

CONGRESS LIMITS THE COST OF ROADS

Federal Aid Applies only to Cost of $16,250 Per Mile.

Congress, in its last appropriation, bill limits Federal aid to roads costing $16,250 per mile for 1923, and $15,000 a mile thereafter.

Congress evidently takes the position that road construction has been costing too much, and that Federal aid has been taken advantage of by contractors and State Commissions.

Federal aid is definitely assured for at least three years more when the Congress voted $50,000,000, $65,000,000 and $75,000,000 respectively, for 1923, 1924 and 1925 construction.

Dogs Must Wear Tags.

The State law requires every owner of a dog more than six months old to procure a license for the dog, on or before the 1st day of July.

When a dog owner procures a license from Clerk to the County Commissioners, or a Justice of the Peace, he receives a metal tag.

The law is very plain. Section 195 of the Code provides as follows: "Such tag shall be affixed to a substantial collar. The collar shall be furnished by the owner, and, with the tag attached, shall at all time be kept on the dog for which the license is issued, except when confined in the kennel or when hunting in charge of an attendant."

Section 201 of the Code provides that "Any person violating or refusing to comply with any of the provisions of this subtitle shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof before any Justice of the Peace of the county in which he resides, or in the Circuit Court of said county, shall be fined a sum of not less than $5.00 nor more than $25.00; or shall be imprisoned in the county jail for not more than thirty days, or shall be both fined and imprisoned."

Boys' and Girls' Clubs.

College Park, July 24.—Two hundred boys and girls from the agricultural clubs conducted throughout the State by the University of Maryland Extension Service, are expected at the University of Maryland here August 7 to 11 to take part in the annual activities incident to club week.

The program will be under the direction of P. W. Chichester, assistant state boys' club agent, and Miss Adice S. Jones, assistant State girls' club agent. In addition to the usual courses of instruction in agriculture for the boys and home economics subjects for the girls, recreation and amusement features of various kinds will be provided.

A pageant in which many of the boys and girls will participate will be staged under the direction of Miss Jones as one of the few features of the week. A trip to Washington, including a reception to the boys and girls by Secretary of Agriculture Henry C. Wallace and a visit to the Washington Zoo, also has been planned.

Numerous speakers have been invited to make short talks to the young folks during the week. Among them will be Judge Frank I. Duncan, of Towson, who will represent the Maryland State Bankers' Association, Louis McLane Merryman, of Cockeysville, and Milton Dansiger, of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The Record and the Campaign.

The Record has had numerous requests for promotion and publicity, concerning candidates of both parties for the Senate and House. Our course during the campaign will be to publish advertising for all candidates willing to pay for it, and do not intend to boost any candidate, free.

On a purely news basis of our own selection, we will mention incidents of the campaign, but do not want "ready to print" articles from anybody, even when accompanied by a contract for paid advertising. The Record is not dependent on politics, directly or indirectly, for support, but earns its way without political favors of any sort.

Ex-Senator Chaucey M. Depew, of New York, aged 88, states he never played golf, never rode horseback, never played tennis, never went hunting and never even saw a baseball game. For a man who has such a reputation for making humorous addresses, he has lost a wonderful amount of fun in his life.

TAX RATE IN COUNTIES.

Only One County has a Lower Rate than Carroll.

The list of counties below, with the tax rate in each, should be reassuring to citizens of Carroll who think that they are being "taxed to death," and that there is "something wrong somewhere." The fact is, we are passing through an era of high expenses, and this appears in the tax bills, as well as anywhere else.

In addition to the $1.40 rate for this county, the state tax, for all counties, is 35c. Note the increases, this year, in most counties, other than Carroll.

Table with 2 columns: County Name and Tax Rate. Includes entries for Allegany, Anne Arundel, Baltimore City, Baltimore County, Calvert, Carroll, Cecil, Charles, Dorchester, Frederick, Garrett, Harford, Howard, Kent, Montgomery, Prince George's, Queen Anne's, St. Mary's, Somerset, Talbot, Washington, Wicomico, Worcester.

Danger From Hog Cholera.

There are several cases of hog cholera just over the line in Frederick county. Carroll has the reputation of being a clean county as far as hog cholera is concerned. At the same time Carroll ranks first in the state in the number of hogs which total 34,674. Let's keep her first not only in quantity but in quality and cleanliness as well.

How every farmer can help: If you or your neighbor is losing hogs from sickness notify the County Agent or Dr. Hoffman, Hog Cholera Specialist, Hagerstown.

Bury or burn all dead animals at once. There is a state law which requires that dead domesticated animals shall be burned, or covered with quick lime and buried under four feet of earth. It is up to every farmer to co-operate in stamping out this disease. It can be done by using proper sanitary practices.

The Co. Agent and Dr. Hoffman located a buzzard feast in progress in the lower part of Frederick Co., just over the line last week. Fifty buzzards were present. Like the old Roman banquets they ate all they could and then sat around on the fence until they could eat some more or the feast was over. After the feast on Hog a la Hog Cholera they will fly around maybe locate a chicken along the road in front of your buildings, that did not escape a speeding auto, and he enjoys some spring chicken dessert.

A buzzard never bothers about washing off his bill or feet, and maybe your dog or pigs get what remains of the chicken.

How did you get Hog Cholera? Don't visit your neighbors' sick hogs; take his word for it. Help by burning or burying all dead animals and poultry. The buzzards will tell on you every time and carry disease to you or away from you to your neighbors.

All sick hogs have hog cholera until you know the cause of their sickness.

HEIGHT ABOVE SEA LEVEL

Elevations in Carroll and Frederick Counties.

The following elevations in feet, as given by the State Geological Survey, will be of interest to some of our readers, and no doubt be a surprise to many who may have formed other opinions. The first table gives points in Carroll county, and the second, points in Frederick.

Cases' to Gather at Pen-Mar.

Cases, with their better-halves and children from all over Maryland, will gather at Pen-Mar Park, Thursday, August 27, for the Grand Annual Caper-Cutting Competition. 'Tis the Sixth Annual Reunion, when the grown up Cases' will become kiddies again and the youngsters will have the time of their lives.

The first contest, after arrival, open to all, will be to see who can absorb the most chicken and fixings; of course, the Casey Juniors will have all the best of this race, but the Mammy and Daddy Cases' have a pretty fair record for putting away wings and drumsticks, and anybody can make white meat vanish.

The grand prize in the grub eating contest will be a happy sensation in the region of the equator, and a feeling of peace towards all humanity. And everybody draws a grand prize if he keeps within the speed limit. Those who do not, will be sentenced to a dose of bi-carbonate of soda and acrobatic spirits of pneumonia.

Every kind of music will be tooted, from old time Irish reels to pestiferous Jazz; you take your choice, 'tis all a matter of taste, as the old woman said when she kissed the cow.

Some persons there are who think the waltz the only dance worth while, and these too, will be accommodated. There will also be dances for the kiddies, and these will be prettiest of all; you can't beat a children's dance as a lovely spectacle.

The grand prize will be a sense of having a glorious innocent good time, except for those whose toes are trod on; worse than these are the fellows who tread on their girls feet—alas! a lot of badly-ent engagements.

Against Trespassing.

As the squirrel season now opens Sept. 1, on account of a change in the law, advertising against trespassing should be commenced earlier than other years. We will again make the small charge of 25c for each name, under a general notice heading, for the season, beginning August 18.

The squirrel season is open from Sept. 1, to Oct. 15, and from Nov. 10 to January 1.

Edward W. Box has declined the Presidency of the Philadelphia Semi-Centennial project. He says the Fair requires younger men than many now on the Board, and that the enterprise is not likely to be a great success, as at present directed. He also says his present personal obligations are of too great importance to be neglected by him.

THE POULTRY EXHIBIT.

Meeting to Decide Whether there will be one, or not.

This question will be answered at a meeting to be held at the County Agent's Office, Westminster, Thursday evening, August 3, at 8 o'clock, when it is expected that all those interested in the matter will be present and offer their support and encouragement to the project. Those who were concerned in the management of the Maryland Mid-State Poultry Show last year, feel that public approval of the project should be expressed by all those who favor a show for this year, before any move is made towards definite arrangements.

Whether or not the success of last year is to be repeated, depends entirely upon the action of this meeting. The local officers of the Carroll County Branch of the State Association feel that this is an undertaking which concerns not alone the poultrymen, but the public at large, and particularly those interests that benefit in a business way from the advertising value of a poultry show. It is hoped that the business men of the county will participate in the arrangements of details, which last year taxed the time and energy of a few individuals to such an extent that they do not feel inclined to again assume the entire burden of the undertaking.

If those who feel inclined to aid this project by contributing cash and trophies for premiums, and availing themselves of the advertising features of the publications which will be issued, would come forward and volunteer their assistance, it would multiply the labor of promoting the show to such an extent that it could be staged with both an economy of effort, and of money.

The local poultry interests are at present engaged in perfecting a branch organization of the Maryland State Poultry Association, which is destined to eventually expand the poultry industry of Carroll county along production lines, which will add materially to the wealth of the county. In such an undertaking as a poultry show, the encouragement of the general public is necessary, and should be given.

Another matter which will come before the meeting will be the permanent organization of the Carroll Co. Branch of the Maryland State Poultry Association, Inc. Certain formalities are to be attended to before this branch receives official standing. State officials will be present and have some interesting developments to report in regard to plans for co-operative marketing. An offer from the New Jersey Poultry Producers Association to co-operate with our marketing plans, presents an attractive prospect for an early arrangement whereby Maryland egg producers can obtain the best possible markets for their output.

Motor-Machine Co. Hearing.

Frederick, July 27.—Charles H. Krise, Rocky Ridge; George C. Naylor, Taneytown; Harry A. Dern, near Emmitsburg, and other stockholders testified today at the hearing before Judges Uner and Worthington to have receivers appointed for the Maryland Motor Machine Company, Charles H. Kehne, president, and for an investigation of the company's affairs. It is likely that the plaintiffs will conclude their side tomorrow. The defendant company has summoned 17 witnesses.

Mr. Naylor said he bought $1,500 worth of stock and is an indorser of a note, held by the company, for $20,000. He made the stock purchase and signed the note on the recommendation of agents of the company, assuring him that the investment would yield a 10 per-cent. dividend, he said.

Mr. Dern said he bought $1,000 worth of stock upon the promise of becoming manager of the Emmitsburg garage, which the company had taken over, at a salary of $35 a week. He worked at the garage for two weeks and was then transferred to Waynesboro, where agents of the company were selling stock, he said. He said he received no pay for his employment at the Emmitsburg garage and after working at Waynesboro for 17 days was dropped by the company.

Mr. Krise told of a complicated transaction, involving the exchange of some farm tractors for $7500, stock in the company. He said Kehne's company had received from him the tractors and $7,500 in money and notes, leaving him still owing the Moline Plow Company $5,100. Because of this he was forced to make an assignment for the benefit of his creditors and today he is ruined financially, owing $26,000 and having property worth only $20,000, he said.

NO-MORE-WAR DEMONSTRATION

An International Movement to be held July 29-30.

Ten nations of Europe, and the United States, will hold no-more-war demonstrations, on July 29-30, the week-end preceding the outbreak of the world war "to express the will of the people to end war forever." All groups interested in the world peace, without regard to methods advocated for establishing it, will take part.

The plan for the United States is as follows: 1—A "bombardment for peace" in the form of messages to the President and Congress, expressing the desire of the people to have this government follow up the Washington Conference with a further step toward world peace. Messages to be sent by mail, wire and radio.

2—The simultaneous posting of no-more-war placards, on the morning of July 29. For the greatest effect, these placards should be put up during the night, or early in the morning, and appear everywhere—in windows of homes, offices, on fences, trees, automobiles, street cars, and in as many unexpected places as possible.

By order of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Cases of Near Drowning.

The following instructions for the resuscitation of bathers have been issued by the United States Bureau of Mines.

One of the first things to do is to take out of the victims mouth such things as false teeth, tobacco, chewing gum, etc. After putting the rescued party face downward, but with head turned to one side to facilitate breathing, the procedure is as follows:

Kneel, straddling the victim's thighs and facing the head; rest the palms of your hands on his short ribs, with your thumbs parallel with the spine and about two inches apart, and with fingers spread out as much as possible.

With arms held straight, swing forward slowly so that the weight of your body is gradually, but not violently, brought to bear upon the victim. This act should take about two seconds. Then, leaving your hands in place, swing backward slowly so as to remove the pressure, thus returning to two seconds to your first position.

Repeat deliberately about 15 times a minute the swinging forward and backward—a complete respiration in about four seconds. Keep the movements in time with your own breathing.

While the artificial respiration is being continued have an assistant draw forward the victim's tongue. Hold the tongue out if it tends to draw back by wrapping a handkerchief around it. The assistant should also loosen any tight clothing around the victim's neck, chest or waist.

Do not permit bystanders to crowd about and shut off fresh air. Keep the victim warm with proper coverings and by placing beside his body hot bricks, bottles or rubber bags filled with warm (not hot) water. Wrap bricks, bottles or bags so as to prevent burning the victim. Continue the artificial respiration without interruption until natural breathing is restored, or for at least three hours. If natural breathing stops after being restored, use artificial respiration again.

Do not give any liquid by mouth until the victim is fully conscious. Keep the victim flat. If after being partly resuscitated he must be moved, carry him on a stretcher. It is dangerous to make an ill person, or one injured in any way sit up or stand. To make him walk, may cause his death.—Baltimore News.

Coal Being Imported.

Early arrivals of cargoes of English steam coal are expected at the port of Philadelphia as a result of the coal and railroad strikes. Shipping men say it will be the first time in years that English coal has been brought into this port for domestic consumption.

Offerings of English coal to local industries and coal companies have been made, the understanding being that the first cargo is now en route to Philadelphia. It may be unloaded at the Pennsylvania Railroad's ore piers at Greenwichtown. The Cambria Steel Company, with a plant at Johnstown, Pa., is reported to have been a big buyer of English coal, and it is expected its shipments will come through this port.

Railroads centering in New York have bought a total of 175,000 tons of English steam coal. First shipments of these orders are afloat. The coal will cost the railroads about $8 per ton at their docks. So far as can be ascertained neither the Pennsylvania nor the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad has bought any English coal, both of these companies being reported in an excellent position as regards coal supplies.

The Seaboard Byproducts Coke Company, of Jersey City, has purchased 30,000 tons of Welsh gas coal at $7.33 per ton New York harbor, with an additional charge of sixty cents per ton for lightering. Several cargoes of English coal have been received at New England ports recently.—Phila. Ledger.

STRIKE SETTLEMENT STILL IN PROSPECT.

A Decision Expected to Rest on Seniority Concessions.

The coal and railroad situations have not materially changed within the past week. The railroads are operating with part force, and there is still a curtailed production of coal, with both operators and workmen holding firm in their contentions.

The National administration has been busy perfecting plans for radical actions to relieve the situation, but finds itself restricted by lack of authority in some directions, owing to the vast extent of liberty given to individuals and states by our American system of government.

Those who urge the government to act, and criticize it for "doing nothing" are balanced by those who stand on their "legal rights." And those who urge surrender to union demands, are balanced by those who resent surrendering to "hold up" tactics.

Whatever action may be taken by the government, will therefore be met with objections, and will have far-reaching "political" influence. It is a case of "being damned if you do, and damned if you don't," to put it bluntly.

It is becoming increasingly evident that the railroad situation is the key to the mine situation. Even with the mines operating, the railroads would be unable to transport the coal; therefore, the negotiations pending to harmonize the shophmen and railroads, are of prime importance. 300 trains have been discontinued since the strike commenced.

Another phase of the situation is becoming very serious. Large manufacturing operations, such as steel plants, large mills and construction works, will soon close down for want of coal, thereby throwing thousands of men out of work—one class of unionists made idle by the striking of another class.

Invitations have again been extended to both sides, by the President, as well as by State Governors, to enter into working engagements until a permanent agreement can be made. The B. & O. R. R. has also been trying to settle its own case, separately, while conferences in Ohio and Pennsylvania and other states have been in progress. Hopes and hints of settlement are thick, but realization lags.

A plan for settlement has been drawn by the President and labor leaders, the details of which have not been made public. It is believed that it may be accepted, providing the operators modify their decision with reference to the seniority question, which would mean the reinstatement of strikers, without loss to them of status with the Companies on account of striking.

New Way to Cure Hay.

A new method of keeping hay without curing it in the sun has been worked out in Switzerland. The newly mowed hay is stored on metal sheets in silos of 400 feet capacity. Another metal sheet closes the top of the silo and the two sheets are connected in an electric circuit, so an alternating current of from 200 to 500 volts is passed through the grass between them. This enables the grass to be preserved in its natural state until required. It can be cut and stored irrespective of weather conditions and it contains twice the nutriment of an equal quantity of hay.

No Way to Kill Snakes.

An autoist near Cape May, N. J., saw two large snakes in the middle of the road, fighting, and thinking to kill them turned his car at them. The snakes got tangled in the steering gear and before the driver could stop the car it ran off the side of the road and overturned. The driver was uninjured. The snakes were king snakes and measured nearly seven feet.

It might be a good plan for those who usually "vacate" about this time of the year, to save up for, and postpone their outings until the coming winter, and go to Florida where coal is not so much a necessity.

Real benefactors are those who offer remedies that are workable and satisfactory to the majority. The majority must have the ruling voice, and those who are able to speak of ways and means with the greatest wisdom, for the majority, are those most entitled to do the criticizing, for these are the most reasonably to be expected to manage public affairs better, had they the chance.

The old "states rights" doctrine still bobs up whenever the National government sees a National peril, and tries to act as a "Union" of states for the common defense. And while the states offer no solution to the present troubles on their own account, the "states righters" not only order the President to "keep off" their preserves but at the same time taunt him with inefficiency.

The criticism of President Harding, in connection with the coal strike, is seriously amusing. One crowd says he is "not doing anything" and that either Roosevelt or Wilson would have taken severe steps long ago; while another crowd tells him to keep away from the sacred prerogatives of the individual states. The strikers charge him with being opposed to "unionism," while the operators want to run their own business. Well?

Cussin' the Taxes.

When we have nothing else to fall back on, to "cuss," there is always the tax bill. No one ever saw the time when taxes were "too low" and we are always more or less of the opinion that our taxes get away "somewhere," without our getting anything back in return. And all of this must mean that if "we" were running the affairs of the state and county, "we" would cut down expenses, and make taxes much lower.

And all of our cussin' and all of our grouchy opinions amount to mighty little more than wasted time—aside from the relief we feel in "letting off steam"—for if we had the chance to "run things"—if we "run" them at all—we would find out the same thing; that it costs a lot of money to govern ourselves, and that there is just one thing after another that must be done and paid for, out of public treasuries, and that there is no such condition possible as not having public expense.

A state, or county, government, is exactly like a piece of valuable property, or machinery. It continually needs repairs and upkeep; and if we do not spend money for such purposes, the property goes to ruin. Decay and depreciation always goes on. A property unimproved, and not at work, is worthless. A state in which there are no taxes, would not be worth living in. A county that boasts of "low taxes," is a poor county—behind the times.

Of course, we meet with extravagant public expenditures. Of course, there are offices and officials not worth their cost. Of course, there are things that we are not just compelled to have, and might do without. Of course, there are some public expenditures that are out and out mistakes. But, what have we a right to expect? Public offices must be filled by just common human beings, and they must deal with just other common human beings. And all of these, whether in office or out, are continuously making mistakes and foolish investments; the only difference being that one may be "public" business and the other "private" business, and a man may say that what he does for himself is "no-body's business."

But, there is no getting away from the fact that human frailties operate in the one case, as in the other. So, boiled down to exact facts, the tax grumbler—if his own personal affairs are closely looked into—is apt to be just as poor a manager of his own affairs—or maybe worse—than are those of the public officials he lambastes for the high taxes, and not to know, in fact, what he is talking about.

At any rate, we get the best and most economical government to be had. We elect our own officials from among our own numbers, and though as we may be tired of them as soon as they begin to act for us, we do not better conditions by turning them out and putting in others. The truth is, we want the impossible; we would like our taxes on the "voluntary payment" plan, yet get public benefits, "somewhere or other" regardless of paying our share.

"Public General" Fat.

The following "Public General" laws are being published at the expense of the state;

Chapter 203, authorizing the creation of a state debt of $3,150,000 for state roads.

Chapter 231, amending the state law on optometry.

Chapter 303, amending the "Workmen's Compensation" act.

Chapter 441, repealing and re-enacting the election laws.

Chapter 441, amending the law with reference to Public Printing.

Chapter 490, amending the law relating to state militia.

Chapter 494, authorizing a commission to purchase the Susquehanna river bridge, at Havre de Grace.

The last two laws cover about two-thirds of four large newspaper pages. The publication of these laws is about as necessary to the information of the "public in general" as would be statistics relative to church membership in Alaska, or to cattle on the farms of the island of Yap.

Each county is apportioned a certain amount for the publication of these laws. Perhaps $350, or $400, goes to the favored publishers in each, which, by the way, is two or three times the amount a private individual would pay for the same work. The laws are bought in "plate" or in ready printed form, and require no type-setting in the office of publication.

These new laws represent "fat" for those publishers who have the "pull," and are quite handsome donations toward making the "wheels go round." The main thing about the distribution, so far as the public is concerned, is, that it adds to "public general" expense, and is one of the benefits of a legislative session.

Simply Patriotic.

President Harding is 'not playing politics for renomination; in fact, he has practically stated that "once is enough" for him. Indeed, to quote Col. Roosevelt, there is not much "pussy-footing" being done in the White House, these days, and not much listening on the ground for political rumblings.

Two of the President's recent expressions are so simply patriotic as to be remarkable, for the reason that we have come to look for a great deal more circumlocution on such questions.

First; he has said that as long as he is President he will not pardon "any criminal who was guilty of preaching the destruction of the Government by force." There are a good many at large, in this country, who can gain valuable hints for the future, from this statement.

Second; he said in his recent proclamation to State Governors, that he means to see that the fundamental rights of "free men, willing to work, to work in safety"—"of workers to decline employment or the right of employers to hire as they elect," shall be maintained.

Here, too, is an excellent opportunity for valuable schooling, rather in opposition to that practiced by "President" Gompers. In his quiet, unpretentious way, the President of the United States is making use of a simple gospel of righteousness, for which the country should give thanks.

Exaggerated Independence.

It is becoming quite a fad these days for men who have come to public place through party support, to play to the galleries with declarations of their own independence of party doctrine and organization, once their election has been brought about.

The right of any man to be independent in politics is unquestioned, but the courageous and consistent public man will assert his freedom from party allegiance before an election as well as after it.

There is not a man in public life in this country today who would get into office running on his own personal merits without party endorsement of some sort. But it is not difficult for many politicians to get it into their heads, once elected, that what brought them to Washington was their own overwhelming personal popularity. They then proceed to make a virtue of their own unwillingness to go along with their party when it comes to voting on public measures.

The greatest menace in public affairs today is the complete breaking down of political parties and with it the breaking down of responsible government. Those who are helping along in this process of dissolution are not only demonstrating their own ingratitude toward the party which made their public service possible, but are contributing toward the creation of chaotic conditions in politics and government.

Let the politicians who pride themselves on being bigger and better than their political parties and who make a specialty of defying them, make the experiment of putting their names on the ballot hereafter without party designation. Then let them wait and see how the populace will not rise up and elect them to anything. In the absence of a willingness to do this let them, as beneficiaries and representatives in public life or a political party, pay some attention to the obligations that go along with office getting and office holding.—National Republican.

A Splendid Medicine for the Stomach and Liver.

"Chamberlain's Tablets for the stomach and liver are splendid. I never tire of telling my friends and neighbors of their qualities," writes Mrs. William Vollmer, Eastwood, N. Y. When bilious, constipated or troubled with indigestion, give them a trial. They will do you good.

P. R. R. Fire Insurance.

How the Pennsylvania System insures itself against fire loss and other insurable risks is told in the following memorandum prepared by R. H. Newbern, Superintendent of the Insurance Department of the Pennsylvania system:

In 1897 the Pennsylvania Railroad adopted the principle of self-insurance by establishing an Insurance Fund to assume a relatively small proportion of the fire risk on its properties. From time to time the plan of self-insurance thus begun in a modest way has been expanded until it now includes the assumption of marine losses, payments on account of injuries to persons, loss and damage—freight and other insurable risks and losses.

Under this plan the average fire loss cost on the Pennsylvania System during the past 43 years has been only 14 cents per 100 at risk.

As the result of the development of systematic inspections to eliminate the conditions responsible for losses and the installation of adequate fire protection has been substantially less than the premiums generally charged by insurance companies for railroad risks. In addition the method has largely eliminated the unknown element from the cost of operation and substituted therefor fixed annual charges. This guards against a serious charge to expense in any one year and protects the individual operating units against unusual losses by spreading them over a wide area.

As an illustration of the hearty support given by the officers and employees of the Pennsylvania System to this feature of railroad operation, the excellent fire prevention and fire fighting record of the Company is attributed principally to the installation of adequate fire equipment and the maintenance of fire brigades regularly drilled in the handling of the fire apparatus at all points where the valuations warrant and sufficient employees are available to form a fire brigade.

There are approximately 400 fire brigades organized on the Pennsylvania System and the fact that they are efficient in fire fighting is demonstrated by the record in 1921, when 288 fires were extinguished by these brigades with Company's apparatus, resulting in a total of only $26,000 to property valued at $30,600,000.

When Spring Comes to London.

In the long lane that leads to spring the first new leaf of brush or tree is the honeysuckle, next is the elder's and now at last the green buds appear on the hawthorns, and break into leaf, so that a forward hedge is dappled with verdure. The wood sawlows, with their satin-soft cushions of down, make a silvery illumination in amber-hued woods, and the cushions are fast opening into golden flowers. Red and amber shades are the first colors of spring. Osier beds make arresting patches of orange red in a landscape, and the elms are wine hued with their myriads of flowers—the wryneck may be calling among them any day.—London Post.

SEA NOW CALLS TO WOMEN

Uncle Sam Can Employ Feminine Junior Engineers and Deck Officers—Other Positions Open.

Modern girls who desire to enter the proverbial "man's sphere" of business now have their chance. They may enter into a vocation which for merly was decidedly masculine.

Do you think you could powder your nose on the bridge of a schooner in a 60-mile gale? Could you save your sunde pumps from the ravages of a deckhand armed with a mop? Do you doubt that you could preserve your dignity and your standing in a boat that was trying to turn itself upside down?

Have you an idea you could stop the brawls of rough sailors, shin up a mast, throw a half-hitch with a slight movement of the wrist and do all the other things which go to make life on the high seas a joy?

If you can answer yes to all those questions, go to the secretary of the United States civil service commission, in the federal building in Los Angeles, and enter in the competitive examinations which soon are to be offered, says the Express of that city. Just put your John Henry on the dotted line, opposite "Junior engineer and deck officer," which position carries a stipend of $2,000 a year. The job is open to any man or woman who can pass the examinations.

Other positions open are laboratory and field aid in cotton breeding, pyrotechnic assistant, junior laboratory aid in plant physiology, computer, insurance claims examiner, technical office assistant, petroleum economist, teacher in the Indian service, stenographer and chauffeur for the veterans' bureau in Los Angeles. The last-named position is open to men exclusively.

NOT EASY TO KILL SOLDIER

Three Tons of Metal Were Used in the World War in Destroying Each Fighter.

Nothing caused the newspaper reader during the war greater surprise than the colossal expenditure of ammunition.

It was agreed that in former wars it took a man's weight in bullets to kill him. In other words, that for every thousand rifle bullets fired away one man was killed.

In the late war, if all the metal expended in ammunition were reduced to rifle bullets, no fewer than 50,000 would be required to kill a man. Of course, the calculation is rendered difficult by the fact that millions of tons of metal were expended in putting up barrages and the like, and in intensive bombardments of the enemy's positions, but it is safe to say that for every man killed in the war about three tons of metal were expended.

Such a calculation is staggering and yet comforting, for if the old average had held good, all the armies engaged in the war, vast though they were, would have been annihilated to the last man.

Lonely Hotel Bedrooms.

"What is the loneliest place in the world?" asks the Gideon, organ of the traveling Christian salesmen of this country. The answer it gives is the hotel bedroom. Those who know it best are the commercial travelers, many of whom spend 60 per cent of their time in the hotel bedroom, far from their homes and relatives. They know its dreariness and isolation, its poverty of social intercourse and opportunity, its barrenness of outlook and uplifting influences. It is a loneliness exaggerated by sumptuous furnishings, by the bustle and commotion of hundreds of people all about one, by the very earnest and well-intentioned efforts of managements to create the "homelike" atmosphere which can not be manufactured or imitated without the presence of family or relatives or friends.

Hence the effort to place Bibles in hotel rooms. There are approximately 700,000 salesmen on the road on this continent and probably 3,000,000 hotel bedrooms. So the field is large.

When Prices Fall

It is easy to do business on a rising market. Then everything is lovely. But when prices start to fall, there is a different story. Then the dollar becomes hard to obtain and its purchasing power correspondingly increases. All are willing to see prices come down, but all want to see the reduction made on what the other fellow has for sale, first. As the dollar increases in value it is more and more worth saving. We invite you to open an account at our bank, where your valuable dollars will be safe.

POULTRY

CLEAN EGGS ARE ESSENTIAL

Change of Nesting Material Whenever Dirty Will Help—Have Plenty Fresh Litter.

Poultrymen need not be at the nest to wipe Mrs. Biddy's feet before she enters to make her daily contribution to their profits, but if the hen house is so arranged that her feet will be clean and will not dirty the egg, it will mean added profit for him.

Dirty eggs are a second-rate product on any market; so are washed eggs. This means that the egg must be produced clean, which further means clean nests and clean feet.

Clean nests are easy—comparatively. A change of nesting material whenever it gets dirty will do away with the danger of soiling from this source, and special care must be taken to see that the birds do not roost on the edge of the nests at night.

Keeping the birds' feet clean is a much more difficult proposition. First of all it is most essential to have a clean doormat in the shape of fresh litter and plenty of it on the floor at all times; secondly, do not let the birds out on muddy days when their feet are bound to get daubed up.

Most important of all, keep the dropping boards clean. Daily scrapings are preferable, but if a poultryman feels that he has not the time for this, they should be cleaned at least twice a week. A cage of one inch or one and one-half inch poultry wire tacked under the perches and over the dropping boards will prevent the birds from walking on the boards, and incidentally will catch any eggs that are dropped in the night.

Even with this extra care, the poultryman must expect some dirty eggs, and a word of advice on how to clean them might be timely. The so-called plain dirties, those soiled by dirty feet and dirty nests, are easily cleaned with a soft, damp cloth, which should be used only on dirty spots. Be careful not to rub them dry, but to allow them to dry by standing in the air. It is very important that the gelatinous coating which seals the egg should not be soaked off, as this covering is germ-proof and serves as a natural means of keeping the eggs fresh.

MONEY FROM SUMMER FLOCKS

Seven Excellent Rules Suggested by Missouri College to Increase Profits on Eggs.

Here are seven rules suggested by the Missouri College of Agriculture that will increase the profits from the summer flock:

Produce infertile eggs by removing the roosters from the flock in the summer time.

Provide clean nests and keep eggs clean.

Do not wash eggs. Gather eggs twice daily during the summer to prevent them from being heated by the hen.

Keep them in a cool dry place, away from the flies.

Market them at least twice each week.

Insist that they be bought on a quality, graded basis.

POULTRY NOTES

Sell surplus cockerels as soon as marketable.

Keep growing chicks and laying hens separate throughout the summer.

Remember that little chickens do not require feeding until they are forty-eight hours old.

Some folks occasionally take the roosts down and wash them with boiling soap to kill all lice.

Give your hens careful attention during the molting season, and you will get many more eggs next winter.

Hens to be marketed are those that have a decidedly crooked breast-bone, scaly legs or long toe nails, or are "broken down" behind, or have abdomens that are fat and hard.

MARKET SEASON FOR GUINEAS

Latter Part of Summer and Throughout Fall Is Best Time to Dispose of Fowls.

The marketing season for guinea fowl is during the latter part of summer, and throughout the fall. At this time the demand in the city market is for young birds weighing from one to two pounds each. At about 2½ months old guineas weigh from one to 1½ pounds, and at this size they begin reaching the markets in August. As the season advances the demand is for heavier birds.

The usual practice in marketing game birds is to place them on the market unplucked, and in most markets guineas are sold this way. They appear more attractive with feathers on, and sell more readily. Dressed, the small size and dark color of the skin are likely to prejudice the prospective customer who may be unfamiliar with the bird's excellent eating qualities. For hotel and restaurant trade, however, guineas should be dressed in the same way as common fowl. Better ask the dealer, before shipping, whether he wants the feathers on or off.

Guineas Are Usually Placed on Market Unplucked.

If the feathers are to be left on the birds all that is necessary in preparing for market is to bleed them by severing the principal blood vessels of the neck, allowing them to hang head downward until bleeding is complete.

If the feathers are to be removed it should be done by dry picking. When the brain is pierced after severing the blood vessels in the neck the feathers are loosened by a convulsive movement of the muscles and can be removed easily.

It would take an exceptionally keen sense of taste to distinguish any difference between white and brown eggs at breakfast, but human beings are such faddists that, in the opinion of some, the difference is there just the same. In New York the demand is for white shells, while in Boston the brown egg is just as popular.

"Some men will have only Dutch Belted cattle or Hampshire hogs," said one of the poultry specialists in the Department of Agriculture. "They are color enthusiasts. The liking for white-shelled eggs may have grown from associating the egg with the white poultry, an agreeable picture suggesting cleanliness. Actually, however, the brown-shell egg is every bit as good as the white until you arrive at the price in New York. The difference there sometimes is considerably in favor of the white."

At present all the general purpose breeds of chickens are layers of brown eggs. Some of the leading markets demand the white egg, however, and as the price favors the white product it is important to supply it if possible and at the same time produce a fowl having weight in meat.

The busy hen is the one that makes the best layer. It pays to feed the young fowls liberally until they are full grown. Be kind to your fowls; make friends with them and they will repay you. Fright reduces the egg yield. Exercise makes the hens lay better, insures fertile eggs and makes the chicks grow strong and healthy. Make the nest boxes of ample size, but not too deep. The hens, if large in size, will break the eggs in getting into the nest if it be too deep. A hen too closely confined soon becomes restless and uneasy. Restlessness results in discomfort and the development of such vices as egg-eating, feather-pulling and cannibalism.

Porch Swings Automatic Refrigerators Save Foods Porch Rockers

Refrigerators are not bought these days as they used to be, when all we wanted to know was whether an "ice box" was "big enough" to hold all the things we wished to chuck into it.

Today we are modern. We want to know if a refrigerator is or is NOT an "ice-cater"; we want to know if our foods will keep COLD, sweet and wholesome for the entire family; we want to know that we are getting not only the most scientifically-built but the BEST-built, and the MOST-ECONOMICAL refrigerator on the market. Also we want a "good-looking" refrigerator.

That's why we recommend The Automatic. We are also Agents for the Famous White Frost, the all-white round Refrigerator. We also handle two lower priced lines—four lines in all—so you can buy just what you want, to suit your purse.

The New International Manure Spreader is a Money Maker.

The basis of profitable farming is a fertile soil. In farming, as in other businesses, there are poor years and good ones, but the farmer who keeps up the productivity of his soil will forge ahead.

No method of maintaining soil fertility has proved so efficient as the proper application of barnyard manure. It is a foresighted policy to build up crop yields with an International roller bearing manure spreader. Put manure on your fields finely, evenly, uniformly, and economically; the extra fertility will in a short time pay for the International spreader.

Note again these features in International construction; 1. Roller bearings at seven points. 2. Power delivered from both wheels. 3. Double ratchet drive with six feed speeds. 4. Short-turn axle—no pole whipping. 5. Rear wheels track front wheels. 6. Tight bottom. 7. Two beaters and wide-spread spiral. 8. All-steel main frame.

You cannot afford this year to pass up an opportunity to save all the manure and use its fertility in making your farm more productive. See us about the new International manure spreader at your first opportunity.

Home Town Helps

MAKE HOME A BEAUTY SPOT

Matter Is More One of Careful Thought Than Mere Expenditure of Actual Cash.

The "brightening up" process ought to start with the lot line. Invest in some fertilizer for the lawn—you'll be surprised at the good it will do. Then, over in one corner may be a spot where a spirea, or a climbing rose could work wonders in transformation. Perhaps the sidewalk entrances may need repainting, or the porches have to be painted, and surely every two or three years a house needs a coat or two of good paint, remembering the slogan that when you "save the surface, you save all." Then the garage and the flower garden come in for their share of new things. Perhaps there's a cracked window pane somewhere that needs replacing, or a cupboard to build.

Inside the home, most folks clear away the dirt and the grime and the smoke of winter hours with a vigorous application of the scrub brush, plus the services of a good decorator. A few dollars invested in matters like these aids the inmates of any dwelling, no matter how modest or pretentious, to get a new grip on life.

But just a word of caution before you do anything. Consider well what should be done, make your plans, then go to dealers you can trust and make your purchases, keeping in mind the fact that those who advertise their wares, who are unafraid to speak of the merits of their merchandise publicly, through newspaper columns, are the ones to turn to both for advice and for the actual investment of the dollars you have planned to spend for the little things that help make a house a home.

After dark the Careless Cit throws the paper off the bread out the kitchen window of his apartment to his neighbor's lawn, to save himself ten steps to the incinerator, and when he sees small boys throwing a milk bottle or a dead electric bulb on the pavement, spraying glass in the path of vulnerable tires, Careless Cit laughs and says boys will be boys.

Home doesn't begin at the front door and end at the back. It goes from the curb to the alley fence. It takes in the clothesline and the green shutter and every bough of the apple-tree. Poets may rave of the old oaken, moss-covered bucket, but they don't drink out of it. The inconveniences of the summer hotel are all right when you're on a vacation.

The time of home regeneration is here, however, and it doesn't end until the blackness cast up by the radiator is cleaned from the wall and the indoor necks of winter have disappeared under the application of elbow-grease.

The City Beautiful.

We can't have too many pretty towns, or too many pretty homes in town and country. Progress along this line is being made annually and with increasing interest among progressive town builders and home owners. There is no use for shabbiness. Shabbiness connotes indolence and indifference. A house or a town which indicates careless occupants, citizens concerned only for primitive necessities, is not one to attract the sort of people that energetic people want to know. Poverty is no excuse for shabbiness. The humblest dwelling does not need to be shabby. Shabbiness is carelessness, not finisness. Many a flimsy little cottage or cabin exhibits a quality that is far superior to shabbiness. It is the careless, unattended, dilapidated, apathetic look to a man's home, a man's town, or a man's clothing that gives it shabbiness. One needn't be shabby in overalls any more than in a tailor-made suit.—Dallas (Tex.) News.

Lion's Meal of Porcupine Fatal.

The victim of its own rapacity, a dead mountain lion is on exhibition in Stevensville, Mont. Two local hunters "bagged" the beast with so little trouble that they were puzzled, until an examination of the lion's mouth showed it had attempted to feast upon a porcupine. Aggravating darts had become imbedded in the membrane, preventing the animal from partaking of food. Spikes of the "quill pig" had been known to kill beasts in a similar manner. The lion on exhibition is of unusual size.

ONE JOURNAL IN GREENLAND

And the Editor of That One Had to Teach His Subscribers How to Read It.

Journalism in Greenland is in rather a primitive stage, according to the captain of a British bark. The captain makes frequent voyages to Greenland and is held to be an authority on conditions in that country.

The one editor in Greenland is a Dane named Moeller, who conducts the only newspaper and enjoys the singular distinction of printing the paper for the natives and teaching them to read it.

Mr. Moeller is not only the editor and proprietor; he is the reporter, printer, distributor and business manager, and every two weeks he makes a long journey on skates to dispose of his journal.

Originally it contained only a few crude illustrations, but gradually other matter was introduced, until now it contains articles on the affairs of the day.

This man actually taught his subscribers to read his paper, first introducing words, then sentences, until now his subscribers are able to read articles on any topic he cares to write about.

FORMED NEW VOCAL CORD

Tissues, After Operation, Grew Together, and Voice Is Said to Be Improved.

In three out of four cases in which Dr. H. Burger resected the vocal cords the tissues grew together to form a new vocal cord. He reports to the Nederlandsch Tijdschrift v. Geneeskunde (Amsterdam) that the more radical the operation on the side wall of the throat the more the new cord approximated normal.

In all these cases the diagnosis of malignant tumor was beyond question, and the operation was done through a slit in the thyroid cartilage. No attempt was made to suture this afterward. The voice is good in all but one, who still is hoarse. The voice is very much better than in other cases in which merely the growth itself was resected and the rest of the vocal cord left. The repair after this is much less perfect. In one of his cases the repair was so perfect that in examining with the laryngoscope a year later there was some doubt as to the operated side.—New York World.

Saw Volcano in Action.

A volcano in action was witnessed about six weeks ago by the captain of the British freighter Bounty, off the West African coast. The skipper said the Bounty was about five miles off shore when he observed smoke pouring high and profusely out of a peak inward from the Right of Biafra, near the boundary line between Kamerun and Nigeria. Thinking he might be of assistance in the event of disaster to the villages near the seacoast he put in toward shore and went to the land in a lifeboat. He said the smoking peak was about 11,000 feet above sea level and on its westward side he observed large streams of lava. Finding no signs of human life along the shore he went back to the freighter and proceeded on his course.

Put Out Fires With Glass Balls.

A glass ball, the glass being thin and easily shattered, and about the size of an egg, filled with a standard flame-killing liquid, is now being put on the market.

Most fires can be extinguished with little danger and little loss if proper means are available for prompt use. Experiments have shown that a few of these new glass balls or fire-outs, as they are called, will quickly snuff out a bad blaze.

In the past most fire extinguishers have been rather high-priced. This new extinguisher is a notable exception—the three balls which comprise a set being retailed for only 80 cents per set. A set of three balls comes in an ingenious carton which can be hung from the wall.

Not Pretty Music.

Dorothy, three years old, lives at New Albany. Her father took her to the barber shop to have her hair trimmed, and the electric clippers almost drove the little girl into spasms of fear despite the kind assurances that they would not hurt her. She had a big audience before the task was completed.

Next day Dorothy went to visit a neighbor who lived near the barber shop. Shortly after her arrival she heard music and inquired its location. On being informed that it was at the barber's she replied:

"Well, I don't think his music is pretty."—Indianapolis News.

American Money in Canada.

It is estimated that American investments in Canada for 1920 amounted to $25,000,000—more than half of the prewar Canadian investment. Some of the items of investment during the period under review are: Bonds purchased, $237,000,000; industrial investment, $50,000,000; western lands purchased, $7,000,000. It is also estimated that $30,000,000 of the $50,000,000 invested in industries went into the pulp and paper business.

"RAWTHER DEEP, YOU KNOW"

Introducing London's Latest Particular Wheeze as a Test of American Sophistication.

Says Sinclair Lewis, back from Europe with the manuscript of a sequel to "Main Street": "If I had the power I'd make Henry Mencken the pope of America. He spreads just the message of sophistication that we need so badly."

How badly we need this sophistication every American home can determine for itself by a safe and simple experiment. Mr. Lewis brought back with him London's latest wheeze. After the dishes are cleared away the head of the family can try it on his flock. It runs like this:

One chap says to another: "Oh, I say, isn't that girl at that table the same one we saw last night?" "I can't say. The tablecloth is too long."

If the flock gets the point it is adequately sophisticated. If the point escapes them and leaves them pained and puzzled it is a sign that this family, at least, would be benefited by a Menckian pontificate, for Henry spreads not only a "message of sophistication," but other things as well.—Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

MAY BE "LAST OF EMPIRES"

Distinction, in All Likelihood, Has Been Reserved for the Realm of the Mikado.

The imperial circle, as it might be called, is narrowing. Russia, Germany, Austria, Turkey have all passed into the twilight.

Ordinarily you do not associate the emperor business with King George, because he is the essence of the democratic spirit, and England is to all intents and purposes a crowned republic. Besides, it is not among the impossibilities that self determination will some day place the jewel that Beaconsfield ducked upon the diadem of Queen Victoria when he made her empress of India. Japan may be the last of the empires.

So far as it is humanly possible to predict anything in these cataclysmic times, Japan will remain an empire. The zeal for the royal family—it is almost fanaticism—leaves no doubt as to this eventually. Thus, unlike some of his European colleagues, Prince Hirohito is sure of his succession if he lives. He need never worry about radical intrigue.—Isaac F. Marcosson in the Saturday Evening Post.

In His Father's Steps.

Several years ago a great man, now gone, walked in Rock Creek park. He delighted to plow through brush, wade in the creek and take unsuspecting friends on long hikes.

On his return, walking at a rapid pace down Sixteenth street, he always had a smile and a wave of the hand for the children who greeted him along the way.

He put the cares of his great office away when he went out to play. The other day three men, one in the lead, came walking up rapidly from Rock creek and cut around the base of the Hon house hill in the zoo.

The leader was bare-headed and had on an old red sweater. "Come on, Nicky," he called to a man behind him.

So the party disappeared around the hill, led by Theodore Roosevelt, Jr.—Washington Star.

Music Increases Egg Supply.

Two young lady graduates of Toronto university are the owners of a poultry farm a few miles east of Toronto. They have been very successful. To lovers of music one of the ladies recently said something that is very interesting.

"Do you know that hens love music? Some time ago a ferret got into our henhouse and terrified our hens so much that the eggs fell off from 150 to 75 a day and we couldn't get them back to normal. One day a girl who was staying with us was working for several hours in the henhouse and she sang lustily the while. There was a marked improvement in the number of eggs, and we continued the experiment with success. We afterward heard of a farmer who installed a gramophone for his hens and got 3 per cent more eggs as a result."—Exchange.

Wasn't, but He Did.

One day as I was sitting in the window I saw a man coming up the street dressed like a farmer. Now I had but a few minutes before seen a goose trying to fly over the bushes in the yard.

As the man seemed to be looking for something, I called out to him: "Are you looking for a goose?" He stopped short and gazed suspiciously, as much as to say, "Well, it looks as if I'd found one."—Exchange.

Improvement on Tractor.

A new attachment designed to give the small tractor greater bearing area and increased pulling power, replaces the round wheels with two large sprockets, according to Popular Mechanics Magazine. Outside of each sprocket is a cast-steel arm which projects forward and downward, carrying at its front end a smaller idler wheel. A track tread passes around the sprocket and idler wheel, giving the tractor increased bearing area.

Not Natural.

There is at present a good deal of criticism of our girls, but after all one can't expect a chicken to be as wise as an owl.—Boston Transcript.

EATS ENOUGH FOR FOUR MEN

Probably Largest Human Consumer of Food in the World Threatens to Afflict Russia.

Highly interesting is the coincidence that the largest human consumer of food in the world should be a Russian, and, though at present outside that distressed country, he is announced as anxious to return to it in order to go to work on his father's farm. Nature has a queer habit of displaying extremes simultaneously as if to jest with the observer.

The giant, Kazanoff by name, is described in the Journal of the American Medical Association as being nine feet three inches tall and weighing 485 pounds, his proportions being symmetrical. Four meals a day are needed to stoke this physical engine, hunger being his governing emotion. In 24 hours he will consume from four to five pints of milk, from fifteen to twenty eggs, four pounds of meat, five or six loaves of bread and large quantities of potatoes, beans and other vegetables, washing down this gargantuan repast with from four to six pints of wine and eight to twelve pints of beer.

Tired of the monotonous life of a circus freak, this man mountain longs for his native Siberia, where his father is a farmer in moderate circumstances, and soon will leave Hungary for his home. The hope is plausibly expressed that famine conditions are not prevalent at his destination, for the reason that, as he needs the quantity of food that will feed four average healthy men, he will be four times as hungry as his neighbors and therefore will become a menace to himself and the community.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

AIDS CHILDREN IN HOPPING

Pennsylvania Woman Has Put Forward Ingenious Device Which She Calls Grasshopper Feet.

Adult human beings are rarely seen to skip and hop. It is, however, a form of exercise in which children are wont much to indulge, to the great benefit of their physical development. Encouragement of this form of exercise is offered by the novel invention of a woman, May C. Southgate of New York. It is a pair of mechanical grasshoppers, of giant size, put on like a pair of shoes and fastened by straps and buckles to the child's feet. They have legs of spring steel, terminating in rings which hold rubber feet. A child equipped with these grasshoppers can hop, skip or jump much more actively, and can get over ground quicker, while the rubber feet lessen the shock of alighting and give a delightful sense of lightness.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Gold Film Is Transparent.

Gold 1-2,798,000 of an inch thick, or 10,584 times thinner than the ordinary sheet of printing paper has recently been produced. One grain of the precious metal of this thickness covers nearly four square feet of area and is perfectly transparent.

The process of obtaining the thinnest film is to cut a sheet of copper to a determined size and place it in an electric bath, where sufficient gold is deposited on one surface of the plate, to produce the finest gold color discernible. To separate the film of gold from the copper, the gold-plated copper strip is immersed in a weak solution of nitric acid for several days. The copper is entirely dissolved, leaving the film of gold floating on the surface of the liquid. The film is then collected on a glass plate.—Popular Science Monthly.

Mount Everest.

According to the latest determination of the Indian survey, the height of Mount Everest is 29,141 feet. It is the highest ascertained point on the surface of the globe. The greatest Himalayas present such difficulties that climbers have been compelled to refrain from attempting to reach their greatest heights, as well as from the fact that the effects of altitudes are not yet fully understood. The greatest mountain heights yet reached are 24,000 feet, by the duke of the Abruzzi during his expedition to the western Himalayas, and 24,000 feet by Norwegians on Kabru, one of the mountains near Darjeeling.

Kidding the Doctor.

The doctor was ready to leave, and was congratulating the father on the advent of the new baby, when a burly billygoat went tearing by in hot pursuit of a dog.

The father blurted out in very undignified English: "Drat that goat! I shall have to sell him. Doctor, would you like to buy him for your boys?"

"I don't know," said the doctor. "What do you want for him?" "Well, how much is your bill?" "Fifty dollars." "Then you ought to give me sixty for the goat. A full-grown goat ought to be worth more than a kid."

She Answered Her.

An austere woman was lecturing a body of high school girls in a Hoosier town recently on the uselessness and wickedness of the flapper. After she had said that they were not fit to become the mothers of the next generation, she looked at a bobbed-haired little girl who had rouged and powdered her face rather heavily and demanded, "Young lady, what do you know about babies?"

For a minute the little flapper looked startled. Then she blushed a fiery red. "Well, lady," she stammered, "I've stopped believing in the stork."—Indianapolis News.

'Twas Said:

"I do hope that you keep your cows in a pasture," said Mrs. Newlywed, as she paid the milkman. "Yes," replied the milkman, "Of course we keep them in a pasture." "I'm so glad," gushed Mrs. Newlywed. "I have been told that pasteurized milk is much the best." It is said that we all pay dearly for our experience but "inexperience" is protected at this store. An inexperienced child can buy here satisfactorily and be sure of getting good quality and at the same price as the most experienced shopper would receive, because we have one fair price on every article and it's the same price to everyone.

BUILDING UP BUFFALO HERDS

Department of Agriculture Has Had Gratifying Success With This Part of Its Work.

Forty-six new buffalo calves are reported on three of the four game preserves maintained by the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture for the special protection of buffalo. On the national bison range, in Montana, there are 417 buffalo, including 28 calves born this spring. Fifteen calves are reported at the Wind Cave preserve, in South Dakota, and 3 at Niobrara, Neb.

The department has been very fortunate in maintaining the herds established at these three points and at Sully's Hill, North Dakota. There are relatively few large buffalo herds now scattered over the country, and the biological survey has made special efforts to provide suitable ranges and protection for what threatened a few years ago to become an extinct species of native American animal.

Interesting Powder Horn Map.

A map engraved on an old powder horn may lead to the location of the sites of several Cherokee Indian towns in western North Carolina, according to the Bureau of American Ethnology at Washington.

The powder horn is a loan from Hugh Kirk, Newtownards, County Down, Ireland, and dates from about 1750 when the English were beginning to open up the Cherokee region. It belonged to James Grant, member of a company of British soldiers stationed near Charlestown and near Fort Loudon and Fort Prince George in the Cherokee country about the time that these forts were besieged. The horn is elaborately engraved with the royal arms of Great Britain and the map showing the ancient town of Ucassee and other towns in the region in which the soldier saw service.

Perpetual Motion Discredited.

It seems hardly credible, but up to the year 1772, there was no scientist in all Europe who knew enough to categorically deny that there was such a thing as perpetual motion.

It remained for Sir Isaac Newton and the French scientist, De La Hire, to demonstrate beyond doubt the impossibility of attaining it.

Quite a little time passed before the scientific world in general was willing to accept the Newtonian theory, but finally the French Academy of Science at Paris, in 1775, publicly declared that perpetual motion was an impossibility and thereby branded all those who still insisted upon experimenting with it as charlatans.—Pittsburgh Leader.

Multiplies Scenery.

A Russian widow, Mme. Ivan Boutkovsky, has devised an ingenious scheme for "multiple scenery," whereby two scenes are painted upon one canvas. Colored lights are thrown upon this drop-scene, which bring out certain colors while concealing others, so that with the same stage setting either a landscape or an interior may immediately be brought into view. Playing several acts with one set of scenery is an idea that should appeal strongly to producers, both as a novelty and from an economical point of view.—Scientific American.

No Bald-headed Indians.

Denver, July 21.—There are no bald-headed Indians, according to the Most Rev. Albert T. Daeger, O. F. M. Archbishop of Santa Fe, who is quoted by the Denver Catholic Register in an interview with His Grace in El Paso.

The Archbishop had his attention called to a remark made by someone that the Indians need more soap and water than Christianity. "That is foolish," returned the prelate. "Indians are as clean as white men, if not cleaner than white men. They make use of the soap used in frequent baths, in which they wash themselves from head to foot. Why, I have seen them plunge into streams of water in the dead of winter."

"Did you ever see a bald-headed Indian? No! They are so clean their hair does not fall out. That ends that."

"Some also argue that education is not good for the Indian. We believe otherwise, although I know of instances in which young bucks who return from college are absolutely worthless."

"As a whole, however, the Indians make good Christians. There are some pueblos where idolatry is practiced and priests even are barred on certain occasions, but the average Indian is better morally than the white man. And where the Indian is immoral, the white man is responsible."

"I never heard of divorce among Indians. That's something the modern couple can learn from the red man."

Snake Bites Cause Few Deaths.

Although the average mortality from American venomous snakes is a little more than 10 percent of the persons bitten, death from snake bites is quite rare, according to the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture, because relatively few persons encounter or are bitten by the dangerous species.

The most venomous of our native snakes live in lonely, little-settled districts, often on stony or swampy land that can not be cultivated. Usually they disappear at the approach of man, and while they may strike if provoked, the popular belief in respect to the distance they can strike is erroneous. Three-fourths of their own length is about the greatest distance possible. If the legs are well protected when one is going into deep woods or places known to be infested by rattlers or other poisonous snakes, there is slight chance of being bitten.

As the food of snakes consists of living prey, they can not be killed by poisoned baits. The only method thus far devised to kill them seems to be clubbing or shooting. This is best done in early spring, when they are still sluggish after the winter hibernation. Allowing hogs free run of infested land may reduce the number of snakes. However, the popular idea that hogs are immune to snake bite is probably based on the impenetrability by the venomous fangs of their thick skin and fat layer rather than on actual immunity of these animals.

The varieties most commonly found in this country are the Elapidae, or Harlequin snakes, and the Crotalidae, or "pit vipers," which include rattlesnakes, cotton-mouth water moccasins and copperheads.—Extension Service News.

BOTH WILD, FOR SHORT TIME

Imprisoned Cat and Kansas City Man Alike in Disposition Until Storm Calmed Down.

In Enid, Okla., according to a Kansas City man who goes there frequently, there is a collector of curiosities peculiar to the state. His line ranges from Indian moccasins to live coyotes. In fact he handles anything that might appeal to the romantic impulses and purses of Easterners.

This dealer's store window recently attracted the interested attention of a portly salesman who was strolling about the town in company with the Kansas City man. With this obese traveling man to pause was to sit. The only convenient seat in this case was a box on the sidewalk in front of the store window. A piece of bur-lap had been spread over it.

The portly one just settled himself comfortably to enjoy the window display when his companion heard a snarling scream within the box and almost simultaneously the fat man was seen rising high in the air, propelled by his own sturdy legs. A howl from him mingled with the falsetto one which emanated from beneath the bur-lap.

Subsequent investigation developed that the box was really a crate containing a temperamental wildcat about to be shipped East. The animal had been seized with an impulse to test its lungs and claws at about the time the salesman placed the posterior part of his anatomy so convenient for claw testing.

DEMAND FOR CASCARA BARK Industry Was Once a Baby, but It Has Developed Greatly in Washington State.

A half million dollars was the value of this season's cascara bark, harvested by Grays Harbor (Wash.) folk. It is the peeled leather-like skin of the barberry tree, stripped by settlers and city dwellers who spend six weeks each spring in the swampy forests near Hoquiam.

Six years ago this bark gathering industry was a babe, the few who attempted to sell the peeled bark getting from 3 to 4 cents per pound for it—not knowing just how to properly cure and pack it.

Then came the drug famine. The wholesale price which has gradually been rising is now 15 cents per pound and skillful strippers make $10 to $15 per day. With a knife an incision is made near the ground and a piece of bark once loosened there may be pulled from the tree upward for ten to fifteen feet. Taking but a part of the bark does not injure the tree.

Likes Color.

The other evening one of the charity organizations was giving a supper for a number of poor children of Indianapolis. One of the women had baked a particularly nice angel food cake for the occasion. One little boy attracted her interest and she decided that no matter what happened he should have a piece of her cake.

Accordingly she offered two or three women in passing their cakes by to get her own. She carried a big piece to the little fellow who gave it one look and said: "We got bread at home, lady. Please gimme some cake."

Crestfallen, she carried back her own cake and got him a piece of marble cake in which red and white mingled. And now she says, "No more angel food cake for me for charity parties."

Truth Mixed With Poetry.

A Muncie lawyer was making his first church speech. It was a welcome to the new minister, and in it he was telling of the beauties of his home town. He spoke of the streets, the residences and then he began on the trees. "I have one great tree in my yard," he said, "that means more to me than any other in town. Whenever I pass it I think of how often I have reached into its boughs to pluck the spring blossoms."

And then came an interruption. His little eight-year-old son who had been paying close attention to father's speech spoke up. "Don't forget the caterpillars, too, father," he said. "We have to burn 'em about that time, too."—Indianapolis News.

Shipping Sheet Rubber.

A new case for shipping sheet rubber has been introduced into Singapore shipping circles by an American firm. These reach local exporters in the form of sheets made of 100 per cent fiber, the riveting, packing and wiring being done by the shippers. The thinness of the sheets enables the cases built from them to hold from 12 to 25 per cent more weight of rubber than the old wooden boxes, and the new construction is practically unbreakable, very cleanly and waterproof.—Scientific American.

Speeches Quickly Reported.

The stenographers work in shifts, so that copies of his speech made in New York recently were available 9 minutes and 10 seconds after he had spoken the last word.—Exchange.

WISE PRECAUTION

He had been told that to toughen his hands and feet he should soak them in a tub of salt water.

One morning a friend happened to drop in while the boy was engaged in this interesting process.

"Billy," said he, after he had duly explained the thing to his wondering companion. "I'm pretty near due for a licking, and tomorrow I'm going to sit down in it."

A Modern Cave Man

By LILIAN HALL CROWLEY

©, 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

David Henderson, sitting in a secluded spot of the veranda in the depths of despair, was startled out of his unhappy line of thought when he heard his name mentioned. He got up, thinking the speaker was looking for him. Then the words arrested him for a moment. He was behind some potted plants and egress was not easily gained. He did not intend to listen, but could not help hearing the following in a girl's indignant voice:

"Lois Marids is just too unkind for anything—the way she treats David. I hate to see her so indifferent toward him when he is so thoughtful and unselfish."

"That's just the trouble," replied another girl. "I know Lois pretty well, and I think she really loves David, but it's too uninteresting to have some one so perfect all the time. He ought to employ cave man tactics. I think she'd like it!"

"Do you really—?" The voices trailed off in the distance. David went back to his seat. "So that's it," he thought. "Just being considerate of a woman, anticipating her every wish and waiting on her devotedly is not enough. Cave man, indeed!"

He sat there a long time, and he wasn't looking at the moon, either. He was thinking harder than he had ever thought before in his whole life.

After a while he arose and, with a grim smile on his usually placid face, he joined the other young people who were celebrating Lois's birthday.

He was the first to leave. Lois looked her surprise, for he usually lingered until he was the last one to go home, but he vouchsafed no explanation.

Many, many times he had asked her to marry him, but she had never given him the decisive word—still, she had not refused him. She kept him dangling. He had tried harder and harder to please her, and had made no headway.

The remarks tonight were a revelation. He hadn't realized it before, but he was getting tired of dangling. He would either give Lois up or he would make her come to a decision.

He didn't want to give her up! Those girls were right. He ought to get Lois with "cave-man tactics"—he certainly hadn't succeeded the other way. He would bide his time, and if she preferred being knocked on the head with a club and then dragged by the hair to his den—he'd do it.

He wanted her in any way he could get her, and he would be obliging enough to get her in the way she wished to be won.

So, one bright, sunny day, about noon, when it seemed that every one was out of doors, Lois and he were crossing some street car tracks on the busiest intersection of the city. Lois was tripping along on dainty, high-heeled, black satin pumps, when she stopped suddenly with a cry of dismay. One heel of her shoe had caught in the tracks. In her effort to dislodge it she had withdrawn her foot, and she stood with the stocking foot held lightly from the dusty pavement.

"Oh, why did I wear white stockings?" she groaned to herself. She felt so conspicuous.

David turned to the rescue. Cars were coming from each direction, and clanging down upon them. Pedestrians had stopped in amused interest looking at the embarrassed girl in the white stockings and the one black shoe.

Lois looked to David, confident that he could rescue the shoe. He did. But just before the cars reached them and as Lois put out her white-clad foot for its black cover he put the shoe behind him.

"You don't get it until you promise to marry me!" He waved the shoe aloft.

Lois turned red with shame that she should be made such a spectacle for the passersby. Then, white with anger, she demanded her shoe.

People were laughing outright. Several chauffeurs had stopped their motors. The street cars were coming nearer and nearer as David raised the shoe higher over his head. The wretched girl was tottering on one foot like a lame duck. There was no sign of relenting on the young man's face.

"I won't!" she answered. "You will or I'll go home with the shoe and leave you here," he shouted above the noise of the traffic.

"Please, David," she begged. There was a loud guffaw from a fat man, who evidently admired David's powers of entertainment.

Lois was crimson with shame while she was unable to keep the dainty white stocking away from the dust and grime of the street.

"Promise! Promise!" He waved the shoe high as he could reach.

"Lois gulped. "Very well! I promise to marry you!"

"Soon?" he demanded.

"Yes," she cried.

David grasped her firmly by the arm and slipped the shoe on the poor little dusty foot. The street cars went past them in a fury of noise.

They walked away in silence. Lois was frightfully angry. Reaching her door, she denounced:

"I'm just marrying you because I won't go back on my word, you—you cave man!"

"I don't care about the reason, just so you marry me." He opened the door, pushed her into the hall, and, following her in took her in his arms. Lois was speechless—and smiling.

IS REAL "DANCE OF DEATH"

Weasel's Clever Acting Procures for Him Many a Dainty Feed of the Succulent Lapwing.

The death dance of the weasel is quite the cleverest act performed by any wild creature to obtain food. He will practice upon lapwings, for these birds are very inquisitive. He sees the birds in the middle of a large meadow. Running through the grass, he gets as near to them as he can without being seen. Now he begins to dance; he jumps up and down, not very quickly at first, but just raising himself above the grass. The birds cease feeding and look at the strange creature.

The weasel now seems to go quite mad. He twists, tumbles, falls over and over, bounces up and down, but all the time getting just a little closer to the bird he has marked. The lapwings' prying nature sends them closer to the little animal. Wilder grow his antics, closer and closer he works toward the birds. He is now in the middle of an admiring group. Suddenly there is a spring, a startled cry from a bird, a flutter of frightened wings, and the birds fly off. But the teeth of the weasel are fixed firmly in the neck of the bird he has won.

Instead of Platinum.

More than once within the past few years has platinum sold for more than twice the value of gold. The United States consumes more of the metal than any other country. Especially interesting, therefore, is the report that abroad a firm has produced a metal alloy that may in time become a cheap substitute for it. It appears that this alloy contains 85 per cent of iron, 60 per cent of chromium and from 2 to 3 per cent of molybdenum. It is said to be unaffected by hydrochloric acid, as well as nitric and sulphuric acids, and even to withstand boiling in aqua regia, the powerful mixture of nitric and hydrochloric acids. Since the alloy so resists heat and acids, it should be valuable in the manufacture and the analysis of chemicals.

Ancient Shark Captured.

A specimen of the shark tribe, which, in the form of its teeth and in other characteristic features, closely resembles a species of shark that inhabited the ocean in that immeasurably remote period called in geology the Devonian age, was captured not long ago off the coast of Norway. A similar shark was captured by the prince of Monaco's yacht off the Madeira Islands in 1889. These two specimens, with a few others found in the Japanese seas, which are remarkable for the number of survivals of ancient forms of life that they contain constitute the only known representative now on the earth of the Devonian shark.

History Repeats.

What's in a name and what isn't, as well as that, even in names, there's often nothing new under the sun, is suggested by a study of the names in the enrollment of Columbia university. In it occurs the following notables: Chester A. Arthur, Jr., Ulysses S. Grant, Edward Everett Hale III, Ethan Allen, Fenimore Cooper, Hiram Johnson II, John J. McGraw, Jack Johnson and Ben Franklin. Among the unusual names are those of Ann Church Coffin, Iona Sweet, Mildred Fear Memory, Ben Herr, G. I. Will, O. Helle and Belle Hopp.—Boston Transcript.

The Simple Life.

"What defense have you to offer?" "Your honor, I couldn't resist the lure of the bright lights." "A common weakness. I'll send you to an institution where the lights are turned off promptly every night at nine o'clock and there is no inducement to sit up late."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"HELLO" BARRED IN BOSTON

According to Superintendent of Schools Burke the Word is Both Undignified and Slovenly.

Do not say "Hello" when you pick up the telephone.

Avoid "Nope" and "Yep" in your conversation when you mean "No" or "Yes."

If Boston is going to sustain its reputation as the Athens of America, it must quit the use of these barbarisms, according to Jeremiah E. Burke, new superintendent of Boston schools.

It is more in accordance with Boston culture to say something like "This is Mr. Smith talking; with whom am I conversing?"

"There are many words," Superintendent Burke says, "which may be used in place of that moth-eaten, undignified and impolite word 'Hello.' Its use is condemned in Boston schools, particularly in classes in salesmanship where knowledge of dignified and grammatical English is essential.

"There is no excuse for the use of 'Nope' and 'Yep' in conversation. I believe that if Boston school children will check themselves in their use, parents at home will gradually dispense with their use.

"My advice to the children in Boston schools is:

"Don't be slovenly in the use of English. Slovenliness is the result of habit, and once tolerated, it is likely to cling to all of us until mature life."—Boston American.

ETIQUETTE THAT SEEMS ODD

Table manners at the time of Chaucer were described in a lecture by Kenneth Hare, author and poet, on "A Holiday in London in the Days of Chaucer." Etiquette in those days (the latter half of the Fourteenth century) demanded that meat should be held between two fingers and a thumb of the left hand, and no more, if one was to be received in polite society. After soup, pike roasted in claret and flavored with strange and varied spices was eaten. Then followed partridge roasted with saffron, cloves and ginger, and jam tarts and jelly.

It was the custom to change the cloth with the courses, and one read of one feast in which each new cloth had to close down. Strangers and fellow villagers are systematically stopped in the streets and asked if they have been saved. Even motorists in some villages are held up by the more fervent. One serious aspect of the revival is its effect on the minds of the people. Already six persons, mostly young men and women, have been removed to hospitals and institutions for the insane, and in the event of the revival continuing much longer this number may, it is feared, swell.

The Man in the Moon.

Observations made from August, 1920, to February, 1921, by Prof. William Henry Pickering of Harvard, who is one of the world's leading astronomers and an authority on lunar and Martian phenomena, tend, he asserts, to prove beyond doubt that life exists on the surface of the moon. The professor bases his assertions on a series of telescopic photographs of a crater with a circumference of 37 miles. Hundreds of photographic reproductions have, it is stated, proved irrefutably the springing up at dawn, with an unbelievable rapidity, of vast fields of foliage, which come into full bloom just as rapidly, and which disappear in a maximum period of 11 days. The plates also show that great blizzards, snowstorms and volcanic eruptions are frequent. "We find," says the professor, "a living world at our very doors where life in some respects resembles that of Mars—a world which the astronomical profession has in past years utterly neglected and ignored."

Ship Has 18,000 Spoons.

We may be cutting down our warships. There is no reduction in our liners. This applies to size as well as to number.

Take the White Star liner, Majestic. The largest steamer in the world is aptly named! Its tonnage is 56,000 and it is to carry 14,000 knives, 10,000 forks, 18,000 spoons, 45,000 pieces of plate in all, 178,000 pieces of linen and 270,000 pieces of crystal and glassware.

When one adds its cargo, crew and passengers, one's brain almost staggers at the responsibility which will rest on the shoulders of the captain. —London Answers.

Shoved Off.

The Chasseurs Alpins, those classed French fighting men who helped train the marines who first went to France, could never quite get accustomed to some of the marine corps lingo. One of the Blue Devils had learned the meaning of the sea-going phrase "shove-off," but when he had his first chance to use it he was—as the say is—not there.

"Hey, French," said a Leatherneck, "have you seen our lieutenant around?" "Oui, monsieur, oui," said the poilu, struggling to remember the elusive phrase, "he have—what you call—pushed over."—The Leatherneck.

Roman Relics in London.

An old Roman building dating back to the Third or Fourth century was uncovered by workmen in Grace Church street, London, while laying postal cables. One wall four and a half feet thick and extending downward 13 feet appears to form part of an inner chamber of a Roman building. The outline of the chamber is apparent and there are painted ornamentations on the walls. Museum officials believe that the walls belong to the original forum of Roman London.

OPENED WORLD OF ANCIENTS

Frenchman in Year 1822 Succeeded in Deciphering Hieroglyphics on Egyptian Monuments.

As there is always a centennial in prospect, we are now about to reach that of Champollion's deciphering of Egyptian writing. The announcement of this discovery was, in fact, made in 1822.

Champollion had spent more than twenty years trying to plumb the secrets of hieroglyphics. He finally found it with the discovery of an inscription in Greek carved in hieroglyphic characters. The word that appeared most often in Greek was the name of Ptolemy, to whom the stone had been raised. Champollion, therefore, searched for the hieroglyphics which corresponded with this word. What signs had the value of "P" and "T" and "o"? In addition to superhuman patience, a genius for divination was called for.

First light came from the letter "I" by comparison with certain signs appearing on a monument to Cleopatra. But this was only one step forward, as Egyptian writing was composed of alphabetical characters, syllabic signs and ideographic as well as determinative symbols.

Thus it is easy to imagine the time required before Champollion opened the world of the ancients to the researchers of science—a world which is still more or less of an enigma to the student.—From Le Petit Parisien, Paris.

WAVE OF RELIGIOUS FERVOR

"Revival" Along the East Coast of England Is Most Remarkable of Recent Years.

A religious "revival" has commenced among the fisher people on the east coast, from Grimsby to John o' Groats, says the Manchester Guardian. It is difficult to say where the revival originated, but its effects are most noticeable in the villages on the south of the Moray Firth and the Aberdeenshire coast north of Aberdeen. Observers say the revival is much more extensive than that led in Wales in 1904-5 by Evan Roberts. Prayer meetings, lasting many hours, are held nightly, the mission halls generally being full. The kinemas and public houses are in consequence nearly empty, and some of the former have had to close down. Strangers and fellow villagers are systematically stopped in the streets and asked if they have been saved. Even motorists in some villages are held up by the more fervent. One serious aspect of the revival is its effect on the minds of the people. Already six persons, mostly young men and women, have been removed to hospitals and institutions for the insane, and in the event of the revival continuing much longer this number may, it is feared, swell.

Term "Cabaret" Is Old.

"Cabaret" has come to be regarded as a recent addition to the English language—a word which, from its form and pronunciation, is evidently French.

As a matter of fact, the term was originally of Gallic origin, but it is by no means modern, having been widely used in England during the sixteenth century as a synonym for tavern. There was nothing musical about the cabarets of this period, and the only amusement they afforded was that which the travelers furnished.

While used by Bramhall in one of his works published in 1655, it passed out of the language soon after that time and did not return until about the middle of the eighteenth century. At this time, however, its stay was brief and its popularity limited and, not until the dancing craze struck the world a few years ago, was it resurrected in its present sense.

Not as Bad as It Seemed.

The fierce-looking visitor from Belgium entered the toy shop, and gazed frigidly at the assistant, who hurried to her side.

"I want," she said with a strong accent, "ze naked Edward."

The poor man blushed and thought wildly of his wife.

"Er—um, would you mind saying that again?"

"Ze naked Edward," persisted the customer. "You have them in ze window."

"Great Bath buns," gasped the assistant. "We'll have the police here in a minute! Come outside and show me."

Once outside she pointed excitedly. "Zere you have him—what you call zeTed dy bare."—London Tit-Bits.

Chinese Bezique.

Chinese bezique is booming in the London clubs just now. Chinese bezique is a development of the old game of bezique. It is played with six packs of 32 cards each. The scoring runs into high figures. Bezique and double bezique score as at the old game, 400 and 500, respectively. But it is possible to get treble bezique, which is worth 1,500 points, and quadruple bezique, which counts 4,500. Four aces of trumps score 1,000 points, and the winner of the last trick of the game gets 250 points.

Americans Consume Much Milk.

The average American today is a great milk drinker and consumes twice as much as former generations, according to the Department of Agriculture. The consumption of milk last year was estimated at 44 gallons for each person, not including that used in ice cream, cheese and butter.

LESSON FOR JULY 30

THE FIRST RETURN FROM EXILE

LESSON TEXT—Jer. 29:10-14; Ezra 1:1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT—We know that all things work together for good to them that love God.—Romans 8:28.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Psalms 89:13; 131; Jer. 29.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's People Return Home.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How God Kept a Great Promise.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How God Kept a Great Promise.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Striking Manifestations of God's Providence.

I. The Return From Captivity Predicted (29:10-14).

It seems that false prophets were flourishing in Babylon telling the people that they would speedily be restored to their own land. To counteract this the Lord moved Jeremiah to send this letter to the captives in Babylon (vv. 8, 9). In this letter he advised them to settle down and quietly pursue their regular callings of life and not to be led astray by the false prophets (vv. 6, 7).

1. The length of the captivity (v. 10). Their coming back was to be "after seventy years." From Daniel 9:2 it is clear that seventy years means a definite time. It dates from the time when the first company was taken captive among which Daniel was found.

2. Recovered by God (vv. 10-14). God's purpose in the captivity was to cure them of their idolatrous practices. He assured them that when His purpose was accomplished he would visit them and convince them of His good purpose toward them. When once this was done they would call upon Him in sincerity and He would be found of them. Their captivity He would turn away; gather them from all the nations and bring them into their own land.

II. Prediction of Captivity Fulfilled (Ezra 1:1-11).

1. The proclamation of Cyrus (vv. 1-4). (1) This was not by accident, but that the word of the Lord might be fulfilled (v. 1). What God has promised He will do; He never forgets. Wherever we find a promise which He hath made we can rest upon it; He will make good. (2) By divine initiation (v. 1). "The Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus." How this was done we do not know. Possibly Daniel brought to his attention the prophecy of Isaiah and Jeremiah (Isa. 44:28; Jer. 25:12). Every impulse to do good in all men is caused by the Lord—even a heathen king who may not have been conscious of doing His will, at God's appointed time took the initiative in this matter. It may have been that Cyrus only saw his own action as a piece of statecraft—the creation of a buffer state nation between his kingdom and that of Egypt. Be that as it may, God stirred him up to do His will. (3) The content of His proclamation (vv. 2-4). (a) "The Lord God of heaven hath charged me to build Him a house in Jerusalem" (v. 2). This makes clear that he had some impression of God's hand upon him. (b) Appeal to Jewish patriotism (v. 3). He invokes God's blessing upon such as possess the national religious feeling, and commands them to go and build the house of the Lord God. (c) Lend assistance (v. 4). Many of the Jews were established in business and therefore were not free to go. Many, no doubt, had lost their national spirit and therefore were not anxious to go. All such were to lend friendly assistance in silver, gold and beasts. Those who cannot go to do God's work should strengthen the hands of those who do go.

2. The response of Cyrus' proclamation (vv. 5, 6). The chief of the fathers of Judah and Benjamin and the priests and Levites presented themselves as willing and ready to go. The company which returned was largely made up of representatives of Judah and Benjamin.

3. The royal favor (vv. 7-11) Cyrus brought forth the vessels of the house of the Lord which Nebuchadnezzar had brought forth out of Jerusalem and put into the house of his gods. This was a great encouragement to every loyal Jew whose heart had been grieved over the profanation of these sacred vessels. Now to have 5,400 of these vessels returned to their owners and sent back to Jerusalem to be put to their original use, met a hearty response by the Jews.

Who Knoweth the Lord's Mind.
He that is spiritual judgeth all things, yet he himself is judged of no man. For who hath known the mind of the Lord, that he may instruct him?—1 Corinthians, 2:15, 16.

Perseverance Is Necessary.
Few things are impossible in themselves. It is not so much means, as perseverance, that is wanting to bring them to a successful issue.—Rochefoucauld.

Godliness.
Godliness consists not in a heart to intend to do the will of God, but in a heart to do it.—Jonathan Edwards.

Enemies Discover Your Faults.
Observe your enemies for they first find out your faults.—Antisthenes.

THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

From Moody Bible Institute Monthly Chicago, Ill.

July 30
Lessons from Great Home Missions
Acts 8:4-17

According to the first verse of our Scripture reading, every Christian ought to be a missionary. Those that were scattered abroad at a time of persecution in the early church "went everywhere preaching the word." They could do this because they had a saving experience of its power. That their witness was successful is clearly shown in chapter 11:19-21.

Philip may be regarded as one of the great home missionaries of his time. He was a man whose devotion and spiritual power made him eminently successful as an evangelist. Notice the subject matter of his preaching in verse 5 and the result of it in verse 8.

In our own country Aratus Kent may be reckoned among the great home missionaries. He was the first to preach the gospel in northern Illinois. His children died in infancy, but he brought up twelve orphans and educated nine men for the ministry. He was a man of kindly disposition, possessed the quality of heroism and had a deep love for souls.

Dr. Timothy Hill has been called a born missionary. He spent forty years in home missionary work. The greater part of his life was lived in Missouri and Kansas. Later, he labored in the Indian Territory. Directly and indirectly he helped to organize more churches in these states than any other man.

David Brainerd, who is known as the apostle to the Indians, was a mighty man of prayer. Prayer was the very soul of his life and through its power he was able to transform other lives.

ANTS MARCH IN REGIMENTS

Remarkable Stories Told of Insects That Are a Pest on the Gold Coast of Africa.

The animate curiosity of the African Gold Coast is the driver-ant, which also constitutes its worst pest. The driver-ants constitute the standing army of the insect world. They have a system of caste and rank, and the naturalist gravely tells that the workers are a quarter of an inch long, the soldiers about half an inch, while the stately officers reach seven-eighths of an inch.

"A crack regiment" of driver-ants," solemnly says the Oxford Survey of the British Empire, "marches in close formation, perhaps twelve abreast, forming a line some two inches wide, the soldiers being distributed along the flanks and at regular intervals amongst the workers, on much the same plan as that laid down for a British column in thick country. The force travels at the double, and generally at night, taking as straight a line as possible and selecting all available cover, an advance party having already prepared the way. These insects construct tunnels in exposed spots, perhaps thirty feet in length, with a height and breadth which may be as much as one inch, and provided with shafts. Every animal makes way for them, for they will attack anything in their path, even fire, their system of communication enabling them to send reinforcements to any threatened point."

DRESS OF PREHISTORIC TIMES

Remarkable Frocks Worn at a Recent Display Staged in the City of London.

Wearing a dress copied from a rock-drawing found in Altamira, Spain, Lady Warrenden appeared at a pageant of dress in London, and the most remarkable thing about this costume was that it might have come from a fashionable modiste of today, so near to present-day fashion did it seem, according to the London Daily Graphic.

Lady Warrenden's frock was estimated to represent fashion existent any time between 20,000 and 200,000 years ago. One young lady wore a Spanish dancing frock believed to be a replica of one worn at least 200,000 B. C. Instead of painting her arms and chest, she wore brown tights under a little skirt of buff-colored cloth, covered with real plumage, and feather anklets to match.

The Daily Graphic describes the attire professing to copy that worn by Queen Boadicea (whose statue stands on Westminster bridge, close to the houses of parliament). This embraced a straight, full tunic, in royal blue woven cloth, over a plaited tartan skirt, similar in character to those colors still worn by the highlanders. Round the tunic were bands of parti-colored embroidery, while a graceful wrap of dark gray cloth was flung over the shoulders and fastened with a huge circular brooch.

A Wise Banqueter.
Hemmandhaw—I saw you at the banquet last night.
Shimmerpate—Yes, I was there.
"But I couldn't understand why you passed up and down the aisles from one table to another."
"To be frank and confidential with you I was just trying to find a place where the cantaloupe looked good."

Why Not?
"Times have changed," said the bachelor.
"What now?"
"Just called on a married couple and saw a baby being put to sleep by a lullaby played on a graphophone."

WELSH TUNES HAVE SURVIVED

Traditional Melodies Still in Use, Though They Have Not Been Committed to Paper.

Traditional Welsh music has found a place in the services of the Roman Catholic cathedral at Westminster. The attention of Dr. R. D. Terry, the organist of the cathedral, was drawn to the tunes some years ago by David Lloyd George. At service of benediction recently the "O Salutaris hostia" and the "Tantum ergo" were both sung to ancient Welsh melodies. The tune used for the latter is one of the prime minister's favorites.

"These old tunes have been wonderfully preserved," Doctor Terry told a London Daily Mail reporter. "Many of them date from the pre-Reformation period. For centuries they were not written down, but they were saved by the Welsh genius for unaccompanied singing. They were handed down from one generation to another."

"Many of them have been recovered and published in Welsh hymnals, but unhappily in too many cases their harmonies and even their melodies were revised in accordance with the musical ideals of the last century."

"It is still possible, however, to hear them sung in all the beauty of their original form in remote Welsh villages, and intelligent Welsh musicians of today are realizing how very much more beautiful these old versions are. Dr. Walford Davies, a Welshman who is now professor of music at the University of Wales, may be trusted to see that good care is taken of them."

COULD NOT ACCEPT REWARD

But the Druggist Must Have Had His Opinion of Value Woman Put on His Services.

The druggist had stopped in the middle of putting a difficult prescription and deftly removed from the woman's eye the cinder that had been causing her great pain.

"Ah, thank you so much," she gushed. "How much is it?"

"Nothing at all," he replied courteously.

"O, but you should let me pay you something—you really should? I'm sure it would be only right to pay you for your time. It took all of five minutes—or at least we will call it five minutes, though of course it wasn't really so long—and if your time is worth $5 a day—and really I think druggists should make that much, though of course they do not work so hard as carpenters or painters—why that would come to—let me see, why will nearly 10 cents—or at least we will call it 10 cents, though it would really be only about 8 cents, wouldn't it?"

"No, madam," the druggist replied firmly. "We are glad to do these little services for our customers, and I recall distinctly that you have bought most of your postage stamps here for a long while."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Seek Fossil Treasures.

Graves unmolested for hundreds of thousands of years, according to scientists, were jarred to daylight at Torrance, near Los Angeles, when a blast of 100 pounds of dynamite pushed into the air fossils of antediluvian beasts. It was a treasure blast, especially set for a group of California scientists who visited the lime pits which have given forth molars of the two-toed horse, the saber-toothed tiger, the giant sloth and other peculiar inhabitants of the jungles which existed hereabouts a half a million years or more before Los Angeles was thought of.

A whole mass of interesting discoveries was made in the debris of the explosion. Something of the size of these prehistoric monsters may be gleaned from the fact that one tooth measures about 15 inches across the top and is from 18 to 24 inches long.

New York's Parks Treeless Soon.

At the rate New York is losing trees in its parks and open spaces there will be no natural shade for the next generation, according to Martin L. Davey, former congressman from Ohio, one of the leading tree experts of the country. Mr. Davey had just finished an extended tour of the parks.

"I understand the city has about 175,000 trees," said Mr. Davey. "The limited funds of the park department allow it to employ only 15 men for their care. That means that each man, if it were humanly possible, would have to personally attend to practically 10,000 trees. The result is that 2,500 trees died in New York last year, most of which were splendid shade trees, close to 100 years old. The rate of loss is increasing rapidly."

Boston Pipe Arch Bridge Unique.

An engineering curiosity, said to be unique in this country and to have only one parallel in Europe, is the pipe-arch bridge over the Sudbury river, which carries Boston's water supply. The span is 80 feet, and the steel pipe, 7½ feet in diameter, rises 5½ feet above the horizontal at the center. The pressure on the abutments when the pipe is filled with water is very great and is resisted by a mass of concrete 40 feet thick behind each abutment. Across the curved top runs a hand-railed foot bridge. The steel of the pipe in the arched portion is ¾ of an inch in thickness.

CHRONICS—BOTH WAYS.

There are chronic "mail order house" buyers, just as there are chronics in everything else. Some folks never get enough of taking chances, and there is the pleasure of "getting mail" and seeing what is in it—about like opening "prize packages."

And there are, and always will be the go-away crowd, that goes because it can—and likes it. But, there is a way of reducing both crowds, and that is in advertising, and making buying at home more attractive.

Invite folks in an attractive way, and some, at least, will accept the invitation. Just "keeping store" isn't enough. Sugar and coffee—muslin and calico—coal oil and nails—can always be depended on to be in stock; but, tell folks about the other things in stock they don't know about.

Almost everybody, nowadays, wants their patronage to be appreciated, and the advertising storekeeper shows his appreciation of trade, and his desire for more of it.

Some local dealers complain more than others about the mail order business, and there is a reason for it—some stores deserve more business than others, and get it.

Whenever one has something to sell that he can't load up and take to a warehouse and get the market price for, it is up to him to hunt for customers. Some think the other way, and expect customers to do all the hunting.

Both sellers and buyers do a lot of foolish things, and make a lot of mistakes, largely because they lack full confidence between each other.

Thought Samuel a Thief.

It was the Scripture lesson. The subject was the call of Samuel. The children had sung, "Fushed was the evening hymn," which describes the call. The teacher then asked a few questions, one being, "What did Samuel do while Eli was asleep?"

"Stole his watch," was the prompt reply from one of the girls. The teacher, somewhat annoyed at such an apparently senseless answer, called for the second verse: "His watch the Temple child, The little Levite, kept." Now came the child's turn, "Please, teacher, doesn't that mean that Samuel kept the old man's watch for himself?"

False Hope.

John B. Gough, temperance lecturer, was holding forth on the beauties of prohibition. He expressed a prayerful wish that all the alcoholic beverages in the country could be miraculously poured into the sea. His audience was unresponsive. Mr. Gough had the unhappy realization that it was not with him. Then a voice from the gallery shouted, "Amen! Hurray! Amen." "Thank Heaven!" cried John B. Gough. "There is one righteous man among you. Are you a staunch teetotaler, friend?" "Nix," said the man in the gallery. "I'm a diver."—Argonaut.

THE SEASON'S SCORE

Taneytown Won, 15 — Lost, 3

Taneytown 11—Arendtsville 6.

Taneytown won a game at Arendtsville, last Saturday, using three substitute players. The game was characterized by heavy hitting, and was interesting in spite of the large score. Drenning, Fuss and Denver Hitchcock did not play.

Taneytown 7—Westminster 4.

Taneytown won, in Westminster, on Wednesday, one of the best games it has played this season. The game was won by good fielding and batting. The few errors made were of the aggravating sort, but the players making them, redeemed themselves with the stick.

From 0 to 0 at the end of the third, and 3 to 3 at the end of the 6th., Taneytown added another in the 7th. and 3 in the 9th. Dorsey, for Westminster had the best of the strike-outs 5, to only 3 for Bonsack, but both pitchers had good control. The game was remarkably free from close decisions, and the absence of "toughness" made the contest one of real clean sport. The umpiring of Doyle was good. The score was—

To be Handled Carefully.

The profiteer and his wife were in the first flush of their prosperity, and they had taken rooms at one of the most expensive hotels in London.

Next morning he saw in front of him a silver sugar basin containing lumps of white sugar. He was on the point of helping himself when his wife whispered, "Don't use yer fingers; use the tongs. Ain't you got no sense?" "Or rite," he retorted as he complied with the admonition. "But 'ow was I to know the bloomin' stuff was 'ot?'"—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph

Strange Things Happen.

Courtley obtained the only berth left in a Pulman car. Later an old lady boarded the car and raised a grand row because she would be obliged to sit up all night. The gentleman, true to the name, gave the lady his space, and during the night he wired his wife as follows: "Will be home tomorrow; just gave berth to an old lady."

But a Poor Bargain.

Charles broke the spell as in a dejected tone of voice, he said: "Miss Glaser, I love you, but dare not dream of calling you mine. Yesterday I was worth $50,000, but today, by a turn of fortune's wheel, I have but a few paltry hundreds to call my own. I would not ask you to accept me in my reduced state. Farewell, forever!" As Charles was about to stride mournfully away she caught him and eagerly cried: "Good gracious! Reduced like that! What a bargain! Of course I take you! You might have known I couldn't resist!"—Selected.
