FIRST AERIAL TRIP ACROSS ATLANTIC.

The American Navy Wins the Honor of the Flight.

The NC-4 Seaplane, Commander Read, landed at Lisbon, Portugal, on Tuesday, being the first aerial trip across the Atlantic. The total time of the trip, not counting stops, was 26 hours and 40 minutes.

The start was made from Newfoundland, May 8, the first flight being 1320 miles to Horta, Azores islands, in 13 hours and 18 minutes. Owing to unfavorable weather and the need for some repairs, the last leg of the trip was not made until May 27, when the remaining 786 miles were made in 9 hours and 43 minutes.

The English flyer, H. G. Hawker, who attempted a northern route, when about 12½ hours out, was compelled to land in the open sea, due to motor troubles, and after several hours in the water was picked up by a Danish steamer.

To the American Navy, therefore, belongs the credit for the first trans-Atlantic trip. Several other American planes that started the same time as the NC-4, failed to get across, due to various troubles, but all have been accounted for without loss of life.

The sea-plane used was designed by American engineers, built by American workmen, propelled by American motors and manned by American officers. The trip will be continued from Lisbon to England.

As to Higher County Taxes.

The County Commissioners of this county have taken the public into their confidence in a straight-forward open letter to the public, indicating the increased needs of the county, and the necessity for an increase in tax rate. There is not much to be said in the matter, other than this. There can be no valid objection to increased taxes when conditions demand them, and when unnecessary expenditures are eliminated, and all of the affairs of the county are economically administered.

There is this, however, that can be said, and should be considered. The demands both for new school buildings, and more state roads, are apt to be community demands in order to "keep up to" other communities that happened to be a little forehanded in securing such improvements before the time of abnormal costs of construction; and communities that find themselves behind in the procession, should curb their natural ambitions awhile until cost conditions recede.

Better roads and better schools are sure to come, in time, but they need not come all at once. Public improvements of this sort should not come any faster than tax-payers, as individuals, are willing to improve their homes and private property. The argument that improvements "cost too much" now, is as good for the county as it is for the private citizen.

Therefore, whether as individuals appealing for public improvements, or as public officials handling the county's funds, the individual judgment, as carried out in one's own affairs, should now apply, and not the easier expedient of spending "somebody else's" money, simply because there are those insistent in that direction.

Clock Time vs. Sun Time.

The fight is on again, in Congress, to repeal the so-called "Daylight saving law." Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, is the chief champion for repeal in the Senate, and as the agricultural interests are largely back of the repeal movement, the fight is likely to be a strong and interesting one.

The Record has never been able to see anything but "make believe" in the new law—a sort of game to play the clock against habits—to fool people into getting up earlier in the morning, in order that they may do a day's work, and have a longer evening for resting, or pleasure.

The city folks, as a rule, like the new law, even though 8:00 A. M. is really 7:00 A. M., and adjust themselves to the make-believe with a great deal of apparent relish. To a large portion of our population, the law cuts no figure at all, as they can adjust their hours to suit themselves, and are not bound by any year-around schedules.

Farmers are mostly in this same class, except that those engaged in milk-shipping must meet morning trains, which means out of bed at 3:30 to 4:00 A. M., or 2:30 to 3:00 o'clock, Sun time. Taking the country as a whole, we think sentiment is in favor of Sun time, but the whole controversy is not worth going to war over.

Republican Senators asserted that Congress has no intention of entangling the league-of-nations issue with the naval program. Congress will decide for itself, regardless of anything Secretary Daniels may say, just what it believes the country needs in the way of a naval policy. This is the attitude Congress will take on every item of legislation affecting the government President Wilson and the members of his cabinet may recommend what they choose. Congress will listen patiently and then go ahead according to its own ideas.

HIGH-SCHOOL FARMERS

Do You Want a Boy This Summer
For Farm Work?

The U. S. Boys' Working Reserve is now making preparations to place several hundred large able-bodied high school boys, of Baltimore, on Maryland farms, for the summer. They are from 16 to 21 years of age, able to be of real service, and many of them are capable of doing a man's share of work. These young men are carefully selected and vouched for by the school authorities, are of good character, desirous to be of service, and are such boys as any farmer may feel safe in taking into his own home and family. They are more intelligent and quick to learn their duties than the average class of emergency farm help available.

About 500 of these young men were sent out last year and performed very satisfactory work. We shall probably have about the same number to place at the service of Maryland farmers this season. They will be ready to go out to work about June 12th. If you will need help after that date these young men can probably meet your needs. Applications for their service should be made early so that Reserve officers can make careful selection of boys needed.

All boys are sent out subject to the following conditions: Farmer is to pay transportation of boys from Baltimore City to the farm, and return fare when his service is completed. Boys with any experience at farm work are to be paid $30.00 per month, as well as being provided with board and lodging. Boys with no farm experience receive in addition to board and lodging, $7.50 for the first two weeks work, and $30.00 per month thereafter. These terms are for farmers who employ boys continuously for at least six weeks. For short periods of service the rate is $1.00 per day in addition to board, lodging and transportation.

No boys will be furnished to farmers until the State Board of Health has inspected the farm and reported that it is a safe and healthy place for boys to work. This is a necessary precaution as parents of boys of this type are not willing to allow their boys to go out to work unless assured that working conditions are satisfactory.

Frederick County Lutherans Organize

In the Sunday School building of the Lutheran Church of Frederick, on Tuesday evening, a Brotherhood was organized for the purpose of federating the men's organized adult classes of the Lutheran congregations of Frederick county. About 200 men were present, representing all the charges of the county but two. A delegation of visitors from Westminster filled two automobiles. Other visitors included Rev. Carl Mumford, of Baltimore; Geo. W. Yeiser, of Union Mills, and Rev. L. B. Hafer, of Taneytown.

After several addresses and music by the Sunday School choir, the organization was launched by the executive committee, which is to arrange for further meetings and work. The committee consists of W. W. Doub, of Middletown, as chairman, and one representative from each school in the county.

Marylanders Coming Home.

The 313th Regiment landed yesterday, and the 115th and 112th are on the way. The transports are the Antigone and the Paysander, and by Saturday all are expected to be on American soil again. Some will be sent to Camp Dix, and others to Camp Meade. By these arrivals, perhaps, most of the Carroll county boys will be home.

A great many of the wives, mothers and sweethearts, have gone to the various landing places—when definitely informed—to meet the home-coming boys.

More Marylanders have also arrived in New York, on the Luckenbach—members of the 311th artillery and 312th machine gun battalion.

Pennsylvania R. R. Tracks 27,795 Miles.

The annual record of transportation lines of the Pennsylvania Railroad system, which has just been issued, shows that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and the corporations controlled and associated in interest with it, both east and west of Pittsburgh, own a total of 11,942 miles of railroad line. All of these lines are temporarily in governmental possession and operation.

Of the total mileage, 3,937 miles are double track. 850 miles are three track, and 648 miles are four track. The total trackage of the system, including sidings and yards, is 27,795 miles.

In addition to the railroad lines specified, the system owns 70 miles of ferries and canals.

The title to the various portions of the railroad mileage constituting the Pennsylvania System is lodged in The Pennsylvania Railroad Company proper and 113 subsidiary railroad corporations.

East of Pittsburgh the Pennsylvania system owns 6,549 miles of line and 15,851 miles of track. West of Pittsburgh it owns 5,393 miles of line and 11,944 miles of track.

It is now stated that if the Peace League fails in the Senate, President Wilson will likely run for a third term, in order to vindicate himself before the country, and the world.

MR. LOWNDES COMES BACK AT MR. TAIT.

Declines to be a Candidate, and Suggests a State Conference.

Several months ago a body of citizens of Howard county called on W. Bladen Lowndes, at his home, urging him to become a Republican candidate for nomination for Governor. Mr. Lowndes was likely in a receptive mood, but he was practically notified, through the press, by Chairman Tait of the State Central Committee, to "keep off," and later a James A. Gary, Jr., boom was launched, apparently with the O. K. of the Tait-Jackson-Weller combination.

The Howard-countians came back, last Saturday, with another meeting at Mr. Lowndes' home, at which time he stated his conclusion not to enter the race, saying it was evident that he could not be nominated without a severe party fight, and that he believed such a fight would be injurious to the party's chances; and advised that leading men of the party, without regard to factions, hold a State and city conference for the purpose of bringing about harmony and proposing a candidate likely to lead to victory. He said in part:

"I have striven to ascertain the opinion of members of the party, and whilst flattered by tenders of support from every county of the State and every district of Baltimore city, I find unalterable opposition to my candidacy from certain leaders of the party, who, as you know, have already selected another gentleman for that office."

"This evidences the determination of the sponsors of that gentleman to serve notice on any other prospective candidate to 'keep off,' and upon failure to do so to clearly understand that the power of the 'organization,' at least so far as they control it, would be used to crush him."

"Having no desire to engage in a primary fight, even against a gentleman who is but 32 years of age, as shown by the registration books of the precinct in which he is a voter, and without experience in public affairs, and being fully cognizant of the absolute necessity of the nomination of a candidate without turmoil, I have deemed it wise and to the best interest of the party not to become a candidate for the office in question."

"I am deeply grateful for the offer of your support, but, nevertheless, I feel that under the circumstances stated you will concur in this decision."

"Recalling the unanimity of support given Mayor Broening by all factions of the party in the recent Baltimore city primaries, followed by his triumphant election a few days ago, I beg to submit that there will be found much good sense in the calling of a State and city-wide conference of Republicans—the thoughtful men of our party; it matters not with what faction they have been heretofore allied—for the purpose of bringing harmony to the party and suggesting as a candidate a man who is capable of leading us to victory, and who also has the qualifications to handle the great questions that will come before him if elected."

Should the "organization"—generally conceded to be Mr. Weller, and Mr. Jackson—conclude to stand by Mr. Gary, he will likely be "put over," which may, or may not, mean harmony. The peculiar thing about the situation is that there seems to be little criticism of Mr. Gary, save that he is rather young, and not widely experienced, the objection largely being against the manner of his boasting, which of course includes the lecturing of ex-Gov. Goldsborough.

Mr. Tait has countered in a published statement, claiming that the recent achievements of the regular organization entitle it to management of party affairs, rather than an "unofficial conference; and in general advises against having anything to do with Mr. Lowndes' advice, strongly intimating that the "duly elected State and National representatives" can safely take charge of Republican affairs in the State. And so, the "hatchet" is still "unburied."

Still another chapter to the situation, follows Mr. Tait's announcement which is to the effect that a group of prominent Republicans of the state and city, have arranged for a "harmony" conference on June 4th., several of the men having been mentioned as gubernatorial possibilities; which may, or may not, mean that all will not be left to "the organization" to decide. The list includes such men as George R. Gaither, Stevenson A. Williams, John K. Shaw, and J. Kemp Bartlett—apparently such men as are not tied to either the Weller-Jackson-Tait, or to the Goldsborough-Lowndes factions.

Court Opens Next Monday.

The Circuit Court convenes next Monday, June 2, when the trial of Mrs. James F. Kiser for shooting her husband, will be taken up. Through a misunderstanding, and an error on the part of this office, we incorrectly announced, last week, that Court would convene on Monday of this week.

A continued shortage of sugar is reported, which may mean a scarcity during the canning season. A heavy European demand is believed to be partly responsible for the scarcity of raw sugar coming to this country.

FOOD PRICES SCORED.

Congressman Says Food Prices Are a Hardship on People.

Washington, May 27.—Food profiteers were denounced in the House by Representative Fitzgerald, Democrat, of Massachusetts, formerly Mayor of Boston, who declared it was the paramount duty of Congress to find out as speedily as possible what the food situation in the country was and whether the government was conniving at cornering prices by heavy reserve storage. In this connection he referred to the large surplus stocks of meat products ordered for the army and held by the War Department.

The holding of vast quantities of food by the army, the soaring price of wheat above the $2.26 mark, and efforts of the government to export large quantities of food, have resulted in hardships to the American people, Mr. Fitzgerald declared.

In one part of the United States alone, said the speaker, the War Department has 100,000 cans of beef and 50,000,000 pounds of bacon in storage, which, if thrown on the market, would be a big factor in lowering prices. He also gave figures on poultry, asserting that while prices of May 1, 1919, were 25% to 50% above those of May 1, 1918, storage stocks for the same period showed these increases: Broilers, 240%; roasters, 107; fowls, 279, and poultry, 290.

Mr. Fitzgerald said he had tried to obtain information from Mr. Barnes, federal grain administrator, as to why wheat prices were considerably above the $2.26 guaranteed price, with the greatest wheat crop in history in sight, but had failed.

"Congress, in fairness to the workers, should see that the $2.26 price is both a minimum and a maximum," he said. "With an exportable surplus of at least 500,000,000 bushels this can be easily be done by closing the export doors."

THE GERMAN REPLY RECEIVED IN PARIS.

No Translation made, Consequently Terms are Unknown.

The full text of the German reply to the peace terms was received in Paris yesterday, but has not been translated. It is very extensive, and is said to be full of counter claims and proposals. Until it is translated, nothing can be determined as to its character; but it is believed that rather than invite further war and invasion, the terms will finally be accepted, although the present reply may not go so far.

The allies are ready to enforce the blockade against Germany, in case the German delegates refuse to sign the peace treaty, while complete plans have been worked out for the fullest co-operation between the military and economic forces which will be employed in case of necessity.

Immediately following a failure of the Germans to sign the treaty, putting the Allied and associated governments to the necessity of acting, Germany will be given 72 hours' notice of the termination of the armistice. On the expiration of this period the British, French and Americans will advance into Germany. Simultaneously the blockade will be enforced as tightly as possible.

All the arrangements perfected during the war to protect as far as possible the interests of neutral nations, while preventing the entry of food or raw material into Germany, again will be brought into play and Germany will find herself absolutely cut off from the rest of the world.

Locusts May Hurt Fruit.

A shortage in the apple, peach and other heavy fruit crops is to be expected as a result of the visitation of the 17-year locusts, according to State Forester Frederick W. Besley, who returned on Wednesday from an inspection tour of the Patapsco State Forest Preserve. During his trip Mr. Besley observed the numbers of the insects infesting the State woodland and said that the present brood promises to be as great as that of 17 years ago.

"The general impression that the 17-year locusts do great damage to crops is wrong and should be corrected," said Mr. Besley. "The larvae of the locust while underground eat the tender roots of green plants, but the damage from this source has never been known to be noticeable. The locust during its short and noisy lifetime eats almost nothing and millions in a patch of woodland will leave no trace of their foraging."

"The real damage done by the locust is done by the female. The male contents himself with flying about and singing while Mrs. Locust finds herself a convenient twig, makes a deep incision and deposits her eggs. This incision weakens the twig, renders it liable to disease and fungus and the next heavy windstorm is likely to blow it away."

"In the case of fruit trees, the fruit which is usually at the end of the limbs pulls the punctured twigs down until they are no longer able to stand the strain and break. In this way thousands of barrels of apples and other fruit are lost to Maryland farmers with every brood of the locust."

"There is no effective way to combat the pest. Whitewashing trees is of no avail and the wrapping of flypaper about the trunk merely kills a few hundred of the insects which climb the tree to shed their outer covering. These methods are hopeless because damage is done by the adult locust that flies to the trees and would not encounter the paper. Spraying kills such insects as happen to be on the tree at the time, but does no damage to the eggs. As soon as the spraying is over others will flock to the tree."—Balto. News.

The Hope of the "Wets."

If the electorate of Ohio refuses to ratify the national prohibition amendment at its general election next November the operation of the amendment will be suspended throughout the United States at least until the Maine election, in September, 1920, Theodore A. Bell, attorney for the California Grape Protective Association, announced on Wednesday.

"The referendum to place the measure on the ballot has been started in ten states, Mr. Bell said. "Forty-five states ratified the amendment through their Legislatures and three declined to do so. That means that the measure is held up in ten states by the referendum, leaving but thirty-five where final ratification has been effected, whereas thirty-six are necessary to make it operative."

"If Ohio, which will be the first state to vote on the referendum, ratifies it, the necessary thirty-six will have been gained."

"But if it declines, the amendment will be suspended until the next general state election in Maine, in September, 1920. The remaining general elections come in November, 1920."

The referendum now is progressing in California, Washington, New Mexico, Colorado, Nebraska, Missouri, Ohio, Arkansas, Michigan and Maine, Bell said.

Premier Lloyd George, of England, is booked to visit the United States, this fall, to attend the first session of the Peace Conference.

SATURDAY LEGAL HOLIDAY

Governor Names the Day for Welcoming Returning Soldiers.

Gov. Harrington has named Saturday a legal holiday—a day in which to welcome home returning soldiers. This will suit Baltimore, but not the counties. He declares in the title of the proclamation that the day is set aside "as the first holiday in honor of the Maryland troops returning from abroad."

Calling attention to the glorious upholding of Maryland's proudest traditions, and the adding of new lustre to the fame of the State, by Maryland's contribution of 60,000 men to the army and navy, of whom more than 40,000 went overseas, and to the plans made by the State, the reception committees and the people generally to give the returning warriors an appropriate welcome, the Governor concludes:

"I ask our people to make it a day of rejoicing, and of praise, and do all in their power to greet our heroes in the finest glow of gratitude, appreciation and happiness. From every home the flag should be displayed, and from every heart should proceed a thanksgiving that so many of our men have come back to us. Let us make Maryland's welcome the noblest celebration and the most loving greeting in the whole history of our beloved State."

A Disastrous Hail Storm.

A heavy fall of hail, with wind, visited Frederick and vicinity, last Friday afternoon, doing considerable damage to fruit trees and gardens, as well as to wheat fields. The hail, in places, was thick enough on the ground to be shoveled up. While the hail extended over a wide section it was much heavier and more destructive in some localities than in others.

J. W. King, living on the Harper's Ferry pike, near Jefferson, had his entire garden ruined, and all the fruit knocked off the trees. On the farm of Lee Ranneberger, between Jefferson and Fagaville, it cut the garden to pieces, knocked all the cherries, apples and peaches from the trees, and cut the wheat badly, taking about one-third of the crop. The gardens in and around Feagaville showed the effect of the fierce bombardment. Potato vines were cut off short, pea vines were beaten up, fruit trees were stripped of their burden.

Terrific damage was done on the farm known as the Lease farm, near Grove lime kilns. Grant Hooper, who is farming the place, reports a heavy loss. This is the third year that he has had hard luck from hail damage to the wheat. It is thought that cutting by hail was as severe in this locality as anywhere. The wheat is almost a total loss.

On the farm of E. T. Schaeffer, one mile west of Frederick Junction, the garden was an absolute ruin after the storm. The wheat was badly cut and bruised and the bean and grape vines were stripped and denuded. Prof. Amon Burgee, on the Baltimore pike, south of Frederick, had his entire garden destroyed, his corn cut next to the ground, and his hay and wheat badly damaged. On the Bellevue Farm, E. D. Michael proprietor, two light globes in front of the house were broken, the garden and cornfield practically wiped out, hay badly damaged and wheat cut off and bruised. It is estimated that he lost from one-third to one-half of his crops. Charles Zimmerman, down the Baltimore pike, is supposed to have lost his entire garden and three-fourths of his wheat.

Union Labor War on Mr. Ford.

Detroit, May 26.—The organized automobile workers of Detroit—and, in fact, the national organization—have opened war on Henry Ford. While it has been known for some time that the United Automobile, Aircraft and Vehicle Workers of America have been organizing Ford men for complete unionization, they now have come out into the open. Their official organ, the Auto Workers' News, has begun the attack on Mr. Ford.

The present attitude of the automobile workers finds its explanation in the part Mr. Ford is playing in the strike at the Wadsworth Manufacturing Company plant. This company makes sedan bodies for Ford cars. A few weeks ago the workers walked out, fewer than 300 persuaded 2700 to quit—because the management would not discharge the shop committees elected by the men themselves and substitute committees selected by the union outside the shop.

Immediately Mr. Ford supplied the Wadsworths with all the men he could spare. The result was that although the strikers insist a strike is on, more than 2000 men are at work, and the management announces it never will concede the unionization and union control of the plant.

Now the strikers declare they are out to "get the Ford plant." The Wadsworth plant has the Ford $6-a-day minimum wage plan and several other features of the Ford employment program.

The strike at the Timken-Detroit axle plant is still on, but the working force is being replenished gradually. The walkout at this plant also was the result of the company's refusal to substitute union shop committees for the committees elected by the men. The Timken does not intend to concede the point to the union.

The Republicans have started in Congress an investigation of the conduct and expense of the war.

Food prices for April are figured to have advanced 4 per-cent over those of March. What is the use of such statistics? Mere curiosity, perhaps, or the keeping of the record of a pleasurable experience—for some.

President Wilson's advocacy of lifting the ban on beer and wine, came suspiciously close after Mr. Gompers' appeal for beer and wine for the "working-man;" and adds color to the claim made by some that Mr. Gompers has a strong "pull" with the President's administration.

We wonder just how far, and in how many forms, the country will be introduced to new forms of "pension" legislation following the big war. It is rather disconcerting to measure the many bills following our own little Civil War, and to imagine their duplication and improvement in the years to come for application to the big affair.

Personal Opinions.

Personal opinions, especially when publicly expressed, deserve more care in their dispensing than they usually get. Some persons through a long course of mind-training, and natural conservatism, can almost instinctively give a worth-while—if not fully wise and conclusive—opinion, almost off-hand, even on important matters; but the average person, unless approached on a matter within his frequent experience, should be somewhat cautious in expression, if he considers his opinion of value.

Hasty conclusions are not only unwise, but often actually mischievous and harmful. The prolific and hasty critic, sooner or later, becomes well known—probably as an accurate sharp-shooter, or probably as a reckless one, dangerous to pin ones faith to. In any event, opinions that carry the most weight are those having back of them a reputation for care as to truthfulness, and for general stability and soundness of judgment.

When we go into court, we must abandon generalities and confine ourselves to facts and particulars. Mere opinions, based on hearsay, or on more or less ungrounded convictions, may answer as one's guide for personal impressions, but hardly for openly expressed opinions. When we come down to winning our point, we must specialize. Generalities and accumulated impressions will not answer.

So, there is such a thing as "cock-sureness" to be avoided. However strongly one may be grounded in an opinion, it is almost always possible that one does not have all of the evidence at hand. The difficulty with most of us is that we use the evidence we have, and base a sort of infallible conviction on it—in our own minds. As this is a very human limitation, after all, and as there may be others about us who happen to have a wider field for gathering evidence, the conclusion first stated herein seems to apply very generally.

Equal Suffrage Probable.

The equal suffrage constitutional amendment, that so quickly and easily passed in the House, last week, is apt to pass in the Senate, and the amendment be turned over to the States for adoption or rejection. It is one of the remarkable facts in legislation, that, as soon as a question ceases to be regarded with suspicion as being unpopular, it at once becomes in order to race-horse it through, in order to see which power can get on the popular side first.

Just what has brought about the conviction that equal-suffrage will be wise and popular, is difficult to determine, exactly. Surely, it was not the foolish militant stunts of the female extremists around the White House, during the past year; and surely the results following the exercise of equal suffrage in some of the States, have not been demonstrated as a high quality of leaven in the voting masses.

Perhaps it was the work of women in the war that turned the scale? There has been no discounting of the value of their assistance in this particular; and yet, the fact that women are par-excellence, as nurses, and as emergency helpers in general, does not necessarily prove that their natural accomplishments in this line also fit themselves to wisely handle the ballot, and enter the arena of general politics.

"Every man to his job" is a well-fitting expression. The man who can untangle intricate accounts, or write up, difficult legislation, is not apt to be a good "plow-man." A woman who is up in art and music, is not apt to make a valuable scrub-woman. So, without multiplying examples along this line, we feel as though we must remain in the doubting class as to whether women, with all of their splendid natural gifts, will prove equal to the obligation of making more easy and safe, the course of the ship of State, the action of our legislators to the contrary, notwithstanding.

Legislators, after all, become panic-stricken to get on the "popular" side—the side likely to get the most votes for themselves—and, when the time to make a break is ripe, and no dangerous constituency exists to blame them, and visit retribution on them, they bolt, like a flock of sheep.

Lost on "Demurrer."

In the Court proceedings, last week, a number of cases for selling merchandise on Sunday were lost on "demurrer" to the indictment. We are not positively informed as to the grounds of the "demurrer," but the report is that it was based on the claim that the county licenses merchants to "sell goods, wares and merchandise" for a period of one year, without excepting Sundays, consequently, the right is given to sell 365 days in a year, and that the county can not, therefore, impose a penalty for Sunday selling.

If this be true, as the cause of sustaining the demurrer, then there should be an appeal made to decide whether a county court has the legal right to issue a license for Sunday selling, in conflict with State laws relating to Sunday; either this, or the licenses themselves should be so worded as to except Sundays as business days.

Apparently, there is a "screw loose" somewhere, that Dr. W. W. Davis, of the Lord's Day Alliance, will take pleasure in tightening.

Do Your Best.

Everyone should do all he can to provide for his family, and in order to do this he must keep his family system in the best condition possible. No one can reasonably hope to do much when he is half sick a good share of the time. If you are constipated, bilious or troubled with indigestion get a package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and follow the plain printed directions, and you will soon be feeling alright and able to do a day's work.

Coined Words.

"Coined," or copyrighted made-up words, are now so common that we need a dictionary for them, not only as a means of satisfying curiosity, but perhaps for keeping us from infringing on somebody's private property. After a while it will become a difficult matter to place letters of the alphabet together safely, especially when we adopt them to business uses, even when we confidently think that we have formed a new jumble, expressively.

These words are usually short cuts to an entire sentence of words, using parts of each in so combining letters and sounds as to form a brief combination telling a lengthy story—a sort of picture word that appeals to the ear, if not the eye, and fix itself in our memory—in other language, a word that advertises, not only an article, but perhaps its use, or manufacturer, and is at the same time a warning to others not to attempt to steal it.

Some of these words are expressive and valuable "hits," while others are strained efforts, and it is the good specimens that has caused the rush. Making new words is very much like writing "proverbs"—easy enough to try, but rather difficult to displace Solomon's numerous specimens, to the extent that the modern efforts are not recognized as spurious.

"Smith's Pain Killer," may be a more sensible name for a preparation than "Smi-pakil," but if Mr. Smith is smitten with the word coinage fad, he would be hard to convince of the fact, especially when the former is not copyrightable. Therefore, considering the number of new things daily coming out—in order to meet the ever growing demand for new things—and the likelihood of a much larger growth in word coinage, we suggest to progressive publishers the advisability of rounding-up the collection, and making them into a "Cowordic."

For a Weak Stomach.

As a general rule all you need to do is to adopt a diet suited to your age and occupation and to keep your bowels regular. When you feel that you have eaten too much and when constipated, take one of Chamberlain's Tablets.

"Thank You" Never Hurts.

A small boy had a message to deliver to an elderly captain of industry.

Afterward the man of affairs met the boy's father.

"Your boy will succeed," he said sentimentally, "because he is polite."

One of the best features of the Boy Scout movement is that it teaches the market value of manners.

Of course it does not tell the growing lad that the forms of courtesy will put money in his pocket. It does not tell him that he can capitalize "Please" and "Thank you" in dollars and cents.

But it teaches him the lesson that the Beasts of the Jungle taught Kipling's child-hero, Mowgli—that a civil tongue in his head will carry him far.

It is such small trouble to use these ceremonies that require but the flicker of an instant of time.

And if more flies are caught with honey than with vinegar, have we not often seen how politeness wins where rudeness loses?

What is the use of rushing about the world knocking each other over in the hurlyburly of our eagerness to embrace an advantage, when the world resents such roughness and yields its prizes instead to those who are gracious and graceful?

Among the best of good manners is promptness.

Many persons save many of the sweetest virtues of character and "miss out" because they are too late.

They come when the party is over and the fiddlers have gone home, and there is nothing left for them but confusion and regret.

They attend a committee session long after it has assembled, figuring that everybody else will be late and so they might as well be dilatory too. They are amiable pests in society and business. They have to be ruled out when it comes to transactions that must be put through on time.

The American army abroad was an efficient army because it moved at the zero hour; it kept its appointments with the enemy and its "rendezvous with Death."

Another superior point to good manners is to listen.

He has not learned to live aright who interrupts in the middle of a sentence—any more than he who talks too long or too miscellaneous.

The world wants people in whom the world can repose its confidences and you cannot tell anything to people who listen with half an ear and half a mind.

A great leader of men and of measures declared that his rule for success could be put in one word, "Concentration."

He shut out from his mind the extraneous thoughts; he shut himself in with the main idea whenever he was considering a project.

So his thoughts moved arrow-swift to the mark, not to be diverted. When he listened the business of listening engaged him; and when he spoke he did nothing but speak. He didn't talk over the heads before him to posterity; he talked directly and flatly to those present.

A vastly successful shipbuilder and steel magnate knows the secret. When he is with you, he is with you only. He seems to be thinking of nothing and nobody else. You feel pleased and inwardly warmed, believing that your business must actually be of moment to this powerful personality. At once he has made a friend of you. When he wants you to do something you are likely to do it. His personality has a power that mere machinery can never attain.

Never will the human soul be put out of business in human affairs. "Things never yet created things." It takes people—real people—to stir people. Until the earth shrivels to a cinder and turns utterly cold—as long as our little speck of space is populated—personal influence will count, and in personal influence the deferential and considerate manners that are born of a genuine goodness of heart count primarily.—Phila. Ledger.

About Rheumatism.

People are learning that it is only a waste of time and money to take medicine internally for chronic and muscular rheumatism, and about ninety-nine out of a hundred cases are one or the other of these varieties. All that is really necessary to afford relief is to apply Chamberlain's Liniment freely. Try it. It costs but 35 cents per bottle. Large size 60 cents.

HERMIT OF NORTH ATLANTIC

Small Island of Eriskay, on Southern Coast of Scotland, Deserves the Appellation.

Just off the southern coast of Scotland the tiny island of Eriskay rises abruptly from the sea, as rocky and barren a bit of land as even the Scottish coast can show. The rough waters of the Atlantic beat angrily against its steep gray walls, or rush madly up the white-sanded beach of the western coast. Stormy winds sweep the tiny island from coast to coast in unbridled fury. Nature seems to cast herself in accumulated rage against Eriskay's few sparse acres.

The defenseless victim of storm and sea, this tiny scrap of an island is pathetic in its utter solitude. It is the hermit of the northern Atlantic, the recluse among islands. Its people, chiefly descendants of Jacobite refugees from Scotland, are a quiet folk—the ocean has taught them to endure in silence.

The treacherous rocks along the shore are the terror of the sailors of that part of the Atlantic. They dread and shun them as they would avoid wild beasts. Yet the island, barren and desolate, is sacred to every Scotsman. The sandy, wind-swept beach is holy ground to his heart. History tells how Prince Charlie, the hero of Scottish song and story, landed here when he came to recover his father's kingdom. The descendants of his faithful followers still call the tiny inlet the "Prince's bay."

The people fish and raise diminutive hens for their eggs, but even a hardy Scotsman would hesitate before attempting to eat an Eriskay chicken for his Sunday dinner.

SPECIAL DAYS FOR COURTING

Four Sundays in Month of November Devoted by Hollanders to Process of Matchmaking.

It is the usual thing with the Dutch to compress matchmaking in all its branches within the month of November, an exchange says. The four Sundays of the month mark the four stages of the courtship, and each is known by its individual name as "Review," "Decision," "Purchase" and "Possession" Sunday. On Review Sunday in a village the whole population lingers after church while the young people parade about, but shyly forbear to speak. Decision Sunday is a long step forward. After the service each bachelor approaches the maiden of his choice with a ceremonious bow. He must be shrewd, for from her manner of responding he is to judge whether it is the part of wisdom or of danger to make further advances. If the test of Decision Sunday is safely passed the suitor waits a week and on Purchase Sunday calls upon the parents of his beloved. With their approval he may appear on Possession Sunday as a prospective bridegroom. November is chosen as the fittest month of the year, because the hardest work of farming is over and the comfortable time of gathering the harvest is the merriest season of all.

Barrel as Novel Mousetrap.

When difficulty is encountered in ridding a place of mice by the ordinary methods, try this one, which is outlined by S. L. Bastin in Popular Mechanics Magazine: Get a fairly tight barrel and bore a hole near the bottom to serve as an entrance. Throw into the barrel a quantity of shavings or any material that would be useful to the mice in forming nests. Add some grain to serve as an additional attraction and then cover with a piece of wood. Let the barrel remain in a place infested with mice for a week or ten days. At the end of this time numbers of the creatures will have taken up their abode in the barrel and be busy nest making. Then stop up the hole in the bottom with a cork or wood plug of proper size, lift up the cover of the barrel a little and pour in water until there is sufficient to drown the occupants. The trap may be emptied and, after drying, set up again. In this way a locality is soon cleared of mice.

"Martyrs."

The word "martyr" has various meanings. Specifically, it is still confined to those who give their lives for their religious convictions. The "Holy Innocents" are a notable example of involuntary martyrdom. The word "martyr" should not be applied to a person who loses mere property, but is used to persons who have died while striving to attain their object. The dictionary gives as the primary definition of "martyr"—"One who submits to death rather than forswear his religion; specif., one of the early Christians who suffered death for their religion." In general, the word is used also to denote one who sacrifices himself for a cause, as a martyr to the pursuit of wealth.

Roosevelt Knew Youth.

This story by John Burroughs illustrates Theodore Roosevelt's tender and sympathetic nature: Near a little brown schoolhouse, Burroughs writes, by the railroad track the school ma'am and her scholars were drawn up in line to see the presidential train pass. The president was at luncheon, but leaving the table rushed to the platform and waved his napkin. When he came back he said: "Those children wanted to see the president of the United States, and I could not disappoint them. They may never have another chance. What a deep impression such things make when we are young."

THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

June 1
Our Relation to God: Reverence and Public Worship

Psalms 33:1-11. John 4:19-26

The song of Heaven is, "Thou art worthy." The worship of earth expresses the same truth. God alone is worthy to be worshipped. Not angels nor saints, but Jehovah alone is to be adored and praised. When John the apostle received the revelation of Jesus Christ as recorded in the last book of the Bible, he fell down to worship before the feet of the angel that shewed him these things but was rebuked for this. "See thou do it not" was the angelic command, "worship God" (Rev. 22:8, 9).

The greatness and goodness of God are prominent in the Scripture lesson. A deep sense of His greatness and goodness as seen in verses 4-7 leads the soul into the attitude and utterance of verse 8 which breathes the spirit of holy fear and deep reverence, such as is most necessary in our public worship.

This is not the fear of dread but rather of reverential trust and confidence. Note the word of praise in the opening verses of this Psalm. "This is a holy joy here which is perfectly compatible with holy fear. 'Rejoice,' 'praise,' 'sing.' Why? Because of His Word and His works, verse 4, and also because of His righteousness and goodness as in verse 5. The power of His word and the greatness and goodness of His works are shown in the remaining verses, 6-11.

In the light of our New Testament these words take on added meaning. The greatness and goodness of our God are seen in redemption as in none other of His works. "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself" (2 Cor. 5:19). God set forth Christ to be a propitiation through faith in His blood (Rom. 3:25). Herein is love, not that we loved God but that He loved us and sent His son to be the propitiation for our sins (1 John 4:10). Therefore we are justified freely by His grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus (Rom. 3:24). To see this clearly and to lay hold of it by faith is the pathway to worship. "Thou art worthy" is the heart's sincere cry.

This is worship in "Spirit and in truth" and is utterly independent of time and place. Joy and praise enter into this worship. It is not formal and stilted but the spontaneous overflow of the redeemed soul saying or singing,

"O the love that sought me,
O the blood that bought me,
O the grace that brought me to His fold."

Loving Remembrance of our dear father,
JOHN A. NULL,
who died one year ago today, May 29, 1918.

He has gone to meet his loved ones,
Who have gone just before;
There to walk and talk with Jesus,
On that bright and happy shore.

Home is sad, O how dreary,
Lonely is our hearts today;
For the one we loved so dearly,
Has forever passed away.

He is gone, but not forgotten,
Never will his memory fade;
Sweetest thoughts will ever linger,
'Round the grave where he was laid.

By his son and wife,
DANIEL J. and NODA V. NULL.

JUST HUMOR

Dutiful Daughter.

The daughter of Mrs. Siddons had always forbidden her to marry an actor, and, of course, she chose a member of the old gentleman's company, whom she secretly wedded.

When Roger Kemble heard of it, he was furious. "Have I not," he exclaimed, "forbidden you to marry a player?"

The lady replied, with downcast eyes, that she had not disobeyed. "What, madam! Have you not allied yourself to about the worst performer in my company?"

"Exactly so," murmured the timid bride; "nobody can call him an actor."—Life.

His Remedy.

The bank, in consequence of a farmer's failure, had to finance a large farm, and last spring the man they had put in charge of it wired to the London manager of the bank: "Lambing begins next month. If drought continues will result in total loss."

"Postpone lambing till further orders," wired back the resourceful London manager.—London Opinion.

Love to Splash.

Redd—I see a metal-backed ring of rubber, fastened out a few inches from the wheel of an automobile, is claimed by its inventor to prevent the splashing of mud on pedestrians and on other vehicles.

Greene—What in the world are they trying to do? Take away a large part of the enjoyment of automobil- ing?

IN TOUGH GARB.

Jinks—The old saying about wolves in sheep's clothing comes back to a man.

Blinks—When?

Jinks—When he orders spring lamb in a cheap restaurant.

A Flicker Star.

She sent this news from old Broadway. "I'm starring in a brand-new play." But when her parents looked for her they found her where the "movies" were.

Putting It Gently.

"Dye believe in coincidences, mister?"

"Eh—coincidences—why?"

"Well, for instance—take you and me. Ye're trespassin'; ye're ketchin' trout aout o' season, an' I'm constable o' this hyer townshipp."

Scribner's Magazine.

A Flareback.

"Had your diamonds stolen lately?" inquired the cub reporter. "Engaged to any dukes?"

"Kindly omit banalities," responded the stage favorite. "Actresses don't talk that kind of stuff nowadays. If I am to be interviewed, I shall discuss ethical questions only."

Neglected a Duty.

"She blushed for shame."

"Why?"

"When some one questioned her the other night she had to admit that her children had kept her so busy she hadn't had time to read the latest novel."

Not a Greek.

"Is your furnace controlled by a thermostat, madam?"

"Well, we have a man come in to look after it, but I don't think he's one of those Greeks you mentioned because his skin is black."

A Protest.

"Do you think you can learn to love me?" asked the diffident youth.

"How much money have you?" inquired the entirely practical girl.

"I beg your pardon. This is a proposal of marriage; not a bet."

Truly Aimed.

"I've always kept my eyes open, but I've never seen a woman throw anything straight."

"That's because you have never been fortunate enough to see her throw a kiss."

THE greatest enemy of farm buildings and machinery is weather. Decay causes losses of many millions annually. Protection against weather is one of the best insurance policies in which the farmer can invest. Good paint, properly applied, furnishes this insurance.

SHERWIN-WILLIAMS Paints and Varnishes

Commonwealth Barn Paints, Implement Paints and Roof Paints offer the maximum protection against rain, snow, heat, cold, sun and other destroying influences. They are made first of all for protection.

Painting is cheaper than repairs. Paint your home, barns, silos, outbuildings and machinery now, before your busy season begins.

What Was Wrong.

Woman Engineer—There's something wrong with this engine.

Foreman of Car Shops—Impossible. It was all right when it left the shop this morning.

Woman Engineer—Well there is. I haven't caught a cow with the cow-catcher yet. Maybe the thing isn't baited properly.—Judge.

They Swear It Happened.

Little Jimmie—Say, pa, do those pages in the legislature have to take an oath of office?

Jimmie's Pa—No, my son; why do you ask?

Little Jimmie—Well, one of 'em did; you ought to heard him when he stubbed his toe the other day.

HIS PLACE.

Bronson—My son is so stupid I don't know what to do with him.

Woodson—Send him to college.

Bronson—But he refuses to study, he is so thick-headed.

Woodson—All the better for football.

Comprehension.

I did not understand some things
A great man said to me,
And said suspicion softly sings,
"My friend, no more did he!"

Slight Skepticism.

"George Washington couldn't tell a lie," exclaimed the man who believes the cherry tree story.

"Yes," replied the suspicious person. "Either that or he was too proud to bluff when he knew he was caught with the goods."

To Impress the Judge.

"You say she has engaged a dramatic instructor. Does she intend to go upon the stage?"

"Oh, no. She has sued her husband for divorce and is preparing for her appearance in court."—Boston Transcript.

How Can He?

Doctor—My man, you should remain quiet. You have a fighting chance.

Pat—Thin, bedad, sorr, let me up at vance. Sure a man can't do anny foightin' lyin' flat on his back.

Its Nature.

"The Youngweds have an astronomical opinion of their wonderful baby."

"What kind of an opinion is that?"

"They think the world revolves around the son."

Wise Lawyer.

"Why did you buy that old doormat when your office furniture is brand new?"

"I think a worn doormat outside is a good advertisement for a lawyer."

—Judge.

A Stern Victor.

"When Frank proposed to Irene he offered her his name and three-quarters of his weekly salary."

"Did she accept him?"

"No. She insisted on nothing less than an unconditional surrender."—Life.

Before and After.

"The woman pays, you know," remarked the chronic quoter.

"Pays nothin'," snorted the sarcastic cuss. "It's the man who pays. Before marriage he pays her attention. Afterward he pays her bills."

BEFORE AND AFTER.

NO. 5145 EQUITY.

In the Circuit Court for Carroll County:

ELIZABETH GETTY, Plaintiff,

vs.

MILTON G. GETTY, Defendant.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii for the plaintiff, Elizabeth Getty, from Milton G. Getty, defendant.

The bill states that on the 19th day of July, A. D. 1908, they were married by Rev. John J. John, a Minister of the Gospel of the Church of the Brethren, in Carroll County, Maryland, and that they lived together in Carroll County, Maryland, until the 7th day of June, 1912, when the defendant abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, and has since said 7th day of June, 1912, ceased to live with her, and has resided separate and apart from the plaintiff. That the conduct of the plaintiff towards her said husband, was always kind, affectionate and above reproach, and that her husband, on the said 7th day of June, 1912, without just cause or reason abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, and that he declared his intention to live with the plaintiff no longer, and has lived separate and apart from her since the said 7th day of June, 1912, and that such abandonment by the defendant of the plaintiff has continued uninterruptedly for more than three years, and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

That they have had no children born to them as a result of said marriage.

That the plaintiff is and has been a resident of Carroll County, Maryland, for the past twelve years.

That the defendant is a resident of the State of Utah, and a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

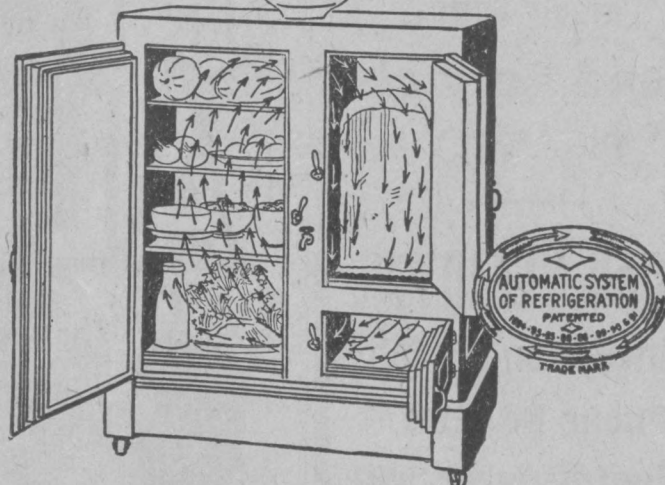

It is thereupon, this 28th day of May, A. D. 1919, ordered by the Circuit Court for Carroll County, sitting as a Court of Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper, published in said Carroll County, once a week for four successive weeks before the 30th day of June, 1919, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 17th day of July, next, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

How Foods are preserved— Why Food odors do not mix—

Not an ounce of ice will be wasted, if you have the right kind of a Refrigerator.

Up to a few years ago, we did not know that it was the fault of the Refrigerator we had, when the ice melted rapidly; when food became moist and spoiled, and when people were sometimes made ill because the foods were tainted.

Now we know better. You will be thoroughly convinced, we assure you, if you will take the trouble to come to our Store, that we have a Refrigerator here (The Famous AUTOMATIC) that saves a great deal of ice, because of its Eight Protecting Walls; that has a constant, automatic circulation of pure, cold, dry air, so that foods cannot spoil.

You will see why food odors will not mix in this Refrigerator—your milk will never taste of onions, etc. You will see and hear many things about how the good Refrigerator of today should be and is built. And, you are always welcome here, as you know.

DON'T DELAY—GIVE US YOUR ORDER FOR AN AUTOMATIC, TODAY!

Jim's Will

By LOUISE OLIVER

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

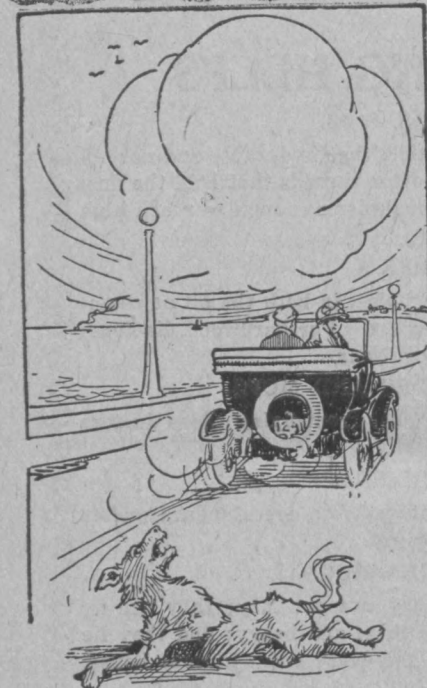

When Edith got home she didn't know whether to laugh or cry; the day's shopping with Jim had been so different from what she had expected.

Jim, let me explain, was the big westerner Edith was going to marry, and they had been out buying furniture for their house. The house itself had been a rock upon which their prospects of marital bliss had almost gone to pieces, but Edith had finally given in and allowed Jim to buy the substantial horror of brick and stone that he insisted upon.

"Your little bungalow is pretty, dear," he said when she took him to the house she had set her heart on, a low rambling Dutch type of stone and stucco, "but I'd feel like Gulliver in the Land of Lilliput. You may have a toy affair like that somewhere for the summer, if you want, but I'll have to have something solid under my feet, dear. I've been accustomed to solid terra firma for so long. I can't live in a shell now."

So Edith had consented to start her married life in the house of Jim's choice.

But she had ideas of her own about furnishing it. What then was her chagrin to discover that Jim had ideas, too. He laughed at the spider-legged set she wanted for the dining room. "I'd upset the table the first meal," he said. "Show us something substantial—none of this doll-house stuff," he insisted, and Edith found herself, instead of reveling in Queen Anne and Adam sets as she had planned, trying to decide on tables and buffets that would have graced—or not—state dining rooms of royalty, and as substantial as the sarcophagus of Napoleon.

Lay a Kicking Heap.

"Seems to suit the house better, don't you think?" he asked.

And Edith was compelled to acknowledge that it did.

She longed for a living room of wicker and chintz, and a library of rare old mahogany. But Jim would have none of it. Heavy, massive leather and tapestry for him.

"You forget I'm big, dearie," he said. "I'd go through that light stuff in no time."

But the worst had been the piano. She abhorred victrolas, but had remained mute when he paid four hundred and fifty dollars for an electric one. The one thing she did insist upon was the choice of a piano. What she wanted was a two-thousand-dollar grand like her own at home.

But when Jim saw it he remarked: "Where do you put the rolls in?"

"The rolls? Oh, this isn't a player-piano, dear. I'll play it, you see."

"But when you're away and I want music what shall I do?"

"But I'll not be away, dear, much."

"But can't you play on the other kind, too? I'd like to have one that goes by electricity. They're made, aren't they?"

They were, and Jim bought one for four thousand dollars.

Now, Edith was back in her own room looking at her own pretty face in the mirror of her dressing table.

Was she quite sure she was going to be happy with Jim, her big Jim, who had come to New York and taken her heart by storm just when she had about decided to marry Herbert Morrow.

Herbert was an artist and she shivered when she thought of his judgment of her new home. He had such wonderful ideas about furnishing.

Just then her telephone rang. It was Herbert Morrow himself.

"What do you say to a little spin in my new car, Edith, just for old time's sake. It's a perfect day."

"Any other time she would have refused, but some way now she wanted to go. They admired the same views, shadows of a cloud on the water, the film of new green on a branch. She thought it would be refreshing after a trying day."

"All right, I'll go," she said. "A spin in the park would do me good."

A few minutes later they were flying over the broad, smooth driveway, the cool spring wind in their faces, bringing a wonderful color to Edith's cheeks.

"You're beautiful today, Edith. But you're always beautiful. I hope Jim Winter appreciates his luck."

"Don't be extravagant, Bert. It's likely to turn my silly head for anyone with your taste to make compliments. Jim's a dear, but do you know he doesn't know the Metropolitan museum from a strawstack when it comes to art."

They both laughed gayly at this, and didn't see the dog that had started to cross the road at the turn. There was a yelp, and the poor thing lay a kicking heap behind them.

Edith caught Herbert's arm. "Oh, do turn back. We've run over him and killed him."

"He was only a cur. They're no right here in the park, you know. There's a policeman—he'll shoot him if he's not dead. Don't worry, my dear girl, it's done all the time. A few less to feed here would be a good thing anyhow. It would release thousands of pounds of food for the soldiers."

It was an argument she could not deny, and she ceased turning to ascertain the dog's fate, but the afternoon was spoiled now; she asked to go home.

"New Yorkers are funny people," Jim said the next day. "Yesterday afternoon I found a hurt dog in the park—some car had run over him and then gone ahead. A policeman was just going to shoot him when I came along riding Prince."

"Didn't you let him? Surely it would have been more merciful."

"Merciful! I said the dog was hurt. I didn't say he couldn't live. I almost had to wallop the cop before he put his gun away."

"Oh, Jim, what did you do?"

"Well, I couldn't take him to the hospital on Prince, so I stopped a car," Jim grinned. "It was a big limousine, all lined with pearl gray stuff and two men on the box. Milady was out for an airing."

"You never did, Jim Winter!"

"Sure I did. And I made the policeman take care of Prince while I lifted the poor thing into the car, and then got in myself and held his head. The old woman jabbered and fussed to beat the band, but it didn't matter. They got us to the hospital, and that did."

"What hospital?"

"Roosevelt."

"That's not a dog hospital."

"I know; that's what they tried to tell me there, but it was the only place I could think of. Well, I lifted doggie out and carried him inside and told them to do what they could for him; to set his bones and I'd take him home and nurse him. And sure enough a doctor and two nurses fixed him up all right. I've got him, and he'll live."

Suddenly Edith flung her arms around his neck. "Oh, Jim, Jim, I thought I was afraid of your will, but I'm not now. And I'm going to confess I've been baby enough to be unhappy about the furniture. But nothing matters now, dear. You're a dear wonderful man and I adore you."

"Oh, that reminds me," said Jim. "I had almost forgotten. I got to thinking about those things and the house, too, and how you've been such a dear and let me have my own way. I'm afraid I'm a brute the way I have of ordering people around and I mustn't do it with you. I'm going to exchange the house for the one you wanted, and if you'll put on your hat we'll go and select the furniture all over again. You can have anything you like and I won't say a word."

"Oh, no, Jim," cried Edith then. "I don't want it now. I'm going to learn to like the things you do."

HARD TO UNDERSTAND PLANS

According to This, Old Dame Nature Seems to Have Got Things in Some Slight Tangle.

Dan Beard, noted woodsman and camper, gives advice about owls in Boys' Life.

If you meet the Virginia long-eared owl, he says, he is a regular bolshevik Hun and he will kill rabbits, squirrels, chickens, game birds, young and old, just like any Hun. So do not give him the scout salute, but give him a charge of bird shot instead. Treat the snowy owl in the same way. He is a beautiful bird and makes a fine specimen to set on the bookcase, and is a great deal more useful there than sitting on a chicken coop.

There's something funny about the field mice, too. If we have too many of them we will never have any clover. The field mice do not eat clover, but they will destroy the bumble-bees' nest, and no clover can grow without bumble-bees. Moreover, the bumble-bees get the honey from the clover and distribute the pollen to other plants and fertilize them so that the seed will ripen. Honey bees cannot reach the honey in the red clover; consequently they leave it alone.

Thus you see that the clover is dependent upon the bumble-bee, that the bumble-bees are dependent upon the owls and hawks; otherwise the mice would exterminate them. Gee! this is a funny world. Everything's all tied up together.

Instructions All Too Late.

Van was standing on the porch while his mother prepared his breakfast. It had rained during the night, and the grass and walks were wet.

"Van," called his mother, "don't go out and get your nice clean clothes all wet."

"I won't," Van sang out, and as he walked into the kitchen with his white shoes and stockings and little trousers all bedraggled he added: "I already been."

OLD AGE STARTS WITH YOUR KIDNEYS

Science says that old age begins with weakened kidneys and digestive organs. This being true, it is easy to believe that by keeping the kidneys and digestive organs cleansed and in proper working order old age can be deferred and life prolonged far beyond that enjoyed by the average person.

For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has been relieving the weaknesses and disability due to advancing years. It is a standard old-time home remedy and needs no introduction. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil is incised in odorless, tasteless capsules containing about 5 drops each. Take them as you would a pill, with a small swallow of water. The oil stimulates the kidney action and enables the organs to throw off the poisons which cause premature old age. New life and strength increase as you continue the treatment. When completely restored continue taking a capsule or two each day. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules will keep you in health and vigor and prevent a return of the disease. Do not wait until old age or disease have settled down for good. Go to your druggist and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. Money refunded if they do not help you. Three sizes. But remember to ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. In sealed packages.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D.,
Teacher of English Bible in the Moody
Bible Institute of Chicago.

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR JUNE 1.

FAITH, WHAT IT IS AND WHAT IT DOES.

LESSON TEXTS—Hebrews 11:1-40; 12:1, 2.

GOLDEN TEXT—Ye believe in God, believe also in me.—John 14:1.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Matt. 8:5-13; Mark 2:1-12; Rom. 1:16-17; 5:21-30; 5:1; 1 John 5:4.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Story of a Man Who Believed in Jesus. (John 9:1-38.)

JUNIOR TOPIC—Heroes of Faith.

INTERMEDIATE TOPIC—The Victory of Faith.

SENIOR AND ADULT TOPIC—The Place of Faith in Religious Life.

In Hebrews, chapters 1-10 the grounds of faith are clearly set forth. In this lesson its nature and glorious triumphs are displayed.

I. The Nature of Faith (11:1-3).

1. Faith is the eye of the soul, enabling it to see the invisible (v. 1). It is not merely intellectual assent to that which commends itself as being reasonable, but it is the soul's attitude toward God.

2. Faith seizes the things of the future and lives and walks in their power in the present (v. 1).

3. It enabled the "elders" to obtain a good report (v. 2). It made God's promises so living and real to them that it became the dominant force in their lives.

4. Faith enables us to understand how the worlds were made (v. 3). No man was present when God made the worlds, so the foundation for our knowledge is the Word of God. The one who has faith wholly believes that Word.

II. The Triumphant Victories of Faith (11:4-38).

1. Faith of the antediluvian saints (vv. 4-7). As representative of this period three men are pointed out: (a) Abel (v. 4), who displayed his faith in his worship. He took his place before God as a sinner and offered a bloody sacrifice, thereby showing that he looked forward to Christ's atonement, which is substitutionary—a life for a life. (b) Enoch, who displayed his faith in his walk in fellowship with God (v. 5). (c) Noah, who by faith stood loyal to God in a time of universal apostasy and wickedness (v. 7). Noah's task was a stupendous and difficult one. He executed it in the face of many a sneer and taunt, but his faith carried him through, securing salvation for himself and his family.

2. Faith of the Hebrew saints (vv. 8-38). (a) Abraham (vv. 8-10, 17-19). Abraham went out not knowing whither he went, but he knew that the Lord had spoken and that was enough. By faith he offered up Isaac, believing that God was able to raise him up from the dead and fulfill his promise that in Isaac the promised seed should obtain. (b) Sarah through faith received strength to conceive seed when she was old, counting him faithful who had promised (vv. 11, 12). (c) Jacob by faith pronounced a prophecy concerning Joseph's sons (v. 21). By faith he penetrated the unseen and pronounced destinies which should be experienced by them both. (d) Joseph by faith foresaw the entrance of his people into the promised land and made them swear to carry his bones there for burial, for even his body must not be left behind in the land of judgment and death (v. 22). (e) Moses (vv. 23-28). Faith in the hearts of his parents caused them to disregard the king's decree. Faith caused him to turn his back upon the honors of Egypt and identify himself with his enslaved brethren.

III. Faith's Grand Exemplar (12:1, 2).

Christ taking upon himself human nature and passing through the trials of life to a triumphant goal is the supreme example for us. Those who fix their eyes upon him will (1) lay aside every weight. To run with success all burdens must be cast off. Things which may not be sinful in themselves, if they impede our progress must be laid aside. (2) Lay aside the sin which doth so easily beset us. (3) Run with patience the race set before us. (4) Looking unto Jesus. Our eyes must be steadfastly fixed upon him. Having him as our example we will endure the cross. To follow Jesus means suffering and trials.

Love as a Word.

Love, even as a word only, must stand alone. It is one of the great monosyllables of our great language—Love. It is the invisible gravitation of life. With its invisible cords, viewless but potent, it draws hearts together over eternal spaces, and holds them together in an indissoluble bond in Time and Eternity.

The Wonder of It!

"Lord, when I look on my own life it seems thou hast fed me so carefully, so tenderly, that thou canst have attended to no one else. But, when I see how wonderfully thou hast led the world, and are leading it, I am amazed that thou hast had time to attend to such as I"—St. Augustine.

Why Man Falls.

Man could not fall so low were he not so great. It is the abused God in a man that turns him into a devil.

VELVET FOR GIRLS

Material Makes Handsome Dress for Little Misses.

Simplicity Is a Good Rule to Follow in Development of Garments for Children.

Black velvet or a good quality of velveteen makes a very handsome dress for a little girl of six to twelve years. Simplicity is a good rule to follow in the development of all garments for children. It is especially important when a rich, heavy material such as velvet, velveteen or velours is chosen. The design shown in the sketch is an excellent one. It is so simple that the average home dressmaker can make her own pattern. The dress is a modified Russian blouse, waist and skirt being gathered in simply at back and sides, while the front shows a wide box plait or panel. The dress buttons at the left front, and a narrow belt of kid or patent leather gives a smart touch to the frock. This belt may be in black, white, or color, according to choice.

Neck and sleeves are finished with a frill of fine white organdie or george.

Black Velvet Frock for Small Girl.

ette. The cap is of velvet, trimmed in ermine, and the young lady may carry a muff and wear a scarf of this fur, thus completing an extremely smart street outfit.

ART OF CONSTRUCTING A HAT

Secret Lies in Pinning All Materials Securely Before Sewing Them—The Blind Stitch.

The secret of making a successful hat lies in pinning all materials securely before sewing them. Where the bias facing is used as a finishing to the edges of the brim, the covering of the top and the facing should be sewed and the fold pinned all around, first on one side and then on the other, before the blind stitching is begun. One should be no more sparing with the quantity of pins used in millinery than those needed in dressmaking.

The amateur milliner has often discovered to her sorrow that, although her hat was smartly designed and the colors well put together, the finished product showed unmistakable evidence of home manufacture, because here and there the stitches were plainly visible. For those women who have not learned to use the blind stitch, a simple explanation may be valuable. The needle should be slipped into a fold of the material and worked through it, so as to catch the folds together without piercing the top of the material. The needle is drawn out from behind the fold and again inserted from the back and the needle run along as before.

FOR AN EFFECTIVE TRIMMING

Embellishment Easily Produced, Affording Charming Decoration for Collars, Cuffs or Skirt.

An effective mode of trimming frocks of organdie or other sheer cotton or linen fabrics is by means of what is known as double work, and this is something that can be accomplished at home as well as by the professional dressmaker. The effect is produced by turning back the material or applying it over the body of the frock in a simple design and then joining it by a line of hemstitching of fancy stitchery and cutting it close along this line, thus producing the design in the double thickness of the material.

It is an effective way to finish collars and cuffs, and a charming skirt trimming can be produced by turning up the hem in a Wall of Troy or other design and stitching it back along that line. One need not, of course, work this hemstitching by hand, but it can be done so much a yard at the shop where you have plaiting done and button molds covered.

No Need For A Sign.

He had opened a fishshop, and he ordered a new sign painted, of which he was very proud. It read: "Fresh Fish Sold Here."

"What did you put the word 'Fresh' in for?" said his first customer. "You wouldn't sell them if they weren't fresh, would you?"

He painted out the word, leaving just "Fish Sold Here."

"Why do you say 'here'?" asked his second customer. "You are not selling anywhere else, are you?"

So he rubbed out the word "here."

"Why use 'sold'?" asked the next customer. "You're not giving them away, are you?"

So he rubbed out everything but the fish, remarking:

"Well, nobody can find fault with that sign now, anyway."

A moment later another customer came in.

"I don't see the use of that sign 'Fish' up there when you can smell them a mile away."—Tit Bits.

As was announced last week, no items received this morning could be published, owing to going to press in the morning, due to Memorial Day, and giving our force a half-holiday.

Suggestion for a Camping Trip.

Buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy before leaving home. As a rule it cannot be obtained when on hunting, fishing or prospecting trip. Neither can it be obtained while on board the cars or steamships and at such times and places it is most likely to be needed. The safe way is to have it with you. —Advertisement
