INFERNAL MACHINES SENT IN THE MAILS.

Prominent Men Marked as Victims of a Secret Plot.

Sixteen infernal machines were found, by chance, in the New York City Postoffice, on Wednesday, as the packages were held for insufficient payment of postage; otherwise, they would have gone to their destination, as a number had already gone. For-tunately, those sent and delivered did no damage to the persons intended.

At least six other bombs are known to have gone through the mails and there may have been others. One to former Senator Hardwick, of Georgia, slightly injured his wife and her maid, by exploding when the package was

As all who were intended to receive these bombs are in public life, and some of them outspoken against anarchy, it is supposed that the dastardly plot represents an effort to terrorize public sentiment against taking action in opposition to disloyalism in

The bombs were addressed to the following: Mayor Ole Hanson, of Seattle, Wash.; Former Senator Hardwick, of Georgia; Representative Jno. L. Burnett, Alabama; Judge K. M. Landis, of Chicago; Charles M. Fickert, district attorney, and his assistant, Edwrad Cunha, of San Francisco; Anthony Caminette, and Frederick C. Howe, Commissioners of Immigra-tion; William B. Wilson, Secretary of Labor; Attorney General Palmer; Postmaster General Burleson; William H. Lamar Solicitor Department of Justice, and W. H. Finch one of the representatives of the department; Associate Justice Hughes, of the Supreme Court; Mayor Hylan, of New York; John D. Rockefeller, J. P. Morgan of New York; Governor Sproul, and Attorney General Shaffer, of Penna., and several others.

The whole plot is of course being energetically investigated by the government. The packages have all been mailed by using tags purporting to represent merchandise mailed by a large New York store, the packages being closely identical with packages legitimately mailed, which will make the attempts difficult to prevent.

The Corn Growing Question.

The corn pack for this season promises to be small by comparison with the last two years. The farmers are largely holding out for $20.00 per ton, while the packers as positively hold to their offer of $15.00, and both apparently have good argument for their stand, based on the present outlook. The farmer is thinking mostly of the present price of yellow corn; but, this is a gamble, as nobody can tell what such corn may be worth when it is ready for market.

and planting a reduced acreage of sweet corn, and this at least shows a spirit of fairness, and taking the canner's word for it that he is perfectly honest in standing to the $15.00

There is a tremendous stock of last season's canned goods yet unsold. Some even estimate that there will be no shortage, even should there be no pack this season, and say that a very small pack will be the best means of clearing up the market for next year's business. Throughout the west the price being paid per ton is $10.00 and $12.00, and while eastern growers can not be expected to compete with the west, it is nevertheless true that western corn helps to fix the market price for the canned product.

The situation, therefore, is likely to remain unchanged, both sides standing pat. The packers are not compelled to even open their plants, nor are the farmers compelled to plant the canning corn—both, in a sense, are independent of each other. To us, the half-way proposition seems to be a fair solution for both, and to the dealers as well as the consuming public-a reduced acreage, this year, until the market recovers itself and becomes normal again.

Mills' Assailants Sentenced.

Heavy sentences were pronounced in the Adams County Court, at Gettysburg, on Monday, by Judge Mc-Pherson, on the assailants of Abner S. Mills, on the night of February 22, when he was attacked and shot in the head, in his store. John Miller was sentenced for a minimum of 27 years, and Fred Moore for a minimum of 17 For a long time Mr. Mills was thought to be fatally hurt, but is now able to be about, though he still carries the bullet in his head.

An Inferior Lot of Paper.

We feel obliged to make an apology for the paper The Record is printed on, at present, as it is a bad lot; but we will do better in about two months when our next shipment comes. The present lot was contracted for when paper was hard to get. Cheer up the worst is not yet to come !

Work is to begin very soon, on the Westminster-Littlestown road, a very much needed improvement. The contract for the first section, beginning at Westminster, has been let to Thomas & Hunter. This is the one road in the county over which there is no difference of opinion as to the justice and desirability of its im-

FOR A DISTRICT MEMORIAL. Public Meeting Favors Permanently Memorializing Our Boys.

At the called public meeting held in the Opera House, last Saturday night, D. J. Hesson presided. After prayer by Rev. L. B. Hafer and selections by the orchestra, Rev. Guy P. Bready stated the object of the meeting to be to consider the project of erecting a memorial, or tribute to the boys from this district who had anboys from this district who had answered to the call to battle for the world's peace, and had rendered such splendid service. Rev. Seth Russell Downie followed with an address warmly indorsing the project, as showing permanent gratitude for, and recognition of the sacrifices and bravery of our home boys, during the recent conflict.

After a brief season of general discussion, a motion prevailed that the previously appointed committee should be continued, and that it should proceed to secure several designs, the cost not to exceed $1000.00 and present the same, with a report, at a public meeting to be called in the future, when the question of financing the project will be taken up.

The committee in charge, is as follows: D. J. Hesson, chairman; Rev. L. B. Hafer, secretary; Milton A. Koons, Norman R. Hess, Edmund F. Smith, John E. Davidson, P. B. Englar; Misses Anna Galt, Amelia Annan, Mary Fringer, Mrs. Maurice C. Duttera, Mrs. Geo. A. Arnold, Mrs. M. D. Hess, Mrs. Harry B. Miller. In addition to the investigations previously made, the Committee will pursue the subject further and make its final report, with recommenda-tions, at a public meeting to be held in the Opera House, Saturday evening, May 10, at 8:30, when it is hoped that a large representation will be present from all portions of the district, and thereby show their interest and cooperation in the effort; for on this will depend what is finally done.

So says Mrs. Austin Gallagher of "The Orchards." One could not help but recall, while she was addressing the Lend-a-Hand Book Club at the regular monthly meeting held at "The Bungalow," the home of Mrs. J. C. Wailes, April 22nd, of the: "leaves of the trees were for the healing of the nations."

Mrs. Gallagher drew a word picture of father and daughter wending their way in loving companionship among trees in a devotional manner that is worship to the Father of Light, from Whose inspiration was written: Thou shalt not destroy the trees thereof by forcing an ax against them; thou shalt not cut them down, for the tree of the field is ma The address was replete with practical knowledge and advice to the Club, for, Mrs. Gallagher is vice-president of Maryland Forestry Association, and Chairman of Shade Tree Division of Woman's Civic League.

Miss Elizabeth Key, aged 90 years, a grand-daughter of Francis Scott Key, died at the Church Home and Infirmary, in Baltimore, on Tuesday, where she had made her home for many years. The Banks and the Victory Loan.

The Banks of Carroll County have taken the whole allotment of 4% Victory Liberty notes for the County, without making any fuss about it, and from the very beginning of the drive put the County "over the top." While this is a splendid investment, the Banks do not care especially to monopolize it, and are willing to share the total with the public. There will be no canvassing effort made-no appeal to "back up the government."

This situation, it seems to us, should represent an appeal to those fully able to invest, especially when so doing can be entered into without interfering with other investments. We do not speak in the interest of the Banks, but it occurs to us that this heavy outlay by the Banks may make money scarce for other needs. It also seems to us that an investment entered into by the Banks, not as a forced measure, but in large part from choice, ought to present pretty strong argument that the same investment is a good one for the average citizen.

This is a phase of the subject worth considering, at least for the use of small amounts not otherwise employed. In a sense, the public seems to be placed on trial, not only as to whether it can see a fine financial opportunity when offered, but whether it wants to be in on helping to "finish up" the war job. What do you think about it ?

OPPOSE NEW PHONE RATES.

Advanced Charges Unpopular With Farmers' Organizations.

The Board of Trade, and Farmers' Association, of Frederick county are strenuously protesting against the increase in phone charges, and especially the toll charge between sta-The sentiment seems favorable to a reasonable flat rate increase per month, in harmony with general increased costs, but the enforcement of the toll charge rates is regarded as unfair, and hundreds of subscribers throughout the county declare they will order their phones out.

The same situation prevails in Washington county, and both counties have adopted formal resolutions of protest to the Public Service Commission, and to members of Congress.

The new rates are now in force in this county, and subscribers will find just how they operate as monthly statements come in. It is probable that the lines will be used much less, for mere friendly chat, and that the mails will be used more, in cases not of great importance, as postals and letters will be much cheaper than 10c and 20c phone calls. Whether the local exchange service, alone, will be considered worth the monthly charge, remains to be seen.

So far as we know, there has been little organized protest in this county, though there has been a great deal of individual criticism and talk of ordering phones removed, but it is probable that no hasty action will be taken by any large number of sub-

Following a storm of protest against government operation of telephones, the President has cabled orders to return the lines to their owners, to take effect at once. As this order comes in the midst of advanced rates, and strikes among employees, the outcome, so far as the local situation is concerned, is in doubt. We would therefore advise subscribers to hold on, at least for a month, before ordering their phones removed.

A Very Bad Habit.

There is a percentage of weekly newspaper readers who let their subscriptions expire during the busy summer months, using the argument that they "have no time to read." This is very poor argument, as well as very selfish. No man should ever be too busy to keep posted on what is going on about him, and while he may not have the same amount of time for reading, there are likely to be others in the home who do have the time, and want the paper. We know, from long experience, that the women in a home are often stronger friends of The Record than the men. Many times we have had wives send the subscription price for The Record, when their husbands would not, thereby indicating that they are not "too busy" to read, and support their home paper. Moreover, it is the regular, whole year subscriber, who makes the continuance of the weekly paper possible. Any break in support, weakens the income. Considering the fact that our county papers have made a big sacrifice in maintaining the $1.00 rate, there should be no taking advantage of this by cutting out a subscription during the summer months. That is a system of fine economy that has no just defense.

The Corn Crop in Danger.

Philadelphia, April 26.—The entire corn crop of the United States is threatened with destruction by the "European corn borer," unless Congress provides funds immediately to fight the pest, according to Dr. L. O. Howard, chief of the bureau of Entomology of the Department of Agri-

Dr. Howard spoke at the general meeting of the American Philosophical Society.

"At the present time the corn borer is in 600 square miles of Massachusetts and has attacked corn in over 400 square miles of New York," he "The pest has not reached the great corn areas of the west and middle west, but if it gets into this corn belt, the entire crop will be ruined.
"During the last Congress an appropriation of $500,000 was sought to fight the evil, but the Senate filibuster killed the bill, which contained the appropriation. Efforts to obtain a similar appropriation will be made immediately on the convening of the new Congress."

Another European Bone.

Some new names are coming to the front—Fiume, in Italy—and now Kiao-Chau in Japan, the latter being the Chinese bone that Japan wants to keep, having taken it away from Germany. The Japanese are willing to give up the Kiao-Chau possession, providing they be given the port of Tsing Tao absolutely, and the right to cooperate with China in the operation of certain German mines and rail-roads; but China sees in this a danger to her sovereignty as a nation. Japan threatens to "quit and go home," like Italy, unless she gets what she wants.

Japan bases her claims on conquest, during war, and that the treaty between China and Germany relative to the country, goes along with the con-quest—that at the same time they conquered German territory they also inherited German power over it. 'secret treaty" question, that President Wilson opposes, is involved in this claim, as well as in that of Italy, though from different standpoints.

A few of the more outspoken objectors to the original pact have already announced their opposition to the amended draft, while others are more cautious in their opinions and indicate that much time and discussion will be necessary before their opinions can be finally made. It is plausibly argued that as the conference required several months to reach its present conclusions, it is altogether justifiable for the Senate to take plenty of time before committing this country to such an important step.

It is reported in press dispatches that the proposed League, as now arranged, is particularly objectionable to France, perhaps on the ground that the United States is not strongly enough pledged to act as an ally, in case of another war with Germany.

The Coming of the Locusts.

Prof. J. G. Sanders, Pennsylvania State Economic Zoologist, says that the brood of locusts which will turn out of the ground soon is known as the "X brood." Some people call it the "X brood." Some people call it the "Tenth Legion." These locusts appeared last in these counties in 1902, and were particularly destructive. They sawed into the bark, laid their eggs and died. Their descendants will emerge from the ground soon and repeat the process. They did so in 1885 and 1868, as is well attested in official records for these very regions. Indeed, says Dr. Sanders, history shows that this brood has been traced at 17year intervals since 1719.

In spite of this long record, the "Tenth Legion" has a rival for antiquity as the XIV group, which will appear in 1923, has been traced back to 1633 in America. It will also affect parts of Central Pennsylvania. These locusts are an American insect. They are different from the locusts of the Bible and are smaller and of a more reddish color than the big green spotted locusts that sings for hot weather in the dog days, the locusts that wear the "W" on their wings and have proved false prophets more often than veracious.

is very little that can be done to kill them off, although Prof. Sanders says that the disappearance of forests has reduced the damage they have been doing. However, with the increase of orchard enterprises in Pennsylvania, there is grave danger of momentary loss. There is a big wasp that kills the locusts, but it is not numerous and in appearance is worst than the locust and with a temper that is terri-

Financing Our War Debt.

This country is going to put up the cash for the Victory Liberty Loan, but after all that isn't paying the debt; it is simply putting it off in order that it may be paid on the instalment plan, plus the interest for the privilege of getting more time. Even the attractive 434 percent. interest, to investors, makes the sum total to be eventually paid, all the longer, so that those who cannot make a present investment in the attractive security, are all the worse off, if they are tax-payers.

In order to get any benefit, or relief, from our war taxation, it is therefore necessary to invest money in government or other securities made better due to the war. Avoiding such investments merely means paying the war-tax in full; so, no matter how prejudiced we may be against bond investments, under present circumstances, we really operate against our best financial interests by putting our prejudices into effect.

Neither will it profit us to stand aloof and criticise "the government" for lavish expenditures—that is all water gone under the bridge, so far as the present facts are concerned. So, whether we like it or not, the only rational thing to do is help pay the Philippine Independence.

Washington, Apr. 25 .- "It is, as it always has been, the purpose of the people of the United States to withdraw their sovereignty over the Philippine Islands and to recognize their independence as soon as a stable government can be established therein."

This is the official hope that the American government has held out to 10,000,000 Filipinos ever since American occupation.

Now comes the Filipinos, through the Philippine Mission, bringing an imposing array of proof to the effect that there is already a stable government in the Philippines. They also point to the testimony of Governor General Harrison and Acting Governor Yeater, the two highest American officials in the islands, who in the light of their experience in the Philippines agree not only that a stable government can be established, but that one is already in existence.

The Philippine Mission, asks, therefore, that independence now be granted at the earliest possible date. The Mission is an official body. It was appointed by the Philippine legislature at the behest of the Filipino people to come to the United States at this time and work for independence, and "to promote better understanding, greater confidence, and closer economic relations between the United States and the Philippines."

Here is what Governor Harrison, who has been for six years governor general of the islands, said on the subject of Philippine independence, while speaking at the Knickerbocker Club in New York:

"By temperament, by experience, by financial ability, in every way the ten millions of Filipinos are entitled to be free from every government except of their own choice. They are intelligent enough to decide for

"I have found the native Filipino official to be honest, efficient, and as capable of administering executive positions as any men I have met anywhere in the world.

"These officials are today governing one thousand municipalities and forty-two provinces, economically, efficiently, and for the good of the entire people. They have a native congress including many graduates of Yale, Princeton, Harvard and other American universities. Other members are graduates of Santo Tomas and other Philippine universities, and in education and ability they compare avorably with any I know.

"They have leaders like Speaker Osmena, of the House of Representatives, and President Quezon, of the Senate, who would adorn any office. "The Philippines are away ahead of the United States in successful government ownership and operation of public utilities.

"The government took hold of the steam railways and made them pay a profit of 1,000,000 pesos a year more than under private ownership.

"It took hold of the highways and we have 7,000 miles of the best macadamized roads in the world. The Manila city government is about to take over the street railways and the gas and electric plants while the territorial government is arranging for ownership and control of the coal

"The movement for independence is peaceful one. No territory was more loyal to Uncle Sam during the war. It offered an armed and equipped division to our government, gave it a submarine destroyer, and oversubscribed Liberty Loans and Red Cross funds.

"Two million natives speak English fluently, and there are 700,000 English speaking children in the public schools.

"I am more than willing to retire if the Filipinos can be granted what they deserve—a government like that of the United States.

"There is no present indication that Japan covets the Philippines. The Japanese do not thrive in the Philippine Islands—the climate seems to be too tropical for them. There are only 10,000 Japanese on the islands." -Publicity Bureau.

HAPPY WORKMEN MADE BY THRIFT

Group Saving Has Proved Highly Profitable to Thousands of Employees of Sanely Managed Concerns.

Every business is either thrifty or unthrifty. If thrift governs, then there will be accurate knowledge of costs, sound finance, far-seeing policy, the best use of labor and materials, with intelligent creation of a money surplus to meet emergencies. If unthrifty, the concern is bound for bankruptcy, which will arrive sooner or later.

Thrift goes far beyond the executive office, and so does lack of it. A thriftily managed business will have steady, skillful employees, working in pleasant surroundings, with every advantage in the way of equipment, and every advantage in earning power. The unthrifty tusiness is too familiar. It attracts chiefly the driftwood among workers. Unpleasant surroundings and poor equipment make work drudgery. Wages are below good standards, and the year is usually marked by periods of idleness, if not labor

Thrifty managers have learned in recent years that thrift facilities extended to their employees are part of general thrift in management. The employee must set aside his surplus, too. He is more than willing to save if he is the kind of man who values a job with a thrifty concern. But it has not always been easy for him to put his weekly savings in a secure place. Savings institutions may be far from the pay window. Employers have overcome this handicap in many cases by accepting deposits to be transferred to a bank, by selling securities in their own business to employees on the installment plan, and in other ways. They have also taken pains to see that employees are not victimized by loan sharks or blue-sky

Since the Thrift Stamp and War Savings Stamps came into existence there has been a wide development of this thrift movement for employees, as part of the management of a thrifty business. Employers know that thrift decreases labor turnover and also in creases output. The worker who saves is not worried by debts. He thinks well enough of his job to settle in the community, buy a home, raise a family.

War Savings Stamps offer the best medium for group savings in business organizations. Thousands of savings clubs or societies formed during the war to help finance the government have been found so valuable that thousands more will be organized. The best proof of the health, stability and usefulness of any industry is its hearty teamwork with the Treasury Department in organizing savings societies for the regular purchase of Thrift and War Savings Stamps.

A tribute to the Memory of our Dear Son and Brother ROY STANLEY DUTTERER who departed this life, May 2, 1915.

"Gone, but not forgotten."

Sad and sudden was the call, Of him so dearly loved by all. His memory is as dear today, As in the hour he passed away.

Whilst sweetly in the dist I sleep.
And when you come my grave to see,
Prepare yourself to follow me,
Prepare in time, make no delay.
For I was quickly called away. By his dear FATHER and MOTHER.

The days have been long since you left us dear brother.

And the nights are lonely and drear, But our home would be full of life and light. If you were only here. And when our Heavenly Father, Bids me to come his way, There we'll meet you dear brother, In everlasting day.

By his loving Sister CARRIE. The days are filled with sadness,

Dear brother has gone away, And taken all the gladness, We cherished in our play. Dear brother, we miss you everywhere, And we cannot help but mourn When we see your empty chair, And know that you are gone.

GOODBY TO FATHER WINTER

No Doubt That Spring Is Here, With All the Joyousness That the Season Should Bring.

The harbingers of spring are numerous, though often obscure. It does not take many warmish days at this time of the year to make the heart of animate Nature, including man, to throb with hope. We have been filled with forebodings. All of our mild December we said that the autumn was lingering long this year. In equally mild January we prognosticated that we would 'get it" in February. We are still a little fearful that old Father Winter may have some ice, and snow for us in his storehouse and so we try not to be too forward looking.

But a complete plan of the garden drawn to a scale, with every radish and bean and cabbage located is not rushing the season, and it is a mighty pleasant thing to make out these days. Stewart Edward White says he always gets out his book of flies in February, furbishes up the old ones and replaces the missing favorites, and dreams, the while, of pools and rapids. The housekeeper sighs at the sight of grimy wall paper and then hopefully begins to houseclean the spare room. A few hopeful robins came back this week, as well as some blackbirds. They say the skunk cabbages are blooming along Big Darby's rocky shore. Spring is on the way !- Ohio State Journal.

Healthy Men Defied "Flu." An observant hospital corps man of the navy became so thoroughly convinced that lowered resistance was always the determining factor in contracting influenza that he and some of his mates volunteered to test the truth of his theory. The offer was accepted and 100 enlisted men who volunteered were submitted to exhaustive experiments by naval surgeons. the outcome of which seems to confirm the theory. These men were all in the best of physical condition, and during the experiment their health was looked after carefully. Live cultures of influenza bacilli were sprayed in their throats and noses hourly. The germs were introduced into their food. They were kept in close contact with patients suffering from the disease Some members of the group received various preventive inoculations, but others were not thus protected. Not a single case of influenza was de-nothing was produced. The British authorities, to save a iarge part of the population from starvation and to provide work, immediately set about, as soon as the Turks were driven out, to construct canals for irrigation and to encourage the population to plan for the next harvest. An Arabian labor corps was organized locally and three Indian labor corps were employed.

As a result a new irrigation canal has been opened at Mansarich, seventy miles northeast of Bagdad on the Diala river, by which 300,000 acres as queen consorts. Perhaps it was bealready are being irrigated.

The King Charles Statue.

King Charles I may now breathe freely once more. Workmen have taken away the sandbags and scaffolding of the statue of King Charles I in Trafalgar square. This is the first time the head of the Stuarts has been permitted to breathe freely for many months. All sorts of speculations have been rife as to the reason for the extensive protection that has been accorded this statue, one of them being that there was a Jacobite at the office of works. The probable reason, however, is the undeniable beauty of the statue.-London Mail.

By the invention of a new "star" shell the night fighting efficiency of the navy will be increased at least 25 per cent, the war department has said in an official statement. AVENGED HIS POISONED PET TOILED HARD FOR SUCCESS

Great Sculptor Knew Many Vicissitudes Before His Genius Compelled World's Acknowledgment.

The old, old story of genius toiling against adversity and winning the struggle is ever repeating itself-and is ever interesting. Rodin, the great French sculptor, climbed the ladder laboriously, but with such a persistence that fame could not escape him. In "Rodin, the Man and His Art," Miss Judith Cladel tells how the young artist, in order to live, applied himself to varied occupations. He chipped at stone and marble, he drew sketches for the fashionable jewelers of Paris, and he made articles of decorative art ordered by manufacturers. Despite a considerable loss of time he obtained by that means a true apprenticeship in art, and finally was able to realize his first dream-to have an atelier of his own. His atelier! It was a stable in the Rue Lebrun, in the quarter of the Gobelins, where he was born. It was a cold hovel-cave, with a well sunk in the angle of the wall that, at every season, exhaled its chilling breath. It did not matter. The place was sufficiently large and well lighted.

There Rodin accumulated his studies and works until the place became so crowded that he could hardly turn himself about, but, being too poor to have them cast, he lost the greater part of them. Sometimes the soft clay settled and fell asunder; sometimes, Under British occupation the fertile | becoming too dry, it cracked and crumbled .- Youth's Companion.

NEVER WORE ROYAL DIADEM

Seven Queens of England Who Remained Uncrowned on Account of State and Religious Reasons.

There have been seven uncrowned queens of England. The first was Margaret of France, the second wife of Edward I. Money was scarce in the government coffers at the time, and Edward could not afford the expense of a coronation. The four later wives of Henry VIII, Anne Boleyn's successors-Jane Seymour, Anne of Cleves, Catherine Howard and Catherine Parr-were never publicly crowned cause Henry thought it would cause ridicule to have coronations occur as frequently as his marriages. Henrietta Maria, the wife of Charles I, being a strict Catholic, refused to take part in a state function which would compel her to partake of the sacrament according to the rites of the Church of England. Sophia Dorothea, the wife of George I, and mother of George II, was never recognized as queen of England, and therefore cannot be classed as one of Britain's uncrowned queens. Caroline of Brunswick, the wife of George IV, was not permitted to be present in Westminster hall at his coronation.

FARMERS' DAY AT

Commencement Exercises and Victory Celebration

CULTIVATOR DEMONSTRATION

Farmers' Day and Commencement exercises at the Maryland State College will be held as usual on May 30, Decoration Day. Plans for the day are now being worked out by President Woods and all arrangements have been completed except for the settling of some of the details. Doctor Woods states that he is extremely anxious to have a big gathering of the farmers and public officials this year as one feature of the day will be a commemoration of the part the farmers have played in winning the

Doctor Woods says:

"It seems to me to be particularly fitting for a great gathering of the farmers of the State this year. Farmers' Day at the State College also seems to be the most appropriate time for such a gathering in commemoration of the splendid achievement of Maryland farmers in helping to win the war. Great problems have been encountered and solved. The State, through the State Council of Defense, has borne its share of the burden and the farmers in turn have responded nobly to every effort they have been asked to put forth.

"To my mind probably the greatest achievement of the whole war was the wonderful record made in increasing food production. The splendid organizations and agencies through which this increase of production was effected deserve great credit, but after all it was the farmer who actually got in and did the work of production. The war is won, thanks to the efforts of all; and it is indeed very fitting to pay tribute on Farmers' Day, which very appropriately this year is to be held on Decoration Day, to the splendid efforts that have met with suc-

All visitors are requested to bring with them picnic lunches. The college Is arranging to serve sandwiches, coffee, ice cream, and fruit at cost price to those who do not care to go to the trouble of bringing their lunches.

The annual meeting of the State College Alumni Association will not take place this year on Farmers' Day, but will be held the afternoon and evening before, May 29. The annual banquet of the association is to take place the evening of May 29 and will be served at the college. A game of baseball with Virginia Polytechniq Institute is to be played also on May 29 as a part of the alumni program.

This year will mark the last in which the Commencement exercises of the graduating class of the college will be held on Farmers' Day. When the war began State College cut short Its school year and began holding a brief and informal Commencement Next year the school year will be lengthened out until the middle of

Two features will be the main at tractions of Farmers' Day. One is to be a demonstration of modern cultivating machinery in which all labor saving devices of this character will be shown. The other feature will be a farmers' victory celebration, a com memoration of what Maryland farm ers have accomplished in their efforts to help win the war.

Governor Harrington probably will deliver the address in connection with this part of the program. The subject on which he has been asked to speak 's "The Farmers' Contribution to Vic tory and Their Reconstruction Pro gram."

Besides these things there will be an exhibition of all the buildings, lab oratories and the farm. Demonstrations in home economics and canning and drying of fruits, vegetables, etc., will be carried on. Moving pictures are to be shown in the auditorium from 11 o'clock until 1. A band con cert is to be held and the annual Commencement exercises of the graduating class of the college also will take place. Besides Governor Har rington, two of the country's most prominent public men have been extended invitations to speak.

Despite the exigencies of war, 20 men are in the senior class to receive degrees and six are to finish the two year course and receive certificates Those who receive degrees are: Joseph Leiter Aitcheson, Kenneth Warren Babcock, Homer Sidney Ber lin, Chester Frederick Bletsch, Milton Carroll Brown, Howard Owen Coster. Edwin Walker Hand, Walter Roberts Hardisty, Grace Bruce Holmes, Paul Valentine Horne, Ransom Rush Lewis Erston Vinton Miller, George Wesley Norris, Charles Edwin Payne, Kenneth Carlisle Posey, Earle Milton Sawyer Robert Lee Sellman, James Wilmer Stevens, George Ray Stuntz, Cecil Har low Bacon

Those who will receive certificates for the two-year courses in agriculture are: Emory Bryan Cockran, Thomas Dail Holter, Kurt Frederick Menzel Phillip Stevens Richardson, Henry Lafayette Umbarger, Hugh Roberts Wilmer.

Special arrangements have been effected for a trolley schedule from Washington, and several express trains from Baltimore to Washington and from Washington to Baltimore will stop at College.

Counties Making

The City Hustle

Baltimore Spurred To New Endeavor In Putting Over The Victory Loan.

From all over the State there come to the Maryland Victory Liberty Loan Committee reports of the most encouraging nature, forecasting an early clean-up of the quota of the loan assigned to each county.

The first counties that had the honor of going over the top were Garrett, Carroll and Frederick, and they are being followed quickly by others.

Stimulated by the example set by the rest of the State the city workers have gone to their task with renewed

When the word went along the line that the counties appeared to be outstripping the city in subscribing their quotas there was a general hustling around the city headquarters and the result of redoubled exertions was soon in evidence.

In some quarters it was feared that individuals would not have an opportunity to share in the purchase of bonds and would be without the honor of wearing buttons and displaying the loan emblem in their homes as the Maryland boys are coming home.

The boys are coming soon and they will be able to readily know which homes stuck to them to the last by the display of the Victory Loan emblems. This will be a far more encouraging sign than all the "welcome" posters that could be plastered over the side of a house.

Of course, it is universally known that this Victory Liberty Loan is, from the point of the investor, the best of all the war-time propositions. It is a short term-five year loan, and the interest rate is especially attract

But above all it stands for the success of the American arms in war. It represents the difference between Victory and defeat, and surely every one wants a share in the Victory

Remarkable Women Rulers.

Remarkable in many ways was Elizabeth Petrovna, empress of Russia, and daughter of Peter the Great. She died 157 years ago, after a reign of 20 years. While history knows her chief ly for her immorality, she left behind her monuments to her better nature the University of Moscow and the Academy of Fine Arts in Petrograd Empress Elizabeth's mother was the Empress Catherine, who had been the wife of a Swedish dragoon, and became the mistress of several men before Peter the Great married her. Her daughter, Elizabeth Petrovna when she ruled Russia, once became so mortified by one of the jests of Frederick the Great that she made war on the witty Prussian king, and until her death Russia was one of his most dangerous enemies.

Ant's Sweet Tooth.

One of the greatest pests that haunt our orange groves is the Argentine ant, and yet it never goes near the trees. Every bit of the damage it does indirectly. It seems that it has a very sweet tooth and is abnormally fond of a honey dew that is secreted by certain mealy bugs and scales that are most injurious, and it will go to any lengths to protect them from being destroyed or harmed in any way

In Louisiana they have discovered a way of trapping these ants. They construct nests and when they all congregate there, as they will in rainy weather, they can destroy them.

In California they poison them with poison syrup. When they are once gone it is easy enough to deal with their friends.

When Twelfth Street Loves

By JEROME G. BEATTY

(Copyright.)

Everybody who was anybody on Twelfth street knew that when Terry Malone got to be a dealer on the L. C. Way, Mary Donohue would stop mak-Ing out checks at the Anti-Trust laundry substation and begin light housekeeping in a three-room flat on Four-

Terry had been a capper on the L. C. Way three summers, and there never was a better capper than Terry, according to "Honest Bill" Cannan, who owned the gambling privileges on the "pleasure steamer." For two dollars a day Terry sailed with the steamer every afternoon and every night, and on each trip won from $100 to $1,000 at the roulette-wheel, the spindle, and the Klondike game. And at the end of each trip, before Honest Bill would let him off the boat Terry would give back all the money he had won.

Terry's first knowledge of gambling had come when he was lookout for the poker game in the rear of his father's saloon, and was known to the big gamblers as a likely kid. The dealer at the spindle game on the L. C. Way was going to quit to run a handbook, and Honest Bill had promised the job

It paid five dollars a day and was easy work-for a battery on a spindle is not difficult to operate, and after a few moments' practice even an amateur could make Honest Bill's whirling arrow do things a self-respecting, wellbehaved arrow would not think of do-

Twelfth street was proud of Terry and his employer, for Twelfth street had a code of morals all its own. It labeled Terry as an honest, hard-working young man-for, as far as Twelfth street knew, Terry never had robbed a house or dragged an intoxicated man down an alley. With Twelfth street gambling was an honored professiona contest of wits.

Terrance Malone was proud of Mary -and who wouldn't be? Her dark brown hair always was dressed just so, and her eyes laughed continually at her little Irish nose. Her mouth was a little impertinent, perhaps; but Twelfth street itself is impertinent.

The young men brought their laundry to Mary's office, and stopped to talk fashions and actors and baseball with her. Mary was an expert on all three subjects, and was willing to chat and smile with all of them-for she was paid on a percentage basis. But to all invitations to dinner or to theaters she had the same answer:

"Sorry, but there's no chance." And she would flash in their eyes the two and one-sixteenth carat engagement ring that had cost Terry $7.87 at a Brazilian diamond emporium.

Then came the "New Deal," as the newspapers called it. A cyclone of civic righteousness swept the city, driving out the chief of police and the commissioners that had appointed him. The criminals were notified to leave town. Honest Bill and his friends were classed right in with the second-story workers, much to the honest indignation of both parties concerned. The L. C. Way was turned into a picnic steamer and Terry was out of a job.

Honest Bill saw what was coming, and got from under. He settled down in his flat, began to become acquainted with his wife and family, and prepared to run for alderman of the Second

But Terry couldn't stay.

"I'll be back soon," he promised Mary, bravely stifling a desire to take a long, deep breath and crowd down something that was sticking in his throat.

"And I'll wait forever, Terry." Mary vowed. Terry went to Chicago where, his friends told him, the going was good. But it wasn't. He wrote every dayfor several days. He became discouraged in a strange city, and he longed for Mary and for Twelfth street.

Mary's letters were as cheering as hours of editing could make them. She kept him informed as to the elean-up. and warned him that, although she would give anything to see him, he'd better keep away. Several of the boys who had stayed were in jail awaiting

"I'd rather be in jail in Kansas City than be mayor of Chicago," was Terry's answer. But he stayed in Chi-

Everything was all right until Mr. Spike Kelley, first baseman and champion hitter, began a crusade against corporations by taking his shirts and collars to the Anti-Trust laundry.

Mr. Kelley, who was distinguished by the fact that he never wore the same necktie twice in the same week, always brought and called for his launels with the team. Mary's letters to Terry began to contain more and more warning of what the police would do to him if they caught him.

Terry in the meantime had obtained a permanent address, and was clerking in a Chicago clothing store. He had tried gambling, but had had no

Terry was writing regularly to Mary, and never did he suspect that his sweetheart had subscribed to the paper that issued a rink sporting extra and that she had traded autographed photographs with Mr. Kelley.

Neither did he know that Honest Bill again was a respected citizen, and that, the reform wave over, Twelfth street contentedly was saying: "I told you His information came from Mary's letters, and he had an idea that honest citizens were being sent to the penitentiary for matching for carfare.

The green baseball diamond was winning the fight from the green gambling table. Mary was puzzling her brain every few moments, wondering how she would break the news to Terry that she had promised to marry Mr. Kelley.

Kelley was known on Twelfth street as a "swell fellow and a grand dresser," and he was proud of his reputation. He liked to tell his fellow baseball players about his conquests with womankind, and he had announced that he had a girl he had taken away from "a big Chicago gam-

In place of Terry's diamond, Mary was wearing an engagement ring set with a topaz which Mr. Kelley said was her birthstone, and therefore much more appropriate than a dia-

Mary still liked Terry very, very much, and she kept putting off sending the message that she knew would pain him. She stifled her worry by working "Ks" in fluffy things, and continued to write Terry love letters, telling him that she loved him dearly, but that the police were still looking for people to put in jail.

One afternoon, just after she had returned from a ball game in which Kelley had struck out twice when men were on bases, in came Mr. Davenport, one of Mary's regular cus-

Then came a surprise. "I'm shy a shirt," Mr. Davenport

"It can't be, Mr. Davenport," Mary replied, decisively. "All the parties that bring laundry in here get all of it back. I check it myself."

Mr. Davenport insisted, and Mary became angry. "You might have put it in another package," he suggested. "All my customers are honest men, Mr. Davenport," she replied with a toss of her big pompadour, which Twelfth street said was all her own; "and if they had got a shirt that wasn't theirs they would have returned it.

What kind of a shirt was it?" Mr. Davenport explained that it was a soft silk shirt for which he had paid three dollars. He had had it laundered twice, he said, and it was blue, with little white horseshoes in it.

Mary remembered it. Did it have a red stain just below the second but-

He considered for a moment. It did. Mr. Davenport had bought it for half price because of that stain. "Well, it hasn't been lost here," Mary assured him with a finality that meant just what she said.

There was no chance for argument, so Mr. Davenport departed. 'Mary told herself that she was an abused girl and that no gentleman ever would have come in and accused her of making a mistake in returning one's laundry. She worked herself into such a temper that she decided that now was the time to write to Terry and tell him that she loved another, but that she always would be Terry's, very best friend. Her ending was:

"Remember it's best for us both, "Always, "Mary.

"P. S .- The police are still on the M."

She regarded the letter a long time. Finally she sealed it and laid it on the cash register so she would be sure to remember to mail it. She sat down and regarded it intently and question-

The atmosphere cleared when Mr. Kelley came in.

"Hi, Mary," he said.

"Hi, Spike," she smiled.

He slipped an arm round her, drew her back where they couldn't be seen from the street and kissed her. Her head nestled on his big chest a moment and then she pushed him back with a cry.

Her face had rested on a blue silk shirt with white horseshoes on it, and one of her eyes almost had touched a red stain below the second button. "Get out of here, you-you," her voice choked and she beat him with

"What's the matter?" said Mr. Kel-

Mary dragged the topaz ring off her finger and threw the circlet of gold at Then she pushed the wondering, startled Mr. Kelley, who was too surprised to resist, out onto the sidewalk, slammed the door and locked it. Covering her face with her hands she dropped into a chair. Just for a moment she sat there. Suddenly she looked up at the letter on the cash register, and, as if in fear the letter might elude her, she jumped up, grasped it in both hands and tore It

From the cash drawer she took the two and one-sixteenth carat ring, and with a little joyous laugh, kissed it and slipped it on the third finger of her

It is the hour of the necklace. All that has gone before is as nothing to what now exists. And, mind you, the necklace is not of precious stones. There are few well dressed women who wear any precious stones about the neck except pearls. Diamonds hold a place with some, but they are not considered among well dressed women as an ornament of parts. Costly they are, it is true, and in unique settings of carved platinum they have their place, but the bare, bald, crude diamond necklace is a bit blatant for the fastidious woman. She prefers pearls, and so it seems does every other woman who can buy a string, from six dollars up.

If the attention of the latter class is turned toward the barbaric necklaces, it may be that they will quickly fall into disuse; but one thing is certain, which is that six dollars will go a short way toward purchasing one of the rare necklaces of the hour.

An individual designer of clothes in New York found himself the fortunate possessor of a half dozen necklaces which he had seen in an antique shop, where they were thrown over a string in the back of the store. He immediately purchased them. Then the French fashion found its way across the ocean into America, and the designer attached his necklaces to costly gowns, either at the neck or at the waistline, and they added to the price he asked for the garment.

Strings of Pearls Allowed to Hang

The French designers have brought back into fashion huge necklaces from an ornamental past. They are not made of jewels, yet they are costly, and the supply of fine ones rapidly diminishes. LESSON FOR MAY 4

MAN MADE IN THE IMAGE OF GOD.

LESSON TEXTS—Genesis 21:26-23; Ephesians 4:20-24; Genesis 2:7-9.
GOLDEN TEXT—God created man in his own image.—Gen. 1:27.
DEVOTIONAL READING—Psalms 8.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God Our Creator and Father

JUNIOR TOPIC—What God Expects
From His Children.
INTERMEDIATE TOPIC—Loyalty to Our Heavenly Father.
SENIOR AND ADULT TOPIC—The Dignity and Worth of Man.

I. The Creation of Man (Gen. 1:26

1. Time-when the earth, his home, was ready for him. The order in creation shows design on the part of God. He anticipated man's need in storing the coal in the earth, piling up minerals in the rocks, storing electricity everywhere, causing the water to gush from the valleys and hillsides, preparing plants and herbs for the healing of man's injuries and food and raiment adapted to every climatic condition.

2. His nature (vv. 26, 27). He was created in the likeness and image of God. This act was preceded by a special counsel of the Godhead. It was said, "Let us make man." This precludes the foolish and wicked assumption that man ascended from or through the brute. He came into being by a special creative act of God. This creative act is confirmed by Christ (Matt. 19:4; Mark 10:6). With such testimony we can dismiss the evolution theory as to man's origin as a human vagary. This likeness and image is not physical and bodily, but intellectual. (Eph. 4:24), and moral, (Col. 3:10). Man is spirit, soul and body (1 Thess. 5:23). God's likeness is reflected in man's tripartite nature. As there is a trinity and unity in God, so there is a trinity and unity in man. Spirit is the highest part of man, that which makes it possible for him to know God. The soul is man's selfconscious life, the seat of his emotions and desires. The body is the seat of the senses, the agency by which he knows the world. God made man with a personality capable of having fellowship with himself, with whom he could share his glory.

3. His rank and power (vv. 26, 28). Man, the last in creation, was placed above all else, over all the rest of creation. Being in the likeness and image of God, he was fitted to rule. How far short man comes of living up to the position given him by the Creator! The first man was not a savage, neither a baby. Fresh from the Creator's hands he possessed such lofty powers of intellect as to enable him to name the beasts as they passed before bim, (Gen. 2:19, 20).

Alone in Paradise (Gen. 2:7-9).

Adam had a most beautiful place in which to live. "Pleasant to the eyes, and good for food" describes his surroundings. His environment was in keeping with his nature. Eden was only fit for him in an unfallen state. As soon as his nature was wrecked. out he must go. Paradise with all its splendor could not satisfy man. His heart was desolate. Reciprocal love is the only thing that can satisfy the heart of man. Animals of all varieties surrounded him, but none were adapted to be his companions. To accentuate this need God caused the animals to pass before Adam. He was differentiated from all the animals in that he was a personality. He was endowed with the power of love, therefore only a being who could love in return could satisfy him. To meet this need woman was made for man. They had minds alike; they had spiritual natures alike; therefore they could commune together about the things that surrounded them and about God.

Man was made from the dust of the ground and woman was taken from his side. She is therefore one remove further from the earth than man. The fact that woman was made from man's rib points to unity, similarity and equality. God charged this first pair with the responsibility of replenishing the earth, (Gen. 1:28). Marriage is a divine institution and most sacred; for God made them male and female and performed the first marriage ceremony. In view of this, polygamy and divorce are grossly criminal. Marriage is the fountainhead of all life, religious, social and national, therefore corruption here is most fatal.

A Joy Forever. An aspiration is a joy forever. To have many of these is to be spiritually rich.—Stevenson.

Motives. Mr. Gladstone was once heard to remark that if all the wits of men were to be united in one brain, that man would be unable to appraise with perfect justice any single moral action. "The shades of the rainbow," he wrote, "are not so nice, the sands of the seashore are not such a multitude, as are the subtle, shifting, blending forms of thought and of circumstances that go to determine the character of one act. But there is one that seeth plainly and judgeth righteously."

HE FINISHED THE JOB

Unique in the annals of war loan history is the case of A. F. Moon, Jr. cashier of the Cartersville Bank, Car tersville, Va. He has already secured subscriptions for the entire allotmen of his bank. This is the first bank in the Fifth Federal Reserve District which has made such a record, so far as is known.

"I am working night and day for my town, county, state and nation," de clared Mr. Moon. "At the close of the Fourth Liberty Loan campaign, 1 thought it would be a good idea to keep the ball rolling, so instead of stopping I went straight ahead and continued getting subscriptions for the Fifth Loan. Our bank sold $35,000 of the Fourth issue, which is more than double its quota, and I was so much encouraged over that record that I de cided to start right to work on the

"Up to date, we have subscriptions for more than $20,000 Victory Bonds but we are not through yet and ex pect to go right ahead and try to double this if possible. The argumen I used was simply that the Victory Loan was needed by my Government and that it was up to every man to finish the job by paying the bills for a victory which would have beer cheap at double the price.

Mr. Moon said he didn't know much about the terms, interest rates of other details of the Victory Loan and didn't care, going on the assumption that the loan would be a good proposition in any shape offered.

Rep rts are wide-spread that some them at prices lower than their mar ket value. Investigations show that ing to induce people to part with their government securities. Many of them are offering to take Liberty bonds in exchange for other so-called ty" which promises a higher rate of interest than Liberty Bonds.

It is pointed out by treasury offi cials that Liberty Bonds are worth every dollar paid for them. One evi dence of their value is the eagerness of the speculator to get possession of them. He knows what they are worth. The Liberty Bond owner does not know the value of the "stock" or "bond" he is offered in exchange for his government security.

Liberty bonds have back of them the entire resources of the United States which makes them worth their face value. The person who ex clanges them for some other kind or paper risks losing the money invest ed in his bond as well as the inter

Other people are selling their bonds because they feel that "the war's over" and they are no longer obligat ed to hold them. Although fighting has ceased, the war will not be over until the peace treaty is signed and our soldiers are home. A Liberty Bond is a certificate of service and the person who sells it at a sacrifice except in cases of extreme necessity is failing to "carry on." He is re flecting on his own patriotism and surrendering an investment tha, never will fail to pay returns. It is recognized that there are times when investors are compelled to seek relief from financial distress Often their first impulse is to dis pose of their Liberty Bonds. In such cases the bank is the place to go Banks will lend money on Liberty Bonds. The borrower is helped out of his difficulty and does not lose possession of his government bond.

Barber knew, though, some day would be rainy,

So he shaved and he shaved And he saved and he saved-And bought bonds.-Now they call Blaney brainy.

Lieutenant Cummin's case is only one of many, but it stands out because of the popular superstition that a man can't live if his neck is broken. The reconstruction surgeons at Letterman are working on hundreds of cases much more difficult than the

They are receiving men there daily from the battlefields of France, whose legs and arms hang withered and helpless and they are turning these men out, after months of treatment and patient mechanical manipulation, able to use their arms and legs and capable of making a living. The cost, of course, is tremendous when one takes into consideration the fact that the same work is being carried on in many military hospitals.

More Money Needed. Already Congress has appropriated millions of dollars to carry on the work and many millions more will have to be made available for the tause. For it is a cause, this regeneration of the men who gave their bodies to their country.

Part of the money to be realized from the Victory Liberty Loan will be used for this job of reconstruction or regeneration. Think of this when you are making up your mind as to how much of the loan you, personally, are going to subscribe.

Lieutenant Cummins made a flight with his collar on just to convince himself that he hadn't lost his nerve. We can't afford to lose our nerve on a dollar and cents proposition in the face of the deeds of such men.

We are frequently asked "When is electric light coming to town ?" Our answer is always the same-"Don't know." For a possibility of so much importance as this, it is certainly not seeking much advertising in advance.

Six and eleven cent ice creams and sodas, and a cent or two added on many other small articles, since Thursday, will cause an extra demand Day both in the way of business for "coppers," and they will play a big part in meeting the hard-upness of Uncle Sam.

Chas. E. H. Shriner has bought the Harvey E. Ohler lots, on Baltimore St., and is preparing to build a double dwelling thereon. This is the second dwelling to be built in this row, this Summer. What might have been a disastrous fire was prevented by good fortune, last Saturday evening, about dark. It appears that a boy of the town, who is credited to have been connected with other misdemeanors, is said to have started a fire under the Fertilizer Warehouse of the Taneytown Grain & Supply Co., using some signal fuses and other property belonging to the Railroad Co. Manager Frank E. Crouse of the G. & S. Co., fortunately discovered the fire before it had gained much headway. Had this building burned, the whole plant of the Company would likely have been destroyed, as well as other property in that section of the town.

An interesting union meeting was held in the Presbyterian Church, on Wednesday night, in advocacy of the work of the Lord's Day Alliance, of Maryland. The offering taken will be forwarded to the Alliance. The opinion was freely expressed that there is ample room in Taneytown for a closer observance of the Lord's transactions, and otherwise.

Roll of Honor of Marylanders.

The Historical Division, Maryland Council of Defense, some time ago sent out a form of "War Service Record" to the family of each name on the roll of Marylanders who lost France, returned this week, and is at their lives in the service. A great many of these records have not yet been returned. The Historical Division requests that the records be returned now. If further information is obtained later, it may be sent in, and will be added to the record. Do not write to Washington for information, but fill out the records as well as possible from information otherwise obtainable; the Historical Division at the proper time will use the records in Washington to complete the State records.

The "Roll of Honor" must be made complete and correct, for the State war history records and for inscription on a memorial. Prompt return of the records is particularly desired in order that presentation of the State certificate of honor may be made to the family. These certificates, engraved on parchment, are ready, signed by the Governor and by the Chairman of the Maryland Council of Defense.

Record is desired of every person once a Marylander, even though later removed from the State, who died in the war, in whatever branch of service in or with the military or naval forces of the United States or of the Allies, whether death was in battle of disease or by accident, whether overseas or in this country, whether before or after the entry of the United States into the war.

The Historical Division mailed a 'War Service Record" for every name on the roll of honor if there was a sufficient address known. In any case where no form of "War Service Record" has been received, it will indicate that the Historical Division has not the name, or has no mailing address. It is earnestly requested that omissions be reported at once, with name and address of next of kin. The address of the Historical Division is 725 Fidelity Building, Baltimore, Md.

Forget What You Have Done.

Uncle Sam is no more able to pay his present debts with money you lent in previous loans than he was able to meet a prevailing situation on the battlefront in France with men who had already given their lives in previous drives. Forget what you have done. When the American soldier was called upon for another attack, he didn't think of what he had done, but of what he had to do. The American citizen is called upon now to prove himself worthy of what the boys did in France.

Even when victory was remote the men on the battlefields went on with enthusiasm. The people at home were equally enthusiastic in contributing funds although they did not know how many more times they would be called upon. Victory was their objective. They were as determined to reach it as were the American soldiers.

How much more enthusiastic should the nation be over this present drive —the Victory Liberty Loan dirve! The objective has been reached sooner than expected. This is the last Liberty Loan.

The American people are not going to fall back either. They are going further ahead this time than ever before.
