ADVICE GIVEN MARYLAND FARMERS

Limiting Production Would be a Mistake in this State.

H. J. Patterson, Superintendent of the Experiment Station, University of Maryland has issued a report to Maryland farmers, in which he urges a number of essentials in regaining normal levels.

Dr. Patterson points to what he terms four cardinal factors in the farmers' program for 1922. They are economy in production, economy in marketing, economy in expenditures and economy in government and public instithtions. Economy in the cost of production of farm crops, he as-serts, may be accomplished by ob-serving the following factors; by using better seed; by using better fertilizer and cultural methods; by using better animals and giving them better care and by making labor more efficient and using labor-saving machinery.

Maryland farmers, the report says, must ever keep before the public the fact that agriculture represents the greatest natural and undeveloped resources the State possesses, and that the real greatness of the State depends upon its development, as necessity and opportunity demands. It is practically desirable to develop the branches of agriculture which contribute food for human consumption, for which Maryland's position with reference to markets her soils with reference to markets, her soils and climate are so well suited.

The production of fruits, garden crops, dairy products, hogs, sheep and poultry are worthy of much attention. The economic conditions which have existed during the last two years have seriously affected agriculture and the industries, and it is very nec-essary to adopt a policy of economy, industry and thrift in order to regain our equilibrium and begin a new march of progress-

In this program the farmers themselves must be the great steadying force. The Maryland farmers would seem to be more fortunate than those in many other sections at present, as the indications are that the tide has changed, and if so, they must prepare to take advantage of their position and exert their influence and diligence for the benefit of themselves and the country.

The great depression in the prices for farm crops the past two years has been very discouraging to farmers and has frequently brought out the suggestion that the only remedy lay in limiting production. The adoption of this as a general policy and rule would not be warranted in a State so favorably situated as is Maryland.

Production should be confined to lands suitable for a given crop, and this policy would reduce the production and cut out the extra areas stimulated by war prices.

Bad Auto Accident at Sykesville.

Washington in Miss Anna Galt's ern apples has awakened the Eastern closed auto. The car was practically demolished, and all of the occupants injured, fortunately not seriously.

There was no light at the crossing, and there was no flagman. Mr. Frealing was considerably cut about the head and required surgical attention, and was otherwise injured. The ladies were both slightly hurt, and all Were sent home, later, by the B. & O. answer. Company. The auto was insured against accident. Unquestionably, all had a narrow escape from death, due to an unprotected grade crossing.

Sykesville has an electric alarm bell, which is said to have been out of working order, and several bystanders noted the absence of its giving an alarm at the time of the collision. All of the occupants of the car were pleased with the kindness they received at the hands of Dr. Sprecher, and others.

Rev. and Mrs. Cattanach Burned Out.

The Presbyterian manse, Govans, Md., tenanted by Rev. and Mrs. Jas. Cattanach, formerly of Taneytown, and by Rev. Dr. George Scholl, Mrs. Cattanach's father, was destroyed by fire last Friday morning, with most of its contents. The fire is supposed to have been due to a defective flue.

Dr. Scholl, narrowly escaped death on acount of going to his room to secure a lot of valuables thinking the fire not so serious, and found himself cut off from the stairway when ready to return. He was rescued by several men with ladders. Mrs. Cattanach was prostrated by the occurrence. Rev. Cattanach estimates his loss at from $4000. to $5000. Dr. Scholl had insurance of $1000. A large number of valauble books, china and other belongings were burned, while the family silver and some articles of furniture were saved. Mrs. Scholl lost a handsome fur coat.

THE BOND ISSUE BILL. Details Will be Published as Soon as Copy is Received.

A bill for a bond issue of $700,000 for Carroll county was introduced on Thursday by Senator Snader. One-half Unfavorable Report Overcome, and the amount is to be used for improved roads and one-half to build new school houses, which are specified in the bill. We have had information that the bill may not be equitably drawn, that some of the larger districts in the county may not be alloted their proper pro-portion of the issue, etc.

The Record has been promised a copy of the bill as soon as it is available, and we hope to have it in time for our tax-payer readers to give it a good looking over. While the bill will be subject to a referendum, it is to be hoped that all districts will be fairly treated, in order that the vote may be taken on the merits of the whole proposition.

When Washington Visited Taneytown

The Hanover Record, this week, contains a number of interesting sketches taken from a diary of sketches taken from a diary of George Washington, in which he mentions having journed through this section, passing over the road now up section, passing over the road now up improvement—the improvement—the for permanent improvement—the road from Taneytown to Littlestown.

Some of the entries are as follows; "Being desirous of seeing the nature of the country north of George-town and along the upper road, I resolved to pass through Frederick, Md., York and Lancaster, in Penn-sylvania, to Philadelphia."

At another place in his diary he states: "I was accompanied by my private secretary, Major Jackson. My equipment and attendants consisted of a chariot and four horses, driven in hand, a light baggage wagon and two horses, four saddle horses, besides a led one for myself, and five persons, namely, my Valet de Chambre, two footmen, coachmen and postillion."

Washington arrived at Frederick at 7:25 P. M., June 30, and left the next morning and lodged for the night at Taneytown. On July 2, he left Taneytown and passed through Littlestown. In his diary Washington says: "Being desirous of seeing the condition of the country, much of which was cleared and covered with growing crops of wheat and corn, I rode Judge Wagaman After Bootleggers.

Judge Wagaman, in the Washington County Court, on Tuesday spec ially instructed the Grand Jury as to the extent of the bold defiance of the prohibition law, and stated that it was full time to handle such violations severely, to the full extent of the law; and to indict all directly or indirectly engaged in the business, as the majesty of the law must be up-

During the course of his address to the grand jury, he pointed out that only six indictments for violations of the law in regard to the sale of intoxicating liquor had been returned and pointed out the fact that a great number of the offenders were escaping punishment.

all Amendments Passed.

The prohibition enforcement act came up as the special order of bus-iness, in the House, on Thursday. Gambrill, the Democratic floor leader, early in the debate, took the lead for the "wets" but voted for the sub-stitution of the bill for the unfavorable report of the committee, a motion that passed 64 to 41. The only woman member, Miss Risteau, voted "no," thereby disproving one of the chief arguments in favor of woman suffrage.

Miss Risteau, in an article in The Baltimore News, explained her vote by saying that she is in favor of "temperance in all things" but that she considers this bill "too drastic;" besides, she claims that the Anti-Saloon League was unfair to her in the primaries, "because she was a wo-man." She says she would have suprepresentative Hall, of Baltimore, and Wolfinger, Republican leader. At 2 o'clock Mr. Gambrill moved to take a recess until 3:15, but the motion was lost 51 to 54. The motion to move the previous question then prevailed, 57 to 48. The first amendment, offered by the "drys" was then passed 64 to 41. The second, or "cider" amendment, over which the main fight occurred, was debated at length, during which an appeal was made, ap-parently in the interest of "farmers" in order to keep them from being "criminals" on account of making cider, but this amendment too, was passed, 58 to 47 and the House recessed until 4 o'clock.

"wet" shouters were present in full force, and added greatly to the confusion of the debate, which largely centred around the eloquent Gambrill, who, according to the Baltimore papers, must have made about the only remarks worth reporting.
On reassembling, the "drys" passed

WESTMINSTER PUPILS REBEL. Ruling of Board of Education to be Tested in Court.

A petition for a writ of mandamus has been filed by Theodore F. Brown and Bond & Parke, in the name of John N. Weigle, petitioner, asking the Court to order the restoration of his son Edgar to school privileges.

The petition alleges that the Board of Education, on February 1, passed a resolution demanding from each pupil a guarantee fee to safeguard the care and use of typewriters in the commercial department; the machines to be inspected at the end of the school year, and pro rata charge for repairs to be made against this fund and the balance refunded; the fee for the remainder of this school year to

The petition further alleges that this action was communicated to the students by Edward C. Seitz, principal, and again by Maurice H. Unger, superintendent of education, who informed them that this fee must be paid by Friday, February 17, or the defaulting pupil would be expelled or dismissed from the high school.

There are 45 students in this department. In a body they at first re-fused to pay. Later, all but 17 paid the sum demanded. On Friday last the 17 were dismissed. On Monday morning, however, they presented themselves in their classes, but were ordered to leave. Weigle demanded that the reason for the dismissal be put in writing, and Mr. Seitz sent him the fallowing letter:

Dear Sir—Your son Edgar has been dismissed from school because of failure to pay $2.50 caution money for use of typewrit-ers. This is an order of the Board of Education of Febru-ary 1, 1922.

E. C. SEITZ, Principal. The petition for manadamus charges that the action of the Board of Education is "illegal, unlawful and unreasonable and calculated to work irreparable injury and loss" to young Weigle and the others who were dismissed, depriving them of their right of a free education, their certificates of graduation and impairing their standing and character elsewhere it they are either deprived or unduly postponed of the benefits of their commercial course.

Just One Thing After Another.

Just as we get to thinking that at last there will be a reduction in the cost of government; and we begin to have pleasurable anticipation of reduced taxes, along comes something new to take all the money we expect to save, and then some. SENATOR FRANCE OPPOSES BONUS NOW

Must Await Restoration of the Business of the World.

In a speech in the Senate on Wednesday, Senator France said, in part: The men who made up the invinci-ble armies of the Republic were not animated by mercenary motives when they responded to the call of country and offered to place upon the altar of the Republic all that they held most precious, even life. They have not been and they are not now mercenary. When they returned from war they only asked that their disabled and diseased ones should be tenderly and generously cared for by a grateful Republic, and that those who were able might find opportunity for useful and profitable employment in which they may further serve their country and the world. We did not at once provide adequate care and compensation for the afflicted ones, and we did not adopt the measures which would have averted the economic conditions which have caused millions to be unemployed. Now a onsiderable number of our ex-service men ask for a bonus to help them in their plight caused by the economic conditions in the country and in the world.

Before it would be safe to adopt any bonus plan we must take steps to relieve the agricultural, industrial and financial depression from which we are now so sorely suffering.

Unless some way can be found to liquidate Europe's debt to us, so Europe can buy from us, our business can not revive, the exchange situation can not be cured, the budgets of European countries can not be brought to balance, and the shortage of food raw products, and manufactured goods in Europe will cause acute distress, disturbanes, and a further disintegration of the social and economic structure of the world.

Few seem to realize that a world wide shortage of food is emminent if we do not restore the vigorous flow of commodities in the arteries of international commerce. Note the alarming facts that in 1910 Russia exported to the world over 225 millions of bushels of grain, enough to supply with bread for a year 45 millions of people in the industrial countries. In 1913 Russia exported 122 millions, in the mandamus should not issue.

The answer to the petition will not be filed until the board and its counbe filed until th and because of the demoralizing prices lions of Germans are suffering, slow starvation, and there is under nourishment or starvation in other lands. to serious disturbances unless Germany can import food.

It would be perilous for us now to undertake to pay three to five billions of dollars as a cash bonus to our nesday, March 1. Guests will assemble in front of The Times build-which is preventing the production semble in front of The Times building, Westminster, at 10 A. M., for and the international circulation of commodities, and world reconstruction is cured.

I would have the President call an international conference and propose this plan to liquidate the debts, add to our resources, increase the total income of the world, and extend under the leadership of America the great The Stockholders of The Carroll missionary nation, the boundaries of civilization. The German indemnity should be fixed at about 15 billions of dollars, and on this Germany must be given credit of 3 to 5 billion dollars for the former German cables and colonies transferred by Germany to the allied powers, and these powers should then transfer these cables and colonies, to the United States in payment of their debts, and then there should be adopted a great international plan under which the nations would co-operate for the better organization, education, evangelization, and civilization of the peoples of the yet dark continent of Africa.

With the liquidation of the debts in this manner prosperity would return, and the bonus and other problems could be solved in such a way as to advance the interest of all Americans. Certainly the payment of the bonus could be delayed until this plan could be considered.

About 16 acres of land, seven dwel-lings and other equipment were included in the sale.

FOR BETTER R. D. SERVICE. Patrons asked to Co-operate in Every Way Possible.

The Postoffice Department has asked weekly papers to publish the following article, in order that the Rural Delivery service of the country may be improved;

"By direction of the Postoffice Department, postmasters throughout the partment, postmasters throughout the country have recently made an inspection of the rural routes from their offices. The purpose was that they might ascertain by personal observation and make report whether the roads used were in good condition for travel, the routes well arranged, boxes properly erected, so as to be easily reached by the carriers without difficulty and without obstructing travel, the carriers serving their routes as officially prescribed, the schedule observed, and whether the families served were satisfied with the service rendered, or there were improvements which could be suggested in the interest of the patrons or the Department. It became necessary, in connection with the inspections, to request many patrons to take action to the end that their boxes might conform with the regulations as to kind, condition, location, or height, and in having the name of the owner plainly printed on them. Also, to bring to the attention of road overseers or other responsible persons the need for improvement in roads or repair or construction of culverts or bridges. It is the desire of the Department and its purpose, to provide adequate and convenient service, so far as may be possible, to all persons residing in rural communities, but this end can not be attained without the full cooperation of the patrons in the efforts of postmasters and carriers to serve them promptly, regularly and satis-

Election of School Officials Defeated -this Time.

House Bill No. 267, presented by representative Peters of Allegany county, that provided for the election, instead of appointment, of County Boards of Education, was defeated last Friday. This was to be expected, as such an inroad on the appointing power of the Governor, can not so easily be materialized into law. The argument used against the bill was that it originated in Allegany, a strong Republican county, and was merely aimed to replace Democratic, with Republican, officials-a sort of local matter.

There is greatly more to such a bill than this; but, the people must first tell the Governor, and all Governors to be, that they demand this power and authority-this extension of governmental democracy. The Peters bill was merely a start, and the mistake was made of attempting to put such a bill through without first getting the arguments and facts before the whole people of the state, far outside of Allegany county, and its Republicanism.

The Record has at various times, editorially called attention to the fact that the Maryland school systemthat provides by law for the appointment by the Governor of our School Boards, and the selection by these Boards of all subordinates who administer the affairs of our public schools-removes the citizens and taxpayers of the state from having any direct influence in conducting our public educational system, or of controlling expenditures and that this is in direct conflict with the method of administering any other important state or county institution.

This is the "Maryland plan," and it is one that has not demonstrated itself to be superior to that of other states wherein school officials are elected by the people; in fact, by comparison with many other states, the schools of Maryland take lower rank. This being true, then why should not the taxpayers have the same voice in school matters, as they have in any other expenditures in a county, with the privilege of electing those whose duty it is to contract debts and cause tax levies, and make such officials directly responsible to the people for the vast sums of money spent by

We give below ,a portion of the letter accompanying the bill, containing argument in its favor, and commend it to the careful study and judgment of our readers. It is a coming, issue, and one which eventually must enlist the active interest of citizen taxpayers everywhere.

To the Members of the Legislature of Md: "The right of the people to elect various school officials is exercised in all the surrounding states and in general throughout the United States, but is refused to the people of Maryland who have no vote in the selecting of a single school official. The governor appoints the state board and it appoints the state superintendent. The governor appoints the county boards and they appoint the county superintendents and district school trustees. The people who pay the taxes to support the schools and who must bear the consequences of their management, have not a word to say as to who shall be entrusted with the educational welfare of their children, what shall be done in the schools, or how the money shall be spent.

How different in the surrounding states! In Pennsylvania, the people elect all school districts having less than 500,000 population. In Delaware, the people elect county boards of educaion and boards of school trustees. In Virginia, the people elect the state superintendent and have a vote on certain educational matters referred to them. In West Virginia the neople elect the state superintendent county superintendent, and district boards of education. In Ohio the near the cities villages and minel districts Para in Manufand when the county unit school and the ad ucational welfare of the people's children is in charge of the members of the county school boards whom the people may neither choose nor re-move, and who are appointed by the governor for the lengthy term of six years. Can the governor know the school conditions, needs and desires of the people in all the various counties of the state as well as the people themselves do? Moreover, the governor lacking personal knowledge of whom the mass of people may want on their school boards, is under the constant temptation to listen to the solicitation and recommendations of

We do not believe that the people of Maryland are so lacking in intelligence that they should have no voice in the management of school affairs, the people of other states have.

We do believe that the people who own the public schools, who provide the millions of dollars yearly for their support, and the interest of whose children are vitally involved, should rightfully participate in the management of their schools, and that the lack of such participation largely ac-counts for Maryland's low rank edu-

In support of the principle that the public schools should be under lay or popular control secured by the elecion of school boards by direct vote of the people, we call your attention to the report of the committee on resolutions at the last meeting of the National Educational Association, the most representative and greatest authority on educational matters in the United States, which says:

"We recognize the distinction be tween lay control of education and the professional administration of our schools. We believe that the highest type of professional service in the offices of state superintendents, of county superintendents, and of city superintendents of schools can be secured by the selection of all such administrative officers by lay boards of education elected by the people.

The foregoing report was signed by Chairman George D. Strayer, who is one of the highest authorities school administration in the United States. The report was signed also by a representative educator each state in the Union, and included the signatures of nineteen superintendents of schools."

The Value of a Lie.

Last week, a New York society woman saved $50,000 worth of jewelry, and in addition caused a burglar's arrest. According to the story, the burglar was making away with a lot of jewelry in this woman's bedroom, when she awoke and told the burglar he was "welcome," as the jewelry was "five and ten cent store stuff, bought for a masque ball, and not worth fifty cents." The burglar believing the woman, said "Then, I don't want it," climbed back out of the window, and a few minutes later was arrested by the police, on information from the aforesaid woman. This woman lied, if reported correctly. The account says "Woman's wit, played a trick," which is a more erudite way of putting it; and possibly, as this was a "society woman," the reporter used regulation language applying to such cases.

Now, we do not insist on the word "lied," but the case raises a point. Is it "wit" and a mere "trick," to save $50,000 worth of jewelry, by at least not telling the truth, while for a lesser sum involved, it would be a "lie" to do so? In other words, is it justifiable to "lie," under certain conditions, and especially to prevent a burglar from getting away with valuable loot? If the answer is "yes," then, just where should the line be drawn?

Here is a clear case of a lie—the word slips in-to save $50,000, and the large amount complicates matters. If the jewelry involved had been worth, say only $50.00, the likelihood is that the woman would have kept her head under the bed covers and left the burglar get away easy. The value wouldn't have been worth the risk of the "trick."

So, if we say that with $50,000 involved the lie was justifiable, why not make the same claim in all cases involving valuable properties, or questions of momentous importance to individuals? And if we take this view of justification, would there really be any limits left, when their determining, as to justification, be left to each individual?

Lies are often told in order to try to save something of value to the teller. Sometimes they are merely vindictive-an effort to injure somebody else. In other cases, they may be told merely because the truth would be inconvenient. How are they to be graded as to their justification, and is there such thing as a justifiable lie?

A Judicious Inquiry.

A well known traveling man who visits the drug trade, saye he has often heard druggists ask a customer, who wished to buy a cough medicine, whether it was for a child or an adult and if for a child, they almost invarrecommend Chamberlain's ough Remedy. The reason for this s that they know there is no danger rom it and that it always cures.

There is not the least danger in giving and for colds, crown and whooping Cost of the Courage of Conviction.

President Harding is now getting the blame that attaches to the loss of jobs by thousands who have been working in Navy Yards, or who were otherwise necessary to the maintenance of a big Navy. The Peace Conference was an "administration" movement, and the head must stand the blunts.

He also now stands especially in a bad position with the Boston Navy his political friends in making such yard, and presumably with Senator Lodge, because this particular yard will lose a big job in hand that is now to be left to contract, instead of being finished in the Boston yard-and Senator Lodge comes up for re-election this year.

The Soldiers' Bonus affair is quite apt to fall on the shoulders of the President, should it not come out to please the soldiers. These are not new situations. There is usually a penalty attached for following right paths, or those seeming to be right. No man can avoid making enemies, if he has anything important in a public way, to do; but, it sometimes happens-and it was a battle cry in President Cleveland's case—that a man is loved all the more for the enemies he makes.

The fact is, if a President should trim his actions so as never to make enemies, he would never do anything, but would be a "trimmer," or "dodger" not fit to hold office. The courage of conviction is necessary in a large degree in the make-up of any executive, great or small, and it is out of the results of these convictions, largely, that public sentiment finds its cue for

They Appeal to Our Sympathies.

The bilious and dyspeptic are constant sufferers and appeal to our sympathies. Many such, however, have been completely restored to health by the use of Chamberlain's Tablets. These tablets strengthen the stomach, invigorate the liver and improve the digestion. They also cause a gentle movement of the bowels. When you have any trouble with your stomach, give them a trial. -Advertisemen

Wanted! Mcre Things to Tax.

Both National and state legislatures are striving hard to find more things to tax, that can't escape, and are not already taxed to the bearable limit. The difficulty has been for some time, to make taxable property hold still and submit to heavier loads; and also to the fact that both National and State governments are taxing the same items.

So greatly have we become enamored of the plan of getting improvements, then issuing bonds, or levying higher taxes, with which to pay for them, that the practice has apparently about reached the limit, and we have either to accept less of what we want, or pay the bills with the Economy in expenditures is a disagreeable expedient. Nobody wants to do that, yet nobody wants to pay the bills; so, putting it on the "other fellow" has been a game so extensively praticed, until now the "other fellow" is hard to find.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy Aids Nature.

Medicines that aid nature are always most effectual Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It allays the cough, relieves the lungs, aids expectoration, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Thousands have testified to its good qualities. Try it when you have a cough or cold.

-Advertisement The Bonding Mania.

One of the worst curses to the taxpayer is the mania for bonding for public improvements, whether needed

Newspapers in reporting the bids received for municipal bonds boast of the good credit of the place issuing them, pointing to the premium paid by the syndicate awarded the issue. Such a permium is proof that the bonds bear too high a rate of interest. When put on the market by the broker he quotes them at a higher premium and exacts the accrued interest. That is, a bond bearing six per-cent will cost the real investor from four to six per-cent premium. Thus the municipality pays a rate one per-cent higher than the real investor realizes as interest. The broker pockets a profit of one per-cent. less the insignificant premium the papers boast of as showing the high standing of the city. It is as unwise for a political unit to run into debt as it is for an individual to do so .- The Dearborn In-

The Rooster Crows

Yes, but who pays any attention to his crowing? We all know it is nothing but a bluff. But when the old hen cackles she is telling the wrold that she has accomplished something.

In other words, she is advertising. There is a difference between crowing and advertising. In the case of the fowls, the difference was an egg. Our bank advertises, but we try to avoid crowing. When we speak of the real accomplishments of our bank we are not crowing, we are advertising-cackling if you please. And we have a cackle coming, don't forget that. "We deliver the goods."

BLUE RIDGE COLLEGE.

On Feb. 11 the Blue Ridge College basket ball squad journeyed to Chestertown, and lost one of the most thrilling games of the season to Washington College, by the score of 29-28. As the score indicates, the relative strength of the teams was the same and at the end of the first half B. R. C. was in the lead. However, the score was tied in the last four minutes of the game and in the last 30 seconds of play the referee called a foul on Blue Ridge, which Washington successfully caged.

The last number of the Lyceum Male Quartet These performers fully justified themselves as having a "national" reputation. The vocal selections presented were of the highest type, and marked a fitting close to what has been one of the most successful lecture courses in the history of Blue Ridge. The success is attri-buted to the fact that neither effort nor money was spared in securing the best talent in the country.

One of the big events in the near future is the intercollegiate debate of between Blue Ridge and Washington Md. College, at New Windsor, Friday evening, March 3, at 8 P. M. The question is, "Resolved: That the principle of the open shop should be established in American Industries." This is one of the most live and vital questions of the day, the issues of which concern the very foundation of our modern labor conditions. Washington College will uphold the affirmative side, while Blue Ridge will champion the negative.

On February 20 and 21, Blue Ridge was visited by Miss Minneva Neher, who is the traveling Secretary of the United Student Volunteers of the Church of the Brethren Miss Neher addressed the stndent body in Chapel service two mornings Both of her addresses were highly instructive and inspirational. The Maryland and Delaware Student Volunteer Conference, held in the Mt. Vernon Place M. E. Church, in Baltimore, over the week-end of February 17-20, was a big ssccess. Over one hundred delegates representing the various organizations in Maryland and Delaware were present-Blue Ridge was among the foremost, with seventeen representatives, which was the largest delegation present from one school.

White Men in South Africa Hardly Recompensed by Appellation of Brave and Noble Indunas.

Their adventure in Swaziland is told by a doctor who just returned from a ten years' sojourn there and who, with two other white men, was made sub-chief in the Swazi tribe of South Africa negroes. The white men were not eager for the experience, inducement, the rule requiring that ficatory exile from human society, in native dress, with only native weapons, depending upon their skill in the use of these for food. The doctor told with considerable feeling how they were stripped by the leading medicine man of every shred of clothing. given Swazi warrior costumes and conducted into the hills. They were bitten by insects, scratched by thorns, frozen at night, scorched by day, their bare feet bruised and abraded until they were in agony, kept in constant fear of the many poisonous snakesbut, most of all, hungry. In spite of L'Tunga's tutoring in native methods of taking game, the white men, used to depending upon the rifle for such purposes, nearly starved. However, when the chief medicine man and his assistants came to conduct them back to the kraal of the queen, the famished, dirty, desperate looking white men, with ten days' growth of beard, were acclaimed brave and noble indunas.

Hibernating Fishes.

Cold weather has a marked effect on some of the fresh water fish at the aquarium of the New York Zoological society. When the temperature of the fresh water flowing through the tanks of the aquarium falls below 40 degrees, certain fish become very sluggish. The young yellow perch lie quietly at the bottom of the tank, as evenly spaced as if put there by their keeper, and take little food. A low temperature affects young black ass in quite a different way. They stay poised somewhere above the bottom, but crowded close together. Fifty or more will often gather in a compact mass, all facing in the same direction. The aquarium has several tanks of young black bass, all groups of which show the same curious habit.

We are not selling the book, nor handling it for profit; but we know the wide need of a good dictionary in hundreds of families, and bring this one to members of The Record family, exclusively, and to those who will unite with our family of readers. It is not given with short-term subscriptions-only to those paying by the year, or who subscribe for a full year. The truth is we should like to give it only to NEW subscribers, but we think too much of our "steady regulars" to shut them out on the offer. A valuable feature of the book is its appendix of "Mythological and Classical names," "Names and Places," "Foreign words and Phrases," "Glossary of Business

Many People of Commanding Ability Have Admittedly Lacked Appreciation of Music.

Lord Brickenhead, lord high chancellor (better known in America some years ago as "Freddy" Smith), confessed at a public dinner recently that he recognized the tune of "God Save the King" only because people stand up when it was being played. Some other famous people had an equally poor ear for music-one, the Empress Eugenie. Dr. Ethel Smyth, who for 30 years was a neighbor of the empress during her English exile at Farnboro and was constantly in her company, says she was totally devoid of musical instinct. Once when a local band struck up "Partant pour la Syrie" in her honor the empress mistook it for "God Save the King."

Sir Walter Scott was equally impervious to music, though many passages in his writings imply that he liked and understood it. "In music," he told Lord Melbourne, "I don't know high from low."

Swinburne's lack of musical ear was a byword among his acquaintances. Edmund Gosse describes a practical joke "played on Swinburne, which made me indignant at the time but which now seems innocent enough and not without interest. A lady, having taken the rest of the company into her confidence, told Swinburne that she would render on the piano a very ancient Florentine ritornello just discovered. She then played 'Three Blind Mice' and Swinburne was enchanted. He found that it reflected to perfection all the cruel beauty of

HATCHET BEST FOR SICK HENS

Many Reasons Enumerated Why Ailing Fowls Should Be Killed Rather Than Cured.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The most reliable and profitable method for curing sick poultry is the hatchet. At least that seems to have been the experience of a large number of commercial poultry raisers. They find that it does not pay to spend much time or money in trying to bring a sick fowl back to health. One reason is that it takes considerable time, during which the bird will not be laying, and another is that a sick bird is always a menace to the rest of the flock. However, in spite of the efficiency of the hatchet as a cure, it is not good business to be careless just because such an efficient remedy is at hand. Prevention in most cases is not difficult nor costly, and pays big dividends.

The poultry flock is subject to a number of diseases, some of which spread rapidly and cause big losses. The birds may also be infested with various parasites, some of which live on the surface of the body and others in the various parts of the interior. Such parasites, whether they are outside or inside workers, are injurious because they take a part of the nourishment which should be used to put on flesh or to produce eggs, and also because of irritation and inflammation of the parts they attack.

The contagious diseases caused by germs and the weakness and loss of flesh caused by the larger parasites are the most important conditions which the poultryman must consider in order to keep his birds in health. These germs and parasites can be kept down by suitable preventative measures, and the aim of study of the diseases should be to learn prevention rather than cure. Medicines may be given adhas been suggested, it is better to kill the sufferer. There is another reason not yet mentioned that makes the killing of sick birds desirable. Birds that first contract diseases are apt to be the weekest ones in the flock and the weakest ones in the flock and should be culled out.

The more birds kept on a farm or at 12 o'clock, sharp, the following person al property: plet of ground and the more they are crowded the greater the danger from contagion and parasites, and the more important the measures for excluding, eradicating, and preventing development of these causes of disease.

The best way to do this is to secure eggs from a flock that has shown no indication of contagious disease for at least a year. If precautions are taken to keep the eggs absolutely clean and they are hatched in a thoroughly cleaned incubator the young chicks will have a much better chance. They will also grow up with a better chance of escaping disease if they are raised in clean brooders and kept upon ground where poultry has not run for some Sometimes these directions cannot be followed explicitly. If all the available ground has been recently used for poultry, fowls should be taken from that part which is to be used for the new flock, a good coating of freshly slacked lime applied to the surface. and a few days later it should be plowed. Then it should be cultivated three or four times with intervals of a week, and finally sowed to a small grain crop. In a few months the greater part of the germs will be destroyed, but it is better to leave the ground unoccupied by poultry until a winter has passed.

It is more difficult to raise a new | J. N. O. SMITH, Auct. 2-24-3t flock free from parasites if the eggs are hatched by hens, for hens may carry lice and mites and various parasites. For this reason it is a good idea to select hens for brooding from a flock free from disease and pests.

To keep germs and parasites from developing to a great extent, poultry houses need to be cleaned frequently and the drinking fountains and feed troughs need a weekly washing with boiling water or other disinfectant. If any lice or mites are found on the birds or in their houses, the roosts and adjoining parts of the walls must be painted with commercial carbolineum or a mixture of 1 quart kerosene and 1 teacupful of crude carbolic acid or crude cresol, or the house may be whitewashed with freshly slacked lime and sprayed with kerosene emulsion. Dust the fowl with sodium fluoride or lice powder.

LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 26

ELISHA'S HEAVENLY DEFENDERS

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 6:8-23.
GOLDEN TEXT—The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear Him, and delivereth them.—Ps. 34:7. REFERENCE MATERIAL-Dan. 6:1-23;

PRIMARY TOPIC-God Takes Care of

JUNIOR TOPIC—Elisha and the Armies INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC

-Our Unseen Defenders, YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC -What Faith in the Unseen Can Do for

1. The Syrlan King Sorely Troubled

(vv. 8-12). 1. The King's plan. (v. 8). His method was a kind of guerrilla warfare -armed bands made incursions into the enemy's territory. He determined as to where camps should be located so as to intercept Israel's army. His plan was clever, but his great mistake was that he left God out of his calculations. There is one place where all plans and movements are known (Heb. 4:13). 2. The enemy's movements disclosed (v. 9). The man of God, knowing the enemy's movements, was able to tell the king about them. Elisha's advice was more than a match for the wily plans of the shrewd Ben-word (v. 10). This was true wisdom.

4. The Syrian king's perplexity (vv. 11, 12). In his perplexity he assembled his servants and demanded that the traitor be made known. He believed that some were playing into the hands of the enemy; therefore he would put an end to the treachery. This was denied, and one of his servants declared that the king's movements were reported by Elisha the prophet, even telling to the king of Israel what Ben-hadad spake in his not because of his sins, but because his plans miscarried.

II, The Syrian King Tries to Trap Elisha (vv. 13-18).

1. He sent an army to capture him (vv. 13, 14). Upon learning that Elisha was making known his actions, he determined to put an end to the matter by trapping him and making him a prisoner. How foolish to put human cunning against divine wisdom. Horses and charlots are useless when God is against us. God's purposes cannot be thwarted. If God be for us, who can be against us?

2. Elisha's servant frightened (v. 15). When he awoke one morning he saw that an armed host was encamping about the city. Viewed from the human standpoint, we do not wonder that he was affrighted.

3. Elisha's encouragement (v. 16). He assured his servant that, though they were surrounded by the Syrian army, there was a mightier host of heavenly defenders round about them. Elisha did not shut his eyes to the real danger, but looked to the helpers of God watching about them.

4. Elisha's prayer (v. 17). He asked that the Lord would open the eyes of his servant so as to see spiritual things. When the Lord opened the eyes of the young man he saw that "the mountain was full of horses and chariots of fire round about Elisha." Round about us all the while are angels guarding us from danger.

5. The Syrians smitten with blindhess (v. 18). The same God who Opened the eyes of the young man, blinded the eyes of the Syrians. God deals with men according to their moral attitude. When men will not have the light, God sends darkness. III. The Syrian Army Trapped (vv. 19-23).

The would-be trappers are now trapped. 1. Army led by the man sought by them (vv. 19, 20). Elisha led them to Samaria and asked the Lord to open their eyes. When their eyes were Open they saw the man whom they Sought, but not at the place where they Sought, but not at the place where they sought him. Instead of seeing him at SHE LOOKS Dothan as they expected, they saw him in Samaria.

2. The generous treatment of the Syrians (vv. 21-23). The king of Israel Wanted to smite the captives, but Elisha forbade him and ordered instead that they should be fed and sent back to their master.

8. Peace between the nations (v. 23). The mercy shown to the Syrians had such a profound effect upon them that they came no more to make war upon Israel. What a fine thing if we could have such humanity shown today!

February 26 Books That Make Life Better Proverbs 3:13-26

William Lyon Phelps, A. M., Ph. D., professor of English language and iterature, Yale University, says in the November Ladies' Home Journal:
"I thoroughly believe in a university education for both men and women; but I believe a knowledge of the Bible without a college course is more valuable than a college course without the Bible. "Everyone who has a thorough knowledge of the Bible may truly be called educated; and no other learning or culture, no matter how extensive or elegant, can form a proper substitute. Editorially, the Ladies' Home Journal says:

"There is no greater need in our present-day civilization than a knowledge of and a love for the Bible.
"You will find that the old Book is the most modern of all books; it desscribes human nature as it is today; it asks questions and answers them. As to the method of studying this Book which makes life better ,it may be said that the correspondence method is accepted by thousands as the best. The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago offers eight courses of study under this method. That lives have been made better by this process and service made more effective, is abundantly proved from the following testimonies:

WILD LEMONS IN PROFUSION

According to Traveler, They Are a Generous Gift of Nature to Island of Norfolk.

Lemons grow wild all over the island of Norfolk, a British possession in the outh Pacific, according to Thomas J. McMahon, in the Trans-Pacific Magazine. He writes that in every garden and paddock are clumps of trees ever bearing fruit in wonderful abundance. and of a variety full of rich juice and with a rind most suitable for lemon peel.

Little factories, family concerns, are dotted all over the islands. They are usually roughly constructed wooden buildings divided into three rooms. There, with rather primitive instruments, the women cut and squeeze the lemons in huge frames, and the skins are soaked in brine preparatory to making lemon peel. During the lemon season, which is most of the year, the boys and girls are engaged daily in picking the fruit.

While there are only 800 people on the island, it could comfortably and prosperously house 5,000 persons, according to Mr. McMahon. The island is five miles long, three miles broad and contains 8,600 acres.

See the Rich, Red Blood, the Sign of Health, Showing in her Lovely Cheeks.

Some women have naturally beautiful complexions that tell you there is plenty of richness in their blood. Their figures become well formed, supple, rounded, and graceful. Those are the results of rich, red blood, and plenty of it. There is no need of being thin and scrawny from poor blood. Get a few bottles of Gude's Pepto-Mangan-take it with your meals for a few weeks. It will give you plenty of red blood. By building up the blood, you give the entire system a chance to restore itself naturally, and that brings natural bloom and beauty and all the effects and joys of good health. The Oldest Man in the World

Just part of a skull, two molar teeth and a thigh bone! Pieced together they made—what? One of the most per-plexing mysteries in the study of human history. Were these the remains of an ape-like man who lived 500,000 years ago?

Scientists believe that they were; they call him the "Dawn Man," and out of the record embedded in the rocks they have reconstructed the condi-tions of his life. How he killed his food and tore the raw flesh from the bones; how he married and fought and died! How little by little he clawed and clubbed his way up to mastery over the beasts. It is a fascinating, gripping story, but it is only one of a thousand stories that stir your blood in this greatest book of modern times.

What's in a Name?

By FREDERICK HART

©. 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"Oh, dear!" The words sounded much like something a great deal stronger, if it had not been impossible to connect the idea of strong language with Margaret Davis. She was not at all the sort of person one would suspect of using any words stronger than the above quoted expletive, and yet it did sound suspiciously strong when she said it. her world.

"Oh, dear!" No doubt about it this time. Something was wrong and Margaret didn't care who knew it.

It was four o'clock on the afternoon of January 1, 1922. New Year's day, when the world takes on a new lease of existence, and every person feels as though he were given a fresh start. On this day of all days it seemed strange that a pretty girl should express such apparent dislike for things as they were.

But Margaret had her reasons. It was her Uncle Emerson's best friend who was at the bottom of the affair. Uncle Emerson was a driedup, squeaky-voiced sort of person, who sent Margaret a present twice a yearon her birthday and on Christmasand who otherwise played no part in her scheme of things; she had not seen him for years.

But it appeared that Uncle Emerson had a friend-"a very close and valued friend," he had stated in his letter to her; and he had, with maddening avuncular complacency, told this friend to invite Margaret to make a call on him on New Year's afternoon. Worse-he had accepted for her, and then written to say that he had told his friend to expect her. This letter came on the same day that the "friend's" invitation had arrived.

"Miss Davis? Mr. Farquharson Is Expecting You."

She knew the "friend's" address but not his telephone number and there was not enough time to write and decline. Uncle Emerson had simply arranged matters without consulting her, and there was nothing to do but go through with it. She looked forward to an afternoon spent in the company of some snuffy old man who would prate of the days gone by-who might even pat her cheek in a senile way. "But if he does that," thought poor Margaret, "I shall scream and bite!" It did not appear to be a promising afternoon for her, but neither could the friend look forward to much pleasure, she thought vengefully as she pulled on her gloves.

The name of Uncle Emerson's friend was George Farquharson, Esq. This much Uncle Emerson had stated in his letter, and the name did nothing to improve his standing in Margaret's mind. She set out for her call in a very unpleasant frame of spirit.

The house was one of those brownstone front affairs that are exactly like every other house in the block. She rang the bell, half prepared to leave a card and flee, but the door opened before she could get at her cardcase and a very old, very solemnlooking man servant stood before her.

"Miss Davis? Mr. Farquharson is expecting you. Will you step into the reception room?"

Margaret did as she was bid. The reception room was a depressing chamber, with a high ceiling and old-fashioned, dark furniture. It was not cheerful. Margaret made mental notes of what she would do if she had a chance at that room. She rose and wandered about, looking at this and that horror of the early Sixtles, and her spirits sank even lower. Thenshe scarcely knew how it came about -she felt that some one else was in the room, and turned to see a young man regarding her with a friendly

Margaret was in no friendly mood, and she didn't return the smile. She merely regarded the young man freez,

* | ingly and said: "Where is Mr. Farquharson?"

The young man looked embarrassed. "This is Miss Davis, isn't it? Er—er— Mr. Farquharson is-well, he-" he stopped, evidently at a loss. "Perhaps I'd better go," she said. 'If Mr. Farquharson isn't well-"

The young man interrupted. "I quite agree with you," were his amazing words. "This room would look better with those heavy curtains out and some cheerful furniture in it." Margaret blushed to the eyes. She had evidently been thinking aloud and this impertinent youth had listened. "I beg your pardon," she said freezingly, "but I called in answer to a letter from my uncle to see his old friend, Mr. Farquharson, not to discuss furniture with—with his secretary." she finished awkwardly, guessing at Something was evidently wrong with I the probable occupation of the young man. "If Mr. Farquharson is indisposed, will you be so good as to tell him that I called and that I am sorry that I could not see him." She turned to go. The young man took a swift step forward. "Miss Davis," he said earnestly, "please don't go. Mr. Farquharson will be delighted to see you. To tell you the truth, he did not expect such a young and-such a young lady to call. From your uncle's description of you, you were quite different from what I see you to be."

Margaret's eyes blazed. Then she suddenly broke into laughter.

"I confess that I don't look forward to the meeting any more than Mr. Farquharson," she said. "Uncle evidently told him things about me, things that aren't so. I'm not a horrid, old, snuffy person like uncle, and I'm afraid that Mr. Farquharson won't like me."

"He likes you very much, indeed," said the young man calmly. "He thought that you would be a horrid, old, snuffy person, and he was prepared for a dreadful afternoon. I am Mr. Farquharson, and I came so close to your uncle by helping him in some of his antiquarian research work; and I have been meaning to decorate this room ever since I came into the inheritance of this house; and if you will come with me to the sun parlor, which is really quite attractive, we will have tea."

Margaret followed him in a daze. In a daze she was ushered into a most attractive little sun room; in a daze she was introduced to a beautiful, white-haired old lady, who was Mr. Farquharson's mother; in a daze she drank her tea. But afterward, when she and the no longer dreadful Mr. Furquharson had had mutual explanations and much comparing of letters and a great deal of laughter, and she had promised to go to the theater with him very soon and let him come to call on her, and a great many other things had happened which showed pretty clearly that Uncle Emerson's friend had no intention of letting Uncle Emerson's niece get away from him, she made a confession.

"I was more afraid of your name than anything else," she said. "It scared me!"

"I hope it doesn't scare you now," replied the young man.

Margaret merely shook her head at the time; but thinking it over afterward she came to the conclusion that Farquharson was a very nice name, which was fortunate, as she soon substituted it for her own.

BISHOP COULDN'T SEE JOKE

Reverend Gentleman Naturally Was Annoyed at Error Which to Others Was Amusing.

One of the most curious printer's blunders, that became embalmed in a book, occurred in a London publishing house in the early Victorian period. While engaged in setting the type for a widely known book, "The Men of the Time," several lines of type intended for the life of Robert Owen, the Socialist, fell out of the form, and in "making up" were replaced in the form intended for its closest alphabetical neighbor, "Oxford, Bishop of." When the first edition of the book appeared it contained these startling lines:

"Oxford, the Right Reverend Samuel Wilberforce, Bishop of, was born in 1805. A more kind hearted and truly benevolent man does not exist. A skeptic, as regards religious revelation, he is nevertheless an out-and-out believer in spirit movements."

Many copies of the book were circulated before the amusing error-not amusing, however, to the bishop-was discovered and these are now very diligently sought by book collectors.

World's Need of Loyalty.

There can be no loyalty apart from vigilance, watchfulness, and devotion to duty-no loyalty to a person, institution or cause unless there is earnest support of them on the part of those who profess loyalty. "I must work the works of Him that sent me, while it is day; the night cometh when no man can work"-it is so with all, "Endurance," said Lowell "is the crowning quality"-it is also the word of the great Leader: "He that endureth to the end shall be saved." What the world needs is men who can and will last, or stay.-Exchange.

Art.

"Frolicsome creatures, these chorus girls.'

"If you only knew it, you are paying a compliment to the man who staged the show."

"How's that?" "It took weeks of weary effort to make them frolic and emit peals of girlish laughter."-Birmingham Age-

He is engaged in growing plants and berries, and makes quite a business of it during the growing season, and each winter takes a trip. As soon as he gets home, he will start his hot beds.

We used to hear a lot about the need of safety gates at the R. R. crossing. But, there is another legislature in session, and so far as we know, the gate question is dead. Perhaps the R. R. Co., will graciously install one, some time, on its own account. The railroad crossing in Taneytown is very little different from that at Sykesville-both are dangerous, under favorable conditions.

The play, "A Deal in Ducks," was well attended, last Saturday night, and the audience enjoyed it immensely, as well as the numbers excellently given by pupils of St. Joseph's school, as fillers between the acts. The play was unusually easy to follow, and there were no dull situations. It seems to us, however, that "potash" rather than "ducks" furnished the foundation for the "deal," unless the faminine prizes won might be considered the "ducks" in the deal.

Letter from McMinnville, Oregon.

Editor Record :-

We are at McMinnville yet. Have visited several towns in this community, was at Forest Grove, to see Mr. Milne and brother, Will Milne, who took us around to the canning factory, but it is quite different to the eastern canning factories. They can berries and make unfermented wine. The proprietor told me he has ten thousand gallons of Loganberry juice and several gallons of cider and cherry juice. Then we went to the city park; it is a beautiful park; the trees stand so thick on the ground a person can hardly see through the grove. There are about twelve acres in the park. It is fine timber, trees 200 ft. tall, six feet across the stump.

I said to Mr. Milne, "those trees are pretty tall." He said "yes we got one 200 feet long for a flag pole—it was not spliced—all in one solid pole." Then he showed us some trees that he said they were California red wood. The trees were about 7 feet across the stump, and looked to be over 200 feet tall.

As we were walking along on the avement, he stopped and told us 'Here is a English walnut tree; the owner of that tree sold $40.00 worth last fall, off one tree." This a great place for fruit of all kinds. I believe one-third of the tillable soil in this communuity is in berries and English walnuts, prunes, cherries and apples.

I saw one apple orchard of 680 acres. Apples sell at 80c a crate, one bushel in a crate. There are lots of apples lying on the ground under the trees yet; was not cold enough to freeze them this winter. I saw 50 or 60 bushels lying on a pile on the ground along the packing house—they were "culls." Prunes are a profitable crop; a good yield will bring $1000.

I talked with a man who has 20 acres in prunes. He said if they would have a ordinary crop he would get $9000.00 for his crop. Last season was a poor crop and he got over $4000., and has some on hand yet. He has a prune dryer; dries them himself, and it osts him $32.00 per ton to harvest and dry them for market. Last year he got 10c lb. for his prunes. Everything in the way of berries and fruit was dull-no mar-

Which Laws Do You Favor?

Everyone points with pride to his desire for law enforcement. Some people would like law enforcement a bit lax in some things, and others might seek a new angle of departure from strict observance of what the law provides. "Personal privileges seems to shift with the viewpoint. The gun toter wants the personal privilege of toting a gun; the slugger wants the personal privilege of putting his victim out with a billy. arson artist wants the personal privilege of burning down a building now and then. The counterfeiter wants the personal privilege of making just a few coins, while the liberal citizen is against the personal privilege of these and other menaces to the general public, but for himself wants to break the booze law at pleasure.

Because illegal booze is killing people doesn't change the law any more than the gunman might be excused for using a rifle instead of a sawed off shot gun, or the yegg for using nitro instead of dynamite. The greatest good of the greatest number s through prohibition until it has been fairly tried out, and, if a failure, repealed. Don't side step the prohibition law, and then blame some one else for breaking some other law. Laws are all equal. Those who can't obey the laws of this country, might try some other.—Bucyrus, O., Tele
