PRELIMINARY THOUGHTS ABOUT THE ACT OF VOTING

Full Information Should be had Before Making Attempt.

Instruction rooms, for voters, will be in demand, this year, and will be supplied by both parties. The Record office will follow its custom of having "sample ballots," and will give explanation and help to members of both parties—male or female—who may call for it.

Also, the week before election, The Record will give a column or more of instructions on the art of voting. Voting is merely a matter of possessing and using a fair degree of intelligence and common sense, good eyesight, and not getting "flustered." No one, who has not voted before, should think of attempting to mark a ballot without first familiarizing themselves as to how it is done, before going into the voting room; for instructions are not given on the inside, except to those physically infirm.

It is quite probable that as there will be almost double the number to vote, this year, and no more voting places, these places must be kept filled from early until late; and this may make it advisable for "instruction rooms" to be kept open on Monday, previous to election day. It will be absolutely necessary for women (and men too) to take up as little time as possible in the act of voting in order to give everybody ample time; and the only way to save time, is to "know how" before trying to mark a ballot.

This fact should be decided, right now; that it will not do for the new voters to wait until afternoon, or towards evening, to vote. If anybody has to vote late, let the men do it. A little personal inconvenience must be expected, too. Voting will not be like registering. It need not take longer to vote, than to register, but there is more formality about it, and it may be necessary "to wait for your turn" both inside and outside of the voting room.

In going in to vote, all that is necessary is to give your name. After which, a ballot is handed the voter, and he or she must do the rest, without any questions asked, or answers given. After receiving a ballot, one of the small booths must be entered, the ballot marked secretly, then folded and handed to the custodian of the ballot box—and exit, as quickly as possible—for the job is over.

There is nothing "funny" about voting. It is about as serious an act as a citizen of this country has to do. It is a matter of using conscience and good sense for the public good, as one sees it. Unless voting is so regarded, nobody ought to vote. Voting one's honest sentiments is both a privilege and duty; but voting hap-hazard and without intelligence, is interference with the sacred rights and acts of others.

It is therefore practically impossible for one to get too much advance knowledge as to how they ought to vote, or to be sure that they know how to mark their ballot the way they want it to count. When the count comes, the marks on the ballot are what counts, and not what the voter may have ignorantly wanted to count.

Clock Time—and Some Time.

The farmers of the country are busy on the job nearest at hand, and most important—working for themselves. This is a great time for self-help. "Daylight saving" failed to get on the same wagon that carried "votes for women" through. If it wasn't for those who don't bother about "What time is it?" the country would be in a worse fix than it is.

What sort of farmers would the "daylight savers" make anyway? The kind, we suspect, that begins the job of farming early in the Spring, and graduate from it some time in the Fall, wiser in some ways. Seriously though, what the clock says isn't half so important as the story that is being told about work not getting done on the farm for want of help to do it; and if the whole country hasn't yet realized this fact, it will, before long.

Too many of some things are being made, and too few of some others; and some day the relative importance of the "too many" and "too few" is going to be seen without the aid of professional theorists about the best and right time of the day in which to work.

And—but this is another subject—in another "some day" a lot of people are going to take more account of how large a man's net income must be before he can afford to own an automobile. There are lots of people who haven't considered this problem yet—but, it's coming to them to do it—some time.

Gov. Coolidge at Frederick.

Gov. Coolidge, of Mass., candidate for vice-president on the Republican ticket, will speak in Frederick, Saturday night, Oct. 23. Gov. Lowden, of Ill., Hon. Job B. Hedges, of N. Y., and Gov. Morrow, of Kentucky, are also scheduled to be present. The speakers will be on their way north from a tour of Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee.

The fasting of Terence Mac Swiney, Lord Mayor of Cork, no longer excites much attention, because hardly anybody believes that it is a genuine case of fasting—about 65 days, to date.

CARROLL POULTRY SHOW

Poultry Association of Carroll to hold Poultry Show.

Arrangements have been made to hold a poultry show in connection with the farm and home exhibit, Nov. 17-20. At the meeting of poultrymen in the County Agent's office, the following officers were elected: Pres., Thos. Kemp, Union Mills; Vice-Pres., O. D. Gilbert, Westminster; Sec., D. F. Shipley, Jr., Westminster. The following Board of Directors were asked to serve: Edgar Fleagle, Uniontown; E. A. H. Barnes, Franklin; Chas. Reese, Westminster; Harry Klee, Woolerys; John H. Ehrhart, Hampstead; Jacob Lynard, Manchester; Robert Walden, Middleburg; Frank Brandenburg, Berrett; Wade H. D. Warfield, Freedom; Thomas Shoemaker, Taneytown; Harry Zepp, Mt. Airy; Geo. Garver, Union Bridge; Herbert Getty, New Windsor; Dr. G. L. Wetzel, Myers. Each director is asked to boost poultry in his district.

The prime object of the association is to get a "Standard Bred flock on every farm." The show will be held under the utilities class. That is, a bird must not only have color and type, but must have those qualities which stand for production, either in eggs or meat. This method of judging will place the farmer in a position to win some of the honors. He can not win all the prizes because the show will have three departments, standard bred utility, exhibition class, and the junior class for the boys and girls raising poultry under the direction of the County Agent.

The entries are limited to Carroll county. All entries must be in the hands of the Secretary, Wednesday, November 17th. Entrance fee, 25c per bird, $1.00 per pen; pigeons 25c pair. This includes coop for feed and attendance.

Exhibitors cannot have more than one entry in each class; that is, one person can exhibit only one cock, one cockerel, one hen, one pullet, one pen of 1 male and 4 females. Arrangements have been made so that all junior members will have their coops free from entrance fee.

Now is the time to look over your birds. Pick out a few you think are good. If they are dirty, wash them. Put them in a pen and handle them frequently, so that when the judge handles them they will be in good shape, easily judged.

The judging will take place on poultry day, November 18. If you are interested in poultry for eggs, meat, or fancy, be present. Two judges will be present to judge, demonstrate and answer questions.

F. W. FULLER, Co. Agent.

Plenty of Game—and Licenses.

From numerous reports received by this Department throughout the State we find that game of all species are most plentiful, more so than during former years. This we believe is due to the game receiving more protection, and being fed by the public during the winter months. The Game Department has expended vast amounts of money in the importation and propagation of game since the hunters license system became effective. It might be well for the public to know, that the Game Department is supported solely by revenue derived through the sale of hunters licenses, and not one cent is appropriated by the state.

With the success we have already obtained at the game farm during the past season in the propagation of the Chinese Ring-necked Pheasant, and with proper protection which is due from the public, we hope to establish this bird (which is commonly known as the King among game birds), permanently in the covers, not only for the benefit of the sportsmen, but for the agricultural interests as well.

It is gratifying to know through reports filed in this office by the Clerks of Courts of all counties in Maryland, that the sportsmen are securing their licenses very freely and we are looking for a banner year in 1920. We earnestly request the public to secure their licenses during the month of October, thereby avoiding the rush at the Clerks offices, which is customary prior to the opening of the regular hunting season. Purchase your licenses now, and help avoid this congestion, and have the license in your hunting coat, and be sure you secure the arm tag which goes with the license, and wear it while hunting on the left arm between elbow and shoulder. By nothing this request, we are sure it will avoid embarrassment of being apprehended by one of our Deputy Game Wardens, who are stationed far and wide in our State.

E. LEE LeCOMPTE, State Game Warden.

Gov. Cox to be in Baltimore.

Gov. Cox will speak in Baltimore, at the Armory, on the night of October 31, and arrangements are under way to have a great meeting. Full details have not been arranged, but it is believed that the Baltimore address will be the only one in the state by the Democratic candidate.

Samuel Gompers, labor leader, while in Baltimore, this week, ridiculed the idea that he could deliver the labor vote to the Democratic party, and claimed that he owed no allegiance to any party but would up by saying, "I will urge all I can to vote against Harding and that police-baiter, Coolidge, and for Cox."

THE WORTH WHILE TOWN

New people coming into a town, bring new ideas, and spur those already there to live up. As soon as the influx of new blood and ideas stop, a town goes back. Stagnation is dangerous to health and life—"By industry, we thrive."

"Yes, it ought to be done" gets no one anywhere. "Come on, let's do it" is the spirit that livens up a town, and makes it fit to live in, and do business in.

The idea that a slow, quiet town, is a good town in which "to live," is all wrong. Real "living" means life, enterprise, good sanitary conditions, good stores, and easy access to modern conveniences generally.

And these can not be had without public spirit, liberal planning, and co-operation. The best citizen always helps himself, by helping others to help themselves.

REPUBLICAN GAIN IN CARROLL.

Figures of the Complete Registration in the County.

The total registration in Carroll County, for all of the days, resulted as follows:

White Republican, women	1988
White Republican, men	378
Colored Republican, women	221
Colored Republican, men	37
Total Republicans	2624
White Democratic, women	1667
White Democratic, men	326
Colored Democratic women	1
Colored Democratic men	1

Republican Majority	1994
Prohibitionists	630
Declined affiliation	40
Total new Registration	4806
Former Registration by party affiliation—
Democrats	4435
Republicans	4008

The above figures will be changed by the revision of the books, counting off those who have died and removed, but the Republicans have apparently gained, and will likely have a majority in the county on party affiliation, due to the difference between Republican and Democratic women registered this year.

TAKING "JOY" OUT OF TONICS.

Government Is Putting the Curb on Patent Medicine Thirsts.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Many patent medicines offered to the public as "tonics," or under some other alluring designation, are going to lose their charm. The thousands a patrons who since the Volstead Prohibition Enforcement law became effective, have become expert in diagnosing their own diseases and also in treating them with "tonics" are going to learn that their "favorites" will appear in the future only as medicine, it was learned today from officials of the Internal Revenue Department.

The department report, it is said, will show a tremendous decrease in the number of permits obtained for the manufacture of patent medicines. After the prohibition law became effective patent medicines sprung up from every nook and corner. The originality of the productions, the wonderful effect produced by a "slight overdose" and the popularity of some of the brands became as by-words. If there is the slightest suspicion that the medicine may grow into a beverage a little of this or that is prescribed for the medicine and, say department officials, "it is possible, of course, to get drunk on witch hazel, but the man who tries this method two or three times is going to the hospital. The man who gets drunk on extracts also is in danger of illness. The same is true of patent medicines which are tonics.—Balt. Sun.

The "Colored" Candidate Yarn.

It is now being circulated among the "new" voters that Mr. Blakeney, the Republican candidate for Congress, is a "colored" man. Last week, the report was that one Republican candidate was "black." Both reports, of course, are wrong—perhaps purposely so. Mr. Blakeney is altogether white and has served this district before, in Congress.

We are interested in this report, only to the extent of correcting the falsity of it, and would make this correction without regard to the politics of Mr. Blakeney. As the Record stated, last week, there will likely be the name of a "colored" gentleman—Mr. Hawkins—on the ballot, for Senator. Mr. Hawkins would like to help defeat Mr. Weller, the Republican candidate for Senator, because (so it is claimed) the Republican Mayor of Baltimore did not properly reward colored voters in Baltimore, with offices.

Another absolute falsehood about Mr. Blakeney, is, that he is in favor of "mixed" schools—colored and white together. May it be that these stories are circulated by the "wets" in an effort to defeat Mr. Blakeney?

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

State Meeting to be held in Frederick, November 9-11.

The details for the State Sunday School Convention to be held in Frederick city, Nov. 9, 10 and 11, are being worked out just as fast as possible, and there is every indication that there will be a big attendance. Every school in the State is invited to send representatives, and arrangements are being made to care for about 800 delegates.

Mr. Emory L. Coblenz is chairman of the Executive Committee, and has charge of all arrangements. The committee is made up of one representative from each of the Sunday schools of the city, as follows: Methodist, Edgar K. Moore; Lutheran, G. L. Moberly; Reformed, Wm. C. Birely; Episcopal, F. B. Sappington, Sr.; Baptist, H. E. Cornpropp; Grace Reformed, R. Paul Smith; M. E. South, W. N. Jolliffe; United Brethren, Wm. C. Rhoderick; Church of the Brethren, John W. Wolfe. These representatives in turn act as chairman of the various committees having charge of all details of the convention, their helpers being chosen from schools throughout the city and county.

Mr. Abner B. Brown, General Secretary of the State Association, in Baltimore, is giving the local committee every possible assistance in working out the details of the convention. He is arranging the program, which will cover all branches of Sunday school work, and will bring to Frederick some of the best speakers in Sunday school work in the country. Some of the principal speakers are W. C. Pearce, Chicago, J. Lincoln Hall, of Hall-Mack Co., Philadelphia, will have charge of the music. W. A. Brown, Chicago, an international superintendent, will speak on Evangelism and Missions. Mrs. Maud Junkin Baldwin, Chicago, Elementary work. Rev. E. H. Bon-sall, Clifton Heights, Pa., an Episcopal Rector, Young People's work. Dr. E. D. Stone, Baltimore, pastor and teacher of a class of 1000 men, Adult work. Dr. Don S. Colt, Baltimore, Evangelism. Rev. Ross D. Murphy, President Blue Ridge College, New Windsor, Teacher Training. The Sunday school workers of the State will be able to hear one of the best programs ever presented in the State.

One of the special features of the convention is the Boys and Girls Congress, which will have a distinct program. This is intended for young people from 15 to 21 years of age. It is being arranged under the direction of Mr. Frank L. Middleton, Washington, D. C. Mrs. Wm. J. G. Reinmuth is in charge of the local committee working out the details. This will be the first appearance in the Md. State Convention of the Y. P. Congress.

Invitations are extended to all Sunday school workers in the State, this embracing 2000 Sunday schools, 30,000 officers and teachers and 300,000 Sunday school scholars. The committee on entertainment is already busy making arrangements to take care of a big crowd of delegates.

Lutheran Synod, 100th. Session.

The Maryland Lutheran Synod celebrated its centennial anniversary at its meeting in Martinsburg, West Virginia, this week. There was a large attendance of delegates and the meeting was one of unusual interest, not only on account of the anniversary but also because of the approaching meeting of the general convention of the United Lutheran Church, which will be held in Washington next week. The Synod unanimously took steps which it is hoped will curb the centralization of authority in the Executive Committee with headquarters in New York. An overture will be carried up by the delegation from this Synod asking that the old system of apportionment for benevolence as practiced by the former General Synod be adopted for the united body. The Synod deferred consideration of a new constitution framed to conform with the idea of Executive Committee control.

Part of the centennial celebration was a pilgrimage on Tuesday to Winchester, Va., where the Synod was organized 100 years ago. Winchester is not now a part of the Synod, as a Virginia Synod was organized a few years later. About 200 people made the trip by special train, and were entertained by the church at Winchester and services were held at the site of the old church and in the new church; Supper was served and a supper table conference held.

Addresses were delivered by the Rev. David Bittle Floyd and the Rev. Luther Kuhlman; postprandial addresses by the Revs. A. A. Kelly and L. B. Hafer, Drs. Charles F. Steck, H. H. Weber, J. C. Bowers, J. S. Simon, John Weidley, L. M. Zimmerman and U. S. G. Rupp and L. Russell Alden, William W. Doub and others; evening at Grace Church, Winchester, solo, by Mrs. W. E. Cooper; duet, by Mrs. A. A. Kelly and Mrs. W. E. Cooper; address, the Rev. Prof. Henry Eyster Jacobs, D. D., LL. D.

The Synod closed on Thursday evening with the ordination service. Two students of the Seminary were licensed, and Henry Einsbruch, a converted Hebrew, who is at the head of a Jewish mission in Baltimore, was ordained.

Rev. J. S. Simon, D. D., of Hagerstown was elected president of the Synod, and the other officers, Rev. Wm. A. Wade, Secretary, and L. Russell Alden, Esq., Treasurer, were re-elected.

THE BIG BATTLE OVER RETURN TO PEACE PRICES

Sellers Resisting, and Buyers Demanding, Reductions.

The whole country is entering into a big conflict, financial, industrial and mercantile. The transition from artificial price levels brought on by the war, to the more normal levels of peace time, is upon us, and everybody is trying to stand-off the inevitable. The simple facts of the situation should be accepted by all, without ill-feeling, and agree to the homely philosophy that "What goes up must come down." We give a few of the news notes of the week, along various lines of interest.

Mills are closing down all over the country, waiting for accumulated stocks to be worked off. About the first of the year, there must be a widespread reduction in wages, or very much less work, in many lines of industry.

Strikes at coal mines will likely continue all winter, owing to the necessities of the public and short stocks of coal. Next Summer there will likely be a different story.

Yellow pine lumber has dropped within a month from $3.00 to $2.00 per 1000 ft., due to light demand at former prices.

Candy has not dropped with the price of sugar. Manufacturers are putting up the argument that there is not much sugar, in candy, anyway.

Western farmers are making an effort to advance the present price of wheat to $3.00, by advising holders not to sell, claiming that the present price represents too great a loss under cost of production.

This resistance of farmers is matched by like resistance on the part of business men and labor of all kinds—nobody wants to accept reduced prices; but, losses must be accepted, just as extra profits were made, during the rise of prices.

A different note is sounded in the employers of underwear and hosiery mills, at Lawrence, Mass., voluntarily offering to a cut in wages, in order that the mills may continue in operation.

Cheap pork and lard are in prospect for consumers. Hogs declined $3.00 in the Kansas city stock yards in the last two weeks. The principal cause of the decline is the falling off in export orders. Quite low prices for pork products are expected in the last, this winter.

Sugar has made another drop to about 11 1/2c wholesale, and from 13c to 14c retail.

Print paper is still advancing. Sunday newspapers in Philadelphia are now selling at 10c per copy.

The "come down" has not by any means, reached all lines. Especially such articles as are mainly labor, will be the slowest to drop, for labor, as yet, has a strong grip on high wages. Also, such products as are the output of a comparatively few large concerns, may reasonably be expected to stay up for quite a long while. Still other lines will stay up, because they were greatly too low in price before the war.

A writer on the business situation this week, in the Philadelphia Ledger says:

"Companies which resort unnecessarily to closing their plants, wholesalers who stubbornly hold on to stocks on hand and refuse to accept temporary losses and retailers who insist that every piece and pound of goods must show a full percentage of profit, are all attempting to buck the present tide. Serious operations are often necessary to save a patient's life. Business is sick today and cannot be cured by administering a little palliative here and a spoonful of nostrum there. It needs a major operation."

"Taking losses isn't pleasant, but if the taking of a loss today leads to the resumption of an inflow of steady, normal profits tomorrow and the day after and the day after, then the temporary loss is a good investment. There is no profit on merchandise retained in the factory warehouse or on the shelf. There can be no profits until there are sales."

Marriage Licenses.

According to figures given out at Washington, bank holdings of Liberty Bonds is gradually being reduced, due to purchases by the public for investment. It is stated that $43,000,000 have passed to private owners within the past six months.

Who will be elected Senator in Maryland? O. Well—er, Smith. No doubt about it.

After November 2 we are going to hear a great deal less about the League of Nations. It is a subject that will adjourn sine die, after its usefulness as a campaign issue is over.

Did Senator Harding suggest the "front porch" campaign, or did his trainers insist that he first "try himself out" on the porch, before agreeing that he might be trusted away from home of nights? Anyway, his wife goes along with him.

It was stated in a Philadelphia newspaper, last week, that the waitresses in a certain city restaurant were paid "ten cents an hour, and the proprietor relies on tips given by patrons, for the women to make a living wage." Think of that; when the public has been left to believe that high wages compelled the high prices for food! Also, that the "tip" is likely a large part of the wages in most restaurants!

Our Jar of Paste.

There is a jar of paste on our office desk. It is attractive in outward appearance, and contains a white paste that is greatly relished by flies. We aim to keep it covered, but it gathers in its victims just the same, and the danger that lurks in indulgence in its contents, does not spread among the fly fraternity. They come and taste, go a little further, then further, and "get stuck" for life.

This jar of paste reminds us of many present day evils as they appeal to mankind. The outward attractiveness—the pleasure of slight indulgence—the habit of going further—and the final penalty. There is this great difference, however—men are not flies. They have that which the flies have not—mind and intellect—reasoning powers. They see the results, and one can tell another and give warning of evil consequences to come.

The process, though, is the same; curiosity, the satisfying of appetite, the trend of a bad habit to final undoing. When the "lid is on" there is no danger. So it is with evil indulgence but, the tendency of promoters of evil is to give the outside attractiveness—the appeal to the eye and the sense—then tilt "the lid," or take it off entirely.

Saying that "the lid is off," is descriptive accuracy, when speaking of violation of laws. The laws are preventive, as well as penal—they are "the lid" as well as the punishment, so far as legislation goes. But, the unfortunate thing is, the lid is not automatic. It requires custodians; and these are not only responsible for the safety of the flies, but directly chargeable with their "getting stuck."

The "lid" may get broken in spite of reasonable care. Whatever particular "jar of paste" may be coveted, it is always in danger from thieves who would break in and steal. Notwithstanding horrible examples, there are always the senseless flies willing to partake of the paste that allures, but which means danger, at least, if not worse.

But, the main thing, after all, is to "keep the lid on."

Monopoly in Labor.

A man must want, and want to keep, a job, to be a satisfactory all-around worker. The country over, the complaint is all to the effect that high paid help has not brought better or more work. When there is more demand than help, the available helpers become independent and careless. Too much of, "If I don't suit you, get somebody else." In other words, when there is not healthy competition for jobs, the quality of service rendered drops.

When a business is thoroughly controlled, so as to compel patrons to take its products as they get them, on the terms dictated, and without any power to take their patronage elsewhere and thereby compel, not only courteous treatment and fair prices, but the best of service, there is resentment and ill-feeling between seller and buyer. The element of compulsion is all on one side. This is monopoly.

Heretofore, we have come into contact with such experiences through capitalistic control, almost exclusively. But nowadays we know that the spirit of monopoly is not confined to capital—money capital—and it ought to give us a better and broader view of the minds of men in general, and less of prejudice against the possession of money as being a condition to rail against.

Men are very much alike, after all. Given the power and chance of control, a poor man is as apt to be as oppressive as the rich one; which leads us to the sure conclusion that man is not so far removed from the animal, as we are sometimes pleased to think, and that the motto of "might makes right" is only waiting for more good opportunities, to become more generally indulged in.

The man independent in his possession of wanted strength or skill, is not different from the man independent in his ownership of patent rights, or the whole supply of an article in demand. The experiences of war times should have broadened us, and perhaps changed our minds as to who are our natural enemies. Perhaps we are somebody's enemy, too, without realizing it?

If we have not learned anything else, it will be a profitable lesson if we have learned that the best thing that can happen to any of us, is to have to work; and to want to do our work so well that we can keep our job. That we not only want the work, but know that we are confronted with enough competition to compel us to be willing and accommodating, and to know that the interests of employer and employee are pretty close together—and that much money does not make differences between men that can not be made where there is very little money.

The True Significance of the Quiet Campaign.

The campaign is very quiet for Presidential year; but we believe it is a good sign. When people are not standing around talking politics and listening to speeches, and spending time in argument, it is a pretty good sign that they are too busy at work to do such things, and being "busy at work" is about the best thing that can happen a country. Men are a lot better off at work for themselves than listening to a lot of politicians who try to "work the voters."

There is only one danger in connection with what we call a "quiet election," and that is, that the voters may make a mistake as to the cause of the quietness, and not go to the trouble of voting on election day. No man (or woman either) should be too busy, or too unconcerned, to vote.

The election this year, is vastly important. The election of a President and Congress is always more important than county elections, even though many may not think so; and this year, with our country facing the vast number of problems following the world war, we need to be alive and interested. These are not only problems of government, but problems of industry, prices, wages—and all of these affect everybody.

What happens to the League of Nations, for instance, we need not care so much about as our own home questions. Not that we ought to shut ourselves up, as some think, away from the world's troubles, and act selfishly as a broad policy; but, if we want to be strong to help the world, we must first be strong ourselves, and this means health and prosperity at home, first.

The quietness of the election is in itself, healthy, but we must not mistake, nor forget, our duty as citizens. The quietness—as we believe—represents the spirit of real Americans to get their own affairs in the best possible shape, after having been so terribly upset, and "work" is the only thing that will do it. Let the time of the campaign be quiet, but let us make election day resound with travel to the voting places. That will be the fittest American way of showing that our whole country is in earnest in its efforts to recover from the awful mess of the war.

Grip.

Grip usually starts just the same as a cold with a watery discharge from the nose. You are much more likely to contract the grip when you have a cold. For that reason when grip is prevalent you should go to bed as soon as you feel that you are taking cold and stay in bed until fully recovered which should not be long if you take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Three days in bed now is better than three weeks later on.

Senator Harding on the League.

Various efforts, some fair and some unfair, have been made during the campaign to draw out Senator Harding in a more specific statement as to his stand on the League of Nations. His own party leaders have recognized, from the beginning, that he had no one-man plan for the League, but was in favor of a covenant of some kind that will help to bring about the world's peace without "scrapping" the Constitution of the United States. The efforts to "smoke him out" to a more definite statement, have been rewarded, but it is only his first statements, in different words, but made so clear that there can no longer be any possible doubt.

Taking his last statements as a whole, and especially the summing up of what will be his course, if elected, his "hecklers" can hardly derive a great deal of satisfaction from their efforts. He said:

"Surely we have suffered enough from the autocratic assumption of a personal wisdom which will neither take counsel nor learn from experience. To formulate a plan of international co-operation is a task of no small difficulty. There are many and conflicting opinions among the people and among the members of the Senate upon the subject. These opinions must be reconciled and harmonized if we are to have any international association for peace at all.

"I shall not risk embarrassing the final solution of a problem so momentous by undertaking to lay down in advance specific details or plans.

"As soon as possible after my election I shall advise with the best minds in the United States, and especially I shall consult in advance with the Senate, with whom, by the terms of the Constitution I shall indeed be bound to counsel and without whose consent no such international association can be formed. I shall do this to the end that we shall have an association of nations for the promotion of international peace, but one which shall definitely safeguard our sovereignty and recognize our ultimate and unimpaired freedom of action."

Head and Heels.

An adage that stood time's acid test counsels us to let the head save the heels. It is aimed at persons who start suddenly for somewhere without a thoughtful plan. They spend their time and strength aimlessly because they did not mark out one clear path. They take the longest way round, for they started in blind haste without pausing for counsel.

The head and the heels were by a wise provision of nature placed as far apart as the human anatomy permits, with the head on high, in a serene detachment, where, as in a conning tower, the eyes may sweep the horizon, and order our going advisedly. Sometimes when the brain issues commands to a subordinate, to be sure there is rebellion, "tongue wags, foot lags," in defiance of that despot intellect. But the head was meant to rule. The rest of us was meant to be ruled. And if we but consent to listen to the cool and sober voice of our inward monitor and better self (or better judgment, it may be named), we shall be delivered from many a pitfall of costly error.

The horse and mule, we are biblically assured, have no understanding, and we are warned not to be like them. That is to say, these animals do not wait for a reason or an explanation. They take to their heels when an incident quite outside the range of their experience alarms them. Poor brutes that perish, they know no better! They are not given man's godlike wisdom.

But the business of a man, with half the number of legs, is to stand firm and refuse to be stampeded. Given the higher voice, he is bound to hear it. The brain—or shall we say the soul?—must take command and be obeyed. Man must not run away from his duty. Soldiers of America had a higher charge than any signaled by reluctant feet or knees that trembled. They were bound to go the way the spirit told them—not heeding the remonstrance of the weak and fainting flesh.

In the common round of daily tasks there come to us all the moments when the least attractive thing to do is to stand firm in service exactly where we are, though distance lends enchantment and far voices call.—Phila. Ledger.

Paper Will Be Last.

Press reports tell us that prices are beginning to come down, and some small evidence of the good news can be found in a few lines of merchandise in the local markets. Flivvers are selling for less, sugar has taken a tumble, it is said that clothing and shoes will be cheaper.

But the thing in which the publisher is most interested is paper, and those who claim to, and should, know say that will be one of the last commodities to drop. The reason they give is shortage of world supply. The usual supply carried by the mills has not been in evidence for the past two years at least. In place of a surplus from which to fill orders the mills are from three months to a year behind on orders. There are practically no stocks in the hands of the jobbers.

Houses that under normal conditions would be carrying heavy stock have practically nothing on their shelves at present time, and for months have been using every shipment they could get to fill back orders. In the same way the stocks in the hands of the printers of the country are depleted. In the big printing establishments in place of going to the stock room for paper when the press is ready to run they are holding presses waiting for the stock to come in.

And the wise ones say that even with a decreased demand, should that decreased demand come, it will be several months, possibly more than a year, before the mills can catch up and again give us a normal condition in the paper market. Until that time, they say, we cannot hope for any appreciable decrease in the price of paper. And in the meantime the spot market on print paper is, if changing at all, going up instead of down.—Publishers' Auxiliary.

Financial Loss Due to Colds.

It is estimated that the average man loses three days time each year from inability to work on account of having a cold. Much of this loss can be avoided by treating every cold as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has won a wide reputation and immense sale by its cures of this disease. Try it. You are certain to be pleased with its pleasant taste and the prompt relief which it affords.

TOOK TIME TO DO THINGS

In "Ox-Cart Days" Men of Genius Did Their Literary Work Leisurely and Well.

How did they do it, those old fellows? Take a novel by Thackeray, for example. It is monumental. Looks as if one of them would be a life work. The mere penning of it appals a modern man. Yet Thackeray turned out volume after volume as if time and energy were interminable. And his work was practically perfect. No slovenliness, no carelessness, no haste, no guess-this-will-do-ness. Today we have every accessory to speed, every time-saving device, all knowledge classified and compendiumed and stored in convenient libraries. But where are the Thackerays? Or the Goethes, Dickenses, Hugos and Balzacs?

Men of their day were compelled to waste time. A journey of a few miles took all day, or several days. A dinner involved sitting up all night and drinking one's self under the table. A message to a friend was not a ten-word telegram, but a beautifully penned and excellently expressed essay. Such letters were preserved and handed down. Later they were put into print. How many letters have you written which will be handed down? And how would you like to have the best letter you ever wrote put into print? Chances are that if you write more than two pages you apologize. And you sign it, "Yours hastily."

The men of the ox-cart days did things thoroughly and well. In the days of the wireless, we "have no time."—Lynn (Mass.) Item.

NEW YORK GOAL OF PILGRIMS

Their Original Intention Was to Found a Colony There, but Plans Were Frustrated.

The Pilgrim Fathers might have founded New York if it had not been for the bribing of the Mayflower skipper by the Dutch, who persuaded him to keep the Pilgrims from the mouth of the great river, which they planned to settle with a colony of their own.

The ancient charter of the Pilgrims gave them land which probably included New York. The patent was granted to them after they fled from the Virginia company. This grant was not exactly the instrument the Pilgrims wanted, because of its religious provisions. The Pilgrims wished to get a patent that would permit them the fullest liberty of worship, but the king refused to give them a charter in which a definite stipulation of religious freedom was contained. So they were forced to content themselves with the Virginia patent, it being suggested by their sympathizers that in the wilderness they would probably not be disturbed.

Little Known of Frogs.

Along the rivers and streams in some parts of Texas, and around the margins of ponds and lakes, we meet with great beds of the water hyacinth, says the American Forestry Magazine. Their delicate white flowers and dark green leaves present a picture of floral luxuriance not very easily forgotten. Where they grow, one should be on the lookout for various species of reptiles or batrachians, and their habits and appearances in nature carefully observed. We know very little about some of the forms, and science will welcome any new facts in regard to them. Some of the frogs and toads, for example, are not only very rare in collections, but we are practically lacking in any field notes upon their exact distribution and habits.

Needn't Worry About That.

"What am I to talk to my lady partner about?" asked a young man about to go to his first party, of an elderly friend.

"Surely you'll talk about the most pleasing question of all—her beauty."

"But if she doesn't happen to be beautiful?"

"No matter, she'll take your word for it."

LOWER PRICES ARE COMING

Ever since the signing of the armistice of the World War, in 1918, people have been looking for a decline in prices in general, but instead of a decline, there continued a steady increase in almost every line, until prices had reached an amazing height.

Different causes were attributed to these advances, viz.: scarcity of material, labor trouble, etc., so that the demand was far in excess of the supply, and the public seemed willing to pay the price demanded. In some instances, speculators took advantage of these conditions and made large investments and cornered the markets, and at the same time boosted the prices of the commodities they were dealing in.

To carry on such a business, it was necessary to have a large amount of capital and this made, in a time, obtainable money more scarce. This was particularly so in the case of the sugar market, and we have no doubt that it was being practiced in other lines as well.

Just lately, we have been hearing lots about lower prices in different lines, and in few cases have found it to be an actual fact that prices are off a little. Silks were the first line noticed to suffer a decline in price, and it was explained that it was due to the Foreign banks calling in loans made to the merchants, who in turn had to move their goods in order to meet their bank's demands and therefore lower prices than had previously prevailed.

This same reason has just recently operated in the falling off in the price of sugar, which up to recently had sold as high as 28 1/2c per pound with the wholesale merchant. Just last week two large automobile concerns amazed the public with the announcement of big reductions in the price of their cars, and this has been followed by slight reductions in other lines.

What Are We Doing About It?

We have never sanctioned unnecessary prices for any merchandise on sale in our store, and were slow to follow prices in their upward trend—never advancing until conditions forced us to. We welcome the sight of lower prices, and wish to announce that we will follow the market in its downward trend as the lower prices become evident, regardless of the stock on hand and will continue to offer only the best grade of merchandise, as has ever been our aim.

We will not attempt to make any quotations in print, at this time, but be assured that, if out of town merchants are offering goods at lower prices, we will have prices equally as low, if not lower.

YOURS FOR LOWER PRICES

BETTER THAN GOLD

A check on our bank is better than gold. Smile, if you will, but it is true just the same.

Why? Well, if you had a $20.00 gold piece and then lost it or a hold-up man got it or some sneak thief picked it from your pocket, the chances are that it would be gone for good. Now, suppose you had that $20.00 in the form of a check on our bank. Then if any of these things happened to you, you could notify the bank, stop payment on the lost check and have another one issued to you and you could still get the money. Which would you prefer?

HOW

MOTHERS NAMED THE BABIES OF ANCIENT BABYLON.

—Whenever an auspicious event occurred either before or about the time a baby was born, Babylonian parents were prompted to call him or her by that name or some cognomen similar to it. Archeologists bless these parents; by means of the children's names in birth records and on tombstones, they discover historical events of which they had before no records.

In like manner, clay documents of a certain period show that newborn children were being given, in large numbers, names alike, one or two names being the favorites. They were being called in honor of some king or some man who had accomplished much about the time they were born.

Presto! the scholars look up to him! They may have to dig through thousands of tablets and spend years over the task before they come across his name or find material to reconstruct his story. But eventually documents concerning him will be dug out of the earth.

It is as though our United States were buried beneath the soil of countless centuries, and men began to dig for birth registers. The number of George Washingtons they would find at one period, and of Abraham Lincolns at another!

One result of the late war in Europe was the naming of babies "Tankie" in England, after the advent of the tanks. Surely, Babylonian's dirt can yield no more eccentric name for us!

or colored ornaments. Widows who are looking for second husbands fasten their hair at the back of the head by means of tortoiseshell pins, and widows who are resolved to remain faithful to their departed spouses cut their hair short and wear no ornaments in it.

How Ants "Clean House."

The late Professor Garner writes in the Century Magazine about a novel way of exterminating vermin in Central Africa. This was simply to welcome into his house one of the hordes of ants that are always on the move in that country. "When the drivers came," he says, "they worked with the thoroughness of a vacuum cleaner. They swarmed up the walls and roof into every cranny, killing and eating any kind of vermin they found there. Then for a short time at least we would be absolutely free of house pests of every description. When, for any reason, we did not want to receive the house-cleaners, we had the native servants drive them back with torches."

How Wind Built Icebergs.

Two picturesque "icebergs" were formed on the northwest shore of Green bay, last spring, after continued strong winds, breaking the rotting ice in the bay, had pushed it bodily toward the coast. For several miles along the shore of the upper bay the cakes were piled high by the steady pressure. Only at one point, however, about six miles south of Escanaba, were the bergs erected. Here the piled-up cakes mounted higher and higher, until in one instance they built an ice mound 50 or 60 feet high. A neighboring pile measured about ten feet shorter. The bayward sides of the "bergs" were practically perpendicular; the lea sides sloped at about 45 degrees. These sloping sides were composed of a mass of shattered, iridescent chips, produced by the grinding of the cakes.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Why "Long Tom" Is Honored.

Long Tom, a 42-pound gun, was originally French property, a part of the armament of the French line-of-battle ship Hoche, captured by the British in 1798 and sold to the Americans. It was used during the French attack on Hayti in 1804, then was dismantled until 1812. Next it was placed on the General Armstrong, which ran the blockade of the British at New Orleans, September 9, 1814. This vessel ran into the bay near Horta, Fayal, for water after an encounter with a British squadron, in which she was rendered helpless. Long Tom was dismantled and lay at Fayal till it was brought to New York on the steamship Vega, April 18, 1893, through the efforts of Colonel Reid, the son of the commander of the General Armstrong.

How Women of Japan Signify to Their Admirers Their Inclination as to Marriage.

DOGS AND CHURCH WINDOWS

Both in Ancient and Modern Times Animal's Representation Has Been Frowned Upon.

The stained-glass representation of the "Pedlar and his Dog," to which attention has been directed by the discovery of a boundary stone of "Pedlar's Acre," on the site of the new county hall, was removed, owing to the alleged incongruity of introducing the figure of a dog in a church window, says the Westminster Gazette.

Quite recently Chancellor Prescott of Carlisle refused a faculty a stained-glass window in a Westmoreland church because the design included a dog; and perhaps the only existing example of dogs used for ecclesiastical decorations are to be found in Lord Brownlow's private chapel at Ashbride.

In this church one stained-glass window depicts Tobias and Sara in bed and a dog sleeping on the quilt, while in another window Job is shown being mocked by three men, one of whom is holding a dog by a chain.

British Warship's Great Guns.

At first sight it may seem strange that the Hood should carry only the same armament as the Queen Elizabeth, built some eight years before the Hood. As a matter of fact, the Queen Elizabeth's guns are forty-two calibers in length; but the guns of the Hood are forty-five caliber long and have greatly increased muzzle velocity. It is believed that the gun weighs a little under one hundred tons and fires a 1,950-pound shell with a muzzle velocity of 2,800 foot-seconds. Another improvement over the Queen Elizabeth is that the new guns have an elevation of 30 degrees for a maximum range of 38,000 yards. The loading gear has been so improved that the Hood is credited with being able to fire a salvo of eight guns every thirty-five seconds.—Scientific American.

Simple Trick of Artist.

Everybody has noticed that the eyes in some portraits follow one wherever he goes in the room. It is a bit uncanny to move about an apartment and have the eyes of a picture always upon one. Some superstitious persons are afraid to go into a picture gallery where portraits of their ancestors are to be found. The effect is simply an optical illusion and is secured by having the eyes in the portrait looking directly toward the front. Under such circumstances the pupil is necessarily in the middle, with an equal amount of "white" on each side. This relation does not vary at all with the position of the observer. No matter where you stand the pupil will be in the middle of the eye and the eye will seem to be looking at you.

WHY

Knowledge Quells Fear in Human Heart

Emerson says: "Always do what you are afraid to do." This is a splendid rule for cultivating courage; but an even better rule would be, "Always investigate what you are afraid of," is the advice of Anne Boyan McCall in Dellneator. Examine into the cause of your fear; look into it, and find out what it is.

When we go forward and investigate the things we are afraid of, we are very likely to find in them something actually helpful. Is it the opinion of others we fear? If we could make up our minds to go toward them and try to understand them, we should find that, instead of things to fear, they are either things that are not worth troubling about or else they are things that would be an actual help to us.

Going toward life instead of away from it, learning to face, yes, and investigate, whatever frightens us, whether our fear be a physical fear, a mental one, or a spiritual one, this is practicing bravery, and this at last is to attain to self-forgetfulness and the merging of our lives in others.

Brave thoughts (unselfish thoughts), the sayings and doings of brave, unselfish men and women; the biography or autobiography of brave lives; the committing to memory of verses that are full of spiritual bravery; the daily conscious effort to investigate and understand lives and beliefs and interests that are different from our own, all these will help us to cultivate that bravery which is at heart thought of others, and that conscious and loving thought of others which is not alone bravery but a perpetual enrichment of life.

TWO-ARMED VETERAN.

Certain Saint Aignan casuals sent to Marseilles had the misfortune to be transported home on the Australian ship Francesca, which started March 1, 1919, and reached Hoboken twenty-six days later. From Bermuda home the soldiers had to coal the ship.

At Camp Mills one of the casuals was asked by a sweet young thing: "And how long were you in France?"

"Lady," he replied, "I done nineteen months in France and a full hitch in the navy coming home."—The Home Sector.

Meeting of the Board of Education.

The regular meeting of the Board of Education was called to order in the office of the Board, on Wednesday, Oct. 6, at 10:20. Commissioner Feeser was absent.

The bid of Wm. H. Saylor amounting to $2824.67 for the construction of the Johnsville school, was rejected, in view of the fact that the Board is unable to undertake work at that point to exceed $2000, the amount allowed in the budget by the County Commissioners. The Board, therefore, decided, to proceed with the construction of the building to the extent of said amount.

The Board passed an order to repay to Michael H. Cooney the amount of $23.75 received from the Clerk of the Circuit Court for Carroll County, from the auctioneer's license fee paid by Mr. Cooney.

A financial statement showing the receipts and disbursements for all purposes for the year ending July 31, 1920, was submitted to the Board, approved, and ordered to be published after audited. The Board decided not to publish the annual report this year.

The proposition of building a bicycle shed for the boys at Westminster high school, to protect their vehicles, was considered desirable by the Board, and the same was authorized to be constructed upon notice that the boys have co-operated in this proposition by agreeing to a rental of 50 cents for each boy, to be turned in to the Athletic Association of the Westminster school.

Supt. Unger reported to the Board that an arrangement with Western Md. College to conduct an educational department in lieu of Summer School for Carroll County teachers, has been made, under the direction of Prof. Isanogle, part of the expense to be borne by the Board of Education. Mr. Isanogle is required under the contract to give a course of instruction in education to the Senior class in the Westminster high school.

The resignations of Misses Ida and May Downing have been accepted by the Board. These young ladies are compelled by the serious illness of their father, to accompany him to his home in Spokane, Wash.

The resignation of Miss Marguerite Smith, now Mrs. Foreman, teacher of the Bruceville school, was accepted by the Board, in view of the fact that she has secured Miss Cora Sappington to take charge of the school for the remainder of the year.

After a careful review of lack of interest given the Board's efforts to establish a high school at Manchester, and a study of the enrollment of only 3 pupils for high school studies in the school this year, it was decided that further efforts financial and otherwise, were not justified, but that for this year high school studies would be offered for first year work only.

It was deemed advisable to raise the janitors' fees for one room schools from $16 to $20; two room, $32 to $40; three room, $60 to $80.

A report on repairs, etc., done throughout the county, under the supervision of G. C. Taylor, during the summer was submitted to the Board and was favorably considered.

President Wantz was authorized to secure a competent auditor, to audit the books.

After very careful consideration by the Board, Supt. Unger was authorized to close the following schools: Poole's, Bird Hill, East View, and Enterprise, in view of the fact that the enrollment does not justify keeping them open, and to assign the teachers to schools where the numbers are very much larger and without teachers.

The list of teachers who were appointed after July 1, was submitted and approved by the Board. They are as follows: Pine Hill, Guy P. Bready; Clear View, Mildred Boston; Uniontown, H. Auden Dobson; Pleasant Valley, Primary, Charlotte Walters; Mayberry, Millard Palmer; Mt. Pleasant, Dorothy Reifsnider; Wisner's, Anna Zile; Good Hope, Helen Bankard; Cherry Grove, Mary Hare; Wesley, Primary, Mildred Smith; Patapsco, Ellen Stone; Sandymount, Corrine Fowler; Bird Hill, Carrie Buckingham; East View, Elva Lovell; Haight, Hilda Ewartofski; Slack's, Mrs. F. Chenoweth; Sykesville, C. M. Behr, J. Lrene Coonan and M. Louise McDonald; Pleasant Gap, Ruth Phillips; Poole's, Alma Wales; Miller's, Mrs. Hilda Bollinger; Springville, J. Frank Lawson; Cross Roads, Harry Brenner; Deep Run, Irving Stegner; Westminster, E. C. Seitz, Sarah Ryan, Jaul D. Jones, Althea Hartig, Ruth Walsh and Louise Mathevs; West End, Lydia Schlosser; Shady's, Hilda Schaeffer; Ogg Summit, Elsie Schaeffer; Hampstead, J. M. Spangler; Lowe's, Emma Cagle; Shiloh, Esther Walsh; Leister's, Harry Mathias; Hobson Grove, Anna Sire; Bruceville, Cora Sappington; Linwood, Bertha Drach; Union Bridge, Bernice Spring, Mary Ellen Eyster, Margaret Anders; Ridgeville, Clara Smith; Ridge, Bernice Buckingham; Union St. (col), Anna Shipley.

The meeting adjourned at 12:20.

Improve Your Digestion.

If you have weak digestion eat sparingly of meats; let at least five hours elapse between meals; eat nothing between meals. Drink an abundance of water. Take one of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper. Do this and you will improve your digestion.

Help your Moulters Moul

Moulting time is the time that a hen needs assistance. It is the off-season in the life of the hen.

Think of the amount of a hen's energy, vitality and red blood that's required to reproduce a thousand feathers! (which is only an average plumage).

A moulting hen needs good health, good appetite and digestion. That's just what Poultry Pan-a-ce-a does for a moulting hen—gives her appetite and good digestion, so that she'll eat more and digest more.

Dr. Hess Poultry PAN-A-CE-A

Helps your poultry through the moult. And starts your pullets and moulted hens to laying.

It contains Tonics that produce appetite and good digestion—Tonics that tone up the dormant egg organs—Iron that gives a moulting hen rich, red blood and a red comb. It contains Internal Antiseptics that destroy disease germs that may be lurking in the system.

No disease where Pan-a-ce-a is fed

Pan-a-ce-a helps your poultry to stay at par during the moult. They don't become run-down, pale and thin.

By FREDERICK HART

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"I wish I knew what was the matter with Billy Renfrew!" The head coach of the Danvers College track team spoke discouragedly. "He can run—he's got the best pair of legs I've seen on a man around here in years—but he doesn't seem to take any interest in it at all. He gets out there every day and fiddles around and fiddles around, and that's all he ever does. Put him in a meet and it's ten to one he gets licked."

"If he cared I wouldn't mind, but he doesn't seem to care a whoop. You remember the Ardsdale meet? He was trimmed in the hundred by a little chap about half his size—and he came in grinning! I guess I let him get away with something—that was all he said. What are you going to do with a guy like that?"

"Fire him," suggested the coach's companion, a grizzled veteran of many years ago, who had come up, as graduates often do, to look over the material of his alma mater and lend a helping hand to the overworked coach. "No, I can't do that. He's good for two places at least, and he can run, but he won't. Firing wouldn't do any good—he'd just grin and let it go at that. I reckon I'll have to keep him and be content with whatever he shows—a couple of third places, like as not, when he should have two firsts. Confound a man with no ambition!"

The man who had been talking to the coach left him in a few minutes, his brow wrinkled in thought. And that afternoon he sent a wire to New York, which elicited instant response, and that same evening Billy Renfrew, much to his surprise, received a note which read as follows:

"Dear Mr. Renfrew:
"As a former member of the track team here at Danvers I naturally take an interest in everybody who is now helping to keep the colors of the old college at the top of the pole. I have watched your work at the track, and would esteem it a favor if you would come to call on me tonight and talk about the team and its prospects—and yourself, if you are not too modest. I am stopping at the William hotel—just ask for my room and come right up.
"Yours sincerely,
"Arthur Devallon, 1895."

Billy read the note in some amazement, but he decided to accept the invitation, and that night he called. He was shown into a comfortable suite Received a Shock to See That She Had Some One With Her.

at the hotel and in a moment his host had introduced himself—and then Billy felt the ground slipping from under his feet and his head whirling; for there before his eyes was the most bewitching vision he had ever seen. What was Mr. Devallon saying? "My niece, Miss Marjorie Devallon, Mr. Renfrew. Marjorie, you must help me entertain this young man."

Marjorie blushed delightfully, and assured the crimson young athlete that she would do her best; and then they all sat down and the conversation began. If Billy had been himself he might have wondered that Mr. Devallon seemed to desire to do so little talking; but he was not himself; he was lost in the light of a pair of big brown eyes and the meshes of distractingly cobwebby hair that floated about them and made a halo of dark gold where the lamplight shone through.

And when Mr. Devallon found excuse to depart on the plea of calling on an old professor of his, Billy breathed a sigh of thankfulness. And the evening sped on light footsteps till Mr. Devallon returned, and Billy must needs make his adieus; but he had discovered that his divinity was going to stay in town for a while, so he departed radiant.

After he had gone Mr. Devallon swung Marjorie off her feet and performed an impromptu war dance around the room.

"Bless your heart for an angel, niece of mine!" he cried exultantly. "I knew you'd come when you got my wire—and you certainly have our young lackadaisy going. He'll run all right now! You can make him do anything you want! Hooray for Danvers and the nieces of her graduates!"

But Marjorie was a bit quiet and did not enter into the spirit of the war dance, so her uncle sent her off to bed.

Two weeks later came the meet with Downing College, and the coach, who had despaired of winning—privately—received the shock of his life. Billy Renfrew went to the starting line with his jaw set and turned in two first places—one in the hundred and one in the two-hundred dash—making better time than he had ever done before.

The coach was amazed; Mr. Devallon was jubilant, but kept his own counsel; and only Billy and Marjorie knew that those races were run on the inspiration of a pair of bright eyes in the third row of the grand stand. Billy had found his interest. After the meet Mr. Devallon proposed that Marjorie return to New York. "You've done your work and done it well. That young idiot has learned what ambition is, and you've taught it to him. We can go when we please."

But Marjorie showed a sudden interest in the coming intercollegiate, and begged to be allowed to remain. She would stay with a girl friend of hers, she said; and, finally, Mr. Devallon consented.

The intercollegiate were run two weeks later, and Mr. Devallon read with pleasure that Bill Renfrew had taken first in the 100-yard dash and first in the 220—his special races—and afterward had tried his hand at the broad jump, placing third—a total of thirteen points for his college.

Marjorie had promised to return immediately after the meet, so that evening after dinner he was not surprised when she entered unannounced. But he received a shock to see that she had some one with her, and that that some one was no other than Billy Renfrew.

"What are you doing here?" he asked. "I thought you'd be with the team, breaking training."

"I've broken training, Mr. Devallon. I've broken it by—by—well, the fact is—I hardly can believe it myself—"

"Oh, uncle dear," cried Marjorie, "we're engaged—just think of it—and you're responsible for it all! Isn't it wonderful?"

When Mr. Devallon recovered from the stunning shock of the news the two hung on his neck till he gave his consent.

"As Marjorie's legal guardian, I suppose I'll have to say 'Yes,'" he grumbled. "If I'd had any idea it would end like this I never would have wired for you, niece of mine, even if Danvers had lost every meet on the schedule. But go on, you two. I'm going to bed—and God bless you both!"

Later, in the dim quiet of the big living room, Marjorie confessed all to Billy.

"You see, uncle thought you'd run better if you had an incentive, and so he sent for me—to flirt with you and try to make you see how you were wasting your ability—and I did it well, didn't I? And you'll forgive me, won't you?"

After an earnest, if wordless, assurance of forgiveness, Bill suddenly sobered.

"Dearest," he said, "your uncle was right. I did lack ambition, and I was just lazy—I didn't care. But you've given me incentive enough to carry me through all the things I may have to meet in life. So I say 'God bless your uncle!'"

"So do I, Billy dear," she murmured.

WHY HE GAVE UP NUMBERS

School Superintendent Had to Have a Personal Experience of Objectionableness of His System.

In Indianapolis there is a certain school superintendent who used to refuse to call any of the people under him by their names. He said that it was too much trouble to learn them and that numbers were much more convenient, anyway. But now he has dropped the number habit and takes the time and trouble to learn every new employee's name and uses it accordingly. But only a few of his most intimate friends know the reason for his change.

At one time he was confined in a hospital. He was very well known and had much company. One day when alone he overheard the head nurse say to the doctor: "Now if you're ready we'll dress No. 5's arm next."

The number on the door of his room was No. 5, so he knew whom they meant. As he lay there he decided that since a name appealed so much more to him than a number it might be the same way with other people, even his employees. Hence his name system.

Hard Task for Designers.

Roty's famous "Sower" threatens to become a less familiar figure, says a Paris dispatch to the London Times. Already, thanks to the "crise de la monnaie," it has become a rarity to behold it on silver coinage, and now lists have been opened for new designs of postage stamps. Eight candidates have sent in 33 designs, which are now being exhibited. On a tiny bit of paper, which has to contain the words "Postes" and "Republique Francaise," in addition to a figure denoting the amount, the competitors have had to "commemorate both the military victory and the historic mission of France in the world."

Home Town Helps

GOOD CITIZENS, AND OTHERS

Vital Difference Between Them, Though It May Not Always Seem to Be Recognized.

Two men went to a man who keeps a small retail store on a residence street the other day and said:

"We will paint your whole building every year if you will let us put a sign on the blank wall." And he said:

"I can't do it." So they got up to painting his store and paying $100. And then he told them:

"This is a residence street. The people are willing to have me here because I render service. That wall of mine doesn't make the street look any worse than is necessary."

They told him other men did it; that no one noticed it; that it didn't bring him a dollar's more business, but he refused all the arguments they could think of. His answer was that he owed something to the people of his neighborhood.

There is a citizen who is an asset to his community. And it is true there is no recognition in it and probably not a dollar in trade.

There are others like this man. The man who is holding vacant lots for an increase and ekes out the taxes by renting space for disfiguring signboards is criticized, but his pocket doesn't suffer—at least he is convinced that it doesn't.

The man who refuses to do this, who keeps the grass cut and allows no accumulations of rubbish is an asset. But there is no sign to remind his neighbors that he is a decent citizen.

So with the man who doesn't let his chimney smoke, who keeps his place in repair, who doesn't have the public sidewalk forever blocked.

And they aren't paid? Well, that depends on how you look at it. Some men are pretty well paid by the consciousness that they enjoy the society of a decent citizen and good neighbor when they are alone.—Milwaukee Journal.

LEARN TO DEFEND GARDEN

Interest and Willingness Not Sufficient to Make Up for Lack of Practical Knowledge.

There is, perhaps, a love for the soil, latent or rudimentary, in most of us, an agricultural instinct that has come down to us through the generations since the first gardener. It is a taste easily developed. Soon comes a liking for the smell of the earth upturned by the plow, an interest in watching the breaking of the plants through their covering and in noting the varied characteristics. But skill does not always equal the interest and there must be intelligence and skill if the garden is to be a success. The habits of each variety of plant, its special needs, the nature of its insect enemies and the means of circumventing them, all are learned by experience, but it is better not to wait for this, since discouragement may intervene. It is wise to take the instruction that experts can give and it was a happy thought on the part of the Gardeners' association to plan for this. Lectures on the subject should be well attended and productive of good results.—Indianapolis News.

Great Men From Small Towns.

The little town should be away from all main lines of travel; otherwise it is apt to be small instead of little. The infrequent motorist may dub it "dead as Julius Caesar," but it likes itself that way. It piques itself on its age, resents innovations, has no use for "booms" or reformers. Its people are noted for "a sweet unreasonableness," their kindly neighborliness and a moral rigidity quite out of fashion, yet becoming. Many great men have borne witness to its charm by returning to end their days in the place where their characters ripened. After all, the little towns are the seed from which came the best of our American manhood.—Chicago Tribune.

Whitewash for Trees.

Whitewashing the trunks of fruit or shade trees has a two-fold purpose. First it adds much to the attractiveness of the lawn or orchard, second the whitewash causes the old loose and rough bark to be replaced by smooth healthy bark. Grubs and insects are killed and the life of the tree greatly prolonged.

Here is a good recipe for making the whitewash: Mix in one-half pound of sulphur to four gallons of water, add enough lime to make the whitewash, put in a handful of salt. Paint the trees. If they are very rough, they should have the second coat.—The Thrift Magazine.

Old Titles Favored.

The multiplicity of newspapers has not given rise to many new titles. "Advertiser" is the favorite. There are 190 newspapers of that designation in the United Kingdom. "Times" comes next with 150; "News" with 149; "Gazette" with 128; "Chronicle" with 120; "Herald" with 119, and "Journal" with 104. The "Expresses," "Guardians," and "Observers" muster over fifty each. There are forty-eight "Standards" and only thirty-eight "Telegraphs."—London Tit-Bits.

LILA LEE

Miss Lila Lee is a most able dispenser of cheer. Only a few short years ago she was a little tot playing "Ring Around a Rosie," in the streets of Union Hill, N. J. She was induced to enter vaudeville, and a little later was entered as a candidate for laurels in the silent drama, soon becoming a "movie" star. "Keep smiling" is the motto of this little film favorite.

TWO BRANDS OF PROPHET.

Two kinds of prophet I have met Upon my journey here below— Two kinds! And I am free to bet Both kinds you also chance to know.

One kind keeps still before events, And later says, "I told you so." I must admit I am too dense To see why he keeps lying so.

The other kind blurts out his say, And when the day is past and gone He hides, if things don't go his way, And keeps as still as Coal Oil John.

Two kinds of prophet—each no good— Both you and I have always known; Two kinds of prophet; and we should Be scared if neither "pulled a bone."

'SNOTHIN'!

Recently one of the greatest painters of poultry was operated on at a St. Louis hospital. Poultry painting, perhaps, does not require great ability. We know a butcher who never had an art lesson in his life who can draw a chicken in a minute, so skillfully that the most careful cook has only to wash it a little and put it in to roast.

Couldn't Be Done So Soon.

A proverbially indigent though honest citizen in a western town lately applied to the president of the local bank for a 30-day loan of $50.

When the president refused the loan, the man was astonished.

"I know you're honest, but you might die."

"Might die? Gosh, but a feller couldn't die in just 30 days!"

THE WAIL OF A MERE MAN.

I ain't no lizzle; I live At Sisseton, S. D. But why can wife wear such pretty things For clothing, and not me?

An Ally Dog.

Evidently there are dogs in this country that are opposed to hyphenated, but not hydrophobiated Americans. Lately at Ames, Ia., a German scientific laborer, employed in the state agricultural school work, was bitten in the face by a rabid or unneutral dog and had to be taken to the Pasteurizing studio in Des Moines. Bitten by an American dog and given French treatment, all inside of 24 hours, is going some for a German!

GOLDEN TEXT—Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.—Matt. 4:17.
ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Mark
1:16-20; Luke 5:1-11.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Chooses Helpers.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaching and Healing.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC
—The Call of the First Disciples.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC
—Jesus enters upon his mission.

I. The King His Own Herald (vv.
12-17).

1. The reason for (v. 12). The news of the imprisonment of John the Baptist caused Jesus to forsake Judea and go into Galilee. The fate of John he accepted as foreshadowing his own.
Because of this, he withdrew from the metropolis and went to the remote regions where his work would attract less attention. When the people wilfully reject the truth and attempt to do violence to the messenger, he should turn from them unless specially directed otherwise.

2. To whom the proclamation is made (vv. 13-16). The people in Capernaum. This was done in fulfillment of a prophecy in Isaiah 9:1, 2.
These people did not enjoy such privileges as those around Jerusalem.
This was one of the darkest and most corrupt of the provinces, and now it is getting the light first. This foreshadowed the present age when the grace of God would reach out to the Gentiles. But this is just like the Lord. He did not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.
It should be our business, like the Master, to go to the most benighted souls with the message of light and life.

3. His message (v. 17). "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." This is the same kingdom which John the Baptist and the Old Testament prophets proclaimed. It means the Messianic earth rule of Jesus Christ. This is not our message, for ours is the gospel of the grace of God through faith in the finished work of Christ. We should call upon men to repent and believe the gospel of Christ's death for their sins and resurrection for justification. The time is coming when heralds will again announce the coming of the kingdom, and the King himself will come forth from the heavens to establish his mediatorial kingdom. For this we pray when we intelligently say, "Thy kingdom come."

II. The King Summons Servants to His side (vv. 8-22).

1. His command of authority (v. 19).
He did not use arguments, but issued the mandate. The King's voice is autocratic. To command is the King's prerogative, not to argue or entreat.

2. The station of the servants called (vv. 18, 21). They were men of lowly birth—fishermen. God chooses the foolish things of this world to put to shame the mighty, that no flesh might boast before him (1 Cor. 1:26).

3. They were called to definite service (v. 19). "I will make you fishers of men." He had previously called them to be disciples (John 1:36-42).
He now called them to service. This call, then, was not the gospel call to sinners, which is always "Believe on me," but the call to service, of those who had already heeded the call to discipleship. The qualities which made them good fishermen—patience, bravery to face the storm and the night, the perseverance which toiled all night though no fish were caught, would make them good fishers of men.

4. Their prompt obedience (vv. 20, 22). They gave up their business and homes, not even inquiring where their salary was to come from. They put their trust in him who called, believing that he was able to supply their needs.

III. The King's Triumphant Progress
(vv. 23-25).

He went the whole rounds of Galilee teaching the Scriptures, preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of diseases. He did a threefold work:

1. Teaching the Scriptures in the synagogues (v. 23). The revelation of God needed to be explained. This is what he was doing at Nazareth (Luke 4:16-22).

2. Preaching the glad tidings of the kingdom (v. 23). The King who was present and was heralding his own mission was ready to establish his kingdom if they would have been willing to receive him.

3. Healing all manner of diseases
(v. 23). There was no form of disease which he could not cure.

Learn the Lesson.
Therefore, let us be patient, patient; and let God our Father teach us his own lesson his own way. Let us try to learn it well and quickly; but do not let us fancy that he will ring the school bell and send us to play before our lesson is learnt.—Charles Kingsley.

Mischief Makers.

I have heard it said that spies and talebearers have done more mischief in this world than the poisoned bowl or the assassin's dagger.—Schiller.

Christian Principles in Politics
Luke 22:24-27

In the Scripture lesson our divine Lord exalts service to the highest place. No better description of His own ministry on earth can be found than in the words of verse 27, "I am among you as one that serveth."

There are many avenues for service. Politics is one, and into this sphere of human activity Christian principles ought to be carried, but this can be done only by Christian men; men who are not vaguely religious, but who have had a definite Christian experience; men who have faith in Jesus Christ as the Lamb of God bearing away the sin of the world, and who in response to that faith, have come to know the power of God unto salvation. Such a man can carry Christian principles into politics. Their acceptance by his political friends or foes is another matter. The world has never been ruled on genuinely Christian principles, and it cannot be, until men become definitely Christian. The ignoring and obscuring of this fact is the root error in all our religious, social, and political schemes for world uplift.
This does not imply that Christians should stand aloof from all such effort, but it does mean that respectability and rehabilitation shall not be regarded as the objective but that regeneration in its scriptural meaning shall be the only goal, for without this there cannot be vision of, or entrance into, the kingdom of God.
(See John 3:3-5.)

Not many Christians of the positive type are leaders in the field of politics. Wm. Jennings Bryan is the most conspicuous example. In a recent address, we heard him refer to the great spiritual truths of the new birth, and union of soul with Christ, in language born of experience, and with much fervor. Doubtless this is the secret of his exemplary public life, for both among political friends and foes he is recognized as a good man, one who has maintained his integrity throughout the strife and turmoil of his political career, while many others have sold out to newspaper popularity, or financial interests.

Christians should do their utmost to carry their principles into politics, using their votes and their influence for the promotion of righteousness in civic and social life. The enemies of good government are well organized, and are conducting an active propaganda to promote their own interests. The anarchistic alcohol traffic is about to play its last card in the endeavor to massacre or modify the prohibition amendment. Let every member of our Young People's Society get to work for the salvation of others and to help defeat lawlessness and crime.

FULLY OCCUPIED.

"How are things going these days?"
asked the washing machine agent who visited the hamlet, now and again.
"Finer than frog hair!" replied the landlord of the tavern at Grudge.
"Business is so lively and everybody so busy that now'days hardly ever more than a dozen fellers gather around a dog fight, unless, of course, there are more than two dogs in it."

Modern Cereals Superior.

The wheat and barley of today are much larger and finer grains than the wheat and barley which have been found in ancient Egyptian tombs and in the buried cities of Greece. As for rice, which feeds more than one-third of the human race, there are now a number of varieties (developed chiefly by the Japanese) which are far superior to any that were known even half a century ago.

All of our grains, excepting maize, seem to have originated in southern Asia. Consumption of rice, the great Asiatic cereal, is now growing rapidly in the United States, most of our people having learned only recently to appreciate it, and how to prepare it for the table.

Freak Newspapers.

In Germany there is a newspaper that has nothing in it but stories about rheumatism. People having this trouble write in their experiences, doctors tell new ways to get rid of it and it seems that everybody there having rheumatism subscribes to this queer newspaper. Some years ago a Russian editor started a postcard-size newspaper, the print of which was so small that he furnished a magnifying glass to each of his regular subscribers. Somehow the idea didn't take, as he only printed a few numbers before finding out that the people didn't appreciate the idea, even though the magnifying glass was furnished free.

Disillusioned.

Waiting for his shoes in a white-you-wait repair shop, he was impressed by the apparent femininity, neatness and self-respect of the young woman attending the counter.
He didn't like to see her handling worn shoes. He was wishing she were in another environment. Just then his shoes were passed along from the workman to her. She took them, looked at the tag, called a boy and pointing to the meditating customer, said:
"Take these to that gink over there."

Crying For Bread

Photo International.
New East Relief Workers Distributing Bread to Newly Arrived Armenian Refugees in Constantinople.

The Constantinople district of the Near East Relief is wonderfully organized. All the bakeries which formerly supplied the Turkish army, under German management, have been taken over by the Near East Relief, and 20,000 loaves of bread are baked and distributed daily. Placed side by side, these loaves would make a line 250 miles long, for the five months that the Near East Relief has operated its consolidated bakeries in Constantinople, alone.

The Near East Relief, with offices in every state, is asking for funds to go on with this work.

Harem Victim Tells Story

Stolen from her home on the night before her wedding and imprisoned for five years in a Turkish harem, Aghavni Millian, a beautiful nineteen-year-old Armenian girl from Bitlis, has at last been discovered by her lover and through the assistance of the Near East Relief forcibly taken from her master and brought to one of the American Rescue Homes in Constantinople. Here she will stay until arrangements can be made for her marriage and her return to her old home.

"My story—it is like hundreds of others," Aghavni said simply. "I was stolen from my home on the night that the massacres first began in Bitlis. It was the night before I was to have been married. I was just folding my wedding veil away when the Turkish soldiers broke into the house. They carried me off. I— They took me up to Constantinople to the house of the man"— She stopped and put one hand over her eyes, a hand that bore the tell-tale tattoo of her Turkish master.

"But what does my story matter?"
she exclaimed. "I am only one of so many. It is my people and their future that matters. Somehow we must rebuild our nation and show to the Turks who tried to beat out our life and to the whole world that, despite what we have suffered, Armenia is still unconquerable."

Aghavni Millian is, as she says, only one of many. It is estimated that one hundred thousand girls are still held captive in Turkish harems. The Near East Relief, America's official agent in Armenia, is making this work of rescue one of the most important features of its program, and it is to them and the support they receive from the American people that Aghavni's unfortunate sisters, still captive, must look for their release.

Armenian Refugees Line Up for Food.

As cold weather sets in refugees are pouring into Near East Relief centers.
This group is fed daily in the former Russian barracks at Alexandropol, one of the saddest cities in the Caucasus.

WAITING FOR US TO SET THE TABLE

A table twenty-four miles long is plainly an extension table and that is just the length that would seat all of the orphans now being fed by the Near East Relief. This table is set in sections all over the hills of Asia Minor, Syria, Armenia and in Northern Persia. It is not in one piece. The Turks, who still keep the Armenians in a state of terror, do not allow it.

But there the table is, seated on both sides with orphans—Syrian and

The Table Is Now 24 Miles Long.

Assyrian, Greek and Armenian, Jew and Christian—all rescued from the fear of the Turk and under the care of American men and women.

Most of the children are cared for in 220 American supported orphanages.
The first ceremony in receiving these starved, almost naked children, is to clean them up. They are not only emaciated, but dirty with sores and vermin—69 hospitals and over 6,000 beds are kept full of the little sufferers.

Best of all for a new Near East which surely must come out of all this distress, every child old enough is being taught a trade which will make him self supporting.

They are a thrifty lot, these little parentless exiles. From their scant store of bread they always carry a portion in a small bag about their necks—they fear the day of another killing, another drive into the desert.

They horde the shoes sent from America until snow flies—they remember their barefoot pain in the snows last spring.

They cling to their new found friends. Every day other little waifs find a place in the orphanages and are told of the generous people of the United States. Soon the entrances will be crowded with children frozen out from their temporary summer quarters.

Then the table of the Near East Relief must be extended—many, many new leaves will be needed, and America is asked to set the table.

profit than hogs not fed Milkoline. V. H.
Graham a successful feeder of Middletown, Mo., said $30 worth of Milkoline made him an Hampton, Pa., is preparing to beautify the square in the centre of the town, by popular subscription, one citizen heading the list with $100.00. This is proper town spirit. The grade of the state road through town will materially vary from the present grade of the street, and property owners pretty generally are not pleased with the change. At the square, the level of the street will be lowered about one foot, and at other places raised more than that. It is general opinion that the original grade should have been maintained, as all pavements, crossings and cross streets are adjusted to it. A delegation waited on the State Road Commission, on Thursday, in an effort to secure modifications in the present grading, but without success. The town authorities gave the state full control over the street, and the state authorities mean to enforce their plan whether the town likes it, or not.

The P. O. S. of A. Celebration.

(For the Record.)

The Patriotic Order Sons of America Rally and celebration of "Discovery Day" was an even greater success than the order expected. On Tuesday afternoon a round table conference was held in Davis's Hall, Westminster, with delegations present from the Camps of the county, from Baltimore, Cumberland and Arlington. State Vice-President J. Waters Russell, of Chestertown, presided. A resolution was adopted and a committee appointed looking to the forming of a county organization of the county camps.

At 6:30 o'clock the parade, nearly a mile in length, led by uniformed policemen and the Mayor and City Council in automobiles, and marshaled by James M. Stoner, of Westminster Camp, and Harvey Lambert, of Marston Camp, and their assistants, marched through the principal streets, and entered the Armory at 8 o'clock. The order of the Camps, following the marshals, bearing flags and banner, was as follows: Pleasant Valley Camp with P. O. S. of A. band of Pleasant Valley; Hampstead Camp, with the Conway Silver Cornet band; Taneytown uniformed degree team and Taneytown Camp, with the Littlestown Pa., P. O. S. of A. band, and a large delegation from the Littlestown Camp; large delegations from Winfield, Westminster, Marston and a few from other Camps in the county, with delegations from Baltimore City Camps; Uniontown Camp and Oak Orchard band; candidates for initiation in all nearly 1000 men.

At the Armory Past State President William L. Seabrook presided at the public meeting. Members of the order and the general public filled the armory to capacity. The Mayor and City Council, Past State Presidents Luther Kemp, of Carroll county, Wm. F. Williams and George R. McCleary, of Baltimore, and William T. Childs, of Arlington, with members of the State Executive Committee occupied seats on the stage. Rev. Paul D. Yoder, State Chaplain, offered the invocation. The presiding officer made a short address and introduced the chief speaker of the evening, National Chaplain Rev. Walter H. Egge, of Lebanon, Pa., and Past National President William James Heaps, of Baltimore. Patriotic anthems were sung, led by the Pleasant Valley Band.

Following the public meeting, at 10 o'clock the order went into secret session, and the initiation of a large class of candidates was conducted by the Taneytown degree team, Past State President William T. Childs delivering the lecture.

One hundred and four candidates were initiated, and the various Camps reported about thirty others who have been elected during the drive and who will be initiated in their own Camps. The largest number of candidates presented for initiation by one Camp was 54, to become members of the Pleasant Valley Camp, and of that number 41 were proposed by Upton E. Myers, State Master of Forms, Alfred Bowen, of Cumberland, at the beginning of the drive, generously offered a large and handsome loving-cup, as a reward to the Camp presenting the largest number of candidates for initiation, and an emblem ring to the individual securing the largest number. Mr. Bowen was present, on Tuesday evening, and made the presentation to the Pleasant Valley Camp and Mr. Myers, and announced that this Camp would be the custodian of the cup until the next meeting of the State Camp, at Cambridge in August 1921, when it will be awarded to the Camp in the county, that shall have made the largest percentage of gain between this time and the State Camp meeting.

Dr. Heaps presented copies of his book "Autocracy vs. Democracy" to Upton Myers, of Pleasant Valley, Wm. Basil, of Hampstead, Ernest Zile, of Marston, and H. E. Erb, of Uniontown, each of whom had secured five new members or more. Shortly after midnight, luncheon was served by a committee, of which James M. Ston-

BLOOD IS FUEL TO THE BODY

Pumped Through the System by the Heart it Sustains the Muscles and Tissues

PEPTO-MANGAN HELPS BLOOD Keep the Quality of Your Blood at its Best--it Means Vigorous Health and Ability to Accomplish

Blood acts like a fuel. Pumped through the body by the heart, it sustains the muscles and tissue. It renews them. It feeds the brain—the tissues of the eye and face. That is why people look so pale and lifeless when blood is impoverished. The body tissues are being supplied with weak fuel. The blood has not enough red corpuscles. You would not eat poor food with no nourishment in it; no more should you let the fuel that supplies sustenance to your entire body be inferior. Have good blood. Improve the quality and keep it at its best.

If you look pale and feel weak, if you have lost your enthusiasm and energy, if your system is clogged with poisons, your system is being fed with a poor grade of blood. That is no way to go around. If you are not at your best, get at the source of the trouble right away. Put an end to half-living.

Take that ideal tonic, Pepto-Mangan, to tone up your blood and purify it. Get the full enjoyment out of living. Breathe fresh air, take exercise. Be sure to ask for "Gude's Pepto-Mangan." It comes in convenient tablet form and in liquid. One has the same medicinal value as the other. There is only one genuine Pepto-Mangan, and the name "Gude's" is on the package. Advertisement.
