EMMITSBURG MAN DIES OF GUN SHOT.

Clarence Andrews Held in Jail Charged With Murder.

Charles W. Hess, aged 28 years, was shot late Monday night, near Emmitsburg, by Clarence Andrews, and died Tuesday night at Frederick hos-

In a statement which he signed about two hours before death, Hess said he had gone to the Andrews place to get some cider. When a short dis-tance from Andrews, Hess says, he informed him of his mission.

"Cider, h——," he says the latter exclaimed and then fired. Andrews was about 10 feet from Hess when the fatal shot was fired, according to the statement made by the dying man to State's Attorney Anders and Sheriff

The two men lived a short distance apart in the mountain, near Emmitsburg, and had been at odds for some time. At the recent grand jury session Hesswas indicted for unlawfully selling liquor and his trial was sched-uled for Tuesday. Andrews, the principal witness against him, said he had been told that Hess was coming to his place Monday night to disable his automobile to prevent him from attending the trial. Armed with a shotgun, he concealed himself in a wagon a short distance from his barn. In the darkness he saw a figure approaching and recognized Hess. He aimed low and fired, not intending to kill Hess. After the latter fell Andrews brought him to the hospital and surrendered to Sheriff Jones. The shot tore a gaping hole in the back of the victim, piercing his kidneys, intestines and stomach.

Westminster Lutheran Church.

The Westminster Lutheran Church has been enlarged, frescoed, refurnished, and a pipe organ installed. Appropriate dedicatory services were held each night last week, participated in by former pastors. Cash and pledges amounting to about $32,000 will fully cover the cost of the improvements. The Westminster papers say of the work;

The new Sunday School room is a marvel and the audi-torium a dream fulfilled. What capped the climax and caused the hearts to thrill with joy and filled many eyes to thrill with joy and filled many eyes with tears, was the announcement that the full amount necessary to cover all indebtedness had been raised and thus able to re-dedicate free of debt."

Have been in the midst of the planting of an orange grove, in which my son is interested. The planting has to be done hurriedly, once it is started, as the young trees dry out nursery. We put out about 8 acres getting trees at all, as the nurseries were completely cleaned months ago.

The development has been so great here that trees could not be supplied. For two months the acreage planted in this county (Orange) alone, was 500 acres a week, and in other sections it has even been larger; but, the planting is out of the way for this

It is an extremely interesting process and I am learning something about it every day. I have nursery stock growing that ought to give us several thousand trees ready for budding next year. This is the only phase of the game that I have not studied. It costs 10 cents a tree to have them budded. We plant the sour orange seed, or rough lemon, then bud any variety of sweet orange desired on Major Hall promises a regular letter for publication, later, when he gets time to prepare it.

Another Missed Connection.

The mail train south again missed connection at Keymar, last Friday evening, causing the non-delivery of the Record, on Saturday, on many Rural Routes. For some unexplain-able reason, this train rarely misses on any other day than Friday, a fact very much to the disadvantage of our patrons, and to our regret.

JOHN McKELLIP DEAD. Taneytown's Oldest Citizen Passed Away, last Sunday.

Mr. John McKellip, Taneytown's oldest citizen, died on Sunday morning, March 11, at the rare age of 94 years, 3 months, 20 days. He received a fall on Feb. 19, while stepping to the back porch of his home from the yard, which did not injure his body to any extent, but so shocked his nervous system as to cause him to suffer great pain, and to be almost completely helpless, a condition that prevailed up to the time of his death.

Mr. McKellip was a remarkably vigorous man for his age, and up to the past two years was as active as most men twenty years younger. In fact, up until the time of his fall, throughout the whole winter, he had his rounds of out-door work, and was frequently on the street. In sight and hearing he was practically equal to the normal man of sixty years; and had he not received several falls, during the past ten years, his life might easily have been prolonged to the century mark.

In May 1921 he retired from the drug business in which he had been engaged in Taneytown for 68 years, "McKellip's" being known far and wide for its special preparations, as well as for its general reliability and the excellence of its wares. The store was a mirror of the character of the man—strictly honest, conscientious, dependable. He lived a very conservative, very methodical, easy-going life, perhaps never in the whole of it giving the slightest just grounds for enmity on the part of anybody; and he died as he lived, peacefully, in the fullest respect of all who knew him.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Benton Brining, and by three grand-daughters, Misses Mary, Pauline and Clara Brining. Also by a half-brother, Augustus McKellip, of Baltimore, and a half-sister, Miss Maggie McKellip, of Washington. The late Col. Wm. A. McKellip, of Westminster, was also a half-brother minster, was also a half-brother. Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon, at his home, by Peas, Corn and Tomatoes.

Easton, Md., March 11 .- Farmers very quickly after coming from the are to get an increase over last year's prices for peas, corn and tomatoes and have 30 more to plant when we according to a representative of the can get the trees. Had difficulty in canning interests. Some time ago the canners met and discussed the prices to be paid this season. Contracts are being drawn up for peas-in fact, most of the canners have already contracted for pea acreage, and an advance of $10 a ton over last year's prices has resulted in increased acreage.

Plowing is now under way, and but for the recent snow and rain the crop would have been planted. Large fields are now partly ready for the seed.

Tomatoes will bring a greater advance in price than the other canning crops. While $10 a ton was the average last season, the canners are now ready to sign contracts at $15 a ton, Sugar corn brought $10 a ton last year, and this season the canners agree to offer $11. Farmers are not exactly satisfied with the corn price, and hope the packers will see their way clear to advance this by the time the contracts are offered. A prominent packer stated today that the great majority of the packing houses had studied the situation and believe the market will warrant these increases for the coming season .-Balt. Sun.

an Automobile Crash on Wednesday Night.

Miss Bessie Peach and Mr. Bertram Celles, both of Baltimore, were killed in an automobile accident near Middletown, Frederick county, Wednesday night. The accident occurred at the bridge, near Middletown, over Catoctin creek, that crosses the stream with the shortest possible span, making a decided curve in the road. The car was driven by Ernest Hammerstein, a jewelry salesman, of Baltimore, who testified that he was on his way to Hagerstown with a hurry order for valuable jewelry, and not wanting to make the trip alone, invit-ed Miss Peach and Mr. Calles, and Miss Anna Peach, a sister of one of the victims, to go along for company. Mr. Hammerstein was acquitted, at the hearing, of the charge of reckless driving, his claim being that the accident, in which the machine crashed against the side of the bridge, was caused by failure of the brakes to hold Unable to stop the car, he said, he attempted to steer through the narrow passage but smashed head-on into the planking. The machine then careened, throwing Calles and Miss Elizabeth Peach to the other side of the bridge.

The road at that point is to be straightened to cross a new reinforced concrete span, John N. Mackall, chairman of the State Roads Commission, said on Thursday. Mr. Mackall declared the new road and bridge should be completed by mid-summer. The funds to build it were authorized by the last Legislature, but the money from the sale of bonds will not be available until later in the spring.

E. Austin Baughman, State Automobile Commissioner, said the abandonment and demolition of the old bridge would be an excellent move because it has been one of the worst danger spots on Maryland roads, though he added: "It was not a menace to careful automobile drivers because there were ample warnings along the roads; it could only have been a menace to speeders.'

STANDARDIZED FERTILIZERS. Only High-grade Fertilizers are Recommended for Maryland.

College Park, March 12-Some of the perplexities and complications of modern agriculture have been smoothed out by the recent agreement be-tween representatives of the various agricultural colleges in the middle Atlantic States to recommend not more than nineteen fertilizers to meet the soil and crop conditions in Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York and

West Virginia. The nineteen fertilizers upon which the representatives agreed will meet the same requirements for which 192 different varieties of fertilizer were hitherto sold, it is said. The nineteen selections have the approval of the leading fertilizer manufacturers in the section who will push their sale as far as trade conditions will permit. For Maryland, the nineteen different analyses have been curtailed to a list of twelve, which will be known as the "Maryland Twelve", according to an announcement today by Dr. H. J. Patterson, director of the University of Maryland Experiment Station. All of the twelve come within the class of what are known as high analysis fertilizers and contain comparatively high percentages of the three important plant foods, nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. The high analysis fertilizers are recommended as being efficient and less expensive in the long run than the lower grades, but Dr. Patterson points out that the colleges and experiment stations will continue to encourage the home mixing of fertilizer whenever such procedure would seem to be in the interest of economy.

The "Maryland Twelve," designated by the percentage of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash in each mixture, are as follows: 7-6-5; 6-8-4; 5-8-5; 4-8-4; 3-10-6; 3-8-8; 2-12-4; 2-12-2; 9-12-0; 0-12-6; 10-5-0; 0-10-4.

The Board of Directors of the Farm Bureau met in the County Agents of-fice Saturday. All the officers of the organized locals were present. Plans were made to complete the organization work in the county in April. At this time it is hoped the roads will be in shape and all farmers will have secured their auto license. The organization work will be carried on by O. Z. Remsberg, State Organizer. All farmers are urged to attend the meetings. Committees were appointed on wool marketing, livestock and egg marketing. Adams County Road Work.

The Gettysburg offices of the State Highway Department are already engaged in work preliminary to improvement and reconstruction of certain roads in Adams county when Spring arrives and the frost is out of the ground. This will probably not be before May 1, according to William B. Felming, Highway engineer.

Six miles of the Lincoln Highway, east of town, will in all likelihood comprise the first reconstruction in the county. Stone has already been hauled and distributed ready for construction of an asphalt penetration road in place of the present water. bound macadam.

The black-surfaced roads in the county will receive their annual dressing of oil as soon as the weather is suitable. Roads which are included in this program are the one from here through Biglerville; to Littlestown, and from Littlestown to Hanover; Fairfield to Emmitsburg and from East Berlin to Hanover.—Gettysburg

CHURCHES OPPOSE DRY LAW CHANGES

Statement Issued by the General Council of Churches.

Washington, March 11.—Opposition to any change in the prohibition laws to permit the sale of beer and light wines is expressed in a statement issued recently by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in

The statement, based on action taken at a conference of religious organizations called by the councils commission on temperance, which is headed by former Governor Carl E. Milliken, of Maine, asserts that such liberalization of the statutes would effect a "virtual nullification" of the prohibition amendments. Declaring that "the church has the same moral obligation to finish this task that it had to initiate it," the council adds that "by every moral standard the buyer of illicit liquor is as guilty as "While as for blooded pi the seller."

"After three years," it says, "it is demonstrated that prohibition has produced wide benefits despite difficulties in enforcement and constant misrepresentation.

"We call upon the Christian citizens of the nation to sustain the expressed purpose of the Federal government to enforce the law; to report violations of it to the proper officials as is their duty so declared by the United States Supreme Court; and to support all local, state and federal officers who obey and effectively enforce the law in accordance with their oath of office.

"The churches have a special responsibility to interpret to the people the meaning and demonstrated benefits of prohibition, to set forth the reasons for personal abstinence, and to build on firm foundations respect for all law.

"The education and mobilization of a public conscience favorable to the retention and enforcement of the law are fundamental to its success.

"The churches of America were largely responsible for the creation of the public sentiment which resulted in the adoption of this amendment. The church has a continuing responsibility to create and maintain the necessary public sentiment to enforce the prohibition law."

Among the organizations which signed the statement are Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the National Temperance Council, the Scientific Temperance Federation, the Committee on Public Morals of the as soon as possible to develop methods to handle their respective farm cial Education Department of the American Baptist Publication Socional Resolution Socional Resolution Res ety, the Baptist Brotherhood Federation, and Public Morals, the Service Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the Board on Temperance and Social Welfare of the Disciples of Christ, the Friends' Board on Prohibition of the Liquor Traffic, (Quaker,) the Board of Publication and Sunday School Work of the Reformed Church in the United States, the Temperance Com-mittee of the Methodist Protestant Church, the Permanent Temperance Commission of the United Evangeli-cal Church, the United Society of Christian Endeavor, the United Presbyterian Board of Publication, Anti-Saloon League, and the Salvation Army.

HIGH PRICES FOR CATTLE.

Some Fancy Figures Paid for Extra Fine Stock.

From "The Open Road" magazine we clip the following, which says; "Most persons will understand that some animals should bring higher prices than others do, on account of their pure breeding. But some of them will open their eyes when they read of the instances cited by T. G. Lee, of Armour & Co."

"A Holstein bull, Ragapple the Great by name, was sold in 1919 by Oliver Cabana, Jr. of Elma, New York, to Robert R. Pointer, of De-troit, Michigan, for $125,000. This, so far as we know, is the highest price ever paid in the cattle kingdom. Next is the Hereford bull, Richard Fairfax, bought in 1919 by Ferguson Brothers of Canby, Minnesota, from L. A. Pinard, of Wessington Springs, South Dakota, for $50,000. Richard Fairfax, the Hereford bull, is a Hoosier, bred in Indiana and taken to South Dakota, where as an improver of live stock, he was so successful

"While as for blooded pigs, the record appears to be held by Orion King, a Duroc Jersey boar, sold in 1919 by Jackson & Faust, of Xenia, Ohio, for $32,000 to White's Duroc Farm at Columbia, Mississippi.

"When we get into the field of draught horses," Mr. Lee added, "We run across the $47,500 paid by C. G. Good, of Ogden, Iowa, to William Crownover, of Hudson, Iowa, for the Belgian stallion, Farceur. Carnot, a Percheron stallion, brought $40,000 not long ago, and over in Dunure, Ayrshire, Scotland, two Scotsmen, when dissolving partnership, exchanged money for livestock values to the type of more than $47,000 to the tune of more than $47,000, when they came to consider Baron of Buchleyve, a Clydesdale stallion."

Arbor Day, April 6.

Announcement is made from the Governor's office that he will designate Friday, April the 6, as Arbor Day. This is an annual festival, observed throughout the State of Maryland, particularly in the public schools, a day set aside for the planting of trees and for exercises in recognition of the value of trees and forests to the community and to the nation.

Those who wish special information observance, about Arbor Day and its observance, may secure full particulars from the State Forestry Department, 815 Calvert Building, Baltimore, as to suitable exercises for the occasion, trees adapted for planting, how they should be planted, whert to plant them, and their proper care. The Department does not furnish free trees, but will give the names and addresse of nurseries from which they may be obtained.

Preparations, already under way, indicate that Arbor Day, 1923, will be more largely observed, and more trees planted than in any previous da Maryland history. It is important to make plans well in advance, and every school and civic organization should participate in this coming event.

Our Wooden Fleet Destroyed.

The 226 wooden vessels, built during the war at a cost of $300,000,000, are being torn to pieces and sold as junk. This was the greatest fiasco of the war, and the government will eceive $750,000 for it.

Wooden shipbuilding was practically a lost art along our coasts when the project of the wooden fleet was formulated. One reason the boats cost so much was because they were built by ordinary carpenters who were broken into the boat-construction game for the emergency. The out-standing feature which makes the ships unsatisfactory for ocean freighters is because they were built under extreme pressure by unskilled workmen. The boats are not nearly so seaworthy or satisfactory as their sizes and prices indicate.

Jailed for Violation of "Dry" Laws.

Two well known Baltimore men A. Hagan, executrix of Norman B. were given jail sentences, on Wednesday, on charges connected with violation of the prohibition laws. "Hen" Bletzer, sporting man and hotel owner was sentenced to 10 months in jail and $250.00 fine, by Judge Rose following his conviction on Tuesday, on the charge of connection with the robbery of Gwynnbrook distillery, last Spring, when a man was killed. "Joe" Kelly, a saloonkeeper, said to be influential in politics, was sentenced by Judge Soper to nine months in jail, on the charge of interference with officers of the law in their efforts to seize illicit liquors. The Judge, in passing sentence, rather pointedly charged Kelly with having "influenence" over certain members of the police force.

These sentences are said to have caused "a stir of consternation among many bootleggers in the corridors" in the postoffice building.

"Office" and "Dirt" Farmers.

There is considerable sneering, in some quarters, against the "office," or "book," farmer, making him show very unfavorably alongside the "dirt" farmer-the one who does the plowing, sowing and reaping. The truth of the comparison is, that farming is a business—a big, important and Congress fifty years ago there have complicated business—and the best been many changes, and great events farmer needs to be both an "office and have taken their places in the history book" farmer, as well as a "dirt" of our country and of the world. More than 100,000 persons have been separated from the Government payrolls in the two years ending March 4, 1923. The exact figures of the net decrease as given out by the White House are 102,101. WHEAT DREAD LONG IN USE

According to Tradition, the Chinese Knew of It Some Two Thousand Years Before Christ.

Henry Buckle, the great English historian, was one of the first to point out the importance of food as a vital factor in t'e progress of a nation. Bread has done more than all other foods combined in changing man from a savage to a civilized being. The nooples of the earth may be roughly divided into two major classes in respect to the food they eat-the rice eaters and the bread eaters. Such nations as Japan, formerly rice eaters, are becoming more and more like the western nations in the consumption of bread.

Of course it is not known when the Chinese how to make bread from wheat more than 2,000 years B. C. Even in the time of the patriarchs both leaven and unleaven bread were staple foods among the Hebrews. Fermented bread was known at an early date among the Egyptians. The secret became known to the Greeks. who communicated it to the Romans. With the conquering legions of Rome the invention spread throughout Smoking in the Far East.

Chinese gentlemen spend much of Chinese has a body servant always at his side to fill his pipe, to light it for him and to put it in his mouth. Smoking one of the strange little Chinese pipes is quite a bother. They are so small that they only hold enough tobacco for a few puffs. Then the ashes have to be knocked out of the pipe and it is immediately refilled.

Nothing is of more importance to the Mongolian woman than her pipe. She may be seen interrupting any household task or pulling up a galloping pony to take a puff at her pipe. These devotees of the pipe are looked upon as very inferior to the men of their tribe, and are shown little consideration by the husbands for whom they slave. As the men do not like manual labor, the women are compelled to do practically all of the heavy work of the fields as well as

First to Explore Grand Canyon.

The first complete exploration of by an expedition in charge of Maj. J. W. Powell, noted geologist. He had boats especially built for the trip. It was an undertaking of extreme danger, forming, as P. S. Dellenbaugh says in his interesting "Romance of the Colorado River." "one of the distinguished feats of history," for not one of the pioneering party could have any conception of what the physical obstacles were before them when the boats set out at the canyon's head into the unknown.

Powell was a Civil war veteran, and had but one hand. He made a second and more leisurely trip in 1871-72.

reculiar Condoience. One of the most extraordinary attempts at condolence ever made is chronicled by Sir David Hunter Blair in his "New Medley of Memories." A certain don in a letter to the bereaved father of a son drowned in Sandford lasher wrote: "As your son had unfortunately failed to satisfy the examiners in Responsions, he would have had to go down in any case.'

WIFE ALWAYS AT HIS SIDE

Garibaldi's Life Companion as Brave in Battle as Was the Military Hero of Italy.

"Among the many sufferings of my stormy life," says Giuseppe Garibaldi, the military hero of modern Italy, in his "Recollections," "I have not been without happy moments, and among them I count that in which, at the head of the few men remaining to me after numerous conflicts, who had gained the character of bravery, I first mounted and began my march, with my wife at my side, in a career that always had attractions for me, even greater than that of the sea. It seemed to me of little importance that my entire property was that which I carried, and that I was in the service of a poor republic, unable to pay anybody. I had a saber and a carbine, relied more on the wheel horse that which I carried on the front of my wore heavy breeching and held back saddle. My wife was my treasure, on the down grade as well as pulled and no less fervent in the cause of the people than I; and she looked upon battles as an amusement, and the inconveniences of a life in the field as a pastime. Then, whatever might happen, I was looked upon with smiles, and the more wild the extensive desert plains appeared, the more beautiful and delightful they seemed to our eyes."

While he was an exile from nis native country in 1849, Garibaldi came to the United States, and in 1850 worked in a candle factory on Staten island. He died in June, 1882.

AFRICAN NATIVES CRAVE SALT

To Them It Is the Greatest of Delicacies, and They Will Do Much for It.

Great is the power of "munu" among the inhabitants of Central Africa. It is the passport, the bakshish, the open sesame, the magic word, that goes straight to the heart of the native. When nothing else will move him the promise of a little "munu" will bring him on the run. For munu or salt is scarce and very hard to get.

Although his taste for candy seems to be acquired, the craving for salt is inborn and never satisfied. Dr. George Burbank, in charge of a missionary expedition to the Pygmies wrote: "When our mission boys found the Pygmies and told them we were bringing 'munu' they awaited our arrival with eagerness. Those pygmies devoured that salt as if it were sugar. When satisfied, they produced some enormous green bananas, 15 inche in length, and roasted them over a tiny fire. There was no art in such primitive cookery. The fruit was simply placed on the smoldering coals and, when heated through, was peeled and eaten."

Definite Idea About Umbrella. Wijjit was talking with his wife about presents and he suggested that he might get her a nice umbrella. That is a sore point with Mrs. Wijjit, because a fine umbrella given her sometime ago mysteriously disappeared. It was not missed for some months because Mrs. Wijjit herself would not use it and when it was finally missed she declared she had lent it to a friend who called and encountered a shower. "Perhaps you would not lose one now," suggested Wijjit mildly.

"I did not lose the other," said his wife. "I lent it to Mrs. Fantod or to Mrs. Cadory. They both denied it, but I am sure one of them carried it off. It was probably Mrs. Fantod for she is a rattle brain who never remembers anything."

"Why are you so certain it was one of them?" asked Wijjit.

"Because they are the only two of my friends in whom I have enough confidence to lend a good umbrella,' said Mrs. Wijjit with conviction .-New York Sun.

Insuring Chinese Lives. Chinese life insurance has made little progress in years gone by, but is showing marked improvement today, according to Japanese insurance companies. Reasons given by these companies for failure to do business with the Chinese are: Lack of birth and death registration in that country, the higher death rate of Chinese than of Japanese, different Chinese monetary standards.

All these differences may be adjusted, for there is an earnest desire to get Chinese business and great improvements in Chinese life insurance business may be expected.

Determines Chemical Purity. The Zeiss optical works at Jena have put out a rather curious form of apparatus, says the Washington Star. A so-called iron arc-that is, an electric arc with its carbons impregnated with salts of iron, giving out a light rich in ultra-violet rays-is used with screens, so as to cut off all the heating and luminous rays, leaving none but ultra-violet invisible radiations. In these pure ultra-violet radiations nearly all substances fluoresce, and the light they give out is greatly affected by the degree of their purity, thus providing means of examining the chemical purity of substances.

Expression Is Dean Swift's. In Swift's "Gulliver's Travels" (Voyage to Brobdingnag) is this sentence: "And Ife gave for his opinion that whoever could make two ears of corn or two blades of grass grow upon a spot of ground where only one grew before would deserve better of mankind and do more essential service to his country than the whole race of politicians put together."

The Pneumonia Month.

March is a typical pneumonia month and usually gives a high rate of mortality for the disease. After a long and hard winter, the system loses much of its resistance and people grow careless. When every cold, no mathow slight, is given prompt and intelligent attention, there is much less danger of pneumonia. It should be borne in mind that pneumonia is a germ diesase and breeds in the throat. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an expectorant and cleans out the germ ladened mucus and not only cures a cold but prevents its resulting in pneumonia. It is pleasant to take. Children take it willingly. -Advertisement

Corn in Maryland.

Corn was the earliest cultivated crop on the American farm. The Indians were producing it and preparing various foods from it when the irst colonists settled on the Atlantic Seaboard.

The area of corn has steadily inreased in the United States from 1866 to the present time, being about three times as large now as at the beginning of this period.

Corn is the most important single crop grown in both Maryland and Delaware. And production depends, of course both upon the acre yield and upon the area planted. But the fluctuations in production from year to year are almost solely due to variations in yield. The tendency at the present time is to increase the average yield rather than the acreage.

Relatively very low yields occur from time to time. In Maryland the lowest yield was 20.2 bushels in 1869, and 14.4 bushels in Delaware in 1881. In the entire period for which statistics of average annual rights. tics of average annual yields are available—56 years, Maryland's highest yield was 41 bushels in 1919 and Delaware's 37.5 in 1920. But in Maryland it is not at all uncommon for ndividual farms on good soil and operated according to modern methods to report from 75 to 100 bushels to the acre. In 1922 four counties of Maryland out of a total of 23 in that State, Carroll, Frederick, Harford and Howard—averaged 50 bushels and unwards to the acre.

and upwards to the acre. Average annual yields in Maryland are somewhat better than in Delaware. During the past 20 years the average in the former State has been 35.8 bushels against 31.8 in the latter. Between 1870 and 1895 only once in Maryland did the average annual vield go above 30 bushels and most of that period it was below 25; while in Delaware only once did the yield go above 30 bushels and most of the time it was nearer 20. The trend of the acre yields in both States since 1910 has been upwards, probably due for the most part to better cultural methods and an understanding on the part of the farmers of the importance of selecting good seed.

PISTACHIO NUT IN DEMAND

Article That Has Few Rivals for Flavoring Was Originally a Native of Syria.

The pistachio nut, which gives such a delightful flavor to confectionery and ice cream, grows on a small tree which is a native of Syria, but has been introduced into western Asia, countries of the Mediterranean, California and other southern states, although nuts of the best quality are imported from Syria, Persia and Arabia. The pistachio is oval in shape, with red skin and a greenish kernel, growing in clusters and separating easily in halves. The flavor is delicious and the color makes it very valuable for decorative purposes. It is sometimes salted while in the shell and in some countries it is dipped in sea water in the process of curing. The pistachio nut was known in very early times and it is said was the spices included in the presents which Joseph's brethren took with them from Canaan to Egypt, when Jacob said: "Carry down the man a present, a little balm and a little honey, spices and myrrh, nuts and almonds." When pistachio nuts are used for flavoring ice cream, a very small quantity is used and the color is often deepened by aniline green, which does not improve the flavor.-Cleveland News-Leader.

Chant to the Auto. My auto, 'tis of thee, short cut to poverty-of thee I chant. I blew a pile of dough on you three years ago, now you refuse to go-or won't or can't. Through town and countryside I drove thee full of pride; no charm you lacked. I loved your gaudy hue, your tires so round and new-now I feel mighty blue, the way you act. To thee, old rattlebox, came many bumps and knocks; for thee I grieve. Badly thy top is torn; frayed are thy seats and worn: the croup affects thy horn. I do believe. Thy perfume swells the breeze. while good folks choke and sneeze, as we pass by. I paid for thee a price, 'twould buy a mansion twice; now everyone yells "Ice." I wonder why. Thy motor has the grip; thy spark plug has the pip, and woe is thine. I. too, have suffered chills, fatigue and kindred ills, trying to pay the bills since thou wert mine. Gone is my bank roll now; no more 'twould choke a cow, as once before. Yet if I had the yen, so help me John-amen! I'd buy a car again and spend some more .-Bay City Motorist.

Had Horror of Red Hair. Red-haired boys and girls are, says Prof. Karl Pearson, the most conscientious, athletic and popular. Yet Madame De Boigne tells in her Memoirs how her friend, the duchess of Chevreuse, "conceived a horror of her children because they were indiscreet enough to have hair of the same fiery, red color as her own. Her chief preoccupation in life was to prevent people from knowing the color of her hair, and she neglected no means of disguising it. As the duchess' hair had grown somewhat during her last illness she ordered it to be cut and thrown into the fire before her eyes, so that no trace of it might survive her. Two hours after this was done the duchess died."

"Quaker Guns."

Dummy cannon are called "Quaker guns," in reference to the doctrines of nonresistance held by Quakers. The Confederate general, Joseph E. Johnston, speaking of his position at Manassas in early 1862, said: "As we had not artillery enough against their works and for the army fighting elsewhere at the same time, rough wooden imitations of guns were made, and kept near the embrasures, in readiness for exhibition in them. To conceal the absence of carriages, the embrasures were covered with sheds made of bushes. These were the 'quaker guns' afterwards noticed in northern papers.

MAKING STUDY OF CHIMNEYS

Johns Hopkins University Professor Has Planned Careful Experiments Concerning Their Behavior.

Why are factory chimneys built the way they are? The answer to this question, according to Prof. A. G. Christie, of the department of mechanical engineering at Johns Hopkins university, is that the first smoke-stacks happened to be built "that way," and everybody else has followed the example. Little is really known, says Professor Christie, of the internal action of the gases in a chimney, and he is accordingly undertaking some investigations into the matter. He has constructed on the grounds of the university a chimney with two platforms, one 25 feet from the ground and the other 25 feet higher, both of them reached by an iron ladder. At each platform the masons have left openings, which will ordinarily be plugged up, but will be cleared whenever the observers are at work. Through each aperture it will be possibe for the experimenter to project instruments for the study of the gas flow. Careful records will be kept as material for a more precise knowledge of the factors on which an effective draught de-

An explanation will thus be found. it is hoped, of the difference in the behavior of chimneys-why, that is to say, one smoke-stack will draw like a vacuum cleaner, while another will choke like a "flivver" which has lost a cylinder or two.

WILTED BEFORE THE THREAT

Student Saw Awful Possibility in Two Words Addressed to Him by Prefect of Study.

Fifty-five years ago a certain Indianapolis man was a student or, as he always insists, a pupil, at Notre Dame university. At that time he was only a youngster and, he admits, "cut up a little."

One fatal day, he took with him to the study hall a copy of "Billy Bowlegs," which he hid in his geography and began to read avidly. In fact, he became so interested that he failed to hear the prefect of study when the latter called on him for a recitation. Finally the prefect called him to the desk in the front of the room. There was no opportunity to get rid of the book, so up to the desk he walked, book in hand.

The prefect unostentatiously took geography and told him to return to his seat.

Several days later, when the Indianto him just two words.

"Now, Billy."

Instantly, the pupil became very quiet and always in the future was a | 15 cents. model student, while in that class.

For he feared the prefect would disclose the dreadful truth and he would go through school, branded with the name, "Billy Bowlegs."—Indianapolis

Captain Also Had Grievance.

One of the petty grievances of private soldiers and non-commissioned officers at Camp Taylor during the late war was the ban on rolled leggings. But they were frequently smuggled in and worn on trips home. On such an occasion a private from Camp Taylor had reached Vincennes. Ind., in the full glory of borrowed and illegitimate leggings. However, his pride of possession was short-lived, for he soon saw a captain whom he had known slightly in civilian life. The captain, after looking at him intently for a while, strode up to him and our private had uncomfortable visions of a panorama from the guardhouse to the firing squad. "Do they allow you to wear rolled leggings at Camp Taylor?" the captain demanded with a flashing eye. "No, sir," the private stuttered. "Humph," said the officer indignantly, "they don't at Camp Grant, either, and I think it's a gosh awful shame!"

Panel's Interesting History.

A gruesome story attaches to a Flemish glass panel of the Fourteenth century, which was on exhibition in London, with other stained glass work centuries old. On the panel is represented the suicide of Judas Iscariot, with vividly circumstantial and morbid details. In old books of the period reference is made to a glass painter, known as Charles of Ypres, who is known to have executed a great part of the most remarkable work of the time, having hanged himself to a tree. This and other evidence makes it probable that the panel was the actual work of this very man. Another panel represents what is probably the only contemporary portrait on stained glass of Richard III. It recently came to light after being stored away in an Essex mansion for 113 years.

Comparatively New Game.

The history of the game of rackets, the world's championship of which was recently disputed in New York, is a comparatively short one, for it only came into vogue early in the Nineteenth century. Dickens refers to it in his "Pickwick Papers" in connection with Fleet prison, where insolvent debtors enlivened the monotony of their life by playing against a single wall. It was mostly played at the back of taverns.

The name is supposed to have been derived from the Arabic ra'hat, meaning "paim of the hand," but fives is the only near survival of that form of the game.

IMPROVE THE HOME GROUNDS

Attractive Garden Is One of the First Requisites of a Worth While Home.

What is home without children? But one might go further and say: "What is home without a garden and flowers? Prof. William Dallas Campbell echoes this thought in some of his most interesting talks on "Better Homes." A home is rendered more attractive and interesting when each functional furnishing is in the right place, of the right size, shape, scale and color, and consequently because useful and beautiful, appears to have grown or happened there. The trees, shrubs, vines, flowers and other features that adorn the garden, the home's intimate environs, should give the same suggestion. The residence, garage, boundary fences, walls, steps, pergolas and indeed all construction evident, form a skeleton, or it might be more appropriate to say, a figure in the nude, that needs to be clothed with befitting

grace and color in living plant forms that do not hide or smother the architecture, but only serve to reveal and emphasize its charm. Plants add further interest through their change in growth, and their evolutions through the seasons whether it be leaf, fruit and flower that delight, or bare twig, decorative branch and trunk that etch silhouettes against a background of building, water or sky. The house may with propriety express repose, while the plant life signifies animation, joy, movement and color, epitomizing all life in cycles of birth, growth, fruitage and decay.

PAINT AND MORALS RELATED

Undoubted Psychological Effect on the Morals of Community That Keeps "Cleaned Up."

The close relation between paint and morals was emphasized at the thirtyfifth annual convention of the National Paint and Varnish association. That freshly painted houses stimulated their occupants to be better and cleaner citizens was the declaration of W. T. Stott of St. Louis, executive secretary of the finance and audit committee of the association which last year conducted "clean-up" campaigns in 7,000 cities of the United States "The psychological effect of a freshly painted house upon the occupants is the same as that created by wearing a new suit of clothes. Painting homes not alone increases the pride of the occupants but increases the property value as well," he said. "The time will come when unsightly frame dwellings of the type that are so frequent in mose cities now will be a thing of the past. Reports of the beneficial Mt. A piece of small mesh chicken wire about three feet high and ten feet long will do for the cylinder part, reinforced by pieces of heavy wire lashed to the top and bottom and four pieces up and down the sides. Two pieces three feet square will form the top and bottom and may be fastened to heavy wire circles and the bottom fastened to the cylinder all around. The top one, or lid, can be hinged to one side and a piece of loose wire placed on the side to fasten it down when the refuse is being burned.

Community Spirit.

A healthy city-wide optimism removes the mental hazards from business. A keen realization on the part of business men that real-estate development must precede city growth; that real-estate investment is safe and profitable; that the surest way to annex the stranger permanently to your population is to sell him a home or an investment in real estate, all help the home. Bankers should co-operate with the business interests, and especially the real-estate men, in diverting all available idle capital into enterprises that would build up and develop the city instead of permitting this money to be loaned to large foreign industries, and thereby be used to add prosperity to some other city at the expense of their own.

Animal Outlaw Finally Shot. For three long years Lobo, giant wolf, fattened on the cattle of the Arizona plains; from one ranch alone, in one year, he seized 50 fine white-faced yearlings. A government hunter, in an automobile, has at last brought Lobo down with a single shot from a rifle with the rear sight missing. The wolf weighed 78 pounds after the skin from shoulders to head was removed, and was the largest ever seen on the range. His disposal means a saving of several thousand dollars in stock annually.-Scientific American.

Is there anyone in this country who does not know the name of Irvin S. Cobb? Or what that name stands for in American literature? Judging from the way his books are taken from the public libraries—and they are too many to be named here—I should say emphatically not. He has been and done many things—newspaper man, war correspondent, author, playwright, etc., etc.; there isn't space enough to chronicle all the ground he has covered, but from the time he first began writing he has been claimed by his fellow countrymen in a way that seems to make him belong to his admirers individually. The author who touches us humorously almost never fails to do just that. But it is his serious side, that side that gave us "The Belled Buzzard" series and "The Escape of Mr. Trimm," that has added to his great quota of our affections.

In "The Second Coming of Mrs. Bain's First Husband," written for the Star Author Series of Matri-monial Adventures, we have a story of marriage of striking originality. It takes up an old point—the nagging wife-in an entirely new fash-

MARY STEWART CUTTING, JR.

If only Mrs. Thomas Bain had been content to compare Mr. Thomas Bain with men about him, he, for counterarguments, would not have been put at a serious disadvantage. Out of her ammunition locker he might have borrowed shells to fire in his own defense. Did she, for instance, cite the polished beauty of Mr. So-and-So's drawing-room behavior, speaking with that subtle inflection which as good as said that his own society manners left much to be desired, Mr. Bain's rebuttal would have been prompt and ready. He would have spoken right up to point out the fact that So-and-So notoriously neglected his family or that he drank entirely too much for his own good, or that he habitually failed to pay his just debts. Mr. Bain was no scandal-monger, understand. Still a man must fight back with such weapons as he may com-

But Mrs. Bain's method of attack was entirely too subtle for him; it left him practically weaponless. Out in the world he amply was competent to fend for himself. Beneath the domestic roof-tree, where his wife sat in judgant on him his wave his em comings or his larger faults, he completely was at a loss for proper rebuttal. It gave him such a helpless feeling! It would have given any normal man a helpless feeling. And Mr. Bain was in all essential regards a normal man—a good citizen, a good provider and, as husbands go, an average fair

I would do Mrs. Bain no injustice.

She was a normal woman, too. But it is only natural that when destiny has fashioned an advantage to fit our hands that we should employ it. Her advantage was a very great one. Her criticisms of Mr. Bain took the form of measuring him off against the conceived picture of her first husband.

And her first husband was dead. Now, in common decency, an honorable man-and Mr. Bain was an honorable man-may not speak ill of the dead. What is more, had he, under stress of provocation, been minded to retort that after all Mrs. Bain's first husband was not exactly perfection either, he could have produced no proof to support the assertion. For he had never seen his predecessor. He knew nobody who had known the deceased. The present Mrs. Bain had been for three years a widow when first he set eyes on her. She had lately returned then from Honolulu; it was in Honolulu that she had been bereft, as the saying is, by the hand of death. And Honolulu is a long distance from Brockway, Mass., where Tom Bain's people, a stay-athome stock, had lived these five generations past.

So, on those frequently recurring occasions when Mrs. Bain, with a saddened, almost a wistful, air was moved to remind herself of her first husband's marvelous qualities-temperament, disposition, tact, amiability or what notthere was for her second husband nothing to do but to suffer on in an impotent silence. It is not well that anyone on this earth-and more especially a husband-should be required to suffer discomforts in silence. Suffering calls for vocal expression.

Otherwise, as human beings go, Mr. and Mrs. Bain were well suited one for the other. It was that dead first husband of hers, who, invoked by her, kepr rising up to mar the reasonable happiness which might have been theirs. The thing was getting on his nerves. Indeed, at the time this briefened narrawhere frequently ' , wished there had never been a first busband. There were even times when he almost permitted himself the wish that tive begins, it already had got upon his nerves. He had come to the point there never had been such things as second husbands, either.

With the acute vividness of a warscarred veteran remembering the first time he was shot, he could reconstruct the occasion when Mrs. Bain's former husband first came into his life. They had been married just two months then. The honeymoon was in its last quarter. If the couple were ever to go along together in harmony the time had now come when mutual understanding must succeed the period of adjustment and balance. She had the benefit of experience on her side; for she had been through the process once before. Tom Bain might be a green hand at this business of being married, but, subconsciously, he was beginning to adjust himself in his ordained and proper place in the matrimonial scheme as it related to him and this very charming lady. In other words, he had reached the place where he was slipping out of the bridegroom pose into the less studied and more matter-offact status of a husband. He was ready to quit acting a part and be his own self again always, though with regard for the limitations and restrictions imposed by the new estate upon which he had entered.

The campaign against him—we may as well call it a campaign-opened on the evening following their return from the trip to White Sulphur. That first day at his desk had been a hard one; so much which seemed to require his personal attention had accumulated while he was away. He left the office pretty well tired out. On his way home he built up a pleasant vision of a nice quiet little dinner and then a peaceful hour or so in the living room in slippers and an old smoking jacket.

Mrs. Bain met him at the door with a greeting that put him in thorough good humor. This, he decided, was the best of all possible worlds to live in and his, undoubtedly, was the best of all possible ways of living.

"You're late, dearest," she said. "You've just time to run upstairs and slip on your evening clothes. I've laid them out for you."

"Why, there's nobody coming in for dinner, is there?" he asked.

She drew away from him slightly. "No, there's no one coming," she said.

"What difference does that make?" "Well," he said, "I'm rather fggged out, and I sort of thought that, seeing there'd be only the two of us, I'd come to the table just as I am."

"Very well, dear," she said, "suit

But he took note that she had shortened the superlative "dearest" to "dear." Also she slipped herself out of the circlet of his encircling arm. Suddenly there was a suggestion-a bare trace-of an autumnal chill in the

But, as a newly married man, how could he suit himself? He clad himself in the starchy shirt, the high, tight collar that pinched his throat, the pinchy patent leathers, and all the rest of the funeral regalia in which civilized man encases himself on any supposedly festal occasion. She gave him an approving look when, ten minutes later, he presented himself before her.

"Tom," she said as they sat down, "I think you always should dress for dinner. Arthur always said that a gentleman should dress for dinner."

He stared at her, puzzled "Arthur?" he echoed. 'Who's Ar-"My first husband," she explained. "Arthur looked so well in his evening clothes.'

"Oh!" he said, like that. That was all he said for a minute or so. He was thinking.

She was thinking, too, Practically all women are popularly supposed to have intuition, and certainly this particular woman had her share of it. Probably it was in that very moment of reflection that the lady decided on a future plan of action,

At any rate, this was the beginning. Eventually, Mr. Bain awoke to a realization that he was the victim of a gentle tyranny-that he had fallen captive to a combination enemy made up of an affectionate if somewhat masterful lady and the memory of a dead and gone personality. Mrs. Bain's first husband was persistently dogging Mrs. Bain's second husband. Daily, after one fashion or another, the latter was reminded of the late Arthur. Arthur, it seemed, had never lost his temper. What made the comparison hurt the more was the indubitable fact that Mr. Bain occasionally did lose his. Arthur had never raised his voice above the low-pitched key of innate refinementno matter how irritated he might be. Arthur had been so thy; never left his clothes lying about where he dropped them. Arthur had not given her a cross word in all the seven years of their life together. Arthur invariably had been so considerate of her feelings. It was Arthur this and it was Arthur that. She realized her power and she used it. Mrs. Bain's first husband was ever, so to speak, at the elbow of Mrs. Bain's second husband, by proxy chiding him, admonishing him, correcting him, scolding him, even.

And for all that he naturally was a sunny-natured and companionable person, Mrs. Bain's second husband was, at the end of the first year of his married life, in a fair way to become a most unhappy person. Their matrimonial craft was sliding down the rapids toward a thundering Niagara; and she didn't realize it and he, thoroughly under the dominion of forces with which he found himself powerless to cope, only dimly and dully appreciated the peril. He wanted above all things to have and to hold his wife until death did them part. But always there was Arthur tagging along, making a crowd of three of what otherwise might have been a congenial company of two. But, as some one has most aptly said, it's always darkest just before the dawn. in this instance, though, dephasis of a bolt from the blue. There had been an evening of bridge with the Tatums and Bain, who played well, had It is barely possible that he had betrayed a passing emotion of testiness once or twice. At midnight, as they were entering their home, Mrs. Bain been made on the way home in the cab.

"My dear," she was saying, "I really thinking, no amount of exasperation could have justified you in showing your feelings as you did show them at least twice at that card table. Now, Arthur would never-'

At this instant Mr. Bain's finger found the push-button just inside the lights flashed on. What next ensuedthe vocal part of it, I mean-might have suggested to an eavesdropper, had there been one, that the vowel sounds in their proper order were beunder strong excitement.

"Eh?" That was his astounded ejacu-

"I-I-" Mr. Bain again. "Oh!" Mrs. Bain's turn.

"You!" Her startled gasp of recogni-"Yes, Evelyn, that's who it is."

This, in matter-of-fact tones, was a third voice speaking.

After this for a moment the spell of Mrs. Bain silent.

Standing in the middle of the floor, facing them, was a shadow. I use the word advisedly. With equal propriety I might write down "apparition" or "wraith" or "shape" or "spirit" to describe that which confronted them. 1 prefer "shadow."

It had the outline, somewhat wavery and uncertain, of a man. It had the voice of a man-a voice calm, assured, almost casual. It had the garb of a man, or at least it had the nebulous faint suggestion of garbing. But it had no substance to it, none whatsoever. It had no definable color, either. It had rather the aspect of a figure of man done in lines of very thin smoke. You could look right through it and distinguish, as through a patch of haze, the pattern of the wall-paper behind it. And now, as it spoke again, you could, in some indefinable sort of way, see its voice starting from down in its chest and traveling on up and up and so out of its lips. It was no more than a patch of fog, modeled by some unearthly magic into vaporous semblance of a human form. It was inconceivable, impossible, an incredible figment of the imagination, and yet

Its second speech was addressed to Mr. Bain, who had frozen where he was, his finger still touching the pushbutton, his eyes enlarged to twice their size and his lower jaw sagged. "You are astonished? Permit me to introduce myself. I am Arthur-Mrs. Bain's first husband. I'am glad to meet

Mr. Bain, under this shock, came to of bottled-in restraint fell from him

"Are you?" he answered. "Well, I'm d-d if I'm glad to meet you." "I understand." The voice was gentle, almost compassionate. "You will be glad later on, I think-very glad. Shall we sit down all of us?"

The Thing took a chair. And the back of the chair cloudily revealed itself as a sub-motif for the half-materialized torso of its occupant. Mechanically, moving jerkily, Mr. Bain followed suit; he likewise took a chair. Mrs. Bain, uttering choked whimpering sounds down in her throat, already had fallen upon a couch and was huddled there. It was just as well the couch had been handily near by, for her legs would no longer support her. Her first husband—we may as well call him that-turned to her. "Control yourself, Evelyn," he bade her. "There is no occasion for any excitement. Besides, those curious sounds which you are now emitting annoy me. I haven't long to stay and I have much to say."

He cleared his throat—the process might be followed with the eye as well as by ear-and proceeded.

"I have been endeavoring for months past to bring about this meeting. In fact, ever since shortly after your second marriage to this gentleman, I have striven to return to earth for the one purpose which brings me tonight. But it was difficult-very difficult." He sighed a visible sigh. "It is not permitted that I should explain the nature of the obstacles. I merely state that they were very great. As you will notice, I am not able even yet to attain the seeming solidity-weight and specific density-which I craved to take on. So I just came along in the somewhat sketchy and incomplete guise in which you now see me.

"My reason for coming is simple.] desire to see justice done. Where I was, I could not rest in peace knowing that you, Evelyn, were lying so outrageously and, what was worse, making me an unwitting accomplice, as it were, to your lying campaign.

"Evelyn, you have been a foolish, wicked woman. You have done this gentleman here"-including Mr. Bain, with a wave of a spectral arm-"a cruel wrong. But what, from my point of view is even worse, you have done me a grave wrong as well. I may be only a memory-I may say that, precisely, is what I am-but even a memory has its feelings, its sense of responsibility, its obligations to itself.

We fell out and we fell back together again. a terrific fascination held both Mr. and | There were times when we were like a pair of cooing doves and again there were times when the proverbial monkey and parrot had little if anything on us. In short, and in fine, sir, we behaved just as the average reasonably well-mated married couples do behave. And for my own sake, and incidentally for yours, sir, I would not have you believe differently.

"That, I believe, is practically all I had to say to you. Having said it, I wish to add a final word to our wife, here. Evelyn, speaking with such authority as is befitting a first husband, I wish to state that, so far as my observations from another sphere have gone, your present husband is a firstrate fellow. I like to think of him as my successor. And I intend to see that he has a fair deal from you. I trust this visit from me has been a lesson to you. Hereafter, in your dealings with him you will please be so good as to stand on your own merits. You will kindly refrain from dragging me into your arguments as an advocate on your side. My stock of patience is no greater than it was before I be came a memory—remember that. sincerely trust it will not be necessary for me to admonish you personally a second time. Because I warn you here and now that next time I shall return under circumstances that will be most embarrassing to you. Next time there will be no privacy about my appear ance; I shall come to you in public. You'll be a talked-about woman, Evelyn. There'll be pieces about you in the paper and spiritualists and trance mediums and delvers into the occulta meddlesome, noisy lot, too, I may add vill make your life a burden for you. So have a care, Eevlyn!

"Sir, to you I extend my best wishes, I'm sorry we didn't meet before. But, some of these days we'll make up for lost time-when you join me on the plane where I am at present residing. Well, I guess that will be about all. Oh, if you don't mind, I'll just dissipate into air and float up the chimney-it's more convenient." Out of a nothingness near the fireplace came a voice, growing thinner and fainter:

"Good-by, Bain, old chap. Good-by, Evelyn-and don't forget." It was at this juncture that Mrs. Bain went off into a swoon. It also should be noted that, even as he sprang to her side to revive her, Mr. Bain wore on his face a look of husbandly solicitude and concern, but his feet twittered a dance measure.

Personally, I do not believe in ghosts. I assume, readers, that you do not be lieve in ghosts, either. But Mrs. Bain does, and as for Mr. Bain, he does, too, firmly-and, as a happily married man, he is every day renewing and strengthening his belief in them.

"Retirement."

A tired feeling has evidently turned the thoughts of several of our readers toward pensions and retirement. They will feel better when they have had a holiday! Until then, we venture to remind them of the dire effects that frequently result from giving up work.

Work is the most deep-rooted of habits-with those who have been engaged in it till past middle age. Suddenly to renounce it isn't safe. We can recall edifying-if unverifiedtales about those rich men who retired and died at once; or else came back and asked to be made office boys, in order that they might be saved from boredom.

You don't believe these stories? Then you reject our proffered consolation. You will have to fall back on the far hope of an old-age pension, perhaps, big enough in these days-to nourish an undersized sparrow.-London Mirror.

In a system such as ours where the service is largely a personal service, an attempt to keep to the lowest possible point the wages paid the employees who furnish this service may be false economy, because to give good service there must be high morale, loyalty and enthusiasm.

During the period following the World War, it was this Company's policy to advance wages only to such levels as we expected to be able to maintain. This policy has been amply justified by the results. We have now a more permanent force working more efficiently than ever before, which has resulted in substantial economies for the benefit of our patrons.

In 1918, the Company had one employee for every 38 telephones; now we have one employee for every 46 telephones. While there has been a 23% increase in the number of telephones, there has been a slight decrease in the number of employees. Thus, with a smaller number of employees than in 1918, we are furnishing service to a greatly increased number of patrons.

This increase in the efficiency of our employees has also resulted in a greatly improved service to the public, and our records show that at no time in the history of the Company has the service we are furnishing been better than

LESSON TEXT-Luke 23:33-36. GOLDEN TEXT—He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon Him, and with His stripes we are healed.—Isaiah 53:5. REFERENCE MATERIAL—Psa. 22:1-21; I Cor. 1:23, 24; Gal. 6:14. PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus on the Cross. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus on the Cross. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC —What Our Salvation Costs.

-What Our Salvation Costs, YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC -The Meaning of Christ's Death.

We now face the greatest tragedy of all time. No record in the annals of history approaches it. It is the very climax of all history. Though unique in its blackness, from it flows streams of liberty and life for all the world. Let every teacher have the personal experience of Christ's death for him, and then get his pupils to see that Christ's death was instead of their own death.

1. The Place of Crucifixion (v. 33). They led Him away to Calvary, a hill north of Jerusalem resembling a skull. Calvary is the Latin word and Golgotha is the Hebrew. This is a significant name for the place where man's redemption was accomplished. The skull is an apt picture of man's condition as the result of sin-life and intelligence are gone, leaving only the dark empty cavern which once contained them. Jesus was not crucifled in the city for He was to suffer without the gate (Heb. 13:12).

II. His Companions on the Cross (v. 33).

Two malefactors were crucified with Him. Their names are not given. This is a fulfillment of the Scriptures. "He was numbered with the transgressors," (Isaiah 53:12).

III. His Forgiving Love (v. 34). He cried, "Father, forgive them." He doubtless had in mind not only the soldiers who acted for the government, but the Jews who in their blindness were ignorant of the enormity of their crime. He had no hatred in His heart. He yearned for their salvation.

IV. The World Revealed (vv. 34-43). Jesus Christ on the cross is the supreme touchstone laying bare the heart of the world. Take a cross section of the world at any time since Christ was crucified and representatives of their classes were found around Jesus on the cross. The cross is the judgment of this world (John 12:31).

1. The Covetous 'v. 34). They gambled for His seamless robe right under the cross where He was dying. This represents those whose primary interest in Christ is a means to get

2. The Indifferent (v. 35). The people stood beholding. The great the world gaze up on the crucified Christ with stolid indifference.

3. The Scoffers (vv. 35-39). (1) The rulers reviled Him for His claim to being a Savior. They wanted a Savior, but not a crucified Savior, Many today are religious, but have only contempt for a salvation which centers in a blood atonement. (2) The soldiers reviled Him for claiming to be a king. The title, "King of the Jews" had been placed over him in bitter irony, but it was true, for by right of the Davidic covenant He shall be King over Israel (II Samuel 7:8-16). (3) The Impenitent Thief (v. 39). This brutal man joins in reviling the Savior even when he was under condemnation.

4. The Penitent (vv. 40-43). The conscious sinner who discerned the heart of the Savior prayed for mercy. The salvation of this penitent thief is a remarkable picture of the saving power of Christ. The man confessed his sin as against God and cried to Jesus for salvation. He saw that the dying man was the forgiving God. The fact that he acknowledged his sin as against God showed that he was penitent. His request for Christ to remember him when He came into His kingdom shows that he recognized that the one who was dying on the cross was making atonement for sin and that he would come to reign as King. His salvation was immediate. Christ said. "Today shalt thou be with me in paradise.

V. The Death of Christ (vv. 40-46). So shocking was the crime that nature threw around the Son of God a shroud to hide Him from the Godless crowd. Darkness was upon the land at noonday. When the price of sin was paid He cried with a loud voice showing that He still had vitalitythat His death was not through exhaustion but by His sovereign will.

March 18 Factors for Making the World Better -How Can We Help? Matthew 15:13-16

In the Sermon on the Mount from which the Scripture verses are chosen, our Lord shows the ideal which His finished work would produce in human experience. The peculiar quality which distinguishes Christians from others is Christ-likeness. Various figures are used to express this quality such as "salt" and "light." Christ himself is the light of the world, and its preserver from moral decay.

The world can become better only as people are saved out of it; only as they are converted to God; only as they receive the new life from God by which they become His spiritual children. This is God's revealed way. To substitute for this an educational program such as many church leaders are doing, is to produce refined pagans rather than regenerated people. A refined paganism can never be the salt of the earth, or the light of the world.

A careful study of "the world" as the Scriptures portray it, would go a long way towards clarifying our vision concerning world betterment and the things associated with the project. One small Bible book, such as 1 John will suffice to instruct any one concerning the mind of the Spirit in regard to "the world." In 2:15-17, we are warned, "Love not the world; neither the things that are in the world." The constituents of its life are, "The lust of the flesh; the lust of the eyes; and the pride of life"; and it is transient for it "passeth away." In 3:2 it is said to have no perception of the true nature and divine glory either of Christ or the Christian. In other words, the world is blind to spiritual values. The spirit of Antichrist is in the world and to it the false prophets and their adherents belong ject to the wicked one (5:19).

Downfall of the Drama.

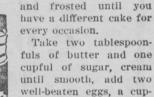

An old actor was wont to claim that he had worked with Booth and Barrett, a distinction that got him much consideration wherever Thespians gathered. When questioned about his parts he would always answer: "I did hoof beats." And then add: "The drama has gone to pot." "Why so?" some of the younger generation would indignantly inquire. "Any one can do the honks, nowadays."

FOUNDATION CAKE RECIPE

The following simple, easy cake mixture may be turned and twisted, filled

Take two tablespoonfuls of butter and one cupful of sugar, cream until smooth, add two well-beaten eggs, a cupful and one-half of flour sifted twice with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-half cupful of milk. Buttermilk may be substituted for sweet milk (making a very tender crumb, always desirable when available. The flavoring is added to suit the taste or the cake to be served. Just flavoring with vanilla and baked in a loaf iced with a good boiled frosting, it is a cake liked by everyone.

Melt a square or two of chocolate. depending upon how well your family likes it, add to the batter, bake in two layers and put together with an orange filling, it is an especially pleasing combination.

Another time add a few drops of lemon extract, a grating of nutmeg, a few raisins and a sprinkling of sugar and cinnamon over the tops of the cakes baked in small muffin pans, Baked in the muffin pans, flavored with vanilla, cut off the tops and scoop out the crumb and fill with sweetened and flavored whipped cream.

For fruit cake dredge the fruit with flour and use brown sugar instead of white with cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves; frost with brown sugar frosting. Bake in three or four thin layers and put together with tart jelly, for a layer jelly cake,

For a dessert bake in layers and flavor with vanilla, put together with a generous quantity of whipped cream sweetened and flavored. Sometimes pineapple finely chopped may be added; another time sliced bananas; or it is sometimes popular served plain, so that there is never any left to spoil. If the family is small one layer may be baked, cut in two and used with whipped cream; the rest of the batter may be baked with nuts and fruit in gem pans.

These are but a beginning of the many good things for which one recipe may be the foundation.

23 Great American Authors Have Written 23 Special Stories on Marriage-To Be Run in This Paper

Matrimonial Adventures!

This is not a series of discussions or essays on the problems of wedlock. It is a series of short stories, from three to six columns in length; each with a plot, incidents and characters, the same as other popular short fiction of the day, and each written in the best style of its author—good, lively, entertaining fiction—dealing with different phases of the marriage relation. Some are gay and some are grave, but each one is a work of art. On account of its romantic and diversified character, we have called the series, "MATRIMONIAL ADVENTURES."

Put A Blanket On Your Seed Bed

YOU CAN KEEP THAT MOISTURE IN IF YOU DO THE JOB RIGHT

Moisture can only help your crop if it gets at the roots where the thirsty plant can drink deep and continuously. If you let the rains evaporate quickly from your fields, you cannot have as good a crop as though you kept the surface pulverized and held the moisture IN

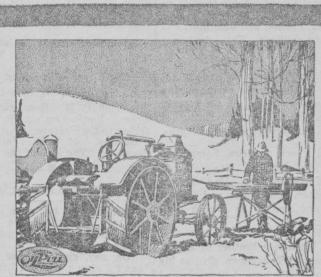

What you need above all is a Moline Disc Harrow, highly regarded by every farmer who knows it for its flexibility, extreme penetration, and durability.

With a Moline Disc Harrow you can not only "put a lid on your field," but you can break up clods to make the soil loose enough to cover the seed, warm the soil by turning some of the top to the bottom, fill up and work down dead furrows and ridges, kill surface weeds, and bring those embedded lower down to the top.

Good discing is as important as good plowing. A Moline Disc Harrow will pay for itself many times over even if only used for "discing in" stalks and stubble before plowing. Discing "once through" to the depth of plowing will kill more weeds than can be killed with a cultivator after they start to grow.

It will pay you to see our Moline Disc, Spike Tooth, and Spring Tooth Harrows. Our SAVINGS OFFER under "The Moline Plan" assures you substantially lower costs as well as better implements.

Great Yearly Egg Loss.

Washington, March 13 .- Department records show an estimate of $100,000,000 lost in 1922 through broken and spoiled eggs. This loss is due almost entirely to careless hand-ling. At least half of the loss was sustained by poultrymen and wholesale and retail dealers through broken eggs; the other half largely through their neglecting to candle eggs before delivering them to consumers. Millions of eggs reached customers either broken or decomposed and usually the retailer had to make good.

Ordinary bags, paper cartons and the like offer no protection to eggs, it is pointed out. They must be packed in wooden carriers to resist the thousand natural shocks that eggs are heir to. The inside of the carrier must be so constructed or padded that the eggs can be placed upright, instead of being laid lengthwise. Four million cases, or 120,000,000 dozen, more eggs were consumed in 1922 than in any previous year. This year, it is said, promises an even greater excess. Figuring an average of one egg per day per person in the United States, which is a conservative estimate, our country ate 36,500,000 eggs last year. The increasing egg consumption is believed to be due much to Government propaganda among farmers, who were given the impetus during the war to produce more eggs, and since then they have not ceased in their efforts, especially as they have had an invariably good market. Efforts are now being made to reduce the enorm ous loss suffered through broken and spoiled eggs. Care in handling eggs is considered the only remedy.
