WILL MARYLAND WOMEN VOTE AT COMING ELECTION?

An Extra Session Needed to Supply Necessary Opportunity.

As the Record has frequently stated, the possibility of all women qualifying for the privilege of voting, this year, is remote, owing to lack of time for registering, the furnishing of double election day equipment, and changes in the election methods which are now adequate for only the normal registered vote.

The big question is being discussed by officials and leaders, and the opinion is that without the calling of a special session of the legislature, but a comparatively small number of women voters will be able to exercise their privilege this year—assuming that the Constitutional amendment is legally announced to be in force.

There are but two days for registration in the counties, outside of Baltimore city, and this time will be partly taken up with the registration of men.

At a conference held at the office of the Governor, this week, the whole matter was gone over, the opposition to a special session being general, on account of the expense, and for other reasons.

Senator Smith expressed himself as being in favor of anything that would offer adequate facilities for the registration and the voting of the white women of the State. He said that now that woman suffrage is practically certain it was the duty of Maryland to do everything in its power to offer the white women of Maryland full opportunity for exercising their newly acquired right.

Among those who participated in the conference, other than Senator Smith, were Carville D. Benson, J. Enos Ray, of Prince George's county; Joseph D. Harrington, of Talbot; John F. O'Malley, of Howard; E. O. Weant, of Carroll; James E. Hubbert, clerk to the Board of Election Supervisors; Ogle Marbury and Secretary of State Perlman. All of these including the Governor, said they would investigate the situation further and that another conference might be held in a short time if a better line on the condition could be had.

Another subject that came up for discussion was the effect that the Declaration of Intentions act of 1902 would have on the new voters. It was agreed that, under Attorney-General Armstrong's ruling, it would probably result in the disfranchisement of every woman from another State who was married to a Maryland man since 1902 and was brought to Maryland to live, provided she was of age when she was married.

It would also disfranchise the wives of men who have come into the State from other States as a result of the tremendous industrial development in and around Baltimore. The husbands of these women have in large numbers become voters by the declaration of intention to become citizens, but their wives naturally have made no such declaration. Another class who would be disfranchised would be the large number of women who have come here to take positions in the industries and in the business of Baltimore since the war began.

The tomato crop of the Eastern Shore is in a bad plight, with the prospects of the most of the crop being abandoned in the fields. Most of the farmers are holding out for 40c a basket, while some are selling at 30c and 35c. It is claimed that the cost of growing is 50c.

Chairman Galen L. Tait, of the Republican State Central Committee, who is the closest man politically in the State to O. E. Weller, the Republican candidate for Senator against Senator Smith, has made a plea for an extra session. Mr. Tait wants not only additional registration days for the women, but repeal of the Declaration of Intention act and of other measures, for which the Republicans long have been fighting.

"It is not sufficient merely to provide extra days of registration, although they are badly needed," he said. "The women of our State should demand and the Republican party backs them in the demand for the repeal of the Declaration of Intention act, the Affidavit of Removal act, and the amendment of the Election law so as to provide a fair, simple ballot. It is high time that the many absurd rules respecting the marking and the casting of the ballots should be abolished. Under the present restrictive system, imposed through Democratic legislation, thousands of ballots are thrown out at every election and the real will of the people thereby denied."

Killed by an Automobile.

Estee R. Kiser, of Harney, while crossing Penna. Ave., Baltimore, on Monday, in his auto, struck a colored girl, Mary Elizabeth Cole, aged 11 years, and threw her to the ground, fatally injured. She was picked up by Mr. Kiser and taken to Franklin Square Hospital, where she died shortly after. Mr. Kiser was given a hearing, on Wednesday, and was exonerated from all blame in the case.

Emmitsburg is to have a new High School building, the site for the same having been purchased. The erection of the building will depend on the sale of bonds to finance the project.

THE FARMER AND STRIKES

Suppose the Farmer Should Play the General Game?

City labor just now is exercising its constitutional rights by wholesale refusal to work. And while it is tough on business, and embarrassing to city folks, and all that, still about everybody is getting three meals a day, and the babies have their eggs and milk and dad has butter with his cakes, and his three strips of lean bacon.

But say, if the farmer tried the general strike, there would be something to worry over. Suppose Farmer Jones, 2,000,000 of him, on May 1 said: "I have been working 16 hours a day, and not much more than breaking even. I am not appreciated, I am going to rest awhile. 'John, turn the pigs into the woods. 'Bill, turn the horses into the pasture, and let the calves run with the cows."

"Mary, let the hens steal their nests and never mind about the eggs, and we won't bother about milking from now on."

And the plow rusted in the furrow, and the weeds took the grain, the sheep were unshorn, and the beets and the cane kept their sweet juices to themselves, and fruit rotted on the trees, and the trees decayed for lack of sprays, and millions of devouring insects that the farmer had kept from ruining the earth swept over the country.

Not only would the town and city residents soon be hungry, but the nation would suffer for years.

Let the farmers strike for one harvest season and cease their incessant fight against fungus, rodent, scab, mildew, scale, blight, insects, and the fields and meadows and orchards and forests of the country would lie more desolate than the awful ruins of Belgium.

But the farmer has always kept on the job.

No matter whether prices were low or high; whether wool was worth little and cotton less; no matter about cost of fertilizer and seed and labor. No matter whether there was a profusion of it or not, the farmer, all of him, kept right on the job every day in the year, and about every daylight hour in the day.

And about all the appreciation he has had for his faithful effort has been the bewhiskered jests of the cheap urban jokesmith, and the silly slapstick slams of the ham actorette.

And yet the farmer has just as much right to strike as the city worker.

And probably just as much excuse. Only the air of the fields and the breath of the hills breaths a higher sentiment than do the rockbound city streets, and brazen doors of man-made temples to the Great God Cash.

The farmer, as a matter of course, does his duty to those who depend on him for their bread, just as he will mortgage his home to buy feed before he will allow even one aged nag to go hungry.—Ashtabula Democratic Standard.

The Taneytown Soldiers' Memorial.

The program for the unveiling and dedication of the Soldiers' Memorial, in Taneytown, on Labor Day, Tuesday Sept. 6, is being prepared. At this time we can only say that it will be a memorable event, well worth looking forward to. Perhaps next week we will be able to give the program, or a forecast of it.

This Memorial will be the first in this State to be erected, although many towns started like projects, but left them fail for want of proper promotion. Taneytown, and the people of the district, are to be congratulated on putting this worthy effort over, and it remains now for the day of dedication to fittingly end the effort—which it will.

Keep the day and the occasion in mind—Soldiers' Memorial Dedication, in Taneytown, on Labor Day, Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 6.

A Paper Cost Experience.

This week, the Record had the unusual experience of receiving a ton of paper, 800 lbs of which were due on a back order placed last December, and 1200 lbs billed at present price. The bill for the shipment—both lots being the same grade of paper—was like this:

800 lbs at 8 1/2c, $68.00
1200 lbs at 15 1/2c, 186.00

There are likely still some who think $1.50 a year for the Record is "too much," who would likely have a different sort of a "think," if they had such experiences as the above.

Sugar to be Lower in Price.

The papers this week have been telling a story of how there has always been plenty of sugar all the time, in this country; only, it became the object of hysterics by dealers, large and small users, and old supply and demand lost his balance. There were profiteers, both in price, and quantities on hand, and consequently prices got to going where they never should have gone, etc., etc.

We can believe as much of this as we have a mind to, and blame the hysteria on whoever we think best entitled to the blame. Anyway, "they say" that sugar is to come to 15c or less, in the near future; but, we make the guess that the fellows who are caught with the big stocks are not going to knock out the bottom until they must. In the meanwhile, buying only as needed will be good policy.

THE SUFFRAGE PROCLAMATION SIGNED BY COLBY.

Tennessee Ratification Accepted in Spite of Injunctions.

Secretary of State Colby, on Thursday, signed the proclamation announcing the suffrage amendment as the 19th amendment to the Constitution of the United States. The ceremony of signing was private, much to the disappointment of a group of workers from the ranks of the National Woman's party, who desired to make something of a demonstration over it.

This is generally accepted as settling the question. There are a number of legal points that are on their course to the Supreme Court, but these are likely only "last straws" that will be swept away. They are, however, of very great importance, at this time, as long as undecided, as the validity of the election of a President of the United States is involved at the November election; and this being the case, it is to be hoped that settlement of the appeals may be swift and final.

The proclamation recounts the process by which the new Article 19 of the Constitution was presented and ratified, naming the ratifying States, and continues:

"Now, therefore, be it known that I, Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State of the United States, by virtue and in pursuance of Section 205 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, do hereby certify that the amendment aforesaid has become valid to all intents and purposes as a part of the Constitution of the United States."

The Squirrel Law.

Prior to the session of the General Assembly of Md., for 1920, the open season on Squirrels in seven counties of this State was November 10. This caused a sentiment to change the season to November 10, State-wide, as 16 counties had heretofore opened the squirrel season August 25, and closed Oct. 1 and opened again November 10 until December 24. Complaints of numerous mother and young squirrels being killed brought the Legislature about, and the members of the General Assembly passed and had a law enacted which is state-wide and applies to all counties, opening the season on squirrels, Nov. 10 (and in fact all other upland game) and closing January 1, which extends the season on this species of game seven days.

The State Game Warden trusts that the sportsmen of this State will comply with this new law, and not embarrass this Department in prosecuting them, otherwise we will be compelled to issue orders to arrest and prosecute all persons who do not comply with this law.

The dates for the State Convention of the American Legion to be held at Cumberland, have been changed from Sept. 6 and 7, to Sept. 13 and 14. All Posts have not determined upon their delegates, but the number is expected to be about 500.

WOMEN WILL ALMOST DOUBLE THE VOTERS.

26,883,566 Women of Voting Age in U. S. Compared With 29,577,690 Men Eligible.

The following table, estimated for 1920 on the basis of the 1910 census, shows more than 26,000,000 women of voting age in the United States, almost 3,000,000 fewer than the number of men. BANDITS' TRIAL AT FREDERICK Montgomery County Case Granted Change of Venue.

Three of the four automobile bandits charged with robbing the Sandy Spring Bank of over $150,000 in money and negotiable securities and with the murder of Francis M. Halowell, bank director, April 26 last, asked for change of venue when they were brought into the Circuit Court at Rockville, on Tuesday, to be tried before Judge Edward C. Peter.

Detectives and police who brought about the arrests of the men are of the opinion that it was a ruse on the part of the other three men to have Clarence Adams have his case tried first, so that they might get an idea of the evidence which the prosecution has built up against them. The other prisoners are John Kelly, alias Frank Wilson; John W. Mitchell, alias J. W. Connelly, and Joseph ("Gunman Joe") Thomas, also known as Joseph Thomas Pendenghast.

Judge Peter granted the request of the men and named Frederick as the place of trial. At first he refused the request of State's Attorney T. L. Dawson to have Adams tried with the others in Frederick and at the same time, but after an ardent plea on the part of the State's Attorney, the Judge changed the venue in case of Adams also. Judge Peter, in making the ruling in the case of Adams, said that he ordered him tried with the others accused because the trial will take place in the same judicial district as that of Rockville and because of the fact that Montgomery county will be saved a considerable sum of money if all the accused are tried at the same time. It is expected that the trial will take place early in October.

Buy Good Fertilizer.

The County Agent has received a number of inquiries in regards to a fertilizer made from dead animals, etc. Several farmers have also brought in samples. Owing to the low price of $10.00 per ton, the fertilizer has made quite a hit in some sections of the county.

The samples brought in, although not official samples, were sent to the State Chemist at the University of Maryland for examination and analysis. They were tested for ammonia and gave an average of 16% with a value of $1.28 per ton. According to the guarantee on the tag we have a value for all the fertilizing elements at $2.29 per ton for which many are paying $10.00.

It does not pay to use a cheap fertilizer. This fertilizer would require 10 tons to get about as much fertilizing value as is contained in a 1-9-2 which sells for $40.00. Let us compare the value per acre. Using 400 of the 1-9-2 would cost $8.00, while the same fertilizing value in the $10.00 goods would cost the farmer $2.00, besides the extra labor in handling ten times the bulk.

Why not use a high grade fertilizer, then you have little or no filler, less labor and freight? In proportion you pay less per unit of fertility than you do in the cheaper grades. Buy good fertilizer and save money. The County Agent can help you; call on him.

POWER SOUGHT TO DESTROY ALL BONDED LIQUOR

Prohibitionist Will Ask Congress to Act at Next Session.

Washington, Aug. 16.—Federal prohibition officials here have decided to ask Congress to destroy 50,000,000 gallons of liquor stored under bond. Prohibition Commissioner Kramer is convinced that 100 per cent. prohibition cannot be achieved while bonded warehouses, packed to capacity, exist in all sections of the country as continual temptation to law violation. More than $500,000 worth of bonded booze was stolen last week. Most of it was taken by highwaymen who held up trucks in which it was being transported from one warehouse to another. In several cases battles ensued between the highwaymen and the whisky truck guards, with the result that the guards were wounded.

Most of the liquor now being sold illegally in many big cities came out of the bonded warehouses in some mysterious manner, prohibition officials admit. Federal guards are maintained at many of the liquor storage houses. Officials are also finding it almost impossible to prevent the forging and misuse of permits for the purchase of bonded liquor. If the bonded liquor were destroyed this big difficulty would be removed, officials argue. Without liquor in storage anywhere in the country, prohibition enforcement would be a matter only of guarding against smuggling and illegal manufacture or moonshining.

Federal prohibition officials now have no authority to destroy confiscated booze except where law violations are detected. They will put the plan of disposition of the vast stores up to Congress when it convenes in December. This may prove the beginning of a new "wet" and "dry" fight.

It should provide a new test of strength of the opposing forces, which are expected to clash within a few months on the question of modification of the Volstead law.

The bonded liquor is worth at least $250,000,000 or at least $5 a gallon, according to present bootleg prices, but many "drys" point out that the liquor originally cost its owners much less than $5 a gallon. Hundreds of owners bought warehouse certificates, "drys" say, after the States ratified the prohibition amendment. The "drys" contend that the public purse should not be "looted" in this fashion. Under the prohibition laws the liquor may not be exported and its sale may be permitted only for non-beverage purposes. "Drys" say that 25 years must pass if the liquor is to be sold legally for non-beverage purposes. They argue therefore that the whisky has very slight market possibilities and can be worth only a small fraction of what it originally cost to manufacture.

Republican Club Formed.

A Harding and Coolidge, Weller-Blakeney Republican Club was organized in Westminster on Wednesday, with Wm. L. Seabrook, as president, and Theodore F. Brown, secretary. John H. Cunningham, of Westminster, treasurer. Vice-presidents from each district: Taneytown, Preston B. Englar; Uniontown, J. Elmer Myers; Myers, Harvey S. Morelock; Woolery, Calvin R. Chew; Freedom, William Melville; Manchester, John K. Miller; Hampstead, Herbert R. Wooden; Franklin, Thomas A. Barnes; Middleburg, John W. Rentzell; New Windsor, Dr. J. S. Geantly; Union Bridge, Wm. Wood; Mt. Airy, Walter R. Rudy; Berrett, John S. Bushey. Executive committee, one from each district: Taneytown, R. S. McKinney; Uniontown, D. Myers Englar; Myers, Herbert J. Motter; Woolery, Jarratt W. Shauk; Freedom, Walter Frizzell; Manchester, Oscar D. Gilbert; Hampstead, Howard R. Lippy; Franklin, Andrew P. Frizzell; Middleburg, Dr. Roland R. Diller; New Windsor, M. D. Reid; Union Bridge, M. C. Keefer; Mt. Airy, David W. Smith; Berrett, Herbert F. Leatherwood.

At the meeting of the county central committee, preceding the organization of the club, Walter R. Rudy presiding, a resolution was adopted providing for the immediate recognition of the right of women to vote and for the appointment of the county women in each precinct of the county as members of the county central committee, in addition to the three men from each district now constituting the committee. This will increase the working body of the organization to 126.

Pennsylvania Women and Voting.

To vote in November, it will be necessary for the women of Pennsylvania first to be assessed. The assessors will make a special assessment and also will sit in the polling places Aug. 31 and Sept. 1, from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M. and from 6 P. M. to 9 P. M. to make additional assessments and correct the assessment lists.

After being assessed, the women must pay a county tax on or before October 3, unless they own property in their own names. The minimum tax has been placed at 25c.

Patrick Flynn, a coal miner, recently received $264 for two weeks' pay in the mine of the Highland Coal Company, in the Somerset field. It is said this record has never been equaled in that territory. Flynn averages nine hours a day in the pit.

POLES WHIP THE REDS.

Bolshevik Forces Operating Against Warsaw Almost Destroyed.

The news of the past week indicates serious reverses for the Bolshevik forces in their campaign against Poland, just at the climax of apparently big successes for them, in sight of Warsaw, their great objective. The Poles made a big counter drive—likely the last chance—and it has proven to be a great victory, and a rout.

The defeat of the Bolshevik army is reported to be overwhelming. Over 70,000 prisoners have been taken in the retreat, together with vast military supplies. Thousands have been killed, and daily more thousands are falling into the hands of the victorious Poles.

The latest accounts state that the entire army is a mass of fugitives, that still remains unaccounted for. The number killed is estimated at over 40,000. This does not mean that the entire Bolshevik army has been defeated, but only the army operating in the north against Warsaw. There are still three other armies in the field, on other fronts.

Women to Reduce Costs.

Outlines of programs for helping reduce the high cost of living will shortly be received by the Federated Women's Clubs of Maryland. They are to be used by the Clubs in their Fall and Winter work. The outlines have been prepared by Mrs. Eudora Ramsay Richardson, Director of Women's Work in this district for the War Loan Organization, and will be issued in cooperation with Mrs. Francis Sanderson, of Baltimore, thrift chairman of the Federation of Women's Clubs in this State. A study of wise spending and systematic saving featured the work of the federation last year, and is thought to have been largely responsible for the investment in Maryland of $374,000 in government savings securities.

Woman Suffrage a Reality.

Apparently "votes for women" is a fact—at last. If this is matter of congratulation to the men and women of the country, we extend ours; but, we confess to some doubts on the subject. If a mistake has been made, it is one that is going to last a long while, and we are hoping that no worse result may follow than that no improvement in the general character of the electorate will be made and that we will merely deal in larger numbers, larger expense, and longer time awaiting results of counts.

General debate on the subject has ended, and woman voters have had the "last word." Future developments will be interesting in more ways than one, and we make the guess that a good many political leaders will be "kicking themselves" after a while.

In Maryland the census figures (an estimate on the 1910 census) show that there will be 405,200 women qualified to vote, as against 403,900 men. This is a problem for old-timers to figure on. What will it mean for the old parties of the State? Will the best women of the State become disgusted when the scramble comes—and it will come—to get registered and vote? In Baltimore, for instance, is it not conceivable that the negroes and foreign element will be so worked up by the ward leaders, as to make registering and voting a very objectionable process by ladies of refinement and modesty? We will see, later.

On the whole, the biggest change ever dumped into American politics, is to be tried out. Idealism as reality is to present its biggest play ever placed on the American stage. May it prove, not merely popular and a howling success, but a real power for social, moral and political betterment—better men, better women—better laws, better government. It is a big hope, largely based on chance and doubt.

The Political Outlook.

The Editor of the Record has for two weeks met many intellectual, professional and business men, gathered together from several Eastern States. Not politicians, but men interested in big business, and enough interested in politics to make their opinions valuable. We were impressed with their conservatism, reaching almost to the point of lack of enthusiasm. The outstanding note was a deep satisfaction at the approaching end of Wilsonism—it overshadows all other opinions, and prevails among Democrats as well as Republicans.

We heard very few expressions of the shouting sort, for either Harding or Cox. We met several leading Ohio men, and their verdict is "Ohio is uncertain," with the chances favorable to Harding. While there is apparently little of the shouting interest in evidence, the better sort of interest is decidedly present. There will be no small vote, due to lukewarmness. We do not even notice a desire for more enthusiasm. The very quietness of the contest appears to be welcomed, and is considered as a matter of course. There are too many great and serious issues before the country for a brass-band and whooping-up campaign to appear appropriate.

We are impressed with the honest desire of the thinkers of the country to get away from what nearly all call "one-man government." A view that we heard expressed a dozen times, by different men, is, that the main thing to decide between the two candidates is, as to which will name the best cabinet and head the departments of government with the best, the brainiest, the most competent business men.

That is the big thought. That the government must return to the plan of running itself for the whole country. That the unorganized masses must have fearless attorneys in court, and that things generally must be placed on safer road-beds.

There is surprisingly little real interest in "The League" or "A League" of Nations. So far as we could gather, the former practically has no following whatever, and the latter, while much stronger, is not regarded at all in the light of a safe guarantor of the peace of the world, but as an experiment that might be tried, without much harm.

This view is also very prominent; that in the permanent, final settlement of world peace, God must be given vastly more place than heretofore; that appeals made to politics, and to rulers, and to arguments between peoples, means beginning at the wrong end; that christianization of the world—a real revival of the word and preachings of Christ, must be the dominant spirit before man-made plans can produce a panacea for the world's many ills.

Many Women May Be Debarred From Voting.

Chapter 133, Section 29, Acts of 1902, raises a point which may debar many women from exercising their new-gained franchise. This section provides:

All persons who after the passage of the act (March 29, 1902), shall remove into any county of this State or into the city of Baltimore. * * * shall indicate their intent to become citizens and residents of this State by registering their names in a suitable record book to be procured and kept for the purpose by the Clerk of the Circuit Court for the several counties and by the Clerk of the Superior Court of Baltimore city * * * And no person coming into this State from any other State, District or Territory shall be entitled to registration as a legal voter of this State until one year after his intent to become such legal voter shall be thus evidenced.

Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy

This is unquestionably one of the most successful medicines in use for bowel complaints. A few doses of it will cure an ordinary attack of diarrhoea. It has been used in nine epidemics of dysentery with perfect success. It can always be depended upon to give prompt relief in case of colic and cholera morbus. When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take. Every family should keep this remedy at hand.

"Put Rat in Ratification."

A letter from an aged mother to her son, one of the youngest members of the Legislature, gave the deciding vote today. Harry Burn, a Republican from McMinn county, was the Legislator that took the advice of his mother and reached the eleven-hour decision. He looks like a schoolboy. His vote was listed with the opponents of the measures, and Speaker Walker expected it, but as the clerk reached his name he answered "Yes" and made possible a majority.

To the World correspondent today young Burn said: "In regard to suffrage, my mother caused me to take the view I did. I have always been for suffrage as a matter of moral right, but had planned to vote against it, thinking that I would thereby represent a majority of my constituents, I felt that way until I had the letter from my mother, and I changed and voted for it, casting the deciding vote. I expect to stand firm."

Here is the letter that influenced him:

Dear Son—Hurrah, and vote for suffrage and don't keep them in doubt. I notice some of the speeches against the resolution. They are very bitter. I have been watching to see how you stood, but have not noticed anything yet. Don't forget to be a good boy and help Mrs. Catt put Rat in Ratification. Ah, Ah.

YOUR MOTHER.

(Special Nashville, Tenn., Dispatch in the New York World.)

Cured of Stomach Trouble and Constipation.

Rachel Cribley of Beaver Dam, O., was sick for two years with stomach trouble and constipation, taking one medicine after another with only temporary relief. "My neighbor spoke so enthusiastically of Chamberlain's Tablets," she says, "that I procured a bottle of them at our drug store to try. A few days treatment convinced me that they were just what I needed. I continued their use for several weeks and they cured me."

Marriage and Divorce.

In these days when the marriage tie is so lightly tied, and so easily broken, and in view of its sacred relations, we do well to look at it from a Divine, as well as from a legal standpoint.

Upon the sacredness of the marriage relation, and the purity of the home life, rests the prosperity or destruction of the Nation.

The Creator made man male and female. He instituted the union of the sexes in man's purity and innocence in Eden. He blessed their union saying: "Be fruitful and multiply and replenish (fill up the earth again) and subdue it, and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and every living thing that moveth upon the earth." Gen. 1: 28.

Adam pronounced the first marriage ceremony. "Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife, and they shall be one flesh," Gen. 2:23, 24. Jesus confirms this union and contract. "Wherefore they are no more twain (two) but one flesh: what therefore God hath joined together let not man put asunder," Mat. 19: 1-12.

Plurality of wives and concubines has no place in the Divine plan. The first polygamist became a murderer, no doubt through interference and jealousy. Polygamy was permitted by Jehovah, just the same as adultery, theft, and murder, but it is not His will. Polygamy is the outgrowth of the ungodly desires of the flesh. It always has been a failure, because it is inspired by the devil, and contrary to the command of Jehovah Elohim, and repulsive to the innate decency of every true, pure-minded woman.

Because marriage is fraught with such grave responsibilities, and presents eternal consequences, not only to the twain, but to future generations, it is of first importance to know and understand the Divine qualifications and conditions, before the union, so that the union may be valid in God's sight, and that it may be truthfully said: "What God hath joined together let no man put asunder." We are of the opinion that the devil and lust puts many together, and that is at the root for divorce.

The natural and the spiritual world is controlled by unerring and unchanging law. When all the planets and the earth move and work together in harmony, there is order, and one blesses the other. But if the gasses in the bowels of the earth violate the principles of union, there is an upheaval and the destruction of nature.

When man obeys the laws, commandments, statutes and judgments given by an All-wise Creator, for "his good always," then he is under the law of righteousness and enjoys all the privileges of Divine liberty, and receives all the blessings that law was made to confer upon him and his.

But when he rebels and transgresses that law, he is a traitor to God's government, a law breaker, disinherits himself from the promised blessings, and subjects himself to the penalty attached to that law for transgression. And there is no escape, as we all know by our burned fingers, stumped toes, cut hands, financial losses, guilty consciences, sickness, diseases and death. These are all the wages of sin. They are the fruit of lawlessness. For by one man's disobedience sin entered the world, and death by sin, and so death passed upon all men, for all men have sinned.

All who are under law, or in other words, who are subject to the law and obey it, are in the line of blessing. David says: "Great peace have they who love thy law, and they have no stumbling block," because they recognize God's word as their standard for right living.

Now it is not thinkable that an All-wise and loving Creator has left the marriage relation to the caprice, judgment and desires of men and women, without a clearly defined standard, to guide him and her in their choice and actions in the most sacred relations in life.

You will find your guide in the statutes and judgments in Ex., Lev., Deut. If you are wise you will read them before you get married; and just as wise if you will make a practice of reading them after you are married, and make them your rule of practice.

The union must be between male and female. It demands a giving up, and a separation from, the home nest, and from father and mother. There must be physical fitness, and natural as well as spiritual affinity. The bond of union must be love; Isaac loved Rebekah and took her to be his wife. Love is the only oil that can make the matrimonial yoke easy, and its burdens light, and home a foretaste of heaven.

The husband must love his wife, even as Christ loved the Church and gave Himself for it. While the husband is the acknowledged head of the house and family, and the woman as wife and mother, they are to govern and be governed by mutual consent, for "united they stand, and divided they fall."

The wife is not to be the plaything, drudge, kitchen slave and simply the object of his desires, but his helpmate, advisor, counselor, comforter, and strength in every time of trouble, and joy in the height of prosperity. They are to hold each other in the same sacred relations as Christ holds toward His church.

While the wife is to submit herself unto her husband, "as unto the Lord," they are actually to submit themselves one to the other, "in the fear of God." The husband has the more responsible part. Upon his father rests the provision for his family, but their salvation, for he is in the Divine plan to this wife and children, just what Christ is to the individual members of His body—"the Head of the church, and the Saviour of the body." This demands that the husband loves his wife even as his own body; aye, more, "even as Christ loved the church and gave Himself for it." This demands not only his toil and daily sacrifice, but the sacrifice of life itself, if needs be, for their comfort and well being.

It is only by this mutual understanding of the Divine Plan! faithful adherence to the laws governing the marriage relation, and mutual submissive union and self control; that each child will inherit its birthright, and make it a welcome gift of love, and thereby make it possible for the "Father of Spirits" to sanctify and cleanse the marriage relation, and present the family to Himself in love, holy and without blemish.

In marriage like every thing else, man has made void the Commandments of Jehovah by his traditions, customs, commandments and laws, which God says, "are not good;" and we have evidence in the divorce courts every day; and divorces are increasing at an alarming rate, among all classes.

Those whom Jehovah Elohim has joined together are as indissolubly united as the individual members of the Church to the Head—Christ. But it is possible for the individual member of the Church to be tempted, overcome, by the cravings of the flesh, fall away from the faith, and be even a cast away.

Even so, it is just as possible, for a man to be tempted, allured, and overcome in some form or other by uncontrolled ambitions, and fleshly desires, and lose love, and break the marriage bond of union.

An adulterer or adulteress can never marry again.

No man has a Divine right to come between wife and husband, neither has any woman the right to come between the husband and wife, on peril of hellfire and brimstone.

There is only one ground of separation by divorce—adultery. In that case the innocent party may marry again; but the adulterer and adulteress is forever prohibited by the plain word of God, Read Mat. 19: 1 to 9 for yourself. It is also clear that whoever marries either of the wrong doers commits adultery, and will stand condemned at judgment as a law breaker.

There is a release however from the Union, where one or the other violates all the rights of decency, and is inhumanly cruel, selfish; and children would be under the curse, to be born under such diabolical conditions. The Apostle Paul says, in such cases a man may leave his wife or the wife may leave her husband; but neither can marry again. 1 Cor. 7.

It is reported there were 50,000 divorces in the U. S. in 1914 and the rate has largely increased. This lax divorce law gives license for men and women, to rush into marriage without thought, fitness, or adaptability. Indeed it gives place for the most abandoned licentiousness under the guise of honorable relations, only to be released when tired of each other, by the common consent of "incompatibility," and sets them free to lure others into the spider's web of felicitous damnation.

Has Never Seen Their Equal.

"I have used Chamberlain's Tablets for stomach trouble, biliousness and constipation off and on for the past ten years. I have never seen their equal yet. They strengthened my digestion, relieved me of headaches and had a mild pleasant action on my bowels. I take pleasure in recommending them," writes H. D. F. Parmenter, Cridersville, Ohio.

Ancient Chinese Art.

Attention has been called to a notable addition to the treasures of the British museum, in the shape of a colossal Chinese figure in wood. It is sculptured from cleverly jointed blocks, and represents a figure, in a sitting posture, five feet, eight inches in height. It is the first specimen of its kind to be added to the national collections in Great Britain; the date is thought to be from 1126 to 1270 A. D. It is to be hoped that the interest aroused will lead to further study of this branch of art. It is pointed out by a writer in the Burlington Magazine of Art that in Cleveland, O., a competent scholar in connection with the museum is sent to China to study the art and collect suitable art treasures on its behalf.

Cultivating Edible Bamboo.

The Japanese edible bamboo has been successfully introduced into the southern portion of the United States by the department of agriculture. Several plantations are now established in Georgia and Louisiana. Popularization of the bamboo will furnish large home-grown supplies of this useful timber required by our manufacturing industries. The giant grass grows a foot a day, and its 50-foot stalk is well adapted for making frames, furniture, ladders, trellises and barrel hoops. The new sprout is a delicious vegetable and resembles asparagus in flavor and in the manner of its preparation. There is an increasing demand in America for the bamboo timber, and also for the edible bamboo shoot.

Must Have Been to Movie Show.

A recent night in an eastern city two policemen saw a man swinging a woman back and forth from the fourth story window of a building while she kept up a continuous screaming. They rushed upstairs and into the room, saved the woman and arrested the man. But, they noticed that his eyes were closed. At police headquarters a doctor who examined him said the man was suffering from nightmare and was not aware of what he was doing. If we lived in that family it wouldn't be necessary to close the windows at night, they would be nailed down tight all the time.—Capper's Weekly.

FOOL THE CUSTOMS OFFICERS

Canadian and Maine Farmers Said to Have Ingenious Systems of Smuggling Devices.

Entirely aside from questions of tariff reform, reciprocity and free-trade with Canada would help to put an end to the constant lawbreaking that goes on along the border. It is estimated that eight thousand persons are engaged in smuggling goods across the line.

One instance has been reported in which a party of schoolboys coasting in an old pung down a hill that slopes across the boundary, apparently for fun, brought with them at every trip a chest of tea, until fifty chests had been smuggled into Maine, contrary to law.

Again, an "aqueduct" of small lead pipe, half a mile long, was secretly laid from a tavern in the Dominion to a public house on the other side of the line, through which hundreds of barrels of gin and other liquors were pumped. Nor are such "aqueducts" always restricted to liquors. A wooden spout was used for years to convey oats across the boundary.

The lawbreakers were a New Brunswick farmer named Cudley and a neighbor across the line named Armstrong. Armstrong raised about six hundred bushels of oats on his farm and sold ten times that quantity to the lumber camps. The customs officers watched his premises and searched them at times, but were never able to discover anything wrong until after he moved away, when they found a square spout, made of boards and buried under the snow and piles of brush, which extended from Cudley's barn to a bin in the Maine man's granary. Inside this conduit was a long belt provided with tin cups and attached to a winch that could be turned by a crank in Cudley's barn. Youth's Companion.

ENGAGED IN SPLENDID WORK

New York School Devoted to the Task of Making Cripples and Unfortunates Self-Supporting.

From his association with the late Rev. H. Boswell Bates, founder of the Neighborhood house, George A. Merritt learned how little was being done to make cripples self-supporting and how common, almost universal, was the belief that owing to various afflictions these unhappy ones must always be a burden on others. This was not his belief, and so strong did he hold the opposite conviction that, with the aid of a few charitable persons whom he inspired with it, he founded the Path school at 60 West Twenty-Fifth street, New York, in order to teach cripples commercial and railroad telegraphy and thus give to them that greatest boon, a means of livelihood. This school is still young, but it has already proved itself many times over. It trains legless, armless, and deformed persons, but especially the young who are thus afflicted, either in the course laid out by the school or in some other line most suitable to individual cases. It is free to all, non-sectarian, and it has already in its short life lifted nearly 50 poor creatures from a state of dependence, or even penury, to positions where by honest labor they earn from $12 to $18 per week and have the joy that comes from self-support.

"Isle of Artists."

An island in Lake Como is to be known as the "Isle of Artists." And thereby hangs a tale. The owner of the island, Sig. Caprini, was a great admirer of King Albert of Belgium, and in his will he left it to him with the wish that it might serve some noble purpose which Italy could share. King Albert, through his minister of arts and sciences, has handed over the property to the Italian government with the object of making the spot a restful retreat and center of activity for those who have devoted their lives to art. Under the Academy of Milan villas are to be built for artists and the place will be transformed into a little capital for promoting the fine and industrial arts in the Italian lakes district.—Chicago Daily News.

Why Ship Is Feminine.

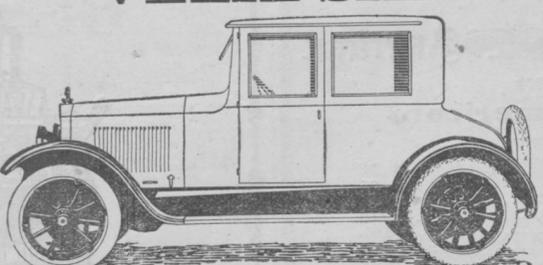

A ship is invariably spoken of as of the feminine gender; this is traced to the ancient Greeks, who called all ships feminine names out of respect to Athene, goddess of the sea. Friday is believed to be an unlucky day by those who are superstitious. It is derived from the fact it was the day of Christ's crucifixion, as well as the one on which Adam and Eve ate the forbidden fruit. Few, perhaps, are aware, why a weather-cock is frequently attached to a church steeple. This is believed to remind people of Peter's denial of Christ. It is a common belief that peacock's feathers are unlucky. This is due to the tradition that the bird opened the gate of paradise to the serpent.

Ostrich Eggs Slow to Spoil.

Ostrich eggs keep a long time before spoiling, according to a report by M. H. Junelle to the French Acclimatization society. He tells of ostrich eggs sent to him from Teldin on August 22, 1910, which reached him at Marseilles on December 12 still perfectly good. M. Hermentier had eggs that he opened and into which he dipped as he needed them; this for several days.

La Nature suggests that if a regular supply of ostrich eggs in large enough quantities could be arranged for it would be a boon to the confectionery and baking trades as one ostrich egg contained considerably more than a quart of goodness.

The Ancient Greek

knew nothing of telephones, watches, automobiles—the many aids to comfort with which science has gifted us.

Of course, new knowledge means the discarding of old methods. For instance, castor oil, pills, mineral waters, etc., were the best science had to offer until the advent of Nujol. They irritated and caused unnatural action, frequently ending by making constipation chronic. Of recent years the Nujol method has been found by medical science to be the safe and effective means of treating constipation.

Nujol works on an entirely new principle.

Instead of forcing or irritating the system, it simply softens the food waste. This enables the many tiny muscles in the walls of the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along so that it passes naturally out of the system.

Nujol thus prevents constipation because it helps Nature maintain easy, thorough bowel movements at regular intervals—the healthiest habit in the world.

Nujol is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take. Try it.

Nujol is sold by all druggists in sealed bottles only, bearing Nujol trade mark. W. D. Laboratories, Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), 50 Broadway, New York for booklet, "Thirty Feet of Danger".

The Treacherous Ford

By WILLIAM H. GREENE

(Copyright.)

Two men in high boots and hunting costumes, each with a rifle upon his shoulder, had just waded across Yellow Creek, at a point where there were rocks to aid them, and a firm, sandy bottom, with no slippery mud.

One slightly in advance of the other, they came upon what appeared to be a narrow, but unusually hard, smooth beach.

Suddenly the one in front stumbled slightly and stopped, his feet spread apart in a peculiar attitude.

"Look out!" he cried.

"What's the matter?" asked the other, stepping up to his side.

He needed no reply to this question, however. He also slipped in the same queer fashion.

"See if you can step back," said the younger of the two men.

The other made a determined effort to lift first one foot, and then the other, but only succeeded in sinking them both deeper into the treacherous, harmless looking sand.

"I can't lift either foot," he panted.

"See what you can do."

The younger man made an equally futile attempt. His feet seemed as if held in a vise, soft and yielding, but stronger than steel.

"It's no use," he said. And then, with a sudden access of terror: "Look! It's almost up to my knees—the sticky, slimy stuff!"

His lips twitched and drops of perspiration stood upon his forehead.

"It is up to my knees," said the other. "It's something's pulling at my feet!" His voice rose almost to a shriek. "Let me go! I—Oh—"

The younger man had straightened himself up, and as he watched his companion the look of terror on his own face changed, and some of his color returned. His lips ceased to tremble, and a determined look came into his eyes. Grasping the other by the arm, and shaking him roughly, he said:

"Stop that! Stop it, I say. We mustn't lose our nerve now. We've got to think quickly. Every second we stand here we're sinking deeper. It's up to us. This is no time to get scared."

"That's right," agreed the older man, controlling himself with an evident effort. "Gee!" he added, passing his hand across his face, "I nearly went off my trolley for a minute."

"Don't give up," encouraged the other. "There ought to be some way out of this."

His boyish face wore a puzzled, protesting frown, as if he refused to believe that his life was about to be cut off in this sudden, cruel fashion.

"Look here," he exclaimed after a moment's thought. "We're a couple of fools. These rifles are weighting us down."

They both tossed their weapons, and all other articles of any weight, including their coats and hats, upon the bank in front of them—the good, solid, honest ground, scarcely ten feet away.

From the grass-covered bank their gaze traveled on to the field, and then to the woods and hills beyond. Hills which they had wandered over and explored together as boys, and to which they had returned every autumn for several years, to hunt and fish, as they had been doing that day.

From the shadow of the nearer hills rose columns of blue smoke, indicating the location of the little village of Wild Rose, toward which they had been returning.

Something must be done. Already the slippery, oozing sand had reached their knees, and was gradually crawling higher and higher.

"Good heavens, isn't there something we can do?" said the shorter man.

"Maybe you could lift me out," said his younger companion. "You are very strong. If I could get over to the bank I could reach out one of the guns for you to take hold of and drag you out."

Without a word the shorter man leaned over and grasped the other about the legs, straining every muscle until his face turned purple with the effort and the veins stood out on his forehead until it seemed as if they must burst.

He succeeded only in burying his own feet a little deeper in the merciless sand.

"No use," he admitted as he straightened up, his chest heaving like a bellows. "I can't budge you."

Then his face, which had been contorted with fear, assumed a crafty look. He looked at his companion with calculating eyes.

"I've got an idea that might save one of us," he said. "There's no use in both of us going under, if one can be saved, is there?"

His face flushed, and he looked away as he made the suggestion.

"No, I suppose not," answered the boy.

"Well, then," the other continued, still looking away, "this is the idea: If one of us threw himself forward, face down, on the beach here, the other could probably climb over him and get to the bank."

"It's a chance, and the one who acts as the human bridge is a goner sure. But we'll both go down in a few minutes, and smother like rats, if we don't try something."

"I see," said the younger man, a little coldly. "But who—We're friends, of course, and have been for years, and all that, but it's a good deal of a sacrifice."

"I'm not asking you to be a hero," said the other nastily. "We'll toss a coin for it. And don't let's do any more arguing. We're wasting valuable time."

"All right," agreed the young fellow. "I'm game, if you think it's the only way for one of us to be saved."

"Have you any better idea to offer?"

"No."

"Then come on."

They both felt in their pockets for coins.

"I was always pretty lucky at any kind of gambling," muttered the older man.

He had not meant to speak this thought aloud. There was no more to be said, and each drew a coin from his pocket, tossed it into the air, and caught it between closed hands.

"Heads," said the younger man calmly.

His eyes bulging with excitement, the other opened his trembling hands and looked. His coin had also fallen with the date side upward. His already pale face turned the color of chalk.

"I win," shouted the boy, and then flushed, as if ashamed of his evident gladness.

"Yes, you win," said his companion, dropping his coin carelessly into the sand. Again they eyed each other, as if they were strangers, instead of lifelong friends.

"All right," said the loser of the toss suddenly. "I'll make good, but I've got just one favor to ask of you before I take the plunge. You'll grant me just one favor, won't you, old man?"

"Sure—certainly," said the boy, feeling very cowardly and ashamed. "Anything you ask, of course."

"All right. I just want you to take a message to Violet Wellwood for me. I haven't time to write it. We've got to hurry. But, you see, last night she promised to marry me."

"It's pretty hard to go now, just when life was beginning to be really worth while. Just when I was beginning to know real happiness. You understand, don't you, old man?"

If the younger fellow's face had been haggard and frightened before, it was nothing to the dull, hurt, hopeless look which now came into his eyes. He stared at his friend stupidly, as if he was not sure he had heard correctly.

"You say she—Violet Wellwood—promised to marry you?" he asked.

"Yes. I didn't know exactly how to tell you about it before, for I knew you were fond of her, too. But now—Well, you'll have a clear field now."

"You're not joking, are you?"

"Joking?" cried the older man, as if shocked at the idea. "Is this a time for jokes? Or is that a subject to be joked about?"

"No, no. Of course not."

"Well, then, please go and see Violet at once, as soon as you get back to town, and break the news gently to her. Tell her I—"

"Stop!" cried the boy, his face twisted with the hurt of it. "Stop! I can't stand that. I'm to break the news gently to her, am I? To her!" He laughed wildly. "Man, do you suppose I want to live now?"

He did not see the other's crafty smile, quickly hidden.

"So," he went on, "I am to tell her that the man she loves—Did she tell you she loved you last night?"

"Of course," said the other.

"Well, then, she can have you," he cried boyishly. "Now listen. You'll take a message to her from me. Understand? Tell her—"

He paused, and the anger died out of his face, leaving only the hopeless misery.

"Oh, never mind," he said, and before his companion could have moved to prevent him, if he had entertained any such intention, the boy threw himself forward and lay flat on his face in the quicksand.

The older man gave himself no time to think of what he had done, but managed, with some difficulty, to utilize the slender, prostrate form of his friend as a bridge, upon which he found footing.

Once his feet were pried out of the clinging sand he found little difficulty in leaping to the solid bank from the boy's shoulders.

Having at last reached safety, he stood for a moment, as if dazed. Then, as a full realization of his own cowardice came over him, he turned swiftly and began to make frantic efforts to reach the prostrate form of the other.

Already the oozing sand had almost covered the boy, the man at last managed to get a grip on the collar of the boy's flannel shirt. But quicksand does not give up its prey easily.

He only succeeded in tearing the boy's collar loose from his throat, falling back upon the grass when the cloth gave way. When he leaned forward again, the soft, yellow beach was closely smoothly over the sinking form of the boy who had been his friend.

Suddenly he heard hoof-beats of a horse upon the soft turf behind him, and, turning quickly, he saw a young girl galloping toward him.

She rode astride, and bareheaded, her thick, brown hair flying in the breeze.

Pulling her mount up almost beside the man, she smiled down at him.

"Hallo, Jim!" she said. "Where's Fred?"

"Violet," he began. "Miss Wellwood—"

But he could get no further, and he could not look at her.

Swallowing hard, he made several attempts to speak, and then, cringing like a dog before her steady, astonished gaze, he turned and fled precipitately across the field.

LEFT A BIG FAMILY

First American Newspaper a Prolific Parent.

From "Public Occurrences," Published in 1690, Are Descended All Present-Day American Organs of Public Opinion.

The first newspaper to be printed on this continent made its appearance on Sept. 25, 1690. It was Benjamin Harris' Public Occurrences, published from the London Coffee house in Boston.

An account of its first issue is outlined by George Henry Payne, in his History of American Journalism.

The author is a young man of long newspaper experience, having until recently served the New York Evening Telegram in the capacity of dramatic editor. Mr. Payne is now a New York tax commissioner.

The publisher of our first newspaper, in his opening statement, announced that he would take pains to trace down the disseminators of any false or malicious reports.

Then followed the news or "Occurrences," which—considering that this was seventy years after the landing of the Pilgrims on Plymouth rock and two hundred years after the invention of printing—shows that our pioneer journalist was not lacking in what is now called news sense. We are informed that the christianized Indians in Plymouth had appointed a day of thanksgiving and their example is commended to other non-Indian neighbors in a line that seems sarcastic.

There is a brief mention of the fact that two children had been stolen by Indians from the settlement of Chelmsford, the correspondent and not the editor being responsible for the fact that the names are not given.

From Watertown there is communicated the news that an old man (again the correspondent neglects to give the name), "having lost his wife, fell into a fit of melancholy, during which the devil took possession of him, with the result that one morning early in the month he was found hanging in the cowbarn." It is noted that the smallpox is abating in Boston, but that another disease—seeming to be more or less of a malignant fever, not unlike the influenza with which this generation is acquainted—is growing into a common thing, and the report states that 320 people had died by the last visitation of smallpox.

Two fires are reported, and with much feeling it is noted that in one of them a PRINTING PRESS (the capitals are Harris') had been destroyed. It was in his account of the battle with the French and Indians that Harris printed news which was to be his undoing. Read even today his report of the expedition against the French and the use of the friendly Maguas by Gov. Winthrop is not bad reporting; when one considers that reporting had yet to be developed or even inaugurated. It was a report, however, that contained matters that the authorities were not desirous of having printed, for it told how the Indian allies of the colonists had treated the French prisoners with great barbarity.

Another Belgian "Tragedy."

A London wine house has received a considerable stock of wine from Belgium under what are described as extraordinary circumstances. In the first two years of the war, the chronicler says, the Germans did not requisition much of the Belgian wine except at certain points, but they made inventory of all there was in sight or of which they learned, and as time wore on they grabbed it. One family near Biege had a large quantity of fine vintage Burgundy and the owner decided to take a desperate chance. It sometimes is wise to do openly what would be perilous to do secretly, so he cased up his wine, loaded it on trucks and carted it through the streets in broad daylight to an ice factory. He expected every moment he would be halted and called to military headquarters, but he was not. He got his treasure to the ice house and hid it away so well that it remained undiscovered until after the close of the war. Then, when he was impoverished otherwise, he dug it up and sold it at a glorious price, and now Londoners are smacking their lips and blessing him for his cleverness.—Commerce and Finance.

Planet Polar Caps.

A contributor to the English Mechanic states that polar caps were plainly visible on Venus in June, 1919, through his three-inch refracting telescope, which has a magnifying power of 100. The caps appeared to be of an intense whiteness that resembled one of the large craters on the moon. The Scientific American announces that a similar observation is reported from M. Flammarion's observatory at Juvisy, France.

HOW

SIDEWALKS VARY IN THE CITIES OF OLD EUROPE.

—The sidewalks and pavements in different countries vary as much as the people. In many towns of Holland the sidewalks are private property, and one is not expected to step across them unless entering the house to which the walk belongs. In many cities the streets and sidewalks end in canals, especially in The Hague and Rotterdam.

In many Swiss towns sidewalks are under arcades, the masonry houses being built to the curb. Under the arcades are paved sidewalks, which in summer are swarmed with tourists. In Chester, Eng., some streets have sheltered sidewalks similar to the Swiss sort, but they are even more curious, since they are raised to the second floor. The island of Malta has flights of stairs for sidewalks, that lead to the sea.

In certain old German towns the sidewalks seem to be regarded as incidental, sometimes narrowing to a foot or two. An Italian nobleman had the courtyard of his palace paved with slabs of stone, each piece of which had been brought from a different part of the world. The famous Rue de la Republique, in Lyons, is laid in glass blocks, eight inches square, so systematically fitted together that water cannot penetrate. Tombstones have been employed for paving in some places in England, and in Africa human skulls have been used.

FIRST TO ADOPT UNIFORMS

How the Present Regulation of Attire and Martial Music Came into General Use.

The early Lacedaemonians were the first who availed themselves of martial music for regulating the march, as well as making the will of the leaders intelligible without words to the practiced ears of the warriors. The learning of the various melodies, which, that they might remain unintelligible to the enemy, had much variety, was one of the chief occupations of the army training school. They also first adopted military uniforms, choosing red that the enemy might not perceive if he had inflicted wounds.

Lacedaemonian troops were wont to wear their hair long as a sign of freedom, a privilege which was not allowed to mechanics, as it was not permitted to slaves to bear arms. At the opening and during the continuance of war the military officers always accompanied the army and drilled it in the morning with marching, in manipulations and evolutions; they ate with the warriors, exercised them in their songs of praise to the gods and heroes, and slept like the private soldiers, on their arms. At the conclusion of a war the king gave an account of his administration of it. Men who died in battle were honored the same as other immortalized heroes. The whole country put on mourning when the king died, and business was suspended for 10 days.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Solomon's Wise Behavior.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—
Choosing the Best Things.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—
True Wisdom and How to Get It.

I. Solomon Anointed King (1: 5-40).
David had hitherto failed to show the people who should be king after him (v. 20). He is now stirred to action by the combined appeals of Bathsheba and Nathan. He immediately sent for the faithful three, Zadok, Nathan and Benaiah, and bade them to anoint Solomon king. They speedily executed their commission and soon the people shouted "God save king Solomon!"

II. Solomon's Acts to Establish His Kingdom (1: 41-2: 46).

Coming to the kingdom at such a time as this, he noted certain dangerous elements, which, if allowed to develop, would weaken if not destroy his rule.

1. Adonijah placed under surveillance (vv. 41-53). Though he had attempted to usurp the kingdom, Solomon placed him on good behavior. In this treatment, Solomon displayed both clemency and dignity, which are praiseworthy in a ruler.

2. Adonijah executed (2: 13-25).
Solomon ordered him executed because he made an underhanded effort to become king.

3. Abiathar removed from the priesthood (2:26, 27). This man had joined Adonijah in his plot of usurpation.
Solomon removed him from office and appointed Zadok in his stead.

4. Joab executed (2:28-35). Joab, too, was a party in Adonijah's rebellion. Beside this he had treacherously murdered his rivals in the army.
He was succeeded in the generalship
by Benaiah.

5. Shimei executed (2:36-46). Shimei had deserted David and joined his enemies, even bitterly cursed him.
Solomon first paroled him and confined him to Jerusalem, but when he broke his parole he had him executed.

III. God's Gracious Offer to Solomon (3:4, 5).

Solomon made a lavish sacrifice to the Lord. It was not that the Lord cared for the number of animals, but the attitude of the man's heart toward him. "Ask what I shall give thee" placed very wide possibilities before the king. God, as it were, signed blank checks and turned them over to Solomon to fill in any amount that his heart desired.

IV. Solomon's Wise Choice (3:6-9).

The Lord's gracious offer brought the king face to face with the responsibility of making a choice. God so deals with his children that a choice must be made by everyone.
Solomon was keenly sensible of the difficulty and the responsibility of his position. David was a great king.
For a young man to take up the work of an illustrious father and push it to completion is a most difficult task.
Besides all this, the disturbing elements set in motion by the usurper, Adonijah, were to be dealt with. In his reply to God he pleads that he was not king as a result of his own choosing, but because of God's loving kindness. All who have been called of God to fill positions of honor and trust can truly exercise that same boldness of faith. When called to positions of honor and trust we should not become high-minded and vain, but humbly present ourselves before God for help.

V. God's Unstinted Gift to Solomon
(3:10-15).

Solomon's speech pleased the Lord.
The Lord is always pleased when we place ourselves before him in such attitude. Solomon got more than he asked for. Because he put wisdom first, God saw that he could be trusted with material good, also. Christ taught the same thing when he said,
"Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."— Matt. 6:33. He that puts God and spiritual things first in time and importance can be trusted with temporal things. That which God promised him above what he asked was Mehes, honor and length of days. All who feel the lack of wisdom can go to God with confidence (James 1:5). God blessed Solomon with a singularly comprehensive mind (I Kings 4:29-34).
He was a botanist, zoologist, architect, poet, and a moral philosopher.
When we ask what God wills, we shall surely get what we ask.

To Cheer Thee on Thy Way.

Nether hurrying nor slackening, but sure of thy great and glorious destiny, walk thou; and presently all around thee shalt thou see the similitude of him who thou seekest: He shall send a multitude of messengers in advance to cheer thee on thy way.—Edward Carpenter.

Common Sense.

Common sense is, of all kinds, the most uncommon. It implies good judgment, sound discretion and true and practical wisdom.—Tyron Edwards.

The Beauties and Wonders of God's World

Psalm 65:1-13
The latter part of the Psalm (verses 8-13), shows the beauty and order of God's world. The morning and the evening, the spring showers,
the flowing rivers, the golden harvest the flocks and herds, the beauties of nature with hill and plain, mountain and valley, all enter into the picture and speak of the goodness of God.

To eyes illuminated by the Holy Spirit, God may be seen and known in the beauties of nature. John Ruskin said, "Almost all lovely forms and thoughts are taken directly from nature."

The beauties and wonders of God's world are seen in the order which everywhere prevails. The flow of the river and the tide, the movement of the heavenly bodies all speak of the order and arrangement of an Almighty and All-wise Hand.

The beauties and wonders of God's world are seen in the clarity and purity of things. The cloudless sky, the mountain stream, the pure air,
the transparent crystal, all this speaks of the same good Creator and His care for His creatures.

The brightness of the heavenly bodies adds to the beauties and wonders of God's world. Without light nothing could be beautiful. Then again, think of the calmness, the peace, the serenity which are over all the world of nature. How greatly they add to the beauties and wonders of God's world! Nor can we forget the strength of the hills and the might of the majestic sea, the immensity and grandeur that add to the beauties and wonders of God's world.

All of these things, however, pale away into insignificance when compared with the beauties and wonders of God's world of grace. The world of nature has been marred because of sin. Thorns also and thistles does it bring forth. But where sin aboundeth, grace much more aboundeth. If, as men explore nature, God's children would explore the realm of His grace as revealed in His Word, in His Son, in His gospel, and in personal experience, they would say with the Apostle, "We look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal;
but the things which are not seen are eternal" (2 Cor. 4:18).

Expressions of wonder are frequently heard from those who look out upon the beauties of nature, with its order, its clearness, its brightness, its calm, and its strength. These are good, and were pronounced to be good by God Himself. But they are not the best, and we must never allow the good to become the enemy of the best. As the stars fade from our vision before the light of the rising sun, so do the beauties and wonders of the world fade in comparison with the "light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ."

New Glass Industry.

Important developments are eventually probable on the northern borders of Dartmoor, in Devonshire, England, in consequence of the discovery of a very large deposit of granulate, a substance of much value in the manufacture of glass. According to experts, "granulite contains not only silica, but potash, soda and alumina, which are necessary in glass making, and its use is not only economical, but gives the best results in the production of glassware of the highest quality." It is stated that an experimental furnace has been in use for some time, two others are being constructed, and it is anticipated that the commercial manufacture of glass will commence almost immediately.—Scientific American.

"Goes Broke" in Vaudeville.

It is said that the first man to undertake to produce vaudeville in America was Silas W. Steggs of San Francisco, who inherited $400,000 from his uncle in 1865, and not being used to handling money in large quantities, started in to spend it freely. He went on a trip to Europe and spent most of his time at the Alhambra music hall in London, and launched a project to start the "New York Alhambra." His idea was approved by a number of amusement people, and he hired hundreds of them to come to the United States. But his money ran out and he left his party on a boat in New York bay and disappeared.

Muscle Massage in Rickets.

As an aftermath of undernourishment during the war period, rickets has become a common disease among children in Germany. To stimulate the flabby muscles of these little patients, without risking malformation of the softened bones, many curious devices have come into use, according to an illustrated story appearing in the August issue of Popular Mechanics magazine. In treating the jaw and neck muscles, for example, the subject is laid on an inclined board, while the nurse stands at the head and manipulates a harness of two straps.

Indian Pilgrimage.

Fifty thousand Indians from all parts of Mexico recently completed their week of homage to their patron saint, the Virgin of Guadalupe, and their pilgrimage to the shrine of the Virgin.

JOURNAL PRINTED BY INDIANS

Cherokees Once Had a Newspaper That May Be Said to Have Become a Power.

The Cherokee Indians, when still occupying what now is the state of Georgia, published a newspaper in their native tongue in 1828. One of their tribe, Sequoyah by name, in 1823 designed 86 characters that were to represent the Cherokee language in print. The national committee and council of the tribe meeting at New Echota, the capital of their nation, in 1826, voted a fund to buy type, a press and the necessary equipment. The paper was known as the Cherokee Phoenix. Half of it was printed in Cherokee and half in English. Hundreds of full-blood Indians who otherwise would have remained illiterate all their lives, were thus enabled to read after mastering the alphabet. These Indians became subscribers of the paper, as did members of neighboring states, and the paper became a power.

The Phoenix was "known in Europe," and among other famous papers that asked to be placed on the exchange list was the London Times.
The paper was in operation for about five years, and was harassed when the movement having for its object the removal of the Cherokee Indians westward was at its height. It suspended publication when the Georgia state legislature forbid a white man to live among the Cherokees.

The honor of becoming the first Indian editor fell to Elias Boudinot, a native-born citizen of the nation.

Local Neighborliness.

An interesting experiment in neighborliness has been carried on for nearly a year in a part of Toledo which is populated almost exclusively by Polish immigrants and their descendants. The Polish Business Men's club of the district conceived the idea that the needy Polish families in the community should be taken care of in a neighborly way, rather than by charity organizations. The latter were requested not to extend aid in the district, but to notify the club, so that it might meet all emergencies. This is not done from the club treasury, however. An investigation is made to determine whether the need is for money, supplies or work, and the other residents of the block, including the tradesmen, are then informed that their neighbors need their assistance, which, the club reports, is always forthcoming.

Immunity From Whooping Cough.

Dr. T. Luzzati of Rome was called to three different houses, in each of which a child had begun to cough. In each case he suspected that it might be whooping cough; therefore, as a precaution, he vaccinated all the brothers and sisters with an anti-whooping-serum. Ten days later his suspicion was confirmed by the typical whoop, but in no case did one of the other children catch the disease, though no attempt at isolation was made.

In reporting this to Policlinics (Rome) Doctor Luzzati says he has found no benefit from vaccination once the disease has become pronounced.

MORO A DANGEROUS FANATIC

Believes Eternal Bliss to Be His if He Meets Death While Killing Christians.

The psychology of Mohammedanism is incomprehensible to persons reared in the atmosphere and teachings of American Christianity. With us the separation of church and state is as much a matter of course as the air we breathe. With us suicide is immoral and the killing of an unbeliever is a crime punishable with death. The Mohammedan has no conception of ecclesiastical and state law. There is only one law, the Koran; and while in fact the priest and the ruler may be different persons, they are different only in a functional way, like a judge and an executive in our government. The spiritual ruler is also temporal ruler, as was Mohammed in his day. The killing of Christians is a virtue that merits everlasting bliss in paradise.
The martyrs of the early Christian church burned with no more consuming ardor than the humble, ignorant Mohammedan peasants who swear before the priest that they will go forth and devote their lives to killing Christians. Mohammedans who have sworn to kill Christians are called in the Philippines juramentados, from the Spanish, meaning one who has sworn or taken an oath. Up to a decade ago it was no uncommon occurrence in Jolo for a Moro fanatic to conceal his bolo knife, or kris, in a basket of fruit until he had passed the guard at the gate of the walled town, then draw his blade and cut right and left, killing man, woman or child, with perfect impartiality, until a bullet from the guard stopped his advance. It was this indomitable will to kill that gave the Christian Filipino his mortal fear of the Moro in times past.—O. Garfield Jones, in Asia.

HAVE TO WAIT TO UNLOAD

Shipping Congestion at London Docks
Said to Be of an Extraordinary Character.

A writer to the London Times describes the Victoria and Albert docks at Tilbury as being "crowded to their fullest capacity with big ships," many of which "look absolutely dead for the simple reason that they can not be unloaded because there is nowhere to put their cargoes." Of ships carrying Australian meat it is said to be "a common thing to wait anything up to a month for a berth and to lie another month tied up against the wharf, unloading and reloading." Inefficiency of labor is in a large degree responsible, for the average discharging output per shift of 13 men in a nine-hour day has been reduced from 100 to 63 tons. The cause is partly the loss of many good men in the war, partly loafing on the job to make work for as many men as possible. Congestion of the ports is attributed to state control over essential imports, to state control over railroads, and to reduction of the hours of labor. By these means the carrying power of ships has been reduced at least 30 per cent below pre-war standards.

The Wise Farmer.

There was a man in our town And he was wondrous wise He knew that if he wanted crops He'd have to fertilize.

It's nitrogen that makes things green Said this man of active brain; And potash makes the good strong straw,

And phosphate plumps the grain. But its clearly wrong to waste plant food

On a wet and soggy field; I'll surely have to put in drains If I'd increase the yield.

And after I have drained the land I must plow it deep all over; And even then I'll not succeed, Unless it will grow clover.

Now acid soils will not produce A clover sod that's prime; So if I have a sour soil, I'll have to put on lime.

And after doing all these things, To make success more sure, I'll try my very best to keep From wasting the manure,

So I'll drain, and lime, and cultivate, With all that that implies; And when I've done that thoroughly I'll manure and fertilize.

Thread in Manchuria. Almost all of the $2,000,000 worth of cotton thread imported annually into Manchuria comes from Japan, partly because Japanese manufacturers have the advantage over possible competitors of government encouragement and support, and partly because there has been little competition from those sufficiently interested in this market to study its requirements as have the Japanese, says the New York Times.

Goods were placed with merchants on consignment until they became known, were extensively advertised, and are now sold on liberal credit basis, so that American manufacturers entering the market will not only have to compete on a quality basis, but should adopt similar methods of pushing their goods.
