Decoration Day Program.

The program for Decoration Day will be as outlined in last week's issue. The various fraternal orders, the American Legion, and all who will join in the parade, except children, will meet at the Hall at 1 o'clock, prompt.

The children will meet at the public school building at the same hour. The marshals will take charge of parade, which should start promptly at 1:30, and visit the Catholic, Lutheran and Reformed cemeteries, headed by the Band.

After the parade and decoration of graves, the program will be continued in the Opera House, in charge of Rev.
Guy P. Bready. It will consist of band selections, prayer, several patriotic vocal numbers, a reading by Father Quinn, and the oration by Prof.
Wm. James Heaps, of Baltimore.

Rev. Murray E. Ness will lead the singing of the patriotic numbers, and will sing as a solo "When America Comes." During the program, a parade flag will be presented to Hesser-nyder Post Loyal Legion, the gift of the P. O. S. of A.

Without waiting for further special invitation, all Superintendents of Sunday Schools, the flower committee, and various organizations, are all requested to co-operate, as in other years, to make the afternoon an appropriate success.

Visiting members of any of the organizations are invited to join in. This is no one-Lodge affair, but as nearly as possible one of co-operative effort —a community observance of the occasion.

W. M. R. R. Schedule Changes.

Changes in schedule in the interest of daylight-saving time, effective from June 19 to August 27, will be made by the Western Maryland Railway Company, approval having been given by the Public Service Commission.

The "milk train" will leave Union Bridge at 6:10 A. M. (standard time), instead of 6:30, and the Blue Mount-tain Express, which has hitherto left Hagerstown at 6:30 A. M. (standard time) will leave at 6 A. M., reaching Baltimore at 9 A. M. (standard time).

A Change in Make-Up.

Beginning with next week, our popular "Special Notice" Column will occupy the first and second columns on 5th page, instead of the centre of the 8th page. This column will be as valuable to advertisers in the new location as in the old; and the change will be very advantageous to us in handling the increasing number of double column advertisements.

A FREAK HAIL STORM. Merely a Streak through the Centre of Taneytown.

Last Friday afternoon, shortly after 1 o'clock, a remarkable hail storm visited Taneytown. The fall lasted only a few minutes, but covered the ground like snow, and in some places in drifts. The hail was round, like small camphor balls, and very white.
The centre of the fall was apparently over York and Frederick streets, and barely extended, either east or west, to the limits of the town, or not over 1/4 mile in width. Outside of the town there were scattering falls for several miles in the same general directions, but Taneytown received the chief visitation.

Some gardens were badly cut up, but others were only slightly hurt.
A number of small lots of peas for the cannery were badly injured. Very few saw such a heavy fall of hail in their lives, but have seen larger stones and greater damage from lighter falls. It seems that the uniform roundness of the stones, and the heavy fall of rain, must have operated toward preventing greater damage.

(For the Record.)

It is the little things; the things that are despised; the things that are not; the things that we consider beneath our notice, that go to make up the great sum of our lives; and not least in importance is knowing how to shut a door, and do it.

It may be you do not have to go to your next neighbors to hear that sharp command, as the children go rushing from one room to the other, "shut that door." I have heard it in New Zealand, in Australia, in Canada, in the United States, and oft in my boyhood days. I have heard it in the homes of the rich and the poor; the highly educated and refined and those of coarser brain and less polished in manners.

If the children obeyed the command at all, as a rule, it was shut with a bang that shook the house from cellar to garret; that shocked the nerves of the poor tired mother; that gave the sick a fresh paroxysm of pain; waked the baby, and created an air of unrest and disquiet throughout the whole house, and stirred up the devil of nervous irritation generally.

Now, why all this nerve racking disorder? First, because the parents have not taught the children from infancy to obey; and when old enough, how to open and to shut a door noiselessly. Habits are like noxious weeds; they soon get a firm, deep root, and are hard to eradicate, especially the bad ones.

Children are just what we educate them to be, and the habit is not fixed in a day, or with one telling, especially the good ones. After fifty years of close observation, and twenty years of childhood, I am convinced few have learned the art of opening and closing a door noiselessly; at least if they have, they do not put it into practice.

We are now living in a great apartment-house, and there is one continual slam—bang of doors from cellar to garret; and just now, there is one in every suite whose life is made miserable by this thoughtless practice, and largely due to not having been taught the secret, in childhood.

To open. Take hold of the knob; push or pull the door hard against the facing, then turn the knob, and presto, the door opens silently. To shut the door. Take hold of the knob; turn the latch; softly press the door against the facing; then release the latch; and the spring will do the rest, and, presto, you have shut the door noiselessly.

It will take no more time, when you get the habit fixed in your mind, and give you an air of refinement and good breeding that will go without saying, you were not "brought up in a saw mill."

Frederick County Fruit Prospects

While reports from various districts of the county indicate that the fruit yield in these sections will be fair, the fruit growers in the vicinity of Frederick are extremely pessimistic.
One of the largest orchardists in the county stated last night that he expected a 1% peach crop and an apple yield of 33 1/3%.

A leading apple orchardist of near Frederick stated that he looked for a very light yield. "I do not believe that it will be as large as it was last year," he said. He added that it would be hard to tell for certain until the first of June. The frosts coming late in April are blamed for the threatened shortage of fruit.

A leading orchardist of the vicinity of Emmitsburg, on the other hand, is reported to have asserted that he expects the finest kind of a yield of apples and peaches. It is not known whether he took measures to protect his fruit against the chills of last month, accounting for his saving his fruit.
It is understood, however, that fruit growers in that section and in adjacent Adams county, Pa., feel optimistic over the prospects of a fruit yield.—Frederick News.

In New York, last week, a prisoner under death sentence for murder, was operated on for acute appendicitis.
It is expected that he will have fully recovered by the time he is scheduled to be electrocuted.

FARMERS REPORTED AGAIN PROSPERING.

Purchasing Power increased and Products Gain in Value.

A special Washington news dispatch to the Baltimore Sun, recites various facts and figures showing that prosperity is returning to farmers.
The Department of Agriculture shows that the purchasing power of the farmer has increased, since the last harvest and over the winter, between 20 and 25%, enjoyed a broad, general advance of about 20% in the prices of his products and raised his financial standing, through the enhanced value of all he produces, by a sum so great that it cannot be accurately measured.

Within that short space of time, during which no crops were harvested, the summary shows, crops and live stock have advanced from a level three points below the average of 1913, or pre-war prices, to a point 15% in excess of it.

Markets continue on the upward trend, and as the farmers of the country are at least 35% of the entire population, their prosperity forms a basis for industrial and national prosperity than which there is none more sound or secure.

Here are some of the things that a comparison between prices now and prices six months ago, as checked up at the department, shows:

Wheat has risen from $1.07 to $1.44 a bushel and is still rising.
Corn has gone up from 47 cents to 63 cents a bushel, a 16-cent rise.

Cotton was selling in December at around 17 cents a pound; today it is fluctuating around the 21-cent mark.
Hogs have risen from 7.25 to 10.40 cents a pound, a climb of more than 40 per cent.

Wool values have shot up within the past 30 days.
Sheep and cattle alone have failed to keep step with the forward march of farm prices, but even those values are on the increase.

Back in 1913 the farmer's dollar would buy a dollar's worth of goods at the store. That was 100% value.
Last December, however, the farmer's purchasing power had fallen to 55%.
That fall was due to the fact that, while farm prices had deflated to the last cent, the prices of other commodities were still far above the pre-war levels. In the six months that have elapsed since last December the farmer's purchasing power has risen to 67% of the 1913 standard. He has been coming back at the rate of 2 per cent a month.

Increase in the farmer's purchasing power is attributed at the department to two things—the increase in the prices of farm products and a further decrease, though light, in the prices of other commodities.

An upward swing in the cost of food stuffs may be expected in retail markets should the trend of prices on the farm continue on its present way. The increased retail price, however, it is pointed out, should not be great.

Indications are that the farmer's prosperity will be enhanced this year not only by the increased prices, but, in some particulars, by increased bulk of products. An illustration of this tendency is shown in returns covering the number of brood sows on farms April 1 last, a census of which has just been completed. The figures show an increase of 11 percent, or more than 1,200,000 animals in excess of the number a year ago.

This is interpreted as meaning that the farmers will raise at least 5,000,- 000 more hogs for the market this year than they did last. With hogs topping 10 cents a pound, this one item will add approximately $100,- 000,000 to the farmers' income.

15 Young Ministers Graduated.

The ninety-sixth year of the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Gettysburg was brought to a close last evening with the commencement exercises, in Christ Lutheran Church, at which fifteen young ministers received their diplomas. All have received calls to various churches and they will enter upon their active ministry within a very few weeks. The address to the graduates was made by Dr. A.
R. Wentz, and the diplomas were presented by Dr. J. A. Singmaster, president.

The members of the graduating

Sykesville Minister Killed.

Rev. Wm. G. Marshall, aged 70 years, pastor of St. Barnabas' Protestant Episcopal Church, Sykesville, was run down and killed by an automobile, on Charles St., Baltimore, on Tuesday, at noon. Rev. Marshall started to cross the street, and stepped from behind a parked car immediately in front of a rapidly moving car, which struck him and threw him about 20 feet, fracturing his skull.

Commencement Week at Blue Ridge.

The 22nd. annual commencement exercises will begin tonight, Friday, and continue until Wednesday evening.

The program will begin with a joint meeting of the two preparatory societies and the Collegian Society and a program will be rendered. Much preparation is given to this exercise as it represents the final appearance of the societies and exemplifies the work done by them throughout the year. This will be followed on Saturday night by a musical concert given by the music department of Blue Ridge under the supervision of Prof.
W. Z. Fletcher.

On Sunday morning at 11 o'clock exercises will be conducted by the teacher training classes in the Chapel.
In the evening Vesper services will be held on the campus by the Christian Associations and at 8 o'clock the Baccalaureate sermon will be preached in the auditorium. Rev. Charles B. Segelken, of Steelton, Pa., will deliver this sermon. Monday at 10, President Murphy will address the Seniors in the Chapel, and at 2, the preparatory school graduates will have their exercises consisting of the class play and several other numbers. In the evening the College Seniors will have their exercises.

Tuesday morning will be given to athletics. At 10 o'clock the strong Gallaudet College nine will play on the college athletic field. Practically the same team which sent Washington College to defeat, on Saturday, to the tune of 7-3, will represent Blue Ridge and a great game is expected. This game will conclude the baseball schedule for this year. Plenty of college spirit will be exhibited both by the students and the Alumni members and other visitors to the commencement exercises.

The Alumni Association will conduct a business meeting in the Chapel at 1 P. M., followed by a banquet at 4 o'clock. Greater Blue Ridge night will be celebrated at 8 P. M. The exercises will be concluded on Wednesday morning by an address by Rev.
John D. Lindsay, Shippensburg, Pa., and the conferring of degrees. Those receiving the degree of Bachelor of Arts are: Margaret V. Graybill, Homer W. Guyton, Marshall R. Wolfe, S.
Alton McDaniell and Norman A. Wilson. The degree of Doctor of Divinity will be conferred upon Rev. Walter E. Smith, of Baltimore, and upon Rev. Charles B. Segelken, of Steelton, Pa. Both candidates for this degree are graduates of old New Windsor college and have been careful students since.

The following will receive diplomas from the College Preparatory department: Lillian Baker, Ernestine Bennett, Lera Bowman, Carroll Brandenburg, Naomi Coffman, Gladys acre. From the Muic Teachers' course Mary Hampstead. Those finishing the business course: Susan Fritze, Evelyn Blacksten, Charles Otto, Mildred Ensor, Alma Birkhead, Mabel Brown, Lewis Reese, Walter Bennett

Monrovia Bank Robbed.

Burglars broke into the bank at Monrovia, Frederick county, on Saturday night, May 20, and plundered several safe deposit boxes, carrying away valuable securities, mostly bonds.
The amount of the loss will not be known until depositors make a return of their inventories of contents of the rifled boxes. During the day preceding the robbery, a car bearing a Pennsylvania license tag was seen passing and re-passing the bank, and the number on the tags on this car has been reported to the authorities, who will follow this clue.

WILL NOT SUPPORT SENATOR FRANCE.

Baltimore American States What Its Course Will Be.

The Baltimore American, in commenting on the Senatorial situation, and the apparent attitude of the Republican leaders toward keeping hands off, and letting Senator France have the nomination by default, states very plainly what its course will be in that event, as follows:

"As matters stand now, the nomination promises to go to Joseph I.
France virtually by default. If the party's recognized leaders have not the energy or the vision or the devotion to their party's interests to prevent such a mistake, then let men like Mr. Baetjer, Mr. Baker, Mr. Wilcox, Mr. Goldsborough, Mr. Lowndes, Mr. Garrett, Mr. Shaw, Mr. Gary, Mr.
Stevenson Williams, step in.

The American does not know whether the present Republican leaders care for its support, but since they have had it in the past for good candidates, for indifferent candidates and for bad candidates, it is but fair, we think, to make clear that support of that indiscriminating character should not longer be expected. And it is better to say now rather than later that the nomination of Senator France, who, in The American's judgment, has not properly represented either his party or his State in the Senate, would compel The American to do what it could do to accomplish his defeat in the November election."

M. R. R. Shops.

General regret is felt in Hagerstown following the announcement from Baltimore of the certainty of the removal of the Western Maryland shops from Hagerstown to that city, the statement being confirmed at Hagerstown by Superintendent A.
A. Smith. The drastic change, according to President Byers, has ceased to be a rumor and to Hagerstown it is a staggering blow to business generally, the removal of the shops meaning the loss of many thousands of dollars and many men being thrown out of employment.

A Western Maryland official said the strike is ended as far as the Western Maryland Railroad is concerned and that the men who are now out on protest of the contract plan will never be re-employed. Efforts of business men and merchants in Hagerstown to effect a reconciliation between the strikers and the railroad failed.

It is stated that the Western Maryland paid annually in taxes to the county and city approximately $60,- 000. This sum, it is figured by esti-mators, will have to be made up in some other way in the form of taxation.

Who Owns the Pearl?

Atlantic City, May 23.—When a cook opening clams tries one, almost chokes on a pearl which is dislodged from her throat by thumps on her back administered by startled members of the household, does the pearl belong to the domestic or her employers, who bought the clams? That is a moot question in fashionable circles of Ventnor City today and it seems probable that the ultimate decision will be up to the courts.

Lottie Gray cook for Mrs. O. J. last night choked on the pearl. One Mammell, preparing the evening meal of the Mammell family, noticing her distress, struck her sharply on the back and the pearl, a large, perfectly formed gem, popped from her throat.
Lottie picked it up and promptly pocketed it.

Mrs. Mammell, recognizing the value of the pearl, insisted the cook turn it over; and when Lottie failed to comply, sought assistance of the police. They refused to interfere when the cook saw a lawyer who told her she was within her legal rights in keeping the pearl.

Now Mrs. Hammell, who is active in social and political circles in Ventnor City, threatens to take the matter to the courts.—Phila. Ledger.

we suggest the adoption of it by our ex-

Every fellow who dies, injures himself, or causes trouble of any kind on account of his drinking "bootleg," is now held up as a proof of the iniquities of prohibition, as though when "real liquor" was sold there were no such cases. We venture the assertion that the "boot-leg" cases—numerous as they are—were multiplied many times over, in the good old "wet" days, but were so common and matter-of-course that the newspapers did not report half of them—it was not to their interest, then, to do so.

What is the Idea?

What is the idea connected with the printing of caricatures of prominent men, yet which are not intended to be caricatures in an offensive sense?
Some of these so-called representations of men are so crude as to be unrecognizable, even as poor pictures of the men whose names are attached to them.

Libelous interest is absent, but none the less these pictures come near being libelous in fact; and at least show a familiarity and liberty that makes the publishers willing contributors to ward the creation in the minds of the general public of a feeling of disrespect toward the victims of the artist's paid for misrepresentations.

Surely there is a strong enough tendency on the part of many who make up our mixed general public, to lightly estimate our best men in public and social life, without fostering it in so open a manner as is practiced by the daily press. It is another case of "rocking the boat," of which we already have too many varieties.

Every man entitled to respect, should be respectfully pictured, or not at all; unless indeed he consents to be caricatured as a joke, or for some special purpose.

Higher Taxes Unpopular.

The vote on the Bond issue demonstrated one general fact, aside from the merits of the question itself; and that is, the people are in no humor, just now, for voting higher taxes on themselves. It may be an entirely foolish desire, to both want improvements, and yet not want to pay for them, but something approaching that condition is with us now. Almost everybody would like to see state roads everywhere, and a good many are favorable toward better school buildings; but "paying" for them is another matter.

Right or wrong, the feeling is strong against more taxes; there is widespread resentment against taxes, interest and rent payments, not always justifiable. As long as they are inflicted by somebody else, and necessity compels, we pay them; but, "voting them on" ourselves is another matter, and naturally, we seldom do so. To a large extent, we like to "hold on" to our money, at all times, and for all purposes, but it is least grudgingly spent when we do so of our own option.

Given half a chance, the average man will side-step the paying out of money, and especially money that returns to him only indirect benefits.
Easy money spending is when the object returns to the spender some gratification of a purely selfish desire, or stands for an investment likely to return profit. Voting for Bond issue is too much like "giving away" money.

The County Commissioners have a hard job, because it means trying to please everybody. One district may send a big delegation pleading the merits of a needed improvement, to which other districts are either totally unconcerned, or have like projects of their own that they would like put through; and treating every district alike, at the same time, is impossible, because of the cost. Even the passage of the Bond issue with its $350,000 for roads, would not more than have made a commencement toward building the roads that all of the districts would like to have.

We believe that if a program of economy in the cost of government could be inaugurated and rigidly inforced, beginning with the state expenses and continuing to the counties, enough of the present tax money could be saved to devote greatly increased sums to roads and schools.
But, this would require a fight, as it would meet with the opposition of partisan politics and put a lot of the "faithful" out of jobs, as well as cut down a lot of salaries.

But, we nevertheless believe it to be the proper starting point; and once in effect, the taxpayers would be more liberal in voting for, or agreeing to, higher taxes. At present, it is a well established opinion that too large a portion of the present taxes goes toward unnecessary expenditures for which the people as a whole get no benefit and they are not receptive to increasing the amount.

Who is to Blame?

Under the above caption the Sykesville Herald, that earnestly supported the Bond issue, gives its opinions on the result. It says among other things that the vote represents a "minority of the taxpayers, and does not furnish a safe basis for any kind of presumption on the part of the county authorities," also that the vote shows "indifference."

We think it might have been more nearly correct to have applied the "minority" status of the vote to "voters" rather than to "taxpayers," and that it is not safe to conclude that the vote is not representative of a large majority of the taxpayers, even though many of them thought it not worth while to vote. As a matter of fact, we believe there was a majority vote cast, as the vote last year for Clerk of the Court was 10,448, while the total on the Bond issue was 5759 or 535 more than half of the vote for Clerk.

However, we do not belittle the argument used, but give it in full for the benefit of our readers;

"Now since the Bond issue has been so decisively beaten, those who expressed themselves as in favor of it, will likely be wondering about where to place the responsibility. Many, of course, will lay it at the door of those who voted against it. And, it is true that these had their part in the result.
But even the friends of the movement are not entirely free from blame. Except in a few of the precincts, no effort was made either to build sentiment for the issue, or to get the vote out on Monday. Had there been a vigorous campaign, the result might have been different. Certain it is that a more general effort would have produced a more general expression on the part of the people. It was hoped by the County Commissioners, so that they might have some idea of just how the people felt towards the improvements, which had been proposed.
But the vote represents but a minority of the taxpayers, and does not furnish a safe basis for any kind of a presumption upon the part of the County authorities. Of what the majority would like to have done, they know little more than before. About the only conclusion to be reached is that the majority are indifferent, and do not care what the authorities do.
It is surprising and discouraging to have so limited a response to an invitation for an expression of opinion.
And for the still unsettled condition prevailing in the county, the voters who stayed away from the polls are to blame. They have declined to indicate whether they favor the program for school and road improvement, or whether they consider what we already have, as good enough. And this indifference to the responsibility which the franchise imposes is the greatest single obstacle to good government."

Voters ought to remember that their silence upon public questions does not lessen their responsibility.
That can only be met by some definite action. If now the entire plan to provide school buildings and roads should be abandoned, the responsibility for that situation can fairly be laid at the door of those men and women who attempted to evade a duty last Monday.

On the other hand, if the County Commissioners should feel forced to raise the tax rate to a point which will mean real hardship to many of those who must meet it, this same group of citizens will be responsible for that. And in either event, the severest criticism of whatever action may be taken will come from those who were too indifferent or too obstinate to either approve or object at the time action was called for. Situations like this almost drive one to feel that those citizens who will not use the ballot regularly ought to forfeit their right to employ it when they do happen to feel in the mood to resort to it.

The people are rulers in this country, and when the majority are indifferent to the responsibility of sovereignty, we have, inevitably, minority rule. And it is unfair to force upon a fraction of the people obligations which should be born by the entire electorate. This lack of interest in public affairs is not only unsatisfactory; it is unsafe. It is not the unscrupulous professional politician who is the chief foe to better government.
It is this wide-spread indifference to the responsibilities which the right to vote imposes. And when popular government proves to be a disappointment, it is due not to lack of capacity, but to lack of interest.

When any election day comes round, every voter should feel the same responsibility that would be realized had he exclusive and sole authority to decide the question to be voted upon.
There is a well-recognized political maxim that every right has its correlative duty, and to this rule, the right of franchise is no exception. The fact that should be uppermost in the citizen's mind is not that he can vote, but that he ought to vote. The ballotbox represents an obligation as well as an opportunity, and it is vastly more important to meet our duties than it is to take advantage of our privileges.

Do Something Yourself.

"There's never anything new in this town."

How often have you heard that remark? We had it hurled at us a couple of days ago.

And why is there nothing new?
Simply because everybody waits for somebody else to start something.
We are all ready to talk if the other fellow will do it, but too few of us are willing to take the initiative and "start something."

What made New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and all of the other great cities of the country? Was it their natural advantages alone, or the people who wait for others, or did they just happen?

It was neither of these. It was the ability and the initiative of their "do something" citizens. There is no place in those burghs for the fellow who waits.

We can do the same here, if we want to. Not on as large or gigantic scale, of course, but still we can improve our condition a thousand per-cent. if we only resolve to "do things"—and then do them.

There are just as many brains in this town, in proportion to population, as there are in New York, Chicago or Philadelphia, but they are like the sleeping volcano while the city man's brains are constantly in eruption.

It is time to wake up—to come out of our trance—it is time to "do something"—and we address this statement particularly to the friend who accosted us a couple of days ago.

We suggest that you do something, because we know that you have the ability to do. And when they see your brain working to a purpose others will sit up and start theirs to moving, too.

If you, reader, have ever made such a complaint of Middleton, we are talking to you, too. Shake the cobwebs from your brains, and in time you will find others keeping the pace right by your side. Do something yourself, and then you will never have occasion to say to others "there is never anything doing in this town."

A sleeping volcano never makes much smoke.—Middletown Valley Register.

diseases caused by constipation is appendicitis. If you would avoid this dangerous disease, keep your bowels regular. For this purpose Chamber-

The Deadly Tariff.

It does not look as if the tariff bill can be passed before the end of August at the earliest, and the probabilities favor a later date. Senator McCumber, one of its two putative authors, has declared in a moment of despair that at the present rate of progress it cannot be passed before 1946; but he is too pessimistic.

The probabilities as they stand are serious enough from a political standpoint. Most of the primaries that were not held in May will be held in September; and in this State we hold them in both months. If the tariff bill is passed just before the primaries, it will become the issue, perhaps the sole issue, and the idea of going to the people on Harding's record as a whole will be sloughed off.
Neither the Democrats nor the Republicans will like that prospect.

An untried and undigested tariff law in the past always has been an uncomfortable issue for everybody.
The ignorant and the half-baked always act as if it were already in operation and blame all their ills on it; and this makes it an especially bad issue for the party in power. On the other hand, it is full of unexpected possibilities which the party out of power does not know how to meet, and the result is a guess at the best way to treat the issue on the stump and in the press with the likelihood of offending some powerful interest even while getting the support of another.

The concealed dynamite is always nearer the spot where the party in power treads, and it is no wonder that Mr. McCumber and the other tariff chieftains on the Republican side are impatient and uneasy. The President, who by no means wants the tariff to be the main or sole issue, is undoubtedly less pleased than anybody else. The Democrats will have to revise their whole plan of campaign, which had been pretty fairly worked out, and they will have to abandon the appeals they had intended to make to certain interests in order to meet the new situation. It would suit everybody if the bill could be passed next week, with all its imperfections on its head, but, that is past praying for.— Phila. Ledger.

Lumbago.

This is a rheumatism of the muscles of the back. It comes on suddenly and is quite painful. Every movement aggravates the disease. Go to bed, keep quiet and have Chamberlain's Liniment applied and a quick recovery may be expected. Mrs. F. J. Dann, Brookport, N. Y., writes: "I can honestly say that Chamberlain's Liniment cured me of lumbago a year ago last summer. When I began using it, I was flat on my back in bed and could not turn to the left or right. I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment in the house and this was applied to my back. It promptly drove away the pains and aches."

First Train into the Ozark.

When the White River branch of the Missouri Pacific railroad was built down through the Ozarks, the population had never seen a railroad train.
The platform was crowded, and many women were there with their sunshades.

The engineer made a lot of unnecessary snortings with his engine and would reverse the throttle, causing the wheels to spin around, which terrified the people. Then he turned on the side valves, blowing out great jets of steam, and the people almost fell over themselves to back out of the way.

Finally the engineer stuck his head out of the cab window and sang out:
"If some of you ladies don't believe I can handle this critter much longer."

In three seconds every woman lowered her parasol, and they seemed much relieved when the engineer got his train in motion without further trouble and went lumbering away down the track.—Columbus (Kan.) Advocate.

Coal and Manchu's Ghost.

The Fushun coal mine of China is one of the largest open-cut mines in the world. The Tartars are known to have worked the mine in the Twelfth century.

For years the Chinese have been urged to work the mine, but Chinese officialdom has always pointed to the fact that the spirit of Tai-Tsu-Kao, a Manchu emperor, who was buried 10 miles away in the Seventeenth century must not be disturbed. Thus for centuries superstition kept over 1,000, 000,000 tons of coal untouched. In their efforts to open the mines, the Japanese not only found great official hostility to their scheme on the part of the Chinese officials, but even the native coolies were reluctant at first to work, through their fear of the sleeping Tai-Tsu-Kao, 10 miles distant.

Rainbows Shaken.

It is usually supposed that the downpour of rain that sometimes follows a flash of lightning is due to the coe-sistence of fine drops on losing their electrical charge, but a Finnish observer concludes that the thunder jars the drops together. Near Vasa a heavy thunderstorm came up from the east late one afternoon, and, as the sun was unclouded, a brilliant double rainbow appeared in the east for half an hour, arching from horizon to horizon.
At each roll of thunder the rainbows seemed to be much shaken, the wedge being displaced and the colors blurred.
This could not be due to the lightning, and it seemed that the same cause might enlarge the raindrops and disturb the rainbow.

The Flapper.

"Mother, you ought not to let daughter dress the way she does."
"How foolish you are, John. I depend on her to keep me posted on styles."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Let the Eagle Squall

Sneered Shiftless Sam: "I am not one of those fellows who squeeze a dollar until the eagle on it squalls. I spend my money as I go along and get some good out of it."

To which we reply: All right, old boy, but if you persist in that plan you will some day be doing the squalling instead of the eagle, and you will be hunting around for some prudent, saving man with money in the bank, to help you out. Nobody loves a miser, but if there is any squalling to be done, it is better to squeeze the dollar and let the eagle do it than it is to do your own squalling.

SELL POULTRY TO CONSUMER

Specialists Believe It to Be Most Profitable Method of Disposing of Best Fowls.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There are three general ways of selling poultry—direct to the consumer, direct to the retailer, or to commission merchants for selling on the open market. Selling direct to the consumer is believed by poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture to be the most profitable method of disposing of high-grade goods, for the charges of the middlemen are eliminated. Very often the producer is situated so that he can build up a retail trade among the families of a neighboring town or city, delivering his goods once or twice a week, or oftener if desired. In this way he can obtain a substantial increase over prices paid in the open market. Especially is this true in the case of strictly fresh eggs. Often it is possible to find customers in a town or city within reasonable hauling distance, taking eggs and poultry to them at regular intervals. Hotels, restaurants and clubs are good customers which can be supplied in this way by contract.

Often there are grocery and provision dealers catering to a select trade to whom the producer can sell regular supplies of eggs and poultry. Of course, the simplest way to sell produce is through the commission merchant. It does away with expense and trouble of private trades, but the returns usually are not so large, except when dealing with certain commission houses that have built up a fine trade along certain lines. The Department of Agriculture has several bulletins covering the subject of marketing poultry. Farmers' Bulletin 830, Shipping Eggs by Parcel Post, may be had free upon application to the division of publications; Farmers' Bulletin 528, Hints to Poultry Raisers, 5 cents; Department Bulletin 561, Feed Cost of Egg Production, price 10 cents, may be ordered of the superintendent of documents, government printing office, Washington.

BOWEL TROUBLE IN POULTRY

One Good Way to Prevent Ailments Is Not to Feed Anything Solid for Seventy-Two Hours.

"To prevent white diarrhea and bowel trouble, chicks should not be fed any solid feeds for at least 72 hours after hatching," says Harry Embleton, head of the poultry department of Oklahoma A. and M. college. "During this period, however, they should receive sour, skim milk when taken from the incubator, and this should be kept before them all the time. In addition to the milk they should receive some fine sand which acts as a grit."

"When beginning to feed solid feeds, feeding should be little and often. A commercial chick feed scattered in a finely cut litter accompanied with some rolled oats or johnny cake or a mixture of these feeds with hard-boiled eggs makes a very good feed for starting young chicks. Care should be taken not to overfeed them."

Bumble Foot Remedy

This trouble is an abscess on the bottom of the foot caused by a splinter in the foot or jumping off a high roost. If the roosts are at fault they should be remedied.

Tie a cord tightly around the leg above the foot to control the flow of blood. Open the abscess and thoroughly clean out the core. Disinfect in a dilute solution of tincture of iodine, after which apply a generous dressing of carbolic acid and bandage. In two days repeat the dressing of iodine and carbolic acid.

FIXED EGG-LAYING RATIONS

Poultry Keeper Should Determine on Feeds Best Suited to Conditions and Prices.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

All the following rations have been used with good results at the experimental farm at Beltsville, Md., conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture, but the poultryman should choose the ration best adapted to local conditions and prices. Feeds not included here may be added or substituted on the basis of their comparative analysis, provided the meat scrap or animal-protein feeds are not replaced by cottonseed meal or other high vegetable-protein feeds. All changes in the feed should be made gradually, as sudden changes may decrease egg production materially.

Ration No. 1, Mash.—16 lbs. cornmeal, 6½ lbs. meat scrap, 1 lb. bran, 1 lb. middlings. Scratch mixture: 1 lb. cracked corn, 1 lb. wheat, 1 lb. oats.

Ration No. 2, Mash.—2 lbs. cornmeal or barley meal, 1 lb. bran, 1 lb. middlings, 1 lb. meat or fish scrap. Scratch mixture: 2 lbs. cracked corn, 1 lb. oats, 1 lb. wheat or barley.

Ration No. 3, Mash.—3 lbs. cornmeal, 1 lb. meat scrap. Scratch mixture: 2 lbs. cracked corn, 1 lb. oats.

Ration No. 4, Mash.—9 lbs. cornmeal, 5 lbs. middlings, 4 lbs. bran, 2 lbs. cottonseed meal or gluten meal, 2 lbs. meat scrap, 2 per cent bone meal. Scratch mixture: 2 lbs. cracked corn, 1 lb. wheat, 1 lb. oats, 1 lb. barley.

Young Plymouth Rock.

Ration No. 5, Mash.—1 lb. cornmeal, 1 lb. bran, ¾ lb. meat scrap, 1 lb. middlings, 1 lb. ground oats. Scratch mixture: 2 lbs. cracked corn, 1 lb. wheat, 1 lb. oats, 1 lb. barley.

Ration No. 6, Mash.—3 lbs. cornmeal, 1 lb. bran, 1 lb. middlings, ½ lb. meat scrap. Scratch mixture: 2 lbs. cracked corn, 1 lb. wheat, 1 lb. oats. Feed with table scraps or cooked vegetables.

Ration No. 5 is adapted especially for yearlings or old hens of breeds inclined to get too fat, such as the Plymouth Rock, Orpington and Wyandotte. As cornmeal, fed with meat scrap, is very fattening, these two feeds are cut down in the rations.

With ration No. 6 feed all table scraps available, or vegetables at the rate of 5 pounds daily to 30 hens.

Five per cent bone meal may be used in any of these mashers, and the quantity of meat scrap reduced accordingly, or 2 per cent of bone meal may be added without changing the mashers.

FEEDS FOR BREEDING GEES

Equal Parts of Bran, Middlings and Ground Oats Mixed With Milk Is Excellent.

A good mash for breeding geese consists of equal parts of bran, middlings and ground oats mixed with milk. This can be given in the morning. Corn should be fed at night. Breeding geese may become too fat on a diet limited to corn. Their digestive system is better adapted to mash than to whole grain. If geese become too fat it injures the hatchability of the eggs. A mash consisting of equal parts by weight of cornmeal, ground oats and bran is also recommended for geese.

Provide roosts and dropping boards in the henhouse.

Some method must be found of keeping the chicks comfortable.

Don't feed chicks until they're from forty-eight to seventy-two hours old.

The best care to give a sitting hen is to leave her alone—she knows her business better than most men know it.

It is a hard thing to do, but use the hatchery on ailing fowls. Be sure that the ailment is not a fault of the caretaker.

Bran is an excellent summer feed for mature fowls, because it is neither fattening nor heating to the fowls. There is little danger of feeding too much of it.

HEIRS OF THE MIDDLE AGES

Artists of Today Are But Carrying On the Work of the Old Master Craftsmen.

The art of the Middle ages is really the art of youth. It has no finality, because that which it expresses can never be finished. It lives with unmeasured potentialities still before it. Until the Renaissance, and men's subsequent concentration upon commerce and science, it seldom rested in the West, but grew from one stage to another—as in our still living arts—of painting, and music, poetry, and the drama—we still move and change and grow.

The Middle ages were the age of youth. I do not mean merely of young nations, but of men who were building up the future and had unlimited development before them. It was our youth, and we are growing from it. In so far as our art lives—the art of our intelligentsia—it is growing from that stem. In so far as it is dead, it is in those forms of art which have ignored their own parentage, such as architecture, ornament, the crafts, and much sculpture, and have tried to form themselves from ancient models in the pedantry of the schools. They are cut off from the stem and they languish. But painting, like music and poetry, has gone on without a break and is alive today. . . . Let us take heart. We are the heirs of those old craftsmen.—Percy Dearmer.

ALL DOGS NOT COLOR BLIND

Belief That Has Long Been Held Is Now Declared to Be Entirely Wrong Impression.

An eminent authority once asserted that all dogs were color blind. He quoted, in support of his statement, the case of two pug dogs who were unable to distinguish the difference in color of the plates from which they were fed.

The color sense may be entirely lacking in pug dogs, which are not renowned for their sagacity; but to assume that every other dog is color blind is a deduction far from the truth.

Not only can dogs be trained to recognize color, but they possess the natural color sense in a very high degree. They can differentiate between various subtle shades and tones, and their likes and dislikes are strongly developed.

A fox terrier has been known to follow at a distance a perfect stranger, solely because she was wearing a dress similar in color to that worn by his mistress. Only upon approaching the woman did he find his mistake.

Advised "Flying Ships" for Mails.

More than 100 years ago when the United States mails were being transported by carriers on horseback, the editor of the Freeman's Journal, now the Norristown (Pa.) Herald, suggested the use of "flying ships."

In the issue of the Freeman's Journal of March 1, 1822, the editor wrote: "We would advise the postmaster general to avail himself of the novel and the very ingenious flying machine, invented by James Bennett of Philadelphia, by which we conceive, the mails would be transported with more celerity and their arrival at the places of destination be much more certain than is the case at present."

Postoffice records show that in 1833 a "wonderful feat" was performed in carrying the mail and news dispatches, by relays of horses every five miles, between Washington and New York, in 15 hours.

"Bird of Passage."

The earliest use of the term "bird of passage" is found in eighteenth book of the Natural History of Pliny the Elder (23-27 A. D.), where he says: "The bird of passage known to us as the cuckoo," and the term has since been applied to birds which migrate with a season from a colder to a warmer, or from a warmer to a colder climate, divided into summer birds of passage and winter birds of passage. Such birds always breed in the country to which they resort in summer, that is, in the colder of their homes.

The term is said to have been first applied to sailors by Bacon who declared that the uncertainty, instability and fluctuating state of human life was most aptly represented by those sailing the ocean.

Vast Sum Spent for Food.

The people of the United States spend more than $49,000,000 a day for food, or nearly $1,500,000,000 a month. Nearly one-third of the money goes for bread, potatoes, fruits, sugar and other food of a vegetable nature. More than two-thirds is spent for meat, fish, eggs, cheese and lard. The average householder hands over to the butcher more than one-fifth of his income. The people of this country consume in a year two and a half billion eggs and near ten and a half billion gallons of milk. But a large part of the milk goes to make 1,600,000,000 pounds of and 260,000,000 gallons of ice cream, butter, 400,000,000 pounds of cheese.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Rosewood Merely a Name.

Rosewood, so much used in making fine furniture, is not the wood of any rose tree, but is that of several species of tree, and so called because it has a perfume of roses and a generally rosy color. One kind comes from Surinam and is very fragrant; another from Brazil is the Dalbergia nigra F. All, according to Samuel J. Record of Yale. There is also a rosewood from Honduras which is considered the best in the world for xylophone bars.

MOLINE

The Universal Farm Power Plant

3-2 PLOW CAPACITY

The Moline is a 3-2 plow tractor that does all belt and field work, including cultivating, with ONE MAN. It is the correct farm power unit.

Records of performance made by owners with this tractor show that it eliminates an average of 4.7 horses per farm and saves on the yearly cost of crop production. That much money saved is just that much money made, in addition to the regular profit made from crop income.

If you want to make a profitable investment in farm power, come in and look at the MOLINE. And remember that—

If desired you can use the "drag behind" or horse-drawn implements you now have with the Moline tractor the same as with other types of tractors.

This Tractor is reduced to $1000.00 including Plows, Self-starter and Electric Lights.

Moline 3000-lb. Truck: it will pay you to get prices and have it demonstrated before buying. All kinds of Moline Machinery on hand. It will pay you to get prices on Manure Spreaders and all Machinery, before buying elsewhere.

Whooping Cough.

This is a very dangerous disease, particularly under five years of age, but when no paregoric, codeine or other opiate is given, is easily cured by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Most people believe that it must run its course, not knowing that the time is very much shortened, and that there is little danger from the disease when this remedy is given. It has been used in many epidemics of whooping cough, with pronounced success. It is safe and pleasant to take.

"Wharfo", brudder, does yo' rise up and snap yo' fingers at my abjurations." "You jes' reminds me, pahson, whar all I lef' ma jackknife," was the penitent response.

To Keep in the Shade.

In the early days there was a railroad in Tennessee which allowed its conductors to make their own rules affecting the traveling public. Sometimes one conductor had rules in direct conflict with the other. One of the conductors would permit passengers to take their dogs into the coaches with them. The conductor running opposite would not allow a dog on his train, not even in the baggage car. One day some hunters, returning to the city met the conductor who would not allow a dog to ride on his train. When the train left the station the dog followed tied to the train, and had no difficulty in keeping up with it.

When the conductor saw what was happening he was highly incensed over the disrespect shown to his train. "Watch your old dog when we start down grade," he stormed, "and see what happens to him." You think you are making fun of my train. A little later, when on the down grade, the conductor approached the rear platform, and not seeing the dog, called to the owner: "Now tell me, please, what has become of your dog." "Right here," retorted the passenger, pointing to a big hole in the floor of the coach, "see him under there? He just came under the coach to trot along in the shade."—The Argonaut.

They Go to Town no More.

The teams we used to drive to town can go to town no more.

Such isolation from the world they never knew before;

They used to meet the other teams from all the countryside.

Along the crowded hitching racks where all the teams were tied.

The horses now must stay at home and only men may go.

Through all the long and pleasant ways in cars that thunder so;

And as we leave the teams behind and throw the clutch too high,

The horses hang their head across the fence and say goodbye.

Perhaps it's fine to stay at home, perhaps they would not care

To trot the roads to town again and meet their neighbors there;

But horses used to visit much the same as men I know.

While gathered at the hitching poles not many years ago.

I think while men ride off in cars, the horses in the lot

Must stand and dream of happy days that men have most forgot;

I think they trot the roads again and make the buggies hum,

But men believe that horses laugh—in fact, they're weeping some.

The horses go to town no more to meet their friends—or foes—

Oh, they must stay at home in lots and wear their oldest clothes;

For men believe that this is right—the horses say 'tis not.

For towns were made to visit in and roads were made to trot.

—By Jonathan Johnson, R. F. D.)

Settling a Dispute.

Two fussy traveling saleswomen were riding in opposite seats in the train. One thought the car was too hot, the other said it was too cold.

Just then a dusky porter came through.

"Porter," commanded the first woman. "I wish you'd open that window I'm nearly smothered."

"Don't you do it!" snapped the other. "If you do I'll freeze to death. The porter scratched his head.

"What you 'spose Ah should do in a case like dat?" he asked a portly looking traveling man, about two seats to the rear, trying to enjoy a little reading:

"Open it a while and freeze one; then shut it and smother the other."

—Forbes Magazine.

RESTORING "DEAD" TO LIFE

Remarkable Effects of Substance Which the Medical Fraternity Knows as Adrenalin.

Within the last few months quite a number of cases have been reported of persons, who were to all intents and purposes dead, being restored to life. The instance which occurred in Yorkshire, when a woman, said by her doctor to be dead, showed signs of returning life within a quarter of an hour, is a case in point, writes the medical correspondent of London Tit-Bits.

There was also the case of a child, eleven months old, who apparently died while undergoing an operation, and could not be revived even by massage of the heart. The little one's body had actually become cold when the doctor made an injection of a substance called adrenalin.

The result of this treatment on the child's heart, which had ceased to beat for four minutes, was that it immediately began to beat again and the patient made a perfect recovery.

There is also on record the sudden dropping dead of a woman of thirty; in other words, she would have been left for dead by the ordinary practitioner, for she was pulseless, her heart had stopped beating, her jaws were set and her eyes glazed. Fortunately she was seen by a doctor who had had experience in the use of adrenalin. He injected a dose and soon the woman was sitting up and talking to her friends.

In cases where there is no disease or damage of any of the vital bodily organs, restoration to life is quite possible if the appropriate remedy can be applied in good time.

Cures of Early Days.

Some idea of the state of the medical profession in the early colonial period of America can be gained by reading a prescription recommended by Sir Kenelm Digby, an eminent English writer, to John Winthrop, Jr., in 1656. The medicine was for "miraculous cures in all sorts of vicers, and by knitting suddenly broken bones." Here is the prescription:

"Beate to subtle powder one ounce of crabbes eyes, then putt upon it in a high glass (because of the Ebullition) four ounces of strong vinegar. It will instantly boyle up extremely; let it stand till all be quiet; then strain it through a fine linnen; and of this liquor (which will then taste like dead beere without any sharpness) give two spoonfulls att a time to drink three times; and you shall see a strange effect in a weeke or two."

Meaning of Word "Already."

The word "already" means "by this or that time; previously to" or "at some specified time," or "the time present, thus early; even then," or "even now"; as, "He has already performed the task."—The Correct Word by Josephine Turck Baker.

Not What He Thought.

"George," she began, "as it is leap year—"

The young man started and turned pale. "As it is leap year," she continued, "and you have been calling regularly four nights a week for a long, long time, George, I propose—"

"I'm not in a position to marry on my salary," George broke in hurriedly.

"Exactly, George," the girl pursued, "and so, as it is leap year, I propose that you lay off and give some of the more eligible boys a chance."

Buy Pure Paint.

DO YOU KNOW that when you buy most so-called "standard" paints you buy at least 10% adulteration? In effect you are paying for 10 gallons and only getting 9 gallons. Couldn't be done if you realized it, could it? It is this thing of putting in a little of that adulterant, under a fancy name, that has made most people suspicious of all ready mixed paints. Take the time and trouble to look at the analysis, and if you find a total of 10% or 11% adulterants, such as calcium carbonate, barium sulphate, magnesium silicate, silica petroleum spirits, etc., you are being swindled. And the paint which is not honest enough to give the analysis, is probably worse.

Monarch 100 Per-cent Pure Paint is your guarantee of getting honest value for your money. You cannot afford to risk getting a doped paint when you are sure of the purity of Monarch. Monarch 100% Pure Paint is sold subject to chemical analysis to be composed only of Pure White, Lead, Pure Zinc, Pure Linseed Oil, Japan Dryer, and nothing else, except the necessary coloring matter to produce the respective tints and shades. This is a guarantee that means something—a guarantee of PURITY. Monarch Paint has given satisfaction for more than 40 years.

THE HIGHEST LAW

The New Theatre will offer the latest production from the Selznick studios, which is entitled "The Highest Law" and which features Ralph Ince as director and star player.

The story of "The Highest Law" is an original by Lewis Allen Browne and it tells in a most interesting and entertaining manner the eventful career of an old soldier who fought under Grant. The opening scenes take place in the present day in New York City during a Memorial Day anniversary. An old G. A. R. is noticed by a couple of "doughboys" to be reverently gazing at a statue of Abraham Lincoln. They strike up a conversation with the old man and he tells them why he is so impressed with the marble monument. Then follows a series of stirring scenes of the days of '61, when brother fought against brother. After a recital by the old Union soldier the younger men of the present day are also impressed and register their tribute by a strict military salute to the memory of the great Emancipator.

Mr. Ince will be seen in his remarkably impressive and most realistic impersonation of Abraham Lincoln and in the supporting cast will be seen Robert Agnew, Margaret Sedden, Aileen Burr and Cecil Crawford the talented child actor who enacts the role of "Tad" Lincoln.

"The Highest Law" is said to be based on facts of historical accuracy and while the picture possesses great educational values it has been constructed for entertainment purposes and contains in abundance, heart interest, romance, suspense gripping dramatic moments.

Admission: Matinee 3 P. M., 10c to Everybody; Night, 7:30, 10c and 17c.

The Fish-Hook Girl

By CLARISSA MACKIE

© 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Ralph Barker stared at the dark hair, brushed smoothly back from the broad forehead, and then at the flat curl above the right eyebrow.

"You look like the—" he hesitated. "Say it right out," sobbed Dorothy with bitterness.

"You—look like the very dickens!" exploded Ralph.

"Th-thank you—here is your ring—don't come near me, I never want to see you again," breathed Dorothy passionately and tossing the flashing diamond toward him she whisked out of the room and, as she intended, out of his life.

Ralph stared at the ring in a rage. How little it meant to her—she tossed it aside just for a mere quarrel. He wondered how he could ever have dreamed they would be happy together. There were many other girls who would gladly have accepted his attentions, but he had selected Dorothy because he honestly loved her. If his thoughts fled to other girls now it was because he was so desperately hurt.

That evening he met Josephine Hart. Josephine understood men. She was sympathetic, a good listener, and other girls said she actually purred when she had her own way, which was equivalent to saying that she scratched when she did not have it. Ralph was attracted by her vivacity and her quick intelligence. That she was very pretty as well as well added to his pleasure. Her fair hair was fluffed over her ears and drawn down over her forehead, and her blue eyes looked at him through this tangle of curls with alluring charm.

"I have always wanted to meet you," gushed Josephine frankly, after a while.

"Why—why—" stammered Ralph. "Because you were engaged to a girl I used to know at boarding school."

Ralph stared at her, a dull flush rising to his bronzed face. "You know Dorothy Faye?" he asked.

She nodded brightly. How very cute she was, only he would have liked her

"A bun?" he repeated, searching for her mischievous eyes. He was rather tired of trying to find her eyes in the thatch of fair hair over her forehead. Suddenly he seemed to see Dorothy's sweet pale face, as he had last seen it, pure and serene in its flawless beauty, with the dark hair smoothed softly back and the little curl hooked invitingly over her eyebrow.

It wasn't so bad after all. Dorothy certainly looked a lot better than these thatched ladies who peered at him so roguishly from behind their fringes. How many of them were there? Only one, after all, Josephine herself.

"So you quarreled over the fishhook curl?" insisted Josephine.

"Yes, if you must know," he said rudely.

"You poor thing, I am so glad I met you," murmured Josephine.

"Why?"

"Promise not to tell Dorothy?" "It isn't likely that I shall have a chance to speak to her again!" he said, and he didn't know that his tone was hopeless and that the hurt in his eyes was plain to be seen.

"I am glad I met you, because Dorothy wrote me that you had quarreled with her and she did not believe it possible that it was just the way she wore her hair—she thinks there is another girl and that you picked a quarrel about the curl just to break the engagement!" The blue eyes behind the barricade were very bright indeed.

"Nonsense!" he cried. "There was only one girl for me—she knew it!"

"Don't believe she did. Anyway, she just hates the curl; cut it off right away, she said."

Ralph's gloom vanished. "If you could only excuse me, I believe I would run down to Oakdale—there is business down there—"

"About a fishhook curl?" mocked Josephine?

"Yes."

"Don't go down there—settle it here—Dorothy only arrived half an hour ago—I think she is waiting in the sun parlor. Mercy! the man has gone already!" Josephine leaned back in her chair and brushed back the hair from her forehead. "Ugh, how I hate this way of doing my hair—I believe I will try fishhooks myself!"

BELIEVE IN LOST CONTINENT

Eminent Students of South Sea Geography Firmly Convinced That Vast Tract Was Submerged.

A fascinating theory which is just now enjoying the attention of students of South sea geography is: Was there once a mighty continent in the South seas?

Many firmly believe that what is now the "milky way" of the Pacific—the isle-dotted sea—was at one time a vast coral and volcanic continent; that it has subsided in one place and been upheaved in another, until broken into a myriad fragments. And the day may still come when Nature will raise them from the deep, welded once more into a mighty whole.

Ralph Stock, in his book, "Cruise of the Dream Ship," while admitting that he is no scientist, points out many facts that support this theory.

There is, for example, a wall on Easter Island, not unlike the great wall of China, but which runs for a short distance and then plunges aimlessly into the sea. Where did it begin? Where did it end? What mighty city did it embrace?

On Pitcairn there are the remains of a former and highly advanced civilization.

On Lord Howe Island, a mere rock sprouting three thousand feet out of the sea, four hundred and eighty miles from the Australian coast, there are sixty different species of land shell, fifty per cent of which are not to be found anywhere else in the world. How do they come to be on Lord Howe?

In the Carolines you may look down into the water of lagoons and see mosaic floors and broken walls, the remains of a submerged city.

Legal to Change One's Name.

Many people keep the names they have inherited not because they have any special affection for them, but because they do not realize how easy it is to get rid of them. They are under the impression that they would have to take the matter to court when as a matter of fact, all they have to do would be to make the announcement. The possession of the name-changing privilege was definitely confirmed in New York state in the case of Smith versus State Casualty company when Judge Vann, who handed down the opinion, quoted an historical example to substantiate it.

"A predecessor of Honore de Balzac," he wrote, "was born a Guez, which means beggar, and grew to manhood under that name. When he became conscious of his power as a writer he did not wish his works to be published under that humble name, so he selected the surname of Balzac from an estate that he owned."—Frederic J. Haskin in Chicago Daily News.

"Halifax."

Two derivations are given for the name of the capital of Nova Scotia, Halifax. According to Camden it means "holy hair," and he accounts for the origin of the name from the fact that the head of a virgin who had been slain by a wicked clerk was suspended on a tree in the neighborhood of an English town called Halifax, which place came to be much resorted to by pilgrims.

According to another account, the name means "holy face," and is derived from an image of St. John once preserved in a neighboring hermitage.

GO TO TOMBS FOR SHELTER

Citizens of Rome Forced to Take Up Their Abodes in Mausoleums and Coliseums.

Roman antiquities are now being put to utilitarian purposes by modern Italians in Rome. The high cost of living and crowded flats has driven some of the hard-pressed Romans into the ancient mausoleums, royal baths and coliseums for shelter. Tourists are beginning to feel they are intruding into the tenements of Roman paupers, not the final resting places of Roman kings. Along the ancient Via Nomentana modern flat dwellers seek escape where once the plebeians fled from servitude. Here a party of archaeologists instead of nobles reclining in their tombs, found a buxom mother frying ham for her hungry bambino. Neither the ancient nor modern tenants complain of the lack of the latest improvements. The tomb is made homelike with chairs, bed and stove. A sarcophagus in the middle chamber holds the family washing, while hams are strung across a niche where stands the statue of a Roman dignitary. While inspecting a reservoir 2,000 years old, a party of tourists found a woman with four children basking before the entrance of a cave. She said she was a stonemason's wife, who settled there because she could find no quarters in Rome. She took in roomers to meet the costs of upkeep. These were four workmen, who slept on ledges cut in the rock. Lodging-house keepers prefer the reservoirs; but families find greater privacy in the catacombs.

KANGAROO A NATURAL BOXER

Youngsters Are Taught by Their Parents and Acquire a Really High Degree of Efficiency.

Kangaroos are natural boxers. The younger kangaroo is taught to defend himself in this way as soon as he is old enough to hop about. Naturalists who have watched the animals in their native surroundings say it is very funny to see the mother giving the youngster his first boxing lessons. Afterward the father takes up the teaching, and with much gentleness and patience trains him to box.

When kangaroos box they back off and rush in and prance about very skillfully. Each one watches for an opportunity to strike, and at the same time tries to prevent the other from striking. They cleverly try to move about so as to get the enemy below them on the slope of a hill. The resounding blows they give with their hind feet can be heard far away.

The kangaroo fights like a gentleman. He is a good sportsman, even when he is fighting with his enemy. The animals strike with the flat of the foot, and never use against each other their terrible ripping claws.

Green Olive Relish

The recipes of dietitians who can compose novel foods are in great demand, for every hostess delights in placing an unusual dish before her guests. Here is one of the most tasteful relishes of the 1922 compositions. The saltiness of the green olives blends with the cabbage, celery and beet in a manner that can be appreciated only by sampling.

One cup stoned Spanish green olives (chopped); one cup chopped young cabbage; one-half cup celery cut in rings; one-half cup finely diced cold boiled beets; one-half cup French dressing; one-quarter cup sugar; one tablespoonful mixed salt, pepper and paprika. Mix these ingredients, chill, and serve with meat course. This relish may be prepared in twenty minutes and will serve seven or eight.

Her Mixup in Men

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

©, 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Ernie Crane knew at once that the girl had made a mistake when she beckoned to him and made him sit beside her in her high-priced, brand-new roadster. He was positive she had made a mistake because he had never seen her before and because she seemed to think she knew who he was. And, also, he knew she had made a mistake because she started at once calling him George.

But Ernie didn't care much whether the girl had made a mistake or not. She was tremendously pretty and attractive, the day was soft and balmy—a freak day in winter time—and he was just in the mood for an adventure. "It's awfully important—awfully," the girl told him. "I have to have help and—"

"I looked helpful?" suggested Ernie. "That's it," said the girl, looking at him with big blue eyes that were shaded by long, silky lashes.

Ernie felt his heart thrill at this. It had been a long time, a long, long time since he'd been so thrilled by a girl.

"You ought to tell me your name and—what it is you want me to do," declared Ernie, as they swept through the city out upon a macadam pike.

"My name?" echoed the girl. "My name's Grace—Grace Jennings. You've heard of me?"

"How could I help it?" cried Ernie, although he'd never heard of her in his life.

"I knew you would have heard of me," Grace went on. "As you say, you could hardly have helped it. And the thing I want you to do, oh"—she looked at him with sudden, honest distress—"I wish I weren't in this at all!"

Ernie looked at her sympathetically. "Is it as bad as that?" he queried. The girl nodded vigorously.

"Now that I've met you and seen you, it's so very much harder," she confessed in a harassed tone of voice. Whereat Ernie wondered immensely. How in the world could the fact that she had met him make things harder for her?

"I'm sorry," said Ernie solicitously. "Perhaps things would be easier for you if you were to drop me here and let me stop some other motorist and get him to take me back."

A perfect panic of fear swept over Grace's face at this.

"No, no!" she cried. "That wouldn't do at all. No, I've got to go through with it now that I'm in it. But I wish I weren't in it, I really do, George. You'll remember that about me, won't you, after it's all over?"

Ernie gazed at her in intense surprise. Why was she so sorrowful and pathetic about it? And what was she getting him into, anyhow? The mystery was growing deeper all the time.

"I'll remember that you are charming and pretty and adorable, no matter what happens!" cried Ernie, with a sudden access of fervor as he gazed into Grace's beautiful pleading eyes.

Grace blushed at this and turned her head away abruptly.

"I don't know why in the world I ever consented to do it," she mourned. "If I'd only met you beforehand it would have been so different. Then I'd never have been in this mess, George."

The girl's distress was so very evident that Ernie came to a sudden decision.

"If that's the way you feel about it," he declared, suddenly, "I'll soon get you out of your trouble. I'll leave you here and now!"

Rising in his seat Ernie made ready to leap from the car. But before he could do so Grace stepped on the accelerator hard and the machine leaped forward at such a speed that it would have been suicide for Ernie to have leaped.

"Don't do it! Don't leave me!" cried the girl. "That would simply make things worse than ever."

Ernie relaxed in his seat and looked at the girl curiously. Who did she think he was, anyhow? Had he best tell her his real identity?

After considering this last question for a moment or so Ernie decided to postpone the time for revealing his true name. And the main reason why he came to this decision was that he felt he would lose the girl the minute she knew he wasn't "George."

"I won't leave you," said Ernie, finally, "until you tell me to. I won't leave you ever until you tell me to."

At the fervor in his voice and at this statement the girl looked around at him startled. Her cheeks were flushed, her eyes sparkling.

"You don't mean that!" she cried. "It is simply impossible that you could actually mean what you are saying!"

"It's not impossible. I do mean it," retorted Ernie, stoutly. "You've heard of people falling in love, that is, learning to like people very much at the first time they've seen them, haven't you?"

"Yes," said Grace, "but it is absolutely impossible that you could actually mean it. You are simply trying to make me feel bad. You've got a hunch as to why you're here and you're trying to take it out on me."

"I'm not at all!" cried Ernie. Then it seemed to him the psychological time had arrived for him to reveal his identity.

"Besides," he went on, "you're going under the false impression that I'm some one other than the person I really am. My name isn't George at all."

"What?" gasped the girl, in very evident astonishment.

"I tell you I'm not a 'George,'" said Ernie. "I'm an Ernie—Ernest Crane. And I hope you like the name."

Apparently the name "Ernest Crane" meant nothing to the girl, who continued to look at him in the utmost astonishment.

"I can't understand it," she said at last, shaking her head.

Then a sudden thought seemed to come to her. She pulled the car up short before a general store in a little town through which they were passing.

"I want to telephone," she said. "Will you wait for me?"

"I'll wait for you forever!" exclaimed Ernie fervently.

The girl blushed as she leaped from the car and ran into the store.

Grace's look was rather blank as she came back to the car.

"I never would have thought it!" she exclaimed. "I never would have thought it in the world!"

"Thought what?"

"I'll tell you later. But first I want to explain things. Bertha Gilbert is my best friend. She's been engaged to a man out of town. He was to come to marry her. In the meantime she had been flirting with another man. At the last minute she decided to marry this second man instead of George. So she told me to take George 'way out in the country so she could marry this second man. She said he was a prune and a poor fish and everything else. She arranged by phone for him to leave his hotel at a certain hour. I was to meet him. She said he'd wear a gray overcoat and gray hat. And—and I met you!"

She turned to Ernie again and gazed at him questioningly.

"Who in the world are you, anyway?" she asked.

"Why," laughed Ernie. "I'm the best friend of George Fisher—the man your friend was going to marry. Both George and I are wearing gray hats and gray overcoats—that's why you picked the wrong man. But, tell me, what's happened that you never thought would happen?"

Grace looked at him and laughed.

"Why," she said, "when I went away with the wrong man George went over to see Bertha and—and they were married this afternoon."

Whereat Ernie laughed, too.

"Fine business," he said, "let's you and me go and do likewise sometime."

And they did.

TRAGEDY IN NOVELIST'S LIFE

William Makepeace Thackeray the Victim of Crushing Piece of Domestic Misfortune.

William Makepeace Thackeray, known to the readers of his novels as a kindly, humorous cynic, led a domestic life marked by deep tragedy and profound devotion. His wife, who was Isabella Shawe, the daughter of an army officer, was stricken with a fever several years after their marriage, which resulted in her permanent mental derangement. There is scarcely to be found a more touching story than that of Thackeray's patient devotion to his wife, and the loving attention which he lavished on their three children.

For a long time the great novelist refused to admit that his wife's infirmity was more than an illness, and he spent hours of each day trying to bring the light of reason back to her eyes. But she grew steadily worse, and finally even her husband admitted that it would be better to take her to an institution. Their union was extraordinarily happy between the time of their marriage and Mrs. Thackeray's affliction.

Carry Photographs in Hats.

Ever since the custom among men of carrying pictures of their wives, sweethearts or children pasted on the dials of their watches died out numerous substitute receptacles have been used, but practically none of these has survived. Now, according to a young woman in charge of the hat check room in a downtown hotel, a suitable place for these pictures has been discovered by some one and the fad is rapidly spreading among the men.

"Lately," said this young woman, "I've noticed that a good many of the hats checked here have pictures of girls, elderly women or children pasted inside the crown just below the maker's name. Besides keeping the photographs of their loved ones near, this new wrinkle enables the men to tell at a glance whether or not I hand them the correct hats in return for their checks."—New York Sun.

Swift Punishment for Culprit.

Gilgit, which is situated at the borderlands of Afghanistan, China, and Russia, was in the old days a sort of Siberia for the purpose of the Kashmir government, which pushed its miscreants over the border, and then did not concern itself about whether they lived or died. We are told by Col. C. A. Smith that he indulged in a native game of polo, and one of the players hit him over the head with his stick. When he recovered consciousness he found a chief holding a man, and remarking: "Here is the man who struck you. Would you like him killed now or tomorrow morning?"

Thrifty.

Tired Tim had been working and he had also accidentally cut his finger just at knocking off time. Seated round the rough dinner table at the works he was showing it to some of his mates. "Crikey," said one of them, "that's a nasty cut, old boy! Why don't you tie it up to stop the bleeding?"

"What! In me off time?" was the reply. "Not likely! Wait till we start again."

HOW

ULTRA-MICROBES* MAY BE USED TO FIGHT DISEASE.

—In the great realm of Nature every creature preys upon its fellows. Even microbes, the tiniest living things that the most powerful microscope enables us to see, are, for their size, as voracious as the most savage lions.

And now comes an amazing discovery made at the famous Pasteur Institute in Paris. Microbes themselves are attacked, weakened, and finally killed by creatures so vastly smaller than their own minute bodies that we can never hope to see them, however much the microscope is developed.

These creatures—ultra-microbes—can be isolated, bred, and strengthened until they are ready to fall like an avenging host upon the germs of disease. Once research has enabled us to enlist as allies the teeming battalions of these tiny friends, we shall be able to wage a relentless war on sickness.

When, for instance, we are able to turn loose the ultra-microbe of typhoid fever into suspected water supplies, one of our worst scourges will become a thing of the past.

IS PROTECTED BY NATURE

How the Bubble Bug of British Guiana Is Enabled to Defy Its Many Enemies.

The bubble bug, a native of British Guiana, is quite as interesting as its name suggests. When the insect is immature, we learn from Mr. William Beebe in the Atlantic Monthly, it wraps itself for safety in a kind of froth of small bubbles.

When the bug has formed a large drop of a clear liquid it forces it into the air as a bubble and then forces out an imponderable amount of oil or dissolved wax and mixes it with the clear liquid; that toughens the bubbles, which continue to pile up until the insect is buried deep.

To penetrate the mass is an unpleasant achievement for small marauders. I have draped a big pile of bubbles, says Mr. Beebe, round the beak of an insect-eating bird and watched it shake its head and wipe its beak in evident disgust.

The bug does three wonderful things with the clear liquid that it exudes—it distills sweet water, it draws nourishment, and it adds to its blood and its tissues a pungent flavor that will safeguard it against the attacks of birds and lizards.

Little by little its wings swell to full spread and strength; muscles grow in its hind legs, which in time will shoot it through great distances; and pigment of the most brilliant yellow and black forms on the coverings of its wings. When at last it creeps forth through the filmy veil of bubbles it is immature no longer, but a brilliant frog-hopper.

How Grasshoppers Are Destroyed.

Almost as big as a sparrow and endowed with the appetite of an ostrich, the western grasshopper, moving in great clouds, can soon devastate a farm upon which they alight. Their numbers have been kept down in a measure by scattering through the fields a poisoned bran mash, flavored with fruit. A half dozen different preparations were set in the path of these pests to ascertain which they preferred, and vanilla was a warm favorite, though the first place had to be awarded to a dish of amy acetate. This had no fewer than 379 patrons out of 2,074, while the vanilla, second choice, had 242. This discovery will lead to the manufacture of a bait which will certainly reduce the size of these visiting aggregations.

How Boers Use Tobacco.

We regard ammonia as the best thing to alleviate pain from mosquito bites, but in South Africa the Boers always use tobacco, whether the attacking insect be a mosquito or wasp. This tobacco is of granular character, very light in weight, and so dry that it must be smoked in a large pipe, with a metal cover; otherwise the little whirlwinds usually found on the veldt will speedily bear it away. The Boer usually carries his tobacco in a coat pocket, and if a rider meets him on the road with a request for some tobacco he presents his temporary acquaintance with a handful.

How Auto Industry Has Grown.

In 1899 the investment in the automobile industry was $5,768,000 and this amount of capital was utilized in producing 3,700 cars; 20 years later the capital was estimated at $1,800,000,000 and the car production was 1,974,000—a 300-fold increase in capitalization and a 500-fold increase in production. In 1904 there were 13,333 employees in the industry with annual wages of $8,316,000; five years later there were 651,450 employees and the wage roll was $813,713,000.

How Epilepsy Is Fought.

Professor Trocillo, surgeon commander in the Italian navy and lecturer on nervous diseases in the University of Rome, reports great success in treating epilepsy with tetratrate of boron and potassium. In eight cases in an asylum four patients ceased to have attacks, while the other four were so far improved that they behaved better and were less violent.

WHY

Black Sheep Sometimes Appear Among White Flocks

The appearance of black lambs in a flock made up entirely of white sheep has been for ages and is still a cause for wonder and the basis of superstitions. But the study of the laws of breeding and heredity has explained the reasons for the sporadic appearance of these off-color specimens, according to a bulletin of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Feeding and management of sheep have nothing to do with the appearance of black lambs. The black color is hereditary even though it may be transmitted by ordinary white sheep. The black color in such a case is what is called a recessive character. White sheep which transmit this character at all transmit black in 50 per cent of their reproductive cells and white in the remaining 50 per cent. Thus, such white sheep mated with blacks—which can only transmit black—produce 50 per cent black lambs and 50 per cent white. All of these white lambs can transmit black.

White sheep which transmit only whites, mated with blacks, produce only white lambs, but all of these lambs can transmit black. When both ewe and ram are white, but both transmit black, about 25 per cent of the lambs are black, 50 per cent are white which transmit black, while the remaining 25 per cent are true breeding whites.

WORLD ON ITS LAST LEGS?

Why It Is Said Mankind Won't Be Able to Walk After the Next 10,000 Years.

There is comfort for those cheerful people who believe that the world is on its last legs. Scientists are backing them up. Doctor Vaughn, the health commissioner of Detroit, asserts that in 10,000 years there will be no human legs at all.

It is a startling prediction, coming as it does at a time when the visible supply of legs is larger and more beautiful than ever. It seems incredible that legs should fade out of the picture. With what shall generations of that far future walk? Ah, says Doctor Vaughn, that's just it; the race is going to lose its legs because it doesn't use them any more.

We must remember, observes the New York World, that Doctor Vaughn is in a position to be pessimistic. He is in Detroit, where almost everybody lives on and in motorcars. Infants, instead of being taught to toddle, are shown how to throw out the clutch, shift the gears and slip into first speed; that is, all except the Ford babies, who don't have to bother with gear shifting.

Arms, too, will disappear about the same time that legs depart, unless, says Doctor Vaughn, people use their arms more for real exertion. Is the doctor suggesting that modern folk are not working hard enough? It sounds that way. The world needs to be reminded that unless it keeps its biceps in order there will be no tennis tournaments in a hundred centuries or so. Without legs, no dancing. Without arms, no baseball. All the sports of the distant future will be telepathic. The Babe Ruths of the period will swat the ball with the bat of thought. The Joie Rays will run miles on the track of their minds. The Jack Dempseys will assault their opponents with the punch of pure reason.

Why Britain Values the Bahamas.

The Bahamas are a chain of coral islands generally grouped with the West Indies. They belong to Great Britain. The group includes 29 islands and 660 islets, but only about 20 are inhabited. The coral rock is porous, retaining moisture, hence the soil that has accumulated is very fertile. The islands produce maize, cotton, sisal hemp, pineapples, oranges, lemons, olives, tamarinds, and other sub-tropical fruits. Large quantities of sponges are taken from the surrounding seas. The principal exports are sponges, fruits and sisal fiber. Tomatoes are being extensively cultivated and shipped to the United States. Mahogany, lignum-vitae, mastic, ironwood, ebony, boxwood and satinwood are found throughout the islands. The fiber exported in 1920 had a value of about half a million dollars.

Why Obituarist Resigned.

The late Archie L. Williams, for many years general attorney for the Union Pacific, was a chief obituarist of the Middle West whenever a notable died, Capper's Weekly states. On one occasion he wrote a column or more about an old friend who had died and concluded it: "Let us pause and on his bier drop a tear." A drunken printer thought he could improve it so he set it up: "Let us pause and on his bier drop a tear or two." The proofreader, also soused, decided it was up to him to add something so he made it read: "Let us pause and on his bier drop a tear or two, or perhaps three." When the "obit" came out in the paper that way Archie resigned as obituarist.

Why She Wouldn't Buy.

"Did you sell a vacuum cleaner to that woman across the hall?" asked the sour-looking matron.

"No, ma'am, I didn't," replied the salesman. "She didn't seem to think much of my argument when I said this device would make her housework a pleasure."

"Umph! No wonder. You were wasting your time talking housework to a bridge expert."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

BIG PROFIT IN SNAKE "CROPS"

Frenchmen in Fair Way to Get Rich When Authorities Put an End to the Game.

Snake breeding was one of the most profitable industries in France for two brothers who owned a farm in the department of the Yonne. The department, finding itself infested with vipers, offered 20 centimes a head as a bounty. The brothers interested themselves, registered their farm and started out to catch vipers. They had marvelous luck last year, catching 48,000 serpents and making bigger profits than ever had been made on the farm. During the last six months, their catch increasing miraculously, it seemed likely to run into millions. Their neighbors unfortunately were inquisitive and the authorities investigated. The brothers were found to be raising snakes on the farm. Each mother viper reared an average of fifty a year. Had they continued it is estimated the enterprising brothers would have had 5,000,000 vipers in five years. The unimaginative court of Assizes in Tonnerre sentenced the snake breeders to two years' imprisonment for obtaining money by false pretenses, which was reduced, however, to eighteen months.

Exciting Air Voyage.

A French soldier, lashed to the swinging anchor of a military "sausage" balloon, landed in an open field about ten miles from Augers, France, a few days ago, according to an exchange. He was the only passenger, and he was safe and sound, and his craft was undamaged. The soldier was carried aloft when the cables snapped earlier in the day as preparations were being made for a parachute flight. The balloon, when last sighted by one of the squadron of airplanes that had pursued it in an effort to save the soldier's life was bound seaward, and it was feared that the soldier might be wafted thither before he could bring the ship to earth. A change in air currents saved him. The soldier crawled hand over hand to the anchor, to which he lashed himself fast. His dangling figure disappeared from view of those on the ground, but just before dusk he waved his handkerchief at the pilot of one of the pursuing airplanes, which could not get close enough to save him without further endangering his life.

A Matter of Policy.

"I just saw your wife out in your neighbor's motorcar. Why don't you take her out in your own?"

"Oh, we've just made our wills in each other's favor."

Why Some People are Poor.

Their ideas are larger than their purses.

They do not keep account of their expenditures.

They are easy dupes of schemers and promoters.

They reverse the maxim, "Duty before pleasure."

They do not consider it worth while to save nickels and dimes.

They try to do what others expect them to do, not what they can afford.

LESSON TEXT.—Jer. 28.
GOLDEN TEXT.—Amend your ways and your doings, and obey the voice of the Lord.—Jer. 26:13.
REFERENCE MATERIAL.—II Sam.
12:1-14; I Kings 21:17-24; Jer. 7:1-15; Amos 6:1-8.

PRIMARY TOPIC.—The Story of a Brave Prophet.
JUNIOR TOPIC.—A Brave Prophet's Message.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.— Jeremiah Speaks Boldly for God.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.— When and How Should Wrong Be Rebuked?

1. Jeremiah's Solemn Warning to Judah (vv. 1-7).

The Lord commanded him to stand in a conspicuous place in the temple and proclaim the judgment which was about to fall upon them because of their sins. The object was to provoke them to repentance (v. 3). If they would not repent, God would make the temple as Shiloh (v. 6). Just as Shiloh was once the dwelling place of the Lord and now fallen into decay and abandoned, so will it be with the temple. Jeremiah was sent to speak the words the Lord had told him and not to diminish a word.

II. Jeremiah on Trial (vv. 8-11).

1. Cause of Arrest (v. 8). It was for faithfully speaking all that the Lord had commanded. The one who speaks boldly what God commands shall be opposed. The time-server and self-seeker will not stand for such a ministry.

2. The Charge (vv. 8, 9). It was a capital crime. They said, "Thou shalt surely die." His guilt according to their charge was twofold: (1) Pretending to speak for God; (2) Speaking against the temple and the city.
According to their charge he was guilty of blasphemy and sacrilege.

3. The Princes Sit in Judgment (vv. 10, 11). When the excitement reached the ears of the princes they came to judge of the merits of the case. Matters of state were not entirely in the hands of the priests and elders, but were partly controlled by members of the royal family.

III. Jeremiah's Defense (vv. 12-15).

1. Reiterates His Divine Commission (v. 12). He had nothing to deny, but to repeat what he had said. He plainly told them that in opposing him they were opposing God, for he was God's messenger.

2. His Exhortation (v. 13). He urged them to amend their ways and obey God, and God would not bring upon them judgment. Their threats did not cause him to suppress or soften his message.

3. He Gave Himself Up (v. 14). He did not resist the powers of government (Rom. 13:1). Knowing that he was sent of God he was content to trust God for deliverance. He did not fear what man could do unto him.

4. Warns of Fatal Consequence (v. 15). He frankly told them that God had sent him and if they killed him they would be guilty of defying God. Resistance to God's prophet would be resistance to God. Woe would not only fall upon them, but the nation and city would suffer.

IV. Jeremiah Saved (vv. 16-24).

He was acquitted. God is able to raise up friends and advocates from the ranks of those who oppose us.
All hearts are in God's hands.

1. Judgment of the Princes (v. 16).
They pronounced him not guilty, as he had spoken in the name of the Lord. Jeremiah's words convinced them that he was speaking the truth.

2. Speech of the Elders (vv. 17-23).
As the princes probably represented the king, so the elders represented the people.

The elders plead for Jeremiah and adduced several cases in illustration:

(1) Micah (vv. 18, 19). Micah had prophesied against Jerusalem, but the king Hezekiah instead of putting him to death, repented and thus turned aside the punishment which was impending. (2) Urijah (vv. 20-23).
Urijah prophesied against the city and land and thus incurred the wrath of Jehoiakim, who brought him back from Egypt whence he had fled and slew him.

Though all this was done, judgment was not thus thwarted. Killing God's prophets does not prevent God's judgment, but intensifies it. In the case of Hezekiah God's judgments were turned aside through heeding the words of the prophet, and in the case of Jehoiakim judgment fell upon the nation because of refusal and maltreatment of the prophet.

3. Rescued by Ahikam (v. 24).
Ahikam must have been a man of influence such as to be able to interfere at such a time.

Friendship That Never Fails.

Suppose Jesus were in your company, would it not make life strong and pure and effective, full of power and sweetness and power and joy to have such a friend always at hand?
His is a companionship that never grows wearisome, and His is a friendship that never fails, and it reaches through time and eternity.

Envy Like a Fly.

Envy is like a fly that passes all a body's sounder parts and dwells upon the sores.—Chapman.

Lessons From Great Foreign Missionaries
Acts 13:1-12

The lessons of humility and endurance shine brightly in the life of Christina Forsythe. She went to Africa and labored in a place that was described as "the hardest" place in that continent. No white person had ever been permitted to enter or live in this field, but she secured an entrance and lived there alone. She buried herself in her field of labor, spending thirty years there, and winning many for the Lord and training them in Christian living and service. She is referred to as a "watcher for souls." Her most frequent cry in the letters sent home was "Oh, pray for us." At the age of 72, while still in active service, some friend in Scotland sent her a copy of the biography of Mary Slessor. She sat up all night to read the book and when the task was finished she said, "I hope this will be an incentive to me to labor more abundantly and to endure hardness."

William Carey saw the world's need and endeavored to meet it. India appeared to him as a great gold mine which he was willing to explore if the people at home would hold the ropes.
The qualities of endurance and persistency, of faith and prayer, are conspicuous in his career.

Both Adoniram Judson, the missionary to Burmah, and John G. Paton, missionary to the New Hebrides, are examples of Christian heroism and of the

"Faith that will not shrink, Though pressed by many a foe." Hudson Taylor is an example of the sacred spirit which leads to the giving of oneself that others may hear the gospel and live.

Considered collectively, the outstanding lessons from great foreign missionaries are those of faith, prayer, persistence of purpose, patient endurance and sacrificial service.

WHERE SPONGES ARE FOUND

Chief Source of Highly Important Article of Commerce is the Islands of the Mediterranean.

Few people who use sponges ever give a thought as to how they are obtained, says a correspondent in the London Daily Mail. The finest qualities and largest quantities of our sponges come from the Mediterranean —the chief grounds being off the Greek and Turkish islands—thence through the Dardanelles to the Sea of Marmora, and so along the coast of Asiatic Turkey and Syria to Cyprus.

Here the sponges are brought up by divers, either stripped or attired in full diving costume. When sponges first reach the surface they present a fleshy-looking appearance, the substance being covered with a firm skin, or membrane, in which apertures appear and disappear seemingly at the animal's will. When cut, the interior is somewhat like raw meat in appearance, being intersected by numerous canals and cavities. The cavities are filled with a sticky fluid of greyish-brown color, termed "milk."

This is the only living portion of the animal, and must needs be removed immediately; otherwise putrefaction speedily sets in and destroys the elastic nature of the sponge. If this operation is not performed on board before the vessel reaches shore, the filled sponge bags are dispatched with all speed to the gathering grounds. There the fluid is removed and various cleaning and bleaching processes transform the "raw" sponge into a beautiful lemon-yellow color.

This done, the sponges pass to other hands for trimming to shape, and later they go to the graders, who sort them according to quality and size. The next process is that of drying, after which they are weighed and packed ready for shipment.

Keep the Baby Quiet at Night.

Getting up in the night to quiet an uneasy baby is not the joke that some comic writers represent it to be. A young husband discovered this in case of his first-born and the means he took to overcome the difficulty won him a prize in a contest in new uses for electricity.

The only means of quieting this baby, who was ailing, was to move him up and down, gently. In the lower part of the crib the father fastened the motor of a discarded electric fan.
From a small pulley on the motor he ran a belt to a larger pulley on a short shaft, at the other end of which he rigged a crank. Then he extended a connecting rod to the center of the frame that supported the springs and mattress.

The motor, when started, moved springs, mattress and baby up and down about an inch, smoothly, gently and regularly. It proved entirely satisfactory to the baby, who is now one year old, healthy and happy, and he has never got his parents out of bed at night since the apparatus was installed.

Home Town Helps

WELL CALLED "MODEL TOWN"

Industrial Community in Massachusetts Approaches the Ideal as a Place of Residence.

Of the town of North Billerica, Mass., a correspondent of the Boston Transcript writes:

As one walks about town he is pleasantly surprised by the appearance of cottages and gardens. They represent various types and periods of construction and evidence of individuality in taste, but their charm lies mainly in their gardens. Here one discovers the feminine touch in delicate vines, trained over roof, porch, fence and wall, or in a charming porch filled with color, harmony and grace.

The more ambitious masculine effort is detected in spacious gardens, showing evidence of model and determination. Everything, however, reveals the hand of the landscape designer who, by his advice and supervision, has helped to create and maintain the desired effect, being careful not to destroy the individuality that is so important a part in any garden, and thus the yearly competition feeds the very natural element of ambition.

"Do you feel that you secure a material advantage by employing a landscape designer to beautify the grounds about your plant and help your tenants in making and maintaining their gardens?" I asked Frederic S. Clark, president of the Talbot Mills.

"It is impossible to state from a dollars and cents standpoint the effect of the landscape work, or of any of the other features which we have introduced outside our purely business relations with our employees," he replied. "I am glad, however, to say that our relations in every way are of a very friendly character. We have had but one strike of any moment, and that was about 25 years ago. Our labor turnover is comparatively small, which is an indication of satisfactory employment conditions."

SHOULD BE WELL LAID OUT

Importance of Proper Planning of Town's Future Is a Matter Too Apt to Be Overlooked.

Speaking at the session of the conference, the Rev. Howard S. Childley of Winchester pointed out that town planning is an ancient art, applied by the Romans in England and excellently instanced by the planning of the town common at Oxford, England.
In its application, he said, European cities and towns are far ahead of the United States and American cities and towns show today of what value planning would have been at their inception. To obtain this development now, Doctor Childley urged, education of the community to the economic value of the work, and then the enlistment of individual interest in co-operation must be attained.

As the representative of the Commonwealth, Mr. Young declared that, despite eight years of encouragement by law, the need of town and city planning is not widely enough realized.
He asserted that the time has come for the state to provide more properly for this work and to aid in creating public interest. Pointing to the development of municipal forests abroad, he urged the importance of such reservations to a community with the lapse of a half century.

When a City Is Disfigured.

When any part of the city is disfigured by billboards or when any residence neighborhood is ruined by the unnecessary intrusion of business the whole city suffers. People don't enjoy passing ugly or ill-kept property in going to their homes. It weakens the incentive for a family to own its home if there is danger that the property may be hurt at any time by the erection of a business house next door.

A city cannot permit itself to be disfigured in spots. It cannot acquiesce in a policy of ugly neighborhoods here and there. If it does, it subjects itself to unnecessary handicaps. It retards its growth.

A city is a unit. Damage to one part is damage to the city.—Kansas City Star.

A Railroad Monopolist.

"Pa," said Johnny on the afternoon of Christmas.

"Well, my son?"

"Why didn't you ask Santa Claus to bring you one of those electric trains if you like to play with it so much?"—Boston Transcript.

Rural Community Best.

Civilization, culture and development of rural people are to be found in conjunction with town and small city, and not apart.—Galpin.

Companionship.

"Don't you feel sorry for the poor animal that was skinned for the furs you bought for your wife?"

"Why should I feel sorry for the quadruped? It's true he was skinned for those furs. But so was I."

Among the Tired Business Men.

"You no longer embellish your speeches with humorous anecdotes."

"I had to quit it," replied Senator Sorghum. "Audiences got to calling for funny stories instead of paying attention to my serious arguments."

CONFIDENCE AND CREDIT.

The "Ultimate Consumer" must Trust to Somebody's Honesty.

After all, real business is conducted largely on confidence and credit. The two are inseparable and indispensable.
Very much is made of "cash" transactions, "large quantity" purchases, "direct to consumer," cutting out the "middle man," and other like expressions; but, back of all business expedients and regulations, there must be "confidence" and "credit" for the foundation of safety.

Expert buyers can reduce to the minimum the need for confidence, so far as their buying is concerned; but when their selling time comes, those who buy are not likely to be experts.
It is quite out of the question that they should be. A big firm can, and does, employ expert buyers for every class of merchandise it handles; but, the class that we call the "ultimate consumer" is not in the "expert" class —he must depend largely on the "confidence" he has in the firm that sells to him.

A farmer purchaser is likely to be an expert—or at least a very good judge—of horses, cattle and farm machinery; but, when the farmer comes to the buying of household goods, clothing, paints, and the hundreds of items he needs, his expert knowledge fails him. He must depend on the honesty, the fairness, the truthfulness, of the seller—on "confidence" in the seller.

How can the average purchaser, thousands of miles off, with nothing to go by but a pictured and printed catalogue, get from it the confidence —the assurance—of a satisfactory purchase for his cash? We do not mean by this that all catalogue houses over-recommend their wares by the use of printer's ink; but we do mean to say that the catalogues are gotten up by experts in their line, and their descriptions are very apt to be as alluring and inviting as possible.

The home merchant is known by his reputation for truthfulness and honesty.

His goods are actually on his counters for inspection before buying.
He is "at home" to hear complaints, and "make good." Why should not "confidence" in him be stronger than in a printed description? Why should not his word, even, be taken before the advertisement of a stranger?

Mrs. James B. Galt is visiting relatives in Fairfield, Penna.

Norval Rinehart was sentenced to the county jail, for nine months, for larceny.

Mrs. Guy P. Bready and Mrs. Alice Crebs are spending several days in Baltimore and Washington.

Mrs. Bernard Shaum who has been at St. Agnes Hospital, Baltimore, for some time, has returned home.

Mr. Cramer, of Baltimore, who bought the Samuel S. Lambert property, expects to take possession on June 1st.

Q. E. Weant, of Baltimore, rusticated here, on Sunday and Monday, but has rented his place and given up intensive farming.

Mrs. H. D. Hawk is having her home, on Middle St., repainted, adding another to the large list of like improvements on that street.

Robert Fuss, Mrs. Ella Gray and son, Robert, of Union Bridge, and Norvall Fuss, of Sparrows Point, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Fuss.

The Taneytown High School stood fourth in the track and field contests, held in Westminster, winning 32 points. Westminster High easily outclassed all other schools, winning 158 points.

Levi Frock and force of track hands will remove to Spring Grove, June 1, on account of a rearrangement of sections along the line of the Frederick Division.

Taneytown Lodge No. 36, K. of P., will attend the county rally, at Westminster, on May 30, meeting at our Castle Hall, at 7:30 P. M. Members having cars come and take those who have none.

C. E. H. Shriner's four-family dwelling, on Middle St., is rapidly improving in appearance and drawing toward completion. The stucco (first coat) was put on in 6 hours, on Wednesday, by a fast workman.

The Birnie Trust Co., has contracted for a new hand-painted drop curtain, for use in the Opera House, as well as for some stage decorations, which will mean a decided improvement over the present equipment.

Two short plays, by the elementary and High School pupils, will be given on Tuesday, June 6, at 8 o'clock, and on Wednesday, June 7, at 8 o'clock, the Commencement will be held. Both programs will be rendered in the Opera House.

Now let everybody take an afternoon off, on Decoration Day, and help to make Taneytown's program a great success. The Opera House is not likely to hold all who will want to hear the program, but outdoor speaking has its objectionable features.

An auto accident occurred on the State Road near Bridgeport, on Thursday evening, in which cars belonging to Drs. Fitzhugh and Foutz, of Westminster, figured. We have not learned the particulars, but a nurse is said to have been seriously injured, and one of the cars badly wrecked.

The baseball season will open Tuesday afternoon, May 30, with the Red Men's Athletic Club, of Hanover. The game will be called after the program in the Opera House. Give the home team a big opening day, and by your presence help them to win the game, as well as contribute to the big financial expense incurred in the improvement of the grounds.

Little Jesse Snyder, son of C. H. D. Snyder, of Otter Dale Mills, is on the road to recovery at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, after undergoing a serious operation in which his father's blood was transfused to save his life. The boy's spleen was removed. Elwood Snyder, another son, who sustained a fractured leg some time ago, is at the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg and is still on crutches.

The concrete foundation for D. J. Hesson's new store was finished on Wednesday, after three days work by the corporation concrete experts, assisted by a competent force. Mr. Hesson believes in building on good foundations, therefore placed in one of the front corners of the wall a copy of The Carroll Record, enclosed in a bottle and a metal box, together with a brief history of the old building torn down.

U. S. Free Training Camp.

The War Department has recently announced that the Citizens Military Training Camps will be held again this summer. The third Corps Camp will be established at Camp Meade, Md., from July 27 to August 27, both dates inclusive.

It is not entirely with a military purpose in view that Congress has appropriated money for the maintenance of these Camps. Studies upon a group of 2,500,000 young men between the ages of 18 and 30 years, disclosed the fact that 468 per 1,000 presented physical defects. Some 60,000 examined in Maryland presented 526 out of each 1,000 not sound. It was realized that the effect upon the social and industrial life of the nation would be momentous should this condition be allowed to continue and passed on to the coming generations. Particularly was this fact important, as the survey showed 70% of the existing physical defects may have been prevented and much of the same be arrested or corrected even now, through personal hygiene, developmental exercises, or minor medical treatment.

A schedule of instruction has been carefully mapped out and the best talent of the army placed in charge of the camps. Four hours each week day will be devoted to drill, field maneuvers, setting up exercises, range practice, use of modern signalling devices (including the wireless telephone, etc.). There will also be spectacular demonstrations of all arms of the service, by tanks, artillery, cavalry, and the air service. Motion pictures will be utilized as a method of instruction, showing the activities of the war zone. The afternoons will be spent in supervised athletics, and will include field sports, baseball, swimming, tennis, etc.

No angle through which the youths attending may be improved mentally, physically or morally, will be neglected. Each individual is given a careful and thorough physical survey, his parents and guardian notified by letter of any defect and the means of correction advised by a board of the ablest specialists of the Army Medical Corps. If defective he is placed in a special class for developmental treatment, and his exercise graded according to his ability. He is fed by especially trained officers with especially provided and carefully selected diet. His work and his play is supervised by medical officers and his moral tone is looked after by red blooded Chaplains. He retires early in well ventilated and sanitary barracks. He is taught neatness, and acquires an ability to look out for himself, and last of all discipline—that will render him of more value to himself, his employer, and family, through the fact that he will do what his boss (twenty years in the business) tells him to do.

The Government pays his railroad fare, clothes and feeds him the best. He is given opportunities to take side trips to Washington, Annapolis, and points of interest. If he did happen to get sick he gets the care that only the very best and most expensive hospitals could give. In the 1487 youths at Camp Meade last summer there was not one serious case of illness or one single accident during their stay in camp. But they did average a gain in weight of 4½ pounds and slightly less than one inch in chest measurement.

Many letters from grateful parents have been received by the authorities and it is regretted that many of those who will apply must be rejected by reason of the limited number the camps will be able to care for. Application should be made to the Commanding General, Third Corps Area, Baltimore, Maryland.
