MAIL FOR SANTA CLAUS TO BE DELIVERED.

A Novel Suggestion by the New Postmaster General.

Children if you don't know the address of Santa Claus, let Uncle Sam deliver your letters. The postal service has arranged to take care of messages intended for the whitebearded chap who spends Christmas eve traveling up and down chimneys. The following order regarding Santa Claus letters has been received by Postmasters.

"Postmaster are authorized to deliver all letters on which the postage has been fully prepaid arriving at their respective postoffices during the month of December of each year, which are addressed plainly and un-mistakably to 'Santa Cluas,' without any other terms or expressions iden-tifying the person for whom such letare intended, to responsible charitable institutions or reputable individuals in the town or city of address who may desire to use them ex-clusively for philanthropic purposes. Letters of the character described addressed for local delivery, on which the postage is wholly unpaid ,or paid less than one full rate, also may be delivered to such institutions or indi-Viduals upon the payment of the postage with which they are chargeable. In the event that these letters are re-Justed by more than one institution or individual the postmaster shall distribute them in such proportion as he may deem proper. When no voluntary request is presented postmasters will forward without delay all Sant Claus' letters to the division of dead letter."

Postmaster General Hays has adopted a novel method to bring about early mailing of Christmas packages. The head of the department says the rush will be relieved the flood of Christmas mail is started next week. He will enlist the children of the schools to carry his message to parents. Next Monday this message will be read in the schools as well as in all other sections of the country.

In order to help the postal service

Buy Christmas Seals.

The Christmas seals of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association express a happy sentiment, carry a noble purpose and serve a very practical end. They are one of the most popular and appealing signs of the Christmastide, and every letter or card or bunhas an added force and meaning when decorate with one of them. The plan enables every one, poor and rich, to contribute to the work of preventing the spread of tuberculosis and caring for those who have been stricken. In this matter all are affected, for the dread disease is no respect of persons or of stations.

If the people would only see what these seals signify, they would quickbuy the number necessary to make up the amount required to carry on the work, and this can be done if there is an average contribution of cents for every inhabitants of the

CHAUTAUQUA WEEK

An Excellent Program Given by Swarthmore Talent.

Taneytown folks enjoyed the Swarthmore Chautauqua, this week, their program closing on Wednesday night. Unfortunately, the bad roads interfered greatly with the attendance, but the various numbers were given to good-sized audiences, notwithstanding the handicap, and the general verdict is one of satisfaction, especially for the price of $1.50.

The first day's program was made up of musical numbers by the Cartwright Brothers quartet, versatile artists who gave a varied and highclass musical program. The most popular, perhaps, of all the numbers of the Course, was Julius Caesar Nayphe in his oriental pageant, portraying in a semi-humorous vein many of the customs of Palestine, the Mohammedan ceremonies, and the experiences of a foreigner of his class in making his home and citizenship in

The Artists Trio, in vocal and instrumental selections, with Dr. Harry R. McKeen in a rapid-fire lecture on "Your Community in Revolution," made up the second day's program apparently to the enjoyment of the radiones.

Wednesday afternoon, Miss Beatrice Weller showed her skill as a cartoonist, giving rapidly a number of unique drawings. At night, the Junior stunt party, given by local boys and girls, was greatly enjoyed, youngsters doing themselves great credit, considering the very brief previous coaching periods. The closing number was the Irish Minstrels. Naturally, it was looked forward to as one of the best things Solos, of the course, and it was. duets, quartets, readings, monologues were all given with Irish action and humor, and caught the popular fancy.

A number of new guarantors were interested, and a return engagement for next year was entered into-forty signers, each making themselves responsible for the sale of $10.00 worth of tickets. The probability is that the next Course will be held in October. On the whole, the audience was greatly pleased with the Course, and glad that it will be with us next year.

The Board next considered the advisability of selling the Morelock's public school lot and building in Uniontown district, to A. H. Young, for the sum of $200. This offer was made by him at the time the school was put up at public sale, and therefore the Board decided to permit him to have the property at his bid.

The Board decie to renew the contract with Edw. G. Yingling for another year, at a salary of $900.

The attorney to the Board, in compliance with its request, prepared a prospective deed for the transfer of Carroll Academy, which was sold on Oct. 22, to Geo. Yeiser, of Myers' district. A copy of this deed has been recorded in the book of deeds of the Board of Eucation.

It was resolved, that the Board of Education request of the Board of County Commissioners to make payment of the sum of $250 and costs of suit, amounting to $13.85, with which sum to make settlement by compromise of the N. Claude Erb suit against this Board in the Circuit Court for Carroll County, growing out of the alleged renewal of contract by this Board for services of N. FREDERICK LEADS MARYLAND COUNTIES

Farm Products Value Easily Leads All Other Counties.

Frederick county maintained first position among the counties of Maryland, for production, according to figures of the 1920 census. With the combined value of her crops and live-stock products, for 1919, totaling $13,770,674, Frederick county easily tops the other counties of Maryland, the nearest competitors being Carroll and Baltimore counties. It is but fair to Carroll to say that the chief rea-son why Frederick leads her, is because it is the larger county in area.

It should be stated, in fairness to Maryland's foremost county, that many of the counties in the honor list of fifty are larger in size than Frederick county, which no doubt helped their showing. The five leading counties with the value of their crops and livestock products follow:
Los Angeles, Calif., $71,579,899;
Fresno, Calif., $55,110,101; Aroostook, Me., $54,376,256; San Joaquin, Calif., $41,191,240; Lancaster, Pa., $40,776,212. Below are latest agricultural sta-

THE COLOR OF EGG-SHELLS. Has no Effect Whatever on the Quality of the Egg.

Although the color of an eggshell is no indication of the chemical composition of its content, people in different cities and in different parts of the country have rather decided preferences for either white or brown eggs. The wise producer considers the likes and dislikes of his prospective customers, even though they may be based on a mistaken notion.

A brown egg is just as nutritious as a white egg and a white one is just as full of meat as a brown one, says the United States Department of Agriculture. If a person's color idio-syncrasy is satisfied, however, he may get a littel more good out of the

The color of an egg is largely, or almost entirely, dependent upon the breed of the bird that laid it. In general the American breeds-Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds, and Wyandottes—lay brown eggs. As all these breeds have red ear lobes, it may be said that red lobes mean brown eggs. The brown egg is popular in New England and brings a premium on the Boston and Providence markets. Although the content of this egg is the same as that of a white one, there is a difference in the covering. The shells of brown eggs are harder and the skin just underneath the shell is tougher. In hatching, the chicks have a little harder out then there harder work getting out than those that happened to develop in shells of lighter hue.

In New York the white eggs brings a premium of 7 to 10 cents a dozen at some seasons, but it is probable that the New Yorker gets no more nourishment nor enjoyment out of his breakfast than the Bostonian, who pays a similar premium for brown eggs. Owners of poultry farms are well aware of this preference in the metropolis, and as a result the commercial poultry farms in New York, New Jersey, Delaware and Pennsylvania keep fowls, mostly Leghorns, that produce white eggs. The white egg breeds, in addition to the Leghorns, are the Black Sapnish, the Minorca, and all the Meditor. ence in the metropolis, and as a result the Minorca, and all the Mediter-ranean breeds. All of these breeds have white ear lobes.

In Philadelphia the preference is largely for white eggs and this market draws largely from the same territory as New York for its highest grade eggs. Chicago gets farm eggs from all parts of the Middle West that are sorted and graded by those who pack them. There is no pronounced preference in that city. The Pacific coast prefers white eggs, and all of the large poultry plants, for which California is famous, keep Tomato-Seed As Protein Feed.

The value of tomato-seed press cake as a source of protein feed for live stock has been demonstrated by a series of experiments recently conducted in the protein investigation laboratory of the Bureau of Chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture. It has been previously estimated by the department that ever 2,000 tons of tomate seeds are largely wasted annually as a by-procuct in the manufacture of catsup and other products by the tomato pulping plants in the United States.

Tomato seeds contain approximately 22 per-cent of a valuable oil. The press cake which remains after expelling the oil contains about 37% of protein, which chemical and nutritional experiments have shown to be of high food value. Young albino rats were fed on a diet in which tomato-seed press cake furnished the only source of protein, the diet having been made adequate in other respects by the addition of the other essential dietary factors. On this diet the rats were enabled to grow at the normal rate, showing that the proteins of the tomato seed contain all of the amino acids essential to the growth of animals. It was also found that the press cake contains sufficient amount of water soluble, or anti-

PREPARING TOPRAID STATE TREASURY.

Governor will Insist on Practice of Greater Economy.

Educational and other institutions that receive State aid have almost, without exception, urged the Governor to add largely to the amounts usually appropriated by the State on the ground that the money is needed to meet expenses incurred by extending the scope of their work.

Unless the Executive undergoes a change of mind those asking for an increase will be disappointed. The Governor, in preparing the budget, which is now nearing completion, is hewing close to the line. He is de-termined to bring down the expens-es of the Government to the minimum and, if possible, make the State tax lower than it now is if he can do so without impairing the efficiency of the administration.

This may be possible if other avenues are found through which additional revenue may be brought, or of the proposed reorganization of the department enough can be saved to justify a reduction. That economy coupled with efficiency will be urged upon the Legislature is generally believed and the horde of office hunters importuning the Senators and Delegates-elect for places at Annapolis are meeting with scant encour-

Under the law it is the duty of the Governor to submit his budget not later than 20 days after the General Assembly convenes. It is not likely however, that the Executive will avail himself of this latitude. To invite prompt action he would give the legislators abundant opportunity to digest the various items so they may act intelligently when the measure comes up for consideration; hence, he will, if possible, have printed copies ready for distribution when the legislative session begin.—Balt. Cedar Chests Will Protect Wool Clothing From Moths.

Chests made of red cedar heartwood are effective, if in good condition and thoroughly tight, in protecting clothing from clothes moths, it has been found by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. That is, provided proper precautions are taken first to beat, brush, and, if possible, sun all articles before they are placed in chests.

Since it is the odor of red cedar that kills young moth worms, special care should be taken to prevent undue escape of the aroma from the chests. Chests at all times should in them, and this procedure should be are working "open shop."

Maryland Miners Accept Wage Cut.

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 8 .- The decision of miners at many operations to accept a wage lower than the union scale of $1.31 per ton for digging coal, has resulted in a number of operations starting up. Many of miners had long been out of work and their families were in reduced circumstances. At the same time the operators said they could not pay the union scale and compete with other fields which were paying a much lower rate for digging.

The miners of the Gleason Coal and Coke Company, at Gleason, W. Va., in the Upper Potomac field which is a part of district No. 16 of the Unitary Mine Warkers of America, have ed Mine Workers of America, have resumed with nearly 200 men after long idleness. Paying Rent.

Next to paying taxes, most people resent paying rent, and as a rule complain of both being "too high," with the chances that they are wrong in both cases. Owning a home, is an object to be worked for, but not in order to save expense. Those who have that idea are apt to be deceived, when possession is no longer a matter of pursuit, especially if the home is kept up" in repair as it should be.

As a rule, men who own houses for rent do not make a profitable interest on their investment, and this is particularly true of dwelling properties in small towns. The renter who makes a purchase, and afterwards wants to let his property, has a very different view of what rents should be; not because he has entered the landlord class, but because he has become wise as to landlord's expens-

What was on hand when prohibition became effective is steadily diminishing, and the amount that now comes in illegally is not a hundredth part of the amount that formerly came in legally. The great distilleries are closed, and the breweries are so closely watched that they can make no alcoholic beer except for medicinal use.

Since the carefully husbanded stock on hand when prohibition went into effect will last a long time, we cannot yet know how thoroughly the laws can be enforced, but they will certainly be enforced much more thoroughly than they are today. It may be impossible ever to stop all the leaks, but in a few years they will be as the trickle from a worn faucet to the full flow from the same faucet open and with strong pressure behind it.—Youth's Companion.

Temporizing With Gambling.

J. H. Jowett, D. D., in a recent sermon on "The Light of Divine Prinreference to the evil of gambling, and

"Let us give two examples of recent discussions, and they shall be taken from the proceedings of the Church Congress at Birmingham. Two of the speakers discussed the vice of gambling, and both of them described it as one of the gravest menaces of our national life. But how did they approach this serious menace to the community? Did they begin from a clear, luminous back ground of divine principle, and in that principle find the fire of their indictment and the inspiration of reform? Let us hear what the President of the Conference said. He began saying that he regarded gambling as "the greatest danger of modern times." He went on immediately to He went on immediately to add, "I am prepared to forgive the moderate way the chances of the beautiful animal that he has trained and that he takes pride in.'

Now, I ask in what luminous principle does that reasoning begin? There is no clear principle shining down that road. It begins with the confusion of moral values. The president has no objection to the owner of a racehorse backing his beautiful animal "in a moderate way." But why in a moderate way? Is the solution of the problem found in the question of amounts? And then, what figure does the wealthy owner of the racehorse pass the limits of permissibility, and thereby convert his virtue into a vice? At what point does the thing become a menace, and in what menace born? If we may all gamble "in a moderate way," at what figure do we cross the danger line? When I read the President's words I somehow recall a couplet I was seriously taught in my childhood, and which is at once an example of bad morals and bad rhymes:

"It is a sin to steal a pin, Much more to steal a greater thing."

"Much more!" And so the deadliness of theft is in proportion to the amount that is stolen. It is a sin to steal a silver watch, much more to steal a gold one. The President declared that gambling "in a moderate way" is all right, but when it passes the bounds of moderation it becomes a menace to our national life. There is no high principle in that judgment. There is no light in that lamp. And when the President goes on to appeal to the workingman of this country to his football team without gambling there is no constraint in his appeal, for there is no grip of a great moral principle which conveys pulse and vigor, and which rouses the conscience and enlists its strength in a great crusade

There was another speaker at the Congress who discussed the same national vice. And from what luminous background of moral principle did he approach his theme? Let us listen to him. "Of all human vices, gambling is the vice which it is most difficult to condemn outright. * were asked whether a millionaire commits a sin when he plays cards for two-penny points I could not proclaim judgment upon him."

But why? "The question," he goe on to say, "is one of degree." therefore we are back at the President's benediction of gambling, if it is done "in a moderate way." And there we are back again at the pin and the greater thing. But this sec-ond speaker is still more explicit. "It is not immoral, it is not positively sinful that a man should gamble, unless he risks more than he can afford to lose" Well, in answer to this would declare my own conviction, that there is no background of divine principle shining in the judgment and when this speaker also goes on to appeal to the workingman to cut out of the football matches what he calls "the gangrenous sore of gambling" there is no virility in his words, for it lacks the nobility of principle in which all moral vigor is born.'

SPREAD WARNING OF STORMS

Stockmen Notified of Coming Unfavorable Weather Conditions in Time to Take Precautions.

Cold waves, heavy snows, high winds and blizzards vitally interest the stock growers of the great range states of the West. The weather bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture, in its endeavor to assist the stockmen, issues warnings of these unfavorable conditions which are dangers to farm animals and to those who graze on the range. These warnings are widely distributed by telegraph and telephone to large centers, but further dissemination devolves on those interested. The problem has been largely solved in some of the states, particularly Missouri, by telegraphing the warning to one central point in each county, where arrangements are made to telephone information of the warnings to each community interested.

When a warning is received stockmen arrange to graze their stock near shelter, or in such a direction from shelter that the stock will drift toward it when the anticipated severe weather comes. A modification of this service consists of sheep-shearing and lambing forecasts and warnings. In early shearing and lambing districts shearing is delayed or newly shorn pear suitable shelter, such as coulees, where they will receive protection

"You are sure using plenty of 'sarkassum' on me these days. I don't see why you should think I am lying about my illness. I can show you a doctor's bill that may restore a little of your confidence in human nature. I have had a bad case of nervous insomnia as I ever want to have, and the doctor has been trying to get me sleep and relief. The telephone and all my other friends were cut off for that purpose. I got some sleep last night by the free use of sulphonol and I feel some better today. . . . My work is all gone to the devil. I am lost in a wilderness of past-due stories, but I will pull out soon.'

Roadless Russia,

Russia is almost a roadless land. It is inconceivable to the foreign visitor who has ever left the beaten track of the railways in Russia how a great empire can have subsisted so long and so successfully without even a pretense at roads. The secret lies in the fact that for five or six months in the year nature herself provides roads over the greater part of Russia -admirable smooth, glossy roadways over hard-worn snow. The traffic is further cheapened over these roads by the substitution of a sledge runner for the wheel and axle. This brings the cost of land carriage as near the cheapness of water-borne freight as possible, and it is the principal reason why Russia in the Twentieth century is still a roadless land.

FRESH GARBAGE SAVES COST

If Carefully Selected and Kept Free of Broken Glass and Tin 30 Per Cent Saving Made.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) A practical manner of reducing the production costs of market eggs consists in feeding fresh garbage placed before the flock as soon as possible after it has been rejected from the table. Used judiciously it will reduce the cost of egg and meat production from 25 to 30 per cent. The garbage must be fresh and free from all fermentation and sourness. The intrinsic value of garbage as a poultry feed is due to the fact that it provides a varied ration which fits all the needs and requirements of the flock.

One explanation of why the small flock owner, with his backyard bevy of hens, secures heavy production of eggs, hinges around the fact that he emphasizes the use of table scraps in ration. Similar results obtain Where large commercial flocks are given access to daily allowances of sanitary, well-selected and palatable garbage. Although the character of garbage varies throughout the year, due to the fact that more succulent vegetables and fruits are used during the summer, this refuse is also a valhable substitute for costly grains and concentrates in the hen menu

Unfortunate results which in some instances have followed the use of garbage are due to feeding a mixture of table scraps that was not carefully selected. Hens like fresh garbage, but are not able to digest scraps of tin, Phonograph needles and similar foreign material. Unless such substances are separated from the garbage, disastrous results invariably follow and the poultryman soon abandons garbage feeding and condemns it as unsatisfactory. The Department of Agriculture recommends that fresh garbage be run through a meat or vegetable chopper, and mixed with a little ground feed before it is fed to the

be fed as the flock will clean up with a relish in the course of an hour. All feed which the birds reject should be removed from the feeding pens or yards as soon as possible thereafter. Otherwise, it sours and contamina es the premises and, subsequently, if the fowls eat it it invariablly causes digestive troubles.

Where garbage is fed, it is also prerequisite to provide a light ration-of grain twice daily, as well as to supply dry mash in a hopper before the flock. As a rule table scraps are rich in protein and only occasionally is it necessary to supplement the mash with ap-Proximately 5 per cent of meat meal. During the summer garbage decom-Poses and ferments quickly and it must be fed before it reaches this stage. The feeding of garbage is fafored during cold weather because in the winter the refuse keeps better. Suburban flock-owners may often secure the garbage from neighboring families who do not keep hens. This Source of feed may be so plentiful that the flock-owner can expand his henkeeping operations and even afford to Day a small amount for the garbage.

Experiments in feeding garbage at the government experiment farm at Beltsville, Md., indicate that ten hens Will consume about one quart of garbage daily. A suitable dry mash as a supplement to this garbage consists of three parts by weight of cornmeal. one part of bran, one part of middlings and 5 per cent of meat scraps. This mash is kept before the fowls all the time. If the table scraps contain much fruit and vegetable peelings, more mash should be added, while if the garbage consists chiefly of potato Deelings, bread and meat less mash should be used. Care should be exerised to drain off soapy water or excess liquid from the garbage.

Fewls Seldem Pick Up Enough on Free Range in Fall on Account of Plants Drying Up.

Green feed must be provided if the buffets are to grow rapidly. POULTRY CACKLES

BEST RETURNS FROM PULLETS

Maturity Can Be Hastened by Right Kind of Care and Feeding-Range Desirable.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A flock of pullets that can be brought to laying in the fall will give the largest yearly profit. The average poultry keeper fails either to hatch early enough in spring, so that the pullets may reach laying maturity in October, or he does not keep them growing rapidly enough to bring this about. Pullets that do not get to laying well before the arrival of cold weather and the short days of December, will seldom start egg production before February. Thus two or three months of additional feeding are required, and the advantage of this period of highest egg prices is lost.

Very few eggs are secured on the average farm during autumn and early winter, but experienced poultrymen by better management secure a fair egg production during these seasons. It is advisable, though not essential, that the cockerels and pullets be separated as early as possible and given separate free range.

Avoid overcrowding at night. A coop that will hold 100 young chickens will not house properly more than half as many growing pullets. Their maturity will be retarded if too many are kept together, or if they are annoyed by lice or mites. Frequent inspection of the houses, especially after the pullets have gone to roost, is advisable. If mites are seen crawling on the perches or are found by a careful inspection of the house, prompt measures must be taken to kill them by spraying the interior of the house, as advised by the United States Department of Agriculture, with crude petroleum, kerosene, cresol solution, cattle dip, or some other effective solution. Body lice frequently cause much annoyance and retard growth and maturity. Individual treatment of each pullet with sodium fluorid or mercurial ointment will clean up these pests on the birds themselves.

Feed freely of a good egg-laying ration; give plenty of range, and be sure they get plenty of mash. It is a help to keep it in hoppers, where they can have free access to it. A light feeding of moist mash, especially if mixed with milk, may induce fhem to eat a little more. If 25 per cent of buckwheat middlings is added to the allotment of mash to be moistened with milk or water it will be eaten eagerly by the pullets. A liberal amount of meat scrap in the mash is advisable at this time, particularly if plenty of milk is not available.

Corn, wheat, oats and barley are the principal grains fed. Kaffir and buckwheat also are used, but are not so generally available, and usually cost more. Corn and wheat are the two best grains and are about equal in value, although wheat can be fed alone better than corn, which is inclined to be fattening. Oats and barley, on account of their hulls and higher fiber content, are not so good as corn or wheat. Rye is not well relished, and is seldom fed.

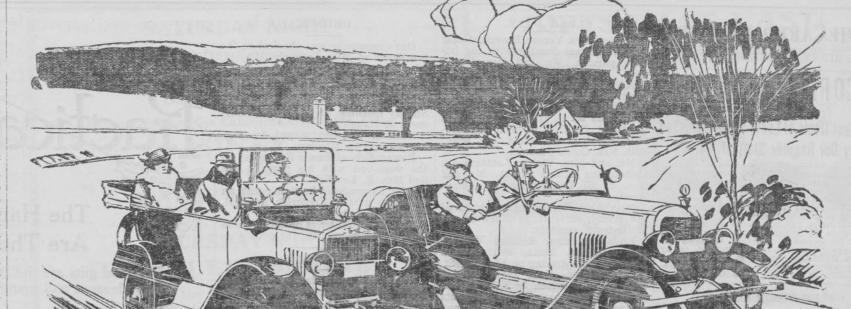

Corn meal, wheat bran, wheat middlings, and meat scrap form the basis of a good mash, while corn chop, cornand-cob meal, ground oats, and lowgrade flour may be added or substituted to advantage.

When on free range the fowls obtain a little of several different kinds of feed. Grain should not be made the sole feed, for then fat and not eggs is the usual result.

Place setting hens in colony houses or other rat-proof buildings. Brood coops with tight floors are useful for setting hens. Many a promising hatch has been ruined by the rat that stole

Taking Desperate Chances. It is true that many contract severe colds and recover from them without taking any precaution or treatment and a knowledge of this fact leads others to take their chances instead of giving their colds the needed attention. It should be borne in mind that every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality, makes the system less able to withstand each succeeding attack and paves the way for the more serious diseases. Can you afford to take such desperate chances when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cures of bad colds may be had for a trifle?

Catherine Green, widow, et al, Plaintiffs, vs. Joshua T. Green, single, et al, defendants.

The object of this bill is to procure a decree for the sale of a certain tract of real estate containing 730.1 square feet, more or less, located along the Western Maryland Railway near Union Bridge, in Carroll county, Maryland; ratification of the same mentioned in Exhibit "C" filed with the bill; that a suitable person as Trustee be appointed to execute a deed to the Western Maryland Railway Company upon the payment of the balance of the purchase money; that the proceeds derived from the sale be paid over to the Trustee said to be appointed and brought into Court and distributed among the parties to this cause according to their several rights and interests and for general relief.

The bill states that Joshua Green departed this life intestate in Carroll county, Maryland, about Deccemzer 20, 1917, leaving surviving him his widow, Catherine Green, sometimes called Katie Green, and the following children, his only heirs at law, viz: Howard E. Green, whose wife's name is Marie Green; Louis Green, James Green, whose wife's name is Mervie Green; Gladys Green, who is intermarried with Harrison Green, Helen Brooks, who is intermarried with Harrison Green, Helen Brooks, who is intermarried with Harrison Green, infant, defendants in this cause, and Joshua T. Green, single; Herbert E. Green, whose wife's name is Dise Green; and George Green, infant, defendants in this cause, and Joshua T. Green, his wife, who are residents of Carroll county, Maryland, save and except Joshua T. Green, his wife, who are residents of the State of Pennsylvania, and non-residents of the State of Pennsylvania, and non-residents of the State of Pennsylvania, and non-residents of the State of Maryland.

That the said Joshua Green died selzed and possessed among others of a certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being near Union Bridge, Carroll county in Liber B. F. C. No. 73, folio 428, a certified copy of which deed in this cause marked Exhibit. S. Haines and wife by deed dated July 16, 1889, and recorded among the Land Records of little use or benefit to the aforesaid parties interested therein and does not yield any income whatsover.

And that it would be to the interest and advantage of said infant, as well as to the interest and advantage of all the parties in interest that said sale of said property at the price contracted for as aforesaid should be confirmed by your Honorable Court; that said contract price is a fair and adequate price and is as much as and probably more than could be reasonably anticipated to be realized at a public sale. It is thereupon, this 7th day of December, A. D., 1921, ORDERED by the Circuit Court for Carroll County, sitting as a Court of Equity, that the plaintiffs, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Carroll county, for four successive weeks before the 16th, day of January, 1922, give notice to the said absent defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 1st, day of February, next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

The big gray racing car plunged around a sharp curve, skidded wildly, righted itself, and shot ahead up the straight, with its (speedometer climbing steadily from 40-55-60-close to 65. Its lone occupant was a girl—a girl enveloped in a white dust-coat, wearing a snug motoring cap and gauntleted gloves that were gripping the wheel of the powerful machine with a sure clasp, that seemed to indicate complete mastery of the iron horse that was surging under her. The roar of the exhaust and the high song of the tires on the smooth road drowned all other noises. Another curve showed ahead; and the girl, setting her teeth, took it at full speed. She passed a car coming in the opposite direction with a rush that left its occupants gasping in amazement. But the girl cared nothing for frightened passengers or danger to herself. She was saying as she nursed her car to an even higher burst of speed, "I'll show him! I'll show him!

About a mile beyond her a car, somewhat like her own, was making even more reckless time over the road. It was painted a dull brown and built in long stream lines that gave it the appearance of something which would scorn anything under 60 miles an hour. At its wheel was seated a young man, so enveloped in coat, cap and goggles that nothing could be seen of his

The cause of this mad race down Bramble. a country road was one of those little things that bring about great effects. Bob Hathaway had gone to call on Margaret Elliott with the firm intention of proposing to her, a thing which he had been on the point of doing for the last two months. To do her justice, Margaret was perfectly aware of this intention on the part of young Mr. Hathaway; and in her mind she had decided what her answer was to be. But Bob, unfortunately for him, was an enthusiast on the subject of his big Bramble roadster, while Margaret had but one passion-her own Gancia Eight, which she drove, tended, and repaired herself. Bob on calling, had unwisely boasted of the time he had made in coming over a distance of eight miles. Margaret had replied that she often made the distance in several seconds less. This had started an argument which had drifted, as such arguments do, from a friendly dispute into a definite intention on the part of both partles not to give in to each other. Margaret had suddenly challenged Bob to a race to Baxter, 50 miles away, and before he had had time to object she had hastened to the garage, run out her car, and was flying up the road. Bob, a little angry, followed at his best speed. The result was two cars madly careening for a distant goal and en, 26 children and 300 men, among a perfectly good proposal scattered to whom was Rev. Francis Higginson,

The Gancia had had a few yards' start, which its faster pickup had lengthened to nearly a mile before Bob got his heavier machine into its full swing; but once he had opened the throttle the Bramble began to cut down the distance. Twenty miles out of Baxter he was less than a halfmile behind, and gaining steadily. He exulted under his breath, and pushed the throttle the last fraction of an inch toward the floor. The car boomed under him and ate up the strip of roadway. He was gaininghe would win.

At that moment, 15 miles from the goal, inspiration visited Mr. Robert Hathaway. He grinned a grin to himself. A well-known clump of trees shot past; Bob knew that a quarter of a mile further on the road straightened into a stretch that ran eight miles without a curve, ending with a sharp climb and then a twisting descent into the town of Baxter. He drew up till he was about a hundred yards in the rear of Margaret's Gancia, so that he to remove the ring from her finger." was sure that she saw him in the little mirror on the left fender; and there he hung as the two cars rounded the last curve, and shot into the long straightaway.

one side—the top of her head was visthe over the rear of her car—and then the Ganela uttered a defiant roar
the best manner of the peanut yender of the United States; that is of a hand-cart that is wheeled from place and sped down the straightaway. Bob replied with a long blast of his horn and settled himself for the finish. But here an amazing thing happened. The Bramble began to lose. At the beginning of the straight it had been apparently gaining; but as the road whizzed under the wheels of the two cars the Gancia slowly but surely drew away. Mile after mile of the road slipped past, and at each mile the Bramble was a little farther behind. Bob looked at his speedometer and grinned again. The figures "68" showed in the little window, and his throttle was a good half-inch from being pressed down to the limit.

She's making about 69," he thought to himself. "That's the best she can do with that old bus of hers-and at this rate she'll beat me to Baxter by a good two miles. O. K.!" And he chuckled as he experienced a tendency of the Bramble to increase its speed. The last six miles of their journey was finished in this order. As the white steeple that marked the town of Baxter showed above the treetops Margaret, urging her car to a last effort, saw her speedometer register 70. A glance at the mirror showed that her rival was nowhere to be seen. She finished the last mile and slowed down to a sedate 30 as she entered the main street; there, before the one hotel that the town boasted, she stopped and

It was a good three minutes before her rival drew up behind her. He leaped from his seat and looked solicitously over his machine; then he went up to her.

"Well, you beat me all right!" he announced with a sunny smile. "I didn't think the Gancia had it in her! Tell you what let's do. I'm hungry as a pup. Let's see what this old hotel has to offer in the way of food, and then go back. Shall we?"

In the face of this complete admission of the superiority of her car Margaret was disarmed. They entered the hotel and ordered largely of food. While they were waiting for the order to be filled Bob bent toward

"Peggy, dear, I didn't come over to race with you. You've proved that you have a better car. Now, won't you let me tell you that I love you?"

Margaret blushed; but the look on her face as she turned toward the young man was enough for him. He would have taken her in his arms then and there, but the waiter returned and the conventions had to be observed. It was not till they had returned that he received her final answer and left for his own home, the happiest man in the world.

As he flew over the road, after having promised to come to call again on the very next day, he apostrophised his faithful Bramble.

'We had to let her beat us this afternoon, old thing," he said as the speedometer showed 72. "But now you can hump yourself all you want to.

"Honk-honk!" replied the faithful

TRIPS MADE BY MAYFLOWER

Ample Proof That Historic Vessel Voyaged to America on More Than One Occasion.

The Mayflower was used to bring colonists to Massachusetts on more than one occasion. The best known trip in her history was when she brought the Pilgrims to the Plymouth colony in 1620. When the Pilgrims decided to make the journey to America they bought a vessel in Holland called the Speedwell, and also chartered the Mayflower in England. The Speedwell proved unfitted for the voyage, and the entire party of 101 persons with their goods set sail September 17 in the Mayflower. After a stormy passage of 63 days they sighted Cape Cod and came to anchor in Cape Cod har-bor November 9, 1620. Here they remained until December 15, when they set sail for Plymouth and anchored in the harbor there next day. The Mayflower sailed for England on her return voyage April 5, 1621. Many shiploads of passengers came to the new colony during the next few years, and the trip in 1629 when a company numbering 60 womleft England for Salem, bringing food, arms, tools and 140 cattle in May. The Mayflower was also one of the fleet which accompanied the Arbella on which was the newly elected governor, John Winthrop, Isaac Johnson and his wife. Ring Superstition.

"If every bride removed her wedding ring from her finger immediately after the ceremony, most of them would be saved considerable worry,' said a prominent clergyman. "It is an old superstition among women that the removal of the ring from the finger after marriage will bring bad luck. After a woman has been married for a time without removing her ring and then does find occasion to take it off, she hesitates to do so on account of the silly superstition. If she had defied this ancient fear and taken it off immediately after the ceremony, she would not hesitate later

PAUL WRITES TO A FRIEND.

LESSON TEXT—Philemon,
GOLDEN TEXT—Whosoever would be chief among you, let him be your servant.—Matt. 20:27.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Deut. 15:1215; John 13:14, 35; I Cor. 1:26-29; Col.
3:9-11; Jas. 2:1-9.

PRIMARY TOPIC-The Story of a Runaway Slave.

JUNIOR TOPIC-Paul's Kindness to a

JUNIOR TOPIC—Fails Kindless to Runaway Slave.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Paul Pleading for a Slave.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Social Teachings of the Letter to Philemon.

This is a private letter. Philemon was a member of the church at Colosse. Onesimus, his slave, wronged him, perhaps stole from him, and fled to Rome. There he came under Paul's influence and was converted. Paul sent Onesimus back to Philemon with this letter. This is one of the most tender and beautiful letters ever written, and the first anti-slavery petition ever penned.

1. The Salutation (vv. 1-3).

His aim was to touch Philemon's heart, so refers to himself as a prisoner, and links Philemon to himself as a fellow-laborer in the Gospel of truth. He makes mention of Apphia, Philemon's wife, and Archippus, the son, who had already enlisted as a fellow-soldier.

II. Philemon's Reputation (vv. 4-7). Paul pald a fine tribute to Philemon, reminding him that he never prayed without bearing him up before This is a fine example of tact on the part of the minister.

1. His faith and love toward the Lord and all saints (v. 5). It was his hope and desire that this faith might bear fruit in Christ Jesus.

2. His ministry to the saints (v. 7). Philemon was generous in his help to the poor saints.

III. Paul's Request (vv. 8-16).

He requested Philemon to receive back Onesimus, the runaway slave, as a brother in Christ.

1. He beseeches instead of commands (vv. 8-10). Though conscious of his right to enjoin, he pleads as the prisoner of Jesus Christ for love's

2. He makes his plea on the grounds of grace (vv. 11-14). He admitted that Onesimus had been unprofitable-had forfeited all claim upon Philemon, and that on grounds of justice his plea might well be rejected, and yet Onesimus was begotten in his bonds (v. 10)—was in a real sense a part of his own suffering nature (v. 12)-he ventured to suggest that he should be accepted. Though Onesimus hitherto had been unprofitable to his master, now was pronta to both Paul and Philemon. Paul would gladly have retained him as a personal attendant, but sought first his friend's permission.

3. Paul desired that Onesimus be received back not as a slave, but as a brother in Christ (vv. 15, 16). Here is the real fugitive slave law. Paul never attacked slavery, though it was contrary to Christianity, and therefore hateful to him, but emphasized principles which destroyed it. The establishment of Christianity changes the whole face of human society. The wise thing to do is to get men and women regenerated and thus transform society instead of seeking change by revolution.

In Paul's request you can hear the pleadings of Christ for us sinners. All men have broken loose-gone astrayand have become unprofitable. We are reconciled to God through the interceding of Christ. He has made us profitable. We have been begotten in His bonds-through His passion, agony of heart, we shall be changed.

III. The Basis Upon Which Onesimus is to Be Received (vv. 17-21).

The debt of guilty Onesimus is to be put to the account of Paul, and the merit of Paul is to be put to the account of Onesimus. This is a fine il-Instration of the atonement of Christ. Whatever wrongs we have committed -debt incurred-all our shortcomings are debited to Him. Jesus Christ, on behalf of the whole universe, has said to God: "Put that to my account; I have written with my pierced hand; I will repay." Onesimus was taken back, not as a runaway slave, but a beloved brother in Christ.

IV. Paul Requests Lodging (vv. 22-

He expected a speedy release from imprisonment, and purposed to sojourn with Philemon. In all probability this was realized. What a welcome he must have received! Jesus Christ is saying to every one of His redeemed ones, "Prepare me a lodging."

The Lord Changeth Not.

And I will come near to you to judgment; I will be a swift witness against false swearers, and against those that oppress the hireling in his wages, the widow, and the fatherless, and that turn aside the stranger from his right, and fear not me, saith the Lord of hosts. For I am the Lord, I part from the faith .- I Timothy, 4:1.

December 11 Points in the Pledge We Are Likely to Neglect Luke 9:57-62

The pledge may be regarded as a test of faithfulness and loyalty to the society with which one is identified. The verses of the Scripture lesson may be looked at a test of loyalty and discipleship to Christ.

The incidents recorded in the Scripture lesson took place when our Lord was on the way to Jerusalem, the place of rejection and death. While He and His disciples were on the way -to them at that time the way of the Cross-certain men offered to become His followers on certain conditions. Inasmuch as these conditions were hindrances to full discipleship, they were not accepted.

The first hindrance was that of possessions, which made it too hard to accept the lot of one who had "not where to lay his head." The second hindrance was that of home affairs as expressed in the words, "Suffer me first to bury my father." The third was earthly affection—"Let me first go to bid them farewell which are at home at my house." All of these conditions seem to be proper. Why, then, were they denied? It was because of the principle involved in dissipled in remain that of convention cipleship-namely, that of separation from every hindering thing and the supremacy of one thing. It is not al-ways severance from home and friends that is required in discipleship, but separation from everything that hinders the purpose of God in the life of a disciple. To this there can be no exception. The work of discipleship demands a consecration which permits no hindrances within, such as half-heartedness or worldly-mindedness. heartedness or worldly-mindedness. There will be plenty of obstacles without, therefore the life within must not be diverted, but devoted, in order to overcome. The key-note of loyal discipleship is, "This one thing I do." To be true to this note demands consecration, conviction and courage. Oftentimes there are no immediate re-When Peter asked the question. "Lord, what shall we have for leaving all and following thee?" the Master pointed to the future. (See Matthew 19:28) .Under such conditions, the utmost fidelity to the tasks of discipleship, together with willingness to endure, are essential. Hindrances to this can never be tolerated.

HONOR FOR LARGE FAMILIES

When a Seventh Son Is Born in Argentina, the President Becomes His Godfather.

The custom of naming a child in honor of a great man or a man conspicuous for some deed which catches the fancy of the moment, is as old as time itself. Indeed, we have only to turn back the pages of history far enough to realize that hundreds of years before the birth of Christ men and women named their children for important personages, perhaps hoping-just as parents do now-that the important man would send a gift to his namesake or "look out for him" when he grew to man's estate. But it was reserved for the republic of Argentina to hit upon a way of giving distinction to the large families of that nation. When a seventh son is born to any one of the families in that nation's close upon one million twelve hundred thousand square miles, the president of Argentina takes special notice of the event. No matter how humble or how poor may be the parents of the seventh son, the president of the republic, according to custom, takes upon himself the duties of godfather to the There are, of course, certain privileges which are granted the boy because his godfather is the president of the republic. Not the least of these is the privilege of calling upon his godfather-in the arms of his proud mother or father-and cooing at him.

Poor Blood Makes Bad Health-Then Comes the "Blues".

Once the vigor of rde blood be-comes sapped of its strength, the door to happiness is literally slammed. Weariness of body follows and it unfailingly engenders depressed thoughts. To be reserved and cheerless becomes a habit. After a time there is an almost filmy dimness in the expression of the eyes and a pallor to the skin. Days seem dull and dark and difficult. A sense of insufferable gloom pervades the spirit.

Then it is that Gude's Pepto-Mangan is the great help. It is a red blood builder. It puts red into the blood-increases the number of corpuscles which make blood rich and red. When the blood is restored to its natural healthy state, the sensation of well-being returns. Instead of shuffling along carelessly, there is the Change not.—Malachi 3: 5, 6.

What Is Meant By "Net Earnings?"

HE net earnings of an enterprise is the money left from revenues after expenses are paid. Judged solely as a sum of money-without relation to anything else-the net earnings of a public utility such as ours may seem large.

The meaning of net earnings can be determined only when they are related to the investment in the property.

The net earnings of this company for the year 1921, based on nine months, will be $884,000, which may seem a large sum.

But our investment in Maryland is more than $21,000,000, so that the net earnings are less than four and one-half per cent. on the investment.

Compared with the present high rates for money prevailing, this is a very modest rate of return.

The forestry nursery at Saratoga Springs, which is in the course of organization at this time, will be the largest in the world at no distant date. When completed it will have an output of 10,000,000 trees per year and some idea of the scope of this new nursery may be gained from the fact that during the transplanting season last spring the employees of this nursery, several times transplanted more than 125,000 white pines in a single day. Seven transplanting tables were in operation at one time. It is at these tables that the transplanting boards are filled, by which fifty young trees are planted in a row simultaneously. The beds in which these plants are growing present a very attractive sight, the trees being all the same size and planted in faultless rows.

According to British Observer, the Turkish Capital Is an Excellent Place to Avoid.

Constantinople is not a pleasant place, to judge by the account of F. Holmes, writing from that city in the London Daily News.

"Often in my dreams," he writes, "there comes back again suddenly the strange, sickly odor, and I glide again over the thick, oily, muddy waters dotted with the bloated bodies of dead oxen and asses, with here and there a two-legged corpse instead. We land again in Tophaue quay and plunge into what I verily believe and sincerely hope to be a scene which, for filth, sordidness, squalor, misery and flagrant and outrageous vice has no parallel elsewhere in Europe.

"The rough cobbled streets are thickly strewn with decaying garbage of every description, and upon this filth the vegetable vender heaps his wares. Passing the butchers' shops in sun:mer the handkerchief flies instinctively and in mere self-defense to the nose; the color of the meat, so far as it could be discerned for flies, was green. Every second shop in the Rue de Galata is a so-called 'Bier haus'; where the more fortunate sallor is merely drugged, robbed of all he possesses and flung out into the street to be picked up by the patrol. The less fortunate is not flung out and is never heard of again.

"A verminous, villainous multitude of every nation under heaven passes continually up and down these streets, squabbling eternally. Women of all nationalities, united only by the common bond of universal vice and universal disease, lurk in their thievish corners. Disease of every kind rages,

"Looking at the city from the sea, the eye is generally caught by certain curious slate gray patches. They are the burnt-out areas. Two or three times a week during summer the city is lit by a huge blaze. As nearly all brigade is a bad joke these fires usually destroy five hundred buildings or so before they burn themselves out. The government has now created a housing problem by forbidding the creation of any more wooden houses. The population solves it after its manner: The Turk squats in the ruins of his burnt house-in the cellar if it is intact; if not, in any stone foundation that may remain covered in with boards and old clothes. "Such is the Christian quarter of Constantinople."

soothing and healing properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, its pleasant taste and prompt and effectual cures have made it a favorite with people everywhere. It is especially prized by mothers of young children for colds, croup and whooping cough, as it always affords quick relief and is free from opium and other harmful drugs. -Advertisement

LAND READY FOR COLONISTS

Northern Rhodesia, Rich and Fertile, Is Capable of the Highest Degree of Development.

With the ever-increasing overflow of civilized populations, northern Rhodesia soon may be pre-empted by colonists. Indeed, the movement of natives back to reserves may indicate that such an inflow already is taking place. Though it lies across the equator the Rhodesian plateau is adapted to the white men by reason of a climate that has no extremes. Moreover, its boom cities of Buluwayo and Salisbury possess hotels, clubs, business houses and apartments, built in the flush of hope that it would be a second Rand, then deserted by the fortune hunters, and now waiting the coming of a more sober and sustained development.

Much of northern Rhodesia is suitable for farming; there are vast tracts of grazing land. Maize and tobacco are at present principal crops. Wheat, cotton and citrus fruits may be grown successfully. The timber awaits transportation facilities. Gold, copper, zinc and lead mines already are worked .-- National Geographic Maga-
