

GREAT DAMAGE BY FREEZING COLD

Ice and Black Frosts Kill Most of the Early Fruit.

The abnormal heat, for March, continued over Sunday, with a temperature up in the 80's, bringing nearly all peaches, plums, apricots, pears and cherries into full bloom. Monday followed with another warm one, not far behind Sunday, until mid-afternoon when a heavy gust, with hail, cooled the air greatly, which was followed by a freeze at night, ice forming to the thickness of a half inch. Tuesday was cool, warming up in the afternoon, followed by a killing frost on Tuesday night.

The early fruit is likely all killed, and perhaps much of it that is not so far advanced. The rain of Monday afternoon soaked the buds, causing them to freeze easily. The hopeful ones think there may be a scattering crop of fruit, but the hope seems a forlorn one, considering the drop of over 60° within a few hours. This will be a great misfortune to many who depend largely on small fruits for reducing the cost of living. Whether the apples have been greatly hurt is not so sure, as the buds were not so far advanced.

Reports of great damage to fruit come not only from Maryland, but from the greater portion of the East. It is confidently stated, however, that the Pen-Mar section has not been so hard hit, because it escaped the rain that preceded the freeze, and that perhaps one-fourth of the buds are alive. At least as far South as Virginia, the reports are to the same effect.

The light snow of this Thursday night, no doubt helped to finish up any remaining live fruit buds of the early varieties, and "what next?" is now the question.

Two Opinions From Subscribers.

We had two subscribers in our office this week, at the same time, who represented the two views as to the "pay in advance" rule of the Record. One specifically requested that his paper be stopped when the time was out, as he then knew just what was the matter. The other was just as sure that he wanted his continued, without a break, even if he neglected paying up promptly. Now, what is the publisher to do? Evidently, we can not have one rule for the one subscriber, and another rule for the other. This would work if there were only two subscribers, but with near 2000 of them, it must be plain that one rule or the other, must be the rule of the office.

Our experience with the question has covered a period of nearly twenty-seven years, and it is overwhelmingly in favor of the pay-in-advance plan, as being best, not only for the publisher but for subscriber. The question of the financial credit of the subscriber has nothing to do with it. It is a question of good business, and fairness, for all concerned. If a newspaper subscription involved the payment of $10.00 or more a year, with corresponding profits to the publisher, and occasional losses on account of non-payments, would be easy; but, with a $1.50 proposition, and when every small item of expense and loss must be eliminated to make the $1.50 price possible, no flirtation with chance can be indulged in. If subscribers will simply regard the advance notice that their subscription will soon expire, and attend to it promptly, there will be no need for "stopping" the Record.

Remember China's Famine.

It is earnestly hoped that there will be a liberal response to the appeal for China within the next few days. Gifts have been coming in for the past two weeks, and next Sunday an offering is to be taken in all the churches of Taneytown. Other churches in the community are asked to do likewise. Send the offering to Mrs. Robert S. McKinney, Taneytown. If you can not do more, at least buy a few stamps at three cents each in one of the Taneytown stores.

In a recent report and appeal from the American Committee, sent out over the signature of Thomas W. Lamont, chairman, and Dr. Robert E. Speer, chairman of the Church Co-operating Committee, we read:

"The latest information, however, from official sources in China advises that after allowing for all who are being cared for with the funds already provided, and after allowing for those who will be cared for through the further aid expected from the other countries, there still remain between five and six million people in danger of death from starvation unless the flow of money which during the past few weeks has been going to China from America can be increased and continued until the new harvest arrives about July 1.

Our churches and our people generally have already done nobly in seeking to relieve this appalling disaster, but the task is by no means finished. There still rests upon America the responsibility of providing the additional funds necessary to keep alive between five and six million people during the next three months—a task of tremendous proportions."

NARROW ESCAPE FROM FIRE.

Two Dwellings Set on Fire from Burning Chimneys.

What might have been a disastrous fire was prevented, last Friday night, by fortunate circumstances, and the Fire Company. About 10:30 P. M., while Chas. Kuhns was putting out the street lights, he discovered sparks flying from the chimney of Mrs. John Harman's house, on Baltimore St., and just at this time Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ronnenberg, the tenants of a portion of the building came home from an evening's visit. On opening the front door, the interior of the front room was found to be on fire, and full of smoke.

The fire bell soon brought out the Fire Company, and after some delay, a stream of water ended the danger. The fire evidently originated in the chimney from burning soot, which dropped down and set the wooden fire-board on fire, the floor, and a wooden mantel; and about the time the firemen arrived, the fire had secured good headway. The interior of two rooms was badly smoked and scorched, and the furniture of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnenberg greatly damaged.

Mrs. Harman, who is ill, was in the house alone, at the time, and had Mr. and Mrs. Ronnenberg been upstairs, asleep, what might have happened is not pleasant to think of. The loss to building and furniture is covered by insurance in the Home, of New York, and the New Hampshire Company.

Another chimney fire occurred, on Tuesday morning at the farm of J. Albert Angell, near Walnut Grove school, tenanted by Chas. P. Riffe. At the time the fire was discovered nobody was at home but a daughter of Mr. Riffe and there was considerable delay before she finally summoned help. By this time the blaze had a start on the interior of the house, but it was put out by water before any extensive damage had been done—perhaps $100.00 to the building. Mr. Riffe also had a small loss on household effects. Both were insured in the Dug Hill Co.

These two losses call attention to the very dangerous plan of building chimneys from the floors of buildings, instead of from the cellar; and to the great care that should be used to keep chimneys clean, and from setting fire to fireboards and floors by falling soot. All such chimneys should have metal cut-offs in them, or be well protected at the fire places with metal fire-boards.

Church Attendance and Music.

Pastors who are bemoaning the falling off in attendance at the church services have assigned many causes. Probably in many particulars they are right, but there is one reason that has not been given much prominence, which may account for more of the falling off than most preachers would care to admit. That is the decline in the quality of the music.

We do not believe the church services should be given to music alone, but we do believe that good music adds much to the service and that it attracts thousands who would not go to hear a sermon alone. "Music hath charms to soothe the savage beast," and we are more or less savages—most of more. Greater care in the selection of hymns and anthems, would help to fill the churches—and then when the people have been brought inside, let the preacher have something worth while to say. Not a lecture on current topics, but a sermon—the simple Gospel as taught by Him who walked in Galilee, and as preached by the early leaders of the church. The man with a message always has an audience.—Ellicott City Times.

The Woman's Short Course.

The Woman's Short Course will be held in the County Agent's room, in Times Building, Westminster, April 6 and 7, at 10 A. M. Wednesday, the 6th, a military demonstration will be given by Mrs. Spence and Miss Day. Miss Vonia Kellar, State Home Demonstration Agent, will speak at 1:30 in the afternoon to the women of the county in regard to community work. Mrs. John Able, president of State Federation of Women's Clubs, has sent out circular letters to all women's organizations urging them to work with the Extension Service in organizing community work. Every woman interested in the progress of the county should hear Miss Kellar. Do not let Carroll county fall behind in the woman's work.

Thursday, at 10 A. M., Miss Day will have the home dressmaking demonstration, using a Carroll county homemade dress form as a model. Come and be shown how to make simple articles of clothing by the quickest and easiest methods. At 1:30 we will have household engineering as the topic with short talks, round-table discussions, and an exhibit pertaining to the subject. Come with your own ideas and do not be afraid to tell them.

The storekeepers have agreed to dress their show windows with labor-saving devices, household articles, and draperies these two days. Be sure to look them over.

3600 bushels of potatoes were shipped to distant cities, last week from Aspers and Gardners stations, in Adams county, the price paid for most of them being forty cents per bushel, and some as low as thirty cents.

THE GIMLET.

The gimlet as a mechanic's tool is not greatly in use. The time was when it was in demand, and no kit of tools was complete without various sizes of gimlets. This tool has been outgrown as being too slow for any considerable use; the little holes, though still important, must require only the minimum of time and effort.

Discontinuing the gimlet way, is typical of the newer business ways. We now do things with augers and drills; the tendency is toward making bigger holes, and carrying out bigger plans—getting ahead, with speed.

Men of gimlet capacity for work, and gimlet-sized brains, are at a discount. "Slow but sure," as a motto, is not a prize-taker—not a marketable commodity commanding top price. "Sure and swift" is the motto now.

It is better to be just a gimlet, than to be nothing. But, the point of our "spiel" is—be the most and best you can and don't stop at being satisfied with making only little holes—by hand.

MARYLAND WHEAT.

The Market Quality of Wheat in Carroll Investigated.

Representatives from Washington and College Park, with County Agent Fuller, investigate the quality of wheat offered for sale to the elevators and mills in Carroll. This investigation is being carried on in all the counties of Maryland. It has been brought about by the demand for reclassification of Maryland wheat. Most of the wheat sold is classed as garlic wheat, which may contain a very low to a very high per cent of garlic, but all suffer alike as to grade and price, which is from five to fifteen cents under the same grade of wheat without garlic. As most of our farmers do not raise enough wheat free from garlic to be shipped by the carload, they must take garlic price and suffer with the rest.

What is the remedy? Make new laws or produce clean wheat? The latter seems to be the best remedy. Produce wheat free from garlic. This can be done by improving the rotation on your farm. A four or five year rotation of corn, oats, wheat and grass, or grass two years will aid. Soy beans in place of oats will give good results. Use more cultivated crops, and spend more time in growing a plot of wheat for seed. Plant clean seed, and clean infected fields by rotation and cultivation. This is a matter which will have to be remedied by the producer himself. Use only certified seed, and be a certified seed grower yourself.

First Operation at New Hospital.

The first operation performed in the Annie M. Warner hospital, Gettysburg, was successful and as a result, Gilbert Dickson, of Hanover, the initial patient, is recovering nicely. The operation for appendicitis was performed on Mr. Dickson Tuesday morning of last week.

Besides Mr. Dickson there are now three other patients in the hospital, Mrs. Emma Sheely and Harry Keller, of Gettysburg, and Mrs. Buelah Reinecker, of New Oxford.

668 Deaths from Autos.

Six hundred and sixty-eight persons have been killed in Maryland in auto accidents since January 1, 1917, according to figures compiled in the office of Motor Vehicle Commissioner E. Austin Baughman.

So far this month 16 persons have been killed, which is the record for March in any year for which figures are available.

THE WINTER OF 1915.

The Present Freeze Outdone Over 100 Years Ago.

We are more apt to forget about "the weather" from year to year, than anything else, and the present remarkable season may be held by some to be a record-breaker, but perhaps if we could just remember back, we would not need to go far to find its equal.

The Frederick News offers the following as having been a "newspaper account" of the winter of 1815-16 and the summer following.

"1815-16 was an open winter. Snow fell in November of 1815, but there was none in December or January. Christmas and New Year were warm, open and green. The old people predicted all sorts of dire calamities and the result would seem to justify it. January, 1816, was a very mild month. The sun shone nearly every day, and a little snow that fell hardly covered the earth and soon melted. People prepared for storms and extreme cold weather in February, but were disappointed.

"March gave place to cold and boisterous winds. April grew colder as the days passed, ending with snow and ice and very low temperatures. In May ice formed an inch thick on the rivers and streams. Buds and flowers were frozen and the entire corn crop killed except in a few instances. Farmers built log fires around their corn fields during the frosty night.

"Frost, ice and snow were common in June, and all attempts to raise vegetable crops failed. About five inches of snow fell when the rye had been in head. July was accompanied with frosts and ice. The Fourth was cold, and blustering winds, raw and uncomfortable, swept the entire Atlantic coast.

"On the day following ice was formed of the thickness of window glass in New York city, all through New England and Maryland. In August ice half inch thick was frequently seen. September and October presented the nearest approach to summer weather of any other month in the year. Of the crops, wheat was under the average, there was no corn of any account, no fruit. Prices ruled high. Corn was selling the following spring for $4.50 to $5 per bushel for seed."

Proceedings of the Orphans' Court.

Monday, March 28, 1921.—Laura M. Tipton, executrix of William E. B. Tipton, deceased, settled her first and final account.

William B. Yingling, executor of William H. Yingling, deceased, settled his first account.

Tuesday, March 29, 1921.—The sale of real estate of Agnes M. Shreve, deceased, was finally ratified and confirmed.

The last will and testament of Mary C. Bixler, deceased, was admitted to probate and letters testamentary thereon were granted unto Herbert C. Bixler and Sterling G. Bixler, who received warrant to appraise and an order to notify creditors.

Edward O. Weant and Helen Lee Morris, executors of Harry Ross Hutchins, deceased, settled their first and final account.

Nelson C. Zepp, administrator of Julia A. Zepp, deceased, reported sale of personal property.

Edward E. Reindollar, executor of Edward E. Reindollar, deceased, received an order to sell real estate.

They Wonder Why?

Some people wonder why charges for printing are high, but do not know of some of the inside costs that make charges high. This week we ordered four new small parts to our cylinder press that had become worn from use. They weighed just 6 1/4 lbs and cost $32.23 delivered. This is only one specimen expense cost that comes along in the way of extras, and it is just one thing after another, like this, that makes the printing business—a pleasure.

SYKESVILLE FARMER COMMITTS SUICIDE.

Follows the Example Set by his Brother Eight Years Ago.

Sykesville, Md., March 31.—In the same manner and at about the same hour of the day that his brother, Sidney J. Blunt, ended his life at Granite, Md., about eight years ago, William R. Blunt, 48 years old, a farmer at Sykesville, shot himself in the right temple in a stable on his farm, shortly after 7 A. M. today. Death is believed to have been instantaneous.

His body was discovered by his widow, Mrs. Margaret Blunt, who went to call him for breakfast. Blood was streaming from a wound in his right temple and clutched in his right hand was a .32-caliber revolver. One bullet had been discharged.

Mrs. Blunt summoned Dr. Daniel B. Sprecher, of Sykesville, who in turn summoned Albert M. Musgrove, Justice of the Peace. The two made an investigation, but were unable to establish a motive for the act. Blunt, they say, was formerly a prosperous farmer of that section, but retired about two years ago.

He was apparently in good spirits when he arose today, according to Mrs. Blunt. As usual, he went to the stable while his wife was preparing breakfast. Failing to return in a reasonable time, Mrs. Blunt went to the stable, about 50 yards from the house and found him dead. She declared that she did not hear the report of the pistol.

The case of the dead man's brother was almost identical. Leaving the breakfast table he went to his room and fired a bullet into his brain, dying instantly.—Balto. Sun.

Increase in Motor Cars.

A total of 9,211,295 motor cars, including commercial vehicles, were registered last year in the 48 States and District of Columbia, according to figures compiled by the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture in a study of revenue available for road-building purposes. There were also registered a total of 238,146 motorcycles. The registration and license fees, including those for chauffeurs, operators, and dealers, amounted to $102,034,106.26. As compared with 1919, the data for 1920 represent an increase of 22 per cent, or 1,645,849 motor cars. This increase alone lacks but 4 per cent of being equal to the total registrations of the United States six years ago.

In 1920 in the State of New York alone, the number of motor cars registered, including commercial vehicles, exceeded the total cars registered in the whole of the United States in 1910. Furthermore, the revenues derived from registration in the State of New York in 1920 were about equal to the entire registration of the United States for 1913.

The use made of the revenues has changed with the passing of years. In 1906 the total registration were approximately 48,000 cars, paying a gross revenue of about $193,000. (Arizona in 1920 paid approximately this amount.) In 1906 the gross registration revenues were equal to less than three-fourths of 1 per cent of the total rural road and bridge expenditures for that year.

The registration revenues in 1920 were equal to about 25 per cent of the total rural road and bridge expenditures for the calendar year 1919. In 1906, practically none of the motor-vehicle revenues was applied to road maintenance or construction, while in 1920, 96 per cent, or a total of $97,997,169.60, was used for this purpose. The remaining 4 per cent not applied to road work was expended very largely for number plates and in carrying out the provisions of the motor vehicle registration laws in the several states. Of the total amount applied to road work 79 per cent, of $77,531,582.57, was expended under the control or supervision of the several State highway departments.

Marriage Licenses.

- Roland Anthony Gossnell and Dorathene Elizabeth Gunn, both of Mt. Airy.
- Frank Abey Byers, of Westminster and Hilda Magnolia Hood, of Mt. Airy.
- Clarence Gilmore Miller and Estie Margaret Wise, both of Hampstead.
- Millard Leroy Masimore and Gertrude Helen Lawson, both of Parkton, Md.
- Arthur Weaver Nagle and Grace Virginia Seake, both of Hampstead.
- Samuel C. Hush and Violet E. Murray both of Oakland.
- Artie A. Lippy and Beulah A. Myers, both of Westminster.
- Samuel Joshua Hale and Nellie Fern Schultz, both of Hampstead.
- John C. Koons, of this county, has been displaced as First Assistant Postmaster General, a purely political change, as Mr. Koons was a highly efficient officer.

President Harding received his first monthly pay check, March 31. It was for $5,520.84. Ordinarily the monthly check sent to the President by the Treasury Department is made out for $6,250, but Mr. Harding was docked for the three and a half days that Woodrow Wilson served as President this month.

FRIDAY, APRIL 1, 1921

All articles on this page are either original, or properly credited. This has always been a fixed rule with this office, and we suggest the adoption of it by our exchanges.

The late Cardinal Gibbons knew, personally, more of the big men of our country, than any other man. He not only knew them, but they knew him, and in most instances the acquaintances meant mutual good fortune. In the very best sense, he was widely known, and to have known him meant an experience to treasure.

There is never much to be gained from "borrowing trouble," nor looking ahead for it, for each time has its own needs to be looked after. The "tomorrows" are not as important as the "todays" for the problem of the former depend largely of the care we give the latter. Build soundly today, and the work will be standing tomorrow.

There is nothing more important to do, on the part of those who live—and expect to continue to live—in county towns and districts, than to help build up their home sections, and keep them from being robbed and weakened by loss of population. There is no greater patriotism than this—that a man protect his home, and aim to better his home life.

There is apparently an unusual number of "candidates" for public office, this year. Give them a good looking over. Merely because one wants an office badly, is not proof positive that he is entitled to have it; but, there is a big advantage in having plenty to choose from, providing one exercises the opportunity carefully, and on the basis of merit of material only.

Loss of Rural Population a Serious Menace.

The loss of population in country towns and districts is one of the serious questions of the age. We are apt to use a large amount of black in painting pictures of the evils of immigration, the increasing dangers growing out of lack of Sabbath observance, the continued violations of the Prohibition amendment, and other large questions, and miss the greater problem that lies plain in front of us every day.

It seems to have been the result, so far, that population once lost to the cities, stays lost. Just how this can be, with the many thousands out of work there, we do not know. One would think that population would drift back to its former home, when the glitter that attracted it away wears dull, but somehow it loses itself permanently, for the greater part in the urban masses.

Towns and country sections are lamentably short of mechanics professional men, apprentices at trades, farm labor, general labor, house-help, and that all-around class that can fit in almost anywhere. Even in cases of sickness in families, where help is urgently needed—emergency help, nursing, and the like—it is almost impossible to secure what used to be termed "neighborliness," and the help that came from it. Everybody is so closely employed in their own work, that there is no time in which to help others.

"Every man for himself" is largely the rule, and when inability to do this comes along we find how helpless we are, and how bare the country is of those who have the time to help others. After a while, the Dr. Osler suggestion of "chloroforming" people who have outlived their activity, may yet come into use, from force of necessity. Unquestionably, those who are unable to help themselves, and are also unable to pay very liberally for help, are badly off in the average country community.

This, is as it applies to country home matters. Very soon the cities are going to feel the results of decreased production of food, and all of the many items coming into market under the heading of "country produce." The cities can not keep on growing, indefinitely, at the expense of the loss of population in rural sections, without the cities feeling the effect of it.

Mr. Lansing's Book.

Mr. Lansing, Secretary of State under President Wilson, who has been writing of various features of the Versailles Conference, and the part taken in it by Mr. Wilson, as well as other members of the great commission, openly submits it to the public in book form. Whether it will draw forth a counter statement from Mr. Wilson, or from some one conversant with his side of it, remains to be seen.

His work is clearness itself, and is evidently written with full appreciation of the importance of the act, and that it will be open to attack. To the outsider, it seems a most comprehensive and calm review of matters and facts of world-wide importance, and to give the "inside" facts. He says in the final chapter;

"The endeavor has been to present, as fully as possible in the circumstances, a review of my association with President Wilson in connection with the negotiations at Paris setting forth our differences of opinion and divergence of judgment upon the subjects coming before the Peace Conference, the conduct of the proceedings and the terms of peace imposed upon Germany by the Treaty of Versailles.

"It is evident from this review that from a time prior to Mr. Wilson's departure from the United States on December 4, 1918, to attend the Peace Conference up to the delivery of the text of the treaty to the German plenipotentiaries on May 7, 1919, there were many subjects of disagreement between the President and myself; that he was disposed to reject or ignore the advice and suggestions which I volunteered, and that in consequence of my convictions I followed his guidance and obeyed his instructions unwillingly.

"While there were other matters of friction between us, they were of a personal nature and of minor importance. Though they may have contributed to the formality of our relations they placed no real part in the increasing difficulty of the situation. The matters narrated were, in my opinion, the principal causes for the letters written by President Wilson in February, 1920; at least they seem sufficient to explain the origin of the correspondence, while the causes specifically stated by him—my calling together of the heads of the executive departments for consultation during his illness and my attempts to anticipate his judgment—are insufficient.

"The reasons given in the President's letter of February 11 for stating that my resignation as secretary of state would be acceptable to him are the embarrassment caused him by my 'reluctance and divergence of judgment' and the implication that my mind did not 'willingly go along' with his. As neither of these reasons applies to the calling of cabinet meetings or to the anticipation of his judgment in regard to foreign affairs, the unavoidable conclusion is that these grounds of complaint were not the real causes leading up to the severance of our official association.

"The real causes—which are the only ones worthy of consideration—are to be found in the record of the relations between President Wilson and myself in connection with the peace negotiations. Under that record must rest the justification or the refutation of Mr. Wilson's implied charge that I was not entirely loyal to him as President and that I failed to perform my full duty to my country as secretary of state and as a commissioner to negotiate peace by opposing the way in which he exercised his constitutional authority to conduct the foreign affairs of the United States."

Don't Exceed the Speed Limit.

We in no way intended offense by referring from time to time to the infringements of the traffic laws within the borough. We are thoroughly familiar with the rate of speed some of our automobilists have been using in coming into town, but far be it from us to censure; we have officers for that purpose. What we have been trying to drive home is the risk they are taking with their own lives and the lives of members of this community.

We feel to a certain extent that the Chronicle is the spokesman for the citizens of this section and anything that the Chronicle can do to safeguard these interests we feel in duty bound to do. Within the last week a number of very serious accidents have happened right here in our own State and not very far from Emmitsburg. In nearly every case the disasters have resulted from just the very thing we have been calling attention to, exceeding the speed limit.

It would be well to take heed in time and think over the seriousness of being caught in the same predicament, as loss of life in accidents of this kind brings grief that is little short of life long agony.—Emmitsburg Chronicle.

Shipping Spaghetti to Italy.

America shipping spaghetti to Italy! Who ever heard of such a thing? And yet it's true. The steamship Princess Matoika, which cleared from New York March 8 for Naples and Genoa, took fifteen tons of macaroni and spaghetti to the land that made them famous.

Spaghetti is to an Italian what wiener schnitzel is to an Austrian or sauerkraut or kartufelsalat to a German or roast beef to a Britisher or baked beans to a Bostonian. But the spaghetti the Italian has been getting of recent time is not like the spaghetti mother used to make. Wheat has cost so much and the crops of Europe have been so poor that the profiteers have adulterated the flour and the Italian has suffered and sorrowed. Good spaghetti can come only from good wheat. There used to be a wheat grown in northern Africa and southern Europe that was wonderful for spaghetti making. Our Mediterranean No. 2 red is a close approximation to that famous wheat.

The Italians haven't had much good spaghetti or macaroni since 1914. They never will be happy till they get it. That fifteen tons of macaroni and spaghetti in the hold of the Princess Matoika will bring joy to their hearts and titillate their appetites for more. America makes mighty good spaghetti and macaroni. It had to make it to meet the insistent demands of the large Italian population and the ever increasing number of Americans who have come to know the worth of this excellent food.

Few persons outside the business appreciate what a big industry macaroni and spaghetti making has become in this country. Americans never really will know either macaroni, spaghetti or ravioli until they learn how to cook them. Spaghetti, cooked exactly right, and with meat, mushroom or tomato sauce, is a delight. But it has to be just right. And you shouldn't chop it up in the barbarous way the ignorant do, but wind it round your fork until you have a mouthful and then!—Phila. Ledger.

For a Severe Cold.

"Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cured my daughter Anna of a severe cold and cough a few years ago and ever since then I have never missed an opportunity to recommend this medicine to anyone suffering from throat or lung troubles. I cannot speak too highly in praise of it," writes Mrs. D. J. Shelly, Earlville, N. Y. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy contains no narcotic and may be given to children with perfect confidence. It is a pleasant syrup so they do not object to taking it.

Wise and Otherwise.

We're not a military nation, you understand, but which attracts the bigger crowd—a strawberry festival or a fight?

When a man in good health announces that he is preparing to retire, he may not know it but he also is announcing that he's preparing to die.

The more you let people know about your troubles the more of their troubles they'll let you carry.

A boy may comb his hair, wash behind the ears, wear a necktie and even shine his shoes without being in love, but when he manicures his nails there is only one reason and that is a girl.

You want what you can't get till you get it.

The difference between a restaurant dinner and a cafe dinner is a dollar and upward.

Specialists are getting so numerous in every profession and business that the all-around man who really works now is beginning to make a little money again.

Hint to a lot of folks you know are striving to be popular: A mule makes a lot of noise, but a mule is never welcome in a parlor.

Married women watch a new widower to see that he doesn't marry again, and unmarried women keep their eyes on him to see that he does.

When you cease trying to do new things and don't care anything about finding new ways to do old things, you have started down hill, even though you're only twenty.

They Speak Well of It.

"I frequently hear Chamberlain's Cough Remedy praised by friends and acquaintances which only tends to strengthen my good opinion of it," writes Mrs. Fred Arter, Zanesville, Ohio. Try it when you have a cough or cold and see for yourself what an excellent medicine it is.

SATISFIED WITH DULL LIVES

Siamese Require Little, and Have a Government Which Sees That They Get It.

Bangkok, for all its modern waterworks and trolley cars, is a fairy-tale land, with a fairy-tale king, writes Florence Burgess Meehan in Asia Magazine. In Bangkok the king is a reality, not a figurehead. Two or three times a day whistles announce his approach along the street, as he takes the route to or from the golden-roofed palace and the audience hall two miles distant.

Rama VI, Oxford graduate, playwright, poet and keen administrator—is perhaps the most absolute of all the monarchs left on earth. He is an autocrat, but his government is more like an advanced state socialism than anything else. The state owns the main lines of the railroads, the oil fields, the forests and the mines. The street cars and waterworks and the lighting system of the capital are state property, and the king is the state.

Siamese are satisfied with autocracy. Siam seems to be the happiest land in the world. It has no exclusion laws. It has no class struggle. They are a happy-go-lucky people. Their by-word is "Mypenany?" ("What does it matter?") They cultivate their little rice paddies, and work at jewelry or ivory carving or weaving, but they almost invariably remain craftsmen in a small way, content with a mere livelihood.

DAY OF HORSE ALMOST GONE

Increasing Use of Motor Apparatus Will Soon Make Him Only a Loving Memory.

A defective flue had brought the fire department to Tenth and Teacum streets. New, bright red motor apparatus came rushing up from a half-dozen firehouses. Presently a worn old hook and ladder truck, horse-drawn, appeared on the scene. It carried just the ladders the firemen needed to reach the fire.

The crowd that gathered smiled at the picture. The old horses seemed to know that they were playing an important part, even in the presence of their enemies, the motor apparatus. It was a picture of a changing time. One by one the motor machines turned away, leaving the horse machine to finish the job.

Somehow, the crowd moved toward the horses and, one by one, men, women and children, paused to stroke the manes or pat the noses of the faithful old beasts that now are fast passing to the Land of Memory.

And, somehow, the horses seemed to know and understand. Their heads were not down, however. Instead, they looked around and saw that the enemy had left the fight to them.

"Still on the job," they would have said had the crowd the power to understand them.

Yes, still on the job, but—going—going!—Indianapolis News.

National Museum Gets Opals.

The National museum in Washington has just received from Archie Rice, an opal expert in New York, 100 specimens of gem opal in the rough just as they come from the only opal mines in the United States. The opals are red, white, blue, black, brown, green and purple; two have replaced fossil wood, and three possibly fossil bones.

The mine is located in Humboldt county, Nevada, about a mile above sea level and some 200 miles inland from the Pacific; not very accessible, since the railroad town of Winnemucca is about 120 miles away. Because of the high altitude, the ordinary water content of the opals is often injuriously affected when they are removed from the ground.

Thus far, excavation for opals has gone only to a depth of 20 or 30 feet.

Prickly Pear Worries Australians.

The kind of cactus which we called the "prickly pear" has become a first-class nuisance in Australia. It grows very fast, spreads with great rapidity and forms masses of vegetation so dense that the clearing of ground once occupied by the plant is accomplished with utmost difficulty. Incidentally, it renders the land unavailable for agricultural purposes.

In response to urgent request, our government is sending to Australia, certain insects that prey upon the prickly pear. Hope is entertained that they may do enough damage to discourage the spread of the cactus plague in that part of the world.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Cheap Light.

Science and invention describes a recent achievement of a French scientist, who has successfully tried out in his house a scheme for operating electric lights without cost.

Upon his water-supply pipe he has fitted a high-speed water turbine, which drives a dynamo, charging a storage battery. Every time a faucet is turned on in the house the stream of water is put to work at loading the battery, which furnishes current for the lights. "It is simply utilizing energy that is ordinarily wasted," says the inventor.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Overzealous.

"What is your idea of a grafter?" "A grafter," replied Senator Sorghum, "is a man who, when he finds an opportunity knocking at his door, isn't satisfied to give it a cordial welcome, but insists on dragging it in and beating the life out of it."

What would you do with it?

If constipation were a lighted bomb, would you carry it about with you waiting for someone to put it out? No. You would get rid of it as quickly and effectively as possible.

But constipation, though not so sudden in its effect, is an insidious and grave danger. Leading medical authorities agree that ninety per cent of human illness is caused or aggravated by a clogging of waste in the bowels, and that pills, castor oil, laxative waters and salts only force the bowels and bring greater weakness afterward.

Nujol works on an entirely new principle. Instead of forcing or irritating the system, it simply softens the food waste. This enables the many tiny muscles in the walls of the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along so that it passes naturally out of the system.

Nujol thus prevents constipation because it helps Nature maintain easy, thorough bowel evacuation at regular intervals—the healthiest habit in the world.

Nujol is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take. Try it.

Nujol is sold by all druggists in sealed bottles only, bearing Nujol trade mark. Write Nujol Laboratories, Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), 50 Broadway, New York, for booklet, "Thirty Feet of Danger".

FARM POULTRY

KEEPING POULTRY IN TOWNS

No Necessity for Flocks Becoming Nuisance to Neighbors If Reasonable Care Is Taken.

Objection is frequently raised to the keeping of poultry in towns and cities because of the odor which may result and also because of roosters crowing, particularly in the early morning. In some cases city regulations have been formulated to prevent or to control poultry keeping. Where there are city regulations it is necessary to find out their provisions and to conform to them. But there is no necessity for the poultry flock to become a nuisance to neighbors, says the United States department of agriculture. If the dropping boards are cleaned daily and the houses and yards are kept in a reasonably clean condition there will be no annoying odors.

The male bird need not be a nuisance. Unless it is intended to hatch chickens from the flock it is unnecessary to keep a male bird, federal poultry specialists point out. The fact that there is no male in the flock will have absolutely no effect on the number of eggs laid by the hens. If it is desired to mate the hens and to hatch chicks the male bird should be sold or eaten as soon as the hatching season is over. This is desirable not only to eliminate noise but also to save the feed that would be eaten by the male, and for the reason that the eggs produced after the male is disposed of will be infertile. Since these eggs cannot be hatched they keep much better than fertile eggs and consequently are superior for preserving or for market.

The flock must be kept confined; otherwise the hens will stray into neighbors' yards and gardens, where they may cause damage and, almost surely, ill feeling.

TRAP NEST IS QUITE USEFUL

Tends to Tame Birds and Increases Egg Production—Eliminates Unprofitable Hens.

A trap nest is a laying nest so arranged that after a hen enters it she is confined until after released by the attendant.

When possible it is advisable to trap nest the layers for the following reasons:

1. To tame the birds, thereby tending toward increased egg production.
2. To furnish definite knowledge concerning traits and habits of individuals.
3. To furnish the only satisfactory basis for utility or other breeding.
4. To eliminate the nonproductive hen.
5. To add mechanical precision to judgment and experience in developing and maintaining the utility of a flock.

PUREBRED POULTRY IS BEST

Farmer Will Obtain Larger Profit and Get More Satisfaction Than From Mongrels.

Sometimes a man succeeds with barnyard mongrels better than his neighbor with prize-winning fowls because he gives them better care. But let the successful farmer, who has not already done so, turn his attention to pure-bred birds and he will derive a still larger profit in dollars and satisfaction.

GIVE GROWING CHICKS ROOM

Youngsters Do Not Recover From Evil Effects of Crowding in Brooders or Coops.

Very often the growing chicks are crowded in little out-of-door brooders or chick coops; or some other mistake is made in brooding. Later they are transferred, but the harm has been done; and although they may seem to grow all right afterwards, they do not recover.

DEMAND FOR GUINEA FOWLS

Value as Substitute for Game Birds Becoming Better Recognized by Many People.

The value of a guinea fowl as a substitute for game birds such as grouse, partridge, quail, and pheasant, is becoming more and more recognized by people fond of this class of meat, and the demand for these fowls is Prime Young Guineas Are a Special Delicacy.

Increasing steadily, United States department of agriculture specialists report. Many hotels and restaurants in the large cities are eager to secure prime young guineas, and often they are served at banquets and club dinners as a special delicacy. When well cooked, guineas are attractive in appearance, although darker than common fowls, and the flesh of young birds is tender and of especially fine flavor, resembling that of wild game. Like all other fowl, old guineas are likely to be tough and rather dry.

A few large poultry raisers, particularly those within easy reach of the large eastern markets, make a practice of raising a hundred or so guineas each year, but the great majority of guineas are raised in small flocks of from 10 to 25 upon farms in the Middle West and in the South. Many farmers keep a pair or a trio of guineas more as a novelty than for profit, and from these a small flock is raised. The guinea fowl doubtless would be more popular on farms were it not for its harsh and at times seemingly never-ending cry. However, some people consider this cry an argument in the guinea's favor, as it gives warning of marauders in the poultry yard.

CARE OF GROWING CHICKENS

One of Most Important Factors in Raising Poultry During Summer—Keep Them Growing.

The care of growing chicks during the summer is one of the most important factors in poultry raising. The chicks may be hatched from strong, vigorous stock and carefully brooded; but unless they receive the proper attention during the warm months, their growth may be retarded. In other words, they should be so managed that they will mature into well developed fowls.

KEEP BIRDS FREE FROM LICE

Dust Thoroughly With Good Insect Powder or Apply Mixture of Vaseline and Mercury.

Examine the pullets and hens for lice, and dust thoroughly with a good insect powder or apply a mixture of two parts of vaseline and one part of mercurial or blue ointment, about the size of a pea, one inch below the vent of the bird, rubbing the mixture lightly on the skin. An application of this ointment two or three times a year will keep the fowls free from lice.

- Destroy lice and mites.
- Confine or sell all cockbirds.
- Keep the nests clean and well littered.
- Gather eggs frequently and keep them in a cool place.
- Bread and milk make an excellent feed for young goslings.
- Feed a well-balanced ration with plenty of variety and if possible give free range.
- Eggs to be preserved should be strictly fresh, clean, unwashed, firm and free from cracks.
- From 50 to 80 per cent of the chicks hatched die before they reach maturity. This loss can be greatly reduced by proper feeding and care.
- The number of duck farms in this country is increasing, because of a widening of the market for young ducks, and this sort of poultry raising is growing more popular.

MIGHT LEARN FROM FRENCH

American Writer of Opinion There Are Things His Countrymen Could Profitably Absorb.

They are a wonderful folk, these French, and there is no people from whom Americans can learn more of the art of living. While we, with our high rents, are harassed by the question of where to live, they, in spite of their high rents, think only of how to live. We would do well to spend less thought on the abode and more on the mode. We could learn from them to forget our national timidity and to discover our next-door neighbors, says a writer in Leslie's.

The contrast between the excited buzz and chatter and gaiety that strikes one on entering even the most homely French restaurant and the frightened and tremulous whispering thrown in between long intervals of dogged eating that goes on in our own restaurants is enough to shame any good American. We could learn from them to put aside our little pamphlets on "Facts About Sugar" long enough to enjoy the beauty of a hillside—and still make enough money out of the sugar business.

Our shopkeepers could learn that politeness does not drive away trade. We could have learned, alas, how to drink and how not to drink behind swing-doors, or too strongly or too much. The American business man who hopes to do business with the French must learn to deal with foreigners as well as they do and not to look upon what seems to him an exaggerated politeness as a rich bit of comedy, a fault of which our business men are, unfortunately, too often guilty.

WANT VIEW OF WEALTHY

Visitors to New York More Interested in Multimillionaires Than in Architectural Attractions.

The biggest attraction in New York is the multimillionaire. Sightseers from the hinterland who crowd Fifth avenue buses are not half so interested in such spectacles as the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the great railroad terminal stations, the Woolworth building and other skyscrapers, the long expanse of water front, with its great sea craft, the palaces along the world's greatest and most gorgeous thoroughfare, or the rabble under the nitrogen lumps of Broadway as they are in getting a first-hand, intimate view of the great captains of industry and finance.

So say the men that whirl these sightseers over and across New York by day and by night.

Sightseeing buses ply the financial district, it is true, but the conductors are as ignorant of who's who down around Wall street as their passengers from Cshkosh, Alfalfa Center or Deer Trail, but Wall street is the demand of the passengers, nevertheless, and when the sightseeing buses reach Wall street they invariably discharge at least 50 per cent of their cargo, which goes abroad to see the sights for itself.

The sight of a Vanderbilt or an Astor would repay most of these sightseers, say the bus conductors. A close up of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., might cause a stoppage of traffic, they declare, and a glimpse of J. Pierpont Morgan would fix New York irrevocably in their minds.—New York Sun.

Gets Power Without Coal.

A large paper mill at Vargo, Sweden, was recently rebuilt on the most improved lines. Formerly 20,000 tons of coal were consumed annually, and the problem of maintaining this supply was a very serious one, but at the present time no coal whatever is consumed at the plant. The boilerhouse contains seven "electric" boilers, each of 3,000 horsepower, and the current enters the boilers at a pressure of 10,000 volts, without having to be stepped down. Each of the boilers is provided with three electrodes, and the coupling arrangements are such that steam generation can be regulated within 5 per cent. It is stated that full steam pressure can be raised in from five to ten minutes after switching on the current, and considerable economy in attendance is obtained, as compared with coal firing.

Mayflower Relic to America.

Jordan hostel, an old Friends' meeting house near Chalfont, St. Giles, in Buckinghamshire, England, in the yard of which is the grave of William Penn and his family, was the scene of the presentation to two Americans of a piece of timber of the Pilgrim ship Mayflower. The timber was discovered in the barn of the house last year.

Samuel Hill and Frank Terris of Seattle, acting in behalf of the American Society of Friends, received the timber from A. Cotterell, representing the British Society of Friends, and will take it to the United States, where it will be placed in the peace portal to be dedicated at Blaine, Wash., next October.—London Times.

Whale Bones for Buildings.

The scarcity of building material is not worrying Avalon, Calif., residents. For twenty years several huge whale ribs have been bleaching in the sun in front of the Avalon Tuna club. An enterprising contractor sought the owner of the historic bones. He didn't want them for a museum, but they would make the supports for a "whale of a bungalow," he explained.

Canvas, wallboard and flooring have been added to the bones and the popular little Catalina island city has acquired a new shelter for its many visitors.

WHY

The Steamboat Is Coming Back to the Mississippi

This year alone forty-three steamboats, better known to the old timers as "packets" came back to the streams of the lower Mississippi valley, observes a writer in the Dearborn Independent. Where did they come from? No man can tell. Some were newly built, but the majority, of which the writer has been able to count thirty-one, came from small inland ports, where they had been tied up for the last fifteen to thirty years, waiting, almost hopelessly, against the time when they could again compete with the iron horse in freight and passenger traffic. From Memphis and Vicksburg and Greenville and Cairo; from the sheltered waters of the Bayou St. John at New Orleans; from little towns on the Atchafalaya, the Red and the Mississippi rivers; from fishing villages on Barataria and Lafourche and Vermillion bayous, and even from the far Sabine river of Texas, they were brought back, when railroad rates went to a height which made water hauls profitable.

But there is one difference in this return of the packet: It is coming back as a freight carrier. It is coming back as a business proposition, not as a palatial pleasure boat, operating up and down the stream for the benefit of the wealthy planters of cotton and rice and sugar and cattle buyers and sellers, for the packet cannot compete with the passenger train, either north or south or east or west. But with railroad freight rates 20 to 40 per cent above the costs at which freight can be handled profitably by water, other people besides the waterways department of the federal government have learned that their average of 175 miles a day freight haul, as compared with the twenty-four miles a day of the average freight car, is a profitable investment of firewood, water, negro labor and hulls, which for these freighters seldom cost more than $25,000 to $30,000.

Realizing the size and importance of this back-to-the-water movement of freight, the packet owners and the builders are going into it seriously, many cities along these rivers are investing large sums in terminals and cargo handling facilities to meet boat lines.

FIND EELS' BREEDING PLACE

Why the Discovery Is Considered of Importance to the People of European Countries.

There has always been a mystery about the eels. No one knew just where they came from.

It is said to have been solved by Danish scientists who discovered by a deep-sea expedition that eels leaving northwest Europe go to a place near the West Indies, where conditions for the development of their larvae are favorable. The larvae afterward make their way back to the places from which their parents started on the European coasts. This discovery is not only of geographical interest, but will also yield very practical results.

The supply of eels in the breeding places is said to be inexhaustible, and there will be an unlimited supply of eel food for European countries. Eels only undertake the journey from and back to the breeding place once in their lives.

Why Called "Cardinal Virtues."

The chief virtues of the ancients as far back as Socrates were justice, prudence, temperance and fortitude. They were called cardinal virtues because all other human virtues depended upon their existence—turned or hinged on them. The word cardinal, from the Latin "cardo," means a hinge.

Such an enumeration, however, is by no means exhaustive. It has often been pointed out that the list omits entirely the fundamental virtue of benevolence. Conscientiousness, courage, modesty, sympathy and reverence are other cardinal virtues, but not contained in the original roster.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Why Piano Should Be Kept Tuned.

Pianists insist on having their piano tuned before performance. This is necessary to insure perfect tone. It is agreed that, in order to obtain satisfactory results and at the same time preserve the tone quality and keep the action in perfect working order, it is necessary to have the home piano tuned at least twice a year. Pianos receiving such attention are always in fairly good condition, while those receiving irregular attention are never in condition. All other stringed instruments require more or less tuning every time they are used, then why should a piano be neglected?

Why They Are Called Trunks.

Why are traveling boxes called trunks? Because in the days of William the Conqueror boxes for carrying money and valuables were made in a very primitive fashion, the lids being simply half the trunk of a tree hollowed out; hence the name. In an old Kentish church in England there is to be seen such a trunk, which is said to be the one in which the Conqueror kept the money with which he paid his soldiers.

Why Persons Sigh.

Because an interval of several seconds, during which the walls of the chest remain rigid and cause oxygen starvation, always follows moments of mental disquietude; when nature demands her supply of oxygen the deep inhalation occurs, the expiration after which we call a sigh.

IN SAD BUT LOVING REMEMBRANCE OF OUR DEAR WIFE AND MOTHER.

MRS. JOHN W. DEBERRY who departed this life 1 year ago, April 3rd., 1920.

You have gone from me dear wife, To your Saviour good and true, You have won the heavenly glory, Which is yet for me to do.

From this world of grief and trouble, To a land of peace and rest, You have landed in the arms of Jesus, There to everlasting rest.

By her Loving Husband, JOHN W. DEBERRY.

The month of April once more is here, To me the saddest of the year, Because it took from us away, Our dear mother, one year ago.

Day by day we saw her fade, And slowly sink away, Yet in our hearts we often prayed, That she might longer stay.

One long year, oh can it be, That my dear mother I no more see, Her foot-steps I always was glad to hear, But now since they are silent, I have shed many a tear.

In the graveyard not far away softly, Where the flowers gently wave, Lies the one we love so dearly, In her lonely silent grave.

By her loving son and daughter, MR. AND MRS. CHAS. VAN FOSSEN.

A kind good mother from us has gone, Her voice we love, is stilled, A place is vacant in our hearts, Which never can be filled.

You have gone from us, dear mother, To your Saviour good and true, You have won the heavenly glory, Which is for us to do.

Oh yes, we miss you, mother, A hand so kind and true, But we are longing to meet you, In our father's mansion fair.

We know where you have gone, mother, For heaven you had so well prepared, We too, you have taught us to prepare, So we shall meet you again up there.

By lovingly daughter, ANNA MYERS.

Dear mother, thou hast left us, She passed away like a summer breeze, With scarce a parting sigh, She passed from this dark world below.

The flower that so sweetly bloomed, Was plucked by death as soon, We know not why, God only knows, So few of her kind that ever grows.

By her loving daughter, BESSIE B. MYERS.

Mother is sleeping, so free from all pain, Oh, wake her not, sweet spirit, to suffer again; She slumbers so sweetly, oh, let her sleep on; Her troubles all ended, her sorrows all gone.

One year has passed; our hearts still sore, As time flies on, we miss her more; She sleeps, we leave her in peace to rest; The parting was painful, but God knows the best.

By her loving son and daughter, MR. AND MRS. FRANK DEBERRY.

Flowers may wither, and plants may die; The rest may forget you, but never will we; For we will always remember our dear grandmother.

By her grandsons, CARRALL and RAYMOND DEBERRY.

Dear Aunt Sophia has left us, My heart deep in sorrow returns to that day, As memory recalls how death bore her away, And left me in tears and woe, As I stood by her grave, one year ago, You do not know the sorrow to be left alone.

Until God sends a message into your home It is sad if He calls for one dear in life, But more sad still when He called for Aunt Sophia.

It is not the tear at the moment shed, That tells how beloved is the one that is dead.

It is how deep in my heart I adored her; It is the tears through many a long day wept.

How much I loved her and how I miss her, None but God in heaven can tell, By ALICE and SIDNEY MYERS.

In Memory of our Loving Daughter, LILLIE MAY SPEELMAN, who drowned April 2, 1920.

We watched to see you coming; How we wait to hear you call, Calling: "Mother, where are you?"

And often from our broken hearts There comes a heavy sigh, If only we could ask the Lord Why did our dear Lillie die?

Dear Lillie, smile on us from heaven, Ask God to lead us when we die, That we may meet our dear daughter Some sweet day by and by.

Dear is the grave where Lillie is laid, Sweet is the memory that never shall fade, Of our life is buried deep Under the sod where our Lillie sleeps.

By her Parents, MR. AND MRS. ROBT. C. SPEELMAN, and Sister and Brothers.

The Baseball Season Opens with a Hit!

Right off the bat we've made a hit with the baseball players. Just opened up our new baseball equipment for 1921 and the boys say it's the finest lot of goods they've seen for many seasons. Whether at work or play, a fellow gets most satisfaction by using well made and properly constructed equipment, and the ball player will thoroughly enjoy looking over and choosing from this splendid new assortment of bats, balls, masks, gloves, mitts, protectors and all the other requirements of the baseball team. Come and see for yourself—then you'll know why we are so enthusiastic about these new baseball goods.

'Twas Said:

The farmer paused, open-mouthed, in front of the fire station. "D'ye have many fires in this town?" he asked.

"Pretty often," replied a fireman. "Ever try to see how quick you can turn out?" said the inquirer.

Just then the alarm was sounded and in a moment the men rushed to their posts, the doors flew open and the horses were galloping down the street.

"Gosh!" said the farmer. "There ain't many fellers who would go to such a lot of trouble to show a feller what they can do!"

AWNINGS

In Spring and Summer when the Sun's warmth increases we must have protection from the heat, if we are to fully enjoy our Homes and Porches. There is something delightful about living on a Porch—it seems to draw the outer world and humankind closer together—but when that porch is unprotected from the rays of the Sun, it loses charm and usefulness. Awnings furnish just the right degree of shade and privacy for the home. Then, too, the Office or Store where customers come to do business must be kept cool and comfortable from the rays of the Sun.

Awnings Are Actually A Necessity.

Let us figure on Awnings for your House or Store. We will fill the order at your House or Place of business, any place in the county, at a Reasonable Price for the complete job.

WINDOW BOXES

Window and Porch Boxes add much to the beauty of every home. We again have a complete line of Galvanized Porch or Window Boxes, in 24, 30 and 36 inch lengths. These are painted green and are self-watering, priced at $1.25, $1.75, $2.50, respectively.

SQUARE GALVANIZED BOXES

For many kinds of large plants that it is necessary to move in the house during the Winter, for which clay flower pots are too small, the ideal holder is the Galvanized Box. These are much lighter than wood, do not leak, have the air vent necessary, and are painted in a pretty shade of green and inexpensive. Three Sizes, $1.75, $2.25 and $3.00.

"I have decided to marry again, Miss Colburn."

Dr. Willard Cavanaugh, middle-aged, made the remark over the top of his newspaper when Harriet Colburn entered the living room after tucking the doctor's daughter, Thelma, aged six, and his son, Kenneth, aged four, in their beds.

It was somewhat of a surprise to Harriet, for when she left the hospital training school upon her graduation two years ago to accept a position in the doctor's household she had been given to understand the new service would be permanent. It was more than a surprise—it was a shock. For Harriet had come to love the children entrusted to her care.

Harriet was well past the twenty year mark and she was not beautiful. But she was a good, wholesome sort of girl, who took life seriously and paid strict attention to business. Her business was seeing that Thelma and Kenneth had the right food, fresh air, the proper kind of attire and the correct form and amount of discipline.

She had specialized in the care of children and had a way with them that few could hope to rival. Furthermore, she loved any and all members of the coming generation, and for that reason she had declined a tempting institutional offer and welcomed the chance to look after the Cavanaugh family. Before engaging her the doctor had watched Harriet and had become convinced that the salutary welfare of his progeny would be assured in her hands. Yes, the doctor's announcement was disappointment, but Harriet had been taught to control her emotions and was confident her dismay was not manifest when she sank into a chair across from her employer, who laid aside his paper and wiped his glasses.

"I thought I had better speak to you of my intentions some time in advance," he went on, "so that you could look for a position, although I understand you have been the recipient of several flattering offers during your term of service with me."

"That is true," said Harriet modestly. She could have an institutional position at the hospital any time she desired, and there were several places open similar to the one she now occupied.

With her face in the shadow she looked intently at the doctor, whose genial countenance was illuminated by the table lamp. This was the man whose children she loved, and at times she had felt she could go a step farther, if only she would permit it, and care— but, of course, that was out of the question. Harriet was a professional woman, and had long since abandoned all idea of marriage. Still, she was curious to know the name of the fortunate girl.

"You may be sure," the doctor went on, "that I will give you the best of recommendations. Fortunately for me the young lady who has consented to be my wife is also a graduate nurse—or will be shortly—so I feel my children will not suffer materially by the change in conditions."

When Harriet retired she crept to the children's bedroom and by the light coming in from the hall gazed with glistening eyes on the chubby, healthy faces pressed against two pillows in two little white enameled beds. "The dears!" she breathed. "And to think I have to leave them."

The doctor sat for some time holding the paper before him, but heedless of any of the printed words. "It's been pretty lonely," he sighed, "but Agatha will cheer things up. She's rather frivolous, but that's what I need. There's too much serious business in my life. Agatha will be good to the kiddies, too, I'm sure; probably not so efficient as Miss Colburn, but they need some one who really can be a mother to them."

The next evening Dr. Cavanaugh called at the hospital to take Agatha for an auto spin, knowing it was her "late leave" night. But she was not there.

"Agatha's gone to a dance," said a young girl, who was his fiancée's roommate. "Several young people went to Hazard's for the evening and Agatha was one of them."

The doctor frowned as he left the nurses' lodge.

"That's peculiar," he mused. "She doesn't seem to take the engagement seriously. But then, she's young. She'll steady down after a while."

It was several days before the doctor saw his fiancée for more than a minute at a time. He called to spend the evening, and they sat in the nurses' parlor.

"Willard, why don't you dance?" she asked in the course of their conversation, which appeared rather strained. "I went with Frank Larkins to Hazard's the other night, and we had a wonderful time. Why don't you invite me some time?"

"I'm too busy," he returned, "and too tired after my day's work. I should think you would be, too, after slaving twelve hours in this workhouse; but of course you're young. I'm a little old, I guess."

She guessed so, too, although she refrained from saying it. Agatha did not love Dr. Cavanaugh. It was his income and social prestige that attracted her, and she did not look forward with relish to her coming martyrdom. There was a young man in a distant city whom she really loved, but he had no money.

The doctor was not especially pleased over the Hazard's party, but was diplomatic enough to keep silent on the subject. He kissed Agatha good-night and went home. His children and their companion had retired.

He went to the bedroom and looked in on the sleeping pair.

"You dear kiddies," he murmured; and just then the little girl opened her eyes and smiled at her father.

"Thelma," he said, "how would you like to have a mamma?"

Thelma yawned and smiled, and let one eye wink knowingly. "All right," she chirped, "if it's Harriet you mean. Otherwise I don't care for one. Harriet's mother enough for me, and Kenneth, too. Say, pop, she's a dandy—and isn't she just beautiful, though?"

"Hm," observed the doctor as he made his way to his study. "Hm," he repeated, as he turned over some sheets of a treatise he was preparing. "Hm," he reiterated, scanning the pages.

He dipped his pen in ink, but got no further.

Before him rose a picture of Agatha, the girl to whom he was engaged.

"She surely is frivolous," he mused, "yes, too much so. I don't believe she loves me. I'm afraid it's my money. She's too young for me, anyhow. Do I love her? I'm afraid not. I'm afraid I've just decided I should have a wife, and like a lot of men I picked out one that was beautiful—just beautiful, and not much else."

He replaced the pen in the rack and leaned back, interlocking his hands behind his head.

"Hm, and so Harriet's beautiful. I never thought so, but Thelma says so, and it must be. Those children—how I love them—have a way of looking right through the face and into the soul, and it must be Harriet's soul that is so beautiful. And how those kiddies love her and she loves them, too. What have I in common with Agatha? Not a thing. And what have I in common with Harriet? The kiddies. Hm, it's funny I never thought of that before. Really, it would be too bad to separate Harriet and the children; and she's such a capable girl, and lovable too. She must be lovable, for see how they love her. I wonder—wonder—would she have me? Hm."

IS ANCIENT LAND

Rhodesia at One Time Home of Large Population.

Even Today, Mantle of Mystery Hanging Over the Country Has Not Been Completely Lifted.

We can now turn to the really romantic side of the Rhodesian mineral deposits. One of the favorite pilgrimages of the tourist is to the Zimbabwe ruins, located about 17 miles from Victoria in southern Rhodesia. They are the remains of an ancient city and must at various times have been the home of large populations. There seems little doubt that Zimbabwe was the work of a prehistoric and long-forgotten people.

Over it hangs a mantle of mystery which the fictionist has employed to full and at times thrilling advantage. Isaac F. Marcossou writes in the Saturday Evening Post. In this vicinity were the King Solomon mines that Rider Haggard wrote about in what is perhaps his most popular book. Here came Allan Quatermain in pursuit of love and treasure. The big hill at Zimbabwe provided the residence of She, the lovely and disappearing lady who had to be obeyed. The ruins in the valley are supposed to be those of the Dead City in the same romance. The interesting feature of all this is that "She" and "King Solomon's Mines" were written in the early '80s, when comparatively nothing was known of the country. Yet Rider Haggard, with that instinct which sometimes guides the romancer, wrote fairly accurate descriptions of the country long before he had ever heard of its actual existence. Thus imagination preceded reality.

The imaginative miracles disclosed in the Haggard books are surpassed by the actual wonder represented by Victoria falls. Everybody has heard of this stupendous spectacle in Rhodesia, but few people see it, because it is so far away. I beheld it on my way from Bulawayo to the Kongo. Like the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, it baffles description.

The first white man to visit the cataract was Dr. Livingstone, who named it in honor of his queen. This was in 1855. For untold years the natives of the region had trembled at its fury. They called it Mosi-o-tunga, which means "smoke that sounds." When you see the falls you can readily understand why they got this name. This mist is visible ten miles away, and the terrific roar of the falling waters can be heard even farther.

The fact that the casual traveler can see Victoria falls from the train is due entirely to the foresight and the imagination of Cecil Rhodes. He knew the publicity value that the cataract would have for Rhodesia, and he combined the utilitarian with his love of the romantic. In planning the Rhodesian railroad, therefore, he insisted that the bridge across the gorge of the Zambesi, into which the mighty waters flow after their fall, must be sufficiently near to enable the spray to wet the railway carriages.

The experts said it was impossible, but Rhodes had his way, just as Harriman's will prevailed over that of trained engineers in the construction of the bridge across Great Salt Lake.

My Car and the Night.

While driving my car through the stormy night, my little boy's head falls against my shoulder.

He sleeps, and a great surge of emotion rises in me.

When I saw him at play, when I heard his merriment, no such intimate tenderness overflowed my heart.

Now, though I only feel the light pressure of his small body in the dark, how keenly I realize my fatherhood.

What a gladness it is!

I am made strong by his weakness. Yes, I am strong. I am proud of my strength to struggle, and sometimes to win.

But when, in my turn, I shall grow weary and fall asleep on the shoulder, I wonder, shall I, too, inspire the Great Tenderness?

I wonder Who or What drives the Car through the Darkness?—Edmund Vance Cook in Leslie's.

Explains Firefly's Light.

A Princeton physiologist is said to have solved the problem of the firefly's light. The chemistry of the process is difficult enough. In effect, the luminous substance burns in oxygen like any fuel, only instead of forming carbon dioxide and water, as other luminants do, the products of the combustion are of such a nature that when allowed to stand away from air, they change back into the original substance, and are ready to be burned again. The experimenter obtained the "light without heat" in a test tube, which glowed when shaken.

Women a Big Success at Banking.

The business of banking, which, until a few years ago was an almost exclusively masculine field, is opening its doors with astounding rapidity to women.

In the city of Boston alone, more than one thousand women are employed by banks either as expert clerks or in other responsible positions.

Accuracy and attention to detail are two of the most important factors in banking, and men bankers say women seem to be peculiarly efficient in these two lines.

HOW

LARGE CONCRETE BRIDGE WAS BUILT UNDER TENT.—By enclosing the entire work in a tent, a concrete bridge over the Little Goose river in Sheridan county, Wyoming, was constructed during the winter months. The work is described in Concrete in Architecture and Engineering, which is thus quoted in Engineering and Contracting:

"Weather conditions last winter in that part of the country were the most severe encountered in many years, but because the highway, of which this bridge formed a link, is a very important one, the state highway department saw the need of completing the bridge so that the road between Sheridan and Dietz might be opened early in 1920 for the heavy farm hauling prevailing in that section. Construction work was started in the fall of 1919, and forms for the three spans erected.

Before any concrete was placed, a large tent was set up over the entire structure site and fires kept going in the enclosure in stoves with smoke outlets through the top of the tent. Aggregates and mixing water were heated. During the progress of the work a snow-storm followed by severe cold lasting several days, tested the effectiveness of the tent. The housing proved equal to the emergency, however, and there was no particular difficulty in keeping the enclosure sufficiently warm until the concrete had hardened. The work on this bridge suggests the application of the same principles to longer structures where it might be practicable to house in only one or two spans at a time. The same method could be applied to the construction of long walls and other relatively narrow structures by housing in successive sections."

IS NOW A GREAT INDUSTRY

How the Growth and Canning of Pineapples Has Been Developed in Hawaiian Islands.

The growth of the Hawaiian pineapple industry is one of the wonders of modern industry. It was started in 1906 in the form of one small canner managed by a son of Sanford B. Dole, who was President of the Hawaiian republic before the islands were annexed to the United States. A few hundred cases of fruit were all it could turn out, but the flavor of the Hawaiian "pine" quickly brought a demand for greater production. Then the Hawaiian planters found that certain land, which was located on hills too high to be used for the growing of sugar at a profit, was just right for pineapples. The industry commenced to grow by leaps and bounds and within five years had reached a stage which attracted the attention of Swift, Armour, and the other big packing concerns of the mainland. They entered the field, and now practically control it, and nearly all the canned pineapples used in the United States are now packed in Hawaii, where they are placed in cans within a few hours after they are picked in the fields.

How Lumber Is Graded.

Grading of lumber is done under a multiplicity of grading rules. H. S. Betts, engineer in forest products, forest service, United States Department of Agriculture, tells how lumber is graded in a forty-page pamphlet, Bulletin 64, on the subject.

Woods are graded largely according to rules prepared by lumber associations, the members of which handle lumber of one or more species that grow in a certain region or are naturally grouped together, with the exception of the hardwoods, which are all graded, according to the rules laid down by National Hardwood Lumber association, with headquarters in Chicago. Soft woods, on the other hand, are graded according to rules promulgated by more than sixteen associations.

The bulletin mentioned gives the basic data for the principal rulings.

How War Tanks Are Being Used.

Tanks are being used as snow plows for clearing blocked mountain passes and as a means of transporting goods to hotels situated in the mountains on difficult roads. They are also being utilized for agricultural purposes, making excellent tractors wherever the ground is hilly or broken, demonstrating that war machines are being used on many peaceful tasks in France. Another use to which tanks are being put is hauling trees. Near the air-drome at Villacoublay trees of very respectable size, some of them weighing as much as three of four tons, are being felled, and, in the ordinary way, would have to be sectioned in the forest before they could be removed by means of animal traction. But, thanks to the great hauling power of tanks, they are being dragged whole up a steep slope of twenty-two degrees.

How Machine Ties Bundles.

A new electric machine securely ties all bundles which are placed on its table. The machine is a marvel of ingenuity and may always be relied upon to tie a strong square knot, upon the completion of which the cord is cut and the bundle thrown off to one side.

THE IDEAL CHRISTIAN.

LESSON TEXT—Rom. 12:2, 9-21.
GOLDEN TEXT—As ye would that men should do unto you, do ye also to them
likewise.—Luke 6:31.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Matt. 5:1-16;
Eph. 4:8, 9; Col. 3:12-16; 1 Pet. 3:8-17.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Making Others
Happy.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Living Happily With Others.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC
—Marks of a True Christian.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC
—The Christian's Standard of Character.

I. In His Relation to God (vv. 1, 2).
He is dedicated to God. He conscientiously presents his entire being to God.

1. The basis of this dedication (v. 1). "The mercies of God." The grand reason for the dedication of ourselves to God is because we are recipients of the mercies of God.

2. The nature of the dedication (v. 1).

(1) An act of the free will. Those who voluntarily present themselves to God, He consecrates to His Service.

(2) It embraces the whole man (v. 1). By "bodies" is meant the entire personality—body, soul and spirit (1 Thess. 5:23). The inner life expresses itself through the body.

(3) It is a living sacrifice (v. 1). In the Old Testament the victim was slain before being placed upon the altar, but in our case God wants our bodies as living instruments of service.

(4) It is for rational service (v. 1). The logical outcome of our union with Christ is an intelligent service for Him.

3. The obligation of the one dedicated to the Lord (v. 2). It is non-conformity to this world. The one who has handed himself over to the Lord will not be fashioned by this evil, devil-governed age (1 John 5:19).

II. In His Relation to His Fellow Christians (vv. 9-13).

1. Love without hypocrisy (v. 9). We should not merely pretend to love people while hating them in our hearts.

2. Abhor the evil and cleave to the good (v. 9). God's children must be like Him. God hates wickedness of all sorts, so His children will have the same attitude towards sin that He has.

3. Be kindly affectioned one to another (v. 10). This is to be a brotherly love, namely, that which passes between those who are of one blood—members of the same family.

4. In honor preferring one another (v. 10). This is most difficult. It is natural to claim the best places for ourselves. Christ pleased not Himself.

5. Be not slothful in business (v. 11). This hardly refers to secular affairs, but rather to the church life which was to be characterized by zeal—energy and warmth, being regarded as service to the Lord.

6. Rejoicing in hope (v. 12). Affection shall surely come to the Christian. In all trials the Christian should be filled with hope of future glory.

7. Patient in Tribulation (v. 12). This blessed hope will make possible a life of patience.

8. Continuing in prayer (v. 12). Only by constant and persistent prayer shall we be able to live above our circumstances and fix our hope upon Him whose coming shall bring deliverance from all our trials and transform us into His glorious likeness.

9. Distributing to the necessity of saints—given to hospitality (v. 13). It is obligatory to Christians to divide their wages with fellow Christians who are destitute (Eph. 4:28).

III. In His Relation to Unbelievers (vv. 14-21).

1. Do good for evil (v. 14). We are to bless those who persecute us. The natural man pays back in the same coin, but the renewed man responds in kindness and good deeds.

2. Be sympathetic (v. 15). We should rejoice with those who rejoice and weep with those who weep. Christ entered into the joys of the wedding at Cana, and wept with Mary and Martha.

3. Find points of agreement (v. 16). We should seek for points of agreement in all things, instead of being vain in our own conceits.

4. Live honestly before all men (v. 17). We should so live that our characters may attract others to Christ.

5. Live in peace (v. 18). We should exhaust every means to bring about reconciliation. If the other party will not yield, we should see to it that it is not our fault.

6. Be not vindictive (vv. 19-21). Instead of rendering eye for eye and tooth for tooth, we should heap coals of fire upon our enemies by deeds of kindness.

"Thy Kingdom Come" in My Community
Matthew 6:7-15

What has already been said in previous discussions, concerning the kingdom in the heart, the home and the church, will apply to the kingdom in the community. Only by a new life from above can one enter into the kingdom, or the kingdom enter into the heart; and only as the kingdom comes into the individual heart can it come to the community. Individuals regenerated by the grace of God have the greatest effect for good on the social order of which they are a part. This cannot be too clearly understood or too much emphasized.

The people of God are nauseated with the cheap substitutes provided by so-called "experts" who endeavor to displace a supernatural revelation and a supernatural work in the soul, by a scheme of things that has no place for the supernatural. Their prescribed remedies change with the changing of events. Democracy, brotherhood, economic efficiency, and elimination of racial antagonisms, are successively offered as panaceas for the ills of the world.

Is there a supernatural revelation? Has God spoken? If so, what has He said? He has certainly said something about our present ruin as a fallen race of beings, and something, too, about a redemption made possible through the atoning work of His son, and something additional concerning this redemption made actual in human experience through the regenerating work of the Holy Spirit.

To these things we must adhere in all our thought concerning the coming of the kingdom, whether it be in the heart, the home, the church or the community.

The Christian's chief concern is a community right with God through the largest possible number of regenerated people.

Play grounds, parks, recreative facilities and humanizing agencies are all good; we need them and should have them, but they are not necessarily marks of kingdom progress. We must distinguish sharply between civilization and the kingdom for which we pray when we say, "Thy kingdom come."

NOW DEMAND PIPE POCKETS

Philadelphia Newspaper Declares Up-to-Date Women Insist on Them in Their Garments.

New suits will have to possess a novel feature if up-to-date young women are to be satisfied. The pipe pocket should be considered in creating all feminine garments of the future.

Perhaps it is the effect of gaining the suffrage, so that they feel they must go on to wider, freer conquests, but, anyway, certain it is that the girls are getting tired of cigarettes and are turning to good old-fashioned corn-cob pipes as a solace for the languors of modernity, says the Philadelphia Ledger.

Some time ago several young women in New York decided that cigarettes were too expensive, and that they ought to join the great world movement for financial conservation by substituting pipes for the more delicate joy. But at that time ordinary pipes were not tried, usually small, ladylike ones being selected.

Now, however, substantial corn-cobs, cheap, picturesque and nonbreakable, are the favorites.

"The corn-cob pipe is unpretentious, respectable and conservative," one of the corn-cob devotees explained. "Many of our great-grandmothers smoked corn-cobs. Especially is this true of those of us who had southern great-grandmothers. There is something like a Bolshevik about a cigarette, but we feel that in smoking corn-cobs we will be back on the sure foundation of good old-fashioned Americanism. The people who are always lamenting the good old days will be pleased, and will feel that the country is saved."

ANYWAY, PROPELLER IS GONE

Dispute Now Is Whether It Was Torn, Bitten, or Blown Off, But It Is Missing.

What happened to the starboard propeller of the United Fruit liner Calamares, recently arrived at New York from Central American ports and Havana, puzzled her skipper, officers and passengers, who discussed the mystery since the ship threw a fit on the afternoon of Wednesday, January 19, in the placid Caribbean and started wabbling, heaving, pitching, tossing, rolling and doing other things that no healthy ship does all at the same time.

Capt. Harry Spencer stopped the liner and the chief engineer examined the starboard propeller. He found that one of the blades had been torn, bitten or blown off. Some surmised that a sea serpent might have nibbled at the propeller and others said outright there was no doubt a steel-eating Caribbean shark had bitten off the blade.

Captain Spencer derided these theories, declaring the blade had been blown off by the force of a subaqueous earthquake, as the Calamares began rocking violently a moment after the mysterious force was first felt. And there the matter rests.

WANTED ALL TO UNDERSTAND

Cicerone at Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem Careful to Impress Gospel Facts on Visitors.

Either I was particularly fortunate or others are particularly fastidious. The guide who showed me the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem was not particularly noisy or profane or palpably mercenary; he was rather more or less sympathetic than the same sort of man who might have shown me Westminster abbey or Stratford-on-Avon.

He was a small, solemn, owlish old man, so far from deserving the charge of not knowing the Bible, he deserved rather a gentle remonstrance against his assumption that nobody else knew it. If there was anything to smile at, in associations so sacred, it was the elaborate simplicity with which he told the first facts of the Gospel story, as if he were evangelizing a savage. Anyhow, he did not talk like a cheap-jack at a stall, but rather like a teacher in an infant school.

He made it very clear that Jesus Christ was crucified, in case anyone should suppose he was beheaded; and often stopped in his narrative to repeat that the hero of these events was Jesus Christ, lest we should fancy it was Nebuchadnezzar or the duke of Wellington. I do not in the least mind being amused at this, but I have no reason whatever for doubting that he may have been a better man than I. I gave him what I should have given a similar guide in my own country; I parted with him as politely as from one of my own countrymen.—From the New Jerusalem by G. K. Chesterton.

Foe of Dandelions.

East and west, north and south in this fair land of ours, one of the greatest pests to a beautiful lawn is the dandelion. The more we try to get them eliminated the more they thrive. Now the surer remover is a few geese. They prefer dandelion to anything else. If one cannot afford to buy the geese, for they are expensive, get a few of their eggs, give them to an old hen. She will hatch and raise them. They are sturdy little fellows.

Take a strip of wire fencing 3 feet high. Make it in a circle about 10 feet in diameter, place this on the lawn; put the geese in it with a pan of water to drink. Change it about as fast as they clean up a spot. They require little else to eat and become very tame.—Thrifty Magazine.

Shifting Sand Made Trouble.

The shifting of the sands of the seashore very often involves expensive litigation. In 1885 the counties of Atlantic and Burlington, of New Jersey, entered into an expensive litigation concerning the boundary between them. There was a dispute as to one of the corners of this boundary. It was stated to be, in the original survey, "the next inlet in the south side of Little Egg Harbor's most southerly inlet, and thence along the seacoast to the line of partition between east and west Jersey." But it could not be found in its original home when they went to look for it, thus bringing up to date the ancient saying about a rope of sand.

And Now a Court Must Pick the Owner of Treasure Discovered Hidden in Jars.

Rumors of the finding of a great treasure in the old Holland house here have been confirmed by the filing of suit in the Fayette county circuit court by the administrators of the Holland estate against a dozen defendants alleged to have shared in the division of the treasure, which amounted to $21,000, says a dispatch from Nuttallburg, W. Va., to the Pittsburgh Dispatch. Attachments were served on 50 banks in the surrounding section, where the money is believed to have been deposited.

The story of the treasure reads like romance. In the sixties William Holland, veteran of the Crimean war, came to this country from England and settled in the Pennsylvania coal fields. In 1872 he came to Kenney's creek and began the development of a kiln. He built a home here in 1883, where he resided until his death in 1918.

He was an eccentric character, and none of his family knew of his habit of hiding money. He died suddenly of heart failure. After Holland's death the home passed into the hands of William Nelson, superintendent of the coal company, who began repairs and reconstruction. The gold was found in different jars at different times.

Shuts Out Sound.

Persons who wish to concentrate their attention upon studies, business matters or what not, often find themselves most annoyingly distracted by noises of one kind or another. Street traffic may be disturbing; the crying of a baby may irritate, or perhaps the yowling of cats on a back fence or the persistent tooting of a cornet in the neighborhood may induce exasperation.

To obviate this sort of trouble, Gabino Janregul of Bridgeport, Conn., has devised what he calls the "ear silencer."

It is a frame of light construction which may be fixed upon the head in such a way that two screws carrying soft rubber plugs into their ends are inserted into the ears.

When this adjustment has been made exactly right the two screws that carry the rubber plugs enter the wearer's ears horizontally and have only to be tightened sufficiently in order to fit snugly and exclude all troublesome sounds.

Opossum a Pest in Australia.

New Zealand has a native species of opossum which wears a very beautiful fur. It is not at all like the opossum that we know in this country.

Many years ago it was introduced into Australia, and, finding there none of the natural enemies that preyed upon it in its own land, it has since increased in numbers until it has become a serious pest. It is a robber of fruit trees.

However, the value of the animal for its fur is so great as to outweigh the damage it does in the fruit-growing sections, and in view of this fact, the Australians are encouraging the increase of opossums in forest districts. Their skins are becoming a considerable item of export, and already many of them are made up into fashionable garments for women in the United States.—Philadelphia Ledger.

TANEYTOWN LOCALS

Brief Items of Local News of Special Interest to Our Home Readers.

March went out a very wet, snowy lamb.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Elliot, of York, were visitors, over Easter, at the home of their son, Joseph B.

D. Tobias Stouffer and wife, of Philadelphia have been visiting in town and vicinity, this week.

William Snider, Sr., of Harney, who has been ill for some time, is reported to be critically ill at this time.

Percy Mehring, a medical student at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, was home over Easter.

Prof. Harry Ecker has purchased the Dr. Seiss property for $5000.00 cash, and will occupy it immediately.

The members of the Reformed church held a congregational social in the Opera House, on Monday night, that was well attended.

Mrs. Clarence Eckard, who underwent an operation at the U. P. I. Hospital, Baltimore, is improving and expects to be home the last of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Ridinger, of Manheim, Pa., spent from Friday until Tuesday with his father C. E. Ridinger, and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Reid.

Misses Anna and Ida Reigle, of Gettysburg, John Poley, of Hanover, and Mr. Roop, a music teacher, spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. George Bowers.

The Birnie Trust Company was this week designated a depository for the State of Maryland. This shows the standing this Bank has in the state, and is a decided compliment to its management.

As will be seen in another column, offerings will be taken in the churches of Taneytown on Sunday, for the China sufferers. Private offerings are coming in now, varying from $1.00 to $50.00.

Thieves entered the barn of Edgar Miller, on the Emmitsburg State Road, on Monday night, and stole four sets of harness, and a saddle. This is the first case of stealing reported for some time.

Mrs. C. Edgar Yount, of Tampa, Florida, who came north to attend her father's funeral, will remain for a while, or until after the public sale of the property of the estate, which will be on April 23rd.

Wm. M. Ohler, Jr., is remodeling the dwelling portion of his building, and will open an ice-cream parlor in it. This is the oldest store property in the town, having been used continuously as a store for over seventy years.

There were dozens of former Taneytowners home over the Easter vacation, so many that we can not even try to mention them individually. It was an unusually Easterish season, perhaps due to the extremely fine weather that attracted large congregations to the churches.

Come to the public meeting on the 8th., with the idea of helping to accomplish something in the way of getting more houses in Taneytown. There will be many opinions, of course, but let the many be constructive. The need exists—let us find a practical way of filling it, and show that we want the town to grow. Come with ideas fitted to the first need—modest houses at modest rental, for those who can't build for themselves.

"China Live-saving Stamps" are on sale in Taneytown, at the following places; McKinney's Drug Store, Curtis G. Bowers, Koons Bros., D. J. Hesson's, Samuel C. Ott's, A. G. Riffle's, N. B. Hagan's, Wm. M. Ohler's, the Record Office, Reindollar Bros., Roy B. Garner's; and Leatherman's Store, Harney. They cost 3 cents each. What are they for? To help save five million Chinese from starving. One stamp bought saves a life for a day. How many will you save?

The play, "The Upper Room," given in the Opera House, last Saturday night, was something new in the way of plays, for Taneytown, and was no doubt witnessed with varying emotions and opinions. As the play is of course deeply religious, being a story of what took place in the "Upper Room" preceding and following the Crucifixion, it was not in any sense an entertainment, but rather a picture lesson intended to impress the various scenes more clearly in the minds of the audience. The acting, and even the staging of the play with so little room for scenery, was remarkably well done, and showed a high degree of preparation, as well as close study of the various parts.

LIGHTEN YOUR DAILY BURDENS
Plenty of Red Blood Keeps Your Health Good. Easier to Get Things Done
POOR BLOOD A HANDICAP
Pepto-Mangan Builds Up Energy That Fatigue Destroys

When you overwork, worry and strain, your system has extra work to do. If you keep it up very long, your blood simply cannot take care of all the waste. It becomes clogged with poisons.

You keep on working just the same. But when your blood becomes weakened your vitality lowers. You find it a burden to get things done. Your speed lags. You begin to feel "all in." Then is the time to take that splendid tonic, Pepto-Mangan. Your blood needs enriching. Physicians recommend Pepto-Mangan because it builds red corpuscles and makes your blood rich and red. It cleans out all the poisons. You begin to feel better and stronger right away. It is much easier to get work done. You have renewed vitality. Pepto-Mangan is sold in liquid and tablet form. The medicinal value is exactly the same. Take either kind you prefer. But be sure you get the genuine Pepto-Mangan—the name "Gude's" should be on the package.

We are living in tremendous times. Some of the great fundamental principles and institutions of our civilization are in jeopardy. Our only safety is in your loyalty to Christ and his Church. In such an hour as this, be true and faithful.

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED TO WORSHIP WITH US.

"Ye are my friends, if ye do the things which I command you." John 15:14.

To Whom it may Concern

The undersigned citizens of Taneytown, viewing with great concern the scarcity of Dwellings in Taneytown, and the urgent need of more of them to accommodate workers needed in the town and vicinity, feel that public and co-operative action should be taken to relieve the situation; and to that end invite all citizens of town and vicinity interested in the subject to attend a meeting in the Opera House, Friday evening, April 8, at 8 o'clock for the purpose of discussing the advisability of forming an incorporated Real Estate Company, with Capital Stock, for the purpose of buying, building and owning such Real Estate in the town as will help to permanently relieve the scarcity of dwellings for tenants.
