ROAD IMPROVEMENTS NOW IN PROSPECT.

Taneytown-Littlestown Road to be Repaired this Year.

The County Commissioners, on Monday afternoon, gave a hearing to grow sweet corn at a loss. nearly 200 citizens of the Northern end of this county with reference to the permanent improvement of the public road from Taneytown to Littlestown, that includes the famousor infamous—bad stretch of road at Piney Creek, that likely occupies the prominence of being the worst short prominence of being the worst short piece of road in the county. The del-egation was headed by David M. Mehring, of Taneytown, Joseph D. Brooks, of Westminster, and H. M. Stokes, representing the road authorities of Adams county, Pa.

the Baltimore Sun, says:
"It was promised by the county commissioners that they would urge the State Roads Commission to adopt this as a principal road to be improved as fast as possible, not less than two miles to be completed this year. The commissioners further promised that in the event of favorable action by the State Roads Commission they would devote to continuous improvement with that done by the State Commission the amount of money

"Mr. Stokes, on behalf of the Adams county road authorities, promised that they would build the one and one-half miles southward from Littlestown to connect with the Maryland section at the State line. The plan in view when the resolution to improve the Harney road, as adopted last year, was eventually to extend it toward Gettysburg, but Mr. Stokes said the Pennsylvania people had already constructed all the roads necessary to carry tourists to the battle field, and there was no likelihood that any connection with the Harney road could be made within the next 25 vears.'

From McMinnville, Oregon.

We are at McMinnville, and the ther is fine. Have no snow, but there is snow in the mountain. We went up in the mountain yesterday and it was something to see. We Col. Joseph Cudlipp, one of the great-Went in an auto as far as we could get, then we got out and hiked. We followed a stream called Baker creek for several miles and came to a cliff where the water fell down about 100 feet. We crawled to the top of the hill and found there was about one foot of snow on the top. Saw some bear tracks in the snow-that was all we wanted to see of the bear.

The second day of February was cloudy so the ground hog did not see his shadow here. McMinnville is 40 miles south of Portland on the Southern Pacific railroad. The trolley cars run on the same track, that the steam cars do. Also bus line from Portland to McMinnville. Several days ago we were down to the Yann Hill river to see the Lafayette locks where they raise and lower the steam boats in the river.

Then Mr. Milne took us to see W. Ayers' ranch. He has thoroughbred stock. Mr. Ayers was appointed food administrator for the state of Oregon by Mr. Hoover. Mr. Ayers ever saw. He is in the millionare class. He has separate barns for his stock, cows, sheep, horses and hogs. He has four silos in his breeding barn 14x32 ft. The barn he keeps his milk cows in can tie up 64 cows. Cement floors and cement troughs and electric lights, also two electric milkers. The interior is finished like a house. He has about two acres around his barns concreted. He has a large shed, will shelter about 200 cattle; they keep about one foot of straw in this shed and the cattle go in the shed when the weather is bad when they are in the barnyard.

I noticed by the home paper that Taneytown was in darkness for a few nights. That is something that we may expect to happen. I surely can congratulate Taneytown for having a good light. I traveled through a great many town, and did not see any with lights better than Taneytown.

20c Piece 1875, not Valuable.

A story is going the rounds that the Twenty-cent piece of 1875 is very valuable, because "only three were coined in that year." This is altogether incorrect. There were many thousands of them coined in 1875, and the country is full of them. The issue of 1876, with the lettels "C. C." is said to be worth about $15.00, and $10. those of 1877 and 1878 from 75c to $1.50. Twenty-cent rieces were $1.50. Twenty-cent pieces coined from 1875 to 1878.

Dwelling Burned near Johnsville.

Fire of unknown origin, destroyed the large house on the farm of W.O. Repp, a mile northeast of Johnsville, a few days ago. The flames, fanned by a strong wind, gained headway rapidly and by the time assistance arrived, the building was beyond saving. Most of the contents of the house was also destroyed.

Mrs. Repp discovered the fire. She was awakened by a light in an adjoining room, about 2 o'clock in the morning and at first thought that her husband had forgotten to turn off the electric lights. In a few minutes however, she discovered that the 000,000 which the maintenance achouse was on fire and quickly aroused many being asleep but few responded. Mr. Repp and family fought the fire in their night clothing and after finding that they were unable to cope with the flames, which were spreading rapidly turned their attention to removing the furniture. With the exception of personal effects, some bed clothing and small articles of furni-ture the building and contents fell prey to the flames.

The house was a large and modern residence equipped with electricity and other conveniences and was insured. Mr. and Mrs. Repp and their children were taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Stoner, nearby. The origin of the fire could not be determined.—Frederick News.

Blue Ridge College had a big day, practical and sentimental Saturday, when the Young People's Sunday School Congress of Carroll county held its session at the New Windsor institution. This session proved to be one of the most successful ever held in the history of the state. A number of delegates from House bill No. 16, providing for a state. A number of delegates from all of the Sunday Schools of Carroll county were present.
Under the personal supervision of

LEGISLATIVE ACTS DURING PAST WEEK

Baltimore City Gets Greater Representation Bills.

The county boards of education will be required to publish a financial statement for each school year if a bill introduced by Delegate Gorsuch, Baltimore county, is passed by the General Assembly. Difficulty in learning just what school expenses have been and the financial condition of the school systems is said to have prompted the measure. The bill calls for "a detailed, minute and accurate statement" of expenses "for the pre-ceding school year, specifying in said statement each particular item of expense and for what and to whom paid." The statement would be published before October 1 in a county newspaper.

A large number of influential people, many of them ministers of the Gospel, appeared before the Senate Finance Committee, on Tuesday, in favor of the Byrn Anti-Race track gambling bill.

The Senate passed the bill giving equal rights to women—to hold office and vote in any parish or congrega-tion of the Protestant Episcopal Church, equal to men.

The bills taxing gasoline for motor vehicles, have been introduced. The first bill, which would tax gasoline 1 count of the Roads Commission owes the 2 cents a gallon tax supersede the former levy of 1 cent and also the present taxation on the horsepower basis, except for a $1 registration charge. Should the proceeds of the gasoline tax fall short of the estimated return the deficit would be made up through a reduced horsepower tax.

Legislative work in general is progressing about as rapidly as is the custom, with the prospect that most of the important measures—and there is not a large number of them—will likely be held back until toward the close of the session.

Jury service for women is one of the "Woman's rights" propositions that does not seem to appeal to members of the legislature of either party, and it seems likely that it will not come through. A Harford county school loan of oan of $3,150,000 to construct lateral pledges in the Democratic platform, was given a favorable report on Wednesday, by the Committee on Roads and Highways. Upon the

On Thursday the two bills providing for greater representation in the legislature for Baltimore city passed the House 71 to 33, the bills having previously passed the Senate. Both of these will now come before the voters in the shape of amendments to the Consititution, and are therefore effective only if ratified by the voters of the state. Four Democrats voted in the negative, and three Republicans in the affirmative.

Last year, John D. Rockefeller gave $2,290,000 to colored colleges, and announcement has been made of another $1,000,000 for this year.

A NEW POPE ELECTED.

Cardinal Achille Ratti, will be known as Pius Xl.

Cardinal Achille Ratti, Archbishop, of Milan, has been chosen Supreme Pontiff, of the Roman Catholic Church to succeed the late Pope Benedict XV. His coronation as Pius XI will take place February 12. The new Pope is 65 years old and was made a Cardinal only last July 16.

The election was completed without American participation in the conclave Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop, of Boston, arriving at the moment the new Pope was blessing the multitude. "Universal pacification" is the keynote of the new Pope's policy, as indicated in a statement issued by Prince Chigi, the marshal of the conclave, which made reference to the first blessing bestowed by Pius XI.

Continual conciliation, inaugurated by this predecessor, probable reconciliation of the state and church, which has been estranged for so many years, and an appeal to all the nations of the world to restore peace are said to constitute the most essential aims of the Vatican policy as it will be conducted under the present Pontiff.

A New Bonus Plan.

Within the last week leaders have been told of a new plan for allotting the bonus, framed under the guidance of Secretary Hoover, who believes it can be administered without the bad results on reviving business forecast if any of the present plans pass. The Hoover program calls for an insurance bonus exclusively, a wide protection for the veteran against unemployment, accidents and illness, death insurance, and covers as well almost every conceivable disaster that could befall the ex-soldier. The plan $250,000 is proposed in a bill introduced by Senator Tydings. Unemployed at Brunswick.

It is estimated that between 600 and 700 employes of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Brunswick have been furloughed since last fall, a large number of whom are without employment. The men who lost their jobs were employed principally in the machine and repair shops and at the transfer sheds. While some left to seek work in other places most of them are waiting to be recalled by the railroad. The opinion prevails that very few will be taken back before WORLD CONFERENCE LABORS ENDED.

One of the Greatest Events in the World's History.

The great world conference that has lasted for two and a half months, in Washington, between the great world powers, has ended, and its work has called forth general felicitation. The treaties were signed, on Saturday by representatives of all the powers, and they will now go to the Senate for ratification. There will be opposition to some, if not all, of the agreements entered into on the part of this country, but a hopeful view is generally expressed that the Senate will ratify.

The main accomplishments of the conference are as follows;

The Five-Power Limitation of Naval Armaments Treaty, signed by the United States, the British Empire, Japan, Italy and France.

The Four-power Pact for peace in the Pacific, signed by the United States, the British Empire, Japan and

This was the viewpoint of the President of the United States regarding the success of the Conference. During the three months of trials and tribulations, when, at times, it seemed that agreement might not be possible, the President had rather effaced himself and trusted to Secretary Hughes and the American delegation. He came be-fore the Conference at its close and spoke his conviction that the era of world peace had been started on its way; that out of this international gathering might come others redound-ing to the peace of the world, and that war had been long deferred, or put away entirely by the Washington Con-

The scholarship of Charlotte Hall from Carroll made vacant by Mr. Monroe Townsend was awarded to J. Harold Bafford for the remainder of the school year.

The following resolution approving the State program was passed by the Board:

Whereas, The Russell Sage Foundation has served a good and useful purpose by its rating of the educational standing of the State of Maryland with respect to other States of the Union, and thereby has exposed the weak position in which the State finds itself.

Whereas, The tentative State Program has been prepared with great care after diligent study of the needs of public schools by State Superintendent Cook, the members of the State Department, the various Superintendents and County Boards of the State, and the Teachers' Associations.

fer of Mr. Charles Kopp to purchase President Harding, who called the present Conference into being, virtually brought it to an end, when on Monday morning, and just before the price of $15.00 per thousand. As this offer was made through A. H. Griffee, principal of the Pleasant Gap school, Supt. Unger authorized Mr. Griffee to act in the capacity of the Board's representative in making the sale and turning the funds over to this office.

A delegation representing the eastern haif of Woolery's district appeared before the Board to request the construction of a consolidated elementary and high school in the neighborhood of Sandyville for the benefit of children of high school age in Finksburg, Lawndale, Patapsco, Carrollton and Reese with the idea of closing some of the rural schools or conducting simply primary schools at these points. The Board took note of its request and referred it to the County Commissioners in order that they might also be informed of the demands of the community.

A delegation respecting the interests of the Lineboro community requested that in view of the fact that two teachers were compelled to handle nearly 60 children in a small school room in the town of Lineboro, the time had come when Lineboro was entitled to a new and adequate school building to properly satisfy the community's demands. The Board noted the various points made by this delegation and referred it likewise to the County Commissioners for their information.

The Board decided that it is necessary to demand a guarantee fee from each student in the commercial department in order to safeguard the care and use of the typewriters in the department. After the machines are inspected at the end of the school year a pro rata charge is to be made and the balance refunded to the students. The fee for the remainder of this school year is $2.50 cents. After the Board had adjourned a delegation from Mechanicsville requesting that more adequate building facilities be granted their community in order that it might be possible to organize a junior high school. The Board requested this delegation to lay its proposition more fully before its own community and report back a more complete representation of the community when its request would be given due consideration.

The Board adjourned at 12:40 P. M.

A period of operation by the peoples of the various countries more plainly than by the leaders.

While it is true that most, perhaps, of the agreements reached depend for their operation on governmental good faith, this is, in fact the limitation of all treaties and agreements, no matter how iron-clad they may be made. Given the proper degree of incentive, and the proper disregard for National honor, and all treaties quickly become "scraps of paper." When honor leaves, nothing worth while is left.

The whole procedure, perhaps, is an experiment, but it is one wholly worth trying, and it is entirely within the realm of possibilities that this is not the last of such conferences, but that still others will be held, constituting, practically, a continuing world's court, where great principles will meet and thresh out their differences.

Disagreeing Juries.

The ancient custom or requiring juries to agree unanimously on verdicts, is having a severe test for its sanity in the Arbuckle case, in California, that has been tried twice, with disagreeing juries in both cases. Perhaps the third trial may satisfy the law-perhaps not-and in either case, the state of California is paying for an expensive luxury, while the ends of justice many not be better served at the last trial than at the

The lawyers, at any rate, are the profiteers; and it may be the lawyers who put up the chief argument in favor of requiring unanimous verdicts, rather than the acceptance of a three-fourths vote of the jurors. Practically every official body in this country, from the Supreme Court on down, can decide cases on some sort of majority basis, except our juries. In England, we believe, three-fourths of the jurors can hand down a verdiet, and it ought to be so in this

For the first time in our history exsoldiers are pressing for an immediate wholesale pension bill for young and strong men, many of them wellto-do or rich, at a time when the Government cannot meet its obligations without a crushing system of taxation and when such a bill will add many billions to its expenses. The Railways.

At the beginning of the twentieth century who entertained a doubt that the railway was to be the ultimate agent in land transportation? From small beginnings it had been mightily extended and found to be successfully and equally adapted to the moving of men and goods on every variety of journey, long or short. Granted that the railways would be extended wherever they were needed that they would be sufficiently equipped and efficiently managed, there seemed no reason to desire a better system, no possibility that they could be dislodg-Perhaps no one doubts even now Grave Mistake to Leave Business Position in a General Cloud of Unpleasant Feeling.

The man or woman of small ambition and smaller achievement feels that it is his privilege and pleasure always to leave a position he is "quitting" in a cloud of unpleasant feeling. So long as he remains in his position he puts up with unpleasantness, stifles his dislikes for the men over him and does his best to grin and bear things. When he realizes that he can take his destiny in his own hands, and ask to have his name stricken off the pay roll, he takes intense satisfaction in airing his prejudices and showing every one in the place just how he feels about things. He undoes in a day all that he has gained in the months or years that he has worked there.

The man or woman with ambition knows that the world of business is a small place. Merely from a selfish point of view it is essential to maintain pleasant relations even with those who, you feel, have treated you unjustly. If you have put up with their ill treatment while working for them surely you ought to be more willing to do so when you have the inner satisfaction of knowing that you are going. In fact, you can stretch a point and forgive and forget old rancors. It may be, you know, that in another shuffle up you will be placed in a position where one of the persons for whom you have the most spite will be placed in a position where his friendship will mean a great deal to you. So do the well-bred thing, which is to stifle your own petty animosities and exercise your self-control to the extent of leaving the old place with a handshake all-round.—Exchange.

THOUGHT NOT REALLY RAPID

Mind Moves Comparatively Slowly, Notwithstanding Expression That Has Become Common.

"As quick as thought" is an expression much used to denote the acme of speed in action, but, like so many popular expressions, this one is misleading. Thought, or at least the mental registering of a sensation, is not an exceedingly speedy process, the thought impulse moving at the comparatively slow speed of 110 feet a second, or 75 miles an hour. Light travels nearly nine million times as swiftly. Thought would be hopelessly beaten in a race with a motorcar. Perhaps a good illustration of the comparative slowness of thought waves is to assume that a man had an arm 75 miles long and that, when he was not looking a friend should grasp his hand. Before the owner of that arm became conscious that his hand had been touched, the friend would have released it, and had time to walk four miles or eat a very extensive dinner.—Kansas City Star.

Two Kinds of Thinkers.

There are two kinds of people in the world-word people and fact people. The former deal in words and phrases and form their judgments on opinions and beliefs. The latter analyze questions and draw conclusions only from the point of view of what they believe to be established facts. The two types are as far apart as the north and south poles and are incapable of carrying on anything in the way of intelligent argument or debate, because they do not talk the same language or think by the same method. The word man starts with a desired conclusion and fashions his facts to produce that result. The fact man analyzes his subject, seeks to establish the truth in regard to facts which have a bearing on it and then fearlessly draws what he believes to be honest conclusions. His process is like the working out of a mathematical problem; he does not know what the answer will be until the last figure is made. He thinks forward, while the word man thinks backward.

To Utilize Waste Time.

A system in vogue in a few New York department stores to utilize the spare time of their employees when customers are few is to hold meetings of a semi-social character, in which a part or the whole of their forces can participate. One of the most popular and beneficial of those systems, from the viewpoint of the employers and the employees, is to assemble the forces and sing songs and hear short addresses delivered on general subjects by store executives or others. A daily use of that system, according to one store manager who has had the system in practice for considerable time, is to infuse greater enthusiasm among its employees for their work and to inculcate a spirit of co-operation between the employer and his employees.

How Man Spoils the Air. "Windows open more would keep doctors from the door." A very large quantity of fresh air is spoiled and rendered foul by the act of breathing. A man spoils not less than a gallon every minute. In eight hours' breathing a full-grown man spoils as much fresh air as seventeen three-bushel sacks could hold. If he were shut up in a room seven feet broad, seven feet long and seven feet high, the doors and windows fitting so tightly that no air could pass through, he would die poisoned by his own breath, in a very few hours; in twenty-four hours he would have spoiled all the air contained in the room, and have converted it into poison.

"One thing I can't explain," said Deacon Hapgood, "and that is as to why women's dresses are getting shorter in the skirt and lower in the neck, and yet are higher in price."

Deacon, we can't explain it either. Many a YOUNG girl these days argues with her mother that she is now OLD enough to weat short skirts! Times have changed, that's all. INCREASING EGG PRODUCTION

Poultry Keepers Will Do Well to Keep in Touch With What Leaders Are Doing.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The methods favored by large poultrymen for increasing the productivity of their flocks are often applicable on the general farm or in the back-yard poultry plant. Every poultry keeper will, therefore, do well to keep in touch with what the leaders are doing to increase their profits, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Certain localities in California, for instance, have become famous for their poultry and egg production, and the study that is given to these problems by farmers, and the owners of big plants, has resulted in a great improvement in their practices.

The county extension organization in Alameda county, California, has taken steps through its poultry division to raise the standard of all poultry in the county by improving the quality of fowls used in breeding flocks. Owners of hatcheries in the county have entered into an agreement with the county extension organization to use eggs for incubation from selected breeding stock, excluding the incubation of eggs from the general run of fowls in the locality, with the understanding that the county extension organization shall furnish judges to pass on the desirability of birds selected for breeding.

This method of controlling the quality of the poultry in a county is expected to result in a rapid general improvement in the productivity of the flocks. It should also give the county a good reputation wherever hatching eggs or birds are sold.

Promising development that is being encouraged in the famous Petaluma poultry district is the consignment sale of cockerels. In this the poultry breeders have been following the lead of other growers of high-class live stock. Cattle breeders have been holding bull sales for a number of years; sheep breeders have ram sales; hog breeders have sales of boars and of bred sows. In the case of cockerels no pedigree papers are supplied, as they are with other kinds of purebred live stock, but sworn affidavits as to breeding go with each bird.

A White Leghorn cockerel sale was held in Sonoma county (the Petaluma district) October 15. The 14 Pacific coast breeders who consigned birds gave sworn statements as to their breeding. According to the county agent, who was instrumental in putting on this sale, most of the 52 cockerels consigned represented unusually high breeding, many of them having pedigrees extending back eight or nine generations with trap-nest records. Most of them had inheritance records of more than 275 eggs in a year and some more than 300. The fact that 1.000 catalogues were issued shows the importance given to the first sale of this kind.

These two methods of flock improvement ought to be popular among poultry raisers in all parts of the country. They are practical, say the poultrymen of the United States Department of Agriculture, and they help to make good stock available to the average poultry raiser who in the past has had no assurance, other than the breeder's word, that he was getting birds of superior performance merit. Few dairymen, hog growers or beef-cattle raisers are also good live-stock breeders, but methods have been developed that make it possible for any good farmer to build up an excellent herd. It should be just as easy for a poultry raiser to improve his flock.

Roup and Other Contagious Ailments Are Difficult to Control-Separate Sick Birds.

Cold, damp, poorly lighted and spread of such diseases as roup. Such contagious diseases as these are difficult and sometimes impossible to control unless given attention in the early stages. Wherever preventive measures fail, separate sick birds from the flock as soon as there is evidence of disease and then obtain expert advice to effect a cure.

POULTRY CACKLES

KEROSENE EMULSION RECIPE

Effective Disinfectant for Use in Poultry House Is Easy to Make and Also Inexpensive.

The kerosene emulsion which is frequently used to destroy mites may readily be converted into a disinfectant, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. The emulsion is made by shaving one-half pound laundry soap into one-half gallon soft water. Boil the mixture until soap is dissolved and then, after removing it to a safe while hot, 2 gallons of kerosene. This makes the stock mixture. When it is to be used as a louse killer, 1 quart of the emulsion is mixed with 10 quarts of water. When it is to be used as a and many other articles not mentiondisinfectant, stir well and add 2 pints ed. of crude carbolic acid or crude cresol.

The compound solution of cresol is one of the best disinfectants that can J. N. O. SMITH, Auct. be purchased ready to use. It contains 50 per cent of cresol, and a pint of it in 10 quarts of water makes the right solution to apply to houses or spray over the ground. A 5 per cent solution of carbolic acid (1 pint carbolic acid, 10 quarts water) is about equally efficacious.

For several years the department specialists have conducted early hatching campaigns. The movement has been encouraged by state officials and county agents until now such campaigns are conducted early in the spring over practically the entire country. Reports from poultry specialists and other sources indicate that early hatching is being practiced much more generally this spring than ever before, the favorable weather conditions being largely responsible for this fact.

CURE FOR EGG-EATING HENS

Professor Lippincott of Kansas College Recommends Paring Off End of Beak.

In answer to the many inquiries for a remedy for egg-eating hens, appears the following by William A. Lippincott, Kansas State Agriculture col-

"Hens can be cured of eating eggs by paring off the end of the beak until it is very tender. It should not be cut so as to make it bleed. After being cut back until the quick is almost exposed, give the birds some china eggs to pick at. As a usual thing they soon get over their desire to pick at anything hard and, by the time the beaks are grown out, have gotten entirely over the vice."

ALFRED D. LEASON, Plaintiff ANNA LEASON, Defendant.

ANNA LEASON, Defendant.

The object of this suit is to procure for the plaintiff a divorce a vinculo matrimoni from Anna Leason, defendant, as well as general relief.

The bill states that on the 25th. day of October, 1916, they were married by Rev. J. Walter Englar, a minister of the Gospel of the Church of the Brethren, at New Windsor, Carroll County, Maryland, and that they lived together as man and wife in New Windsor, Carroll County, Maryland, until some time during the month of May, 1918, when the defendant abandoned and deserted the plaintiff and has since said last mentioned date ceased to live with him, and has resided separate and apart from the plaintiff. That the plaintiff is and has been a resident of Carroll County, Maryland, for the past three years. That the conduct of the plaintiff towards his said wife was always kind, affectionate and above reproach, and that his wife some time during the month of May, 1918, without just cause or reason abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, and that she has lived separate and apart from him since said date, and that such abandonment by the defendant of the plaintiff has continued uninterruptedly for more than 3 years, and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation. That they have had no children born to them as a result of said marriage. That the defendant is a resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon, this 1st, day of February, A. D., 1922, ordered by the Circuit

Maryland.

It is thereupon, this 1st, day of February, A. D., 1922, ordered by the Circuit Court for Carroll County, sitting as a Court of Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published insaid Carroll County for four successive weeks before the 6th. day of March, 1922, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning her to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 22nd. day of March, next, to show cause, if any she has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

GOOD TIME TO PLAN GARDEN

During the Long Evenings Consider These Hints Put Out by the Department of Agriculture.

Some plants do better under certain conditions than do others. Where special conditions obtain, it is well to study the requirements of the flowers while plans are being made to plant them, and see if the location in question is a suitable habitat for them. The following list has been compiled by horticulturists in the United States Department of Agriculture.

Of easiest culture under ordinary garden conditions: Over four feet, sunflower; about three feet, Joseph'scoat, love-lies-bleeding, heliopsis and prince's-feather; about thirty inches, cornflower, strawberry, and zinnia; about twenty-four inches, calliopsis, summer chrysanthemum, coneflower, gaillardia, marigold, poppy and snowon-the-mountains; about eighteen inches, mignonette; about twelve inches, Cape marigold, calendula, California poppy, balsam, candy-tuft, Reconstruction Problems. Progressive and growing cities are always called on to face and deal with the problem of reconstruction. The problem is presented in connection with the elevation of railroad tracks, acquiring park lands, laying out boulevards, placing monuments and memorials, straightening and widening streets, etc. The question is always one of handling these matters in a large way and solely with reference to the welfare of the city and its people as a whole, and with an eye to the future.

Railroads Ask Repeal of Burdensome Law

SO-CALLED FULL CREW REG-ULATION IS COSTLY TO THE PUBLIC

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF MARYLAND:

The undersigned Railroad Companies, all operating in the State of Maryland, join in a petition to your honorable body to act favorably on Senate Bill No. 74 introduced by Hon. Walter Mitchell which repeals the so-called full crew law enacted in 1908. This burdensome and wholly unnecessary law requires railroads to man all freight trains of 30 or more cars with crews of six men; viz: I Engineer, 1 Fireman, 1 Conductor and 2 Brakemen and 1 Flagman (3 Brakemen). This crew comprises one more Brakeman than the railroads need.

The petitioners respectfully urge the abolition of this extra

Brakeman

BECAUSE, the employment of this useless Brakeman is an unnecessary burden on the railroads, and therefore, on the public, which after all "pays the bill." In 1919 the cost was $314,904, in 1920 $496,890, in 1921 (a year of business depression) $367,282, a total, during the past three years, of $1,179,076. During the last ten years this law has cost the Railroads operating in Maryland approximately TWO AND ONE-HALF MILLION DOLLARS, without a single cent in return compensation.

BECAUSE, the extra Brakeman is not needed in the operation of trains. The Federal Government requires automatic couplers and air brakes on all cars and prohibits the use of hand brakes on trains. Two brakemen are sufficient. Then why a third Brakeman?

BECAUSE, the railroads are vitally interested in the safe and economic operation of trains, and are fully qualified to decide upon the size of the crows.

operation of trains, and are fully qualified to decide upon the size of the crews.

BECAUSE, this law places an unnecessary burden on the railroads and leads to high passenger and freight rates, in which the public is vitally interested. Industry and trade must be revived, which is possible only by removing unnecessary burdens and lessening of overhead charges. The stringency of the times will be partially relieved by the repeal of this law. This repeal does not mean more unemployment; it does mean the transfer of men from useless to useful occupations in other departments, where the money paid them will be more profitably expended in repairing locomotives, cars, tracks, etc.
BECAUSE, Pennsylvania and other states have repealed similar laws. The West Virginia Legislature refused to pass a bill enacting such a law. Virginia and Delaware are without such a law. Therefore, Maryland, alone in this group of States, is hampered by a full crew law.

We, therefore, appeal to your honorable body to repeal this burdensome and unnecessary law.

Halloween at Helen's

Dy RUBY DOUGLAS

"Come to a Hallowe'en party at Helen's." That was all there was on the invitation cards and they had been received by all of the members of the young dancing set and many of the younger married persons of the town.

"Helen-Helen who?" asked every one else. This was indeed carrying out to a letter the mysterious atmosphere that had been woven about the night called Hallowe'en.

There was only one man in the town who seemed to feel that he knew who Helen was. There had been a Helen in his life five years before, but she had gone to live in Sorrento, Italy, in a villa overlooking the bay of Naples. They had quarreled over their differences of temperament, and she had sailed away to live her own life in what she believed was her own romantic way. She wrote stories for a living, such as it was. He had seen her name from time to time, but he had never had a line from her pen since she left.

The little invitation cards created no end of fun in the town and everyone was trying to find out where the party was to be held.

"Do you know of a 'Helen', George?" asked Grace Pennington.

George Morton shook his head. "No-o. I don't," he said, hesitatingly. "At least, not here," he added.

The girl laughed. "Oh-h-then there is a Helen-somewhere!" The man was non-committal.

In the course of a few days, further cards arrived. "Follow the Hectic highway.'

The plot thickened, but the day before Hallowe'en a number of arrows appeared on posts and trees. "To the Hectic highway," they read. But they ended at four crossroads and not until Hallowe'en did the other arrows ap-the arrows. They had, by mutual agreement, decided to wear a sheet and piliowcase costume so as to carry out for their unknown hostess in detail, the atmosphere of the occasion.

They reached the crossroads, "George von are good at roads-vou lead," said Grace Pennington, who was one of seven in George Morton's big

The man got out and looked at the sign at the crossroads. A black cat's face with a lantern behind it had been hung on the point of the arrow and the direction given was down through a dirt road leading off one of the

"It is a Hectic highway, indeed," remarked George as he led the procession of cars into the dirt road, narrow and dark save for the occasional skull-and-cross-bones lantern that had been hung on the arrows. At the end of the road there was a sharp turn up a sandy hill, and in lowered speed the ghostly clad guests proceeded.

At last they came to an old farmhouse which had been so nearly rejuvenated that no one of the crowd recognized it as being the shack they used to pass on occasional pienic

In lighted letters, set in black glass, was the word H-E-L-E-N-'S.

There were murmured "Oh's" and "Ah's" from behind pillowcases. "But who is Helen?" asked every one with bated breath. This was indeed a lark. Signs told them where to go, white arms reached out to shake their hands, groans came from the shrubbery as they passed into the dimly lighted house. Weird music was wafted from no one knew where and small tables stood around the dancing room. was beginning to feel queer.

When they were all assembled in the dark cellar a voice spoke. It made no particular impression upon any one except George Morton. It was, unmistakably, the voice of his Helen.

"It is five years since I left this old crowd to go to live on the other side of the water. I have returned. I shall live here at this place, which shall be called 'Helen's,' and, together with the writing of my stories, I shall have a little tea house which I hope you will all frequent, for tea, for dancing, for a quiet hour in which to concentrate. I am glad to be back with you and I have taken this way of letting you know I have come to stay. Are you glad to see me?" The light was thrown full upon the face of Helen Tracy-lovelier than ever.

It was long moments before the girls had stopped kissing her and during all the time that the noisy welcoming had been going on George had stood back, alternately pinching himself to see if he were dreaming and heaping epithets upon the crowd for being so slow to return to the dancing floor above.

At last he was able to reach the girl's side. "Helen," he said, taking her hand. "Have you forgotten-me?"

"No; in spite of myself I have been remembering you all these years," she said frankly.

George did not let go her hand. "Is that true? Oh, if you only knew how I have longed for a sight of you, Helen. Nothing has seemed real since you left. Even now I cannot believe you are here.

She stepped close to him. "But I am, George.

He reached out for her; the light had gone out; they stood in the dim reflection of the light from upstairs. "Must I wait to tell you I love you, dear? I love you better than I ever believed it possible for me to love."

There was silence for a moment, during which some one from above began to call for the hostess.

"Tell me quickly, sweetheart, that "I do, I do," she whispered. "Then we'll make the Hectic highway a heavenly highway, won't we, Helen?" he asked, as they went up to Members of That Family Have Hard Work Convincing Strangers That the Name Is Real.

"It isn't the fact that Smith is such a common name that I dislike it," said Miss Smith, according to a New York Sun writer, "but the fact that every one who wants to give a fictitious name just says she's Miss Smith. So they come over and in a little while they're telling us where they work and their telephone number and how we look like their sisters, and all that. It's all right, too, because you get used to that way of getting acquainted, and it's much better than some funny guys, who try to hand you a line that they're in the movies or doing fiction writing.

"Well, anyway, pretty soon, if they like us, they say, 'You're a pretty nifty little dancer. I'd like to see you again. You know all about me, so tell me your name, will you?' Then when I say Miss Smith, they say: 'Come on, quit your kidding. That doesn't mean anything to me. me your real name.'

"When I insist my name is Smith, they say, 'What's the matter? You're married or something.'

"So we don't tell our real names any more. We say we're Miss Cooper or Stuyvesant or something else, and since we don't look like sisters we each have to use different names to be believed. Funny, isn't it?"

BELIEF HAS A FOUNDATION

Idea That Seventh Child of a Seventh Child Is "Gifted" Not Altogether a Fallacy.

The seventh child of a seventh child (sometimes "the seventh son of a seventh son") is supposed to be gifted with the power of curing headaches and more serious ailments by the laying on of hands, and to have other magical powers. In other words, he is supposed

Among the later discoveries in eugenics was that the younger children of very intelligent men inherited more of their father's intelligence than did the older children; or, as sometimes happened, that the children of a younger son were supremely gifted with intelligence. The reason for this -according to eugenic theories-is that talented men or women, like many others, usually marry when fairly young if they marry at all. The older children of such a talented man have therefore the tendency to inherit only what mental qualities he may have developed at that time.

But supposing that the talented man, as is usually the case, continues to de- placed on many of the widely scatvelop amazing mental qualities, then if tered islands. he has children when his brain is completely mature, those children will probably inherit their father's matured mentality; or, if they do not inherit it, their children (the clever man's grandchildren) receive the inheritance.

The Seventeenth or Eighteenth century author traded rather more on the trustfulness of the public than does the new school, for he peddled mentally free, he had $215,000 of the his book before it was written and first loan left to his account. Known by Their Hats.

All the various tribes of Persia are to be distinguished and recognized by their headgear. So, at the capital, Teheran, there is to be seen a greater assortment of hats and headgear than in any other place in the world. Some are picturesque, some are ludicrous. The Kurds, of which there are 600,000 in the country, wear a hat which looks like an inverted coffee pot, black, bound round with gay-colored handkerchiefs. That of another tribe is of white felt, resembling in shape preserving kettle. Hats are exclusively the privilege of men. Women do not wear headcovering.

"Playful" Indeed!

In his book, "Flashlights From the Seven Seas," the Rev. William L. Stidger, of Detroit, says the Battaks of Sumatra have what he refers to facetiously as a "playful" custom of getting rid of their old men. When a man gets so old that they think it is about time for him to tell his last tale, they put him up a coconut tree. Then together and try to shake him down. If he is too feeble to hold on, and comes down, that is a sign of Heaven that his days are through, and they proceed to cook and eat him.

FIRST CUPBOARD IN AMERICA!

Said to Have Been Brought to the Country by Lord Fairfax-Preceded Cellarette.

It was not the custom until a recent period for each person to have a separate drinking vessel, and even as late as 1856 one writer says: "As for drinke, it is usually filled in pots, goblets, jugs, bols of silver in noblemen's houses; also in fine Venice glasses of all forms, and for want of these elsewhere pots of earth are used. All of which are seldom set upon the table, but each one, as necessitie urges, calleth for a cup of such drinke as he

A "cupboard richly garnished" was therefore a necessity in those days. That was one of the ways people displayed their wealth.

Lord Fairfax is said to have brought the first cupboard to this country when he settled in Virginia.

The framework of the first "cupboards" was always covered with "cupboard carpet" and for this purpose rugs of "Turkeyworke" were imported from the East and became the first harbingers of those larger coverings to which nowadays alone the word carpet is attached. The change from an open stagework to an enclosed "cupboard," in the modern sense, was a gradual one, and arose out of the pilfering tendencies of the servants of those days. "Almerics," or classets, were, therefore, places in the lower part of the staging, into which the food was placed. The cupboard then became a "gardeviance," and is frequently mentioned by old authors. After came the cellarette.

HOW ISLANDS WERE PEOPLED

Anthropologists Believe It Was as a Result of Involuntary Voyages Made by Savages.

Sixteen natives of the Pelew islands in the north Pacific made an involuntary canoe voyage to Formosa, which anthropologists find interesting. As reported, the voyage seems to add proof to a current theory of the manner in which the innumerable islands of Oceanica were settled by man.

Now, the Pelew islands lie east of the southern groups of the Philippines. Sixteen savages in three canoes with outriggers were fishing near one of the islands when a gale blew up and carried them out to sea. They had nothing to eat but fish. They were driven out for many days, some say sixty, in which time they probably traveled sixteen hundred miles in various directions, and at last sighted Formosa, an island of which they had never heard. Almost dead from exhaustion, they landed and were kindly treated by the natives of that island. When they were able to eat and had regained their strength they were sent to Hongkong, thence to the Caroline islands and from there home in a trading schooner. After more than three months' absence they were hailed by their friends as risen from the dead.

It is by such involuntary voyages, anthropologists think, that man was

The Thanksgiving Cranberry.

Probably very little is generally known as to the origin of the cranberry. Originally it grew wild, as, in fact, it does today in several of the Canadian border states, in the salt marshes of the coast states, in the glades of the Alleghanies and as far south as Virginia and the Carolinas. The wild cranberry, however, is distinctly inferior to its cultivated relative. Both grow on a small, hardy ance of the flower, which, just before expanding into perfection, bears a marked resemblance to the neck, head and bill of a crane. Hence the name "crane-berry," which has become "cranberry." Thanksgiving and the cranberry are one and inseparable. During the year the cranberry market is steady, but in the month of November the demand is phenomenal, over half of the year's crop being disposed of within 30 days. Over a million bushels are marketed each year in the United States.

Why "Pot-Luck?"

When an invitation is issued to "come and take pot-luck" it is understood that no special preparation is made for the invited guest. There was a time, however, when "pot-luck" meant dishing the food out of a pot and when the guest really took chances of getting a good meal or a very slim one. In the old days-and the practice is still in force in some parts of Europe-nothing came amiss to the family cooking pot, suspended from the pot-hook in the middle of the fireplace. Everything edible was thrown in it, and "to keep the pot boiling" the fire was seldom or ever allowed to go out. When meal time came everyone fished in the pot for himself and whatever he happened to find was "pot-luck."

Translucent Apple Green Is Best Jade. The best jade, according to Chinese connoisseurs, is the translucent apple green variety of even color and without arcs of murkiness. A short string of perfectly matched beads will retail for the unassuming little price of $10,-000 up. Though jade comes in the form of marble blocks sufficiently large to furnish raw material for several cemetery angels, a whole hillside may not supply enough of the flawless translucent variety for a pair of ear-

LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 12 ELISHA AND THE SHUNAMMITE WOMAN

LESSON TEXT-II Kings 4:8-37. GOLDEN TEXT—Verily, verily, I say unto you, the hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and they that hear shall live John 5.05

REFERENCE MATERIAL John 11:

PRIMARY TOPIC - Elisha Brings a Boy to Life. JUNIOR TOPIC-How Elisha Brought Boy to Life.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC

Elisha Helping in a Home.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC

Our Ministry of Comfort and Help.

1. The Shunammite's Hospitality to Elisha (vv. 8-11).

1. Its occasion (v. 8). A wealthy woman of Shunem, observing that Elisha passed continually by her house in his journeys, was moved with compassion toward him. She determined according to her ability to supply his needs.

2. Its nature (vv. 8-11). constrained him to eat bread" (vv. 8,-9). As a result of her earnest entreaty, as often as he passed by her house he turned in to eat bread. She received a prophet in the name of a prophet.

II. Elisha Endeavors to Repay Her

Kindness (vv. 12-17). 1. He offers to ask a favor from the king or head of the army (v, 13). This offer implies that Elisha had influence at the royal court. The woman's reply shows her truly to be a great woman. She did not desire to change the calm and quiet of her home for a place even in the royal court. Her answer also shows that her motive in extending generosity to the prophet was entirely unselfish, purely because he was God's prophet.

2. Elisha announces the giving of a son to her (vv. 16, 17). Through inquiry of Gehazi it was discovered that this woman was childless. So the prophet made known to her that in about a year from that time she should experience the joy of a mother. III. The Coming of Sorrow to the Shunammite's Home (vv. 18-21). The child which brought joy to her home was suddenly taken away. How many homes are like this! Scarcely do we begin to enjoy life until death enters and snatches away some loved one. The cause of his death was probably sunstroke, for the heat of the sun at harvest time in this country is very intense. When the boy complained of his head, the father sent him home to his mother. By noon the child died and the mother laid him upon the bed of the man of God. Faith prompted her to do this. She did not make preparation for burial, but for restoration to life (Heb. 11:35).

IV. The

(vv. 22-28). When one is in trouble or sorrow the best place to go is to the man of God who is able to give counsel and comfort. Happy is the one who in the days of prosperity and sunshine has so related himself to God and His prophets that he can have help and sympathy in time of trouble,

1. She took hold of Ellsha's feet (v. 27). This was the eastern way of enforcing a petition. She passed by Gehazi. She would not be content with the servant when the master could be reached. 2. She chided the prophet (v. 28). "Did I desire a son?" This implies that it would have been better not to have had a child than to have lost

V. The Child Restored (vv. 29-37). Gehazi's fruitless errand (vv. 29-31). He hurried away and placed the prophet's staff upon the child's face, but it did not revive. Perhaps the fault lay in Gehazi-his lack of faith. The woman seemed to perceive his lack; she would not trust him. She would not go until Elisha was willing to go along. This fruitless errand of Gehazi shows the worthlessness of the forms of religion when used by those who have no faith in them. 2. Elisha's efficient service (vv. 32-37). He went to the house where the dead child was. (1) He prayed (v. 33). He knew that no one but God could help, so he closed the door, shutting all others out. Our service to men should be preceded by prayer. (2) He stretched himself upon the child (v. 34). He brought his warm body into touch with the cold body of the child. God blesses and saves through the warm touch of those who are in touch with Him. After we pray We should get into actual touch with those dead in trespasses and sin. God's method of saving the world is through the ministry of saved men and

A Daily Prayer.

Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me; then shall I be upright, and I shall be innocent from the great transgression. Wickedness As a Fire. Wickedness burneth as a fire; it

_ THE ---CHRISTIANENDEAVOR TOPIC

--- From --Moody Bible Institute Monthly Chicago, Ill.

> February 12 Better Purposes Numbers 14:20-24

The incident of which these five verses form a part is full of instruction for Christian young people. Two different purposes find expression in two different utterances. The one is seen in "let us go up and possess the land," 13:30, and the other, "let us go back to Egypt," 14:4. There is no difficulty in discerning which is the better of these two purposes. The instructive factor lies in the cause which gave rise to these diverse purposes. The policy of going forward was advocated by Caleb and Joshua, and was based on a real faith in the living God, as clearly seen in the words, "The Lord is with us" (14:9). The logical conclusion of this is-if God be with us, who can be against us?

The other proposition—to return to Egypt-was the product of dis-The men who made it saw the difficulties of going forward and the power of the enemy already in possession of the land, but they did not see God clearly; they did not count on the working of his mighty power. Their vision was distorted. They saw God through their difficulties, in stead of seeing their difficulties through God. This makes a great difference in our willingness and ability to undertake and achieve. As McCheyne once wrote in his diary: "Lord, when Thou art near discouragements vanish; when Thou art away, anything is a discouragement.

The lesson is summed up in a New Testament verse: "We walk by faith, not by sight." In the energy of faith Joshua and Caleb formed the better purpose, which brought its own re-ward. The Christian life is a life of faith. We receive Christ Jesus, the Lord, by faith (John 1:12); we walk by faith (2 Cor. 5:7); we live by faith (Gal. 2:20). We fight the good fight of faith (1 Tim. 6:12), and "this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith" (1 John 5:4).

A Judicious Inquiry.

A well known traveling man who visits the drug trade, saye he has often heard druggists ask a customer, who wished to buy a cough medicine, whether it was for a child or an adult and if for a child, they almost invariably recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The reason for this is that they know there is no danger from it and that it always cures. There is not the least danger in giving it and for colds, croup and whooping cough it is unsurpassed. He Was Stumped.

Back in an inland town in Illinois in the early days there was a justice of the peace who was very nearsighted. One sumer day he made out some subpoenas to be served on witnesses, and dozed off. A fly lit in his inkwell, extracted itself after some difficulty, and

The constable, who was something of a practical joker, picked up the paper, and pointing to the fly tracks, said: "Judge, what is that name?"

The judge held the paper close to his eves and squinted at it for a few minutes. Then scratching his head in perplexity, he answered:

"Looks like my handwriting, all right, but darned if I can make out the name."-Wall Street Journal.

The Lure of Office.

"Senator Snortsworthy says the greatest hardship of public life is the fact that it keeps him away from his home town and his old friends."

"Maybe so, but I notice when election time draws near the senator acts like a man who would be glad to make the separation permanent."-Birmingham Age-Herald.

The Rider. "In speaking of this bill before congress you mention a 'rider.' What is "A rider," replied Senator Sorghum, "is usually like the postscript to a woman's letter-apparently an afterthought, but in reality the most important part of the communication."

Something to Think About By F. A. WALKER

MEN'S WEDDING RINGS.

THE Brooklyn Eagle, which reports I most things accurately and well, published the news that in its city the use of wedding rings for men is gaining rapidly in popularity. This is interesting and important if it means that men are coming to take the marriage ceremony and its vows more seriously and that the divorce rate is as a consequence to cease in its upward trend.

The wedding ring is a relic of savagery. It is probably a descendant of the metal bracelet and chain by which the earlier tribes of men assured themselves that their spouses would not wander away from the house domicile while the master of the house was away hunting.

Some more engaging wife, having convinced her husband of unquestionable fidelity, was rewarded by having the bracelet replaced by the ring and the chain done away with altogether.

The ring by itself showed that she was married. The absence of the chain said, "Here is an exceptionally fine wife." That flattered and pleased both parties.

But if the modern woman is expected to wear a wedding ring and advertise her married position, what good reason is there why the husband should not be marked in an equally prominent manner and his limitations of freedom equally advertised?

An old custom of the marriage ceremony consisted of putting the wedding ring first on the thumb, then on the first finger, then on the second, speaking the names of the Trinity as the ceremony proceeded, and, finally, when it rested on the third finger, it was supposed to signify that next to her duties to God the wife recognized her duties to her husband.

Of course, it ought not to require a ring or any other form of emblem to make a man or a woman hold sacred the vows of the altar. If a thin band of gold or platinum is all that restrains either one of them from wandering, then the divorce court is not very far away.

To most women the wedding ring is a very sacred thing. It is the last thing that goes to the pawnshop when adversity demands its toll. Just how much it means to the men, who in accordance with the new custom will wear it, is a question that only a test will settle.

The question of divorce in this country is fast getting to be of such dimensions as to demand serious corrective attention.

In twenty years the number of divorces granted annually has increased from about 60,000 to 133,000 with a total in the twenty years of nearly two millions.

In Nevada there are almost as many divorces as there are marriages, but, since Nevada has been the resort of many citizens from other states seeking freedom from marital ties, it may be fairer to point to Oregon which has only two and a half times as many marriages as divorces.

In six counties in four states the record shows 50 per cent more divorces than marriages.

The innocent parties to these disagreements are the children and in the past 20 years more than 1,300,000 sons and daughters of disagreeing parents have been involved in the court proceedings which followed the desire for separation.

In many states it has come to be easier to get divorced than it is to get married. Scarcely two states have divorce laws alike, and what is illegal in one state becomes perfectly all right so far as the statutes go the minute the imaginary line between it and another commonwealth is crossed.

Perhaps the custom of wedding cings for men will have a good effect on the bad record recited above.

Perhaps, on the other hand, the men will wear their badges of matrimony in their vest pockets whenever they think a more conspicuous display will interfere with an evening a little gayer than they would have at home.

But whatever means is necessary for the correction of present conditions should be determined and put into Marriage should be made less of a farce and divorce less of a joke than present records show both to be.

The marriage relation is an important part of our civilization. It merits more attention and more perfection than it is at present receiving. (Copyright.)

Rulers and People of Ball, Near Sumatra, Extremely Fond of Gorgeous Display.

If you search on a map of Malaysia long enough you will find the Sunda islands. They are located to the south and west of Sumatra, and, like Sumatra and Java, and other isles near by, are under the rule of Holland. Perhaps if you have a large map you may be able to discover a tiny speck, attached to which will be the name "Bali.

The island of Ball is about 2,300 square miles in area, and is a most picturesque isle. Long ago it was onquered by hosts from India.

Although the Dutch rule Bali, and a Hollander sits at the table about which a Balinese raja gathers his chiefs to make laws, the iron hand is light in Bali. Indeed, a Bali overord is permitted many wives, many dancing girls, many houses and as much pomp and gorgeous display of his high estate as his most regal ancestor ever contrived to show. Feudal ule in all its magnificence—but minus much of its impressiveness-is to be seen at its best or worst in Bali today.

Some of the Balinese, particularly the farmers, are virtually serfs. But they manage to live better, perhaps, than their brothers on the mainland of India. One reason, may be, is that the caste system is not so oppressive in Bali as it is in India.

The ears of the Balinese maiden are pierced when she is a baby. When she grows up, into the lobe of her ear s thrust a cylinder of bone. When a Balinese girl becomes a wife the bone cylinders give place to cylinders of silver or gold. IS A DEADLY DRUG Powerful Opiate Popular With South African Natives.

Produces Exquisite Feeling of Supreme Content and Happiness, but Leaves Victim a Wreck.

It is not only among war-wearied people in big cities that drug taking is prevalent.

The natives of South Africa cultivate-surreptitiously, because there is a huge fine if the authorities find them out-a herb called dagga.

Dagga in Africa is what optum is to China. It is smoked—but smoked in a strange way—and the native smokes it only in the very early dawn or very late at night, when he can do it secretly.

He scoops a hole out of the hard ground three to four inches deep by three inches wide. A foot or so away from this he scoops another hole, and he then bores a small channel underground from one to the other. There s thus a free air passage connecting the two little excavations.

He places some dried dagga leaves in the first hole, lights them and covers them over with moist clay. He pierces this clay with a sharpened piece of wood to allow a draught to go through. Into the other hole he inserts a small hollow reed-this is the pipe stemsqueezes moist clay round it, and on his knees begins his smoke. A cup of water is at his side, and after each "draw" he cleverly lets a mouthful of water in without letting any smoke escape. Then in some marvelous manner he ejects the water in a long thin stream and the smoke slowly follows.

Bending tow over the reed and sitting back on his heels, this is repeated time and time again.

His eyes stream with tears and soon get very bloodshot and swollen. He becomes excited; he feels elated, buoyed up in some wonderful way. All his cares and troubles are forgotten, and in their place has come an exquisite feeling of supreme content and happiness. He begins to talk, and the occupants of his kraal hear great tales, tales of daring deeds of his youth-told with much demonstration and wild enthusiasm. Tales of his early fightstales of battles and of victories-always of victories. Tales of great horsemanship—and wonderful journeys—of old forests and young love.

But the influence of the dagga dies out. The native's eyes are screwed up small, his head aches, his limbs and face become inert, and in a short while he is just a huddled mass of heavy sleep.

His joy in life has lasted just about an hour, and in the dim dawn he awakens feeling a fearful "wreck." But he believes in "a hair of the dog that bit him," and so-another pipe before work.

TWAIN FOND OF BILLIARDS

Biographer Has Told How Great Humorist Would Wear Out His Companions at the Game.

November 30 is Mark Twain's birthday. The beloved humorist would have been eighty-six on that day in 1921, if he had lived. His biographer, Albert Bigelow Paine, in writing of Mark Twain's passion for playing billiards, a hobby which endured to the last, comments upon his great physical endurance and perpetual youth.

"I was comparatively a young man, and by no means an invalid," Mr. Paine writes, "but many a time far in the night, when I was ready to drop with exhaustion, he was still as fresh and buoyant and eager for the game as at the moment of beginning. He smoked and smoked continually, and followed the endless track around the billiard table with the light step of youth. At three or four o'clock in the morning he would urge just one more game, and would taunt me for my weari-

"I can truthfully testify that never until the last year of his life did he willingly lay down the billiard cue, or show the least suggestion of fatigue. He played always at high pressure. Now and then, in periods of adversity, he would fly into a perfect passion with things in general. But, in the end, it was a sham battle, and we went on playing as if nothing had happened, only he was very gentle and sweet, like the sun on the meadows after the storm had passed by."

WITTY EVEN IN DREAMLAND

Rev. Washington Gladden Was Able to Recall Humorous Response He Made During Sleep.

Many of us have dreamed of writing a poem, delivering a speech or making a witty remark, that seemed at the time wonderfully brilliant, but that, recalled on waking, proved to be either commonplace or wholly meaningless. That is not always the case, however, as a story once told by the Rev. Washington Gladden proves.

He dreamed that the old house that formerly stood near his church was still there, and that old Mr. Deshler, who had been dead many years, still lived in it. Doctor Gladden also knew that his old dog, George, who never failed to bark at the minister when he passed the house, still lived. In the dream Doctor Gladden was passing the house when the door opened and the old gentleman came out, followed by George, who, as usual, rushed barking up to Doctor Gladden.

"Now, now, George," said the old man, "you ought not to do that. You know that's a friend of ours; that's Doctor Gladden."

"Oh! I have met George before," responded Doctor Gladden in his dream. "In fact George and I have for some time had a bow-wowing acquaintance."-Milwaukee Sentinel.

Farms Supply Wild Life Loss.

According to figures supplied by the Dominion bureau of statistics, losses to the fur industry of Canada caused by the spread of civilization in the North are more than made up by rapid development of the fur farm ing industry.

In 1920 there were 587 fur farms in Canada, 578 of them foxes, six mink, two raccoon and one karakule sheep. The animals on these farms are valued at a little less than $5,-000,000, silver foxes leading.

The industry commenced on Prince Edward island and has worked west into British Columbia. By provinces the farms are distributed as follows: Prince Edward Island, 809; Nova Scotia, 55; New Brunswick, 57; Quebec, 80; Ontario, 42; Manitoba and Saskatchewan, 4; Alberta, 15; British Columbia, 11 and Yukon Territory, 14.

Life as I See It.

From our prehistoric ancestors down man has always had a friendly feeling for trees, regarding them as almost sentient beings.

Great writers have not disdained to express this feeling. Robert Louis Stevenson says: "He inquired his way of every tree." And again, after an unpleasant encounter with a boor: "A tree would not have spoken to me like that."-Louisville Courier-Journal.

Mother!

This time of the year many people go to sales and pay as much or more for old Furniture than we ask for fine new Furniture, then there is another class of people who must buy everything they need away from home-to patronize a local dealer would help their town and oftimes the same goods could be purchased for less right at home. The habit of running to other towns to make your purchases makes it just that much more difficult for your local dealers to give you ser-
