

COUNTY FARMERS TO UNITE IN ORGANIZATION.

Will Hold Meeting Next Saturday, in Westminster.

A meeting of the representatives of all the organizations of the county interested in the rural life will meet in the County Agent's office, Westminster, Saturday, March 12th, at 1:30 P. M., for the purpose of forming a Farmers' Federation of Carroll county. Adopting a constitution, by-laws, appointing committees, will be the program for the afternoon.

The farmers in eighteen counties have already formed federations, and three more are about to, which leaves Carroll pretty well at the end of the list. The work which has been accomplished by these organizations can be found in the County Agent's periscope in the Maryland Farmer. The farmers of one county expect to save $5000 on their spring fertilizers by buying on a cash basis in carload lots. The getting together of all the farmers of the county into one organization means the support of all interested in one thing, the betterment of the rural life. This is a broad term and includes marketing of farm produce, buying of supplies, education, production, transportation, recreation, sanitation and the development of community spirit.

All the organizations of the county have been asked to send delegates where there is no organization, and all farmers interested in the betterment of farming in Carroll are invited.

Dr. F. B. Bomberger, assistant director and specialist of Maryland State College, will be present to explain the progress of such organizations in other counties and help organize Carroll.

Boys' Agricultural Club Prizes.

The future farmers of the county certainly came up to the Carroll standard last year. They did not lack quality if they were short on members. Due to the fact that the club work could not be carried on in the schools, meetings of boys could not be held and the work was all of an individual nature.

John D. Myers, Baughman's Valley, upheld his brother's record of last year in winning first place in the county in the Corn Club by raising 110.8 bu. dry shelled corn on an acre, with a total of 96 out of a possible 100 points. The points are based on yield, not profit, standing of 10 ears exhibited and written report. Marion Prough, Eldersburg, was second with 86.4 bu. shelled corn, with a score of 87.2. Hubert Null, Taneytown, was third with 90 bu.

John D. Myers also had an acre of sweet corn on which he raised 3.4 tons at a profit of $10.56 per acre.

The most interest in club centers around eight boys who are raising pure bred sow pigs for breeding. Seven of these boys, through the courtesy of the Farmers' and Mechanics' National Bank of Westminster, purchased pure-bred Duroc-Jersey sow pigs for breeding. The contest is divided into two periods. The first is the growing phase, the second is the sow and litter stage. The standing of the boys at the end of 168 days of the growing stage, is Paul Robertson, near Uniontown; Hubert Null, Taneytown; Levi D. Maus, Jr., near Baust Church; the rest of the boys are Raymond Hoffman, Robert L. Wright, Paul Light, Harold Hylton and J. Sterling Hook. This contest will close when the sows have farrowed and pigs weaned. The boys will then sell some of their pigs to pay off their note at the bank. The boys all have a good chance to win out as the most important part of their work is from now on to the end of the contest.

There was only one entry in the fat pig club; Lloyd Baker, Mt. Airy. Lloyd succeeded in putting 270 pounds on his pig in 168 days which is 1.6 lbs. per day.

The boys who seemed to make most money out of their club work with little initial outlay was the poultry club boys. Carroll S. Rinehart, Union Bridge, raised 31 barred Plymouth Rocks out of 41 hatched at a profit of $29.93. Blair Simpson, Keymar, raised 30 Mongrels out of 32 hatched at a profit of $15.87.

From 15 boys enrolling 14 books were received. The boys having kept a complete record of all cost of production, computed profits, and wrote a story of their work. The club work is open to all boys 12 to 18 years of age. The work is to help boys and girls to learn the methods of successful feeding of stock, production of corn, potatoes; but the greatest good comes from the social side, getting acquainted with all the boys and girls in the county, and if one is lucky enough to get the free short course at the University of Maryland, the boys and girls of the state. Very few boys and girls who have been club members and taken part in its activities think that the farm is not good enough place to live.

Warning as to Seed Corn.

The International Harvester Co. has issued a warning to farmers that very much of the corn to be used for seed is likely to be low in vitality, which makes it important that every seed ear be tested before it is planted. This will be some trouble, but it will be good business to be sure that the seed put in the ground is healthy, and will grow.

SAYS COUNTIES NOT SO DRY

Writer Finds Evidence He Went Out to Hunt For.

A correspondent, who was sent out by the Baltimore American to the counties of the State, in order to sound rural sentiment with reference to the Volstead Act and bone-dry enforcement, has returned home, having found what he was likely sent out to find—"that the counties are not nearly so dry as they are cracked up to be." Two of the paragraphs of his report are as follows:

"Did every countian smite his chest and in stentorian tones demand its strict enforcement in Maryland? Not exactly. To tell the truth, the average man one meets on the streets, in the lobbies of the hotels, in corner stores, in trains and in other public conveyances is outspoken in his desire to see the act repealed or emasculated or, at least, winked at. Representative Volstead is certainly no friend of the average rural Marylander."

"The painstaking correspondent returns from a tour of the counties with his eyes amazingly opened to the stand of the countryman on the subject of prohibition. As has already been pointed out, the city man has been constantly impressed with the belief that the rural sections are bone dry in their sentiments. Such is not the case. Prohibition is as moot a question in the rural districts as in Baltimore. Representative Volstead is assuredly no hero in rural Maryland."

We would suggest that a certain Mr. Crabbe could also send out a "painstaking correspondent," who would return with quite a different report. Majority public sentiment is not arrived at through this method, but through a much better one that is usually employed on election day.

Warned to Stop Gambling.

Frederick, Md., Feb. 27.—Judges of the Frederick County Circuit Court have issued an ultimatum to the numerous "smoke shops" and tobacco stores in this city, ordering the discontinuance of all gambling, either for money, for checks or merchandise. Proprietors of four establishments, their names not made public, were called before the court and required to give a pledge that there would be no further gambling in any form in their places of business. The court said its future action would be governed entirely by whether the parties complied with the wishes of the court. Fines of $50 each were imposed for past offenses.

Kindergarten Extension Urged.

The Md. Assoc'n for Kindergarten Extension is organizing a movement to extend kindergarten training to a larger number of children in the State, and has sent the following to the newspapers of the State:

"There are only 3.46% of our children of kindergarten age (4 to 6 yrs) who are in kindergartens, and all of these kindergarten classes are in Baltimore city except one, which is in Baltimore county. Outside of Baltimore county there is not a single public kindergarten in the whole State whereas in California, in towns under 2500 population, there are 57 kindergartens, and 2037 kindergartens pupils. In towns under 2500 population in Iowa there are 59 classes, in Wisconsin 178, and in Nebraska, 62.

Should not Maryland be doing something to secure the benefits, and opportunities the kindergarten affords? U. S. Commissioner of Education P. P. Claxton, has given us the slogan: "Let us all unite in securing kindergarten training for every child."

Every child has a right to a place in a kindergarten; for, just as the high school provides the right kind of education for boys and girls from 13 to 18, so does the kindergarten provide the proper start for the little child.

Dr. Lyman Abbot, Editor of the Outlook, has said, "My faith in the kindergarten can be expressed thus: I believe in it because I believe that well guided play can be made educational and because I believe that every child has an inalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness which right the kindergarten secures for him."

The following resolution was endorsed by the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers' Association this fall:

"The Board of Managers of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers' Association heartily approves the proposition to stimulate kindergarten extension to the end that every one of the nation's children may have the privilege and advantage of kindergarten education."

Hon. Champ Clark Dead.

Hon. Champ Clark, one of the best known legislators of this country, and the man whom Mr. Bryan perhaps kept from being President, died in Washington, on Wednesday, from pleurisy and complications, aged 71 years. He had served 26 years as representative in Congress, from Missouri, but was defeated for re-election in the landslide of last November. He was Speaker of the House for eight years, and presided during the war, and until the Republicans secured control.

STILL FREEDOM LEFT

The best way to find out whether one has the "hardest job there is," is to quit it and try an "easy" and more profitable one. Just wade in, then take a look back at what you left, and see how you like the change.

Perhaps it might be a good plan to keep a string fast to the old job—in case you want to trade back, for there may be a little difference between running a business, and seeing somebody else run it.

The fact that we know so well just the article on which there is "too much" profit, and the kinds of business that "pay" best, is a big help—we can at least "cuss" about our being victimized.

There is a great deal of freedom left to us, after all, if we want to make use of it—and know how. There are plenty of vacant store rooms for rent, and chances to start in business, in almost any line.

A SIMPLE INAUGURAL

Gayety, Display and Big Crowd Sure to be Lacking.

The inauguration of President Harding, taking place today, will be one of the simplest on record, in strict accord with Mr. Harding's preference. But, despite the plainness and lack of display, the city will be filled with thousands of visitors, and there will be certain formalities and sights that will nevertheless be attractive, the bunting alone adding brilliancy and enthusiasm to appearances.

The following is given as the program for the day:

The inaugural party will proceed down Pennsylvania avenue to the Capitol. In the first car will be Mr. Wilson, Mr. Harding, Senator Knox and Representative Cannon. In the next car will be Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Harding and other members of the Congressional committee. The third car will carry the incoming and outgoing Vice-President, and another car will have Mrs. Marshall and Mrs. Coolidge. Behind will come cars bearing Secret Service men and reporters. A short, swift procession, requiring only a few moments to pass a given point. And the only touch of pomp will be given by the two troops of cavalry from Ft. Myer, Virginia, that have been selected as the Presidential escort, barring 500 infantrymen from Camp Meade who will serve as policemen.

At the Capitol Mr. Wilson and Mr. Harding will go to the President's room. The retiring President will sign bills, and the incoming will talk with intimate friends for a few moments. Soon afterward they will go to the Senate and, seated side by side, will observe the taking of the oath by Vice-President Coolidge and the brief addresses. President Harding will then be escorted to the stand outside the Capitol, where he will take the oath and deliver his inaugural address.

Stealing Sternly Denounced.

Harry Stevens and three sons, of Jefferson, Frederick county, plead guilty in Court, on Tuesday, to stealing wheat, corn and chickens, from the farmers of the community. The father was sentenced to three and a half years in the House of Correction, while the sons were held for further consideration by the court.

Stevens and his sons were arrested after a series of robberies in the vicinity of Jefferson and Burkittsville. The four were indicted for larceny. After plea of guilty had been entered by attorneys for the accused, Raymond Stevens was called to the witness stand. Judge Worthington cautioned him to tell the truth. He said he and his brother Andrew made a night trip to the farm of Wilmer Moser and stole 12 chickens, which they sold for $17.10. A few nights later he and his younger brother, Howard, made a return trip and got 17 chickens, which they also sold, he said.

On another occasion he accompanied his father, he said, to the farm of Armstrong Magaha where they stole a quantity of wheat. The lad declared that his father encouraged him in the thefts. The elder brother, Andrew, admitted he stole chickens from Moser and sold them. He said he supposed he did it because he wanted money.

Sentence was pronounced by Judge Worthington in scathing terms. "Your home has been a den of thieves," he said, "and I have the greatest contempt for you. Besides your own crime, you have taught your sons to steal and you deserve no sympathy from the Court. You have gone to the homes of honest citizens—persons who have worked hard for a living—and have robbed them in the boldest manner. It is the duty of the Court to protect citizens and to prevent thieves from plundering their premises. It is the purpose of this Court to break up thieving, and neither you nor anyone else guilty of robbery may expect leniency."

Marriage Licenses.

Chas. H. McClintock and Nora E. Reynolds, both of Washington, D. C. John E. Byers and Lillie May Sherman, both of Taneytown.

Lee Spencer, of Mt. Airy, and Susan Dorsey, of Waterville. Herbert Ey and Ethel Clay, both of Baltimore city.

James Eldred Harry of Gamber, and Katie V. Baggett, of Accotink, Va.

Wilbur E. Miller, of Bird Hill, and Viola E. Frick, of Smallwood.

MARSHALL'S FINE REPLY.

Vice-President Presented with Silver Cup and Other Tokens.

The Senate honored "Tom" Marshall, on Monday, by presenting him with a massive silver loving cup, a silver spectacle case, several hundred fine cigars, and other parting gifts. The presentation was made by Senators Lodge and Underwood. The reply of Mr. Marshall was a fine bit of sentiment, altogether worth passing around.

"Senators," said Vice-President Marshall, "I can hardly be expected to voice the emotions of this moment. I do not forget the day I came to you, when, as a tumultuous Indiana politician, I looked askance upon the Senate of the United States, and when, I fear, the Senate wondered what the American people meant in such a choice as they had made.

"This has been a great school for me; a school of my old age. It has taught me that there is not a man in this body who is not a double man; a man who has a brain that he devotes exclusively to the determination of the great problems which from time to time confront the deliberations of this body; but, underneath that man of brains there is another man—the man of heart. And I have found in the eight years of deliberation with the United States Senate that the heart is wiser than the intellect and works with swifter hands and surer feet toward wise conclusions.

"There was a time in my life that I thought I would like to be a great man; when I hoped that in some mysterious way I could listen to the plaudits of the multitude and plume myself upon the accomplishment of some great purpose for mankind. I have learned here to long for that no longer; to have but one supreme desire, that as the days are coming closer and closer when I shall put aside the purple curtains of twilight and go out, I know not whether but I hope without fear—that I can so live the days to come as to keep what I think I have, the friendship of the Senators of the United States.

"Others may have what they will but for me—may I call you brethren?—but for me, brethren, I shall not forget your generosity, your patience, your overlooking of the faults and foibles of a too often ill-tempered man. I shall not forget the friendly handclasp nor the generous elbow-touch of humanity. I shall go remembering all these generous years and be content in the thought that if I cannot have greatness, I may yet retain friendship.

"I shall take this, your gift, with me out to Indiana. The people of Indiana will think it is a loving cup. They may imagine it has been presented to me as a memorial of the Eighteenth amendment to the Constitution. If it be such, it will meet with the approval of most of the people of Indiana, but it will always be a source of regret to some, I know, that you did not fill it up. (Laughter.)

"Senators, as all evil comes to an end, so all good times cease. Ours has ended. May the man who takes my place learn to know that beneath the bitterness of partisan controversy in this Senate there is a warm human, loving heart that seeks, after all, only friendship and good will."

Improvements at White House.

Beautifying the grounds about the White House to make them a veritable flowerland for the Hardings has already been begun by the office of Public Buildings and Grounds. Elaborate plans for this have been approved by Mrs. Harding, who has some original ideas about improving the landscape and making the environs of the executive mansion one of the most attractive spots in the national capital.

More than 6,000 pansies of varied and radiant hues have been planted in the north and south grounds. Hundreds of tulips have been set out. The rose garden, one of the innovations of the Wilson regime, will be enlarged and a number of rare bushes added to the collection. Upward of 20,000 bulbs were boxed for early flowering and there will be a wealth of iris, peonies and rich flowers.

Details of the new arrangement of the flower beds and the decorations of the three fountains with lilies, mosses and ferns will be left to Mrs. Harding who has indicated that she will personally supervise the flower-gardening.

It is understood that Mrs. Harding is planning to have a series of garden parties in the south grounds, and for that reason is anxious for a complete rehabilitation of the trees, shrubbery and flower gardens. It is also said that there will be a revival of the concerts by the Marine Band on Saturday afternoons during the summer.

An alligator may be the star pet at the White House during the next administration. Henry N. Bennett, of Jacksonville, Fla., has an alligator of the so-called "hellbinder" species, ready to ship from Florida as soon as he receives word from Mr. Harding, while Senator Park Trammell of Florida, who was at the White House recently, believes that a gentler kind would be more suitable for one of the three big fountains in the grounds of the mansion, and is eager to present one to the President-elect.

Had Theodore Roosevelt lived, there is scarcely any doubt but that he would now be President, instead of Warren G. Harding.

WILL WAR IN EUROPE BREAK OUT ONCE MORE?

Germany's Protest Against Reparation Terms, Serious.

The reparation terms as offered by Germany's representatives, are so far short of the demands that it is a sure conclusion that they will not be accepted, and if there is more resistance and purveying, war is apt to break out in the very near future.

Everything is in readiness along the Rhine, on the part of the French and British forces, to begin an invasion of Germany, and there is considerable popular spirit back of such a movement.

The German proposal was offered in such a spirit of detailed advantage to Germany, the arrangements being largely to suit their easy convenience that the offer itself amounted almost to insult and defiance.

At the conclusion of the German Foreign Minister's statement Mr. Lloyd George replied in the name of the Allies, who, he said, were unanimous on this point. He said he could not conceal from the German Minister that the proposals indicated a complete misapprehension of the situation and that "the Allies are ready and agreed that the proposals made cannot be examined or discussed."

It is said that in the event of reopened hostilities—which the knowing ones claim is hardly likely—the American forces will not participate, as they are in Germany under the terms of the armistice, and the further use of troops by the allies, is a matter in which the United States is claimed not to be at present interested.

Reminiscences of Keysville.

(For the Record.)
Like Mr. John Reid I have been reading the letters for the Record with great interest, and with the same object in view make this weak effort. I started my career as an American citizen in 1862 in the vicinity of Keysville, here with a number of other boys became familiar with every foot of land and running stream within easy reach, and therefore have many memories of by-gone days, and of hours spent usefully and unusefully.

Those spent usefully are pleasant to think of, but not so the others. I remember the old store, our only loafing place in Keysville, where we were expected to visit each evening and spend a few hours until Captain Poole would say "well boys, time to adjourn" and lead in old "watch" the dog. He had no further need to ask for the use of the store boxes we were occupying.

Wm. Fogle, our old shoemaker, who would make our shoes so strong they very seldom wore out until they got too small, then a younger brother would tackle the job and sometimes succeed. You do not need a younger brother, this date, to keep the shoes from going to waste.

I still remember the old log school house with long benches, no backs to lean against, where I started my school days, and how proud we were when we moved to the new one now serving the same purpose; under the instructions of our kind, yet firm old school teacher, C. F. Keindollar, I finished. He could use that four foot of second growth hickory with a wonderful amount of persuasion. Some of the boys seemed to get more of it than their share, but in later years they declared they did not steal any—it all belonged to them.

Well boys, those were wonderful days, but let me say that we boys of 1862 are getting up to the top shelf, where we will not be called for so often, and that we should value time as we value dollars and cents, which are convenient to have but not near so valuable as a full and sufficient preparation for that last call coming from that mysterious beyond. If we have that assurance, we can say truly this life has not been a failure.

Governor Declines to Ask.

Governor Ritchie has declined to ask Attorney-General Armstrong for an opinion whether women can serve in the Legislature and on juries.

In a letter to Mrs. Charles J. Ogle, representing the Just Government League, the Governor said that he does not feel that he has the right to add to the Attorney-General's duties by requesting an opinion on questions that do not arise in connection with pending State business. He said he would not do so of his own volition, and feels he should not do so at the request of parties not part of the State government.

"The right of women to serve is, of course, a matter of public interest and importance, but at present is not before any State authorities for solution," he said.

The Governor pointed out that his position will not prevent women from obtaining legal advice from private counsel.

It is said that the women will test the situation, by placing one or more candidates before the primaries.

The "free seed" bill was revived this week, and passed, notwithstanding strenuous efforts to kill it. Members of Congress must have something to send back home, as a reward to the people for electing them.

All articles on this page are either original, or properly credited. This has always been a fixed rule with this office, and we suggest the adoption of it by our exchanges.

There is said to be 10,000 professional criminals in the city of Chicago, who operate the business of criminality from choice, and as a means of making money. The "crime trust" is credited with having made $12,000,000 in 1919, due to the efficiency of their organization. It seems to us, if the facts are so well known, there ought to be enough anti-criminals in a city of nearly 3,000,000 to put such a comparatively small crowd out of business.

One of the cheap and worn out old political arguments, is charging public officials with incompetency, or dishonesty, merely because they are Republicans, or Democrats, as the case may be. The party label does not classify the man—there are crooks and misfits in both parties. Nowadays, there is fortunately a large percentage of independence and clear-thinking in the ranks of voters, on both sides, that is not fooled by mere appeal to party name superiority.

Price Reductions.

The Record, in common with most of the newspapers of the country, has given space to a great many items announced price reductions. There has been, of course, some desire toward this end, as well as the mere news fact, and perhaps in some cases our information has been extreme, or it may not have been interpreted right.

On the other hand, it is but of common occurrence for readers to either read carelessly, or to give what they read a too elastic interpretation, and expect things to come about too suddenly. For instance, a cut at a mill for Fall goods, means that it will be fully six months before this cut is felt by the consumer. A cut at the refinery of the price of sugar, means perhaps a month before this cut can be handed out by the retailer. In one form or another, every cut that is made takes time to reach the retail buyer; and in some cases, even the mills and manufacturers, in order to create an optimistic feeling, have likely been "too previous" and too anxious to bring about reductions, to the end that their own announcements have not always been accurate.

All prices depending on open markets—like farm produce—have fallen more rapidly than manufactured goods depending on salesmanship, style, stocks on hand, demand, etc. This is always true. Grain and cattle, for instance, can always be publicly sold at what we call "market price." Manufactured goods can not be so readily sold, because there are no warehouses for them to be hauled to, and be promptly exchanged for cash.

Any article that depends on being retailed, must go through the many hands necessary before demand and fixed price can be definitely determined.

So, while farmers complain that they "must take the market price" they ought not overlook, or underestimate, the fact that there always is a "market price." Dealers in merchandise would often be very glad of the opportunity of hauling their goods to a warehouse, and selling it at a loss.

In the matter of price reductions, all of us are impatient to receive a reduction in buying, when we must take one in selling. Unfortunately, adjustments of this kind are not equal.

On the other hand, the upward trend of prices that we passed through, was gradual covering several years. The retail buyer, as a rule, had this upward trend softened to him. The retailer, in many cases—in fact, in most cases—graduated this increase to the buyer a great deal more evenly than it came to him. He kept on selling at "old prices" his stock on hand, or but gradually increased them; and for this he has not received much credit. The fact remains, however, that he did not advance his prices as rapidly, or as greatly, as prices advanced to him, and even in his final full advance, his percent of profit has been less on sales than they formerly were.

Disagree as we may with the inequality of present prices for buying and selling, there is not nearly so much that is absolutely wrong about it as one imagines. In some cases, retailers are no doubt trying to save themselves losses at both ends, and are trying to make profits now that they should have had, but did not take, when prices went up on their stocks on hand. They argue that as they sold stock on hand, at a single profit, when prices went up, they have an equal right to sell present stocks at a profit, when their stocks are depreciating; and to the man in business, this is justifiable logic.

At any time, there is more or less of a conflict between buyer and seller. Both are in business for themselves, and are trying for a profit from their business—a profit that they are entitled to, and must have; and just now this conflict is a little more apparent, without being in anywise a different proposition. This is all there is to the situation—everybody is looking out the best he can, for himself, and is not, in so doing, trying to rob anybody. Men who sell goods are fully as honest as those who buy them.

Everybody boosted prices upward, when it helped them; everybody is resisting prices downward, when it hurts them. So, we are very naturally following the plan of the lower order of animals—bucking and kicking.

Harding Can Hit Back.

Those who have been listing President Harding as a sort of political jelly-fish, who "just happened" to land his job, are apt to find that he is another sort of fish, and means to do a little Presidenting on his own account. Somehow, his party seemed to think it was up to it to pick out the incoming cabinet, and to very seriously advise Mr. Harding of his mistaken opinions as to men. At any rate, there has been a lot of that going on, practically since the election, all of which the principal actor took very calmly until the other day, when he became quite Rooseveltian in his expressions. Speaking of his superabundance of gratuitous criticism, he said:

"I suppose it's our way of doing things, but that doesn't make it right. I don't mind being jumped on for something I've done; it's being judged before performance that I object to—that all fair-minded people have a right to object to.

"This sort of thing goes deeper than its effect on any one man. It strikes at the root of popular government, and strikes dangerously. If there is malfeasance in office I don't mind having the guns turned on the malefactors. But is there rhyme or reason or common honesty in subjecting people to bombardment before they've had the ghost of a show to prove their mettle?"

The new President is right. He has all along shown that he does not intend to be a Czar, but that he will be accessible to all sorts of well-meant advice; but, he evidently does not mean to be stampeded into trying to please everybody, and not himself. He has in the language above used, plainly announced that there will be a President in the White House, and that he will not peddle his acts all over the country to be O. K'd. before he announces them.

Why Colds Are Dangerous.

It is the serious diseases that colds lead to that makes them dangerous. They prepare the system for the reception and development of the germs of influenza, pneumonia, tuberculosis, diphtheria, scarlet fever, whooping cough and measles. You are much more likely to contract these diseases when you have a cold. For that reason you should get rid of every cold as quickly as possible. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will help you. It is widely known as a cure for bad colds.

Plain Talk to Railroaders.

B. C. Forbes, a newspaper correspondent of acknowledged ability on industrial and financial matters, in speaking of the question of wages of railroad employees in general, mimes no words in saying that such employees must follow the procession in accepting their share of the "cut" in prices now being handed out all along the line.

He first makes it clear that railroad employees were specially favored before the election, in granting to them about everything they asked for, and that this "went to their heads," and that the feeling still is that wages must not be reduced, no matter how urgent, or reasonable, such a demand is. He says, as though speaking direct to the men:

"When we are told that one of your best-known union leaders has been going around loudly declaring, "We won't stand for one cent reduction in wages," we are inclined to say: "Why should we, the public, go on paying you railwaymen top-notch, war-time wages after the rest of us have had our pay substantially reduced? Why should you not have to join the procession from the clouds back to mother earth?"

Also, when you object so bitterly to going back to piece rates, or allowing any of your members to go back to piece rates who may want to we naturally ask, why? Is it that you no longer desire to be paid by results? In this world most of us like to be paid by results—that is, those of us who are willing and anxious to give the world the best that is in us.

In a word, we feel that you railwaymen are now standing at the bar of public opinion, and that your actions during the next few months will either win you commendation or condemnation. It is up to you to win back the public on your side by manfully accepting your fair share of the readjustment which we are all experiencing.

If we all act reasonably, if we all seek conscientiously to co-operate, there is no reason why there should be one-third of a million railway cars standing idle or why 4,000,000 railway workers and workers in other industries should be idle and other millions employed only on part time. Our worst ailment is a wrong state of mind. If we would all, employees and employers, knock the chip off our shoulders, throw off our coats and get to work with vigor and cheerfulness we could transform the prevailing inactivity into activity, the prevailing gloom into optimism and the prevailing depression into prosperity by the time the sap begins to run up the tree. Come, let's do it!"

She States It Mildly.

While suffering with a severe attack of the grip and threatened with pneumonia, Mrs. Annie H. Cooley, of Middlefield, Conn., began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and was very much benefited by its use. The pains in the chest soon disappeared, the cough became loose, expectoration easy and in a short time she was as well as ever. Mrs. Cooley says she cannot speak too highly in praise of this remedy.

Telephonitis.

"Hello, Central, give me Dr. B's office," the anxious mother asked as she watched her child choking with croup. "Line's busy," Central replied. She waited and prayed, then called again only to receive the same reply—"Line's busy." Again taking up the receiver she heard such snatches: "They are much cheaper at Blank's." "Did you see the dress that Mary had on yesterday?" "Henry going away Sunday?" "I hear that they are separated; well, I knew that they would never stay together." "My cook was late this morning." "She certainly does like to gossip." The poor mother despairing had to send a messenger for the doctor.

Again a business firm is called up and such a conversation follows—that is, if we may call it a conversation, for it seems to be a one-sided talk: "Please send me a spool of thread. I am making a dress, and it is the first one that I have ever tried to make. I have finished it all except the sleeves. You know that the town ball is going to be next week, and I must have it finished by then. It is a very simple pattern, but that is the kind that I like." Thus the talk continued and the poor business man who was over-burdened with work was caught by a victim of telephonitis, and lost several customers for the sale of a spool of cotton.

But the fair sex is not the only victim of this abuse. Often a young lassie is bored to tears because some laddie calls her to the phone and relates adventures that she has had to listen to more than once before. Often mother is called to the phone by some dear gentleman who claims to be a friend of the olden days and who insists on relating events that happened when he and grandfather were young and in which they figured prominently and perhaps mother has left a cake in the stove or a baby up stairs and is anxious to get away from the phone.

This telephonitis is an infirmity of the unoccupied and the lazy, and the gravamen of which is that it recognizes no rights of others. Those who have nothing to do find a source of enjoyment in phoning to friends and those who are too lazy to get rigged up and go calling, visit by the phone. This should not be. When a person phones he never knows whether it is an inconvenient time or not, and moreover he does not know who is waiting for him to "get off of the line." Say what you have to say over the phone, and save the "social bits" until you see the person to whom you wish to convey them.—Emmitsburg Chronicle.

An Ideal Remedy For Constipation.

It would be hard to find a better remedy for constipation than Chamberlain's Tablets. For the best effect they should be taken immediately after supper. They are easy to take and mild and gentle in effect.

EATING YOUR CAKE

You are no doubt familiar with the old saying: "You can't have your cake and eat it, too."

We say you can. The man who invented interest solved that problem. Money in a savings account, money at interest, remains yours, yet earns more money for you right along. Money spent, is like eating the cake. Money on deposit in a reliable Bank, like ours, grows so that you have its earnings to spend and do not need to spend the principal.

"Suicide By Inches"

Thousands of people commit suicide by inches!

If you took minute daily doses of some poisonous drug, no particular effect might be noticed until accumulation of the poison made its action evident.

Yet how many realize that poisonous substances are formed constantly during digestion and the preparation of the food waste for elimination.

If the bowels act regularly and thoroughly, these poisons are eliminated. But if constipation exists, there results stagnation of intestinal waste, germs multiply; and poisons are formed and carried by the blood to every cell of the body.

The victim of self poisoning commits suicide by inches. Pills, castor oil, laxative waters and salts only force and irritate the bowels, and make constipation a habit.

Nujol works on an entirely new principle.

Instead of forcing or irritating the system, it simply softens the food waste. This enables the many tiny muscles in the walls of the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along so that it passes naturally out of the system.

Nujol thus prevents constipation because it helps Nature maintain easy, thorough bowel evacuation at regular intervals—the healthiest habit in the world.

Nujol is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take. Try it.

Nujol is sold by all druggists in sealed bottles only, bearing Nujol Trade Mark. Write Nujol Laboratories, Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), 50 Broadway, New York, for booklet "Thirty Feet of Danger."

WHERE FROGS ARE CHICKENS

Tariff Laws of the United States Say
They Are Same and Alike "in Three Counts."

To one not versed in tariff law, or familiar with the devious and tortuous channels of reasoning followed only by customs legal luminaries, some of the decisions at first appear to be rather odd. Frogs have become chickens for tariff purposes, venison has been held to be beef and live snails have soberly been decided to be nonenumerated unmanufactured articles, remarks the San Francisco Chronicle.

Reason begins to totter on its throne and completely tumbles off when one learns that a firebrick weighing under five pounds is a firebrick weighing over five pounds. Reason, however, can pick up its scepter and climb back to its easy chair with a sigh of relief after reading a wonderful paragraph in the law known as the similitude clause. If an article is not provided for, either by name or material, and has one of four characteristics of an article that is provided for, it takes the same rate of duty. If the homeless article resembles any other article either in material, quality, texture or in use to which it may be applied it becomes that article for tariff purposes. Frog meat is similar to the white meat of chicken in three counts, venison scores on one for the reason that both venison and beef are eaten and firebricks weighing under five pounds are used in exactly the same manner as those weighing over five pounds.

The poor perfumer has no dough

But I will stick to him, although
He hasn't got a scent.

Complacency.
"Your speeches are shorter than they used to be."
"The audience likes 'em that way," replied Senator Sorghum, "and so do I. They allow more time for applause as well as music by the band."

His Opinion.
"What's your opinion of golf?"
"I'll tell you. If I had tried as hard to learn the details of my business as I have to play that game I should have been a marvelous success by now."

"Next they'll pass a law to prevent us from kissing our wives."
"It might be a good thing, at that."
"Huh?"

POULTRY FLOCKS

EXTERMINATE CHICKEN LICE

Several Kinds of Powdered Substances Found to Be Effective Against Parasites.

Experiments to determine what substances are best for exterminating or keeping under control chicken lice have been made by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The following is a list of powdered substances that were found to be effective against chicken lice when used as dusts: Arsenic trioxide, barium fluoride, barium tetrafluoride, borax, boric acid, cloves, naphthalene, paradichlorobenzene, sabadilla seeds, sassafras bark, sodium fluoride, flowers of sulphur. Only a few of these materials can, however, be considered as any practical value in the control of chicken lice. Arsenic trioxide is too poisonous, barium fluoride, cloves, sabadilla seeds and paradichlorobenzene are too expensive, or not readily available in large quantities; naphthalene is dangerous if applied too freely, and barium tetrafluoride does not kill all the lice. Sodium fluoride is the most practical remedy given in this list.

The materials listed below were found to be of no value against chicken lice in spite of popular opinion regarding many of them:

Angelica root, calcium carbonate, calcium fluoride, calcium hydroxide, calcium oxide, calcium sulphate, colocyth pulp, diatomaceous earth, dolomite lime, eucalyptus leaves, ferrous oxide, flour, wheat, gypsum, hellebore, lime (air slaked), lime (water slaked), magnesium carbonate, magnesium oxide, magnesium silicate, orris root, quassia chips, road dust, silica, sodium bicarbonate, vermilion, yellow ochre.

The fact that 26 different finely powdered materials—7 organic and 19 inorganic—were found to be of no value shows the fallacy of the old idea that any fine powder is effective against chicken lice if dusted into the feathers.

Unnecessary Courtesy.
American parents often deplore the abruptness of their children's speech, but few American children would venture to address their parents in the incisive language sometimes used in the Gladstone family, as indicated in a recent book by Mary Drew, Mr. Gladstone's daughter. It bored Mr. Gladstone, she says, to hear people apologetically differ—"My dearest love, I really think you are wrong," etc. "He thought it more to the point to be short and sharp—"A lie!" It is impossible to forget Lord Morley's face," adds Mrs. Drew, "when he first heard one of us say to Mr. Gladstone, 'A lie!'" This freedom of expression half startled and shocked guests at Hawarden, Mr. Gladstone's daughter observes, but it broke the seriousness of discussion and "put everyone in good humor."—From the Outlook.

Loose Milk

By DORA MOLLAN

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Mrs. Browning placed a severe straw sailor on her head and snapped the elastic under the heavy coils of her brown hair. Then she buttoned her trig tailored suit, carrying on at the same time a conversation with her daughter, who was dressing in the next room.

"A morning like this makes me wish some kind fairy would change this stiff chapeau into a sunbonnet and this suit into an old dress and sweater; then if she would transform my bag into a rake and whisk me away to Stonehill—oh! what's the use of wishing? But I can just smell that brown earth! Cheerio, Rena! Only two months more of grinding the elements of Latin into those fliberty-gibberty girls' heads! Well—with a sigh—"we'll have oyster stew for dinner; don't forget, Rena, to run over to the store and get a quart of loose milk. I have examination papers to correct and won't be home early."

Rena, left alone, completed her toilet and hurried out. She didn't have far to go, as her school was only three blocks away. On opening the street door a warm puff of air struck her in the face.

"Mother isn't the only one who would like to be at Stonehill today," she soliloquized, "and grimy-faced kids get on one's nerves just as much as high school girls. Poor kiddies! They ought to be out playing in the green fields themselves instead of in the shadow of this eternally clanging elevated."

As often happens in the variable month of April, there was a decided change in the temperature that afternoon. Rena walked home against a chilly wind, and decided that it would be a good time to stay in and start those gingham dresses for the country. Working on them would make the approaching vacation seem more real.

Rena was intense by nature. What she did she did with all her might. Glancing up at the clock after close and abundant, glossy brown hair, was easy to look upon.

Mrs. Browning, opening the door of the apartment soon afterward, heard laughing voices and followed them to their source in the kitchen. She beheld her daughter scrubbing at a coat busily while a young man with the sort of light hair that never stays put, and good-natured gray eyes, looked on.

"Oh, mother!" Rena exclaimed, laughing, "this is Mr. Morse. I was just returning from the store with the milk and I ran straight into him turning the corner. Most of the milk landed on his coat, so the least I could do was to offer to clean it off."

Mrs. Browning shook hands with the young man. He told her he was spending a short vacation in the city. "You don't need to tell me you're from the country," she said; "your color gives you away. Sit down and tell us what the country looks like this time of the year. We were longing only this morning to be there. We own a little house at Stonehill, upstate, and we hope some day to be able to buy a few more acres and start a market garden. It's our pipe dream."

Morse hardly waited for Mrs. Browning to finish speaking. "That's my work, market gardening! Just at present I'm managing a millionaire's farm out in Westchester county, but I've saved money enough to buy a place of my own, and I'm on the lookout for one."

"Stay to dinner with us, won't you, Mr. Morse," said Mrs. Browning, "and we can have the time of our lives, talking farm."

The young man looked his acceptance as the mother continued: "We'll fry the oysters; they'll be just as good that way."

All through the dinner young Morse talked mostly to the mother, but his eyes, somehow, turned oftener to the daughter. He was much interested in the acres adjoining the Brownings' little country place, and inquired who owned them. Then, waxing brave, he told how lonesome he had been during his stay in the city, and wondered whether, if he should get the tickets, they would go to a play with him. And before the visitor left it was arranged.

It was the evening before his vacation ended that Anthony Morse walked thoughtfully from the subway to the Brownings' apartment. He had a piece of news to tell and a proposition to make.

The mother had been so wonderfully good to him, a total stranger! And that she longed to get away from school life, he was sure. But the daughter? How did she regard him? That was the question. She had been pleasant and friendly, to be sure, but—

The door of the apartment opened when Anthony had gone thus far in his thoughts and Rena greeted him: "Good evening, Mr. Morse. I have to apologize for mother's absence, but she will be in shortly. There is a lecture at her school tonight."

Though Rena did her best to entertain him, Anthony was preoccupied. At one of his absent-minded replies the girl laughed. "What's the matter? Your mind seems miles away."

"It is. It's at Stonehill. I bought the land next to your place today. I have a proposal to make to you." Anthony was visibly nervous.

"You mean to mother, don't you?" asked Rena demurely, but with a laughing glint in her eyes. Morse flushed, but somehow gathered courage. "No," he said boldly, "the proposal is to you, but I have a proposition to offer your mother. I want you both to help me run a market garden at Stonehill on shares."

"Mother is fine at that sort of thing. I'm sure she'll be delighted. But where does my share of running it come in?" asked the girl naively.

"You can run me if you'll take the job."

"Why, if you think I can do as good a one running you as I did of running into you—well—I'll try."

IMPOSSIBLE FICTION

The pretty young wife, passing the shop window display of new spring hats, turned her eyes in the opposite direction and passed on, refusing to stop to notice them.

Receiving a communication written with a dull lead pencil on both sides of the paper the editor smiled and began reading it.

The head of the family, having just received a bill for his wife's and daughter's new Easter hats, chuckled to himself and nodded approvingly.

Getting up suddenly in the middle of the night the man rushed through the darkness and managed to elude every piece of furniture in the room.

Picking up the first hat she came to, the young woman tried it on, paid for it and walked out of the store without a word.

"And how did my clever little darling manage that?" mother asked.

"I knew I was going to fall, mother, so I stood the cans down."—London Answers.

OLD TANNERS DID GOOD WORK

Leather Made in China 3,000 Years Ago Has Been Found in Comparatively Good Condition.

Originally skins were cured by simply cleaning and drying. Then it was found the texture of the leather was improved by the use of smoke, sour milk, various oils and the brains of animals themselves. Later it was discovered that certain astringent barks and vegetables effected permanent changes in the texture of skins and stopped decay. The ancient Egyptians possessed this knowledge, for engravings on their tombs depict the process of tanning. In China specimens of leather have been discovered in company with other relics that prove them to be more than 3,000 years old. The Romans used leather which they tanned with oil, alum and bark. Early explorers in America found the Indians wearing skins prepared with buffalo dung, oil and clay.

No improvement in the general methods of preparing leather took place from the most primitive times until about 1790, when the use of lime to loosen the hair was introduced. By 1825 English tanners were attempting to introduce new methods by which the tanning process could be shortened. One of the pioneers in these experiments was John Burridge, the inventor of the barkometer, an instrument for determining the strength of tanning liquors.

In 1630 the first tannery in America was built in Virginia. A second one was established a few years later at Lynn, Mass.

FIRST "BLUE LAW" EXPONENT

Emperor Constantine Laid Down Strict Rules for the Guidance of His Subject Peoples.

Constantine, the great Roman emperor, who ruled in 321 A. D., was the first ruler in Europe to impose blue laws upon the people. Constantine was highly religious, and he demanded strict observance of the Sabbath throughout his vast empire.

He decreed that "judges, inhabitants and artificers" must rest on the Sabbath. He excepted husbandmen from this order, however, since "sowing was a necessity and could not be done on any other day." Slaves could not be compelled to work on this day, by the emperor's decree. Should masters be caught in the act of forcing their slaves to labor, a heavy fine and perhaps a jail sentence would be imposed. Children were emancipated from labor on the Sabbath. Constantine also ordered his vast armies wherever they might be to devote this day to prayer. At the same time he set aside Friday as a day in which prayer was required of all the people. Later he extended his order to include Saturday as a day when the wheels of Roman industry should remain still.

The Way to Get It.

The other day a man of the "old maid" type entered a downtown bakery. He announced his intention of buying a cake. One after another the obliging saleslady showed him, only to be told that this one was "too coarse," this one too yellow, and the others wrong in some way or another. "What I want," he finally said, "is an honest-to-goodness home-made cake. I don't mind the price, just so I get the cake."

"Then if you don't mind the price," retorted the weary saleslady, "why don't you get married and have a wife to make one?"

IRELAND UNDER ALIEN RULE

Power of the Danes Broken by Brian Boru in 1014—Normans Became Amalgamated.

About 800 A. D., the pagan hosts of the Northmen and Danes fell on Ireland with fierce destruction. After a century of destruction, Irish kings led their people in a succession of wars, for the deliverance of their country, and Brian Boru, or Brian Boru (926-1014), king of Munster, by his great victory in the battle of Clontarf, on April 23, 1014, finally broke the power of the Danes in Ireland. In 1171 Ireland was invaded by the Normans from England. In the time of Henry II, and its conquest began. "In Ireland," to quote the words of Prof. Edward A. Freeman (1823-1892) "the Norman was more purely a conqueror than anywhere else, but in Ireland his power of adaptation caused him to sink in a way in which he sank nowhere else. While some of the Norman settlers in Ireland went to swell the mass of the English of the Pale, others threw in their lot with the native Irish, and became, in the well-known saying, 'more Irish than the Irish themselves.'—Detroit News.

Religion of Good Citizenship.

"In China there existed in the past, and there are evidences that it is coming to life again, the religion of good citizenship," says a writer in Asia Magazine. "That is to say, the Chinese theory is that a man does not need to feel the need of physical force to protect himself; he has seldom the need even to call in and use the physical force of the policeman—the state—to protect him. A man in China is supposed to be protected by the sense of justice of his neighbor; he is protected by the readiness of his fellowmen to obey the sense of moral obligation. The ideal of Chinese civilization, therefore, is that a man can not feel the need of using physical force to protect himself because he is sure that right and justice is recognized by all his neighbors as a force higher than physical force, and that moral obligation as recognized by everybody is something that must be obeyed."

"I'LL TALK WITH 'ANYONE'"

DO YOU know how to make a long distance telephone call?

If you have business to transact with the John Smith Company in Washington, for instance, there is more than one kind of a call you can make.

If anyone at that place will do, make a station-to-station call. Give the long distance operator the telephone number, or the name and address and be sure to tell her you will talk with "anyone".

If it is essential that you talk with Mr. Smith or some other particular person, make a person-to-person call. In addition to the number, tell the operator who you want to talk to. A person-to-person call means extra operating work and it costs about one-fourth more than a station-to-station call.

Read the general information pages of your telephone directory for full explanation of all the various kinds of long distance calls and how to make them.

POULTRY FACTS.

SUCCESS IN RAISING SQUABS

Opportunity Is Well Worth Considering for Those Who Have Lofts—Produce Meat Quickly.

The back yard poultry keeper can hardly hope for success with turkeys, geese, ducks or guineas, but for those who have lofts over a garage, stable, or coal shed, the opportunity for squab growing is well worth considering.

For food purposes pigeons are usually classed, with poultry. Culturally they are in a class by themselves, producing meat only, producing it very quickly, and able to produce well under conditions that do not admit of growing any other creature used for food.

While the ideal arrangement for pigeons is to have their house on the ground, and a small covered yard, called a "fly," connecting with it, pigeon keeping may be carried on quite extensively in upper rooms or lofts, with or without open-air flies. Many flocks of pigeons are kept in large cities in quarters provided for them in the lofts or on the roofs of buildings used for mercantile and manufacturing purposes.

A space six feet square and high enough for the attendant to stand erect will accommodate eight to ten pairs of pigeons for squab breeding, the poultry specialists in the United States department of agriculture say. The birds mate and begin breeding when six to seven months old. The male shares with the hen the duty of incubation. The young hatch in about 17 days. At four weeks old, average squabs will weigh about three-quarters of a pound each. Some of the larger ones will weigh over a pound at that age.

A good pair of breeders will produce six or seven or more pairs of squabs a year. As many as 11 pairs of squabs have been produced by one pair in a year. When production is high the female lays and begins incubation while she has young still in the nest, leaving the care of them to her mate.

Raising squabs has been increasing in cities in recent years. On farms the tendency has been the other way. On a farm a flock of free pigeons, if not kept down by killing off the increase, soon becomes a nuisance, destroying grain and doing a great deal of damage, especially on new-seeded ground.

PLAN TO CARRY LIVE FOWLS

Bird Wrapped in Cornucopia of Newspapers and Given Plenty of Air Is Quite Content.

Carrying live fowls in a cornucopia of newspapers, in the manner of carrying a bouquet, is a good idea. The bird is laid down on the paper and the legs straightened out on a line with the tail; the wings are held in position at the sides. The newspaper is then rolled around the bird, making a cornucopia, and the lower end is twisted, which leaves the upper end open. When carrying the bird in this manner, the twisted end of the cornucopia is held in the hand, allowing the roll to rest on the arm. The bird has plenty of air and seemingly is content in its peculiar position.

PURE BREEDS ARE PAMPERED

Supposition That Common Fowls Are Most Hardy Is Erroneous—Only Strongest Survive.

The supposition that common fowls are harder than pure breeds is not borne out by the facts. Those who hatch chicks of the common kinds lose a large number of them, only the strongest surviving, and every year they are more and more inbred. The pure breeds suffer from being pampered by their owners in many instances, in which cases they do not compare favorably with common fowls.

SMALL START FOR BEGINNER

Safest Plan for Those About to Embark in Poultry Business—Many Hard Problems.

The safest way for those who are about to make their first attempt at poultry raising is to start in a small way with a few fowls and learn the business thoroughly before making large investments. Mistakes will be made and many difficult problems will be presented for solution before success in any large measure will be attained.

JESUS AMONG HIS FRIENDS.

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 26:1-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—She hath done what she could.—Mark 14:8.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Mark 14:3-9;
Luke 7:36-50, John 12:1-8.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Showing Our Love for Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Giving Our Best.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—
Our Best for Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—
The Liberality of Love.

I. The Jewish Authorities Plotting the Death of Jesus (vv. 1-5).

1. Christ's Fourth Prediction of His Death (vv. 1, 2). He, with divine insight, predicted not only the fact of His death, but its time and manner. Death was no surprise to Him. For this He pre-eminently came into the world (Heb. 2:14). He calmly walked up to death.

2. The Authorities Plotting (vv. 3-5). In secret conclave they were plotting how they might silence His voice by putting Him to death. It was the divine purpose that He should go to death. They in their wickedness were plotting to do that which the divine plan had ordained. They try by subtlety to take and kill Him. Their plan was to do this after the Passover feast, lest there be an uprising among the people. Satan, through his conspirators, was trying to hinder the offering of the sacrificial Lamb at the appointed time.

II. Jesus Anointed by Mary of Bethany (vv. 6, 7).

For the identification of Mary see John 12:1-8 and Mark 14:3-9. This anointing occurred when Jesus was at meat in Simon's house. Mary had the keenest spiritual apprehension of all the disciples. By sitting at His feet in loving fellowship she obtained a grasp of truth which none of the other disciples did. She saw that His body was to be broken and that His precious life was to go out. She entered into fellowship with His sufferings and the joys of His resurrection. This is shown in this wonderful symbolic act of bringing her most precious possession and lavishing it upon Him. Knowing that no loving hand could minister to Him in that dread hour, she did this service in loving anticipation. It was the highest expression of love. Genuine love takes no account of cost—is not calculating.

III. The Indignation of the Disciples (vv. 8, 9).

The utter baseness of the disciples is in strange contrast with Mary's love. Judas Iscariot is the leader, but the whole apostolic company are led over. The spirit of fault finding is very contagious. The one whose heart is filled with base purposes can offer such plausible reasons for things that a whole company can be swept off their feet, not perceiving the real purpose underlying it all. The real thing that hurt Judas was the losing of the money which the ointment might have been sold for, not that he cared for the poor.

IV. Mary Defended by Jesus (vv. 10-13).

Jesus would not allow His most appreciative disciple to lie under the censure, so He came to her rescue. Though all the disciples censured her, He had nothing but the highest praise. If we can but have His praise, what need we care for the censure of men? He bestowed upon her the very highest praise possible when He said, "She hath done what she could." (Mark 14:8). In this defense Jesus teaches, according to Doctor Erdman:

1. That no gift to Him can be too great if made in grateful love (v. 10). "She hath wrought a good work on me."

2. Care for the poor and other duties which are of perpetual obligation may give way before an opportunity for service which cannot recur (v. 10). "The poor ye have with you always." Sometimes even charity is not the highest expression of Christian devotion.

3. Jesus appreciates the meaning and motive of our service (v. 12). He estimates them at their highest possible value and interprets them in the light of His own love and knowledge. He declared that the ointment poured upon Him was a preparation of His body for burial.

4. The influence of an act of Christian service will never cease (v. 13). The example of Mary is still filling the earth with the fragrance of loving service. Through this act of uncalculating love Mary's name has become immortalized.

As the result of this defense Judas is so stingingly rebuked that he hastens away to betray his Lord.

For the Rich Man.

The only way for a rich man to be healthy is by exercise and abstinence, to live as if he was poor; which was esteemed the worst parts of poverty.—Sir W. Temple.

God Will Provide.

If I am faithful to the duties of the present, God will provide for the future.—Rodell.

Wants Experience.

All is but lip-wisdom which wants experience.—Sir P. Sidney.

March 6 "Thy Kingdom Come" in My Church

Matthew 6:7-15
This is the third topic in the Kingdom—first, "Thy Kingdom Come in My heart"; second, "Thy Kingdom Come in My home"; and, now, "Thy Kingdom Come in My Church."

The coming of the Kingdom of God in its spiritual power to our churches is greatly needed at this time. This need can be met by getting, first of all, a proper conception of the church and its work. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." What one thinks of the church determines his expectation of, and desire for, the church. What then is the proper aim and purpose of the church? We will let the editor of the American Daily Standard, a Christian newspaper, published in Chicago, answer this question. The quotation is from a recent editorial, concerning the churches.

"The primary aim of the church is not social, or economic, or educational, but spiritual. As long as a church retains its spirituality, the influence of its members in the social and economic spheres will be wholesome. Eliminate this element of spirituality, and all your preaching about social duties, economic welfare, educational programs, moral uplift, and reform work will be wasted effort."

"The real meaning of spirituality is that man has again been placed in a right relationship with God. And that relationship can in no sense or manner be made right except through the redeeming power of Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ and Him crucified—that is the message which must again be brought to the multitudes of this so-called Christian land. Let our preachers forget about social and educational topics for a while, and let them preach the gospel as our fathers heard it, and the churches will be filled, a mighty revival will spread over this great land, and people will live the gospel of Jesus Christ in every sphere of human activity."

In the second place, the Kingdom in its spiritual power can be brought to our churches by definite, persevering prayer. "Thy kingdom come" is a prayer. If you want the Kingdom in its spiritual power to come into your church, begin to pray and keep on praying. Gather a small group of like-minded people together for prayer. "Thy Father which seeth in secret, shall reward thee openly." All great spiritual movements have begun and continued in prayer. The present situation is such that nothing but prayer will provide an adequate remedy. A dead orthodoxy with its lifeless formalism on the one hand, and modernism with its negation of the supernatural on the other hand, have combined to produce a spirit of religious vagueness and worldliness in the churches. This spirit is so prevalent and dominant that apart from the direct working of the Spirit of God obtained through prayer it cannot be displaced. Such prayer is being made in many places, and tokens of blessing and revival are manifest. Now is the time to pray, "Thy kingdom come in my church."

In the third place, the Kingdom may come in its spiritual power to my church through a definite and well-directed effort to win souls to Christ by our witnessing to His salvation. "Let him that heareth say, Come." Have you heard the voice that speaks forgiveness and peace, the voice of the Son of God that quickens the dead into newness of life? If so, bid others come. "Let the redeemed of the Lord say so." As others listen, and believe, and come, so will the Kingdom come in your church.

Built to Last

THE OilPull you buy this season should be faithfully and economically serving you in 1930.

This is no mere guess or prophesy. It is a statement based on actual proved performance in owners' hands.

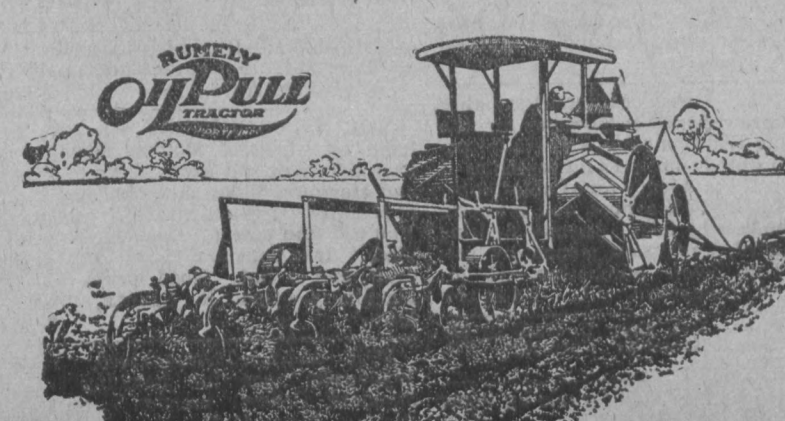

OilPulls built eleven years ago are still performing their work as satisfactorily as the first year they were built. They show no serious results of eleven years of wear and tear, but appear good for many strenuous years to come.

The OilPull is built to last. It combines all the features that make for durability—strong frame and wheels, heavy duty motor, oversize construction in all working parts, trouble-proof oil cooling system, guaranteed kerosene burning under all conditions, every working part protected from dirt and grit. Then, it contains improvements that only an eleven year study of farming and farm problems can make possible.

Buy your tractor on the basis of the number of years of service it will give you—years of service proved by actual performance. Inquiry among tractor owners will show you the OilPull is the one tractor with proved longest life.

Miss Lena Angell, who spent three weeks at home, resting up from a nervous attack, returned to Lebanon Valley College, on Wednesday.

Folks will be "moving" from now on until April. Let us have the change of address, any time, as soon as it is known when the event will take place.

Chas. G. Baumgardner left a curiosity at the Record office in the shape of two potatoes that are firmly connected, by the sprout from one imbedding itself in the other, as though joined by a surgical operation.

Two books have been given to the public library, recently, "The International Jew," presented by the Dearborn Pub. Co., and "The Clarion," by Samuel Hopkins Adams, the gift of Miss Clara Brining.

Mr. John E. Byers, of this district, and Miss Lillie M. Sherman, of town, were married, in Westminster, on last Saturday, by Rev. Chalmers Walck. Both are well known in the community, and have many friends who congratulate them.

Some say Rev. W. H. Egge, D. D., of Lebanon, Pa., is the "Billy Sunday" kind. We do not vouch for that, but do say that nobody need be scared at the "Rev." and "D. D." Taneytown is going to be fortunate in hearing him, on the 15th, in the Opera House.

The Carroll Record is credited, in the last issue of Orphans' Home Echoes, with having donated to the Loysville Orphans' Home "5 pcs underwear, 2 hats, 1 coat." The editor pleads guilty to being somewhat short in clothing, but not to having made this donation.

Dr. Egge is a whole show, and we wish, that for once at least, Taneytown folks would take our word for it that his subject—"Stop Grumbling, and Laugh a Little"—will please everybody who really wants to be pleased. He will be with us Tuesday, March 15. See full announcement, next week. Hear him, just to help the Soldiers' Memorial project, if for no other reason.

Attention is called to a news item in this issue, with reference to gambling in four Frederick tobacco stores, which caused four fines of $50.00 each. We do not know what form of gambling is referred to, but it was some sort of chance scheme. The wheel and number plan, and "chance" taking of any kind, is "gambling," as we understand the law, no matter whether operated for private gain, or for some public benefit.

Care of the Sitting Hen.

There are several ways to tell when a hen is becoming broody and wants to sit. Soft, downy feathers are left in the nest; the hen stays on the nest longer when laying. On being approached she will remain on the nest, making a clucking noise and ruffling her feathers. When one is reasonably sure that the hen is broody and her breast feels warm to the hand, she is ready to be transferred to the nest previously prepared where she is to sit.

At this time it is advisable to dust the hen thoroughly with insect powder. In doing so hold the hen by her feet with the head down, working the powder well in to the feathers, especially those around the vent and under the wings. The sitting hen should be dusted again on or about the eighteenth day of incubation to be sure that no lice are present when the chicks are hatched. Powder should also be sprinkled in the nest. Sodium flourid may be used for the purpose, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. When possible the nest should be in some out-of-the-way place, where the hen will not be disturbed. Night is the best time for moving the hen from the regular laying nest to the one she is to sit on. She should be handled carefully. A china egg or two should be placed in the nest, and a board or a covering may be placed over the nest so that the hen will not get off. Toward the end of the second day go quietly to the nest, leave some feed and water, and remove the covering from the top or front of the nest, so that she can come off when ready. The best feed for the sitting hen is whole corn or wheat, or both. Should she return to the nest after feeding, replace the china egg with those to be incubated. The nest should be slightly darkened, as the hen is then not so likely to become restless.

In cool weather it is best not to put more than 10 eggs under a hen. Later in the spring, however, from 12 to 15 eggs can be set, according to the size of the hen. When several hens are sitting in the same room they should be separated by partitions and should be kept on the nests and allowed to come off only once each day to receive feed and water. A hen that does not voluntarily come off the nest should be taken off. As a rule hens will return to their nests before there is any danger of the eggs chilling, but if they do not go back in half an hour they should be put back.

Examine and clean the nests carefully removing any broken eggs and washing those that are soiled. Nesting material soiled by broken eggs should be replaced with clean straw, hay, or chaff. Nests containing broken eggs soon become infested with mites and lice, which will cause the hens to become uneasy and leave the nest. This is likely to be the cause of the loss of valuable sittings of eggs. When a nest is infested with mites, the hen, if fastened in, will often be found standing over rather than sitting on the eggs.

Eggs laid late in winter or early in spring are frequently infertile, and for that reason it is advisable to set several hens at the same time. After from five to seven days' incubation, the time depending somewhat on the color and thickness of the shells, the eggs should be tested, the infertile and dead-germ eggs removed and the fertile ones returned to the hens. Thus in many instances all the eggs remaining under several hens may be placed under one or two, and the hens from which the eggs were taken may be reset. For instance, 30 eggs are set under 3 hens at the same time, that is, 10 under each hen. At the end of 7 days, at which time the eggs should be tested, it may be found that 10 are infertile or have dead germs, leaving only 20 fertile eggs. These 20 eggs can then be put under two hens, and a new sitting placed under the third hen.—U. S. Dept. Agriculture.

Rules of the Public Library.

Certain infractions of the rules of the Public Library in Taneytown having been referred to the Board of Managers, it has been deemed necessary by the Board to call public attention to several of the established rules. Rule 3 is as follows:

"Any proper person, not a member, may have the use of the Library on the payment of five cents a week for each book, the fee to be paid when the book is taken."

As a matter of course, if a book is kept beyond the time paid for, the extra amount must be paid when the book is returned, five cents for every week or fraction of a week, no matter how long the book is kept. There is a little difference in the case of members, who are allowed to keep one book two weeks. If a member keeps a book longer it must be paid for just as if the person were not a member.

Rule 6 reads: "Not more than one book may be taken each week by a member, and not more than one book can be taken on one card." Members will notice that if they neglect for some time to use the Library, they can not take out two or more books at a time to make up for their own neglect, and that if an extra book or more be taken, the extras must be paid for at the time of being taken, and they may be kept only one week, or for the time paid for.

The librarian and assistants are instructed to rigidly enforce the rules, and to deny the use of the Library to any person, whether a member or not, until the rules are complied with. All rules are plainly printed in the books, so that every user ought to be fully informed.

When You Feel Rheumatic

For the aches and pains of rheumatism Chamberlain's Liniment is excellent. Massage the parts thoroughly twice a day with this liniment and you will be surprised at the relief which it affords.

God's Best Medicine.

"Mirth is God's medicine," says a noted writer. "Everybody ought to bathe in it. Grim care, moroseness, anxiety, all the rust of life, ought to be scoured off by the oil of mirth. It is better than emery. Every man ought to rub himself with it. A man without mirth is like a wagon without springs, but a man who laughs and causes others to laugh, even though the days are dark and the causes for laughter are few, is like a chariot with springs in which one may ride over the rough roads and feel nothing but a pleasant motion."

The Model.

"I don't understand," said Mrs. Mullins. "I remember very well that you used to point out your Dick as a model husband. Yet now you contend that he is lazy."
"Well," said Mrs. Boggs, "he's a model right enough—only he isn't a working model."

Patrick Henry wrote in his last will, "I have now disposed of all my property to my family. There is one thing more I wish I could give them, and that is the CHRISTIAN RELIGION. If they had that, and I had not given them one shilling, they would have been rich; and if they had not that, and I had given them all the world, they would be poor."
