GREAT LOSS TO GRAIN STILL OUT IN THE FIELDS.

Other Crops Greatly Damaged by Heavy Rains.

The heavy, and almost daily rains for the past two weeks, have caused great loss to farmers, especially throughout the east, to the cut grain still in the fields. Other minor crops have also been damaged, but the wheat is the main consideration. Late potatoes, as well as late corn, are suffering because of the wet weather and growth of weeds, and potatoes in Maryland will be a short crop on this account.

Many of the farmers have been short-handed, getting their wheat cut late, so that the rains commenced just after cutting; while others desired to thresh out of the field because of lack of barn room for the great crop of straw, as well as to save labor in handling the crop more than absolutely necessary. Some could have stacked, or housed, at least part of their outstanding crop, but the chance was taken that the weather would be favorable, especially as the entire Spring has been wet.

Just what the loss will be to grain in the fields, is uncertain. It is badly sprouted in the shocks, and many of the shocks were not made carefully, so as to better withstand the continuous rains. The loss will at least be very heavy throughout this section.

It is thought that much of this wheat will be available for chopping for feed, and with corn around the $2.00 mark, this will help out on the loss. Another loss, not inconsiderable, is that caused by the killing of grass under the wheat shocks.

Large quantities of hay in process of curing, have also been caught by the rains, and much of this will be worth very little.

The losses to growing crops and to unthreshed wheat in Maryland caused by the recent continuous rains will be as high as $5,000,000, according to T. B. Symons, director of the farm extension work of the Md. State College.

"The wheat crop has been most seriously damaged," said Mr. Symons, recently, "the damage is particularly heavy on the Eastern Shore. The yields in Kent county and counties below, were cut down heavily by early rains in May, and the further damage done by the recent rains has heavily accentuated the shortage in yield."

"A lot of wheat has been thrashed, but in many sections less than a third of it has been stored away. The remaining two-thirds was subject to the damage by rain. Without any definite figures yet available, we estimate that 50% of this two-thirds has been ruined."

A loss on this basis of 33 1/3 per cent. of the wheat yield represents close to $8,000,000. The Maryland yield for this year was estimated at 11,000,000 bushels, with a market value of close to $25,000,000. Half of the two-thirds crop which is said to be ruined would bring the loss far up in the millions of dollars.

"Other Maryland crops will suffer from the heavy rainfall, according to Mr. Symons, but none as seriously as the wheat yield. The tomato yield, which is one of the big industries of the farmers, has been reduced, but to what extent, Mr. Symons could not yet say. The tomato is not a wet plant and any excessive rainfall would quickly affect the crop."

Our August Statements.

Our statements for August are going out, this week, to all whose subscriptions will expire during the month of August. We prefer not to continue this plan, because of the expense and work it entails, but we have found on trail that the majority of people do not keep in mind the date of the expiration of their subscriptions, and never think of it until they fail to receive their paper.

Some dislike to receive statements, even of this kind; but, it is a custom followed by most of the city dailies and magazines, and we believe that, even with its objections, it is best to follow it, and will continue to do so until we can think of a less objectionable plan—but, we doubt whether there is one. The statement is not a "dun," but merely gives information of the coming of the end of a paid-in-advance term.

The County Statement.

We are glad to be able to present to our readers, the full statement of the receipts and expenditures of the county for the year ending June 30. We do not care so much for the revenue derived from this advertisement, as we do for the recognition that is given to the large body of tax-payers who read the Record. We believe, moreover, that this statement deserves at least more widely distributed circulation than it has in the past been given.

Senate Omits Day-light Clause.

The Senate, on Wednesday, passed the Agricultural bill, no effort being made to restore the "daylight-saving" rider, the conclusion being, no doubt to let the President have his own way about it. It is therefore improbable that another effort will be made to repeal the law during the present administration, which will mean that the present law will be in force at least another year, following this year.

BACKING THE GOVERNMENT

Carroll Co. Fair Promotes Uncle Sam's Program.

Much of Europe is laid waste by war. Millions suffer from lack of food. The U. S. is asked to "speed up" on food efficiency: to produce more food, to raise more cattle. The Carroll Co. Fair seeks to stir up local interest in this overseas' food problem by the offer of substantial premiums for products exhibited and liberal prizes for stock shown.

Cooking and canning play a large part in America's duty toward this great problem—so the women and girls of the county are generously remembered in the premium lists. The boys, also, have equal chance with the men.

Greater production lies the way of better methods and better implements. The Fair proposes to present new ideas of this sort—to encourage better ways of doing things. Experts will explain and demonstrate. Up-to-the-minute machinery will be exhibited and practical tests made.

All work, however, isn't good for anybody. We must each one play the Fair now and again. With this in mind, the Fair Association has gone to great lengths to entertain its many patrons. Clean, enjoyable amusement will furnish recreation and fun for all. Every effort has been made to make this year's outing one of merit, mirth, music, meaning.

Such a practical and patriotic purpose deserves sympathetic and straightforward support county-wide.

Contract Shields Wheat Producers.

One of the first attempts ever made to settle that old dispute between the farmer and the grain buyer as to the proper price basis for wheat is the contract which has just been entered into by the United States Grain Corporation and the grain buyers.

In one clause of this agreement a method is provided by which the buyer agrees to reflect properly to the producer the government's guaranteed price for the various grades of wheat offered for sale. Thus, for the first time, the government is standing behind the producers to see that they secure a proper price for their wheat.

Part of the contract provides that either farmer or grain buyer, if disagreeing with the price reached in sale and purchase, is privileged to submit a sample of the wheat in dispute to the nearest zone vice-president of the grain corporation and secure from him a review of the method of determining the price. If such a review is not satisfactory, the case may then be further appealed for final decision to Julius H. Barnes, the United States wheat director.

The clause of this contract which provides the means by which a farmer may satisfy himself that he is receiving fair treatment in grade, dockage and price, contained in a notice to producers just issued by the United States Grain Corporation, is as follows:

"The miller (or dealer) in buying wheat from the producer, shall purchase on the proper grade and dockage under the federal standards, and shall pay therefore not less than the guaranteed price based on such proper grade and dockage, at the terminal most advantageously reached, less freight and less a reasonable handling margin. On all parcels of wheat on which there is a dispute as to grade and dockage or price between the miller (or dealer) and the producer at the time of delivery, a notation thereof shall be made upon the records of the miller (or dealer) and a sample shall be drawn by the producer and the miller (or dealer) and forwarded in a proper container to the vice-president of the grain corporation in the zone in which the purchase is made, for his use in determination of the dispute. The determination of the vice-president shall be final and conclusive unless an appeal from such determination be filed within ten days with the United States wheat director by either the producer or miller (or dealer.) In case of appeal the decision of the United States wheat director shall be final and conclusive."

Primary Election Candidates.

We call attention to our Candidate's register in this issue, a number of new names having been added this week. So far, there are very few actual contests in sight, and there appears to be a dearth of candidates generally.

THE STATE GAME LAWS AS NOW IN OPERATION

General Information for the Use of Hunters and Trappers.

The following condensed review of the Game Laws of the state was received, this week, from E. Lee LeCompte, State Game Warden, with request for publication. We do this, gladly, and suggest that all persons interested preserve this copy of the Record for reference.

"The first open season is on Doves, which under the State law opens Aug. 15, and closes December 24th. However, the Federal Law supercedes our State Law, and opens the season September 1, and closes it December 15th.

The open season on Mellow Leg Black breasted and golden plover, August 15 to November 30th.

Rail birds September 1 to November 30.

During the season of 1918, the Federal Government closed the season on Reed Birds. However, on January 17, 1919, there was an order issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, opening the season on Reed birds in this state from September 1 to October 30.

The open season on squirrels, August 25 to October 1, closing until November 10 and open until December 24. However, the following counties are exempt from this law. Anne Arundel, Talbot, Charles, Prince George's and Calvert, the open season for squirrels is November 10 to December 24. St. Mary's county has no closed season.

Partridges, Pheasant, Woodcock, Rabbit and Wild Turkey, November 10 to December 24. However, there is a closed season on Ring-Neck Pheasants in Baltimore, Wicomico, Harford and Dorchester counties, and a closed season on Quail in Frederick county until 1921.

Wild-fowl, including Ducks, Geese, Brant, Jacksnipe and Crow Bills, November 1 to January 31.

It is illegal to export any game (wild water fowl excepted) out of Maryland.

Shooting from a power boat prohibited under the Federal and State Laws. Shooting at night, shooting on Sunday, also prohibited.

The State Wide Hunter's License Law, from which funds a District Deputy Game Warden force has been maintained, has been very beneficial in increasing our Game in this State, and we appreciate the co-operation our District Deputy Wardens have received through the fee Deputy Wardens and the public in general.

The Law requires all persons who hunt on property other than their own or rented by them, to procure a license to hunt, shoot or kill game which is protected by the laws of this State. This license, however, does not permit persons to hunt game during closed season. The licenses are issued June 1st, of each year and expire on May 31st, of each year. The color of said licenses is changed yearly, and persons found hunting with a license issued prior to June 1, 1919 will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law.

There is no open season at present on any game in this State, and persons who hunt prior to August 16, should be prosecuted for hunting during closed season. We request all persons in this State who have the interest of game and fish laws at heart to report any violations they know of to this Department, or to one of the District Deputy Game Wardens at which time prosecution will be instituted, and an investigation will be made.

An ordinance of Baltimore City prohibits the shooting of fire arms within the city limits. This Department requested Hon. Howard Bryant, to introduce and have passed an amendment to the City Ordinance, allowing the shooting of Rail and Reed birds from the marshes of the Patapsco River, from the Hanover St. Bridge to the new City boundary, which territory has been used for years for the hunting of Rail Birds. This Ordinance was passed by both branches, and it will be lawful to hunt Rail and Reed birds in this territory on September 1st.

SPECIAL INTEREST TO WOMEN.

Child Welfare and Home Economics at Ohler's Grove Fair.

The Child's Welfare Conference planned by Miss Everett, Home Demonstration Agent, in connection with the State Board of Health, will be held at the Annual Fair at Ohler's Grove, Taneytown, the second week in August. A program has been prepared which ought to interest every man and woman in the county for Wednesday, August 13. The conference will last the four days from Tuesday until Friday with special emphasis upon Wednesday which will be the big day for the women. Dr. Stone, of the State Board of Health, is working hard to secure exhibits and speakers. A tent has been prepared as a rest room for the mothers and headquarters for this work. Miss Venia Kellar, State Home Demonstration Agent will be chairman of the program.

Among the speakers expected are Dr. Knox, Child's Specialist of note, not only in this State, but at large; Dr. Frances S. Bradley, who has just returned from France and who will be sent by the Children's Bureau, Washington, D. C.; Dr. Fulton, Secretary of State Board of Health; Miss Mary Hively, a trained nurse of this county will be in attendance; Miss Florence Garner, Public Health Nurse of Frederick, will give a demonstration on bed-making in the care of the sick; Dr. Wm. C. Stone, who has charge of the three sanitary districts in which Carroll county lies, will probably be in attendance the whole week; Miss Ola Day, of the State Agricultural College, will also be present and give work of interest to women along other lines.

On Thursday she appears on the program in connection with the State College day and will give a talk, which is greatly appreciated by women, on good taste in home furnishing for the small home. During the week a talk will also be given on Home conveniences, and the feeding of children. The program has been arranged and specialists have given their time to this and the county should certainly appreciate the opportunity. Every mother especial should make it her aim to be present some time during the conference. A question box will be in evidence and any person interested and any question of child welfare or home economics can write their question on a slip of paper, put it into the box and they will be answered either at the conference, or published in the local papers. If your name and address is given a written reply will be sent.

This ought to be a chance for you to clear up some problems in regard to the best kind of heating system to put in your home, what is the best kind of sanitary toilet for a farm home, the advantage and disadvantages of various canners on the market, how to remodel your kitchen to make it more convenient, how to feed a child of four years old, what to put in the lunch basket, how to prepare a layette, how to make an ice box or a fireless cooker, etc.

We should be glad to have the afternoons turned into a round table conference for the women. Tell your neighbors about this, plan to fill your machine.

Recruiting Party at Westminster.

On Monday next there will be a recruiting party from the United States Army General Hospital No. 2, Ft. McHenry, at Westminster. They will spend four days there for the purpose of recruiting men for service in the Medical Department of the United States Army. The party will be under the charge of Lieut. Eismann, and will be stationed at the Armory.

The advantages of serving in the Medical Department will be graphically shown in a very interesting exhibit, of the work at Ft. McHenry Hospital, by means of plaster and wax casts and artistic drawings, which are being used; and especially the handwork of the convalescent soldiers. This is a part of the exhibit which was shown in Baltimore during the past week, and which drew enormous crowds.

Every evening there will be a motion picture film shown at the Star, illustrating army life in the field, hospital, and camp, as well as showing the life in the military hospitals, and various other interesting features connected with the war. The recruiting party will accept applicants for a year's enlistment, and it offers an unusual opportunity for young men to receive special training along medical lines, which they could obtain in no other way.

In addition to the medical training they also have an opportunity to take up any sort of practical work which would interest them, such as the automobile, the garden, a business course, etc. It is hoped that the people of Westminster and of the entire county will take an interest in this recruiting party and co-operate with them in every possible way. The help of the local Red Cross, the local medical society, and of a number of prominent citizens has been heartily given.

MR. TAFT OFFERS COMPROMISE ON LEAGUE PLAN.

Regarded as Weakening of Ranks on Present Form.

The Peace League sensation of the week has been a compromise proposition from Mr. Taft, which may furnish the ground for united action on the part of the opponents of the League compact as present drawn, as well as satisfy some of those who oppose the League proposition entirely.

Mr. Taft has made six reservations, in a letter to Chairman Hays, of the Republican National Committee, in which he also criticizes the President for the partisan character of his administration during the war, for creating "unnecessary ill-feeling over the League, and for some of its defects. While he thinks the League safe to accept, as it is, he believes these reservations will clarify the situation. He then enters into interpretations of various contested points, and sets forth in detail his six reservations.

Leaders on both sides appear to be feeling out the possibilities of such a compromise, and are not expressing themselves positively. The close supporters of the President are evidently greatly annoyed by the personal criticism carried along with the six recommendations, and see in it the possibility of greater Republican unity; while anti-Taft sentiment is somewhat suspicious of following his lead, that has so far been unpopular in the party.

While President Wilson has recently been trying to cultivate individual Republican support to the League, without amendment, Mr. Taft is also trying to cultivate individual Democratic support for his compromise, and so the matter stands. So far, the only real development is that the League has apparently lost one of its most able "stand pat" supporters.

"The League to Europe Peace."

There is, in this state, an organization, with the above title, and in all probability such separate organizations exist in all of the state. Of course, there is a National League, and it and all of its branches are pursuing some sort of activity, perhaps along the line of forcing through the Senate the League of Nations covenant as President Wilson brought it to the United States.

The Record has been frequently communicated with, from the State League, as though it might be interested in, or perhaps supporting, the purposes of the League. It is not. So far as the Record is concerned, it rather opposes any activities along this line. Just now, this country's interests in the matter are being discussed by the United States Senate, and we imagine that this body possesses as much information and intelligence on the subject, as does this "League to Enforce Peace."

Without meaning to be hypercritical, we believe the best interests of the country will be most truly served by letting the Senate and the President figure out this proposition among themselves; and that outside Leagues and organized propaganda, for or against the League covenant as drawn are apt to confuse matters more than they are, and do more harm than good.

Strikes and Labor Troubles.

When 260 cigarmakers went on a strike, last week, in a York, Pa., shop, the management simply closed the shop, and will transfer all stock and materials to other shops.

Two strikes ended in Chicago, on Sunday, when 10,000 men who went out at the stock-yards a week ago, voted to go back to work on Monday, and the fire department engineers resumed their positions after agreeing to arbitration. There are other strikes pending at the stock yards.

Boston union carmen voted on Sunday to return to work, and to accept the award made by the arbitrators. The result was a compromise.

The high cost of labor, it is claimed, will make men's clothing 50 percent. higher this Fall, than now, this opinion being given by a large Philadelphia manufacturer.

Hundreds of thousands of tons of freight are being held up at Eastern ports, waiting for shipment to Europe, as the ships are less than one-fourth manned, due to strikes for higher wages. The contest is expected to be a long drawn out one.

A great strike is in progress in England, among the miners; 250,000 men are already out, and there are no signs of settlement. A great strike of dock hands is also on at Liverpool, where more than 200 ships are ready to sail, so far as cargo is concerned.

Rioting of somewhat mysterious origin, has taken place this week, in Washington between colored people and whites. Considerable shooting has taken place, and several persons were killed and wounded. Troops from Camp Meade are assisting the police in trying to restore order. The whole affair will be closely investigated. Considerable bad feeling has existed in Washington, for years, between the two races, as it is said that the colored people of the city—many of them—are especially assertive of equal rights.

Elmer D. Buckley has been appointed postmaster at Littlestown, Pa., as successor to the late Dr. C. P. Gettier.

THE PROHIBITION CODE.

Just What the Prohibition Law, now before Congress, Prohibits.

"There is so much misinformation about the provisions of the Federal Prohibition Code, that it will be of value to know just what the Code does not prohibit, said Wayne B. Wheeler, General Counsel of the Anti-Saloon League of America. It does not prevent the possession of intoxicating liquor in a private dwelling if the liquor was secured before the law goes into effect. It does not permit a search warrant to be issued for such liquor in a private dwelling. It does not prevent the sale of alcoholic liquors for non-beverage purposes such as medicinal, mechanical, art, scientific, industrial or any other such purpose. It does not prohibit the manufacture and sale of soft drinks, containing not more than one-half of one percent alcohol by volume.

It will not interfere with the sale of alcoholic extracts, under the proposed Amendment from the Judiciary Committee, unless they are sold for beverage purposes. It provides complete machinery for the development of the industrial alcohol industry. It does prohibit the manufacture, sale, transportation, exportation, furnishing, receiving or possession of intoxicating liquors except as authorized in this act. It does specifically authorize in Section 35, of the act, that liquors secured before the law goes into effect, may be possessed in a private dwelling. This provision is more liberal than those found in the laws of the prohibition States. The liquor cannot be seized, even though the home is turned into a speak-easy. Liquor in a home which is a speak-easy, should be subject to seizure. In this respect it should be, and doubtless will be, changed.

Every section of the proposed bill except the one last referred to, has been tried out in the States and found to be necessary if the law is to be enforced. The effort to make it appear that the law is drastic is a part of the Brewery propaganda. The friends of prohibition will not ask for unreasonable or unprecedented provisions."—Anti-Saloon League.

The final vote on the bill in the House was 287 to 100, and it now goes to the Senate. Just before the vote, an amended, and more liberal bill, was voted down 255 to 136, which means that 36 members were in favor of such a bill, but voted later for the more drastic one; 52 democrats and 48 republicans made up the opposition.

The Maryland delegation split even on the vote—Anderson, Zihlman and Benson voting for, and Coady, Linthicum and Mudd against. Mr. Benson, who has been consistently opposed to prohibition, voted for the final passage of the bill, says in explanation, "I was confronted with the choice of voting for it, or of voting to leave the Prohibition act without machinery for enforcement, which simply would have meant voting for boot-legging."

Walkersville Bank Robbed.

The Savings Bank at Walkersville was robbed, Monday afternoon, of $3,217. Two young men entered the bank, covered Edwin Devillibus, cashier, and Nelson Stouffer, assistant, with revolvers, tossed the cashier a hand bag and ordered him to fill it with all the money in sight. They gathered the money in front of them, put it into the bag and passed it to the robbers who at once left, jumping into an automobile on the opposite side of the street and sped away.

The Sheriff was at once notified, and in a short time he and two deputy sheriffs, the State's Attorney and a posse of about 50 men, were in pursuit. About two hours later the Sheriff and State's Attorney came upon the automobile, that had been abandoned, due to the bad roads, on a side road near New Market.

Later, Norman Ogle, aged 25 years, of near Frederick, and a man giving his name as Weinhart, were arrested at New London, and identified by Cashier Stouffer as the hold-up men. Both were disposed to be surly, but Ogle finally confessed and took the officers to a point near where the automobile was abandoned, to get the stolen money. Weinhart claims to have come from Baltimore, and to have joined Ogle Monday morning.

The car used in connection with the robbery was stolen in Baltimore. Ogle has been a wild character, having escaped twice from a reformatory institution, and is thought to have been connected with hold-ups in the state of Wyoming. Weinberg has been working in Baltimore ship yards.

The Presbyterian Reunion.

The Pen-Mar Presbyterian Reunion will be held Thursday, July 31st, 1919.

The address will be made by Rev. Geo. E. Hawes, D. D., pastor of the Market Square Presbyterian Church, Harrisburg, Pa., subject: "The Church and the Hour." Dr. Hawes is a speaker of great earnestness, eloquence and oratorical power.

James McKinley Rose, the well known singer of New York City, recently of St. Thomas' Church, Fifth Avenue, now the tenor in the First M. E. Church, Montclair, N. J., will sing.

The Pen-Mar Orchestra will give a high class concert.

The program will be short and inspiring. Plan to go and urge your friends to go with you.

The request for the veto of the Daylight-saving law repeal, is said to have come from the "National Retail Dry Goods Association," which of course had numerous company from city clerks and other city workers and employees. We wonder how the petitioners—for and against the law—would stand as tax-payers, if they were lined-up and counted?

Real estate values, especially farms, are quite on the ascending scale, as they should be. As long as the products of farm show a tendency toward aviation, the soil which produces them should certainly travel in the same direction. The situation, however, has its speculative side, relative to how long present conditions may continue.

Those who have claims against Uncle Sam for a refund of taxes erroneously paid, find that he is decidedly more prompt as a collector than as a pay-back. When we are a little slow in "ponying-up," we face all sorts of penalties; but, when Uncle Sam is the debtor, we simply face "red tape" and enforced patience, and almost feel guilty in making the claim.

Mr. Ford has twice confessed on the witness stand that he is an "ignorant egotist," and excused the confession by claiming that the cross-questioning lawyer could make him say "black is white." Some of his answers to questions to test his intelligence, would answer as gems for the funny papers. Mr. Ford, by the way, is publishing a paper of his own, but says he pays people to get the facts (?) he puts in it.

The harvest has come and gone, and it might have been greatly worse. We are always inclined to expect "bumper" crops, and to be disappointed unless all of our work is bounteously rewarded; and yet, when we come to return thanks for our blessings in a visible way, by giving liberally to the work of the Master, from our profits, we show that we are not always willing to admit that we have been getting favors, other than those we have individually earned.

Unemployment.

Unemployment is growing throughout the United States, and the Federation of Labor seems to be looking to the Labor Committees of the Senate and House to provide for a permanent Federal Employment service. Exactly so. Government employment at Federation standard wages—whatever that may be.

However, this is not a time to be cynical over the subject. It is rather a time to find out why unemployment exists, and to apply the remedy. The government is interested in this, but perhaps not in the way preferred by Federated Labor. What the country most needs to know, and to remedy, is, whether there would be unemployment if wages, and costs connected with employment, were more reasonable. If it be admitted that the demands of labor are not excessive, then something should be done to lessen the extent of the causes on which these demands are based. If the high cost of living requires the tremendously high scale of wages demanded, evidently, living costs should be lowered.

There is something wrong, and what it is should not be difficult to locate. When employers prefer to stop giving employment, rather than keep their industries going, there must be the best of reasons for their actions. Employers do not lock their shops from either choice, pleasure, or contrariness. If they find the cost of their products mounting too high—higher than they can get back in increased selling prices—it is but very natural that they should prefer to quit, than lose money. The whole rage for more wages, must very naturally have a stopping point, so far as individual ownership of industries is concerned.

Unemployment caused by extravagant wage demands, is one thing; while unemployment because of more workers than work, when reasonable wage demands prevail, is quite a different thing. The people who consume, buy, use, or invest in, after all, have the last say. There must be purchasers for all products of labor. When the products cost too greatly, purchasers have the option of keeping their money in their pockets.

Perhaps, the turning point is about to come, as it must come. Labor should try the experiment of doing the "coming down" act, then waiting for results. Those who have been hoarding and cornering products, for profiteering schemes, should also be halted. The whole tide, upward, of labor, and the products of labor, should stop, and come to a fair level—a fair level for all, including those who are not able to use strikes, and force, to boost their incomes.

The people, after all, are not compelled to buy all of the extravagantly priced articles. Many of them can actually be done without; and it would add greatly to the coming of an era of reason and justice in prices generally, if a very large percentage of the population of this country would economize, by not buying non-necessaries.

The probability is that, to a very great extent, what we call "labor" has been using its power too strenuously, and has not been "laying by in store" while the harvest lasted. There has not been, perhaps, the proper measure of philosophic deduction used, but a sort of run-away program adopted, without thought of there being a stopping place to be met, eventually. Such a thing as uncomplicated demands for increases, is sure to come, and the advance guard is likely in sight. Even "the government" can not afford to clear the road for the runaway.

We do not, by this, mean that all of the fault of the present general cost problem is with labor. It has found able abettors in those, on the side, who have been profited greatly by "big wages." While perhaps complaining of the "cost of labor," these other contingents have nevertheless profited as greatly, if not more so, and are willing to shout in the chorus against labor. The whole "profiteering" army has gone "over the top," time after time; and there must come a time when "a top" will be found that can not be gone over.

Summer Complaint Quickly Relieved
"About two years ago, when suffering from a severe attack of summer complaint, I took Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy, and it relieved me almost instantly," writes Mrs. Henry Jewett, Clark Mills, N. Y. This is an excellent remedy for colic and diarrhoea and should be kept at hand by every family.

The Pay of Legislators.

In the light of the present costivity of labor in general, it will be of interest to note what the coming legislature will do in the matter of the salary of its members, for the session. Pennsylvania, at its last session, increased the pay of its members to $1500. for the term, and perhaps permanently. Maryland still has the law of $5.00 per day, for 90 days, with mileage, which is evidently nothing like fair remuneration—these particular times.

There was a time, and not so long ago, when $450.00 pay for three months services, was considered very good, for the average man; but, it is questionable whether it ever was enough for the calibre of men who should be sent to the legislature. Very likely, the meagre pay was always, with some, a temptation to add to their earnings "on the side," but we do not know that this was actually done in Maryland. At any rate, temptation of this sort should not be provided by law in fixing the pay too low.

The probability is that in years past the State has suffered in the quality of its legislators, because of too much economy in pay. Men engaged in profitable business affairs made a real sacrifice in giving up personal control of their private business, to serve the State; and, while this is patriotic, it is something that the State should not ask. "The laborer is worthy of his hire," and the importance of the affairs of State, demands that high-grade laborers be sent to Annapolis.

Summer Complaint in Children.
There is not anything like so many deaths from this disease now as before Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy came into such general use. When this remedy is given with castor oil as directed and proper care is taken as to diet, it is safe to say that fully ninety-nine out of every hundred cases recover. Mr. W. G. Campbell, of Butler, Tenn., says, "I have used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy for summer complaint in children. It is far ahead of anything I have ever used for this purpose."

Rocking the Boat.

Street car service in Boston and twelve adjacent towns is tied up as the result of a general strike of traction employees. Ten thousand workers of the International Harvester Company are locked out because they struck last week. The threat of a strike at Fall River led to a counter-threat of a shutdown. There is an effort to call out 104,000 building trades workers in Chicago. Strikes in Haverhill, Mass., and in Reading, Pa., have been averted only through concessions on the part of the employers. The list could be prolonged indefinitely. And, overshadowing all is the national strike of marine workers.

We wonder sometimes whether these people who strike know just what they are doing.

All of us are in the same boat. Why should it be supposed that the high cost of living is academic for the man who works with his brain and practical for the man who works with his hands, one whit less hard for the man who is a lone employee than for the man who has the strength of numbers to put behind his demand for this and that concession?

All cannot strike. They would not know how to strike; and they would not do it if they could. Isn't it unfair, unsportsmanlike and un-American for those who can to attempt to settle all their own economic problems by arbitrary methods, at the ultimate cost of other workmen who already feel the burden as heavily as they? How can reducing production, which is what happens every time there is a strike, tend to lower prices? Those who have not forgotten their elementary political economy remember being told that as demand approaches or exceeds supply prices go up. Some of them also know that more money means nothing if it be not backed by more wealth.

Possibly many of them realize that the bubble of inflation always is pricked sooner or later; and that the bigger the bubble the greater the crash.

Our currency is on an inflated basis. Every time that production is stopped awhile, and then resumed at higher wages or under other more costly conditions, a double impetus is given the inflation.

"Why doesn't everybody strike?" might be the rejoinder. "Then we shall have a showdown on this whole proposition."

Everybody struck in Russia. Russia, income having ceased, started to live on capital. The process soon degenerated into an orgy of loot. And Russia is wallowing in an abyss, and there is no man who may say when, if ever, she will climb out. Unless every tenet which we now hold as true is utterly false; unless the millennium is at hand, in the sweat of his brow must man earn bread. And those who endeavor to precipitate an abortive millennium should know, if they do not, that the doctrine of something for nothing is as fallacious now as it was when Eve ate the apple.

If this thing did not concern everybody, perhaps it were as well to let the strikers learn their lesson from experience. The collapse of their houses of cards—which the rest of us must needs bolster up to keep our own houses in order—might convey something to them. But, as was said before, we are all in the same boat; and there are some fools who are trying to rock it.—Balto. News.

Loss of Appetite.

As a general rule there is nothing serious about a loss of appetite, and if you skip a meal or only eat two meals a day for a few days you will soon have a relish for your meals when meal time comes. Bear in mind that at least five hours should always elapse between meals so as to give the food ample time to digest and the stomach a period of rest before a second meal is taken. Then if you eat no more than you crave and take a reasonable amount of outdoor exercise every day you will not need to worry about your appetite. When the loss of appetite is caused by constipation, as is often the case, that should be corrected at once. A dose of Chamberlain's Tablets will do it.

Reduction Works.

The reduction of postage will work a great deal of good. We can take the extra cent to pay the luxury tax on ice cream cones and the movies. The young man will save a penny on the letter that contains a proposal of marriage and when the savings amount to enough he can buy an automobile or fee his lawyer who gets a divorce for him. Franklin said: "A penny saved is a penny earned," and the reduction of postage will be hailed with delight by all. It will be noticed that while postal rates are dropping, there is no decline in meat, etc. We can still stick 60c worth of tenderloin in our vest pocket and still have room for a two dollar pullet. Verily we should be a happy people! —Middletown Valley Register.

HOW THE SUN CHANGES WITH THE SEASON'S SHIFT.

—The sun does not climb straight up in the sky, but obliquely. What is more, his rising point is not the same on two succeeding days. As spring merges into summer the rising point shifts to the north. After June 21, he shifts south, so that on each day he begins his climbing a little more to the south. By December 22 he has reached his southern limit and turns back again.

Since there is a defined region on the eastern horizon along which the sun's rising point shifts in regular order and beyond which it never strays, the daily paths of the sun through the sky in the year form an unshifting, unchanging band of even width—the same band from year to year.

As you go north the sun's path slopes more and more. The band remains the same; it merely swerves up or down in the sky. Hence in the arctic regions the sun during the spring and summer months appears above the horizon, and stays there, traveling in a circle, and becomes the "Midnight Sun."

AMERICAN CRAFT ON SEAS

How the War Has Put Back the Stars and Stripes on the Waters of the World.

For the first time since the days of the famous clipper ships American merchant craft are now plying the seven seas. The shipping board announced that the American merchant marine fleet, built up under the spur of war's necessity, now represented nearly one-fifth of the entire sea-going tonnage of the world, and comprised 46 per cent of all ships clearing from United States ports, as compared with 9.7 per cent before the great war.

Trade routes not traversed by American craft for more than fifty years once more are invaded with new routes established to China, Australia, New Zealand, India, the Dutch East Indies, the west coast of Africa and ports on the Mediterranean. Ships flying the Stars and Stripes also are running regularly to South America, Great Britain and continental Europe, as well as to Canada and Mexico.

The fleet now engaged in overseas commerce consists of 351 freighters, 84 freight and passenger vessels, 71 oil tankers, 230 sailing vessels and 15 miscellaneous ships, aggregating 1,961,239 gross tons. Of this, 315,925 tons are in Transpacific trade, 402,721 tons in South American trade; 761,252 tons in Caribbean and Mexican trade, and 76,014 tons in Alaska and Canadian trade.

When the army and navy return to the shipping board 353 ships which they are operating the commercial fleet under the American flag will be increased by 1,873,251 gross tons, making the total 13,834,750 gross tons, with many hundreds of thousands of tons building or under contract.

How Dog Saved Master's Life.

Dragged by his collie dog for 17 miles through a snow-covered region on the desert and mountains, Clint Crawford, a cattle puncher, known among his associates as "Doc," is still alive. Thrown by his horse Crawford's shoulder was shattered. He was delirious and remembers only intervals of the struggle against death as he staggered along through the snow. Being exhausted, he would have frozen to death in a few hours, but was aroused by his dog. Time after time Crawford sank down in his delirium and was giving up the fight. Each time the collie roused him with scratches from his paws and by biting him, and then led the way across the unmarked snow toward help. After eleven hours the dog took Crawford to the Rose mine, where Crawford received medical aid.

Why Onions May Be Fewer.

One of those stories that sounded like a forerunner of an advance in price came from Bermuda on the steamship Charybdis. It was that much of the crop of Easter lilies there had been destroyed by a windstorm which swept the islands on February 15. The onion crop was said to have suffered some, but the lilies most. No lilies were brought here from Bermuda last year because there was no ship to carry them, the war having taken the vessels. Watch for a rise in onions and an ascension in lilies.—New York World.

How Bird Fired Own Nest.

A sparrow, though not supposed to be a "snipe shooter," picked up a burning cigarette stub thrown down by a man and flew away with it to its nest in the awning of a Lorain, Ohio, shoe store. The owner of the store C. J. Reising, saw smoke curl up from the nest a few minutes later. He reached up and pulled down a burning nest—just as the flames were about to ignite the awning.

Why Nerve Is a Requisite.

War balloon observers are instructed to be parachute jumpers, for if their balloons are attacked they cannot defend themselves, but must seek safety by jumping to the earth, carrying their maps and photographs and other data with them. Usually they land safely, and it takes nerve of the finest quality to do the work of a member of the balloon corps.

A Proud Daughter.

Rebecca, age 8, was very proud of her father's rank as a first lieutenant, and grew quite indignant when a neighbor boy called him "captain."

"I'll have you understand that my daddy is not a captain," she said, "he's a lieutenant."

"Oh, it doesn't matter," replied the boy, "he is an officer."

"Indeed he is not an officer," she protested.

"Yes, dear, a lieutenant is an officer," interrupted Rebecca's mother.

"Well," persisted Rebecca, still determined to maintain her daddy's dignity at all cost, "he's not much of an officer."—Buffalo Commercial.

The Way of It.

"Your dog reminds me of some men."

"How so?"

"In the way he is always practically asserting he can lick any man in the community and in giving tongue to his challenge."

Army No Place for Him.

"It's disgraceful, an able-bodied man like you selling umbrella rings in the street. Why don't you go in the army?"

"What's the use, mum? The harm's done. I don't want umbrella rings."—London Tit-Bits.

One of the Best.

"You say you were misquoted in the public prints?"

"I do," replied Congressman Twobles.

"That's an old excuse."

"Quite true, but it's still serviceable, sir; still serviceable."

Documentary Evidence.

"So you are sure your grandfather was an optimist who trusted human nature implicitly?"

"Absolutely sure. While going through some of his old papers I found a lot of stock in a perpetual motion machine."

Berate the Brute.

"Man's love is of man's life a thing apart. 'Tis woman's whole existence."

"I know the quotation. What about it?"

"That's a good line for a wife to spring when her mutt of a husband tries to hold out a dollar on his pay."

Removing the Annoyance.

"Can't you assume a little more pleasing expression of countenance?" asked the photographer.

"Yes, sir," hesitatingly answered the sitter. "Wait a minute and I'll take off these new shoes."—London Tit-Bits.

Trench Mortar Regiment.

The wartime organization of trench mortar batteries with the divisions is to be abandoned in favor of a single trench mortar regiment, which will be organized as a part of the army artillery to be assigned for duty by the army commander. Trench guns, resulted from stabilized trench warfare, and the divisional batteries lost their usefulness excepting under special conditions when the allied attack turned the warfare into an open struggle. For that reason, the trench mortar units of all divisions were among the first to be sent home.

Submarine Not Yet Perfect.

In spite of the fact that the British have some steam-driven 2,700-ton submarines capable of a surface speed of from 23 to 25 knots, the submarine as a weapon of war is too slow and too blind when it is submerged to be considered a serious weapon of naval warfare. When it can see electrically to a distance of ten to fifteen miles while it is submerged so deeply as to be invisible to the air scout, and when it can steam 20 knots submerged it will dominate the naval situation, says Scientific American.

Rival of the X-Ray.

A physician has contrived a simple camera that seems to rival the X-ray in a limited field. Into a light-proof box, containing the member to be examined, he admits light from a tungsten lamp, filtered to pass only red rays. Passing through the hand or foot the red light strikes, at the bottom of the box, a photographic plate highly sensitized with an eosin solution. An exposure of one-half second makes the shadow picture.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

From beauty transcendent your sister doth shine.

When we look beyond the tomb.

We thy loss most deeply feel.

But the God, who hast heretofore us
He will all our sorrows heal.

CARD OF THANKS.

A., and as such has been the active head of the war work of the organization. Secretary Baker, in presenting the order on behalf of General Peyton C. March, Chief of Staff, thanked Dr. Mott for his personal zeal in war work and his able direction of the great war service organization of the Y. M. C. A.

ARMY CHAPLAIN COMBINED
PREACHING AND BOXING

Boxing, as a side line to the ministry, is a professional combination that Earl A. Blackman has found works very well in his job as chaplain in the United States Army. Blackman was a parson before the war, in a Kansas church, and became a chaplain in 1917, attached to the 130th Field Artillery. But before that he had been a boxing instructor,

EARL A. BLACKMAN.

and now as an active champion of the Y. M. C. A.'s athletic program for the A. E. F., he has come to be known as the "Fighting Chaplain." Every now and then he demonstrates his enthusiasm for the sport by a little bout with a picked army man, and all the doughboys admit that he is as good in the ring as he is in the pulpit. Blackman encourages athletics and particularly boxing, because he holds that the sport develops a man mentally as well as physically. The "Fighting Chaplain" is extremely popular with the army men abroad, and has been of material assistance to the Y. M. C. A. in its organization of the great athletic program which it provides for the American army.

MILES OF FILM FOR SOLDIERS.

Paris, July 2.—More than 1,000 miles of film were used by the Y. M. C. A. during the month of April, in France and the Rhineland, to provide picture shows for audiences of more than 1,000,000 doughboys a week. More than 1,000 projection machines were required for giving these performances and over 1,500 employees were engaged in the work of the Cinema Department. The Y. M. C. A. commenced its cinema work with the A. E. F. just one year ago the last of April. Then 368 showings per week was a record, and these showings were given principally in the labor battalion camps. But the popularity of the shows and the demand for them was so great that the work had to be extended until now there are more than 4,332 showings per week. During this twelve months more than 90,000 shows were presented to audiences totalling more than 50,000,000 doughboys.

PRINCESS AND DOUGHBOYS
DANCE TO JAZZ STRAINS

Aix-les-Bains, France, July.—A cat may look at a king, indeed, but a soldier may dance with a princess, too—that is, if he is one of those proverbially lucky people, the American soldiers, who went to war for stern reality's sake, but did manage to stumble into all kinds of adventures while they were about it. For it actually happened one day not long ago that the American doughboys on leave here suddenly found a Queen in their midst, a real Queen, beautiful and regal, with the loveliest young daughter of a Princess that was ever seen outside a fairy story. Queen Marie of Roumania and the Princess Marie had come to visit the Y. M. C. A. leave area, and to see the Yanks at their business of having a good time.

American jazz music was responsible for the sudden friendship which sprang up between the soldiers and the Princess, for until the band started and the dancing began, everything was just as it might have been expected to be when a Queen was looking on. But the music was too much for even the royal feet.

PRINCESS MARIE.

and so when the music started Marie began to look wistfully at the dancers and to keep time with her small feet. The Queen saw through it all and suggested to her daughter that she join in with the "Y" girls, and dance with the Americans.

A suggestion was all that was needed, and in a very brief space of time, the pretty little Princess was in the arms of a big Yank, learning American steps to the tune of hobnobs, and having "the time of her life." She didn't get to dance with her first partner long, however, for the great dancing game of "steal" was in order, and every single soldier in the room was making the grand rush for the Princess. It was all very breathless and gay and exciting, and the doughboys enjoyed it hugely. But better than that, the Princess enjoyed it fully as much, and announced that a Y. M. C. A. leave area was as good a place for Princesses as it was for the A. E. F.

"Y" SHOWS NOVEL MOVIES.

Paris, July 1.—Being forced to travel back to America a bed patient, does not keep the American soldier nowadays from enjoying a good movie on board ship. Even in the most serious cases, those who are forced to lie flat on their backs during the entire journey across the Atlantic are enthusiastic movie fans, their opportunity to see Charlie Chaplin, Doug, Fairbanks and others, being the result of an adjustable movie machine, which the Y. M. C. A. is using on transports to throw pictures on the ceilings of the sick-bays, or wards, where the worst cases are placed. The ceiling screen movie on shipboard came as the result of experiments that have proven successful in American hospitals in France, the pictures in these cases being thrown on the plain white ceiling without the use of a screen. The machines used are small, and are adjusted at an angle that makes a perfect picture-show possible. The men in the sick-bays are said to be the most appreciative movie-audiences with which the "Y" has dealt in all its work in the A. E. F.

"Y" ACTIVITIES IN RUSSIA.

Soldiers of nine distinct nations which form the armed forces of the Allies in Russia, are being served by the Y. M. C. A. there. These include Americans, Czechs, French, British, Kolchak Russians, Italian, Serbian, Roumanian and Chinese soldiers. The "Y" now has twenty huts and thirty "rolling canteens" in Siberia.

PROPER AMERICAN IS SIMS

Many Reasons Why Rear Admiral Has Obtained and Retains General Popular Regard.

Rear Admiral Sims came quietly into town the other day, made a speech or two, and when he left he had Washington hanging to his very abbreviated jacket tail. Folks here certainly did like the admiral. A popular idol that obtains the plaudits of Washington is pretty good.

These are some of the things the people liked about the admiral: He said very positively that he will not write a book on the war; he referred to the navy's part in the war as its "stunt"; he boasted General Pershing to the skies, indicating that the admiral is without a jealous streak; he referred jocularly to himself as "the only rear admiral in captivity," and said he was glad to exhibit himself if the folks wanted to see him; and, best of all, he took time to talk with every one who could squeeze a word into his ears.

Down at the Union station, when the admiral was boarding his private car, a gray-haired woman rushed up and shook his hand warmly.

"This is the proudest day of my life, admiral," she said. "I now have shaken hands twice with you."

"All right, my dear lady," the admiral replied, raising his cap. "I'm glad if meeting me pleases you. Come around again the next time I'm in town and we'll shake a third time."

If any further proof that the admiral is human were needed, it might be stated that he plays a rattling game of handball.—Washington Star.

OLD THINGS UNDER THE SUN

Democracy in Ancient Jewish Days and the League of Nations, Are Two.

The democratic idea is of great antiquity, the Christian Herald reminds its readers. Under the prophets and judges, Israel was a democracy. It was not until they were fascinated by the barbaric splendor and unrestrained license of the heathen nations around them that they began to be dissatisfied with their own simple ways and to long for a king and a showy court. It was the lure of sin and worldly vanity. Samuel warned them against courts and kings and told them of what would happen, but his warnings went unheeded. The vision of the age of peace began as early as eight centuries B. C., but it was not until the Christian era that the world change in the existing order fully dawned upon the minds of men. The idea of a league of nations is not new. Such a league was foreshadowed by Jean Bloch, in his remarkable book, "The Future of War," issued 20 years ago. It was also foreseen by Emanuel Kant, who, in his essay on "Perpetual Peace," wrote that the law of nations must be based on the federation of free states. At different times leaders in national and international reform have had visions of such a league, but always as a possibility of the remote future. It has remained for the United States to promulgate it at a time when the world seems prepared to listen.

Wiping Out Predatory Animals.

During 1918 hunters of the United States department of agriculture killed 83 gray wolves in New Mexico, 34 mountain lions, 15 stock-destroying bears, 1,860 coyotes, and 350 bobcats, we are told. These animals were killed at a total expense of $24,800, and the saving effected by their destruction, on the basis commonly accepted by stockmen, amounts to $215,950 annually. Hunting during the spring period destroys many young, and thus prevents increase. Many coyotes not accounted for in the figures given were destroyed by poison. The killing of these animals marks a long stride in extermination of gray wolves and other predatory animals, and the saving is cumulative for years to come.

Pass the Salt!

Two reporters were boasting of the speed of their shorthand writing.

"Whenever I am reporting at a meeting on a warm evening, all the people try to get near to my table.

"Why?" asked the other.

"Because," said the pen pusher, "my hand goes so fast that it creates a current of air like a fan."

"A mere nothing," said number two. "I always have to report on wet paper, or else the current of air caused by the movement of my hand would blow it away. Besides the paper has to be wetted every few minutes, because the friction caused by the rapid movements of my arm would set fire to it in no time."

Use for Rat Skins.

Exhibiting the cured skin of a brown rat, the veterinary inspector of New castle, Eng., has pronounced such skins superior to the linings found in some expensive coats. The difficulty in creating a ratskin industry appears to be the uncertain source of supply; but the demand that would be aroused would be an incentive for destroying the rats that now constitute so serious a plague. The bodies of the animals need not be wasted, as they form suitable food for pigs, poultry and dogs

Didn't Know the Groom.

"That so?"

"Yes. You know I went to Lillian's wedding."

"Yes."

"Well, the other day I met Lillian on the street, and I didn't recognize the man with her as the groom."

The Game of Living

By S. B. HACKLEY

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Robert Bickley paused in his leisurely walk down Bradlaw street and seated himself on one of the imposing stone steps of the church on the corner.

"I've got to rest a minute," he said half aloud, fanning himself slowly with his straw hat. "It doesn't take much exertion to use a fellow up when he's only three days out of the hospital—but it's glorious to be out again! John says it's pretty quiet on my beat—me for duty in a couple or so days now!"

A pretty young girl came out of the church and paused a half moment uncertainly on the upper step. The young man, in his swift, involuntary glance, felt his heart leap. He rose hastily and stepped aside. She started down the steps, but her eyes were misty from crying; she stumbled, missing a step. Bickley caught her full in his arms as she fell.

"Thank you—oh, thank you!" she faltered as she stood erect. "I was very awkward!"

She passed on down the street, but he had seen despair in the eyes she raised to him. He looked after her with a strange constriction of the heart.

"That was my girl!" he said to himself as he walked slowly back the other way, "and I don't even know her name or where she is going! And oh, good Lord, she looked like she wanted to die!"

A month before, the old insurance man for whom Hester Moran worked had died—the city was overcrowded with workers—the girl had not found another job. On this Sunday she had shrunk from going to the little church she regularly attended, and so had gone to a big strange one; but in this great church it seemed to the little stenographer every one was "rich in lands and money," there were but two pennies left in her purse, and, after Tuesday night, her rent would be gone. No money, no work, and nowhere to go!

With despairing bitterness in her soul, Hester had risen and slipped out of the church.

"I'll try again tomorrow and Tuesday," she said to herself—"perhaps Wednesday—then—"

Monday and Tuesday were one continuous tramp. She had asked for work at everything she could do, only to be turned down everywhere. In the dusk of Wednesday she stood in the lobby of a great office building, resolved to make one last try. "Stenographer wanted," the slip of paper she held in her hand read, "Room 609."

The stylish, elderly man into whose office she was admitted gave one look at the newcomer, and turned to the six girls waiting to talk with him about the job.

"No use waiting," he flung at them, "I can see none of you will do!"

With a gallant air he set a chair for Hester in his inner office and drew his own big chair close up beside it.

"You'll suit me to a 'T,' duckie," he remarked. "I've been looking for something slick like you, and I can see with one eye you're a live wire."

Sickened, Hester edged her chair away.

"How much does the place pay?" she asked.

"Five dollars at first!"

"But I—a girl can't live on that!"

"Who expects you to, sweetness? A looker like you doesn't have to live on $5. Why, you might get as much as twenty a week if we hit it off together. That's what my last stenographer got."

He reached over and squeezed her hand. Hester rose, her cheeks aflame with helpless wrath.

"That's the last insult I'll ever receive," she assured herself when she was in the street again, "the very last."

The smell of the bakeshop's fresh rolls sickened her hungry stomach, empty since her breakfast of crackers. At the foot of the stairs that led to her room she paused tempted to borrow a slice of bread from her landlady, but she clinched her hands and climbed the steps.

"I won't be hungry very long," she thought.

It was close on midnight when she crept out to the park, where the strong tide beat against the sea wall. The night was warm and sultry, but the girl shivered as she crouched on a park bench.

"I've got nobody," she defended herself to conscience; "nobody to care."

But as she spoke, there floated before her excited brain the face of the young man who had saved her from falling at the church steps.

"He'd never hurt a woman," she thought; "he looked good. I could have loved him! I wish I had known him and he had wanted me!"

A clock not far from the park struck twelve. The young fellow in a policeman's uniform, standing on the sea wall, heard a light step behind him. Then a small white figure slipped past him like a bird and flung itself into the water. He let himself swiftly into the washing tide and struck out for the sinking white figure. In a little time he was back at the base of the wall, and John Tweedle, another officer, whom his cries had brought, was helping him.

"Let me, Bob; you're not fit to lift her again," Tweedle remonstrated, as, with a prayer in his heart, Bickley bent over the girl.

Her eyes were closed, but he knew her for the girl who had passed him on the church steps on Sunday. He had found her again, and like this!

Late in the afternoon Hester awoke to clear consciousness in the hospital bed.

She raised herself. "Why didn't they let me down? It wouldn't have hurt anybody!"

The nurse shook her head in reproach. "It did hurt some one. The young man who saved you is just up from a fever—he went back on duty only last night—he wasn't fit to jump into the river, but he risked his life because he wanted you to live! He's a good boy, too—I've known him all his life!"

Hester's white face turned whiter. "Where is he?" she demanded. "Help me to dress."

A moment later Robert Bickley took hold of his nurse's sleeve. "I'm going to get up," he told her. "I'm all right now."

"Lie still," she bade him, "lie still and keep your eyes shut. I'm sending somebody to see you—that girl that you saved. I think it'll be a lesson to her."

"Oh, don't die!" There was remorseful agony in the voice that Bickley, lying with closed eyes, heard presently, "don't die! I never thought I'd hurt any one!"

He opened his eyes and sat up. "Don't," he besought her, "I've just been a bit tired since—I helped to give you another try at the game of living, that's all!"

"I—I haven't got anybody to care!" she sobbed, unheeding. "If you die, I'll try it all over when there's nobody by!"

"No you don't!" he said, and reached out for her hands. "I am all right—and you have got somebody! There—there's me! Say," he went on, a bashful red coloring his cheek, "I've been loving you ever since I saw you Sunday on the church steps. I've been wishing every minute since I could find you and make you love me. I've got enough saved up for a bit of a home for my wife, and we—we could be the happiest things alive! Say you'll think about it, little girl!"

When the nurse came back, the girl hid her face on her friendly shoulder. "She says she thinks she'll like the game of living, from now on!" the young man cried, his eyes shining.

NOT ALL IMPRESSED ALIKE

Curious to Note the Different Behavior of Animals in the Vicinity of War's Alarms.

Some interesting notes have been made in regard to the behavior of various animals under the terrific conditions of noise, vibration, explosion and other disturbances at the front. Thus it seems clear that some kinds of birds under the dominance of instincts of feeding, nesting or brooding, behave as if they are indifferent to all kinds of turmoil. Living creatures of many kinds are not in the least impressed by sounds which have no interest for them. To terrific disturbances, which have neither inherited nor acquired "meaning," an accurately sensitive organism may remain quite indifferent.

But another point is raised, says Nature, by some observations which refer to the diverse ways in which sheep and cows react to dummy bombs released from an airplane. The cows seem entirely indifferent to the "swish" of the falling bomb, but the sheep "invariably scatter in panic."

Have the cows a different—more placid—temperament? But how excited they get at times by the buzzing of flies that cannot hurt them. The excitement is probably due to fallacious association with the buzzing of blood-sucking flies which can hurt them; and the suggestion is that sheep are panic-stricken because the swish of a falling bomb is probably not unlike the sound of a bird of prey, say a golden eagle.

How Flowers Were Named.

The daisy (as Chaucer has it) "the eye of day"—i. e., the sun; the sunflower is named from its rays of sunshine, yellow. There is also the moon-daisy. The geranium is the crane's bill, the Greek word for a crane being geranos. From the form of the leaf we have dandelion (French dent de lion, lion's tooth).

Pimpernel, a corrupt form of "bipinnat" (Latin bis and penna), is the double-winged flower. From their properties, mostly medicinal, are named narcissus (narcotic), nasturtium (nose twister), honeysuckle and lavender (used to scent linen fresh from the laundry).

Thirty Days in February.

In traveling around the world a day has to be added or thrown overboard, according to the direction you are going. The adjustment is invariably made when crossing the 180th meridian, almost midway between Japan and California, so a vessel on the spot on February 29, in a leap year, must accordingly have a February 30. In point of fact February 30 does appear in the ship menu. But it is hard lines on a baby born aboard ship that day, as he can never have another birthday unless he journeys across the line when February 29 becomes February 30.

Strange!

"Dear me," said old Mr. Boggs, hesitatingly, "I know I've forgotten something, but, for the life of me, I can't remember what it is."

THROUGH THE LOOKING-GLASS

By EVELYN NESBIT.

The unselfish woman of yesterday does not exist today. The woman who would spend her precious Saturday afternoons inside baking cookies and pastries, the woman who would spend her Sundays cooking family dinners, can't be bought for love or money.

Women have discovered that they, too, want to live. You won't find a woman who will toll and spin 24 hours a day and smile at the end of it and say, "All's right with the world."

Thank goodness for that! It is a fortunate thing that the entirely unselfish woman no longer exists or that any woman who still is constituted after this fashion is not appreciated these days.

We don't want martyrs in our homes any more. The day of slaves is gone, the woman who still has no time for self-development—which is what the "selfish" women of today are doing—is out of place. The labor-saving household devices were not invented as ornaments. They were invented so that women would use them and have time to become more wonderful and better as a result.

The world is too wide-awake to be able to tolerate a woman who can speak only of how she starches curtains and how she cooks her potroast tender. The world wants women who read the newspapers, who know something of the progress of science and invention, who take more than a casual peep out their back doors. The unselfish woman who sacrifices herself for her home to such an extent that she cannot develop her mind and soul is a creature of the dark ages. We want the "selfish" women who have learned how to devote the least time to irksome duties and the greatest amount of time to improving their minds and making themselves happy.

HARMONY IN THE WARDROBE

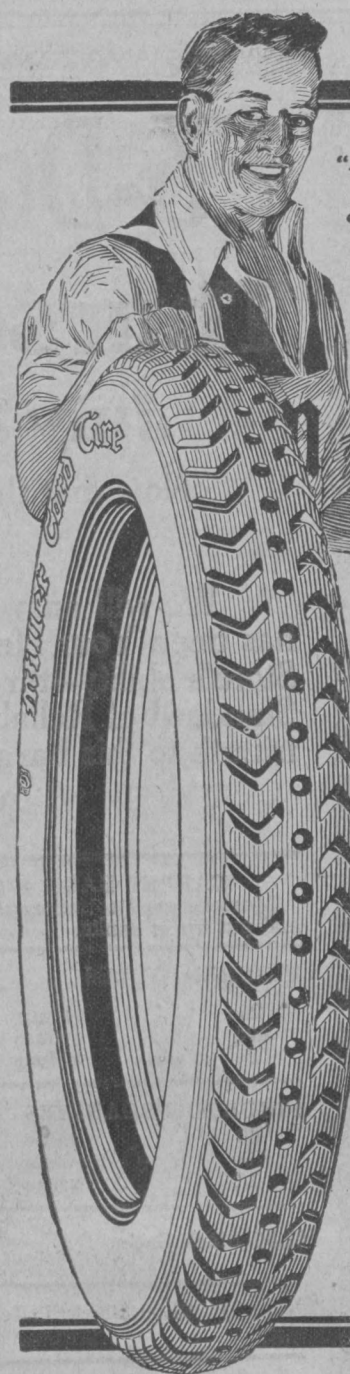

Combinations of Colors May Be Adopted, Enabling Each to Have Own Color Scheme.

Ever since she became old enough to have any serious thoughts about her personal appearance, a certain girl has had a desire for perfect harmony in dress. The combination of a purple dress, a red hat and a brown coat, for instance, distressed her.

A scant purse made it impossible for her to purchase a complete new outfit every time one new garment was added to the wardrobe, so she conceived the idea of adopting a color scheme for herself. She chose blue and brown as these had always been favorite and becoming colors. These colors combine beautifully, never clash, and the combination can be found in materials suitable to all seasons and occasions. After she made up her mind she was never tempted to depart from her rule of purchasing garments in some shade of her adopted colors only and soon perfect harmony prevailed in her wardrobe.

BEAUTIFUL EVENING GOWN

Nile green is the color of this elegant evening gown. The draped skirt is of chiffon velvet, while the basque-like waist is formed of brocaded velvet of the same shade. Large squares of tulle make the sleeves, and there is a touch of silver net at the neck.

"I am penalized if ever one comes back."

Like An Extra Emergency Brake

—The Miller Tread That Is Geared-to-the-Road

MILLER UNIFORM TIRES are the only tires with the famous tread that is Geared-to-the-Road. These many caterpillar feet engage the ground like cogs. They give positive traction—full power ahead—and safety. And for a sudden stop they fortify the brakes because they mesh with the road.

Uniform Miller Tires mean mileage certainty. That's because all are built to a championship standard by uniform workmanship. So all are long-distance runners.

SENATOR WARFIELD IS AGAIN IN THE FIELD

In Cogent Statement to Carroll County Voters He Stands Unreservedly upon his Record and Asks for its Approval.

TO THE VOTERS OF CARROLL COUNTY:—

I hereby announce my candidacy for re-election to the State Senate, subject to the Democratic Primaries.

The people of Carroll County, to whom I am grateful, elected me to the Senate in 1915, pledged to economy and efficiency in the public service and to advocate the abolishing of needless offices and to a business administration of public affairs. How well I discharged the trust then reposed in me, I leave to you, whom I have served, to decide.

As a member of the Finance Committee I did my part in reducing the expenses of the legislative sessions of 1916 and 1918 as compared with the sessions of 1912 and 1914, over one hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

The same committee also approved the Budget System of finance, which system I consider a great safe-guard surrounding the receipts and expenditures of public money.

Our State appropriated, and placed at the disposal of the Council of Defense, two million dollars to meet emergencies arising from the world war and, notwithstanding this fact our State taxes did not advance, which still leads me to believe that under normal conditions our taxes can be reduced.

I believe in encouraging agricultural interests in every possible way. I am in sympathy with the advanced position our State has taken in the building of our highways, in the strengthening of our educational system and other constructional legislation.

I am better prepared from experience to serve you now than before, and I ask your support that I may be returned to the Legislature to complete the work I have started in the interest of our State and County.

LESSON FOR JULY 27

CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP.

LESSON TEXT—Phil. 4:10-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—If we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin.—1 John 1:7.
ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Psalms 133:1-3; Mal. 3:16; John 17:20, 21; 1 Cor. 12:12; Romans 12:15, 16; 1 John 4:7-12.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Loving Jesus and one another (Acts 12:1-17; John 13:34).
JUNIOR TOPIC—Keeping company with God's people (Acts 2:37-47).
INTERMEDIATE TOPIC—Our Christian friendships (John 15:12-15).
SENIOR AND ADULT TOPIC—Basis and benefits of Christian fellowship.

The Epistle to the Philippians furnishes us with a beautiful example of fellowship between Paul and the church at Philippi. This church on several occasions sent Paul money for his support. The particular ministry of this sort at the hands of Epaphroditus while Paul was a prisoner at Rome was the occasion for this epistle. His words of thanksgiving for this gift is the text of our lesson.

I. Paul's Expression of Appreciation (4:10).

The Philippians had on several occasions expressed their sympathy and love for Paul by their gifts, but considerable time had elapsed since any gifts had reached him. When their care for him again flourished he was made to greatly rejoice. He recognized that the Lord was ministering to him through these people, therefore he rejoiced in the Lord. This was a very tactful way of saying "I thank you." This gift was gladly received because he was in need and also because it assured him that his old friends, still loved him.

II. Paul's Manly Independence (vv. 11-13).

Though sincerely appreciating the gift, he would have them know:

1. He was independent of circumstances (v. 11). Through discipline of the Lord he had learned to be content with his lot. He knew that all things work together for good (Rom. 8:28), so whatever he was experiencing at the moment was from the hand of the loving Father. Happy, indeed, is the man who has learned this secret. Paul was willing to take poverty or prosperity, whatever came.

2. Willing to take what God sent (v. 12). If it be prosperity, he would rejoice and praise God; if it be adversity, he would patiently suffer it, knowing that it was permitted by the Heavenly Father because it was needful for his best interests. This is a fine example of self-mastery. If a thing desired was not forthcoming he would not allow his heart to desire it.

3. His faith was in Christ (v. 13). The soul-poise which Paul possessed was not of himself, but because Christ indwelt him. Such composure is only possible as Christ lives in and becomes the dynamic of one's life. When the life is thus surcharged with the energy of Christ, he is absolutely independent of circumstances. Such poise is possible to all who will unreservedly yield themselves to God.

III. The Fellowship of Paul and the Philippians (vv. 14-19).

1. The gift of this church to Paul is an outstanding example of Christian sympathy (vv. 14-16). No other church had remembered Paul at all in his great need, but this one rendered pecuniary aid again and again, affording a fine example of mutual love between a minister and the people supporting him.

2. The gift a spiritual blessing to the church (v. 17). Paul was pleased with their gift not primarily for its value to him, but because of the blessing which the people derived from giving it. It was fruit which abounded to their account. "It is more blessed to give than to receive" (Acts 20:35).

3. Their gift was an acceptable act of worship—"an odor of a sweet smell, well-pleasing to God" (v. 18). True Christian giving is an act of worship to God.

4. Their gift would be rewarded by the Heavenly Father (v. 19). True Christian giving is not on the basis of prudence, but by faith in the living God who will make recompense according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus.

Within God's Keeping.

He that takes himself out of God's hands into his own by and by will not know what to do with himself.—Benjamin Whichcote.

Face of the Master.

"Be sure that whenever you make an unselfish effort to comfort another, you will get a glimpse of the face of the Master."

Around the Throne.

Precious to themselves, O Lord, is the death of thy saints, which takes off the dusty cover that hides their brightness; which shapes and polishes them to a beautiful luster, and sets them as stars round about thy throne.—John Austin.

Fills Us With Wonder.

God lives above us, through the stars and the heavens—the above and the beyond, which we cannot penetrate nor fully understand. The mysteriousness of him fills us with wonder.

July 27 How Do Men Confess Christ and How Deny Him?

Romans 10:9; Luke 22:55-61
"Ye shall be witnesses unto me . . . unto the uttermost parts of the earth." This was the parting commission of our Lord to His followers, and this involves confession of Him everywhere.

In days like ours when a vague religiousness has taken the place of a vital Christian experience, it becomes increasingly necessary that those who know the Lord Jesus Christ as their personal Saviour, and have the witness of His Spirit that they are the children of God, should confess Him at every opportunity. Such confession, backed by a consistent Christian life, is a power for good in many directions.

We cannot all be preachers in one sense of that word, but we can all be confessors and tell of all that Christ is to us as a Saviour. This is the best kind of preaching. A preacher is but a saved man telling others of the salvation which is in Christ Jesus.

Confession of Christ develops faith and strengthens Christian convictions. When Peter denied his Lord his faith suffered and when under sad eclipse, but later when he boldly confessed Christ before the Sanhedrim his faith glowed with the warmth of conviction that made his testimony irresistible. Between his failure and his success, Peter had a personal interview with Christ. Failure to confess Him is sin, and the sins must needs be forgiven. Restored to fellowship and anointed by the Spirit, Peter became a leader indeed. Possibly some of us need a similar experience.

There are many Christians who assert that a right life is the only confession required. Undoubtedly a consistent Christian life is in itself a confession of Christ. "Under whose preaching were you converted?" asked a certain man of a fellow traveler. "Under no man's preaching," was the reply, "but under mother's living." While holding fast to the necessity of holy living let us also hold fast to the necessity of courageous speaking. Matthew 10:32, 33, teaches us plainly that there is a duty in this direction.

FOR BEAUTY, NOT PLUMBING

French Chateau Owner Had Americans Remove Modern Improvements They Had Installed.

In our anxiety to get results in France we were often tactless from a French point of view. This cause of irritation was exaggerated by our general ignorance of the language. I wonder if the American schools, after this, will teach us speaking French instead of the book French they taught in my generation?

And we ran into certain French peculiarities which we found it hard to understand. For example, early in our war a fine old chateau near Bordeaux was leased for a headquarters. By the terms of the lease we were to leave everything exactly as we found it. The chateau in its four or five hundred years of existence had never known sanitary plumbing; the owners bathed in wash basins or rubber tubs. Expecting to stay a long time we installed, by permission, drains, bathtubs, toilets, a water-heating system.

When, last January, we ended the lease and moved out the officer who conducted the business offered to leave the plumbing where it was, since its removal would cost as much as it was worth. The French owner refused. We had to take out our plumbing. What he wanted from that chateau was not sanitation, but venerable beauty, and the sense that he dwelt in the same identical home as his ancestor of the tenth generation back.

The American finds it hard to understand such a point of view; and he is a bit brusque in expressing his opinion thereon.—Will Irwin in the Saturday Evening Post.

FLYERS TO HUNT OUTLAWS

Cotton Plantations Planted in Defiance of Authority Seen Easily From the Air.

The department of agriculture has adapted the airplane to its needs, and plans to have a large fleet of machines to serve the farmer, lumberman and orchardist during the next six months, according to an announcement from Washington recently, says the San Francisco Chronicle. The machines will be used to find forest fires, map out forest and other surveys and to act as detectives to find outlaw cotton planters in Texas, Arizona and southern California.

Lieutenant Comper at Ellington a year ago investigated the cotton situation. Owing to danger of an invasion of pink bollworm from Mexico it was necessary to create restricted safety zones where no cotton could be grown. Certain outlaw planters in land surrounded by heavy forests have defied the government and planted in these districts, which are difficult to find. The young Californian took a camera with him, cruised over the forests at a 7,000-foot altitude, and snapped seven outlaw fields. The fields were destroyed. Comper has been released from service and will soon return to California to organize the agricultural aviation scout work on this coast.

VERTISES ITS OWN WARES

Knowitall Family Shrinks From No Publicity in Pointing Out Markets to Be Patronized.

The Knowitall family is increasing here.

Members of this large and important branch of the human family seem to have decided that there is no place in the world quite so fine as the national capital, judging from the large number of these busybody folk to be heard in the streets, offices and other places.

You will know a Knowitall whenever you hear him or her. It will be a mild-mannered little man discussing at great length and in a loud voice—always loud—the proper solution of the question of world peace.

It will be a very young man who understands tactics, logistics and all the other branches of the military art from A to Z, and who does not hesitate to offer free advice—at several thousand miles distance—to General Foch, General Pershing et al.

It will be a young woman who is quite sure—in fact, doubt never enters her head—that she is eminently qualified to speak—and, of course, loudly—upon all points of domestic economy. She gives mother and grandmother pointers on how to cook and sew and sweep, and knows all the best methods for taking care of babies.

It will be—but what is the use? All that is possible is to mention a few, and listen to the others.—Washington Star.

WHAT WAS THERE TO SAY?

Simple Prank of Fate That Caused Embarrassment Surely Hard Thing to Explain Away.

The minister of a certain small town Indiana church recently held a number of meetings for his young men members, in which he warned them against being frivolous in the choice of wives, etc. "Modest young women should always be chosen," he quoted and then delivered a heavy tirade against the prevailing short skirts and silk stockings.

Several of the young girls were rather indignant and avoided the minister for a time. But one day as he was coming home from shopping for his wife he met two who at first were rather cold, but as the conversation progressed became distinctly amused and finally departed giggling. The younger one fired this final retort: "I'm glad you changed your mind on some things, Reverend T.—"

The minister wondered on that last speech all the way home. Then he repeated it to his wife. She looked at him closely and then burst out laughing. "No wonder," she exclaimed, and held up for him to see the magazine he was carrying.

Some way, in packing his bundles together he had turned it inside out and there, facing the young women, had been an advertisement of very fancy rose-colored silk stockings on a very beautiful model.—Indianapolis News.

He Wanted to Know.

A well-known St. Louis society woman has some very interesting and intelligent grandchildren, and this is the story she tells upon herself. Her little grandson, looking puzzled, said to her: "Grandmother, how does it come that your name is Brown and father's name is Smith, when you are his mother?" These are, of course, not the names, but they will do for the story.

"I'll explain, dear," said grandmother. "You see, I had several names. First my name was White, then I married your father's father, Mr. Smith, and I became Mrs. Smith, and that is your father's name. Then he died and I married Mr. Brown."

"And where is Mr. Brown?" asked the child.

"He is dead, too," said grandmother. "Then what will be the name of the next man you will marry?"

"Well, I couldn't say right off," said grandmother. "I'll have to think about that."

Why Not Raise More Sheep?

The fur that warms a monarch warmed the bear. But the wool that warms a sheep makes two good spits for a man.

Only one sheep in twelve living today is an American sheep, although Americans require a quarter of all the fleeces every year.

Farmers and ranchers could double their flocks and still they would not supply enough wool for our home use, declares "Griad" in the Philadelphia Press. We need in the United States more than a sheep for every person, and that accounts partly for your dear lamb chops and leg of mutton.

But it isn't expensive wool alone that boosts the price of your new spring suit.

The wool in a $50 suit stands the maker less than a tenth of what you pay for it.

University to Teach Business Methods.

Four new professorships are to be established at Edinburgh university, i. e., zoology, forestry, psychiatry (mental diseases), and accounting and business methods. The salaries in the first-named two have been fixed at $5,000 and in the other two at $3,500. The sum of $75,000 has been raised by a number of citizens in Edinburgh and Leith (Scotland), to endow the chair of accounting and business methods. It is also understood that funds for a lectureship in another branch of commerce are about to be provided by the same subscribers.—Trade Commissioner H. G. Brock, London.

IT'S NOT YOUR HEART IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Kidney disease is no respecter of persons. A majority of the ills afflicting people today can be traced back to kidney trouble.

The kidneys are the most important organs of the body. They are the filters, the purifiers, of your blood.

Kidney disease is usually indicated by weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, headache, stomach trouble, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gall stones, gravel, rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago.

All these derangements are nature's signals to warn you that the kidneys need help. You should use GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately.

The soothing, healing oil stimulates the kidneys, relieves inflammations and destroys the germs which have caused it. Do not wait until tomorrow. Go to your drugist today and insist on GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. In twenty-four hours you should feel health and vigor returning and will bless the day you first heard of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil.

Complaints are plentiful of the very bad condition of the Littlestown road, at Piney Creek—the long-standing bad spot on the road—and of the Taneytown end of the "Keymar Pike." The frequent rains have added very greatly toward making conditions very much worse than normal, at these places.

Parents of boys, in Taneytown, need to exercise better restraint over them, or more of them will get into trouble. Turning boys loose on the streets without knowing—or perhaps caring—how they behave themselves, is a habit that is very reprehensible on the part of parents, and very bad training for the boys.

A lady came into our office, this week, and expressed concern as to the need of Taneytown for another professional man of a much in demand class. This question, in general, is worth while giving more attention than it receives. We take too little account of what our town needs, and make no effort to have our needs supplied—just complain about it.

It is time to advertise Real Estate at private sale, for possession next Spring. Please note that we charge double rate for such notices in our "Special Notice" column. It is always more satisfactory to describe properties, if you want to interest distant readers, as only those nearby will know a property by a short special notice advertisement.

The Pilot says Union Bridge has mosquitoes, too. Glad to know it—we feared it was all our fault that we had 'em. The Pilot also advises against trying to interest the Board of Health in the matter, as it may require a "complete sewerage system." We have never heard of this County Board being so energetic, but thought it was mainly ornamental.

Guy Foreman, a Taneytown boy of ten years, was sentenced to the Maryland School for Boys, House of Refuge, by Justice Davidson, on Monday, and he was taken to that institution by the Sheriff. The charge was for being incorrigible, and beyond the control of his parents. Among the charges was that of interfering with railroad property, and also of building a fire at the Taneytown Grain & Supply Co's buildings.

Owing to his going out of public business in Taneytown and his contemplating removal from the community, Mr. John S. Bower has resigned as treasurer of Trinity Lutheran Church, after over 16 years of continuous service. In accepting the resignation the church council expressed its appreciation of Mr. Bower's service. Mr. Harry I. Reindollar has been elected to succeed Mr. Bower as treasurer, except for the cemetery fund. Mr. Milton Ohler has been made treasurer of this fund. The change of treasurers will take place August 1, so that all persons having church business with Mr. Bower should see him before that date. After that Mr. Ohler will handle all business pertaining to the cemetery, and Mr. Reindollar will receive and disburse all sums due on other accounts of the church.

R. SMITH SNADER

For State Senator for Carroll County

To the Voters of Carroll County:

Owing to the many demands made by my friends over the county, regardless of political affiliation, I hereby announce my candidacy for election to the State Senate, subject to the Republican Primaries.

In making this announcement, I refer the people of my county to my past record, both in the House and in the Senate of Maryland. Thanking the people of my county for the honors they have conferred upon me, by twice electing me to the House, and one term in the Senate, I again appeal to you for your support.

If nominated at the coming Primary and elected in November, I promise to discharge the many duties of my office for the best interests, both for the people of my county and the State of Maryland. For these reasons, and many others, which I will make public later, I again appeal to you for your support.

R. SMITH SNADER, Eleventh Election District.
