CARROLL COUNTY'S BIG FAIR EVENT.

Brief Outline of the Fair and its Many Important Events.

The annual premium list and program of The Carroll County Fair, to be held at Oher's Grove, Taneytown, August 16-19, 1921, is now ready for distribution. The management is aiming to make this year's Fair "the best ever," and in addition to a liberal and extensive premium list, there will be increased exhibits and a number of fine attractions.

Tuesday will be "Home-coming Day" with Rev. Seth Russell Downie, D. D., of Frostburg, as the chief speaker. Dr. Downie still retains his former active interest in the Fair, and will have an address in harmony with the occasion. There will be a balloon ascension and other attractions, at 3 o'clock.

Wednesday will be "Everybody's Day." The management has been fortunate in securing that inimitable humorist, Rev. W. H. Egge, D. D., of Lebanon, Pa., who will give a "tickler" address. Dr. Egge is sure to be popularly received. After 3:00 o'clock, in addition to the free attractions, there will be a tractor demonstration.

Thursday is "Agricultural Day" when Dr. T. B. Symons, Director of Extension Work in Maryland, will be present and talk on "Co-operative" efforts. There will also be exhibits by specialists on different phases of extension work. This will be the day of real education to farmers—the day that will pay best in things worth knowing.

Friday, is "Athletic Day," and will be the special day of interest to boys and girls. There will be four classes of events, with four events in each class, and a prize ribbon for each. The consignment sale takes place on this day.

A. B. Miller's "ten shows" will be one of the attractions at the Fair; and when the shows are finished there will be "five rides." A big free attraction will be Prof. Park's balloon and parachute work, and all sorts of aeronautical stunts. This is a daily 3 o'clock feature.

All exhibitors wanting space should get in touch with John H. Shirk, manager, Taneytown; while all who are interested in the consignment stock sale, should confer with J. J. Bankard, Union Bridge.

There will be competitive trials of farm machinery, and a large exhibit of live stock and machinery. As the event is still three months in the future, it is impossible to more than generalize on the many attractions that will be shown.

Lutheran Conference at Silver Run.

The Middle Conference of the Lutheran Synod of Maryland held its sessions this week in the Lutheran Church, at Silver Run. Rev. A. G. Wolf and his people entertained the conference in a splendid manner, and the most delightful weather added to the pleasure of the occasion.

The conference opened on Monday evening with a sermon by Rev. L. B. Hafer, of Taneytown, president of the body. The business session lasted through Tuesday and Wednesday forenoon, though the larger part of the time was given to the discussion of doctrinal and practical subjects pertaining to church life and activity.

Tuesday afternoon and evening were devoted to the interests of the Sunday School, and a most interesting and profitable program was prepared for the occasion. Features of the Tuesday evening session were greetings from the president of the Carroll County Sunday School Association, Rev. J. Walter Englar, of New Windsor, and an address by Rev. Prof. A. R. Wentz, of the Gettysburg Theological Seminary. The audience on Tuesday night crowded every part of the church. All the sessions were well attended.

Carroll contains on the program were: Rev. R. R. Richard, Lineboro; Rev. J. B. Ruple and Rev. W. L. Seabrooks, Westminster; Rev. C. G. Leatherman, Manchester; Rev. W. O. Ibach, Union Bridge; Rev. B. E. Petrea, Uniontown, and Mr. G. W. Yeiser, Union Mills. Mr. J. J. Garner was the delegate from Taneytown. A number of Taneytown people attended the Tuesday evening session.

The officers of the Conference were re-elected, as follows: Rev. L. B. Hafer, President; Rev. W. O. Ibach, Secretary; Rev. W. C. Waltemyer, Treasurer; Rev. R. S. Patterson, D. D., Miss. Supt.

Violation of the Lottery Law.

Every now and then we see in an exchange, notice of the "lucky number" that drew a prize at a raffle, or drawing. Either some editors are ignorant of the law, or purposely violate it, as it is distinctly contrary to law to publish any notice of a drawing, before or after, either as a news item or as an advertisement. Such events are considered "lotteries" and as such are prohibited from the use of the mails. No paper carrying such advertising, or news, is admissible to the mails.

Chicago printers have gone back to work on a 44-hour week basis, and a reduction in pay of $4.35 a week.

HIGH PRICES AND WAGES.

Mr. Taft Says the Public must be Patient for a While.

Mr. Taft, who writes signed editorials for the Philadelphia Ledger, had one in Monday's issue, headed "High Prices and Wages" in which he touched the vital points a number of times. He says "There has been a marked reduction in the wholesale price commodities that enter into the cost of living; but that has not gone as far as it should go, due to combinations," some of which have been exposed, as he states.

Further on, he blames the retailers for not following wholesale prices, and then devotes the rest of the article chiefly to the actions of union labor in trying to maintain war prices after the reason for such prices has disappeared. He says:

"The number of the unemployed who are anxiously waiting for an opportunity to work, has reached into millions; but the prestige of the labor unions and the loyalty of many of the unemployed to the principle of the labor unions, have for the time being prevented the operation of normal economic forces."

He says, however, that resistance is growing weaker, the tendency is growing downward, and for the time being the public, that is ground between these resisting forces, must be patient in the confidence that eventually normal adjustment must come, in spite of the struggle of men.

China Famine Relief.

When the local committee was organized for the China Famine Relief Fund, it was the intention to limit the campaign to three weeks, but that plan did not prove to be practicable and the time was extended. The treasurer reports the following amounts contributed and sent in to date:

Reformed Church Collection	$ 22.02
Lutheran Church Collection	75.08
Lutheran Missionary Society	63.50
Taneytown Pres. Church Col	12.17
Piney Creek Pres. church Col	23.37
St. Joseph's Catholic Church Col	5.00
U. B. Church Collection	6.53
Sal. of Life Saving Stamps	18.75
Individual Contributions	12.00
Total	$238.42

In addition to this, before the formation of the local committee, there had been sent by the Piney Creek Presbyterian congregation $30.00, and by the Taneytown Presbyterian Missionary Society $18.00, making a sum total of $286.42. This amount has been gratefully acknowledged by the general committee of New York, who also urge further gifts and state the crisis for the starving people of China will not be passed before the last of June.

While the local committee is not making an additional active canvas, the treasurer will gladly accept and forward any additional contributions.

Coal Must Come Down.

Coal producers who are berating the public for not loading up now with coal for next winter at war inflation prices might as well save their breath. At a time when steel plants, textile mills, railroads, express companies and other industries are readjusting war inflation wages, cutting war inflation production costs and lowering war inflation prices the coal trade cannot expect to stay up in the war inflation clouds and get away with it.

What the coal business needs to do to sell its coal is to offer its product to the public at a right price like any other manufacturer or dealer. If it does not do that the coal trade is not going to sell its coal. It is of no use to tell the public that unless it buys its coal now at the excessive prices demanded for it the public next winter will freeze to death at still higher prices. The public is not going to buy the coal at these excessive prices and the public is not going to freeze to death.

The time has come for plain speaking to the coal producers. Either they must provide the cheaper coal, or Federal, State and local governments, backed by all the power that is in the American people will get on that job for them.—N. Y. Herald.

Our Article on Tax on Admissions, is Correct.

The Record submitted a copy of the article contained in last issue, relative to tax on admissions, to the Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, Baltimore, for his examination and criticism. We have his reply saying:

"We wish to express our appreciation of your efforts to co-operate with this office, and find the article correct in every detail with the exception of the last sentence. The tax is not a 10% tax, but the tax is 1 cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof of the price of admission."

Never Kill a Snake.

"A snake is your best friend," says Miss Elizabeth Remington, of New York, member of the Reptile Study Society. "With only two exceptions—the timber rattlesnake and the copperhead—there isn't a snake in America that can bite you or injure you in any way. A snake will eat the vermin on a farm without touching green things; he will kill every rat and mouse in the cellar; he will purge a well of infection and will protect your household at night by driving away deadly pests. Never kill a snake."—Exchange.

Nathaniel H. Baumgardner was designated foreman of the grand jury, and the following grand jurors were drawn: Harry C. Hesson, Lee C. Leister, Theodore M. Bowman, George M. V. Wantz, Oliver T. Davis, Charles A. Fleming, Walter G. Snader, Herbert G. Englar, Albert Selby, Charles H. Leese, Bernard M. Hesson, John H. Leese, Paul Shipley, Granville Reed, Herbert G. Mathias, Charles W. Koozt, John Sentf, William Hesson, Bradford B. Blizard, William T. Harris, John W. Smith and Theodore R. Strevig.

The following are the petit jurors: Harry Sentf, Edward C. Keefer, Harvey M. Petry, George I. Harman, John T. Miller, Harry A. Allison, John F. Schaeffer, Charles F. Lippy, Joseph F. Utz, William Keck, William H. Bowers, Leonard J. Frick, David B. Reifsnider, William A. Kirchoff, Joshua G. Thayer, Joseph Calvin Dodder, John T. Harris, Howard L. Price, Asa Hepner, Milton A. Zollickoffer, John L. Bollinger, Newton E. Six, Howard F. Legore, Albin F. Conaway, Daniel H. Arrington.

The following is the report of the Grand Jury:

To the honorable, the Judges of the Circuit Court for Carroll County: The Grand Jurors of the State of Maryland, for the body of Carroll County, summoned for May term, 1921, do hereby respectfully beg leave to report that they have been in session for three days, and in that time have examined 94 witnesses, and have found 45 presentments and true bills. The majority of our cases involved larcenies and forgeries. The numerous forgeries happening recently in this county prompt us to warn the citizens of this county against cashing checks for strangers. As required by law, we visited the County Home and the County Jail and we there found the county's property well taken care of, and the inmates properly housed and treated. We extend to the Steward of the County Home and the Sheriff our thanks for their hospitality extended to us at each of these institutions.

In the examination of the license record we recognized the importance of an indexed record, thus making the same possible to be used.

We would recommend to the County Commissioners that the rack over head in the jail be more securely fastened thus preventing the possibility of escape, and also that a window, through which an attempt to escape was made be repaired.

Having concluded all matter which came to our attention, we respectfully ask to be discharged subject to the call of your honors.

Respectfully Submitted,
NATH'L H. BAUMGARTNER,
Foreman.

H. G. Englar, Lee C. Leister, Sec'ys.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

The list of bills as presented to the Board was approved and ordered paid.

The annual re-organization of the Board then took place. Mr. James P. Worts was re-elected President; Mr. A. W. Feeser, Vice-President. After the organization was completed Superintendent M. S. H. Unger then appointed the executive staff, who were approved by the Board and their salaries fixed:

She has had good educational experience and training, and has been a most successful teacher, and popular with students and teachers. It is believed that Miss Cummings will be a most successful supervisor.

Requests for contributions to local funds raised for purposes indicated, were presented to the Board which contributed ten ($10) dollars to the amount already raised in each case, except in the case of Westminster it agreed to make the contribution ten (10%) per-cent of the amount raised for the school, which amounted to $122.00.

Oak Grove, Mrs. Stewart King, $42.43 phonograph; Brown's, Mr. Shamer, $36 (26) phonograph; Westminster, Mr. Seitz, et al., $122.43, etc.; Lawndale, Vernon Abbott, $23.39 phonograph.

The request for a contribution from the Board towards the Westminster Fire Engine drive was not granted.

The various coal bids were submitted, and after careful discussion, the Board deemed it advisable to defer the making of contracts for coal, until later in the summer.

The Board authorized that the usual amount of Twenty-five ($25) Dollars be contributed to the Maryland State Teachers' Association.

The bid of Two Hundred ($200) Dollars for the purpose of constructing a retaining wall at the Mexico school was rejected, and the building of same to be deferred until fall.

A petition in the interest of the New Windsor colored school was laid before the Board, and after careful consideration the Board decided to defer action until next year.

The Board authorized the employment of Mr. Taylor, the attendance officer as the director of repair work on our various small school buildings throughout the county for the summer.

The proposition that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company submitted to the Board relative to the purchase of additional grounds for the Mt. Airy high school was accepted; the price for the same being at the rate of $450.00 an acre.

A further consideration was given to several items asked for in the annual budget, after these corrections, the Superintendent was authorized to submit the budget to the County Commissioners.

Supt. Unger was authorized to proceed to have the necessary repairs made at the Meadow Branch school, in order to open it as a two-room school next year.

The consideration of an alleged balance due N. C. Erb was referred to Charles O. Clemson, Attorney to the Board. An opinion on the same to be made to the Board by Mr. Clemson at the next meeting of the Board.

A committee consisting of President Wantz, Superintendent Unger, Commissioner Feeser, was appointed to call a meeting of the patrons at the Myers building for the purpose of coming to some arrangement with respect to the grading of the grounds at this building.

Airy has secured this cup two successive seasons, and will be one of the contestants for the cup again this year, and the other contestant will be Hampstead.

GERMANY ACCEPTS FINAL DEMANDS.

Resistance Finally Gives Way to Allied Ultimatum.

The German Reichstag by a vote of 221 to 175 yielded on Tuesday night to the terms of the Versailles Treaty, "to the capacity" of the Nation to do so.

The Allied ultimatum required a definite reply, based on "yes" or "no." No conditional reply would be entertained and the ultimatum was formulated to expire on the night of May 12.

The total sum which Germany is called upon to pay is 6,750,000 pounds; disarmament must be carried out by Germany in accordance with the provisions of the treaty, and the trial of war prisoners must be put into effect. Numerous other important terms, in which Germany has been in default, will be enforced.

Non-compliance with the Allied ultimatum would have subjected Germany to the occupation by the Allies of the Ruhr valley and whatever other military and naval measures were deemed advisable.

The Outlook for Crops.

Washington, May 9.—This year's winter wheat and rye crops will be larger than last year, while the hay crop will be about the same as a year ago, the Department of Agriculture's May forecasts issued today indicate.

Winter wheat acreage showed much less than average abandonment as a result of favorable weather during the winter, and a crop of 629,287,000 bushels, or 8,000,000 bushels more than forecast a month ago is estimated on the acreage figures of the May 1 canvass. The area to be harvested is estimated at 38,721,000 acres.

Kansas reported an abandonment of 8 per-cent, which was the heaviest of any of the important producing States, and her crop this year promises to be about 1,000,000 bushels less than last year. Abandonment in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and Nebraska ranged from 2 to 3 per-cent.

The crop in Ohio is forecast at about 13,000,000 bushels more than last year, while in Indiana, Illinois and Missouri it will be about 10,000,000 bushels more than the 1920 crop. Nebraska's crop will be about 1,500,000 bushels smaller, and Oklahoma's about 10,000,000 bushels less than last year.

The area planted to winter wheat last autumn was 40,605,000 acres, while that planted the previous autumn was 41,757,000 acres and the area harvested last year was 37,773,000 acres. The ten-year average per-cent of abandonment of planted acreage is 11 per-cent.

The rye crop this year is forecast at 72,007,000 bushels, based on the condition of the crop May 1, which was 92.5 per-cent of a normal. The forecast a month ago was 66,386,000 bushels, based on the condition of the crop April 1, which was 90.3 per-cent of a normal. The crop last year was 69,318,000 bushels and the condition on May 1 was 85.1, while the 1919 crop was 88,909,000 bushels and the May 1 ten-year average condition is 89.9 per-cent of a normal.

Hay production this year is forecast at 108,233,000 tons, compared with 108,233,000 tons last year and 109,152,000 tons in 1919.

The expected hay acreage is placed at 73,842,000 acres this year, comprising 58,879,000 acres of tame and 14,963,000 acres of wild, compared with a total area last year of 73,181,000 acres.

Better Answer the Question.

The Census Bureau is trying to secure information concerning the amount of incumbrance on homes—mortgages, etc.—and is sending out schedules asking for the information. These requests should be answered, as none of the information will be used separately, or made public in any way, and those who refuse to answer may get into trouble. Presumably, this information is of some value to the census department.

BALTIMORE'S APPEAL.

For Greater Representation in the State Legislature.

Baltimore has for years been agitating for stronger representation in the legislature, based on population and taxable basis, and at the next session of the legislature a strong fight will be made to put through the necessary legislation. Apparently, the claims of the city are well grounded, but there is also reasonable fear that unless there is a change in the style of politics played by Baltimore city representatives, general legislation might suffer.

The following, on the subject, is from the May 6 issue of the Baltimore Municipal Journal, and it appears to be a fair presentation of the city's claims:

"The first direct step toward obtaining for Baltimore more nearly equal representation in the Legislature was taken last Monday afternoon when the Just Government League of Maryland held a meeting in the Mayor's reception room at the City Hall.

By resolution, offered by Mayor Broening and adopted unanimously, it was declared that the citizens of Baltimore should be entitled to elect to the Legislature from their population a Senator from every 50,000, or major portion thereof, and a Delegate from every 20,000, or major portion thereof. In order, however, to manifest the proper spirit of fairness toward the other sections of the State, it was provided that the city's representation in the Senate and House of Delegates should not exceed forty per-cent of the total membership of either branch of the General Assembly.

The principal outlined in this resolution will be incorporated in a proposed amendment to the State Constitution, this amendment to be proposed to the Legislature at its next session when the State conventions of both major political parties will be asked to indorse and insist upon it.

An executive committee was created with Mr. Thom as chairman and one of its first duties will be to draft the proposed amendment to the State Constitution, it being the intention to allow time enough for this committee to obtain the advantages of information from other cities and States who have taken action on the problem.

A feature of Monday's meeting that was particularly encouraging to those who have long since realized the inequalities of Baltimore's position in the Legislature was the interest taken in the subject by the women members of the original committee of one hundred. Not only did they pledge their support to the movement to obtain a fair representation for the city in the General Assembly, but they will carry the fight as far as possible into other organizations of which they are members and which have the welfare of Baltimore at heart.

At present the City of Baltimore has more than 60 per-cent of the taxable property of the State, more than 50 per-cent of the population and pays more than 80 per-cent of the expenses of the State. And yet in the legislature at Annapolis the City of Baltimore has less than 15 per-cent of the Senate and less than 23 per-cent of the House. It is this inequality of representation which the Just Representation League of Maryland desires to correct."

FRIDAY, MAY 13, 1921

All articles on this page are either original, or properly credited. This has always been a fixed rule with this Office, and we suggest the adoption of it by our exchanges.

A new way of putting it, is, that there are no "hard times coming"—its only the "soft times going."

Holding up wages, and pushing down the cost of living at the same time, is an absurd proposition; yet that is just what many are shouting for.

A great deal of publicity is given to the fact that there is not harmony in the G. O. P. ranks in the Senate, largely because Johnson and Borah refuse to keep quiet and follow the crowd. Why not use the steam roller?

The railroaders and miners are "daring them to do it," and claim that government ownership and operation of railroads and mines, can be forced at any time, by the united strike route. See the point? If you don't want government ownership, let present wages alone.

Is it Too Serious?

We are always glad to have honest, helpful criticism of The Record. The publisher of a small weekly, especially, needs to keep in close touch with its readers, and as far as possible to fill the demands of local readers. Not so long ago, one of the long-time readers of our paper, no doubt representing a pretty large class, said he liked the paper, but it was a "little too serious." Another reader volunteered the information that there are "so many things in it I don't understand."

The last criticism we consider a compliment, rather than otherwise; but perhaps the "seriousness" is a proper complaint. The fact is, we have been strongly impressed with the idea that there is much too little of the serious, and too much of the light and selfish, contained in the average newspaper. That the demand for entertainment and humorous articles—for "light reading"—is a demand that should be counteracted by specializing, to some extent at least, on articles that, while perhaps not so popular, are nevertheless the kind that readers should become more concerned about.

We would not like to over-emphasize this feature; nor would we be party to catering merely to the popular, and taking the easier course of letting things in general pass by without protest, when protest is needed. We do not want to pose as the "irresponsible guide; and it is between these two courses, in a measure, that it has been our aim to steer what we call "the policy" of The Record.

The maker of a newspaper must take situations largely as they come, both locally and in general; and if we succeed at all in doing this, then our "too much seriousness" is due to the fact that the public has first created "serious" situations and questions. Shall these be plastered over, or ignored entirely, or should warning be sounded? What would you do about it, if you were an editor, actually interested in doing the most good, and being of the most real service, in your field?

Patent Medicine Advertising.

It must be noticeable to observant readers, that "patent" medicine advertising has almost disappeared from weekly newspapers, especially as it monopolized big space, special positions, and generally made itself conspicuous. There are various reasons for this disappearance the most of which are very clearly explanatory.

The laws in requiring certain observances with reference to narcotics and alcohol, and guaranteed cures, have banished a considerable number of preparations from the press. Newspapers have been exercising greatly more care with reference to publishing deceptive "cure all" statements, and most of them draw the line on cures for "private diseases." Newspaper space has also become more valuable, and space is being demanded for motor vehicles and other large lines of advertising that can afford to pay more for publicity than the "patents."

It is also true that medicine advertising was accompanied with heavy losses to publishers, because of failure to collect bills, even after giving low rates; and another reason is, that the general public is no longer buying all sorts of patent stuff with the eagerness that it once did.

All of this means that the medicines still advertised, are largely representative of the "survival of the fittest," for some of them do possess considerable merit, and the statements used in connection with them are not likely to be greatly exaggerated; while still others have established a regular demand, and some are advertised liberally, aside from the use of newspapers.

The time was when there was no limit to exaggeration in medicine advertising, and expert writers turned themselves loose in the use of words that were best designed to catch the unwary, and especially those afflicted with an ailment of some kind—or who imagined they were. The description of symptoms was reduced to a fine art, and the sureness of cures was made so alluring, that thousands parted with their cash only to be duped.

Taken as a whole, the country has been benefited in many ways by the various agencies that have reduced the number of "patents" from their one-time flaunting position, and the newspapers themselves have had no unimportant part in bringing about the change.

The Primary at the Bar.

Again the primary election system is at the bar of public opinion. The recent decision of the Supreme Court in the Michigan Corrupt Practices Act and the announcement that the advocates of the primary system will propose an amendment to the Federal Constitution to remove all doubt as to the right of the Congress to control primaries as well as elections of Federal officials make the issue a practical one. These things undoubtedly will reopen the debate as to the efficacy of the system as a check on the predatory habits of the men who ordinarily run the political machine.

It is not so many years ago that the primary was one of the chief items in the creed of progressive reformers and faith was implicit that its universal adoption would transfer political control from the bosses to the people. Unfortunately, it has not worked that way. And for the very good reason that the "people" as a whole have left the working of the primary machinery to the very men it was intended to eliminate. Even the most ingenious of inventors of political and governmental machinery have yet to devise an apparatus that will operate automatically to wipe out political abuses and insure the selection of worthy and competent candidates for public offices.

Of course, there is a great deal to be said in favor of the primary system and against the crying evils of the old methods it was intended to cure. But in actual operation it has been manipulated skillfully by the old guard to their own ends, with about as much ease as when the convention method was in vogue. Besides that, it has developed other evils, some of them quite as serious as the former ones. It imposes, for example, an expense upon candidates which makes impossible strict obedience to the various "corrupt practices" laws limiting expenses of candidates, and hence turns well-intentioned persons into involuntary law-breakers. There are occasions, of course as we in Philadelphia will remember, when through factional strife among the bosses the people are given an opportunity to make a choice as between factions. Therefore, if the primary is not to be abandoned as a remedial measure, some new ways will have to be devised to make it a truly effective instrument.

There would be danger, without doubt, in any summary scrapping of the primary system of nominations; but thoughtful reformers will not waste any tears over the disappearance of the primary method of nominating Judge for the higher State courts. That law, just repealed by the Pennsylvania Legislature and the non-partisan ballot were productive of worse evils than any they were meant to remedy. Instead of taking the selection of men for the judiciary away from the political machine it is notorious that the nominations invariably were dictated by the machines. And to this evil was added the peril of the success of self-seeking incompetents, lusting for judicial place and power and possessing the means of conducting a costly primary campaign. The average lawyer of character and ability, properly ambitious for promotion to the bench, does not commonly possess the means to carry on a primary campaign, nor is he willing to put himself under obligations to others who might be willing to spend the money for him.

In the last analysis the question of the control of nominations comes down to the responsibility of the individual voter, without whose consent and connivance the political grafter and autocrat could not exist for an hour. There may be good points in the primary capable of salvage. It is hoped that there may be. But neither the primary nor any other bit of legal machinery can be depended upon to operate itself or to produce wholesome results if operated by men or women out of sympathy with their aim and purpose.—Phila. Ledger

Ignorance.

Thomas A. Edison has a set of questions he puts to young men in his plant who are candidates for positions "higher up." He finds the college men "amazingly ignorant." But such questionnaires as he has issued are likely to expose an ignorance of current events and of established facts that is not confined to those who have had a so-called "liberal education."

Chesterton lately lectured here on the ignorance of the educated, and he was right in pointing out how little we know. In spite of all the ponderous books that have been written, with the dizzying excursions into the realm of higher mathematics and abstruse philosophic speculation, he who starts out in any direction and keeps on going in the given line soon reaches the frontiers of human wisdom and beyond that feels his way where one can help him, "voyaging through strange seas of thought alone."

But our ignorance of common fact and common things is inexorable. Our minds, inert and torpid and viscous, decline the effort. As the legend over Edison's laboratory door says, "A man will resort to almost any expedient to avoid the real labor of thinking." It is hard work to think. The rewards are paid to those who do not shirk the effort. For the results of the blind blunderings of those who do not think and do not know are costly.—Phila. Ledger.

Periodic Bilious Attacks.

Persons subject to bilious attacks at regular intervals know about when to expect an attack. They find that they have no desire for food when an attack is due but usually eat because it is meal time. Skip one meal and take three of Chamberlain's Tablets and you may be able to avoid the attack. Persons subject to periodic bilious attacks should not drink tea or coffee at any time. —Advertisement

Listen, Mr. Harding.

Mr. Harding has succeeded temporarily in sidetracking Senator Borah's resolution for an international conference on disarmament, but he will find it impossible to suppress the expression of public opinion. The President has now to reckon with a more formidable propaganda than that of even so able a champion as the Senator from Idaho. The movement which has been organized by four church bodies representing Catholics, Protestants and Jews, is bound to make itself felt, and to increase in strength as it goes on. The congress of all religious bodies to be held in Chicago in support of the Borah plan will give definite form and body to the popular demand, and with an organized crusade in all parts of the country, will give this issue a practical importance that cannot be minimized.

Mr. Harding, we think, would be wise to anticipate this popular pressure, to take the initiative himself without waiting to surrender to it. He has a fine opportunity to act through our newly acquired representation on the Supreme War Council. What he is asked to do is simply to see whether anything can be done. The calling of an international conference binds us to nothing. But it would be an evidence of a desire to find a way out of the dangers and overwhelming burdens under which the world is now living. We trust Mr. Harding will soon realize the strength of the sentiment that has been aroused by Senator Borah's resolution.—Balt. Sun.

Treatment of Common Colds.

"If all who catch cold could be persuaded to remain in bed for the first twenty-four hours of such an attack" says a well known physician "there would be fewer cases dragging on with distressing symptoms for weeks and often ending in some more serious disease." To make sure of a prompt recovery you should also take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Whether sick or well the bowels should move each day. —Advertisement

LAKE OF FIRE NEVER QUIET

Spectacle Furnished by Hawaiian Volcano May Well Be Said to Be Everlasting.

Hawaii's lake of everlasting fire has never been quiet so far as Hilo local records or traditions testify. That is, not quiet for any length of time.

It covers itself with a black sheet of lava which looks like wet rubber at intervals as regular as the breathing of a sleeper. This black covering no sooner completely hides the living, angry red lava than it cracks and splits with startling noises, breaks into cakes which sink into the burning pit, and the molten lava of the lake is again in commotion. The whole strange performance, as I recall, the freezing over, the breaking up, the renewed billowing of fire, takes less than ten minutes.

The lake so called, is an opening a hundred yards or so wide in the floor of the crater, which is eight miles in circumference. It can be compared to a hole in ice; the crater floor, although of black, hardened lava, is in physical character like rough shore ice, the surface of the lake like water kept in commotion by wind, except for the periodic freezing over. The live lava of the lake rolls in waves which break against its shore, sending up spindrift, which, blown from the top of the waves, hardens into hair-like glass. The natives call this glass "Pele's hair," that lady being the Goddess of Fire.

Little wonder that the excellent deacon who had sat on the edge of the lake in wonder and terror piously answered one who asked him what the lake was like: "Brother, it's a hole in a hole!"—New York Sun.

DENIES CROW IS ALL BAD

Bird That May Be Said to Have Few Friends Finds a Defender in Eastern Writer.

Volumes have been written about the crow, remarks a writer in the Christian Science Monitor. He is famous—yes, and infamous, to not a few of his biographers. Thus he resembles Napoleon. Further, he resembles Napoleon in his complete self-reliance, his cosmopolitanism, and his many-sidedness. The crow is our composite, or ideal bird. He is typical of the class aves. Frequenting our average or general environment and climate, he has adapted himself to the requirements of that average surrounding in an all-around manner. He is about a mean proportional in size between the humming bird and ostrich. He can fly enough, walk enough, wade enough. His beak is long enough, strong enough, round enough, curved enough, so that little which is food defies his efforts at utilization. He does not object to hot summers, wet springs, dry autumns, and icy winters. And, in line with this almost Grecian equilibrium of faculties, experts studying his economic status have at length concluded that his virtues about balance his shortcomings in this field also.

Temples Reveal Character.

People with "bony" temples—the cheek and frontal bones almost covering the temple space—are stolid, non-imaginative and slow in thought and action. To set against those defects, the above type of temples is that which is big, white and flanked with small, well-formed ears. That is the statesman's temple, the author's temple, the temple of the "big man." Orators and noted preachers have this temple. The character indicated is justice, generosity, kindness and a great capacity for forgiveness. This, too, is the long-life temple. Those with temples, which, owing to the shape of the skull and the growth of hair, look high and unduly narrow, are geniuses, with great incentive power, but of erratic temperament. This type of temple is not usually a long-life one.

Denying the Creative Impulse.

Well, this at least may be said of the author's business. Though the machine-made product pile up sales—and dollars—in authorship even as in mercantile trade, it will never make one permanent reputation. Neither will the card index mind that consistently denies the real creative impulse. The creative impulse may make money or it may not—it is incalculable and unconscionable. But any writer who lets it fume unsatisfied while the central office of his mind conducts a coldly intellectual business purely for profit is bound to wake some fine day to find the sudden havoc it has made of all his careful diagrams and codifications. And the last state of that man shall be worse—and just possibly better also—than his first!—From the weekly editorial of the Literary Review.

To Garble.

While modern custom permits the use of the word "garbled" in the sense of selecting the worst and not the best parts of a story, yet the use of the word in this sense is incorrect. The word originally meant to cull out and select the most suitable parts and to reject the worst and least suitable parts. It is therefore incorrect to speak of a "garbled statement" in the sense of a mutilated or dishonest statement, for formerly in London the name "garbler" was applied to officers appointed by law to look after the purity of drugs and spices, and the term "garbled" was applied to such articles only after they had been examined and freed from impurities and improper admixtures.

GIVE BREEDERS FREE RANGE

Most Desirable for Production of Fertile Eggs Intended to Be Used in Incubator.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Hazards which sometimes accompany the incubation of eggs are largely avoidable. Fertile eggs from vigorous breeding stock are necessary in order to obtain good hatches.

Free range for the breeders is most desirable for the production of fertile eggs with vigorous germs, but all eggs produced from such hens should not be used for incubation. Eggs that are abnormally small and poorly shaped or those having thin or very poor shells should be eliminated. Dirty eggs or those badly soiled should not be used. If it is found necessary to set slightly soiled eggs they may be cleaned by rubbing lightly with a damp cloth, care being taken not to rub off any more of the natural bloom than is necessary.

It is never advisable to use for hatching eggs that are more than two weeks old. In freezing weather eggs should be collected two or three times a day so as to prevent their being chilled. Neither a hen nor an incubator will hatch strong chicks from eggs containing weak germs or from those which have not received proper care.

In preparing the nest for the sitting hen, put from three to four inches of damp earth or a piece of grass sod in the bottom of the nest before the nesting material is put in to provide moisture. When the hen becomes broody, and before she is transferred to the nest for sitting, she should be dusted with insect powder or sodium fluoride. In doing this hold the hen by the feet with the head down, working the powder well into the feathers. This should be repeated about the eighteenth day of incubation so as to be sure that there are no lice present when the chicks are hatched.

The hen should be moved at night from the regular laying nest into the nest where she is to be set. The latter nest should be in some out-of-the-way place where the hen will not be disturbed. In order to make sure that the hen will continue to stay in the new nest, she should be started with one or two china nest eggs. If, at the end of the second day when the hen should be permitted to leave her nest for food and water, she returns in a short time, the nest eggs may be replaced with the eggs that are to be incubated.

Throughout the period of incubation the eggs and nests should be kept clean. Sometimes it will be necessary to change the nesting material. Eggs should be tested twice during the incubation period, preferably on the seventh and fourteenth days, and all infertile eggs and those with dead germs should be removed. When the eggs begin to hatch, the hen should be confined and not disturbed until the hatching is complete. If she becomes restless remove the chicks as they are hatched and keep them in a warm place until the hatch is complete, when all should be returned to the mother hen.

INCREASED EGG PRODUCTION

Highest Number of Eggs Obtained From Mash Composed of Meat Scrap and Cornmeal.

The highest egg production in poultry-feeding tests conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture were obtained from a pen receiving a mash composed of four pounds bran, four pounds middlings, 26 pounds meat scrap, and 66 pounds cornmeal.

This ration has been one of the best mashes, giving consistent high production over a period of several years, and is not distinctly different from the mash used in the wheatless ration, which has also given very good production.

SIMPLE HINTS FOR POULTRY

To Keep Young Brood in Healthy Condition Supply Clean Water and Plenty of Grit.

A successful poultryman offers a few simple hints for keeping the young brood in health, as follows: Give clean water; supply plenty of grit; feed a variety of cracked and whole grain, mostly in a dry state; keep chicks out of the grass when wet with dew or rain.

Playthings for Baby.
Many playthings can be made for small children from pasteboard.

To make a wagon use a four-cornered box to which pasteboard wheels should be attached by wooden axles, these latter put through the sides of the box close to the bottom. Use common pins or small nails to hold the wheels on the axles. A small box inside the wagon does for a seat. Cut out a horse from pasteboard, stand him in front of the wagon, then cut the dasher down a little way. Put Dobbin's tail into this and if his feet touch level the rig is complete.

Ancient Zoological Gardens.

Records show that King Nezahualcoyotl had zoological gardens in Tezcuco, Mexico, in the middle of the Fifteenth century, and in the next century Cortez found aviaries and fish ponds at Iztapalapan. Montezuma II, emperor of Mexico in the beginning of the Sixteenth century, had large collections of animals in the gardens of his capital.

Almost all of the modern zoological gardens date from comparatively recent years, and contain large collections of fine animals, more suitably housed than at any time in the history of the world.

Testing Material in Cloth.

Mixtures of cotton and wool may be tested by raveling a bit of cloth and burning two of the threads, one running with the selvage, the other crosswise to it. The cotton thread burns quickly with a flame and smells like wood; wool chars slowly without a flame and smells like burning hair. Shoddy, or remanufactured wool, is often used with wool. This can be detected by raveling out a bit of the material, when short broken fibers may be seen. In general, a woolen material which has cotton in it will become more wrinkled when wet than all-wool goods.

CAREERS FOR YOUNG BRITONS

Compared With Opportunities in America They May Be Said to Be Decidedly Limited.

Here in America we are quite likely to take for granted that if a man has a good education, then his finding of an opportunity to apply it profitably is a comparatively simple matter.

Certainly our whole educational program, and especially our whole line of educational appeal and propaganda, will have to be changed the moment that assumption is no longer to be made. Whiting Williams writes in Scribner's. "Equip yourself, Young America, and the country's yours!" we say in effect to our youth whether in school or at work.

In Britain there is much testimony to the effect that that assumption is not thus to be made.

Unless they spend additional years training for medicine, the law, or other of the professions, graduates of the universities must pretty much expect to find berths in the civil service. The exams for that are extremely difficult. Those who come out of them with marks at the top of the list get the best of the positions in the most important departments at home. They next go out to India or other provinces, while those below them take the second grade of the places here—and so on.

The pay starts at about £300 (nominally $1,500, and considerably more in buying power), with gradual yearly increases up to a certain maximum and a pension.

WHY

Rome Objects to Proposed Use of Coliseum

Some of that emotionalism which exalts the good old times seems to have cropped out in Rome over the government's lease of the historic Coliseum to a theatrical company.

A former mayor of Rome brands the act as "a desecration," and most citizens are said to indorse the sentiment.

The Coliseum, of course, is hoary with interesting traditions, among which are very sacred Christian traditions. But it is difficult to see how its return to the uses of amusement would desecrate it.

That was what it was built for, and it is hardly likely that modern theatrical art would profane it any worse than it was profaned by the amusement art of the later emperors.

Leasing the ancient structure for modern spectacles may indeed exemplify a poetic justice, "While stands the Coliseum Rome will stand," and now it becomes a potential revenue producer to aid a country in need of new sources of revenue.

What a place for a motion-picture performance of "Life Under the Caesars," with the emperor in his box and the gladiators in the arena standing face to face with death and with the Roman populace, the senators, the vestals, the gilded youth, the merciless audience turning its thumbs down, and all that! Existence would have a new thrill for the movie fan and the circus would help pay treasury bills.—New York World.

SMILE SELDOM MAKES ENEMY

Why It Would Pay Any Person to Cultivate a Cheerful Disposition and Demeanor.

If I were to be born into this world again and had the choice of my endowments I should arrange very carefully about my smile, writes "Alpha of the Plough," in the London News.

There is nothing so irresistible as the right sort of smile. It is better than the silver spoon in the mouth. It will carry you anywhere and win you anything, including the silver spoon. It disarms your enemies and makes them forget that they have a grudge against you.

"I have a great many reasons for disliking you," said a public man to a friend of mine the other day, "but when I am with you I can never remember what they are." It was the patch of sunshine that did for him. He could not preserve his hostility in the presence of the other's disarming smile and gay good humor. He just yielded up his sword and sunned himself in the pleasant weather that the other carried with him like an atmosphere.

Really first-rate smiles are singularly rare. Only rarely do we light upon the smile that is a revelation, Harry Lauder's smile is like a national institution or a natural element. It is plentiful enough to fill the world. It is a continual and abundant feast that requires neither words nor chorus, and when he laughs you can no more help feeling happy than he can.

Why Red Ant Takes Prisoner. The red ant is a typical soldier; he does nothing but fight. He has powerful jaws, and is generally strong, but he cannot get along without a slave to feed him. If he were left to feed himself he would die. He continually raids the nests of weaker insects and brings them back as prisoners, thus solving the servant problem and keeping himself well supplied with attendants. There is a species of ant in Australia called the bulldog ant, because of its extreme pugnacity. It will fight anything and everything. If one of these ants is accidentally cut in half, one half will actually fight the other half to the death.

Why One Knocks on Wood. There was at one time past a general belief that trees and humanity were allied in close bonds of union, and that certain trees had healing qualities. It was customary for a person afflicted with disease to take a woollen string of three colors, and with his right hand tie his left loosely to the limb of a tree, then slip it out and hasten homeward without casting a glance back, the belief being that the disease was transferred to the tree by touching it. Thus from a tree it has become common practice to touch any article made of wood to ward off misfortune.

Why the New Clerk Stayed. "That new clerk of ours won't do," said the junior member. "Why not?" asked the head of the firm. "He was an hour late the first morning he came to work."

"I spoke to him about that. He said he overslept because he sat up until two o'clock in the morning writing out-of-town friends and relatives about what a splendid concern had given him a job. We need a quick thinker around here and I guess we'd better keep him."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Why Smell Would Be Enough. The young woman entered the grocery and approached the meat counter. "Give me a nickel's worth of cheese," she said to the butcher. "Why, lady, you won't get a smell for a nickel," the butcher replied, giving her a disgusted glance.

"That's all I want," was the triumphant answer, "it's for a mouse trap."—New York Evening Post.

We ought not to get books too cheaply. No book, I believe, is ever worth half so much to its reader as one that has been coveted for a year, and bought out of saved halfpence, and perhaps a day or two's fasting. That's the way to get at the cream of a book.—Ruskin.

CAKES OF LONG AGO. Cakes made at home, mixed and baked by the housemother herself, are much more appreciated by the family than if much more is spent by buying them in the shops.

A box of homemade cookies or small cakes makes a much-prized gift and the one who makes and gives them will find a greater pleasure if the gift is a result of her handiwork.

Little Plum Cakes.—Measure four cupfuls of flour, one cupful each of sugar and butter, one teaspoonful of mixed spices, and one half teaspoonful of salt. Beat the butter to a cream; add three well beaten eggs, one-half pound of raisins, the seedless kind, and one half-pound of currants. Add to the flour mixture and beat hard for ten minutes. This will form a stiff paste. Dredge flour on tin baking sheets and drop the batter the size of a walnut on them. Bake in a brisk oven.

Seed Cakes.—The old-fashioned seed cakes which our grand and great-grandmothers enjoyed have not lost any of their deliciousness. Wash one cupful of butter in one-half cupful of rose water, then cream it and add two cupfuls of sugar. Beat four eggs and add to the first mixture with three tablespoonfuls of caraway seed and three drops of the oil of cinnamon; add one-half cupful of boiling water with one-half teaspoonful of soda and a half teaspoonful of salt. Add four cupfuls of flour and, if needed, a little milk. Drop on buttered paper or baking sheets in balls the size of nutmegs and bake in a moderate oven. This recipe dates back to 1700.

Cider Cake.—Cream one cupful of butter, add two cupfuls of sugar, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of cinnamon and allspice mixed; add three well beaten eggs, a cupful of cider and one teaspoonful of soda. Mix with three cupfuls of flour and bake in a loaf in a moderate oven. Cover with brown sugar frosting. This cake was a great favorite in 1796.

There are some strange leaves in Australia which the people used to think could walk alone. Whenever there came a gust of wind these queer leaves blew off in a perfect shower. As leaves generally do, they turned over and over, and rested upon the ground. Then they would seem to crawl toward the trunk of the tree from which they fell. Since that time it has been found that these leaves, as they were thought to be, were real insects and lived upon those very trees. Their bodies are thin and flat and their wings veined, just like a leaf. If they are disturbed their legs, which are folded away under their bodies, leave their whole shape exactly like the leaf of a tree, with stem and all. Bright green in the summer, these singular little insects, chameleon-like, slowly change their color to a dingy brown, just like a leaf that has been frosted. It is strange that, with wings, they do not fly, but rather walk or crawl along the ground.

Good Story of How Franklin Was Converted to the Idea of Fish as Human Food.

One day Benjamin Franklin—James Parten tells us in his "Life of Benjamin Franklin"—was on a sloop which was becalmed on a certain island. The sailors, as is still the custom when a ship is becalmed, amused themselves by fishing. Franklin witnessed the catching of the fish with regret. But soon there came to tantalize his nostrils a most alluring odor from the frying pan. So, as Franklin used to tell the story, he went over his reasoning again to see if there was not a flaw in it.

It occurred to him that when the fish were opened he had seen smaller fish in their stomachs.

"Ah!" said Franklin. "If you eat one another I don't see why we may not eat you!"

So Franklin dined upon the fish very heartily, and thereafter ate what others ate. When telling this story Franklin ended with an observation which is often attributed to Tallyrand, but which we are assured was a familiar joke with Franklin. This was:

"So convenient a thing it is to be a reasonable creature, since it enables one to find or make a reason for everything one has a mind to do!"

Persian Bread Has Many Uses.

At Kasvin, Persia, a British patrol base, we were lodged in empty wards of the military hospital, writes Mary E. Griscom in Asia Magazine. Our provisions had almost given out by this time, and we were reduced to Persian stone bread. So far as I know, only the coconut and the bamboo serve more purposes than the flaps of Persian bread, which are about two feet long, one foot wide and a quarter of an inch thick. If it is raining, the Persians use them on their heads as umbrellas; and if it is sunny, as parasols; in winter, they wrap the flaps around their shoulders. If they do not need them for protection they roll them up and carry them under their arms. In the hospitals they spread them out on empty beds to dry.

The Right Man for Molly

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD.

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Mrs. Brayton was tremendously disturbed. Never since Molly's babyhood days with their anxieties attendant upon scarlet fever and measles combined had she been so exercised. For she knew that her winsome daughter, now arrived at the witching age of twenty, was facing a crisis, the outcome of which would affect Molly's entire life. Molly, in short, was about to choose a husband.

Now, some girls are not in a position to choose. They must wait and be chosen. Not so with Molly. Her long lashed eyes of a radiant blue, her sunny waves of hair, her provocative laugh had brought various applicants for her hand. But apparently only two were still in the running—Tom Hall, fairly poor, unquestionably solid, and Bates Schuyler, fairly rich, unquestionably insecure.

Some mothers would have preferred Bates. Mrs. Brayton, ranking character above prosperity alone, preferred Tom. While Molly herself—but at this point we arrive at the reason for Mrs. Brayton's disturbance. Molly apparently loved Bates. Mrs. Brayton deduced as much from a brief colloquy she had overheard. Bates had brought Molly home from the theater and Mrs. Brayton, parentally sitting up for her daughter, had unwittingly caught Bates' parting words and Molly's response as they stood together a brief moment in the hall.

"To have you say you love him, Molly, is more than any man deserves," Bates had said. And even as Mrs. Brayton's heart lost a beat she marveled that Bates, whom she considered insufferably spoiled, could speak so humbly.

"But, remember, Bates," came Molly's whisper, "nobody knows it yet, and I haven't really said 'yes'!" Then silence and the closing of the door.

With Mrs. Brayton's disappointment for herself mingled her sorrow for Tom. During the long night she pondered.

Paused in Astonishment.

By Molly's own admission she wasn't as yet irrevocably bound. Suppose it wasn't too late—suppose a removal from Bates' undeniably fascinating personality would lessen the attraction! It was worth trying.

Over their toast and grapefruit the following morning Mrs. Brayton sprang her scheme. "We leave for Highland lodge this afternoon, dear," she said quite casually.

Molly, a bit of toast halfway to her mouth, paused in astonishment. Then she slipped the morsel between curling red lips. "Lovely, mother," she acquiesced. And Mrs. Brayton, braced for opposition, relaxed, relieved but surprised.

While her mother was packing, Molly said good-by to Bates over the telephone and wrote to Tom, who was away on a business trip. Three hours later she and her mother were on the train.

The letter which Molly had written found Tom in a stuffy little hotel in one of the smaller cities of a Western state. The top of his table was strewn with papers containing estimates of the project for which his firm had sent him away. He brushed them aside and bent his well-set head over the written words of the girl he had loved for twenty years—he being two years older than she. It wasn't a long letter. It wasn't literary. It had two misspelled words.

But at the end Tom paused as if he could not believe the words he saw. Then, like a released spring, he jumped to his feet, pulled out his watch, seized a timetable, swept the papers into his grip, closed it with a snap, seized his hat and was out of the door.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Brayton, in spite of an inherent dislike for platitudes, reminded herself frequently that if there was ever a case of "out of the fryingpan into the fire," she was its illustration. Bates Schuyler was bad enough, but the young man Molly annexed the third meal in the dining room at Highland lodge was a great deal worse. His having graduated from high school with Tom Hall was not in her eyes sufficient pretext for allowing him to take her daughter canoeing, rowing and walking at all hours.

"Molly," and Mrs. Brayton's tone had a ring of despair, "to go around so exclusively with this—this Penrod person doesn't seem quite fair to—"

"To whom, mother?" asked Molly indignantly.

"To me!" said poor Mrs. Brayton—and then she had the grace to look confused at the surprise in the eyes of her daughter.

The day came when Mrs. Brayton, desperately feeling the need of assistance, decided on a bold stroke. If Molly could enjoy so greatly the companionship of a comparative stranger, her feeling for Bates could not be very deep. A word to Tom and his arrival at the right moment—again Mrs. Brayton's hopes mounted. A telegram, economically expressing the situation in ten words, went over the wires—and chased Tom for some distance across the continent.

Highland lodge was at its loveliest on the night that Tom arrived. A silver moon climbing above Highland mountain showered with radiance the lake and lawns and porch and bathed with its glow the white-clad figure which sat on the steps waiting.

Molly was waiting for Jack Penrod. But when he came Molly had vanished—vanished into the arms of a tall stranger who turned as Jack approached, then held out his hand and cried: "Jack Penrod, as I live!"

And Molly, emerging shyly, held out a slim hand, too. "Mr Penrod has helped some tedious hours pass, telling me about the things you used to do in school, Tom," she said.

Later Mrs. Brayton received the explanation which was certainly due her.

"I don't see," she complained, bewildered, "how you can love Bates Schuyler and Tom Hall at the same time, Molly!"

"Mother, what an idea!" cried Molly indignantly. "What do you mean?"

"But I overheard you tell Bates you loved him, even if you hadn't quite said 'yes,'" explained Mrs. Brayton, patiently.

For a moment Molly looked blank. Incidentally so did Tom. Then she laughed joyously. "Oh, mother, I see it all! You carted me off to this place because you heard me tell Bates, who had just asked me to marry him, that I couldn't because I loved another man, although I hadn't told him so yet."

"Well," said Mrs. Brayton, after a moment, "so much is clear. But how did Tom finally discover that you loved him? He came here because I telegraphed."

"Not altogether," smiled Tom. "When your telegram reached me I was speeding this way as fast as express trains could carry me. You see, before your telegram I received a letter from Molly in which she said—'he looked at Molly for permission to go on, and Molly, in spite of a self-conscious blush, allowed him to continue.'"

"Mother is carting me off to Highland lodge and I'll marry the first man who comes to my rescue! So I took no chances, but came at once!"

"There wasn't much chance involved!" laughed Molly. "You were the only man to whom I wrote of my predicament!"

And Mrs. Brayton, reading the look in Tom's eyes, considerably walked out of the room.

KEEP THE MACHINERY OILED

Little Things That Irritate May Be Banished From the Well-Oiled Household.

Assuredly the hundreds of little things making up everyday life rasp the family nerves. Whether they be out of order, grating and squeaking, or whether they run smoothly, well oiled by wise oversight, is up to the keeper of the house.

There is the story of Mandy to illustrate what the constant drip, drip of one small irritation can do.

"Mandy," said his mistress, "come in and see my new ouija board. Don't you want to talk to your dead husband on it?"

"Good laws, no, honey!" said Mandy, shrinking back. Then she added, with a tired sigh: "I done heah dat man talk fo' twenty yeahs. He didn't say much, jes' 'Got any money, Mandy? but I don't wanna heah him talk no mo'!"

Worry along with the small irritations "no mo'." Use common sense; get rid of them and smile, because nature is smiling.—Boston Globe.

Earth's Oldest Living Thing.

With full appreciation of the beauty, and recognition of the majestic size of the giant cypress of Mexico, exception must be taken to the supposition that it is the "oldest tree in the world." The honor of being the "oldest living thing" belongs to the General Sherman tree in the Sequoia national park in California.

The Mexican cypress grows to enormous size, and is believed to attain an age of 2,000 years, but it must be remembered that the General Sherman was "a lusty youth of 1,500 summers when Christ was born." Its exact age cannot be determined without counting the rings, but it is probably well in excess of 3,500 years. The General Sherman, greatest of all the celebrated Sequoias, with stupendous proportions admitting of no exaggeration, stands unassailed as the largest and oldest living thing.—American Forestry Magazine.

NEBULA SHOWS SOME SPEED

Body Flying Through the Heavens at Rate of Two Thousand Kilometers a Second.

The Lowell observatory in Flagstaff, Ariz., has held a stop watch on the fastest moving object ever discovered. The spiral nebula catalogued as No. 584, Dreyer's catalogue, constellation of Cetus, is flying through the heavens at the rate of 2,000 kilometers a second. An airplane going at this speed would circumnavigate the earth at the equator in less than half a minute. The spiral nebulae are the swiftest moving objects in the known universe, but no one has ever before been detected shooting through the heavens at much more than half the speed of 584-Dreyer-Cetus. Most stars move slowly and sedately along at about 100 kilometers a second. What is perhaps rather humiliating to us earth dwellers is the fact that 584-Dreyer-Cetus is moving in the direction away from our own earth and sun.

Of course the speed of light, which is nearly 300,000 kilometers a second, makes the speed of the spiral nebulae seem insignificant. But light does not have to "carry weight," whereas the nebulae, though perhaps an extremely diffuse and tenuous form of matter, are none the less material objects of quite considerable ponderosity. So, until we get later news from the celestial racetracks, we can state that the spiral nebula in Cetus is the speediest thing coming down the "celestial pike."—New York Independent.

SPORT ADORED BY FILIPINOS

Cock Fighting the One Occupation That Appeals to the Heart of the Brown Brothers.

In every one of the larger cities of the Philippines and throughout every one of the thousands of little barrios—from northern Luzon to southern Mindanao—little barrios that fringe the ocean's edge or nestle among the mountains there is but one universal and adored sport, but one game that is pre-eminently popular from the mountain fastnesses of the headhunters to the southern shores of Moroland, and that is cock fighting.

Every Sunday morning—for Sunday is the great day for the sport—at the first crack of dawn along the roads and trails that lead into the little settlements and on the streets that twist through the smelly and ramshackle barrios, will be met numbers of Filipinos walking with a quick, jaunty step, anticipation written plainly upon their brown faces and an unusual light in their dark eyes. Each carries his favorite game cock under his arm, and all are converging upon the cockpit.

"Lost" Lincoln a Mystery.

An oil painting of Abraham Lincoln, 25 by 35 inches in size, rescued several years ago from a pile of supposedly worthless furniture taken from the old Red Lion inn in Philadelphia, today forms a mystery over which there is much discussion by artists. After its rescue the picture was hung in a Philadelphia residence where a painter, Baruch M. Feldman, happened upon it and purchased it. He began the work of reclaiming it, and after the dirt had been removed the portrait stood out, clear and well defined in all its features.

Artists who have seen the picture are agreed that the character of the portrait is such that the suggestion that it might have been painted from a photograph is rendered absurd. Who painted the "lost" Lincoln is a mystery, and there is no mark or sign to give those studying it a clew that might lead to its identification.

Shows Kindergarten's Value.

The importance of the kindergarten as an Americanizing influence was urged by Maj. Bradley Martin, president of the National Kindergarten association, at the recent regional citizens' conference in New York.

"The kindergarten," said Major Martin, "is obviously the ideal means of Americanizing the family through the child; as the child through singing patriotic songs and playing games with other children and receiving moral and ethical instruction, not only learns our language, but also adopts our point of view and becomes a patriotic citizen; and through mothers' meetings and home visits the family is assisted by the kindergarten teacher in the difficult task of adapting itself to the economic and social conditions that it finds in this country."

May Discover Earth's Secret.

On the shores of Lough Neagh, in Ireland, mysterious explosions, generally occurring in warm and fine weather, have long been known as "water guns."

The most plausible theory to account for these strange noises is that they are caused by movements of rocks—settling, perhaps—deep down in the earth's crust. It has been suggested that they might be profitably studied with the help of the newly invented listening devices, by which even the smallest sounds transmitted through the ground can be heard.—Philadelphia Ledger

Only Outdoor Inauguration.

The United States, although its capital is in a more rigorous climate than those of many republics, is alone in having an "al fresco" inauguration. The first four Presidents were inaugurated indoors, and beginning with the third President, Jefferson, the inaugurations took place in Washington. Monroe, the first President to be sworn in out of doors, chose the east portico of the capitol because of a dispute as to whether he should be inaugurated in the house of representatives or the senate chamber. After a return to the indoor inauguration by Jackson, the outdoor ceremonies were resumed. Because they seemed to fit in so well with American ideas of democracy, permitting the general public to see the procedure, they have been retained.—National Geographic Society Magazine.

Length of Hair Marked Caste.

For a long time the length of hair was considered a mark of caste in France. Only members of the royal family and princes of the blood could wear their hair long. Polled hair was a sign of obedience and inferiority. To cut the hair of a prince was to deprive him of his right of succession to the throne.

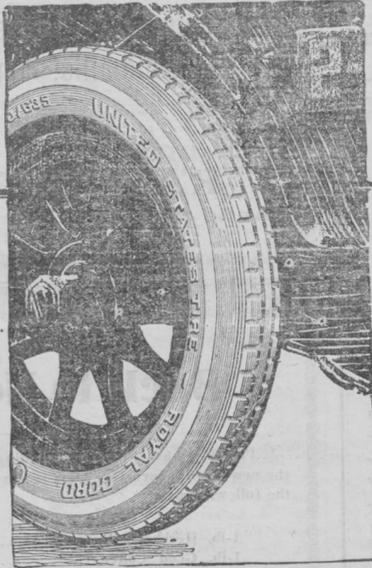

Notwithstanding these facts, Charlemagne liked to wear his hair short. The name of his son, Charles the Bald, indicates the style of coiffure he affected. The Emperor Theophilus was also afflicted with a bare crown and he, to shun the notoriety of it, strongly urged his subjects to cut the hair on their heads, advancing numerous reasons, sanitary and otherwise, for its accomplishment.

THE U. S. ROYAL CORD

A famous tire—and a famous tread. Acknowledged among motorists and dealers alike as the world's foremost example of Cord tire building. Always delivering the same repeated economy, tire after tire, and season after season. The stripe around the sidewall is registered as a trade-mark in the U. S. Patent Office.

How you can measure tire value in 1921

OFTEN it's surprising the number of different tire views that come out in a chance talk at the curb or in the leisure of a friend's garage.

Almost every day you come across the man human enough to believe he can outguess the cut-price tag on "job-lots," "discontinued lines" and "surplus stocks."

His opposite is the hardpan car owner who sticks year in and year out to a standard brand as the only rational economy.

Many will remember the scarcity of U. S. Tires last year.

A hardship at the time, but a benefit now. There are no U. S. Tires to be worked off—no accumulations—no forced selling of any U. S. brand—no shipping of tires from one part of the country to another to "find a market."

There are 92 U. S. Factory Branches. Each one gets its share of U. S. Tires. There is a broad, constant, even distribution of U. S. Tires always going on from these Branches to the dealer.

Buy a U. S. Tire anywhere—in a community of 500 people or even less—and you get a fresh, live tire of current production—with all the original service and mileage the factory put into it.

The owner of a medium or light-weight car stands on equal ground with every other car owner.

Any United States Tire is a universal full money's worth—backed up with a leadership policy of equal quality, buying convenience and price for everybody.

LESSON FOR MAY 15

WORKING WITH OTHERS.

LESSON TEXT—I Cor. 12:4-27.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular.—I Cor. 12:27.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—I Kings 5:1-12; Neh. 3:1-32; 4:15-23.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Helping One Another, INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Team Work.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Co-operation or Competition.

This Scripture pictures the church, the body of Christ, under the figure of the human body. The topic "Working With Others" can only have application to Christians working with each other; for it is as members of the body of Christ that this relationship and obligation are set forth. The church is an organism, not merely an organization. As such it is:

I. One Body (vv. 12-20).
As a body it has many members, each with a definite ministry or function. Many members are essential to a body or organism. So it is with the church. Each member has its own gift and office. The proof of this oneness is that by the sovereign act of the Holy Spirit all believers are constituted one body (v. 13). A multiplicity of organisms does not make a body, but a multiplicity of members with their separate functions. There is no room for jealousy or discontentment among them (vv. 15, 16). It would be as reasonable for the foot to complain of its lot and refuse to function as a foot, as for one member of a church to envy the place of another. A deacon who is such by the appointment of God should not complain that he is not a minister. The church needs its foot-members, that is, those who are swift to run on its errands; it needs its eye-members, who are quick to perceive opportunities for service; it needs its ear-members, who are quick to hear the call to duty; it needs its tongue-members, who can speak forth the message of truth; it needs its hand-members to perform its many deeds of kindness. Each member of the church has its place by the sovereign will of God (v. 18). If this were realized there would be the most efficient co-operation among the members of the church. The pastor would faithfully do the work of a pastor; the minister, the work of a minister; the teacher, the work of a teacher, etc.

II. The Mutual Dependence of the Members of the Body (v. 21).
They must co-operate for the life and service of the body. As the foot cannot dispense with the head, the eye with the hand, etc., so in the church, even the most highly gifted are dependent upon those of the lower order. Self-conceit and pride are as much out of place on the part of the highest in ability as of the lowest. In fact, a sober realization of this will do away with selfish pride.

III. The Least Attractive Members Are the Most Necessary (vv. 22, 23).
In the human body the heart is of more vital importance than the tongue. So in the church prayer is of much more importance than the gift of eloquence. Many examples could be given of those who wrestled with God in the closet, doing more for the cause of Christ than those who shone forth most conspicuously in the public eye. The lungs are never seen or heard, yet without them the tongue could not utter a sound.

IV. The Different Members Have Been Adjusted by God (vv. 24, 25).
So perfectly has this been done that if each performs its own function there will be harmony in the body. All schism in the church is due to failure of one member to perform its duty because of envy of the position of another. By considering Christ the head and obeying Him all strife and division in the church will be eliminated.

V. Members Are Sympathetically Related (vv. 25-27).
One member should have the same care for the other as for itself. The eye has the same concern for the foot as it has for itself; so the most eloquent has the same solicitude for the humblest member as for itself. This is true because the suffering of the one is the suffering of the other; the honor of the one is the honor of the other; the sorrow of the one is the sorrow of the other; the property of the one is the property of the other; the shame and disgrace of the one is the shame and disgrace of the other. This is true because there is a common life which is derived from and directed by its head, Jesus Christ (Eph. 5:23).

Doing Things.
God made us to do things, and there is no tonic like that which comes from doing things worth while. A clear conscience and a clean life are far more to be desired than money. Real happiness without the achievement of some aim is unthinkable.

More Valuable Than Gold.
A good disposition is more valuable than gold; for the latter is the gift of fortune, but the former is the dower of nature.—Addison.

POULTRY CACKLES

DISINFECTING DOES NOT KILL

Painting Roosts and Dropping Boards of No Value in Destroying Chicken Parasites.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There have been many advocates of the theory that chicken lice can be killed by painting the roosts and dropping boards or the whole interior of the poultry house with various oil mixtures, the idea being that the vapors or gases arising from these points penetrate the feathers of the roosting fowls and kill the lice. This method has been given a very extensive trial by specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, and not one of the 42 different preparations tested was found to be of any value. These preparations contained one or more of the following ingredients: Phenols, tar oils, hydrocarbon oils, cresote oil, carbon disulphid, wood-tar distillate, benzol, nitrobenzene, naphthalene, anthracene oil, and pyridine.

Dusting is Most Satisfactory Method of Killing Vermin.

In these experiments the roosts and dropping boards or the whole interior of the house were thoroughly painted or sprayed just before the fowls went to roost, and all doors, windows, and ventilators were closed during the first night. Five badly infested fowls were used in each test, and at the end of one week examination was made for living lice. Although an occasional dead louse was found on the dropping boards, in no case was the treatment of any practical value. Since many of these preparations were found to be effective when used as fumigants in small boxes, it is apparent that the ineffectiveness of house treatment is due to the fact that the fumes do not become concentrated enough to kill the lice. Tests were also made with lime-sulphur applied in the same way; this also was found to be of no value.

GIVE CHICKENS FREE RANGE

Growing Fowls Are Enabled to Obtain Quantities of Bugs, Worms, Green Feed, Etc.

When the garden crops have reached maturity or are far enough developed to suffer little damage from chickens the flock should be given free range. There are times in late summer and early fall when the benefit received by the poultry will exceed the slight injury some garden products may incur.

Free range enables growing chickens to obtain quantities of green feed, bugs, worms and other things. The chickens therefore require less grain and are less liable to sickness or disease. Exercise and ability to range for even a few hours a day is beneficial to a flock that has been kept in confinement during spring and early summer.

CONTROL OF LICE AND MITES

Dust Bath Will Aid Materially, but Should Not Be Depended Upon Entirely.

While it is well to provide a good dust bath for chickens, it cannot be depended upon for louse and mite control, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. It is far better to eradicate the pests completely. The main difficulty about depending upon dust baths is that some fowls seldom dust themselves, and those which dust freely never completely free themselves of lice. The dust bath should be kept under cover and may consist of fine road dust with coal ashes added.

WATCH HATCHING DUCK EGGS

Care Must Be Taken That Empty Shells Do Not Telescope Over Eggs Just Pipped.

When hatching duck eggs under a hen, watch the eggs while ducklings are hatching and remove empty shells from the nest at once. Sometimes empty shells telescope over eggs just pipped, causing the death of the unhatched duckling. If the hen is at all nervous and inclined to tramp on the ducklings, it is well to remove them as soon as hatched to a warm lined basket until all are hatched.

Be Still!

They were on a honeymoon trip. The bridegroom felt indisposed and the bride slipped out to do a little shopping. In due time she returned and tripped blithely up to her room, a little awed by the number of doors that all looked alike. But she was sure of her own and tapped gently on the panel.

"I'm back, honey, let me in."
No answer.
"Honey, honey, let me in!" she called again, rapping louder, still no answer.

"Honey honey, it's me. Let me in." There was silence for several seconds; then a man's voice, cold and full of dignity came from the other side of the door.

The Facts About Rheumatism.

More than nine out of ten cases of rheumatism are either chronic or muscular rheumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment. All that is required is to massage the affected parts freely with Chamberlain's Liniment. You will be surprised at the relief which it affords.

Again, there is great danger of law interfering, in Baltimore, with the exercise of "personal liberty" on the part of citizens. An ordinance has been introduced before the City Council, making it a misdemeanor to follow a circus parade. Just think of that!

Mabel Alice, the little four and half month old child of Mr. and Mrs. Roy N. Strine, of Westminster, was operated on, Wednesday, at the Maryland University Hospital, for mastoid, the youngest child that ever was known at that hospital to take an anaesthetic.

About Digestion.

It is claimed that only half as much food is required when it is thoroughly masticated. Digestion begins in the mouth and a thorough mastication of the food is of the greatest importance. When needed take Chamberlain's Tablets to strengthen the digestion and insure a regular movement of the bowels.

Symphony of Street Sounds.

"How can I compose in this racket?" snarled the composer. "The doorbell is jangling constantly, people are putting in coal, automobiles honk, and here comes a fish man with his horn."

"Work 'em all into a jazz composition," suggested his wife.

An Experience.

"Don't you believe a soft answer turns away wrath?"
"What makes you doubt it?"
"My wife asked me what I thought of her biscuits and she got hopping mad when I told her they tasted like mush."

Experience.

"How is Dubwaite's game of golf these days?"
"He's improving."
"Makes a better score?"
"No, but he has an easier flow of language when he loses a ball."

She Wasn't a Fan.

She—I'm so interested in football. I have a cousin you know, who was on the college team last year.
He—Indeed. What did he play?
She—Well, I forget just whether he was a touch-down or a punt.

Success.

Efficiency Expert—"I am very gratified to see how many new men you have taken on since I installed my system."
"Yes, I hired 'em to take care of the system."—Judge.

Freedom.

"Is that what you call free verse?"
"It is," replied Mr. Penwiggie. "It gives me a glimmer of enlightenment. I begin to understand what the old poet meant when he wrote 'Freedom shrieked!'"

Just Two Kinds.

Ockendon—"The world seems full of get-rich-quick people."
Parkinson—"And they always seem to find sufficient get-poor-quick fools."
