

COURT ASSAILS DOLLINGS FIRM

Brings Out Fact of Little Chance for the Creditors.

The following article from last Friday's Philadelphia Ledger, will be of interest to the many investors in the Dollings Company;

Judge Dickinson yesterday characterized the bankrupt R. L. Dollings Company, of Pennsylvania, as a "stock promotion scheme, pure and simple," at a hearing in the Federal Court here. A petition of stockholders was before Judge Dickinson that the Dollings receivership be ended so the company could be reorganized.

"The whole scheme on its face didn't demonstrate it could be a success," said the Court. "It surpasses me that so many persons could have been induced to put their money into it."

Walter Biddle Saul, an attorney, took exception to Judge Dickinson's description of the Dollings Company as an enterprise which was doomed to failure from the beginning.

"Its scheme was no different from that used by banks—the lending of money to established corporations on interest," said Mr. Saul.

"As much difference," Judge Dickinson interrupted, "as there is in our conception of heaven and the other place."

"Some of the saddest cases of innocent and deserving persons losing their money in stock investments I ever heard of came out of the organization of this company," the Court remarked at one point in the hearing. "You can't go anywhere in this State that you won't hear stories that would wring tears from a stone."

The colloquy between Judge Dickinson and the attorney continued nearly an hour and a half. Mr. Saul said the Court's assumptions were not warranted by the facts of the case.

"Wasn't this a fraud and a deceit?" Judge Dickinson asked sharply. Mr. Saul replied that no such charges were included in the bill in equity that led to the receivership, the principal complaint having been, he said, that officers of the company were mismanaging it.

Judge Dickinson pressed his view. "Will these stockholders," he asked, "ever get back the money that was paid out of their subscriptions to the Dollings subsidiaries in dividends that were not earned?"

Mr. Saul replied that that was doubtful.

"Well, if that isn't fraud," said the Court, "I'm afraid I don't properly interpret the term."

Judge Dickinson expressed the opinion the stockholders should get out from under, "salvage all they can out of the thing," put the money in their pockets and make better investments in the future than they did in this case." He termed the proposed reorganization "foolish."

The Court pointed out, however, that if the stockholders insisted on reorganization plans and came into court to end the receivership, "of course, we'll grant it, even though we tell them they're doing a foolish thing and are doomed to failure. It's their money and they can do with it what they will."

Mr. Saul said he represented shareholders owning $2,300,000 of Dollings preferred stock, or nearly 80 percent of the total issue of $3,000,000, and it was their desire that Thomas Raeburn White be discharged as the Dollings receiver.

Percival H. Granger, counsel for the receiver, asked that Mr. Saul place on record the names of the stockholders he represented. Mr. Granger said there were about 5200 Dollings stockholders, and he had been informed that several who signed the petition agreeing to end the receivership had since changed their minds.

Judge Dickinson reserved decision in the matter. He also took under advisement Mr. Saul's request to have the Court reject a request by the receiver that he be allowed to make an arrangement with the Phoenix Iron Works at Meadville, Pa., as a means of solving financial difficulties between it and the Dollings Company.

TOTAL VOTES CAST.

Remarkable Variations Recorded by the Official Count.

Figuring up the totals of votes cast for various offices at the recent election, shows queer variations, in order of number of votes cast, as follows:

For Governor	9941
For State's Attorney	9631
For Sheriff	9562
For Treasurer	9562
For Commissioner	9464
For Comptroller	9410
For Chief Judges	9373
For Surveyor	9299
For Senator	9258
For Attorney-General	9249
For Chief Clerk	9210

There is no way of figuring on the number of votes cast for Members of the House, nor for Judges of the Orphans' Court.

It will be seen that the total vote for Governor, not only exceeded that of the vote for other state candidates by approximately 700 votes, but exceeded the total vote for State Senator by 673 votes, while the vote for State's Attorney exceeded the vote of Chief Judge by 258. Other comparisons will show like variations.

It is also unexplainable on the surface why Armstrong (Rep.) for Governor, should carry the county by a majority of 1657, while the vote for County Surveyor—the most unimportant county office voted for, and which should apparently represent the party vote—gave the Democratic candidate a majority of 663.

We hold to the opinion expressed in previous years, when like discrepancies were shown, that our form of ballot does not accurately register actual majority sentiment; and that winning an office, is largely a matter of luck, especially in cases in which the vote is close.

Many voters who desire to vote for all Democratic candidates, or all Republican candidates—as the case may be—simply can not mark their ballots in accordance with their instructions, and it is not necessarily a penalty for ignorance, that they can not do so.

Many voters must have made a few dabs with the pencil, somewhere on the ballot, and left it go at that, without making an attempt—or perhaps not knowing how—to vote the full ballot.

We also have information that leads us to believe that about 200 ballots in the county were not counted, due to illegal marking.

Mt. Airy Man Stole 13 Autos.

Charged with stealing 13 Chevrolet automobiles, Harvey Bowman, about 24 years old, son of Mrs. Amelia Bowman, of Mt. Airy, was arrested last week by Detectives Chas. C. Buhrman, Benjamin Susky and Warren Shanks and taken to the Central Police Station House, Baltimore, where he is awaiting trial. The machines were stolen in Baltimore at different times, the operations of the young man covering a period of some months.

Most of the stolen cars have been located. One was found in front of his home. When arrested and confronted with the charge, he stated that he took the machine because he needed money, as notes he owed were about to become due and he was without funds.

Bowman confined himself to Chevrolet cars. According to the detectives, he would watch a driver park his car and immediately afterward he would get into the machine and drive away. He sold four of the cars to H. C. Heyer, a Baltimore automobile agent; one to Harry T. Frank, Mt. Airy; one to Wm. Severn, Mt. Airy; one to Wm. Jones, Ridgeville; one to Daniel Wilson, Woodbine; one to Earl Wolfe, Ijamsville, and one to Rev. Dodson, Lisbon.

The arrest of the young man and the serious charge against him, caused considerable surprise in Mt. Airy. Since the death of his father, about seven years ago, he assisted his mother, who succeeded her husband as an undertaker. He was regarded as industrious and trustworthy and had a good reputation in the community. Last June he married a Miss Brown, of Albion, and they had been residing at the family home in Mt. Airy—Middletown Register.

It is Coming—Christmas.

A joyous time to many; a time of perplexity to some; it means work and preparation to others; and to most, it represents necessary preparation of some sort. We mean Christmas, of course.

It is just over the hill—less than six short weeks away. Are you going to be forehanded, and meet it in a "ready for you" way; or will you just dally along as perhaps you have done before—and do your "getting ready" with a lot of hurry and discomfort, and perhaps be "grouchy" over it?

The right way, is to begin to prepare right now. "Putting it off" spoils Christmas, and "spoiled" things are not nice.

TO WOMEN VOTERS;

The Record would like to have for publication, what the women think of voting in general, and of the Maryland ballot, in particular? We would like all kinds of women to send opinions—town women, farmer women, business women, young women—and, all other classes.

The names will be withheld, when desired. Replies may be anywhere from 25 words to 300, and we will find space for all. We consider this important information, and make the request in all seriousness.

WARNING AGAINST WORTHLESS STOCKS

Campaign of Education Planned for this Winter.

A campaign of education against buying of worthless stocks will be undertaken this winter by the Maryland Blue Sky Committee, John P. Baer, chairman. Mr. Baer or another member of the committee will speak in churches, schools, factories and grange halls throughout the State, according to plans.

"Millions of dollars have been taken from the people of Maryland by the sellers of worthless stocks, blind pools and the like," he said, "but the losses are becoming less each year. They have not been nearly as heavy this year as they were last year. The blowing up of the blind pools which operated here opened the eyes of the people to the impossibility of the promoters of such enterprises doing anything like what they said they could do."

"Of course some of these operators get in and out of the State in a hurry and get away with a few thousands of somebody's hard-earned dollars before we can get on their trail. Only three weeks ago we drove a big one out of the State. His case now is in the hands of the law enforcement officers, and we hope to have him convicted."

"The only way we can hope to prevent such losses in the future is by education."

"Persons who have money to invest and who are unfamiliar with forms of investment ought not to put their money into anything they do not know anything about without first consulting their banker. If they do not have a bank account they should consult the president, cashier or any other official of the bank in their town. Any banker will be glad to give advice on such a subject."

"It is a safe plan to be wary of stock in concerns that follow in the wake of discoveries and important inventions, and it always is well to look out for oil stocks. It is a good plan to avoid putting your money in any investment which you are expected to make immediately, and to beware of stocks which offer special inducements of any kind."

"If any sound concern could guarantee dividends of 10 or 12 percent, there would be no occasion for peddling such stock."

"We think we can bring these things home to the people if we can get in touch with them, and our committee will be glad to arrange for an address to be made at any gathering we can reach."—Balt. Sun.

Near Riot at Lancaster.

A near riot occurred in Lancaster, Pa., on Armistice Day, over the placing of a K. K. cross among other tributes before the honor roll on the Court House plaza. The cross was removed, then restored, and removed again. American Legion men finally delivered an ultimatum to Klan officials, ordering them to remove the cross permanently, or it would be done very effectually. It was quickly removed, and placed over the grave of General Reynolds, a Lancaster man killed at Gettysburg.

Actual clashes were twice prevented by the playing of the National Anthem, and by the prompt action of police, and Legion men.

MR. FORD, ON FARMING.

Says Hard Work Alone Will Not Accomplish Best Results.

Henry Ford's Dearborn Independent, in a recent issue, contained an excellent article on farming, presumably written by Mr. Ford himself, a portion of which follows:

"For one thing, it should be seen that farming is presently to cease being a single industry, such as food raising, and is on the threshold of becoming an industry of diverse interests. The world's food supply is more than amply provided for. Over-production is evident on every hand—a fact which condemns the lack of supply in many quarters due to the selfishness of the present distributive system. On the production side the food supply is overdone. Farmers feel the result of that. But shall the farm be used only to raise food? Has it no part in raising the materials needed in our industries? All the signs of the times indicate that this latter part will be forced in by new developments trembling on the verge of practical use."

It is not at all impossible that motor fuel will one day be a seasonal crop raised on the farm. Oils and fuel alcohol may presently become field and garden products. An acre of potatoes will yield enough fuel-alcohol to plow that acre for a hundred seasons. It is not impossible that the rubber supply so necessary to modern industry shall one day depend on the farm. Weeds which are now spurned may turn out to be valuable for cultivation and harvested for their yield of the elements of rubber. We have by no means begun to understand what the soil shall yield."

Co-operation, as now applied to the farm, means mostly co-operative selling. That is putting the cart before the horse. Co-operation should begin in production. There is hardly any of this kind of teamwork in America. A field of corn and a field of wheat, a bit of this and a bit of that, a team of horses and a half dozen cows—and this endlessly repeated all over the country—spells needless waste and work. A few pigs here and a few sheep there, odds and ends of every department of farming scattered about the countryside—this is not farming. It is not best for the farmer and it is bad for the country."

The pigs must be shipped hundreds of miles to be turned into bacon, the bacon is sent back to the very spot where it was raised; the farmer loses the bacon profit and is compelled to pay the bacon price; doubling the railroad hauls and the freight rates—the same with wheat and dairy products—all these abuses could be abolished by co-operation. Wheat pools in Chicago can be defeated by flour pools in the country district. Pool the cows under competent management; cure the bacon in the district where it is raised; complete the dairy processes on the ground; go into business co-operatively for the common benefit. It can be done, and it is going to be done; if not by the farmers then by those who are waiting for the farms to fall into their hands."

Nothing is more frequently asserted than that the farmer works hard. Of course he works hard. There is no harder work in the world than that done on worn-out principles. No work is harder than that which yields an insufficient profit. It would be very beneficial if the farmer would begin to analyze his hard work. Every farmer knows men who work from before dawn until after dark, and work hard—without accomplishing much. It isn't sufficient to work hard, to endure physical strain and fatigue; it is essential to accomplish something. And this is what every good manager knows—on the farm as elsewhere—that work undertaken to get something worth while actually done, is the kind of work that tends to become less burdensome. Having a definite object, the work simplifies itself, discovers better methods, besides yielding to the spirit of man the refreshment of seeing his work actually telling on the task."

Auditor's Certificate.

Baltimore, Aug. 27, 1923.
In accordance with your recent request I have audited the accounts of the Board of Education of Carroll County, and find same to be true and correct.

Attached are statements setting forth the results of my examination.

Respectfully Submitted,
JAMES F. DUNN, JR., Auditor.

The Department of Education having finally reported on the grade and character of certificates for all the teachers of the force, it has been found necessary to request an additional amount to the funds allowed for instructional service by the Board of County Commissioners when the budget was approved. This is to include the expense of running the three buses at Mt. Pleasant, Priestland and Greenmount respectively, also the transportation expense incurred by the parttime teachers operating between the various high schools. This amount is $8420.00, which the Superintendent was authorized to request of the County Commissioners.

Upon a suggestion of the Superintendent that something be done about the completion of the Pleasant Gap building, he was authorized to take up with the portable building companies the plan, approved by the State Superintendent, for the construction of a building by one of these companies subject to the approval of the State Superintendent, providing the cost of the same completed came within the amount still in the treasury credited to the Pleasant Gap School.

In view of the fact that the Automobile Commission has demanded chauffeur's license instead of operator's license for the members of the staff, and in view of the annual expense that this would incur, the Superintendent was authorized to request

TAXATION AND BONUS.

Senator Weller Gives his Views on These Subjects.

The following is a statement issued by U. S. Senator O. E. Weller on the proposal of Secretary Mellon of the U. S. Treasury, for a reduction in Federal taxes;

"The program outlined to Representative Green, Acting Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, recommending legislation providing for a reduction of $333,000,000 in federal taxes next year, has my hearty approval. This is the first concrete proposal since the war for reducing the burden of taxation, and it comes from the Federal Government. Taxes have been increasing rapidly in every State in the country, including Maryland, and they are still mounting."

Secretary Mellon's proposals would reduce practically all federal taxes. The smaller taxpayer would be specially benefited and the surtax rates on higher incomes would be progressively reduced. The taxes of everyone of the 7,000,000 federal taxpayers in the United States, and of the 150,000 in Maryland would be reduced."

Mr. Mellon would make a large reduction in the tax on smaller incomes from wages, salaries and professional services; a decrease of over 50% in the tax on incomes between $4,000 and $10,000 a year; would repeal the tax on telegrams, telephone messages, admissions to moving picture theatres, and the so-called nuisance taxes. Change would also be made to simplify the administration and collection of federal taxes."

The only objection to this plan comes from those who favor a soldiers' bonus. A bonus bill would mean an increase of several billion dollars in taxes, while Mr. Mellon's proposition means a decrease of one-third of a billion dollars each year. It is obvious that taxes cannot be decreased by increasing them. Do the people want higher or lower taxes? That is the question."

Congress is now appropriating nearly $500,000,000 a year for the care of disabled war veterans, this being about one-sixth of the total annual expense of the federal Government, and there is no thought of reducing this amount below that needed for properly taking care of incapacitated soldiers. Everyone favors doing the utmost for them."

It may be that Mr. Mellon's recommendation will not be adopted by the incoming Congress, but they will have my support and vote. I am in favor of taking advantage of this opportunity of lowering Federal taxes. The way to secure this relief is to bring to bear upon the members of the Senate and of the House of Representatives in Washington the weight of public opinion."

S. S. Teachers Institute.

The second all-day institute for Sunday School teachers and officers of the Carroll County Association, will be held on Thursday next, November 22, in the Chapel of the Westminster Theological Seminary, from 9:30 A. M. to 9:30 P. M.

The session will be in charge of Col. J. A. Cudlipp of the State Sunday School Association, assisted by Miss Lillian McCormick, State Superintendent Children's work. It is a delegated body and will not be open to the public. There will be a registration fee of $1.00 to cover cost of advertising, traveling expenses of speakers, dinner in the evening, etc.

Bring a box lunch for noon. At the close of the afternoon session, a dinner will be served to all delegates, without extra cost in the tea room of the college, and there will be after dinner speeches, songs and fun. Col. Cudlipp knows how to direct all this as few men do.

Problems of teaching and Sunday School work will be discussed by these experts. Those who have heard Col. Cudlipp agree that he is one of the most helpful and practical men we have. Miss McCormick, is a specialist of wide experience in children's work and has a real message. No Sunday School teacher or officer can afford to miss this meeting. Superintendents will please present the matter to their schools and send delegates."

Attention is also again called to the three rallies arranged by the County Association for next week, as follows: Tuesday, November 20, for Freedom district, in Oakland M. E. S. Church; Wednesday, November 21, for Berrett district, in Morgan Chapel M. E. Church and Friday, November 23, in Union Bridge M. P. Church.

What Laws are to be Obeyed?

In last Sunday's issue of The Baltimore Sun, a contributor to "Letters to the Editor," in an article on the meaning of the election of Gov. Ritchie, asks this question—

"If a state doesn't have to obey a United States law it does not approve, does a citizen have to obey a state law he does not approve?"

Is this an unjustifiable and irrational question? When a state refuses to join in a movement to enforce a United States law, what is the correct name for the situation?

No matter what its name, does not the fact tend to develop a sentiment encouraging refusal to obey all laws not coinciding with one's individual indorsement?

The bluntly stated question of the contributor to the Sun, may be ignored, for the time being. It may be belittled as illogical, and as the expression of an extremist; but, think it over. When we reach the point of deciding for ourselves that some laws ought to be obeyed, and some ought not to be, we must give to others the same latitude with regard to other laws. Then what?

The Home Town Fight.

Industries of the Home Town receive very little consideration because they are "Home" industries. Some towns have the spirit of standing by, and boosting, every home enterprise, but too many do not. As a rule, they must fight for life—be used as conveniences, but not be fostered as necessities.

Sometimes, there seems to be an actual pleasure displayed in working for competing industries elsewhere; a work that makes the home-town job more difficult, and more discouraging; compelling an expenditure of energy to overcome an opposition at home that should not exist; carrying on a competition, where co-operation should be found instead.

The home-town bumps from the inside, are like traitors in the ranks of an army—an illustration of the truth that "a prophet is not without honor, save in his own country." Taking it all and all, as a broad proposition, the home-town and its business industries are used largely as conveniences, and rarely find that community support that belongs to patriotism in its primary form.

There is much in the saying that "distance lends enchantment," and we unconsciously, perhaps, find grounds for criticism of those things plainly before us, and picture in imagination that "over there" they do things differently, and nearer right; forgetting that those who live in the "over there" have the same opinion about some other place. Perhaps it is just as well that everybody has to "hoe their own row," but sometimes one feels the need of more friends and co-workers, at home, very strongly.

For Simplified Voting.

The act of voting needs simplification, if the people are to have, that which they are entitled to have, a chance to register their sentiments at the polls with the last possible effort and doubt, and void of all tricks and chance bound up in the mere form of ballot. Neither the state, nor expert manipulators of ballot forms and election laws, have a real right to invade the field of the honest intention of voters, nor prescribe for them an abstruse voting system that stands for a puzzle, and which in its final result at the count, permits mere luck to have important bearings on the official result.

In connection with the general question, such requirements as the declaration of intention on the part of voters coming into, or going out of, the state, is an attending evil. It never had any justification aside from a mere partisan one, aimed at the negro vote, and in its operation has cost more than it was ever worth, even to the aim that inspired it.

Neither has the form of ballot ever justified itself. The idea that voters must be required, in order to display proper intelligence, to make 18 marks for a full ballot—as in our recent county election—has nothing to recommend it, in full justice to the proposition that the voter has the individual right to decide how, or for whom, he or she shall vote. We know that the use of party "emblems," or the making of a single mark to vote a "straight" ticket, is considered by many to be an archaic method of voting; but, in such a vital matter as majority rule; majority preference as to voting should also be the main consideration.

The Pennsylvania ballot, for instance, is so designed as to permit either mixed, or straight, voting, and it is a vast improvement over the Maryland plan. In Maryland, we have had no hope that partisan politics will ever entirely disappear from our election laws; but, as the Negro vote in Baltimore is now strongly inclining toward Democracy, there may be more hope now, for changes in voting than at any time in the past.

Stirring Appeal of the Red Cross.

The Red Cross functions impressively during peace as well as during war. It has an elaborate program for the ensuing fiscal year. This calls for an expenditure of approximately $12,000,000 in humanitarian effort. The money will be divided in international and national and local work.

The domestic needs are heavy, but the foreign budget will drop below $1,000,000. This, we should think, is a small figure, all things considered.

The Red Cross also proposes to render help in many ways to former service men and their families. There are 34,000 men shattered by their war experiences still in the hospitals of the government, while more than 40,000 others are constantly applying to the Federal institutions for treatment.

In addition, according to the report, 73,000 veterans are taking vocational training, while thousands of soldiers traveling from place to place are proving to be a serious problem and burden of care to local Red Cross Chapters, according to report. The Red Cross has also been the instrument of relief in many foreign and domestic disasters. Altogether it has its hands full and it sorely needs all the money it can get.

The activities of the Red Cross are bound only by the extent of its pocketbook.

The general situation being such as it is, the ranks of the Red Cross should be largely swelled by new members and as a matter of course, all those present members should again enroll during the coming campaign.

Fire Prevention Week.

If an expression of appreciation were to be addressed to those newspapers which, seeing in Fire Prevention Week not only "live" news but a chance to perform a public service, rose fully to the occasion, it would be necessary to single out virtually every journal of importance in the country; for they "covered" the observance last month in a way that leaves no question as to their attitude towards a twelve-month fire waste of $521,860,000.

Comparisons so often are profitless that none shall be made here. However, while acknowledging the helpfulness of all, it is desired to call attention especially to the enterprise of The Evening Sun of Baltimore.

Realizing that the majority of fires and most of the loss of life occur in the home, The Evening Sun, in conjunction with the city fire-fighting officials, organized among the school boys during the Week the Baltimore Junior Fire Department. Members application blanks were printed in several issues of the paper, the applications taking the form of the following pledge:

"I hereby do pledge that I will assist the Fire Prevention Bureau of the Fire Department:

By keeping my home free from unnecessary piles of papers and trash, greasy rags, loose matches and other things that may cause a fire.

By always using care in handling oils or other dangerous material.

By putting out all burning matches, cigarettes or cigars that I may see." In addition to signing the pledge, the boys were required to fill out a questionnaire on home hazards (the National Board's Home Inspection Blank was used for this purpose), and to bring both forms to the office of The Evening Sun. There the youngsters were regularly enrolled as junior firemen, receiving attractive membership badges. Chief August Emrich, of the Baltimore Fire Department, staged on the concluding day of the Week an exhibition of firemanship, embracing ladder work, wall scaling, life net jumping and other "stunts," and only members of the Junior Fire Department were admitted.

Thousands of boys joined during the Week, and it is reported that they did not rest merely with sending in their names but entered so heartily into the cleaning up of their homes that the city collection department was taxed to capacity.—From Safeguarding America against Fire.

A Hint to Farmers.

The prospective passage of a Protective Tariff against the importation of wheat from any but British countries, and a low Tariff or Free-Trade in wheat from those British countries is going to still more greatly limit the export demand for wheat. That will call for a limitation of the acreage planted to wheat and the substitution of some other crop or crops in lieu thereof.

Our exports of wheat to the United Kingdom for the past three years have been as follows: 1920, 77,368,545 bushels; 1921, 63,672,052 bushels; 1922, 37,869,552 bushels. For the first 8 months of the present calendar year such exports have amounted to 10,471,632 bushels. The gradual reduction has meant that our exports have been getting back to the figures preceding the late war, when they had not, for ten years, exceeded over 30,000,000 bushels per year, with the exception of the year 1908, when they reached 44,000,000 bushels. In 1911 they were under 12,000,000.

As compared with our total production of wheat our exports to the United Kingdom are comparatively small, but they certainly are not negligible, and it behooves the farmers to exercise extreme caution and not depend too much upon sales to the British when they are planning next year's planting. Instead of sowing too great an acreage of wheat, they should diversify their crops, and limit the wheat crop.

They should raise more sheep, and thus produce more wool and mutton and should, where soil and climate permits, raise more sugar beets. In some localities they should raise more flax, and the corn crop should by no means be neglected. Corn brings good prices, the yield is generally good, and if it does not find a ready market, it can be fed to stock.

So much for the farm crops, but there is another hint which we must give and it is that every farmer should vote for the congressional candidates of the party of Protection at the coming and all succeeding elections, and thus insure a continuation of Tariff Protection to farm products. If that is not done, a flood of foreign agricultural products, produced on lower priced land, and raised by the help of lower priced farm labor, will surely drown out domestic farm products, to such an extent that there will be a still greater surplus of unsalable wheat and other crops. An adequate Protective Tariff is an insurance against unfair, because unequal, foreign competition. It is not only the cheapest but the best form of insurance, for it insures prosperity and the ability to earn and to purchase.—American Economist.

It's In The Air.

This weather is hard on chronic grouches. Oh, no, not the fact of the sunshine, or the snow, or even the gentle rain, all of which we are just discovering, really have much to recommend them. It's the time of year, you know—the short days and long nights. It's the mysterious sly whispers, the conversations that stop so abruptly when certain persons appear.

It's the laughter we hear, now more than ever, on the streets, in the living room, at the bench, the desk, the barn yard. It's the wistful look kids have, the unsuccessful attempts they make to read the countenances of their parents. What scowling old grump can escape it!

You may have the rheumatism, the wheat may still be on your hands with no market. Uncle Henry may have died and left you not a penny, but somehow about this time of the year you can't help being happy.

The entire nation becomes infected with this curious seasonal malady. And they do say it's just as prevalent in foreign countries, too. For a fellow to escape it, he'd have to go way out on the prairie or up in the mountains, dig his grave and then lie in it. And then the chances are some one would come along and wish him the compliments of the season.

So it's no use old bears, cross-patches, frowners and fawn folk. You've just got to smile from now on until Christmas. It's in the air. Merry Christmas! Say it with joy! Maybe a little of the gladness will stick in your soul through the year.—Frederick News.

LACK POWER OF DESCRIPTION

Average Person Unable Accurately to Define Things That Are in Commonplace Use.

It seems rather strange, but there are a number of things which we know well enough and yet are totally unable to describe accurately.

In some cases, to give a description of an ordinary common object may require special scientific knowledge, in others it seems as though it ought to be simple enough to anybody—and yet nobody can do it!

An example of the former class is shown by the joke which was common a little while ago, of asking people what a spiral staircase is. It takes a mathematician to define a spiral, and the average person finds it easier to trace one with his finger.

But suppose some one is asked how he distinguishes between beef and mutton! That requires no specialized knowledge, but the chances are that he will be hopelessly floored. Yet when he sees them both he will know each in a minute. Even then he will probably still be unable to explain exactly how he recognizes them.

Again, suppose some imaginary person of ordinary intelligence had never seen any flowers and had no idea what they were. How many people could tell him so that he could recognize them in future? Probably no one, not even the greatest botanist!

Other things which would seem to be easily and simply described really often require quite a lengthy explanation. For instance, to make the appearance of a book plain to anyone who didn't know would necessitate a fairly complete and detailed account of the process of bookbinding.

A man was once asked to describe (without making any diagrams, of course) the appearance of a violin. Hesson got into difficulties and gave it up!

The reason for this curious inability to explain common things is that we are never called upon to do it. Neither has anyone ever explained them to us. People are shown flowers from infancy and get to "know" them without realizing why or how they do it. It is the same with thousands of commonly occurring "familiar" objects.

A man having once seen a violin would recognize another at any time, but any amount of verbal description of it would leave him almost as much in ignorance of what it looked like as before.

When Money King Loses Out.

When Rufus Kayne has come his cropper in frenzied finance, in Arthur Train's novel of New York, "His Children's Children," he unburies himself to young Maltland:

"And the queerest part of all is that since that time, ever since I've been down and out, I've had a sense of being in luck—of relief—silver-lining-to-the-cloud sort of business."

"Maltland had lit his pipe again and was leaning back against the wall."

"If you really feel that way," he said, "there must be a reason for it."

"Of course there's a reason!" answered his client eagerly. "If you knew the whole story you'd understand it—just as I do. We're all of us walking the tight rope—every man jack of us. The ones who have learned to keep their balance go right along as a matter of course—no danger at all! The others fall off. Well, I didn't have the balance. Over I went!"

Of course the case of Kayne in fiction points a moral in fact.

But it's the kind that no climber will heed and every man on top regards with contempt.

YOUR HAND How to Read Your Characteristics and Tendencies—the Capabilities or Weaknesses That Make for Success or Failure as Shown in Your Palm

THE FINGER NAILS

THE subject of the finger nails and their indications has been touched upon, but is continued because there is much that can be gained from a detailed study of these horny protections for the tips of the fingers. In fact, in ancient times certain soothsayers professed to be able to read a person's entire past, present and future from a study of the finger nails.

If the nails are short, broad rather than long, and the skin grows far up on them, you may read in them a strong personality, but with a tendency toward too much criticism of others. The possessor will seek to dominate and control in circumstances affecting himself and his surroundings. He will be, often, a person hard to get along with. The type has its good points, of course; among them are order and regularity. If the nails described occur on spatulate fingers—that is, fingers which broaden at the end or tip—and the thumb is short, the owner, man or woman, will have a passion for tidying up, arranging and rearranging his or her surroundings, seeking always to attain the perfection of orderliness.

LONG-HANDLED NET IS HANDY

Matter of Capturing Chicken for Family Dinner Made Easy With Device Illustrated.

Who has not seen the farmer, his wife, the hired man and one or more children engaged in the exciting chase for the chicken which is to be served for the family dinner? All around the yard, over the fence, under the barn, through the garden, until somebody luckily falls upon it. An easier way is to make a long-handled net, using a sound, well-made barrel hoop. An old hammock makes a fine net for this purpose. The net should be about two feet deep. Lay it down, mouth up, put a few grains of corn on top, pretend you are looking the other way, and when a chicken steps on the net to pick out the corn, lift up suddenly, tip it slightly to one side, and you have the fowl safe. If you are particularly expert the net may be dropped down over the bird.

HEAD LICE INJURE TURKEYS

Grayish White Louse Is Most Serious of All Parasites—Melted Lard Kills Parasites.

Turkeys, ducks and geese are more easily killed by the head lice than are other kinds of farm fowls. The lice are only one of the six or eight forms which bother poultry, but a single head louse has been known to kill a turkey. It is a grayish white louse, and the most serious of them all.

For treatment, dip the tip of the finger in melted lard and rub this well around the comb. Dip again and rub back of the ear, repeating for the other ear, the bill and jaw. This does not give the head a greasy appearance, but is enough to destroy the lice. A few drops of kerosene, carbolic acid or stock dip may be added to the lard, to make it more effective. The bird should be kept in a warm place for a couple of hours after this treatment has been given.

LIME SUPPLY FOR CHICKENS

Experiments Have Demonstrated That Other Minerals Will Not Take Its Place.

Feeding experiments with poultry conducted over a number of years in which an effort was made to substitute other mineral elements for lime in the ration are said to have demonstrated that other minerals will not take the place of lime and that if this element is lacking in the food the demands of the body will be met by drawing on the lime stored up in the bones and muscles of the fowl. It was also found that both lime and phosphorus are more easily taken from the bones of the living animal than from dead bone ash fed to the animal.

CURE FEATHER EATING HABIT

Indication That Fowls Are After Certain Classes of Foods They Are Not Getting.

The reason that fowls eat feathers is due to the fact that they are after certain classes of foods which they need but are not getting. This class of food is represented by any form of milk, tankage, meat scraps, cotton seed meal, peanut meal, or alfalfa pasturage. If one or more of the above feeds are furnished them in sufficient quantities they will get over this habit.

Good warm wheat makes a nice breakfast for the biddies.

A good layer has a large abdomen covered with soft pliable skin.

Use a little more clean litter on the floors. Keep the fowls hard at work. It is a form of health insurance.

The fancy poultry business pays well but good judgment must be exercised.

The flock that gets bonemeal and oyster shell will show few cases of leg weakness.

A good layer may be described as a hen having a soft, rich, red comb and wattles, a prominent head, good capacity, plenty of fat, a soft, pliable skin, and is well faded out.

Fowls that have been running out may have needed no grit and may even have got along without oyster shell, but now that they are confined all or much of the time, a supply of these important ingredients of the ration should not be neglected.

POWER FOR GOOD

Writer Pays Tribute to Irish Schoolmaster.

Has Always Ruled by Love, and Many Men and Women Rise Up to Call Him Blessed.

We often wondered that Thady Sheridan had been able to satisfy the requirements of the board of education for Ireland. But he accomplished it nevertheless and still retains his position as village schoolmaster. He had, however, to submit to several indignities. His picturesque, rose-covered but antiquated schoolhouse was pulled down, and a plain, comfortable building erected in its stead. But far worse! He was compelled to submit to government inspection, he who had taught successfully for 30 years. Fortunately Mr. Kelly, the inspector, is broadminded enough to pass over Thady's ignorance of modern methods and discipline in consideration of the good results he obtains on the whole.

It was rather a shock to him, on coming unexpectedly to the school, to find Thady teaching a class of "infants" with two of the youngest seated on his knees. But his surprise was still greater when, having produced the usual "Punishment Book" and explained that every caning administered to the children must be registered, Thady exclaimed, in genuine astonishment, "Surely, sir, you don't believe I would ever lay a finger on the children."

"Oh, come now, Mr. Sheridan, the boys must need it occasionally," Thady drew himself up to his full height. "Never! And if ever I found I could not make them do me bidding without punishment I'd resign at once."

So Thady continues to rule entirely and successfully by affection. "His frown is sufficient correction; his love is the law of the school." And the children do him credit at examinations, except, it must be admitted, in English composition. That is certainly their weak point.

The inspector on one occasion having carefully explained what "advantages" meant, asked the bigger boys to write an essay on "The Advantages of Country Life," and the following was the best effort that resulted: "There does be many good points in living in the country. Ye can dig your own praties and milk your own goat and eat your own hen's eggs if your mother'll let you. Ye can catch the farmer's asses that are eating the grass, if so be that the farmer doesn't catch you. But the best of it all is ye can 'milch' whenever you like, whereas them poor goosons as lives in towns can't so much as stay away from school for one week without having the 'polls' after them. Thanks be, I live in the country."

In spite of this, one is glad that Thady is still the village schoolmaster, for his influence for good is strong and continues long after his pupils have left school. In fact, there are many men and women now living in "The Big Smoke," as some Irish peasants call Dublin, and others scattered all over the world who testify with gratitude to the loving guidance and training they received from Thady Sheridan.—Christian Science Monitor.

Bird-Banding Association Formed. In connection with the bird-banding work of the biological survey, United States Department of Agriculture, 1-335 mallards, black ducks and pintails were trapped and banded in November and December at the Sanganois club, Brownsville, Ill., by a member of the bureau. A large number of returns from these birds have already been received. The information furnished by the returns regarding the movements of these migratory birds will be of much value to those interested in bird-banding work.

A new Inland Bird-Banding association has been formed in the central states, which co-operate with the biological survey in this work. Particular attention will be given by it to a study of the birds that follow the Mississippi valley flyway.

Potato Row Ten Miles Long.

The world's longest potato field, with rows ten miles long, is believed to be in Union county, Oregon. The owner of the elongated patch leased the right of way from the Oregon-Washington railway and plants his crop, four rows on each side of the track. It requires a farmer one whole day to make a round trip of cultivating two rows, or 20 miles of plowing. Aside from the money this potato field brings its owner, the railroad profits somewhat in that the green vines in midsummer are a fire preventative and serve as a fire break for those started elsewhere.

How It Excelled.

When the punitive expedition was in Mexico in 1916 and 1917, one of the newspaper correspondents asked a negro trooper of the Tenth cavalry what he thought of Mexico. The trooper studied a minute and then answered: "Well, boss, there is more cows and less milk, more rivers and less water, and you can see farther and see less than any country in the world."—Judge.

Value of Contrast.

"You don't tell as many funny stories as you used to." "Times have changed," replied Senator Sorghum. "Everybody is telling funny stories. If you want to please an auditor now you've got to be serious for a change."

TO THE LIVE:

ABOUT THE DEAD:

Three thousand years ago lived an Egyptian King named TUT-ANKH-AMEN. The name sounded like a stutter, so fellow Luxorites called him "Tut" for short.

When "Tut" reached the DANGEROUS AGE, and finally succeeded in producing the "Staycomb" effect with his somewhat luxuriant locks, he up and died. Dying was one of the leading indoor sports then, and "Tut's" death was a Major League event. They proceeded to wrap him as per custom in a series of layers and finally deposited the remains in a tomb in the Valley of Departed Kings.

Three thousand years later, a party of Anti-Volsteaders, while exploring for a fit spot for 'still' development work, dug up 'Tut's' tomb with all the medieval relics buried with him. Then the advertising men stepped in and took charge, and in a few weeks gave 'Tut' a reputation which shades CHARLIE CHAPLIN, DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS and MARY PICKFORD into oblivion by comparison.

Dead three thousand years! Forgotten! Lost! Then 'BANG' --advertised, and the whole world clamored for more news of 'Tut'

If advertising can put that much life into something dead for three thousand years, what will it do for a LIVE SUBJECT or PRODUCT? For a LIVE BUSINESS? OUR BUSINESS?

They might have dug up a hundred 'Tuts', and if they kept the news to themselves, only a few bookworms and historians would have ever heard of it.

Moral: You might have the best product in the world, but unless you TELL them about it, your business will slumber peacefully to death.

And that is why we advertise to you folks in Carroll County. We want you to know that we have a science that REALLY and ACTUALLY CURES such troubles as paralysis, heart trouble, diabetes, high blood pressure, tonsillitis, pneumonia, fallen arches, neuritis, tuberculosis, fevers, mumps, deafness and every other affliction you have ever heard of. When you stop to think of it wouldn't it be about the most suicidal business policy to spend real money on these advertisements to tell you these things if we couldn't make good on what they say. The reason PACKARD, CHICKERING, TIFFANY and VICTROLA spend real money to advertise is because they have the best in the world in their particular line. So have we. We practice the most nearly perfect cure in the world for all disease. Bar NONE.

MELROSE.

The finishing touches are being made on their macadam road, which completes the link between Hampstead and the Mason and Dixon Line. Those who frequently travel over this road, and who experienced the old abominable piece of road we once had, say the road is well built, and if the needed repairs are made from time to time, the majority of people will be satisfied that they are receiving some benefit for their taxes paid every year since the days of our pioneer forefathers.

Our creamery, operated by Wm. Monath, for the C. S. Corporation, is slowly but surely gaining. The driver of the milk truck between Hanover and this place, told our correspondent that he has customers who ship from $100 to $400 worth of milk every 30 days. They have quite a number of trucks bringing into Hanover big loads of milk, each day of the week. This is indeed an enterprise in our midst, and brings much money into the neighborhood.

Talking with one of our butchers, we learn that Baltimore officials wanted to force a $250.00 license on them for handling meats. Not succeeding, the price of pork has dropped. He is paying 10 1/4 c for light, and 8 c for heavy weight hogs, and sees no indication of a rise in prices. This does not seem to pay the farmer, as the corn used in feeding is high in price.

H. C. Miller, of Lineboro, expects to move to Reisterstown, early in December, and Newton Hetrick expects to locate in our town, and conduct a butcher business.

On Saturday the opening of the rabbit season found some of our hunters who bagged the limit of Bunny cottontails, while others barely got a taste.

Evidently, some people think there will be no winter, as we saw some sweet potatoes dug, on Saturday and many acres of both Irish and McCormick potatoes yet to dig. Much corn is yet to be husked.

Rev. L. B. Hafer, formerly of Taneytown, ably filled the pulpit of Emanuel Lutheran Church, of Manchester, on Sunday morning, preaching from the text as found in Galatians 5:6. He also taught the Men's Bible Class, showing that the Sunday School lesson was purely a mission call for all the world to praise Him, thank Him, and worship Him. "The Lord is good; His mercies endure forever."

Quite a number of Carroll County farms will be without a tenant, next year, due to the fact that young people, and some older ones, too, are moving to larger towns in order to get more money, not caring how much is produced to help feed the town people.

We wish to extend thanks to friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted during the death and burial of our dear husband and father.

MRS. THOMAS KEEFER AND FAMILY.

Old, But Always Good.

A young lady sat next to a distinguished bishop at a church dinner. She was rather awed by the bishop's presence. For some time she hesitated to speak to him. Finally, seeing some bananas passing, she seized the opportunity to start conversation with him and said:

"I beg your pardon, but are you fond of bananas?"

The bishop was slightly deaf, and leaning toward her, replied:

"Pardon me, but what did you say?"

"I said," repeated the young lady, blushing furiously, "do you like bananas?"

The bishop pondered the question gravely for a moment, and then answered: "It is a curious question, but if you wish my honest opinion, I have always preferred the old-fashioned night-shirt."—Harper's Weekly.

The Misfit Office Boy.

She was a dainty young thing, dressed in the latest fashion, and as she tripped up the stairs the office boy gasped, then grinned, as she came to a standstill before him.

"Could you tell me if Mr. Jenks is in?" she asked.

The boy nodded and pointed vaguely over his shoulder at the open door. The girl hesitated for a moment.

"Do you know if he is engaged?" she inquired.

The boy looked astonished.

"Engaged?" he almost shouted.

"Engaged! Why, he's married and got two kids!"—Detroit Free Press.

She Caught Him.

The young girl confronted him with flashing eyes. "What did you mean," she demanded, "by kissing me as I lay asleep in the hammock this morning?"

"But," protested the youth, "I only took one."

"You did not. I counted at least seven before I awoke."

Pickin' on the Irish Again.

An Irishman coming out of ether in the ward after an operation, exclaimed audibly—

"Thank Heaven, that is over!"

"Don't be too sure," said the man in the next bed "They left a sponge in me and had to cut me open again."

And then the patient on the other side said, "Why, they had to open me, too, to find one of their instruments."

Just then the surgeon that had operated on Pat stuck his head in the door and yelled, "Has anybody seen my hat?" Pat painted.

Necessities First.

Jake was a worthless and improvident fellow. One day he said to the local grocer: "I gotta have a sack o' flour; I'm all out, an' my family is starvin'."

"All right, Jake," said the grocer. "If you need a sack of flour and have no money to buy it with, we'll give you a sack. But, see here, Jake, there's a big circus coming to town in a few days, and if I give you a sack of flour, are you sure you won't sell it and take your family to the circus?"

"Oh, no," said Jake, "I got the circus money saved up already."

Former Keymar Boy given Surprise, on Birthday.

(For The Record.)

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Fields gave a surprise birthday party at their home, "The Maples," near York, on Thursday evening, in honor of their son, John White, it being his 14th birthday. The evening was spent in music and games, after which a very elaborate lunch was served. The rooms were decorated with cut flowers and ferns, while the dining room was decorated with pink and white.

In the center of the table was a mound surrounded by different kinds of fruit, and on the top was a very large birthday cake, with 14 lighted candles of pink and white. As the little guests entered the dining room the electric light was dimmed under a large pink shade and just the small candles illuminated the room. The party was composed of class mates in his Sunday School, and a few intimate friends.

Those present were: Anna Bentzel, Geraldine Hyde, Eleanor Shire, Frances Bentzel, Edna Diehl, Grace Fuss, Pauline Jacobs, Grace Bentzel, Edna Jacobs, Gertrude Grass, Angelo Fizer Russell Heckert, Irvin Bentzel, William Eppley, Henry Shire, Ivan Grass, Milo Fizer, John Hevener, Charles Hamm, Emory Fackler, John White, Mrs. Margaret Heckert, Mr. and Mrs. Fields. Store and Dwelling Burned.

The general store, postoffice and dwelling of the M. J. Grove Lime Co., at Lime Kiln, Frederick county, was destroyed by fire, with its contents, early Sunday morning, causing a loss estimated at $25,000, partly insured.

The fire originated in the store and was discovered by a neighbor. The Independent Hose Company, of Frederick, responded, and prevented the destruction of adjoining buildings. Nothing was saved except furniture from the first and second floors of the dwelling. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Will Good Varnish Turn White?

See the answer to this question in our show window.

The only fair test is on a black panel as clear Varnish on a light panel deceives the eye.

"Uncle Mort" on Newspapers.

Maj. A. M. Hall, who is editing a splendid weekly at Apopka, Florida, since his removal from Sykesville, is keeping up his "Uncle Mort" column, and in last week's issue had the following on the subject of newspapers: "The newspapers of Florida as a rule stand out among all the newspapers of the country as notable examples of fairness in all relations to their constituencies, upholding high ideals, supporting community advancement, and in all ways giving helpful service. They are likewise exceptional in ability and typographical neatness. We speak with special reference now to the weekly newspapers. After years of familiarity with both the daily and weekly fields I say without hesitancy that the weekly papers of Florida as a class, are better edited, more keenly alive to the needs of their communities and hold to higher moral standards than the same class of papers in most other States."

There is a class of journalism, however, for which I and all other serious-minded people, have the utmost contempt. I refer to those sheets, mostly large dailies in the big cities, who serve the political cliques and the foreign elements in politics and religion, and that misrepresent and distort facts in order to fool the people and serve their masters. Big headlines in papers of this class have been much in evidence of late, either in opposition to great public projects or in promoting the desires of unworthy men and the interests they represent.

It is all shameful and disgraceful, not only to a profession that has heretofore been held above such things, but to the country. The secret behind it all is that hundreds of the daily papers are falling into the control of interests that are anything but American, and that have nothing in common with real American institutions. Some of the propaganda put out by these interests is utterly contemptible."

Community Building

MUCH IN THE POINT OF VIEW

"Home Town" Will Not Look Alike to the Resident and the Visitor for a Day.

In the smoking compartment of a pullman not very long ago a gentleman told his fellow travelers a great many good things about his home town. Indeed, he told so many that one of his fellow travelers thought he would visit that town and, if he found it as represented, would move his business there. In due season the traveler did visit that town and on returning to his city office observed that the representative of the town whom he had met on the train "had drawn on his imagination tremendously." He may have and he may not have—it all depends on viewpoint.

To the resident it may have been an ideal town; to the stranger it may have lacked many things he regarded as essential. To the resident, substantial well-to-do people living in comfortable homes with plenty of breathing space about them, having gardens and shrubbery, with a community center building, and just enough industry to give opportunity for livelihood, it may have been desirable. On the other hand, its unpaved streets, lack of street cars, theaters, and so on, may have stamped the town to the city man as undesirable for home or business. The one lived there, perhaps all his life; while the other could only exist there without the excitement and pleasures to which he had been accustomed, though in the great city where he lived he did not know even his next door neighbor.

But beyond these things there may have been other reasons, and one of them may be this—the resident had helped make the town what it is; the other had no sentiment in the matter whatsoever, simply a cold calculated estimate. Men who create take pride in their creations. Good home-makers are generally good town-makers, because they want good homes in good towns. They have public spirit, civic pride, and loyalty, because when men work together for the common good they stick together for greater progress. Men in small towns know what they have accomplished; those who live in large cities have to guess at what they have done—too many find little opportunity to do anything, so engrossed are they with their own private business. There's a reason why the one has sentiment while the other has none.—Grit.

DOING AWAY WITH UGLINESS

Citizens of Kansas City Have the Right Idea in Influencing the Taste of the Public.

Speaking of city beautification, a coordinate subject with city improvements on a $100,000,000 scale, it is interesting to note that Kansas City has a "Citizens' Anti-Ugly Association." Its object is to keep the town spruced up. It calls attention to things that ought to be done to make Kansas City prettier and the things that ought not to be done that will make it less pretty than it is.

It is greatly interested in zoning and in lesser esthetic regulations such as those that affect billboards, weeds, tree pruning, and Topsy-like cheap architecture that "jest grows" without planning.

Its main influence at first is propagandist. Precept and preaching is the idea; but ordinances are also an aim. There is much in persuading the public taste; and a single object lesson in beauty is worth a hundred sermons. In our own humble opinion, if you want an appreciation of beauty in city planning and building, show a bit of it accomplished—and there'll be a clamor for more.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Two Points to Remember.

If trees and shrubs are to be planted, they must be considered from two standpoints—the space they occupy on the ground, or plan; and their contour against the sky, or elevation. In this study artistic skill is called into play to create the best possible effects. The contour should be studied with a view to blotting out unpleasant views and allowing glimpses of pleasant ones, at the same time avoiding monotonous and poorly balanced effects. Shrubby borders always have irregular outlines except where the shrubs are to be clipped to formal hedge effects; and the arrangement of these outlines requires careful study. The shrubs should be selected so that those in front reach the ground with their foliage, concealing the unsightly bare stems of more upright and taller varieties. And excellent effects may be obtained by grouping with respect to flowering season and winter appearance; and even with respect to the color of foliage, as great variation exists in the greens.

Pride in "Home Town."

It will always be a fact that a man's home town, the town that he has helped to make, to develop, and beautify, is to him all he thinks it is. To others to whom he may be describing it, he may seem to draw on his imagination; to the man who has no sentiment he may seem to be over-enthusiastic, but really he isn't. He has cause for satisfaction, for gratification, if his efforts to promote his home town have produced results that conduce to the contentment and happiness of all who live in it.

SHOULD BE REAL PARTNERS

And Both Husband and Wife Ought to Be Permitted to Have Their Own Way at Times.

It is not so nearly true as it was years ago that men earn money and women spend it, but it is still considerably true. Men still have control of the chief agencies for wage-earning and earn most of the wages paid. Women have the spending of most of the money that is earned and brought home for the support of families. The chief end of man is still what the Westminster catechism says it is, but his next most important end is to satisfy women. Women are more contented when they have their own way a part of the time—so are men. Women's wishes should be dominant in certain departments of life, men's wishes in certain others; but there is no department of life in which women can afford to ignore the wishes of men, or men the wishes of women.

And so it is that in public as well as in private dealings between men and women persuasion works better than compulsion. Against exacting women men are instinctively on their guard. They usually avoid such women if they can. No men can afford to be driven by women into positions they do not approve of, and if they cannot run away they are likely to turn obstinate or worse. But most men are very open to persuasion, and if led around to look at a proposal from that point of view their objections to it may disappear.—Philadelphia Record.

HORSE RACING IN THE DESERT

Picturesque Scenes When Natives of Mesopotamia Gather for Their Favorite Sport.

Horse racing is a sport beloved by the natives of Mesopotamia. They swarm to the Basrah races, and the autumn meet of this Arab Epsom is a curious and diverting sight. A European innovation is the new brick grandstand with a substantial roof and benches spread with many-colored Persian rugs. Behind the grandstand are the wooden sheds roofed with matting to exclude the heat. Here the horses are stabled and here resort the trainers, stewards and the all important "Totalisator," with his hangers-on. The paddock is a patch of desert—like the course itself. Native gamblers also congregate around the sheds. They are shaggy and picturesque—at a distance. At close quarters they are indescribably dirty and ragged. They sit in circles in the dust, like a lot of dingy crows, heedless of the crowds surging around them as they make their game and choose their favorites for the race. The desert man is a reckless bidder, he stakes his all upon his favorite horse. In stolidism he resembles the American Indian, for whether he wins or loses his expression never changes.

Sheet Fleeces Like Robes.

A wool market is held annually at Patsee, in the wilds of Tibet. The Tibetan owners of sheep barter the fleece of their flocks for Indian tea and rice and cotton goods. These sheep cannot live below 10,000 feet above sea level, and as their wool is in great demand the traders have to bring their commodities on pack ponies, mules and donkeys right up into the heart of the mountains.

About the middle of July the traders, both parties, converge onto a high valley some 13,000 feet above sea-level, and there pitch their respective camps. The Tibetan sheep obligingly carry their own wool to the shearing ground, and emerge slim and shorn from a mass of fleece, which looks like buffalo robes. These fleeces are rolled into as small a compass as possible, after being wound into tight ropes, and are bound onto the pack animals.

Designing the Great Seal.

Some time ago an account was given of how the great seal of the United States was designed. Franklin, Adams and Jefferson were appointed to select a device on a certain well-remembered day—July 4, 1776, no less, and there was much discussion regarding that important matter. Franklin wanted a design of Moses dividing the Red sea and submerging the hosts of Pharaoh, with the motto, "Rebellion against tyrants is obedience to God." Adams suggested Hercules and his club, while Jefferson preferred the guiding of the children of Israel. Afterward the making of the seal passed into other hands and it was not until June 20, 1782, that the great seal of America with the eagle as it is today, was finally accepted.

The Were-Wolf in England.

A superstitious belief in the were-wolf (an evil creature supposed to be a human being in the form of a wolf) still lingers among the country folk of Hampshire, England. In one district the children are not allowed to take a certain field-path across the downs for fear of meeting this dreaded creature. An old woman of the place when questioned told how her mother and grandmother before her had always warned her of the were-wolf saying: "He looks like a big dog, but he used to be a lady." Other inhabitants of the village show reluctance to cross this path after dusk, and many assert that they have seen upon the downs a large dog which has vanished on being approached. Belief in lycanthropy was widespread during the Dark Ages, when men displaying all the predatory instincts and ferocity of wolves wandered in masses through southern Germany and parts of Italy.

HOW

BEES TAKE POLLEN FROM ONE FLOWER TO ANOTHER.—Insects are chiefly beneficial as pollinizers of blossoms and there are but few plants or trees that do not depend to some extent upon them to carry pollen from one flower to another.

Most of our fruits are largely dependent upon insects, writes A. B. Champlain, and many kinds of crops could not be raised without their assistance. Flowers are visited by members of all the main groups of insects. Bees are the most important, while flies come next.

Butterflies, the insects of flowers par excellence, feed on their sweet nectar, revel in their delicate perfumes and seem almost like another flower as, with dainty wings, they flutter and flit among the blossoms.

Insects are attracted to flowers mainly to obtain food (honey or pollen), being guided by the bright colors, perfumes and odors—depending on the taste of the particular insect.

In this way nature provides an indispensable and important means of carrying pollen from the stamens of one plant to the stigma of another, thus insuring cross fertilization and the production of fruits and seeds.

A bee enters the slipper-shaped lip of an orchid, the pink lady's slipper, in search of honey. It is unable to leave by the same opening. By crawling under the stigma it may escape by one of the two lateral openings at the base of the lip.

As it leaves the flower it rubs against the anther above, thus dusting its back with pollen. Entering the next flower it leaves some of this pollen on the stigma, in this way effecting a complete cross-pollination process.—Nature Magazine.

ORIGIN OF THREE-MILE LIMIT

Nation Could Control Sea Along Its Border as Far as Ancient Cannon's Range.

The doctrine of "freedom of the seas" is of comparatively recent date. Spain and Portugal claimed to divide jurisdiction over them through the famous bull of Pope Alexander VI. Venice claimed the Adriatic and Holland made large claims in the Indies.

It was, therefore, something of a novelty when Grotius, the father of international law, announced that "The boundless and rolling sea was as common to all people as the air," and that "No prince could challenge further into the sea than he could command with a cannon," says Frederick R. Coudert. The doctrine, however, comported well with the rise of the great nations in Europe in the Seventeenth century in its negation of the claim that one nation might exercise lordship over the seas.

Thus, gradually, and after many wars and much controversy between the great maritime powers, it became finally generally recognized that the limit of control of a nation over its adjacent waters was the ancient limit of the cannon range; to wit, three miles.—North American Review.

How Film Lightning Is Made.

Probably most of our readers are sufficiently sophisticated to realize that, when the movie man needs a flash of lightning in his action, he does not have to wait for a thunderstorm to get it. Probably few of them, however, realize how simple and cheap the production of film lightning is. The wooden stand used for the purpose is wired just like an arc lamp. The two contact points are on the two upright arms—a single large carbon constituting the electrical member in the one case, and several smaller ones in the other. By pulling a cord the two contacts are brought together and the circuit established; and when they are released and the circuit broken, there is a momentary flashing arc. The spreading out of the arc effect over the several small carbons of the one contact is responsible for much of the realism of this brand of lightning.—Scientific American.

How Regiment Got Its Name.

The origin of the famous Gordon Highlanders, one of Scotland's crack kilted regiments, was recalled recently by General Sir Ian Hamilton in a review at Aberdeen. It was all due to the "loveliest woman in bonnie Scotland," Jean, duchess of Gordon, who at a time of stress rode to the county fairs in a Highland bonnet and regimental jacket, and scores who else would have spurned the king's shilling received it in rapture from her lips. At the review, Private William Simpson, eighty-seven years old, was present, wearing the Indian mutiny medal. To him General Hamilton remarked: "Lord Roberts always told me that the finest sight he ever saw in his life was the Highlanders advancing in line in front of Lucknow."

How to Clamp Log in Buck.

To keep round firewood from turning in a wood rack or sawbuck, it is necessary only to nail to diagonally opposite arms of the rack eight or ten-inch sections of a broken or discarded crosscut saw. These are placed so that they will project about a quarter inch over the edge of the arm.—Popular Science Monthly.

WHY

An Old Shoe Is Thrown After the Blushing Bride

Throwing a shoe after the bride is the survival of a custom based upon ancient symbolical usages in connection with sandals or shoes. Delivery of a shoe was used as a testimony in transferring a possession. A man plucked off his shoe and gave it to his neighbor, and this was a testimony in Israel.

Throwing a shoe on property was a symbol of new ownership.

From these ancient practices came the old English and Scottish customs of throwing an old shoe after a bride on her departure for a new home, symbolizing that the parents gave up all right or dominion over their daughter.

In Anglo-Saxon times the father delivered the bride's shoe to the bridegroom, who touched her on the head with it to show his authority. In Turkey the bridegroom is chased after marriage by the wedding guests and pelted with slippers.

WIRE MADE CORONA PROOF

Rubber Insulation Deteriorates When Wire Carries High Current Unless Covered With Lead.

Ordinary rubber insulation deteriorates rapidly when the wire carries high-voltage current unless it is covered with a lead sheath. This is because conductors raised to a sufficiently high potential are surrounded by an electrical discharge—luminous in the dark if the voltage is high enough—called corona, which takes place whether the conductor is insulated or not. Corona generates ozone from the oxygen in the air, and ozone very rapidly oxidizes rubber insulation, causing it to crack open, especially on the outside of bends. Although corona discharge takes place at quite low voltages, it does not attain harmful intensity under about 2,000 volts and usually remains invisible up to much higher voltages. If the rubber-insulated conductor is covered with a lead sheath, either the ozone generated by the corona is kept from contact with the rubber or does not occur at all, if the sheath is grounded, so that these cables may be used for transmission voltages. There are some classes of service, however, for which it is desirable to use rubber-insulated, non-leaded conductors for currents at which corona is formed. To this end certain manufacturers of electric cable have introduced a corona-proof wire which is covered with a special saturated braided. This wire has been subjected to the most searching tests, which have shown conclusively that it is proof against the destructive effects of corona.—Electrical World.

Why Maple Sirup Is Thin.

The Indians appreciated the usefulness of the sugar maple tree, and taught the earliest white pioneers how to extract the sugar. They probably relied upon it for their entire supply of sweetening.

The Indians mixed maple sugar with melted bear's fat and made sauce for their roast venison. They used it to sweeten boiled corn, and the parched corn which they carried with them on journeys. There is an old Algonquian legend that explains why maple sugar runs so thin instead of being thick like sirup, as it was originally.

One day Nokomis, the grandmother of Manabush, was roaming through the forests, and by accident cut the bark of a tree. Seeing a rich sirup flow slowly from the wound, she tasted it, and delighted at finding it so sweet gave some to Manabush. He also was much pleased, but felt afraid that if the women of the tribe found the sirup could be obtained so easily, all ready-made, as it were, they would become idle. So, in order to keep his aunts busy, he diluted the sap, making it thin by pouring water over the tops of the trees. This is why the women must boil down the sap to make sirup.—Detroit News.

Why Insects Use Disguise.

"Protective resemblance" to assure their safety by reason of their having such a likeness to something else that the eye of an enemy seeking to do them harm overlooks them, mistaking them for the object mimicked, is common among insects.

A striking example of mimicry is that first made known by H. O. Forbes, who met with it in Java and Sumatra. He noticed a certain butterfly perched on a leaf. He closed finger and thumb over the wings of the insect, which seemed glued to the leaf. "To my surprise, however," Forbes related, "part of the body remained behind, adhering, as I thought, to the leaf. I finally touched it with the tip of my finger, to find it was glutinous. I found that my eyes had been perfectly deceived and that the excreta was a most artfully colored spider lying on its back."

Forbes made the same mistake a second time in Sumatra. He speaks of this extraordinary spider as "a living bait so artfully contrived as to deceive a pair of human eyes even intently examining it."—Detroit News.

Why an Old Fashion Persists.

The wedding ring of plain gold, which is a survival of Saxon times, has outlived several attempts at change of fashion. For instance, at the marriage of Queen Mary of England to Philip of Spain, the English statesmen debated the question of the ring and wished to have it jeweled, but Mary herself intervened by declaring that she would not have it set with gems, for she chose to be wedded with a plain hoop of gold like other maidens.

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 18

OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST A MIS-SIONARY

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 9:35-38; Luke 9:1-3; John 3:16-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—"God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."—John 3:16.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Preaching
in City and Country.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus a Missionary.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—The Missionary Activity of Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC
—Christ's Missionary Zeal.

I. The Missionary Motive (Matt.
9:35-38).

As Jesus saw the multitude His compassion was aroused. Their pitiful condition moved Him to take steps to provide missionaries. The result of this was the sending forth of the Twelve. Jesus saw the multitude as:

1. Shepherdless Sheep (v. 36). The people were in need of a protector, provider and guide, just as sheep are of a shepherd. They were faint and scattered—distressed, cast down and hopeless. What a picture of the needy world today! The world is hungry but knows not how to have this hunger satisfied. They know not which way to turn in their confusion and perplexity. They are in need of that which alone the Good Shepherd can supply.

2. Grain Ready for Harvest (v. 37).
He told the disciples that the grain was ripe, ready for the harvest, and that unless laborers were secured the harvest would be lost. This is still a picture of the world. The laborers are still few. It is the Lord's harvest that is ready to be gathered. No wonder He was moved with compassion! Those who have eyes to see and hearts to feel are still moved with compassion as they see the world ready to be gathered into Christ's fold but no one to perform the labor. The means for securing laborers for the harvest is prayer. He urged the disciples to pray that the Lord would send forth laborers.

II. Classes of Missionaries (Luke 9:1-3).

Three classes are here enumerated:
1. Jesus Himself (v. 1). He is the grand and supreme missionary. All receive their example and power from Him. He left all and gave all in this great enterprise.

2. The Twelve (v. 1). Christ called them and sent them forth. They were His representatives and were clothed with His power. Missionaries should be chosen and commissioned by the Lord himself. In the evangelization of the world there will always be need of the group of men and women devoted exclusively to that work.

3. Certain Women (vv. 2, 3). Christian women can most effectively do their part in preaching the gospel by ministering to the workers. All who have experienced the saving grace of God desire to have a part in sending the gospel to others that they too might be saved. The church is greatly indebted to the work of consecrated women.

III. The Missionary Message (John 3:16, 17).

The salvation which is offered to the lost world was accomplished through the sacrificial death of Christ. Out of a heart of love God gave His own son to die. The figure portraying the method of the Cross and salvation is that of the brazen serpent. The outstanding teaching as suggested by Dr.
Charles R. Erdman is as follows:

"1. That men are, like the Israelites of old, serpent-bitten; but the deadly poison is the sting of sin.

"2. God has provided a remedy in the person of His Son; in His crucifixion we see sin vanquished, as the uplifted serpent pictured the death of the destroyer; yet as the uplifted serpent was not real but one of brass, so Christ was not really a partaker of sin but only made in the likeness of sinful flesh.

"3. As it was necessary for the dying Israelites to accept God's provision, and with submission and faith to look upon the brazen serpent, so it is necessary for us to look in repentance and faith to the crucified Savior and to commit ourselves to God
as He is graciously revealed in Jesus Christ. If we refuse to accept Christ we perish, but faith results in eternal life.

"4. This provision is made by the love of God and is freely offered to everyone who believes. 'For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.'

His Presence.

When we have broken our god of tradition, and ceased from our god of rhetoric, then may God free the heart with His presence.—Emerson.

God's Way.

God's way of forgiving is thorough and hearty—both to forgive and to forget; and if thine be not so, thou hast no portion of His.—Leighton.

Heart and Home.

Without hearts there is no home.—
Byron.

How to Obtain a Great Missionary Advance

Acts 13:1-12

The answer to the question in our topic is perfectly obvious to the careful reader of the Scripture lesson where it is clearly taught that a great missionary advance may be obtained through prayer.

For other examples of this turn to Matthew 9:38, and observe that prayer preceded the great missionary advance recorded in the following chapter. The prayer meeting in Acts 1, led to the missionary advance recorded in Acts 2. See also Acts 4:25-34 as another illustration.

The nature of the prayer meeting recorded in our Scripture lesson is suggestive. It is described in the words—"they ministered to the Lord and fasted." This doubtless involved prayer and intercession, but it also included praise and thanksgiving. Out of grateful and joyful hearts they ministered unto the Lord. The Lord ministers to us constantly. "Out of His fulness have all we received, and grace upon grace." As the sun in the heavens imparts light, warmth and energy in the material world, so does our Lord minister to our needs all the time there is no break or cessation in this matter. It is the believer's privilege to minister unto the Lord, confessing
His name, testifying to His goodness, rejoicing in Him, and devoting what we have to His service and glory. While they were thus engaged in the church in Antioch, a great missionary advance was initiated by the sovereign act of God, the Holy Spirit. In some way He indicated His choice of two men, Barnabas and Saul, for this new enterprise. The church at Antioch recognized His voice and confirmed His choice. They were sensitive to the Spirit's leading, and obedient to His will.

The ideal condition for a great missionary advance, and the results of such a movement are easily discerned in these plainly recorded facts of our Scripture lesson:

Verse 1. The church in prayer.

Verse 1. The supervision and sovereignty of the Holy Spirit in the church.

Verse 3. The acquiescence of the church to the divine leading.

Verse 4. The consciousness of a divine mission.

Verse 5. The preaching of the Word of God.

Verses 6-11. Power to overcome opposition.

Verse 12. Converts to Christ.

Let's resolve:
"To see beyond the present pain
To where the sun will shine again;
To live in God's own better way
In walk, in talk, in act, each day."

SEASONABLE DISHES

A winter salad which is not out of reach of anyone is prepared as follows:

Put through the meat grinder two fresh crisp carrots that have been kept crisp
by proper care in the vegetable bin,
add a tablespoonful or two of cabbage, a small onion, all put through the chopper except the onion, which should be minced with a knife; a stalk of celery will improve this combination, or lacking that, add a little celery salt. Mix with a highly seasoned mayonnaise and serve on lettuce. This gives the family the iron and vitamins needed to keep them in health.

Pork Tongue With Peas and Beets.
—Wash a fresh pork tongue and cook
in boiling salted water until tender.
Remove to a hot platter and into the stock put a can of peas—fresh are better if obtainable. Let cook until done, then thicken with flour mixed with sweet cream; let all boil up together. Pour the gravy and peas around the tongue and serve hot. The beets should be cooked and let stand over night in a sweet, spiced vinegar.

Why not have a camping-out dinner some night at home. Roast the potatoes on the shelf of the furnace door, or in the ashpan of the baseburner, broil the steak in a very hot iron pan sprinkled with salt, turn and cook quickly, spread with seasoning and butter and put into the large flat buns cut open and spread with butter, sandwich fashion. Serve dill pickles, olives, cocoa for the children and coffee for the grown-ups. Try this once and you will be asked to repeat your menu. Any dessert such as pie, cake or cookies to serve with the hot drink will be sufficient.

Even-size onions, roasted on coals at the side of the fire, where they will not burn, are delicious. Peel off the outside, cut open and season with butter, salt and pepper.

For those who do not enjoy olive oil or who find it too expensive, the corn oil will prove very satisfactory.
Make mayonnaise in the same manner as if using the olive oil. French dressing, too, is equally good.

THE RIGHT THING AT THE RIGHT TIME

By MARY MARSHALL DUFFEE

IN BUSINESS HOURS

Labor to keep alive in your heart that little spark of celestial fire—conscience.—George Washington.

IF YOU want to impress your employer as being a thoroughbred, never let him see you adding little finishing touches to your toilet. If you must re-coat your face with powder, adjust your hair net, manicure your nails or add more carmine to your lips, be clever enough to do this where he cannot possibly see you.

There are very few employers who would willingly forbid their employees from using the telephone for any personal matters whatever. Where there is such a strict ruling it is usually because some few employees have taken advantage of telephone privileges and have spent considerable time making and receiving calls of a purely personal nature during business hours.
Not only is it unfair to use the time for which you are paid to work in this way or to make your employer pay for your personal calls—this is a trifling matter—but it really is unfair to make him listen to your telephone small talk. You know how stupid this usually is to a third person, and how annoying to overhear Mamie Brown's coy telephone remarks to her "best young man" when you are attempting to transact some really important business. If you are employed in some one else's office, remember this: If you are allowed to receive 'phone messages during business hours see that they are brief. It is quite possible to be brief to persons over the 'phone without being rude.

Many an office worker seems to be quite unable to get through the morning or afternoon without the taking of almost constant nourishment in the way of candy. Really this probably does often help. Business lunches are too often inadequate and office work is fatiguing. Doubtless the craving for sweets is based on perfectly normal appetite, and sometimes it is easier to get through a hard day's work if we have this additional nourishment. But it is in very bad form, nevertheless, to munch candy during business hours and the young woman who does so is not acting in her own best interest.

IF I MIGHT ASK

By GRACE E. HALL

IF I might ask of God one priceless gift

To bless my life and make it strong and fine,

To help me from the chaos ever sift
Those things which are immortal and divine;

If it were granted that one blessing fall

Upon my earthly path, my joy increasing,

I'd ask a broader charity towards all,
And in mankind a tender faith unceasing.

If I might plead a second time, and gain

The favor that I craved all else
above,

I'd ask the power to soothe another's pain.

And warm some hopeless heart with human love;

Then, when these gifts had both been granted me,

And God the last and choicest one was sending,

I'd ask once more—still broader charity,

And 'in my fellow-men a faith unending.

TOMATOES are usually in season, somewhere; but the canned variety may be procured.

Tomato and Celery Salad.

butter and the same amount of flour cooked together until smooth. Scald a quart of milk with the tail meat of the lobster, finely chopped; strain and add to the liquor. Season with salt and cayenne; then add the tender claw meat, cut into dice, and the body meat.

The Tie That Binds

THE UNITED STATES is a nation of far reaching relationships. Urged onward by new opportunities in a land of boundless resources, families have separated more than in any other land. Few men live where their fathers or grandfathers lived. Domestic ties stretch between communities widely scattered.

Commerce and industry, too, have the same spread of interests.

Though the nation is a federation of states, their boundaries form no barriers to trade. In business and social life, as well as in government, the nation has become a great community.

Hence there is a natural demand for telephone service that has no narrower boundaries than those of the country itself. Such a nation-wide service can be given only through an organization having a uniform policy by means of which all its distant activities can be joined together.

The Bell System provides such a service to meet the needs of a united people.

The fire bell sounded an alarm, on Monday morning, at 7:00 o'clock, that for a short time created considerable anxiety, as the fire was at the Central Hotel. Fortunately, it was discovered before it had gained much headway and prompt measures soon had it under control. The fire started back of the bar in a cupboard among a stock of matches, cigarettes and pipes and had evidently been smoldering for some time. Had the same condition existed an hour or two earlier, the entire building and corner would likely have been involved. The cause of the fire is unknown, but may have been due to mice nibbling the matches. The chief damage to the building was from the dense smoke.

Stonesifer Feed Mixer.

Wm. J. Stonesifer, near Keysville, is the inventor and patentee of a Molasses Feed Mixer that promises to be a big success for use in connection with Feed Mills for making Dairy feed. This mixer can be attached to any standard mill, and will mix as fast as the mill will grind, and without heating the molasses. It is designed for the individual farmer.

Mr. Stonesifer deserves a great deal of credit for his inventive ingenuity, as the mixer has been severely tested and does its work completely. The machine is being manufactured by A. M. Dellinger, Lancaster, Pa., and is already meeting with a fine sale, though not yet fully introduced. Mr. Stonesifer will demonstrate the machine, at any time. See his advertisement in this issue.

Lutheran Brotherhood Meetings.

Rev. Blank, the field Secretary of the Brotherhood of the United Lutheran Church in America, will visit a number of congregations of the Maryland Synod, during the month of November. He will speak in Grace Lutheran Church, in Westminster, on Monday evening, November 19, at 7:30 P. M. He will also speak at Manchester Lutheran Church on Tuesday evening, Nov. 20, and Taneytown Lutheran Church, Wednesday evening, Nov. 21, hoping thus to arouse added interest among the men, not only in distinctly brotherhood work, but in the plans of the local congregations for the winter months. Everybody welcome.

Over One Billion Dollars in cash and securities was transported through several streets in Pittsburgh, last Sunday, when the Union Trust Company moved the contents of its safe deposit vault to the recently completed vault in the new building of the Company. The transfer was made by the officers of the Company, guarded by heavily armed police and detectives. Few knew of the scheduled transfer, and the trucks attracted little attention.

Short Courses in Dairying.

College Park, Nov. 15.—Two short courses in dairying subjects will be offered at the University of Maryland during January, it has been announced by J. A. Gamble, head of the dairy department.

One course in milk testing, designed to qualify men to become milk testers, is scheduled to begin January 7 and continue through the week. Men capable of filling positions as official testers in cow testing associations in the State are in demand, according to Mr. Gamble, and vacant positions of this character will be filled from students completing this course.

The other course will take up the subject of dairy production, including the composition of dairy feeds and their selection, breeds and breeding of dairy cattle, cow testing and advanced registry work and mechanical milking. This course will open January 14 and run for two weeks. The courses are limited to 25 persons.

It is said that former President Wilson is not improving in health, and that his general appearance is that of an invalid. His mind is still unchanged, that his principles will yet prevail, and his most recent expressions are in a bitter vein against those who oppose them.

MR. FARMER!

Do you realize that when you buy your Dairy Feed, that you are paying for a Combination Mill, but never get it? Why not be wise, and buy a Combination Mill, and make your own dairy feed, and soon pay for your Mill with the difference in the cost of your feed? The

"Peerless Combination Mill"

with its four knives, easy to get at, easy to grind right, easy to adjust right, and its two separate hoppers, the roughage hopper next to plates and slide between the two hoppers, to let any amount of grain over with the roughage that you wish. This Mill will surely meet the demands of the most conservative buyer.

Now this feed is not complete without molasses thoroughly mixed with it, which the

Stonesifer's Molasses Feed Mixer

will do to perfection, without any extra time or labor. It attaches to any Combination Mill and completes the feed in one operation. If interested in either machine, write, or phone or call on—
