HOME MANUFACTURE OF CIDER AND FRUIT JUICES

More Liberal Interpretation of the Prohibition Act.

Collector of Internal Revenue Joshua W. Miles received an important ruling from Federal Prohibition Commissioner John F. Kramer, which is interpreted by Internal Revenue officials as allowing the home manufacture of "non-intoxicating" cider and fruit juices that may not "necessarily" be "less than one-half of one percent of alcohol."

The preamble to the vital part of the ruling points out that Section 29 of Title II of the National Prohibition Act provides:

"That the penalties for manufacturing liquors without a permit shall not apply to a person for manufacturing non-intoxicating cider and fruit juice exclusively for use in his home, but such juices shall not be sold, or delivered except to persons having permits to manufacture vinegar."

The ruling is as follows: "Any person may, without permit, and without giving bond, manufacture non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices, and in so doing he may take his apples or fruits to a custom mill and have them made into cider and fruit juices."

"After such non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices are made they must be used exclusively in the home, and when so used, the phrase 'non-intoxicating' means non-intoxicating in fact and not necessarily less than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol, as provided in Section 1 of Title II of the said act."

"Or if the person making such cider and fruit juices desires to do so, he may (1) sell such cider and fruit juices at any time to persons having permits to make vinegar; this he may do under the provisions of said Section 29."

(2) If he preserves such cider and fruit juices at the time they are made he may sell same to the public in general; this he may do under the provisions of Section 4, of Title II, of said act.

(3) Or he may sell said cider and other fruit juices so long as they contain less than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol, but the purchasers thereof cannot use or possess the same after they contain more than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol; this he may do under the provisions of Section 1 and 3, of Title II, of said act."

"The cider in the home may be allowed to turn to vinegar if the owner desires, provided he adds no sugar or other fermentable substance to the cider or fruit juices to increase the alcoholic content thereof, inasmuch as such practice is held to constitute a mash fit for distillation within the provisions of Section 3282 Revised Statutes; he may sell said vinegar to any one who may desire to purchase it; this he may do under the provisions of Section 4 of Title II, of said act."

"This regulation is not intended to cover the commercial use of cider and fruit juices, but merely the use of the same as applied to the home and as provision is made in Section 29 of Title II of said act."

This ruling is generally regarded as being forced by public sentiment, and intended to have influence on the strong efforts being made against the Volstead law, especially as it relates to the home manufacture and use of cider, vinegar and fruit juices, which many "dry" advocates pronounced extreme, and unwarranted.

Just how provision 3 is to be enforced, so far as the purchaser is concerned; and how the latter may be allowed to "let cider turn into vinegar," yet not "possess" it during the process when the "kick" is in it, is not explained.

Mr. Mackall Disappoints Emmitsburg

An official delegation from Emmitsburg journeyed to Baltimore, last week, to interview Chairman Mackall, of the State Roads Commission, to find out his attitude toward constructing a state road through Emmitsburg, following the completion of the Taneytown road, or at least to very materially improve the street through the town.

The town commissioners have done very little with it in the way of repairs, as it had almost been assured that the State Commission would look after it.

The meeting with Mr. Mackall was far from satisfactory and the committee returned home very much dissatisfied with their visit. The people there feel that they have asked for very little in the way of road building, and with the large amount of traffic going through the town together with the location of the two large institutions, Mt. St. Mary's and St. Joseph's, which necessarily brings a number of visitors, they feel they have a grievance.

CONGRATULATIONS.

Our neighbor, The Advocate, is to be congratulated on the installation of a new newspaper press, in these times when publishers, generally, are "making their old clothes do." We note the apparent satisfaction with which local help set up the press; and yet, just above the article stating the fact of the Advocate of last week, this line appears—rnBnuwt-drCna Dzm- hlZt hr sh' literal translation of which might ve some of the language used during effort.

HIGHER PHONE RATES ASKED.

Increased Cost of Operation Justifies List of Increases.

The new rates which the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. is asking the Public Service Commission to approve for Carroll county are as follows:

Westminster Exchange—		Per Mo.	Residence	Per Mo.
Business	Individual	$4.00	Individual	$3.00
4 Party	3.00	4 Party	2.25
Rural	3.00	Rural	2.25
Exten'n Sta. 1.00	Exten'n Sta.	.50
Service Stations, (or Plan A) Business, $12.00; Residence, $9.00 per annum.

Rates for Hampstead, New Windsor, Taneytown, and Union Bridge—Business Per Mo. Residence Per Mo. Individual $3.50 Individual $2.75 4 Party 3.00 4 Party 2.00 Rural 3.00 Rural 2.00 Exten'n Sta. 1.00 Exten'n Sta. .50 Service Stations, (or Plan A) Business, $12.00; Residence, $9.00 per annum.

In presenting its facts and figures to the Commission, the Telephone Co., according to local manager, A. C. Allgire, is emphasizing the fact that the value of its property now used in furnishing telephone service in Maryland, outside of Baltimore city, is $7,745,000 adjusted fair value and linked with this valuation, the fact, that at the present time its operations, outside of Baltimore city show a loss of $127,400.00 a year.

The Company is asking of the Commission an increased revenue of $226,736.00 on the adjusted fair value, outside of Baltimore city, so as to overcome the present loss, and bring the new earning power to $99,336.00. Mr. Allgire states that this is vitally necessary in order to improve this condition, because the rates that were fixed under Federal control shortly after the armistice was signed, were made with the conclusion of a general decline following the war; but instead, the opposite has happened, therefore the Postmaster General's rates have proved inadequate. He says:

"It is a known fact that new capital is scarce, and that high rates of interest must be paid to get any new money, and if the present operating results are continued, it will undoubtedly become impossible to secure additional capital for the necessities of telephone requirements. 'People sometimes forget that new capital is essential in our business, not only to extend the service for our growing demand, but to improve it for the subscribers we already have.'"

"Operating costs in the Telephone Co. have increased just as rapidly as in any other line of business—perhaps more so than some. Wages alone represent about one-half the Company's total expense and have been gradually increasing for several years. Another main factor is the increased cost of materials of at least 100% or more. In the face of such conditions, the Company can do nothing else, but ask for the rate increase, which it now proposes."

Mr. Allgire expresses it as his belief that under the existing circumstances they are very reasonable in comparison with other utilities.

An Explanation.

(For The Record.) I wish to correct a certain impression made by Prin. W. H. Davis, in his announcements at the Westminster Armory, on the commencement evening of Westminster High School.

During a Chemistry test on May 31, my son passed a paper to a classmate (who had not asked for it). Miss Mason, the Chemistry teacher, saw the paper passed and lifted it before anyone had even examined it. My son did not use any information whatsoever in the test, and neither did anyone use the information which he had passed. Miss Mason, knowing this, after a severe lecture, dropped the matter. Thursday, Miss Mason left for her home and Friday the report was over Westminster that certain Seniors had passed unfairly.

In order to contradict the report and completely remove the slightest doubt as to his ability to pass, on Monday the faculty gave him an examination in the subject. As Mr. Davis stated the examination was very difficult, but my son passed it creditably, making B. So there is no question of his graduating honorably and fairly.

I believe Mr. Davis wished to express as much, but his announcement was very misleading to those of the audience who were uninformed.

State Sup't of Schools.

The somewhat long controversy over the selection of Superintendent of Education for the State, was ended last Friday night, by the election of Albert S. Cook, in place of M. Bates Stevens who had held the position for more than twenty years. Mr. Cook has been the Superintendent of Baltimore county schools for nearly the same length of time, and has made the county system very efficient.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION.

Several Ballots are Likely Before the Candidate is Finally Selected.

The convention will open for nominations this (Friday) morning, without any candidate sure of nomination. Senator Johnson is generally regarded as out of the running. While the followers of Wood and Lowden are still hopeful, the feeling is strong that they, too, will not develop the needed votes. The prevailing opinion among those not ardent champions of any of the present leaders in the race, is that Hughes, or Allen, may finally win.

The compromise plank on the League of Nations meets with both dis-appointment and satisfaction; but the rank and file of the party is not interested greatly in the matter, and are glad that the threatened split in the party has been avoided, feeling confident that Congress is able to handle the future of the League and Treaty questions in accordance with the will of the majority of the American people. The platform, in general, will appeal to the conservative masses, even though it may not be relished by those specially championing secondary issues.

The Republican convention of 1920 is an unusually difficult proposition, because of the large number of big candidates, and of the other large number of big men who are "available," but not in the open candidate class without counting another contingent of what may be termed the "hopeful" ones. Aside from the superabundance of material, there are the strong differences on platform planks, and the various issues claimed to be paramount, including the demands of large voting elements, the whole being confused, rather than made clear, by the Presidential primary contests.

To a large extent, the same differences that appeared within the party in the Senate, over the League of Nations, are up again in Chicago, but the indications are that party cohesion will exist during the campaign, and that the party differences will be submerged in the common cause of again getting full control of the government.

The safety in the whole situation largely rests in the fact that this is not a "bossed" convention. It is not under the control either of the "old guard" or of the "progressives," and this means an open fight without any faction, or organized domination, to hold a grudge against after it is over. Perhaps to a greater extent than ever before, all cards are "face up on the table," and it will be difficult for any disappointed candidate to find grounds on which to build a "split" that not so long ago was feared.

The body was convened on Tuesday morning, by National Chairman, Will H. Hayes; Rev. Chas. E. Woodcock, Episcopal bishop, of Kentucky, delivered the invocation, and was followed by Senator Lodge, of Mass., temporary chairman, who delivered the "key note" speech of the convention, asking popular indorsement of the action of the Senate in holding up the Wilson Peace Treaty, thereby preventing entangling alliances with European affairs; and charging that the present administration was characterized by waste and dictatorship.

His address lasted an hour and a half, and was received with great enthusiasm. Senator Lodge was selected for permanent chairman, and a full organization was harmoniously effected.

The session of Wednesday was for only an hour, and was limited to several short addresses, the progress of the program being held back due to waiting for the regular committees to complete their work.

CONGRESS HAS ADJOURNED.

Authorities Agree to Disagree on the Record Made.

Congress has adjourned, because it was not worth while to keep in session any longer, merely as an expense to the country. Republican leaders claim to have made a good record, while the President says it was a rank failure. The truth is, Congress would do nothing that might be used to the credit of the Wilson administration, while the President vetoed everything distinctly to the credit of the Republican majority. This is not a creditable situation to either side; but, blame for it is equal. If one "played politics," both played the game; so, the old "pot and kettle" situation exists.

The President lambasts Congress for not reducing the "high cost of living," while the Republicans say there is law enough in existence, and power enough within the Executive departments, to do all that can be done along this line, through prosecution of "profiteers," price controls, etc., and points to the sugar price as an object lesson of executive mismanagement of prices and high costs. The Republicans make the claim that the Congress more than demonstrated its great value to the country in the several billions of dollars it cut down departmental estimates for the coming year; and that the many investigations made into war expenditures had piled up evidence for new and economic legislation next session.

The President still holds to the League of Nations and Versailles treaty as being a great piece of legislation that has been wantonly assassinated by Congress; while the latter says it deserves the everlasting gratitude of the country for refusing to embroil it in foreign quarrels, for all time, and that it welcomes the issue of "Aemricanism," as against "Wilsonianism" at the coming election. Senators Johnson and Borah were the two most largely reported men at the Chicago convention, because of their being regarded as "irreconcilables" who might head a "split" in the G. O. P. if things did not go their way.

OUR DEAD IN FRANCE.

To be Returned, when, Desired after September 15th.

Paris, May 10—Representatives of the American War Department here estimate that about 60 per cent of the American soldiers buried in France will be exhumed and taken back to their native land. A little more than 77,000 American burials have been registered by the Graves Registration Service and about 71,000 of these are in France.

Not all of these soldiers will be returned to American soil, as the United States War Department proposes to carry back to America only those requested by their next of kin. This policy will result in leaving in France those whose next of kin ask that they be brought here and those whose removal is not requested. It is understood that the unidentified American dead will be left in France.

Decision by the Franco-American Commission that bodies of American soldiers buried in the zone of military operations may be exhumed any time after September 15, next, ends a long period of negotiations between French and American authorities. The French Government desired to meet the wishes of the American nation, but entertained serious doubts as to the advisability of removing the American dead from the zone of operations this year owing to labor and transportation difficulties involving the passing of the bodies over the railways and highways at a time when the French population was in the first stage of its recovery from the economic and sentimental strain of five years of war. The French Government feared that the granting of such permission to America would bring on a clamorous agitation from other nations for similar permission and that this would hamper the rehabilitation of French industrial conditions.

Business Notes of the Week.

The bottom has dropped out of the wool market. Dealers are all at sea as to the new values, and buyers show a decided disposition to wait for lower prices.

A large number of silk mills have closed and others are on part time, due to slack demand for silk goods, for either present or future delivery. The price must come down more, before demand will increase.

The Institute of American Meat Packers says: "Wholesale prices of beef, continuing to decline during May, are not far from the level prevailing when the United States entered the war. Cattle producers are losing money and many packers report losses arising from railroad strike accumulations, importations of lamb, second-hand beef bought from the government, over-supply of dressed beef in eastern markets, and declining values for hides and fats."

No improvement has appeared in the local leather market the last week. Shoe manufacturers, tanners, say, are not buying. What few orders have been placed are from the South. Shoe manufacturers report retailers and jobbers have been slow in placing orders for fall. Production in most shoe factories has been curtailed.

St. Paul's weekly crop report says: "Weather has been very good for growing crops, with plenty of moisture everywhere. East of the Missouri river corn is all planted and prospects are excellent for a good yield. Small grains are doing very well and making good progress. Winter wheat is heading out in Illinois and a good yield is expected. Early potatoes in Wisconsin are coming up and nearly all varieties have been planted. Tobacco planting has started late, but plants in beds are in good condition. Along the western lines small grains are doing nicely. Winter wheat is beginning to head. Grass in Montana is better than at any time in the last three years. Washington expects a grain yield equal to or better than last year's."

Wholesale price reductions have been announced in the higher grades of shoes, this week, running from 25c to $2.00 per pair. The reduction is claimed to be based on the lower cost of leather. No reduction has yet been announced on medium and low priced shoes.

Boys Start in Pig Business.

An unusual lot of excitement centered about the Farmers' and Mechanics' National Bank, Westminster, Saturday afternoon. It was caused by pigs; not common pigs, but fine specimens of the blue blooded aristocracy of the pig world. They were pure-bred registered Duroc-Jersey sow pigs.

The Bank gave the pigs to the boys on their note for one year. When the sow farrows they will sell some of their pigs and pay off their note. Do you think they will leave the farm? Not much. The following boys received pigs: John Conlee, Philip Flater, Jr., Paul Leight, Levi D. Maus, Jr., Paul Robertson, and Robert Wright. Three other boys were not able to get in, but will get their pigs later.

This is a good start; the Duroc-Jersey hog is a meat producer. Why not some of the older boys get pure-bred pigs? They give better returns for their feed than grades or scrubs.

Any person wishing to buy any kind of pure-bred breeding stock, should get in touch with County Agent Fuller.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS PROHIBITION

All Hopes of the "Wets" Finally Settled by Decision.

The long delayed opinions of the Supreme Court on the numerous cases taken to it, were issued, on Monday, and completely rout all of the points taken against the 18th Amendment to the U. S. Constitution. The Court also dismissed the injunction proceedings filed by New Jersey and Rhode Island, and upheld various Federal Court decisions dismissing injunctions.

The decisions, 11 in number, apparently cover the entire subject, making the powers of Congress clear, and its actions legal, without admitting that the opposing States have any jurisdiction that can conflict. The words "concurrent power" that have been so much depended on by the "wets," was decided as not meaning that the States have joint power, or require that legislation by Congress shall be approved, or sanctioned by the States, or any of them.

The Volstead act is also approved, as not transcending the power of Congress, and that the several States are required to exert their powers to respect and enforce the Amendment and the Volstead act. There is no mention made, however, as to the powers of Congress to amend the Volstead law, in so far as it contains provisions and specifications not contained in the Amendment itself, but the decision goes far toward encouraging the maintenance of the provisions of the present law.

Proceedings of the Orphans' Court.

Monday, June 7, 1920.—George L. Stocksdale, executor of Eliza J. Stocksdale, deceased, settled his third and final account.

Tuesday, June 8, 1920.—The Westminster Deposit and Trust Co., guardian of John L. Green, settled his first and final account.

Mollie J. Sullivan, administratrix of Chester U. Sullivan, deceased, settled her first and final account.

The last will and testament of Jas. E. Haines, deceased, was admitted to probate and letters of administration with the will annexed were granted unto Charles N. Haines, who received warrant to appraise and an order to notify creditors.

James A. Frederick, administrator of Jacob L. Frederick, deceased, returned an inventory of debts and settled his first and final account.

Elected to Gettysburg Faculty.

Three new professors were elected at the annual June meeting of the board of trustees of Gettysburg College, on Tuesday. Prof. C. Lee Shilliday, now at the University of Tennessee, will succeed Dr. George D. Stahley, who has resigned. Prof. Arnold V. Johnston, now at Ohio Wesleyan University, will succeed Prof. J. Rees Ewing, resigned. Dr. Richard A. Arms, an instructor in the University of Pennsylvania, was elected alumni professor of mathematics. Other positions were filled by the appointment of C. Gilbert Keen, of Gettysburg, as assistant in engineering; H. Gilbert Becker, of Hanover, assistant in economics and French; Felix G. Robinson, of Gettysburg, master in Gettysburg Academy, and B. H. Deardorff, of Dillsburg, as assistant in French.

Notice to Ex-Service Men.

The American Red Cross has been asked to get a complete list of the men who were in the service during the war.

The Government has authorized the Home Service and Civilian Relief departments of the Red Cross to assist men entitled to compensation in the adjustment of claims and to give information and aid in any other matters which concern their interests. This work will be done by the chapters, branches and auxiliaries of the Red Cross throughout the United States.

The Carroll County Chapter, to comply with this request and secure a record of the men who served from Carroll county, will send to every man whose name and address is known, a return postal card with questions and a request that the questions be answered and cards returned promptly to O. D. Gilbert, chairman of the Civilian Relief Committee.

These cards will be mailed next week, and it is earnestly hoped that every man who receives a card will answer and return it once and will also make an effort to find out if any men he knows who were in the service have not received cards, and if any are found, advise Mr. Gilbert, so they may be sent.

Aside from the assistance, the Red Cross may be able to render, it is of great importance that a complete list and record of Carroll county men who were in the service be secured and filed for future reference and history. Every Red Cross member in the county is asked to assist in the work of reaching all ex-service men in the county with these cards, and in cases where men have removed from addresses, postmasters are asked to forward if present address is known.

William Jennings Bryan was an interested spectator at the Republican convention in Chicago, this week, no doubt getting points for use at San Francisco, and later.

All articles on this page are either original, or properly credited. This has always been a fixed policy of this office, and we suggest the adoption of it by our exchanges.

It is said that the adjournment of Congress will be pleasing to the President, and good campaign material for his party. Well, what is the use for Congress to remain in session, and be a big expense to the country? The President vetoes everything Congress does, and Congress refuses to pass the Wilson measures, so, what is the use wasting time and money over such a situation?

It is almost noticeable, that neither Secretary Daniels nor Baker, nor Postmaster General Bursleson, have been slightly mentioned, for the Presidential nomination. Apparently, all of them had a fine chance to display great ability during the past four years; and perhaps they did—before an unappreciative public. Virtue does not always receive its just reward. Mr. Gompers is also missing, and likewise Col. House.

Judging from the comment, as well as the probable outcome of the recent Presidential primary, it does not pay to be too anxious to appropriate the big job of running this big government. Somehow, it would look a lot better if the candidates showed greater appreciation of the seriousness of the honor, and a little more inclination to let it hunt the man. Strongly wanting to be President, is not always the best evidence of fitness for it.

A primary election means a primary fight—a political scramble, and there is no other result to be expected. Money spent? Of course—and those who have the longest purse, or the wealthiest admirers, will spend the most. And, they may do it legitimately enough, too; but this does not help the primary to show the voice, or choice, of the people, as the primary election advocates claimed. Big, or little, the primary is a conspicuous failure and waste of money.

Women as Voters.

It would not be strange, in the final analysis of the result of the coming Presidential election, if it would appear that the votes for women decided it. Men are badly—very badly—mixed on what they want, and stand for. It will likely require four or five good sized parties, this year, to supply the demand for places of deposit for the varying opinions held by men.

If the women are anything like united, and know essential policies when they see them, they can easily elect the President. Of course, there are Republican women and Democratic women, but, these affiliations have not been of long standing, nor have they "taken" very deeply. It must be that women, because they are women, will have some one main guiding principle—something to get together on, and fight for—some particular mental "rolling pin" to use effectively.

We have never been strong on "votes for women," but, we are open to conviction and if the result shows that it required the women to overcome the craziness of the men, in this very critical period, we shall take great pleasure in admitting our short-sightedness; but, just now we are "from Missouri."

Fashion and Fact.

Big financial "drives" have about run their course. Naturally, they would, for there is a certain amount of "fashionableness" even in doing good things. The driving up of prices will also run out; because, when the masses tire of the pursuit, they will quit the game—and it takes two sides to play it. Popular liberality, as well as popular foolishness, depends on popular participation.

When we say that "things must turn some day," we are apt to think of the cause of the turning as a thing that can go so far, and no further, and not go very deeply for a sounder basis of our reasoning. As a matter of fact, things do go up, and go back, for no better reason than that people just get tired of seeing them go—lose interest in the novelty, and demand some new stimulation.

Wisdom does not always direct things, nor does necessity. Not so long ago, it was politically popular to demand "referendums," and direct primaries, and such progressive acrobatics; but, the rage in that direction is over, and bids fair to turn completely around. It has, in fact, only it is difficult to legally undo some things—something like getting married.

What we call "public sentiment" is often nothing more than "new sentiment"—a change in the "fashion" of sentiment; and after a while our new sentiments get as "old as the hills," so we simply shape them over, give them a new tilt, add another color of ribbon, and, Presto! there is a quite different so-called popular sentiment, perhaps not so good as the one we discarded.

San Francisco Next.

The Democratic National Convention, which has so far been overshadowed by the Chicago convention, will come into its own, next, week—big first-page publicity. By holding the convention two weeks later than that of the G. O. P., the Democrats may avoid some mistakes, and will have the decided advantage of writing a platform after the opposing party has laid its cards face-up on the table.

It is hardly likely, even then, that the San Francisco party will have calm seas and easy sailing. Mr. Bryan is always to be depended on to have a monkey-wrench up his sleeve, and there is sure to be strong protests against giving to President Wilson all of the indorsements of his administration and policies that he wants—and the country does not want. The probability is that when both affairs are over, and sized-up, it will be seen that both parties "have troubles of their own," and that neither will be harmonious and happy. The writing of a single platform that will meet with the hearty approval of a large majority of the people on every plank, is likely to prove an impossibility, even for the experts.

What Does Labor Want?

At the convention in Chicago of the Industrial Relations Association of America, C. A. Lippincott, of the Studabaker Corporation, brought out one phase of the labor question that nine employers out of ten ignore or do not appreciate in its real importance.

What does Labor want? he asked. The employers did not know. Some held that Labor wanted higher wages, but when Labor got higher wages that did not end the trouble.

Did Labor want a larger part in the management of industry? Some said it did, but when it got it it was not always content. Plans had been outlined to give to the employe a voice in the direction of his own labor and working conditions and a greater proportion of the results of his labor but, up to date, no one or all of these measures had satisfied Labor.

The Iron Age gives a report of Mr. Lippincott's "novel" suggestion for the employer to consider.

Perhaps, he said the solution of the problem lies in finding out what the workman's wife wants. The average man aspires to provide for the comfort, health and happiness of his family. This means a good home, a home where he can rear his children to a sturdy and well-equipped maturity. The importance of the home to the security of the nation was brought out, he said, by the war. In England, the laboring class did not respond to the call to arms as quickly as those higher up in the economic scale, and the reason for it was that, despite her marvelous achievements in civilization, England had more poverty than any other great nation. A man's patriotism gets much of its impetus from his pride in his home and his zeal to defend it and all it represents. A large body of unanchored and poorly paid labor, such as existed in England, naturally reacted differently under the call for volunteers than those who had homes to defend.

Granting that it is desirable for every workman to own his home, there are certain obstacles in the way of achieving that end which, strange as it may seem, emanate from the worker himself. Labor fears that its bargaining power is impaired when its freedom to change employment is limited. This fear, said Mr. Lippincott, is not entirely without foundation. He cited a specific instance of a city where employers had refrained from granting wage advances proportionate to rising living costs because most of the workmen owned their homes and it was known that they would hesitate to leave them. Another obstacle is that many workmen are unable to make even a modest initial payment on a home for fear that they can't keep up with subsequent installments.—Richard Spillane, in Phila. Ledger.

Why That Headache?

When you know the cause of a disease, a cure may often be effected. This is particularly true of headache. Headache often results from constipation or a disordered condition of the stomach, which may be corrected by taking a dose or two of Chamberlain's Tablets. Try it. These tablets are easy to take and mild and gentle in effect.

Clipping the Corners.

Many workers always quit about 10 minutes before their time is up at noon and at night, to wash up, which ablution is performed, of course, on the employer's time. Others are late at work in the morning. Even if their pay is docked for their tardiness, the plant cannot operate efficiently. If the employer complains because of this or other playful little habits of idleness, the help will go somewhere else.

All these habits add to the cost of goods, and are an important cause of the prevailing high prices. The workers of the country pay for the inefficient production of a large number of indolent people.

Prices cannot possibly come down until everyone in the country, including the boss, his foreman and superintendents, and all his workers, is willing to work full time and work hard. The country cannot possibly maintain the existing standard of living on the present basis of slack production.—Ellicott City Times.

Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Every family should keep this preparation at hand, ready for instant use when needed. Severe attacks of colic and cholera morbus often prove fatal before medicine can be procured or a physician summoned. The uniform success that has attended the use of this remedy and the prompt cures which it has effected have made it a staple article of trade.

How Employers in New York Solved Problem Which Has Long Bothered Efficiency Experts.

The weekly washday problem has been solved by managers of mills in and near New York, and no longer do these mills operate with only half of the female employees on Monday.

In solving the problem the managers have added a side line which threatens to become an important and profitable factor in mill life.

The mill laundry is here, and the housewife who works in the mill no longer "lays off" on Monday to do the family wash, but instead slips a ticket into the laundry box as she comes to work. Then she forgets all about it and on Tuesday the mill delivery wagon backs up to her door and delivers the week's wash. When she gets her pay envelope she finds only a few cents deducted from her wage.

Mill managers for years have been at a loss to determine just how to overcome this Monday shortage of female help. According to a New York mill man, who introduced the mill laundry in his plant, he got the idea from his term of service in the army.—New York Evening Times.

How Popular Terms Are Born.

It appears that the expression, "black coats," for the great army of salaried workers may now take a place in the dictionaries. This is something of an innovation, for distinctions in terms of dress have more often been applied to manual workers in one form or another. Thus, in France, Germany and elsewhere the blouse has long been the special badge of the "workers" as opposed to the "writers." In the same way a century ago the smock was the special mark of the agricultural laborer in this country, and it might be said that the apron was the badge of the "serving woman." Such, at least, Beau Nash declared it on the famous occasion when the duchess of Queensberry dared Nash's prohibition by wearing one in the assembly rooms of Bath. Boots, too, have had their part in social distinctions. The "hobnail" was long part and parcel of the laborer, while in the eighteenth century "top boots" generally carried with them the idea of the country squire—the old tory.—Manchester Guardian.

How Turks Regard Birds.

The Turk defies the bird world. In life he will not kill a bird unless in self-defense, and only then when his wives are in danger. In death he provides for the needs of the bird. Among the amiable qualities of his contradictory nature, at once cruel and kind, the Turk has a wonderfully loving feeling for birds, and it is a charming Turkish custom to have hollows carved at the tops of costly tombstones, from which the birds of the waterless country can drink rain water.

From the NEW ROYAL COOK BOOK

WHEN the children romp in hungry as young bears, here are some wholesome, economical delights that will not only be received with glee, but will satisfy the most ravenous appetite in a most wholesome manner.

Cookies
1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup milk
1/2 eggs
1/2 teaspoon grated nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract or grated rind of 1 lemon
4 cups flour
3 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder

Cream shortening and sugar together; add milk to beaten eggs and beat again; add slowly to creamed shortening and sugar; add nutmeg and flavoring; add 2 cups flour sifted with baking powder; add enough more flour to make stiff dough. Roll out very thin on floured board; cut with cookie cutter, sprinkle with sugar, or put a raisin or a piece of English walnut in the center of each. Bake about 12 minutes in hot oven.

Cocoa Drop Cakes
4 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cups flour
3 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1/2 cup cocoa
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

Cream shortening; add sugar and well-beaten egg; beat well and add milk slowly; sift flour, baking powder, salt and cocoa into mixture; stir until smooth, add vanilla. Put one tablespoon of batter into each greased muffin tin and bake in moderate oven about 20 minutes. Cover with boiled icing.

Orange Cakes
4 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup milk
1 egg
2 cups flour
3 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder

1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon orange extract
grated rind of 1 orange
Cream shortening; add sugar slowly, beating well; add milk a little at a time; then add well-beaten egg; sift flour, baking powder and salt together and add to mixture; add flavoring and grated orange rind; mix well. Bake in greased shallow tin, or individual cake tins, in hot oven 15 to 20 minutes. When cool cover with orange icing.

POULTRY FACTS

TWO BREEDS IN SAME FLOCK

Crossing Is Prevented by Keeping Male of One Breed One Year and Another the Next.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
While keeping two distinct breeds of poultry in one yard without mixing the breeds seems difficult, it can be accomplished easily and with satisfactory results, as shown by the account of an experience just received from a New England poultry raiser. One of the kinds kept is a so-called egg breed, the other being a general-purpose variety of poultry. The method of preventing crossing is as follows:

One year, roosters of the egg-laying breed are retained and used for breeding, no other males being kept. The following year roosters of only the general-purpose stock are kept. The difference in the color of eggs of the two breeds selected is so great that hatching eggs have always been selected with a certainty as to the breed laying them. The plan necessitates introducing new males, but the advantages of keeping the blood lines of two breeds separate outweigh the slight cost of purchasing the males. The department of agriculture points out that when this method is followed on two neighboring farms an exchange of roosters might readily be arranged.

REMODELING POULTRY HOUSE

Many Stuffy Old Structures Can Be Rebuilt With Little Trouble—Cost Is Small.

Many farms have old style, closed-up poultry houses with poor light and ventilation; also old sheds and other buildings of little use for other purposes that can be remodeled or built over with little difficulty into satisfactory poultry houses, according to the United States department of agriculture.

A building of that kind usually can be made over for less than one-half the cost of constructing a new one, and if the work is well done should give just as good results. Furthermore, the work performed in remodeling the building serves as a good poultry club demonstration in poultry house construction.

KEEP ALL PROFITABLE HENS

Close Attention and Study Must Be Given to Each Individual Fowl—Some Are Layers.

Keep all hens as long as they are profitable. This calls for close attention and the study of each individual hen, but it is work that pays. The man who turns off every hen that reaches the age of two years is pretty sure to sacrifice some of his best layers.

POULTRY NOTES

Clean, dry litter, clean water pans and mash hoppers are essential to the health of good layers.

All air that is admitted for ventilation should be so handled that it will not blow on the fowls, especially when they are on the roost at night.

It is necessary to provide the hens with some reason for exercising in winter because they have no incentive to exercise naturally, as they do in summer hunting for bugs and worms, etc.

The birds in the farm flock should have at least four square feet of floor space per bird in their house.

A warm, comfortable henhouse will do much to secure a good egg yield, for fowls that are not comfortable cannot lay well.

One of the best ways to furnish green food is to hang a cabbage head just high enough so that the fowls will have to jump for it.

WHY

Men of the Negrito Tribe Shave Their Heads

Though the Philippines have made marked strides in culture, industry and civilization in recent years, as set forth in their recent pleas for independence, some natives of the islands, as do a few Indian tribes in the United States, still present striking subjects for study by ethnologists, according to a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"The Negritos are generally considered to be the true aborigines of the Philippines, and are racially sharply distinct from most other numerous tribes of the islands," says the bulletin, which is based on a communication to the society from Dean C. Worcester. "They are of low, sometimes even dwarfish, stature, with very dark brown, or black, skins. Their heads are covered with closely curling hair, and many of them have abundant woolly beards. They often have so-called 'peppercorn' hairs distributed very abundantly over their bodies. Their noses are broad and flat, their lips thick, their arms disproportionately long.

"They do not tattoo their bodies, but ornament them with scar patterns, produced by cutting through the skin with sharp pieces of bamboo and rubbing dirt into the wounds thus formed in order to infect them and make good big scars. The men wear small cloths, and the women short skirts reaching from the waist to the knee. They are very fond of brightly colored cloth, scarlet being preferred, but individuals who cannot get cloth, and there are many such, use instead the so-called 'bark cloth,' so widely employed by inhabitants of the islands of the Pacific. Men frequently shave the crowns of their heads in order to let the heat out."

BIG PART OF TREE WASTED

Why Turning the Forests of the Country Into Lumber Involves Great Loss of Material.

How many of us realize the appalling wastefulness which is practiced in our inroads upon our timber lands? It is authoritatively declared that in turning the forest tree into lumber and then into the finished products, the original wood is subjected to greater losses than any other important raw material. R. G. Skerrett writes in the Scientific American. Remember, we cut down every year now fully 40,000,000 feet of timber, and the wastage is such that only 320 feet of marketable lumber is obtained on an average from each 1,000 feet cut in the forest.

Take the long-leaf pine for example. Instead of sacrificing two-thirds of the tree, as is now done, that particular branch of the lumber industry could be made to furnish us daily from the discarded material quite 40,000 tons of paper, 3,000 tons of resin, 600,000 gallons of ethyl alcohol and 300,000 gallons of turpentine.

Why Weeping Aids Eyes.

Tears are provided for washing the ball of your eyes. Every time you wink a little tear is released from under the eyelid, and the wink spreads it all over the eyeball. This washes down the front of the eyeball and cleanses it of all dust and other things that fly at the eye from the air. Then the tear runs along a little channel, much like a trough, at the lower part of the eye, and out through a little hole in the eye, and in this case the tear is really only an eyewash. Many things, but more often sadness or injured feelings, start the tears coming so fast from under the eyelid that the little trough at the bottom and the hole in the corner of the eye are too small to hold them or carry them off, so they roll over the edge of the lower eyelid and down the face. Among other things that will stimulate tear glands and cause an oversupply of eyewash to come down are onions. What they give off is very trying to the eyes, and so, just as soon as the something which an onion throws off hits the eyeball the nerves of the eye telegraph the brain to turn on the tears quickly, and they come in a little deluge and counteract the bad effect of the onion.

Why Leisure Is Important.

The fellow who takes time to get a grip on life is the fellow who will forge ahead. To do this he must be master of his spare time. The hours of leisure are the hours that make or break a man. In them he forms habits of thrift or prodigality. Time well used means a brain well stored. This becomes the ready asset of needy hours and the unexpected. He meets exceptional situations with confidence, and men learn to trust him in times of stress. And he learns to believe in his own strength. It is no wonder that a little detour in life's morning has made such beautiful going in life's afternoon.

Named From Saint's Day.

On the tenth of April, 1534, Jacques Cartier sailed from France with two small ships and 122 men to found a colony in North America. In May he arrived in Newfoundland. Cartier entered the Newfoundland waters in the fete day of St. Lawrence, and called the gulf St. Lawrence in honor of the patron saint of that day.

Why Living Cost Increased.

One of the explanations of the high cost of living in the Philippines, as given by a complaining native, is that the tribesmen who were formerly content to appear in a breech cloth are now compelled to wear trousers by order of Uncle Sam.

BURIED IN JUNGLE

Tropic Growth Overwhelmed City of Angkor Thom.

Devastation Wrought, Especially by the Deadly Fig Tree, Is So Complete as to Be Almost Unbelievable.

In the heart of Cambodia, one of the five provinces of French Indo-China, lie the ruins of the royal city of Angkor Thom, built somewhere between the fifth and seventh centuries, and of the marvelous temple, Angkor Wat. The architecture, which is Hindu, is being disentangled from jungle growths by French archeologists. The city and temple are thought to have been built by the Khmers, a long-vanished race which certainly has no connection with the Cambodians of the present day.

Writing in Harper's, Ellen N. La Motte describes a trip through the jungle on an elephant in order to visit one of the more remote ruins.

"In about ten minutes," she writes, "we found ourselves climbing over the fallen stones of an immense temple that lay completely buried and overgrown by the forest. So thick was the foliage that only a dim twilight prevailed. The supreme loneliness of that buried temple, the utter isolation and silence that enveloped it, were appalling, and our scrambling feet and hushed voices only intensified the awful stillness—the silence of centuries.

"The horror and vindictiveness of the jungle! Everywhere giant stones were overthrown, pushed out of place and toppled over in heaps through the sinister vitality of that deadly tree, the fig tree of the ruins. The roots of this tree begin as innocent, hairlike filaments which insinuate themselves through the crevices of the great stones and slip through tiny openings and cracks, then grow and develop with an evil vigor that nothing can withstand. They never die, never are starved out, these fine, hairlike roots. The big stones never crush or kill them. Year by year, century by century, their fierce strong life is fostered by the fierce heat and fierce rains of the tropics until they overthrow and destroy everything in their pathway. One fearful root that wandered in its course through a whole corridor of mighty carvings was 90 meters in length, with the circumference of an elephant. And the tree is useless, too—just spongy, porous wood, unfit for anything.

"For an hour we wandered through dim, ruined chambers, scrambled and climbed over fallen pillars and carvings of great beauty and delicate, intricate design—all in utter ruin and the fig tree of destruction in supreme control. It was good to reach our elephants again and to leave behind that overwhelmed and evil spot. * * *

"Only the most important and beautiful ruins are being reclaimed from the forest, those in Angkor Thom, as well as the Angkor Wat. These outlying ones are still left as originally discovered, buried and smothered by the everlasting forest. To me they are far more interesting in this sinister setting, choked and swamped by the mighty growth of the tropical jungle. They afford more thrills to me who am not an archeologist than the picked up, restored and cleared ruins that the government is reclaiming.

"Of course, one cannot see them very well, these buried temples, swamped in undergrowth, enveloped by a twilight gloom. And as I scramble over fallen images, over barbaric sculptures, my mind is largely set on serpents. And when we reach a fairly open space it turns to monkeys—the agile black gibbons that hoot and leap overhead at our coming, furious at the intrusion upon their solitude. Between snakes and monkeys there are times when I forget to admire these old temples, supposed to be among the most marvelous in the world."

LATER VARIATION.
He—Sentimental people used to study the language of flowers.
She—Yes, but you can't blame us, under the circumstances if we study the language of cabbages and tomatoes.
Dividing Line.

EMMITSBURG.

Miss Mary J. Ohler daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Ohler died at the Frederick City Hospital, Saturday morning, June 5th, about 5 o'clock, following an operation for appendicitis at the age of 22 years, 7 months and 17 days. Besides her parents she is survived by a sister, Mrs. Chas. Harner of Detour, and a host of friends who mourn her loss. The funeral was held Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock with services at the Lutheran Church, this place, conducted by Rev. Ibach, of Union Bridge, assisted by Rev. Banes, of Thurmont, and Rev. J. T. Chase, this place. Interment in Keysville cemetery.

Dr. D. E. Stone, who has been critically ill at the Frederick City Hospital, is slowly improving.

Miss Sue Guthrie, spent a few days in Reading, Pa. Miss Hannah Gillelan is visiting in Thurmont. Miss Eloise Gross, of Baltimore, is spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Harry Gross. Robert Troxell, who has been a patient at the Frederick City Hospital, returned home this week very much improved.

David Sheets, of Lewis, Iowa, is spending some time with his sister, Mrs. John Hospelhorn. Lieutenant Henry Spaulding and Sergeant Henry Myhries, of Washington, D. C., made a visit to Emmitsburg, on Wednesday, in an aeroplane. They landed near town and spending the afternoon there caused quite an excitement.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Ohler are spending some time with their daughter, Mrs. Charles Harner, in Detour. Michael Hoke has had his home on W. Main St. repainted. The community Brotherhood held a Memorial service for the late Rev. Charles Reinwald, D. D., in the Lutheran Church, on Sunday evening. Rev. Alleman, D. D., of Gettysburg, delivered the address.

Mrs. M. J. Thompson, Misses Ruth Gillelan, Mary and Ann Felix were in Gettysburg, on Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Amos Inners, Mrs. Henry Hess, Samuel Hess, Miss Charlotte Haines, of York; Mrs. Anne Whitmore and Miss Ora Whitmore, of Rocky Ridge, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Brown.

Mrs. Charles Sites, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ott, of this place, died at her home in Pittsburgh, Thursday, June 3, after a short illness. Besides her parents she is survived by her husband and a small son, and one brother. The remains were brought here and services held in St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Saturday morning. Interment in cemetery adjoining.

KEYSVILLE.

Mrs. Kitchin of Baltimore is visiting Mrs. Robert Valentine. Mahlon Stonesifer, wife and family, of near Emmitsburg, were visitors at the home of William Devilbiss, Sunday.

Clarence and Roland Mackley and Ira Barrick spent Sunday evening at the home of Harvey Frock, near Keysville.

Mrs. John W. Baker and Mrs. John Royer spent an afternoon, recently, with Mrs. Wm. Strine, of Bunker Hill. Miss Mary Burns, of Johnsville, is visiting Mrs. Arthur Sell, both of whom spent Wednesday with Clarence Mackley, who has been on the sick list.

UNION BRIDGE.

The High School gave a play at Liberty, on Tuesday night. The Pomona Grange met here last Saturday and discussed problems of vital interests to the farmers.

There will be a glorious Fourth of July celebration here under the auspices of the Cement Plant. A ball game between two departments will be played and owing to the intense rivalry, both teams have conceded defeat to their opponents.

No encouraging reports of Rev. C. E. Bregenzer's condition are given by the physicians. Notwithstanding the lack of help and the cool weather, farmers are accomplishing wonders.

Harry German was seriously burned, on Saturday night, while working at the Cement Plant.

Howard Gray had his thumb almost severed, on Sunday, in a machine. The Band makes a fine appearance in the new uniforms.

The death of John William Angel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Angel, has touched the heart of our entire community.

Four immense auto trucks carried 28 tons of cement to Washington, on Tuesday.

Children's day exercises were held at the M. P. church, on Sunday. A large audience heard the interesting program.

Next Sunday, the M. E. Sunday school will conduct children's day services. You are welcome.

Mr. Morningstar, a former blacksmith, of this place, is back among friends.

PLEASANT VALLEY.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Geiman entertained on Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Edw. J. Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Franklin, of Taylorsville, and Mr. and Mrs. Thurlow Fitze, of Marston. Miss Lillian Englar, of Baltimore, visited George W. Devilbiss's, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Duffenbacher spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. H. Wantz.

Don't forget the children's service, this Sunday evening, at 7:30 o'clock. Miss Margaret Fitze, of Gaithers, Md., is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Mary E. Starnier.

Our bank was in operation one year, last week, and has reached the $70,000 mark, and every one prizes the convenience; and with the hearty cooperation of the community will continue to prosper. Miss Ada Geiman is slowly improving at this writing.

The P. O. S. of A. band furnished music at Union Mills, on Sunday, 6th, for decoration services.

Every one is urged to attend the C. E. Society every Sunday evening, to help with the services. Rev. Reinecke is with us each Sunday evening and gives us interesting and inspiring talks.

Now is the Time to Get Rid of Your Rheumatism. If you are troubled with chronic or muscular rheumatism, buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and massage the affected parts twice a day with it. You are certain to be very much benefited by it, if not actually cured. Try it.

UNIONTOWN.

In order to suit the convenience of the President of the M. P. Conference, the date for rally day services at Pipe Creek has been changed to Sunday, June 20; and in the evening the President will preach at this place. The evangelistic singers, Mr. and Mrs. Sheetz, of Baltimore, will have part in the services.

Lutheran children's day services, Uniontown, June 13, at 10:30 A. M.; Church of God, June 20, at 7:30 P. M.; and at the M. P. church, June 27, in the evening.

Another bank hold-up occurred, this week, this time at Hayes, ten miles from Pittsburg. The usual tactics were used; a revolver hold-up of the bankers, locking them in the vault, then getting away by auto with the cash. This time it was over $6000., and a lot of Liberty Bonds.

Many Varieties of Climate. About 50 different climates are distinguished in the revised classification of W. Koppen. These are contained in three main temperature zones—tropical, temperate, and frigid, or megathermic, mesothermic, and microthermic; and two minor rainless zones, hot desert and cold desert. Besides 11 principal climates there are many others that are secondary or transitional. The principal climates are—tropical, forest, savanna, steppe, desert, temperate with dry winter, temperate humid, cold with wet winter, cold with dry winter, tundra, and perpetual ice. By the use of two or three letters, each important place on the map is so indexed as to show its climate at a glance.

Reindeer Future Meat Supply. The "frozen North" is today an exploded myth. It was exploded recently by Vihjalmur Stefansen, the Arctic explorer, at the winter camp dinner of the Camp Fire Club of America, New York, in an address in which Mr. Stefansen stated that the future meat market of the world would be the far North. He asserted that within a few years the northern portion of Alaska would be producing and supporting approximately 5,000,000 reindeer to take the place of the world's vanishing supply of beef.

Russian Divorces Easy. Russians who have arrived in Geneva recently by way of Sweden and Germany say a former minister of justice, Spitzberg, has been installed in Petrograd as "breaker of marriages." He is said to be granting from 500 to 600 divorces a week, no investigation being necessary. All that appears to be required is the signature of the person desiring freedom from matrimony.

Small Change for Provisions. Mrs. Witherleigh—Have you any loose change? I'm going out to buy some groceries. Mr. Witherleigh—Here are some pound notes. They are all the small change I happen to have.—London Answers.

No Slums in Spokane. Spokane, Wash., is said to have no slums, and, in proportion to its population, has the largest park area of any city in the United States.

MARRIED

RIPPIN—CURFMAN. Mr. Winfield S. Rippon and Miss Pearl V. Curfman, both of Liberty, were united in marriage, on June 6, at Union Bridge, by Rev. W. O. Ibach.

DIED.

CHARLES CARROLL KOONTZ. Charles Carroll, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Koontz, of near Bridgeport, died at the home of his parents, on Thursday, May 20, 1920, aged 8 months and 2 days. Death was due to pneumonia. We were not informed of the death at the time. Funeral services were conducted at the Lutheran church, Taneytown, on the following Saturday, by Rev. L. B. Hafer.

MR. O. CALVIN SMITH. Mr. Oliver Calvin Smith died at the Frederick Hospital, early Sunday morning, following an operation for removal of gall stones, on Thursday. Mr. Smith apparently withstood the operation very well, and was having normal progress until Saturday, when he suddenly made a turn for the worse, and died, as stated.

He had recently had a very severe attack of illness at his home, near town, and had been more or less unwell for some years, due to the long standing of his trouble. He leaves one sister, Miss Margaret, and one brother, Harry O. Smith, at home; and three sisters, Mrs. Simon W. Benner, Mrs. Samuel Lambert, and Mrs. Albert M. Rowe, all of this neighborhood. His wife died 28 years ago.

His age was 66 years, 7 months, 13 days. Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at the Lutheran church, by his pastor, Rev. L. B. Hafer.

MISS MARY OHLER. Miss Mary Ohler, 22 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Ohler, of Emmitsburg, died at Frederick Hospital, Saturday morning, after an illness of one week. Miss Ohler was taken to the hospital for an operation for appendicitis, which seemed to be successful. She was getting along nicely until Friday evening, when complications set in from which she did not recover. Miss Ohler is survived by her mother and father and one sister, Mrs. Charles Harner, of Detour.

Miss Ohler was a teacher in the County schools and her lovable nature made a host of friends who lament her passing away. Only 22 years of age, but by her devotion to her chosen profession, she has left an indelible impression which will help her scholars to fight the battles of life.

Funeral services were conducted at Elias Lutheran Church, Emmitsburg, on Monday morning, by Rev. W. O. Ibach, of Union Bridge, assisted by Rev. Chase of the Presbyterian and Rev. Banes of the M. E. Church. Interment took place at Keysville cemetery. The floral offerings were so numerous that an auto truck was required to convey them to the grave.

CARD OF THANKS.

Our sincerest thanks are extended to all friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us in many ways following the death of our brother.

Common Mistakes in Daily Living
Proverbs 24 : 27-34.

The common mistakes against which the Scripture lesson warns us are criticism and deceit (v 28), selfish course of action (v 29), and slothfulness (vv. 30-34). Common mistakes and faults, indeed, are these, and in to them one easily falls. It is easier to criticise than to construct; to condemn rather than commend; to be a witness against one's neighbor; or in other words to be a destructive critic of others. This seems to be the human bent and tendency, and with it there is coupled deceit. Unfavorable criticism of others is often made because of the inward desire to exalt oneself in comparison with others, and at the expense of others. We like to justify ourselves by this method of comparison, which leads to a feeling of complacency. The comparison is usually made with those whose mistakes and faults are more conspicuous than our own. Adverse criticism of others usually means, commendation of ourselves, as compared with those others. "The heart is deceitful above all things" and leads us in this direction. Self-judgment is rare. The self-life avoids it. Only when taught by the Holy Spirit of God, do we enter upon self-judgment. The unregenerated life judges others. The truly converted and spirit-taught life judges self.

The second common mistake is seen in verse 29. Doing to others as they do to us is the iron rule. Doing to others as we would have them do to us is the golden rule. Which of the two are you practicing? The spirit of Christ alone can enable us to follow the golden rule of Christ. Secretary of the Navy Daniels, declares that the only permanent solution of the vexing problems which seem more acute now, than ever, is the application of the golden rule. We all agree to this most heartily, but when will it be recognized, that the application of the golden rule comes, not through a mental assent to a proposition, but through yieldness of heart and life to our sovereign Lord who gave the golden rule? The ethics of Christ are impossible apart from the resurrection life of Christ regnant within the heart.

Slothfulness is the third of these common mistakes, and is presented in verses 30-34. Slothfulness is disastrous, both in its present reaction on the life, and also in its ultimate results. Slothfulness in study, in business, or in spiritual things is deplorable. Many enter upon courses of study, but never finish the course. Only a small percentage of the boys and girls who enter high schools finish the prescribed course of study. This is largely due to slothfulness. Many business failures are chargeable to the same fault, and in church life and spiritual experiences, slothfulness is among the greatest of our foes. The book of Proverbs, which contains heavenly wisdom and directions for our earthly walk, warns us against this weighty and often times besetting sin. (See Prov. 6 : 6; 13 : 4; 24 : 26; 15). The New Testament also warns us against slothfulness and encourages us to diligence and fervent of spirit—"Not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord." This is a splendid standard for Christian life and enterprise, and is supplemented and supported by Hebrews 6 : 12, "That ye be not slothful, but followers of them who through faith and patience inherit the promises."

ARE YOU GUILTY?

A FARMER carrying an express package from a big mail-order house was accosted by a local dealer
"Why didn't you buy that bill of goods from me? I could have saved you the express, and besides you would have been patronizing a home store, which helps pay the taxes and builds up this locality."
The farmer looked at the merchant a moment and then said:
"Why don't you patronize your home paper and advertise? I read it and didn't know that you had the stuff I have here."
MORAL—ADVERTISE

WITH THE FUNNY MEN

Uncertain.

"Well, Mr. Pedagogue, does my boy show any special aptitude for work?" asked the proud father.

"I think so, Mr. Bronson," answered the schoolmaster. "I am not certain as yet whether John will make a sculptor or a baseball player. He is unerring in his aim with paper wads, but the condition of his desk top convinces me that he can carve with considerable facility."

No Facilities.

"Rather a husky looking individual," "Yes. That's Prof. Sampson Grapleigh. He gives physical culture lessons by mail."

"I see, a correspondence school. But suppose one of his clients applied for instruction in person?"

"The professor would be in a most embarrassing predicament. He might have to hire a gymnasium."

Competent at Last.

"How long has this reporter been on the staff?"

"Oh, long enough to become really useful as a news gatherer."

What do you mean?"

"He has passed through the period of aspiring to write the 'Great American Novel,' or the 'Great American Play' and is now able to concentrate his mind on a police court item."

Through With Honesty.

"I'm never going to return a lost article to any one again," said a Kansas City man the other day.

"Why?" he was asked.

"Well, this fellow advertised a reward for the return of his dog, and no questions asked. And then when I took the dog and went up and rang the bell his wife answered the door."

How We Need One!

"I've an invention at last that will mean a fortune!"

"What is it this time?"

"Why, it's an extra key for a typewriter. When you don't know how to spell a word, you hit the key and it makes a blur that might be an e, an a, or most anything else."

Not Qualified for Golf.

"Will you come and make a four at bridge, sir?"

"I'm exceedingly sorry, sir, but I don't play bridge."

"You don't play bridge, sir? Then what the devil did you join a golf club for?"—The Tattler.

GIVE IT TIME.

"Boil my egg three minutes."
"Scuse me. Dat alg is jes' out o' cold storage an' three minutes won't much more dan jes' thaw it."

Friendly Bill.

One Better.

Manager—This magnet will draw three pounds of iron from a distance of ten feet.

Rube—That's not much. I know something that draws me every Sunday over three miles of plowed fields, and I weigh 125 pounds.

Needless Labor.

"John," said the nervous woman, "I think there is a burglar in the house?"
"Nonsense! Why should a predatory person take the trouble to break into a dwelling when he can walk around a few blocks and gather up gallons of priceless milk?"

Following Instructions.

Father—And when you quarreled with the boy did you follow your Sunday school principle and give him a soft answer?

Bobble—No, not exactly; I made an old soft tomato do the answering.

Smart, at That.

"I guess my wife thinks I'm a pretty smart man."

"Why?"

"She admits that I am half as smart as she thought I was the day we were married."

Fairly So.

"Did you follow the diet I advised?"

"Yes, doctor."

"Religiously?"

"Why, tolerably so. I said grace about three times out of five, I should guess."

A Painful Matter.

"Pat, it's lookin' seedy ye are. A shave wouldn't hurt you a bit."

"Faith, Molke, if ye could see me razor ye wouldn't say that."

Raise Every Chick!

Prevent Losses of Baby Chicks. Feed

Conkey's

THE ORIGINAL

Buttermilk Starting Feed

More chicks die during the first six to eight weeks of life than any other time. During this critical period they are subject to many fatal diseases. Chicken raisers lose thousands of dollars, because so many of the little fellows fail to survive. Yet all this loss should be stopped—these chicks saved—because disease and death in young chicks is almost solely due to improper feeding.

Conkey's Buttermilk Starting Feed saves thousands of dollars and tens of thousands of baby chicks every year. The buttermilk neutralizes the acids of digestion, increases assimilation and disinfects the alimentary canal, thus preventing disease.

In your flock, as in thousands of others, Conkey's Buttermilk Starting Feed will make every little chick a big chick.

No Mill Sweepings—No Weed Seed
Low in Fibre—Just Right in Protein

Conkey's Buttermilk Starting Feed is pure, sweet, selected grain with concentrated, sanitary buttermilk. For baby chicks, feed with a protein content in excess of 14 per cent is dangerous, as the delicate digestive system cannot assimilate it. Conkey's Buttermilk Starting Feed runs 12 per cent, the ideal average. A fibre content of more than 5 per cent is very injurious to little chicks. Conkey's is scientifically correct for it runs only 4 per cent fibre. The correct balance of food elements and the high quality standard of its ingredients make Conkey's Buttermilk Starting Feed the cheapest baby chick food you can use.

Too much fibre injures. Too much protein over taxes. Conkey's is low in fibre and just right in protein. Read the guaranteed analysis of Conkey's and compare it with others!

TELEPHONE RATES IN MARYLAND

THE CHESAPEAKE AND POTOMAC TELEPHONE COMPANY, like all other industries, has been seriously affected by increased costs. During 1919 our earnings were not sufficient to pay our expenses and interest charges.

THIS DEFICIT occurred in spite of the fact that in May, 1919, the Federal Government made some increases in our rates for service. These increases, however, did not at the time produce sufficient revenue and the increased cost of labor and material since has brought us to a point where additional revenue is imperative.

THEREFORE, we have submitted to the Public Service Commission a petition asking for a further increase in our rates sufficient to enable us to pay our expenses and earn some return on the investment.

WE RECOGNIZE our obligation to the public—to give good service at reasonable rates—but unless we have rates which produce sufficient revenue, we cannot maintain satisfactory service, nor can we secure the new capital necessary to keep pace with the growth of the community.

WE WANT OUR PATRONS to understand the situation that confronts the Company. We want you to know that we have no desire to make excessive profits. Pending the investigation by the Public Service Commission, we hold ourselves ready to furnish our patrons full information upon the subject, and we shall be glad to receive your inquiries.

A DEAL IN REAL ESTATE

By WILLIAM A. STIMPSON

(© 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

John Powers threw back his shoulders and breathed in deep draughts of the country air while his eyes swept the panorama of field and wood before him.

Half way down the hill lay a small farm, the house gleaming white against the green foliage. It stood well back from the road and was shaded by two huge sugar maples. The smooth lawn in front, with its shrubbery and flowers, the well-kept fences and trim outbuildings, testified to the thrift and good taste of the occupants.

"Now, if I only had a wife, that would be just the place for me," Powers said to himself, stopping to gaze longingly at the cottage.

It was after five o'clock and the young attorney had left the office in town with its heat and dust and its clacking typewriters an hour before for his daily tramp.

He swung down the hill, his eyes taking in every detail of the property before him, and of course he could not miss seeing the board sign lettered, "For Sale." He came to a halt again and stared greedily.

"Oh, well, it's nothing to me," he mused, starting forward again. "The price must be far beyond my means even if I had any use for a farm." Resolutely he directed his eyes in another direction.

But he had walked only a few yards further when he realized he was studying the trim little cottage again. His steps lagged. "There would be no harm in asking the price, I suppose," he said to himself slowly, stopping again. "No, no harm in that, surely," he reasoned, and a moment later he had turned in at the gravelled driveway.

As he ascended the front steps he was conscious of voices just inside the closed door. "The property'll never bring your figure. Better accept my offer, you'll not get as good again."

Silence followed the interrupting knock, then the door was opened. Powers bared his head courteously. "Will you tell me the price—" he began, then paused in confusion as he met the eyes of the girl before him. "Why

"No, You Don't, Young Fellow."

"Why, Helen Rand! I didn't know you lived here," he stammered, recognizing a friend of his youth grown to young womanhood.

"John Powers! Of all people!" the girl exclaimed, offering her hand. "Come right in."

"I fear I'm intruding," Powers answered, recovering from his surprise. "No, indeed, you are not," the girl assured him. "Mother is here and a business caller, Mr. Jackson."

Powers nodded coolly to Jackson, whom he recognized as a shrewd real estate speculator. The man was plainly put out at the interruption.

"How long have you lived here?" Powers inquired.

"About a year," the girl replied. "It's strange I haven't run across you in town."

"Father was ill when we came and died three months ago. I didn't go out much."

"I see," said Powers gravely. "But I may as well obtain the information I came for," he added. "What do you ask for this place?"

"Five thousand dollars," came the answer.

Powers' face fell.

"Don't you want to look through?" the girl asked eagerly. "I believe that is the proper way to talk to a prospective purchaser," she laughed, rising and leading the way into the dining room.

Powers was quick to follow. "Certainly I'll look through. Can't tell whether I'll want the place or not until I've seen it," he returned lightly.

"That man is trying to buy the property at a ridiculously low price and I'm afraid mother'll accept the offer. I thought maybe if you showed an interest in it he might give more," the girl whispered in the privacy of the kitchen.

"I'm on," Powers whispered back, his lips close to one faintly ear.

"Now there are three sleeping rooms and a bath upstairs. I'll show you those," his guide announced as they returned to the living room.

"The house is a perfect gem." Powers' enthusiastic praise was meant for the ears of Jackson, with whom Mrs. Rand was politely keeping up a conversation.

"Why sell this pretty place?" Powers asked when the two were alone again.

Helen's merry air vanished. "Financial reasons; father left very little."

"Well, what about my offer, Miss Rand?" The impatient voice of the real estate man broke in sharply upon them.

The girl glanced questioningly at Powers. "I—I hardly think so—not tonight, at any rate. The offer is too low," she called, descending the stairs.

"It's every cent I can give," the speculator snapped, "and my offer won't stand long." He paused for a moment.

"Don't think every one who looks at the house is going to buy it," he sneered, shooting a black look at Powers. "Just sign that contract," he urged, turning to the older woman.

"and I'll pay a deposit now and the balance of the money as soon as the title can be searched and the deed drawn."

"What is the offer, Helen?" Powers' voice had an ominous ring to it.

"Thirty-five hundred dollars," the girl answered quickly.

"Too low by fifteen hundred," Powers returned sharply. He paused, then, "I will buy the property at your figure, Mrs. Rand," he declared with a quick glance at Jackson.

There was a little scream of delight from the girl and Jackson turned a threatening look upon the young man. "And who may you be, butting in on my business?" he demanded harshly.

Powers ignored him. "I'll write you a check for five hundred dollars as a deposit," he said coolly, addressing the mother and leading the slightly bewildered woman to a table.

The speculator darted forward. "No, you don't, young fellow. This is my deal. The ladies accepted my offer," he shouted.

Powers turned. "The matter has passed out of your control, Mr. Jackson. The ladies did not accept your offer," he said.

Jackson faced Mrs. Rand. "You can't sell the property to this man," he whined. "Who is he? How do you know he has the money?"

"That will do, Mr. Jackson," the widow interrupted sharply. "We have known Mr. Powers for a long time. He is an honorable gentleman, a friend of my daughter, and you cannot insult him further in my house. Good afternoon, sir."

Mrs. Rand turned her back on Jackson and the two women and Powers drew up together at the table. The real estate man slammed his hat on his head and strode angrily from the house.

"Now the next thing is, when will you want possession, John?" Miss Rand asked when the check had been passed over and a brief memorandum or agreement of sale had been signed. "Why—er—I hadn't thought of that," he replied soberly.

The girl laughed merrily at the perplexed look on his face, at which Powers brightened. "Well, I guess you people can stay for a while, anyhow," he flashed, joining in the merriment.

Helen's face glowed with eagerness. "Do you mean you will rent the property to us and we won't have to move right away?" she exclaimed.

"Well, I can't run even this little farm alone. I'm still a bachelor, you know," he replied brusquely.

"Oh!" Her eyes fell before his steady gaze.

"Unless," he went on, his voice thrilling and his lips brushing her cheek, "you are willing that we run the place together as Mr. and Mrs. Powers? What do you say?"

"O, John, do you really want to do that?" she murmured.

He drew her to him. "More than anything else in the world, sweetheart, now that I've found you again," came the whispered answer.

SEA PLANTS IN THE ROCKIES

Proof That Country, Millions of Years Ago, Was Muddy Bottom of an Ocean.

That many of the algae or seaweeds of the Middle Cambrian epoch of geologic time, some twenty-five or thirty millions of years ago, closely resemble the algae growing in the sea at the present time, is the statement made by Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian institution, in describing, in a recent publication of that institution, fossil remains of these ancient sea plants discovered by him in the Middle Cambrian rocks of the Canadian Rocky mountains.

This is the first authentic proof that this form of plant life existed in that far-distant past, although many primitive forerunners of animal life have been brought to light in the form of fossils. The presence of these fossil algae was known to Doctor Walcott for several years, but he delayed studying them until all possible material was available.

The fossils were found by Doctor Walcott in the Middle Cambrian rocks of Burgess pass, British Columbia, where they were quarried out. Some of them were later cut into thin sections for study and comparison with modern algae.

Of course, in the remote time when these plants were deposited on the muddy sea bottom, the rock formations that are now thousands of feet above sea level in the Rocky mountains, formed the shore line of a Middle Cambrian sea.

THE BABY CAB.

THE baby cab is a round-shouldered vehicle which can be used over and over again with satisfactory results, and usually is.

Very few homes in which babies appear with cheerful regularity attempt to get along without a baby cab. This is because the average baby cannot be carried for any great distance without causing a fond father to wheeze like a leaky accordion. We have often wondered why it is that a wife who is a model in other respects will allow a two-year-old baby to toddle down town, when she is shopping, and then compel the father to lug the said baby home with both lungs reaching out for more air at every step.

In the early dawn of civilization woman was kept in a lower sphere and was obliged to get along without baby cabs and kid curlers and similar luxuries. The Indian wife and mother carried her baby on her back, in a neat crate, which was a sensible and satisfactory arrangement all around. Today, however, we see thousands of embarrassed young husbands compelled by their wives to push a collapsible baby cab through the crowded streets, wearing a sickly look of resigned martyrdom.

Baby cabs are built in several models, and can be made to accommodate twins or triplets with perfect ease. There is nothing more inspiring to all who love our country and delight to watch it grow than the sight of a set of chubby triplets reposing in a willow-basket baby cab and ever and anon lifting melodious voices in song. The twin baby cab is also a popular variety, and it can be propelled over frozen ground with less danger of string halt than the triplet type.

The baby cab, as used in many homes, is a sign of man's bondage to woman, and yet the average husband remains cheerful and uncomplaining, which teaches us that heroism is not always found in high places.

MEMORY.

I stood and watched him playing,
A little lad of three;
And back to me came straying
The years that used to be;
In him the boy was Maying
Who once belonged to me.

The self-same brown his eyes were
As those that once I knew;
As glad and gay his cries were,
He owned his laughter, too.
His features bright and size were
My baby's, through and through.

His ears were those I'd sung to;
His chubby, little hands
Were those that I had clung to;
His hair in golden strands ft seemed my heart was strung to
By love's unbroken bands.

With him I lived the old days
That seem so far away;
The beautiful and bold days
When he was here to play;
The sunny and the gold days
Of that remembered May.

I know not who he may be
Not where his home may be,
But I shall every day be
In hope again to see
The image of the baby
Who once belonged to me.

WHAT "PEP" IS.

Vigor, vitality, vim and punch—
That's pep!
The courage to act on a sudden hunch—
That's pep!
The nerve to tackle the hardest thing,
With feet that climb and hands that cling,
A heart that never forgets to sing—
That's pep!

Sand and grit in a concrete base—
That's pep!
Friendly smile on an honest face—
That's pep!
The spirit that helps when another's down,
That knows how to scatter the blackest frown,
That loves its neighbor and loves its town—
That's pep!

To say "I will"—for you know you can—
That's pep!
To look for the best in every man—
That's pep!
To meet each thundering knockout blow,
And come back with a laugh because you know
You'll get the best of the whole darned show—
THAT'S PEP!

CONSTRUCTS HOME OF CLAY

South American Ovenbird Builds Itself Domicile That Is Remarkable in Many Ways.

The South American ovenbird is a builder who is entitled to honorable mention among the notable clay-workers of the world. He is of the creper family, small and brown, with slender beak and wings so short he cannot fly very well.

Every spring, the father and mother bird together build a brand new house with clay, mixed with a little hair or grass or feathers, well plastered together and completely domed over, and as the clay dries in the sun the walls become quite firm. They sometimes take several months in building the nest, depending upon proper rainfall to make the mud of the right consistency for their purpose.

The finished nest weighs from nine to ten pounds, is ten inches high, about nine inches in breadth and six inches deep. The entrance is narrow and winding, reminding one of a conch shell, and the interior is divided into two rooms, in the farther one of which the eggs are laid.—Scientific American.

That Endless Revolution.

Everywhere we hear talk of the "coming revolution"—as though there was ever a time in the history of humanity when a revolution wasn't on the way!

After Adam and Eve fell for the serpent the work-or-croak revolution took place.

After humanity got so natural that life became downright wicked Jehovah sprung the Revolution of the Flood.

Way back about that time Prometheus announced a revolution because Zeus hogged all the Aphrodites himself.

Then came the endless revolutions of historical memory down to the "one just ahead." It's an old and tiresome game of seesaw in which life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness always get it in the neck.

The "coming revolution" is very old stuff.—Cartoons Magazine.

Writing With the Toes.

An apparatus has been invented which will enable an armless man to feed himself, wash his face, use a typewriter, use a knife and fork, or light his pipe or a cigarette.

This invention is worked with the toes, and consists of a few steel wires set in a frame, with arms like two of the legs of an enormous spider, attached to a table after the principle of a Bowden brake.

The inventor, who has also perfected a machine for writing with the toes, is a Mr. George Thompson, a gasfitter, of Edinburgh, Scotland.

These appliances will be tested in one of the training schools, and if approved will be supplied to men rendered armless by the war.

Broke Up the Meeting.

"Yes, it's cold," said Smith, "but nothing like what it was three years ago, when the steam from the engines froze hard and fell on the line in sheets."

"That wasn't as cold as in '87," continued Jones, "when it froze the electricity in the telephone wires, and when the thaw came all the machines were talking as hard as they could for more than five hours."

"The coldest year that I can remember was in '94," said Brown, "when the telegraph messengers had to hurry to keep themselves warm."

But this was too much, and, with silent looks of indignation, the other two left the romancer to his own reflections.

HOPEFUL.

"I just now overheard a conversation between a 'parlor pink' and a 'rugged red' that gave me a great deal of satisfaction."

"How so?"
"The 'parlor pink' positively refused to contribute another dollar of her father's 'made in America' fortune to the deathless cause of Lenin and Trotsky."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Cave Man.

"Gladys Gwendolyn used to say she would marry a cave man."
"Did she do so?"
"I'll say she did. She's got him where he spends his life wishing he could find a cave to hide in."

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC
—The Possibilities of Youth.

I. The Lord Rebuked Samuel for Excessive Grief (v. 1).

It was a bitter experience for Samuel to pronounce God's judgment upon Saul. The cause of Samuel's grief was threefold:

1. The wreck of a promising life. In all history, perhaps, a life with greater promise cannot be found, and yet it affords no example of a more wretched failure.

2. A personal loss. No doubt as the spiritual adviser of the king, Samuel found many things in him to admire. His removal, therefore, Samuel most keenly felt.

3. Anxiety for the national welfare. Samuel knew quite well that a change of dynasty oftentimes meant severe war and the reign of anarchy. This would very seriously weaken the already weak kingdom. His concern for the people's good was therefore a part of his grief. One can readily see why Samuel should mourn, but as a prophet of God he should not have indulged to excess. The Lord's question "How long will thou mourn for Saul?" has in it a rebuke for Samuel. Grief for others is a sacred thing, but whenever it is carried so far as to interfere with one's duty it becomes sinful.

II. Samuel Sent to Bethlehem to Anoint Saul's Successor (vv. 1-5).

Though Saul failed, God is able to provide a successor who is better than he. Samuel is directed to go to Bethlehem and from among the sons of Jesse choose a successor. Samuel again showed his weakness in expressing his fear lest Saul should kill him. If God sends a man on an errand what matters it though a thousand Saul's be waiting to kill him? Even though it means death, if God sends, who dare refuse or offer excuse? God instructed him to avoid publicity by the concealment of his real purpose. Some may question the diplomacy of Samuel, but we must remember that no one is under obligation to tell all that he knows, especially to parties who have no moral right to know. To withhold truth which is necessary morally to tell is duplicity which dare not be practiced. God allowed Samuel to hide his true errand under the cloak of a sacrifice in order to shelter his weakness. The whole matter was already decided; the moral acts were already committed; the issues were already faced. The exposure of Samuel to the murderous hatred of Saul would have only made matters worse.

III. The Method of God's Choice (vv. 6-12).

The elders of Bethlehem were somewhat alarmed when Samuel came. He, in the exercise of his judgeship, went from place to place, and at times he doubtless had to deal in severity with the people. He calmed their fears by assuring them that he came peaceably, even to worship God. While the preparation for the sacrifice was being made, Samuel seems to have had the interview with Jesse and his sons. When the eldest of Jesse's sons passed before him he decided that this stalwart young man must be God's choice, but God told him that man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart. We should learn, like Samuel was obliged to do, that the qualifications in God's sight for workers are inward, not bodily. The one who does God's work must do it by leaning upon him, not through personal strength or endowments. To the utter surprise of Samuel and Jesse, David the shepherd boy, was chosen.

IV. Samuel Anoints David (v. 13).

When this stripling of a boy came before Samuel, the Lord indicated his choice. Samuel proceeded to anoint him. This anointing typified the endowment of the Holy Spirit, which is essential for any and all service for God. The preparation which David needed for the office of king was just what he got as a shepherd boy. God's choices are not arbitrary. As king, his responsibility was to defend, feed, and lead God's flock, and this he had learned to do as he attended his father's flock. This promotion of the shepherd boy should be an encouragement for boys of lowly station in life.

If You Want to Be Miserable.
"If you want to be miserable, you must think about yourself, about what you want, what you like, what respect people ought to pay you, and then to you nothing will be pure. You will spoil everything you touch. You will make sin and misery out of everything which God sends you. You will be as wretched as you choose."

The Good and Bad.
To the good the world is very good; to the bad it is bad.

The SANDMAN STORY

HAPPENED ON A BUREAU.

THE little lady who lives in a frame on the wall told the story, so it must be so; because she said she saw it with her two pretty eyes.

It happened one night after the dance on the bureau, when the little lady who tossed the fan there was fast asleep.

The Frame Lady says that when the moonlight streamed in through the window she was so surprised she nearly fell out of her frame to see the little painted lady on the blue satin fan step out of her place and go to the mirror and look in.

"I am pretty," she said, "and my feet are small. I am sure I can dance, and I am tired of going to parties and balls and seeing everybody dance, while I have to look on."

Then she picked up her dainty lace skirt and bowed low and began dancing about the bureau top.

The hatpins began turning their little heads, and when the Fan Lady came up to them they all hopped out and followed her.

She stopped in front of the pin-cushion and began to laugh. "Oh! you fat, plump thing! You cannot dance; you are much too clumsy," she said, dancing away.

But the pin-cushion did not like being called fat, and to show it was not clumsy it began to bob about and off it rolled on the floor.

The tall bottles began to whirl about and the Fan Lady danced about them until one bumped into her. "Clumsy, awkward thing!" she said. "You can't dance." And over went the poor bottle, spilling its perfume.

"Now, see what you have done!" said the little lady. "I shall get my feet wet."

By this time the powder puff had jumped out of its box and was trying to dance. The mirror, finding it was topheavy and could not dance, lay down, and on this the little Fan Lady stepped to keep out of the wet.

It was just then that the little Silver Boy, holding a vase on his shoulder, turned around to follow the little lady.

She had smiled at him all the while in a most bewitching manner, but not once did she give him a chance to speak to her.

"Pray let me help you back to your place on the fan," said the Silver Boy, "and that you may not spoil your shoes I'll lay my coat over the wet place."

Then taking off his coat, the Silver Boy held out his hand and helped the little lady to her place on the blue satin fan.

"And I heard him say," said the Frame Lady, "that the Queen of old could not have been more beautiful than she was."

"And then the Fan Lady said: 'The Queen of old could not have had a more gallant subject than you, Silver Boy!'"

No one knew what they meant, but now every night when the blue satin fan is left on the bureau the little lady steps out of her place and the Silver Boy takes her hand and leads her where no one can hear what they say.

"Of course, the place is never in disorder now as it was that first night," the Frame Lady said. "And the maid thought her mistress threw the things about, but I knew it was all the fault of the Fan Lady."

TREATING WRINKLES.

QUITE a number of readers have written to me lately, asking why wrinkles come so soon under the eyes, and what can be done to remove them. In most cases, these were the only wrinkles on the face.

Wrinkles under the eyes rarely denote age, so the woman who anxiously watches for that proverbial crow's foot that means the passing of youth, need not worry much about the tiny creases that come beneath the eye. In many cases, these wrinkles are the result of a habit of squinting the eye when laughing, and together with the lines radiating from the end of the eye, are called "laughing wrinkles." You can judge whether they are or not on yourself, by laughing at your image in the mirror, and watching the effect on the muscles of your face.

Often too, these wrinkles come from nervousness and run down health. A general building up will do away with them, even a few nights of real rest will smooth them out. But if they are creased well into the skin, massage will undoubtedly help.

Get a good flesh-building cream and massage it around the eyes. Begin the stroke at the temples or the center of the forehead, bring the fingers across the wrinkles at the corner of the eyes, and under the eyes to the bridge of the nose. Repeat several times. The motion works in the flesh-building cream and irons out the creases, besides bringing fresh rejuvenating blood to that part of the face.

In the same way laxatives and purgatives are giving place to Nujol in the treatment of constipation. These drugs give but slight relief and they invariably leave a condition worse than the original ailment.

In evolving the Nujol treatment science has solved the constipation problem for millions of people.

Nujol works on an entirely new principle. Instead of forcing or irritating the system, it simply softens the food waste. This enables the many tiny muscles in the walls of the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along so that it passes naturally out of the system.

Nujol thus prevents constipation because it helps Nature maintain easy, thorough bowel evacuation at regular intervals—the healthiest habit in the world.

Nujol is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take. Try it.

Nujol is sold by all druggists in sealed bottles only, bearing Nujol Trade Mark. Write Nujol Laboratories, Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), 50 Broadway, New York, for booklet "Thirty Feet of Danger".

Jacob Hess shot and killed a black snake on the farm of his uncle, Wm. Airing, on last Thursday, which measured 6 feet in length.

Some very nice strawberries, of local growing, have been coming to town, at from 25c to 30c per box, but they are not plentiful, as yet.

R. S. McKinney, Chas. G. Boyd, Charles Cashman, Sherman Gilds and Burgess S. Miller, attended the State Firemen's Convention at Westernport, this week.

What is sugar selling at today? is a frequently heard question. The price has been varying from 17c to 27c for the past two weeks, the selling price at the stores being regulated by the buying cost, and not uniform.

J. D. Hesson, Mrs. Wm. T. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hawk and family, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Baker and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Harner and daughter, Thelma, and Mr. and Mrs. Roland Reaver, spent last Sunday in Shippensburg, visiting Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Eyer.

Those who spent Sunday last with James Weishaar and wife, were: Maurice Crabbs, wife and sons, Clinton, Lester and Richard, and daughter, Berneda, of Hanover; Birnie Crabbs, of Taneytown; Wm. Crabbs and wife, and Mrs. Fannie Foreman, of Union Bridge.

We have no more "Maryland" Cook Books, and there will be no more for sale, unless a new edition is printed. We will soon have another lot of "A Feast of Good Things," issued by the ladies of Augsburg Lutheran church, of Walbrook, and will give notice when they may be had.

The Taneytown-Emmitsburg road is expected to be finished, this week. This will be good news for everybody, as a vast amount of inconvenience has been suffered by the public, on this road, for the past two years. The street in Emmitsburg at the end of the road, is said to be in very bad shape.

The foundations for two new dwellings on the State Road extension are nearing completion and material is being assembled for the buildings. One, and perhaps two, more dwellings will be built in the same row, this year. There are some very good lots within the town limits—why not build on them, and "live in town?"

It is reported that the Railroad Company has practically offered to install an electric gong, at the Baltimore St. crossing, that will give warning of the near approach of a train. This is said not to be satisfactory to the most of our citizens who have been asked for their opinion—but, the gong would be some help in preventing accidents.

The High School graduation exercises, on Wednesday night, were attended by a large audience which was rewarded by an excellent program throughout. The address of Dr. Chas. H. Albert differed from the customary address on such occasions, and abounded in many new and practical thoughts as applied to education, and to the relation of education to life and its problems.

William Anders and wife entertained on last Sunday, the following guests: John D. Ohler and bride, John Shorb and wife, Joseph Fox and wife, Thomas Fox and wife, Roy Moore and wife, Harry Deberry and wife, Samuel Boyd and wife, Clifford Smouse and wife, Mrs. Jane Myers, Beulah Anders, Carrie Fox, Upton Auston, Luther Anders, Mrs. Hape, Mrs. Elmer Shorb and Paul Shorb.

The latest real estate deal for Taneytown is the sale of the residence of Clyde L. Humer, to Noah S. Baumgardner. The sale was made on Thursday of this week. We are not informed as to the price of the property.

D. J. Hesson and family and Mrs. Roy B. Garner, attended the Commencement exercises at Hood College, Frederick, on Wednesday, where Miss Mary Hesson was one of the graduates. They were accompanied home by Miss Myra Grove.

That night freight of ours, that usually spends from an hour to an hour and a half, shifting back and forth here, any time after 8 o'clock, is a distinct nuisance as an accompaniment to Opera House programs. It has always been a question, in the minds of some, whether all of the time this particular train spends here, is necessary.

The town Commissioners, on Monday night, decided to look into the cost of oil for the streets, with the likelihood of making a purchase; also to patch the bad places. A committee was appointed to urge the completion of the State Road through the town, connecting up the two roads. The committee is as follows: D. J. Hesson, Milton A. Koons, Rev. H. A. Quinn, George A. Arnold and P. E. Englar.

Three books have recently been added to the Taneytown Public Library. "The Old Mad House," by de Morgan, which was the gift of Mrs. Lucy Birnie Horgan, is of especial interest, in that it was the last book written by one who begun at the age of 62; in fact, it was finished by his wife. Read it and see if he is more clever than Dickens, in whose style he writes. "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and "His Second Wife," were given by Mrs. H. M. Clabaugh.

St. Joseph's Closing Exercises.

The children of St. Joseph's school will be pleased to greet their many friends in the community at the closing exercises of their school year, to be held Monday, June 14, at 8 P. M., in the Opera House. They promise a very pleasant evening to all who accept their invitation.

Equal to the Emergency.

Collection money was to little Tommy one of the essentials of church-going. Every Sunday morning he saw that his penny was ready. One day, just as the ushers began to take the collection, Tommy noticed that a guest in the family pew was not duly provided. Sliding along the seat, he whispered: "Where's your penny?" "I didn't bring mine," replied the lady. Time was short and the matter was urgent, but Tommy was quick-witted. Thrusting his penny into the lady's hand, he whispered: "Here, take mine! I'll pay for you and I'll get under the seat!"—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

R. F. Erwin Regarding His Troubles. "A year ago last winter I had an attack of indigestion followed by biliousness and constipation. Seeing Chamberlain's Tablets so highly recommended for stomach troubles, I bought a bottle of them, and they helped me right away," writes R. F. Erwin, Peru, Ind. If you have any trouble with your digestion, give these tablets a trial. They will do you good.

"Kiss," Parsed.

Teacher (to young miss): "Parse the word 'kiss.'" Young Miss: "This word is a noun, but is usually used as a conjunction. It is never declined and is more common than proper. It is not very singular in that it is generally used in the plural. It agrees with me."

Begging the Question.

Johnny—"What makes the new baby at your house cry so much, Tommy?" Tommy—"It don't cry so very much—and anyway, if all your teeth were out, and your hair off, and your legs so weak you couldn't stand on them, I guess you'd feel like crying yourself."—London Tit-Bits.

The Lutheran congregation, of Westminster, has extended a call to Rev. J. B. Ruple, of Washington, who is reported to have accepted, and will soon take up his duties there. He is the son of Rev. D. E. Ruple, of Philadelphia.

How Cats Save Property.

There are many business concerns, chief among which are the dairy products companies, that make provision for the maintenance of from six to twenty cats as a protective organization. These cats are considered as necessary a part of the operating expenses as the employment of a night watchman, and it is said that they save hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of food yearly from destruction by rats and mice. The best possible rat catcher is a wary, semi-hungry cat.
