NOTES FROM LEGISLATURE.

The Usual Jam of Bills due in two Last Days.

The Senate, passed the bill authorizing a referendum on the Carroll County Bond issue of $700,000 for roads and schools.

The Senate passed a bill aimed at hasty marriages, the terms of which provide that if both parties for whom a marriage license is sought in the State are non-residents the license cannot be issued for 48 hours after application has been made.

The fewer elections bill failed of passage in the House, on Wednesday, with a vote of 3 less than a constitutional majority, but was passed on Thursday.

The Senate passed the Budget bill and sent it to the House.

One-cent gas tax passed the Sen-ate. The bill is aimed to produce $1,179,555 for state roads.

The bill changing polling hours was finally passed; in the counties the hours will be from 7 A. M. to 7 P. M.

Senator Snader presented a bill relating to the Commissioners of Car-roll County. We do not know its purport. The state tax rate will likely be 30 cents.

The bill authorizing absent voters to cast their ballots by mail, was defeated in the Senate.

A considerable volume of unfinished bills await the last two days of the session, and the usual confusion and railroading will be the result, likely to the extent of worthy bills being killed, and doubtful ones rushed through.

Farmers' Meeting.

Mr. John A. McSparren, who is a noted Agricultural and Farm Institute speaker, at one time Master of Penna. State Grange, will speak in Firemen's Hall, Westminster, Friday, April 7, at 8 P. M. This will be an open meeting, with no admission charge, and it is hoped all farmers will take this opportunity to hear a discussion of the farmers' problems by a farmer.

Mr. McSparren is a noted granger. He is known to many Carrol county people, as he addressed the State Grange at the meeting in 1918. Every farmer in Carroll county is urged to be present.

Time to Plant Trees.

Householders, suburbanite and farmers, the time for planting trees is here. With the sap just beginning to run and the buds just starting to sprout, the conditions are just right, the State Board of Forestry tells us. From now until the middle of April, K. E. Pfeiffer, Assistant State Forester, says, is the time to plant trees. Mr. Pfeiffer has charge of the roadside trees in the State and should know. The State Forest Nursery list of trees may be had upon application to the Board of Forestry. You will find on it all the trees that can be pur-chased from the State Nursery, everything from three to five inch Norway spruce transplants at $15 a thousand to 9 to 12-foot Oriental planes at $100 a hundred. There are spruce pines, walnuts, ash trees, elms, locusts, pecans of the hard-shell kind. oaks, Oriental planes, and even one species listed as "Gingko."

SENATE KILLS THE HALL RACING BILL.

Passed Instead.

The Senate, on Tuesday night, de-feated the Hall anti-race track bet-ting bill, by substituting for it the Norris bill, by a vote of 15 to 12. The bill was passed to third reading, and its passage is believed to be assured. Senator Snader, of Carroll, voted for the substitution of the Norris bill.

The Norris bill leaves the present law stand practically as it now is, reduces the number of racing days, and increases the daily license to $10,000. Senator Norris, in defense of his bill, argued that the Hall bill, if passed, would leave the betting features in a worse condition than at present, and that every crooked gambler was wishing for the success of the Hall bill.

Senator Bryan answered by deny-ing that the Hall bill would have any such result, and declaring that the people of Maryland are not criminals, but would obey the law, and that it would be enforced, if passed.

Previous to the vote on the Norris bill, Senator Parran offered a bill prohibiting racing entirely, except five days at county fairs, offering the ciation has re-organized as the Car-roll County Branch of the Maryland His main argument was that as long as there was racing there would be betting, therefore, the best thing to do was prohibit racing. The bill was defeated 19 to 8. Senator Snader voted for this bill.

The Norris bill provides that out of the funds received as fees by the Rac-ing Commission, $80,000 is to be set aside each year for divisions as fol-

$2,000 to the University of Maryland, for its agricultural exhibit at county fairs.

The balance to be distributed in equal shares among such incorporated county fair associations as are members of the Maryland Association of Agricultural Fairs, Inc., for holding county fairs and exhibitions for improving agriculture, farming and breeding of stock.

Only one such fair in each county is entitled to share in the division. It seems probable that the House will vote to non-concur, which would let the present Burke law stand unchanged.

changed. The action of the Senate will be variously regarded. Perhaps the Hill bill would have left some evil consequences connected with racing, and perhaps not. If there were defects in the bill, they could easily have been ironed out: but, that solution was not wanted. What was wanted, was the $712,000 or $720,000 revenue; and this means a sale of privileges by the state to camplers T on the Dollar.

The Dearborn Independent, April 1, contains a lengthy article telling of surplus war stocks, involving the sale by the U. S. Government of billions of dollars. We are unable to give more than a condensed statement of the transactions, but these will give some idea of the immensity of the whole.

Doing a business of more than $1,-000,000 a week, with total receipts of $852,814,462 to January 15, 1922, on material whose known cost was $1,-590,852,352, the Director of Sales has reported to the War Department a recovery on cost of approximately 50 per-cent. The aggregate receipts do not include sales reported to Congress in December, 1918, amounting to $123,245,239.

The sales have been of surplus war supplies of infinite variety released from time to time with a view to disturbing market conditions as slightly as practicable. The selling is handled by army personnel almost exclusive-ly. There is virtually no overhead for the sales organization except for fees paid to auctioneers. In fact, the biggest bargain opportunity ever offered American business has not been neglected nor have business men ignored the inducements for taking heavy stocks.

Wool tops all the sales, with a total of $246,514,979, which is a recovery of 81 percent. of cost. In textiles, exclusive of wool, sales have been $81,772,731, or a recovery of 66 percent. of cost. In clothing, sales of $38,732,845, represented a 30 per-cent recovery.

In stores, canned meats, package goods, etc., total sales amount to $60,873,221, or 38 per-cent of cost. Shoes brought $8,496,656, represent-ing a loss of $2,000,000.

Lands and buildings that cost $239,-071,763, have brought only $22,022, 575. Other property of this class has been sold at $6,370,075, the cost of which has never been ascertained.

Building materials realized only 40 per-cent, on a cost of $12,620,802. Hardware sales amounted to $3,454,-116, a return of only 35 per-cent of cost. Animals returned a total of $22,059,627, as against a cost of $36,-672,149. Many other sales are ported, covering practically all lines of goods imaginable.

In addition to actual sales, army surplus material costing the government $209,620,147 had been transferred to other governmental departments up to September 30, 1921, when transfers ceased. Of this amount $138,290,529, or nearly 66 per-cent. vas transferred to the Department o Agriculture, all but $10,619 of which was without funds. The Navy Department and Marine Corps received $25,653,369 worth of material; the Postoffice Department, $16,261,829 Interior Department, $15,407,361 Treasury Department, $10,294,557 Department of Commerce, $3,470,823, and Department of Labor, $44,053. Motor and miscellaneous vehicles transferred represented a cost of $118.264.808. The transfer of serviceable motor vehicles was required by law and only unserviceavle cars not desired by other departments were offered to the public at auction sales. Fewer than 17,500 unserviceable vehicles, including trailers and bicycles, have been sold. More than 53,000 used motor vehicles have been transferred to other government departments, 36,561 of these to the Bureau of Public Roads in the Department of Agriculture. which is making good use of them in improving the highways and making back country farms more accessible A total of 70,149 motor vehicles of all kinds has been disposed of by the War Department. The amount of surplus property remaining in the possession of the War Department is estimated to represent a cost of approximately $160,000,000. At the present rate of sale of some $1,110,000 a week at 50 per-cent of cost, the selling organization under the Director of Sales probably will continue to function for several years to come, for additional material is constantly being declared surplus, and it is likely that laws will be enacted requiring the disposal of material now held for use in a future emergency. The War Department is speeding up on sales by public auction; a series of 11 during six weeks have just been held in different sections of the country from Ohio to California. The movement of goods is, therefore, constant and activity is promised to seek. ers after bargains for some time. It is only just to point out that the War Department has handled this enormous selling proposition with judgment and adherence to a policy of equity, and that it deserves to receive commendation for disposing of nearly $2,000,000,000 worth of surplus stock for $852,814,462 and for the distribution to other governmental agencies for transport and other equipment which cost more than $200,000,000.

"Moonshine" Kills Brumswick Man.

After drinking "moonshine" whiskey Saturday night, Frank Stroup, about 47 years old, of Brunswick, was founr dead early Monday morning about 200 yards from his home. Dr. Levin West, who examined the body, said death was caused by the alcoholic concoction he had partaken. Justice John W. Lloyd deemed an inquest unnecessary.

Stroup, who had been employed as a clerk at the meat store of Fleet-Wood & Lucas, took several drinks of "moonshine" Saturday night. He Was last seen about 11:30 o'clock on his way home carrying a basket containing provisions. Half an hour later two young men who passed Brick Kiln Hollow, saw Stroup lying on the ground apparently unconscious. Thinking he had been drinking they took charge of his basket and about $11 in cash found in his pockets, for safe keeping. About 7 o'clock Monday morning a man passing the spot saw Stroup's body stretched out and upon examination found that he was dead.

Stroup, who was married, came to urday and indulged rather freely. It s supposed that after buying his provisions he started home, when the concoction he had drunk took effect. It is not known where he obtained the whisky .- Frederick News.

The Baltimore News says the Norris bill-or if not that, the present law as it stands-will save the state from increasing the state tax rate 5 cents; either that, or a drastic cut in the budget, or a large deficit at the close of the Ritchie administration. And this ending averts one of these calamities. Carrying the im-plied justification further, why not sell more privileges of this and other allied sorts, and avoid paying taxes entirely? Why stop at 72 days, or with one sort of gambling? The News says, the avoidance of a finan-cial hole is "naturally a great relief to Gov. Ritchie."

Bad Check Act.

Senator Norris, on Tuesday, asked the county members of the Senate to protect Baltimore against an influx of "Lefty Louies, of Gyp-the-Bloods, of Humpty Dumps and Hink-ey Dinks." At the Wilmington, M. E. He asserted that the newspapers got the two-thirds of the $2,000,000,000 raised for propaganda by the "bootleggers." He told his hearers that The Sun and papers "of like class were working the blue law agitation as a camouflage for the prohibition situation" and that "papers were not run for conscience but for coin;" that "even if commu-nities were 'dry' the papers were 'wet' because they were purchased." -Balt. Senators La Follette, Borah, Johnson and Reed, strenuously opposed the Treaty pact. Of course they did; they could not have done otherwise, without breaking their reputation as opposers.

Mr. Bryan will not have a walkover to the Senate, from Florida. He must fight if he would win, and even then the chances appear against him. He comes from a little too far North, to be fully acceptable to Floridaians.

May we not hope, now that the legislature has adjourned, that a blatant trio in Baltimore will give us greatly less of boosting for wet and gambling interests, and more of news and com- upon. ment in harmony with the better side of moral questions generally ? Maryland is not so unanimously back of all "fast" and wide-open interests and practices, as some of her mouthpieces would have us believe. *

After the Treaty and the Bonus problems, will come the Tariff, in Congress-just one thing after another, and all agitating and aggravating questions. representative bodies, is perhaps the nor any of the results of an armed nearest approach possible to the best conflict. Sooner or later, natural -the most representative-legislation laws always prevail. by the people, but in its final analysis it is ideal in form, rather than in results. The best of our legislative assemblies are trading shops, where specimens of the rankest class selfishness are put through, and where morally righteous efforts often fall a prey to the evils of the evil one, through his multitudinous agents and mouthpieces. Were only honest differences of opinion and policy in conflict, it could easily be charged up to the natural working together of "many men of many minds," and left go at that. That would, after all, be one of the accompaniments of government by the people. And this sort of legislation is possible, if left alone to work itself out; but, it is not left alone, and there is the rub.

Democracy-legislation by the people. As a matter of cold fact, each legislative session, in its outcome, convicts a lot of these people sufficiently for sentences to the penitentiary; but, instead of being so regarded, are likely to be complimented on their ability for winning victoriesfor "putting it over" on the people back home.

The White Collar Man.

The salaried man-sometimes called the "white collar" worker-is coming back to his old position. For a number of years, and especially during the war period, the salaried man -clerk, teacher, book-keeper, agent, drummer, and in a large measure the trained specialists, and professional man-had a hard time of it. He participated in all of the high costs of living, but did not receive a correspondingly higher salary. More than any other class, he felt the burden of the war. Mental ability, salesmanship, inita-tive in general, drew the short straw: while muscular labor-the man with the saw, hammer, shovel, pick, the machine-any sort of mechanical tools-demanded and received, the long end. Force, power, manual labor, wanted in all sorts of industry, found more than a fair market, for its exertion, and thereby hangs a result that the country will be years getting rid of.

The man with the regular inside job-and especially the one not too old-who regards his job as the main thing in life, and who works as though he is alive and wants the business he is in to succeed, is getting back to where he always belonged-an absolute essential to business, though for a time jostled about and looked down

There is now also taking place, a weeding out of misfits who dropped into places easily, during war times, and the process is hurting. Employees who, because of stress of demand, more modest small town jobs for the large city jobs, are now looking Moslem fatalism to the decree of eagerly toward the not so long ago for most of them.

This County has not been represented for more than a quarter of a century, and the justice of the claim for recognition will be generally conceded. But the County's claim would not rest upon this sense of justice alone. In Senator War-field, she could offer a candidate the peer of any in capacity and charac-ter, and the entire district would be assured of creditable and efficient representation at the National Capital. So far as is known, none of the party leaders have yet conferred with Mr. Warfield, but many of them are hopeful he may be induced to become their candidate, and are ready to give him enthusiastic support."

The Pneumania Month.

March is a typical pneumonia month and usually gives a high rate of mortality for the disease. After a long and hard winter, the system loses much of its resistance and peo-ple grow careless. When every cold, no matter how slight, is given prompt and intelligent attention, there much less danger of pneumonia. It should be borne in mind that pneumonia is a germ disease and breeds in the throat. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an expectorant and cleans out the germ ladened mucus and not only cures a cold but prevents its resulting in pneumonia. It is pleasant to take. The Next Hour.

The long-forward look in a mortal life-time is not possible. We see what we desire afar off, but as we march to it there are interruptions. If we are and the lure of big pay, quit their of a meekly submissive disposition, we resign ourselves with a pious "destiny." If we have what Roosedespised poor-paying places, and velt used to call a "fighting edge" we wishing them back; but, the "bird in persist, as those who would make hand" has flown away permanently stepping-stones of failure, and compel the circumstance itself to follow at heel.

To plan life is like playing chess. In the mind, we plot our moves. But we cannot execute our strategy unimpeded. The enemy rises in the way, to confute and to frustrate. But and otherwise; and after all, if we championship implies a conquest of resistance, never a solo performance. Every remarkable spirit has had to overcome. None crowns himself and no reward is automatic. Never do the things worth having occur gratuitously and easily.

Our business is not with ten or wenty years hence-though we may keep that time providently in the distant view. Our imminent duty is toward "the unforgiving minute" and to the immediate, imminent hour. Could we put all we have and are into it, and keep this up through the hours that come thereafter, we should have no fear of ending our lives miserably, with the epitaph of "failure" written over us. But we are mortally weak. We tire so soon. We know that concentration is the first and the last prescription for success. But it is easier to dream than to be up and doing. It is easier to tell others how imperfectly they perform. It is easier to sit in a club window carping at an earth gone wrong and a future not worth going to. It is easier to descant on the past and mourn that it cannot be recaptured.

Hull Buried in San Francisco, Records Show, is a Relic of the Gold

Rush Days.

San Francisco discovered an old wooden ship under the streets of its business section recently, relates Popular Mechanics Magazine. Contractors, excavating a deep foundation for a new skyscraper with steam shovels, were hindered in their work by strange massive timbers found 30 feet below the surface. They had accidentally stumbled upon the preserved remains of some strange buried craft.

The bronze-sheathed and copperbolted hull measured 100 feet in length by 30 feet beam, and great interest was aroused by the puzzling location of the relic a mile from any water. The city's history revealed, however, that it was the Euphemia, a bit of whose historic and romantic stampede around the Horn to the new California gold fields was on, numerous ships were abandoned by their crews at the end of the journey, and left to rot on the mud flats of San Francisco bay. But, in forming the municipal government of the fastgrowing city by the Golden Gate, the first town council bought the Euphemia, and converted it into a prison ship. Those were "rough" days in San Francisco and this, the first jail the city could boast, was tied Lobbyists, paid attorneys and selfish business interests, always crowd the halls of legislation and inject their interests into the general public's business, add confusion and doubt, and becloud the waters until even honest representatives have doubts as to the honesty and justice of their own convictions.

Real public sentiment can be so juggled and misrepresented as to be indistinguishable, and the press is largely responsible for this. Presumably, men are elected to a legislative body for their honesty and intelligence; the voters, by their choice, name men in whom they have confidence-they are "the people" in concrete form. But, this once accomplished, "the people" largely become nonentities, and the press and other agencies step in and purport to represent the real public sentiment, by acting as attorneys for well organized classes of special interests.

The Treaty Ratified.

The ratification of the Four-power treaty, by the Senate, by a vote of 67 to 27, occurred last Friday. Fifty five Republicans and twelve Democrats voted for, and twenty-three Democrats and four Republicans against, ratification. The uncompromising Republicans were Senators Borah, of Idaho; Johnson, California; La Follette, Wisconsin, and France, Maryland. What the future holds for this treaty, nobody presumes to forecast.

It at least appears to be an effort in the right direction-for peace -but that it will stand forever, and bridge over all possible future contingencies, nobody believes. Those who voted against the treaty may have been honest critics, and knowing prophets; but, they had nothing better to offer in its stead-merely showed their unwillingness to try out what the best minds of the world have agreed upon.

Their position is untenable, for the easiest thing to do in this world is to find fault, and lay negative obstructions. There is no game that can be planned out from beginning to end, for all time. One can assert, and argue, and offer predictions without end, but he does so only with the mental capacity of a mere man-his guess may, or may not, be as good as that of another, but no more.

Sparing Bill's Girl

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

C, 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Francesca - pretty, scatter-brained, flirtatious Francesca-was honest-togoodness worried. So worried was she that her usually blithe step lagged as she walked homeward through the bracing, crisp autumn air, and her fair brow was puckered in three fretful wrinkles. How under the sun was she going to get rid of poor old Bill?

You see, Bill Thorpe was the very first one of Francesca's victims-and there had been many-to cause her so much as the tiniest twinge of regret. Perhaps this was because she had known him since kindergarten days, or perhaps it was because she had, figuratively speaking, walked over his prostrate body with a more heartless, roughshod tread even than usual, presuming on his good nature. However that may be, the fact remains that Francesca was experiencing a very real desire to spare Bill the pain she felt she was going to occasion him when he came to see her that night.

"May I run up this evening, Fran?" he had telephoned her. "I have something that's-well, something I want to tell you." And even over the coldly impersonal wire his voice had rung strangely vibrant. It had come at last!

Now, between you and me, deep down under her genuine concern for Bill, Francesca harbored a motive other than altruism in breaking definitely with Bill. For how could she expect, as long as he hung around her like a faithful watch-dog, alert to fetch and carry, that Roger Benedict would propose? Roger was not the sort of man to interfere with a rival. And

"I-I-hang it, Frank, I've got to get it over with." Bill helped himself to a chair opposite and, looking quite miserable, paused in what he was sayng. Then he braced himself and plunged. "We've known each other for years and years and years and-" "Years," completed Francesca. "Yes, Bill." After all, with Roger gone, it night be the sensible thing to hang on to Bill for a while.

"Well, I've always thought, Frank, t would be you and I, but-well, it sn't! I've gone and gotten engaged to another girl and-and, doggone it, I love her!"

Francesca rose slowly, not so much in dismay as in utter perplexity. Bill, her property, engaged to another girl? Good heavens, and she had been worrying about sparing his feelings! And was this the way it felt when somebody turned you down-the way she supposed her victims of the past had felt-yes, as she had expected Bill himself would feel this very evening? Well, she was merely being paid in her own coin. It was up to her to be sporting, as Roger, Betty's Roger, would say.

"Congratulations, Bill," she managed with a brave smile and held out her "Is it some one I know?"

"Know? Why who should it be but Betty Lane?" Bill's tone was rapturous. "But-but-" the girl's heart was bounding.

"She told me a little while ago that she almost let the cat out of the bag this afternoon and would have onlywell, she knew I was coming tonight to tell you myself!"

"You're in luck and she's a darling !" and there was no doubting the enthusiasm in Francesca's voice.

But several nights later, as, in the arms of Roger, Francesca told the whole story, she finished with a vow that was solemn if brief. "Never again for me, Roger! I'm through with flirting.

"Thank heaven," said Roger fervently. "It's a promise I'll see you keep!"

REQUIRES TIME AND SKILL Working of Tortoise Shell Into Marketable Material Calls for Great Care and Attention.

A tortoise shell is harder and more brittle than ordinary horn. Heat and pressure are practically the only means which can be employed in working it, and it is impossible to work tortoise shell at a great heat, since the coloring pigment easily liquefies and absorbs the shell, thereby greatly lessening its value. Heavy pressure is also impossible, owing to its brittle character. The plates of carapace, or black shell, are first separated from the skeleton by the application of gentle heat, and then flattened by a similar process. The superficial irregularities are next rasped off, and the material is polished ready for molding into any desired shape. Larger or thicker plates are produced by a process which requires great care and attention. Two surfaces are first rasped and cleaned, and are gently heated and pressed together. The heat liquefies them, making an invisible

GREAT MAN FIRST "DUNCE"

Term Has Come Down to Us in the Present Day In a Somewhat Roundabout Manner.

If you should ever be called a "dunce," don't feel insulted. Just show your superiority by springing this interesting bit of information. He who made the term famous was a great man. He was considered one of the most learned doctors of the early church and of the Franciscan order. His name was Duns Scotus, and though he was dunce by name he was not by nature, as he was renowned for his sharpness and keenness. The present significance of the word "dunce," derived from the name "Duns," is the result of ancient theological disputes.

Away back in the Middle ages the churchmen who had been educated in the schools founded by Charlemagne were considered the savants of their age and were respected for their great learning. The time soon came, however, when these theologians were no longer regarded as authorities and when their writings became unpopular because of the ponderous and scholarly style in which they were expressed. Among such theologians, called "schoolmen," Duns Scotus was a prominent representative and leader. Consequently when a follower of his expounded theories or quoted from the works of the "schoolmen," he was told, "O, you are a Duns," which implied, "Old stuff, my boy, entirely too dull to be modern." Hence we have the word "dunce," meaning dull, heavy, dense.

Fierce Tribe of South America Brought Into Subjection Through Magic

of White Man.

During the three centuries after the conquest of Peru, Spanish missionaries penetrated all parts of South America, but were never able to gain headway among the wild tribes of what is known as the Gran Chaco, or northern Argentina and western Paraguay, an exchange explains.

These tribes, belonging to what is known as the Chaco-Guaycurau family of Indians, were described by the early Spaniards as ferocious and irreconcilable, with an intense hatred of the white man. They were restless nomads, who lived by hunting and fishing. Only within the last twenty years have they allowed the white man to advance his settlements and then only because of fear of the Argentine army. One sugar plantation and mill employs over 2,000 of these Indians. But they still keep to themselves and persist in their own customs. They live apart in "tolddos," or reed huts; dye and tattoo their skins and adhere to their ancient ceremonies. They have formed a great liking for the American moving pictures, however. At one plantation a moving picture show is provided at the Indian village every Saturday night, and, although they understand neither English nor Spanish, the Indians squat on the ground and follow the actors with many grunts in their guttural language. The American cowboy actors are their favorites.

ROBIN A PUBLIC BENEFACTOR "Your speeches haven't their old-

Hard to Estimate What the Country, as a Whole, Owes to Industrious Small Bird.

There are robins throughout the land. Every morning at daybreak a wave of robin song rolls across the United States from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Who does not recognize this cheering lay as that of our old friend, Robin Redbreast? Nevertheless, he is not a robin at all. The real robin is a little red-breasted resident European bird about the size of a bluebird, and our robin is really a large migrating thrush. But the Pilgrim Fathers found it here, and as it reminded them of the English robin, they named it robin in memory of the little feathered friend in the old home; and, all ornithologists to the contrary notwithstanding, the name sticks.

One of the first things the robin does when it comes home in spring and settles down for the summer is to look for a mate, if not already mated, and then to begin to build a nest. As it raises two or three broods in a season, it must begin early and the nest must be constructed to withstand storm. frost and cold. So the little architect makes the walls of mud and finishes and lines it with nonconductive materials to keep in the heat and keep out the cold. If the weather is favorable, the nest is soon built, but if storms prevail it is long in building and sometimes is forsaken altogether for another constructed under more auspicious skies.

When the little blind, naked, helpless nestlings have broken the shell and been carefully brooded for a time, the struggle to ind food enough to fill those hungry caverns within begins. Now the robin becomes a benefactor of mankind, for every day and every hour of the day those yawning mouths must be filled with worms, grubs, cutworms, caterpillars and many kinds of destructive insects. He brings them to the nest, from one to twelve at a time, and in rearing two or three broods he slays his thousands of our insect foes .- State Ornithologist of Massachusetts.

NEEDLE RECORDS NO CHANGE

Wrong Idea Generally Held Concerning the Action of the Compass in Navigation.

The compass needle does not turn around in passing from one hemisphere into the other. The north-seeking end of the compass needle has no greater significance or meaning in the southern hemisphere than the southseeking end of the needle has in the northern hemisphere, a writer explains. The compass needle is a piece of magnetized steel. It has its positive and negative poles, or north and south poles, just like the earth. The needle and its lines of force align themselves with the earth's lines of force. In the northern hemisphere the north magnetic pole exerts the dominating influence on the needle, so it points to that pole. The south end of the needle is disregarded. Quickened Her Step a Bit.

meanwhile there was Betty Lane, the prettiest girl in the gay small-town crowd which included Francesca and Bill and Roger. Oh, she must be very firm with Bill, for his own good-and hers.

Arrived at this decision, Francesca quickened her step a bit and hummed a gay little tune beneath her breath. Bill was faithful and friendly and ever dependable, but Roger-oh, Roger was young Lochinvar and Prince Charming rolled into one. If only Betty-

"Betty !" Rounding a corner Francesca pulled up short as she all but catapulted into the object of her not exactly charitable thoughts. "Betty Lane! Haven't seen you in a very dog's age!" She was almost-not quite-jealous of this trim little Betty, so attractively gotten up in her tailored suit and smart little neckpiece and cocky yellow felt turban, but not for worlds would she have betrayed a sign of so base an emotion. "Run over and see me, dear."

Betty nodded, her brown eyes mysteriously radiant. "I will, Frankle, and when I do-oh, I can't tell you yet, but I'm-I'm going to have glorious news. You'll see!" The words fairly bubbled forth and then Betty, all unconscious of the havoc she had wrought, swung gayly by.

"Something to tell me-something glorious--that means, oh, no! Betty and Roger! Why-why, I was worrying about sparing Bill and now he's all I've got left!"

The Bill that Francesca found that evening when she came downstairs was a Bill who acted precisely as nervous been supposed to act-walking jerkily with unseeing eyes.

With a start he gathered his wits together at her entrance.

Extracting a Cork.

One of the most puzzling things in the world is to get a cork out of a bottle. Nevertheless, it can be done easily enough, if you know how. Immerse the bottle in cold water for a few minutes, without allowing any of the fluid to enter. Then take a hatpin and poke with it until you have succeeding in impaling the smaller end of the cork. This accomplished, you can pull the cork up into the lower part of the bottle neck, though you cannot get it out. Now immerse the bottle in hot water and presently the cork will fly out of its own accord, forced out by the expansion of the aid inside. The way it works is quite surprising and affords an interesting lesson in physics. The performance may be facilitated somewhat by greasing the inside of the bottle neck.

Word Blindness.

Word blindness has been discovered by school clinics. Two cases have lately been noted in one district. A boy of nearly thirteen years of age, healthy of body and normal of mind in all ordinary respects, can only new, after nine years' regular attendance, just read words of two letters. "Of" he comprehends instantly; "offer" floors him. Oddly enough, though in mental arithmetic equal to any boy of his age, this "word blindness" extends to the reading of numbers. He will, for instance, read "2" and is dumfounded at "122." The difficulty appears to be wholly in a failure to recognize written or printed words or numbers."

His Favorite Brand.

In the two years the Business Girl has been working in the office with the bookkeeper she has never seen him smoke more than two or three times. On the last occasion that she found him smoking she pretended to scold him. "Haven't I told you that it's wrong to smoke? You won't grow if you smoke so many cigarettes." The bookkeeper grinned, being only five feet ten inches in height. "I know," he answered with a smile, "but I don't smoke very often. You see, I only smoke O. P.'s." "What are O. P.'s?" queried the B. G. "Some special imported brand that are very hard to get?' "Well, not exactly," he grinned, "but they're the only kind I can afford-they're 'Other People's.'" -Chicago Journal.

Too Much Travel.

Two rival western towns, each boasted of the prowess of their football teams and a game was arranged. One town bet heavily on its team, and to make the result fairly certain, hired celebrated professional player. Early in the game he made a sensational run of 70 yards to a touchdown-and to the surprise of the spectators was immediately removed from the game. The manager gave this explanation :

"Why, we guarantee to pay that guy the rate of a dollar a yard! Do you think I wanted to see the town go busted?"

Redwood Trees of California.

The famous redwood trees of California have many uses. From them come hair dyes, insecticide and also the usual number of wood products. These trees attain their great age because they are non-resinous. They grow 50 feet before they branch, and their root growth is enormous, covering a great expanse of earth.

In manufacturing redwood products there has always been a great waste until recently, when a machine was invented which practically tears the fibers apart and produces a fine hairlike product, which is easily converted into wood pulp for papermaking.

BLUE RIDGE COLLEGE.

The Blue Ridge ball tossers will open the season, Saturday at 3:30 P. M., when they take the field against the strong aggregation representing the Army-Navy School of Baltimore. Although the weather has prevented very intensive practice, the locals are have one of the strongest teams among Maryland Colleges. With the of Lov's, on Sunday flashing form which leads many pitching staff containing such a hurler as Peters, with a battery mate of Markell's caliber, and the infield Mr. peppered up by such a star short stop as Fern Hitchcock, the idol of local fans, there is every indication of having a powerful nine.

Having secured an unanimous decision over Washington College, the Blue Ridge debaters are strenuously working for their great test with Colby College. The question is "The Principle of the Closed Shop is Justifable," with Blue Ridge advocating the affirmative. Colby College, which is noted for her phenomenal record in debating, is having her team make a tour of the country. The team is on the road now, as we learned through the Associated Press that it defeated Kalamazoo University, last week. This promises to be a great argument, as each team has virtories to its credit, and will fight to the last minute. The debate will be held in the College Auditorium on Wednes-day, April 5, at 8 P. M.

President Murphy and Professor Kinsey conducted a very successful Bible Institute at the Brethren Church in Frederick over the week-end of March 24-26.

The Collegian Literary Society held its annual banquet Saturday night. It was a stupendous success. Nearly one hundred guests were present and the affair sparkled with witty toasts, with Mr. John Palmer serving in the capacity of toastmas-ter. The banquet was followed by a pleasant social in the Gymnasium.

A Two-Plow Tractor That PULLS Two Plows And THEN SOME

Performance of the International 8-16 in hundreds of competitive tests on farms proves that this Tractor can and does pull its rated load-regardless of soil conditions. Working alongside of some so-called 2-plow Tractors, the International has repeatedly out-performed them.

International owners say-"I use it on farm land where other Tractors wouldn't go"-"I have used an International 8-16 for three years and it is the best all round Tractor that I have seen"-"We purchased an International 8-16 because it excelled other 2-plow Tractors in power, equipment, safety and ease of operation."

This proved performance is one of the reasons why we are justified in saying that the International 8-16 is the greatest 2-plow Tractor value ever offered.

A New Leaf for

C, 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"I am," said Melita with quiet decision, "going to get married."

The girl on the couch opposite gave a gurgle of astonishment.

"Melita! You! When?"

"I don't think it's the most tactful thing in the world to be so surprised," Melita said slowly, "because-"Oh, I didn't mean it! That is, I never expected you-Why, you're such a good business woman and you never look at a man and-"

"You mean a man never looks at me," Melita Post said a bit wistfully.

"Oh, my dear, you're a sweet thing and all that, but you're not exactly a man's girl, and-" The color flamed into Melita's cheeks and it looked for a moment as though she were going to cry. "I'm going to be, though. You'll see !"

"When do you begin?"

"I shall begin on New Year's-tomorrow night at your dinner.'

Nellie Griffith shook out her fluffy skirt, ran her hands through her bobbed light hair, and, snatching up her hat, jammed it on nonchalantly as she turned to the door.

"Wish you luck," was all she vouchsafed.

When she was alone Melita stood up with that same air of resolute decision and began to pull the pins out of her hair. Thick, straight hair, that was brushed smoothly back from her forehead and twisted into a single coil behind, fell to her waist. With something like fierceness she pulled off her tailored skirt, her severe blouse, and stood in her little fringed petticoat,

With something like horror she rc. membered that Arthur Bridges had said he would leave that brief of his with her to be copied! Arthur Bridges, the man who dictated letters to her every day and fed her work as though she were a well-oiled machine! "I've got to have some practice," she quavered, and stood up suddenly, icy of finger tip and fluttering of pulse. She heard her footsteps ring down the uncarpeted stairs, she could almost fancy they betrayed her fright, but when she pushed aside the portieres in her aunt's stiff sitting room she was nerved to desperation.

"How do you do, Miss Post. I brought you-" then the man with the broad shoulders and the grim face stopped suddenly and stared at her s though he had made a mistake. Melita tilted her head back and lifted her eyebrows.

"Oh, yes, that-that work. I never think of work after its all over," she said in a voice that shook in spite of her.

The grim young man in the chair by the window made no move, howver, to go.

Melita, leaning forward, so that the earrings dangled audaciously, lifted the cigarette box from the table at her side. She passed it to him silently and chose one herself, lighting it with fingers that were none too steady, and took a slight puff that almost strangled her.

"I won't keep you if you're going out-"

"Just to dinner," Melita said airily with a sidewise glance at the door. She almost fancied she had heard her aunt's step in the hall. She was quite aware that the man opposite was studying her from the flash of her sparkling comb to her really exquisite ankles.

"Miss Post," he said abruptly, "I'm going to say something for which you'll never thank me, but I've got to say it. You've been working for me now for almost a year. I admired everything about you-your dignity and your quiet charm and your difference from other women. It always rested me to come to the office to see you, and yet you were always so aloof. I-I-you'll think me an awful bounder, but I wish I could think of one girl as being simple and sweet and old-fashioned. You're too lovely to descend to this sort of thing-" and he brought his hand down on the cigarette box with a crash. 'You mean?'

"I mean that I admired you more than any woman I knew. That I was going to try-" He lifted his hat and gloves from the chair beside him.

Melita saw him stand up, Her heart began to pound in a terrifying way, she tried to speak but her voice sounded hoarse.

"Tomorrow is New Year's," he said slowly, "lots of people begin all over-

"I almost believe," whispered Melita, "that it would be nice to begin all over, just to be simple and-and-A new light flashed into the steady gray eyes.

He held out his hand. "Would you?" he asked tentatively, "have dinner with me at my mother's? It's out in the country; very different from all this sort of thing

SPANIEL GETS GOLF BALLS LCOKING AFTER THE CATTLE

Not Alone in Poorer Districts of Ireland Are Animals Sheltered With the Family.

It is well known that the pigs beonging to the poorer peasants in the villages of Ireland are practically members of the family." The house is to all intents and purposes their ightful lodging and eating quarters. Ireland, however, is not the only country in which one may find live stock indoors, as in the outlying villages in the northern part of Russia the family cow (nearly every household owns one) is under shelter for eight months out of every twelve, says London Answers.

The whole countryside is a mass of snow for months on end, and 40 to 50 legrees below zero is not uncommon; so the poor beasts have to be cooped up. They are fed-or, rather, nearly starved, on senna grass, collected and stored by the Russians during the short summer, and they emerge when the snow has disappeared very thin indeed.

Although living in the same habitation as their owners, they are allotted separate apartment. The chickens re also sheltered in the living and sleeping rooms and are "hutched" in the fireplace.

The fire actually is about two and a half feet above the level of the floor, and with a few thin pieces of wood the aperture underneath is easily converted into a cozy place for the fowls in the winter.

In the village in the Nile district, where the houses have flat tops, the natives make use of the roofs to 'house" their smaller live stock, such as sheep, goats and poultry.

STILL LIVE IN "STONE AGE"

Film Party in New Guinea Discovers People Who Are Interesting Relics of the Past.

Adventures in the wilds of New Guinea were experienced by a film party in a small motor launch, the Wattle. The expedition cruised along the coast of New Guinea, three times grounding on uncharted reefs, and each time the hydrographic staff carefully corrected the charts carried. A week or so later a storm picked up the Wattle and impaled it on a coral spur. After unwelcome labor in a shade temperature of 104 degrees the launch was refloated. In one place the visitors found that the people were still in the Neolithic age, stone axes and adzes being in general use. The camera expert was interested in the weav ing of cloth by the natives. A special tree was selected and cut down with a stone adze. The bark was beaten and loosened, turned inside out and placed in the sun to dry. Then it was soaked in water and again dried. Finally it was cut into lengths with a sharpened flat stone like a chisel. The journey up the Ramu river, in New Guinea, was rendered difficult by the hidden logs and sometimes only four and one half miles were covered in the day. Sixty days were spent in that river, the Wattle pushing up about 170

English Dog Source of Considerable Revenue to Small Boy, His Owner and Colleague.

The Manx seagull who seized a golf ball from under the very niblick of a player, was a spoil-sport as well as a gourmand. His conduct can be extenuated only on the plea of defective education. Very different it is with the spaniel who plies a steady trade on certain links in Cornwall, England. The course lies along the cliff top, with a steep seaward slope strewn with loose rocks and thick with gorse and all kinds of tangled growth. Many a ball goes bouncing down. From the doorstep of a cottage looking on the links, an amiable spaniel watches. Is it fancy which sees his brown eyes glisten when a new ball is abandoned? When the last golfer hies home, the spaniel's hour comes. Unhasting, systematic, he works that bank of rock and heather, where four feet have so great an advantage in security, and the nose is a safer guide to hidden treasure than the eye. His accomplice, a mere boy, who acts as storekeeper and accountant, receives the proceeds on the brink. Up and down trots the traveling member of the firm, till darkness is complete, and he lolls homeward behind his colleague, whose pockets bulge with treasure to be exchanged tomorrow with its former owners or their friends for coin.

BUSY MAN GATHERS NICKELS

New York Street Musician Might Be Said to Be a Whole Concert in Himself.

A whole choir seems to burst forth into music along Chambers street these evenings as the workers are rushing along homeward bound, the New York Sun states.

There is a volume of song supported by an organ accompaniment. At first it seems as if some singing band had taken possession of the street. No one would imagine for a moment that one human being could be responsible for all this music.

But the crowd, pausing for a brief second, discovers that this is the case. Drawn up to the curb is a street organ which the owner is operating with one hand. With the other hand he holds a megaphone through which he sings. Not having a third hand, the singer-player cannot accept the tributes of passersby while the concert is in progress, but this concert, like all such affairs, has its intermission when the orchestra becomes for the time being the business manager.

Smuggling in "Merrie England."

Smuggling and illicit trading were common enough in England a century ago, according to the journals of the day-but more often than not the subrosa transactions were in things to eat. This was especially true of game, which was very scarce in town and seldom offered for sale. That is, it was not offered openly except at holiday time, but, none the less, hare and game birds appeared on many din-looking with disgust at the white face that stared back at her.

Quickly she went to the door, locked it softly, and then pulled open her bottom bureau drawer.

She laid a sleeveless black frock with a deep-cut V on the bed, then, on hands and knees, she drew from their hiding place a lip pencil, a pair of green earrings with swinging loops, a high carved comb with a sparkle of green and brilliant jade-colored slippers and stockings.

With the same concentration that she lent to her office work, she bent over the picture of May Arline, the movie actress, and, studying the folds of waved hair on the actress' head. she began to twist and torture her own hair into something like a copy. Her arms ached and she took down her hair three times in despair before the result she desired grew into shape.

When she had slipped into the sleeveless frock and felt the earrings swing against her cheek as she moved she looked at herself. The old Melita still gazed at her from the pitiless mirror until she lifted the lip pencil and made her lips into a soft red bow that mocked from her white face. Just a tiny shadow under the eyes and she would be through.

She stood watching herself with her heart palpitating, dropped her eyelashes, lifted them as she had seen Nellie do with greatest effect, smiled back over her shoulder, and blew a kiss with airy affectation from the palm of her hand.

"Disgusting !" she said, suddenly flinging herself down in a chair. "I won't go through all those tricks and-"

She stopped. Wasn't it worth going through all those studied wiles for the sake of a home of her own?

Melita visualized the very house, tiny and white, with brilliant green shutters, and polished bell-pull. She walked through the fresh rooms of her dream house, sweet with flowers in blue bowls, watched the curtains blowing in the breeze, straightened the white and gold plates in the dining room on the table set for two, and came back to reality with a painful jerk.

"Miss Melita! Genneman to see you!" a voice called outside her door.

"I might," said Melita with the trace of hesitation.

She heard his words, then his plans for the morrow while she smiled faintly, wondering if any of it could be true

But when the door had closed after couch and laid cold hands on her burning cheeks.

"And yet I'm sure he wouldn't ever have asked me if he hadn't thought | bined. The kingdom was Albania. I was really a vamp!" She snatched off her earrings, rubbed the back of banians, repelled 20 separate invaher hand across her mouth and told the star-eyed girl in the gilt mirror, nearly 1,000,000 Turkish soldiers were "I'm going to keep my resolution, I think !"

"Why, Certainly."

Have you ever noticed how certain of your acquaintances become identified in your mind with expressions which they habitually use?

All of us have our "I'll Say So" friends, our "Listen" friends, and other friends who use expressions that have become so trite from much repetition that we almost shrink from them as a vulgarism.

A housewife tells us the story of her butcher who always replies "Why, certainly." to every inquiry of hers as to the quality of what she is buying. The other day when she asked him if he could give her a real nice cut of porterhouse and his reply was "Why, certainly," she snapped out: "We've been living off of 'why certainlies' from your[®] store for three monthsplease send us some real meat this time."-Exchange.

Master of Style.

The truth of the matter is, that neither he who is a fop in the world is a fit man to be alone, nor he who has set his heart much upon the world, though he has never so much understanding; so that solitude can be well fitted and sit right but upon a very few persons. They must have enough knowledge of the world to see the vanity of it, and enough virtue -to despise all vanity; if the mind be possessed with any lust or passions, a man had better be in a fair than in a wood alone. They may, like petty thieves, cheat us perhaps and pick our pockets in the midst of company, but like robbers they use to strip and bind, or murder us, when they catch us alone. This is but to retreat from men to fall into the hands of devils .--Abraham Cowley.

Guernsey's Oldest Charter.

Just recently a search in the archives of Exeter cathedral has brought to light the oldest charter relating to the royal court of Guernsey, and confirming a grant of land by Peter Viver to the abbey of Mont St. Michel. This in itself would be interesting, but the document reveals one or two other important historical facts, viz., that the president of the court of Guernsey in 1179 was called viscomte, and therefore administered as a duchy was, and that the court was a royal court (Curia Regia). It was only in later years that a measure of self-government was conferred on the islanders.

Rival for the Skunk.

Muskrats force themselves occasionally upon one's attention in India by their habit of entering a bungalow and ambling slowly round the rooms, talking loudly to themselves all the time in a chittering voice.

Aithough ratlike, the muskrat is not really a rat, but a large shrew, protected by an extreme degree of offensive odor like sickeningly strong musk, which it emits at will.

If not interfered with it will soliloquize round the room, picking up insects attracted by the light, and wander out again; but let anyone assault it, and the room will scarcely be habitable for a time. Dog or cat only attacks a muskrat once in its life, and the mongoose moves politely out of its way

That is the meaning of the continuous noise which it makes as it goes along-a sort of alarm bell to let all concerned know that something is coming which is best left alone.

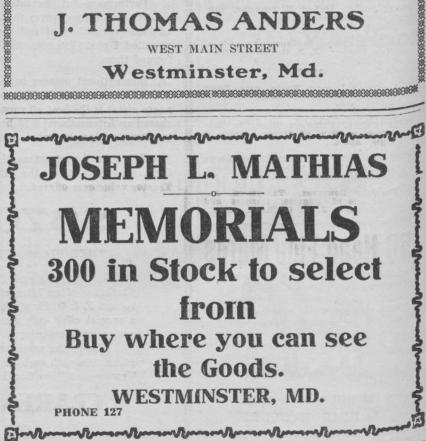

Tumbleweed.

If one crosses the western prairies of the great Arkansas valleys, and happens to be there in the fall, during a high wind, one may see a very strange sight. Antelopes, rabbits, prairie dogs, and sometimes even herds of cattle racing along the plains pursued by strange balls, nearly as tall as a man! These balls, when seen a little nearer, seem to be masses of sticks stuck closely together. The plant that forms these balls is called the tumbleweed. Botanists call it Cycloma plalyphylium. It belongs to a genus of plants that grow into a thick, round mass of small branches, attached to the roots each by a small stem that, in the fall, becomes dry and brittle. As the autumn winds sweep over the prairie the stems of these plants go leaping and bounding along, scattering their seeds as they go.

ASA RELIES ON GOD

LESSON TEXT-II Chronicles 14:1-12. GOLDEN TEXT-Help us, O Lord our God; for we rest on Thee.-II Chron. 14:11. REFERENCE MATERIAL-II Chron. 14:13-16; Isa. 41:10-13.

PRIMARY TOPIC-A King Who Trusted JUNIOR TOPIC-God Helping Asa

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC -A Ruler Who Relied on God. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC

The Source of Personal and National Power. I. Asa's Reformation (vv. 1-5). Asa was the grandson of Rehoboam, Both his grandfather and father favored idolatry, but in spite of this record of his ancestors, Asa had a will of his own, and though young when he came to the throne, inagurated a campaign of reform which brought great good. He not only had the handicap of the idolatry and immortality fostered by the two former kings, but he had to contend against the influence of his mother who had encouraged immoral worship (I Kings 15:13). In order to carry out his reformatory measures he had to wrest authority from her by deposing her. Asa dld that which was good and right in the eyes of the Lord (v. 2).

1. Cleared the land of idolatrous emblems and images (vv. 3, 5). (1) Strange altars. These were the altars devoted to other gods. (2) High places. These were places where unlawful sacrifices were offered. (3) Broke down the images. These were upright stones connected with idolatrous worship. (4) Cut down the groves. These were trees or poles connected with tree worship. He had all these relics of idolatry destroyed in Jerusalem and other cities throughout his kingdom.

2. Commanded Judah to seek the Lord (v. 4). He knew that if the reformation was to be effective it must be by the positive seeking after and worshiping of God, accompanied by obedience to His commandments. Destructive work avails little unless followed by constructive.

II. Asa's Defensive Preparations in the corner or general post. (vv. 6-8).

1. Built fortified cities (v. 6). The cities are not named, but the meaning. doubtless, is that it was a general system of defense which involved the cities at strategic points.

2, He erected walls about the cities (v. 7). These were usually of stone. Upon the walls were observation towers from which the position and movements of the enemy could be seen, and from which defensive warfare could be waged.

3. Made gates and barred them (v. 7). The reason he assigns for these defensive preparations was that they had sought the Lord God. Those who really trust God will make every effort to provide defense.

4 Had an army of spear These spearmen were also protected with large shields. The army was made up of 480,000 brave men. They were prepared to wage an offensive as well as a defensive war.

III. Asa's Victory Over Zerah, the Ethiopian (vv. 9-12).

1. Asa set the battle in array (v. 10). He went out to meet the enemy. de first made a disposition of his means of defense. This was wisdom on his part. Intelligent faith moves the possessor to do first that which is within his power.

2. Asa's prayer (vv. 11, 12). He cried unto the Lord. He sought the source of national power. In this prayer note (1) his conscious helplessness. As he faced the Egyptian army two to one against him, he was clearly conscious of his impotency. The first requisite in obtaining help from God is conscious weakness. The Christian conquers not by self-reliance, but by self-distrust and faith in God. (2) Appeals to God for help. He knew that though they were helpless before the mighty enemy, with God's help they could win the victory. One man with God is a majority. (3) Reposes faith in God. The word "rest" means to lean upon-to cast the entire weight upon. In the measure that we realize our need of support will we lean hard upon God. (4) Advanced courageously. He went forth depending upon God to fight for him. Real faith does not wait until it sees its way clear, but goes forth expecting God to clear the way. (5) Flung himself upon God's arms. "O Lord, thou art our God." His cause was God's cause. If God has taken us for His people, and if we have taken Him for our God, no enemy can prevail against us. May we experimentally say, "Thou art my God," and hear Him say, "I am thy God !'

The hitching post shortage, in Tan- sermon. eytown, is growing worse, instead of better, and some action should be taken to provide accommodation for teams. Perhaps there are some vacant lot fronts that might be used, if official inquiry was made. The business men of the town, in co-operation the messages. Services each evening with the authorities, ought to solve this question.

It develops that our local of last week unintentionally omitted giving credit to all who were instrumental in securing stone for the improvement of the Uniontown road, adjoining town. It was not a one man effort. We are also informed now, that the stone will be sufficient to cover the road much further than was stated, and that property owners, generally, using the road, will help to haul and place the stone.

The Taneytown High School will hold a declamation contest in the Opera House, on Tuesday evening, April 4. The exercises wil begin at 7:30. Music by both the elementary and High School pupils will be a feature of the program. The winner of the declamation contest will represent Taneytown High School in the Carroll County contest to be held in Westminster. The public is cordial- 2:30. ly invited to be present. No admission will be charged but an offering will be lifted to help defray expenses.

Taney Lodge No. 28, I. O. O. F., of this place, is taking a new step in furnishing a high grade concert for its members instead of the usual spring banquet. The Metropolitan Glee Club has been secured for Wednesday evening, April 12, and the concert will be given in the Opera House. Cards of admission will be distributed to the members a week or more before the date of the concert, and the card will admit a member and his wife or friend. No tickets will be for sale, as the membership of the lodge will probably fill the house to its capacity.
