CARROLL RECORD

THIS YEAR.

The Supposed Drug Found to be Perfectly Harmless.

The fluid with which the Frederick nun was supposed to be drugged, has been found on chemical analysis, to be a harmless mixture containing no anaesthetic, and this fact has given a set-back to the plans of the investi-gators. Persistent search on the part of the police, for the house in Balti-more in which the Nun says she came to consciousness, has not been successful, and it is now said that the physician in charge of her case may advise against her going to the city to help in the search, due to her physical condition.

Exhaustive search was made by the chemists to find traces of opium, mor-phine, chloral or cocaine in the liquid submitted for analysis. No anæsthetic of any kind was found, however, the fluid proving to be an ordinary vegetable compound, such as is sold in drug stores to correct a common complaint. It contained about 11 per-cent alcohol, half of 1 percent. vege-table extract, a large percentage of sugar and a considerable quantity of aromatics. There also was a trace of strychnine.

Just what further plans the author-ities may take in the case, is at present unknown; but there may be facts of importance bearing on the matter that have not been made public.

British Debt Funding Approved.

Washington, Feb. 16-Congressional approval of the British debt funding settlement virtually was com-pleted tonight when the Senate pass-ed the House Funding bill. The vote was 70 to 13.

The bill was returned to the House for adjustment of amendments not relating to the plan for funding the British debt of $4,604,000,000 over a term of 62 years at reduced interest, but providing that settlements with President.

The bill was opposed by four Republicans and nine Democrats, as PROPOSED NEW ROAD. BETTER CONDITIONS Of Interest to Taneytown and to NOW PREVAILING. Northern Carroll.

The Financial Situation Gradually Becoming More Normal.

A news report from Gettysburg, in The Sun, says;

"Last year Adams county had 26 criminal cases listed for April ses-sions of court. To date only one ap-pears on the docket for this year's spring term, and nothing but an unprecedented crime wave can make the list approach that of 1922. At the same time, sheriff's sales have dropped to a minimum and county records show only about one-third the number of judgments entered as compared with other years at this time.'

This is reassuring, as the condi-tion also applies very largely to Carroll and adjoining counties, and shows that the hardest of the financial pinch on farmers, has passed. With sat-isfactory spring sales, good crops and fair prices this year, and more careful financial management and invest ments, rural sections should begin the return to more normal times.

205 Male Teachers Disappearing.

Women teachers hold undisputed sway over the training of more than 90 percent of the 114,000 children attending schools in the counties of the State, according to the annual report of Albert S. Cook, State Superintendent of Education.

Not a single male teacher is to be found in elementary schools of Calvert county, according to the report. Wicomico and Cecil counties have one each. Garrett county has the largest number—47—but even there the men are outnumbered four to one.

More than 27 percent of the girl high schools graduates entered normal schools in the fall of 1922, the report adds, but only 4 percent of the boy graduates. ANOTHER PHARAOH'S TOMB IS OPENED

Immense Wealth Represented by Articles Discovered,

The tomb of King Tutenkhamun, one of the Pharaohs, recently discovered, was opened on Friday of last week, and is reported to have been a wonderful sight, many objects of great value and splendor having been found, after having been entombed for 3000 years. The tomb is in Egypt

When the exploring scientists, after removing the delicate seals, broke their way through the masonry of the inner chamber door, they were confronted with splendors which, upon the first cursory examination, appear to surpass even those of the antechamber which have held the interest party, exclaimed with amazement at finding the center chamber, which is about fourteen feet square, occupied by an immense gilded canopy, richly inscribed.

The canopy was closed, but there is a door, and the opening of this re-vealed inside what is undoubtedly Tutenkhamun's coffin. For the pres-ent, however, this was left undisturbed. A canopic jar, which probably contains the heart and other internal organs of the King, was found inside the canopy.

One feature of the discovery in the inner chamber was a magnificent stat-ue of a cat, richly painted, which has stood sentry over the dead Pharaoh, through the centuries he has lain there. The chamber is filled with splendid furniture, in orderly array. It also holds several superb gold chariots, an exquisite ivory and ebony box and many beautiful alabaster

There were some of sister's scholars almost young ladies and gentlemen, and I put these larger ones upon their honor with regard to their good behavior; and the pleasant time I had with them is one of the delightful memories of my life. I had some funloving mischievous little ones (one of the boys residing not for from you) who I occasionally tapped with a book and sent back to his seat with that reminder, but generally I found teaching a delight.

Eleanor D. The doylie is fringed, and contains a small embroidered American flag, and 'Barbara Fritchie' is red and blue thread. The doylies have been placed on sale, at 50c each, in response to numerous requests from tourists for souvenirs.

Newspaper Plants for Sale.

A weekly newspaper in the interest of newspaper publishing, that comes to our office, contained in its last issue advertisements of fifty-one newspaper plants for sale, and six advertisements of newspaper plants wanted. care, due to the decreasing number of physicians in rural sections. We do not apprehend that a county hospital would interfere with the work of the resident physicians of the county, but that the main advantage would be with those who are now compelled to go to Baltimore, Frederick, York and Gettysburg, for treatment. The County Hospitar movement is one worthy of the most careful consideration on the part of all classes, especially having in view the needs of the future.

The Independent Sold.

Burton M. Alleman, editor and proprietor of the Adams County Inde-pendent, Littlestown, has sold the paper to J. G. Casner, of Portville, N. Y., and immediate possession has been given. Mr. Casner is an experienced newspaper man having been formerly connected with the Philadelphia North American. Mr. Alleman disposed of the paper on account of ill health. The latter part of the month he will leave with his family and spend a year or more along the Gulf Coast.

The Record sincerely regrets the enforced retirement of Editor Alleman, but fully understands the burdensome duties of newspaper management, and that it is no place for a man not in good health. We trust that along with an extended vacation, physical upbuilding will come.

"Wets" Ask for $7,000,000 Fund.

The Association against the Prohi-bition Amendment, which is perhaps the largest and most active of the some forty-five organizations now battling for the re-establishment of the liquor traffic in the United States, has issued an S. O. S. call for funds. An effort is being made to raise a "war chest" of at least $7,000,000 for a campaign now being launched look-ing to the elections of 1924. The purpose is not only to elect enough nullification Congressmen to repeal the Volstead law or to so cripple it as to make the Eighteenth Amendment inoperative, but also to control the Democratic and Republican party conventions and thereby secure the insertion of a beer and wine plank in one or both of the party platforms. The leaders of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment realize that it would be possible for them to fail in their effort to repeal or modify the Volstead law even with a wet majority in both branches of Congress if the President of the United States were not in sympathy with their program. This is true because they do not hope to secure a two-thirds majority in both branches of Congress which would be necessary to pass a measure over the president's veto.-American Issue.

The material rewards of the modern archeological explorer have been reduced to zero. Lord Carnarvon is privileged to unearth the treasures of Tutenkhamun, but he may not keep them. All objects found are the property of the Egyptian Government, and the bulk of them are likely to be stored in the National Museum in Cairo. While it is possible that some specimens may find their way into noted museums in other parts of the world, such disposition is entirely a matter of decision by the Cairo Government.

Similar regulations now prevail in Greece, from which country no antiquities can be taken without express official permission from the Athens authorities. The Italian Government is equally strict at Pompeii and at Cyrene in its Tripolitan possessions. Many archeologists are now in favor of keeping discoveries in the place where made, a fashion which may result in the preservation of some of King "Tut's" possessions near the last resting place of that monarch.

Whimert Not Guilty.

Joseph D. Wimert, Howard Martin and William Hyma were indicted by the Grand Jury of Carroll County at the November term of court, charged with conspiracy to rob the distillery commonly known as the McGinnis Distillery, located about five miles from Westminster. The State asked a severance and Wimert was tried before a jury at the November term. The trial resulted in a disagreement, and the case was retired this week before a jury, which rendered a verdict of not guilty.

The Senate Public Buildings and Grounds committee has reported adversely on the proposition to accept from Mrs. John B. Henderson, a residence in the fashionable section of Washington, valued at $300,000, to be used as a home for Vice Presidents. The committee's report was based on the need for economy, as an appropriation of about $15,000 a year would be needed to maintain the building in proper style, or the Vice President's salary be increased that much.

Influenza Cases Declining.

Influenza has had a sharp drop throughout the state, this week, and health officials say the disease is on the wane. Cases of pneumonia, typhoid fever and measles, also show a decline. Influenza cases are several hundred a day, less than ten days ago.

Thursday's report showed an increase in flu cases, but this is thought to be only a temporary spurt, due perhaps to accumulated cases delayed in reporting. Measles also showed an increase in Washington county.

Fixed Price for Wheat Urged.

Washington, Feb. 22-Urging ac-tion on his bill for stabilization of the price of wheat, Senator Gooding, Republican, Idaho, asserted in the Senate today that the Government owed a "debt to the farmers of the country, and especially to the wheat growers, which it can only pay by stabilizing the one great agricultural crop for the next three years so as to enable the farmers to meet their obligations and continue the production of wheat.

"The wheat growers face a serious situation with the wolf at the door in many cases," the Idaho Senator said. 'Unless some relief is afforded by the Government the wheat growers are going to decrease their production and let the wolf stand at some one else's door."

All articles on this page are either orig-inal, or properly credited. This has al-ways been a fixed rule with this Office, and we suggest the adoption of it by our ex-changes.

The man who is exactly sure how he is going to vote in 1924, has remarkable confidence in his foresight -more than does him credit.

-105 Nearly everybody has his story about "the times." One can not be too sure he has things sized up right, and that he knows what is wrong, until he hears the whole string of them. Lots of our conclusions, arrived at from what we know of our own status, and what we guess at for the rest, are wrong.

-205-The Afro-American, Baltimore's very creditable negro edited and published newspaper, is of the opinion that the colored vote will be split between Preston, Broening and Jackson, for Mayor. There is apparently considerable Anti-Broening sentiment that is strong enough to cause it to split up between the two Democratic candidates, notwithstanding the past history of Maryland Democracy.

The Record likes to accommodate various forms of publicity, in the interest of the general good; but it does seem to us that ready-made promotion articles are rather numerous, and that the country newspaper is too highly regarded only for the free use that may be made of it. We can assure a lot of the publicity seekers (free of charge) that it still costs a lot of real money to publish even a little country weekly.

The remarkable showing of interest that our Governor is taking in farmers and country newspapers, is suspiciously suggestive that he would like to have this interest reciprocal, along the line of "coming casting their shadows before." Perhaps our genial Governor has heard of one of Josh Billings' sayings-"a game that isn't worth winning, isn't worth playing"-or, perhaps Josh may have said, "ain't worth."

and find plenty of excuses for so doing, urging that self-protection demands it.

We conclude, without hesitation that the man, or firm, making money these days, is "a robber," forgetting tests would introduce one like we've that the only difference between us and the other fellow, is, that he has a nation-wide attention.-Ellicott City better chance than we have for rob- Times. bing.

These are the facts, and they ought to be remedied. At heart, nearly everybody is honest and prefers to operate on the square-deal plan; but, how, when and where, is it to be accomplished? Who and what started the "getting game," and how are we going to get back to the human in our relations with each other? We need standard values, that will apply to all classes and all commodities. Mere force does not stand for right. A hand. thing is not always worth all we can force somebody else to pay us for it, and we need a "stop thief" policy.

Where, and how, are we to get it?

Independent of Party.

If the country has been hoping for "independent of party" rule, it has it now, very largely, and the next thing to be demonstrated is the benefit of it -if it can be done. Congress is trying to run the country along the line of a sort of "commission" form of government, without a President, Secretary of State, or any other one-man authority; and "party," which ought to mean "union" among the majority, is largely a disappearing force.

Opposition to leaders like Senator Lodge, for the Republicans, and to Underwood, for the Democrats, has the centre of the stage. "The greatest good to the greatest number," as arrived at by party solidarity and necessary leadership, has largely given place to individual scrambling for holding fast to "my job," by trying to please all sorts of "blocs" back home, all of which seem to see salvation through "the government" and special legislation.

President Harding was elected by an unprecedented majority, and he is the same man that he was when elected; but, he is opposed and criticised at every turn by leaders in his own household, largely because much of the leadership is of a quality afraid to assert itself against the belligerent selfishness found in nearly every Congressional district in this country. The Republican party-or rather the disorganized representatives of it -are playing to present the Presidency to the Democrats in 1924; but, the Democrats are fully as nervous and disorganized, and not showing any signs that a transfer of what appears to be the empty honor of National administration, would result in the slightest benefit to the country as a

-205-Filling Jails with Bootleggers.

Judge Page Morris was on the bench in the United States District Court in Minneapolis. A hundred bootleggers awaiting sentence sat in the crowded courtroom, or, unable to get in, stood about with interested friends in anxious little groups in the said "How about the Ramsey County Jail?" he asked the judge. "Lots of room there, your honor," replied the marshal. "All right, we will fill it," said the judge, and he promptly began to carry out his promise. He had sentenced some 30 men to the Ramsey County Jail, when the marshal held up his hand again.

"The Ramsey County Jail is filled, your honor," said the marshal. "All right, we will proceed to fill the Wright County Jail," said his honor. "By the way, is that a good jail?"

Reassured, the judge filled the Wright County Jail, and then looked about for more worlds to conquer. He discovered the McLeod County Jail, and likewise filled it with bootleggers. Then he decided he had done enough for one day.

The next day he started in again. He filled the jail at Winona. In a few days more, he had filled the Wabasha and Scott County jails and started out to fill the Sibley County Jail. In one session of the Federal Court in Minneapolis and one session in St. Paul, he filled a dozen jails with violators of the prohibition laws.

Some of the jails, he filled several times. When there was a "vacancy" in one of them, he had a bootlegger to fill it.

"I have made up my mind that persons who sell liquor are going to jail," said the judge. "No getting away with fines. They are going to jail every time I can send them there. I am going to stop this liquor selling if I have to fill all the jails in Minnesota

This unusual method of dealing with persons who violate the prohibition law naturally caused great consternation. Liquor sellers who had not been bothered much by fines were alarmed at the prospect of going to jail. Attorneys were hired and instructed to use their best efforts to induce the judge to listen to reason, but they argued in vain.

Threatening letters came through the mail, warning Judge Morris to stop sending men to jail for these offenses. At one time, it seemed advisable to assign a guard to prevent possible harm to the judge.

But despite these warnings that he did so at his own peril, Judge Morris continued sending offenders to jail for

The "Getting" Game.

Practically everybody-no matter what their employment or businessis engaged in an effort to "get his," and as much as possible besides. What a commodity is worth, or what one earns, is subordinate to what one can get. We complain about the "robbery" prices we have to pay, largely because we are unable to get the same sort of prices for what we have to sell.

Suppose there is a commodity for which we get $1.00, but for which we think we ought to get $2.00? Would we be satisfied if we did get the $2.00? Not at all. If by holding out, and working on the necessities of others who must have our commodity, we could force them to pay $5.00, practically everybody would do it and not be over scrupulous about it. Our complaints of what others get, are largely based on the fact that we are unable to get as much as they do. ing the circulation of the paper, but "Getting things" has been white-coated. Most of us would not steal, outright, nor hold-up anybody with a club, nor play burglar; but, if we can accomplish the same end by the use of force not absolutely in conflict with prize to the girl who can bake the written law, the average person will best pies and bread, or the most deliuse it. In our practices we have cious cake? Beauty is all right, and largely adopted the theory that a thing is worth what we can get for it. beauty loses a lot of its charm if If we can get $5.00 for a day's work, there isn't some brains to back it up. we get it, although we would take $2.50 if we could do no better.

These are a few simply stated, hard facts. There are, of course, a few exceptions. Some persons do not force the payment of the last cent for their | ing" or a "best all-around cook" products, or services; but, whether known, or unknown, they are unpraised heroes. The chances are they are catalogued as poor business men, and can get. But he first wisely looks intheir credit is not first-class. The time was, not so many years ago, that "party rule" had largely become boss rule, or, more properly, the rule of leaders-what we remember as "Reed rules" and "Cannonism" and the "big stick." Now, the pendulum has swung to the other extreme, and it is the worst of the two. The sober sense of the country needs to right itself.

Those Beauty Contests.

In several papers reaching this office recently we have noticed annoucements of "beauty contests in which votes are cast by the general public to determine the most beautiful girl in the territory in which the paper circulates. Of course, these contests are conducted with a view to increasnevertheless, we wonder why it always has to be a "beauty" contest."

But there are many others who wouldn't get very far in a "best housekeepcompetition.

30, 60 and 90 days. In some cases, the jail sentences were as long as five months, and one old offender got nine months. In many cases, he sentenced the men to jail and fined them,

One man who had been fined twice before in prohibition cases, came up before Judge Morris for sentence on his third offense. He was fined $400 and sent to Leavenworth Prison for a year and a day. "I am going to stop this thing if I have to send every man of you to Leavenworth for a year," the judge said.

Several men who were convicted under a charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws were fined $5,000 and given 18 months at Leavenworth, "so they would have enough time to reflect a little about the seriousness of violating the prohibition law.

Now, all this may sound a bit unusual when one is accustomed to seeing bootleggers get off with a small fine, say $100 or so, and continue their illicit trade at big profits. Judge Morris has unusual ideas about the enforcement of prohibition.

Why does he send men to jail for violating the prohibition laws?

"Jail sentences are the only thing that will stop this illicit trade in liquor," he said. "I began by imposing fines, but this failed.

"Men were making big profits out of the liquor traffic and a fine meant little or nothing to them. But the humiliation of being sent to jail is the big thing. Even a short term is a greater deterrent than a big fine.

"I am convinced the jail sentences will stop the liquor traffic. If we don't get the desired effect, the penalties ought to be increased. That will put teeth in the law.

"Jail sentences may not stamp out violations of the prohibition laws right away, but they will tend to minimize them. The big return from strict enforcement after all will not be the immediate return. The big result will come in the next generation and in succeeding generations."-Dearborn Independent.

INDIANA AS LITERARY STATE

Beginning of Its Eminent Place in Literature May Be Traced to Gen.

Lew Wallace.

It may be surmised what made Indiana a literary state: "Ben Hur" and the fortune it built. Imaginative and book-minded youth of that commonwealth today-truly no more gifted, in all probability, than that of any other-looked upon Gen. Lew Wallace's monumental work and pronounced it good (as the world did) and also worth while, and imaginative youth did not bury its talents in a napkin. It forthwith began to write and brought forth fruit, some six-fold and some ten-fold-honoring the example of General Wallace and establishing what is now one of the most famed schools of literature in the world.

Headed by Booth Tarkington, Inwedding reception at the home of the great central American valley, Peter Baumgardner, in honor of their aided by new colonies of writ over the West who have followed Indiana's lead. They, for the most part, stem from Gen. Lew Wallace and his "Ben Hur," though they have traveled far from that ancient, romantic ideal. -St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Revival of the Bicycle. There is a marked revival of cycling in England, and the cheapest known form of transport, which has never really waned in popularity, is finding additional support by reason of recent utterances by famous medicos. These gentlemen declare that the pursuit of cycling is healthier than any other; that muscular effort and regular breathing, which are the double-harness steeds of cycling, are more conducive to health than the remedial physic of the medical profession. The Olympia show reveals a magnificent range of British pedal cycles .- British Commercial News.

American Explorers Helped.

The British occupation of Palestine to the present time has proved of greater usefulness to American explorers than to those of the mandatory power. The work at Beisan is only a commencement of American researches in the Holy Land. The famous historical sites of Taanach and Megiddo have been allocated provisionally to two other American universities: while a third university, that of Harvard, has obtained a renewed concession for the site of Samaria, where, previous to the war, they had disclosed imposing Roman ruins of the period of Herod, and earlier remains down to that period in Jewish history when Ahab first established on that site the capital of Israel.

While British universities have been slow to respond to the great opportunity which now lies open, there is, at any rate, much satisfaction to be derived from the increasing activity on the part of American col-Harmony and enthusiasm leges. prevail, and the friendly rivalry thus established is a healthy and helpful stimulus.

Special Serum for Snake Bite. Snake bit is now treated with serum obtained from immunized animals in the same way as the anti-diphtheritic or anti-tetanic serums. Hitherto it has been necessary to prepare a serum for the bite of each kind of snake. For this purpose a large snake farm is now operated in Brazil and another is about to be established in India. The discovery that it is possible to prepare a serum that may be used for the bites of a large number of species will give a great impetus to this method of treatment. We have no snake farms in the United States, for the number of our poisonous species is small and the deaths from snake bite are negligible, but the desirability of one in India may be understood from the fact that of the 300 species found there 68 are poisonous and are, on an average, responsible every year for the death of over 20,000 persons, in addition to countless animals.-Literary Digest.

Rats Ate Court Records.

An unusual appointment was made recently in Montreal, Quebec, Canada, when an official rat-catcher was assigned to duty at the Montreal courthouse. The new office was considered when it was found that stenographers' notes had been eaten by rats during the night, and that a gown and silk hat belonging to one of the judges had been destroyed. Because of the disappearance of some important records, civil suits involving valuable property had to be delayd. The authorities took the situation in hand when "Exhibit A" in a murder trial was eaten, and, because of the lack of evidence to convict, the prisoner was liberated .- Detective Story Magazine.

(C. 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

As the members of the Junior Boys' club of Harlow Street settlement were dispersing after their regular Tuesday afternoon meeting their leader, Mr. Gordon, noticed that one of the number remained. It was Bob Greeley, in whom Mr. Gordon was especially interested, as he was beyond doubt the only one of the boys of native American parents-the only one, in fact, who was not the product of overcrowded slums.

"Is there something I can do for you?" asked Mr. Gordon, seeing that the boy was waiting for him.

"Sure there is," said Bob, trying to hide his embarrassment. "You were telling us fellows today that you were going to get a big brother for each one of us-a college fellow or something to help us along. Well, now, honest, Mr. Gordon, I don't need a big brother. I've got one. But-but-"

"The idea is," explained Mr. Gordon, "that in having college men for big brothers they could help you in ways that your own brothers could not. They would have time and would possibly be better educated-'

"Not than my big brother," protested Bob. "But what I was going to say was this-" Then Bob became completely embarrassed and said something that sounded like "Couldn't y'manage to gimme a big sister instead?"

Mr. Gordon laughed. "So that is what you need most. It never occurred to us that any of you boys would rather have a big sister. Still a sister can be very helpful. All right, Bob, I'll get you a big sister. I'll have her come to call on you-just the way the big brothers are going to."

"Thank you, Mr. Gordon," said Bob beaming, and then as he turned to beat his retreat: "You needn't say anything to any of the fellows about my wanting a sister. They mightn't understand."

Mr. Gordon, expert wood craftsman and friend of small boys, was a volunteer worker at the settlement. Rumor had it that he was a disillusioned millionaire-that he had "gone into" settlement work because of the death of his young bride. At all events, he seemed to get immense satisfaction out of his club work and was always generous in his contributions toward any good work furthered by the settlement. The swimming pool, the wonder of the youth of Harlow street, was his excessive gift.

If Mr. Gordon told Harlow street little of his personal affairs, he told his acquaintances and friends little of Harlow street. Most of them were only mildly amused at this hobby of his. His sister among them.

The night of Bob Greeley's request had been an easy enough matter to city with his young brother. Somehow he managed outside of hours at the medical college to earn enough to pay for their expenses in the little tenement, and Bobby led a not unwholesome existence, attending public school, getting recreation at the Harlow street settlement, and doing his little-boy best to keep house for his overworked big brother. Helen was at first shocked at the idea of the ten-year-old boy coming in from after school play to have to prepare supper for himself and his brother, but she ended by feeling that, after all, Bobby led as normal and happy an existence as any motherless boy could. Certainly he was better off than he would have been had his big brother consented to send him to a boys' home during the uphill years of his medical study.

"Now, if you really want to be my big sister," announced Bobby, looking approvingly at Helen, "you can start right in by helping me get supper. Ned said he was awful hungry for some muffins-the kind mother used to make-but, gosh, I couldn't make 'em. Now, do you suppose if I bought the things that you could mix 'em and cook 'em-maybe the next time you come?'

That was the beginning of the most interesting adventure of Helen's hitherto rather frivolous young life. Twice a week she visited Bobby and twice a week besides she took lessons in cooking and domestic science so as to be qualified to help and instruct Bobby in the task of making the little tenement rooms more homelike. Bobby would give her the money Ned allowed for the evening's meal and she would come back from market with beefsteak and mushrooms, when Bobby said Ned liked them, luscious fruit in season and out and delicacies such as Bobby had never before dreamed of.

"It's funny what you can get for a quarter," Bobby often used to say. "Ned says he doesn't understand. He said there was something funny about it, and he's acted dreadfully funny, just as if he thought you oughtn't to help me so much. Don't you suppose you could stay to dinner some time and explain that you really get the things for what I give you? He comes in just after you leave. Couldn't you wait and tell him?"

"Oh, dear no," assured Helen. "You see I'm just your big sister, Bobby, and -well, your brother mightn't like me as much as you do."

"Maybe not," sighed Bobby. But for some reason or another Ned came home a half hour earlier than usual that night and discovered the radiant Helen still mixing drop cakes in the tiny kitchen. She and Bobby had given the house a good cleaning that day and she had left a bunch of daffodils on the living room table and had hung fresh muslin curtains at the windows.

Explanations did not take long, nor were elaborate ones needed, for when Ned's steady gray eyes looked into the depths of Helen's blue ones explanations in words did not seem necessary. Helen's seemed to say, "I admire you Mr. Gordon was in some perplexity. It for your pluck and perseverance to go on studying under such difficult conditions. I have done what I have done for Bobby's sake-please don't thank me." And Ned's eyes said: "I shall not protest, because I know you have done what you have done from the goodness of a kind heart."

Shows How To Organize For Benefit Of Agricultural Industries.

STATE UNIVERSITY TO HELP

By DR. A. F. WOODS, President Of The University Of Maryland.

When agriculture suffers other industries suffer, because agriculture is the world's great basic industry. From it comes the food that sustains life, the clothes that protect us, rope, wood, alcohol, most of our medicines, and countless other necessary direct and by-products of the soil that we use in some form every day.

When we consider the number of industries which handle agricultural products and manufacture from them the necessities of life, such as clothes, rope and medicines, it easily is seen how the success of the sheep industry in Maryland affects the woolen mills of New England and further affects all of us through the clothes we are compelled to buy. Hence, what has almost come to be a stock phrase -when agriculture suffers all industries suffer.

For several years the farmers of Maryland, as well as of the rest of the nation, have been in the valley of the shadow. Their troubles and sufferings have directly or indirectly affected all the rest of the people, and all the rest of the people are as determined as the farmers that agriculture must be put on such a firm foundation that it shall not again be endangered by even a severe deflation period such as followed the great war. Now is the time, while the needs are so apparent, to have everybody cooperate in safeguarding the future. Much already has been accomplished in favorable legislation. For the first time we have a co-operative law in Maryland that permits farmers to organize their business effectively. This is backed by Federal laws of the same nature. Federal legislation that will meet the requirements of agriculture in matters of credit is certain to be enacted. Other Federal measures that have the united support of our great agricultural organizations are certain to pass if we sta; on the job and look after them.

The farmers of the nation are asking, not for special privilege, but for EQUAL OPPORTUNITY. That is all that any of the legislative measures propose. But when the decks are cleared for this equal opportunity, the farmers will reap the benefits only as they are effectively organized to do so. And it is this proposition of effective organization that we must build up. The educational organizations, such as the University of Maryland through its Extension Service and Experiment Station, the Grange, and the various associations and societies, have done their work so well that the great majority of the farmers, as well as their friends in the towns and cities, see that the educational organizations must be supplemented with a separate and distinct series of commodity organizations, such as Dairymen, Sheep Growers, Poultrymen, Tobacco Growers, Apple Growers, Strawberry Growers, Nut Growers, Melon and Canteloupe Growers, Grape Growers, Bee Keepers, etc. Each of such commodity organization must be formed on sound business principles, as the business representative of its members for receiving, grading and marketing its products.

Its Engineering, Medical, Pharmaceutical, Dental, and other alumni groups, as well as its agricultural organization, are lined up solid in their determination to help put across the movement in Maryland to make agriculture a paying business. Never before in the history of agriculture has the need for co-operation among the farmers and in the agricultural industries been so apparent. The greatest of the men in the United States are bending their energies to aid in every way possible. Governor Ritchie has pledged himself to give all the help in his power. All are awake to the worth of the farmers' cause and it is up to the farmer himself to organize his business, the business of agriculture, so that he can make known concretely and effectively his wants.

Future American Homes. The trouble with Americans is that they do not stay long enough in one place to make their homes as beautiful as the colonial homes with the softening effect of age upon them, and the homes of Europe. To be sure we have better plumbing and better ventilation, but most of our homes are garishly new. But who knows what may happen if the "Better Homes" movement goes on? We may have homes that our grandchildren will look forward to as their rightful inheritance with pleasure. At any rate, the present generation and the children of today will enjoy these better homes

It is probably no particular joy to anyone to receive a bill of any kind. And if the bill is inaccurate or vague or carelessly made up, the matter may be decidedly annoying.

The rendering of bills for telephone service, including long distance calls, for Maryland's thousands of subscribers is quite a task.

get the required number of "big brothers." He simply put the proposition up to the younger men in his college fraternity in town. Gordon had pledged several thousand dollars for the new fraternity house, and as he had promised that he "would see about doubling the amount" the young men did not take long to decide to fall in line with his "big brother" proposition. But how to get a big sister?

The more Gordon thought of this problem the more perplexed he became about it. Finally he decided to ask his sister Helen-though she had not given very sympathetic or understanding heed to the few accounts he had ever given of Harlow street doings.

Helen listened apparently with only half attention to what her brother told, but to his surprise she volunteered herself for the big sister needed.

"I didn't imagine you'd do that," protested Mr. Gordon. "I just thought you might know some girl in your set who would be interested in that sort of thing."

"I'm interested-dreadfully interested myself," Helen Gordon announced. "And you don't need to be preachy and tell me that I mustn't consider it a lark. I don't intend to. And I guess I can make as good a sister to little Bobby Greeley as anyone else. Tell me where he lives. I'll call tomorrow afternoon.'

Helen insisted on calling alone and her brother did not discourage her, though he wished then that this little sister of his was of a less striking type. Even dressed somberly and as quietly as possible, her golden hair and vivid coloring could not but attract attention in the probably dingy neighborhood where Bobby Greeley lived. · Bobby greeted his big sister at the door and assured her that she looked just the way he had always thought a big sister ought to look, and within five minutes they had decided to call each other Bobby and Helen. Bobby's home consisted of three rooms, a living room, a kitchen and a bedroom, on the top floor of a shabby but insistently clean tenement. Then Bobby explained his predicament. He and his brother Ned had been bred in a country town. Their father, a country doctor, had died when Bobby was a baby and Ned was half grown. Somehow or other their mother had managed to bring them up until a year ago she had died with the last request that Ned should become a doctor. He had at that time already managed by hard work to finish college. There were no funds left. Impelled by his mother's request and his

As a matter of fact Helen said: "I'm Bobby's big sister," and Ned said, "Lucky boy."

Helen stayed for supper and left as soon as she and Ned and Bobby had washed the dishes and tidied the kitchen. She definitely refused Ned's escortage home. Somehow after that on the nights when Helen came she was always a little delayed in her work or Ned managed to come in a little early. And she would stay to supper with the excuse that she wanted to help wash the dishes.

After several weeks of this she consented to allow Ned to go home with

MOVED JAPANESE TO WONDER

Visitor of This Country Mystified by the Peculiarites of the English Language.

During his tour of this country as a member of the Japanese educational research delegation, Marquis Sarti was moved to deny that the study of Japanese was more difficult than the study of English.

"When you have learned the Japanese language you have learned it," he argued, "while with English, it is different." By way of explanation he added:

"One day in one of your restaurants I asked for what you call poached eggs on toast, and imagine my consternation when the waiter cried through the service window, 'Two men on a raft.'

"Curious to see what would happen, I ventured to remind him that I wanted them well done and scrambled, but this bothered him not at all for he merely shouted 'shipwreck that order' and strange to relate, I got exactly what I had ordered."

If there is anyone in the Sheep Growers, Tobacco Growers, Tomato Boil one minute, rub through a sieve, Growers, or any of the other associations who would rather raise Sheep than Tobacco or Tomatoes, let him get out of these organizations at once and join the Sheep Growers. No organization can succeed unless its members are loyal and are willing and anxious to co-operate in the true spirit in producing and selling the commodity they represent.

In addition to these commodity groups there must also be a federation of them by commodity, and further as a whole. For instance Somerset, Wicomico, and Worcester counties may have a combined Potato Growers' Association, Garrett County a purely county organization, and several other counties the same. And when these counties are organized as county, bicounty, or tri-county units, as the case may be, all should be joined together, with a state president, as the Maryland Potato Growers' Association.

And to go a step further, when the Potato Growers, the Sheep Growers, the Tobacco Growers, the Strawberry Growers' Associations, and other associations, are thus organized, all should federate into a great state wide organization under the Maryland Agricultural Society-The Maryland Farm Bureau Federation, the constitution of which was adopted at the Agricultural Convention at Frederick early in January.

Another point to be remembered is that the State University of Maryland at College Park is organized to aid the farmers in every way possible. The whole of its influence is back of the movement to better the farm situation.

LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 25

THE PARABLE OF THE POUNDS

LESSON TEXT-Luke 19:11-27.

GOLDEN TEXT-He that is faithful in that which is least, is faithful also in much.—Luké 16:10.

REFERENCE MATERIAL-Matt. 25:14-30; I Tim. 4:13-15.

PRIMARY TOPIC-Working for Jesus. JUNIOR TOPIC-Faithful and Unfaithful

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC -The Fidelity That Jesus Expects. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC -What Returns Does Christ Require of Us?

The purpose of this parable was to correct the misapprehension of the disciples as to the immediate establishment of the kingdom. They were on the way to Jerusalem and they thought that immediately upon their arrival there Jesus would begin the exercise of His kingdom rule. It is to be noted that Jesus did not correct them for believing in the reality of the kingdom, but for believing that it would immediately appear.

I. The Absent Lord (v. 12).

He pictures His going back to God as a nobleman going to receive a kingdom. This was a common occurrence among them. They knew how some of the Herodian family had thus donegone to Rome and secured their appointment to rule over Palestine. Jesus ascended on high to receive from God, the Father, a kingdom. Let no one mistake the certainty of His return, though the time be unknown, and the event delayed.

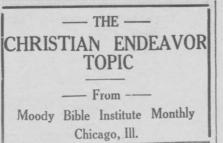

II. The Distribution of the Pounds (v. 12).

These pounds represent Christ's gifts to His servants. When Christ ascended He gave gifts to men (Eph. 4:7, 8, 11, 12). Tr each servant was given the same amount, showing that to all a certain gift has been given and therefore all will be held responsible for its use. The distribution was made by the sovereign. It was also a purposeful distribution. They were to put their gifts to use during His absence. What the nobleman demanded was faithfulness. The pounds were to be used for the Master, not for the selfish enjoyment of the servant.

III. The Rebellious Citizens (v. 14). They hated Him and sent messengers after Him, notifying Him of their refusal to be subject to Him. This pictures the unbelief of the Jews after Christ's ascension and their repudiation of His rule. It also pictures the unbelieving world in its hatred and rejection of Christ.

IV. The Accounting (vv. 15-27). 1. Its Certainty. Christ will surely bring everyone to account for the use made of His gifts. He has appointed a day in which He shall judge the world (Acts 17:31).

What Are Some Temptations to Lie, and How Can We Overcome Them? Proverbs 12:17-22

The first and greatest temptation to ie is found in the statements of Jeremiah 17:9, "The heart is deceitful above all things," and Mark 7:21-23, "Out of the heart proceed covetous-ness and wickedness." The human heart is a deep pit out of which comes abominable things, but being unholy we do not detect the corruption and badness of it. Yet in the sight of an absolutely holy Being such as our God is the natural heart is as described in the above mentioned Scriptures. The only overcoming power at this point is the operation of divine grace known as "regeneration" or "the new birth." Nothing avails but a new creature (Gal. 6:14, 15). In this new life or new creature the Holy Spirit dwells (2 Cor. 5:17; Gal. 4:6; 1 Cor. 6:19-20)

Another temptation to lie might be found in the universal habit and dis-position to put the blame over on the other fellow. In the day when sin came into our world Adam excused himself and said, "The woman thou gavest to be with me, she did it." Since that time the mean and miserable habit of excuse making and selfjustification has been one of the most prominent traits in human nature. It is simply moral cowardice. We are tempted to lie in order to shield ourselves from blame. The tendency can be observed in all stages of life from childhood to old age. How can we overcome this? Only by the power of God through watchfulness and prayer. "Lord be quicker than the temptation," so prayed a man of God in battling at this very point.

Valuable Blood Medicine.

Golden seal is classed as the greatest of blood medicines and during the war the root went up to $6 a pound. In the list it is rated at $3.20 to $3.30. The wild ginseng root is listed at $11 to $12. In early days it was a source of revenue to many a pioneer and it was so much hunted that a special implement, the "sang hoe," was made for its digging. The larger part of the ginseng goes to China where its utilization is something of a mystery. A number of plants other than ginseng, ordinarily regarded as mere weeds, are now being cultivated.

I like women best. They come and pet me and lift me off my nest so cently that I wish I could thank them

I laven't much use for an old hen hat wants to set all the time. Twice s enough. I know one hen in the flock that set all last summer and started out bright and early again this spring. If the boss was onto his job he'd make a chicken dinner out of her.

Wonder why all the hens peck at me when I rufile up and go out into the yard to get a breath of fresh air.

I hate incubators. They are going to rob us of all our chicks and before long we won't have any excuse for setting. People must think we don't want to be mothers.

I'm getting awful thin. People think we don't need much when we are setting all the time, so they throw in only a little ear corn and the rats get the most of it.

IS LARGEST BARREL VAULT

Structure Built Many Centuries Ago Proves Value of Bitumen Used to Cement Mortar.

Oil seeps, large and small, occur throughout Persia and Mesopotamia. Asphalt played an important part in the enduring character of the buildings of the ancient civilization in that part of the world. One of the most remarkable instances of the use of asphalt or bitumen is the Arch of Ctesiphon on the River Tigris, about thirty miles to the south of Bagdad. This arch was built by Chosroes, one of the Sassanian kings, about the year 550 A. D., and of this famous structure two wings are still standing. It is built of bricks laid in bitumen, and the original structure consisted of a large hall 163 feet long and 86 feet wide with a vaulted roof 95 feet high open at one end and closed at the other. The crown of the arch was 9 feet thick, and the wall supporting it 23 feet across at the base. The open end of the hall was flanked by two wing walls, rising to the height of the top of the arch and some 20 feet thick at the base.

The whole is built of large, flat, burnt bricks, some of them bearing a cunelform stamp. The Ctesiphon arch has always remained the largest barrel vault in the world, and furnishes valuable evidence as to the value of bitumen used in cement mortar.

"The Bloody Run."

The stream now known as Bloody Run, whose gorge may be traced in Elmwood cemetery, was formerly Parent's creek. The name was changed after the defeat and slaughter of Captain Dalzell and his company by the Indians on July 31, 1763. Just before daybreak on that day, Dalzell marched out of the fort of Detroit with 250 men. They made their way along the ridge on the line of what is now Jefferson avenue. The Indians were ambushed on both sides of the Parent's creek and when the soldiers had crossed the bridge at this point they were attacked. Only 90 men under Major Rogers succeeded in escaping the massacre that ensued. This was tion of a few nuts and an incident of the Indian war that resulted from the conspiracy of Pontiac. -Detroit News.

Teacher Asserts That Every Person Has Ability to Be More or Less a Good Singer.

It has been stated by a leading singing teacher that we all would have a good voice if it were cultivated, but still some voices would be better than others. There is a reason why we do not all have really fine voices. The sound box," as it were, of our body is the larynx, or as most people call it, the "Adam's Apple." Across this stretch our two vocal chords, like the strings of a violin, thick for a bass, thin for a tenor, and so on. The "bow" that strikes these chords is, of course, our own breath, and the different notes are produced by the moving of certain muscles at the base of the larynx.

Just as the tone of a violin depends largely upon the body of the instrument, so even perfect vocal chords are of little use unless our body contains a sufficient space, properly laced, for their tone to echo in; resonating cavities, we call them. We therefore need for the best voice a perfect sound box and perfect chords, plus fully developed "resonating cavities," and good muscles to work the larynx.

Added to this, our mouth and tongue must be placed in precisely the best position for our particular notes. Perfect health is needed for the breath that is our "bow," a perfect ear to distinguish the slightest variation of tone, and finally a long and expensive training to enable us to work every part of our sound-machine to the best advantage. Given all these factors, we have the perfect singer. Short in any one of them, we have a less perfect singer! -Exchange.

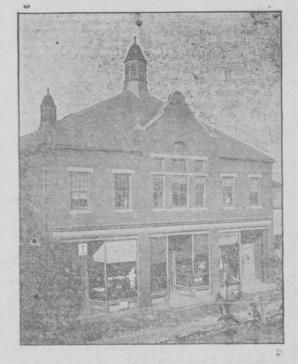

REVEAL LIFE OF PAST AGES

Relics Gathered in Collection In Palestine Museum Are of Interest to All Civilization.

During the two years that have elapsed since the department of antiquities was founded at the instance of the high commissioner, 7,223 objects have been catalogued, of which a selection has been displayed, with due regard to date and provenance, and the Palestine museum in Jerusalem is now open daily to the public. The present accommodation is not altogether suitable, nor is it convenient for visitors; but the beginning has been made.

The total value of antiquities exported under license during this period amounts only to a few thousand dollars, says a Palestine letter to the New York Morning Telegraph. As the national collection becomes more complete, the proportion of antiquities released for export to foreign museums will automatically increase. In the province of the inspectors 1,467 historical sites and monuments have been formally registered, and measures have been taken to protect them, with the collaboration of the police and gendarmerie.

To Restore Izaak Walton's Home. Fisherman and sportsmen, both in the United States and England, are cooperating to restore the cottage of Izaak Walton, prince of anglers, as a for followers of the rod and reel the world over. The cottage is at Shallowford, England, six miles from Stafford.

The Carroll Record Co.

Occupies two rooms, of the first floor of this building. We DO NOT profess to have a big plant, nor a model work shop, nor to do all classes of printing. We DO HAVE a good country town plant, not crowded with useless machinery, nor out-of-date junk, keep busy what we have, and turn out GOOD printing.

The Carroll Record is NOT "the best" weekly paper in the state: it does NOT have "the largest circulation" in the county, and it is NOT claimed to be a model in every respect.

It DOES have an excellent circulation in one of the best agricultural sections of the state and county; it DOES have certain policies different from many other small town papers; and it IS one of the best advertising weekly papers in the ;+ '€.

We try, as a business concern, to live up to our motto, "WHATEVER IS WORTH DOING, IS WORTH DOING WELL," no matter whether this be the job work turned out, the advertising, or the news, editorial and other matter, published each week.

The Carroll Record Standard is the best we are able to make, considering ability and facilities; and we take pardonable pride in knowing that a very large list of patrons are apparently well satisfied with this standard.

The Carroll Record DOES carry more public sale advertising than any other paper in this county. It originated the "Sale Register," and popularized sale advertising rates. It DOES NOT pretend to offer the cheapest rates for sale advertising, but it DOES consider its publicity value more than equivalent to the rate charged. The value of sale advertising is best measured by the returns one gets from the investment.

place when Jesus comes back to earth. At that time He will summon His servants and reckon with them. This will take place when He has received His kingdom. He will receive His kingdom when he asks the Father (Ps. 2:8).

3. Rewards Given for Faithfulness (vv. 16-19). (1) The first report (vv. 16, 17). The pound had gained ten pounds. He did not say, "I have made ten pounds," but "Thy pound hath gained ten pounds." He recognized the Lord's ownership. To this the Lord replied by commendation. He praised him and promoted him. He was made ruler over ten cities. (2) The second report (v. 18). In this case the pound had gained five pounds. He did not get the Lord's commendation for he had not done so well, but he was appointed to a place of rulership over five cities. The reward in each case was proportioned to faithfulness during the Lord's absence. The principle of reward was shown to be that faithfulness in very small things prepares for larger responsibilities.

4. Judgment Upon the Unfaithful (vv. 20-27). (1) His report (vv. 20,21). This report was entirely bad. He had not put the pound to use, but laid it away, throwing the blame upon the Lord. He asserted that the character of the Lord was such as to produce fear. Men are failing today in their service because they have wrong conceptions of Christ. (2) Commendation (vv. 22, 23). The wicked servant is judged out of his own mouth. His excuse increased his guilt. He is called wicked. (3) Stripped of the pound (vv. 24-26). To fail to use one's gifts means to lose them. One of the losses of the next world will be the deprivation of what we have now. (4) Warning (v. 27). Those who reject Christ, refusing to submit to His authority, shall share the same deprivation as those who are unfaithful in His service.

NUTS AND NUT DISHES

This is the season of the year when we enjoy the fresh nuts of all kinds.

They are rich in food value and when properly masticated and eaten in moderation are well digested and assimilated by the normal digestion. Almost any salad is improved by the addicakes and cake fillings as well as candies find them indispensable, adding both richness and flavor.

For those who must eschew meat, the variety of nuts offers many dishes which can take the place of meat in the diet. The following is one:

Nut Cutlets .--- Chop fine one cupful of pecan meats. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter and add two tablespoonfuls of flour, blend well and season with salt and a dash of cayenne. Add gradually one cupful of milk, stirring constantly until smooth and creamy. Add one beaten egg and stir until the egg is set. Add one tablespoonful of onion juice, two cupfuls of bread crumbs and the cupful of chopped pecans. Set aside to cool. Shape into cutlets, roll in egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat. Drain on paper and serve with tomato sauce.

Nut and Cheese Roast .-- Cook two tablespoonfuls of finely minced onion ored. Add a little hot water if needed of grated cheese, one cupful of wallemon and salt and pepper to taste. Add the onion and butter, pour into brown. Serve with a white sauce.

Pecan and Prune Salad.-Cut a pound of choice prunes in narrow strips, add one cupful of sliced pecan meats, a dash of red pepper, a dash of white pepper and salt to season. Beat two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice. Mix with the prunes and nuts and a spoonful of the dressing for a garnish.

Nellie Maxwell

Thrifty.

At the Kingsway theater, owing to the absence of one of the company, a recent matinee performance had to be abandoned and the audience were informed that their money would be returned. To the amazement of the Hebe in the bar, one of her patrons appeared and calmly asked for the refund of ninepence which he had expended on a lemonade. "But," gasped the astonished girl, "you can't expect your money back-you've had the lemonade." "Ah," said the optimistic one, "but I shouldn't have spent the money if I hadn't come to this mati-

History Continuous ..

There are, of course, no beginnings or ends in history. We may walk for a few miles by the side of a river, in one tablespoonful of butter until noting its shallows and its rapids, the the onion is soft and delicately col- gorges which confine it and the plains through which it meanders; but we to prevent browning. Mix one cupful know that we have seen neither the beginning nor the end of its course, that nut meats, chopped, one cupful of the whole river has an unbroken conbread crumbs, the juice of half a tinuity, and that sections, whether of space or time, are purely arbitrary. We are always sowing our future; we a shallow baking dish and bake until are always reaping our past.-Dean W. R. Inge, in "Outspoken Essays."

Censure for Land Abuse.

In Sweden a farmer can be reprimanded by the governor of a province for abusing "mother earth." More one cupful of cream until stiff, add than 1,100 cases of abusing farm land have been dealt with. Corrective measures are considered necessary serve on a curled leaf of lettuce with where land is found overgrown with weeds, where a field yielded notably less than the neighboring fields, where the annual production decreased, or where grain had been disposed of unthreshed.

War Against Pine Beetle.

A crusade against the pine beetle that has been causing so much destruction in the yellow-pine districts of the Northwest, as to alarm several government agencies and a number of private interests, is reported to have reduced the infestation about 50 per cent during 1922. This work, which is under the supervision of the bureau of entomology, consists of locating and felling all infested trees, and it is expected to result in the saving of over $87,000 worth of lumber during the next three years, over and above the cost of the work. On a million acres as yet untreated, the loss from this pest is now $300,000 a year.-Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Museum Shows Ancient Customs. One of the recent attractions added to the historic city of Lourdes, which has been the scene of many pilgrimages for the cure of physical ills, is a museum to illustrate the old customs of the natives in that region of France. Six halls in the museum are reserved for a permanent exhibition of the furniture and costumes of the Pyreneean people, the equipment of their artisans (weavers, potmakers, shepherds, hunters, fishers, etc.) and their characteristic footwear. In other rooms are displayed botanical, geological and entomological collections, also painting, sculpture and applied arts of the region.

Pen Picture of Popular Author. H. G. Wells is described by a contemporary journalist as being almost shrilly youthful, with a high-pitched voice and vehement temperament. He 15 a stocky little man with a bristling mustache and a bristling attitude. He is further said to be incredibly industrious, fond of friendship, and a perfect host.

Whether it be for a County Weekly, Job Printing, or Advertising, this Company is ready and anxious to serve you during 1923.

Many of the "locals" that get into all newspapers, are of the "street talk" class, many of them impossible to verify without a great deal of reportorial investigation. The Record therefore calls attention to the fact that its office is permanently located, open regularly at certain hours six days in the week, and there is always a scribe ready to take down exact facts for publication.

As Jimmie Slick and Thos. G. Shoemaker were going into Baltimore, on the Reisterstown road, on Thursday, in E. H. Essig's truck, they collided with another truck going in the same direction. Mr. Shoemaker was injured and was taken to Homewood hospital, while Slick was not hurt. The Essig truck was damaged. Slick was fined, and the driver of the other truck was locked up.

A travelling show come to Taneytown, last week, intending to stay three nights, but failed for two nights to have an audience, then left, in a bad humor with the town. Taneytown has never been a good "show town" for travelling shows, especially when not well advertised, and some very common shows have not helped the situation any. In this particular case, the flue epidemic, the very cold weather, no street lights, and poor advertising, produced the result.

Working In Reverse.

"Gosh, old man, you actually are getting fat! What have you been doing to get all that flesh on your bones?" exclaimed the friend.

"Oh," said the former thin man. "I began taking the reduction dope, diet and exercises they prescribed for my wife and I began to pick up right away. And she started in on the ton-ics and diets I had been falling for to make me fat and she has already lost twenty pounds."-Cincinnati Enquirer.

Songs come and go-have their little moments of popularity and are then relegated to the dim recesses of memory. Occasionally one pops up its head, as it were from the grave, and today it is not unusual to hear a medley of old songs played or sung to much applause in some cabaret. They bring their memories, these old songs-moonlit nights and palm shaded corners in dance rooms, an old romance. The other night the sentimental man was entertaining a friend. He put on a record, an old song from "Maritana."

"Ah," he said, "what memories that brings back to me! Old days, old friends-"

His companion grunted: "All I associate with that song," he said prosaically, "is the bathroom and a dull razor. Always when I'm not getting a decent shave I somehow break into "The Heart Bowed Down." It's the best bathroom song I know."

The sentimental one grinned sheepishly. "Come to think of it," he agreed, "the first time I ever heard it was when I was a boy, and my father in the next room warbled it, too. I-I," and here he blushed, "I never heard the opera in my life."-New York Sun.

LEAVES FICTION FAR BEHIND

Action of Vigo Authorities in Dealing With Treasure Ships Is Almost Beyond Belief.

Perhaps the largest single treasure trove lies at the bottom of Vigo bay on the coast of Spain. Here 17 bullion carriers were sunk by the British and Dutch navies in the latter part of the Seventeenth century and scattered over the ocean's floor gold and silver estimated at $100,000,000. So far it is all there.

The fleet of bullion carriers, convoyed by a slightly larger fleet of men of war, set out from the coast of Mexico to carry the treasure to the coffers of Spain and sought refuge in Vigo bay from the approach of the larger British and Dutch fleet. There they planned to unload the treasure.

But the customs officers had no instructions to receive it. They must communicate with their superiors. The admiral of the fleet argued, but the port officials were adamant. And while they debated the enemy ships sailed into the bay and settled the matter for all time by sinking the fleet.

And what has fiction half so strange as that?
