FREDERICK COUNTY MUST RE-ASSESS PROPERTY

Basis of Values Must Be Raised to Near Present Values.

The State Tax Commission has again ordered the Commissioners of Frederick county to name assessors for a general assessment of the property of the county. The Commissioners will likely obey the order, but it is hardly probable that property will be assessed at "sale value," as seems to be the desire of the State Commission.

It is estimated that when the work is completed the taxable basis of Frederick county will be $60,000,000 instead of a fraction over $39,000,000.

From the start the County Commissioners have opposed the wishes of the State body. Two years ago the tax commissioners ordered the county board to assess, but the local officials flatly refused. Since that time the matter has hung fire. Several promises have been made by the local board to put the assessment into operation, but each time they have dodged, declaring that in their opinion the sale of property the past few years has created an inflated market, which will slump when natural conditions are restored. But the State Tax Commission thinks otherwise and insists that those who have purchased properties for high prices pay taxes on the same basis.

More Money to Go Up in Smoke.

According to J. M. Eckenrode, formerly of Harney, but now of Pasadena, California, smokers must soon pay more for their cigars. Mr. Eckenrode was a delegate from the Pasadena Lions' Club to the National Convention of Lions' Clubs in Denver recently, and after the convention he made a trip to the eastern cities. He is familiar with the cigar trade, and is quoted as saying recently:

"Another raise in the price of cigars is to be expected in the very near future. Manufacturers are unable to keep up with the demand. This holds true even where there have been no strikes. More cigars were manufactured and sold last year than ever before, and the 1920 output will surpass that of 1919. While in New York city I secured from the William Glacum & Son company, the exclusive Southern California agency for the famous Queen Mary brand of cigars, and they told me that if I wanted to place an order for the Christmas trade I would have to do so right away, otherwise no deliveries for the holiday season could be promised.

"I visited the Waitt & Bond cigar factory in Newark, the largest establishment of its kind in the world. They have 4500 employees. Whether the factories are large or small, all are way behind in their orders."

How to Find the Capacity of a Corn Crib in Bushels.

Do you know how much corn is left in your crib, or how many bushels a given space will contain? If you know the rules for estimating quantities of stored grain, the problem is simple.

In estimating the number of bushels of corn in a crib, find the number of cubic feet in the pile of ear corn and divide this product by 24. The result thus obtained represents the number of bushels of shelled corn in the pile of ears and is a fair approximation for well-settled corn of good quality. However, if the corn is of poor quality a higher factor should be used, say 23 or 22.

A standard bushel contains 2,150.42 cubic inches, or nearly 1 1/4 cubic feet. This is a bushel by measure, of shelled corn or of other grain. A bushel of corn on the ear varies widely in volume and may occupy more or considerably less than twice the space occupied by a bushel of shelled corn. On the average, 2 1/4 cubic feet of good, sound ear corn will make a bushel of shelled corn.

If the crib is wider at the top than at the bottom, find the average width by adding together the width at the bottom and at the top of the corn and dividing by 2. Then multiply this average width by the height and length to find the cubic contents, and divide by 24 to find the number of bushels of corn in the crib.

The cubic contents of a round crib are found by multiplying together the area of the base and the height of the crib. The area of the base is found by the formula used for finding the area of a circle; that is, by multiplying the diameter by itself, and this product by .7854. Then multiply by the height. Divide by 24 as before, and you have the number of bushels of shelled corn.

In buying or selling ear corn by weight, it is customary to allow 70 lbs of air-dried ear corn to the bushel. This quantity of ear corn will give about 56 pounds of shelled corn (or an even bushel, or 2,150.42 cubic inches) and 14 pounds of cobs. There is some variation from this figure due to difference in percentage of grain to cob and to the weight of a measured bushel of shelled corn.

The effort to keep the League of Nations alive, as a National issue, is a brave one, but there is no noticeable demand for it on the part of the average voter—and the "average voter" is the one that is going to decide the election.

MOUNTAIN TOP PICK-UPS.

Soft Coal can be Mined at a Good Profit at $3.50 a Ton.

The B. & O. R. R., seems to be moving eastward—or did, last week—about 1500 to 2000 cars of coal, a day, from the W. Va. fields. A full train of loaded cars, up the W. Va. side of the mountain, is 54 cars for two of the largest engines built. Across the mountain top, and on toward seaboard, a full train is about 60 cars. Westward, when trains are largely made up of empties, the trains usually run about 100 cars.

The W. M. R. R., is also handling a great deal of coal. In fact, by the time this gets into print, the likelihood is that there will be a complete jam of soft coal from Hagerstown and Brunswick to Baltimore. Mining soft coal, just now, is immensely profitable. The owner of a small mine, and manager of another, told the writer that coal could be placed at the mouth of the mine at a fine profit, at $3.50 a ton, while as a matter of fact it sells at over twice that.

Just why the government permits this, is hardly understandable, in the light of its prosecutions of sugar profiteers, whose operations are a trifle as compared with present coal profits. Our informant frankly said, "a lot of coal operators ought to be in the penitentiary," meaning, of course, that they were not entitled to the profit they get.

This mountain top has had rain, rain, all summer. We have been here just a week, and every day has had its rain. This means that it has been a "come and go" season—more short stays—and yet, the rains are short, and the roads and walks soon dry; so, even the frequency of the rains is not so objectionable as they would be elsewhere.

An attempt toward bringing back a whole season's program, as in old times, is being tried out this year, with very fair attractions and fair success. A start has also been made toward public improvements, in which direction the outlook seems to be encouraging.

The refusal by President Wilson of the League of Nations with "reservations," received two heavy broadsides; first by Bishop Wm. F. Anderson in a lecture on "Europe's revised estimate of the U. S.," and second, by Dr. John Wesley Hill, of Tenn., who has offered his services to the Republican National Committee. There is a lecture, or a good "movie" every night.

There are more men here than usual. During the war, the male visitors were largely confined to old men and boys. This year there are men of big business; men who know, and do not the idle rich, nor the get-rich-quick class—but real men with fingers on the pulse of business, up here for a few days, or weeks, rest; and there are young men, too, especially this week, while a tennis tournament of considerable local interest is in progress.

Farmers in Garrett are preparing for more wheat acreage. Up until a comparatively few years ago, no great acreage of wheat was sown, the winters being thought to be too severe. But, where the soil is good, and the seed gets a good strong "set" before the extremely cold weather comes, Garrett can raise plenty of good wheat. Oats has, for years, been the main grain crop, and was an exceptionally good yield this year.

Colored Lawyer for Senator.

W. Ashbie Hawkins, a colored attorney of Baltimore, has been notified by the Independence League that he has been endorsed by the League as candidate for the U. S. Senate against Hon. O. E. Weller, and will be nominated by petitioning.

Just who, or what, originated the idea, is a matter for conjecture. The Afro-Republicans in the city have been feeling for a long while that they have not been getting "recognition" enough from the Republicans—which of course means profitable jobs—and this may be a demonstration to "turn up something" for them in the event of Mr. Weller's election.

On the other hand, there may be the possibility that cutting a few thousands of votes from Mr. Weller's total, would be greatly to the advantage of Senator Smith; and as a political trick, worked with the colored brethren about half receptive, it would not be as "off-color" as plenty of schemes heretofore worked in the state.

Things Merchants Cannot Afford.

You cannot afford to have people come in and not be greeted with courtesy, as people have a way of telling their friends when a storekeeper is unbusinesslike.

You cannot afford to treat visitors who do not buy as a necessary evil. People like to receive attention else they will go to the store that has a courteous owner.

You cannot afford to slight the small sale, refuse a favor or be pushy to people you do not like, for a retail store is, in a measure, a semi-public institution.

You cannot afford to neglect your windows. People have a habit of forming an opinion of a store's worth by its windows.

You cannot afford to "call down" the clerks or give loud, officious orders before customers, as such a breach of ethics reflects on your standing.

You cannot afford to refuse to look at the salesman's line, for without the hard-working salesman your store would soon cease to exist.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION DECIDES C. & P. CASE

Only 5.30 Per Cent. Allowed on Investment in State.

After lopping off $481,003 of the valuation of the property of the C. & P. Tel. Co. for rate-making purposes; establishing the value of the property at the first of the year at $16,725,532, instead of $17,206,535, which the company had claimed, the Public Service Commission, in its decision in the telephone rate case, given out Wednesday night, completely readjusted the company's rate schedule and fixed rates that will enable the company to earn only 5.30% on its investment in the State.

The company has asked for increases estimated to aggregate $735,760 a year. The rates granted by the Commission will reduce this amount by $134,000, leaving an estimated increase of $601,746 gross and $515,429 net. This, added to the $400,000 estimated net revenue under the existing rates, will yield the company a net distributable income of $915,429 as its return on its investment.

It was in the schedule of rates for Maryland outside of Baltimore city that the greatest changes were made.

The Commission was of the opinion that the business men in the counties who are large users of the telephone, should be put on a measured service basis as are the business men of Baltimore, and Commissioner Legg was strongly of the opinion that every business and professional phone in the State ought to be on measured service as the only means of requiring large users to pay their proper proportion of the cost of telephone service, and prevent a part of this cost being saddled upon the smaller user.

Neither the Commission as a whole nor the company was prepared to go as far as Mr. Legg proposed, however, so the matter of a measured service for county business was made optional with the subscriber. The county business or professional man may still have unlimited service if he desires it or he may go on the measured rate. If he takes the measured rate he will get his telephone at $3.50 a month and will be allowed 50 local calls a month, with additional local calls at 5 cents each. Or he can commute his local calls to toll calls within his county limits on a basis of the value of each local call being 5 cents. If he elects to take the unlimited service he will pay for it at the rate of $5 a month for the Class 1 exchange, which have more than 4,000 stations, down to $2.75 for the Class 7 exchange, with fewer than 100 stations, but his calls can only be used on his local exchange.

The Commission revised the entire county system by reclassifying all exchanges, so that instead of having four classes there now are seven. In the first are exchanges having 4,000 stations or more, the second class has between 2,000 and 4,000 stations, the third class has between 1,000 and 2,000 stations, the fourth class between 500 and 1,000, the fifth between 250 and 500, the sixth between 100 and 250 and the seventh fewer than 100 stations.

The residence rates in these classes range from $3.75 to $2 for individual line, from $2.50 down to $1.25 for four-party line service and from $2.50 down to $1 for rural or farmers' lines. The rural rate has been reduced in Classes 6 and 7, it remains the same as it now is in Classes 4 and 5, and there has been a slight increase over the present rate in Classes 1, 2 and 3. Class 7 has had the charges reduced all along the line.

Another big saving which the Commission has made for the telephone subscriber is in reducing the toll charge on messages, which formerly was 15 cents, to 14 cents. This reduction in the rate of 1 cent actually reduces the call 6 cents. The reason for this is that the Government imposes a war tax on all messages of 15 cents or more, so that, while the company will lose only 1 cent of revenue, the Government will lose 5 cents and the subscriber will save 6. There is no county in the State, with possibly one exception, that has a toll charge for telephone messages of more than 15 cents, so that now any subscriber in any county can talk to any part of his county on a toll charge of 15 cents where formerly he, in many instances, paid 20.

The Commission orders that the rates it has established shall go into effect on Sept. 1, next, and shall remain in effect until Dec. 31, 1921, limiting them specifically to a period of 16 months, the continuance of the rates being contingent upon a decided improvement in the service the company is rendering its subscribers. It sharply condemns the service rendered in the past.

OUR DETROIT LETTER.

An Interesting Description of Conditions, Generally.

I notice in the Record of last week, that the Editor is on his vacation. Now, I do not know who has charge of the news getting, but I will remember how welcome a letter from him for publication was when I was foreman. I also remember how glad we were to get a letter from some former resident at such times. So, notwithstanding the fact that I took some of your space a short time ago, I will send you this article, hoping that it will help you out and be of interest to some of my friends in and around Taneytown.

In reading over the account of the Fair, I could not help thinking of Col. Goulden, and how he used to bring the copy in to the office after each day's program, and after him, Rev. Downie. When these two handed in their reports it was mighty hard to keep it in the limits we were given. But as there was never much change in the program, and the addresses were always along the same lines, I think the short description this year covers about all that could be said about it.

I notice Taneytown has a base ball club. I surely would like to see the line-up, for I suppose the old-timers have all retired. The scores printed show that some good ball was played. Seeing this item, reminds me of a story that the late Charles Forrest used to tell. He was in Denver, Col., as homesick as he could be, when he picked up an old Baltimore paper, which contained an account of a game played in Taneytown, ending with the names of the battery. He said that when he reached the bottom of the article and saw "Clark and Clingan" battery for Taneytown, he did not wait a minute, but caught the first train for home.

We are still at work, though only 5 days a week. Even at this, we are fortunate, as a great many factories are working only 3 and 4 days each week. Nobody seems to know how long this will keep up, but they all say that they look for business to pick up soon. The city is giving employment to a large number of men, and there seems to be a large amount of building going on—especially by manufacturing firms. This would lead one to think that the above news is right. But, as it is Presidential year, we cannot count on anything for sure.

Last Sunday afternoon, Ervin took us for a drive out into the country, and we noticed the difference in the seasons. Farmers are just cutting their oats, and the corn, while looking healthy, is not near as large as it is this time in Maryland. Small fruits, as huckleberries, elderberries, etc., are just coming in, while we are just beginning to get home-raised tomatoes, cucumbers, and other garden truck. We passed hundreds of truck farms, with acres of cabbage, tomatoes, carrots, onions, etc. Nearly every home after you get into the suburbs, has its fruit stand along the road, and I must say that the truckers are wise as to prices, as they charge as much, if not more, than you can buy the same produce for on market.

One thing else we noticed, and that was that there are very few nice farm buildings, as we know them in Carroll county. I thought of this when I read the Editor's account of his trip through the Eastern Shore counties. Why people who can afford better buildings will continue to live in these old shacks, I cannot figure out. On a trip down into Ohio, a few years ago, I noticed the same thing, so conclude that it is usual over this part of the middle west.

The roads out here are all good—that is the main roads. Of course, like in Maryland, the less travelled roads are not improved very much, and if one has to make a detour on account of a road closed for repairs, as we did, you are mighty likely to strike some mighty rough riding.

We have been having lots of rain, the past two weeks, too much, in fact, for garden truck, and while we have had some warm days, the nights, with few exceptions, have been very cool. Very soon the cold weather will be here, and the short summer of 1920 will have passed. A friend of mine, who moved to California, once said to me that he wanted to go to a place where they did not have winter eight months in the year. It is not as bad as that, but we are compelled to keep our furnaces fired up at least six months. The quality of coal we get out here (at $16.00 a ton) often makes me wish for some of the good soft anthracite we used to get from the warehouses in Taneytown.

Well, I guess I have written enough—maybe too much. It is mighty hard to get material to make a good interesting letter. If I would dare write a little politics, I could say some more, but as the Record is neutral, I must not get into forbidden ground, and so will stop.

JOHN J. REID.

(P. S.—Your letter came very welcome, but as you speak of the days when you were "on the job," will say that the "going" is easier than in the days of yore.—Comps.)

Population of Taneytown District.

In giving the census figures for Carroll County, last week, the Record quoted figures from a Baltimore daily, and in so doing over stated the decrease for Taneytown district by 1,000. The real decrease for the district was from 2,653 in 1910 to 2,533 in 1920, a loss of 120 in the ten years.

WAR IN POLAND IS TAKING A DIFFERENT TURN.

Reds are Now being Driven Back From Former Position.

The war in Europe has taken a turn within the last few days decidedly more satisfactory to the liberty-loving people of the world. Last week we were reading in press dispatches of the terms of peace to be offered to Poland. This week it is apparent that such terms are not exactly in order as the Poles are vigorously beating back the Russians.

There was a decided fear that if the Reds won out in the grapple with Poland, they would join hands with Germany and make trouble for the Allies, possibly disrupting the whole peace of Europe. Those who harbored such fears may breathe easier, with the enemies of civilization on the run.

An Associated Press dispatch a few days ago said:

"Soviet Russia intends to seek an alliance with Germany to make war on France, and if this is successful, to undertake a conquest of England and eventually America, officials of the Bolshevik regime told the Associated Press here today."

As soon as the Polish war, which is considered a purely Russian business, has been finished, a note will be sent to Berlin they declared, demanding permission to transport troops across Germany for the French campaign. Upon refusal of this request, which is taken for granted, a revolution will be instituted in Germany, the success of which the Bolsheviks asserted they were prepared to assure by force of arms.

With these ends in view, the Russian soldiers, who have been told that all wars shall cease with ultimate victory over the Poles, are being subjected to a vigorous propaganda which declares that Frenchmen will be shot on sight but that the Germans are friends who soon will become comrades of the Bolsheviks. These admissions have been corroborated by information gathered by the correspondent in conversation with German representatives of East Prussian newspapers, who had interviews with the Bolshevik army chiefs at the front.

The Bolshevik leaders declare that within three weeks they will be in complete control of Poland, including the Polish corridor, which they intend to occupy, leaving a 10-kilometer neutral zone about Danzig.

But these hopes have gone glimmering as appears by the following later message:

"Warsaw, Aug. 17.—The Polish counter-offensive launched yesterday has relieved the Russian pressure upon Warsaw."

An official communique announces that the Poles have advanced along the entire northern front and on the main Warsaw front the Reds have been driven back at several points in confusion.

Polish movements, aided by heavy artillery, are forcing the Bolsheviks gradually to withdraw from various places where for days pressure upon the capital has been greatest.

The counter-offensive is under the leadership of President Pilsudski, as commander-in-chief, but General Weyrand, of the French army, is said to be responsible for the new tactics now being employed to repel the invaders.

French tactics are being used throughout the counter-action. The Poles are bringing into play batteries placed for the capital's defense line and are waiting completion of the arrangements to strike at the Soviet forces with a rush of artillery, followed by repeated infantry attacks.

The official communique says the Poles have pushed the Russians beyond the Myra river and regained Ciechanow. The Soviet forces retreating while Polish aviators fired on them with machine guns."

EQUAL SUFFRAGE WINS.

Women Will Vote For President in November.

On Wednesday of this week, Tennessee became the 36th State to ratify the Susan B. Anthony Federal suffrage amendment. The Constitutional change thus will become effective in time for the 17,000,000 women of the country to vote in the Presidential election in November.

Speaker Walker, leader of the anti-suffragists, put opponents in a position to demand reconsideration by changing his vote from nay to aye and moving to reconsider.

The suffragists, however, had the advantage of victory and expressed confidence that Speaker Walker's motion would be voted down. The next step in ratification will be the certifying of the action of the Tennessee Assembly to the Secretary of State of the United States, who upon its receipt will issue a proclamation declaring the amendment ratified.

The Tennessee Senate ratified the amendment last Friday by a vote of 25 to 4.

Suffrage leaders declare they will not slacken their efforts, as they desire to have at least one other State ratify before the November elections as they expect a fight to be made against Tennessee's action because of the clause in the State constitution which prohibits any assembly from acting on an amendment not submitted before the members were elected. Both United States Solicitor General Frierson and the Attorney General of Tennessee have declared this clause to be unconstitutional in the light of the recent decision of the Supreme Court in the Ohio referendum case.

Reunion of Ministers From Middletown Valley.

Every three years the Lutheran ministers who were born in Middletown Valley, Md., hold a reunion, which has the distinction of being a three-days affair. The sessions are devoted to the reading and discussion of papers on timely topics, as well as to social fellowship. The reunion this year was held last week and lasted from Tuesday evening until Thursday noon.

Out of the 47 ministers born in the valley, 22 are living, 13 of whom attended the reunion. The visiting clergymen were entertained by members of the congregation and their reunion was greatly enjoyed. An interesting program was rendered each day. The following ministers attended the reunion:

Rev. J. D. Bittle, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Rev. G. S. Bowers, Rev. E. C. Mumford and Rev. W. G. Minnick, Baltimore; Rev. John C. Bowers, Catonsville; Rev. M. H. Culler, Seven Valleys, Pa.; Rev. H. W. Doty, Rochester, Pa.; Rev. D. F. Floyd, Selins Grove, Pa.; Rev. S. A. Hedges, Middletown; Rev. W. S. Metzger, Glenn Gardner, N. J.; Rev. W. L. Rensberger, Funkstown; Rev. C. E. Rice, Duquesne, Pa.; Rev. C. E. Rice, Nevillsville, Pa.

Those born in the valley who were not present were: Rev. S. H. Culler, Seven Valleys, Pa.; Rev. O. C. Dean, Bucyrus, O.; Rev. P. H. Derr, Chicago; Rev. M. D. Gaver, Orrville, Pa.; Rev. F. A. Hightman, Baltimore; Rev. H. A. Koogle, Chapman, Kans.; Rev. C. M. Wachter, Corydon, Ind.; Rev. W. C. Mann, Emsworth, Pa.; Rev. S. J. Derr, Hampstead.

Severe Storm in Baltimore County.

The lives of a score of persons were endangered and property valued at thousands of dollars damaged Monday afternoon between Back River and Chase, Baltimore County, as the result of a terrific cloudburst. Three storms broke at the same time, causing torrents of rain to fall steadily for three hours.

Frame houses were moved by the water, bridges were torn from their foundations, culverts were swept away, houses and boats struck by lightning, fields and roads inundated and made impassable, railroad beds washed out, telephone wires torn down, street cars flooded and halted, trees uprooted and crops ruined.

The storm was the worst that has hit Baltimore county for years.

Wilson Will Live in Washington.

A dispatch from Washington this week states that persistent reports have been circulated about the White House that Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson's fine old house on the outskirts of Washington is to become the residence of the President upon his retirement from office on March 4.

Rumors that the President will occupy the old Nourse mansion recently purchased by Admiral Grayson, his personal physician, have been allowed to circulate without denial from the White House.

Admiral Grayson's residence opposite "Friendship," in Wisconsin avenue near Porter street is one of the prize estates just outside of Washington. It is in a beautiful tract of 22 acres well dotted with shade trees.

It is the President's intention, so the rumors go, to occupy the Mansion immediately after March 4, until next summer. Extensive alterations are to be made in the house to modernize it. Admiral Grayson bought the old Nourse residence several months ago, but never has occupied it. Reports say he acted as President Wilson's agent in the purchase.

It would not be surprising if we heard a great deal about "sugar" in the Presidential campaign—both the real, and the nick-named "thing." Plenty of "sugar" is needed, both in canning, and candidating.

The fact is crystallizing that the race for spending is subsiding. "The price," is being considered, as to its fairness, rather than the possession of "the price" in the pocket; and this inevitably means that when shopping for values, sets in—and it is setting in—some of the prevailing big figures must go out of fashion.

Bidding, for the votes of women is rather conspicuous in the indorsement of "votes for women" by both candidates. It is more than a pity that such big questions, and momentous conclusions, can not be settled on grounds of merit, rather than through the pressure of an end justifying the means.

Whether we like it, or not, or whether it is justifiable, or not, members of Congress will almost surely be confronted, this year, with their past records, or future promises, on the liquor question. In many cases, no doubt, the purity of the "dryness" or "wetness" of a candidate, will carry him to victory, regardless of the presence or absence of other qualifications for sitting among our lawmakers.

Every now and then some timid writer bewails the fact that if wheat should drop to $2.00 or less, "farmers will stop growing it." This is only another illustration of the truth, that the things we worry most over, are things that never happen. Farmers will always grow all the wheat and other grains that they have the help to grow. Farming, without growing something, would not be farming—and farmers have not all made fortunes big enough to retire on.

The Next Congress, and Unionism.

Members of labor unions are not likely to follow any "third party," so far as their vote for President is concerned, but the indications are that their influence and voting will be more potent, when it comes to voting for members of Congress. At any rate, the National Committee of the American Federation of Labor, has compiled the legislative records of members whose terms will expire, March 4, 1921, and the State Committees have been summoned to meet, August 7, for the purpose of considering these records, and presumably to take action for, or against, members on their records.

New candidates for Congress (Senate and House) will have an advantage, in that they have no public voting record to be gone over, and in some districts' members with an anti-union record may find it difficult to secure re-election, notwithstanding their excellent record in all other directions.

At first sight, union labor, seems justified in digging up past votes, and voting for those who have shown themselves on the side of labor; but, as soon as we admit the justice of this, just so soon do we take sides for "class legislation," the very thing that the voters of this country should stand against.

All "single-track" legislators are a menace to the country, whether they represent labor, or anti-labor; capital, or anti-capital; railroad interests or anti-railroad, or any other interest, as their distinguishing, hard and fast, purpose in Congress. The men who deserve Congressional honors, are always those who represent all of their constituents, and who vote and act fairly for all the people, irrespective of their interests or occupation.

Should union labor let it be known that every man who has shown signs of not being tied to every labor demand, is unfit to represent his district; and that every man who has voted for everything labor asked for, is fit to be returned, the issue would be very clearly stated, indeed, and would serve to show all other interests of the district, and country, just the course that is necessary to pursue on the part of non-unionists. It would mean a situation demanding equal union of effort, on the part of non-unionists, regardless of party affiliations.

Has Never Seen Their Equal.

"I have used Chamberlain's Tablets for stomach trouble, biliousness and constipation off and on for the past ten years. I have never seen their equal yet. They strengthened my digestion, relieved me of headaches and had a mild pleasant action on my bowels. I take pleasure in recommending them," writes H. D. F. Parmenter, Cridersville, Ohio.

Force and Opportunity.

Laying all prejudice aside, as well as the merits of woman suffrage and prohibition, the charge that they were "forced into the Constitution," rather than calmly voted in, has a good deal of soundness back of it. The labor issue, also, while not yet a Constitutional matter, has been playing largely the same tactics—using "political expediency" on parties, to gain ends. Perhaps "the end has justified the means"—we will not discuss that—but it is near enough true to say that neither of these questions have been urged to the front strictly on their own merits, and it remains to be seen whether, after all, they have been settled peaceably, finally and satisfactorily.

The use of force in politics, rarely pays in the end. The lavish use of money in primaries and elections, is another form of force. Any plan, or drive, that interferes with the normal formation of voluntary public opinion, and control of majorities, is a form of force. When party leaders are appealed to, through strong side issues, as showing them the way to party preponderance and governmental control, we are departing from our time honored standards of registering majorities, and using force.

We are just now, wondering what next? The classes are pursuing their objects on horseback, riding rough-shod over everything in their way. The classes that suit us, we bid God-speed; but the classes we object to, we wish disaster. How can we do this, when the systems used, in both instances, have identical characteristics?

Force to the uttermost, whether used by men or women, or by dry or wet, by labor or capital, is a policy likely to react. The getting, even of good things, should be by daylight and without the use of hold-up methods. If we justify ourselves, simply on the grounds that the thing is right, and means are secondary, do we not set the example for others to play the same game in directions they think right? Force and opportunity—taking advantage of the fears of men and of parties—is a new departure in American politics, and its final chapter has not yet been written.

Cured of Stomach Trouble and Constipation.

Rachel Cribley of Beaver Dam, O., was sick for two years with stomach trouble and constipation, taking one medicine after another with only temporary relief. "My neighbor spoke so enthusiastically of Chamberlain's Tablets," she says, "that I procured a bottle of them at our drug store to try. A few days treatment convinced me that they were just what I needed. I continued their use for several weeks and they cured me."

Interchurch Movement.

The Interchurch Movement has fallen on evil days. It is important that all Christians understand just what has happened. There are many rumors and bits of gossip in the air, and misunderstandings are always easy. A few facts should be fixed in the mind. There were thirty-one co-operating denominations. There were 1,400 salaried workers in the offices, and 400 others in the field, or 1,800 in all. The aim was to raise $336,000. This was the ideal. It was placed high because the needs are great, and because we are living in days when men and women are expected to do extraordinary things. The actual contributions aggregated about $180,000,000, nearly one-half of what was asked for.

But it was not this falling short which brought the Movement into straits. The crisis was precipitated by a failure to raise the funds necessary to carry the running expenses of the Movement. This money was to come from people outside the churches. It was a large sum which was needed, and it did not come. That has caused all the trouble. The contributors were divided at the outset into two groups. In the first group were all church members and all church attendants who had contributed to the Church within the last two years, and also all others who had members of their families in the membership of the church or in the Sunday School. All other persons were classed in Group II, and were called "Friendly Citizens." From these "Friendly Citizens" it was hoped that $40,000,000 might be collected.

The men who made this computation guessed wrong. They overestimated the size of Group II, and were wild in their expectations as to what this group would do. The bulk of all the money used by the Churches of our country has always come from their members and church attendants and from these it must continue to come. The outsiders who are not connected in any way with the Church or any of its organizations can hardly be expected to become enthusiastic in the raising of funds for the enlargement of church work. Instead of $40,000,000 from the "Friendly Citizens," only $3,000,000 was raised, not much more than one-third enough to defray the running expenses for the first year.

Money had been poured out like water in the expensive work of making a detailed survey of the needs of the whole world, and workers had been multiplied in the expectation that an enterprise so gigantic would appeal to the imagination of men who hitherto had manifested no interest in the propagation of the Christian faith. The scheme failed. The "Friendly Citizens" did not come to the rescue. Seven million dollars must now be contributed for running expenses by the denominational boards which went into the Movement. A total of ten million dollars will be necessary to pay the expenses of the last sixteen months and the next twelve. The most expensive part of the work—that of making the surveys—has been largely done, and that will not have to be done again. Administration expenses from now on will be much smaller than during the past year. The corps of workers has been greatly cut down and various economies have been introduced.

It is not profitable at this time to dwell too long or too despondingly upon the mistakes which have been made, or to try to apportion the blame. In a world like this blunders are inevitable, and in all huge undertakings the fallibility and inadequacy of human nature come to the front. One can easily pick out various and serious mistakes which were made by those who had the Movement in charge. The experiences of the Government and of the Y. M. C. A. in the great war were in this Interchurch Movement, to a certain extent, repeated. The work was too vast to be managed without friction and bungling and loss. There was not sufficient time allowed for careful planning, and in the hasty mobilization of workers many incompetents got in. It was easy from the beginning for onlookers to see that many things were being done amiss, and that expenditures were needlessly lavish. The men at the head of it, however, were lawmen of unusual administrative ability, and their names gave the Churches confidence that all would work out well.

But in a time like the present the human mind seems to be unusually unreliable and the judgment even of the best balanced brains easily goes astray. Great success and great failures are equally likely, and one never knows how an experiment is coming out until it is tried through. We are all embarrassed and chagrined by the situation in which we find ourselves, but we shall get out of it without permanent injury. The failure is not complete. The loss is not total. The disaster is not irreparable. Much has been gained. Many good results will be permanent. It was a great thing for thirty-one denominations to join hands in this great work. After the public had been fatigued and exhausted by numberless drives it was a glorious achievement to raise a fund of nearly $200,000,000. The work which went into the surveys will be of service through the coming years. The vision of the whole world conquered for Christ by co-operating Churches will never fade.—The Christian Work.

Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy

This is unquestionably one of the most successful medicines in use for bowel complaints. A few doses of it will cure an ordinary attack of diarrhoea. It has been used in nine epidemics of dysentery with perfect success. It can always be depended upon to give prompt relief in case of colic and cholera morbus. When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take. Every family should keep this remedy at hand.

HOW UNDER-SEA MINES HELP TO RECLAIM LAND FROM OCEAN'S GRIP.

—When coal mining was first undertaken as a commercial proposition the coal was mined from the surface outcrops. Later came the shaft-mine with its elevators and cars. In the extremities to secure cheap coal for isolated districts, and to get any at all where mines are early worked out, the coal veins are followed out under the land, and in one instance, under the sea. The under-the-sea mines are quite numerous in England, but as yet only one such mine has been reported on the North American continent.

It was at Fort Rupert that the first discovery of coal was made on the Pacific coast, but the product was exceedingly poor in quality. Shortly later coal was located at Nanaimo, on Vancouver island. During the early days of mining in this district, the coal was mined from the beach only, but as the vein ran out under the bed of the ocean, it was decided to follow it. A shaft, now known as "No. 1 shaft," was sunk near the shore line to a depth of about 700 feet.

Work was started on the "under-sea" mine in 1881, but the preliminary work was not completed until two years later, so that it was in 1885 that the mine became a shipper of coal. From the latter date until the present this mine has been in continuous operation, with the exception of two short periods. The first suspension was caused by a mine explosion in which nearly 100 lives were lost. The second arose from labor troubles which terminated in a general strike. For more than 25 years the output of this single mine has been more than 400,000 tons a year. The mine has shipped more than 8,000,000 tons of coal. In addition, acres upon acres of sea have been reclaimed, and made into valuable building plots for industry and homes by dumping the waste rock from the mine along the ocean front.

TURN FIREFLY TO ACCOUNT

How the Natural Light of the Insect Is Utilized by Indians of the Antilles.

In Cuba and other islands of the Caribbean region there is a species of firefly so brilliantly luminous that pre-Columbian Indians used them for lantern lights, imprisoning them for the purpose in perforated gourds.

Cuban negroes still utilize them in the same way, confining a few of the insects in an ordinary glass lantern, which may be conveniently hung up in the hut or carried about on dark nights.

The Indians of the Antilles, long ago, made another use of the firefly lanterns, employing them for signaling. One great advantage they had was that their light could not be blown out by wind or put out by rain; and, with a sort of Morse code, the phototelegraphy was an exceedingly efficient means of sending messages distributing warnings of danger far and wide.

On occasions of nocturnal outdoor festivity in Cuba it is a common thing for ladies to adorn their gowns with these brilliant fireflies, which glow more brightly than any gems.

The eggs laid by the insects are luminous, the firefly's light being thus handed down without extinguishment from generation to generation, each one passing the torch along, as it were, to the next.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

How to Kill Weeds.

Any weed, no matter how big, may be killed by a method described by St. Leonard Bastin in the Scientific American, as follows:

Cut off the top growth down to the ground. Then scoop out the central stalk as much as possible and fill the little cavity with salt. If possible, do this in dry weather. When rain occurs and the salt dissolves, quickly place a fresh amount on the root. At the end of three days (if the salt has not been washed away) it will have penetrated to every part of the root and the weed will never give any more trouble.

In the case of dandelions growing in clumps, the hollow should be made large enough to permit the salt to seep down into the various roots.

Salt will easily kill grass; so particular pains should be taken not to spill when working upon the weeds.

Why Germany Is Depressed.

According to returns from 32 trades unions in Germany, covering in the aggregate 4,256,398 members, 110,626 (2.6 per cent) were out of employment at the end of October, 1919, as compared with 2.2 per cent in September of the same year and 0.7 per cent in October, 1918. Unemployment among men increased from 1.7 per cent in September to 2.3 per cent in October chiefly in consequence of the suspension of building operations and the unsuccessful strike of the Berlin metal workers. Among women, unemployment decreased from 4.1 per cent in September to 3.9 per cent in October, principally on account of the improvement in the textile industry.

How New Zealand Reforests.

New Zealand is reforesting with larch trees an extensive area that was devastated by a volcano a quarter of a century ago.

IN SAD BUT LOVING REMEMBRANCE of our Dear Mother, Mary J. Trimmer, who sweetly fell asleep in Jesus 1 year ago, August 23, 1919.

A happy home I once enjoyed, How sweet the memory still, But death has left a vacant chair, The world can never fill.

Oh, mother thy gentle voice is gone, Thy warm, true heart is still, And on thy pale and peaceful face, Is resting death's cold chill.

By her Daughter, MRS. THOMAS BERRY.

Alone our mother traveled far Through death and sickness to the star That shines upon the golden stair, When everlasting life is there.

To meet her Saviour on the strand, When Angels took her by the hand, Alone, oh, no she's not alone, For Jesus claims her as his own.

By her Daughter, MRS. NORMAN REAVER.

Rest on dear mother thy labor's o'er, Thy willing hands will tell no more, A faithful mother both true and kind, A truer mother you could not find.

Yes we miss you, oh how we miss you, When we see your vacant chair, But how sad the hour without you, For there is no mother there.

By her Daughters, GRACE, ELLA, CORA and LILLIE.

HOW

IMPRISONED BEAR DEALT WITH THREATENED FLOOD.

How intelligent a bear may be is well illustrated by an account published by M. Baudouin in the Bulletin of the French Societe Nationale d'Acclimatation of a brown specimen that lives in the Jardin des Plantes, Paris.

The bear had noticed that whenever there was a heavy fall of rain the lower part of his den was flooded and the orifice by which the water flowed out was obstructed. Whenever this happened he profited by the occasion to take a good bath. This finished, he used to go to the outlet and scrape away the debris that had stopped it up, until the water flowed out and his home was dry. But once, in an exceptionally heavy flood, the water rose through the hole from outside. The bear tried his usual method of getting rid of the water, but, finding this useless, sat down to think over the new situation.

Presently an idea came to him. A lot of rocks had been thrown into his den in an effort to raise the level of the floor and give him dry quarters. He studied these rocks attentively, and then began carrying them one by one to the place where the water was entering. He tried with these stones to build a dam against the increasing water. After the water receded it was discovered that the bear had placed twenty rocks, weighing from twenty to forty pounds each.

COYOTES AND KITTENS PLAY

How the Result of Cat's Adoption of Wild Cubs Seems to Be Worked Out.

In addition to an already large family of kittens, a cat which belongs to the M. Brent family of South Fork has adopted two coyote puppies.

Several weeks ago when W. W. Buckbee and R. H. Carter, who live near the Brent farm, found the den of a coyote on the latter's place they captured several very small coyote puppies, says a western newspaper. When shown at the Brent farmhouse some of the children wanted the little coyotes and paid their captors for two of them.

The little coyotes were placed among the kittens belonging to the old family cat and after a careful scrutiny and a few sniffs, the old cat began mothering them the same as her own kittens.

Now the cat's family of kittens and the two adopted coyote puppies are nearly two months old and all live together happily and appear to be making the most of life. The coyotes are getting much bigger than the kittens and are playful and mischievous. In the rough-and-tumble tussles they are continually staging the coyotes are stronger, but the kittens are more active, so it is about an even match as yet. While the coyotes can easily wallop the kittens on a straight-out fight, yet the latter, when on the defensive, will curl up on their backs and keep the coyote puppies at bay by the rapid kicks of hind legs and the scratching of their sharp claws.—Exchange.

How Tides Will Be Harnessed.

An attempt is to be made to harness the tides at the mouths of several British rivers, using the power thus obtained to generate electricity. The engineers who are making the plans estimate that the electricity will be obtained at only two-thirds the cost of electric power generated by coal.

The basic principle underlying most of the inventions for harnessing the tides is the working of a turbine by tidal ebb and flow. The tide makes the power at both its inflow and its outflow, only ceasing for a comparatively short time during the period of half tide. In one Cheshire and Lancashire district the great variation in the hour of the tide at neighboring estuaries makes possible, through an ingenious discovery, the production of maximum energy during an almost continuous period.

How Pavement Was Repaired.

Special precautions have been taken in the repair of a wooden block pavement that was laid last year at St. Louis beneath a fervid Missouri sun. The blocks, somewhat too green, began to shrink, and joints less than a quarter-inch wide expanded to one-half inch. The pitch filler melted and looser block were floating like debris in an asphalt lake.

To reconstruct the pavement the blocks were driven tightly together, a fine mineral filler was forced to the bottom of the joints, a type of pitch was chosen that showed high melting points, and, after the pavement was again laid, it was shielded temporarily from direct solar heat with a coating of wet sand.

How to Get Through Work.

When it happens that you have need of doing things about which, since they appear to you in your sloth to be many and difficult, you begin to be weary, begin, nevertheless, bravely and quietly, with one, as if there were not another to do. For, by doing this diligently, you will come to do all with far less fatigue than that which in your sloth seemed to be before you.—Lorenzo Scupoli.

REALLY NO GREAT MYSTERY

Though at First It Did Seem Remarkable Where Those Boy Scouts Were Coming From.

Now there are boy scout stunts and boy scout stunts, but it took a Terre Haute troop to put over the best one. It was at a meet at the First Baptist church, and they were illustrating an early morning at their summer camp, Kinneunapoose. The scenery, except for a small pup tent, was the regular church furniture. But still the audience could stretch its imagination enough to make the scene effective.

The first streak of dawn was announced, and then slowly there emerged from the pup tent a yawning, stretching scout. A wee interval, and another followed him. Another lapse of time, and another scout emerged from the tent. Then came others until there were 12 on the platform, and still others were coming. The audience was almost incredulous with amazement, for, as every one knows, a pup tent is so small that it cannot accommodate more than three boys at the limit.

Then out started the thirteenth, and evidently he was too sleepy, for he jostled the tent so that it slipped away from its mooring, and there back of it was the entrance to the pool for baptism. The youngsters had been concealed in it and used the tent merely as an entry to the platform.—Indianapolis News.

Britain's Oldest Possessions.

The Channel Islands (Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney and Sark are the chief) are the oldest possessions of Great Britain. They were formerly an appanage of the duchy of Normandy and were united to the English crown after the Norman conquest of England by William of Normandy, in 1066. The inhabitants of the Channel Islands preferred to remain subjects of King John at the period of the conquest of Normandy by Philip Augustus, 1180-1223. To King John it has been usual to ascribe a document at one time reverted to by the Channel Island people as their Magna Charta; but modern critics have cast very grave doubts on its authenticity. Almost every war with France included a descent on the Channel Islands, but all to no avail. The people, about 96,000 in number, adhere to their old customs, and within well-defined limits make their own laws. They are not bound by acts of the imperial parliament unless specially named in them.

ONE ROMANCE TO ORDER

By EVERALD J. APPLETON

(Copyright.)

Mary Eleanor Edith waited; wearily, yawning, shifting from one foot to the other, watching the busy electric fans—in preference to the uninteresting human beings that filled the room. Ahead of her were numerous other young lunkers; behind her were more. Presently she reached the counter on which were piled black and battered tin trays.

Her small, perspiring palm held an unpunched lunch-check, and Mary Eleanor Edith's eyes scanned automatically the familiar bill of fare printed on the wall.

Day after day she waited for a tray, named the food she could afford, but did not want.

Automatically she ate; automatically she would return to the factory. Her whole life was as methodical and automatic as a folding machine! Nothing ever really happened. Mary Eleanor Edith longed for unreal adventures, and she expressed it thus:

"Gee, don't this job give a girl the willies?"

Suddenly the man in front of her lurched forward. Mary Eleanor Edith caught at his arm. He regained his balance, looked accusingly at the bit of potato on which he had slipped, and turned a reddening but smiling face upon her.

"Thanks," said he, though she had merely pinched his arm when she grabbed at him.

"How's the real today, Belle?"

"Tough," mumbled Belle, glancing covertly in the cashier's direction.

"Same old thing, then," Mary Eleanor Edith sighed; "but gimme a piece of coconut pie for a vacation!"

Not until she had flicked a napkin off the pile in the center of the table and on it wiped the knife, fork and spoon, did she look up—and into the frank blue eyes of the man who had slipped.

"Kinder drift together, don't we?" he commented easily, stirring his coffee industriously. "Come here regularly?"

Mary Eleanor sawed at her sandwich. "Don't get new," she advised crisply.

Be bristled. "You should worry! I'm no chicken-thief. Can't I thank you for saving me from busting my head, though?" Mary Eleanor Edith frowned.

"Maybe it ought to 'a' been busted," she offered.

They ate in strained silence for five minutes. Then putting both hands on the edge of the table, he pushed back and spoke.

"Say—and there was honesty in his tones as well as in his eyes—"you look tired. I bet you are tired. Sick to death of your job, whatever it is. Would give a week's wages for a sure-nough adventure. So'd I. There wasn't any run for me at the car-barn today—I'm a sub-conductor—so I got my old job without pay. I'm goin' to a movie show, and maybe to the White City afterward. I gotta report again at seven o'clock this evening. What do you say?"

"You don't have to report to me!" retorted Mary Eleanor Edith; "what've I gotta do with it?"

"I wondered," he returned, "if you wouldn't go with me?"

"On the level?"

"Sure! Come on and pretend we know each other, anyway. It'll be a change."

"I'll go," said she. Then "be three of them—Mary Eleanor Edith, Romance, and the frank-faced young man—passed out into the crowded street and the smoke-impregnated sunshine and heat of the city.

Mary Eleanor Edith, clinging desperately to the hand of Romance, murmured: "Wonder what th' bunch at the hindery'll think—"

"Will they fire you?" he asked. She nodded.

"I guess so, but I don't care."

"I know how you feel," he comforted her. "And there's other jobs."

They had reached the picture theater, and he caught her elbow respectfully. "Here's where we start," he whispered, laying down his money for the tickets. "Two!"

Two of the three reels—all "first runs" and "real thrillers"—had flickered their way through, when a commotion down the aisle drew their attention away.

"Fire!" shrieked a voice, and Mary Eleanor Edith stood up. The sub pulled her down again. "Sit still—it's only a fight!" he ordered. "If they rush, it is safer here than in the aisle."

They rushed, and when Mary Eleanor Edith could see again she was looking up into the homely face of the sub, whose body had unwittingly protected her from the senseless panic. Her hand was cut and bleeding, but that was all.

"The rummy that stepped on you—I'd kill him if I had the chance!" breathed her protector heavily.

"And get pinched!" she added, "I seen his face," continued the other, "and I'd know him again, all right—all right. He had a scar on his chin and cheek, his mustache was red—"

"And he had a fierce green hecktie, with a piece o' ice in it as big as my thumb," supplemented Mary Eleanor Edith.

"Yeh!" said he. "Did you see him?"

"Nope," she returned thoughtfully; "but that was him, all right—the foreman of our room. So that's where he's been spending his time pretending he was out getting new ideas about the work."

Suddenly the sub turned into the alley where numerous motorcars were parked.

Nearly all of them bore the red cross, and even as he hurried her into one of them, she sensed the fact that he was preparing to kidnap both a girl and a machine.

She sat still and held onto her hat as they drove out of the city and in the direction of that dreamlike garden of enchantment, the White City.

"I thought you said you was a substitute conductor," observed the kidnapped lady as she leaned back comfortably. "Was that just some of the romance?"

"Who wants to know?" he asked calmly. "If we're pinched, the less you know about me the better, ain't it?"

"But this machine?"

He placed one hand on hers. "Nix on the worry," he answered. "You're here to enjoy yourself; if there's any fines to pay, I'm it. Do you get me?"

"You are white," she said at last. He could not hear her so she repeated it in his ear and he grinned.

"When we get there," she decided "it'll be Dutch treat, anyway."

When they reached the White City he did not abandon the car, as she half-way expected. While he was parking it she watched him with unassuming interest.

"Gee," she frankly commented, "you gotta nerve! What if the owner sees it?"

Slowly, solemnly, he winked.

"Maybe a little white chalk can change a license number—long enough for a getaway," he suggested. "Anyway, don't you expect some nerve to go with this kind of a map?"

Mary Eleanor Edith gazed steadily at his face.

"You ain't no Gibson man, for a fact," she acknowledged, "but I'm satisfied with it."

As the factory whistles were blowing six o'clock Mary Eleanor Edith put the last bit of sticky pop-corn ball into her mouth.

"I don't know who you are," she said, "and I don't care. You've give me a sure-enough picnic-day—and I feel like getting back to work again. If you get into trouble about the auto, will you come over to—"

He held up a remonstrating hand. "I won't have trouble," he reassured her; "you seen me put it back where it come from."

"Well," she went on, "I sure thank you for the ride and the movie. I paid for all the rest—my share—didn't I?"

"You'd order let me—" he began. But she laughed, and he noted the ring of happiness in it. "It was a bargain, remember," she returned. "I'll all went into our adventure-day."

"Right you are," said he warmly. "Good-by, Mary Eleanor!"

"Good-by, sub!" said she, disappearing in the street car. "I'm glad I ran off," she thought. "I'm glad!"

"Mary Eleanor E-d-u-th!"

Mary Eleanor Edith swallowed quickly as she squared her shoulders. "Yessum!" said she; "what is it, maw?"

"Guess where me and Mrs. Yeager went today."

"How should I know?" queried her daughter evasively.

"Well, we went out for adventure. That's what we called it—though I'd term it just a picnic. We went to the White City, and we saw—"

Mary Eleanor Edith swallowed again and more quickly, her heart hammering tumultuously in her thin chest.

"We saw you there. What in the name of sense did you quit your job for? Or was you just off?"

"I was just off," replied her daughter, gulping. "I was tired and I needed something—something different. I'm going back tomorrow."

Her mother's eyes narrowed.

"How do you know they'll take you back?"

Mary Eleanor Edith's imagination pictured the foreman when she told him of the moving-picture affair.

"Oh," she hazarded easily, "I guess they will, all right!"

What was coming next?

Her mother rocked a few moments, while Mary Eleanor Edith rearranged her tumbled hair. Then:

"You had a right to tell me you and Mrs. Yeager's nephew, Will, was acquainted. She see him and you out there today, just as we was going out."

"He ain't got a steady job, so—so we just went for a little outing," temporized her daughter.

"Steady job?" repeated her mother. "Well, if running Doctor Wright's automobile for two years, with never an accident, ain't steady, I want to hear what is?"

Doctor Wright's chauffeur? Not a substitute street railroad man? Mary Eleanor Edith's castle of romance shivered to its foundations. Then it was all put on—all pretended. But it was for her amusement he had done it.

Her mother was speaking again.

"Mrs. Yeager says he's a good boy, born and raised right here in the city—and just crazy to get out in the country and do farm work. I guess he's right nice, but she says he's slow."

Mary Eleanor Edith's eyes were looking straight through the wall at her mother's back.

"Oh," said she, biting her lower lip joyously and holding an about-to-be-darned stocking at arm's length, "he ain't so awful slow!"

WHEREVER you have linoleum, congoeum or oilcloth in your home, varnish it with Valspar.

You will be delighted with the result. The Valspar will not only brighten it up, but will make it last a great deal longer because it will take much of the surface wear and absolutely prevent the penetration of moisture.

And beware of this: Don't be led into using any ordinary varnish on linoleum. You must have the washable, waterproof varnish that will not turn white—Valspar!

DAVID'S PRAYER FOR PARDON.

LESSON TEXT—Ps. 51:1-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—Wash me thoroughly from mine iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin.—Ps. 51:2.
ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—II Sam. 11, 12.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Asking God to Forgive Us.
JUNIOR TOPIC—How David Obtained Forgiveness.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—
What to Do When We Have Done Wrong.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Penitential Prayer in Christian Experience.

There can scarcely be any doubt but what the sin here meant is that which we studied last Sunday, namely, adultery and murder (see II Sam. 11 and 12). About a year had elapsed from the time of David's sin to his repentance. The Thirty-second Psalm graphically pictures David's state of soul during this time. It was a year of great soul-anguish; day and night he was lashed by a guilty conscience. In this psalm we see the path by which a guilty soul may return to God.

I. David's Cry for Pardon (vv. 1, 2).
It is well to note his conception of God. He saw him as a God of mercy and loving kindness.

1. "Have mercy" (v. 1). He knew that justice would forever separate him from God. Because he saw the mercy and loving kindness of God, he did not sink down under his weight of gloom and despair. Because Judas Ischariot did not see God as a God of mercy he went out and hanged himself.

2. "Blot out my transgressions"
(v. 1). He was fully conscious how many had been his acts of rebellion against God.

3. "Wash me from my iniquity" (v.
2). He knew that it was not enough to have God blot out his sin, for his very person was defiled. He knew that in order to be clean he must be washed thoroughly, and that by God himself.

4. "Cleanse me from my sin" (v. 2).
He was not clear that washing would make him clean, so he pleads with God to make him clean by whatever process is needed. He was even willing for fire to be applied, just so he could be clean.

II. David's Confession (vv. 3-5).

1. "I acknowledge my transgressions"
(v. 3). He now makes a clean breast of them—he would hold back nothing.
There is no way to peace with God but by a full confession of sin.
No half-hearted dealing with sin will avail.

2. "Against thee have I done this evil" (v. 4). All sin is vitally and really against God. All our wrongdoing, with our fellows is against God, for such deeds violate his laws. To heighten all this guilt he remembers that it was done in God's sight, thus showing disrespect and contempt for him.

3. "Behold, I was shapen in iniquity" (v. 5). He confesses not only to these acts of sin, but that he is by very nature a sinner.

III. David's Cry for Deliverance
(vv. 6-9).

1. "Make me to know wisdom" (v.
6). He asked God that instead of heart wickedness he might be taught by God himself in his inmost nature.

2. "Purge me with hyssop" (v. 7).
David seems to see that in order to be cleansed there is need of applying atonement blood. His prayer soars aloft on the wings of faith to the supreme sin offering, Christ.

3. Restoration (vv. 8, 9). He not only wants pardon, but restoration to the divine favor in Jesus Christ.

IV. David's Cry for Purity of Heart
(vv. 10-12).

He realized that if his life was to be different, God must dispose his heart toward the right, so he cried for the Holy Spirit to not be taken away from him.

V. David's Vows (vv. 13-17).

1. To tell God's mercies to others
(v. 13). The one who has experienced God's forgiveness at once desires to tell it to others.

2. To sing aloud of God's righteousness (v. 14). He saw that the application of God's mercy and loving kindness was on the ground of righteousness and justice. He had vowed to preach, now he vows to sing.

3. To show forth God's praise (v.
15). When the Lord opens a man's lips, then his lips shall sing his praises.

4. The reason assigned (vv. 16, 17).
It is because the sinner has seen the supreme sacrifice, Christ, and with a contrite heart presents the merits of Christ Jesus, God's remedy for sin.

Mission of Every Christian.

The nearer we approach to God in our spiritual life and fellowship, the larger our sympathies for humanity, and the more universal our ministry in the world. The mission of Christ is the mission of every Christian. He came and lived and died to save the world. The disciple is not better than his Master.—Anon.

An Invincible Armor.

humor forge invincible armor.—Beth

Receiving Praise and Giving It
Romans 1:8, 1 Thessalonians 1:2-10

In the opening verses of the epistle to the Romans, Paul introduces himself as a servant of Jesus Christ.
In verses 8-16 the qualifications for service are mentioned. The first of these qualifications is in the eighth verse, the one chosen for our Scripture lesson. It is the quality of thankfulness. Paul thanks God for the faith of the Christian believers in Rome, and in doing this he incidentally bestows praise upon the body of believers in that city. (They lacked some things as verse 11 clearly indicates, but their faith was of the right kind. It stood in the power of God and led to a life of good works. For this the Apostle rejoices, giving thanks to God and commending the people.)

This same trait and disposition of the Apostle is seen in the other Scripture reference (1 Thess. 1:2-10), where he bestows praise for stead-fastness and exemplary living. The believers in Thessalonica had withstood trials and persecutions of various kinds. Faith, hope, and love had overcome all obstacles. Their fidelity was such that they became an example to the other churches in that whole region. This made Paul's heart rejoice so that he again thanks
God and commends the church.

The example of the Apostle in bestowing praise where it is deserved needs to be pondered and practiced.
People work best under the inspiration of praise when it is deserved. It encourages them to greater efforts.
If given when not deserved, it is simply deceit or flattery and the result is harmful.

There are many ways in which this principle of expressing gratitude and giving praise when due, may be put into operation in our societies. When help is received from any one, acknowledge it, whether it be from the leader of the meeting or from some other one who takes part in word or song. Let those who really help receive the thanks or commendation of those who are helped. Older people especially might well practice the habit of commending others who are faithful to any work committed to their trust. No better stimulus can be provided for lifting the work of the society to a still higher plane.

Another place where this principle of giving praise should be adopted is the home. Parents with children and children with each other should practice this. It is the best antidote for the little jealousies that often mar the home life. Again in school and at the daily work this same principle when put into operation blesses and beautifies. But it requires the grace of God in order to practice this.
Human nature is self-centered and loves not so much to give as to receive praise. Here, as in other departments of life, it is better to give than to receive. The spirit of Christ dwelling within will enable us to give praise to others when it is deserved, to be humble when praise is received,
and to be content even when well earned praise is withheld from us.
The true Christian learns of Him who was "meek and lowly in heart" and thus learning, finds rest of soul.

How Sounds Travel.

A prevalent impression has been that explosive sounds travel much farther than ordinary sounds, with a velocity of several times the normal.
The experiments of Dr. D. C. Miller at Sandy Hook proving ground have shown that the velocity at 100 feet from a ten-inch gun is about 1,240 feet per second, or 22 per cent above normal; at 200 feet from the gun, only 5 per cent above normal; and at all distances greater than 500 feet the velocity of the explosive sound from the largest gun is practically normal.
The tests were made by sensitive microphones at the muzzle, and at distances of 100, 200, 300, 400, 500, 600, 1,000, 2,000, 7,500 and 21,000 feet, the records of six of these stations being taken simultaneously by a special moving film camera and a string galvanometer.

How Women Took Seals.

Newfoundland women of the little fishing village of Tilt Cove are the pride of the bay. The wife of the lightkeeper on Gull Island saw signs of a herd of seal floating on the ice, sent word ashore to the women of Tilt Cove and marshalled them into sealing crews. They went in boats, armed with clubs and gaffs, and climbing on the ice cakes, set out to round up a catch. They found the seals sprawled on all sides, and learned later that they had struck the main patch, the hope of all seal hunters.
The women went about their work with vim and had captured or killed 100 seals when approaching nightfall compelled them to cease their labors and make their catch secure.

How to Waterproof Tents.

A solution of paraffin and gasoline is recommended as a simple and cheap process for waterproofing cloth for tents. Mix in the proportion of one pound of paraffin, melted, to one gallon of gasoline. Stir well and immerse the cloth. Allow to stand, away from buildings or danger of fire, until the gasoline has evaporated. The paraffin will permeate the cloth as the gasoline evaporates, rendering the cloth im-permeable to moisture. Coarse unbleached muslin is recommended in preference to cloth of finer texture, as the former permits better absorption of the paraffin.

How to Measure Tree's Growth.

In the New York Botanical garden
a new instrument has been attached to a certain maple tree, attracting the attention of passers-by. This is the "dendrograph"—a delicately adjusted machine which will actually register the rate of growth of a tree—slow as that is! A series of blocks of wood are attached firmly to the tree, and above these a metal "collar" which, however, is in contact with the tree at only two points. A needle projects from one of these, the other end of which traces its movements upon a slowly revolving paper "drum." Once a week this paper is replaced by a fresh sheet and the clockwork wound up; otherwise the machine is self-regulating and needs no attention. The growth or expansion of the tree is shown by the needle.

The instrument was devised by Dr.
L. T. MacDougal, formerly director of laboratories at the New York Botanical garden, and now director of the botanical research department of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.
The dendrograph is one of a number of instruments which are being used this year to measure growth phenomena.—Leslie's Weekly.

How Movies Are Triumphing.

Mexico, we read in current dispatches, has decided to lift the heavy censorship from the movies and to foster the enterprise in every way. There seems to be no stopping the triumphant march of the movie stars. Not long ago we read that Devonshire House, the famous rendezvous of the Whigs in London, had fallen before the cinema.
The Alhambra and the Empire, famous music halls, are to go, too. England and the Continent appear to be as wild for the screen as we are here. All doors are opening to it. Not long ago the conservative Vatican sanctioned the picturing of an important religious function. Great are the movies!—Phi-adelphia Record.

Are You Behind the Times?

The prairie schooner served a purpose in its day, but it had to give place to the transcontinental railroad.

In the same way laxatives and purgatives are giving place to Nujol in the treatment of constipation. These drugs give but slight relief and they invariably leave a condition worse than the original ailment.

In evolving the Nujol treatment science has solved the constipation problem for millions of people.

Nujol works on an entirely new principle.

Instead of forcing or irritating the system, it simply softens the food waste. This enables the many tiny muscles in the walls of the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along so that it passes naturally out of the system.

Nujol thus prevents constipation because it helps Nature maintain easy, thorough bowel evacuation at regular intervals—the healthiest habit in the world.

Nujol is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take. Try it.

Nujol is sold by all druggists in sealed bottles only, bearing Nujol Trade Mark. Write booklet "Thirty Feet of Danger."

After special cornet and piano music, the guests were invited to the table, sumptuously filled with all good things of the season. Immediately after dinner many of the guests were called on for toasts, with the host, Mr. D. W. Garner, acting as toast-master. At a meeting of the Basehoar brothers and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. MY DISTRICT AND ME.

(For the Record.) The time set for the unveiling and dedication of the monument now being erected in Taneytown, in honor of our boys in the service during the world war, is almost upon us. The citizens of the district may justly feel a glow of satisfaction—their boys "went over the top"—so—they themselves have not been laggards in placing a "stone of remembrance" for the enlightenment of future generations. It seems at first to be a commonplace thing—an unwieldy piece of granite, bearing a plate of bronze—but on examination it becomes something fraught with much of meaning. I am sure there is not in the whole district one human being who will not feel left out, if he or she has not put some offering, however small, into this memorial, for I too believe that there "breathes no one with soul so dead, who never to himself has said, this is my own, my native land." The fact that we cannot be good citizens of our country unless we are true to the State, the county, and our own home district is too evident to need even this passing suggestion. The Monument will not stand sentinel, to remind those who "came back" of the horrors of their experience, but it will keep in our memory those who did not "come back." Forcibly reminding us that the privilege of citizenship entails responsibilities.

Good Fruit Crop in Maryland.

The Aug. 15th fruit crop report, as issued by S. B. Shaw, Sec'y of the Md. Horticultural Society in co-operation with the Extension Service of the University of Maryland and the Bureau of Crop Estimates of the U. S. Dept. of Ag., indicates that from present prospects the commercial crop of Maryland's apples will be 433,000 barrels. Indications point to 75% of a crop as compared with the 10 year average of 62%. The only section of the State which has not shown an increase over the July 15th condition is District No. 6, comprising Queen Anne, Caroline, Talbot and Dorchester counties, where there appears to be a decrease of 13.3% from last month's estimate.

From reports which have been received from individuals in different counties, York Imperials, Ben Davis and Grimes Golden seem to be leading in the point of production. In some few sections a small amount of injury has resulted from local hail storms, but in general, prospects are excellent for a good crop.

There does not seem to be so much evidence of scab or other trouble this year, as last. In most of the orchards, these troubles have been held pretty well in check by proper cultural methods.

The prospect for peaches is 70% of a crop as compared with the 10 year average of 62%. This means that from present estimates there will be 857,000 bushels of peaches produced as a commercial crop. In some sections fruit has been damaged by brown rot and dry weather conditions, but in orchards which have been thoroughly sprayed and carefully cultivated crops are developing nicely.

USE THE WATCH AS COMPASS

How the Timepiece May Be Employed If One Should Lose His Way in the Woods.

What would you do to find your way if you were lost in a forest without a compass?

F. C. Armstrong, sportsman's representative of the Canadian National railway at Cochrane, Ont., in the heart of the summer tourist camping and fishing country, asked the question. How would you tell north from south, east from west? Remember that in the summer months the sun does not rise in the east or set in the west. How, then, would you orientate yourself? It's easy if you know how.

"Lay your watch flat, face upward," said Armstrong. "Point the hour hand at the sun. The south will be at a point half way between the hour hand and the figure 12 as the hands turn in the morning and backward in the afternoon."

So if you go after muskellunge this summer in the Rainy lake or Lake of the Woods region, be certain to take your watch with you.—Port Arthur (Ont.) Dispatch.

Why "Yellow-Backs" Have Gone.

Fathers who used to be warned against the evil effects of stories dealing with Jesse James and other bandits now furnish the money so their own boys can go to the movies and see actual reproductions of all sorts of crimes. The motion picture art is worthy of higher subjects than these. Unless the reform begins from the inside, the outside influences, as Mr. Pinkerton suggests, will be forced to make the initial move.—Indianapolis News.

NAPKINS NOT JUST SUITABLE

But Man Meant Well, and Fortunately the Teachers Had a Sense of Humor.

The parents of the pupils of a large Indiana ward school decided to give the teachers a surprise dinner party. Accordingly they took charge of the building one evening, herded the teachers in one room and made ready the table for the dinner. But just as everybody was about ready they found that they had forgotten napkins. One of the hostesses accordingly telephoned her husband who worked in a department store. "The colors are pink and white and bring something appropriate," she told him.

He bought them—pink and white. But when they were opened they displayed storks holding in their mouths the time-honored new babies. The hostesses were horror-stricken but the teachers, ready to grasp the awkwardness of the situation, led in laughter. But that man says that he will move out of that school district before there is another banquet for teachers.—Indianapolis News.
