PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION.

Great Benefits are Derived from Co-operation with Schools.

(For the Record.)
Life must not stop short at the school-house door. The home must reach into the school and the school reach back into the home. Nothing isolated is going to function. The isolated school is a dead thing. To be real, education must serve as the foundation of the nation-must be "of the people, by the people, and for the

The parents must resume their duty to their children in the schools. The children are theirs; the schools are theirs, for they pay for them. The teacher can do only what the people allow them to do, and the responsibility for what goes on in their schools is as plainly the parents as that of the

It is the duty of parents to concern themselves about their schools. They should know what conditions exist in them, what their aims and needs are. It is their duty to see that the people who control them are the people who will do them justice financially, and support them morally. To this end we have parents' associations. What can such associations do? Parents are primarily concerned in the school and can be of immeasurable ened buildings. help in strengthening it. Call on the principal and talk the whole field over. It is an immense field. It covers all life's activities. There is no phase of the outside world that does not touch the inside world of the school. Any school is but a cross-section of the life of its community, and the association will have to select its problems or be overwhelmed at the start.

Begin work from the outside of the school and work in. The farther in you go, the closer you get to the children, and your approach here is to be made with the utmost caution. Practice on the building and the grounds and the equipment first; take up problems of instruction last. It is in this latter field that the teacher is the strongest; it is in the former field that parents have the greater power. Give the right sort of building and equipment, the right instruction is almost certain to follow.

Examine the buildings and the grounds. Are they the kind that the best parent would want for his children? Do they measure up? Are they large enough? Are they clean, sanitary, attractive? Is the plumbing in first-class order? Are the toilets just what they ought to be? How about the playeround? about the playground?

You know a playground is as necessary as any class room. Its equipment is equally as important as that

Make a happiness survey of your school. Are your children and teachers happy, and if not, why not?

You may discover in your investigations that what you need is a new school building and a new educational policy. Go after them and get them. Don't be alarmed at the cost and the increase in taxes. A good school improves property, attracts the better sort of citizens and pays for itself many times over.

Hidden in the homes lies a world of talent and inspiration for the school. Offer your contribution and see how eagerly the teachers and children ac-

This is but a glimpse of the work Parents' Associations can do. Their field is as broad as the world. The reward is wonderful in the revelations of hidden powers and neglected enjoyment and appreciation. Neighbor will learn to value neighbor and all the children will grow in a new spirit of fellowship.

The growth of the school—that is the growth of the children—depends upon the understanding of the part-nership between the school and the home, between parents and teachers. For either of them to work alone in the blind belief that the aims and po-licies of both are alike and at the right time will merge and march on together in unity is futile.

Without knowledge there can be no understanding and the isolated school and the isolated home cannot know or understand each other. Working together even the most divergent points of view may be reconciled and a united influence brought to bear upon the children.

COUNTRY STORE DESTROYED Murray Baile's Store, at McKinstry's Mills, Totally Burned.

The large store building at McKinstry's Mills was destroyed by fire last Friday night between 10 and 11 o'clock. The building and stock was owned by Murray Baile, who occupied part of the building as a dwelling. The family was on a visit to friends near New Windsor, and there was no one in the building at the time of the fire. The cause is not definitely known, but was likely due to a de-fective chimney, and had perhaps smoldered for quite a while before breaking out.

A garage, chicken house, stable and other smaller buildings adjoining the store building were destroyed. loss included a Ford car stored in the garage, while several other cars were run out and saved.

The large dwelling across the road, owned and occupied by Manasseh O. Repp, and the dwelling of Mr. Demmitt, east of the fire, were on fire but were saved with slight damage. None of the Zumbrun buildings to the south of the store were damaged, on account of favorable wind.

Mr. Baile's loss was complete, and very heavy, as it was impossible to do any effective work with a bucket brigade. The Westminster fire engine was called by phone, and arrived in time to do effective work by cutting a hole in the ice on the dam above the mill, giving ample water ened buildings.

The loss, counting the replacement value of the buildings, stock and merchandise and household effects, is likely from $12,000 to $15,000. There was partial insurance in several companies. This was one of the oldest country store stands in the county.

FARM LAND VALUES AND GROP VALUES

A Comparative Statement that is Worth Studying.

The explanation of why Western farmers are complaining so greatly of the present prices of farm products is found largely in the figures given out on authority of the Agricultural department, showing the average value of farm land, in the various states, as compared with the crop values per

It is shown in this table, for instance, that the average value of cultivated land in Maryland is $49.00 per acre, and the cost value $32.52 per acre, and the crop value $32.52 per acre is $163.00, and the crop value only $20.95 per acre. A study of the table below, showing average values in sixteen states, will throw considerable light on complaints of the unprofitableness of agriculture, more pronounced in the west than in the

Suit for Stand Pipe Damages.

Damages to the amount of $250, are claimed from the borough of New Oxford in a suit brought by E. D. Ditenhafer, Berlin avenue, who claims that his property has been damaged by water from the borough's standpipe on the adjoining lot. It is claimed that the standpipe overflows and the water finds its way into Mr. Ditenhafer's garden. It is also alleged that mist carried by high winds from the tank has damaged Mr. Ditenhafer's property.

The borough council at the February meeting took action to remedy the trouble by inquiring about a guage for the pumping station. At the last meeting Mr. Ditenhafer presented two bills, one for $75 for repairing the roof of his barn and another for $10 for ground filled in his garden. The bills were rejected. The papers in the suit have been served upon H. S. Sheets, secretary of the borough, by Deputy Sheriff Hartman. The summons is returnable the third Monday in March at Gettysburg .-New Oxford Item.

5,322,708 Barrels Apples Stored.

Chicago, Feb. 22-This month's report of apples in cold storage, exclusive of those in wholesale houses and retail stores, showed there are 5,322,-708 barrels of apples yet to be removed, an average of about five pounds of apples for every inhabitant of the country, according to a report today by the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

As early as October 1 last year 1,452,000 barrels of apples went into storage, an unusually large amount, due to a car shortage in nearly all producing areas, a fairly heavy production and low prices early in the season. The peak was reached in December, when about 6,743,000 barrels, 1,000,000 more than in 1921, were held New York Baldwin apples were variously quoted this week from $4.50 to $5.50 a barrel.

Authority for erection in Washington of a monument to the memory of "the faithful colored mammies of the South" was given in a bill passed on Wednesday by the Senate. It was introduced by Senator Williams, Democrat, of Mississippi.

W. Bourke Cochran, prominent Democratic member of Congress, from New York, died suddenly, on Thursday, from paralysis. He had participated in debate, on Wednesday against the Farm Credits bill.

INCREASE IN FARM CROPS. Maryland Products Gained in 1922 over Figures of 1921.

The farm value of all crops and animals raised and animal products produced in Maryland during 1922 was $104,700,000, according to a statement given out today by John S. Dennee, crop statistician at Baltimore for the United States Department of Agriculture, co-operating with the extension service of the University of Maryland. This amount represents a gain of $14,900,000 over the value of all farm products produced during 1921 but is short of 1919—the bumper year, by $81,000,000; and of 1920 by $42,000,000.

Of the 1922 gross value the total for crops is placed at $68,100,000, and the total for animals raised and for animal products is placed at $36,600,-000. It should be borne in mind that the total value of animals raised and animal products duplicates crop values to a degree not ascertainable. Compared with 1921 values, crops gained by $15,800,000 while animals raised and animal products lost $900,-

Crop value as a fraction of the aggregate value of all farm products fell from 69 percent in 1919 to 59 percent in 1921, but recovered to 65 percent in 1922 on account of the gain of crop value in 1922 over 1921, and the nearly stationary value of animal products.

The course of crop value has fluctuated exceedingly during the last ten years, according to the crop statisti-The peak year of high crop prices was 1919, when the value was 19 percent greater than in 1913. After 1919 a precipitate decline followed. The crop value of 1921 marks the lowest point of deflation, as an upward movement in 1922 carried such value to 55 percent above 1913.

Animal products had a course of yearly values that lagged behind crop values and fluctuated less. The peak was reached in 1919, but it was 113 percent above 1913, while crop value touched 193 percent above.-U. S. Dept. Agriculture.

Income Tax Returns from Women.

The following statement is issued by Collector of Internal Revenue Galen L. Tait of the district of Maryland. Thousands of women are required to file an income tax return and pay a tax on their net income for the year 1922. No official estimate can be given of the number of such women, but statistics of income for the year 1920, recently issued, show that approximately 503,000 women filed returns for that year, claiming the $1,000 exemption allowed a single person. The amount of net income reported by these women was $1,264,955,727. addition there were filed 132,181 returns by women claiming an exemption of $2,000 as the head of a family, a person who supports and main tains in one household one or more individuals closely related to him (or her) by blood, marriage or adoption.' Net income reported by these women for the year 1920 amounted to $388,-Under the revenue act now 364,530. in force the personal exemption allowed the head of a family is $2,500 if the net income for 1922 was $5,000 or less, and $2,000 if the net income exceeded

The number of wives making separate returns from husbands for the year 1920 was 77,558 reporting net income of $534,840,405. These figures show the income reported in returns filed by women forms an important part of the aggregate income of the people of the United States.

A woman who was widowed during the year 1922, unless the head of a family, or remarried on or before December 31, 1922 may claim a personal exemption of only $1,000. A divorcee. or wife who continuously and without necessity makes her home apart from her husband is classed as a single person, and entitled only to the $1,000 personal exemption.

Whether a man and wife are "living apart" for the purpose of the income tax law, depends upon individual circumstances. A wife who supports an invalid husband in a sanitarium may claim the exemption allowed a married couple. The separation is one of ne-

The revenue act does not prescribe the amount of the exemption allowed a married woman living with her husband. Married couples living together are granted an exemption of $2,500 or $2,000 depending upon whether their combined net income is $5,000 or less or more than $5,000. Husband and wife may make separate returns, or they may make a joint return. In the event separate returns are made, either husband or wife may claim the exemption allowed married persons, or they may divide it between them in such proportion as they choose.

The period for filing income tax returns ends at midnight March 15th.

By a vote of 72 to 54 the Lower House of the Texas Legislature has killed the Baker Anti-Parochial School bill, which would have given to county superintendents the authority to make quarterly inspections of private and parochial schools. # FARM CREDIT BILL PASSES HOUSE, Banking System to Meet Needs of Agriculturist.

The bill proposing to establish two new banking systems, one govern-ment and the other private, passed the House on Thursday, 305 to 36, and now goes to conference, the measure already having passed the Senate. The chief opposition came from New York and the New England states, Just how the bill is expected to work to the practical benefit of farmers, is not clear to us, but it is strongly backed by the farming interests of the middle and Western states.

The bill is the result of propaganda supported by the farmer in Congress, and seems to practically result in the government engaging in banking, and is held by its opponents to be false financiering, and not in the real interests of the farmers. Party lines had little to do with the passage of the bill, but thirty-one of the thirty-six opposing votes were Republi-

The new Federal banking system proposed would consist of 12 "inter-mediate credit banks" located in the same cities as the Federal Farm Loan Banks and with a capital of $5,000,000 each. They would be authorized to issue tax free debentures up to a total of $600,000,000, giving them aggregate resources of $660,-000,000, or nearly twice the amount which the War Finance Corporation has been called upon to advance to the agricultural industry. (Baltimore has a Farm Loan Bank, located in the Fidelity Building.)

Private credit corporations which would be authorized by the bill would have a capital of not less than $250,000 each and their number would be unlimited. It is these organizations that will make advances to producers of live stock on long term paper. There also would be private rediscount corpor-ations having a capital stock of not less than $1,000,000 each. Under an amendment adopted by the House the War Finance Corporation would continue to function until next January 31, by which time it is assumed that the new farm credit systems will be in operation.

Employment in Maryland.

Washington, Feb. 28-Maryland is keeping pace with the general industrial improvement throughout the country and, in fact, is outdistancing some of the other sections in business progress, according to a special survey by the employment service of the Department of Labor, based on telegraphic dispatches received from its agents in every State.

'Unemployment conditions in Maryland," says the report from the Federal Director for that State, "as compared with last month, are more favorable. The estimated number of those unemployed are 3,000, as against ties whene there were many opportu-5,000 in January. Unemployment among skilled labor is practically nil and the unemployed common labor could be nearly so if the workers would accept the prevailing wage. Indications are that the demand for all classes of labor in Maryland will increase during the next two months.

New Rule on Sealing of Parcels for Mail.

Attention is called by the Postoffice sealing of parcels-post packages and the mailing of them at fourth-class rate of postage.

Under the ruling, "merchandisefourth-class mail" is required to be pital. printed on the parcels; the postmaster may open the parcel for inspection if necessary, and the label showing the contents may be combined with an address label. Hand-stamping or writing the nature of the contents on the address label is prohibited. The department says all mailable fourth-class matter, appropriately la-beled, may be sealed and mailed at the fourth-class rate. It cautions against placing unauthorized inclosures in sealed parcels mailed at the fourthclass rates. Violations will result in the withdrawal of the privilege and

Washington, February 25-Senator Oscar W. Underwood, of Alabama, Democratic floor leader in the Senate, may again be a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. He has informed friends that after his return from Europe he will give "very careful and thorough consider-ation" to many suggestions to enter the race for the 1924 nomination of his party.

The position of Senator Underwood who sailed Saturday from New York for Europe, was outlined in a letter of Februray 2, to W. M. Coleman, of the Alabama House of Representa-

ADVANCE OF SUGAR.

Don't get Excited and Thereby help the Market Boosters.

Sugar has advanced in price, and if buying and hoarding continues, it will advance still more. If customers are reasonable about present purchases. the price is not apt to go much higher, and may drop. The best informa-tion obtainable is that speculators are trying to boost prices, and are depending on householders to get scared into a buying panic, and help them. Secretary Hoover of the Department of Commerce, denies that there will be a real shortage in the Cuban crop. It is also said that the outlook is for the European demand to be only about forty percent of what it was last year for sugar from the United States and Cuba, and this inspires the speculators to boost prices now by creating an unusual demand. Within the past month, the retail price has increased from 7 cents to 9½ and 10

While reports as to raw stocks are naturally somewhat confusing, due to the present flurry, those not interested in forcing up the price are of the belief that the Cuban crop will be as large as last year, and that the world production will be ample for all demands.

New "Tutch" Styles Coming.

Whether the late Egyptian King's name originally was "Tut-enkh-amun," or "Tutankh-amen," makes little difference, as the Anglicized form is likely to be, "Tutch-men-formun," according to the following news clipping;

"The opening of Tutenkhamun's tomb will result in a renaissance of ancient Egyptian fashions, in the opinion of a high silk authority. A complete change in the patterns of jewelry, fruniture and decorations also is predicted. Manufacturers of silk fabrics, in most instances, already have begun to turn out goods, which have been patterned after designs revealed in the tomb of the King, while a number of them have dispatched de-signers to Egypt in an effort to pick up more ideas.

Good Advice to Boys.

Students of Frederick high school were urged to seek employment in Frederick county and near their homes after they graduate, by Emory L. Coblentz, who addressed the students of the third and fourth year classes, last week.

Mr. Coblentz took as his subject, "Diamonds in Frederick County." He told how there were diamonds in the backyard of each of the pupils. He showed how diamonds were merely opportunities for success and advancement. He spoke of the requisites to success and showed how it was necessary that the boy be honest above everything else. He showed what part the morale of the individual played in the achievement of success.

The speaker deplored the fact that so many young men were seeking positions of employment in the large cinities for the right sort of fellow right next his own home.

Death of Dr. Frank T. Shaw.

Dr. Frank T. Shaw, former County Clerk and political leader of Carroll County, as well as a physician, died last Saturday night at the home of his son-in-law, Edward O. Weant, in Westminster, aged 82 years.

He also represented this district in Congress, and later served as Collector of the Post of Baltimore, and as State Tax Commissioner.

He had been out of active political life for the past twenty years, but always took an active interest in public affairs, and was apparently in good health up to within a few days of his death.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Edward O. Weant, and Mrs. Ernest Sponseller, and by two sons, John Shaw, a deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, and Frank Shaw, of Minnesota.

Divers are recovering $150,000 worth of copper lost by the government in 1919 when a tug on which it was loaded was crushed in collision with the steamship Buford, between Governor's Island and Ellis Island, New York Harbor. The copper was found recently through a new electrical sounding device after the government had searched for it for two years. It lies in 90 feet of water.

The situation in Europe has remained without important change, for several weeks. Almost anything is like-

Whatever may be the real status of the public school system, after the best survey that can possibly be given it, in full knowledge of all facts, it seems undoubtedly true that in our rural sections the schools are growing out of, rather than into, popularity, and especially in so far as the practical needs of the masses are concerned.

The Grants and Fosdicks, with their propaganda intended to undermine the foundations of the Bible, would be unheard of, except in their own little circles, was it not for the hunger of the daily press for all sorts of sensational slush. Remove the big audiences from such fellows, and the harm they do would also be removed. The "freedom of the press" is doing more to unsettle and inflame the world than any other one agency.

While it is generally conceded that a majority of the 150 members of the Lower House of the Texas Legislature are either members of the Ku Klux Klan or sympathizers of that secret organization, the Senate is of different complexion. On more than one occasion that body has demonstrated that a majority of its 31 members are not Klansmen and not in harmony with the principles of the Klan. For this reason there is little or no chance that any so-called regulatory bills affecting religion and parochial schools will be passed at the present session.

"Europe Needs U. S .Aid!"

We see the above headline, or its equivalent, quite frequently in the daily press. To our mind, we might ing under the Volstead Act. answer the expression by sayingwhat of it? The United States needs its own best aid, about as badly as does Europe; at least, a great many of our people are strong on "government aid" for nearly every ill, large

We seem to be a long while fixing in our own mind the truth that "we the people" are the "government." We go together and form a government for our own regulation and protection; but, when it comes to matters of business, and self-help, we ought largely finance our own propositions, and carry our own burdens, and stop making situations that seem to call for "the government." The government is a law-maker and a policemannot a business mender, nor a banker, nor a something to run to when all sorts of personal affairs go wrong.

"The people" could help themselves best, by first getting right, themselves. Whenever a new bunch of crooks start to operate, there is a rush for new laws. The country-Nation and State—is loaded down with laws; useless ones, forgotten ones, mischievous ones, unjust ones, largely because "the people," being the government, have been trying to regulate themselves into decency through laws better than they themselves are, though made by them-

"Europe needs U. S. Aid." Quite likely. The whole world needs more aid, because the whole world is suffering from people who get themselves into trouble, then expect other people to help hem out. An excellent idea,

Labor Shortage.

The Dearborn Independent, commonly known as "Mr. Ford's paper," is ably edited, handsomely printed, and in most ways an excellent journal. If there is a single criticism of it of the serious sort, we believe it to be that its editorial utterances are largely of the last word, beyond appeal sort—the final conclusion of each topic discussed. In a recent issue, it said: You as a newspaper reader do not know, frequently the editor of the newspaper which you read does not know, that much of the stuff he prints may have an outward and visible sign. A man may have an outward and visible sign and you read is often prepared-not in the newspaper office, but in a distant propaganda headquarters-to mislead you. The purpose is to plant certain ideas in your mind which will enable far-seeing and selfish interests to perform certain acts without exciting your suspicion or disapproval. No newspaper staff knows enough about the subjects which its columns discuss, to judge whether the public is being deceived or not. There is a certain number of columns to be filled every day, and outside "service" is in it from the way it has been operatbought to fill those columns. There is one honest news service in the country; if there are two, we are luckier than informed persons now

Just where this "one honest news service" is located, is not stated, and he would say that he had any in his we will let our readers guess at it, along with us. Now, just following this, the editorial goes on to say, "The papers tell us that the shortage of men (labor shortage), is so great that the industries of the country are endangered;" and in order to disprove such a statement, it asks readers "to look around the streets of buyers are paying an average of $3.61 your city, look over the farm districts, and see if it is true that there is a labor shortage."

This is meant to clinch the denial of "labor shortage" on farms, because, seeing is believing. We wonder if the writer himself ever investigated labor shortage on farms, and if he did, where did he find plenty of farm help? He says the whole question can be decided by "common observation." If there is not a labor shortage—that is, not a shortage of men—then it must be that there is merely a shortage of men willing to work on farms at fair

How They "Fillibuster."

Last week, during the Senate 'fillibuster" against the Ship Subsidy bill, when talking was largely to kill time, and on almost any other subject than the ship bill, ranging all the way from affairs in Russia to the ownership of the Isle of Pines in the West Indies, Senator Williams, of Miss. one of the most brilliant and entertaining speakers in the Senate, added to the "enjoyment" of the occasion by commenting on a very lengthy speech that had just been made by Senator Reed, of Missouri, in favor of retaining the Isle of Pines, instead of turning it over to Cuba, from which we reproduce the following. He said; "But even then the Senator from Indiana was almost outdistanced this souri described the Isle of Pines as a winter resort. Oh, the things that we might have if we but had it! He finally closed by saying that it was a paradise. Well, Mr. President, it is a paradise wight new but would it be into these matters of costs and profits. morning when my friend from Misa paradise right now, but would it be paradise after we annexed it, with Wheeler, the head of the Anti-Saloon League, down there to govern it? I am inclined to think there would not be so much enthusiasm for the Isle of Pines if it were known it was com-

I am opposed to taking the Isle of Pines, because if it has many pines it will conflict with our interests, and a head and the $8.25 minimum charge tariff on lumber would not do us any good. I am opposed to it because it would add to the expenses of a shipping board as long as it is in existence or add to the subsidy for shipping after we annexed it.

Mr. President, I am also a little bit opposed to annexing six or eight million more darkies in the West Indies. I like darkies in their place and they like me, but we have just about enough of them right now, and we do not want any more. While we are throwing up bars against the immigration of white people from Europe, I do not want to go out and annex six or eight millions of colored people down in the West Indies, especially that class of colored people who have been taught the very valuable to them and very destructive to the white race lessons of social and political equality.

Mr. Borah. Mr. President-The Presiding Officer. Does the Senator from Mississippi yield to the Senator from Idaho? Mr. Williams. I yield willingly and gladly. Mr. Borah. But the Senator from Mississippi wants to remember that the colored men voted the Democratic ticket in New York last fall. Mr. Williams. My heavens, Mr. President, I did not hear of that. (Laughter.) I did not know anything about it. There have been only three elections since the Civil War, I believe, when without the colored vote the Democrats would not have won; possibly there have been four but certainly three elections were carried by the Republican Party by the white vote without any regard to the darkes in the doubtful States; but, Mr. President, I always did have a certain amount of ultimate confidence in the darkies, especially my own darkies, and I always thought that perhaps some of these days their sentiments, if not their intellects, would cause them to see who were their true friends. It may be that they are go ing to try the Democratic Party for awhile, and after that disappoints them they may try the Republican Party a little while longer, fluctuating between the two parties in the hopeless effort to secure social equality between whites and blacks. I do not think either party will ever quite establish the fact that the darkies are white men with black skins, any more than they will ever establish the fact that donkeys are mules longer ears. (Laughter.) I think there are certain inherited and inherent racial differences of which color and kinks of hair are the mere of an inward and spiritual disgrace.

I believe that is a quotation from the prayer book, or it is very nearly so, though it may be wrong in one sylla-

Mr. Smoot. It is not literal. Mr. Williams. But at any rate, if their object in voting the Democratic ticket was merely to declare their lack of confidence in the Republican Party, for once they were about right, because neither darkey nor white man has any right to have any confidence ing in the last two or three years. I believe even the Senator from Idaho (Mr. Borah) would agree with me about that. (Laughter.) He might not have more confidence in the Democrats, but certainly I do not believe own crowd."

Plus $3.61 Per Ton?

Officials of the United Mine Workers of Pennsylvania inform the United States Coal Commission that because a "monopoly organization" exists in the anthracite industry coal more per ton than they should. The "over-charge" in mine cost is set at $1.26, in transportation at $1 and in distribution at $1.35 per ton. The familiar charge that this is possible because of an alliance of operatorbanker-railroad interests is renewed.

Admitting that they have not all the essential facts, the miners ask the commission "to determine the actual investment in the anthracite mines" and * * * * to establish and insist for all time upon a uniform accounting system similar to the one advocated by the Federal Trade Commission. Unless a satisfactory accounting system is adopted and enforced, the public and the miners will continue to disbelieve the statements of costs and profits which are now given so much publicity. The miners have pointed a finger straight at one of the things that must be cleared up before there can be understanding and peace in the hard-coal fields. The whole question of costs and profits is in the deep shadows. The public is assailed with alleged facts and propaganda from both sides.

The one thing the public is certain about is that coal cost is too great. Just where the excess charges are loaded on coal has not been determined by a public and responsible agency. The operators insist they are due to excessive wage demands and high material and tax costs. The workers into these matters of costs and profits. The facts that are visible on the surface will not serve, for we must get in behind and under such figures and appearances. There is too much difference between the $5.41 that the comptroller of the Lehigh and Wilkes-Barre company says is the cost of the actual mining and the taxes and overper ton at the mine mouth. There is too much difference between that $8.25 and the $15 to $16 charged to get coal into the cellar.

The miners' charge is a "lead" that the Coal Commission may well follow. If these facts are as alleged, they are of vital import to a "fact-finding" commission.—Phila. Ledger.

The Pneumonia Month.

March is a typical pneumonia month and usually gives a high rate of mortality for the disease. After a long and hard winter the system loses much of its resistance and people grow careless. When every cold, no matter how slight, is given prompt and intelligent attention, there is much less danger of pneumonia. It should be borne in mind that pneumonia is a germ diesase and breeds in the throat. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an expectorant and cleans out the germ ladened mucus and not only cures a cold but prevents its resulting in pneumonia. It is pleasant to take. Children take it willingly.

Brazil Is New Land of Promise That Beckons Those Who Woo the Fickle Goddess, Fortune.

Treasure seekers are turning their eyes toward the old gold coast again. This time they are not thinking of the sunken hulks of overloaded ships three centuries under the sea that might by some mad miracle of luck still be salvaged. Nor have they heard another series of maudlin whispers of a hoard of pirate gold just found by the crew of a rum runner hunting a hidden

Yellow gold and flat slabs of feathered emerald engraved by Indians before the Spanish flag and the Catholic cross were carreld into the Americas do not interest them.

It's the repeated news of new diamond fields that have been opened recently between the mouth of the Magdalena river and the headwaters of the Rio Grande of Brazil that is filling the veins of those who seek sudden reaching a likely port along the gold coast somewhere between Caracas and Cayenne, or of arriving in Brazil some Cayenne, or of arriving in Brazil some where between Bahla and Sao Paulo.

BLUE RIDGE COLLEGE.

Blue Ridge Basketers overwhelmed Company A of Frederick, Wednesday night. The final count was 54-30. The game was a hard fight in the first half, and when this session was over the score was in favor of the locals by the margin of a single point, 25-24. However, in the final period the Blue Ridge quint took a spurt which swept away the opposition, and carried the crimson and white to victory.

The Varsity five invaded Chestering a splendid showing against that per. miracle team of the 1922-23 basketball season. The score was against us 33-17, and considering the extremely large score which Washington College has been rolling up on opponents of the highest caliber, during the season, this is certainly good for Blue Ridge. The boys left on the Southern trip Wednesday and in the process of this journey will encounter Bridgewater, Daleville and Roanoke Colleges Baseball season is coming on and Manager Wilson has arranged a very splendid schedule which will be published in the near future.

Wagner's "Liebesverbot," Practically Forgotten, Is Soon to Be Issued by a Berlin Firm.

Announcement that a Berlin firm of music publishers is about to issue the score of Wagner's "Liebesverbot" will be hailed with acclaim by music lovers throughout the world. "Prohibition of Love," to translate the title, was written during the youth of the famous composer, and shows more plainly than do his other earlier works the period of transition through which he passed before he matured into the producer of the compositions which brought him fame and established his particular school of music. ure." It is the only Wagnerian composition in which the characters speak some of the lines. Ninety years ago

It is based on "Measure for Measthe composition was given a performance in Magdeburg. It proved a dismal failure. It was never published, and on Christmas, 1866, Wagner himself gave the score to Ludwig II of Bavaria. Since then, the manuscript has been preserved among the Bavarian crown treasures.

Though the text of the opera has been published, only fragments of the music have been available in the past. Preparations are being made throughout music centers to give the offering an elaborate revival when it is introduced to the public of today.

Truck That Walks.

A German engineer has constructed a motor truck which does not move on wheels, but not unlike the Martians described by H. G. Wells in his "War of the Worlds," can stride with the help of "legs" across deserts and swamps, can wade "knee-deep" through rivers, stamp through snowfields and step across ditches, and fell tree trunks and other obstacles in its path, says a European dispatch to the Philadelphia Public Ledger. For this purpose it is furnished with two pairs of skids, one of which always rests on the ground, while the other is moving forward with the load. When "walking" normally its stride measures about four feet in length, but, like a human being, it can regulate it when walking uphill or when stepping across an obstacle in its way. With its skids, which are ten feet long, it strides along the roads at a pace of six miles per hour, or about twice as fast as an ordinary person can go. It can go backward, turn completely around its axles without moving from the spot, and it even walks sideways if required.

In Sad but Loving Remembrance of my dear husband and son, EDWARD C. KEEFER. who died February 14, 1923, aged 41 years, 6 months, and 3 days, and PAUL S. KEEFER, aged 17 years and 4 months.

Gone but not forgotten 'Tis hard to break the tender cord When love has bound the heart,' 'Tis hard, so hard, to speak the words "We must forever part."

We weep for him; no tenderer husband E'er made wife's fireside bright; No more devoted father's love E'er kept home altar fires alight.

And he is with the Angel host With sinless heart and stainless hand, Waiting to meet the friends to come To that bright and happy land.

He has gone from his dear ones—his children, his wife,
Whom he willingly toiled for and loved as his life,
Oh, God! how mysterious and how strange are Thy ways,
To take from us this loved one, in the best of his days.

We have lost our darling brother and son, He has gone to live in Heaven And his form is lost to view Oh! that dear one, how we loved him. Oh. how hard to give him up,
But an Angel came down for him
And removed him from our flock,
BY HIS WIFE AND CHILDREN.

Said to Be Same as Those of General Hindenburg. An interesting story reaches us from a Quaker source about the discovery of a German professor of phonetics who is engaged in collecting and analyzing phonographic records of the voice of speakers of every country and language. During the war he not only got records from allies and war prisoners of nearly every country under the sun, but also carefully tabulated the voice own countrymen. Recently he begged a well-known English Quaker, who was on a visit to Berlin in connection with international peace work, to allow a record of his voice to be made. This was Mr. C. Heath, the late secretary of the National Peace council, and now secretary of the Friends' Council for International Service. He gave a brief address on the peace principles of Quakerlsm into the phonographic receiver, while the professor eagerly watched the machine's delicate indicator, which recorded all the lights and shades of the speaker's voice. At the conclusion of the test the professor pronounced that the verdict of the machine was that the reactions to the Quaker's voice were exactly the same as those to General Hindenburg's.

How to Torture Your Wife.

A man whose wife was visiting relatives in another state was getting lonesome, but couldn't get her to cut short her visit and return home. He wrote her a letter almost every day, pleading he was sick, that he couldn't get any good food. She wouldn't budge. Then he had an inspiration, a hunch some would call it, says Capper's Weekly. Before the wife left home she had arranged to have two rooms papered, and had ordered the paper, but was unable to get a workman at the time she had to leave for the visit. The paper came while she was gone. Friend Husband wrote a long letter to his wife, telling her the paperhanger had arrived, but that he (the husband), didn't remember which paper was to go on which room. He had told the paperhanger to go ahead, however, to use such-and-such a paper (naming the dining room paper), on the front room, and the other paper 'the front room paper), on the dining room. The missus reached home on the next train.

Seller Takes No Chances.

A guest at an up-state hotel recently, making a purchase at the cigar stand, noticed that the clerk before ringing up the cash register laid the bill on the keys of the machine, says the New York Sun. Then he pressed the correct button, made the change, handed it to the customer, and only then placed the bill in the proper compartment of the open

"I did it to avoid disputes and mistakes," he said. "As long as the money is still lying on top of the keys there's no chance of my giving the customer short change by mistake nor of his disputing the change he receives and perhaps putting one over on me."

To Develop Canada's Clay Deposits.

Numerous varieties of valuable clay deposits, some of these being brick, tile, earthenware and fire clays, have long been known to exist in Saskatchewan, Canada. To promote a knowledge of these deposits and to encourage their development, the provincial authorities have recently included a course of ceramics in the curriculum of the Saskatchewan university. Thus although there are no pottery-manufacturing plants in this province at present, the people of that section of the Dominion are obviously aware of the possibilities in the situation and are taking steps to make Saskatchewan one of the leaders in the manufacture of brick, tile, pottery, or other products of the ceramic industry.-Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Frank Is Frank.

One afternoon I was invited to a bridge party. The woman who usually takes care of my son was ill. I told him that he would have to go to the party with me. This displeased him, because he had planned to play all afternoon. Knowing how much he likes angel-food cake, I told him Mrs. 3-2-3t Blank was going to serve ice cream and angel-food cake. He at once changed his mind about playing.

All went well until my son rambled out into the kitchen, where he saw Mrs. Blank taking two cakes out of the oven.

She said, "Frank, I'll bet you can't guess what kind of cakes these are." My son replied: "They're angelfood cakes, because that's what we came for."-Chicago Tribune.

By L. M. MITCHELL

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) "You'd never believe it, Mary, but she actually gave me passes to see the show." Tom's eyes beamed into Mary's as he spoke. Mary's heart sank. She had known when he landed the job in the advertising department that he would in all probability meet a great number of people. That he would meet actresses she had never dreamed. Mary Daly smiled back gayly.

"Isn't that fine!" "Fine? You bet your boots it's fine. Gee, she was some looking peach, take it from me. But you'll see her tonight. Get your doll rags on before we go down to dinner for we'll have to skip if we get downtown again in time for the start of the show. If I had any money we'd eat downtown." Mary shook her head firmly. "No, you made up your mind to save ten each week and you're going to do it. It won't take me long to dress, you

Tom nodded and was gone, looking at his notebook as he went. Mary turned to her typewriter with grim lips. It would not, indeed, take her long to change into evening things, for she had none. The best she would be able to do would be to change her blouse for the one she wore Sundays and put on her other hat. The blue suit she was wearing to the office was the very best thing she had ever been able to buy. The other girls in the office had much better clothes, but that was because they bought them on time, paying a little cown and so much a week. Mary had never yet done this,

Sometimes when the other girls chatted Monday mornings about the jolly week-ends they had had, Mary thought she was a fool. It did not seem to pay one especially well to be thrifty and pay as one went. The other girls had ten invitations to her one. In fact, she would never have had the one had it not been for Tom Powers, who used to live in River Grove, where Mary Daly had gone to school. She often wondered whether it was the link of River Grove that bade him invite her time after time to the "movies" or to the park on Sundays, or whether he really liked her company.

Today as she wrote letter after letter concerning advertising contracts, her mind was on Corinne. The play which had just opened was named "Corinne of the Chorus" and the lead, Corinne, was a girl of mystery. It was hinted that she was an heiress looking for adventure, and there had been the barest rumor that she was not American at all but a French girl who had once been in a harem. Whatever she was or was not, every one agreed that as an actress she was supreme. With a flerce clutch at her heart Mary suddenly realized what Tom had come to mean to her. True, they were not engaged. Marriage had never been discussed between them. Yet Mary felt that should something happen to take Tom away from herher hands refused to function further and she stared at the half-filled sheet before her unseeingly.

"Luncheon time, old stick-in-themud! Come on out with me. I have to chase over to Oliver's to pay another five." Ethel, who worked at the next desk, was standing at her elbow.

Mechanically, Mary found herself pulling down her hat, listening idly to the chatter of her companion and following her a few moments later down Monroe street. In the clothing house where dresses and suits were sold on time she waited near the door. Ethel made her payment, stopped and examined another frock and wandered down the aisle toward the door.

"Your friend, is she interested in a frock? I have one-" the mild tones of the saleswoman flashed toward Ethel smiled: "No she wouldn't buy anything unless she had saved a hundred dollars first for it. Why, she'd boxed and packed.—Baltimore American give up her youth and all hopes of can.

happiness to save a bit, but she's a dandy girl for all that."

Mary pulled away from the affectionate pat Ethel had given her. "You have one-" she said to the saleswoman.

"It's a purple crepe-with your eyes—" the saleswoman sighed. Her unfinished sentence gave one the idea that her thoughts could not be expressed in mere words.

"Let me see it!" Mary's tone was

Youth and hopes of happiness! the picture of Tom, her Tom, following Corinne of the Chorus wherever she might go simply because Corinne had such clothes as Mary had never dreamed of.

"You are undecided. I'll tell you. Take it and wear it once. If you are not satisfied-bring it back. That's all. Bring it back if you don't want it. Your gentleman friend-"

Mary nodded. "All right. I'll wear it tonight, and if I keep it I'll pay ten a week. If not, I'll return it." Mary put the box under her desk when she returned to the office. She was afraid to trust it anywhere else, for seventy-five dollars would have to be paid in case of its loss. She saw Tom enter the door and go to the desk of his chief. Sometimes he came in and went out without speaking to her, but usually he made some sort of excuse to linger a minute at her desk. He was going to now, Mary saw, and she flushed a little. She was conscious of the frock beneath the desk.

"Gee gosh!" he exclaimed when he came near. "I had to go back there for a write-up from the wardrobe woman, and the clothes I've seen this morning! Say! Sometimes I think women haven't any sense at all! Why, there were dresses and dresses and dresses-looked like a store. And while I was there this Corinne came in. You know I said she was a peachy looker? She is-in her fine clothes. She had her face cold-creamed and a fancy dressing robe of some kind on and she didn't look like two cents. It takes a really pretty girl to dress simply the way you do and get away with it. I never thought of it before. Isn't that funny? Got to skip. Ride home together tonight!"

Mary Daly was blushing. "No, I'll see you at dinner. I have an errand before I go home. I have to go over on Monroe street to return something.

I—I was going to—" "Yes," cut in Tom, "we'll have a dandy time. Them actresses are all right to look at for an evening, but for a regular girl-say, River Grove's good enough for me."

DECLINED WATER IN DESERT

Writer Tells of Extraordinary Self-Denial of Arabs Observing Prescribed Religious Fast.

Circumstances over which we had no control necessitated our starting on our journey (across the Arabian desert) during the fasting month of Ramadan, the Lent of the Mohammedans, during which no devout Moslem eats, drinks or smokes between sunise and sunset. The fanatically p indeed, even go to the length of refraining from swallowing their own saliva, writes E. Alexander Powell in the Century.

Though persons making a journey, the sick, and young children, are specifically exempted from this fast, the Arabs attached to our caravan belonged to a sect whose rules permit of no relaxation of its observation. Consequently these men would travel for 12 and sometimes 16 hours under a scorching sun without once touching food or water. I have never seen so remarkable an example of religious self-denial. On the hottest and longest march of all, when we covered more than forty miles with the mercury in the neighborhood of 120, little Achmet made the entire distance on foot without once moistening his tongue, which by nightfall was black and swollen. Though I repeatedly proffered him my water bottle, he always shook his head in refusal with a forced but cheery smile. Even when sunset came they did not break their fast until, the tents having been pitched and the camels unloaded, they had formed in line, their faces turned southward toward the Kaaba, and had gone through the interminable series of prayers and prostrations enjoined upon the faithful, including the quick glance over each shoulder, accompanied by a muttered ejaculation, which is supposed to drive away the lurking evil spirits.

Making of Pocketknife.

It takes 107 separate and distinct operations to make a pocketknife. Take the boy scout knife, for instance. Sixteen operations are required for making the spring actions, with a number of additional operations to put the spring in place and connect it with the frame of the knife. To make the screwdriver that is so important a part of any scout knife eight operations are needed. Twelve operations go in the making of the blades, seven in that of making the tin opener and six in making the leather puncher. When the knife is completed it is carefully inspected, the blades are glazed and polished. The projecting pins through the handle are rounded, the trade-mark etched on the blades and the knives are brushed out and cleaned. A second inspection takes place. Then the points are oiled, the knives are care fully rubbed off with chamois, each knife is wrapped in tissue paper,

LESSON FOR MARCH 4

JESUS TEACHING IN THE TEMPLE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 20:19-26; 21:1-4.
GOLDEN TEXT—Render therefore unto Caesar the things which be Caesar's and unto God the things which be God's .-

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Matt. 7:28-29; Isa. 28:14-20; Acts 4:7-22; Rom. 13:1-7. PRIMARY TOPIC—The Gift That

Pleased Jesus,
JUNIOR TOPIC-The Widow and Her INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC

Jesus the Fearless Teacher.
 YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC
 Jesus Answering His Opposers.

The popularity of Jesus after the triumphal entry greatly troubled the rulers of Israel. He met their wicked challenge as to his authority in such a skillful way as to place them under condemnation for their unbelief. This condition was accentuated by the parable of the householder.

I. The Question of Paying Tribute (20:19-26)

1. Spies Sent to Entrap Jesus (v. 20). The rulers were too cowardly to do this themselves, so they employed underlings to do their mean work while they hid away. This diabolical method is employed today in political and religious life. Many times questions are raised under the guise of sincerity, when the real purpose is to do mischief.

2. Wicked Flattery (v. 21). They His impartiality and courage. They certified to His faithfulness even to that extent that He would face Caesar himself. This compliment was true. though insincerely given. Back of this flattery was the base purpose to destroy Jesus. Many today praise to the face in order to stab in the back.

The Cunning Question (vv. 22-26). "Is it lawful for us to give tribute to Caesar or not?" At this time the Jews were galling under the yoke of the Roman government. To have answered this question either by "yes" or "no" would have involved difficulties. To have answered "yes," would have conveyed the impression of endorsing all that the Roman government did. To have answered, "no," would have at once brought him into conflict with the government. It is not always an easy matter for a Christian to determine his right relation to civil government.

Christ's reply to this question properly understood and applied is the final word on the subject. Until the civil authorities demand that which is a violation of God's law we are bound to render unto them obedience. Render unto Caesar the things due within the realm of the rights of government.

But while Christ's answer sets forth their duties to civil authorities He used the occasion to impress upon them the duties due to God. Render unto God the things that are God's. Man bears the image of God. Therefore he should honor and serve Him. Since he enjoy's God's protection and care, it is his duty to own allegiance to Him, yield his life to Him in service, worship and praise. Everyone who enjoys the benefits of civil government is obliged to pay the taxes which are necessary for the support of that government, and everyone who receives God's favor is placed under a like obligation unto Him.

II. Jesus' Estimate of Gifts (21:1-4). Jesus Watching the People Giving (v. 1). He was greatly interested in observing the way the people cast their gifts into the treasury. Perhaps there is more vital index to one's character than the way he behaves before the Lord's treasury. Jesus sits over against every treasury and knows every dollar cast into it. He knows how the dollars come and how they go. No trickery can deceive Him. He not only knows this in the church, but He knows it in the business world.

2. The Rich Gave of Their Abundance (vv. 1-4). They, no doubt, gave much, but in proportion to what they had left their gifts were small. The size of the gift is not primarily to be measured by how much it is, but how much has the giver left.

3. A Widow Gave Two Mites (vv. 2-4). In value a mite was less than a cent. Though the two coins were of small value themselves, they represented her all-not merely her surplus, but her living. Let no one deceive himself by pretending to give the widow's mite, for to give the widow's mite means to give everything.

4. Jesus' Verdict (vv. 3-4). He declared that she had given more than they all. Jesus looks into the heart and estimates our gifts not by their size but by the motives prompting them.

An Honest Man.

I hope I shall always possess firmness and virtue enough to maintain what I consider the most enviable of all titles, the character of an "honest man."-George Washington.

Happiness.

Oh, how bitter a thing it is to look into happiness through another man's eyes !- Shakespeare.

Must Make the Pot Boil. Fortune may find a pot, but your own industry must make it boil.

March 4 Lessons from the Psalms

Psalm 91:1-16 (The Refuge Psalm) The ninety-first Psalm is perhaps the most familiar of all the Psalms to the people of God. It may be regarded as one of their chief possessions. It expresses the same spirit and attitude

> "God hath given me a song, A song of trust; And I sing it all day long, For sing I must."

as one of our modern hymns-

This Psalm is a song of security ased on the almightiness of the Most High. The profession of security is, f course, one thing and the realization by faith is another. Commenting on this Dr. Tholuck says, "Though there is nothing more common than for men to profess that they are under the protection of the Most High, yet there are but few who really believe what they profess. This Psalm invites us to consider what this profession implies. No power in heaven or on earth can prevail against the Most High, for He is almighty. Men who are under His protection may discard all their fears." Rev. Mark Guy Pearse writes in similar strain, "God not only saves us from our foes but he saves us from our fears. We sometimes laugh at the silly fears of our little ones who magnify their fancies into dreadful evils. Think then what our silly fears must be in the sight of our God and how dishonoring since he has given us such assurance 2. Wicked Flattery (v. 21). They to encourage our trust. God offers to complimented His truthful teaching, drive away our fears. He laughs at the threats of His enemies but never at the fears of his children. Surely here is the very completeness of all gentle love that not only guards us from our foes but offers to quiet our foolish fears."

There is very little need of analysis or exposition. The Psalm is sometimes presented as a chorus in which the leader or precentor on the one hand, and the choir on the other hand, both have their parts. One writer suggested the following which will be found sggestive in studying the Psalm:

1—The Precentor Verse 2—The Choir Verses 3-8—The Precentor 9—The Choir Verse Verses 10-13—The Precentor Verses 14-16-The Precentor and the Choir.

WIPE OUT THE UGLY SPOTS

No Real Reason Why Any Part of a Community Should Be Other Than Attractive.

No careful housekeeper would be satisfied to have one of the front door steps bright and clean and the others left grimy with dirt and soot; to have one part of the yard set with attractive flowers and shrubs and the other part filled with rubbish, or to have half the sitting-room floor swept and the other half littered with papers. A house and yard kept after this fashion would indicate slovenliness, lack of pride and self-respect on the part of the owner or dweller.

Keeping a city clear and attractive is merely a job of good housekeeping. How well is the work being performed? An observing army officer who has been stationed first at one city and then another states that one "is strikingly impressed" with the scant accomplishment of the cities along the lines of attractiveness.

"Our cities have their 'show' streets," he writes, "few having as pretty boulevards as Kansas City; but compared to the total mileage such streets are almost insignificant. Arriving at a city by rail, one may detrain at a beautiful station, but even that cannot make one forget the messy and junk-strewn yards and streets traveled through for miles from the outskirts. Drive in by motor, and however wonderful the concrete beneath, the roadside usually is without trees, and sign boards without end greet the arrival. In place of trees there are several pole lines carrying hundreds of wires-in short, no beauty but only ugliness."

How long are the cities going to be satisfied with their bad housekeeping methods?-Exchange.

TAKE TIME TO INVESTIGATE

No Reason Why Buyer of a House Should Judge Value Only by Its Appearance.

Most people buy houses in the manner of the man who ordered a blue automobile. They purchase almost wholly on outward appearances, so far as the physical condition of the property is concerned. Paint, varnish and newness sell many houses. Very few purchasers concern themselves with the invisible construction of a house or with external evidence of the nature of the internal work. Yet what is not seen largely determines the future value of the property, the cost of upkeep and the satisfaction of the owner. The passing years inevitably reveal the true nature of the construction.

Yet it is not difficult for a home buyer to find out whether the house is of proper and suitable materials and correct methods of construction. says an experienced builder. The best way, of course, is to have the house inspected by some competent person, but there are certain fundamentals which anyone may apply for himself with the probability of being guided them, set a sponge with to a correct determination of the ina pint of milk, half a trinsic value of a house. If One Only Would Pause to Consider the Question, Are They Really Worth While?

The first time I crossed the Atlantic I had the good fortune to find myself in good company. The passenger list was comparatively small and the weather was mild. So, by the time the ship approached Liverpool, the passengers were fairly well acquainted and the atmosphere was decidedly genial. What interested me most about the trip was the sadness reflected here and there during the last two days, John D. Barry writes in the Minneapolis Tribune.

"Well, we'll never be together again," said one passenger, and another said, "I hate to leave all these pleasant people.'

Since that time, after voyages of a week or more, even of ships where the passengers have been rather detached, I've noticed a somewhat similar feeling.

Among college students it's well known that during the last year of college there's a pretty general softening up. In the men's college it's very marked. I suppose it's just as marked in the women's colleges, perhaps more so.

Men who had cherished grudges against each other for months or years and hadn't spoken would begin to speak again and would perhaps become friends. Acquaintances that had passed with a slight nod would grow more agreeable. Somehow animosity, chilliness, all unpleasant behavior began to seem foolish. It became clear that in this association there was something worth while, something that hadn't been fully appreciated before and that the thing to do was to make the most of it while it lasted.

BUFFALO HERDS HAVE GROWN

Animals in Canadian Government Preserves Must Be Killed to Prevent Evil of Overcrowding.

Twenty-five years ago the Canadian government purchased a small herd of buffalo and placed it in a national park at Banff. For several years the herd was regarded merely as an object of curiosity. Then a game preserve was decided upon, and the herd, together with other buffalo acquired from a United States rancher, was turned into the inclosure. The preserve is located at Wainwright, Alta., and extends over 162 square miles of sandy prairie which was considered unsuitable for agriculture. The buffalo, 709 in number, thrived from the start, and last spring the caretakers counted 6,146 of the animals. though the 1922 "crop" cannot be counted until the bison are herded into their winter quarters, it is estimated that there will be an addition of at least 1.000 calves. Besides this herd at Wainwright, there are other buffalo in Canada in sufficient pumbers to bring the total up to approximately 9,000 head, and the government is preparing to kill about 1,000 of them every year to prevent the preserves from becoming overcrowded.-Popular Mechanics Magazine.

WHAT YOU DON'T PLANT CAN'T GROW

BETTER TO HAVE A GOOD PLANTER THAN REGULATE THE WEATHER

Of all the work on the farm, there is one job that a good farmer is particular about—that is planting. The boy or help may be able to plow, disc, cultivate and do any of the work, but planting is a ticklish proposition. For every farmer realizes that-

What You Don't Plant Properly Can't Grow

You must get just the proper number of seed into the ground at exactly the right depth-not too deep or the tender shoots can never come through; not too shallow or the seed may be washed out or weatherkilled before it can get a healthy start.

Of all the tools on the place, your planter is easily the most delicate and important of all. For that reason, more care has been spent in designing and making Moline Planters than any other tool in the line. You can depend upon a Moline Planter. You can be sure it will not scatter, crack the seed, drop too many seeds in one place and none in another. Every Moline Planter is perfectly designed for its particular work, whether it is a

NO ONE CAN ESCAPE TAXES

Attitude Toward Debt to Commonweal Pretty Well Expressed by Farmer.

At the age of eight or nine I was taken on a voyage up the Mississippi river to St. Paul. By that time the imposing river craft which Mark Twain celebrated has mostly disappeared. Our boat was a modest affair, but all the more fascinating to me on that account because I could explore it more satisfactorily. I was always slipping downstairs to see how the strange contrivance was operated, especially at the crucial periods of making a landing and casting off. So one of my outstanding impressions from the voyage was that the technical language of navigation consists mainly of profanity, writes Witt Payne in the Saturday Evening Post.

Later on our village bank in Nebraska accommodated its patrons by paying their taxes; and I discovered that taxes were usually discussed with the same vocabulary as navigation. I recall a fiery-bearded farmer in tattered garments to whom I had just handed a strip of printed paper. He held it in one calloused hand, which trembled with emotion. The other calloused hand clutched a tangle of red beard. Evidently the man was surcharged with feeling. After a wordless moment he attempted to express the feeling by exclaiming plaintively "That's simply hellish."

The printed slip of paper was his tax bill. His taxes were more than they had been the year before. Usually taxes were more than they had been the year before, which three taxpayers out of five regarded as a wanton outrage. Since then I have heard much discussion of taxes. The redbearded farmer's comment pretty well expresses the general attitude toward Always, everywhere taxes are an affliction. That is the basic fact about them. Governments have been levying taxes in one form or another. I suppose, for 10,000 years; but in that length of time man hasn't really got used to it. The world over he still regards taxes, in the main, as a sort of robbery to which he must submit. Now taxes are our most immediate, obvious and familiar contribution to the commonweal. They are what we chip in the general pot for the purpose of carrying on the necessary collective enterprise of government. Hence they illustrate, better and more conclusively than anything else, our natural, ingrained attitude toward the collectivism. An old saying couples death and taxes as the two things from which there is no escape. Death has been called our debt to nature. Taxes are our most immediate and familiar debt to the commonweal. We pay the one debt just about as cheerfully as the other.

Horse Doesn't Enjoy Leisure.

Bill has had old Tom for nineteen years. The horse was given to Bill by his father for Bill to drive when he started going to town to high school every day. Bill figures the horse must be past twenty-five years old, but he's always had a lot of love and good care and he's a hearty old thing for his years.

But he can't work in the fields any more. Last year Bill put him in on some of the lighter work just to satisfy him, but he was no help and the other horses bit at him.

He's on pasture now, and he walks up and down the fence all day following Bill and his outfit in the other fleld, whinnying and just breaking his old heart to see the young horses there under the guidance and the voice of the only man old Tom ever loved.

It seems too had, doesn't it, that a man or a horse or any living thing should work so long and so hard and when the easy days come, instead of rolling around in the blue grass, and enjoying life, the poor old creature just spends his days grieving for the work he's free from?-Farm Life.

Gifts Made to Funeral Attendants. Funerals in early Massachusetts were expensive. Gifts were made to those who attended. Two of the commonest gifts were gloves and spoons. Hundreds of gloves were often given out at a single funeral; one is on record where 3,000 were given away.

A Boston clergyman kept account of the number he received; in 30 years he accumulated 2,940 pairs. A judge received 57 mourning rings between 1687 and 1725. A physician who died in 1758 at the age of eighty-one left a quart measure full. These rings were of gold, enameled in black or white. They were decorated with a death's head or with a coffin showing a skeleton lying in it, or with a winged skull. Sometimes they held a framed lock of the deceased's hair.

These gloves and rings were usually sold by the recipients. The Boston minister already noted received $700 by selling his gloves, and an additional sum from the sale of the funeral rings he had collected through the years.

Pelts From Fur Farms.

It is likely that the demand for furs will be taken care of at no distant date by supplies of pelts from "fur farms" where the animals are bred under artificial conditions. This is already done to a considerable extent at the fox farms established in different parts of this country and Canada and now efforts are being made to cultivate beavers under the same conditions. The latter have met with only partial success. There are some difficulties to be overcome, but there is no doubt that with a little more experience the venture of raising beavers will be practical.

Great American Sculptor Criticizes Conditions He Says Exist in the Smaller Cities.

Speaking before the Ninth Recreation congress, at Atlantic City, on the subject of "Beauty in the Home Town," Lorado Taft, American sculptor, declared that the reaction of the average American to art is that of the doughboy who said when he saw his first French cathedral:

"Gee, how did all that happen?" The Chicago sculptor contended that the only objects of beauty the average small town in America possessed were its trees and its girls. After the tourist had been shown the garage, the hotel and the cemetery the points of interest were exhausted, he said.

"What we need as a nation," said Mr. Taft, "is to teach our children to use their hands in delicate and skillful crafts; to give them more creative games. Our ideal today is expressed in the words of the man who said to his small son: 'Johnny, study hard, so some day you won't have to work with your hands.'

"Imagination is cultivated by the lack of the jiggling movie show of the cities; that is why our great poets come from the country or small towns; but the young artist must first have the glimpse, the dream, the vision in more concrete work of art before he can go back to his plow to create."

A NEW STORE IN

The Old Store Room in Taneytown.

We wish to announce to the people of Taneytown and surrounding country that on or about March 15, we will open a store in Taneytown in the building known as the "Eckenrode" building. We intend to carry a full line of

Ladies and Gents Ready to Wear, Dry Goods and Shoes a Specialty

We want to say to all that we are not coming to you as strangers as there are quite a number in and around Taneytown who have dealt with us in Gettysburg and Littlestown, and we will guarantee to give you the same fair and square dealing in Taneytown as we do in every one of our stores elsewhere.

We give you first-class Merchandise at the Lowest Possible Price and as you understand, we are operating TWENTY STORES of this kind in different towns over the country, and it puts us in a position that we can buy the Merchandise at the lowest possible price, therefore you get the benefit of our buying power. We mark our goods in plain figures, and we sell for one price to one and all; and any article which you buy at HARRIS BROS., not entirely to your satisfaction, you can return it and get your money.

Now, my dear people, if this method of doing business meets with your approval, we will ask you to come in and give us a chance to prove to you that we mean what we say. Hoping to be of service to you in the very near future. We are-
