard, and the securing of sufficient hose is the first step in the right direction. The Fire Company has tried, in as easy and unburdensome a manner as any fair-minded person could possibly expect, to meet the condition that faces the homes of the community. Their by no means enviable task should certainly find approving and appropriate backing on the part of the rank and file of the populace.

Sufficient funds have not as yet been forthcoming. Surely there is enough money amongst us to more than amply meet all absolute requirements. The people must give if the Committee is to get, and the Committee trusts the people to do their part freely and fully, so that purchase may be made the beginning of next week. Let's do the job right—and let's do it right now.

The Sale Rush is Over.

This office is getting well through with a big rush of sale work. Last week we advertised 31 sales in full, and this week 30. This composition, and the printing of a large number of posters and cards, has crowded our facilities and compelled the delay of our regular job work business to some extent. We have done work for 65, or more, sales this season, with a few late ones yet to come in, but "the rush" is over and we can promise now to be more prompt with other work, a large quantity of which is on hand, among it an order for 12,000 Post Cards for a Baltimore customer.

Mr. Mills' Condition Unchanged.

The condition of Abner S. Mills, the Gettysburg merchant, who was shot with murderous intent, remains unchanged. Mr. Mills' mind is rational at times, and the attending physicians feel a trifle encouraged. The bullet, however, is evidently lodged in the patient's brain and is liable to cause death at any moment.

INCOME TAX PAYMENTS.

Less Than Two Weeks in Which to Make Returns.

Less than two weeks remain in which to pay the first installment of your income tax. By Saturday, March 15, returns on all taxes, which must be paid by that time, are required to be in the hands of Internal Revenue collectors.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue has instructed its collectors to warn all taxpayers of the approaching limit. The first installment must accompany the return on taxes, it was added.

The Bureau summarizes the situation in this way: Every taxpayer who owes taxes on 1918 income must make payment between now and March 15 on one of the following bases:

- (1) An amount not less than one-fourth of the full amount of taxes; (2) an amount not less than one-fourth of the estimated amount of taxes or (3) the full amount of the estimated amount of taxes.

"Every payment to be made must be accompanied by a return showing the basis upon which the tax is computed. The completed returns, showing all items of income and deductions, should also accompany the first payment in every case possible. A taxpayer who requires more time for completion of his return should make a payment on the estimated tax due and attach to his payment a tentative return, requesting an extension of time for completing his permanent return."

During the week, many have received "Tentative Return" blanks on which to estimate their taxes and pay at least one-fourth of the amount; and also to apply for an extension of time.

Pomona Grange Meeting.

The Pomona Grange, of Carroll County, met in Davis Hall, Westminster, Saturday, March 1. The morning session was taken up with business, of which there was a number of important resolutions.

A resolution against setting the clock forward, was read and passed. A resolution favoring a park as a memorial to our soldiers and sailors—a hospital was out of the question—was read and passed.

After lunch, the biennial election of officers took place. The following were elected: Master, C. F. Beck, Berrett; Overseer, John H. Leister, Westminster; Lecturer, J. K. Smith, Mt. Airy; Steward, Clarence Duvall, Medford; Asst. Steward, Charles Myers, Frizellburg; Chaplain, Mrs. John Leese, Westminster; Treasurer, R. C. Metcalf, Union Bridge; Secretary, R. C. Metcalf, Union Bridge; Gatekeeper, H. R. Fuss, Union Bridge; Ceres, Mrs. C. F. Beck, Berrett; Pomona, Mrs. Geo. A. Leister, Snyderburg; Flora, Mrs. Noah Babylon, Westminster; Lady Asst. Steward, Miss Murrell Leister, Snyderburg; Geo. A. Leister, Snyderburg, was re-elected as a member of the Executive Committee.

B. F. Bomberger, Assistant Director and Specialist from Md. State College, gave a very interesting and timely talk on organization.

Mr. Rolston, of Laurel, Prince George's county, discussed the results of horse racing as it is now being conducted in Maryland, and particularly in Prince George's county.

Robert Gist, Frank Penby and B. F. Stansbury were appointed as members at large to the Advisory Council.

Geo. A. Leister installed the newly elected officers. Then a resolution backing the hospital project as a suitable memorial to our brave soldiers and sailors, was read and adopted.

Returning the "Doughboys."

War Department records indicate that at the end of February, 1,600,000 "doughboys" were still overseas. In November 25,000 were brought home; in December, 68,000; in January, 114,000; in February, 160,000. These results have been obtained notwithstanding the fact that the Allies upon the signing of the armistice were compelled to withdraw their troop ships from American service to take care of repatriation problems at home. A number of cargo ships are being converted for transporting troops. American ships in June developed a maximum carrying capacity of 116,000 troops a month; this will shortly be increased, it is said, to 200,000.

Allied ships carried 56 per cent. of America's fighting forces to Europe. Enough of these ships and neutral transports have been retained to bring home 50,000 men a month, and with these vessels, together with the American army fleet and the German liners which have been taken over, it may not now be many months before most of the "doughboys" will have been returned to their homes.

To hasten the return of the khaki-clad troops from overseas the War Department according to an official communication just received by the War Loan Organization of the Fifth Federal Reserve District, has taken over eight large German liners, now in European ports. The ships are being fitted out and will have a capacity of from 50,000 to 60,000 men a month. Embarkation of American troops from England and France since the armistice was signed last November are put at 400,000 to March 1. Embarkations this month will reach the 200,000 mark and may go as high as 225,000. In April an effort will be made to raise the figure to 250,000. Throughout the summer a monthly embarkation of not less than 300,000 is expected.

CONGRESS AND PRESIDENT CLASH

Important Bills Fail. No Extra Session Until President Returns.

The addresses of Senators Lodge and Knox showing up the dangers contained in the draft of the Constitution of the League of Nations, have had more effect, perhaps, on public opinion both at home and in Europe, than any of the others delivered, as neither of these addresses can be disposed of as being partisan efforts, aimed solely at discrediting President Wilson. Senator Lodge carefully dissected the forms of expression used in the document showing unquestionably how their meaning is easily capable of varying constructions, liable to cause endless contention and misunderstanding.

He made it very clear that the issue of the League is too big to be made a narrow political question, and that the country is not opposing the League, but insists that the form of it is so vital that it should not be entered into without the fullest discussion and thought. He said: "I will follow any man and vote for any measure, which, in my honest opinion will make for the maintenance of the world's peace. I will follow no man and vote for no measure, which, however well intended, seem in my best judgment to lead to dissensions rather than to harmony among the nations, or to injure, peril or injustice my country."

"The terms of the League must be so plain and so explicit that no man can misunderstand them. There is hardly a clause in this draft about the interpretation of which men do not differ. As it stands there is serious danger that the very nations which sign it will quarrel over the meaning of the various articles before a twelvemonth has passed. The explanation or interpretation of any of these doubtful passages is not sufficient if made by one man, whether that man be the President of the United States or any one else. These questions and doubts must be removed by the instrument itself."

The address of Senator Root was much along the same line, being perhaps even more specific as to the sections objected to, and suggesting changes in wording. These two addresses have been taken up carefully, both in London and Paris, as they are regarded there as representing the attitude of the new Senate that will finally pass on the League proposition, and will have more weight than President Wilson's opinion, as it is known very well there that the election, last Fall, apparently placed confidence in the Republican party as being more truly representative of American sentiment than the President.

Both parties are shouldering the blame for incomplete legislation on the other, and the Republicans insist that the election of a Republican House and Senate means that the country wants the Republicans to take charge of, and be responsible for, legislation, and that this fact alone justified them in trying to compel the President to call an extra session at once. The President, however, emphatically refused, even though the business of the country may suffer, as he is determined not to have an antagonistic Congress in session while he is in France.

Only two important bills passed during the end of the session; the Victory Loan bill, and the Billion Dollar wheat guarantee bill. Among those that failed of passage were the $750,000,000 railroad guarantee appropriation; the general deficiency bill aggregating $92,000,000; the $1,215,000,000 army appropriation bill; the $750,000,000 Naval appropriation measure, and the sundry civil bill carrying a total of $850,000,000; agricultural bill carrying $27,000,000; the District of Columbia bill amounting to $14,000,000, and various bills of minor importance.

The President scored Congress for wilfully trying to embarrass his administration, by trying to force an extra session, and in refusing to pass these measures. He said: "It is plainly my duty to attend the Peace Conference in Paris. It is also my duty to be in close touch with the public business during a session of Congress. It is not in the interest of the right conduct of public affairs that I should call the Congress in special session, while it is impossible for me to be in Washington because of a more pressing duty elsewhere." His opponents reply that this hardly corresponds with the fact that he did go away and leave Congress take care of itself for over two months, and before doing so explained that his absence would not interfere with the transaction of public business.

The defeated measures could likely have been passed had they not been held back in committee until late in the session; and they could have been passed in a short time had Congress been in the mood for passing anything that was handed in, ready-made, by the departments and committees, without discussion and investigation, and in refraining from taking up any time in the discussion of the League of Nations Constitution.

Public sentiment, as expressed by the newspapers, over the merits of the two sides to the argument as to which is most at fault varies greatly. The truth likely lies between the two extremes—that the fault is pretty equally divided, and that both are straining to evade the responsibility for their own stubbornness. Party lines, even are broken over the question, and the general public will largely have to take whichever side it thinks nearest right.

THE LOAN MUST SUCCEED.

Higher Patriotism Must Float Liberty Loan and Finish Up the War.

"It will take patriotism, but a higher type of patriotism than was required in the delirium of way to float the Fifth Liberty Loan," says Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury. Mr. Glass refused to believe that this one remaining and most important piece of war work should be dealt with as a cold-blooded proposition only—merely as an investment. On the other hand, he believes that the spirit of the American nation will take care of the Fifth Liberty Loan as it did the four preceding loans.

Answering the question as to what shall be the basis of the appeal of the approaching loan whether patriotism or its investment feature, Mr. Glass says: "It is inconceivable folly to suppose that this Government or any other Government may, under the circumstances, float a bond issue of $6,000,000,000 without appealing to the spirit and patriotism of the American people, which has so superbly asserted itself in the exigencies we have met. We have a right to invoke the patriotism of the people, and today it takes a higher type of patriotism to serve the nation than was required in the delirium of war. Upon this I shall confidently rely and I here predict that the response will in no measure disappoint the expectation of those who set a high estimate upon the fine spirit of the American nation."

Daylight Saving Fraud, March 30th.

As Congress adjourned without repealing the "daylight saving" law, it will go in force again, at midnight, March 30, when the clocks are to be turned forward one hour. Opposition to the measure has come largely from farmers and others living in the country, while city and manufacturing interests prefer the make-believe plan of trying to circumvent the movements of the Sun by changing the clock.

Calendars for 1920.

Calendars for 1920 are considerably higher in price than last year, but we have a lot of samples representing "special lots" that can be had, while they last, at practically the prices of last year. If interested in calendar advertising, merchants and others are advised to call at our office and see whether they can not be supplied from the "specials."

LIFE COST OF THE WAR.

Total Deaths in U. S. Army During War, 107,444.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Deaths during the war in the American Expeditionary Force and among troops in the United States from all causes, the War Department announced today, numbered 107,444.

In the expeditionary forces the total was 72,951. Of these, 20,829 resulted from disease, 48,768 from injuries received in battle and 3,354 from all other causes.

Deaths from disease among the troops in the United States totaled 32,737, and from other causes 1,756, giving a total for the troops in this country of 34,493.

The figures for the American Expeditionary Force cover the period from April 1, 1917, to February 16, 1919; those for the troops in the United States from April 1, 1917, to February 14, 1919.

The figures show that the total deaths from disease exceeded the total casualties by more than 5,000.

The Detour Bank.

The Detour Bank organized on Feb. 26, by electing Dr. Chas. H. Diller, president; Jesse P. Weybright, vice-president, and E. L. Warner, Secretary, who with the following, compose the Board of Directors: M. Floyd Wiley, Peter D. Koons, David B. Reifsnider, Edwin H. Sharetts, Wm. J. Stonesifer, Harvey E. Shorb, Thomas J. Baumgardner, Maurice J. Wilhilde, M. O. Lawyer and Geo. U. Koons.

The former store property of the late G. W. Went has been secured, and will be properly fitted up. A complete equipment of Bank furniture has been purchased in Baltimore, all up-to-date, and the Bank expects to be open for business about April 1. E. Lee Erb, of Westminster, has been secured as Cashier.

The Editor's Easy Job.

Our omission of the Sale Register, last week, was an emergency measure, forced at the last minute. Something had to be left out, for want of space, and the Sale Register and a column of Soldiers' letters were set aside. Judging from the number of "kicks," we had better have left out letters from correspondents, other advertising, or more Soldiers' letters, when there would have been "kicks" from other sources, which illustrates the nice easy job of being an editor, trying to satisfy everybody, when you can't squeeze the type, and the paper won't stretch.

NEGRO TROOPS MADE HISTORY.

Their Bravery Won in the Last Big German Offensive.

Very little has been said or written of the Negro's part in bringing about the end of the war, but a real thrill went through the War Savings Convention at Carnegie Hall on February 21st, when Col. Wm. Hayward, of the 369th U. S. Inf., the regiment of fighters from the negro population, known as the 15th New York, told of the scrap put up by his boys.

The majority of the enlisted men are from Harlem, and Col. Hayward said that the way those boys conducted themselves in the last days of the war forms a part of great history which will be written up some day.

"In talking to Justice Hughes a few days ago, I was astonished to find out that the people of this country did not know what happened in that last big German offensive on the 15th of July," he said. "You see, the Germans had been re-inforced by released prisoners from Russia so that they had their maximum forces. They had broken through the British and it was pretty near disaster. This was east of Rheims. The Germans had also torn through the French at Montdidier, gone through thirty or forty miles."

Col. Hayward then explained the old Fifteenth had been turned over to Gen. Gouraud, commander of the 4th French Army, and that his men captured some Germans on the night of July 14, thus learning that the expected attack would be launched upon their front. During the 191 days that the regiment was in the trenches, he said, there were many weeks when there was nothing between the German army and Paris but his regiment. "But that fair enough, because there was nothing between us and Berlin except the German army."

"When the French knew this battle was coming," he continued, "their forces did not remain a thin blue line. It seemed that all the soldiers and all the cannon in the world crawled over and took possession back of us."

"Gen. Gouraud saved the world for civilization, but he took a chance, the greatest chance any soldier ever took in the world. He took his troops out of the front line trenches over a front of fifty kilometers. He abandoned them when he was sure the attack was coming."

"And when this attack occurred he had the 15th New York on one end of the fifty kilo line, and the old 69th New York, in the Rainbow Division, on the other hand. And so, when the German fire fell on these front line trenches for five hours and twenty-five minutes, they fell on empty trenches, except for a few patrols left in reinforced trenches with signal rockets, gas shells and a few machine guns. Practically all of these came back to us in the morning."

"When the hour for the German infantry attack came these patrols left off gas bombs and signal rockets and our artillery let loose on the massed Germans. The Germans were literally smashed and never got through to our second line."

"But on the other end they did get through. They crashed into the Rainbow Division, and the 69th met them hand to hand in some of the most terrible fighting of the war—fighting fit for that terrible battle, the battle that was the turning point of the war."

Delay in Handling Legislation.

In view of the fact that numerous important appropriation bills failed of passage, it will be enlightening to know the exact facts relative to their introduction in the Senate.

The Army appropriation bill was reported in the House, on Feb. 10, about two and a half months after Congress met, and in the Senate on Feb. 25, only seven days before adjournment.

The Naval appropriation bill was not reported in the House until Feb. 1, and in the Senate not until six days before adjournment.

The Agricultural appropriation bill was sent to the Senate Committee on Feb. 3, and was reported in the Senate about ten days before adjournment.

The fortifications bill was reported in the Senate on Feb. 22.

The urgency deficiency bill was reported to the Senate Feb. 1, and was yet in Conference Committee until a day or two before adjournment.

The general deficiency bill, the railroad bill, the bond bill, and other bills involving the expenditure of billions of dollars were not given to the Senate until the few last days of the session.

These bills each carried many millions of dollars, and in the aggregate between two and three billions.

In the "deficiency" appropriation bill was an item of $5,000,000 for the expenses of the President and party for his trips to France, and for the expenses of the American delegates to the Peace Conference. On the face of it, it appears that we have gone a great way from "Jeffersonian simplicity" in such matters.

County Agent Fuller, will conduct a pruning demonstration, Monday afternoon, at J. E. Stoner's home, Medford; Tuesday morning at H. R. Fuss's, Union Bridge; and Tuesday afternoon at W. J. Ebbert's, Union Bridge.

One of the largest N. Y. firms, with which this office has frequent dealings, notified us this week that no receipts for payment of bills will be made hereafter—our cancelled check is to be receipt for payment.

THE LOCUST ARMY COMING THIS SUMMER.

Great Swarms are Predicted in May and June.

Great swarms of the 17-year locust will infest the United States in late May and early June this year, which is expected by scientists to be one of the worst "locust years" on record. Experts of the Department of Agriculture, however, see nothing alarming in the prospect.

Once regarded superstitiously as a harbinger of disaster, the periodical cicada, popularly known as the 17-year locust, because it comes at long intervals, is seen now to be no more than an ordinary non-poisonous insect pest, which can do little damage if proper precautions are taken. The chief injury inflicted by the insect consists almost wholly in chiseling grooves in the branches of trees for depositing eggs. Young fruit trees sometimes are killed, but the damage generally seems greater than it actually is, according to the entomologists, and popular alarm is out of proportion to the real danger.

Defer putting out young fruit trees until next year; postpone budding operations; do no pruning this Spring.

When the insects begin coming out, hand pick them from young trees or spray them with pyrethrum powder, kerosene emulsions, or a solution of carbolic acid or acetic acid.

Later, when the insects are ready to begin laying, spray young fruit trees with whitewash.

The Department of Agriculture has kept close check for many years of all the broods of locusts and can forecast accurately when and where the pests will appear. Large regions will be affected this year where one brood appeared 17 years ago, and in other regions which suffered 13 years ago, the States including Alabama, District of Columbia, Delaware, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Vermont, Virginia, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Belief that the 1919 brood will be exceptionally large is based on the fact that the 17-year brood coming out this year is brood 10, perhaps the largest of the 17-year brood, and that brood 18 of the 13-year family comes out at the same time. The year 1868 was the greatest locust year in history, when brood 19, the largest of the 13-year family, appeared in conjunction with brood 10 of the 17-year family.

It is probable that genial Mr. Taft never had much idea of being called upon to run again for the Presidency. If he had, he can rest assured, now, that the "call" will not materialize, as his almost complete acceptance of the League of Nations Constitution, in its tentative form, has caused many of his half-way admirers to scurry back into the woods, and some of his half-way enemies to come out the whole way. Mr. Taft, as a possibility, is out of the running.

The Republicans in the House have downed Mr. Mann for the Speakership, and united on Mr. Gillett, which immensely pleases the so-called "progressive" element, as Mr. Mann has been identified as "reactionary," and the red rag signal to the western members, especially. Now, if Senator Penrose can be as happily eliminated in the Senate, as chairman of the Finance Committee, the cup of the progressives will be full, and "harmony" will prevail in the ranks of the G. O. P.

There are several versions as to who represents the American people—who speaks for them in the Peace League matter—and cocksure opinions on the question are largely pure bunk. The American people are not accustomed to having their opinions made, and handed to them. The war is over, now, and it will be well for order-givers to realize it; hereafter, the A. P. will attend more to having their own opinions, and observing less orders. The League of Nations proposition represents a case in point—we want to look into it for ourselves, and not take it ready-made, off-hand.

Bad Temper in Washington.

It is unfortunate that President Wilson is not more personally popular, both in his home camp and that of the enemy. He has apparently never cared much to make friends of members of Congress, and extremists say he has actually gone out of his way to indicate dislike for Congressional associations and advice; and as proof of this, it is asserted that no former occupant of the White House ever had so few Congressional visitors.

This aloofness has been accentuated, in his handling of the League of Nations proposition, and the manner of his going to France. It is almost generally conceded that he made a tremendous mistake in not conferring with members of the Senate, of both parties, before his leaving for France, at least to the limited extent that he seems willing to confer now, for so doing would have made the present situation much easier, and with a better all-around feeling. Whether so intended, or not, his course appears to have been that of a "lone hand" by choice.

There is now, as always, a certain amount of partisanship being played—one side trying to put the other "in a hole"—but it is an open secret that Mr. Wilson has not even popularized himself with the leaders of his own party, but their support is largely party support, and not an enthusiastic support of the President, while in some instances his party leaders are open in their hostility, and in others their support is of the passive degree.

As the next House will be Republican, and the Senate practically a tie, the relations between the President and the new Congress promises to be still more strained. If, with a good working majority in both branches, he could not get legislation through easily, he will be the less likely to do so with the opposition in power, and a Presidential election coming next year. There is, after all, great strength in personal popularity and manner, even for the President of the United States, for lack of enthusiasm for the leader, inevitably means even lack of party enthusiasm.

In the present status of delayed legislation, it will be difficult for the country to rightly determine who is to blame—the President, or the obstructive tactics of the minority party. Usually, the party in power, having the power, is held responsible for legislation, good or bad; and ordinarily, when one Congress fails to finish its work, an extra session is soon called; but at this particular time, the President is going to France again, and says he will not call an extra session until he returns—if even then—and places the blame for lack of legislation on the Republicans; while the latter are not worrying, but say the President had the majority back of him, and should have put things through.

As the situation is, it looks as though the country may be going to suffer because of an exhibition of bad temper on both sides, a situation that is not at all conducive to putting through a plan for the maintenance of the world's peace, when this country should be, as nearly as possible, of one mind, all working together with National spirit.

Paying Our War Bill.

When we economize in the use of revenue taxed articles, do we save money, in the end? We are quite apt to resist the tax, by dodging the purchase of taxed articles, but our so doing simply puts off—draws out in length of time—the payment of the war debt which this country must pay. At most our refusal to buy the revenue taxed articles may only put on to the expense account of others, more of the war bill, but in all probability we will get caught, in some way, and our present economies will but lengthen the time of the payment of our share.

Whether the present law lasts three or four, or more years, depends entirely on how much revenue the law yields. The probability is that we will have war taxes for twenty-five years, especially if Congress keeps on shoveling out the millions in increased appropriations and higher salaries. So, it is very poor satisfaction, after all, for us to say that we will dodge the purchase of the taxed articles, for this will not pay the debt—the debt that we must pay, and the longer we put it off the more interest we will be obliged to pay.

If by some earthquake, or other terrible noise, we could reach the attention of Congress and our spending officialdom, and compel them to practice decent economy with our government's finances, the outlook might be figured as having an end to excessive taxes; but the only remedy officialdom seems to know for any trouble of the times, is spending more money, then borrowing to pay the bills. Washington needs a cleaning-up of unnecessary clerks and chair-warmers, and Congress should be told, by votes, that lavish money appropriating must stop.

Our war expenses, necessary and unnecessary have been tremendous. Just how much, or what percentage of the aggregate, represents actual waste—squandering—perhaps will never be known. The country has been very tolerant; in fact, it could not easily be otherwise, considering the way it has had its opinions cut out—its orders—very much as a school teacher rules his pupils, or a physician gives his patients doses they know nothing about the make-up of; but this "ordering" time must have an end—we are still "Missouri-ans"—and future little bills for our payment must have more attention.

This war bill, however, must be paid, and as cheerfully and quickly as possible. There is no use in allowably dodging, and less use in criminally evading, our honest share. If we can only have reasonable assurance that the bill is not going to get any bigger, in the future, than it honestly ought to be, then all ought to go at it with as good grace as possible, and pay it off. But, we need, and ought to demand, this assurance.

Status of Public School Teaching.

The country child today is at a distinct disadvantage educationally as compared with the city child. Not only are his teachers immature, transient and untrained, but his term of schooling in the average of cases is from one to three months shorter each year and four too to three years shorter in its entirety. Attendance laws are often laxly enforced or not enforced at all. The expert supervision, which could do something to offset the immaturity and lack of training upon the part of the teachers, is practically non-existent. The course of study is ill-adapted to the needs of rural life.

The teaching population is transient and unstable. For the overwhelming majority of teachers what should be a serious and permanent profession becomes a temporary and casual occupation. Most of the protests against inadequate rewards are based on the injustice to the individual teacher that these meager rewards involve. But the injustice to the teacher, serious as it is when one considers the devotion and sacrifice of many of those who remain permanently in the service, bears no comparison to the injustice that children of the people suffer because so few of these teachers remain and because so many who could be of the largest usefulness to the public in this important work have never even been encouraged to look upon teaching as a worthy or even a recognized career. Even the fact of individual injustice, whether to teachers or children, is insignificant when one considers how seriously this condition will hamper and handicap the nation in its future development.

It is futile to speak of our public schools as the bulwark of American democracy when tens of thousands of the teachers in these schools are only sixteen, seventeen, eighteen or nineteen years old; when more than one hundred thousand are less than twenty-two years old; when more than a quarter of a million have not passed the age of twenty-five.—From "A National Program for Education," National Education Association.

The Republican Candidate for Governor.

The Sykesville Herald, last week, made some comments on the situation in the Republican party, that coincide with the views held by The Record, relative to a nominee for Governor, especially as they refer to the qualifications of the two men mentioned, both of whom The Record holds in highest esteem.

"The one best bet for the Republicans would be to drop all factional candidates and come to Carroll county for their man. The man who would appeal to the Republican masses with more force than any other individual today is Speaker Herbert R. Wooden. And he would make a real Governor; because he is a real man. He gave evidence of the stuff of which he is made, while Speaker of the House. He is able, clean and honest and thoroughly familiar with State needs and State affairs. But the organization does not want a man like Wooden, for the reason that he would be Governor, if elected. He would be no man's tool, no organization servant. He would represent the people and every man would have a square deal.

Another "best bet" for the Republicans would be former Governor Phillips Lee Goldsborough. The latter proved himself a real patriot and a man of unusual resources and ability in the various war activities in which he was engaged, and he gave the whole-hearted support he gave the Government during the war. He put his Americanism above his politics, and by his conduct he has won a place in the popular heart that would prove of tremendous value, should he come before the people again as a candidate for public office. For the same reasons that apply to Herbert R. Wooden, the dominating element in the party does not want him. Consequently, by engendering factional strife within the party, the Republicans are likely to throw away their chances of electing the next Governor."

The Income Tax Returns.

Many people find that the making of an income tax return is a bothersome matter consuming much time. They get grouchy about it. The law might be made much clearer. Yet it is hard to draw up in advance any statement that will settle the infinite number of questions that will arise. Each case involving doubtful points must be analyzed by itself.

If one's return is at all complicated, and if there is an income tax deputy easily accessible, it is the better policy to "pass the buck" over to him, tell him the facts, and let him make the return.

It is believed that many people who should have a taxable income are not reporting it. Others don't dare ignore the law altogether, but they minimize their gains and exaggerate their losses, give themselves the benefit of every doubt. As a whole their return is more or less dishonest. There are many people who would do the square thing in any business transaction with their neighbors, but who do not hesitate to cheat the government.

The United States as a whole is generous in its dealings with the people. The government is the expression of those great principles of human freedom and opportunity that make America the best place to live on earth. If you refuse to pay your honest share of the cost of running the government that gives such great blessings, you prove yourself an unworthy citizen and foul your own nest.

The man who is yellow in a small way in his dealings with the government, is likely to find the crooked tendency creeping into his other human relations. Anyone who makes a sincere and fair tax return has the satisfaction of feeling that he has contributed his due share to the maintenance of the great American principles, and that he is doing his part to support the superb institutions for which America stands.—Frederick News.

THIS TELLS HOW TO FIGURE INCOME TAX

Squarely Up to Every Individual to Get Busy by March 15 or Suffer Penalty.

"Don't wait until the final due date, March 15th, for paying your Income Tax and making your return. Avoid the last minute rush. Any person can figure out his liability today as well as he can next week, and if there is any point on which he needs advice he can now get in touch with a Revenue man."

This word of advice is from Joshua W. Miles, Collector of Internal Revenue, Baltimore, who is collecting the Income Tax in Maryland and Delaware. Collector Miles is giving without charge every aid of his office and his enlarged field force to help the people get their payments and their returns in by March 15th.

But the Income Tax men will not pull your door-bell or your coat-tails, according to the Collector's announcement. It is squarely up to every individual to figure out his own case and to get busy if he comes within the scope of the new Revenue law.

Did You Earn This Much?

Every unmarried person who received income averaging $19.25 a week during 1918 and every married couple who jointly received income averaging $38.50 a week should secure at once from the nearest Deputy Collector or the nearest bank a blank Form 1040 A. That form contains the information he will need to enable him to figure his correct net income and any tax that he owes the Government.

The law requires that every unmarried person who had a net income of $1,000 or over and every married person whose net income was $2,000 or over (including the income of husband or wife and the earnings of minor children, if any) must make a return on or before March 15th. And this requirement does not hinge on whether the person owes a tax.

Taxable Income.

An individual must include under gross income all gains, profits and income derived from salaries, wages or compensation for personal service of whatever kind and in whatever form paid or from professions, vocations, business, sales or dealings in property of all kinds, interest, rent, dividends or profits derived from any source whatever. Very few items of income are exempt.

Deductions include ordinary and necessary business expenses, interest paid or accrued on indebtedness, taxes of all kinds except Federal income and excess profits taxes and assessments for local benefits, losses actually sustained, debts ascertained to be worthless and depreciation on buildings, machinery, fixtures, etc., used in business. A further deduction is allowed for contributions to corporations operated for religious, charitable, scientific or educational purposes or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals to an amount not exceeding 15 per cent of the taxpayer's net income as computed without the benefit of the contribution deduction.

The taxpayer is not allowed to deduct any personal, living or family expense, any amount spent for improving property or making good its exhaustion for which an allowance is claimed under depreciation.

Figuring the Tax.

Before figuring the normal tax the dividends are deducted as credits from net income, together with the personal exemption. As in previous years, dividends of domestic corporations are exempt from normal tax when received by the stockholder.

The normal tax rates for citizens and residents are as follows: On the first $4,000 of net income in excess of the credits the rate is 6 per cent; on any further taxable income the rate is 12 per cent.

The surtax rates apply to net income of each individual in excess of $5,000. The personal exemption and the dividends are not deductible before computing surtax. In the case of returns by husband and wife, the net income of each is considered separately in computing any surtax that may be due. Form 1040 should be used for making returns of net income exceeding $5,000, and the instructions on that form will show how to figure the surtax.

Business House Returns.

Employers and others who paid wages, salaries, rents, interest or similar determinable gains in an amount of $1,000 or over during 1918 to any person must file an information return with the Government. Blanks may be secured from the Collector.

Every partnership must file a return showing its income and deductions and the name and address of each partner, with his share of the profits or losses during the past year. Personal service corporations will file similar information for 1918.

Letters From "Our Boys."

We will be glad to publish letters, or parts of letters, from "our boys, over there," as they are bound to be very interesting to all. We will omit all purely personal references from letters, as these are not intended, nor proper, for publication.—Ed. Record.

Under date of Jan. 30th., Lloyd L. Ridinger, Co. H., 145th Inf., A. E. F., gives the following brief history of the 37th Division:

Trained at Camp Sheridan, Ala., and Camp Lee, Va.

June 13th., 1918—Boarded the Leviathan at Hoboken.

June 22—Arrived at Brest, France; division mobilized at Boarmount.

July 21—Took over trenches held by French, over 14 miles front, in the Vosges, in Alsace-Lorraine, and saw first action.

Sept. 15—Commended by French officers for splendid work. Division moved to Recicourt, near Verdun.

Sept. 25—Moved into front lines in Mt. Hermont, to prepare for great drive that resulted in capture of Montfaucon and other Hun strong-points in the Argonne, where some of the heaviest fighting of the war took place, and in which the Division covered with glory.

Sept. 26—At 5:30 A. M., after intense barrage, we went over the top and advanced steadily for 24 hours.

Sept. 27—Montfaucon captured by the 37th.

Sept. 28—Ivory captured.

Sept. 29 and 30—We plunged steadily ahead with stiff resistance, and had Cierges, and gone beyond it, when we were relieved, after five days of tremendous fighting, and sent back to Recicourt to rest up.

Oct. 3—Division moved to Pagny-sur-Meuse. Division was given a short rest, and then sent into the trenches in St. Mihiel sector, near Mt. Sect. After brief activity here, was moved back to Pagny-sur-Meuse to get ready for greater activity.

Oct. 21—Division left Pagny-sur-Meuse for Belgium, to aid in the final liberation of that martyred nation.

Entrained at Ypres and went forward on foot to Lechtelvelde, Meulbeke and Lanterghem.

Oct. 31—At 5:30, went over the top and over the Lys river. Made first objective in two hours and the third in the afternoon.

Nov. 1—Reached the Escaut, or Schelde river.

Nov. 2—Crossed Schelde and dug in opposite Heurne, near Audenarde, where we had a brief rest and were relieved. Marched 30 kilometers to Thieldt for rest.

Nov. 9—Marched to Syngem, on banks of Escaut river, where engineers began a bridgehead.

Nov. 10—At 5:30, went over the top again, and made good progress.

Nov. 11—Renewed advance was set for 10 A. M., and as the boys were crouched in their trenches, awaiting the word to go over, the message came, telling of the suspension of the fighting at 11 A. M.

The Division, after marching in triumphal procession through Brussels, took up its headquarters at Oestrusbeke, Belgium, and was later reported on the Belgian coast. I have been with the Division through it all. On Feb. 12th, we received official notification that our Division—the 37th—will hike for two days to St. Mazaire, a port, and embark for U. S. A., between March 1st and 15th.

Mr. and Mrs. Burn Hively received the following letter from Corp. Sterling E. Hively, Co. M., U. S. 313th Inf., 79th Div., Amer. E. F., A. P. O. 771:

Jan. 24, 1919.

Dear Aunt and Uncle:

Just a few lines tonight, as there is nothing here to do. Well, I am still here at the same place. I think the reason is that no more troops are coming to this place and we are going to stay the month out. I hope when I return to my Co., I will find them at a seaport, bound for home, as I am so anxious to come, I can scarcely wait.

The report is that we are coming the middle of February, with President Wilson, as our Division is the Liberty Division, and there is quite a number of boys here from his own State, New Jersey, and also a number from Virginia, where his wife is from.

I am well again. I thought for a few days that I would never see home, as I thought I had the flu, but I got some medicine and doctored myself, so I succeeded in breaking it up. There has quite a number died here with it. I felt so sorry for them, after going through with all the battles, and then must die so far away from home. That is what preys on my mind. I want to be buried in the good old U. S. A., near my mother's grave, and I will say, that while in battle, I never thought I would get back, as the awful sights I saw were enough to drive one crazy.

All I did was trust to the One on high, and go ahead. I knew if one of those large shells ever hit me, I would be no more. I saw some blown into small pieces, and some of them happened to be comrades in my Company. I tell you all, it does get on my nerves, when I think of it. I saw things and endured things I can never forget.

Oh! how often I think of brother Bill, and mourn his loss. I know it is not right, but I can't help it. I know I have been hardened to a certain extent, due to the sights I have seen, but he is on my mind so much. I can see him as he said "good-bye," at Meade. I tried to cheer him by telling him it would all be over till we got over. I am very glad he did not have to experience what I did, as I know each and every one was in misery and gloom as we went along, not knowing how long it would last.

I knew boys that were mighty rough at Meade, and they were just like little children; you know there comes a time when our feathers must fall. Well, can say on my return I am very well satisfied to lead the right kind of a life, if possible. I am sort of blue over things that have passed, and so many of those slackers did nothing, and now we read in the papers that a large number of them has been released—the conscientious objectors—but I feel proud on what I did for U. S. Freedom, and the new Democracy for the world, which now makes a League of Nations, and hope that none of the growing generation ever have like it.

The boys in the A. E. F. that won the war were the "doughboys" such as me, the engineers, artillery and signal corps; the rest were of no account over here. I can tell lots that was not right, but we are not allowed. It is all over, but you bet we have not forgotten some of the things that happened. I got in the hardest branch of the service, and now it is all over I want to be released, as I want to come back to you, as I think I owe you something for my raising. Sometimes I got real home sick, as I think I could cheer up a little at home. Will close with love to all my friends. Your boy,

STERLING HIVELY.

Editor The Carroll Record:—

It has been my good luck to see quite a number of copies of your paper, but I notice very little is mentioned about the boys in the 325th Infantry.

It has been my good fortune to have in my Company, which is Headquarters Co. of the 325th Infantry, such fine men as (Whiskey and Soda) this being the nicknames for Mechanic Mark E. Wisotzky and LeRoy Schaffer, Francis E. Schaum and Raymond Yingling.

It may interest some of the people at home to know why we call Wisotzky and Schaffer "Whiskey and Soda." Shortly after their arrival at Camp Gordon, Ga., Serg't Francis E. Schaum was detailed as motorcycle orderly, and naturally other men had to be used as messengers, or couriers; so Serg't Schaum recommended Pvt. LeRoy Schaffer; after a few days at Regimental Headquarters Schaffer was sent to the hospital with measles, and Serg't Schaum then recommended Wisotzky to take Schaffer's place. When Mark reported to me, as Regimental Adjutant, I could not quite catch his name, so I began calling him "Whiskey," and soon every one in the Regiment knew him by that name. When Schaffer returned from the hospital he was also detailed as orderly at Regimental headquarters, and from that time until the present Schaffer and Wisotzky have been inseparable, and when you see one you see the other.

Since arriving in France these two boys have been runners under Serg't Schaum, and any one who has been over here knows what it means to be a runner in times of a battle. These men are called runners because when all other means of communication fail, it falls on the runners to carry messages from the Commanding officer to the front line troops, and often it is necessary for them to go through artillery barrages and machine gun barrages. The night is never too dark, the dangers never too great; they go regardless of personal danger, knowing the life and fate of their comrades depend on their getting their messages through.

It was a great pleasure to have been permitted to command such fine men in this great war as "old Maryland" has sent forth, and my hat is off to the boys from Carroll County and that vicinity.

After the war has finally been settled, it would be considered an honor and pleasure to come and locate in a territory that produces such men as these loyal, faithful, and every inch a true American soldier.

Yours Very Truly,
M. H. PATTEN, Capt. Inf.

P. S.—When the boys come home, make them tell you all about "Nancy" Tout and ask Whiskey about making doughnuts.

Forgot What He Needed.

From the Republican, Mt. Gilead, Ohio: The editor had an interesting experience some time ago, when a young gentleman came to this office and asked for a copy of the Morrow County Republican. He scrutinized it carefully when a copy was handed him, and then said: "Now I know!" "What is it you are looking for," we inquired. "My wife sent me after a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and I forgot the name. I went to several stores and the clerks named over everything in the line on the shelf except 'Chamberlain's.' I'll try again, I'll never go home without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy."

The Republican would suggest to the proprietors of stores, that they post their clerks, and never let them substitute. Customers lose faith in stores where substituting is permitted, to say nothing of the injustice to makers of good goods and the disappointment of customers.

In Loving Remembrance of JOSEPH MYERS, who died Feb. 25th., 1919, aged 72 years, 7 months, 16 days.

My dear husband thou hast gone to rest. No more thy look of love I will see. Those eyes that now are closed in death, I will think of till my last.

A precious father from us is gone. A voice we loved is stilled. A place is vacant in our homes, which never can be filled.

Father, thy gentle voice now is hushed. Thy warm true heart is still. And on thy aged and innocent brow, is resting death's cold chill.

We have kissed thy forehead with love. We have kissed thy lovely brow. And in our aching hearts we know, we have no father now.

In sad, but loving remembrance of our dear son, RALPH PAUL HULL, who departed this life, March 4, 1918, aged 7 years, 4 months and 16 days.

Gone, but not forgotten. The days have been long since you left us, dear son. But the nights are lonely and drear; But our home would be full of life and light if you were only here.

Your well remembered footsteps, We are listening for in vain. And our eyes grow dim with watching. And our hearts sad with pain.

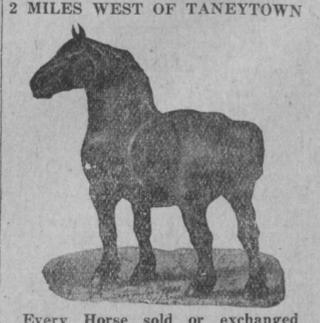

He's gone, but was so young and fair. He slumbers sweet and knows no care. His heart was true; his life so young; Yet not our will, but God's is done.

Thy gentle voice now is hushed; Thy warm true heart is still; And on thy innocent brow, is resting death's cold chill.

Thy hands are clasped upon thy breast; We have kissed thy lovely brow. And in our aching hearts we know, we have no brother now.

Only a line, dear Ralph, But its from sister's aching hearts, That only tell the sorrow. Of how hard it was to part.

It is sweet to know we will meet again. Where parting is no more; And that the one we loved so dearly, Has only gone before.

Every Horse sold or exchanged must be as represented, or your money refunded. I will also receive a Car Load of Virginia Horses, Friday, April 4. Among them will be several good Brood Mares and Single-line Leaders.

LISTEN TO FACTS
There is a Difference
 There is a difference in people. There is a difference in horses. There is a difference in Automobiles, even down to the tires, springs and chassis as well as the engine and everything it takes to make an Automobile. There is a big difference in a big, flexible Four Cylinder engine, and a little, weak four cylinder engine. There is a difference in a big Six Cylinder motor and a little six cylinder motor, as well, I will be glad to show and prove these facts to you by giving you a demonstration in The Westcott REAL SIX
 Is a big, roomy, comfortable Car, made quite a hit at the Baltimore Automobile Show, and had quite a lot of admirers. It ranks very high among the best Cars in Baltimore.
The Hupmobile REAL FOUR
 Has five good points—Beauty, Comfort, Performance, Durability and Economy—and has made its mark in Carroll County. There are no dissatisfied HUP owners.
The Dodge REAL FOUR
 Last, but not least, Uncle Sam's War Car, which is one that was picked by the best automobile brains of the country for war purposes. If you want to know the endurance of a Dodge, ask the soldier boy who has been "Over There," how the DODGE performed.
 Just telephone Westminster 211, or write, or call at the Garage Palace, and it will be a pleasure to me to show and prove to you the difference in Automobiles, the same as I have proved it to many others.

A Little Help

By RAY BAKER

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

If Walter Burrows had been three minutes sooner he would have caught the relief train. If Lucile McCarthy had been three minutes later she would have missed it.

As it was, the Tribune had the start of the Star. A six-cylinder, high-geared automobile overcame the handicap, however, and Lucile stepped off the train on one side of the piled-up coaches at the same time that Walter jumped from the tonneau of the car on the other.

Then began the race to clean up on the details and get them into the respective newspaper offices, which were fifteen miles from the scene of the wreck.

If Lucile McCarthy had known that Walter Burrows was her rival in this skirmish for facts she would have worked more feverishly than she did. If he had known that he had to compete with a woman—and this particular woman above all others—he would have smiled grimly and put in a few extra licks.

For these two reporters, although they were on rival afternoon papers, were erstwhile sweethearts. It was through him that she obtained her place on the Tribune, simply because she said she wouldn't have a man who could do something she couldn't do, and because she thought the work would appeal to her, which it did.

Then came an argument one afternoon. It started with a discussion of social and economic problems of the world in general. Reporters, in their hours of relaxation, will discuss and argue about anything, from the price of King George's imperial bedroom slippers to the number of calories in the daily meals of the mayor of Hoboken.

This particular discussion dwindled to an out-and-out argument which generated some heat, about whether women were as resourceful as men, and if not why not, and if so why so. The last straw was Walter's assertion that women are dependable on men in emergencies, whereupon Lucile told him that she would prove that she in particular was not dependent on any man and never would be.

"Men overestimate their importance," she declaimed. "They are not in the least essential to a woman's success or happiness. You're one of those narrow-minded beings that think a woman can't do anything for herself. You disgust me, that's what you do. I wouldn't have such a man hanging around the house. Kindly forget my telephone number."

The reporters at the wreck were so busy asking questions of trainmen and doctors and scribbling notes that neither noticed the other. It was not until they got ready to leave that they became aware of each other's presence, and then it was only through a mishap.

"I'll get the story in for the second edition and scoop the Tribune," said Walter as he scribbled one last unreadable note on some folded copy paper and thrust it into a pocket.

At the same time the whistle of the relief train sounded and Lucile knew she must get aboard or be left. She was not far from the train, but in order to get to it she had to scramble over some wreckage. In so doing she slipped and fell to the ground, a sharp pain darting through her foot. Involuntarily she uttered a slight cry, and it was heard by Walter, who was standing a short distance away, looking around in vain for the automobile that had brought him to the scene of the wreck.

He hurried to her and found her huddled on the ground. When he saw who it was that had suffered the accident he hesitated a few brief seconds, then picked her up in his arms. She was small and he was big, so it wasn't much of a task to move her off to one side of the bustle and confusion attendant on clearing away the wreckage.

"Where's that confounded car?" he said aloud in vexation. "I thought it was over by that fence when I got out of it. I wonder if the driver didn't think I was going back?"

His voice made her curious to know in whose arms she was resting. Hitherto the pain she was suffering had made her indifferent as to his identity. So she lifted two very brown eyes and they met two gray-blue ones, and then her mouth straightened out and she commanded:

"Put me down at once!" He grinned and complied. She took a few steps, limping pronouncedly. "How dare you pick me up in your arms?" she demanded. "I don't need you."

He looked out on the road, but there was not an automobile in sight. It was yet too early for the general public to hear the news and begin flocking to the scene. When he looked back at the girl she was huddled on the ground again.

"I've lost out," she almost sobbed. "The train has gone. I was going to take it back to the next station and file my story at the telegraph office."

He looked sympathetic. "If you will allow me to suggest an idea," he remarked, "perhaps I can help both you and myself. I'm not doing this in a personal way, you understand, but simply professionally. I would give any reporter a little help in like circumstances, be it man or woman."

She answered him almost surlily, jabbing pins into her back hair. "Go on with your idea. I've got to get my story to the Tribune or lose my job."

"Well," he went on, "my chauffeur has gone and left me; but I just noticed a handcar standing some distance up the track on the other side of the wreck and we can ride on that to Bushville, which is only a mile around that bend. We can file our stories there."

Without waiting for her consent he picked her up again and succeeded in getting to the handcar, on which he placed her. Seizing the handles, he soon had the vehicle moving down the track.

"Hey, bring that back, you!" called a section hand, but Walter couldn't or wouldn't hear.

She sat at one end of the handcar and looked away from him. The pain had left her foot, but there was another kind of pain that she couldn't dispel.

He worked the pump so fast that perspiration streamed from his brow, although the weather was only the mild kind that is enjoyed early in the fall.

Before long the Bushville station loomed into sight. He stopped near it and removed the handcar from the rails, after which he carried Lucile into the station and placed her on a bench. It was one of those structures about the size of a box car, with a waiting room and a combined ticket and telegraph office.

"How about sending some press stuff?" Walter inquired of the hatch-faced man behind the counter.

The man was too busy reading a magazine to look up.

"No operator," he condescended to grunt.

"That settles it," said Lucile in tones that bordered on anguish. "We've both lost out."

Walter had some further conversation with the man at the ticket window, after which he went over to Lucile and said:

"Can you dictate your story to the wire. You won't have time to write it."

She laughed, almost hysterically.

"Sure I can dictate to the wire, but what good will that do? We have to have an operator first."

There was something of triumph in his eyes.

"We have," he declared. "I'm the operator. Didn't you ever know that I graduated from a telegraph office to a newspaper?"

She looked up quickly, with mingled surprise and admiration showing in her face, but quickly she sought to hide it. Turning from him she looked out the window. A farmer boy was having difficulty with a calf that betrayed a pronounced prejudice for some grass that stuck up in the middle of the main track.

"Oh, I can't do it," she said. "You've earned the right to send your story, and yours alone. I couldn't let you send mine too. I'm sick of the game, and I'm going to watch that boy get that calf off the track while you rattle the key and I lose my job. I don't want the job any more, anyhow. It's more important that you keep yours, and maybe this scoop will bring you a raise. You see, I've decided to let your pay envelope provide for us both—if you're still of that mind."

Just Why Men Become Bald.

Each time a man lifts his hat his head experiences a sudden change of temperature, and it is this constant heating and cooling of his head, according to a recent medical writer, which causes the hair to drop out in the long run.

It is very seldom that soldiers go bald early, for they do not raise their hats, but salute.

Women, too, never go bald so soon as men; that is because their hats are retained on their heads when they are out of doors, and are only taken off when indoors.

Another reason why men go bald is said to be because they so often wear their hair clipped close.

Stabilizer for Airplane.

An airplane manufacturer has, it is reported, invented a new type of electric stabilizer for airplanes, which consists of a pendulum swinging in a liquid bath and controlling the supply of current to a small propeller placed just above the pilot's head.

FARMERS TO BE IN THEIR GLORY IN FALL

Big Horse Show Will Be Held at Timonium in Connection With State Fair.

Lovers of fine stock—horses, dairy cattle, swine and sheep—will be in their glory this fall when the Maryland State Fair opens September 1 to 6 inclusive at Timonium, for the officers and directors of the fair, at their annual meeting in Baltimore recently, laid plans for making the fair a "farmers' fair" in every sense of the word.

Awards aggregating $10,000 will be offered and for the further convenience of exhibitors, a $15,000 steel and concrete, fireproof live stock, exhibition and sales building will be erected. On the first floor will be the exhibits of stock and on the second floor will be space for exhibits of various kinds with accommodations for salesmen.

Awards amounting to $1,000 for each of the four recognized types of dairy cattle—Jerseys, Guernseys, Holsteins—Frisians and Ayrshires—will be given. The dairy cattle department will be under the personal supervision of Louis McLane Merryman and the best judges in the country will make the awards.

A total of $1,000 in awards is promised the swine classes for the best lard, medium and bacon hogs, while special attention will be paid to sheep. Edward A. Cockey, the veteran marshal of the fair, will have charge of the sheep department.

Of particular interest to Maryland farmers and horse-breeders, because of the movement now under way by the Maryland Breeding Bureau to improve the breed of horses in this State, will be the horse departments, where heavy and thoroughbred animals will be shown and because of the plan to make Tuesday of Fair Week the day of the biggest horse show and fair ever held in Maryland. On this day there will be no racing, but every effort will be bent to make that day the greatest in the history of the Maryland horse. Under competent men the exhibits will be shown and the awards made. The awards in each of the several classes will be $500.

The farmer's wife will not be overlooked in the attention being paid her husband, for arrangements are being made to have the farm and garden products exhibits and the exhibits of the Household Department one of the big features of the week. W. B. Kemp will handle the farm and garden products, and Mrs. Carville D. Benson and Miss Catherine Braithwaite will have charge of the Household Department.

And last, but not least will be the midway attractions and the exhibits of farm implements and machinery. These are all under the direction of Matt L. Daiger, assistant secretary and treasurer, who has announced plans which will make Timonium the show place of the State during the week of the fair.

The officers and directors of the fair association were re-elected as follows: Louis McLane Merryman, President; John M. Dennis, Vice-president; William B. Kemp, Secretary; Charles E. McLane, treasurer; Matt L. Daiger, Assistant Secretary and Treasurer. These, with the following, compose the board of directors: R. J. Walden, J. M. Little, Sterling Mays, Guy Nelson, C. C. Dennison, Edward A. Cockey, C. I. Reynolds and N. D. R. Allen.

WAR PROVES VALUE OF BREEDING.

The Maryland farmers interested in improving the breed of Maryland horses the war has taught a great lesson when it showed that the thoroughbred and the thoroughbred grades stood the stresses of war better than any other types. The loss of military horses in peace times is estimated at ten per cent. In war the loss fairly bounds upward. This last great war has showed that the life of the cold blooded horse, under war conditions, was from 5 to 15 days while the great French type, in which the thoroughbred strain is dominant, withstood the most gruelling hardship, with the English and Irish hunters and other thoroughbred grades, from six weeks to two months. The same test would prove good in farm work.

Thirty dollars a day for waiting on a family was the wage at which a colored woman was hired at Winnemucca, Nev., by a Basque sheepman to go to his ranch near McDermitt, on the Oregon line, all the members of his family being down with influenza.

Monster Devil Fish.

The announcement is made that a monster devil fish weighing 1,700 pounds, and measuring 12 feet from tip to tip, has been captured three miles out from Deer Island, near Biloxi, Miss., by local fishermen, who brought the fish to Biloxi and placed it on exhibition. The fish, a species which is seldom seen so close to shore, was caught in a trawl net by Pat Moran, and it took three power boats to haul the fish into port. It had a mouth measuring four feet across, and in order to pass a rope through it, fishermen had to use an immense oar.

When one vessel attempted to bring the fish ashore it played with the boat as with a toy, and two other power boats came to its assistance. Many people viewed the monster.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL
SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By Rev. P. E. FITZWATER, D. D.,
Teacher of English Bible in the Moody
Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR MARCH 9

JOSHUA, PATRIOT AND LEADER.

LESSON TEXT—Joshua 1:3-9.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be strong and of a good courage.—Joshua 1:9.
ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Joshua
1:10-17; 5:13-15.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A story of a brave leader. Memory Verse—Joshua 1:9.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Follow the right leader. Memory Verse—Deut. 1:7, 8.
INTERMEDIATE TOPIC—When to be brave.

The book of Joshua is a history of the conquest of the promised land and its apportionment among the tribes of Israel. It takes its name from its principal character—Joshua. During the wilderness journey he was Moses' minister, and captain of his army.
When Moses was denied the privilege of going over the Jordan, Joshua was appointed to the leadership of Israel.
Being so long faithful as a servant,
he is now qualified to rule. Only those who have themselves learned to obey are fit to rule. Moses, the representative of the law, brought Israel to the borders of Canaan. Joshua was the man chosen to lead the people into the place of rest. The name "Joshua" has the same derivation as the name "Jesus." The law (Moses) was our schoolmaster to bring us to Christ;
but Christ (our Joshua) has given us victory and rest.

I. Joshua's Call (1:1-2).
Moses, God's servant, is dead, but God's work must go on. He continues his work by calling others to take it up, though he buries his workers.
Joshua, no doubt, was sorrowful over the loss of his master, but there is no time for mourning. The best way to cure our griefs and sorrows is to take up courageously the burdens and responsibilities which our leaders have laid down.

II. God Renews His Promise of the Land to Israel (1:3, 4).

The promise had been made to Abraham, and renewed to Isaac, Jacob and Moses. It is now renewed to Israel when they are about to enter upon its possession. The borders of the land were quite large (v. 4)
"from the wilderness and this Lebanon, even unto the great river, the river Euphrates, all the land of the Hittites, and unto the great sea toward the going down of the sun, shall be your coast." The nearest it was ever possessed was during the reigns of David and Solomon, though not then fully realized. This country still belongs to the Jews, and in God's own time they shall possess it. Their getting possession of this land was due entirely to themselves. God promised them, that wherever their feet set upon the land it was theirs. If they failed to secure possession it was because they failed to claim it. We would all enjoy larger blessings if we would claim them.

III. God's Presence Promised to Joshua (1:5).

Joshua was entering upon a perilous and difficult enterprise, but the Lord said as he was with Moses so would he be with him. The difficulties before him were:

1. The Jordan river (v. 2). It was now at its flood (3:15), making it impossible for armies to cross.

2. In the land the people were living in walled cities. Notwithstanding this, God's help insured success. (1)
"I will not fall thee nor forsake thee."
(2) "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee." (3) "As I was with Moses, so I will be with thee."

IV. Conditions of Blessings in the Land (1:6-9).

1. "Be strong and of a good courage"
(v. 6). His mission was to go in and divide the land among the tribes for an inheritance. God could not bless him if he should play the coward.

2. Unwavering obedience to the word of God (v. 7). In a land of idolatry it requires much courage to obey the true God. The prosperity and good success was conditioned upon unswerving obedience to God's commands. In all his work he must conform his life to the law of God.
To pass from the path outlined therein would bring disaster and ruin. In order to accomplish this the law of the Lord must constantly be in his mouth. He was to meditate therein day and night. If we are to prosper in our Christian experience there must be that regular and reverent study of God's Word. Joshua renders prompt obedience. He did not stop to cavil, but at once gave orders for the march. God made the plan and gave the directions. His responsibility was to go forward without doubting, taking possession of the inheritance.

Sacrifice.

A work that requires no sacrifice does not count for much in fulfilling God's plans. But what is commonly called sacrifice is the best, happiest use of one's self and one's resources—
the best investment of time, strength, and means. He who makes no such sacrifice is most to be pitied. He is a heathen because he knows nothing of God.—Samuel Chapman Armstrong.

Thy Friend.

Make not thy friend too cheap to thee, nor thyself to thy friend.—Fuller.

Lost by Looking Proverbs 23: 29-35
(Temperance Meeting)

Underscore some of the words in verse 29, such as "sorrow," "woe,"
"contentions," "babbling," or as in R.
V. "complaining," "wounds." Notice how they touch all parts of our being, moral, social, intellectual and physical degrading and debasing the whole man.

In view of this, how great is the wisdom and force of the opening words of verse 31. "Look not."
Many have been lost by looking at that which promised one result and produced another. Others have been led to seek present gratification at the expense of future good. If men could have looked to the end—the bite of the serpent and the sting of the adder, instead of the present apparent pleasure of the wine glass, there would have been less drinking and fewer drunkards.

While rejoicing in the progress of the temperance cause and in the speedy prospect of a saloonless nation, the work of temperance education must continue. The awful curse and cost must not be forgotten. Just a few years ago the American people spent annually for intoxicating liquors $2,290,000,000, and for foreign missions only $12,000,000. The following quotations are worth memorizing and using:

"Drinkers age quickly. They lose half their normal size, and fall easy victims to many infirmities and illnesses."

"The man that takes an occasional glass of beer becomes inevitably a defender of the whole drink system, a bulwark of the saloon, and an abettor of the curse of America."

"No health authority anywhere advocates the use of alcohol as a medicine, food, or beverage."

Another application of the topic may well be made. Many are "lost by looking" in the wrong direction.
You may be lost to purity by looking at the impure. You may be lost to right and proper views of life by looking at pictures, perhaps moving pictures, which give a wrong interpretation of life. You may be lost to salvation and heaven by looking away from Jesus instead of looking unto Him. If you are looking at yourself, your assumed righteousness, your talents or attainments, your conduct or character as a basis for salvation, you will be looking the wrong way. See Titus 3: 5; Romans 3: 24; 5: 1, 2.

IN MATTERS OF EDUCATION

Question Where Authority for the Proper Conduct of Operations
Should Be Rightly Placed.

Fundamentally the determining factor in educational administration becomes today one of finance. The school superintendents declare themselves unable to raise more money locally than is already furnished. The whole question of educational finance in relation to local taxation has not yet been adequately considered to determine the validity of such statements.
Without going further into this problem an agitation has been begun for securing aid from the federal government. It is argued that the federal authority today is in a better position for levying taxes than is the local authority, that the nation as a whole is likely to suffer unless national measures are adopted for combating illiteracy, Americanizing the immigrant, and improving the physique of the citizens, and finally that teachers may now be regarded as performing service of national importance.—New Republic.

A Considerable Amount.

A certain little village in the West stands some distance from the nearest good supply of pure water, and Patrick is the man who transports barrels of drinking water to the homes of the village.

One day, says Chicago Herald, as Patrick halted at the top of the river bank, a man famous for his inquisitive mind stopped and asked:

"How long have you hauled water for the village, my good man?"

"Ten years, sor."

"Ah, how many loads do you take in a day?"

"From tin to fifteen, sor?"

"Ah, yes! Now, I have a problem for you. How much water at this rate have you hauled in all?"

The driver of the water cart jerked his thumb backward toward the river and replied:

"All the water yez don't see there now, sor."

Bird Songs.

It was the morning of June 20, I stood at the gate of the farmhouse where three roads met, and the air was full of bird songs. For a long time I stood there and tried to note how many different songs I could hear.
Near by were the alto joy-notes of the Baltimore oriole. Up from the meadow where the trout flowed came the bubbling, gurgling notes of the bobolink.
Robins, wood thrushes, song sparrows, chipping sparrows, bluebirds, vireos,
gold finches, chebees, indigo birds, flickers, phoebes, red-winged blackbirds, scarlet tanagers, catbirds, house wrens—altogether, without moving from my place, I counted 33 different bird songs and bird notes.—Samuel Scoville, Jr., in Atlantic.

REMINISCENT OF OLD DAYS

Braganza Castle, Home of Portugal's Kings, Still Interesting, Although Partly in Ruins.

In the tableland of the Traz-os-Montes district in Portugal lies the once famous city of Braganza. It is the seat of the royal house of Bra-ganza, from which came all the kings of Portugal since the time of the first Duke Alphonso de Portugal, in 1442.
Braganza is still the most important city on the frontier between Spain and Portugal and noted for its manufacture of silks and velvets.

The most important thing in Bra-ganza, however, is the ancestral home of the kings of Portugal, the magnificent castle that crowns the heights of the town. It is a splendid example of the fortress of medieval times, and while partly in ruins it is quite well preserved and considered the most perfect remaining stronghold in Portugal with the exception of the noted Villa de Feira, near the town of Oporto.

The old Braganza castle is reminiscent of the days when soldiers fared forth in blouses of metal instead of wool, and horses were known as chargers and girls were damoiselles.

The central keep of the castle is completely surrounded by a moat, and is absolutely inaccessible except by an ancient drawbridge.

It is easy when visiting the castle at twilight for the imagination to people it with the crusaders who used to throng these crumbling courtyards, banquet in the rough stone halls, and pay court to the fair princesses of the royal house of Portugal.

The castle was practically rebuilt by the second king of Portugal on the foundations of the ancient fortress erected by Alfonso Henrique, and it still shows all the details of the art of defense in days before artillery methods of warfare were known.

GREAT DAY IN CHILD'S LIFE

Syracuse Youngster Will Never Forget
His Meeting With His Hero,
Theodore Roosevelt.

Theodore Roosevelt, the man who made and held strong friendships among men, was beloved by children.
He loved them and they admired him, made a hero of him.

When he was at Syracuse, during the famous Barnes libel trial, a citizen sitting on his veranda, saw Roosevelt riding by for his accustomed exercise, and called to his wife. "There goes Theodore Roosevelt on horseback."
The six-year-old son of the house was in the bathtub when he heard the announcement, and rushed downstairs without waiting to dress, to see his hero pass. His father told the story at a reception that night, and the colonel said: "Bring that boy to me—I want to see him." So the boy was brought, and for half an hour sat on the knee of his idol, listening to stories of life in the West, of Indians and grizzlies and African lions, and it has been said that when he was taken home, in a state of mental intoxication, he had grown an inch in height.

IT'S NOT YOUR HEART
IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Kidney disease is no respecter of persons. A majority of the ills afflicting people today can be traced back to kidney trouble.

The kidneys are the most important organs of the body. They are the filters, the purifiers, of your blood.

Kidney disease is usually indicated by weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, backache, stomach trouble, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gall stones, gravel, rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago.

All these derangements are nature's signals to warn you that the kidneys need help. You should use GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately. The soothing, healing oil stimu-lates the kidneys, relieves inflamma-tions and destroys the germs which have caused it. Do not wait until tomorrow. Go to your druggist today and insist on GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules, of your blood.

In twenty-four hours you should feel health and vigor returning and will bless the day you first heard of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil.

After you feel that you have cured yourself, continue to take one or two capsules each day, so as to keep in first-class condition and ward off the danger of other attacks.

Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. Three sizes. Money refunded if they do not help you.

GLYCERINE MIXTURE FOR APPENDICITIS

Taneytown people can prevent appendicitis with simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-i-ka. ONE SPOONFUL flushes the ENTIRE bowel tract so completely it relieves ANY CASE sour stomach, gas or constipation and prevents appendicitis. The INSTANT, pleasant action of Adler-i-ka surprises both doctors and patients. Leaves stomach clean and strong. Robert S. Mc-Kinney, Druggist.

We still have a few packages of free seeds, for those who have not yet received any. Come and get them.

Shad are offered for sale, at only 35c per pound, which may be said to be "roosting a little high" for a fish.

John Leister and wife, and Miss Mabel Leister, who have been employed in Baltimore, for some time, have returned home.

John H. Diffendal was taken to Springfield Hospital, last Friday, for treatment, with the hope that a change may benefit his condition.

From the present outlook, there will not be enough houses in town, this Spring, to supply the demand—the usual situation, every year.

The public sales, so far, have been resulting in very good prices; some articles are a little "off," but in general, the prices are good for good stock and machinery.

Mrs. Mervin Ashenfelter is spending several weeks with her parents, J. A. Thomson and wife. Mr. Ashenfelter also spent several days, this week at the same place.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Elliot, of York; Lieut. Edward Elliot, aviation instructor at a camp on Long Island, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Elliot, of Stevenson, Md., visited relatives and friends here this week.

A letter from Capt. Patton, among our "Soldiers' letters," will be of special interest, having reference as it does to two Taneytown boys—Mark E. Wisotzky and Francis E. Shaum—and another Carroll-countian, LeRoy N. Schaffer.

Clotworthy Hill (colored) is another Taneytown boy to be safe home, from France, and enjoying the deserved popularity of our "come-backs." He has lots to tell, and saw strenuous times, but says he "never worried," and took things as they came along, and altogether had a wonderful experience.

The Burgess and Commissioners, on Monday night, approved the ordinance granting the Union Bridge Electric Company a franchise to extend its line to Taneytown, and it now goes to the Public Service Commission for confirmation. It is said that the Company is ready to begin extension work as soon as all formalities are settled.

The Lutheran church has recently received from George I. Harman, executor of the estate of Daniel Harman, the sum of $475, in payment of a bequest. In addition to this, the church had received $1156 from certificates of deposit arranged by Mr. Harman before his death, making a total of $1,631, a very helpful increase for the cemetery fund.

There has also been received from the late Mrs. Wm. H. Hess, through Mrs. Byron Stull, the sum of $100.00 for the same object.

Election of Directors

There will be a meeting of The Stockholders of The Birnie Trust Co., at their Banking House in Taneytown, Md., on Monday, March 10th, next, between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock, A. M., for the purpose of electing a Board of Directors, to serve for the ensuing year.

When Delay Was Dangerous.

Mark Twain spent his summers at Riverdale, N. Y. A suburban fish-peddler, with a raucous voice and a tin horn, passed the house frequently. Finally, one Saturday morning, Mark said:

"That fellow has been here twice every day this week. Such persistence in crime ought to be rewarded. I'm going to buy a fish of him," which he accordingly did. Prepared for luncheon, the fish was found to be highly unsatisfactory, and when the peddler appeared in the afternoon, the humorist went out and halted him.

"See here!" said Mark, with some warmth, "that fish wasn't eatable, it was too old."

"Well, it wa'n't my fault, Boss," replied the man indignantly. "I give you two chances every day this week to buy that fish, and if you was lobster enough to wait till it was spoiled I don't see how you can blame me."

Grip, Hold, Let Go! That's the action on wet, slippery pavements of the Vacuum Cups of the famous Pennsylvania VACUUM CUP TIRES. While the suction grip holds fast, there is no loss of power or speed and no excess consumption of fuel, for the forward rolling of the tire raises the edge of each Cup and releases the vacuum hold. Vacuum Cup Tires cost approximately the same as ordinary tires sold on 3,500 mile basis, though they are guaranteed—per warranty tag—for 6,000 Miles.

ANNOUNCEMENT

It offers us great pleasure to announce to our many friends, the return of the junior member of our firm—Merwyn C. Fuss—from the service of Uncle Sam, in France. He will at once assume charge of our work, placing his entire time at your disposal.

We have had numerous difficulties to surmount in the days that have passed; there have been times when we were unable to render the service we desired, but you have been patient, considerate and loyal to us through it all, and we find no words to express our appreciation to you, other than to say we thank you. We are not going to leave it rest at that, however, but prove our appreciation by our future service.

In our Store we are going to carry a larger and better line of Furniture than ever before, with the same reasonable prices. Remember, what you buy from us, is strictly Reliable Furniture. We don't sell any other kind. No matter how small the order, it will receive our prompt attention.

We are going to alter, and add to our Funeral Equipment, wherever it can be improved upon. No matter how distant the call, it will receive our immediate attention. Every hour of the day or night we are at your service.
