

WILL GATHER GRAIN FOR NEAR EAST.

Farmers are Asked to Help in Feeding the Hungry Orphans.

Next Monday, August 15, is Near East Harvest Day, it is the day on which the farmers of this county are particularly asked to give of their surplus grain that great hosts of little children may be fed. Also, that starvation may be kept from thousands of patients in Near East Relief hospitals and from thousands upon thousands of refugees caused by the fighting between the Greeks and the Turks. These refugees are people of many nationalities, they are flowing into the larger cities, such as Constantinople, in endless streams, so that the burdens borne by the Near East Relief grow greater every day.

These refugees must be fed or starve, so must the little ones in the Near East orphanages and the patients in the hospitals. It is up to the farmers of Maryland, they can help save these people with their surplus grain, says the appeal from Maryland Headquarters, of the Near East Relief. Maryland's harvest of wheat is estimated at 10,000,000 bushels, of this great flood of golden grain, the Near East Relief asks only 14,000 bushels. Maryland also has a great harvest of corn and of this, only 14,000 bushels are asked. These quantities are only a small fraction of the total yield. Maryland farmers can spare them without even missing them. This grain, a surplus here, means life-saving food over there.

Maryland is in competition with other states in this life-saving harvest giving. Kansas will give 100 carloads, Maryland's sister states—Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania are going to give grain, Maryland must not lag. State headquarters, Near East Relief, hopes that Maryland's gifts, in proportion, will go far ahead of these sister states.

So remember, farmers of this county, to give of your surplus grain next Monday, August 15, Near East Harvest Day. You are asked to take your donations to the nearest collection point, as announced for your section. There they will be gathered and taken to community centers, to be collected and shipped abroad on the life-saving trip in special boats.

"Bring in your Sheaves," farmers of this county, "Salvage your surplus grain" that thousands upon thousands of children and adults may be saved from starvation, is the appeal from Maryland Headquarters, Near East Relief.

The Arnold Barn Fire.

The Arnold Brothers barn fire, last Friday morning, on their farm near Bridgeport, destroyed the building, and contents except the live stock. The exact origin of the fire is unknown. A steam thrasher was operating, at the time, but the fire broke out in the end of the straw stack just below the blower, or on the opposite side of the building from the engine. The wagon shed and other buildings were saved by the hard work of the threshing hands, as was the threshing outfit itself.

The building and contents were insured for $1800, in the Carroll County Mutual, and the personal property of Harry Anders, tenant, in the Dug Hill Company for $800.00. The Arnold Brothers will lose a very considerable sum, but Mr. Anders' loss will not be very heavy above the insurance. Threshing had been in progress on Thursday, and had not been started long. Friday morning, before the fire occurred.

Odd Fellows Reunion.

The annual reunion of the I. O. O. F., at Pen-Mar, was held on Thursday with a good attendance, but not so large as last year. It is quite noticeable at Pen-Mar that this has not been a year for large attendances at reunions. All the attractions report a poor season.

The program was above the ordinary. W. P. Wachter, chairman of the committee introduced Grand Master Saul Praeger, who presided. The invocation was delivered by Deputy Grand Master, Rev. L. B. Hafer, Hon. Frank Crowther, member of Congress from Schenectady, N. Y., delivered an elegant and pleasing address.

The day was delightful and a good time generally was the result.

Stock Certificates.

The Record office is prepared to supply to all companies, or all projects expecting to incorporate on the stock plan, very handsomely engraved stock certificates.

We have several hundred designs from a Chicago Lithographing Company that we can supply on proper notice, fully printed, numbered and bound, at very reasonable cost, considering the excellence of the work. It is unnecessary to place this work in the city—we can supply it, at saving costs.

Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, has announced that he will back the enforcement of prohibition in Pennsylvania, as well as in other states. He says, the laws are violated in Pennsylvania, especially in the sale of compounds containing alcohol, and that all good people must stand to preserve respect for law.

OUR SUBSCRIPTION RULES.

Advance Notice Sent to all Subscribers.

For the several hundredth time, let us say that the Record has a number of rules for conducting its business affairs with reference to subscriptions and advertising. We do not know how to run the business without them; and unless they are observed, they are worthless. In the application of these rules, there is nothing personal. We cast no reflections, and pick no favorites, but try very hard to treat everybody alike. The editor does not, personally, have charge of all details of the business.

Common with most newspapers, we require advance payment of subscriptions, and notify everybody before a subscription expires. In the last full week of each month, we send out a notice to all whose subscription will expire during the "next" month. When the date of expiration arrives, it is quite probable that we will send the Record two weeks beyond the time, in order not to drop it too suddenly—as some might think. But, in case no renewal is made then, and no request is made for a little longer time, we then drop the name from our list.

These rules are carried out, liberally. They are not without exception, and are not intended to be in any way offensive; but, we must protect ourselves against the neglect of others, and must have reasonable assurance of when to expect revenue.

Farm Tenantry Increasing.

While more than one-half of all the farms in the United States are operated by their owners, the census bureau announces the number is decreasing and farm tenantry is increasing.

The number of farms operated by their owners, who hired some additional land, in 1920, was 3,925,090, as compared with 3,948,722 in 1910, while those worked by tenants numbered 2,454,746, compared with 2,354,676 ten years ago. Farms operated by managers totaled 69,530, an increase of 10,000 since the thirteenth census.

Tenant farmers continued to increase in number during the past decade, with the Southern states showing the greatest relative gain, the census showed. Share tenants, or those who give for the use of land a share of the crops produced, conducted 68 per-cent of all tenant farms in the country, according to the announcement.—National Republican.

A New Study for Schools.

Judge Harry B. Lewis, who has finished a term of ten months in the Illinois Superior Court, during which he has heard 2,000 cases of divorce, has written an open letter to President E. S. Davis, of the school board, in which the Judge suggested a high school course on the obligations, duties and errors in love and matrimony.

"The number of these cases where children have contracted marriage without ever having been informed as to the magnitude of the obligations they were to assume and the duties they owe to the community, appear so often that I have been thinking of some way in which this danger to coming generations might be overcome," the letter reads.

As the cure, he then recommends that the discussion of matrimony take the place in the high school curriculum that is now devoted to social affairs.

Man Climbs High Steeple.

The perilous ascent of the steeple of First Presbyterian Church, Park Avenue and Madison street, the highest in Baltimore and one of the highest in the country, was made on Tuesday of this week, the first since 1874, for the purpose of renewing the protection against lightning.

This steeple, which is regarded as one of the notable architectural works of America, has not been climbed many times, as it is regarded as too dangerous.

THE DOG TAX LAW FULLY EXPLAINED.

How to Proceed to Collect Damages Caused by Dogs.

"Are owners of dogs taking out their licenses?"

"Is there much damage done by dogs to live stock and poultry in Carroll county?"

To these queries, William L. Seabrook, attorney for the County Commissioners, replied:

"I am glad to answer these questions, for I am sure that many owners and keepers of dogs do not understand that under the law they must pay the license tax; that owners of live stock and poultry killed or injured by dogs, do not know what they must do in order to be paid for their losses from the license fund; and that your paper will confer a great benefit if you will publish a statement of their respective duties and rights."

"Prior to 1918, the owner of live stock or poultry injured by dogs had no remedy except to sue the owner or keeper of the dog for damages. The Acts of 1918, Chapter 497, amended by the Acts of 1920, Chapter 498, require every owner of a dog six months old to pay a license tax of $1.00 for a male dog, and $2.00 for a female dog, and procure from the county treasurer, a justice of the peace, or special officer, a license tag for his dog. The law provides that any person who refuses to comply with the law shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction before a justice of the peace, or in the Circuit Court, shall be fined not less than $5.00 nor more than $25.00, or imprisoned in the county jail, for not more than thirty days, or both fined and imprisoned in the discretion of the Court."

"Though all dog licenses should have been taken out before July 1st, and more than a month has elapsed since that date, those who are taking out their licenses as law-abiding citizens, report that many of their neighbors have not complied with the law. There are no more law-abiding citizens in the State than those of Carroll county, and their failure to do their duty can be accounted for only on the theory that they are ignorant of the law."

"All monies arising from dog licenses must be kept by the county treasurer in a separate fund, to be used for the payment of damages for the killing or injury of sheep, poultry or live stock by dogs."

"Some of the people of the county think that if they have poultry or live stock killed or injured by dogs, there is nothing for them to do but report the fact to the County Commissioners and receive payment from this fund. A case in point is that of a farmer, who came before the Commissioners last week, and stated that seven of his sheep had been killed by dogs. No one saw them killed. No disinterested person saw them after they were killed. Their owner buried their carcasses, and after the lapse of more than a month reported the matter to the commissioners, believing that this was all that was necessary. The commissioners and their attorney are fully convinced of the truth of his statement. There is plenty of money available in the treasurer's hands to pay his license; the county commissioners are more than willing to reimburse him, if they were legally empowered to do so. Unfortunately for this man, and others in like case, the commissioners are powerless. Because of lack of knowledge of his rights and of the method to be pursued under the law to obtain those rights, he cannot participate in the license fund, and his only remedy is to sue the owner or owners of the dog or dogs, by which the damage was done, if he can prove those dogs they were."

"What should be done by one suffering such loss?"

"The law tells him what to do. It does not tell him to go to the county commissioners, but to a justice of the peace. Upon his application, the Justice will appoint three disinterested persons as appraisers to view and appraise the damages. These appraisers, or a majority of them, must state in writing to the county commissioners the number of sheep, poultry or live stock killed or injured, the character and extent of the injury, and the amount of damage sustained, and the appraisers and owner must make oath to the statement. He must then file this report with the county commissioners. Until this report is made, the commissioners have no right to pay anything from the fund. When the report is filed, the commissioners must review it, and if they find the award fair, they must pay it. If the owner of the dog doing the damage is known it is the duty of the County Commissioners to notify him to kill the dog. If he does not do it, he will be liable to the county commissioners for the damages."

"Every Justice of the Peace knows the law, or should know it, and how to proceed. Therefore, if one has live stock or poultry killed or injured by dogs, there is little that he can do personally. As soon as the poultry or live stock is injured or killed, their owner should at once call three of his neighbors who have no interest in the property and let them view the damage done by the dogs. Then he should go to the Justice of the Peace and ask him to appoint these three

CARROLL COUNTY FAIR.

Thursday's Program of Interest to Farmers.

The program for the Carroll County Fair, to be held next week, has been so arranged that there will not be a dull day during the week.

Tuesday will be "Home Coming Day," Senator R. Smith Snader, will preside, and Rev. Seth Russell Downie D. D., of Frostburg, will deliver the address.

Wednesday will be "Everybody's Day." Rev. L. B. Hafer will preside, and the address will be given by Rev. W. H. Egge, D. D., of Lebanon, Pa. He will give you much to think over, and make you laugh at the same time.

Thursday will be "Agricultural Day," and Friday will be "Athletic Day." On Friday also a stock sale will be held. It is expected that the stock exhibit will surpass that of any former year.

The interest shown in the speaking and judging last year has been the means of bringing returns in the form of a better program for the patrons of the fair this year. Dr. Bomberger, Assistant Director and Specialist of the University of Maryland, will be present on Thursday, Aug. 18, and give an address which every farmer of Carroll County should hear.

A new feature will be the demonstration of how to select a good dairy cow by the judge of the dairy cattle section, Mr. G. E. Wolcott, of the University of Maryland. A good cow will give as much milk as two common ones, so come out and learn the points to judge by.

This is the first year an effort has been made to have pure bred swine exhibited. Mr. C. Mitchell, of the University, will be the judge. He will also judge the horses.

County Agent Fuller will be at the Agricultural tent with apparatus to test soil for lime and different kinds of lime on exhibit. Only one-fourth of the samples so far tested need lime. Better have yours tested before you buy. Learn if you need lime and if so, how much. Bring a quart of average soil from each field on your farm. It is free and may mean much to you.

The men and women from the Public Athletic League will be present, Friday, Aug. 19, to conduct the contests and games. Come and get another badge. Prizes will be given the winners. Come and have some fun. Everybody out.

Home Maker's Club to Meet.

The women of the Pleasant Valley Home Maker's Club feel that they never have time to finish half the things they want to do. So they have decided on all day meeting on next Tuesday, Aug. 16th., at the home of Mrs. Chas. Leese. Everybody is to bring their lunch, sewing and spend the day. A demonstration of the fireless cooker will be given, the fireless cooker made, and recipes for its use given out. Games and amusements will also be part of the day's program. Every woman is invited. We send a special invitation to the young girls who were especially interested in the millinery demonstration last month. All come and wear your new hats that you made.

Proceedings of the Orphans' Court.

Monday, August 8th., 1921.—John H. Koller and John S. Bushey, executors of James J. Koller, deceased, received an order to sell personal property.

Samuel I. Hoffacker and J. Wesley Hoffacker, executors of Samuel H. Hoffacker, deceased, settled their first and final account.

Margaret K. Main, executrix of George W. Main, deceased, settled her first and final account.

Annie E. and Oliver Millender, administrators of Daniel H. Millender, deceased, returned inventories of personal property and stocks.

Harry A. Warfield, administrator of John O. Warfield, deceased, returned an inventory of personal property.

Two cattle dealers of Freedom township, Pa., near Emmitsburg, lost 17 cattle last week from eating weeds along the tracks of the Frederick and Hagerstown railroad. It is said that the railroad company had a poison solution placed on the weeds to kill them. The cattle were being driven from Greencastle to Waynesboro.

disinterested persons to appraise the damages and report their appraisal, in writing, under oath."

"Unless this procedure is followed, the county commissioners have no right to pay any claim for damages. If this procedure is followed, the damages awarded will be paid, unless the commissioners have personal knowledge that the award is unfair, or shall receive competent testimony that the award is in excess of a fair commercial valuation of the poultry or live stock so killed or injured."

Other interesting and gratifying facts are as follows: In the collection of general taxes for 1918, 1919, 1920 and 1921, about $2,000,000.00 has been collected. Many, of course, pay their taxes by check. During the four years named, not one check given in payment of taxes has gone to protest. There are about 12,000 taxpayers in the county. Of that number, during the past year, only ten have been unable to pay their taxes because of business failure.

MARYLAND 15TH. IN BANK RESOURCES.

New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey Lead.

Maryland stands fifteenth among the 48 states in total banking resources, as shown by a statement compiled by R. N. Sims, secretary and treasurer of the Association of Supervisors of State Banks. The figures used in the compilation were furnished the association by George W. Page, state bank commissioner, of Maryland, and similar officials in all other states. The statement gives the date of each report submitted, the number of institutions in each state, total capital, surplus, undivided profits and other details.

Total resources of all institutions operating under a state charter in Maryland are $406,441,887. The number of institutions having a state charter is given as 194, with a total capital of $18,808,665. Total surplus is $30,619,725 and undivided profits are $5,870,744. Capital, surplus and undivided profits total $55,299,134; deposits, $339,932,149; loans and discounts, $157,832,690; bonds, stocks, securities, etc., $174,546,846.

New York state heads the list with total banking resources of $7,580,172,382. Massachusetts comes next, with a total of $2,521,925,907, and Pennsylvania third, with resources of $2,219,923,384. New Mexico is at the bottom of the list, with total resources of only $24,423,468.

The total capital of the 22,700 state institutions reporting to the National Association of Supervisors of State Banks is given at $1,734,909,385; surplus, $1,533,327,012; undivided profits, $318,844,745; capital, surplus and undivided profits, $3,587,081,143; deposits, $23,780,750,818; loans and discounts, $15,449,134,595; bonds, stocks, securities, etc., $8,877,828,333, and total resources, $29,412,657,029.

The Weather and Crops.

With the exception of Sunday, the 7th., which was warm, cool weather and considerable cloudiness characterized the week ending, Tuesday, August 9, 1921. Rains were general on the 2nd. and 3rd. and relieved the local droughty conditions that prevailed during the second half of July; except in southern Maryland, rain was heavy, with amounts ranging from 1.50 to 4.00 inches. Light showers occurred in the early morning of the 6th., and thunder showers in the afternoon and night of the 7th.

The general rains of the 2-3rd. benefited all growing crops, especially corn. The weather of the week was generally favorable for plant growth and farming operations.

Thrashing of wheat, rye, and oats was finished, except in Garrett and Allegany counties.

Corn is generally in good to excellent condition, of good color, growing nicely, and earing well. Owing to the fine rains of the 2-3, a good crop seems to be assured.

Harvesting of early potatoes has ended; the yield was poor to fair. Late potatoes are doing well and are being cultivated; the plants are about a foot high. Sweet potatoes are in good condition.

Harvesting of tomatoes continues in the southern and has begun in the northern counties. Sugar corn, cantaloupes, and truck are also being harvested.

Pastures have improved and are now in good to excellent condition. Tobacco is in poor condition, but shows slight improvement.

Buckwheat is in bloom in Garrett county.

Planting for Fall seeding continues.

JAMES H. SPENCER,
Section Director.

Illiteracy in Maryland.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11, 1921.—According to the census of 1920 there are 64,434 illiterate persons 10 years of age and over in the State of Maryland, "illiterate" meaning, unable to write. Of this number 13,884 are native whites of native parentage, and 13,575 are of foreign birth. The number of illiterate negroes is 35,404. In the total population 10 years of age and over the percentage of illiteracy is 5.6, which, it is gratifying to note, shows a diminution since 1910, when it was 7.2. In case of the negroes the percentage declined from 23.4 to 18.2, and in the case of the native white of native parentage from 3.0 to 2.0.

There is more illiteracy in the rural districts of the state than in the cities, the percentages being 7.4 for the rural population and 4.4 for the urban. For the native white population of native parentage the urban percentage of illiteracy is 0.9, while the rural is 3.3. In the case of the negro population the percentage is 13.7 in the urban population as against 23.4 in the rural.

By counties the percentage of illiteracy ranges from 18.2 in St. Mary's county to 3.3 in Allegany county, Carroll county's percentage is 3.4.

Tobacco and cigars are almost sure to be called on to carry a heavier load of taxation. When people decide that an unnecessary thing is necessary, it is probably a very good subject for loading the taxes of the country on.

Give Farmers Full Credit.

As we expected they would, the farmers are taking their lower selling prices with mighty good spirit. They are complaining, of course—and who wouldn't—but they are not resorting to "strikes" and "walk-outs," and to all sorts of force to try to stop the natural reaction of prices following a remarkable period of inflation, by resisting it. As a matter of fact, they have more right and cause for doing just this than any other industry in this whole country.

Farmers are in the position of producing necessities, in open competition with the whole world. Their products are too big and too varied, to be successfully "cornered" for any length of time, and most of said products can not be stored and kept indefinitely. Farmers cannot wait, like coal miners, to strike and hold-up the people when necessity demands coal. They cannot, like railroad employees, tie up transportation at critical periods. Their work is a continuous system of preparation covering the whole year, and while there is a short harvest season, there is almost a year of preparation for it.

But, aside from the practical impossibility of their "holding-up" the country, and profiting by the necessities of the people for food, we do not believe they would, if they could do so. Some would, but the most would not. Taking them as a whole class, the farmer is less beset with, and less likely to follow, radical leaders, than any other great class in the world.

And that is the greatest evil in this country today—the influence and power of conscienceless radicalism that aims at purely selfish force to win, at the expense of everybody else. Of course, such a policy, in the end, defeats itself; but, there are so many trouble-makers, and so many self-enders, that the whole of them manage to keep the country in a wrangle, and business so topsy-turvy, that one hardly has a clear view of the damage that is done, nor of the losses that occur.

The resistance of organized labor toward lower prices, is not benefitting labor, but is costing it millions of dollars each year in income and living expenses. It is putting up, and holding up, everything labor needs to buy—rents, coal, furniture, clothing, machinery, living costs in general. Unfortunately, we can not add, taxes, for the reason that labor as a class pays very little of the tax burden of the country.

The inevitable truth can not be successfully overcome, that the prosperity of one big class depends on the prosperity of other big classes. This world was never designed for favorite classes, but that all might live and enjoy life, through receiving just fruits for their labor, and not otherwise. Piracy and force, unreason and covetousness, will never overcome justice and righteousness, in the final analysis.

Try for an "Even Break."

Financiers and business men of the more important classes, are almost a unit in speaking confidently of the outlook, but with the proviso that for a year or so, no profits need be expected. The profits, largely, have been made in the past five years, for the lean years to come, and it is figured that an "even break" for a while, will mean a fair average of profits covering not only the war period but the reconstruction period.

There is a tremendous howl going up, in some big financial quarters, for reduced taxes, and a lesser howl pretty generally distributed; but, there must be high taxes for a number of years to come, and these must be counted as part of the price of our so-called "reconstruction period." Even the big financing propositions now being consummated with the idea of furnishing more credit to railroads and farmers, are in a measure efforts to soften the period of "breaking even," and when used with the greatest of care and economy, may prove to be wise measures, but the strong tendency is for more credit to add to, rather than decrease, ultimate financial burdens. Too much credit is an extremely dangerous possession.

The time is at hand when men and interests will try hard to create sentiment for shifting the burden of taxes to others, and the most plausible arguments may be expected. While it is most desirable to take very good care of the big interests, in order that the smaller ones may not be crushed, and to take all reasonable steps to side track panics, it is too much to expect that failures in many directions shall be fully avoided. There has been too much plunging, and too much unwise spending, for any reasonable course in legislation or finance to keep everybody off the rocks.

A considerable number of failures, in all probability, will form part of the inevitable, in any readjusting process. As it was said the other day, in a financial article, "retrenchment" is not now quite so necessary as "intrenchment," meaning that playing safe does not depend so much on cutting down all sorts of expense, as it does exercising the very wisest of business management, along with continuous business extension and looking out for the future.

Another Society Needed.

There are societies for almost every good purpose, and certainly a lot whose purposes seem foolish rather than wise, and still there is room for at least one more, which somebody ought to launch. We refer to the prevention of the tremendous loss of life and property, through the use of motor vehicles.

It is true, of course, that many of the deaths and mishaps are due to some form of carelessness, which is difficult to provide against, but not all of them are chargeable to this. Little children, the infirm, the deaf, many entirely innocent ones, are often sufferers, and there must be some workable plan for greatly reducing this class of accidents and fatalities.

It is not satisfying to leave the question entirely to the law-makers, and to penalties for violation of speed and other present laws, for it is too difficult to secure and prove such evidence. We evidently need an earnest movement, backed by strong popular sentiment, to get at the present deplorable situation from new and effective angles.

The trouble is, perhaps, that the public is so generally using motor vehicles, that it is an "interested party," and to some extent at least, disinterested in the victims; and yet, it is often auto users themselves who suffer most from some fool act of one of their own kind.

Action along this line is needed, and now. It will not do to let such matters rest either in the hands of uninstructed legislators, nor in the hands of Motor Clubs of various kinds. It should be a movement backed by humanitarians and sound minds from all classes.

Uniform Automobile Law.

The need for a uniform automobile law throughout the United States is becoming more apparent every day. As auto travel increases, the necessity for such legislation is more glaring. The reasons for this are manifold. There should be a uniform headlight law, applicable to all the States; uniform registration and title laws, and uniform speed regulations. Such regulations would go a long way towards making travel by auto more pleasant and which would aid the State in the enforcement of the statute.

Maryland has an admirable automobile law. Many of its provisions could well be included in a general law applicable to the entire country. Take, for instance, headlight regulations. The law in Maryland is designated to make headlights non-glaring, and in addition to only special kinds of lenses being authorized, requires them to pass through a test so that the highest rays will not be over 42 inches from the ground at a distance of 75 feet. The candle power of the bulbs is also limited. Now, everybody who travels the roads knows that glaring headlights are dangerous to safety, and yet it is said that the Maryland regulations can be made applicable only to Maryland cars unless other States also have a non-glare law.

Then there is the speed question. Some States allow 25 miles an hour as the maximum, some 24, some 30 and some, like Maryland, 35. The Maryland law is about as liberal in this respect as is that of any State in the country which has any regulation at all of automobile traffic, so that if a non-resident is arrested for speeding he cannot with good grace say that he did not know what the speed limit was, for had he kept within the bounds of his own State law, he would not have violated those of Maryland.

Some States require but one license tag, others do not issue a registration certificate. Some of the States do not require that the registration certificate be carried by the driver, as does Maryland. Others require no operator's license. Here is where some of the commonwealths are lax, it seems, and such cases of this kind make law enforcement difficult. There is little trouble in securing compliance with the statute as long as only Maryland cars are affected but when non-residents come within the law's grip these are usually difficulties of lesser or greater degree.

With respect to headlights, it has been suggested that no car should be allowed to leave a factory until it has a lens that satisfies a reasonable standard. But what is a "reasonable standard" and how could it be fixed? Certainly in no other way than by a uniform law, for what Nevada might class as a "reasonable standard" would not come within the meaning of the statute in Maryland. Headlight regulation is absolutely necessary, and as we see it—and speaking with reference to general automobile law enforcement—uniformity of the statutes is becoming more mandatory every day. As the popularity of the automobile increases the need of such a step will be more readily realized. —Frederick News.

Same Old Story But a Good One.

Mrs. Mahala Burns, Savanna, Mo., relates an experience, the like of which has happened in almost every neighborhood in this country, and has been told and related by thousands of others, as follows: "I used a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy about nine years ago and it cured me of flux (dysentery). I had another attack of the same complaint three or four years ago and a few doses of this remedy cured me. I have recommended it to dozens of people since I first used it and shall continue to do so for I know it is a quick and positive cure for bowel troubles." —Advertisement

"Relief" Weariness.

In these United States of America there is a growing weariness with the whole subject of alien relief, the feeding of foreign populations and the endless solicitation of funds, help, goods and energies for such purposes. The years are so many, the years are so long, since these demands became incessant and unending.

And yet a representative of an American relief mission back from Germany declares that in a single week 226,000 children were fed in the Essen district by relief agents! Parents can earn hardly enough to feed their children. Yet the birth rate is increasing in a remarkable manner, and at least 27 per-cent of the population are children!

A few weeks ago an American newspaperman was in Berlin. He wished to gain an idea of the actual situation and the need for relief. On calling the offices of a relief mission his purpose was discouraged. It was explained that the Whitsuntide holidays were at hand and that the children would be fed by their parents for some days. It was explained further that the children were not dependent on the relief feedings; that, in fact, the mission was merely supplementing the home food supply. On asking to be taken to the homes of the children that he might see for himself the conditions and the evidences of want, the American has told that the mothers and the families would object to any such visits!

Now, to the average American it would seem that if the children could be nourished properly at home during an extended holiday period they might be fed there on other days and on all days. It seems, too, that the job of furnishing supplemental foods, if these are all that are necessary, might well be undertaken by a Germany that is not actually impoverished. The attitude of the recipients of charity in holding themselves in seclusion and objecting to even the most informal sort of visits speaks for itself.

As a matter of fact, there are a good many Americans who are becoming curious about the necessity of long-continued relief missions. They know it would be possible to pick areas and selected districts in this country and draw a dark picture. Yet we know there is no necessity for "relief missions" and "organized" help here.

The average American is muttering about it. He is beginning to ask when this sort of thing will end. He is getting the idea that the war made a lot of paupers in Europe and that Americans are making professional beggars out of them. He wants them to get back to work.

The average man may be wrong, but that is the way he feels about it. —Phila. Ledger.

BALM FOR RAINY VACATIONS

"Weather Insurance" Designed to Give Monetary Solace to Travelers That Are Unfortunate.

Got all your vacation togs? Got your fishing tackle, your round trip ticket, your mosquito lotion and your rain insurance?

Yes, there's balm in Gilead at last for the bitterest of human tragedies. For there's no denying that a rainy vacation is a worse catastrophe than a collision of planets, even if the latter involved the wiping out of all one's wife's relations.

The balm consists of a bet made with you by an insurance company that it won't rain during your vacation. In other words, you take out a rain policy for that period. And then, if it happens to pour cats and dogs all the time you have the consolation of collecting a tidy sum of rain insurance when you return to town. You may be so constituted that the money would fail to console you for the lost vacation days, but there are other fellows who would pray for rain in order to "beat the company."

The idea comes from England, where all sorts of freak insurances are practiced. Records of the United States weather bureau are used to figure out rates based on the probabilities of precipitation in any given part of the United States and Canada. One insurance company points with pride to the fact that last year it paid $11,213.25 to the Waltham fair on account of loss due to a rainy day, the fair corporation having taken out a rain policy. And the Kansas free fair at Topeka was protected by a $25,000 rain policy with a British company.

REAL TREAT FOR IMMIGRANTS

Ice Cream Something New to Arrivals at Ellis Island, but They Finally Liked It.

Immigrant struggles with American food on Ellis Island reached a climax when Commissioner Wallis introduced plates of ice cream to the 1,700 diners. The idea behind the ice cream was to give the immigrants a real treat on their reaching the land of promise.

What happened was a marvel to witness. The first persons served were a Balkan native and a native of East India. The East Indian took a lick and liked it. He looked around and saw that the Balkan opposite him had a bigger piece. Greedily he grabbed for it. Then the fight began. Both got well smeared in the face with the food.

The other diners touched the ice cream, and finding it cold, thought they knew the trick. The stunt was to smear the cold substance on your neighbor's face. This happened several times. Then someone tasted the ice cream and with a whoop announced it was manna too precious to be wasted on contentances. The head steward said the same thing in the eight languages he speaks. The facesmearing ceased abruptly.

But the final experiment was yet to be made. The real genius of the meal took up his knife and a piece of bread and spread the new butter tenderly over it. He started the fashion with a bang, and all the rest enjoyed their ice cream that way.—New York World.

Average Life of Auto.

As highway transportation develops and passenger cars and trucks become practically the sole means of road travel, the proportion of first purchasers of cars and trucks in the total of car sales will decrease, and the demand for new cars each year will become more and more nearly equal to the number of cars which drop out of service. For this reason it is becoming increasingly important for the trade to know how many cars will be required for replacement of those withdrawn from service. Analysis of registration, production, export and import figures over a period of years leads to the conclusion that the average life of the 2,000,000 cars retired from service in the last seven years was about 5.3 years.—Scientific American.

New Tombstone.

Austin J. Harman of Custer, Okla., has invented what he calls a "new and improved tombstone," says the Columbus Dispatch. It is designed to represent a life-size human figure standing erect. For instance, it might be a soldier. The material is galvanized iron, made hollow, so that the lower part of it may be filled with cement to make a heavier base. The body is hollow in order that if desired, it may hold an urn containing the ashes of the deceased. As for the head, it is meant to be screwed on and may be made a likeness of the person for whom the tombstone is erected.

Greek Temple Discovered.

It is announced that the archaeological service in Thessaly has informed the minister of education of the discovery of an Olympian temple at Ferres near Velestion, of the fourth century before the present era. The temple, it is stated, resembles that at Olympia; it is in a good state of preservation and has 10 bronze plaques with laws and decrees.

Some Men Can't Be Satisfied.

"If a man is rich and has good health and a beautiful wife and two or three lovely children," she said, "what more can he want?"

"Well," he replied, "there's many a beautiful wife who talks more than is absolutely necessary."—Chicago Herald and Examiner.

An Improved Gasoline

Every motorist should profit by this announcement

FOR many years the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) has maintained a special division of its staff whose activities are devoted entirely to the development of new products and the constant improvement of those already being manufactured. A large share of the work of this Development Department centers around the production and quality of "Standard" Motor Gasoline.

As a result of continuous research work and exhaustive, practical road tests conducted by this Department, we are able to announce the production of a decidedly improved quality of gasoline.

The "Standard" Motor Gasoline which is now obtainable at every "Standard" filling pump is improved not only in one particular respect but in every way that has a bearing on the actual performance of motors.

The average gasoline user is not aware of the large number of factors that govern the quality of gasoline he buys. In fact, he usually doesn't care about the factors. He is interested, first, last and always, in the quality as it is delivered to him. So, without a wealth of technical information, the motorist measures gasoline quality by one, and what is after all the final, deciding test, namely—its behavior in his motor.

Gasoline must be good not in one respect but in all respects. To make it seem better, even to an expert, without really being better, is not an improvement. Our present product is really better from every standpoint—so much so that you will quickly notice the difference.

It has never been the practice of this company to claim economies and technical merits for its products which the average motorist could not prove for himself. Give "Standard" Motor Gasoline a trial. This is all we ask you to do. We are confident that, purely on the basis of its performance and economy, you will use it regularly. Try it today.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY (New Jersey)

This is the first of a series of informative advertisements concerning the relation of gasoline quality to the operation and performance of motors.

On next Sunday evening the C. E. Society of St. Paul's Lutheran Church will hold an open-air meeting, on the lawn at the home of Martin D. Hess.

Rev. T. W. Null and Rev. Young will be present to make addresses. The music will consist of solos, quartette and the regular C. E. S. All are welcome.

William Forney has recently had a new porch built at his house. This adds much to the appearance of his place.

The Select Castle of Maryland A. O. K. of the M. C., convened in annual session at Silver Run, last Tuesday, at 10 o'clock. The sessions were well attended and the presence of William Thorp, Supreme Commander, and J. E. Poore, Supreme Scribe, added much to the interest of the meeting, and much information was given as to the general condition of the order, its principals, aim and objects.

Active work was also shown by most of the Castles, and all were urged to continue working. The meeting was harmonious and very instructive to many who had never attended its sessions before. After the regular session of the Select closed, and all those not entitled to remain, instructed to withdraw, a session was called to confer the Supreme degree upon those entitled. After the close, all left well pleased with the work accomplished, and hoped to meet again next year at Cumberland, Md.

This Saturday will be picnic day again. The U. B. Sunday School will hold their annual celebration in Null's grove, this place, Saturday afternoon and evening.

In Sad but Loving Remembrance of my dear husband

GREENBERRY NULL,

who departed this life, 6 months ago today, August 9, 1921.

Today recalls the memories of a loved one gone to rest. And the one who thinks of him today is, the one who loved him best.

How long he struggled against disease, How long he lingered, racked with pain and suffering hard to bear. Through suffering he breathed not a murmur.

For the comforter stood by his side, And said fear not I am with thee. With me thou shalt ever abide.

God knows I've done my duty. To get you well and strong. But all my needs and labor were in vain, Christ took you home to rest.

Accommodating.

Some years ago, before prohibition was in force, I was traveling, making a great many small towns. As a rule there was only one hotel in a town, and invariably a saloon in the building. I disliked this exceedingly, and determined to avoid stopping at such a place where possible. One evening, alighting from a train in a small town, I was accosted by two local hotel hack drivers.

"Hotel lady!" I thought to myself, surely both of these hotels do not run saloons.

So said I to the nearest driver, "Does your hotel have a saloon in connection with it?"

He replied, "No, lady, but we will send out and get anything you want."

If You've Anything Good to Say.

If you've anything good to say of a man, Don't wait till he's laid to rest. For the eulogy spoken when hearts are broken Is an empty thing at best.

Ah! the blighted flower now drooping lonely Would perfume the mountain-side If the sun's glad ray had but shone today.

And the pretty bud espied. If you've any alms to give to the poor Don't wait till you hear the cry Of woe distress in this wilderness, Lest the one forsaken die.

Oh, harken to poverty's sad lament Be swift her wants to allay; Don't spurn God's poor from the favored door.

As you hope for mercy one day, Don't wait for another to bear the burden

Of sorrow's irksome load; Let your hand extend to a stricken friend As he totters adown life's road.

Honest Tom.

"I'm glad I broke my engagement with Tom," Mabel observed indignantly. "He's no gentleman."

"Why, I have always thought him one," Tess commented in surprise. "What has he done?"

"Well, I sent him back his presents—that is, all except the diamond ring and a few other things that I was really entitled too, considering how many times he had taken dinner at our house and all, and asked him to return mine."

"Well, did he refuse?"

"He did not. He not only sent back a box of cigars, unopened, and a penwiper and a knit necktie, but he sent also five boxes of face powder, saying he estimated that to be about the quantity he had taken away on his coat during the time we were engaged."—Houston Post.

HORSES ABLE TO TELL TIME

Steads Hired by the Hour Good Judges of Distance, According to This Stable Manager.

A rider needs a strong hand and a firm seat to ride the hired horses of a certain suburban riding academy when he attempts to go beyond an hour's distance from the stable, according to the New York Sun. The rates are $5 for two hours, and the horses have become so accustomed to going one hour out and one back that when the first hour is reached and the rider does not turn back toward the stable his horse insists upon doing it for him.

Beyond this first hour, if the rider still wishes mistakenly or extravagantly to ride still farther away from the stable, he will have to fight his horse every twenty-five or thirty yards as the horse attempts to turn back, and there will be no further joy in the ride. If he complains to the manager of the stable, the manager will be politely regretful if the rider is a stranger, or he will tell him the honest truth if the rider is an old acquaintance.

"I get so many inexperienced riders," the manager will tell you, "and they have no sense of direction and keep no track of the time, and if it were not for the good sense of the horses the riders would either lose themselves in the countryside or would perhaps realize at some point that their limit was nearly up and then would come thundering in with winded and steaming horses."

"These horses manage the ride themselves and the riders have very little to do with it," said the stable manager, "and in that way they protect the riders, they protect themselves and they protect me."

HIS PRIVATE SWIMMING POOL

Wise Willie, Forbidden Trip to Cool River, Found Substitution That Answered the Purpose.

On certain occasions Willie takes his mother's instructions literally, while other times he doesn't. When Willie's mother told him that she did not want him to leave the building all afternoon because he had disobeyed her by going swimming in the river on the day previous, Willie carried out his mother's instructions to the letter. He did not leave the building all afternoon. When Willie's mother arrived home from her shopping trip late in the day, however, she was surprised to find that her son's hair was wet.

"I hope you didn't disobey me and go in the river again," said his mother.

"Nope," Willie replied.

"Then how did you get your hair wet?" his mother asked.

"Swimming," Willie replied.

"Swimming?" gasped his mother.

"I told you not to leave this building. Now you will go to bed without any supper."

"I didn't leave the building," Willie insisted.

"How could you go swimming without leaving the building?" said his mother. "There's no place to swim in this apartment house."

"Ain't there, though?" asked the youngster. "Did you ever try the water tank on the roof?"—New York Sun.

Elephants Raid Railway Station.

We are used to stories of how an elephant occasionally upsets a circus but it is rare we hear of an orgy of destruction like that which occurred in the Malay peninsula. A herd of wild elephants attacked a railway station, pulling down the station-master's kitchen and bathroom. They did the same to the clerk's quarters and then tackled the station while the office force looked on from trees. One elephant took off an automatic weighing machine as a souvenir of the raid, but finding it heavy, threw it down on the track. One of the elephants trumpeted the recall and they all went back into the jungle except one who fell in a well and had to be cut out by human aid, but was not detained. By the time help arrived after a general telegraphic alarm the huge beasts had entirely disappeared.—Scientific American.

No Lady at All.

Albert, aged five, had been severely punished by maternal hands. His father on arriving home, found him in tears.

"What's the matter, son?" he asked. "Daddy," replied Albert, pointing an accusing finger at his mother, "all I have to say is that I'm completely surprised at that lady."—American Legion Weekly.

Westminster, Md., August 1st., 1921.

Fellow-Republican:—

Next to the Judgeship itself, there is no more important office in the county than that of Clerk of the Circuit Court. The interests of the people of the county make it absolutely necessary that either the clerk or his chief deputy be a man thoroughly qualified to care for those interests. No one can have greater fitness for the position than a lawyer, who has been for many years familiar with all the details of the work of the office and in the Court.

As such a lawyer, and believing that I have the necessary qualifications, I am seeking the nomination, and, if nominated and elected, it will not be necessary for me to seek some one with greater knowledge of the duties of the office to be my chief deputy, and as such deputy to be the clerk in fact while I am clerk in name, but pledge myself to give to all the work of the office my personal attention and supervision.

It will be impossible for me to see more than a very small percentage of the voters, and therefore I am taking this method to ask you to go to the primary election on Sept. 9, and cast your vote for me.

Very Respectfully Yours,

Happy New Year!

By GEORGE CLAY

(© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

New Year's eve, in many towns of our country, is an occasion whereon the young folk put on masks of various outrageous sorts and go about from house to house, raising Cain, till the roar of whistles and the clang of bells ushers in the new-born year. When the old year has thus been officially laid to rest they gather at some preordained spot and partake of refreshment. Masks are laid aside and identities established, and presently every one says: "Happy New Year!" and goes home.

The boys and girls of Rutledge had preserved this custom since their earliest days; so when the 31st of December was drawing to a close the parents of Milly Davenport were not astonished when their daughter came into the living room attired in a rakish domino and masked pinkly, her blonde hair carefully concealed under a hood. They merely said: "Have a good time, dear," and returned to their contemplation of the monthly magazines. And Milly slipped outdoors into the crisp starlit night and down the street to where she saw a group of her friends already assembled.

As she neared the group she slipped into the shadow and came up from another direction to deceive them as to her identity; her ruse succeeded, for in the chorus of welcome there was no note of recognition. She joined the crowd and they proceeded light-heartedly down the street.

At a nearby corner they were joined by an apparition in a black monk's robe, cowl and masked, with an enormous red nose protruding at least three inches beyond the shadow of the deep hood. The newcomer, who spoke in a sepulchral voice, answered every inquiry with "Pax vobiscum!" which was satisfactory in that it told nothing as to his identity, and generally had the effect of sending the inquirer into shrieks of laughter, the stately Latin sounding so incongruous with the red nose. Milly herself, egged on by her comrades, asked the monk's name, but instead of the usual phrase in the language of Julius Caesar, she was answered by the monk's grabbing her by the arm and whirling her down the street in the mazes of a dance-step. She was surprised, but not particularly alarmed, for she knew him to be one of her own crowd. The monk's gyrations carried him for a moment out of reach of the others, and before Milly could protest he had whispered hoarsely: "Let's beat it!" and dragged her along with him down a side street. This was unmonastic, thought Milly, but human; and he was like some one she knew—who was it?

In the shade of a giant maple—Rutledge still has maple trees growing along its streets—the pair paused. The monk seemed undecided what to do with his captive, and Milly was curious, but undemonstrative. She feared the whole bizarre performance might be a trick to make her disclose who she was, and determined to be on her guard. It was very dark under the maples, and the noise of the celebrating crowds was dimmed by distance. The monk seemed about to speak. Strange rumblings issued from under his black cowl. Milly listened eagerly.

"Mind if I smoke?"

The anticlimax made her giggle and she hastily clapped a hand over her mouth. But the monk paid no attention. He put a cigarette in a long holder, so that it would not endanger his noble nose, lit it and puffed with relish. There was an awkward pause. Then Milly said "Well?" in a tone that announced clearly that unless the monk gave reason for his strange action she would rejoin her friends on the main street. The monk again groaned and growled, and finally grabbed his nose and with a jerk removed it from his countenance. "Glad to get rid of it," he growled. "It's been in my way all evening. The voice was still disguised. Milly had no idea who it was. But the nose incident amused her.

"It must be very convenient to have a nose that you can get rid of whenever you want to, isn't it?" she inquired in her best elocution class voice.

The cowl turned sharply toward her, and she had the uncomfortable impression that two invisible eyes were regarding her sharply. Then the voice spoke:

"Milly!"

She jumped.

"How—how did you guess?" she said.

"I knew all the time. I saw you come out of your house. Milly, I took you away from the crowd because I wanted to tell you something."

"Tell away," Milly was curious.

"I—I wanted to tell you that—that this is the last day of the old year—"

"I know it already," Milly laughed.

"Well, the year's nearly dead, and—" a pause. Whatever the mysterious communication might be, the monk was making a horrible bungle of getting it out. Milly waited, silent; but for some unaccountable reason her heart beat faster than usual. The monk continued:

"I—I wanted to wish you a happy New Year and to ask you to make the New Year a happy one for me—Oh, Milly, I love you!"—this with a rush.

Milly stood stunned. The declaration was so unexpected. Then a swift rush of happiness surged through her, mingled with doubt. If it should be a certain young man—then everything was all right; but if not—

"I—I think you might take off your mask," she whispered.

"Great Scott! Here I've been proposing, and you didn't know who I was! Well, I suppose I've ruined my chances—just like me!" The mask was flung back, the cowl dropped. Even in the shadows Milly could recognize Fred Grant's face. She had been almost sure of the voice, and now certainty had come to her. Fred reached out and took her hand.

"Milly—oh, Milly, don't say you don't care! Make this the happiest New Year of my life!"

For an instant Milly hesitated; then she whispered: "I—do care, Fred."

In a moment she was in his arms, his lips were on hers, and she heard all the things that he had wanted to say, but had not had the opportunity. They stood thus for a moment; then Milly said: "Let's join the others."

"Wait!" said Fred. "Listen!"

In silence they stood. From the belfry in the next street chimed the first stroke of 12, and with it the whistles and other bells began their joyous clamor. Fred turned to Milly and his eyes were shining.

"It's the New Year, dearest," he whispered. "The New Year—and the beginning for you and me."

And hand in hand they went to seek their comrades.

"CARAT" OF AFRICAN ORIGIN

Natives Devised the Method Every-where in Use for the Weighing of Precious Stones.

The natives of Asia and Africa, where the largest diamond mines are located, are naturally unfamiliar with the finely graduated and precisely exact apparatus used for weighing precious stones. But, as they realized that diamonds increased in value according to their size, they solved the difficulty in a manner typical of the primitive tribes. Some of them had noted that the beans of the coral tree appeared to be exactly uniform and that, when dried, one of these beans would balance another within the weight of a hair. The native chiefs therefore decreed that a "quarat" bean should be the standard of measurement of the weight of diamonds, and Europeans who came in search of the precious stones adopted the same scale, carrying the word and the weight itself back with them and later decreeing that a "quarat" should be the equivalent of 200 milligrams.

The story is told that, in the days when the beans themselves were used to weigh diamonds, an Englishman by the name of Armstrong went into the interior of Africa with the brilliant idea of fleecing the natives by substituting carats loaded with lead for the beans ordinarily used for weighing purposes. His remains were discovered near the camping place of the tribes with whom he had attempted to trade.

Rat Bite Not Dangerous.

A rat is the foulest feeder imaginable, yet almost every rat catcher has been bitten dozens of times. And it is a fact that most rat catchers consider the teeth of a ferret to be much more dangerous than those of a rat.

So far as mammals are concerned, the big flesh eaters are not dangerous. Every one who has read the life of Livingstone will remember how terribly he suffered from his mauling by a lion. For a long time he lay at death's door, while for years afterward the old wounds made by the lion's teeth kept on breaking out afresh, usually at about the anniversary of their infliction.

Almanacs.

The history of almanacs has been traced back to very early times. It has been ascertained that Alexandrian Greeks had them, though it is not exactly known when they appeared in Europe. The oldest existing almanacs in manuscript form date from the Thirteenth and Fourteenth centuries, whereas the earliest printed almanac was by Astronomer Purbach, and appeared between the years 1450 and 1461.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D.,
Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR AUGUST 14

PAUL IN ICONIUM AND LYSTRA.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 14:1-28.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and Him only shalt thou serve.—Matt. 4:10.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Matthew 26:16-18.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Heals a Cripple.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul's Narrow Escape
at Lystra.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC
—Early Adventures in Asia Minor.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC
—Examples of Paul's Missionary Methods.

I. Paul and Barnabas Preaching at Iconium (vv. 1-7).

As to their work in Iconium observe:

1. Their manner of preaching. This is suggested by the little word "so" in verse 1. They "so" spoke that a great multitude believed. They were true preachers. Only that which brings conviction of sin and induces decision for Christ can be truly said to be preaching in the biblical sense. The same is true of the Sunday school teacher. Let every Sunday school teacher at all times have as his supreme aim to bear the gospel of Christ so as to induce decision for Christ.

2. Their attitude toward opposition.
This is suggested by the word "therefore" in verse 3. "Long time therefore they tarried." The opposition did not prevent their preaching, but incited them to continue preaching. Christian workers should learn not to give up work because of opposition.

3. The Lord accompanied their preaching with miracles (v. 3). Since the opposition was so fierce, special help of the Lord was needed.

4. The effect of their preaching
(v. 4). The multitude of the city was divided. Where men faithfully preach the gospel there will be division.

II. Attempt to Worship Paul and Barnabas as Gods (vv. 8-18).

1. The occasion (vv. 8-10)—the healing of the lame man. God's gracious power exhibited in healing this lame man occasioned a new difficulty. That which ought to have been a help was turned into a hindrance. The man was a confirmed cripple. He had never walked. He heard Paul's preaching, which caused faith to be born in his heart (Rom. 10:17). When Paul perceived that he trusted Christ, he called with a loud voice that all could hear for the man to stand upright. The cure was instant, for he leaped up and walked (v. 10). There was no magnetic touch, no treatment, only the command, and the naturally impossible became the possible and the real.

2. The method (vv. 11-13). They called Barnabas Jupiter and Paul Mercury, because he was the chief speaker.
The priest of Jupiter brought oxen and garlands ready to offer sacrifices unto those men (v. 11). If they had only known, in the person of Jesus Christ God had actually appeared to men (John 1:14; Phil. 2:7, 8).

3. Their efforts frustrated (vv. 14-18). This foolish act was happily averted by the tact of the apostles, as exhibited in the address of the occasion. (1) They deny that they are divine beings and declare that to worship beings with like passion to themselves is criminal. (2) They direct them to turn away from these vain things unto the living God who made heaven and earth and has ever left witness of Himself in that He has always done good, giving rain and fruitful seasons, filling their hearts with gladness.

III. The Stoning of Paul (vv. 19-22).

Wicked Jews from Antioch and Iconium pursued Paul with relentless hate to this place, where they stirred up the very people who were willing to worship them a little while ago.
This shows that satanic worship can soon be turned into satanic hate. This hate took form in stoning Paul and dragging him out of the city for dead.
God raised him up, and with undaunted courage he pressed on with his duties as a missionary bearing the good tidings to the lost.

Soon after this Paul turned back and revisited the places where he had preached, telling them that through great tribulation they must enter into the kingdom of God.

IV. The Organization of Churches in the Field (vv. 23-28).

Evangelization with Paul did not mean a hasty and superficial preaching of the gospel but the establishment of a permanent work. Elders were appointed in every church. The work of the missionary is not done until there are established on the field self-governing and self-propagating churches.

What is Man?

What is man that thou shouldst magnify him? and that thou shouldst set thine heart upon him? and that thou shouldst visit him every morning, and try him every moment?—Job 7:17, 18.

The Dwelling Place of the Lord.

Then said Solomon, the Lord hath said that he would dwell in the thick darkness. But I have built an house of habitation for thee, and a place for thy dwelling forever.—II Chronicles 4:1, 2.

True Temperance in Heart and Life
1 Thessalonians 5:4-11

The first of Paul's letters to the Christians in Thessalonica was written for a two-fold purpose. First, to comfort and encourage those who were passing through persecution for their Christian faith, and second, to incite them to progress and growth.
The one preventive against backsliding is to be continually going forward. The greatest peril of the Christian life is the peril of not growing.
Hence the apostle's appeal beginning with the fourth chapter "to abound more and more." He would have them abound in self-control (4:2-8), in brotherly love (4:9-10); in quietness, industry and honesty (4:11, 12); and in knowledge concerning things to come, especially matters pertaining to the resurrection of the Christian believer and the second coming of Christ (4:13-18).

Christians are here addressed as brethren and are clearly distinguished from the world. The world says "peace and safety," even when the Day of the Lord is about to break, the day of the Lord's wrath and judgment which follows the removal of the true church as described in 4:17, 18. The world is in darkness, hence its parrot-like chatter of "peace and safety." But the Christian is not in darkness concerning these coming events. He is a child of the day and of the light, which fact brings with it the obligation of "true temperance in heart and life."

The first requirement of such a life is to "watch and be sober," that is, to be alert. Watchfulness against carnal indulgences which dim spiritual vision and blunt spiritual sensibility. To this end we must be guarded and fortified, having on
"the breast-plate of faith and love, and for a helmet the hope of salvation."

The breast-plate is used to protect the heart-life. "Nothing availeth but faith which worketh by love." Not faith as a mere profession but a faith that works not for name or fame but in love. "The helmet of salvation" is a most suggestive phrase. The helmet protects the head, the seat of the brain, the place of mental power. Salvation is for the head as well as the heart. The head must be instructed as well as the heart enlightened.
Otherwise we shall not be ready to give a reason for the hope that is in us.

GREAT POWER OF PRESIDENT

United States Chief Executive "Most Potent Constitutional Functionary in the World."

The legal functions of the President's office are so eminent that he cannot escape the responsibilities of executive action, however much he may be inclined to avoid them. His constitutional powers alone make him the pivot upon which all the administrative machinery operates.

He appoints the heads of departments and may direct their major policies. His power of appointment to all the greater offices is far reaching.
He can recommend, shape and veto legislation. His control over foreign affairs is virtually complete. He is commander in chief of the army and the navy. In short, he is the most potent constitutional functionary in the world.

All these constitutional powers have been vastly augmented by practice and custom. The President today can do innumerable things that George Washington or Thomas Jefferson would never have dared do even if they had thought of them.

The constitutional conception of the President is that of a chief executive, an administrator; custom has added to this conception that of leadership, of initiation.—Samuel P. Orth in the Yale Review.

Clung to the Foot-Hills.

Humanity in its settlements has never cared for the high mountains or their valleys....But the races of men have ever been well disposed to snuggle up close to the foot-hills.
The modern cities have been built beside great rivers on the flat lands, but in Biblical times cities were founded upon rocks in the lower hills; and where no hills existed, as in the Mesopotamia valley, the Assyrians built a huge brick platform in imitation of a flat hill, and reared their city upon that. Athens was built upon and about the Acropolis, the Aro-pagus, and the limestone heights between Cephissus and Ilissus. Rome and Constantinople are both builded on their seven hills, and the hills around about Jerusalem are famous.—
John C. Van Dyke.

The Bursting of a Bubble.

Statements made that because of the flotation method of mineral separation the future of copper production, and therefore, of the electrical industry, is largely dependent on bubbles is declared by students of industrial development to be exaggerated. The electrical industry is no more dependent upon this process, it is declared, than is any other, but it will benefit more directly, experts say, from this intensive method of copper refining than any industry which does not use copper so extensively.

As A. G. Riffle was returning home, on Monday, from taking a number of young men from Taneytown, to beyond Woodsboro, on a camping outing, on crossing the N. C. R. track at New Midway Station, the south-bound train struck his truck, and Mr. Riffle had a narrow escape from a serious accident. The only damage done was a broken side mirror and a bent front fender.

Thirty-six years ago the writer raised the money, through private subscriptions, for the first street lighting system Taneytown ever had—gasoline vapor lamps—that served the town at that time, as a great improvement. Then came acetylene gas, and now electricity, superior in every way, giving the town the first fully satisfactory lighting it has ever had. Next?

Judge Davidson acted in the capacity of a gallant hero, Saturday morning, in grasping the reins of a spirited animal attached to a buggy standing in front of H. C. Brendle's Produce establishment, which became frightened at one of the Creamery trucks and dashing up Middle St. The Judge probably saved from serious injury, Mrs. Burkholder, who was seated in the buggy.

A card to the Record from Dr. F. H. Seiss, 129 Maple Ave., Takoma-Park, Md.-D. C., says: The first communication from my home town to greet me on my arrival to my new home in Takoma-Park was the indispensable "Carroll Record," it surely is a letter from my home town and neighborhood conveying to us all the news and incidents of the week. We like it at Takoma-Park very well, but we are not as yet in smooth running order. About all modern adjustments have been made, and soon we shall be in shipshape to operate and carry out intentions. T. Park is somewhat after the order of Blue Ridge Summit, Monterey and Pen-Mar region. We have an incorporated town, paved side-walks and streets, and splendid roads everywhere. Taneytown was again visited by thieves, on last Monday night. This time, Edgar Essig was the victim. The thieves gained an entrance through the stable and broke a lock on the door to the storage room, and secured 9 cases of eggs, a quantity of butter, an auto tire and tube, and a pair of scales. The Taneytown Savings Bank to start Pure Bred Pig Club.

The directors of the Savings Bank, will aid any farm boy to buy a pure bred sow pig. The bank will place to the boy's account $25.00 on his note for one year. This amount will enable the boy to buy a good pure bred sow pig, also leave a balance with which to buy some feed he cannot get on the farm, such as bluten, oil meal, tankage, etc.

This is a fine opportunity for a farm boy to own something which will give him a good return. He can start in the pig business without any capital, and at the end of the year own a young herd of good pure bred pigs.

As good pure bred pigs are scarce only a limited number can be secured. Any boy who is interested, should give his name at once, to Walter A. Bower, at the Taneytown Savings Bank, as soon as possible.

The Bank is planning to give the pigs to the boys at the fair. Let's go.

Cause of Appendicitis. When the bowels are constipated, the lower bowels or large intestines become packed with refuse matter, that is made up largely of germs. These germs enter the vermiform appendix and set up inflammation, which is commonly known as appendicitis. Take Chamberlain's Tablets when needed and keep your bowels regular and you have little to fear from appendicitis.

Taneytown Baseball Notes.

The previously announced game to be played on the home grounds, on last Saturday afternoon, between the Hampstead and Taneytown clubs failed to materialize, and at a late date a game was hastily arranged and "played" with the Detour nine, who came "two short," and were re-inforced by two Taneytown "has been's"—Jack Crapster and Ralph Sell—who "featured in the game." Taneytown being shy a "twirler," made use of their manager, W. Rein Motter, who succeeded in "shutting out" the visitors. The score was 9-0.

The game on Tuesday between New Windsor re-inforced and the Taneytown "regulars," on the grounds of the former, was a well-played game—Taneytown played errorless—and resulted in a "shut-out" for New Windsor. The batting of Taneytown featured; F. Hitchcock, 3-base hit; Drinning, two 2-base hits. Schafer, pitched for Taneytown and struck-out 11; Evans, for New Windsor, had 4 strike-outs. The score by innings:

New Windsor 0-0-0-0-0-0-0-0=0
A 7-inning game was played at Middletown, on Wednesday, which resulted in a victory for Taneytown, who did some heavy hitting; Bonsack pitched for Taneytown, and struck out 16, while Pry, for Middletown, had 8. The score

Taneytown 1-0-4-4-5-0-2=16
Middletown 0-1-0-2-2-0-1=6
This Saturday afternoon, Hanover's strongest team—Silk Mill—will play on the local grounds.

Next Thursday, Aug. 18, at 4:30, the Baltimore Yanigans team will visit Taneytown; there will also be a game on Wednesday, at 4:30, with some strong team.

The Bad Speaker.

The late E. C. Benedict, the noted financier and yachtsman, said one day at Indian Harbor: "I am a very bad after-dinner speaker. In fact, I am such a bad after-dinner speaker that often, in the middle of a speech I think dimly of Judge Lyons, of Tombstone. Judge Lyons, of Tombstone, arose one evening to make a speech in the presence of a large audience. He spoke so badly that his audience melted away by degrees. At the end of an hour one old miner alone was left.

"The old miner yawned and reached down for his hat at last, but he was horrified to see Judge Lyons draw a six-shooter from his hip-pocket and lay it on the desk before him. The old miner sat up. He fingered his hat nervously. At length, he interrupted Judge Lyons' turgid flood of oratory and said:

"Be ye g'wine ter shoot ef I go?"

"Such, friend, is my intention," said Judge Lyons' grimly. "I am bound to finish my oration, even if I have to shoot to keep an audience."

"The old miner heaved a deep sigh. Then he rose and started for the door, at the same time saying over his shoulder:

"Wall, shoot if yer a mind; I'd as lief be shot as talked ter death."

Women Match Coins.

"I'll match you," used to be reserved for masculine conversation. The flip of a coin decided who was to pay for lunch or for a cigar. But women have taken it up. It is masculine no longer. "The women have gotten tired of fighting about who is to pay," said the observing soda counter cashier. "It used to take them about five minutes to decide. Now they match a couple of quarters to find out. The winner gets treated."
