NEW GAME AND FISH LAWS FOR THE STATE.

Changes in Open Season, and other New Regulations.

The Record has received from E. Lee Le Compt, State Game Warden, the following condensed statement, which we publish, word for word, as received, and suggest that the article be clipped out and kept for reference by all persons interested. The open season for game, is as follows:

Partridge, pheasants woodcock, rabbit, wild turkey and squirrels, Nov. 10 to Jan. 1, inclusive.

Ducks, geese, brant jacksnipe and crow-bills, Nov. 1 to Jan. 31.

Doves, Sept. 1 to Dec. 15; Yellow leg, Black breast and golden plover, August 16 to November 30; Rail birds, Sept. 1 to Nov. 30; Reed birds, Sept. 1 to Oct. 30; Muskrat and otter (State-wide) Jan. 1 to March 15.

Muskrat and otter can only be killed by trapping and gigning. Shooting in any manner positively prohibited under a penalty of $100.00. It is unlawful to export any game (water-fowl excepted) out of this State. Licensed hunters may carry out one day's bag limit. It is unlawful to shoot wild-fowl from any boat propelled by power or sail. Unlawful to shoot game at night or on Sunday.

Unlawful to sell, offer for sale, purchase or offer to purchase, bob-white quail (partridge), Ring-necked pheasants, ruffed grouse or wild turkey. Unlawful to kill Chinese ring-necked pheasant (female). This is done to permanently establish this game bird in our state.

All persons who hunt game in this State must have a license and arm tag, the arm tag to be worn on the left arm while hunting, and the number of the tag must correspond with the number of license, which must be in possession (except landowners their tenants or children may hunt on land owned or leased by them without a license. Guests of landowners must have a license.

Hunters licenses and tags can be secured from the Clerk of Circuit Court of each County, of Clerk of Court of Common Pleas, Baltimore County. No extra charge for arm tag.

Unlawful to trespass on any property used for propagation of Game or Fish by the State Game Department. Penalty, $100.00. Unlawful to trespass on any property which is posted against trespassing without permission. Penalty, $15.00. Prosecution for this violation must be instituted by the owner, tenant or lessee.

There were no changes in the Fish Laws except in Washington County. The law now requires all non-residents of said County to secure an Angler's License from the Clerk of Court of said County, at a cost of $5.00, and prohibits gigning and spearing of fish at any time.

High Wages Increase Living Costs.

The railroad wage increase is merely another make-believe remedy for increased living costs. By the time the increased wages is balanced by increased freight and passenger rates, these increases will be added to the cost of articles entering into "living" costs, and the railroads will again, in a few months, have the same argument for another increase of wages on top of this one.

The increase to the cost of coal, alone, will be considerable, as a great deal of the present price of coal is in the freight cost. Wheat and flour must also be increased in price, as freight costs enter largely into bread costs. Groceries of all kinds are weighty freight articles, and these must go higher. Potatoes and fruits will get their increase in price. So will meats, leather, hardware and furniture—everything.

How long will this fiction last, anyway? Perhaps it is a good thing that the Presidential and Congressional election is but a few months off; after which, there may be a different public attitude taken toward the whole cost of living subject. *The cost of living will never be reduced, nor stopped in its fight, by increasing wages. If the present railroad wage increase affected only the railroad men and the companies, it would not matter how long they played the game; but unfortunately the resultant increased costs of produce will equally affect those who do not receive increased incomes, with which to meet the bills.

What Next?

It is reported that some city lathers—the men who nail the laths on walls to receive the plaster—now demand that the nails be sterilized, because of the habit of putting the nails in their mouths—something like the ladies dispose of pins. If the lathers should strike because the nails are not "sterilized," the other mechanics would likely strike, too, through sympathy.

What the cost would be to sterilize each nail before it goes into the lather's mouth, is not stated, but the question is an important one, especially should the "lather's union" adopt the rule, and demand it as a condition of work—or "strike."

A portion of a bullet which to all appearances was fired during the battle, 57 years ago, was found behind the Hotel Gettysburg in that place last week, by Richard Thomas, head porter. The bullet was washed to the surface by the heavy rains.

Rev. J. T. Wilhide Will Soon Embark for Palestine.

Rev. J. Thos. Wilhide and wife, who have been spending some months with his brother, Charles Wilhide, Key-mar, left this week for Philadelphia, and later to New York, from where they will soon sail for Palestine. He writes us:

"Our travelling companion is now in Haifa, Palestine, and in a most unexpected way some private land came to his knowledge, which he bought, and two hours later was offered $2500 for his deal by a Jewish banker; so we have the land in hand and hope to establish a printing plant for producing our own literature for worldwide distribution; also to erect homes and a co-operative industry by which we may more directly care for the young converts, and train them for restoration work, and to carry the 'glad tidings' to their own people in their native tongue."

Rev. Wilhide has long been engaged in independent missionary work, having spent many years in Australia and New Zealand, always with the desire to go to Palestine. His home and headquarters there will be, Haifa. Our best wishes go with him and his excellent helper—his wife.

An Auto Accident.

While D. J. Hesson was on his way to Baltimore, on Thursday morning in his auto, accompanied by Misses Amelia and Elizabeth Annan, Ethel Sauerhammer and Mary Brining, they met with a head-on collision with a car driven by a Mr. Jackson, of Finksburg. The accident occurred between Reese and Finksburg, just as the Jackson car came over a hill.

Instead of the driver keeping to his side of the road he evidently became confused and zig-zagged and finally attempted to cross the road in front of the Hesson car, which was on its side of the road, resulting in a collision while both cars were going at a fair speed. He could not give any coherent excuse as to his lack of control.

The Jackson car was badly used up, while Mr. Hesson's car was badly damaged, but was able to turn about and make the trip back to Taneytown. Mr. Hesson and all of the ladies received injuries, but none of them serious. Mr. Hesson is an experienced and very careful driver, and all of the occupants of his car place the blame for the accident wholly on Mr. Jackson.

Two Former Taneytown Boys.

Many of our Taneytown readers will be interested in the following items of news, relative to the sons of Rev. and Mrs. James Cattanaach, of Baltimore. The boys were born here, at the Presbyterian Manse, during pastorate of Rev. Cattanaach.

George Scholl Cattanaach who graduated from Johns Hopkins University, a few weeks ago, has been notified of his admission to the Johns Hopkins Medical School. As there are about 500 students over the country applying for admission to this medical school for next Fall, and only about 90 will be accepted, it is a matter of congratulation to the friends of the family that George has been accepted. He has a position for the summer at the City Hall, Baltimore, having been appointed to a position in the Assessor's Department by Mayor Broening.

Lachlan McArthur Cattanaach, with a College friend, sailed on the steamship "Western Ally" for Portland, England; Christiania, Norway; Gothenburg, Denmark; Stockholm, Sweden, Umea, Finland, and London, England. The "Western Ally" is a fast freighter, left Baltimore, on June 27 and the trip will take about two months. The boys are engaged as mess men and are anticipating a fine trip full of interesting and unusual experiences."

Sunday School Convention.

Attention is again called to the Carroll County Sunday School Convention that meets at Kriders church, near Westminster, next Tuesday, a full program of which appeared in the Record last week. All Sunday school workers are urged to attend.

RAILROAD MEN GET BIG INCREASE IN PAY

The Award to be Voted on by Railroad Union Men.

The long heralded report of the Railway Labor Board has been announced. It gives an increase in pay equivalent to about 60% of the increase asked for, and 21% above the present scale. It is reported that the leaders who have expressed themselves, are not satisfied with the schedule arrived at, but a vote will be taken by the men.

The award will mean considerable increase in freight rates, if all of the increase is to come from freights. There will also be a pretty general abandonment, it is claimed, of all special "excursion" passenger rates. The following table shows, approximately, the old and new rates for employees, per year:

Employee	Pres. Pay	New Pay
Passenger engineers	$1,800	$2,040
Freight engineers	2,040	2,325
Passenger conductors	2,160	2,520
Freight conductors	1,620	1,932
Firemen (freight)	1,488	1,800
Firemen (passenger)	1,344	1,584
Firemen (yard)	1,284	1,716
Yard enginemen	1,728	2,160
Baggage men	1,785	1,857
Brakemen (pass'ger)	1,640	1,800
Brakemen (freight)	1,224	1,526
Brakemen (yard)	1,500	1,944
Yard conductors	1,599	2,088

Labor chiefs asked for a reopening of the awards, accompanied by a request for a hearing, but their requests were rejected by the Board.

Railroad officials are disposed to quietly accept the findings of the Board, but say that in order to meet them they must increase freight and passenger rates from 30 to 40 percent, and petitions to this effect will be presented to the Board immediately. The passenger rate increase, it is said, should be a half-cent per mile.

Maryland Fruit Prospects.

College, Park, July 22—Maryland has prospects for 171,000 more barrels of apples and 87,000 more bushels of peaches this Fall than last year according to the July 15 report on fruit conditions issued by S. B. Shaw, Secretary of the Maryland State Horticultural Society in co-operation with the University of Maryland Extension Service and the Bureau of Crop Estimates, Department of Agriculture.

The prospects for the apple crop in the State have improved decidedly since the June forecast and the estimated yield for this Fall is 397,000 barrels. Reports received from the counties indicate particularly large crops of York Imperials and Ben Davis varieties and almost without exception the fruit is said to be free from disease and in fine growing condition.

Maryland growers, however, will have sharp competition in marketing their crops from other apple growing sections in the East. The State of New York is leading the country in prospects for a bumper crop and it is estimated that 6,494,000 barrels of apples will be picked from the orchards in the Empire State this Fall. Pennsylvania also is expected to produce a crop almost double that of last year and Virginia has prospects for more than 2,000,000 barrels. The large increase in the East, however, is largely offset by the set back in the large apple producing states of the West. In the State of Washington alone the forecasted yield will be more than 2,000,000 barrels short of the 1919 crop and in Idaho, Colorado and Indiana large reductions are noted.

The forecasted peach crop for Maryland is 818,000 bushels. Leaf curl and brown rot is reported from some of the counties but generally the predictions are favorable. Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina will show big increases over last year in their peach shipments while Georgia and California, the two leading peach growing states, will show considerable losses.

Up to July 3, early fruits and vegetables shipped from Maryland indicated substantial increases in production over last year. The State shipped 763 cars of strawberries, 152 cars more than 1919. White potatoes from other points than the Eastern Shore filled 83 cars as against 25 up to the same time last year. Mixed vegetables amounted to 88 cars this year while up to the same time last year but 11 cars had been shipped.

Girl Drowned at Mt. Lake.

Mountain Lake Park, Md., July 19—Miss Mary Glauson, of McKees Rocks, Pa., who attended the Epworth League Institute of the Pittsburgh Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, was drowned in Mountain Lake at Mountain Lake Park, Saturday. She had attempted to rescue a companion who had fallen into a deep hole and was in peril.

The pulmotor was used and Miss Glauson showed some signs of returning animation, but expired a few hours later. Her body was taken to her home in McKees Rocks.

Charles K. Rhoderick, editor of the Middletown Register, has gone to Denver, Colo., for a much-needed rest. Mr. Rhoderick's wife passed away recently and grief and overwork has compelled him to take a vacation. On his way west Mr. Rhoderick stopped at West Lebanon, Ind., to visit old-time friends.

BRYAN DECLINES HONOR.

Prohibitionists Nominate Ticket for Another Campaign.

The Prohibition party convention, in session at Lincoln, Nebraska, nominated William Jennings Bryan for President, against his protest, and as soon as he was informed of the action sent in his refusal to accept. Aaron S. Watkins, of Germantown, Ohio, was then nominated. In his declaration, Mr. Bryan said:

"My connection with other reforms would make it impossible for me to focus my attention upon the prohibition question alone and besides I am not willing to sever my connection with the Democratic party, which has so signally honored me in the past. 'I have not decided yet how I shall vote this fall, but whatever I may feel it my duty to do in this campaign I expect to continue as a member of the Democratic party and to serve my country through it.'"

It is difficult to understand why the Prohibitionists should insist on nominating candidates for President and Vice-President. The practical thing for them to do would seem to be to turn their attention toward electing "dry" men to Congress, since Congress has given to prohibition all that it has been asking for. The persistence manifested by a few extremists in continuing a National organization, is likely to do the cause more harm than good.

Clothing Needed in Armenia.

The Record has a communication from the "Near East Relief," (incorporated by act of Congress) requesting the publication of a request for clothing for immediate shipment. As it takes time to collect, assort, transport and distribute clothing to the people in need, the time to act, is now.

The following is a list of the items most needed: coats, dresses, sweaters, skirts, blankets, petticoats, overcoats, wool shirts, wool scarfs, heavy hose, heavy underwear, heavy wraps, woolen gloves and mittens, boots and shoes, felt slippers, children's clothes of every sort.

These things are not wanted; laces, silks, veils, chiffons, evening dresses, satin slippers, muslin underwear, high-heeled shoes, straw or frame hats, and general unserviceable light weight apparel.

The following directions should be observed: Match up suits and tie pieces together; tie shoes in pairs; wrap parcel securely, and attach label denoting contents. If sent to New York, send to "Near East Warehouse," 549 W. 39th St., prepaid. Packages can also be sent to "Near East Relief," 453 Title Building, Baltimore. For any further desired information, write to Harold F. Pellegrin, same street address.

"Mc" and "Mac" Names.

There are many who hold there is a difference between names which begin with "Mc" and those which begin with "Mac," and that the proper pronunciation of them are "mic" and "mac," respectively. Such is not the case. "Mc" and "Mac" are the same, and the proper pronunciation of both is "mac." The prefixes both mean the same thing—"descendant of."

The only difference that does exist is due to the rather general modern custom among the Irish of abbreviating "Mac" to "Mc" in the spelling. So there is an inference, though not an infallible one, that the family which spells its name with an "Mc" is Irish, and the one that uses "Mac" is Scottish.

The family name of McDougall, in its various forms, probably is more common in Scotland than in Ireland, but it is far from being a rarity in the latter country.

It is, of course, a Celtic name, and like virtually all the family names which have developed under purely Gaelic influences, without interference of Anglo-Saxon or Norman influences, is derived from a given name. Unlike other races, the Gaels never took their family names from words denoting geographical location or personal characteristics. It is true, however, that the bulk of their names from which the family names were developed, were so founded on words denoting some personal peculiarity or attribute.

The given name Dugald, from which the various forms of McDougall originated, falls within this classification. It means "dark stranger."

U. S. to Sell Canned Meat.

Washington, July 21.—(By A. P.) In an effort to combat the high cost of living, the War Department soon is to place millions of dollars' worth of canned meats on the market at prices below even pre-war quotations, said an announcement today from the office of the division of sales.

The meats, which will be offered for domestic consumption exclusively, are stored in every section of the country and will be disposed of through wholesale and retail stores. The services of 60,000 postmasters, 5000 bankers and the mayors of every city and town have been enlisted. Included in the meats are canned corned beef, corned beef hash, roast beef and bacon.

FARMS FOR SALE.

As will be noticed in our advertising columns, this week, farm advertising has commenced rather earlier than usual. Those who have not yet brought in their advertising of this sort, should do so now. The circulation of the Record is quite apt to bring buyers.

MORE TELEPHONE RATE HEARINGS ARE URGED.

May Hold Meetings in the Counties For More Evidence.

The telephone rate case is a knotty one, and the Public Service Commission seems at a loss to know just how to handle it, with justice to all concerned. At the meeting in Baltimore on Wednesday, this week, the proposition was advanced that hearings be held in the counties, in order that the more direct evidence from farmers, small merchants and others, might be secured.

The suggestion did not appeal particularly to the telephone officials, who saw in it a further delay in the termination of the case, and the company is anxious for a quick decision. Samuel K. Dennis, of counsel for the company, said he felt the commission could get all the information it could possibly desire from the representatives of the counties present, and the only result of continuing the hearings in the counties would be to gather in a great mass of detail that would be of little, if any, assistance in fixing the rates. He reminded the commission that the company is in desperate need of additional revenues.

C. W. Artz, general counsel for the company, agreed with this view. Chairman Maloy, however, agreed with Mr. Legg that such hearings as suggested would give the commission light on the situation that it really needed, and W. L. Seabrook, of Westminster, announced that if the commission would go to Westminster he would guarantee that at least 300 persons would attend the hearing.

This suggestion from the commission forecasts a revision of the rates proposed by the company in a direction probably totally unlooked for by the company. The attitude of the commission is that if the company must have additional revenues, rates will have to be granted that will yield the company the money it must have to continue business and extend and improve its service, but this does not mean that the rates asked for will be granted, or that they will follow the schedule proposed by the company.

It has been shown that the rates have no real scientific basis, and it is no secret that the commission feels that some of them, as proposed, are inequitable and ought to be revised and possibly the whole schedule readjusted so that those who get the greatest benefit from the service shall pay the largest proportion of the company's expenses.

It is also true that the commission is much in sympathy with the situation in which the average county user has found himself since the Postmaster-General's rates went into effect—of being confined to a very small local exchange and being compelled to pay tolls for all calls outside that exchange, and especially to his county seat, while other subscribers paying the same flat rates have a much more extensive service without toll charges.

Ninety-five Years Young.

Daniel Eyler, ninety-five years old, one of the most active nonagenarians in the state, has returned from Frederick to the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Himes, Highland township, for the harvest season. Although nearing the century mark Mr. Eyler is as active as most men are at forty and when he heard of the shortage of farm labor in this county immediately started for the home of his daughter.

Last summer Mr. Eyler was in Adams county for the harvest season and missed very few days in the fields. During part of the winter which he spent in Highland township he frequently walked to Gettysburg through snow and ice several times each week "just to have something to do."

Mr. Eyler vividly recalls the days more than eighty years ago when he started out to work in the harvest fields of Frederick county. He says men in those days never went on a strike and they were well satisfied with the wages they received—fifty cents a day from daylight until dark. He also recalls that in those days eggs were worth only six cents a dozen and chickens sold for fourteen cents apiece. For a number of years Mr. Eyler never received more than twelve cents a pound for butter.

Mr. Eyler is one of the few men living in the United States who was too old to fight when the Civil War broke out. He was beyond the draft age and was not accepted as a volunteer.—Gettysburg Star.

The Odd Fellows Reunion to be held at Pen-Mar, on August 5th., will be one of the most interesting gatherings that has taken place at this mountain resort in years. The committee has arranged a program interesting to the members of the fraternity and the public. They have secured the famous Spring Garden Band of York. Which bears a high reputation and ranks among the musical organization of its kind. The Hagerstown Male Chorus has been engaged for the occasion. Their program will be even better than the one they rendered a year ago.

The office of Drs. Myers, Westminster, will be closed from July 26th. to August 9th. Dr. J. S. Myers and one of his assistants, Mrs. Gladys Gilbert, will at this time take a special course at the Maryland University.

OF INTEREST TO ORCHARDISTS

State Fruit Growers to Meet at New Windsor, July 29.

Fruit growers from all parts of the State and from the nearby sections of Virginia, Pennsylvania and Delaware will be present at the mid-summer meeting of the Maryland State Horticultural Society at New Windsor, Thursday, July 29th., when they will be the guests of the Carroll County orchardists.

This will be the first summer meeting of the Society in two years and Secretary S. B. Shaw has taken special pains to arrange a program that will attract the fruit growers despite the busy season of the year and the probable hot weather. The problems of marketing which are enlisting the attention of producers, consumers and economists everywhere will be discussed by the speakers who have been secured to address the meeting.

In order to give the fruit growers of the State the very best advice and experience on the subject, Secretary Shaw has gone out of Maryland for his leading speaker who will be C. E. Bassett, of New York, a man who has been in close touch for years with marketing methods and practices all over the country. Mr. Bassett is expected to give his hearers some valuable points on the best methods of putting fruit on the market and his connection with the North American Fruit Exchange will enable him to give practical advice on the subject.

Dr. F. B. Bomberger, Assistant Director of the University of Maryland Extension Service, also will speak on the marketing problem, confining his remarks chiefly to the progress which has been made in Maryland in this connection.

Robert B. Evans, a sixteen year old member of one of the Agricultural boys' clubs in Harford County, has been invited to address the Society on the subject of fruit growing as a possibility for boy club members. The meeting will be held in the auditorium of the Blue Ridge College and will be presided over by A. P. Snader, President of the Society.

The morning will be spent in an auto tour of orchard property in the vicinity of New Windsor, and particular attention will be devoted to an inspection of the Mount Olivet Orchard which is one of the most productive and best paying orchards in the State. The property consists of 195 acres and belongs to a company, headed by Mr. Snader. The efficient manner in which the orchard has been managed, will prove of interest to the horticulturists. Lunch will be served at 12:30 o'clock on the Blue Ridge College campus.

They seem to be making a new Treaty and terms of peace with Germany, over in France. Is it another illustration that a boy should not be chastised while the chastiser is angry else the punishment be too strong to do good?

If women voting would mean a change in style of hats and dress, to enable them to get into the voting booths, maybe after all there would be compensation for giving them the right; but, isn't it the more apt to mean just a new election day costume each year, and more expense?

Sir Thomas Lipton, who has been striving so long and so hard for the Yacht racing cup—for so many years held by this country—is a "good sport," and if America is to lose it, American cheers will follow the winner. If we could somehow let him have it, without "laying down" on the race? but, Sir Thomas himself would not want it that way, so, he will have to produce the best boat—and we wish he would—just once.

We are wondering in just what material ways the Debs candidacy and the Socialist party, differs from the new "third" party. As Debs is in jail, and can't run very well, why should not the Socialists agree to some "reservations," if necessary, and fall in under the Christensen banner? This is a time for conservation of energy and drives. Why should not all the disgruntled brethren make the most of it by pooling their issues, and make one grand rush to put the "reactionaries" out of business?

The Choice of Drivers.

We have often heard the story of the man who wanted a carriage driver, and put the applicants to a test by asking them how close they could drive to the brink of a precipice without going over? and how the man selected the one who said he would stay away from the brink as far as possible. The politics of today, largely, seems trying to show how close to danger it can go, rather than how far it can stay away.

The two great parties, even, both of which are regarded as worthy of trust, nevertheless trim their platforms ingeniously in an effort to hold in their ranks those who are regarded as radicals, and who would take chances with government, much like the carriage drivers who would go as close as possible to danger. Politics, even of the best class, is not thoroughly grounded in straightforward, safe and sane beliefs.

We are seeing, this year, more boldly than ever before, the numbers of those in this country, who are out and out reckless drivers, and make no secret of it. There are many thousands of voters in the United States who have little at stake in the way of property interests, who boast of it, and of their contempt for the property interests of others. There are a dozen classes that aim at the destruction of safety to peace and property, in one way or another, or who have visions of new orders of things that are at variance with all heretofore established rules and customs for safety and right.

The time is here—at the coming Presidential election—when the best people, the sane voters, the "safety first" classes, must choose the driver who will stay the farthest away from possible wreck and ruin. The time is here and now, when this country needs to sound plain warning to all sorts of extreme radicalism, that it must stop its preachments and actions that take chances with National safety.

If the two old parties that have been the mainstay of our eminence as a Nation all these years, are to remain such, it is time that they stop catering to false issues and to extremists, and confine their differences wholly to issues over which there are reasonable questions of doubt and debate, but which do not actually lead toward disaster.

This country can not maintain itself as an example of prosperity, freedom, justice and happiness, and indulge in the fanaticism and idiocy of the smaller elements of humanity that help to make up its population. As local communities are safe only so long as intelligence and property rule, so it is with our nation. As local financial and educational institutions must be kept clear from wreckers, in order to be sound and dependable, so must our great National institution be kept.

A man may elect to take chances for himself—as did the man who went to his death trying to go over Niagara safely last week—but, he has no right to try to force his fool-hardiness on others; and more than that, the "others" should see to it that he does not. And this is the issue this year.
This country needs, and must have,
the safest drivers possible to secure, during the next four years, and all patriotic voters will give this choice their first and only intention. They may differ as to their choice, but there should be no difference in their object.

The "Farmer-Labor" Party.

The selection of name should of itself condemn the third party movement. It is a stolen name; a name used under false pretenses, and as such, will be repudiated by the real farmers and laborers of the country.
It is another exemplification of the fable, wherein the wolf wore the sheep's clothing.

Before all else, the genuine, better-class "farmer-labor" voters of this country, are patriotic, intelligent and honest citizens, believers in our form of government and in the rule of the whole people, by the whole people, each asking no more than a square deal, but having their honest but peaceful differences as to what the square deal is. They are not in sympathy with "red" movements, nor with a riotous adventure into unknown paths for a better government than that of Washington and Jefferson.

Both farmer and laborer of the intelligent and law-abiding classes, know that political parties made up of classes of labor, are not the best parties for all. This country is not a "farmer" country, nor a "labor" country, in the sense that agitators would make it appear to be. Whenever the time comes—if it ever does —that one trade, or occupation, or interest, gets control of our government, just then will our boasted freedom for all classes come to an end.

The "Hired Man" on the Farm.

An article in the last issue of the Agricultural Department's "News Letter," covers the above topic, in part as follows:

"The road is open to the 'farm of your own,' and the road is neither longer nor harder for one who likes farming than is the road to success in other occupations, but the safest way is to start in at the bottom and climb the agricultural ladder."

I do not remember any time when farm labor was in such great demand as at present, or when wages for unskilled farm labor were as good or when the standard of living on the farms was as high as it is now.

From all parts of the country comes the demand for men who are not afraid of work. If the schedule of the day's wages in the cities appears lavish when compared with the pay of the farm laborer, just remember that the latter gets his board and rent —and usually his washing and a lot of other things—and that in the cities, where the wages are higher, these things are commanding greatly increased prices.

In other words, what the farm laborer receives in cash is pretty nearly clear gain. Most of it can be placed in the savings bank and begin to draw interest, while the wages paid in the cities shrink to something much less impressive when all the bills are paid.

In the right sort of farming community and the right sort of farmer's household the hired man is received on his merits as a man. If he is a straight, clean sort of fellow, his good qualities will be appreciated in the country as readily as in the city.
A great deal more so, I should say, for the individual human being seems to count for more out on the farm than he does in a city where great numbers of them are crowded together.

In short, it is strictly up to the man himself to make good, and if he does so he will have no reason to complain of his social status. The custom in many parts of the country and among many progressive farmers is to take the hired man into the family while in industries the worker may never even see his employer and have no human contact with the man he works for. In the country we still have in considerable measure the old-time relations between the employer and the worker. The American farming regions form the great reservoirs of traditional American democracy.

The Liberty Bell.

It has been definitely decided that the Liberty Bell, now in the State House in Philadelphia, is not going to be repaired. For some time people have been urging that the crack in the bell, which has been there for many years, be repaired, and the matter came to be almost a political issue in the Quaker City. A committee has now decided once for all that the crack is going to remain there and that the bell is going to be left in the State House—and Philadelphia is able to sleep peacefully once more.

The decision is in line with common sense. There is no reason why the bell should be repaired. It would serve no useful purpose to have its plaintive sounds once more resounding over the city—for it is not the same city that heard those sounds in the long ago. The silence of the bell is really more impressive than its twanging tones would be. Its existence is all that sentiment need demand—to know that it is to be seen, the same bell that proclaimed to the trembling people of a ragged village that freedom from monarchy had been proclaimed and would be fought for; that is quite enough. Its crooked rent is also impressive, showing, as it does, the fates have decreed silence for it forever. Never again will it be necessary for the old bell to speak as once it spoke, never again will it be necessary for its tones to tell an anxious people that so great a step in statecraft has been taken as the signing of a Declaration of Independence.—Columbus Dispatch.

When Bathing Was Illegal.

Like other great reforms, physical and intellectual, the bathtub had to fight its way onward and upward in spite of the dirty habits of mankind.
Baths flourished in the ancient Roman civilization, but cleanliness lost out in the Dark Ages. There has ever been a natural aversion to soap and water in combination in the human family, stronger the further north peoples have lived.

The first bathtub in the United States, an exchange says, was built in Cincinnati and installed in a home there in 1842. It was made of mahogany, lined with sheet lead, and was proudly exhibited by its owner at a Christmas party. Next day it was denounced in the Cincinnati papers as a luxurious, undemocratic vanity.
Then came the medical men and declared it a menace to health. In 1843 Philadelphia tried to prohibit bathing between November 1 and March 15 by ordinance. Virginia taxed bathtubs $30 a year. In 1845 Boston made bathing unlawful except when prescribed by a physician, and President Fillmore installed the first one ever in the White House.

These things seem incredible in an age when transient hotel accommodations include a bathroom, but sanitation is a recent development. A southern Ohio lawyer went to Columbus a few years ago, and when he registered at the hotel the clerk asked him if he wanted a room with bath.
The guest thoughtfully rubbed the stubble on his chin and replied: "No; I'll be home by Saturday." The other is that of a newly-rich lady who was showing a friend of her days of poverty the very elaborate bathroom in her new home. It was a sizzling hot August night. "La, how you must enjoy that tub!" she exclaimed.
"Indeed I do," was the response. "I can hardly wait for Saturday night to come!"

We are sufficiently civilized to be for the bathtub—with reservations; the chief one being an instinctive sympathy with the Frenchman who thanked God he had never insulted his skin by putting cold water on it.

Mrs. Linda Harrod Endorses Chamberlain's Tablets.

"I suffered for years with stomach trouble and tried everything I heard of but the only relief I got was temporary until last spring I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and procured a bottle of them from our druggist. I got immediate relief from that dreadful heaviness and pain in the stomach after eating.
Since taking two bottles I can eat anything I want without distress," writes Mrs. Linda Harrod, Ft. Wayne Ind.

WAR "MYSTERY" MADE CLEAR

Men on the Leviathan Now Understand How Their Officers Detected Them in Smoking.

Men who sailed on the Leviathan when she was being used as a transport will learn with interest the explanation of a "mystery" of the giant liner in those war days, a mystery which has been the subject of many a midnight conference in the lee of the deckhouse. Only recently a former officer of the Leviathan told the story.
It appears that several of the crew sought a lower hold far from the haunts of the officers on duty and there, believing themselves carefully concealed, they smoked to their hearts' content. But the ship had a fire detection system consisting of a series of pipes to the holds, through which a suction fan is continually drawing air samples to the wheelhouse. Thus the officer on duty there noticed the curling wisps of smoke coming out of the pipe from one of the lower holds.
Sniffing the smoke he detected the old familiar odor of tobacco.

It was an easy matter to hurry down and catch the men in the act and start them on a round of extra duty, which cured them of smoking aboard ship. They were puzzled to know how the officer had traced them.
The hold was way down near the keel, far from the wheelhouse and there had not been another man within many yards of their position. They knew no officer had followed them and they took it for granted that there was no direct connection between the hold and the wheelhouse. And no one enlightened them during many trips to France.—New York Evening Post.

SERVED IN ORIENTAL STYLE

Magnificent Banquet Given by King Hussein of the Hedjaz to Lord Allenby.

A banquet given by King Hussein of the Hedjaz to Lord Allenby, the British high commissioner, as described by an Arab correspondent of the London Times on March 2, was a striking example of oriental magnificence. After preliminary visits and military reviews, in which the Bedouin cavalry dashed by at full speed, firing their rifles, the banquet was held in true Arab style in the municipality buildings at Jeddah.

On the table, which was eighteen feet broad by thirty feet in length, barefooted waiters dressed in rich Arab costume walked about helping the guests, 70 in number, to slices of the joints of roasted half sheep stuffed with almonds, rice and spices. Each guest had three or four plates, and was surrounded by some 20 or 30 dishes of salads, fish, roasted chickens, plaff of mutton and sweets of all descriptions. The king's band of musicians played throughout the banquet.

At the end of the feast the king's servants handed round silver basins with ewers of scented water for the guests to wash their hands in. Coffee was served in another room while guests of a lower degree sat down at the banqueting table. The remnants of the feast, which were considerable, were distributed among the inhabitants of Jeddah and the crews of the British ships at anchor in the harbor.

The House Famine.

Morris Hillquit was discussing in Albany the heinous profiteering on rents which so many New York landlords have been practicing.

"And despite this profiteering," he said, "houses and apartments are in greater demand than ever. Well-located tenants have their bells rung two or three times a day by total strangers who anxiously inquire if by any chance they think of leaving soon."

"I heard of a chap who entered a newspaper office recently and said to the girl behind the counter:

"I want to advertise in your paper for a house!"

"Yes. How many insertions?" said the girl briskly. "We make a reduction for space taken by the year, and we have also a very reasonable three-year contract that would probably suit you better still."

Windmill Generates Electricity.

The windmill has not been generally found available for the generation of electricity because of the irregularity of the air currents, but this has been overcome by a Swedish inventor.
Instead of being directly connected to the dynamo in the usual manner, the mill-wheel shaft is geared to a hoisting device, which serves to elevate a two-ton weight to the top of a 53-foot steel and wood tower. When the weight reaches the maximum height, it is released, and, as it falls, actuates the dynamo, which is mounted on a bracket at the apex of the tower with the mill wheel. A storage battery and switchboard are housed in the lower portion of the tower.

Just Like an Apple to Marjorie.
Little Marjorie, who is three, told her mother, the wife of a Muncie manufacturer, the other evening, that while the mother was uptown shopping she had been taken by a servant to call on her father in the latter's office.

"What time did you go?" asked the mother.

"Oh, in the core of the afternoon," replied the little girl.

"Mother doesn't understand what you mean by the 'core' of the afternoon." It was explained to Marjorie.

"Why, I mean the middle," she said simply, as wondering at the ignorance of grown folks.—Indianapolis News.

JERRY DECIDES

By LEOLA DREW

(©, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"I suppose they sent me here because I was named after you, Uncle Gerald," Jerry dug into his grapefruit aggressively. "I hate Gerald. Didn't they ever call you Jerry?"

"Men-do," responded Marbury absently. All of his answers to Jerry had been absent-minded ones for the past two weeks. He had run out of details the second day after Jerry's sudden arrival.

"Miss Millard calls you Jerry, doesn't she?"

Marbury frowned and wiped off a globule of juice from his waistcoat.

"You should eat that in a bathtub, old man. Can't you be careful?"

Jerry pushed back his plate comfortably.

"I'm through," he announced. "What are we going to do today?"

Marbury read his newspaper, pretending not to hear. As an entertainment committee of one for Margaret's one and only he had officiated for two weeks, and the thing was getting on his nerves. There was no special reason why his sister should have sent Jerry on for a month. She knew he lived in an exclusive bachelor apartment with one Jap manservant. Kato had left the first week, after Jerry had brought in a dozen fresh crabs and put them in the ice box.

"No delight in undisciplined youth," he had said smilingly. "Me go reluctantly but soon."

Since then Marbury had been at the mercy of Jerry. He had constituted himself private secretary and houseboy pro tem, when he was not in the basement chumming with the engineer, or on the roof sending off aeroplanes to the joy of Madison avenue. When his uncle returned from the club before dinner he would give a report on the day's calls.

"That tailor wants you to pay the spring bill anyhow. Says you can let the summer one go till fall. I told him you had the measles badly and had left for the country. And Mrs. Jocelyn asked if you could go to her

"But Why Did You Throw Him Down?"

house party at Newport next week, and I told her yes, if there was good fishing. That right? And a fellow named Bobbie Newell wants you to call him up at the club and tell him how about that supper with—"

"Cut it," said Marbury briefly. "I'll call him. Did Miss Millard call up?"

"No, but I called her four times," grinned Jerry. "Gee, that's some girl, Uncle Gerald. She said I could call her up any old time I liked when it got slow here for me, and she thinks it's awful for you to leave me up here alone, and she's invited me down to Lakewood as long as I like and she'll come in herself and get me."

"Fine thing to do, cut me out over my own phone with the prettiest girl I know," Marbury said keenly. "Anybody else?"

"Yep. Mrs. Hamilton's back and wants you to come over as soon as you get in. I told her you couldn't because we were going to the theater tonight. What's up?"

Marbury reached the telephone in one stride and called a hotel number, while Jerry stared at him.

"Hello, Mrs. Hamilton, please. What? Then page her."

That had happened two nights ago, and Jerry had dined alone twice in the little private dining room downstairs. He didn't like it. Somehow, he resented Mrs. Hamilton. His uncle had been moody and cheerful by fits and starts. He got out a large mounted photograph and stared at it long.

So did Jerry after his departure, and he did not like her. She was very lovely, in evening dress, leaning back in a carved ecclesiastical sort of chair, very slender and dreamy-eyed and gracious, but Jerry summed her up in one word: she looked "sort of slumpy," he thought. Mrs. Hamilton's admirers called it languorous grace, but Jerry had no chivalry. Over on the mantel stood another photograph he liked better—a girl standing on an old boat landing in a sweater, short sport skirt and white tam, smiling back at one.

her hands deep in her pockets. This was Nan Millard, and Jerry did some hard thinking on her account. Before the coming of Mrs. Hamilton she had been Marbury's principal concern in life.

"Did Miss Millard," Jerry began, and stopped short, fingering the pearl studs on the bed. He had almost thought out loud. "I mean, Uncle Gerald, which are you going to marry?"

Marbury's fingers fumbled over his ties in the drawer. He missed Kato's ministrations.

"I like Nan the best," Jerry added in what he tried to make an offhand manner.

"So do I, old man, come to think of it," Marbury answered between his teeth. "Trouble is, the ladies have the preference. You can't club them and race for the nearest honeymoon cave, you know. Miss Millard is not accepting a man with only ten thousand a year. She lacks the essential feminine quality of sympathy, which is a bit beyond you, isn't it, Jerry?"

"Has the widow got it?" asked Jerry earnestly. Marbury stared at him fixedly.

"How do you know she's a widow?" "If she's Mrs. Somebody, you couldn't marry her unless she was, could you?"

Marbury was silent. Oddly enough, the boy's words stirred up a dormant sense of honor. He wondered where old Hamilton was, anyhow? Left in some convenient post abroad, probably. There had been a French divorce, he knew, and the rumor that Frances would marry "somebody" he had been jealous of over there. All at once he looked at the photograph on the mantel, at Nan's clear, wide eyes and sunny smile, at the sweetness and wholesomeness of her girlhood, and he sighed.

"I like her best, too, old man," he said, "only she won't have me."

The next day Jerry called up Miss Millard and invited her to call for him and take him to lunch so they could get acquainted. She was ever so much better than her pictures, he decided at first sight. Brown eyes and reddish brown hair, and little freckles over her nose like gold dust. And he loved to answer her questions about Marbury. She was so delicate and naive about it. Jerry understood perfectly. So he helped her out. First he gave his uncle a character for good temper and kindness and all around splendid fellowship. Then he told how worried he was about him. They were in a well-known restaurant, at a table near the window, and Jerry felt safe.

"I can get him here in about two minutes," Jerry said eagerly. "He's just over at the club, and he'd come in one hop if you said so. He's terribly worried about you."

"He seems to be," smiled Nan. "You don't understand, Jerry."

"Sure I do," insisted Jerry. "But he just sees the widow because he needs sympathy. He says you haven't any, and you want somebody with more money. I don't believe a word he says," he added, hastily, at the fire in her eyes. "But why did you throw him down?"

"He never asked me," laughed Nan, scornfully. "Jerry, I think you're flourishing."

But she spoke to an empty chair. Jerry reached a telephone booth and called the club in triumph.

"Say, that you, Uncle Gerald? This is Jerry. Well, it's O. K. Come on over and see for yourself. At the Regina, Nan and me. Yep. She said so. She said you'd never asked her, so I did for you. What? Oh, all right. I know. We've got a party line out home, too, where everybody hears what you say. Come soon."

He hung up and wiped his face off happily.

"I guess that hangs the widow," he said. "If he doesn't ask me to be best man, he's a quitter."

Centenarians.

So far as we know, most centenarians do not live lives in very marked contrast to those around them. Some of them set store by certain simple habits, others drink or smoke or do both, but always in moderation and true temperance; eat cooked or uncooked food as occasion or desire may determine, and at last drop from the tree of life like an apple fully ripe, and mankind notes their fall and goes on like them, each in his own way. Occasionally one of them, like the celebrated Parr, achieves fame for something that he has done besides living to an exceptionally old age. Parr lived in the reign of ten English kings and queens and died untimely at the age of one hundred and fifty-two from a slight change in his habits and environment, leaving as his chief achievement the record of his years, which has not been surpassed in modern times.

Immortal Deborah.

Hah! she beats them all. The Deborah, for she dared to cast back into the teeth of a shrinking "warrior" these immortal words, lofty in irony: "The Lord will deliver Sisera into the hand of a woman!" And covering, Baark flung himself up from the sod and went after her. But it was Deborah who led on and who won one of the great battles in history. It all occurred in 1236 B. C. Deborah was a prophetess in Israel. Israel was again in danger from a heathen king and his mighty captain, Sisera. A loving wife, a supreme prophetess, a mother, this Deborah—and she was the first epic poet of the world. The song of Deborah in the book of Judges in Holy Writ has the breath of the peaks of genius. She knew herself, and she knew her God—and that it was forces of the spirit that won, not merely the roar and clench of men.—Chicago Journal.

GET RESULTS FROM HOLIDAY

Vacation Days Should Be as Carefully Planned as Is the Work of the Year.

To the question, "What will you do on your holiday?" some might reply, discerning a possible tilt against the strenuous holiday, "Nothing!" That would be as wrong as doing too much. The perfect holiday, for the average worker, should be on crescendo and diminishing lines, observes a writer in London Answers.

You pass into your fortnight or three weeks quietly. Your body is, literally, a machine. It has been doing work—hard, monotonous work—for a year. To switch it on suddenly to something quite different is to ask for trouble.

The walkers to Bridgton don't plunge at the walk. They begin with short walks, to get themselves in trim. So whatever you are going to "do" on your holiday do it slowly and quietly at first, so that the machine of your body may "change gears" without jar, break or mishap. Then by the middle of your holiday you will be in good trim and the best of health.

And it is necessary, if your holiday is to do you real good, and build you up for another year's work, that you should gradually slow down with your holiday activities, resume your work without, as it were, having to make yourself do it.

Who has not known that post-holiday feeling of not being able to settle down? It is the result of living a holiday at high pressure and ending at high pressure. Let the steam off gradually, so that you may pass from your holiday back to your work without effort.

Real Concern.

Young Wife—Oh, Doctor, do your best to save my husband's life. It is worth to me all his millions.

Doctor—How devoted to him you are!

Y. W.—Well, you see he promised to leave me everything, and he hasn't made his will.

Not Unknown to Her.

Mrs. Brown—When I was a girl we used to have proposing parties. I don't suppose you ever hear of such a thing now.

Miss Bright—Why-er-yes. I had a proposing party call on me only the other evening. How do you like my ring?

Proof of Specialist's Skill.

"Do you guarantee results in your nerve treatment?" asked the caller.

"You bet I do," replied the specialist. Why, last week a man came to me for nerve treatment, and when I'd finished with him he tried to borrow $50 from me.—London Tit-Bits.

Oh, Yes!

"Now what do you suppose that child is yelling at?" Mrs. Jones asked fretfully, having just crawled into bed for the seventh time that night.

"Why, my dear," Jones observed with a patient sigh, "I should say it was yelling at the top of its voice."

The Officer's Dilemma.

Traffic Officer—You can't stand there, madam; you'll have to move the car.

Lady—My husband went into a store—I can't drive so very well, and—and—you'll have to sit in and hold the baby.—Judge.

ANGUS NORTH'S RETURN

By LLOYD ROBERTS

(Copyright.)

Three men dropped from an empty box car as the morning freight turned its back on Cross Creek settlement. Two of them immediately slunk into the encroaching underbrush, while the third, a tall, angular man with shifty eyes, ambled lazily toward the sawmill on the lip of the bank. A freckle-faced lad, who was stacking the freshly cut boards before the door, paused to wipe his brow as the stranger approached.

"Ain't the drive in yet?" inquired the latter sharply.

"Most of it. The last o' the cut will be in the booms erlong about dark, I guess. Lookin' for some one?"

"You bet I am!"

The fierce tone in which this was uttered stirred the youngster's curiosity.

"Maybe you're a stranger hereabouts?" he suggested.

"Maybe I am," was the unsatisfactory retort as the other walked off.

When the whistle blew for the mid-day meal he presented his sinister face at the cookhouse door and accepted the cook's invitation to dinner in a surly, matter-of-course manner that did not include thanks, nor afterward encourage questioning.

The shrieks of the tortured saws had long been stilled; the new moon was glimmering palely through the budding poplars and birches, when McKnight's loggers finally came slouching up from the dam for their last meal of the drive.

Shouting uproarious greetings to the fat-faced cook, they crashed their peaveys and pike-poles upon the floor and tumbled on the benches that lined the long deal tables. Hunger is never kept in suspense in the lumber camps, and the steam was already rising from hills of potatoes and pork, flats of Johnny-cake, and lakes of black coffee. There commenced a clattering din of steel on tinware, and conversation was confined to such gruff commands as "Chuck the bread, Sam!" "Rush the saw this way, Bobby!" and "Don't hog all the beans, yer dern alligator!"

Bobby's phonograph was the pride of his heart. It was supposed to be his one line of dissipation—for he neither smoked, chewed, drank, nor fell in love—and indulged in it at every opportunity and on all occasions. Presently the feet of the loggers began to mark time to a rollicking backwoods chantey as a fiddle and a metallic voice struck up with:

"Jack has got a scarlet rag strung around his hat, Bill has lost his dollar watch in the Devil's Vat.
Squint-eye Murphy bust the jam-jumpin' like a cat.
Sunday 'll see us eatin' off a table."

The audience joined in the chorus with a roar and a thumping of toes that shook the tins and sent the dust into the air to mingle with the clouds of pipe-smoke.

"Birl a log, birl a log, birl a log, boys.
Ram a log, cram a log, slam a log, boys.
There's lots of time for loasin' when the saws begin their noise,
And the gals come troopin' down beside the mill."

The stranger leaned back with folded arms and half-crossed eyes. All day the sights, sounds and smells of a past existence had been struggling to awaken some response in his inflexible soul—blotting out the unclean memories of his exile and telescoping time until it seemed as though he had never been absent from the settlements. And now he was back with his old comrades of woods and rivers—Reddy Jones, Polite Williams, Big John Nevvers and many more—including his boyhood chum, Hugh McKnight.

But things had changed considerably in five years. From the most popular man on the river, he had become an outcast of civilization, unrecognizable to his old associates, and the sworn enemy of the burly woodsman opposite him who so complacently sucked on his black cigar.

Well, he was glad that McKnight appeared so prosperous and content. Evidently life meant something worth while to him—something worth clinging to as long as he could—just as his would have been if Madge had forgiven. Robbing him of it would be even more satisfactory than he had imagined; and now that vengeance was so sure and imminent, he could afford to gloat a few minutes longer before he gave it rein.

"Sandy's hoppin' lively, for he's left a kid at home.
Davey's heart is achin' for a pesky grammyphone.
For it ain't in human nature for a man to live alone—
When the drive is lyin' idle Sunday mornin'."

And once more the chorus vibrated with the roar of the chorus.

There was no music in the bitter heart of Angus North, and yet one foot was involuntarily beating out the measure. His mind was concerned only with the deed that had brought him back. It had been well arranged. He had only to throw open the door and let events take their course. Lefty and Bud would spring in with cocked pistols and hold up the camp!

What was that blasted tune they were playing? It had been knocking upon his ear-drums with a persistence that had forced him to give heed. "Mul-vorney!" Another association of his dead life. He hadn't heard it since that terrible occasion when she had turned him adrift to founder upon the rocks. As vividly as a scene of yesterday, it flared before his closed lids. It was such a night as this; he had just returned from the drive, as they were doing now. But then it had been the Upper Nashwaak—not Cross Creek—and they had stopped to celebrate their freedom at Stanley. Of course, he had sworn to let the bottle alone, and in those days his word was as good as his bond. But what if he had been a fool, and his intractable enemy had got the better of him?

Hadn't a man a right to kick over the traces once in a while without being called to account? Still, he shouldn't have gone to Madge in that condition—he knew that. But he had only meant to catch a glimpse of her through the window, until he saw that she had company. Even then he might have restrained his jealous rage if McKnight hadn't looked at her the way he did, and she hadn't played and sung those very songs she always sang for him.

Every one knew that McKnight was after her, too, though he had never let that fact worry him before. It had ended with his entering and creating a scene that no self-respecting girl could overlook. He could see the expression of pain and pity in her eyes now, hear Hugh's quiet words of reason, see himself fumble for his clasp-knife, and have it jerked from his shaking fingers. Then, as he was leaving, he had sworn to "get even."

That, at least, was an oath he had never forgotten. As he sank lower and lower it had become more and more of an obsession—become the one ambition of his bestial existence. What was he waiting for? Curse the music! It was vengeance, not regret he wished to dwell on.

The song came to an end, and he slowly rose to his feet. Bud and Lefty would be cowering in the shadows, cursing his delay. Before he had taken three steps, however, a singer's sweet voice held him again. Of all the dear songs that Madge had sung to him, "The Banks of Loch Lomond" was the dearest, the one most pregnant with his passion; and with a stifled oath he leaned against the wall and surrendered himself to its spell.

You take the high road and I'll take the low road—

She seemed to be there in person pleading with his warped soul as she had pleaded in the past, reminding him of all those shattered promises and the love he had forfeited.

The phonograph whirled and stopped. A draft caused the lamps to flare and smoke, and—

"Up with yer paws, you louts!" came a harsh, nasal voice.

Angus North awoke with an inarticulate shout, and sprang toward the door, where two muffled figures were standing with leveled pistols. The loggers had jumped to their feet, and a few were obeying the order. But the boss was not of this number. For all his big frame, he had a brain and body trained for sudden action, and scarcely had the words left Bud's mouth before he was charging recklessly down the camp.

Luckily for him the stranger was nearer the door, and as Lefty's finger contracted on the trigger he threw himself between them. At the report North pitched on his face, and McKnight, clearing his body without a pause, was upon the robbers before they could fire again. Lefty went down before the knotted fist as if he had been struck by a peavey, and though Bud made an effort to dodge, he was caught by an arm and crumpled violently to the floor. A dozen rough hands made further resistance impossible.

Then the boss dropped beside the man who interposed and gently raised his head. The bullet had bored through his right shoulder, but without touching the bone.

"I'm done for, Hugh," announced the tramp without emotion.

The boss started. "By Jove it's Angus North!" he cried, and he stared in amazement at the wreck of his one-time friend.

"Sure thing. Come back ter stay."

"An' jest in the nick o' time, too. He'd have winged me, I guess, if yer hadn't got in the way."

The woodsman is not demonstrative, and the tone rather than the words evidenced the gratitude he felt for the act. North's weak features suddenly hardened.

"Don't fool yourself. It was for her sake I done it. I had meant them ter kill yer, but—that pesky phonograph got me all balled up an' I butted in 'fore I knew what I was erbout. Give me a drink, some one."

The cook ran for a mug of water, and McKnight held him higher as he drank.

"I had no idea yer held a grudge against me, Angus. I only did my duty that night, an' I've been tryin' ter do it ever since. Madge made me write to all the folks I knew in the States to try and find out where you were. She'll be mighty glad to hear you're back."

North's features relaxed as pleasure faded the pain from his eyes.

"Is that straight, Hugh?" he cried weakly.

"Heaven's my witness. She was certain you'd return some day, when you'd got a grip on yourself, an' she's been waitin' an' lookin' for you ever since."

"An' she ain't your—your—"

"Shucks, no! She said she'd never talk to another 'til she'd seen if you still wanted her. She's believed in you all erlong."

"He's only fainted, boys," McKnight explained to the silent loggers as he lowered his friend to the floor, "and I reckon this little accident will prove the making of him. One of you fellows had better go for Madge."

1. David Made King Over Judah
(2:1-4).

He knew full well that the Lord by the hand of Samuel had anointed him to be the successor of Saul. He had learned the essential lesson which the School of Providence was designed to teach, namely, that the position now open to him was no easy one to fill.
His exile and sufferings gave him self-control. He had the good sense to know that promotion to the throne did but bring "harder duties and multiplied perplexities." He threw himself upon God and asked for guidance. He rendered instant obedience to the Lord's answer. If we are to enjoy God's fellowship and blessing we must render quick obedience. He made a right beginning, therefore God prospered him. When he reached Hebron the men of Judah came and anointed him king over them. Thus a part of the nation recognized him as king and ratified the work which Samuel did many years before. When David went up he took with him all who had been with him in exile and suffering. They are now sharers with him in the kingdom. When David's great son, Christ, shall enter upon his glorious reign, those who have been faithful to him in his rejection shall reign with him.
"If we suffer we shall also reign with him." (II Tim. 2:12); "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my father in his throne." (Rev. 3:21).

II. David's Behavior Toward the Men of Jabesh-Gilead (2:4-7).

The men of Jabesh owed much to Saul (I Sam. 11), and they showed this recognition of debt by making a daring dash to rescue his body from the ignominious exposure at Bethshe-hem. David's act of sending men to Jabesh with a message of good will for their affectionate remembrance of Saul is an exhibition of his noble generosity. His love for the unfortunate king survived all the injuries which he suffered at his hands. He forgave and forgot them all. This was an act of political shrewdness as well as a generous one. In fact the only policy which proves effective is that which proceeds from a generous heart. He definitely follows this generous commendation with a solicitude for the men of Jabesh to transfer their loyalty to himself, since he is now their legal king. Since Saul is now dead, he urges them to be valiant for him. In view of the civil war which was to follow he knew it would require valiant men to stand by God's king. This appeal to be valiant is needed now, for we are all called upon to take sides between God's appointed king, Jesus Christ, and Satan, the pretender to the throne. May Christ's appeal result in making us faithful and valiant for him.

III. The Dual Kingdom—War Between the House of Saul and the House of David (2:8-4:12).

This period of civil war lasted seven and a half years. Most of the tribes of Israel clung to Ishbosheth, Saul's son, whom Abner had proclaimed king at Mahanaim. Feuds continued between the rival generals. David's power increased while that of Ishbo-sheth's waned.

IV. David Crowned King Over
United Israel (5:1-5).

Though the struggle for supremacy lasted long and was a bitter one, Abner's death, and Ishbosheth's assassination put an end to David's opposition.
David's behavior during this time gradually won for him the confidence of the tribes so that they all came to him at Hebron and anointed him as their king. They accepted his divine right to rule (v. 3). The reasons for anointing him their king were:

1. He is their brother (v. 1). This is true of Christ our King. Through the Incarnation he has become one with us.
2. He was their true leader in war, even in Saul's time (v. 2).
3. He was the Lord's choice (v. 2).

Procrastination.

Procrastination is helping the devil in retarding righteousness in the world. Remember that legend of how he summoned his imperial staff and offered a reward to the member who would suggest the best way to destroy a human soul. One said, Convince him there is no God. Another said, Prove there is no immortality and no truth in the Bible. But still another suggested, Convince him that there is no hurry about his carrying out his good resolutions. And the devil gave that one the prize.—Bishop Talbot.

THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

From —
The Christian Workers Magazine, Chicago, Ill.

JULY 25

Every Christian a Missionary Acts 1:1-9

It was evidently our Lord's purpose that every Christian should be a missionary, a witness testifying of the things known in spiritual experience. It is also evident that the Christians of apostolic days became missionaries. From the first four verses of Acts 8 we learn that when a great persecution broke out in Jerusalem, about the time of Stephen's death, the disciples were scattered abroad and went everywhere preaching the word. The result of this is seen in Acts 11:21.

This work required the endowment of power referred to in Acts 1:8.
Witnessing for Christ requires power.
There is always more or less opposition to it. The wall of indifference, ridicule, prejudice, pride, pretense, and self-sufficiency, is hard to batter down.
Men and women of faith and of spiritual power are necessary in this kind of work.

A vigorous propaganda (call it preaching if you will) needs to be launched at this time by Christians.
"Every Christian a missionary or a propagandist" is a good slogan for the present hour. All Christians may not be able to preach according to the common understanding of that word, but every Christian should be a propagandist. Distributing tracts and printed matter, pointed out the way of life in plain and simple terms —this is missionary work. "The bol-shevist propaganda under Lenin, the Trotzky, and others, by their own testimony, has been promoted largely by, and in some districts almost exclusively, by circulars and pamphlets in the vernacular. America is now being circularized with the request, "Read and pass it on." It is time for the Christian faith to be propagated by this same method. "A distinguished and trustworthy writer on "The Facts of the War on World Religions" adduces evidence to prove that Shintoism, Buddhism, Mohammedanism, Hinduism, and Confucianism stimulated by the war, have already inaugurated world-wide campaigns, especially for Europe and America. These are to be largely promoted by the printed page, and the literature is already appearing."

Now is the time for individual Christians to arouse themselves. Let the habit of carrying and distributing good tracts and pamphlets setting forth Christian truth be formed and developed. Thousands of people who did not go into our churches have been won to a saving knowledge of Christ through the wise distribution of tracts. Our Young People's Societies could well afford to inaugurate a campaign in their own communities for the distribution of printed matter, positively Christian in its tone, and clearly directed towards making Christ known as a personal Saviour. "Men now living who know Christ must take Him to those now living who know Him not, if they are ever to know Him."

"Time worketh; let me work too.
Time undoeth; let me do.
Busy as time, my work I ply, Till I rest in the rest of eternity."

Chestnut in Which Washington Is Said to Have Hidden Collapses at Yonkers, New York.

Maybe there's no truth in the tradition that George Washington once hid in the hollow trunk of the great chestnut tree that until recently stood in the front yard of Charles F. Coy, Yonkers, New York. But folk there about believe he did, just as they believe that the tree was 700 or 800 years old when it died a few years ago, and was the oldest and biggest tree of any variety not only in Westchester county but in New York state.

The trunk, which was about 35 feet tall and about 35 feet in circumfer-ence, according to Mr. Coy, was cut down by the department of public works of Yonkers, and its dismembered remains carted away. Said Mr.
Coy:

"Before it died that tree produced the biggest and sweetest-tasting chestnuts I ever saw. After its death a vine that covered it made it still an object of beauty, just as its vast size and age made it an object of admiration."

"The top was broken off about the time it died. I never knew its exact height. But I do know that a deal of tradition had grown up around it and that it commonly was rated the largest tree in this part of the country.
I am sure it was the biggest in this county."

Electricity to Locate Metal.

The idea of using current transmitted through the earth as a means of locating metal ores is familiar, the belief being that the greater conductivity of these metalliferous regions can be clearly indicated, and the area mapped out, says the Scientific American. The location of oil deposits, which according to the Electrical Review is now being investigated electrically, presents a converse problem.
In this case the insulating properties of the oil diminish the current, and oil-bearing regions are detected accordingly. In view of the great depth to which it is often necessary to bore for oil—that only exists simultaneously with an almost oil-free area above—the method would seem to have limitations, but it has doubtless possibilities in dealing with surface oil areas.

HONEYMOONS IN ODD PLACES

Persons of Adventurous Disposition Have Spent Them Amid Arctic and Savage Dangers.

Mr. Elkins, the wealthy young American who recently took his bride for a honeymoon "as near the North pole as he can comfortably get," is by no means the first bridegroom who has spent his "month of honey" in this chilly environment, says London Answers.

A few years ago Mr. Max Fleischmann, a Chicago millionaire, at his bride's request, took her straight from the altar to the Arctic wastes, where they spent, on their own evidence,
"delightful" months, hunting seals, reindeer and polar bears, two of which fell to the bride's own gun. Mrs.
Fleischmann's honeymoon wardrobe, we are told, consisted of an assortment of sheepskin dresses, lined with leather.

Less chilly, but no less adventurous, was the honeymoon journey of Major Powell-Cotton, who took his bride on a long and hazardous journey through Africa, spending many months in the heart of the Ituri forest, hunting the okapi and making friends of the savage pigmies, who had never before even seen a white woman.

But the most daring and adventurous of all recorded honeymoons was that of Captain Andrews, an American sailor, and his bride, who started to cross the Atlantic in a "cockleshell," 12 feet long, and were never seen again.

INDIAN IDEA OF RECKONING

Time Designated in Simple Fashion—Journeys and Distances Told Off by "Sleeps."

The American Indians of early days reckoned time by what they called "sleeps" and "moons." The Indian's "sleep" referred to a sun-to-sun day of 24 hours and his "moon" to what the white man roughly and improperly calls a month. The Indians indicated the noon hour by pointing vertically upward. To indicate the middle of the first half of the daylight period—9 o'clock—he pointed upward midway between the horizon and the zenith and to indicate mid-afternoon—3 o'clock—he pointed toward the opposite quarter. He spoke of the eastern horizon as "sunrise" and of the western horizon as "sunset."

Journeys and distances between different points were measured in "sleeps." Thus, when he undertook to tell how far he had traveled or to tell how far one point was from another, the old-time Indian would say a certain number of "sleeps." Ordinarily, a "sleep" in this sense corresponded to something like 35 miles—the distance a man could cover in a day, traveling at an ordinary pace on foot.
However, it was not unusual for men carrying important messages to make twice 35 miles or more in a single 24-hour period.

New York Landmarks Going.

The "downtown" section of New York is losing one of its landmarks by the demolition of the Eastern hotel to make room for an office building.
For nearly a hundred years it has been the favorite hostelry of American seafaring folk. "Dynamite Johnny" O'Brien, well-known for his practice of shipping arms to the Latin-American countries, concocted many of his fill-busting schemes in this hotel, which he made his headquarters.

One of the features of this building was its beams of solid mahogany.
In 1822, when it was constructed, cargoes of supplies were frequently shipped from New York to South American ports, and when a return cargo could not be secured mahogany was brought back, serving the purpose of both cargo and ballast. These cargoes were sold cheaply, and were often used in the construction of New York buildings of that period.

A Heavy Exit.

I had had a misunderstanding with my employer, and when I handed in my resignation I told him in very plain English what I thought of him; he, also, pointing out a few faults he thought I had. A few months later, after answering a blind ad for a position, I received a reply naming a time for an appointment. My name at that time being an exceedingly common one, it was not recognized; neither did I recognize him, as he had moved his office and changed the firm name.
Upon being ushered into the office I met my former employer face to face.
We were both speechless, and I did not catch my breath until I had backed out and was in an elevator going down.—Chicago Tribune.

City Minus Cafeterias!

Buenos Aires has no cafeterias for women and only one in a modified form for men. The first one for girls in the city is soon to be opened by the Y. W. C. A. The only steam table in Buenos Aires was discovered by Y. W.
C. A. secretaries in the storeroom of a gas company. It had been sent from England for a food exposition and never used after that. It is now installed in the Y. W. C. A. The cafeteria when opened promises to draw a crowd for more than the usual reason.

It Did.

"My dear sir," said the salesman, courteously, as he handed his customer his package and no change, "you will find that your suit will wear like iron."
And sure enough it did. The man hadn't worn it two months when it began to look rusty.—New York Central Magazine.

The Seneca Indians

believed that constipation was caused by a serpent which lived in the intestines. Today they have learned the fallacy of this belief.
For centuries civilized peoples adhered to the use of laxatives and cathartics for treating constipation.
Such drugs have been found by modern medical science to be a means of aggravating constipation, often making it chronic. The twentieth century physician prescribes Nujol.
Nujol works on an entirely new principle.

Instead of forcing or irritating the system, Nujol simply softens the food waste. This enables the many tiny muscles in the walls of the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along so that it passes naturally out of the system.
Nujol thus prevents constipation because it helps Nature maintain easy, thorough bowel movements at regular intervals—the healthiest habit in the world.
Nujol is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take. Try it.

Nujol is sold by all druggists in sealed bottles only, bearing Nujol trade mark.

Miss Anna Nusbaum, of Union Mills, spent Saturday and Sunday with her friend, Miss Flora Spangler.

Mrs. William Stouffer, Mrs. Ernest Bankard and Mrs. Fannie Wisotzky, of Baltimore, spent Wednesday and Thursday in Littlestown and Hanover, with relatives.

Last Sunday, 809 autos, and 28 vehicles, passed Wm. H. Flickinger's on the State Road, south of town, from 7:30 A. M., until about the same hour in the evening.

Miss Jennie E. Galt is spending part of her vacation with her sister, Mrs. Jacob M. Weaver, at Hunters-town, Pa., and will also visit friends in Gettysburg, before returning home.

The town's park, adjoining the Railroad, is in full bloom now—a veritable beauty spot of the kind. That, and the mosquito incubator, are hard to beat by any small town.

Jere J. Garner met with a painful accident, last Tuesday evening. As he was unhitching the horses from a corn plow, a sudden swerving of the horses threw him down with great force, resulting in a badly sprained back.

As will be noted in this issue, the State Roads Commission has advertised the Taneytown link .67 of a mile, for bids for concrete construction. Evidently, the town is due to get this road, for sure, and perhaps this year, all of which is good news.

A hearing was held in the Shank-Null shooting case, and Mr. Shank gave bond for his appearance before the Grand Jury. A counter case against Null, for damage to fencing, resulted in the same verdict—held for appearance before Grand Jury.

When the time comes to make "detours" through the town, on account of building the concrete street, there will be many inconveniences and some hard problems. This will be a job that should be done quickly, and the authorities should see to that.

Through the kindness of Geo. R. Sauble, the boys of the town have again been able to organize a baseball team. They expect to play with the teams of the nearby towns. It is especially hoped that this year the citizens of the town will lay aside their old spirit of "knocking" and co-operate with the boys in every way to make the team a success.

Raymond Dickensheets, while helping to paint the Reformed parsonage, met with an unusual accident, on Tuesday. He was standing on an extension ladder painting a gable end of the house, when the ladder telescoped, dropping him to within about 15 feet of the ground, when it caught on a window frame. Mr. Dickensheets lost his footing and slipped through, with the result that when the ladder lodged he was hanging headforemost toward the ground. He was painfully injured about the legs.

The full committee on Soldiers' Memorial held a meeting, Monday night, when a report was made showing the result of all operations to date. The entire proposition is nearing completion, and the cost will be over $1300. It was decided to hold the unveiling and dedication service on Labor Day, Sept. 6, in the afternoon. The following committee was named to prepare a program for the occasion: D. J. Hesson, chairman; Miss Anna Galt, Miss Amelia Annan, Mrs. M. C. Duttera, Rev. L. B. Hafer and Milton A. Koons.

(For The Record.) Those who spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Hiltzbrick and family in honor of Mrs. H's birthday, were the following: Mrs. Ida Weishaar, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Smith, of near Taneytown; Mr. and Mrs. Birnie Weishaar, of New Windsor; Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Weishaar, of Union Bridge; Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Nusbaum, of Tyrone; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hiltzbrick, of Littlestown; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Boose, of Black's Corner; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Westminster Girl Married on Stage.

Miss Golda M. Stonesifer, daughter of Charles Stonesifer, of Westminster, was married this Wednesday evening, on the stage of the Hudson theatre, Shellyville, Delaware, to Harry M. Yost, of Philadelphia. Both are members of the Columbia Stock Company. As a wedding present, the manager of the Company gave a percentage of the night's receipts.

Suffered Intense Pain.

"A few years ago when visiting relatives in Michigan something I had eaten brought on an attack of cholera morbus" writes Mrs. Celesta McVicker, Macon, Mo. "I suffered intense pain and had to go to bed. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy and one dose relieved the pain wonderfully. I only took two or three doses but they did the work."

"Come up stairs and let me wash your hands," said mother, when she arrived with her little daughter for tea, "at gramma's." "I don't want to go up!" wailed Winnie, aged 4. "Let her wash them down in the scullery," called grandma. "She can do it just as well!" "No," her mother said, firmly. "I want her to come up with me." Winnie went upstairs as slowly as possible. "Oh," she said, turning a wrathful, tearful face to her mother, "why don't you obey your mother!"—Chicago Daily News.

The Finishing Touch.

Observer—Do you know you've lost your collar button?

Friend—I'm not surprised. I've lost my pet spaniel, my canary died, my automobile was stolen, I let my insurance drop just before my house burned down, the bank I had all my money in busted and I just heard that my wife eloped. What's a lost collar button?
