MOTORCYCLE CRASH PROVES FATAL

Harvey S. Utz Dies at Frederick Hospital From His Injuries.

Harvey S. Utz died at the Frederick Hospital, on Sunday night at 11 o'clock, as the result of injuries received in the motorcycle accident, near Taneytown, on Wednesday morning of last week, an account of which appeared in last week's issue. He is survived by Mr. and Mrs. Silas K. Utz, of near Kump, and the following brothers and sisters: Norman, Henry, Wilson, Frances, Margie and Miriam Utz. Funeral services were held on Wednesday morning, at Pleasant Hill church, near Monrovia, Frederick county, and interment was made in the adjoining cemetery.

The accident occurred on the Taneytown and Emmitsburg state road, along the Sauble farm, just out of Taneytown. Utz was on his way to Frederick, where he was employed at a garage, and was driving his motorcycle. He crashed into the rear of a buggy occupied by James Hill, colored, and son, who were going to work, near Bridgeport. The crash occurred about 5:30, before full daylight, and must have been due to not seeing the buggy ahead.

An inquest, or hearing of the case, was held in Frederick, on Tuesday, and the testimony of Hill and his son taken. Both were exonerated from any blame, as they testified that the buggy was on the right hand side of the road, and that a lighted lantern was being displayed, as required by law. There were no other witnesses to the accident.

Maj. A. M. Hall on a Visit.

Maj. A. M. Hall, editor of the Sykesville Herald, left on Monday for Apopka, Florida, where Mrs. Hall has been since the death of the wife of their son. Maj. Hall, in a manner typical of him, has decided that his strongest duty calls him to the stricken home; and while his many friends, and readers of the Herald, regret this dispensation, they feel that he has acted in true christian spirit.

And yet, we feel that we voice the sentiments of many in this county, in indulging the hope that the heart-healing processes of time may make it clear that, after a few months, he and his wife may be conscientiously able to return to Carroll County, where he has done so much for good, both individually and as an editor. We therefore head this article, that his "on a visit" and trust that our wish may materialize.

Papers Supporting Home Men.

The non-partisan papers of the county are asking for support for local candidates, regardless of party affiliation, which is a very proper thing to do, especially when the candidates are all good representative men.

The Sykesville Herald, is supporting Edwin M. Mellor, Republican candidate for County Clerk, and Millard Weer, Democrat, for Register of Wills.

The Union Bridge Pilot is earnestly backing John H. Repp, Republican, for County Commissioner.

The Record as cordially indorses William F. Bricker, Republican, for Register of Wills, and Edward S. Hatner, Democrat, for House of Delegates. Both are well qualified men, and entitled to local and general support.

Why Typographical Errors Occur.

1. Poor writing of the copy, especially of words that look much like other words.
2. The rapidity of the compositor, and the fact that the eye, the brain and the hands, fail to co-operate perfectly at all times.
3. Inaccurate proof-reading. The mistake that the reader sees so easily, is somehow as easily overlooked by the proof-reader. Eternal vigilance is hard to command.
4. It often happens that in correcting one error in a line, the compositor makes a new one in the same line, and proofs are not often read, and corrections work, after first corrections are made.
5. Inability to always keep the mind fully intent on the work at hand, without getting side-tracked by other problems of "the day."
6. The copy preparing and proof-reading departments should not be mixed offices—but in weekly offices, they are.
7. There is probably not more than one error, for every 10,000 opportunities to make them.
8. The making of an error, is usually helped along by somebody else, in one or more of a variety of ways.
9. Newspaper workers sometimes become both brain tired and eye tired—strange to say.
10. Occasionally, an error is made just because the fellow who made it doesn't know any better.

A Hawaiian postage stamp, of the issue of 1852, sold in Paris the other day at a stamp collector's sale, at $6,500. Two other old stamps, post-marked together, sold at $70.00. These seem pretty fair representations of the old adage—"A Fool and his money are soon parted."

STATE S. S. CONVENTION.

To be held in Baltimore City, on November 8-9-10th.

Baltimore City will welcome with open arms the delegates who attend the convention of the Maryland State Sunday School Association in that city, on November 8-9-10. The various Sunday Schools throughout the State are hard at work in an effort to secure 2000 delegates. Maryland has challenged New York, which expects 1500 delegates to her State Convention this year, at Jamestown.

For seventy-nine years the Maryland Sunday School Association has been developing Sunday School methods, and exchanging ideas that aid in bringing additional members and increased efficiency into the Sunday School. Through district, county, city and state conventions, Sunday School work has been definitely organized, working throughout the State along modern lines.

The success of organized effort in Maryland is made manifest through the fact that 952 Sunday Schools were organized between 1865 and 1900 by the Maryland State Sunday School Association, a number equal to half of all Sunday Schools in the State. The Maryland State Convention, held last year at Frederick, gave to the 1025 delegates who attended, inspiration and vision that they carried with them throughout the year. The addresses by the leading Sunday School workers in the United States, drove home to the delegates the importance of systematic work, and what can be accomplished by it. In the school of methods, Sunday School teachers become familiar with the most effective means of solving their school problems. It is hoped that the efforts of last year will reward the Association officers by stimulating the interest of those delegates who did attend, sufficiently to insure the presence of 2000 delegates to the convention in Baltimore city.

The Sunday School Association is the pioneer and parent of all co-operative Protestant Christian work in Maryland. Its arms spread throughout the State and bring into the Sunday Schools those who need Christian education. The convention lays the foundation upon which Sunday School workers may secure these increases. The coming State Convention in Baltimore will be of such interest and its business so attractive as to assure all delegates a few days well invested in this work. If the delegates who attended last year could vividly interpret the benefits they derived, Maryland would be at the peak of Sunday School activity in the United States.

Throughout the world, stretching from far away China and India to the civilized countries of Central Europe, there are 30,000,000 members enrolled in Christian Sunday Schools. Of this vast number, our country, the United States, has over one half of the total enrollment of 17,000,000 members. Few people, even those who are active in Sunday Schools, know of Maryland's important position in the Sunday School world. Maryland, whose population and area is way down the list, and is classed as one of the smallest states in the Union, holds the coveted position of 9th, with 250,000 members enrolled and 25,000 teachers and officers.

A large delegation will go to Baltimore from Carroll County, many going for the entire convention, others to attend only special sessions relative to the branch of Sunday School work in which they are particularly interested.

An Editorial Commended.

Editor Record:—
"More ink to your quill," Mr. Editor. Your editorial, "The Arbuckle Crowd" is a jewel. If all the editors of all the papers in the U. S., took the same stand, and backed that stand with as much force as most of our large city dailies do to break down, the enforcement laws—prohibition—would be a fact in the United States within sixty days.

The anti-prohibition papers and their editors are assuming a mighty responsibility in the attitude they now take, for if the constitutional amendment affecting prohibition becomes a farce, already anarchy is turned loose upon us, and no constitutional provision will be safe when a vociferous minority determines to break through its provisions.

The safety of our country and her institutions rests in the keeping of the letter of the law.

WM. JAMES HEAPS, Baltimore, Md.

Armistice Day at Westminster.

Friday, November 11, will be a day of national importance this year. Owing to the burial of an unknown soldier in the Arlington cemetery, the day will be of a memorial nature throughout the nation. The President's proclamation calls for the flying of flags at half-staff from sunrise until sunset as a tribute to the soldier dead.

Plans are already under way in Westminster for the observance of Armistice Day. The organization of ex-service men will assemble at the Park, at 3 P. M., where a short memorial service will be given. All ex-service men and civilian organizations are being invited to take part in a street parade following the memorial service. The newly organized Westminster band will furnish music for the parade.

BE A GOOD FIREMAN AND SAVE THE COAL

Good Care and Common Sense Sure Economy in Heating.

Saving coal, this winter, should be generally practiced; not by having insufficient heat, but by taking greater care of stoves and furnaces in seeing that they are not over-fired, and in spending more time over regulating drafts and in replenishing fires at the right time. As a matter of fact, many houses are continually over-heated and poorly ventilated, and in moderate weather, especially, fires are kept going too strongly, merely because nobody takes the trouble to watch them.

In all public places, as well as in living rooms, the air is usually kept too dry. There should always be a certain amount of moisture maintained, and when it is, less heat is required. A kettle, or pan, or some other receptacle, should be kept on stoves or radiators, in order to give moisture to the air, or the same result may often be obtained by opening doors or windows for a time.

Thermometers are commonly hung outdoors, but not often indoors where they are of the most use in the winter. Sometimes mere imagination is expensive. In early Fall, before we have changed to heavy clothing, we do not mind an indoor temperature of 62° to 64°, but in the middle of winter, and with heavy clothing, we feel almost "freezing" with the same temperature. This is partly due to the presence of moisture in the air, in the Fall, and the lack of it in the winter; and partly due to the fact that we have become too much accustomed to temperatures between 70° and 80°, by rushing the furnace.

In heating a house, it always pays best to be regular in attending stoves and furnaces, and to make this work the special business of one person, rather than the business of all, and none in particular. As a rule, it pays to keep a fire well supplied with coal, and the ash receptacle reasonably clean, than carefully regulate the drafts. It does not pay to superheat a furnace, then find it to be too hot for a long time afterwards.

Heating is something to be studied, and results carefully watched—and let the thermometer and ventilation help. All fires should be shaken down at night, so that there is a good bed of live coals, and the top banked with fine fresh coal, and the dampers just right. Different firing for windy days will be required than for days with a heavy atmosphere, and the house "firemen" should know how to attend both.

On general principles, and no matter how cold or rainy, every house that is kept at a heat of 70 or over, should be given a thorough "air bath" two or three times a day, by throwing wide open, all windows and doors, then closing them after a half minute or so. This will not make a house permanently cold, as fresh air, like fresh water, heats quickly, and everybody will feel better for the change.

There is perhaps too much care taken to tightly seal up all windows and doors through the winter. Of course, in very severe weather, one does not want to heat up all out-of-doors, nor want bitter cold to come in the house, but often the air that forces itself in, against our will, is really beneficial to us.

Do not turn strong draft on closed up stoves and furnaces, then leave them for any length of time. No good fireman will do this—and the same applies to oil stoves, more so than to any other kind. Do not "dry out" kindling, or wood, by placing it in an oven, and go off and leave it—perhaps to bed. And never make fire with coal oil, by pouring it on wood or kindling in a stove. If you must use oil, pour it on in the back yard—but, it will be safest never to form the habit.

Heating and coal saving, is a science, and requires the attention of the best manager in the house. The person who boasts that his furnace requires but little attention, is apt to be a very poor fireman and the burning out of grates tells the same story. Good firing, and economy in the use of coal, yet with the maintenance of comfort, requires a great deal of attention—but, it pays.

Bathers Fur Trimmed.

Atlantic City, Oct. 16.—The fur-trimmed bathing suit was noticeable along the beach today, the final day of the official bathing season.

White and gray had the call in the embellishments for the sea togethery worn by the water nymphs, who appeared by scores along the central beaches for a final dip under the protection of the regular guards. Fur-topped sandals were introduced along with the other polar touches to the costumes.

Bright sunshine and a water temperature of 67 furnished the lure that drew close to a thousand visitors for a romp in the combers around the noon hour.

The Baltimore baseball club lost the Minor League championship to Louisville, five games to three. The Baltimore club came out of the International League championship all broken up, many of the players being disabled, consequently it could not put up its real strength against Louisville.

But the Home Paper Told It!

"Wasn't it fine about Priscilla getting honors in her school work last term?" said Mrs. Smith to Mrs. Brown.

"What?" asked Mrs. Brown. "I didn't know about it."

"But it was in the Home Town Paper," replied Mrs. Smith. "Don't you take it?"

"No," said Mrs. Brown, "but I am going to."

And she did, for this is a true story.

As much a part of the community life as is the school or church is the Home Town Paper.

"Georgia Cyclone" in Westminster.

Increasing interest and widespread enthusiasm which seems to mark the preparation being made for the observance of Carroll County's Adult Bible Class day, Sunday afternoon, Oct. 30, is being greatly accelerated by the announcement of Georgia's distinguished representative as the speaker at the men's meeting. If the reports, which have come in from a number of the communities, are indicative of the whole county, and it is confidently believed they are, the showing on that day will far surpass even the most sanguine hopes of the committee having the matter in charge.

Much elation is being felt and expressed over the coming of the speaker for the Armory meeting. Hon. Wm. D. Upshaw, member of Congress from Georgia, familiarly spoken of as the "Georgia Cyclone," is said to be one of the most brilliant orators ever heard in Congressional halls. His fame and popularity have spread all over the United States and far into Canada. He has made a great reputation as a lecturer and has been identified with Christian work for a number of years, being a regularly ordained minister of the Gospel. The Liberty Quartette will sing and the Westminster orchestra will furnish the instrumental music.

The women's meeting, which will be held in the Centenary M. E. Church simultaneously with the Armory meeting, will be presided over by Mrs. D. F. Shipley, of Westminster, the chairman of the women's committee. They are particularly fortunate in having secured as their speaker Mrs. P. A. Heilmann, whose husband is the successful pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, in Baltimore. Mrs. Heilmann was for a number of years a Missionary in Africa, but about six years ago, death made it necessary for her to return to this country. Since then she has spent her time in Christian work among the churches of her denomination and elsewhere. She is the teacher of a class of 135 women in St. Paul's church, and is exceptionally well equipped to speak on this occasion. A large choir of fifty voices from all the churches will render special music at this meeting.

After Race Track Gambling.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Race tracks in Maryland and other States will be virtually put out of business if the Senate approves legislation which the House unexpectedly wrote into a pending bill this afternoon. The legislative rider closes the United States mails to any newspaper that publishes race-track information, betting odds, form sheets and other data encouraging betting on horse-racing. The amendment is broad enough to cover all "printed matter."

Less than one-fifth of the membership of the House was present when the vote was taken. There was practically no debate and there was no roll call. A point of order was made that the legislative "rider" was not germane to the pending bill, but this was overruled and the drastic anti-racing provision went into the bill as offered by Representative Jos. Walsh, Massachusetts, Republican.

Mr. Walsh charged that the gambling spirit was rife in the United States and unless checked "this country will wake up some day and find itself almost in the fix of Russia."

Newspapers and other periodicals under the Walsh amendment would be subject to a $5,000 fine for depositing in the mails any issue containing information about racing odds and results. A five-year prison sentence may also be imposed upon those responsible.

RAILROAD STRIKE PLANNED FOR OCT. 30

Efforts Being Made to Prevent General Walk-out.

The big topic, all week, throughout the country, has been the general strike of railroad employees, scheduled to begin Oct. 30. Briefly, this threatened strike is based entirely on the fact that the railroads have filed a request with the Railroad Labor Board to grant a reduction of about 10 per-cent in wages of railroad employees from the present scale fixed July 20, 1920; in other words, that the increase then awarded should now be wiped out, due to reduced costs of living, and that railroad wages should be reduced, the same as other wages and costs.

Judging from the almost universal comment against the strike proposition, by the newspapers of the country, great and small, it is the most unpopular big movement of unionized labor ever conceived, because it is based wholly on organized force showing absence of any willingness to help the country back to normal times by assuming part of the overwhelming burdens of the world war.

As the railroad rates are controlled by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and wages by the Railroad Labor Board, the movement is actually one against the government in its management of the railroads; which is largely a trusteeship of the interests of the whole country, including transportation costs, the soundness of railroad securities, wages to employees, the prevention of hold-up methods by the exercise of monopolistic arguments; in fact, the government is practically operating the railroads of the country, without actually owning them and directing all of their details.

The railroads of the country are viewing the situation with at least outward calm and confidence. They predict that even if the strike is operated it will not last long; and the claim is made that all of the roads have enough faithful employees who will not go out, to continue at least a partial operation of the roads.

In political circles, the usual nervousness over the result does not exist, perhaps due to the fact that no National election is held in November, and the feeling is strong that a test of strength might as well be made now, as any other time between unionism and the public.

The administration's plan is reported to make it clear that whenever the Railroad Labor Board announces a decision, it must stand, whether it be favorable, or unfavorable, to the claims of either employees or the companies, and that its decisions must be obeyed. This is taken to include the Pennsylvania Railroad, that recently defied a ruling of the Board.

It is believed that such a course will prevent the strike, that has been announced in advance of the Board's ruling in favor of wage reduction, pending which, the Railroads have intimated that they will ask for a still further reduction, and also that their rates can not be reduced even with the reduction in wages. By making it clear that both the Labor Board, and the Interstate Commerce Commission, must be obeyed, it is believed that neither party will presume on their power to dictate what they will do. This takes the view of the case that the planned strike was largely a protest against a second reduction contemplated, and that the Railroads are influencing decisions in their own interests.

Henry E. Strevig and wife to H. Phillip Stoffle, 3 15/100 acres for $500.

George R. Wareheim to Benjamin Cavalier and wife, lot for $5.00.

Philippines, or Philipines.

The use of "Philippines," and "Filipinos," in connection with the same country and people, is apt to be quite confusing to some, as to which is correct, and when to use each spelling. The right of it seems to be—at least that established by usage—is to use the spelling "Philippines" when referring to the islands, and "Filipinos" when referring to the people of the islands, or "Filipinas" when referring only to the women.

THE DROUTH INCREASING

Prohibition Enforcement is Admittedly Growing Everywhere.

Even the wet city newspapers are beginning to admit that the drouth is becoming very much more effective, and that boot-legging, so far as real liquor is concerned, is becoming a lost business. The plan that is bringing about the scarcity, is clamping down the lid on barrel lot withdrawals of liquor from bonded store houses.

It is also true, that the standard of prohibition enforcement officials is gradually being raised, and that "getting by" the law is no longer an easy job. Fake wholesale druggists are also being weeded out. Orders for liquors for medical purposes and preparations, will no longer be so easily filled, and an absolute accounting for all liquors sold for medicinal purposes, is now rapidly becoming an enforced law.

Much of the bootlegging business has heretofore depended on the knowledge, or the belief, that straight liquors were being secured; but when it becomes more generally known that the concoctions to be had are doctored alcohol, and dangerous preparations, the number of purchasers will greatly decrease, fearing the effects of the fake stuff.

Little Unemployment in Counties of Maryland.

While cities and towns are wondering what to do with their armies of unemployed, Maryland farms are operating at nearly normal capacity and providing employment for practically all available farm labor.

This in substance is the answer which the county agents of the state have made to a telegram from Secretary Henry C. Wallace to Dr. Thos. B. Symons, director of the University of Maryland Extension Service, requesting information regarding unemployment on Maryland farms. A summary of the reports received, including all but one county of the State, shows an average estimated unemployment among farm help of only 5.2 per-cent. Twelve counties reported no unemployment whatever and in some cases it was stated that farmers are making more complaint regarding inability to secure help than is coming from the ranks of the unemployed.

Somerset county reported the highest percentage of unemployment—50 per-cent—among colored farm laborers. About 90 per-cent of the farm labor in Somerset county, according to County Agent C. Z. Keller, is made up of colored men and women who find their chief occupations in the picking and handling of truck crops. Unfavorable weather in this section materially lowered the yields of strawberries and early potatoes, it is said, while the slump in the canning industry resulted in a reduced acreage of tomatoes, thus affecting labor demands.

The situation in Somerset, however, is not considered serious, according to Mr. Keller, because of the fact that a large percentage of the colored farm hands own their own small places in negro settlements where they have small gardens and are able to raise their own hogs and poultry. A favorable oyster season with the opening of the packing houses, also can be expected to furnish some relief in the opinion of Mr. Keller.

Unemployment in Calvert county is estimated at 25 per-cent and in Washington county at 15 per-cent although in the latter county, the report from County Agent S. E. Day, states that out of 50 requests from farmers for help during corn harvest only about 10 per-cent could be filled. With the exception of Somerset, Calvert and Washington counties, where the figures are exceptionally high, unemployment throughout the State averages little more than one per-cent.

Tobacco and Cigar Statistics.

Washington, Oct. 18.—A billion more cigars, almost 2,000,000,000 fewer cigarettes and 14,000,000 pounds less of manufactured tobacco were produced during 1920 than during 1919, Census Bureau statistics compiled from Internal Revenue reports show.

Pennsylvania leads large and small cigars, producing more than one-quarter of the total, which was 8,057,792 large cigars and 642,640,900 small cigars in 1920.

North Carolina leads in small cigarettes, producing more than half of the country's total output, which was 51,192,762,708.

New York leads large cigarettes, producing almost 27 per-cent of the country's total of 41,051,217.

North Carolina leads in smoking tobacco, producing more than one-quarter of the 228,566,655 pounds manufactured in 1919.

Missouri leads in plug tobacco, producing 41 per-cent of the 141,037,895 pounds manufactured in 1919 and also leads in twist, of which 11,290,488 pounds was made in 1910.

Illinois leads in fine-cut tobacco, producing more than 35 per-cent of the country's total of 8,165,865 lbs.

Tennessee leads in snuff, producing more than 44 per-cent of the country's total production of 35,007,882 pounds.

Fifty buildings in Pottsville, Pa., have been condemned by state officials as fire menaces, and have been ordered torn down; and unless the order is obeyed at once, heavy fines will be imposed. Another legal interference with "personal liberty."

Officially, we are at last at peace with Germany, Austria and Hungary. Here's wishing it long life and happiness, and the actions that make for peace.

A close second to the volume of praise for the late Senate Knox, of Pennsylvania, was the volume of the comment as to who would be his successor. At any rate, the appointment was not publicly made before the funeral.

The Republican Congress refused to pass a bill increasing representation in the House by twenty-five members. The gain would likely have been largely Republican. Ordinarily, one would think the plan would have passed as a partisan measure; but it may be that the Republican majority is too big, as it now stands.

The offer of only $25.00 a year to county papers for publishing the big county statement, does not indicate lavish expenditure of the county's funds. If anybody has been getting a big slice of the high tax revenue, it is evidently not the publishers of weekly papers. We know a rather long story about the former charges for these statements, but will not go into that just now.

The centre of the game of politics will be around the contest for County Clerk and Register of Wills, the best two offices in the county, with four strong candidates competing. The voters of the county should insist on a fair race, and see that they get it—if they can. We mean, a fair race for the minor candidates, as well, for very often these are regarded as pawns in the game, to be sacrificed to help the chances of the big pieces.

As was to be expected, the fact that a County Commissioner is to be elected, this year, calls for trying to "put it over" on the Republican Board, because the present tax rate is higher on account of war-time costs for everything. The only justification in the effort is found in the saying that "all is fair in love, war and politics." The weakness in the charge rests in the fact that tax-rates are equally as high in counties with Democratic Commissioners.

Insurance and Gambling.

At best, or at bottom, insurance of all kinds is more or less betting, or gambling with chance. Life insurance takes a chance that owing to a certain satisfactory physical examination, and taking the average of life into consideration, the death of the insured will not occur until after a satisfactory total of premiums has been paid the company by the insured.

Fire insurance is much along the same line, with the law of average experience fixing premium payments, in consideration of certain agreements on the part of the property owner. There is also the conflagration hazard, and the moral risk, but premiums and rates are carefully adjusted so as to leave the Companies a fair chance to win.

There are other classes of insurance, all depending more or less—and rather more than less—on luck, or chance, as they involve, to a greater extent than in life and fire, the chance of providential, or weather extremes and possibilities, among these classes being insurance against hail, rain, windstorm, flood, explosion, etc.

Still another class of insurance is largely confined to the honesty of men, and to purely business ventures, including such propositions, as theft, safe delivery of packages, bonding for honesty, burglar insurance, and other like propositions.

Some classes of insurance are extreme, and depend almost solely on pure betting; so much so that those conscientiously inclined against gambling, see in this sort of insurance nothing but the gambling spirit. One of the extremes in this class is insurance against automobiles being confiscated by legal authorities on account of violation of the prohibition laws.

However we may regard the most commonly accepted insurance contracts—such as life fire, storm and bonding—as legitimate business safeguards and necessities, we must nevertheless accept the fact that we, in some measure, gamble with chance; but the other fact remains, that if we do not take out such insurance, we take the chance ourselves—we do the gambling, instead of the insurance companies. This may be a far-fetched argument, but it is sound, nevertheless. We would never insure anything, was it not for fear of loss by not doing so.

Making a New Home.

Making a new home, in reality, means making new friends, for a home without close friends is merely a stopping place. Even though it may be fashionably up-to-date, with all modern conveniences, and desirable as to access to the so-called "advantages of modern life," the real home touch rests with dependable, well known friends.

Making a new home is comparatively easy—all other things being desirable—when undertaken early in life. The young have their attachments and friends, but they are not the time-tried and genuine sort; for as a rule, friends must pass severe tests and see us under difficulties as well as in prosperity, before the real thing in friendship can exist, and this comes only after long time and trial.

The man who spends forty or fifty years in a community, establishing a fine character and reputation, only realizes what he loses—goes away from—when he finds in a strange community that his possession has not followed him, but that he must begin all over again, the "show me" process. A man can take his money with him, and a certain amount of respectable status, but he can not take his friends nor quickly find their duplicates, in a new field.

Home sickness? It is a real thing—and no disgrace. The fact is, a home-sick person, young or old, is a person to tie to, as the condition shows heart, and appreciation of one of the finest possessions in the world—genuine home friends, and that we miss them.

The man or woman who makes new friends easily and quickly, is apt to make them too easily. They are not to be put on or off like a change in clothing. Moreover, one does not amount to the most and best that he can, unless he helps to build up and make better, community life and sentiment, and this requires time and close study, and often earnest effort. Visitors and travellers, hotel and boarding house guests, never really belong anywhere and it is the "belonging" that counts.

Too Much Concrete.

New things are apt to be overdone, and the use of concrete—a comparatively new thing—is one of them. We are concreting nearly everything, and with very little provocation, and sooner or later we are going to tire of the glare and glisten, the clatter, the sameness, the sealed-up-ishness, of concrete, and wish we had not been so completely overcome with the fad.

The high cost of lumber, brick and skilled labor, have wonderfully helped the concrete invasion; and besides, its own merits for a wide class of uses has made it the popular "good thing" that stares us in the face, and constantly warns us to "keep our step" within the bounds of extra care.

But, with all of its merits, our small towns are surrendering too much to King concrete. We are afraid of trees—the roots of trees—that will spoil our concrete sidewalks. We are using concrete floors that are damp and gritty, and making posts and trimmings of the stuff that banishes the more comfy, warm and home-like painted wood; and as a result we are surrounding our homes with a dead whiteness that will soon reach the point of positive bare whiteness, and a cemetery-like monotony.

The truth is, the extensive use of concrete is very largely experimental and its final virtues are yet to be estimated, both as to cost and durability, without considering artistic beauty. That it is the material par excellence for very many uses, does not at all mean that it is at all well adopted to the wholesale use to which it is being put.

To Gain a Good Reputation.

The way to gain a good reputation is to endeavor to be what you appear. That is precisely the manner in which Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has gained its reputation as a cure for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. Every bottle that has ever been put out by the manufacturers has been fully up to the high standard of excellence claimed for it. People have found that it can be depended upon for the relief and cure of these ailments and that it is pleasant and safe to take.

Forming Good Reading Habits.

If parents wish their children to form good reading habits they must first form such habits themselves. And there is no better way to do this than to bring into the household a periodical that will be of interest to every member of it; that will supply the best reading for old and young. Among the periodicals of this description The Youth's Companion is unique. Not only does it aim to entertain and inform boys and girls in their teens, as its name suggests, but there is not a page in it that parents can pass over with indifference.

The 52 issues of 1922 will be crowded with serial stories, short stories, editorials, poetry, facts and fun. Subscribe now and receive.

1. The Youth's Companion—52 issues in 1922.
2. All the remaining issues of 1921.
3. The Companion Home Calendar for 1922. All for $2.50.
4. Or include McCall's Magazine, the monthly authority on fashions. Both publications, only $3.00.

We Face a Siege.

The railroad brotherhoods and allied unions are proceeding with their carefully considered and strategic plans of freeze and starve the American people and the Government of the United States into submission. Their chosen enemies are the railroad owners and managers, but their victims will be the helpless millions jammed into the great centers of population.

The victims of this "fight-to-the-death," of which W. G. Lee, of the trainmen, so glibly talks, will be the crowded millions in the congested industrial centers. It is these people that 2,000,000 rail men are proposing to starve into death or into anarchy that will bring the Nation to terms.

There is no loophole in their plans whereby the sick in the hospital may be kept from freezing in their beds. So far as the overlords of railroads' unions are concerned, babies may die for want of milk; women and children may starve and freeze in their homes and men may starve in the streets.

The unions are proposing an assassination of business, of industry and a slow assassination of the millions who live by the day's work. In order that 2,000,000 men may have their way, they propose to throw the great cities into a state of siege and plunge a Twentieth Century civilization back into a hand-to-mouth effort for existence during the struggle.—Phila. Ledger.

HOW A CRAB CHANGES SUITS

He Withdraws Painfully From His Old Shell and Then Quickly Grows Another.

How does a crab grow? Does his armor increase in size to accommodate his body as it becomes larger and larger? As a matter of fact it does not; the shell never alters at all. The crab, like a growing boy, requires a new suit every now and then to cover his growing limbs.

He grows slowly inside his shell, until a day comes when he simply cannot bear it any longer, says a writer. Then he retires to the safest hiding place that he can find, and a curious process begins. Grasping a tuft of seaweed firmly with his legs, he begins to move his body about inside his shell. In a short time a crack appears across the back. Through this the crab gradually heaves out his soft body.

Then, after a short rest, he sets to work on the long business of unshelling his claws, legs and feelers, each of which is drawn out of its armored covering, just as a sword is pulled from the scabbard.

Your crab is now the most defenseless creature imaginable; not only is his body as soft as butter, but he is quite unable to move, for the unshelling process has completely exhausted him.

He remains perfectly still, trusting that he is well concealed from foes. And as he waits you see him growing. There was not room for much expansion inside the shell, so he makes up for lost time once he is out of it.

In a short time a new shell begins to form, and before many weeks have passed he is as full armored as ever, and several sizes larger.

NUMBERS THAT PEOPLE LIKE

Results of Curious Inquiry Into the Preferences of Inhabitants of Various Countries.

There has been announced in France the result of a curious investigation concerning "preferred numbers" of the inhabitants of different countries. The basis of the investigation is a study of the various denominations of money, postage stamps and other measures.

It appears that nearly all races show a marked preference for the numbers "two," "three" and "five," and their multiples. But the Mohammedans avoid the number "three." Neither in Turkey nor in Persia, it appears, does one find a trace of this number, and it is scarcely found in Egypt.

Among the French and other Latin peoples "two" and "five" are more popular than "three," while the English prefer "two" and "three" and the Germans "three" and "five."

The Chinese resemble the Latin race in their choice, while the people of India have a strong liking for "two." The number "seven" is most used in Russia and other Slavie countries. The higher numbers are not much used except in Spanish countries, as "eleven" in Salvador, "seventeen" in Mexico, "nineteen" in Spain, and "thirty-one" in Guatemala. The people of Hawaii are said to be quite fond of "thirteen."

Businesslike Toads

After lizards, batrachians are likely to be the popular favorites; indeed, I prefer a couple of wise old natterjack toads to anything else, a writer says in the London Express.

Their manner when about to take a meal may not be graceful, but it is decidedly businesslike. A few strides take the natterjack alongside his prey—a nice fat worm.

He arches his neck and waits for another sign of life; then, unseen, his tongue flicks out and with a series of very pronounced "swallows," the eyes sink into the head each time, the morsel gradually disappears.

Fishes are great favorites with batrachians of all sorts and I have now a pair of natterjacks that will sit side by side in my hand and flick the insects off the window pane.

English Roads.

Four times only in English history has there been a studied effort to provide new roads or improve the road system. The Romans built the great military roads, like Watling street, by which in part the modern motorist travels from Liverpool to London and then there was a lapse of 1,100 years until Elizabeth. It is curious that neither Alfred nor William the Conqueror nor Edward I nor Warwick the kingmaker should have set himself to roadmaking, the first need of every army, but so it was. The Elizabethan effort was only one symptom of the new progressive public spirit to which England owes the Elizabethan poor law and a revival, if not a re-creation, of the ordered life of shire and village.—Christian Science Monitor.

How Sand Dunes Travel.

In the desert of La Joya, Peru, there are thousands of crescent-shaped sand dunes, formed by the winds, and slowly advancing across the level surface. One investigator measured one of these dunes, the points of whose crescent were 160 feet apart, while the length round the convex side was 477 feet. The width at the widest part of the crescent was more than 100 feet. The weight of the sand composing the dune was estimated at 8000 tons, yet it moved 125 feet in a year. All the dunes have the same form, and all have the convex side toward the prevailing south winds.

POULTRY

CONSTRUCTION OF HENHOUSE

Location is important to secure convenience, good drainage and right exposure.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
If your poultry is to be healthy, comfortable, contented, it will be necessary to provide a house having plenty of fresh air (but no draft), dryness, sunlight, and space enough to move around without trouble. No particular style of house is adapted to any section of the country. One that gives satisfaction in Maine is likely to do all right in Texas or California, but, quite naturally, more open built, and consequently less expensive houses will serve in the South.

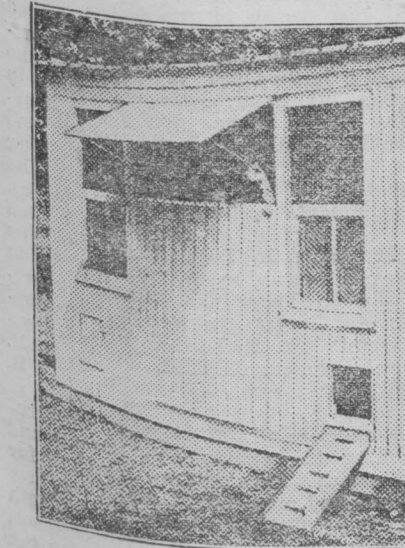

Good drainage, so that the floor and yard will be dry, is indispensable, which means that the site should be chosen carefully. Don't set the house in a pocket or a hollow where cold air settles. Try to remember, too, before you decide the question of location that the site will have much to do with convenience in management. A house that isn't easy to reach is likely to receive less care and attention than if it had been built with this idea in mind.

You can keep more birds on a small floor area under the colony plan than with the intensive system, where the colony plan is used in a mild climate, and the hens have free range most of the year. Colony houses on runners, holding 30 to 75 hens, are about as large as can be moved easily, but larger numbers can be kept in one flock in a long house. Flocks of 60 to 150 are well adapted to the average conditions for producing eggs. Large numbers require less labor, fewer fences, and a lower house cost than small flocks, but there is greater chance for disease, and the individual hen receives less attention.

The cost of housing poultry depends upon many conditions, such as price of lumber, style of house, amount of floor space allowed to each bird, and so on.

Roosts usually are placed next to the end or back walls, 6 to 10 inches above the dropping boards, which should be 2 to 2 1/2 feet above the floor. All the roosts should be on the same level; otherwise the birds will crowd and fight to get on the highest roost. Scantling 2 by 3 inches or 2 by 4 inches, with the upper edges rounded off, will do for roosts with either the wide or narrow surface up. Allow 7 to 10 inches roost space to the fowl, according to the size of the birds. Roosts should be placed 15 inches apart, but the outside ones may be within 10 inches of the edge of the dropping boards.

Nests may be placed under the dropping boards, on partition walls, or in any convenient place where they do not take up floor space, and should be arranged so that the birds can get into them easily. They should be 12 to 14 inches square and 12 to 16 inches high, with a strip about 4 inches high on the open side to retain the nesting material. Provide one nest for every four or five hens. Trap nests are essential for any careful breeding work, and you can learn all about these in Farmers' Bulletin 682, A Simple Trap Nest for Poultry, which you can get upon application to the division of publication of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Houses of solid concrete are cold and damp, but concrete blocks may be used with good results. Hollow tile makes a very good poultry house, and it can be bought in some sections at a price which compares favorably, durability considered, with wood. This construction is well adapted to incubator cellars and brooder houses, or to any buildings requiring double walls and good insulation. All kinds of wood are used, but anything used for outside construction should be well seasoned, otherwise the shrinkage will cause cracks in the walls.

LIMITED MARKET FOR GEESSE

Specialists Say Fact Must Be Considered Before Undertaking to Raise Them.

The market for geese is not so general as for chickens, a fact which specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture say should be considered before undertaking to raise them. The demand and the price usually are good in sections where fattening is conducted on a large scale.

PREVENT BREAKAGE OF EGGS

Plans for Making Better Crates for Shipping Have Been Worked Out by Specialists.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"Handling Eggs for Profit" is the title of a little mimeographed circular issued by the food research laboratory of the bureau of chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture, which gives directions and drawings for the construction of egg cases and outlines methods for packing the eggs so as to reduce loss from breakage while in transit from the producers to consuming centers.

The specialists in the food research laboratory have made a study of methods for packing and shipping eggs in order to reduce the great losses from breakage that have occurred in all parts of the country in co-operation with railroads and with egg shippers.

The Right Method of Nailing Crates is Shown in Fig. 1, Proper Methods of Packing in Fig. 2, 3 and 4—Poorly Made and Packed Crates Are Shown in Figs. 5 and 6.

Experimental shipments in different kinds of shipping cases and with the different methods of packing the eggs in the cases have been made and the results compared. An instrument has been devised for measuring and recording the shocks to which cars containing eggs were subjected while in transit.

As a result of these experiments the specialists have recommended methods of packing eggs which reduce breakage to a minimum. These methods have been tried under a great variety of conditions, and have been incorporated as requirements in the railroad and express classifications for the transportation of eggs.

Nails in place save claims, it is tersely said; and, as shown in figure 1, the number and arrangement of these necessary in order to conform with the requirements of the express and consolidated freight classifications are as follows:

- Three-penny nails, cement coated, with large heads.
- 18 nails for each side, 6 for each end, 6 in center.
- 21 nails for bottom, 7 in each end, 7 in center.
- 8 nails for top, 4 in each end, for flush cleat.
- 6 nails for top, 3 in each end, for drop cleat.

Egg packers are advised to be sure that they use the correct number of nails.

When 6 paper-covered excelsior mats are used, flats should not be placed between the mats and the fillers. When cupped trays made of compressed pulp are employed, it is best to begin by placing one 25-cup filler, receiving side downward, on the bottom of the case. Then place one 16-cup filler, receiving side upward on top, nesting it. Fill the cups with eggs and cover with one 16-cup filler. Then place one 25-cup filler, receiving side upward; fill cups with eggs and cover with a 25-cup filler.

Improper packing invites breakage, and figure 5 illustrates a poorly packed case. Sometimes an extremely thin layer of excelsior, many times a small amount of loose paper, or perhaps nothing at all is placed on the top and bottom, leaving the case loosely packed and the chances for breakage and loss are great. Very frequently such poorly packed cases have broken and stained fillers and flats, and such a combination greatly increases the probability of damage.

POULTRY NOTES

Fresh filling for nest boxes every month is none too often.

Don't expect 200-egg pullets from 100-egg hens. Remember that "like begets like."

Lice, dampness and overfeeding are responsible for the greater part of the heavy mortality in young stock.

Improve the quality of your flocks by purchasing some good fowls from a heavy-laying strain of pure-breds. It will be money well spent.

The best way to kill off lice is to prevent them from getting a start. This is much easier than it is to give them a chance and then fight them afterward.

The Source of Motor Trouble is not Always Under the Hood

YOU do not look into your gasoline tank to find the cause of engine troubles, but you might find it there.

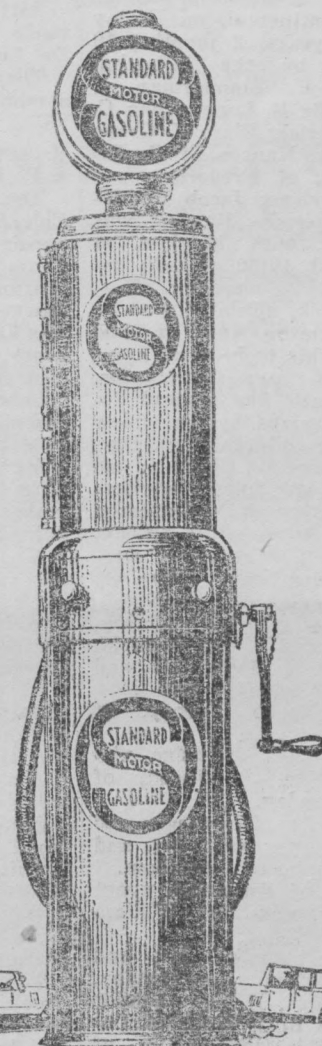

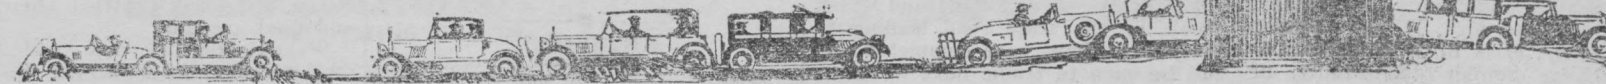

Automobile motors require a good, steady diet of balanced gasoline. If the distilled product varies because of changing qualities of the crude oil from which it is refined, your gasoline is one-sided. Every oil field produces petroleum rich in certain properties, but lacking in others.

The Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) has eliminated numerous motor troubles and much gasoline wastage by developing a motor fuel which is not only properly balanced, but is the same day after day—to the last ounce—wherever and whenever you buy it. It starts the motor in a hurry, burns up cleanly, and delivers exceptional pulling power.

We have never claimed merits for our products which you could not prove for yourself. We recommend that you get a tankful of "Standard" Motor Gasoline and give it a thorough trial. You will quickly note the advantages of a completely balanced gasoline.

A Remarkable Record.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for colds, croup and whooping cough for almost half a century and has constantly grown in favor and popularity as its good qualities became better known. It is the standard and main reliance for these diseases in thousands of homes. The facts that it can always be depended upon and is safe and pleasant to take are greatly in its favor when it is wanted for children.

BLUE RIDGE COLLEGE.

A Faculty recital will be given by the Faculty of the music and expression department, Saturday night, Oct. 22, at 8 o'clock. This is an annual affair looked forward to by the friends and patrons of the college.

OLD HOME TOWN PAPER TO HAVE A WEEK

Nation Wide Campaign Launched for November 7-12—Place in Community Life Emphasized.

November 7-12 has been set as "Subscribe for Your Home Town Paper Week." and this newspaper, together with the thousands of country newspapers the United States over—there are not far from 15,000 of them, weeklies and small dailies—is to participate.

The purpose of the campaign is not only to induce residents of the small communities and the home town folks who are far from their native folk to subscribe for the home paper, but also to emphasize the important place the home newspaper plays in the life of its community.

This campaign has the hearty support and co-operation not only of the newspapers but thousands of ministers and school principals, and many state agricultural colleges and farm and home bureau organizations.

Some persons, it is pointed out, have been inclined to belittle the place and function of the country newspaper. They have not realized that in reality the home paper is a community institution and that it enables the other institutions, such as the church and the school and all the rest to function better and more effectively. That it is a necessity if the town is to advance.

During the time between now and "Home Town Paper Week," November 7-12, this newspaper in its columns will have much to say about the Home Town Paper—not this newspaper in particular, but the home town paper the nation over, the home town newspaper as a real and distinctive factor in American life.

A Messenger to Garcia.

The local newspaper is the messenger to Garcia for your town. It goes out to the world as an advertisement for the community. To be a good advertisement it must be a good newspaper. To be a good newspaper it must have the support of the people of the community in the way of subscriptions and advertising. Are you doing your part toward making your paper a good advertisement for this community, one that will carry the kind of a message the people of the community wish carried to the world?

Roofed For Life

Your Roof. How well will it serve. How long will it last. Will it still be actively engaged in protecting your home after years of hard service.

Vulcanite Roofings have been noted for giving consistent roof service over a long period of years. The patented Self-Spacing Shingle and Hexagon Slab Shingle both make a very durable and weatherproof roof. They give a double thickness of roofing over the entire roof.

And the fibrous felt thoroughly saturated with asphalt and surfaced with crushed slate in either a deep red or grayish green color, all contribute to make Vulcanite Roofings the best on the market. You can see this line here. Don't buy a roofing until you have at least looked it over.

You can't expect Beaver Quality results unless this trade-mark is on the roofing you buy

Community's Archives

"Can you tell me the date the Baptist church burned—I mean, of course, the famous fire that all the old inhabitants talk about?" The librarian looked up from her work. "No, I can't tell you the exact date, but I think I can find it for you quickly, for we have the files of the local paper since it was started. My impression is that the fire—the big fire, as they call it—was about 1873, and it won't be a very long job to look it up."

She went to the stacks in the rear of the library, pulled out a dusty bound volume marked "Herald, 1873," and spread it open on the table. "Ah, here it is," she said, after a minute spent in turning over the yellow leaves.

The person who had inquired for the date, a member of the woman's club of the town, sat down and read the article. "This gives me exactly the information I wanted," she said.

"I thought it would," said the librarian. "I fear most people do not appreciate how valuable is the local newspaper from the viewpoint of local history. In fact, it seems to me that it is about our only source. Only when an event gets into print is it officially recorded and filed for reference. Filings as it is, the printed word of today is the counterpart of the ancient stone inscriptions that give us our records of a long-ago yesterday. I consider the bound volumes of our local papers perhaps the most valuable possession of this library."

There's at least one librarian who is giving "Subscribe for Your Home Town Paper Week," which will be observed November 7-12, the most hearty backing she can give.

Far-Sighted.

A railway employee was in the witness box, and was being cross-examined by a very self-important young lawyer about a case which had resulted in a damage suit as the consequence of an accident on the railroad.

"You say that you saw this man fall from the train?" said the lawyer.

"I saw him fall, yes," replied the railway man.

"Yet it was night time," insisted the lawyer. "And you were at one end of the train and the man was at the other. Do you expect an intelligent jury to believe such a yarn? How far can you see at night?"

"About a million miles, I think," replied the railway man. "I can see the moon. How far is that?"

The Last Word in Luxury.

New York, Oct. 6.—Three hundred Park avenue, the new Sherry apartments just opened is probably the most luxurious abode of wealth in the world; it has gold-plated door-knobs, silver-plated chandeliers and a separate set of elevators running to each of the sixteen floors. The apartments really are private homes.

The largest of thirty rooms has been taken by Percy Rockefeller. The yearly rentals range from $10,000 to $55,000. There are ninety apartments. Among the leading "director-tenants" are Richard T. Wilson, General Coleman du Pont, Colonel B. E. McAlpin, Louis J. Horowitz, F. C. B. Page, F. Coit Johnson, Louis L. Dunham and L. M. Boomer.

In furnishing the apartments, Europe and America have been searched for ideas and materials. Louis Sherry has installed $250,000 worth of thirteenth century tapestries in his apartment. Mr. Boomer sent to Norway for the woods used in his apartment; Mrs. Boomer being a native of that country.

Some of the walls in many of the homes are huge canvases for paintings by famous artists. A magnificent ball-room, a restaurant, a grill, a tea room and confectionery shop occupy the first floor and mezzanine. Yes, business in the United States appears to be picking up. If you want to locate at "Three Hundred Park Avenue," you must be voted upon by the "director-tenants," who are particular, very particular, indeed.—Phila. Ledger.

Everybody's Poultry Week.

All roads will lead to Westminster, the week of November 15. The Maryland Mid-State Poultry show is going to have a message for every man, woman and child. The Fireman's hall has been obtained for the meetings that will be held on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. These meetings will be free to all. Wednesday poultrymen from all over Maryland will gather in an endeavor to form a State organization. On Wednesday evening there will be a poultrymen's high jinks at the Westminster hotel. Tickets for this can be obtained from officers of the association at $1.

Thursday the Grangers will hold a rally in the afternoon and on Friday the boys and girls and housewives will be entertained. Free tickets will be distributed to the school children for that day and a demonstration on the proper use of eggs will be one of the features. Saturday the competitive drill of squads from Company H, will wind up the week.

By the way, get your entries in as early as possible. This is one way you can aid those who have the details in charge.

Marfa's Wedding Gown

By MARTHA MACWILLIAMS.

(© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Marfa held to a religion of hate against housework. A vain piece she, proud of her soft hands with taper fingers and filbert shaped nails. Her dream was to sit in airy fairy garments in softly lighted spaces evoking beauty from gay-colored wools and rich silks or tumbling lace and linen into garments fine enough for a princess. She loved rich and fine textures and had an artist's sensibility to color. Silk especially fascinated her; she gazed over her scant store of it with an approach to miser joy. In a way that was lucky all around.

Her parents were just people of the old fashion, and somewhat narrow. When she was done with school and restless in too-abundant leisure, they had settled her problem by offering her wages to stay and help her mother, who was in vigorous middle age.

Neighbors had laughed at first—Marfa had a soft snap. Mrs. Lane would do all the hard things and her daughter get a tidy sum for standing by. There they reckoned without either mother or daughter. Shirk-ing was impossible to them—Marfa did her full share. But not for love of those needing it; instead, for love of silk.

She put by her money to buy her fill of it, permitting her parents to clothe her in things fit for a working girl. So the savings mounted steadily, albeit now and then Marfa was tempted by a scarf, a length of a rare weave fascinating in color and texture, a bit of satin or brocade truly royal. Nobody sought to hinder such spendings; an only daughter, even if rebellious against environment, is too precious to be crossed needlessly. Besides the elders were sympathetic toward Marfa's longings. She came by them honestly. They themselves were plain folk, but Grandma Marklen had been just the same. She had craved, saved and hoarded and at last died of shock and grief when her trunkfuls of finery were bored unloosed. Cynthia, eldest daughter, sole inheritor in her generation of grandma's passion, was thought by the two younger girls to have borrowed several especially gorgeous things just before the fire.

But she denied having them—so there the matter rested. The denying had made coolness between the sisters, but Cynthia, in her city home, cared little for that.

She had married well; a widower twice her age, with an overgrown son, and a bad case of grouch. Dying a few years after, he had left her a life estate that assured her a handsome income, but nothing in fee—everything reverted to the son, who had grown out of his bulkiness but kept his resentment to Cynthia. So when Joe Lane went to work in the city, Cynthia, otherwise Mrs. Jabez Clifford, had sought him out, made him free of her home, a handsome apartment—and introduced him to her friends.

He had done her much credit among them, being clean-minded, straight, tall and supple, fresh-colored and easy in manner with the ease that comes from a very kind heart. Yet she did not encourage him to speak of home nor home affairs. "I want you all mine, while you are with me," she had said in the beginning. Hence his letters had not dwelt upon her kindness.

He was glad they had not when the trouble came—the home people might feel that he could appeal to her for help. That was, on the face of things, impossible; yet when she somehow sensed his deep disquiet, and cross-examined him cleverly, he ended by showing her his father's letter. "Son, don't jeopard your own future," it ran, "but if you can, lend me a thousand dollars or so. What I let you have when you left us was a gift outright; am not asking a penny of it back. You know why, I think, so the land might go free and clear to your sister. She may love it not better than you do, but it can't die nor run away, and can be so left to her as to make it certain she has comfort. And it insures us old folk a good living as long as we have no debts to pay.

"Now there isn't the scratch of a pen against me, but with the fruit all killed, the garden-truck more than half ruined and wheat so hurt by last week's frost, the income in sight will barely pay taxes, and insurance and no matter how you save, saving isn't possible when you haven't any money." "A thousand will tide us over beautifully—could get it on mortgage easy, but I want to die as I've lived, mortgage free. You will, I know, be glad to help me if you can with justice to yourself. That you must decide—if you are likely to hurt yourself in pocket or standing with your partners, say so like the man I hope we've made you. I know you won't think I ought to use Marfa's money, she has saved a little more than the thousand in her three years' work for us. But we know, mother and I, her heart is set on spending it for silk, and she shall have the fun of doing it no matter what happens."

Aunt Cynthia read the letter through, pursed her lips, winked hard, then said abruptly: "Joe; will you take me down there for the week-end Saturday?"

"Yes, if you care to go," Joe said restrainedly. He had hoped she might be touched; instead she seemed to think only of herself. Later by shrewd questions she learned that he could not send the money with the business situation so ticklish, his own business could spare nothing not imperatively needed, and outside borrowing would queer, not only himself but his firm. To that she nodded affirmatively but said only: "We'll go, but don't you dare give them warning. I want to see all things for myself."

All the long sunny afternoon the runabout took them through a frost-scathed world. The sunny days had brought out fully the havoc wrought—even forest trees were nipped, orchards showed as disconsolate blots on the landscape—wheat that had been like green velvet was a tangle of twisted darkness with a faint yellow showing through. Even the lines of young corn wore yellow tips. Joe was no laid-lover, yet he groaned in spirit over the ruin.

"Farmers are the really reckless dealers in futures," he said bitterly. "They stake everything—against wind and weather, things nobody can control."

Aunt Cynthia nodded. "I'm glad you have quit the game," she said.

Marfa ran out to welcome them, bare-armed, trim and rosy, with wispy curls peeping out from her white cap and a fetching dimple at play in her left cheek. Behind came her elders, with smiles and open arms. They were maddened cheerful for folk on the edge of ruin. Joe had written instantly, confessing himself unable to help—but here were all hands lively as crickets, with no cloud anywhere in sight.

Supper was a poem made manifest in country plenty and superlative cooking. Aunt Cynthia exclaimed over it to such an extent her sister was moved to say, pretending to sigh: "Yes—we've a fine cook—but, my, she's a pirate in petticoats! Has gone up on us a dollar a week—with wages tumbling all 'round us."

"And the worst is—we can't discharge her—you see she owns us—and the place," Mr. Lane said with a twinkle. Marfa frowned at him, but he went on: "Fact—holds a mortgage on everything—for the rest of our lives—so we can look the sheriff in the eye and make faces at the tax gatherer. Still—I'm a little afraid she'll prove rather a tyrant."

"Marfa? You never?" Joe cried, a choke in his throat. "How could you—when—when?" There he had to stop. "When you love silk so well," Aunt Cynthia finished for him. Marfa had stood up, her eyes downcast—now she ran behind her father, put her arms around his neck and said clearly: "Can't I love them better?"

After that the visit was a joyous riot. Marfa, the informing spirit of it, petted everybody. Even Aunt Cynthia—who ended by staying a fortnight. Two days before she left came a wonder-trunk for Marfa—one which disgorged rainbow miracles of silk and satin, lace and linen cambric. Underneath there were some heavy brocades, stiff and gorgeous enough for coronation robes. Mrs. Lane gasped at sight of them, but her sister said proudly, holding a creamy gold-shot fabric next to Marfa's glowing face: "Here's the wedding gown, child—and don't you wait too long to wear it."

"Thanky, madam—I won't," Marfa said, blushing rosy-red.

KEEPS SAND FROM SHIFTING

Common Sea-Rush Employed With Good Effect on the Shore of Cornwall, England.

James White of Ontario, who lately asked a London newspaper if anyone could suggest a remedy for shifting sand—how, in fact, to anchor it—has had many replies. The trouble of drifting sand is far more common than one would suppose, and the only remedy suggested is to plant some kind of tree or root that will take firm hold and prevent the drifting. On the banks of the Suez canal it was found that planting various kinds of tamarisks, mingled with the herbaceous plants such as the orchard or alfalfa, was successful. In Denmark the common bramble has been used. Bengal fig trees and other trees have prevented the encroachments of the desert sands driven by the wind. Those who have seen the effect in Cornwall of the tiny, delicate particles of sand after even one night of wind, changing the whole aspect of the foreshore, may be thankful that at the end of the Eighteenth century a remedy was found, the common sea-rush called by Mr. Hudson "Psamma arenaria," which on the towns, or hillocks, formed by the sand, grows and spreads and clothes the yellow hollows and wavelike hills to their summits with its pale, serene-looking, gray-green tussocks. Other naturalists have spoken of it. Ray among the number, and Halliwell calls it "the Arundo arenaria of Linnaeus," or, as some have it, "Calamagrostis arenaria," which now grows over the buried village and ancient church of Lelant and the traditional castle of Theodoric, king of Cornwall, who flourished in the Fifth century. Norden, the historian, says Lelant was "sometyme a haven towne, but now of late decayed by reason of the sande which has choaked the harbour and buried much of the lands and houses, many devise they use to prevent the absorption of the churche,"—Christian Science Monitor.

HOW

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION LAW WORKS IN ILLINOIS.

A tabulation of its activities during the last year has been completed by the industrial commission of Illinois, the body which administers the workmen's compensation law. It shows that 50,585 compensable accidents were filed with the commission during 1920, of which 797 were fatal.

This is an increase of 12,296 over 1919, notwithstanding that the mines of the state were in operation on an average of only 159 days last year and that the building trades were idle for long periods. Of the 597 fatal cases there were 62 in which the deceased left no dependents, while 412 left 1,027 persons who were totally dependent upon them for support, and 123 others left 177 who were partially dependent.

The compensation payments last year amounted to $5,143,706, while there is estimated to be $3,415,408 due on cases still open at the close of the year. In addition, there was $1,509,240 paid for medical and surgical expenses, this item including $577,333 paid by employers carrying their own insurance. The average cost of fatal cases was $2,940, while for permanent total disability the average was $9,500.

The total days lost to industry in Illinois last year because of injuries to employees is shown to have been $1,291,518.

During the year 48,655 males sustained injuries in the course of their employment and 1,930 females. The greatest number of males injured in 1920 were between the ages of twenty-six and thirty, while for the females the greatest number were between sixteen and twenty years of age.

The records of the commission show that in Cook county, including Chicago, there were 25,541 employees injured by accident during 1920, or 49 per cent of all that occurred in the state. The total cost of all injuries in Cook county last year was $4,250,153, or 45 per cent of that for the state as a whole.

A number of large public service corporations are co-operating with the Chicago safety council in its efforts to improve the accident record of Chicago. A striking poster, printed in colors and headed "Make Chicago Safe," is being displayed in all the cars on the elevated and surface lines of the city. The posters emphasize the fact that 1,982 persons were killed and 49,550 injured in Chicago and Cook county last year as the result of accidents.

"PASS THE BUCK" ON JAZZ

How the Teachers and Composers Each Blame the Other and Dodge Responsibility.

It is almost impossible to find out who is to blame for jazz dancing.

Really, this is a question which many consider by no means inconsequential. At first thought, one might pin the responsibility on the dancing teachers, but if you ask them, they will shrug their tuxedoed shoulders in a rhythmic manner and plead not guilty. It's the fault of the composers, they will tell you, "passing the buck" in double-quick time.

The denial of the composers is sharp, their contradiction flat and the explanation of the why of jazz music natural—they give the public what it wants.

Seemingly the public is divided in its opinion on this big question. Some say the younger generation is to blame. Jazz dancing and jazz music are, to repeat their own words, just exactly what one might expect when the youth of the land gads about in sporty automobiles, shows contempt for Mrs. Grundy's ideas and shows a determination to do everything in a fast and snappy way.

The manner in which the dancing instructors put the blame on the chaps who create tunes is exemplified by R. W. Vizay, president of the American Society of Dancing Teachers.

"Dancing is wholly a matter of music," he said. "The reason a waltz is out of date is because there is no Strauss today to compose a real one and make the people glide to it. When good music is composed, good dancing will result. As long as you have jazz music you will have jazz dancing."

How Turquoise Is Formed.

A French scientist has shown that all amethysts contain some fluorine. Oriental turquoises do not contain fluorine, but Occidental turquoises contain about the same proportion of it as the fossilized bones of the tertiary epoch, and he is, therefore, of the opinion that these latter turquoises are produced by the fossilization of the teeth of animals.

How "Solons" Were Named.

"Solon" was a noted law giver of Athens, Greece, born 640 B. C. He made and provided for the enactment of wise laws under which the state prospered greatly. Lawmakers are called "solons" sometimes in admiration, sometimes in sarcasm.

WHY

So Many People Are Killed by Mushrooms.

Numerous fatal poisonings from eating "mushrooms" reported in the news this summer were not due to mushrooms at all, says the American Forestry association of Washington. The association says the greatest care should be taken in selecting this article of food. In an article in the American Forestry Magazine attention is called to a statement by Prof. Louis C. C. Krieger, who said:

"To ask a person to gather his own mushrooms for the table without previous instruction that will enable him to avoid the deadly kinds, is equivalent to, if not worse than inviting him to put his unprotected hand into a den of rattlesnakes. Indeed, of the two risky performances, the latter would be the safer; for there are at least two known antidotes for rattlesnake venom, whereas there is none for the poison or poisons of the exceedingly common Amanita phalloides and its multitudinous forms and varieties."

On the same subject Dr. R. W. Shufeldt, C. M. Z. S., writes in American Forestry:

"Every word of this can be indorsed and inasmuch as the poisonous species of mushrooms met with are numerous, and often closely resemble some of the harmless ones, one should be as certain of diagnosis of a harmless or edible species as knowing black from white, or arsenic from gunpowder."

"When properly prepared, some of our mushrooms stand among the most delightful foods known; and when the forester is serving far from civilization, in a country where many species grow in plenty at certain seasons of the year, it is of great advantage to him to be able to gather with certainty as to their non-poisonous qualities, a mess of these delicious morsels for his morning or evening meal. But, mind you, "there's death in the cup"; and, unless one is certain of the species beyond all doubt, it is decidedly better to stick to the regular camp fare and pass the mushrooms by."

HUMAN OPTIC MOVES THINGS

Why the Superstition of the "Evil Eye" May Have a Foundation of Fact.

At a meeting of eye-specialists held in Oxford, England, a startling announcement was made by Dr. Charles Russ, M. R. C. S., L. R. C. P. It was that, after three years of patient research, he has proved by means of a delicate instrument, that the human eye radiates a form of power or energy, which can be measured upon his instrument. The operation of the instrument in question was proved in the congress, and a sensation was created by the announcement of his remarkable discovery.

The instrument was a brass cylinder in which was hung a delicate spiral of fine copper wire. This solenoid was wound upon a cylinder of celluloid and was suspended by a fiber of unspun silk, contained within a long glass tube. A small magnet held the solenoid in position, and the apparatus was electrically earthed by a connective wire.

Doctor Russ proved that if he concentrated his gaze upon one end of the suspended body, through the window-slot, it would sway away from him; when he looked at the opposite end, it swayed toward him, and when he looked directly at the center of the body, it was stationary.

This apparatus, therefore, seems to show us that there is a definite force radiated from the human eye, and that, when one person looks at another, a real form of power is thereby transferred. This force Doctor Russ believes to be physical in character, probably akin to heat or the electric rays, though its nature has not so far been determined.

It is interesting to note, in this connection, that "occult science" has taught this for many years.

Why France Had Poor Crops.

During the year 1861 the harvest of France gave an unusually poor return, and a commission to investigate the cause of the deficiency was appointed at the instance of the minister of agriculture. The commission took counsel of experienced naturalists, St. Hilaire, Prevost, and others. By this commission the deficiency was attributed in great degree to the ravages of insects which it is the function of certain birds to check. The commission placed the blame for this condition on the French people, who had destroyed millions of birds.

Why Centrifugal Gun Was Dropped.

After testing out the centrifugal gun at Aberdeen proving ground, the ordnance department has decided that because of its great weight and its inability to obtain high initial velocity no centrifugal gun can have military value. The centrifugal gun is a perennial. This last report is one of several adverse judgments that have been pronounced against it by expert authorities.—Scientific American.

Why She Chose Friday.

Two stars were discussing the wedding of a third.

"Why did Elfrida choose Friday, of all days, for the ceremony?" inquired one.

"Well," explained the other, "you see, she had been married on each of the other days, and not one of the matches had turned out lucky. So she thought she'd try Friday just for a change."

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 23

PAUL'S LAST JOURNEY TO JERUSALEM.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 20:1-27.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let us not be weary
in well doing; for in due season we shall reap if we faint not.—Gal. 6:9.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Rom. 15:
8-16, 21-23; II Tim. 4:19-21.
PRIMARY TOPIC—How Paul's Friends
Showed Their Love.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul and His Friends.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—
Paul and His Friends.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—
Paul Reviews His Ministry.

1. Paul's Visit to Greece and Mile-
tus (20:1-6).
Two incidents marked this trip:
1. The Jews laid wait for him
(vv. 1-5). This plot obliged him to retrace his steps through Macedonia
instead of a more rapid sea voyage.

2. Fellowshiping the Disciples at Troas (vv. 6-16). He met with them around the table of the Lord and spoke words of encouragement. While preaching here, Eutychus, in a deep sleep, fell from a window and was killed. Paul restored his life, thus giving to the disciples a sign of divine power which was greatly needed at that time.

II. Paul's Farewell to the Ephesian
Elders (20:17-38).

His object in this address is to impress upon them their responsibility.
1. Review of his three years' ministry (vv. 18-21). (1) The spirit of ministry (v. 19). He was humble, tender and faithful in spite of the many trials which befell him. (2) The faithfulness of his ministry (vv. 20, 21). He made known unto them everything which was of profit, taught them both in public and in private. He neglected no class, Jews or Greeks.
He was impartial in all his ministry.
(3) The theme of his ministry (v. 21).
Repentance and faith. This is the preeminent note in the message of true
ministers today.

2. The present state of things (vv.
22-27). Having reviewed his ministry,
he now points out the present state of things. (1) His immediate purpose was to go to Jerusalem (v. 22).
(2) Bonds and afflictions were lying across his path (v. 23). Despite these he went forward with undaunted courage. He knew that God was leading him, so he went forward. (3) His fixed purpose (v. 24). He was determined to complete his ministry at whatever cost—even giving up his life.
(4) His consciousness of obligation discharged (vv. 25-27). Knowing that they should see his face no more, he called them to record that he had not shunned to declare the whole counsel
of God; therefore was free from the blood of all men.

3. His charge to the elders (vv. 28-35). (1) The ground of (v. 28). The flock for which they must care was purchased by the precious blood of Jesus, and they had received their commission from the Lord. (2) The impending evils (vv. 29, 30). False teachers would arise from their own number. Grievous wolves would devour the flock. The most deadly foes of the church are those ministers and Sunday school teachers who are unfaithful to their trust. (3) Incentives to faithfulness (vv. 31-35). His own example of watching night and day
for three years is held up before them;
his unselfish service, laboring with his own hands night and day that he might be free from suspicion of selfishness.

III. Paul Tarrying Seven Days at Tyre (21:1-6).

His point of destination was Jerusalem. He was pressing onward thither with all speed, but on account of the unloading of the ship he was obliged to wait at Tyre for seven days. During this delay he searched out the disciples who lived in that city. While here certain disciples said that Paul should not go to Jerusalem. The information which these disciples received by the Spirit was doubtless the same as that given to Agabus (vv. 10, 11). Agabus told exactly what the Spirit said, which sets right what
the Tyrian disciples seemed to say.
The same Spirit which showed to these disciples that suffering awaited Paul,
revealed unto him the same suffering
and sent him forward into it.

IV. Paul Tarrying in Philip's House
(vv. 7-14).

Resuming their journey, they paused
briefly at Ptolemais to greet the brethren
there, after which they went to Caesarea. Here they took up their abode with Philip, who had so successfully wrought in the early days of the church.

V. Paul at Jerusalem (vv. 15-17).

The brethren at Jerusalem gladly received them. Paul's lodging place was with an old disciple.

Blessings of This Day.

Enjoy the blessings of this day, if God sends them, and the evils bear patiently, and sweetly; for this day is ours; we are dead to yesterday, and are not born tomorrow.—Jeremy Taylor.

Near Him.

We come too near Him when we search into His counsels. The sun and the fire say of themselves, Come not too near. How much more the Light which none can attain unto?—Bishop Hall.

What We Know about God
Psalm 139:1-12

Apart from the Bible we may know that God is. "The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament show-eth his handiwork." "The invisible things of God from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being perceived through the things that are made" (Ps. 19:1; Rom. 1:20).

This unfolding of God in nature and the consequent knowledge issuing from it is sufficient, as a basis, for the reverent worship of God. Such knowledge has been granted to men everywhere for "God left not himself without witness in that he did good, giving
rain from heaven and fruitful
seasons to fill human hearts with joy
and gladness" (Acts 14:17). But men, followed after the created thing rather than the Creator. God was known as the Giver of good, but was not given thanks for the good that was given.
Man began to reason about second
causes and intermediate processes
until God was lost sight of as the One from whom all blessings flow.
As a consequence, the human heart
was darkened and the worship of the creature took the place of the worship of the Creator. If God had not intervened, the whole race of mankind would today be in the darkness
and degradation of idol and image worship. God did intervene. (See Genesis 12:1-3 and Acts 7:2, 3 in the light of Joshua 24:2-3.) Through Abraham and his posterity, a supernatural revelation of God has been given. This revelation is found in our Bible, and is the basis of a true knowledge of God. The knowledge of God and of His Son Jesus Christ
leads on into the possession of eternal life and the position of a child of God.

Other Scriptures bearing upon this matter are Hebrews 1:1; 2 Corinthians 4:6; John 8:12.

DIDN'T KNOW DOGS

Mrs. Binks Classed Them All in One Tribe.

Anyway, the Animal Was Evicted
From the Sacred Precincts, and Dignity of the Home Upheld.

Mrs. Binks must have had a disappointing afternoon at the bargain
counters, for she returned to her Capitol Hill home with the quick, decisive tread that indicated a highly irritable mental condition to those who knew her well. This condition, Glenn Farley writes in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, was not improved by the discovery that her ten-year-old son Willie was entertaining practically all of the neighborhood children in the house,
and that one of the most effervescent
of the guests was a large, woolly, strange dog, whose booming bark assailed her from the depths of the dining room on her arrival.

Willie and his guests and the dog poured out of the front door like an audience from a burning theater, shortly after mother arrived, and it became apparent that she was in the background, with a large, able-bodied broom.

Binks arrived home and sat down to dinner in great exaltation. It appeared that Seattle had won a game
with somebody.

"Class is bound to tell," he began enthusiastically. "I predicted from the beginning of the season that the boys would—"

He was interrupted by a Roman howl from Willie. His mother had reached him finally, in an unguarded moment, and she had a firm grasp on the slack of his trousers. Two decisive whacks were administered
amidst howls that would have put a normal welkin out of business.

"Before you eat I want you to go out and lose that dog," she began. "I have told you before that I won't have these stray, worthless curs about the place and, above all, in my house. A boy has no business with a dog,
anyhow."

"Why, ma," Binks interposed, "when I was a boy no family thought of raising a boy without a good, husky dog
for a—"

"I have no doubt of it," broke in Mrs. Binks. "Your whole conduct indicates that you were exposed to that atmosphere."

"But the dog—" began Willie.
"Not a word from you," said his mother. "You've got to get rid of that dog. I won't have him around."

"But the dog—" insisted Willie.
"The boy evaded a swipe that would have put him out of business, but he got out of the danger zone and finished the sentence."

"The dog belongs to Bennie Gunn
and he is a St. Bernard and a prize winner," he said. "He's worth more than a thousand dollars. Bennie has him chained up now."

Binks was about to smile discreetly,
when his wife said:

"George, if you're through your dinner you may be excused."

Her husband looked around doubt-fully.

"The question is," said he, "have I had any dinner?"

HOW COOLIE SAVES HIS FACE

Chinaman Is Amusing and Ingenious,
but His Little Tricks Do Not Always Work.

Chinese workmen would rather endure any amount of physical pain
than to lose face, writes Sam Dean in Asia. I made that discovery through an experience we had with our gatekeeper soon after my arrival in China. We had dismissed him because he insisted on collecting 10 per cent on some goods we had brought into the courtyard to bale for shipment to America. When I came home
one night, shortly afterward, I found him mounted on the horse block in front of the gate, haranguing several hundred listeners. He told them
how he had been cheated and discharged, and then, tightening a loosely knotted cord that encircled his neck, he went to the front door; tied
one end of the cord to the brass knocker and sank down till he was half strangled. Then he arose and addressed the assembly still further.
I had seen enough. I rushed into the hold and told a friend who had been in China longer than I what was happening. He ran out, gave the gatekeeper a shake and said: "If you
hang yourself at our door, I will kick
you to death." The crowd burst out laughing, and the old man, who had hoped to make us lose face, lost so much himself that he sneaked away
as fast as he could. I remember another and more amusing case when the crowd laughed no less heartily at the expense of the foreigner. He was a whale of an Italian contractor,
and he was in charge of the rebuilding of the Peking south gate. In one spot the coolies were using a tamper
made of a large round iron casting with ropes attached. They held the ropes and, throwing their bodies backward and forward in time with a song
they were singing, they raised and lowered the casting. Meanwhile, however, they were losing face with the crowd, for the Italian was laying on pretty vigorously with the cane, and so, to retrieve their honor, they began to sing with all their might:

"Old foreign devil, old foreign devil Beat him, beat him in the earth!"

The Italian did not understand, but
the crowd did and laughed heartily;
the foreigner was giving the coolies
blows with a stick, but they were hitting him a mental crack that made a fool of him.

Old Scottish Sunday Dinner.

In a letter of Sir Walter Scott, dated
in 1824, he describes a typical Sabbath in Edinburgh 100 years ago as follows:

"I have always been intimate with
the Forbeses from my infancy, since
the excellent old lord with his wife
and family used weekly to dine at my father's always on a Sunday, and on the same bill of fare, which would now be thought a curious one to invite a nobleman to. In the first place there was sheep-head broth and said
sheep's head itself, the reason being that the sheep's head, which requires much boiling, was put on the night before, and the dressing of the beef-
steaks occupied the least possible time,
and thus the necessity of employing servants on the Sabbath day was diminished as much as possible. Then there was a bottle or two of special
wine, which no wine merchant had fitted for the market, and there was a sermon read, during which one part of the children were sleeping and the other pinching and kicking them to make them keep awake. And then there is an old Sabbath for you in Edinburgh."

Cigarette Filter.

A new kind of cigarette has just been patented. It has a piece of sponge inserted at one end.

One does not light the sponge; it might not taste good. It is to the other end that one applies the match.

The bit of sponge, cut in the shape
of a short cylinder, is fitted into the end of the cigarette for the purpose of absorbing moisture and to furnish grip
for the teeth of the smoker.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

SELF-RELIANCE
GOES BANKRUPT

Thin Blood Saps Energy.
Gude's Pepto-Mangan
Rebuilds the Blood

Wrestling with a weakened condition of the blood is a desperate struggle. Thin, watery blood deprives the body of energy and causes a played-
out feeling not unlike utter exhaustion. A man with weak blood has not the full use of his powers. He lacks decision, and vacillates until he loses
self-confidence.

Some men, and women too, go faltering along for months scarcely realizing that they need Gude's Pepto-Mangan, the blood builder. But when they have taken it for a while,
what a difference there is in the feelings! The old-time vigor and the red blooded hue of good health return.
The new rich blood gets to work,
building, fortifying, lifting the spirit up to its normal standard. Physicians have prescribed Gude's Pepto-Mangan for years as a blood-builder.
Druggists sell it in liquid and tablet
form. Look for the name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" on the package.

Joke May Prove Serious.

Viscount Mayeda and Viscount Aoki
of Tokyo, Japan, both very prominent members of the house of peers, were considerably surprised, as were their friends, when they received elaborate mourning cards announcing their death. The cards were gotten up in the usual formal style employed on such occasions, chief mourners, among them Premier Hara, were named, and everything was in regular shape except for the fact that the persons whose deaths were announced were entirely ignorant of their decease.

The authorities in Japan do not take jokes of this kind, however, and after a searching investigation it was found that the perpetrators of the hoax were members of a political organization of radical young men. The wish was father to the thought. Several of them have been arrested and prosecution will proceed with all the gravity in the world.

Lake Baikal.

Lake Baikal, in Siberia, is one of the great inland fresh-water seas, being nearly as long as Lake Superior, but not so wide. It is flanked by great mountains, and its shores are filled with wood cutters and fishermen,
but there are very few hunters, although many fur-bearing animals are found in the great forests about it.

What Is Satisfactory Telephone Service?

TELEPHONE users want and are entitled to satisfactory telephone service. And our idea of service is something more than the completing of individual telephone messages.

Mr. H. B. Thayer, the head of the Bell System, has said: "Satisfactory telephone service means that the user shall be satisfied."

Service is dependent upon every department of the Company and each individual employee. It requires good operating at the switchboard, good engineering of equipment and facilities, good maintenance of the Company's plant, accurate accounting and unfailing courtesy toward our patrons.

These are the technical requirements of good service. But we are not satisfied to go so far and stop. Our aim is to furnish a service of such a quality that we may be certain it gives public satisfaction.

This is the spirit with which every man and woman
in our organization tackles the job.

TANEYTOWN LOCALS

Brief Items of Local News of Special Interest to Our Home Readers.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Dumbauld, spent the week-end in Lancaster, Pa.

Mrs. Hafer's brother, Mr. George Etter, of Chambersburg, is a visitor this week at the Lutheran parsonage.

Mrs. Margaret Nulton, returned to Philadelphia, on Monday, to resume her position in the office of "Lutheran Woman's Work."

The Geo. W. Motter nominated for the House of Delegates, on the Democratic ticket, is not our Ex-Sheriff Geo. W. Motter, of Taneytown, but is from Manchester district.

Rev. L. B. Hafer, accompanied by W. Wallace Reindollar, as lay delegate, attended the meetings of Maryland Synod, held in Baltimore, this week.

The double heater stove, advertised last week by Rev. D. J. March, was sold about a half hour after the Record was distributed. This was a case in which "advertising paid" in short order.

George R. Gaither, former law partner of the late Judge Claubaugh, died at his home in Baltimore, on Monday, from pneumonia. Mr. Gaither frequently visited at "Antrim," years ago.

We would be glad to know of all persons in this district—heads of families—who do not subscribe for The Record. Our subscribers perhaps know them better than we do. Let us have the names—anybody.

Our street improvements have reached the front of the Record office. Heretofore, there were two steps up, but hereafter customers can come in "on the level," which may be of some benefit, even if it does jar our personal opinions.

Sterling Galt, of Emmitsburg, is reported to be again a patient at the Union Protestant Infirmary, Baltimore. Mrs. Galt is also in Baltimore so as to be near her husband. His many friends hope that the recurrence of his trouble may not be serious.

(For the Record.) Mrs. W. S. Clingan, has returned from visiting her brother, A. Groff, of Hagerstown, and friends in Chewsville, and also attended the Hagerstown Fair. She also attended services at the Lutheran Church, in Funkstown, and heard a fine sermon by Rev. Ramsburg.

Rev. D. J. March and family, left for their new home, Rayville, Baltimore county, on Wednesday. Rev. March had been stationed here rather longer than the average pastor, and made a large circle of friends and acquaintances among all denominations.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Ott, entertained, on Sunday, Oct. 16th. Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Cams, twin sons Tom and Edw., Mrs. F. M. Eyster, Miss Elizabeth Frailey, Miss Alice Orndorff, of Emmitsburg; Miss Virginia Eyster, of Western Maryland College; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey T. Ott, Mrs. John W. Ott and Master Carl Newcomer.

Friends of The Record are invited to become interested in the "Subscribe for Your Home Paper" drive, that is set, country wide, for the week of Nov. 7 to 12th. If there is any round-up of new subscribers to be indulged in, The Record wants to be "in it." But, it isn't necessary to wait several weeks—let them come right along.

The State Road Commission, in changing the grade of the street through Taneytown, helped the "unemployment" situation by compelling property owners to meet the new grade by taking up and relaying almost new concrete and brick sidewalks, which in some cases called for repairs to buildings—and the job will last another year.

The following Republican candidates visited Taneytown, on Tuesday, where they had a rather quiet reception, due to no effort having been made to gather a crowd; Oliver Metzgerott, candidate for Comptroller; Geo. W. Bankert, J. Smith Billingslea, Albert W. Spencer and J. Alfred Simpson, for the House of Delegates; C. Ray Fogle, for Treasurer, and Edw. M. Mellor, for County Clerk.

Quite a lot of rumors have been going, as to trades and deals for the election of certain men to office in this county, but such yarns are hardly worth listening to. Sometimes they are cooked-up for the purpose of making trouble, and have no real foundation in a actual fact. Still, they are apt to be credited by new voters. "Mother Goose rhymes" are always new, to somebody.

Mrs. A. E. A. Horner, of Emmitsburg, spent Monday, with Mrs. Stott and Miss Anna Galt.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Jones, of Lynchburg, Virginia, are visiting at Mr. Geo. H. Birnie's.

Theodore Eckard and wife, on Thursday, moved into their recently purchased home on Middle St. We are glad to have them back again as citizens.

As will be seen by an advertisement in this issue, the Pennsylvania R. R., is advertising for men to take the place of those who may go on a strike, about Nov. 1.

Rev. Murray E. Ness and delegate Elder Jacob Rodkey, of Union Bridge Charge, Reformed Church, will be among those to attend Potomac Synod which meets at Bedford, Pa., Oct. 24-28.

Chas. E. H. Shriner & Son are now operating their sewing factory, in their new quarters, the former Hesson store building, which has been fitted up with electric motors, and is a first-class work plant in every way.

Dr. and Mrs. Milton H. Valentine, of Gettysburg, gave a dinner at Mr. Geo. Sauble's, on Monday evening. The guests were: Mrs. M. Valentine, Miss Alice Picking, Dr. and Mrs. Coover, of Gettysburg; Mrs. Edgar Miller, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Valentine, Miss Elliot, of Oxford, N. J.; Mrs. Margaret Stott and Miss Anna Galt, Taneytown.

In Trinity Lutheran Church next Sunday morning the pastor will preach on "World Service." The sermon will be based on the events of the meeting of Synod this week. The evening topic will be, "Weighed and Found Wanting."

Taneytown Club's Record.

The Taneytown baseball club made a fine record in games won for the season, especially considering that it was a new organization, and had practically no pre-season practice. Forty games were played, half on the home ground and half away from home. On the home ground 19 games were won, and 1 lost, away from home 11 games were won, and 9 lost, making a season's record of 30 games won and 10 lost.

Public sentiment seems in favor of having a team next year, in which case better ground conveniences should be provided, and if possible, the ground be used only for games.

Strong for Home Paper

"No, I don't take the local paper any more," one farmer said to another as they were waiting at the creamery to unload their milk. They had just been looking at a poster advertising "Subscribe for Your Home Town Paper Week, November 7-12." "I take a daily paper, and that's about all I need. It has a few items every week from our community, and I feel that I save two dollars a year by not subscribing to the home paper."

"Well, that's one way to look at it," said the other farmer, "but I've always felt that a local newspaper was a pretty valuable asset to any community, and if everybody took the attitude you do, there couldn't be any local newspaper. Of course we could not get along without our daily papers, because they keep us informed about what's going on throughout the nation and throughout the world, but when you say that they take care of our local news, I don't think you are sticking close to facts. They simply can't, and the publishers haven't any personal interest in our community the way our editor has."

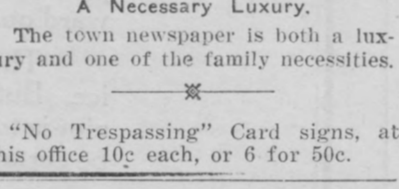

"I have always felt that I got value received for every dollar I've paid out in subscriptions to the local paper, and I don't have an idea that running a country newspaper is any more of a wealth-producing proposition than running a farm. So long as I've got two dollars I intend that the rural mail carrier is going to tuck a copy of the home paper in my box every week."

That farmer knows that the community newspaper is a necessity in his home; that without it his home would be incomplete and his part in the community would be unsatisfactory to himself and his family. He knows the full value of the local newspaper as an institution.

A Community Servant.
The local newspaper is the servant of the community in which it is published, but to be a good and efficient servant it must be fed by the people it serves. It is an institution of the town quite as much as are the schools and the churches, and quite as much entitled to support.

A Necessary Luxury.
The town newspaper is both a luxury and one of the family necessities.
