THE NEW AUTO OWNERSHIP REGULATIONS

An Important Law That Goes Into Effect on June 1.

After June 1, the Commissioner is forbidden by law to issue either a certificate of registration, or license plates for any car until the owner thereof first secures a certificate of title for same from his office. The law gives all persons who have already secured license plates and registration card for the year of 1920, ninety (90) days in which to secure a title to their car. After September 1, it will be a misdemeanor punishable by a heavy fine to operate a car registered in Maryland unless a certificate of title has been issued to cover this car.

On or about the first day of June every car owner in the State of Maryland will receive a copy of the new law governing titles as well as a synopsis of other minor changes in the automobile law. At the same time they will receive an application blank for a certificate of ownership. On this blank they will be required to give a full description of their motor vehicle, together with a statement of their title to same and any liens or incumbrances thereon.

If the identification numbers, serial numbers, or engine numbers on the motor vehicle have been tampered with, or have been changed, mutilated, defaced, concealed, chiseled, or obliterated, the owner of such a car must, within sixty (60) days from June 1, file with the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles a verified statement explaining such mutilation, obliteration, etc., on blank provided for this purpose by the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles. The Commissioner will make an investigation, and if he finds no irregularity concerning the mutilation of numbers, as far as the present owner is concerned, he will issue a new number, which number shall be regarded thereafter as the one to be used in describing such motor vehicle.

In the event that an automobile has been purchased second hand, it will be necessary for the present owner to state name and address of the person from whom car was purchased and whether the vehicle was bought by cash purchase, trade, conditional sale, or bill of sale. The charge for an original certificate of ownership is to be $1.00. This certificate does not have to be renewed annually but is good for the life of the car as long as the car is owned or held by the original owner of certificate of ownership.

In event of the sale or transfer of the ownership of motor vehicle, for which an original certificate of title has been issued, the original holder must endorse on the back of same an assignment thereof to the purchaser, together with a warrantee of title and a statement of all liens or incumbrances on said motor vehicle. This endorsement and assignment is to be made on the rear of the title certificate in the space and form provided therefor by the Commissioner. The original owner then delivers his title certificate to the purchaser together with the motor vehicle which he is selling. The purchaser in turn must present this certificate to the Commissioner and make application for a new certificate of ownership, before he can secure license tags to operate same. The charge for the new certificate is also $1.00.

After September 1, it shall be unlawful, for any person to sell or transfer a car within the limits of the State of Maryland unless there shall pass between the parties such certificate of title with an assignment thereof in the form prescribed by the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles. The penalties for violations of this provision are from $5.00 to $1000.00 or imprisonment for not more than 10 years. The certificate of title does not have to be carried in the car, but should be kept in a safe place with other valuable papers, but owner may be required to produce same for inspection by a proper officer of the law.

MRS. FABRIZZI ACQUITTED. Plea of Self Defense Sustained by the Jury.

The case of Mrs. Dominica Fabrizzi charged with the murder of her husband, Dominick Fabrizzi, at Union Bridge, in January last, was taken up in the Carroll County Court, on Monday, before Judge Thomas, Forsythe and Moss, and a jury. There was considerable difficulty in securing a jury, on account of the large number who professed to be opposed to capital punishment, and on other grounds. The jury finally impaneled was made up of John L. Beard, foreman; John T. Cushing, C. Robert Brilhart, John S. Burall, James Herman Allender, Walter H. Stocksdale, George Selby, Henry Lesser, William A. Harrison, James A. Angell, Charles H. Spicer and Herbert Matthiass.

States Attorney Brown opened the case, stating the details of finding the body, and other incidents and facts leading up to the present, and asked for conviction on the ground that the woman was anxious to get her husband out of the way, because of her alleged intimacy with Ernest Potenziani, held for trial as an accessory.

The statement was made that at first the woman accused Potenziani, who was a boarder at the Fabrizzi home; later he is said to have accused the woman; and still later Mrs. Fabrizzi exonerated Potenziani, saying she did the shooting, and that at the time the man Potenziani was home in bed.

On Tuesday Mrs. Fabrizzi was put on the stand where she re-enacted the shooting of her husband, using the same gun she had used in the original act. She told a story of brutal treatment by her husband and showed on her body dark bruises which she claimed she had received a few days before she killed him.

The woman said it was customary for her to accompany her husband at 4 o'clock each morning to the tracks on the Western Maryland Railroad in front of their house to gather coal.

On the morning before the killing, she said, while returning home with a bag containing 100 pounds of coal, she fell under the heavy load. Her husband kicked her while she was on the ground, she said, because she had fallen. At that time, she said, as he had done on numerous occasions before he said he intended to kill her. That night she said her husband again kicked her and forced her face and head against a hot stove, because she asked him to buy shoes for their five children. She said he finally took the children to a store and bought them shoes, but that on his return home he again beat her and told her he intended to kill her.

Shortly before 4 o'clock, on the morning of the killing, she said, while she was still in bed, he seized her by the throat and ordered her to accompany him to the tracks. Thinking they were to get coal, she said she went with him. On the way, she said, he seized her frequently by the throat, each time telling her he intended to kill her. When they reached the tracks she said he pointed a pistol at her head. At that time she told her husband to wait for her, as she wanted to return to the house to get her coat. She went back, she said, and her husband followed her to the front door, where he waited for her. At first, she said, she did not intend to again join him, but in response to his calls she said, she took the shotgun from a nail on the wall and loaded it.

Carrying the gun close to her side so that her husband could not see it, she said she accompanied him again to the tracks. When they reached there her husband again said her time had come and pointed the pistol at her. Quickly aiming the gun at him, she said she told him to stand back and when he turned his back to her she pulled the trigger. The load of shot entered his back and he fell dead. In her effort to hide the shooting she said she carried the body to the tracks, where two trains passed over it before it was discovered.

The woman said Potenziani knew nothing of the killing until she told him. He was asleep at the time, she said.

After deliberating an hour, the jury returned a verdict acquitting the woman, although the State's Attorney had asked for a verdict of first-degree murder. In view of the verdict, the States' Attorney entered a plea of not guilty for Potenziani.

Joshua Brothers Convicted.

Joshua Silas Brothers was convicted before the Carroll County Court, on Wednesday, for the murder of Joshua Merryman, a 75 years old man, on his farm near Haight, and sentenced to the penitentiary for life. Brothers had confessed the shooting, recently, but afterwards repudiated it as having been secured under threats. No motive for the crime was clearly established.

In giving the decision of the court Judge Thomas said he and his colleagues were convinced of the guilt of Brothers even before his signed confession was admitted as evidence.

Speaking for himself and his colleagues he said the life sentence was imposed instead of hanging because Brothers in his confession said he shot Merryman because he had made advances to Mrs. Brothers.

The Judge said the life sentence was given instead of the death penalty also because of the "impaired mentality" of the accused.

The Knox Separate Peace resolution, passed the Senate, last week.

LOWER PRICES INDICATED THROUGHOUT COUNTRY.

Price Reductions Becoming General in nearly all Lines.

Remarkable declines in securities, stocks, Liberty Bonds, etc., during the week, have had a depressing effect on business.

Continued strikes, which are curtailing production, are also influencing the general financial situation. In Pittsburgh district alone, 100,000 men are idle, due to a railroad tie-up, and the whole country is suffering from increased wage demands in the face of declining business.

The general situation has extended to retail business, especially, in the large cities, and the papers are now crowded with advertising announcing price cuts and heavy discounts in wearing apparel, shoes, and in practically all lines—even meats and groceries.

In addition to this, the banks are curtailing credit to the most necessary and legitimate purposes, and the general opinion is that the period of readjustment of values has been entered into.

The course of labor in this process will be watched with serious consideration, as labor must co-operate, or the whole country will suffer from a widespread and disastrous panic. While lower prices are desirable, they should come about gradually and normally, and this can be accomplished only through general co-operation, and the full recognition of the operation of economic laws and business requirements.

The time is coming, if it is not now at hand, when business men and workers must submit to losses, as against the gains they made on account of the rapid advances in prices for merchandise and labor. Those who have foolishly spent their early profits, against the wise advice so generally offered, are the ones who will be hurt most. Those who foresaw the slump that is inevitable, and provided for it by saving their profits will eventually come out all right. There are natural laws in business, as well as in nature, and the former are as inevitable as the latter, the only difference being in greater uncertainty as to when they will take place.

There is, as yet, considerable doubt as to the actual "come down" of prices. Advertisements of reductions are sometimes deceptive, in that prices may have been "marked up" to suit big discounts. At present, the actual reductions are limited to the highest priced goods, the extremes and luxuries, while staples and medium and lower priced stocks are more firm, and must remain so until the mills and wholesalers join the procession and this is likely to come about only after wages of the mill workers have also come down—perhaps six months or more in the future.

No Cause for Local Worry Over the Financial Outlook.

Locally, there need not be a great deal of fear connected with the slump in prices now apparently taking place throughout the country; and the value in living in the smaller towns, and in agricultural sections, will be demonstrated. Only those who have been foolishly unwise in their investments and expenditures, will suffer.

As surely as anything can be, those who stuck to modest regular jobs, lived economically, invested in Liberty Bonds, went about their way making the best of conditions, will eventually have "their day," and in the wind-up will be better off than those who pursued the rainbows.

There must be expected a general shrinking of values for everybody. No one class can sell high, and buy low, and keep it up indefinitely. Those who profited by advances, whether in merchandise, farm produce, or wages, and who saved their profits instead of spending them for unnecessary, can now afford to have the tide turn the other way, and in the general round-up be no worse off.

Resistance to lower prices will only make matters worse. Every man must eventually take his share and responsibility, in cloudy weather as well as in sunshine, and there is no permanent avoidance of the fact. So far as this section of Maryland is concerned, it ought to be in fine condition to meet whatever conditions, of a financial character, that may be coming to the country at large. There is but little real cause for anybody here to take a gloomy view of the outlook. Cheer up, and meet whatever comes with faces to the front!

Do not worry about your Liberty Bonds, or W. S. Stamps. Hold fast to them, and buy more. Only the foolish are selling them now at a discount.

AGAINST THE VOLSTEAD ACT. Senator Smith Opposes Adoption of the Resolution.

The Democratic State Convention, on Thursday, nominated Senator Smith for re-election and went on record for a modification of the Volstead law, as follows:

"We favor the enactment by Congress of such laws, under the Eighteenth amendment, as will permit the making and use of home-made wines and cider, and the manufacture and sale of beer in original packages for home consumption only, and to that end urge the repeal in modification of the Volstead act."

The plank aroused a long debate, the city delegates voicing "wet" sentiments, while the county delegates were mostly in opposition. Senator Smith opposed the resolution. On the vote, only 19 opposed it.

The situation is unusual, in that it apparently represents the nomination of a candidate who is opposed to one of the main planks in his party's platform. Whether this division will satisfy, and hold, both "drys" and "wets," remains to be seen, and will be an interesting doubt in the Senatorial campaign.

Hon. Carville D. Benson, candidate for Congress in this district, advocated the resolution, and appears also to have taken the lead in party affairs from Senator Smith.

The American Legion Drive.

The drive now under way to increase the membership of the American Legion, the organization made up of world-war soldiers, is making considerable progress, but as yet hardly one-third of the men have joined. There are various opinions as to the merits of the organization, but mostly favorable, especially as long as it holds to its declared principles and objects; but the present movement for the war "bonus" to each participant, involving an expenditure of over a billion dollars, coming at the very inception of the organization, is held by many to represent a power or influence, that is not reassuring, and this opinion is held by some of the ex-service men themselves.

As a social body, or as a fraternal beneficial organization, or even as one looking toward the future care of its unfortunate members—providing the Legion steers clear of the use of arbitrary power so commonly attaching to big unions of men—the movement has a great deal to recommend it.

The burden of sentiment, so far, seems to be that the young men of the Legion can safely be trusted to manage their own affairs along high-toned lines, and that there is no danger that partisan politics will gain much foothold in the Legion, nor that leaders will be able to lead it in improper paths, even if disposed to do so.

One thing is sure; if the ex-service men decide to make the Legion a big affair, they can do so, whether those on the outside fancy it or not; and it is also as true that public sentiment, so far as influence by political leaders is concerned, is apt to have very little open encouragement toward opposition, and for very potent reasons—the votes of ex-service men.

YOUR LIBERTY BOND.

The United States Government borrowed from you to finance the war. You hold the Government's promise to pay you back. This promise is called a Liberty Bond, or Victory Note. On this Bond is stated the conditions under which the Government borrowed the money from you.

For instance: If you hold a Bond of the Third Liberty Loan, it states that on April 15th, and October 15th, of each year until maturity, you will receive interest on the amount you paid for the Bond. Other issues bear other rates of interest and other maturity dates, all of which are clearly stated on the Bond.

Now, if you keep your Bond until the date when the Government pays you in full for it, you do not need to worry if, in the meantime, the price is low one day or high the next. You and Uncle Sam are living up to your agreement with each other, and neither will lose by it.

On the other hand, if you sell your Liberty Bond, you will find that the man you sell it to will not give you a dollar for every dollar you paid for it. The price has been brought down because so many people are offering to sell their Bonds. If the market is flooded with tomatoes, you can buy them cheap, but if everyone is clamoring for tomatoes and there are few to be had, the price goes up. The same is true of Liberty Bonds. Short-sighted people are dumping them on the market, and wise ones are buying them.

The best advice that can be given to the owner of a Liberty Bond is this: Hold the bond you bought during the war; it is as safe and sound as the United States Government itself.

Buy as many more at the present low rate as you can afford. If you hold them to maturity, you are bound to make the difference between what they sell at now and their face value. You will also receive good interest on your investment.

Hold on to your Liberty Bonds, and buy more.

MR. WELLER OPENLY OPPOSES THE VOLSTEAD LAW

Anti-Saloon Influences Likely to be Felt in Campaign.

Mr. O. E. Weller, Republican candidate for U. S. Senator, has definitely stated his position as against the Volstead enforcement law connected with the Prohibition amendment. He said, in a letter to the Liberty League of Maryland, which had sent him a request to outline his position;

"I elected to the United States Senate I shall vote to so modify the Volstead act as to permit the production and use of light wines and beers. This would give to many of our people the privilege to which they feel themselves entitled and allow the use of these comparatively harmless beverages which have been used for centuries, and from which intoxication is almost unknown. This would also restore to the farmers and housewives right to produce cider and home-made wine without becoming criminals."

"Such a modification of the Volstead act would not only be fair in itself, but would be in the interest of the promotion of law and order—so important at this critical period of our national life. It is well known that this very stringent law is being violated by many of our best citizens because they consider it an unreasonable intrusion upon their personal rights. The public recognition of this fact tends strongly to bring about a general disregard of the sanctity of law and opposition to the constituted authorities. Unless checked, this will prove to be of very serious consequence and cause a breaking down of that high regard for law and government upon which is founded our American institutions."

The Anti-Saloon League takes strong exceptions to his statements, and will unquestionably try to defeat him, unless Senator Smith, his opponent, comes out in the same fashion, in which event there would be no choice between the two.

The campaign will be full of the "wet" and "dry" issue, in spite of the hope that it would be out of the way for what a great many good people consider more vital matters, at present. As it is, thousands of voters will allow this one issue to obscure all others and vote, not for men and their ability to legislate on the great matters of world importance, but on this one question of how "dry," or how "wet," the country ought to be. The great questions of financing the staggering war debt, the uproar between labor and industrial safety, the part this country should play in the future peace and safety of the world, will be sidetracked in order to express personal opinions on this one, never-ending question of the use of liquors.

Charles Evans Hughes is said to have a larger income from the legal profession than any other lawyer in the country, by long odds, his income being estimated to be near a million a year. He received $14,500 a year as Supreme Court Justice, a position that he resigned on becoming a Presidential candidate.

The country is dependent, a great deal, just now, on the good sense and conservatism of those either in, or eligible to membership in, the American Legion. The organization needs to steer itself clear of the sort of leadership that aims at political power, and the use of its force for embarrassing the whole country, financially, with "bonus" demands at a time when other demands are more urgent and just.

The President warns Congress not to "encroach on Presidential functions." We think it about time for the country to notify the President—any President—not to encroach on the functions of Congress. The greatest danger this country has been facing since the opening of the war, and even now, has been, too much power in the Executive and his departments. What this country needs is a President less desirous of running the whole machine himself.

Business and Backbone—and the Presidency.

What the country needs more than all else, in a President, is broad-gauge business ability, and the quality of backbone that will handle the many problems of the country as though this was a government by and for the whole people. Business and backbone, rather than idealism and the playing of favorite policies, and striving to invent some new world-famous political structure, are the crying needs of the times. Is such a man an impossibility, and is it necessary that he be a profound statesman, versed in international law, and a wonderful spell-binder? We think not.

The man needed is one who knows himself, knows the needs of the whole people, and knows men. He needs to be a man insistent on the enforcement of simple, practical business policies; who knows an enemy to American government and traditions; who knows when the public business is well and economically conducted; who recognizes greed and class force; and who knows big men well enough to select as his cabinet and administrative heads of departments men who know how, and will, carry out these simply stated policies in spite of noise and opposition.

The country has gone crazy and disorganized over side issues. The biggest thing we have, is our country and government itself, and it needs to assert itself as boss. All of this trend toward international interference and leadership; all of the organized fighting and threatening by organized and unionized classes; all of the hysterical insistence on self-determined personal liberty; all dictation to the government as an employer, and all threatening of the government as to how far it can dare go in legislation, must be ended.

The government school must have a teacher and assistants who will, first of all, demand order, then obedience, then work, in the school. If it be necessary to use the "hickory" and severe discipline, let it be used. We have grown into a sloppy sentiment over the value, the extent and the use of, moral suasion. We are bowing down too much to "personal liberty" on the part of force, and forgetting to protect the liberties of "the people" who take for granted the promise of the government to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." We have not yet all taken up the motto that this country, and its government, represents a battle ground for an open for all contest to determine the survival of the fittest.

There are hundreds of honest men in this country, whose names have not even been mentioned, big enough and capable enough to make just the kind of President most needed, even if they would not be recognizable by looking over the list of requirements heretofore considered essential. And, let us mention one more essential—he must be a man who will not expect, nor "play politics" for, a second term—certainly not a third one.

Laying emphasis on the need of a strong "business" trend of mind in our next President, may be taken to mean an indorsement of Mr. Hoover. This is superficial. Undoubtedly, Mr. Hoover has shown his ability in that direction—it is his strongest point—but, there is no need for the President, himself, to be highly proficient in business management and details. All that is needed is that he insist on a correct business administration, pick the right men to execute it, and to know when it is being carried out; and the same is equally true with reference to "backbone." If Herbert Hoover is the best there is in this country, along this line of men, then let us have him.

A President should not be expected to personally originate and supervise every opportunity for improving the social, the economic, and law and order status, but he should be able to exert his influence in that direction through his department heads and advisors, and to let Congress know where he stands. We believe, largely, in government by the legislative, rather than by the executive, departments, and that the President acts his full part when he gives plain publicity and direction, and as little executive "big stick" interference, as possible.

The inspiration of a President, his advice toward well directed honest purposes, his insistence on the pursuance of a course of business economy with justice towards all and privileges toward none, in our humble judgment, will accomplish more constructive good than a policy of giving orders and direction for every single act of his administration under a "see me first" policy.

Our Greatest Problem.

On the front page of its issue of May 6, the Manufacturers' Record, under the above caption, sounds a warning against the tendency to decrease prices paid to farmers. This article contains so much food for thought and sound reasoning that we are reproducing it herewith in full.

"Every decrease in the price paid to farmers for foodstuffs will merely serve to hasten the day of a food shortage so acute as to endanger the safety of our Government."

In lessened food supply may be hatched the egg of revolution.

Every consumer who rejoices in reports of decrease of prices paid the farmers for grain, cotton, live stock, and dairy products will soon realize that his joy will be turned to mourning. Cheap milk or bread or meats today will merely mean a smaller supply and famine prices later on.

The questions of the League of Nations, of soldiers' bounty, of Democratic or Republican supremacy, are mere soap bubbles blown by children, as compared with the mighty food supply question. Heavy pay to industrial workers and short hours of labor are like great magnets drawing men and women from the farms to the cities, decreasing the number of farm producers and increasing the number of food consumers.

Economic forces will eventually push foodstuffs so high that the peninsula must swing back and force people from the cities to the farms to avoid starvation, but ere the swing turns that way food scarcity and the misinformation about it may, unless we are wise, wreck our Government and our civilization.

This is the nation's supreme problem. To its solution the people must address themselves with a full realization of its import."

Autos and "Appearances of Evil."

There was a time when burglary was confined almost entirely to stores, banks, postoffices and railroad stations, and the get-away was limited largely to night freight trains. Now, we have bank robberies in broad day-light, and the get-away in a stolen automobile. We have larceny of truck loads of whiskey, bags of wheat, coops of chickens, crates of eggs, and all sorts or large quantities of bulky products.

The automobile does the trick; not only bearing the big burden of plunder, but getting fifty miles or more away from the scene of the crime in a few hours.

And this leads us to ask—How about avoiding the appearance of evil, these days? How does the old argument about playing cards, apply to the automobile?

Anti-card moralists always admitted that cards, in themselves, were harmless, but it was "the use of them" that made the bad name that attached to them; hence, card-playing was wrong—not merely a waste of time, but wrong because of the bad reputation of the cards themselves.

Automobiles make the most of the present day robberies and crimes possible—not only "possible," but sober facts. Without these quick travelling adjuncts, there could be no successful get-away, either in day-light, or at night, with large quantities of valuable plunder. How shall we moralize over the fact? Is it right to use automobiles, in spite of the wrong use of them?" If so, how about the "avoidance of the appearance of evil" and some other injunctions along the same line?

The Executive Rules the Legislative.

Very frequently members of Congress express themselves forcibly, and with evident first-hand information, that nearly all of the executive departments at Washington are publishing tons of practically worthless reports; and at times practically duplicating them; as a member said the other day "in order to keep lot of unnecessary employees at work," and yet, the legislative department (Congress) appears to have no recourse in the matter. The cutting off of appropriations, as a member suggested, would only result in a government department bringing in a "deficiency" bill covering the cut off appropriation.

If this is the truth of the situation, then the legislative branch needs to be given more power over the executive branch, as this daily waste of many tons of paper, when the whole country is suffering from the scarcity and high cost of it, is intolerable. It is the height of folly to expect newspapers to voluntarily save paper, at private loss, in order that the government departments may waste it.

Congressmen have been flooded with letters from newspaper offices telling of the vast amount of "official" stuff, received daily, that goes into the waste basket without being opened; but, the flood still continues. Could any situation be more self-convicting?

If Washington could be cleared out of an army of place-warmers drawing big salaries for invented work, the whole country might be relieved of the "scarcity of help," as well as the scarcity of the products these government employees use up in the game.

And it may be said, with truth, that it is not alone the clerks and underlings that need this pruning process.

More Important than the Bonus.

In his message to the meeting of American Legion members opposed to the cash bonus for war veterans, Wm. H. Taft reached a vital spot of the question. Why, he inquired in effect, should the soldier sound of wind and limb receive a bonus before fuller special provision had been made for the veterans who were disabled? Numerous other opportunities may be found for spending billions of dollars in ways more to the public credit and advantage than in further cash compensation to the late troops.

These troops have turned into millions of hearty self-supporting men, deserving well of the nation, deserving, in deed, the best that a nation has to give, which professes to make no distinction as between citizens.

But the millions still hungering abroad would benefit by the further aid of the United States which Congress finds no means to supply.

Advances for car equipment, needful to help keep down the cost of commodities, would afford an outlet for other available funds. Then, military and naval preparedness against future threats to the nation likewise calls for money. The revenue is not limitless. Which call shall Congress meet—bonus, or the traditional obligations of the Government?—Balto. News.

The Married Man

THEY MAKE A GOOD MANY JOKES AT THE EXPENSE OF THE "POOR MARRIED MAN," BUT REALLY MARRIAGE IS NO JOKE TO THE MAN WHO IS MARRIED.

IT IS A STERN, SOBERING EVENT TO THE AVERAGE MAN WHEN HE TAKES UNTO HIMSELF A WIFE. IT MEANS TWO MOUTHS TO FEED INSTEAD OF ONE. TWO PEOPLE TO BE PROPERLY CLOTHED, A HOME TO FURNISH, ADDITIONAL DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES. IT MEANS MORE ECONOMY, MORE CAREFUL ADJUSTMENT OF FINANCES. AN ACCOUNT AT OUR BANK IS ONE OF THE GREATEST SAFEGUARDS THE NEWLY MARRIED MAN CAN MAKE. SAVE A LITTLE SOMETHING EVERY WEEK, EVERY MONTH, EVERY YEAR FOR A RAINY DAY.

ASKING ALMOST TOO MUCH.

"And so you are not married yet?"
"No."

"Engaged?"
"No."

"What's the matter?"
"Well, papa says that my husband must be a keen and experienced man, of good health and good habits; mamma says that he must be frugal, industrious and attentive; and I say he must be handsome, dashing, talented and rich. We are still looking for him!"—Stray Stories.

Making Money Now.
"Is Scribson still doing literary work?"

"Oh, no. Scribson has given up his dreams of fame and decided to let posterity take care of itself while he earns a living for his family."

"Sensible decision. Is he selling autographs?"

"No. He's writing popular fiction for the magazines."

DRY CLEANED.

"I never see the cat washing her face any more."

"That cat is progressive. She strolls around in front of the vacuum cleaner whenever I have it in use."

The Other Fellow.
"I like the other fellow, He's good to have along; For I can always put the blame On him when things go wrong."

Milder Moods.

"There's no doubt about it," mused Senator Sorghum, "we're a great deal more gentle and refined than we used to be."

"There have been some hard-boiled methods."

"Not in statesmanship. There was time when a political quarrel might lead to a duel. Now the worst you can expect is a libel suit."

A Correction.

The Judge—I understand that you frequently said that robbing a trust fund was the last thing you would do.

The Gulpit—Well, what if I did say so?

The Judge—You were wrong. You are now going to do from one to ten years.

Asserting His Rights.

Miss Manchester—Yes, Titus; you have asked for my hand. I give it to you.

Titus T. Wadde—All right, then; there'll be no diamond engagement ring. A nice little imitation pearl ring is good enough for any hand that belongs to me.

A Forward Looker.

"Do you believe in the Darwinian theory?"

"Haven't been payin' much attention to it lately," confessed Farmer Corntassel. "The way things have been developin' have got my mind more stirred up about where we're goin' than where we come from."

The Big Audience.

"Haven't you time to go home and make a few speeches?"

"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum. "What I'm in doubt about is whether I'll have time to listen to

MARYLAND FARMERS TO HEAR MEREDITH

SEC. OF AGRICULTURE WILL BE FARMERS' DAY SPEAKER AT COLLEGE PARK, MAY 29.

BIG PROGRAM PLANNED

Demonstrations Will Cover All Phases
Of Rural Work Including Features
Of Interest To Women—Baseball Game In Afternoon.

An address by the Hon. E. T. Meredith, Secretary of Agriculture, demonstrations of the value of labor saving machinery on the farm and in the home, motion picture presentations of rural activities and a baseball game between Maryland State College and Johns Hopkins University, will be the outstanding features of Farmers' Day at the Maryland State College of Agriculture, College Park, on Saturday, May 29.

The program for this seventh annual event promises to be more than usually interesting and arrangements are being made to care for hundreds of visitors from every part of the State. Every effort has been made by the faculty of the College and the corps of specialists connected with the Extension Service and the Experiment Station to make the day one of profit and pleasure to those who attend.

In addition to the regular train and trolley service to the College, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad will operate several specials, both from Baltimore and Washington, to handle the passengers between those two cities and College Park.

PROGRAM COVERS WIDE FIELD.

The program for the day will cover a broad field of agricultural activities, so that there will be some particular feature of especial interest to each visitor who will have the opportunity of watching such demonstrations as he most desires to see. A varied and entertaining program has been arranged for the women by the Home Demonstration Department.

The demonstration work will begin at 9 o'clock in the morning and from that time until 1 o'clock, representatives of each department will be present to explain the various exhibits. Guides will be on hand to meet the visitors and show them to the points where the demonstrations are in progress.

At 11 o'clock motion pictures will be shown in the auditorium in the Agricultural building and at 2 o'clock the address of the day will be delivered by the Secretary of Agriculture. The ball game is scheduled for 4 o'clock.

Owing to the high price and scarcity of labor, it is expected that the farmers will show particular interest in the demonstrations of labor saving machinery and the specialists in charge of this part of the program will take the opportunity to point out that the more extended use of machinery on the farm is one of the very best methods of combating the present labor situation.

TRACTOR DEMONSTRATION.

In this connection the use of the tractor in belt work will be demonstrated. Many farmers have wrongly come to the conclusion that the tractor has little value outside of its function in pulling the plow and the cultivator. Consequently the tractor is put to work on many farms for a period of approximately one month and stands idle during the remainder of the year. The many uses to which this valuable machine may be put by applying the power from the belt will be demonstrated, the idea being to show that the tractor should be kept busy every month during the year.

FEATURES FOR WOMEN.

Extensive plans have been made to entertain and instruct the women visitors. On the second floor of the Agricultural Building there will be a special exhibit of labor saving devices, which can be employed by the farmer's wife. These will include all manner of electrical appliances such as washing machines, electric irons, dish washers and toasters.

On the lower floor of the same building in the offices devoted to the Home Demonstration work there will be an extensive display designed to show the conservation of clothing. Women's and children's garments and even center pieces and other fancy work will be shown as a part of this demonstration in the utilization of old clothing. Miss Madge Rees, of the United States Department of Agriculture, will be in charge of the milk show and will demonstrate the uses and explain the value of this commodity. At 10:30 o'clock a fashion show with living models will be staged in the auditorium of the Agricultural Building and it is expected that this will be one of the most attractive features for the women visitors. Mrs. Richardson of the Woman's Division of the War Loan Organization, Fifth Federal District at Richmond, will be present and will make a talk on household accounts and budgets.

Shrew's Triumph.

"Now that woman is on the verge of attaining political power, the shrew has more than ever come into her own," says the Imparcial (Madrid) "and the curious fact is apparent that every man knows how to manage a shrew but the man who has her."

EPISODE TWO

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(©, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Through the private hedge and across the lawn Warren Bradley sprinted with all the speed which had, in days gone by, made him a frequent victor in college meets. This time, however, he was running for something more valuable than a loving cup or his name engraved on a bronze tablet. Quite possibly he was running for his life.

He had been walking unconcernedly down a street crowded with idle strikers when some one with pointing finger had indicated him as "the man who done the trick." The hundred or so morose looking men, seeking for trouble and glad of an outlet for energy accumulated from several days without work, had started in pursuit.

There was no time to stop and explain that it was a case of mistaken identity. Bradley, as former superintendent of the largest woolen mill in the state, had handled men sufficiently to understand the strange vagaries of mob psychology. He recognized instinctively that his cue was flight first and explanations afterward.

So far he had eluded his pursuers. But an approaching murmur, undoubtedly hostile, warned him of the necessity for doing something else than standing in the center of a large treeless lawn. If he could only get inside the house. There was no time to ring the bell and wait on the possible delay of the people within.

Suddenly, easily accessible from the veranda roof, an open window upstairs caught his attention. He wasted no time in reflecting that he was about to assume the character of a second-story man, but climbed the veranda pillar, crawled through the window and closed it behind him. As he did so an evil-faced man parted the hedge and looked through. Then the crowd swept by.

Obviously Warren might now descend by the way he had come in. Yet, once safely in, he shrank from being detected in the act of coming forth. Furthermore, there was no guarantee that the baffled mob would not swing back and pick him up on its return.

Deciding that to remain in the frying pan was preferable to jumping into the fire, he turned to hunt up the occupants of the house and tender his explanations.

The room in which he found himself was evidently a lady's bedroom, metamorphosed for the time being into the likeness of an anteroom of a modiste. Over the crocheted, cushioned chairs, across the bed, and even suspended from the mirrors above the dressing table were feminine garments of every description.

But Warren did not stop to admire the elaborate display. Finding the stairway, he descended and parted the heavy draperies which apparently curtained the living room. Three women uttered screams. The fourth, superbly decked in a bridal gown, paused in the act of slowly circling before a huge pier glass and looked at him in astonishment. Even as he told his story, Warren decided that she was the loveliest girl he had ever seen.

Two of the women were evidently seamstresses, the third her aunt. Mutual acquaintance was presently established and Warren's explanations accepted without question. Also, it was suggested that he summon a taxicab and avoid any possible meeting with the incensed men.

As Warren turned to go, the aunt said as one who proclaims a fact which all the world should know, "We're all upset, because my niece is to be married tomorrow."

"Indeed," said Warren, mentally congratulating the wonderfully blessed bridegroom, "I wish her every happiness we must resort to artificial."

"To William R. Bristol!" added the aunt in evident pride.

William Bristol! That beautiful radiant girl! Why, he supposed everybody in town knew who and what Billy Bristol was. Could it be that in this secluded spinsterly home there had never penetrated tales of the devious ways in which that dissolute man squandered his fabulous fortune?

He hesitated. The two seamstresses had gone to another room whence issued the dull purr of a sewing machine. He looked gravely into the girl's clear eyes.

"Miss Stoddard," he began, "until a minute ago I did not know your name. I shall never see you again, for tomorrow I leave for the West. In a way, you have been the means of very possibly saving my life today. In return, I am going to be very presumptuous and advise you. As you value your future happiness, wait! I know the man you are planning to marry—I have known him all my life. Don't marry that man!"

Forestalling the exclamations he saw rising on the indignant lips of the aunt, and carrying away with him an unforgettable picture of the girl's lifted eyebrows and affronted look, Warren Bradley turned on his heel and left the house.

It was on the surf-washed beach at Santa Barbara that they met again, Warren, pacing the sands moodily, was wondering what the years held in store besides the golden fortune they seemed bent on bestowing.

Started at the sound of his name spoken in soft contralto unwestern accents, he turned abruptly. Before him stood, as radiantly beautiful as he recalled her five years ago, Madelaine Stoddard—or was she Mrs. Bristol?

"No," she said shaking her head in answer to his inquiry. "I didn't do it. I was furiously angry with you, but I made investigations. I didn't have far to go—my own lawyer told me. All that you had intimated was true. It let me out of a marriage I had contemplated, not from love, I can see now, but, oh, I guess from sheer boredom! Anyway, I owe you considerable gratitude. It is a debt I can never repay." She held out a slim hand.

Warren took it gently. "Never is a long time," he said with a smile. "I could tell you something which would seem more outrageous than what I told you before," he added.

Her eyes dropped and somehow encouraged, Warren continued. "Would you mind my saying that, casual as our first meeting was, I have never been able to imagine any other woman decked as you were when I first saw you, decked as a bride?" He paused, then added slowly, "Many, many hours I have spent wishing that I had met you in such a way as to give me the right to follow the usual line of procedure which leads through courtship to a proposal of marriage. If I dared, I should say now, Madelaine, will you marry me?"

Madelaine did not answer for a moment. "I am all alone in the world," she said at last. "For years and years I have been perfectly conventional. I think, just once, I might—wait!" She held up a restraining hand. "I must confess. When you peremptorily took away the man I expected to marry, you put another in his place. I came West not unhoping that I might chance upon that man."

In the dusk that was enveloping them Warren held out his arms. "Madelaine, Madelaine, my darling!" he whispered.

Presently Madelaine looked at him with a mischievous sparkle in her eye. "Just two episodes in our lives," she said. "Both very different. In one you forbade me to marry. In the other you beg me to!"

"There's yet another way in which they differ," smiled Warren tenderly. "This one is going to last forever!"

STRENUOUS KIND OF BATH

Finn First Thoroughly Opens Pores With Steam, and Then Takes a Roll in the Snow.

The Finn takes bathing as a serious rite and the bath-house is the first building erected on the farm. Generally, it is a rough building, 15 to 18 feet high, with a chimney-like vent in its peaked roof or a small window over the door for the same purpose. The door opens into a little room from which another door opens into the bath-house. In one corner of the main room is a wide fireplace built of large, round stones, compactly piled around a deep fire box. At the sides of the room there are three or four platforms at different heights.

On tub night, or day, a roaring fire is built and allowed to burn until the stones are superheated. It is then raked out and pails of water are thrown over the stones which fill the place with dense steam in which the entire family is soon enveloped. After steaming to his satisfaction a pail of water is thrown over the bather in the anteroom or he takes a vigorous roll in the snow, then a run to the house, clad only in the garment of cleanliness.

Proper Posture for Sleep.

Most people sleep on their right sides, though children up to the age of 14 sleep equally well on either side or in the supine position. Dr. E. H. C. Allen, writing in the Journal of Medical Sciences (Dublin), says we should all accustom ourselves to sleeping in any of these positions.

It is interesting to note that men of science have not discovered what sleep is. There are many theories, but none of these is satisfactory. But one needs not be a man of science to say that sleep is absolutely necessary and if it cannot be obtained by natural means we must resort to artificial.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D.,
Teacher of English Bible in the Moody
Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

LESSON FOR MAY 23

ISRAEL'S FIRST KING.

LESSON TEXT—I Sam. 9:15-10:24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Only fear the Lord, and serve him in truth with all your heart.—I Sam. 12:24.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—I Sam. 8:4; 9:14; 10:25-26.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Saul Visits Samuel.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Saul Chosen as King.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Kingly Qualities in Saul.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Selection of Leaders.

I. The People Demand a King (vv. 8:1-9).

1. Their reasons for this demand. (1) Samuel was incapacitated by old age; (2) the unfaithfulness of his sons whom he had appointed as his successors; (3) the desire to be like other nations. The surrounding nations had a king as leader. They wanted a king who would go out and fight their battles (see v. 20). The desire to be like others causes many to depart from the Lord.

2. Samuel's behavior under this trial (vv. 6-9). He took the matter to the Lord in prayer. The Lord comforted him by assuring him that this rejection was not merely his rejection, but the rejection of the kingship of God.

II. Samuel Tells of the Manner of the Kings (vv. 10-18).

He shows them that the king will be very exacting and arbitrary in his dealing with them.

1. He will take their sons and make them to serve in the army and do all kinds of hard work on his farm and in his house. He will make slaves of their daughters, also.

2. He will take their lands, even those inherited from their fathers and servants. Not content with that he will take the tenth part of the produce that remains and give to them.

III. Samuel's Protest Disregarded by the People (vv. 19-22).

Having made up their minds they deliberately shut their eyes to the truth and rushed madly into the experiment. Men today just as deliberately are turning from God's King, going after the lusts of their own hearts, but God makes the wrath of men to praise him.

IV. The King Providentially Pointed Out (1:10-16).

Saul was sent by his father to search for the asses that had wandered away. While Saul and his father were acting freely in this matter, at the same time God's sovereign purpose was being carried out. Although difficult to understand, God carries forth his sovereign purpose without interfering with man's freedom.

V. The King Chosen at Mizpeh (10:17-27).

The Lord had already pointed out to Samuel who should be king and Saul had been anointed. Let us observe:

1. Why Saul was chosen. If they would have a king the Lord would give them the one best suited to fill the place. He was from Benjamin, a small tribe, which would prevent undue rivalry between Ephraim and Judah, the leading tribes of Israel. He was also chosen because of his personal fitness (v. 24). He had the natural qualifications for his work, namely, self-control, modesty, and a military instinct.

2. How Saul was chosen. The method was by lot. Samuel called them together before the Lord, and before the lot was cast he again remonstrated with them against such action. He showed them the base ingratitude of their rejection of God as their King.

3. How the king was received by the people. Saul knew that the Lord had chosen him, but through modesty and fear he shrank from the responsibility. By inquiry of the Lord his hiding place was made known. When he was brought forth Samuel presented him to the people, assuring them that Saul was the Lord's choice. Some were enthusiastic in their reception and shouted, "God save the king!" Others mocked and refused him allegiance.

VI. The King Confirmed at Gilgal (ch. 11).

Soon after the election at Mizpeh the Ammonites made a desperate demand upon the men of Jabesh-gilead. Saul hearing of it, hastily summoned the tribes together for war and won a remarkable victory. As he thus proved his ability the people wished to punish the sons of Bellah, but Saul forbade them. Samuel took advantage of this auspicious situation and called all the people together at Gilgal where they formally crowned him their king.

Growth.

All fruits grow—whether they grow in soil or in the soul. No man can make things grow. He can get them to grow by arranging all the circumstances and fulfilling all the conditions. But the growing is done by God.

The Most Insignificant.

The most insignificant people are the most apt to sneer at others. They are safe from reprisals, and have no hope of rising in their own esteem but by lowering their neighbors.—Hazlitt.

Will a Man Rob God?

Malachi 3:7-12.

The answer to this question as given in the Bible is, "Yes, a man will rob God, sometimes consciously, sometimes unknowingly." The results are always disastrous. "There is that withholdeth more than is meet and it tendeth to poverty"—poverty of soul and spirit as well as material things.

The cultivation of generous giving opens the life to heaven's blessing and enlarges the capacity to receive, while stinginess closes the avenues of our being to the divine blessing and lowers the tone and quality of the life.

In a tract recently issued by The Bible Institute Colportage Association, 822 LaSalle St., Chicago, entitled "Do you steal God's Basket?" the matter of giving is presented in this way:

"In the first lesson in giving, the Old Testament emphasizes the tithe. The New Testament does not abrogate or repeal the law of the tithe. Neither does it emphasize nor insist upon it. It treats it as a teacher treats a lesson which has been learned; namely, makes it the basis of the next lesson. The tithe is a foundation stone in the temple of benevolence, but it is only a foundation stone. It is the first great lesson in giving, and contains truth essential to the learning of the others which follow, but it is not an ultimate principle nor one in which the church may rest permanently.

How Expert Tattooists Create a Permanent Blush on Women Not Afraid of Pain.

We have always been under the impression that the English women were blest with one of the finest complexions in the world, says the Electrical Experimenter, but here comes a cable from London telling of the popularity accorded to a new fad in the English city—that of electrically tattooing a permanent complexion or blush on the face. The report goes on to say that the pallid and sallow faces of London women are being permanently brightened and given a rosy tint by expert tattooists, whose electric needle apparatus can be graduated to suit any physiognomy, and further, that the tattooists report they have never done such a thriving and profitable business among women as now.

How Egypt Is Prospering.

In an interesting paper recently read before the Cairo Geographical Society by William Willocks is described how many of the fellahs wives have profited by the rising tide of agricultural prosperity, to start a little money lending on their own account, and not infrequently to their husbands. In one thriving village where the value of the land held by the fellahs amounted to about $1,000,000, mostly in small holdings, they had cleared off their indebtedness except for $125,000. In this community 80 per cent of the women had money out on loan, and their husbands were found to have borrowed from them altogether no less than $30,000, usually at very high rates of interest. The profits at least remain in the family instead of going to the Greek and Coptic money lenders, and certainly strengthens the woman's hold upon her husband, in a country where, according to Mohammedan customs, he can divorce her by mere word.

How Dike Was Wrecked.

For most people the dikes of Holland have held a romantic suggestion of peril ever since mother read them the story of the boy who stopped the leak with his arm. Some time ago a dike near Amsterdam was undermined, not by the seepage of the sea, but by heavy rains. The disintegration of the earthen embankment destroyed a railroad line along the top and completely wrecked a loaded passenger train, killing at least 50 and injuring 100 travelers. The cars were rolled to the bottom of the bank in a tangled mass.—Popular Science.

How Fear Affects Mankind.

Man has been oppressed by influences making for fear for ages, and he frequently and erroneously thinks it difficult to rid himself of his reactionary heritage. His salvation depends upon an understanding of his plight—upon a plight-consciousness—and upon successful revolt. Fearlessness must dominate instead of fear; mental freedom must put psychic autocracy to rout; the entire mental attitude must be altered; it is just as easy to cultivate a wholesome attitude as a vicious one.

Why Superstition Lingers.

Man's curiosity is in excess of his power to interpret and understand; consequently he guesses, and when he guesses wildly and inaccurately others of a later date call his guess superstition. Long after people have clearly seen that there is no rational evidence for the thing believed the superstition lingers.

How About the Price?

How to Remove White Spots.

A little wood alcohol will remove white spots from varnished furniture, but rub it quickly to prevent the alcohol having time to act on the varnish.

HOW TO PREVENT BARK FLAKING OFF LOGS IN "RUSTIC" STRUCTURES.

To prevent the bark from flaking off logs in rustic structures, the forestry products laboratory, Madison, Wis., recommends the following different methods of seasoning:

1. Cut timbers late in summer and score on two sides; that is, cut off narrow strips of bark for the entire length. Pile in shade in open pile and allow thorough circulation of air. Allow timbers to season until following spring or summer before using.

2. Proceed as in (1) and in addition coat ends, stripped portions, and knots with coal-tar creosote, using one coat a few days after timber is cut and another just before using the timbers.

3. Proceed as in (1), but do not score bark. When timbers are in place, tack back on with large headed nails, placing one to every square foot of surface. Paint heads of nails to resemble color of bark.

4. Tack or nail the bark without particular attention to time of cutting or other treatment.

The nailing method has been used successfully by one Western company which maintains numerous rustic hotels, and also on a large rustic building erected for exposition purposes.

DONE WITH ELECTRIC NEEDLE

How Expert Tattooists Create a Permanent Blush on Women Not Afraid of Pain.

We have always been under the impression that the English women were blest with one of the finest complexions in the world, says the Electrical Experimenter, but here comes a cable from London telling of the popularity accorded to a new fad in the English city—that of electrically tattooing a permanent complexion or blush on the face. The report goes on to say that the pallid and sallow faces of London women are being permanently brightened and given a rosy tint by expert tattooists, whose electric needle apparatus can be graduated to suit any physiognomy, and further, that the tattooists report they have never done such a thriving and profitable business among women as now.

The third lesson is made in 2 Corinthians 8:1-11, where the apostle Paul exhorts the Corinthians to abound in the grace of liberality, urging them by the example of the poor Macedonians who out of their deep poverty gave to their power and beyond their power, all they were able to give, yea, more than they were able. All that was involved in the two previous lessons is enclosed in this, and the doctrine of heroic giving is introduced."

HOPE ON.

There was never a day so misty and gray
That the blue was not somewhere above it;

There was never a mountain top ever so bleak
That some little flower does not love it.

There was never a night so dreary and dark
That the stars were not somewhere shining;

There is never a cloud so heavy and black
That it has not a silver lining.

There is never a waiting time, weary and long,

That will not some time have an ending;

The most beautiful part of the landscape is where

The shadows and sunshine are blending.

Upon every life some shadows will fall,

But heaven sends the sunshine of love;

Through the rifts in the clouds we may, if we will,

See the beautiful blue above.

Then let us hope on, though the way be long,

And the darkness be gathering fast;

For the turn in the road is a little way on,

Where the home lights will greet us at last.

HELPED PERRY WIN VICTORY

Peter Tarr Made the Cannon Balls That Served So Well in the Fight on Lake Erie.

When Commodore Perry defeated the British on Lake Erie, his gunners turned the trick largely with home-made cannon balls, although at the time of the engagement the place where the deadly missiles were made was a closely guarded secret.

Accidental discovery a few days ago of a small antiquated iron furnace near Steubenville, however, reveals the secret and adds a new chapter to the historical sketches of Perry's victory. The furnace was found by men engaged in erecting furnaces for a large West Virginia steel company on the Tarr farm in Hancock county, West Virginia, directly across the river from Steubenville. It is said to have been the first iron furnace in use this side of the Allegheny mountains, and to have been built by Peter Tarr, one of the earliest settlers along the eastern banks of the Ohio river.

Old records in Hancock county show that Peter Tarr worked day and night at his secret task of making cannon balls from ore deposits found in the hillsides about the furnace, and that he sent them overland on mules to Commodore Perry's forces hiding near Put-in-Bay and Kelley's island, awaiting an opportune time to strike the decisive blow at the British naval forces.

Growth.

All fruits grow—whether they grow in soil or in the soul. No man can make things grow. He can get them to grow by arranging all the circumstances and fulfilling all the conditions. But the growing is done by God.

The Most Insignificant.

The most insignificant people are the most apt to sneer at others. They are safe from reprisals, and have no hope of rising in their own esteem but by lowering their neighbors.—Hazlitt.

HOW TO PREVENT BARK FLAKING OFF LOGS IN "RUSTIC" STRUCTURES.

To prevent the bark from flaking off logs in rustic structures, the forestry products laboratory, Madison, Wis., recommends the following different methods of seasoning:

1. Cut timbers late in summer and score on two sides; that is, cut off narrow strips of bark for the entire length. Pile in shade in open pile and allow thorough circulation of air. Allow timbers to season until following spring or summer before using.

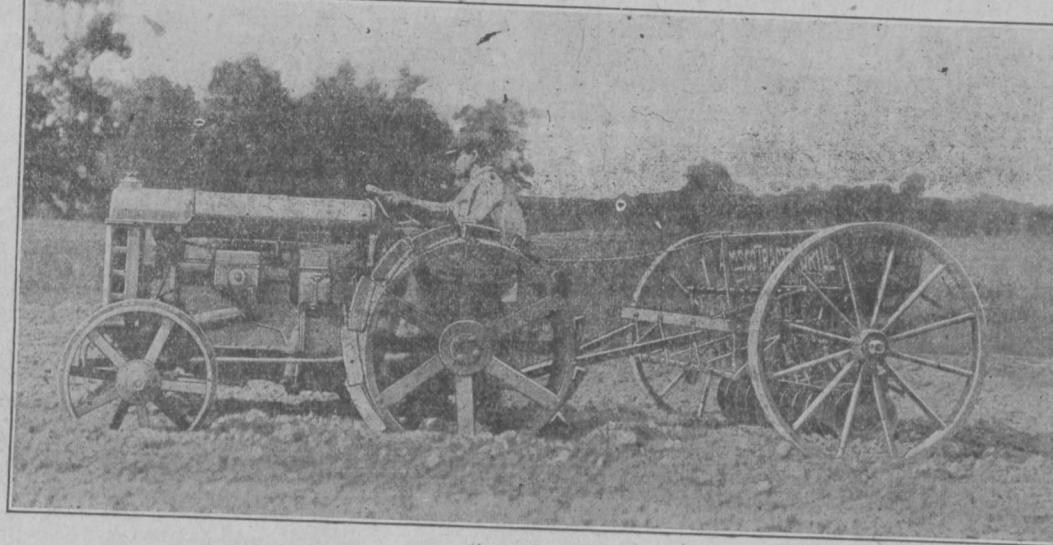

2. Proceed as in (1) and in addition coat ends, stripped portions, and knots with coal-tar creosote, using one coat a few days after timber is cut and another just before using the timbers.

3. Proceed as in (1), but do not score bark. When timbers are in place, tack back on with large headed nails, placing one to every square foot of surface. Paint heads of nails to resemble color of bark.

4. Tack or nail the bark without particular attention to time of cutting or other treatment.

The nailing method has been used successfully by one Western company which maintains numerous rustic hotels, and also on a large rustic building erected for exposition purposes.

RED MEN FLOURISH

Idea That Indians Are Dying Out Is Erroneous.

Probably the Race Is Scarcely Less Numerous Today Than When Columbus Landed on the Shores of America.

Despite popular belief that the civilization forced upon him by the white man means his ultimate extinction, the North American Indian, reviving from a long period of decadence, has shown such substantial increase in population in recent years that he probably is scarcely less numerous today than when Columbus discovered America.

Starting as this assertion may be to those who have pictured American forests in the discoverer's time as swarming with red men, it is freely advanced by experts of the government's Indian bureau, who maintain that the Indian necessarily formed an exceedingly scant population which probably at no period materially exceeded the total of 333,702 Indians reported by the bureau for last year.

"The Indian no longer is to be thought of as a dying race," declared Dr. Lawrence W. White, an Indian authority of the bureau. "In support of that statement it is necessary, in the first place, to disabuse the public mind of the tradition handed down by discoverers and early colonists that American forests in their day swarmed with the dusky figures of the red man. As the Indian neglected agriculture almost completely, it is highly improbable that this country, considering its latitude, could have supported more than several hundred thousand of his race."

"On the other hand," Doctor White continued, "the Indian in the present day, after periods of sharp decrease following as a natural reaction to sudden contact with the civilization of the white man, is seen to be making substantial gains in population.

"While many estimates or guesses of the Indian population were made during the past century," said Doctor White, "ranging from less than 100,000 to 400,000, the first reliable census was made by the Indian bureau in 1870, when the population was placed at 215,712. So figures demonstrate that in the last 50 years the Indian population has made a substantial net gain."

Pointing to statistics which show an excess of births over deaths of 1,522 in 1916, and almost as great an excess in 1917, normal years which were not affected by the epidemic of influenza, Doctor White declared these figures "fully reflect the generosity of a government that has increased its Indian health appropriation alone from $40,000 in 1911 to $350,000 in 1917 and subsequent years." They demonstrate, he said that with the schools, hospitals and other advantages now provided for them, the Indian, be he tribesman or freedman, is "not a dying race, but rather a flourishing one." Had he been treated as other nations have treated savage tribes, Doctor White concluded, there probably would not be a "vestige of the race within our republic today."

A $6,500,000 Fur Auction.

St. Louis, May 16.—Furs auctioned at the International Exchange yesterday brought $500,000 making the week's total $6,500,000. Sales consisted of 2400 viscachas, 10,000 chinchilla rats, 1361 Siberian chinchillas, 2400 chinchillas, 18,000 white ermine, 35,000 gray ermine and 80,000 brown ermine. Best grade of ermine went to $47.5 a skin. Prices showed a decline of .25 per cent from those of February.

The ermine skins were about 40 percent Russian and 60 percent American, and an interesting feature was the presence of gray and brown ermine. This was formerly considered of little use in the fashionable wardrobe, but now is worked up into smart collars and novelty trimmings.

Chinchilla prices went as high as $15 a skin for the best grades. The number of top grade skins was limited as the embargo on Bolivian chinchilla prevents new skins coming into the market.

Bo it remembered, these are "raw-furs," and not made up. By the time the wearer gets them, there will be a good many more millions added to their cost.

No Money Loaned for Automobiles.

Borrowing money to buy automobiles has been placed under a ban, by the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, Georgia. There is a statement made that some of the big publishers have continuing contracts with manufacturers of paper at a very low price per pound. If this be true—and it is probable—then the mills are likely adding on enough to the price to small dealers to make up for their losses on the big contracts.

It is reported that thousands of trucks that have been stored in the open at Camp Holabird, Md., are to be driven to New Cumberland, Pa., and stored in huge warehouses there. Gettysburg will be a stopping point for the procession, and Maryland roads will get another good hammering.

Meeting of Board of Education.

The annual meeting of the Board of Education of Carroll County was called to order in the office of the Board at 10:40 on Wednesday, May 12th, 1920. Commissioner Glover was absent.

After the reading and approval of the minutes of the previous meeting the regular order of business was taken up.

All bills presented to the Board were approved and ordered paid.

After very careful reconsideration of the various items prepared for the budget at the previous meeting, the Board finally adopted the budget for submission to the County Commissioners. This budget includes a raise of teachers' salaries to the extent of $50,000 or about an average increase of $225 per teacher as provided by the action of the Legislature. It also includes $30,000 for the completion and equipment of the Myers building; $7000 for the new school building at Pleasant Gap; $3000 for a new school building for the colored folks at Johns ville; $19,825 for alterations and repairs of old buildings; $4000 for the completion and equipment of the Hampstead property; $7000 for textbooks; $5000 for janitors' wages, fees, etc., and $12,000 for fuel.

The total debt on the Hampstead and Myers school building of $45,000 has been reduced to $15,000, with the expectation of reducing it to the extent of $5000 more; leaving a balance still due on the debt of $10,000. This amount has been asked for in the budget. The total amount asked of the County Commissioners to be levied for school purposes by the Board of Education is $260,272.43 after the State funds are deducted.

Commissioner Feeser reported to the Board that he had been unable to secure any bids for the construction of the Myers building.

The following requests for contributions to local funds raised were presented. The Board contributed Ten ($10) Dollars to the amount raised in each case.

PAINLESS DENTISTRY.

"An American at home, with or without toothache, is not much affected by the sign, 'Painless Dentistry,' but at sight of it in a foreign land he thrills pleasurable," a traveler said. "Its lure is not professional. Every tooth in his head may be perfectly sound, yet if stranded and homesick he welcomes that sign because all over Europe it is a sure indication that somewhere in the neighborhood lives a citizen of the United States. From the northernmost town of Norway and Sweden to the boundaries of Sahara the words 'painless dentistry' are likely to hit you in the eye at the most unexpected turning. Usually they are followed or preceded by 'American,' but that qualifying term is entirely unnecessary. Dentists of other countries make no pretense of performing painless dentistry, or if they do they do not advertise their skill. They leave that for their American rivals."
