The "Campaign liar" has not died, nor gone out of business but may be expected to ply his trade to catch the quibble, or misinformed, between now and Nov. 2.

The investigation of the amount of Presidential campaign contributions must have a "kick" to it. At any rate, as a campaign issue, it has dropped out of sight for several weeks.

Some newspaper familiars that will go into partial eclipse, after Nov. 2; "Senatorial Aligarchy," "Article X," "one man government," "President Wilson," "League of Nations," "Versailles Treaty," "The League," etc., etc.

The League of Nations proposition is very far from being an unimportant issue; but, so far as its being a big issue with the voters of the country is concerned, it has been a big failure. The average voter believes it to be a matter for Congress to settle, and act on, and refuses to worry about it.

To the best of our knowledge, there is no great difference between Harding and Cox on the prohibition question. We do not believe that either of them have a strong "dry" record, but that personally both are "dry" in the matter of habits. Any effort to try to make them lose votes, on this issue, are likely pure campaign ammunition, and the average voter can safely consider that there is "no choice" between them on the question.

Almost Unbelievable.

Alleged war waste evidences are on record, almost without number. The following is one that was stated in a speech made at Columbus, Ohio, by Senator Watson, of Indiana: "To brand some 391,000 horses and mules, 195,000 branding irons were ordered. The contractor agreed that these irons should be made of copper, which was very scarce. He purchased 79,000 pounds of copper, 20,000 pounds more than he needed to make the branding irons.

Officials of the company testified that they paid 38½ cents a pound for the copper. The War department paid the company 39½ cents a pound for all the copper including the 20,000 pounds that the government did not need, and immediately the next day turned around and sold it back to the company for 11 cents a pound. And as a climax to it all, the company filed a claim for profits that it would have received if it had filled the contract and the government allowed $40,000, which was paid out of the Treasury department, and, somehow or other, we managed to worry along and win the war without branding a single animal."

Labor's Verdict on Prohibition.

The Literary Digest recently pursued a plan of securing union labor's opinion of Prohibition, through questioning duly elected labor officials, the question being: "Has prohibition been a benefit to the workmen and their families? The replies received numbered 526, about 30 per-cent of which represented a poll taken at a regular meeting.

The replies were divided as follows: Yes 345, No 143, doubtful 31, fair trial not yet given 7. An analysis and review of the answers shows a great variety of opinions, very emphatic, in many instances, on both sides. Practically, they run the whole scale of arguments, for and against prohibition.

Some of them blame the present unrest and disturbance throughout the country, on prohibition, but forget that there is more of this unrest in countries not having prohibition. Some are positively sure that labor would be better satisfied, with its favorite "booze" at hand, while others are just as sure that prohibition is "the best thing that ever happened," and that all of the strikes during the past year were comparatively orderly, due solely to sobriety.

The poll shows that about two-thirds earnestly favor the prohibition laws, and that the other third is as earnestly opposed to it. This poll it must be remembered, was among the organized laboring classes, in which liquors were most used, as compared with the other classes of citizens. It is reasonable to suppose, therefore, that the majority for prohibition, taking a vote of all classes in a state, or community, would be greatly stronger than two to one.

It must also be remembered, that the figures given are stronger "against" than they will ever be again. Ten years from now, a lot of the habituals will have "gone west" and those who take their places will not be so wet.

Cost of Owning an Auto.

How much income is it necessary for one to have before he can own and operate an automobile?

While of course, the make of the machine and amount it is used enter into the question, in the opinion of automobile owners about Frederick city an income of $2,000 a year is barely sufficient for one to support himself and operate a "flivver," on a very moderate scale. This figure was given in the case of single men; for men with families, to support the income would have to be much greater, according to prevailing opinion.

There are of course, many owners of automobiles in Maryland, who do not receive $2,000 a year, some of them probably have incomes nearer the $1,000 mark and a few even below this figure. But these are exceptions. These persons, it was said, buy a machine on the installment plan, run it very little and make all repairs themselves, thus greatly cutting down the cost of upkeep.

The majority of the automobile owning class, however, use their machines at every opportunity and send it to the shop when something goes wrong, making the upkeep above the reach of the man with a salary below $2,000.

One driver of a "flivver," who was interviewed on the street, estimated that it cost him more than $400 a year to operate his machine, driving it on an average of 6,000 miles a year. Of this amount he estimated that he spent more than $130 for gasoline $15 for oil, $80 for tires, $150 for repairs and about $5 for other needs.

He made no attempt to include depreciation in the value of the automobile during one year or the figure probably would have run nearer $700. When asked what he thought was the lowest income on which one could own and operate an automobile he said $2,000, but added he knew many not making that much who own machines. A driver of a medium-priced car, driving it on the average of 18,000 miles a year, declared the cost of gasoline, tires and oil alone was about $700. He could make no estimate of repair costs nor depreciation. He thought, however, that with these the total would exceed $1,000.

Several prominent business men, when asked the same question, refused to talk for publication. One said he had no idea how much his automobile cost him, that he purposefully avoided finding out, having worries enough now. He said, however, that he would not think of trying to operate an automobile if his income was only $2,000 a year. Others said the same thing.

He said he had no idea how much his own machine cost him, but he had been told by a New York man that his closed car with chauffeur cost more than $400 a month. And this figure did not include depreciation.

It was stated at the office of Col. E. Austin Baughman, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles that there are approximately 90,000 passenger cars in Maryland. It was also learned that there are 19,700 income taxpayers in the Maryland district, which includes the District of Columbia, and approximately 130,000 in Maryland alone.—Frederick News.

How Women Can Help to Enforce Prohibition.

(The following portion of an address, by John F. Kramer, Federal Commissioner of Prohibition, is published by request. It contains much practical advice on the subject.—Ed.)

It was suggested that I say something about how the women can help us in our work. There are a great many people these days who think that the only thing needed is to make arrests and that will settle the question; that if we make enough of them in any city or community, after awhile everybody will obey the law. Arresting a law violator certainly has a good effect. It not only punishes him, after he has been tried and convicted, but he serves as a good example to others. But the matter of making arrests is not all there is to this problem. The fact is we could make so many arrests that we would hinder the very thing we have to do. What we need most in the different communities of the state and nation, as a whole, is to create sentiment which will indicate to the officials that the people want the law enforced, and will show violators that the law must be obeyed.

I am not discouraged about the situation. I knew that it is always difficult to enforce a law at first. The American people will sit around and rest easy until they are driven to do something. But when they see it has to be done, they will wake up and do it. But that time hasn't arrived yet.

That is the thing we need more than anything else. We do not so much need help to make arrests. We do not so much need information; we have more of that than we can handle. The thing needed today instead of information—though, of course, we need that—is an organized effort in every community that will take hold of the situation and say that the thing has to be done. We have in Mansfield, O., a mayor who is not a dry man, but a pretty respectable fellow. An ordinance enables him to fine law violators up to $500 for selling liquor, and yet there is hardly a man in the city who is doing anything toward letting the mayor know he, as an individual, would like to have him enforce the law.

If I can say one thing more than another it is that you women assert yourself on this question. You will have to be like Deborah and go along with the Baraks to fight the battles of the Lord. I know a great deal about men. Most of them are cowards. They think about their business, they think about politics, they think about one hundred other things that stand between them and the things they ought to do. I have had men come to me in Mansfield and say, "Kramer, I will tell you something, but don't tell where you got it." If we had one thousand men who were not afraid to tell where they got the evidence, and would stand by the law, it would help greatly to hold up our hands.

Now, if a thousand women were organized for that very purpose, the law violators would take notice and there would cease to be violation.

Another thing that you ladies can do is to sit steady in the boat until we get further along with this thing. I know it is working out all right; it is bound to because of the way things fit into each other so well. For instance, the arrival on the scene of the women with the ballot is going to help mightily. The thing we must do is to keep steady for the next two or three years, so that we shall not suffer a reaction.

What bothers me more than anything else is this talk about wine and beer—just as if this were a light matter, something that didn't mean much after all. Let me tell you that I look somewhat with suspicion upon the man that will advocate that kind of temperance when he knows it means pure nullification. The constitution says that intoxicating liquors shall not be sold, bought, manufactured, transported, imported, or exported. Right in the face of this provision there are many statesmen and politicians who say if they get to Congress they will make it legal to sell, buy, manufacture, transport, import and export light wines and beers. You know what light wines are. The lightest of them contain from 12 to 15% alcohol, and you can make a man crazy on a beverage containing that amount.

Then another thing you women must keep in mind: If we get light wines and beer, the whole cause is lost. There are not enough men in the government service to enforce the law in New York City alone with light wines and beers being legally sold. Our trouble today is largely with the soft drink establishments slipping hard liquor over with the soft drinks, but we can take care of all that in time. That will not worry us very long, but open up 11,000 saloons in New York City, the number prior to the time prohibition went into effect, and no force on earth can carry out the provisions of the law relating to wine and beer. It would be light wines and beer the first week, and in a month it would be the hardest kind of liquors, and every time a man was arrested you would have to show that the man was intoxicated on alcoholic beverages containing more than the stipulated alcoholic content, and we would not have enough chemists in the country to do the analytical work to keep this thing within bounds.

Another thing: If light wines and beer are sold over soft drink bars, every saloon will be supposedly decent and respectable, and your boys and girls and my boys and girls will go right into those places where liquor is being sold to get their ice cream and soda water and ginger ale. The latter end will be worse than the former. Give me back the old time saloon rather than the saloon that peddles light wines and beer.

EAST, WEST, HOME'S BEST.

It has been said that The Youth's Companion has had more readers per copy than any other publication in America. There is a good reason to believe this is true. But the important thing is that the influence of the paper upon its millions of readers has always been directed to building character. "East, west, home's best," has been its unuttered slogan. In its articles, editorial and otherwise, it has dwelt upon the importance of good citizenship. In all its contents it has aimed to give not only entertainment, but "stepping-stones to higher things."

A year of The Youth's Companion brings a tremendous tide of delight and diversified reading that cannot be found elsewhere.

HEMPHILL EXPLAINS ORGANIZATION OF NEAR EAST RELIEF

Prominent New York Banker Says Aim Is 100% Relief of Starving Peoples.

"Just what is the Near East Relief? Is the question that many people are asking whose interests have been awakened to the terrible conditions existing in the Levant today," says Alexander J. Hemphill, President of the Guarantee Trust Company and well known New York banker and financier. "In prosaic facts, the Near East Relief is a body incorporated by act of Congress the object of which is to provide relief and to assist in the repatriation, rehabilitation and re-establishment of suffering and dependent people of the Near East and adjacent areas; to provide for the care of orphans and widows and to promote the social, economic and industrial welfare of those who have been rendered destitute or dependent, directly or indirectly, by the vicissitudes of war, the cruelties of men or other causes beyond their control.

100 Per Cent Relief.

"The aim of the organization is 100 per cent relief, the relief which puts those aided on a self-supporting basis, which instills in them a confidence for the future, places in their hands the means with which to begin life anew, and in their hearts the courage to go on. Work, that is the prescription subscribed and provided by those loyal men and women who have journeyed into perilous places for the sake of their fellow men; to make these people independent for the future, to encourage the flickering fire of national pride.

"There are 82,291 workers employed in the industrial establishments of the Near East Relief, where wool is furnished for the women to spin and weave, and all the girls who are strong enough are washing wool, sewing beds, grinding and sifting wheat, tailoring and learning to make lace. The big problem is to make these women independent.

"About 500 American men and women, Near East Relief workers, are now in the field, including 36 eminent physicians and surgeons, 76 nurses, 7 mechanics, 15 industrial experts, 16 agriculturists, 14 bacteriologists, 197 relief workers, 25 supply and transport workers, 19 teachers, 20 administrators, 34 secretaries, 7 engineers and 45 army officers.

Where Money Goes.

"Funds for relief purposes are distributed in two ways: First, the various relief centers are authorized by the Executive Committee to draw slight drafts on New York for specific amounts each month; second, by supplies purchased in America, the major portion of which are shipped to the committee warehouses at Derindje, and the remainder either to Beyruth or Batoum.

"The relief is rapidly expanding and meeting the situation, but the future depends on the continuation of American support."

According to Mr. Hemphill, the need for American help to see the destitute peoples of the Near East through the crisis of present conditions is greater now than ever before on account of the uncertainty as to the future, the truculence of the Turkish government and the danger of bolshevism from Russia, which threatens to engulf the whole of Armenia.

Who Direct the Work.

Mr. Hemphill is the Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Near East Relief. Other members are Dr. James L. Barton, Secretary of the Foreign Department of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions; Edwin M. Bulkeley, banker, of Spencer Trask & Co., New York; Judge Abram I. Elkus, former United States Ambassador to Turkey; Harold A. Hatch, a well known New York cotton man; Herbert Hoover; William B. Miller, one of the Secretaries of the Interchurch World Movement; Henry Morgenthau, United States Ambassador to Mexico; Edgar Rickard of the American Relief Administration; Charles V. Vickrey, who is Secretary of the Near East Relief, and Dr. Stanley White, secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church.

HESSON'S DEPARTMENT STORE

LOWER PRICES ARE COMING

Ever since the signing of the armistice of the World War, in 1918, people have been looking for a decline in prices in general, but instead of a decline, there continued a steady increase in almost every line, until prices had reached an amazing height.

Different causes were attributed to those advances, viz.: scarcity of material, labor trouble, etc., so that the demand was far in excess of the supply, and the public seemed willing to pay the price demanded. In some instances, speculators took advantage of these conditions and made large investments and cornered the markets, and at the same time boosted the prices of the commodities they were dealing in.

To carry on such a business, it was necessary to have a large amount of capital and this made, in a time, loanable money more scarce. This was particularly so in the case of the sugar market, and we have no doubt that it was being practiced in other lines as well.

Just lately, we have been hearing lots about lower prices in different lines, and in few cases have found it to be an actual fact that prices are off a little. Silks were the first line noticed to suffer a decline in price, and it was explained that it was due to the Foreign banks calling in loans made to the merchants, who in turn had to move their goods in order to meet their bank's demands and therefore lower prices than had previously prevailed.

This same reason has just recently operated in the falling off in the price of suagr, which up to recently had sold as high as 28½c per pound with the wholesale merchant. Just last week two large automobile concerns amazed the public with the announcement of big reductions in the price of their cars, and this has been followed by slight reductions in other lines.

What Are We Doing About It?

We have never sanctioned unnecessary prices for any merchandise on sale in our store, and were slow to follow prices in their upward trend—never advancing until conditions forced us to. We welcome the sight of lower prices, and wish to announce that we will follow the market in its downward trend as the lower prices become evident, regardless of the stock on hand and will continue to offer only the best grade of merchandise, as has ever been our aim.

We will not attempt to make any quotations in print, at this time, but be assured that, if out of town merchants are offering goods at lower prices, we will have prices equally as low, if not lower.

YOURS FOR LOWER PRICES

BETTER THAN GOLD

A check on our bank is better than gold. Smile, if you will, but it is true just the same.

Why? Well, if you had a $20.00 gold piece and then lost it or a hold-up man got it or some sneak thief picked it from your pocket, the chances are that it would be gone for good. Now, suppose you had that $20.00 in the form of a check on our bank. Then if any of these things happened to you, you could notify the bank, stop payment on the lost check and have another one issued to you and you could still get the money. Which would you prefer?

(FROM THE BALTIMORE WELLER DENOUNCES THE VOLSTEAD ACT

HE DRAWS LINES OF CAMPAIGN
IN MARYLAND; PUTS SENA-

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE IN LETTER TO LIBERTY LEAGUE OF MARYLAND SAYS VOL-
STEAD ACT IS AN UNDE-SERVED REFLECTION
UPON MORAL BAL-ANCE AND SELF-CONTROL OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

The issue between the wets and dry in the coming campaign in Maryland for election of United States Senator has been definitely and positively fixed by O. E. Weller, the Republican candidate, who in a letter to the Liberty League of Maryland, under date of May 15, declares that the Volstead Act contains provisions for the enforcement of the Prohibition Amendment which are "unreasonable, drastic and intemperate." He further declares that this "act, in his judgment, is an undeserved reflection upon the moral balance and self-control of the American people."

To the letter of the Liberty League, to which Mr. Weller has made a frank and unequivocal reply, and a copy of which was sent to Senator
Smith, the latter has made no reply.
In fact, he has declined to make answer to similar letters addressed to him.

The issue is, therefore, definitely and positively fixed between Mr.
Weller and Senator Smith—the former the champion of the personal liberties of the American people, while the latter is called upon to defend the Volstead Act, for which he voted.

The following is Mr. Weller's letter to the Liberty League:

Would Modify Act

"I am in receipt of your inquiry of the 13th, instant, asking for a frank expression as to my stand on the Volstead Enforcement Act, and I willingly reply to your question at this time.

"I believe that the Volstead Act contains provisions for the enforcement of the Prohibition Amendment

(Published by authority of E. H. Shar-U., at advertising rates.)

AMERICAN, MAY 17, 1920.)
which are unreasonable, drastic and intemperate. This act is, in my judgment, an undeserved reflection upon the moral balance and self-control of the American people. The intolerance and unnecessary severity of this law will defeat its purpose.

"I have always strongly believed in the principle of local self-government, in personal liberty and individual rights. This is sound American doctrine.

"Through the initiative of Congress National Prohibition has become the law of the land, unless and until declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States.
The voters of Maryland were denied the opportunity to express themselves at the polls on National Prohibition.

"The Supreme Court, however, has already decided that Congress, in passing laws for enforcing the National Prohibition Amendment, may determine what constitutes intoxicating beverages. Congress has done this through the enactment of the Volstead Act, the unnecessarily extreme provisions of which have irritated very many of our people.

"If elected to the United States Senate I shall vote to so modify the Volstead Act as to permit the production and use of light wines and beers.
This would give to many of our people the privilege to which they feel themselves entitled and allow the use of these comparatively harmless beverages which have been used for centuries and from which intoxication is almost unknown. This would also restore to the farmers and housewives of Maryland the time-honored right to produce cider and home-made wine without becoming criminals.

Intrusion Upon Rights.

"Such a modification of the Volstead Act would not only be fair in itself, but would be in the interest of the promotion of law and order—so important at this critical period of our national life. It is well known that this very stringent law is being violated by many of our best citizens because they consider it an unreasonable intrusion upon their personal rights. The public recognition of this facts tends strongly to bring about a general disregard of the sanctity of law and opposition to the constituted authorities. Unless check-ed this will prove to be of very serious consequence and cause a breaking down of that high regard for law and government, upon which is founded our American institutions.

"These views express my matured convictions upon this important question."

MRS. GEORGE OVERHOLTZER.

Mary Virginia, wife of Mr. George Overholtzer, died at her home, near Taneytown, Oct. 20, 1920, aged 60 years, 9 months and 16 days. Funeral services were held Oct. 22, at her home, by Rev. G. Wilbur Shipley; interment in Luth-ran cemetery.

She is survived by her husband, and three children, Mrs. Elizabeth Fox, of near Union Bridge; Mr. Maurice Overholtzer, of near Taneytown; Emanuel Overholtzer, at home and one step-brother, Mr. John Heck, of Uniontown.

MRS. MARY JANE SHIPLEY.

Mrs. Mary Jane Shipley was born in Anne Arundel county, Md., in February, 1834. She was the widow of the late George E. Shipley, a farmer of Anne Arundel county, who died about eight years ago. They had been married fifty-six years at his death. Mrs. Shipley continued to reside at the old home-stead until about nine months ago, since which time she has made her home with her son. Her general health had been good all through life. About six months ago she suffered a heart attack and had been failing since that time. On October 3rd she had a stroke of paralysis which rendered useless her throat and tongue and the right side. She lingered about a week and died Sunday, Oct. 10th.

She is survived by one brother, Edwin T. Harman, now past 90 years of age, of New Rochelle, N. Y.; by two daughters, Mrs. Sumnerfield H. Benson, of Anne Arundel county; and Miss Emma Shipley, an invalid. Rev. G. Wilbur Shipley, Pastor of the Taneytown and Piney Creek Presbyterian churches, is her only son. The late Henry M. Harman, D. D., for many years professor of Greek and Hebrew in Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., was her brother.

Mrs. Shipley was a life-long member of the Methodist church. Her remains were carried to Ridge church, in Anne Arundel county, where the funeral was conducted after which burial took place in Friendship cemetery.

Roads Costing Too Much.

The State Roads Commission has decided to call off all new road work, until January, or later, with the possible exception of gravel roads in Southern Maryland. This decision has been caused by the cost of construction going to $45,000 a mile, an increase from about $30,000 for the present year. The increase is said to be due to the high cost of stone, cement, gravel and sand. It is thought that perhaps conditions may be more favorable in 1921.

Success.

It's doing your job the best you can And being just to your fellow-man; And staying true to your aims and ends; It's figuring how and learning why, And looking forward and thinking high, And dreaming a little and doing much; It's keeping always in closer touch With what is finest in word and deed; It's being thorough, yet making speed; It's daring blithely the field of chance While making labor a brave romance; It's going forward in spite of defeat And fighting staunchly, but keeping sweet; It's being clean and it's fighting fair; It's laughing lightly at Dame Despair; It's looking up at stars above, And drinking deeply of life and love; It's struggling on with the will to win, But taking loss with a cheerful grin; It's sharing sorrow, and work, and mirth, And making better this good old earth; It's serving, striving through strain and stress; It's doing your noblest—that's SUCCESS. —Rambler.

Send It In.

If you have a bit of news, Send it in; Or a joke that will amuse, Send it in; A story that is true, An incident that's new, We want to hear from you, Send it in. Never mind about the style, If the news is worth while, It may help cause a smile, Send it in. —Exchange.

W. Ashbie Hawkins, the colored candidate for U. S. Senator in Maryland, is said to be making a quiet campaign among his race on the Eastern Shore. He has no idea of his election, but wants to make a demonstration for its effect on Republican leaders hereafter.

Angel and Dickie.

The young housewife, looking very pretty and workmanlike in a big green overall, was cleaning out the pantry cupboard.

"Dickie," she called to her young husband, who was smoking in the spick-and-span little drawing-room, "I want you to bring me a mouse trap home tomorrow."

"But, angel," cried the young man, "I brought you one home only yesterday."

"I know, pet," called back the young bride, "but that one has a mouse in it."—Spanish River News.

Improve Your Digestion.

If you have weak digestion eat sparingly of meats; let at least five hours elapse between meals; eat nothing between meals. Drink an abundance of water. Take one of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper. Do this and you will improve your digestion.

He Got Everything.

A customer sitting in the first chair in Scotty's barber shop in Indianapolis the other day had ordered "all the trimmings," which of course included a shave after the haircut. So when Scotty got his taper lighted and had the singe under way, a little kid just outside the door was heard to exclaim: "Look, mamma! They are hunting 'em on that fellow with a candle!"

A widespread coal miners' strike is in operation in England. Mills and factories are closing, and riots have occurred in London. The strike will hit the iron steel and cotton industries seriously, unless it is soon settled.

Financial Loss Due to Colds.

It is estimated that the average man loses three days time each year from inability to work on account of having a cold. Much of this loss can be avoided by treating every cold as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has won a wide reputation and immense sale by its cures of this disease. Try it. You are certain to be pleased with its pleasant taste and the prompt relief which it affords.

About Killing Dogs.

Once more we say, Don't kill the supposedly rabid dog. This for the sake, not now of the dog but for your sake if you have been bitten. If the dog is mad, in all probability he is not, he will be dead in eight days from rabies. If he doesn't die, you know he isn't mad, and anyone bitten need never worry about having hydrophobia. Catch the dog somehow, if possible, with some sort of net or noose. Get him into any kind of enclosure, or yard, or kennel, and keep him under observation for a week. The average officer thinks that every dog that bites anybody must be mad, and that he must shoot him. If every man and woman were shot who, irritated, worried, hungry, thirsty, sick, frightened, snap at and bite, metaphorically speaking, the first person they meet, what a destruction of the population!—Our Dumb Animals.

TELESCOPIC CAMERA IN ANDES

Largest Photographic Apparatus in the World Has 24-Inch Lens.

The South American station of Harvard university's observatory, tucked away in the Peruvian Andes, near the city of Arequipa, in the old Inca empire, boasts of the largest photographic apparatus in the world. It is a huge telescopic camera with a 24-inch lens which has been of great aid to science in its observations of the southern skies.

The station was founded 30 years ago, and is located near the base of the famous Andean volcano, Misti. The Arequipanians, descendants of the Inca civilization, frequently speak of themselves as the sons and daughters of old Misti. It is said the Indians in the surrounding country still worship the mountain with much reverence, regarding it as the source of earthquakes which often are felt in the region. The volcano erupted seven years ago.

Superstitions in regard to the mountain date back to prehistoric times. The ruins of the ancient pagan temples, a writer says, have been found in the crater of the volcano, and even today near the top may be seen a great iron cross, placed there in 1677, when a party of Spanish priests exorcised and pleaded with it not to erupt again and destroy their cities.

The clear atmosphere of the Arequipa region is said to have afforded an excellent site for an observing station.

German "Booby Traps."

At the start of the reconstruction work in the devastated coal region about Lens, France, the French were taught by several disasters that the retreating Germans, before flooding mines, had concealed along the walls unnumbered "booby traps," says Popular Mechanics. Consequently, in order that the divers, charged with preliminary inspections, may "look before they leap," the government recently purchased from England an interesting apparatus for submarine photography. Lowered down the flooded shaft, this apparatus illuminates a ten-foot zone; then, as switches are pressed at the mouth of the shaft, it photographs simultaneously each of the four walls.

The Best Thing He Did.

A melancholy looking man entered the establishment of a photographer.

"I should like to have a picture of myself weeping beside my wife's grave," he explained.

"I fear I have not the necessary accessories here," said the photographer. Then he added, facetiously, "Couldn't we arrange to have the portrait made at the grave itself?"

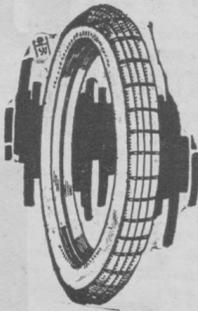

"No," said the man; "that's in New York state. It would be too expensive to go there. Just you fix up some kind of a grave here in the shop. I could weep on that. It's no trouble for me to weep anywhere."—Everybody's Magazine.

Revised Version.

Little Bert had been to Sabbath school by himself. When he returned his mother tried, rather unsuccessfully, to find what he had learned. But all she could elicit after much questioning was that his teacher said Jesus was going to send him a quilt. That, he insisted, was all they learned.

When mother consulted the Sunday school quarterly, she found the golden text for the day was: "Behold, I send you the Comforter."

Natural Wonders.

When waters charged with carbonate of calcium derived from limestone are evaporated they deposit masses of the carbonate, some of which are of great beauty. This process can be observed at many warm and "petrifying" springs and also in limestone caverns where stalactites and stalagmites are being formed, according to the United States geological survey. Mexican "onyx" is formed in this way. Its variations in color and texture, which make it attractive and valuable as an ornament, are commonly produced by impurities or inclusions, such as oxide of iron, or even mud and clay.

Why Spoil a Suit?

"Here's a ladder against this building. I'll bet you a dinner you won't walk under it."

Among the items purchased by the Mexican government for Francisco Villa and his followers are 800 plows, harness for 1,600 mules, 2 tractors, 20 mowing machines, 2 thrashing machines, 40 scrapers, 2 long auto trucks, an auto, corrugated iron for roofing and 2 large warehouses.

Trade With Australia Grows.

Trading between this country and Australia is showing a healthy growth, according to figures supplied to the department of commerce by A. W. Ferrin, trade commissioner, who is at Melbourne. They cover imports and exports for the first quarter of the current year, and show the imports during that period to have been about $27,775,000, against exports to this country of approximately $18,350,000. February exports nearly equaled in value the totals for January and March, and in that month the outgoing shipments exceeded the imports. In the same month, however, the value of the imports was less than half of the goods brought in during March.

Making It Homelike.

On Dolly's birthday she was presented with a baby bulldog, and her delight was delicious to behold.

It was very young, and she insisted upon taking it to bed with her, but the next morning she was looking very tired.

"Haven't you slept well, darling?" asked her mother.

"No, mummy," said Dolly. "Nelson was crying in the night for his mummy, so I kept awake with him for company, and I made awful faces all night to make him fink I was his bulldog mummy to comfy him!"—Answers, London.

HAGERSTOWN, MD.

NEAR EAST RELIEF APPEAL FOR MORE FUNDS FOR WORK

MARYLAND IS ASKED TO SUPPORT
4,200 ARMENIAN WAR
ORPHANS.

IS MOST POPULAR PHILANTHROPY

Near East Relief, the American organization whose tremendously successful work in Armenia, Syria, Transcaucasia and Persia has saved the lives of half a million or more people who were starving to death after the close of the World War, is making a new appeal to American philanthropy for funds to continue its work. Practically the whole task now left to it, thanks to the success of the work of the past two years, is the care of war orphans in the orphanages which it has established.

There were about 250,000 of these orphans in Armenia and neighboring lands who were found after the war in roving bands seeking food in the cities and the open country and in all stages of starvation. There are few now to whom some sort of aid has not been given, but there are many thousands who have only America and Near East Relief to look to for food, clothing and shelter. It is for the purpose of continuing to provide this support of these orphans and to prevent their again being brought to the verge of death by starvation, that the appeal for money to keep up the work has been issued.

The people of the state of Maryland have been asked, as their share of this orphan support, to provide for 2,084 orphans for a year. Near East Relief is able to feed an orphan for $5 a month and to provide food, clothing, shelter and education for $15 a month, or $180 a year for each.

The Thanksgiving-Christmas period has been set as the time for the campaign in many Maryland counties to obtain the contributions which will support the orphans assigned to them. Every dollar contributed to this cause goes into actual relief work in Armenia and the neighboring Near East countries, no deductions being made for expenses, which are privately borne.

Near East Relief is a federal corporation, chartered by Congress. Its accounts are carefully audited by certified public accountants and reports made to Congress. It has been investigated and endorsed by the National Information Bureau.

Near East Relief provides food for the hungry. For instance, a few weeks ago 180,000 refugees were being fed in one city in the Caucasus. This food had to be provided every day and if the funds stopped for a few weeks all of these people would have perished.

Near East Relief provides shelter for the homeless. There are 229 orphanages, with an enrollment of 54,600, and also 56,039 other children cared for outside of these buildings. There were recently acquired an additional 60,000 children from Russia, who came into the Caucasus ahead of the Bolshevik army.

Near East Relief provides healing for the sick. There are 63 hospitals in the various districts and countries of the Near East, with a large staff of physicians, nurses and helpers.

Near East Relief provides rescue for imprisoned women and girls. There are eleven rescue homes full to overflowing. If more funds were provided, more homes could be opened and filled immediately. There are more than 100,000 of these Armenian women and girls in Turkish harems, but their release cannot be demanded until places of shelter for them are provided or their relatives, if any, can be located.

Near East Relief is building up industrial life. There are employed 23,000 men, women and young people in Near East Relief factories.

Near East Relief provides repatriation for refugees, returning them to their homes as far as possible when it is safe to do so.

Near East Relief desires the co-operation of every American. The Armenians are suffering because of their religious convictions, their loyalty to principle, their adherence to the cause of the Allies, for which we are under obligation to them in sacrificing their lives and thus saving American lives by shortening the war.

Near East Relief is perhaps the most popular philanthropy in America because of these facts and also that of all the relief areas in the world the Near East is the only place where no government aid is available. The Armenians are surrounded by neighbors who would rejoice in their extermination. They are the remnant of a martyred Christian race, whose fathers and relatives have died for the Christian faith, but this remnant, and especially the thousands of orphans whom American dollars are now supporting, constitute the hope of the future of the Near East.

If we have heart we will gladly sustain these people in their distress, save them from starvation and provide shelter and clothing, as well as food, for the many thousands of orphans who look to America for their very existence.

HOME TOWN HELPS

LIFE IN SMALL TOWN BEST

Has Many Advantages Compared to the Hurry and Bustle Inflicted on City Dweller.

I do not think that where a man lives has anything to do with his progression, as progression is hereditary and it is not caused by environment, writes a correspondent of the Pittsburgh Dispatch. The idea that a boy must go to the city to acquire fame is becoming a thing of the past, for people of this world are beginning to realize that progression may mean many things--among them progression in tilling the soil as well as progression in politics.

The most progressive men in the world are the men who go to make up the little towns, for they are generally the steady, reliable, sensible fellows, who do not pine for the excitement and the glare of a life in a big city. Small town men are the rock upon which this great country is most securely built. They are the wholesome, true-blue scouts, who are big enough to live the simple, little town life, and their quiet nerves hold our country balanced. The city man is a bunch of nerves compared with the man from the village. His days are spent in dodging automobiles in the streets, hurrying from place to place, trying to beat the other fellow at making money, and after a day of being "on the jump" he goes to the theater and does not get home until morning. Then he sleeps five hours and is ready to go through the same performance again. Little Town Man goes to bed at 10 after an evening at the movie and at 6 is ready to get up and begin his day. The "country Jake" is no longer a person to be laughed at, but a person to be envied, and many of our greatest so-called progressives are going back to the "simple-life."

REASONS FOR OWNING HOME

Advantages Are Many, Quite Apart From the Economic One Declares an Eastern Writer.

There are many upsetting circumstances in the world, against which house ownership is a sort of insurance. If I had not owned my home last fall, and had by any chance been thrown out by the old landlord, it would have been a very serious job to find what I wanted in the present market. I have known men and women to put in weeks in the search. Houses are often sold over one's head. Estates have to be settled. All kinds of things happen. Perhaps your small boy disturbs the landlord, who in turn makes it disagreeable for you. Such possibilities are put to rest by actual ownership. If one has a serious illness in the family, what an assurance it is to know that you cannot be disturbed; that this is your castle.

For such reasons as these, quite apart from the economic ones, I believe every man of settled habits should own his own home, and that this is as a good a time as any to proceed to that happy realization.—Robert Lincoln O'Brien in Boston Herald.

Many City Managers.

United States now has about 180 city managers. The number is growing steadily, and city managership has now established itself as a profession.

One of these managers has advanced step by step from the job of directing a small city in Michigan to taking charge of city matters in Dubuque, Ia., at a salary of $8,000 a year. This is the only instance of three promotions thus far recorded, but three city managers have been advanced at least once.

The highest salary the profession as yet commands is $12,000, paid by Norfolk, Va. Dayton and Akron, O., Grand Rapids, Mich., and Wheeling, W. Va., are among the larger cities now operating under city manager charters.

Earthworms in Lawns.

Earthworms in lawns and gardens can be poisoned with bichloride of mercury poison. Make a stock solution by dissolving one ounce in two gallons of water. To use, dilute two quarts of the stock solution in 50 gallons of water and in the evening sprinkle this over about a thousand square feet of lawn. The ground should be moist when this is done. The worms will come out during the night and will never go back. Bichloride of mercury (corrosive sublimate) is a deadly poison and therefore must be used carefully.

Have Reserve of Grass Seed.

It is a good plan always to have a reserve supply of grass seed on hand to sow when needed, for bare spots may appear throughout the year. If the soil is light and subject to injury from drought, white clover should be sown. It mats together in a short time, providing a closer woven blanket to prevent the evaporation of water from the soil and is considered a better resister of drought than many of the grasses. It is easily started.

City Manager for Colorado Springs.

Colorado Springs at a special election adopted the city manager form of government, to become effective next April, it is announced.

CAMERA INSTEAD OF RIFLE

Big Game Hunters Get the Thrill of the Sport Without the Useless Slaughter.

It was a notable event in the history of the wild life of our country when the first big game hunter hung up his rifle and took to the woods with a camera.

Ever since the first photographer went afield with a sportsman, the camera man has been the best exponent and advertiser of the prowess of the man with a gun. During the days of the slow and cumbersome wet plate and long exposures the alert and sudden wild animal was about as unattainable pictorially as the canals of Mars.

The dry plate opened up great possibilities in the photographing of dead game in its haunts. From 1884 onward American hunters of big game joyously welcomed the startling pictures made by Laton A. Huffman of Miles City, Mont. Mr. Huffman was a true sportsman, a fine shot, and as a photographer of hunting scenes he long stood without a rival. Never will I forget the thrills that I received in his little old log cabin studio in "Milestown," when he showed me his stereoscope views of "elk and dead grizzlies, glory enough for one day"; a mountain sheep ram on the brink of a precipice, many buffalo-killing pictures, and antelope and deer galore. I think that Mr. Huffman—who still lives and photographs—enjoys the distinction of having had more photographs stolen for publication without credit than any other camera man on earth; and that, I know, is a large order.

American sportsmen hailed with joy the birth of the light, ever-ready, universal-focus camera. It was the opening of a new and delightful field of Christian endeavor. It presented a highway of escape from the flood of game-slaughter photographs that had been sweeping over the continent like a deluge.—"Masterpieces of Wild Animal Photography," by William T. Hornaday, in Scribner.

When Nature Conspires.

We are told that the "walking and climbing leaves" of Australia were, for over half a century, among the best attested of natural wonders.

It is related that a party of sailors, wandering inland, sat down to rest under a tree. A gust of wind shook to earth several dead and brown leaves. These, after remaining prone on the ground for a few minutes, proceeded to show signs of life and crawl toward the trunk, which they ascended, and attached themselves to their respective twigs.

Hence, the sailor-men, who promptly ran away, said the spot was bewitched. The simple fact turned out to be that the so-called leaves were really leaf-shaped insects, having long, pendulous legs, which could be folded out of sight, and possessing the chameleon-like power of varying their color to correspond with that of the foliage they were clinging to.

Upon being shaken to the ground, instinct taught them to seek the shelter of the friendly leaves again as soon as possible.—Exchange.

Gas Tank Terrified Waiters.

Pandemonium reigned in El Prado cafe for a few fast and furious seconds, the Havana Post states.

Shortly after 8 o'clock, when the extra waiters were busy handling the evening's largest crowd, there suddenly burst out in the cafe a rapid succession of short, sharp, hissing sounds:

Psst—psst—psst!

It seemed as though all Havana was suddenly giving the well known Cuban call for service. A hundred thousand people crowding about the cafe and shouting "Psst, chico!" could not have created more excitement. Waiters looked under chairs, behind the bar, rushed to all their customers, wiped off tables frantically, tossed their napkins desperately in midair and gave other signs of frenzy.

The fuss did not begin to abate until the proprietor, red faced and sweating with exertion, discovered the source of the hissing sounds. A large cylinder of the carbonated gas in the corner of the cafe had sprung a leak, the gas hissing mysteriously as each whiff of it escaped.

Vital Statistics.

One of the census men called at the home of a workman in New York, noted in his neighborhood as a great reader and a wisecracker for statistics. He found the man poring over an encyclopedia.

"How many children have you?" asked the census taker.

"I have just three—and that's all there will be too," replied the man, looking up from his book of knowledge.

"All right, by why so positive?"

"According to this book here," said the man with deadly seriousness, "every fourth child born in the world is a Chinaman!"—Saturday Evening Post.

American Women Have Prettiest Feet.

A well-known French shoe manufacturer states that the shoe is the foundation of a woman's wardrobe. If she is not well shod, it spoils her appearance.

He says that American women have the prettiest feet in the world, and appreciate the value of the low-heeled shoe. For walking, this manufacturer insists the low-heeled shoe is the only one permissible. For wear around the house, he advocates sandals that hold the feet in shape, yet yield sufficiently to allow them to rest.

Springtime and Molly

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

Molly paused in her hanging of snowy clothes upon the line and, with a deep breath, drew in the beauty of the day. Overhead, scudding white clouds chased each other across a turquoise sky, sped by the tonic March winds. Molly, her blue eyes heavenward, was thinking of William—and of Jim.

William was the man to whom she was engaged—had been for three years, a far-sighted, practical chap, the sort of man to whom one turns over one's daughter and says: "Well, she'll never have to worry about money."

"It will be years before we can ever think of marrying," he had said to Molly quite frankly. "I am carving a career and marriage would be a handicap. As soon as I think it would be wise, we'll marry. Are you satisfied?"

"Of course," Molly had answered simply, her thoughts full of the happiness of getting ready.

Three years had passed since then, and the contents of Molly's chest had kept pace with William's bank account. She had several times been bridesmaid at weddings of her friends who begged to know when her own wedding day was going to be. Molly always told them bravely that she and William were being very prudent and weatherwise. "The high cost of living—and everything."

That was why, this blowy March day, with spring in the air, Molly drew a deep breath and thought—of Jim. Jim who had wanted to marry her years ago, and who had just come back from France, still wanting to marry her, not some time in the future, but the very instant she'd say "Yes."

She finished hanging up the clothes, picked up the basket and went into the house.

Ten hours later Molly sat before her mirror coiling her curly brown hair with deft fingers, slipping dainty pumps on silk stockings and fastening a flowery voile frock. All the while she meditated "It isn't as if we couldn't afford it. Will is making more money now than any young married man I know, and he's been saving it since he was sixteen. He knows dad made clear to her—yes, three things. "Will, I hate to tell you, but I am very sure I don't love you as I thought I did, and I'm sure you don't love me as much as you could somebody else, and I—I think I love somebody else!" Molly got it all out as quickly as possible.

The man rose, mechanically taking the ring she had slipped from her finger. "Are you crazy?" he demanded.

"No-no," said Molly shakily. "But I'm very, very sure. And I'm sorry."

"It's darned lucky you discovered in time. It pays not to marry in haste and repent at leisure. Are you—are you quite sure?" he asked again, still unbelieving.

"Quite!" said Molly, and there was no doubting the firmness of her tone.

"So be it," said William haughtily, and with hat jammed over his eyes, went out of the door.

For a moment Molly felt terribly guilty. Then, as she recalled how little protest William had made after all, she felt a bit chagrined and decidedly cynical that the trip to Honolulu would be an excellent panacea for the loss of his fiancée.

With a shake of her young shoulders like a frisky colt let loose in a pasture, she flew upstairs, knelt at a bureau drawer and from beneath a pile of lacy lingerie, an overflow from her chest, drew a rumpled photograph. Up into her eyes looked the quizzical eyes of Jim. To the girl they seemed to reproach her for the lost and wasted years, for her yielding to the influence of those who spoke of William as such a steady, thrifty fellow, and of Jim as nice enough boy, but harum-scarum, given to day dreams. She remembered the very first week he had gone to work after leaving high school. He had brought her a good share of his week's pay—in hot-house violets. It wasn't thrifty, it wasn't sensible—but it was youth in its springtime of love.

"My blessed Jim!" she said. "If only it isn't too late!"

That it wasn't too late was evident by the alacrity with which Jim answered the summons to call on Molly. In exactly three minutes the intervening three years were buried beyond recall and the two stood exactly where they had when Jim had first told Molly he loved her.

"It won't be sealskin coats and twin sixes now, darling," he said, much as he had said before, "what with my time out in the army. But I can keep us out of debt and—"

"What we do have we'll have together," finished Molly, "and that's what counts!"

DAYS PUT MARK ON FACES

Interesting to Note the Differing Physiognomies as the Week Makes Its Usual Round.

If "the proper study of mankind is man," then make a beginning by studying the week's faces of your fellow travelers or workers. You will find that each day brings a change of countenance, says London Answers.

"Friday faced" was once a reproach. It was thrown at the man with a long, doleful visage, and harked back to the days when the Friday fast was universal. And although the observance of Friday as a day of fasting is now more honored in the breach than in the observance, the "Friday face" remains. Test it next Friday.

The Saturday face is the best of the batch. The payment of wages, the nearness of the Saturday half-holiday, the knowledge that the week's work is nearly wound up, is reflected facially. The Saturday crowd is pleasant to look on.

Monday's face is grumpy, and holds a discontented look. Another week of work has to be faced. Rest and pleasure are knocked off. Never ask a favor on a Monday, and do not expect an exuberance of courtesy.

Tuesday's face is better, and the shadows of it are light.

Wednesday's face is the normal face. Work has ceased to annoy, the harness does not rub, finance is easy. Wednesday is a sociable day as between man and man.

Thursday is not so good. It's a half-Monday, half-Tuesday face. Work is taking its toll, and the end of the week seems a long way off. For nonshop workers, too, closed shops and dull thoroughfares depress. Faces are not amiable on Thursdays.

Cold Causes Stale Bread.

Prof. J. R. Katz of Amsterdam has been trying to discover what makes bread grow stale. He has found, says Chambers' Journal, that low temperature is the chief cause. Bread kept at 140 degrees F. was quite fresh at the end of 48 hours; but when the temperature was reduced to 122 degrees the bread began to grow stale, and continued to increase in staleness down to about three degrees below the freezing point. Beyond that the staleness grew less until at the temperature of liquid air the bread had again become perfectly fresh. It is suggested that bread can be kept fresh by placing it in a fireless cooker immediately after it is removed from the oven.—Youth's Companion.

Thought of the Usual Trouble.

Mary had been brought up, so to speak, in the front seat of her father's motorcar. At ten she took her first train journey.

When they made the first stop she looked surprised. Leaning out of the window, she inquired anxiously of the conductor, who had just swung himself off the platform:

"What's the matter? Killed your engine?"

LACK OF SHIPS HALTS TOURISTS

All Available Accommodations Are Booked Three Months in Advance.

PASSPORTS AT A PREMIUM

"Ships, Ships and More Ships" Is Plea From United States Ports—Travel Only Half What It Was in 1914.

New York.—The slogan of "ships! ships! and still more ships!" so effectively used during the war to speed up America's ship-building program as a defiance of the submarine campaign still is heard in American seaports.

It comes, however, not so much from those having freight for transit as it does from those who desire to make trips to foreign shores on business or pleasure.

Steamship accommodations for all lands, despite more than a doubling of pre-war time tariffs, and rigid restrictions as to passports are at a premium.

All Accommodations Booked.

Representatives in New York and other terminals of passenger-carrying lines say that all available accommodations are booked as far as three months ahead. The unfortunate business man faced with the need of making an unexpected trip abroad, is forced to depend on possible cancellations of previously engaged passage on the part of someone who at the last moment is prevented from sailing.

On many ships third-class accommodations hold men and women who are financially able to travel in the best that the ship affords. It is no infrequent occurrence for a staid banker, or a wealthy head of a large business house to be found booked with the humble alien laborer returning to the land of his birth for a visit.

It was recently said by the head of a large line in speaking of tariffs, that in 1914 a man could purchase a tourist ticket including rail fares and hotel accommodations for a trip half way around the world for the same sum that he is now compelled to pay for a one-way ticket from New York to a Mediterranean port.

Records of departures and arrivals as kept here by the Steamship Men's association show that despite the very apparent rush, travel is only about half, as to number of passengers, what it was in 1914. In May and June of that year there sailed from American to transatlantic ports 164,300 persons of whom more than 100,000 were classed as third class. In the same months of 1920 the outgoing total was 80,323 of whom 50,000 were third class.

Arrivals Show Slump.

Of incoming passengers in one month of 1914 there were 105,100 persons. The corresponding month this year showed 45,120 arrivals.

The rush this year and the difficulty in getting accommodations is accounted for by the fact that there is needed "ships, ships and more ships!" of the passenger-carrying class. Available tonnage, due to the ravages of the war, is greatly depleted. The North German Lloyd and the Hamburg-American lines, which prior to the war carried a large percentage of the transatlantic travel, do not exist.

In addition, many of the big liners of allied flags are gone, as for example, the Lusitania. Almost all the ships of the pre-war fleet of another large British line were submarine victims. Other ships were of a necessity laid up for periods of more than a year for reconditioning due to their accommodations having been ripped out with axes to make them into troop carriers. An example of this is the huge Olympic, which but recently was returned to her passenger-carrying trade.

In Old "Merrie England" His Net Was Wide and Its Meshes Set Especially Close.

The Bulgarian bachelor who now groans under an annual tax, equivalent to 8s 4d a year, has less cause to grumble than many a British celibate who shied at the altar a couple of centuries or more ago.

During the 13 years from 1695 to 1708 the man over twenty-five who shirked his matrimonial duty was called on to pay £12 10s ($62.50) for a duke, a tax which yielded to the revenue about £1,000 ($5,000) a week.

More than this, in those good old times the Briton had to pay a tax when he took himself a wife, and another every time he qualified as father. Thus, a duke's nuptials cost him £50 4s ($252); his heir, £30 2s ($152), and for each later male addition to the family his joy was discounted by a payment of £25 2s ($127).

The benedict whose income was less than £50 ($250) a year had to pay 2s 6d (60 cents) for his bride and 2s (48 cents) every time he became a father.

has only me, and that some day this house will be mine and—oh, I don't want to keep waiting and waiting until we can have two maids and an automobile and a house near the park! And I'm going to make Will realize it."

Primed with arguments, Molly waited his coming. "I guess, considering it's leap year, I can at least suggest the date of my wedding," she had just told herself when the doorbell rang and in came William.

Straight up to her chair he walked. "Congratulations me, Molly," he said. "The firm is sending me to Honolulu for a six months' trip to investigate opportunities for developing one of our branch houses."

"Good enough, Will!" cried Molly. "The only thing," and the man's face clouded ever so slightly, "it will postpone our marriage for at least a year. I should probably be given the management of the store if they decide to put one there." Sinking into the chair opposite Molly's, he launched forth into a glowing account of his new prospects.

"Will," Molly interrupted him quite suddenly, "it would make a wonderful honeymoon—a trip to Honolulu."

"What?" said the man quickly. "Oh, I see. Yes, dear, yes, of course. But really out of the question. My mind would be distracted from business. More sensible and prudent to go slow. If the plan goes through successfully, we might be married a year from this fall and go there to live."

"I guess you're right," agreed Molly. Two startling things had just been

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 24

WHAT THE KING REQUIRES.

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 6:1-48.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect.—Matt. 5:48.
ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Lev. 19:15; Deut. 8:4; Luke 8:20-48.
PRIMARY TOPIC—What the Heavenly Father Wants Us to Be.
JUNIOR TOPIC—What Jesus Wishes His Followers to Be.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Measuring Up to Christ's Standard.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Character Which Jesus Requires.

The so-called "Sermon on the Mount" is the king's proclamation of the laws which obtain in his kingdom. These laws do not set forth terms of salvation to sinners, but the principles of life which shall obtain when Christ reigns on earth.

1. The Characteristics of the Subjects of the Kingdom (vv. 1-12).
These characteristics are set forth in the nine Beatitudes.

1. The consciousness of utter spiritual poverty (v. 3). "Poor in spirit" does not mean to be without money (Isa. 66:2), but to come to the end of self in a state of absolute spiritual beggary, having no power to alter one's condition or to make one's self better.

2. A profound grief because of spiritual insolvency (v. 4).

3. A humble submission to God's will (v. 5). The outgrowth of mourning over spiritual insolvency is meekness.

4. An intense longing to conform to the laws of the kingdom (v. 6).

5. Merciful (v. 7). The subjects of the kingdom now take on the character of the king.

6. Purity of heart (v. 8). Since the king is pre-eminently pure, the subjects who enjoy fellowship with him must have heart purity.

7. Peacemakers (v. 9). The one who has received the peace of God through Jesus Christ will diffuse peace to others.

8. Suffering for Christ's sake (v. 10). The world hated Christ, the king, therefore those who reflect his spirit in their lives shall suffer persecution (II Tim. 3:12).

9. Suffer reproach (v. 11). This means suffering falsely. In such case we should glory in it, for it brings great reward in heaven.

10. The Responsibilities of the Subjects of the Kingdom (vv. 13-16).
Man is corrupt, and the world is in utter darkness. The disciples of Christ are to live such lives as to purify and enlighten. Their responsibilities are set forth under the figures of salt and light.

1. Salt of the earth (v. 13). The properties of salt are (1) penetrating; (2) purifying; (3) preserving. Since salt only preserves and purifies in the measure that it penetrates, so Christians only as they enter into the life of the world can preserve it from decay.

2. The light of the world (v. 14). Light illuminates and warms. This world is cold and dark. The devil has set many pitfalls and snares. As sons of the light we should live so as to prevent the unwary from stumbling and falling.

11. The Laws of the Kingdom (vv. 20-48).

1. As to deeds of righteousness. They must exceed that of the scribes and Pharisees.

2. As to sanctity of life (vv. 21-26). "Thou shalt do no murder," means more than simply to refrain from the taking of life. Rash anger is heart murder (v. 22).

3. As to organized life (vv. 27-32). The family is the unit of society. There is no sin that so rots society as that against the relation of the sexes. The two awful sins against the family are (a) adultery (vv. 27-30), (there is heart adultery as well as heart murder); (b) divorce (vv. 31, 32). Moses, for the hardness of the hearts of the people, permitted a man in case of adultery to put away his wife and give her a bill of divorce.

4. As to oaths (vv. 33-37). Speech is the absolute test of character. Whatever is more than the simple form of affirmation or denial comes of the Devil.

5. As to behavior toward those who do not recognize the laws of the kingdom (vv. 38-48). (1) Not revengeful (vv. 39, 40); (2) willing to do more than is required (v. 41); (3) charitable (v. 42)—even the borrower should not be turned away; (4) love toward enemies (vv. 45-48). Love to enemies consists (a) in blessing them that curse us; (b) in doing good to them that hate us; (c) in praying for those who despitefully use us.

God Is Everywhere.

Let us remember that God is at the seasons and in the mountains just as much as he is in our home town and in our home church. We need to resist the devil of license which is always whispering his evil insinuations into the ears of people away from home. We need religion just as much in summer as we do in winter, perhaps more. So when we are away from home let us not neglect our Bible, and our daily prayer, and attendance upon the house of worship whenever possible.

Lessons from Recent Events
Luke 13:1-5

The moral lesson, repent or perish, which our Lord taught in these verses, was based on two recent events. The Galileans who perished were possibly the band of men led by Judas of Galilee, who advocated that Jews should not pay tribute to the Romans. He is referred to in Acts 5:37 as a man who "drew away much people after him." It is believed that a detachment of these men were caught by the Roman soldiers, and put to death while they were offering sacrifices. This would explain the words, "the Galileans whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices."

The tower of Siloam which fell upon the eighteen men, was probably one of the towers of the city wall near the pool of Siloam. Concerning this fall no record is given.

The interpretation of events is not an easy task. To the popular mind these events were signal examples of the divine judgment. But our Lord corrects this false impression and teaches that all unrepentant ones shall likewise perish. In other words, He tells them that the judgment of God is upon all impenitent sinners, and that judgment will be personal and without remedy unless repentance takes place and the salvation of God is received through faith in Jesus Christ. John 3:36 verifies this.

The outstanding words in these Scripture verses are "unless ye repent." They need to be sounded out with clearness and force today. Lessons from recent events emphasize this. At a large and representative gathering held in Chicago a few weeks ago, one of the speakers said, "This past decade of the twentieth century is going to be pointed out by the historian as a decade of falling dynamics." Undoubtedly this statement is true. Lofty idealism has failed. The sacrificial spirit manifested during the war led many people to believe and assert that the only thing needed to transform mankind was a lofty ideal. The frailty and corruption of human nature, and its inability to maintain its loyalty to ideals were forgotten or ignored. The "fourteen points" constituted a fine system of international ideals, but evidently fourteen additional ones are needed to supply sufficient incentive and dynamic. Democracy is another example of fine ethics, lacking the dynamic for realization. "Man's inhumanity to man," otherwise known as "profiteering," has recently had a display in this democratic country of ours without historic precedent or parallel. Education alone demonstrates the need of moral dynamic coming from some other source. Men are willing to accept the priceless privileges of an education, such as our Christian civilization can give, and then turn around and fight the education that made this civilization possible. Witness Elihu Root of New York, a man whose mental attainments and brilliant career were the outcome of the education of a Christian civilization. As the special attorney of the national liquor dealer's association he consents to use his power to plead the cause of the outlawed liquor traffic, the most reprehensible organization the world has ever known. For the sake of dollars, this traffic and the men who manipulate it are willing to defile, destroy, and damn human kind, under the camouflage of personal liberty. Truly the heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked.

What are the lessons from recent events? First, the need of moral dynamic. Second, the gospel is that dynamic of God, to save men from their own powerlessness, as well as from their guilt. Third, the message of the church in the 20th century must be the same essentially as in the 1st century, namely, repentance toward God and faith in our Lord Jesus Christ. (See Acts 20:21.)

COME NEAR FOR PROTECTION.

Why Birds Prefer to Make Their Nests in Proximity to Human Habitations.

What is the real explanation of the fact that so many of our birds nest so near our dwellings and yet show such unfriendliness when we come near them? Their apparent confidence, on the one hand, contradicts their suspicion on the other. Is it because we have here the workings of a new instinct which has not yet adjusted itself to the workings of the older instinct of solitude for the safety of the nest and young? My own interpretation is that birds are not drawn near us by any sense of greater security in our vicinity. It is evident from the start that there is an initial fear of us to be overcome. How, then, could the sense of greater safety in our presence arise? Fear and trust do not spring from the same root. Hunted animals pursued by wolves or hounds will at times take refuge in the haunts of men, not because they expect human protection, but because they are desperate, and oblivious to everything save some means of escape. If the hunted deer or fox rushes into open shed or barn door, it is because it is desperately hard pressed, and sees and knows nothing but some object or situation that it may place between itself and its deadly enemy. The great fear obliterates all minor fears.—John Burroughs in Harper's Magazine.

ARMENIANS HAIL AMERICAN PEOPLE AS THEIR SAVIORS

HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS ARE LIVING TODAY BECAUSE OF U. S. AID.

MAKE BRAVE FIGHT THEMSELVES

New York.—Charles V. Vickrey, secretary of Near East Relief, has sent the following cable message from Constantinople to Near East Relief headquarters in this city:

"Have just returned from a thorough inspection of conditions throughout Armenia. The premier, president, governors, mayors and all authorities agree that Armenia was saved last year by the flour and other foodstuffs sent from America. Hundreds of thousands are living today who would be dead had it not been for American relief. They are devoutly grateful to their saviors in the United States.

"The Armenians are thrifty, hard-working and industrious. Considering their handicaps they have made remarkable progress towards self-support. Hundreds of thousands of them are still homeless refugees from Turkish Armenia.

"Without modern agricultural implements, with an insufficient number of oxen and with an inadequate supply of seed wheat they have succeeded in raising food supplies that will carry them until mid-winter. Supplementary supplies must be provided until the recently signed peace treaty with Turkey can be made effective and security given under which they can return to the site of their ruined homes and regain full self-support.

"Everyone joins in high praise of the magnificent life saving—if not nation saving—work of Col. Haskell in the flour distribution of last winter. Since the withdrawal of Col. Haskell and the American military mission last August the relief work is being continued under the civilian direction of Capt. Yarrow and Strong.

"The American civilian personnel of Near East Relief operates one orphanage at Alexandropol that contains approximately ten thousand Armenian war orphans. Another orphanage at Kars accommodates six thousand orphans. There are three thousand at the Erivan orphanage and smaller orphanages at other centers.

"These orphaned boys and girls constitute the hope of the future for the Near East. American philanthropy, through Near East Relief, is rendering an inestimable service in promoting a good will and international friendship. A few millions of dollars today in the form of food, education and industrial training for these orphans may save billions of dollars tomorrow in warfare and international strife."

AMERICAN RELIEF REACHES 100,000 IN THE NEAR EAST

The Near East Relief work is divided into three branches, with offices in Beirut, Alexandropol and Constantinople. The latter station, having a personnel of 200, is caring for 32,000 orphans, 12,000 hospital cases and 9,000 in industrial work, giving direct aid in money, clothing and soup to temporary refugees. The committee here visits needy homes, arranging employment and other aid affecting 12,000 people.

In the Caucasus the work now is concentrated at Alexandropol under a personnel of 20 Americans, where 24,000 orphans are fed and lodged. Refugees from Cilicia, on account of banditry in the French zone of Syria, have greatly increased. Col. Coombs, managing director at Constantinople, commends the spirits of sacrifice among American relief workers, which more than offsets the lack of some in experience.

When Americans became beleaguered in the bandit-infested interior, Col. Coombs wrote a circular letter informing the personnel that they were free to leave when they felt conditions warranted it, but only three former soldiers quit their posts. Even after Adana was surrounded Miss Doris Nevin, the late composer's daughter, of Pittsburgh, and Miss Ruth Henry, of Amherst, Mass., voluntarily braved a journey through the Turk lines to take charge of that branch. This was only one of several similar incidents.

GREECE OFFICIALLY THANKS NEAR EAST RELIEF

Washington.—The Greek legation is in receipt of a report from the Greek High Commissioner in Constantinople that the American organization, Near East Relief, is spending about 3,000 Turkish pounds per week (approximately $3,000) in Western Asia Minor, actively helping the refugees of that district, which is under the control of the Greek government.

The Greek charge has written the executive committee of Near East Relief that "it is a very gratifying feeling to know that so many innocent victims are relieved from their sufferings," and expressing his thanks to Near East Relief for its work in Asia Minor.

ARMENIAN REPUBLIC NOT TAINTED WITH BOLSHEVISM

Reports that bolshevists are penetrating Armenia, based on the recent establishment of a soviet government in the provinces of Karabakh and Zangezor, are misleading, according to a statement issued by Near East Relief. The two provinces in question are inhabited largely by Armenians, but are not a part of the Republic of Armenia. They consist of a mountainous region, the richest mineral district of the Near East, known to possess gold, copper, sulphur, iron and zinc mines, but which is cut off from the Armenian Republic by lack of roads.

The Armenians, the statement goes on to say, have been opposed bitterly to bolshevism from the start and are now calling all men from 18 to 45 to arms to fight the advance of soviet troops, should any campaign against Armenia be attempted. A brief bolshevist revolution in Alexandropol, Armenia, on May 1 was put down by the government within a few days. The menia lies in the possibility of a only danger of bolshevism is Arcession of the relief work now being conducted by the Near East Relief in Transcaucasia, with its resulting starvation of the inhabitants of that country, which might conceivably force them into the arms of Soviet Russia.

As there is no intention on the part of the Near East Relief to cease its activities, this prospect is considered very remote.

CITY OF DEATH IS TRANSFORMED

AMERICAN PHILANTHROPY ACCOMPLISHES WONDERS IN SHORT TIME, NURSE

"American charity is transforming Armenia from a land of destitute, abnormal people, dying by the hundreds from starvation, into a nation of sturdy, normal, well fed citizens," Miss Blanche L. Knox, a Philadelphia nurse, told officials of Near East Relief on her return recently from a year and a half of service in Transcaucasia.

"The transformation of Armenia is best illustrated by that of Alexandropol, its largest city," she said. "When we arrived there early in 1919 conditions were horrible. More awful than the city itself were its inhabitants. Their grain-sack clothing was mud dyed. Along the streets half-mad creatures were digging in the mud for something they could eat, or else laid down in the mud to die. Before we arrived there seemed to have been little or no attempt to bury the bodies of the dead.

"Alexandropol was a far different city when I again passed through it on the way home. The streets were cleaned and the people were well clothed in old American garments or in suits made at the Near East Relief industrial shops. The ragged, abnormal orphans had been gathered in Near East Relief asylums. The mud-colored town that had seemed dead itself a few months before was hardly recognizable.

"To make this improvement permanent relief activities must be continued until the political situation clarifies."

Miss Knox's work overseas was not without its thrills. Once she was aroused at midnight by Kurd machine gunners firing on the city of Igdur, and was compelled to flee with the orphans under her care in that city. Last May, in the Caucasus, her train was held up for six hours by Bolshevists.

Miss Knox served during the war with the Red Cross.

TENNESSEE URGES THAT GOVERNMENT AID ARMENIA

The general assembly of the state of Tennessee, at its recent extraordinary session, adopted the following resolution endorsing the work of Near East Relief:

"Whereas, the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee has had brought to its attention the serious condition now existing in Armenia and other Near Eastern countries, which menaces the peace of the world; therefore be it

"Resolved, That we urge upon our Government the necessity of immediate affirmative action in bringing to an end the suffering and wrong that still continues within the border of these Eastern countries, and that we express our deep and earnest sympathy for the unfortunate people of Armenia, and that we believe that our Government, consistent with its constitution and principles, should render every possible and proper aid to them in their efforts to establish and maintain a government of their own, and that we heartily approve the work which has been and is conducted by the Near East Relief Committee in relieving these suffering peoples.

"Adopted by the Senate, August 16, 1920."
"Adopted by the House, September 4, 1920."

TANEYTOWN LOCAL COLUMN

Brief Items of Local News of Special Interest to Our Home Readers.

George K. Dutera is having built a large front porch to his Baltimore St., residence.

One of Taneytown's chief industries, is producing workmen for the factories in York.

The dates have been changed, again for the Chautauqua course, to Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 22, 23 and 24th.

Elvin D. Dern has been elected a Director of the Taneytown Mutual Fire Insurance Co., in place of Edmund F. Smith, deceased.

Mrs. M. Ross Fair and Miss Edith Hess attended the C. E. Convention in Baltimore, this week, as delegates from the Lutheran Society.

"Emmitsburg street" is not a good name for the street, anyway, so why not call it "State Street" hereafter? Such a name would be greatly more appropriate.

Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Hagan returned home, last Friday evening, from their New York trip, tired but happy; having enjoyed themselves greatly in the big cities visited.

Fortunately for the farmers, they have had several weeks fine weather for their Fall work, but a great deal remains yet to be done, due to the lateness of the corn crop.

A Republican mass-meeting will be held in the Opera House, next Monday evening, Oct. 25. There will be several speakers, including Hon. Wm. B. Blakeney, candidate for Congress, and one woman speaker.

Taneytown has at least three things to grouch over; the new street grade, the electric lights that don't come, and the scarcity of houses that promises to force a number of families to leave town, next Spring.

Rev. H. O. Harner, pastor of the Springet United Brethren church, the York county, has been elected pastor of the Lutheran charge, of York Springs, Pa. Rev. Harner is well known in Taneytown and vicinity.

Those who spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mehrling were: Mr. and Mrs. David Mehrling and son, Wilbur, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Baumgardner and daughter, Mildred, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Gladhill and son, Hively.

Mrs. Margaret Englar Nulton left for Philadelphia, on Thursday, where she will be engaged for a while in the office of Lutheran Woman's Work Magazine, under the direction of Mrs. G. W. Baughman, who is subscription manager.

Those who spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Utermahlen, were William Airing and wife and daughter, Miss Effie, of near Harney; Zeiber Stultz and wife and little daughter, Naomia and Jacob Hess and wife.

A Democratic mass-meeting will be held in the Opera House, this Saturday evening, at 8 o'clock, with addresses by Hon. Carville D. Benson, Congressman C. V. Harris, of N. C.; Guy W. Steele, and Miss S. Johnson Poe, of Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Hesson, Miss Jennie Galt, Miss Amelia Birnie and Mrs. P. B. Englar, visited Mrs. Samuel H. Mehrling at Frederick Hospital, last Sunday afternoon. They found her cheerful, and slowly, improving. Miss Anna Davidson and Mrs. Geo. H. Birnie also visited her on Monday.

Rev. L. B. Hafer is in attendance as a delegate from the Maryland Synod, at the General Synod of the United Lutheran Church, in Washington, D. C. This body comprises all of the various United Lutheran Synods of the United States, and will be in session until about Thursday of next week.

Detouring through Taneytown, at night, due to the concreting of the main street, will require careful driving, due to the narrowness of some of the alleys that will be used, and especially on the part of those not well acquainted with the town. Saturday nights will be especially dangerous.

Special Evangelistic Services will begin in the Presbyterian church, on Sunday night. The pastor of the church will be in charge Sunday and Monday nights. The Evangelist, Mr. McArthur, is expected on Tuesday, and he will continue the meetings through the following Sabbath. The public is cordially invited to attend these services and it is hoped the Christian people of the community will give their hearty support. Service every night at 7:30.

Arthur Angell, near town, was taken to the Frederick City Hospital on Wednesday and operated on for appendicitis.

As a matter of information, there are 24 or 25 houses, or half houses in Taneytown, occupied by but one person.

Mrs. Mary Motter, Mrs. Francis Cunningham and son and Miss Eliza R. Birnie of Washington, spent the week end at G. H. Birnie's.

On Sunday Mrs. Harry Formwalt, picked out of her garden, 3 pints of strawberries, entertained 15 persons, and had strawberry shortcake for dessert.

On last Thursday morning about 8:30 Miss Anna Flickinger, saw a black snake outside the upstairs window; she raised the window to hit it and it jumped down, and she ran down stairs and killed it with a baseball bat. It was 3 feet and 3 inches in length.

The concrete walk along the Lutheran cemetery and the approach to it, has been used this week, both by State Road trucks and automobiles, by running two wheels on the walk and two in the roadway, although the road is amply wide without using the walk. The continued use of the walk in this way, is apt to lead to trouble for the trespassers.

A Birthday Party.

(For the Record.) A very enjoyable birthday surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. R. Miller, on Monday evening, Oct. 18, in honor of their son, Herman's, 11th birthday.

Blue Ridge College News.

Due to Mr. Ratto missing the train at Cumberland, Md., the first Lecture Number of the B. R. College lecture course had to be postponed.

The board was very sorry Mr. Ratto did not come, but is making every effort possible, to secure him at a later date. If the board can not arrange to have him come later, another number will be supplied, equally as good or better.

Announcement will be made, later, concerning further arrangements. Everyone come to hear the "Dunbar Male Quartette," Oct. 30.

On the affiliated vote, Baltimore has a Democratic majority of about 17,000, but as there is a "declined affiliation" vote of 31,500, the city is not to be classed as "rock-ribbed" in its Democracy, but good fighting ground for men and issues bigger than mere party organization demands.

Card of Thanks.

I hereby return my sincere thanks to all friends and neighbors who so kindly cut off corn for me, during my illness. The act will always be remembered.

Automobile Show.

The arrangements for the automobile show in the Armory at Westminster are about completed and the indications are that the show will be a great success. This show is being held under the direction of the local Post of The American Legion, and more particularly under the supervision of a committee of the Post who are exhibiting that same sort of energy that was shown while they were in the Army.

It is the intention of the ex-soldiers that this show be an annual affair, and every effort is being made that this year's show may be a success in order to show the public that such an undertaking is feasible in this county. Every bit of space in the Armory is being utilized. Not only will automobiles and motorcycles be exhibited, but also tires and the usual accessories.

Due to the fact that this is the initial show, only the Westminster dealers have been approached as to contracting for spaces. Next year the Legion hopes to broaden out and extend, so as to include all the dealers in the county.

The show will take place on October 28, 29 and 30th, open from noon until 11 P. M. Thursday, the 28th, will be Mayor's night, Friday, the 29th, will be society night, Saturday the 30th, will be Legion night. Music all three nights.

The public's attention is called to the fact that Cumberland, Frederick, Hagerstown and Salisbury have their annual automobile shows; that Westminster should have her show; and that the people of the county should patronize our local show and put Westminster in the same category with the above mentioned cities.

PERSEVERE.

I want to let go—
But I will not let go!
I am tired it is true
And discouraged and blue
Worn out through and through—
But I will not let go!

I want to let go—
But I will not let go!
There are battles to fight
By day and by night
For God and the right
And I will not let go!

I want to let go—
But I will not let go!
I never will yield!
What lie down on the field
And surrender my shield!
No, I will not let go.

I want to let go—
But I will not let go!
Be this ever my song
'Gainst the legions of wrong
Oh, God, make me strong
That I may not let go.

National Prohibition Not a Failure.

Washington, Oct. 17.—Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, declared today the "enforcement of national prohibition is not a failure," but the administration of the law is passing through the "same experience that State and local prohibition laws were subjected to in many places."

"Of course, the law is not well enforced in some places," Mr. Wheeler added, "because some public officials are derelict in duty, others are corrupt. There is a strong sentiment in favor of putting inspectors and agents under the civil service law. While the number who have been corrupted is comparatively small, it tends to discredit the many who are honest."

"The permit system for non-beverage liquors has been badly administered in many places. Wholesalers permits were never contemplated in the prohibition code. Thousands of other permit holders should be denied a renewal of their permits which expire December 31. The concentration of bonded liquors in a few warehouses should be adopted. It would not be practicable to put all the liquors in one warehouse, possibly two or three places would suffice."

Some Main Causes of Fires.

Defective and overheated chimneys. Disposal of hot ashes in wooden receptacles, and against combustible materials.

Cigars and cigarettes carelessly discarded. Clothing and curtains etc., exposed to contact with stove and open flame lights.

Hot coals falling from stove. Electric and gas iron carelessness. Defective electric wiring.

Explosions due to use of gasoline and inflammable liquids. Starting fires with kerosene and gasoline.

Defective furnaces and stoves. Lamps and lanterns overturned. Carelessness in the use and keeping of matches.

Oily rags and waste accumulations. Children playing with matches. Sparks from flues, fireplaces, etc. Burning rubbish without proper protection.

Woodwork and furniture articles exposed to contact with stove and furnace. Gas leaks.

Lack of municipal interest in insisting on the disposal of out in the open litter.

Building regulations not provided for, nor enforced when provided. General lack of interest by property owners.

Love Among the Churches.

Dr. Lyman P. Howell gives some examples of the lengths to which petty bitterness between sects will sometimes carry men. "A visitor in a certain town which had four churches and adequately supported none, asked a pillar of one poor dying church, 'How's your church getting on?' 'Not very well,' was the reply, 'but, thank the Lord, the others are not doing any better.'"
