STRONG FOR SABBATH DAY OBSERVANCE

District Meeting Endorses Work of Lord's Day Alliance.

A district meeting in the interest of The Lord's Day Alliance was held in the Reformed Church, on Sunday afternoon, a fine audience being present.
Rev. G. Wilbur Shipley called the meeting to order, and in happy vein congratulated those present on their manifest interest. Senator D. J. Hesson presided and briefly stated the object of the meeting, then introduced the speaker Dr. W. W. Davis. Rev. Guy P. Bready and Rev. T. D. Ritter also had part in the program.

Dr. Davis presented the work of the Alliance in his usual forceful manner, and gave numerous pointed illustra-tions proving that where the Lord's Day was observed, there was always found the greatest degree of civilization and progress, and everything that stood for Christianity. He es-pecially asked for an exhibition of popular interest at this time, and urged that the law-making season at Annapolis be closely watched, in order that conditions might be bettered, rather than be made worse.

At the close of his address an offering was taken for the work of the association that was liberally responded to. A double quartet from Blue Ridge College sang several selections that added greatly to the success of the meeting. The following indorsement of the Alliance was signed during the meeting by a few to whom it was presented, and would have been generally signed had opportunity been given.

"Believing that the sanctity of the Lord's Day is not only the expressed declaration of the Scriptures, but that it is vital to the life of the Church, the State, the Nation and the World civilization.

"Acres of Diamonds."

The lecture "Acres of Diamonds" by Dr. Russell H. Conwell, at Alumni Hall, Westminster, Monday night, should be heard by all who can gain admission. The Editor of The Record heard it, several years ago. It is a remarkably convincing and abundantly supported refutation of the idea prevalent in the minds of many, that there is "no chance at home," these days, especially for young men. Dr. Conwell shows by numerous illustrations, how such chances have been overlooked, and tells when and how, men succeed.

CHRISTMAS IS COMING!

Of course, you know that, and you perhaps do not need any advice about it; so we merely intimate causually that our merchants have known about the coming of Christmas, too, for quite a long while, and have prepared lots of things for you, for gifts, and for the various uses that Christmas time purchases go for. So, we feel reasonably sure that if you do not buy from them, they will be real disappointed, and will wonder why a lot of people will "go away" and buy a lot of things that for all good reasons should have been bought right at home.

should have been bought right at home.

And as our merchants are going to tell you about what they have for you, in The Record, we too will feel real disappointed if you do not help to give the home-town all the business you can; for the "Really Christmas" means something like home mission work—along with its other meanings; and you can't be a good home missionary without just plain helping everybody to feel happy—at home. Realizing that this country is on the threshold of the greatest industrial development it has ever experienced, Secretary Hoover, with the approval of the President, on October

ELECTRIFYING A NATION.

A Super-power Urged for Our National Benefit.

13 called an Eastern Super-power Conference in New York City for a development in the New England and Middle Atlantic states. Secretary Hoover explained that the conference was not to put more government in business, but as pubic authorities were already deeply interested in power production through many forms of regulation and control over power resources, he felt that co-ordination between public authorities and industries would help in the consummation of a great advance in the development of a great service to the public.

Engineering science has at last made it possible by the perfection of high voltage transmission lines of great length to send power from distant sources to the thickly populated communities. Great economies in distribution can be secured through the inter-connection of load between systems and at the same time assure more security in the power supply from the effect of coal strikes and transportation interruptions.

A power distribution spreads across state lines and into diverse local jurisdictions, engineering, financial, industrial, ownership and legal problems arise which must be co-ordinat-It was with these ideas in mind that Secretary Hoover called the present conference in order that the way might be prepared to handle the coming situation in the most efficient and scientific manner.

Mr. Hoover says: "Every time we cheapen power and centralize its production we create new uses and we add security to production; we also increase the production, we eliminate waste; we decrease the burden of physical effort upon men. In sum, we increase the standards of living and comfort of all our people.

MORE DEATHS FROM ALCOHOLISM.

Alarming Fatalities from "Poison" in Baltimore City.

The Baltimore American, in this Friday's issue says;
"Sensational increase in the death toll from alcoholism in Baltimore this year was reported yesterday by city health authorities. Figures compiled by the statistical division of the city department from death certificates furnished by physicians and coroners show this year's total to be the highest in a decade. Already the number of death from this cause is more than double that of last year, and more than three times the total for 1921.

Health officials attribute the growth health omerals attribute the growth largely to an increasing number of "poison liquor" cases. Many of these have been reported by the police in the last two months. In most cases, however, the reported imbibing of iquor with some poisonous content been accompanied by prolonged drinking. Lack of information as to where the liquor was obtained and mere suspicion as to what it may have contained has made investigation by police and coroners difficult.

Coroners have given certificates of "acute alcoholism" or "chronic alcoholism." No certificate filed in the last year shows death due to poison liquor, according to officials of the division. Coroners say extended chemical tests are necessary to establish presence of any poison. This has not been considered justified unless knowledge of the source of the liquor made possible criminal action.

The last poison case reported was that of William P. Jones, sixty-five,a seaman, 48 Market place, who died at Bay View Hospital after being picked up in the Central district, several days ago. Police sought to trace the source

Health Department figures show deaths from alcoholism ranged in number from 14 to 61 yearly in the decade 1910-1919. The high year was 1913, and the low year 1919. From this low figure of 14 cases the number dropped sharply in 1920, the first year: of prohibition. Only four cases were reported. In 1921 there were 15, and in 1922, 25 cases.

But this year 50 cases had been recorded up to November 1. Four have been added since then.

This makes it certain, according to officials, that the total this year will exceed any in the last 14 years, except the 1913 record of 61 cases, and possibly even that "

We extend our congratulations, and indulge the hope that Mr. and Mrs. Mitten may have many more wedding anniversaries. This makes it certain, according to possibly even that."

The Amendment Defeated.

adverse majority of 23,099. The judges now receive $7,325, the State paying $6,825 and the city $500. Had the amendment carried the State would have continued to pay the $6,825, but the city would have paid $3,175, instead of $500, toward the compensation of each judge.

Here we have the remarkable example of voters defeating an amendment in which they had no financial interest whatever, and we must conclude that many voters were 'against' the amendment, on general princi-ples—to be "against" anything they do not understand, or against increased pay for anybody, no matter who does the paying-neither of which is a display of intelligence.

Emmitsburg Man Wins $5,000 Award.

A verdict for the plaintiff, was returned by a jury, last week, in the case of William Shields, Emmitsburg, in an appeal from the State Industrial Accident Commission. The verdict carries compensation at the rate of $8 per week until the plaintiff receives $5,000, less $200 he has already received.

About 17 months ago Shields was injured by a cave-in of earth and stone while working on the foundation of the new building at St. seph's College, near Emmitsburg. Later a mental disease developed.

Shields was employed by a contractor who had taken out accident insurance and was awarded $8.00 per week compensation by the Industrial Accident Commission. About months later the commission stopped the award and Shields appealed. torneys for the defendant held that the mania was the direct result of the accident. This theory was contested by attorneys for the defense. The jury took the view that the accident caused the mania.

A Case of Quadruplets.

Mrs. George L. Wittig, of Baltimore gave birth to a set of quadruplets, the first of this week. As the family already consisted of eight, the coming of four more at one time, created some consternation. There are three girls and a boy in the covey. The father thinks of calling them Eeney, Meeney, Miney, Mo., while the mother thinks of Faith, Hope and Charity, for the girls.

MINERS' STRIKE FAILS.

Union Mines being Undersold by Non-union Workers.

The miners strike in the Georges Creek region has broken down, after twenty months, and the men are now willing to return to work. Some of the men have entered other occupations, while some have gone into other mining districts. The mines have been in operation, with non-union men, and none of the strikers will be taken back, except to fill vacancies.

None of the radicals, or trouble makers, will be taken back at any time. Many applications for reinstatement have been made, but as the market for bituminous coal is not active, the probability is that few will be given places at present. Mining in Illinois, especially, is at a stand-still, some 140 mines having closed

From various sections came notices of mines with union labor shutting down, until it is said 25,000 miners are unemployed. Aside from the slack demand, many non-union mines are able to market coal at greatly less than unionized mine charges.

The President-making season is opening in fine shape, and it begins to look as though President Coolidge will have to step lively to prevent being killed off before convention time.

And there is the Maryland legislature to come in, after January 1, when old Annapolis will again be the Mecca for newspaper correspondents and axe-grinders. There will be something to put in the papers—just like

The supply of murder cases with a "woman" in the plot, as well as divorce cases in "high life", seems to be running low, even by going to Europe for them. But, there is likely to be, a prolific supply of dry law "failures" and boot-legging horrible examples, to keep the first pages of our city dailies filled with up-to-date attractions.

The vote of Baltimore city was short, at the last election, over 80,000. The complexion of these votes, under different circumstances than prevailed between the two candidates for Governor, might have told a different story, especially as it is pretty generally conceded that the "wets" made a demonstration for Gov. Ritchie, and the "drys" were not pleased with they are loaded on a railroad car. Back Armstrong.

Watch the State Treasury.

One of the chief objects of a session of the legislature, is to prevent the State Treasury from being looted and to put the brakes on the amusement of floating Bond issues. By pretty general consent we already have too many laws of the kind state legislators feel called upon to put through, as evidence that they "were there," and amendments to the constitution are unpopular; so, the main thing to do seems to be to watch the "raiders" and try to keep the tax bills down to payable proportions.

We believe that one whole session could be profitably spent in weeding out, and repealing, many of the old out-of-date, and never properly indate laws, many of which are said to have represented alibis, only, and merely add to confusion; providing may happen to the employer. As there is truth in the wide-spread opinions to this effect. But, the likelihood is that our legislators of the coming session, like those of previous ones, have the idea that they were elected to "make" more laws, rather than waste time as repealers.

However, to return to the first thought, a member of the new legislature will find his best mission, in all probability, in watching the treasury, for the sentiment abroad is to "get things" and to go to Congress and State legislatures as places where the getting is good. The "watchdog of the treasury" act can be overdone, but it would be hard to point to any state wherein the act stands as a horrible example.

An article recently appeared in "The County Editor," a monthly Magazine, headed "How American Farmers are being Bled by Organized Labor," that is too long for our use, but we give below the substance of it, reproducing, word for word, many of the statements made, and suggest their consideration by our readers. The article is addressed to farmers, as a

"You are grubbing along with con-stantly diminishing income while the members of the great Union monopoly are constantly increasing their wages and cutting down their production, and you farmer folk are paying the

Almost everything that human beings require in daily life, except water and fresh air, comes from your farm; yet you are not receiving enough for your products to yield a comfortable living. You are obliged to sell your wheat, wood, cattle, hides and all other products at prices that barely cover the labor cost, but when any of these products come back to you in manufactured form the price amazes you.

The article refers to organized labor as the "Magic-Hand" and cites the high cost of clothing, shoes, and the like, and asks what these prices mean? then gives the answer.

"It means, friend farmer, that the magic hand of oragnized labor has been laid heavily upon you. It has been laid pretty heavily upon nearly everyone in this country, but as the producer of raw products, you are in a position to feel it most just at the present. The moment your products leave your farm and start on the road toward manufacture, the process cost accumulation begins. Every time the magic hand touches them an excessive cost is added. It begins when of the excessive freight rates is the magic hand boosting the price of

> "So he is appealing to Congress for help, and Congress doesn't know what to do. Congress knows all about the magic hand, but fears it. Congress knows what organized labor is doing to the farmer, but organized labor won't argue or arbitrate. Organized labor simply demands. So there you are! And what is the poor Congress-man to do in a case like that? Organized labor says to the manufacturer or mine owner, "Give me what I demand, or I'll close your works.' And it says to the Congressman, "If you monkey with me, I'll take away your job." And so the Congressman keeps quiet about the magic hand and tells the farmer he is looking for some altruistic plan to help him out

Of late there has grown up a fiction that there is an identity of interest between farmers and labor unionists. This is due mainly to the efforts of organized labor to "take the farmer into camp." As a matter of fact, there is hardly anything with respect to which the farmers and organized la bor have a common interest. The farmer is his own employer, and fixes his own hours of labor and his 'wages"-when he can get them. Labor, generally speaking, owns nothing, and is blind to its concern in the welfare of its employer. Its objective is to get the greatest possible return for itself, regardless of what | F. J. one of the leading lights of the labor world remarked, "receivers have always treated us very well." And least of all is organized labor concerned with the prices that may result from steadily climbing labor

These opinions are worth considering, even though some of them may be extreme. The general question is such a big one, and entwined with so many self-interests, that hasty conclusions are unwise; but the article, on the whole, presents a strong argu-

Law for Everybody.

Governor Harding, of Iowa, recently declared that there are 2,000,000 laws and ordinances in effect in the U. S., among them some freak measures that most of us never heard of. He declared in the same speech that law-making is one of our worst habits, and we believe many people will heartily agree with him. The tendency to run the other fellow's business is becoming entirely too general. The "land of liberty" has fast become so law-ridden that almost every citizen violates some law or ordinance unintentionally every day of his life.

This country needs a rest from legislation. All the honest taxpayer wants is protection, and he has those laws already, if they are enforced. If our legislators would spend a little more time in repealing some or the poor laws, and laws that are never enforced, instead of trying to get a lot of new and unnecessary ones on the statute books they'd soon realize that their services are worth a good deal more to the people who voted them into office than they are worth now.-Ellicott City Times.

A Natural Alliance.

Instead of an organized labor alliance with the farmer a new idea has been sprung, that of a banker-farm-

The new combination will involve co-operative marketing and greater diversification and business efficiency on the farm.

Bankers have profited by farm bank deposits, farm bank loans, and in turn have helped farmers improve their live stock and purchase labor saving machinery. And farmers are not naturally socialists.

Upon a statement of its belief in three fundamental agricultural policies-diversification, sound co-operative marketing and improvement of unit efficiency on the farm-the agricultural commission of the American Bankers' Association has built a plan for bringing the farmer and the banker into an alliance of understanding and mutual assistance in every part

Features of the plan include organization of bankers' committees on agriculture in every federal reserve district, then by states and then by counties or groups of counties.

No single specific program will serve for the whole country. But nationally and by states bankers will be committed to close co-operation with agricultural colleges, to encouragement of boys' and girls' clubs as the hope for a new generation of competent agrarians, and development of new agricultural enterprises in states which today stand or fall as single crops prospers of fails.

Co-operative enterprise is infinitely better than socialism, government ownership, government price fixing and all the legislative cure-alls ever devised.—The Manufacturer.

Postoffice Head to Cabinet in 1829. The office of postmaster general, created upon the organization of the postoffice system in 1794, was not deemed of sufficient importance and dignity to entitle its incumbent to a seat in the President's councils, and it was not until 1829 that, by action of President Jackson, the postmaster general became a cabinet officer.

The secretary of agriculture was established as a member of the cabinet February 11, 1889.

The department of commerce and labor was added to the cabinet February 14, 1903. In 1913 this department was

The Iliad Dramatic.

In Virgil's poetry a sense of the greatness of Rome and Italy is the leading motive of a passionate rhetoric, partly veiled by the "chosen delicacy" of his language. Dante and Milton are still more faithful exponents of the religion and politics of their time. But in Homer the interest is purely dramatic. There is no strong antipathy of race or religion; the war turns on no political event; the capture of Troy lies outside the range of the Iliad. Even the heroes are not the chief national heroes of Greece. The interest lies wholly (so far as we can see) in the picture of human action and feeling .-D. B. Munro.

AS TO WOMEN'S HIGH HEELS

Biologist Predicts Ultimate Loss of All Toes but One if Their Use Continues.

A London biologist is quoted as making the prediction that if women keep on wearing high heels they will find themselves eventually with only one toe, says the New York Herald. With the high heels now worn, he says, three toes are sufficient for walking; and as nature always gets rid of superfluous organs it seems likely that in the course of time women's toes will be reduced to three, and perhaps later to two, or even one.

The biologist is not mentioned by name but apparently he accepts a theory that most evolutionists have abandoned. The present view of orthodox biologists is that acquired characteristics are not inherited.

Even Bernard Shaw, who, venturing into this controversy in "Back to Methuselah," argues with his usual energy against the orthodox view, admits that many generations of Chinese women have bound their feet "without producing the slightest tendency on their part to be born with abnormally small feet.'

He also, descending the scale, concedes that the clipped ears and docked tails which fanciers have inflicted on generations of dogs have not affected the ears and tails of the dogs' puppies. And descending still further, he recalls the experiments of the biologist Weismann, who cut off the tails of a colony of mice, and the tails of the children of the mice, and the tails of the children of the children of the mice, without finding that the tails of the descendants were any shorter than those of their ancestors.

So the toes of coming generations are probably safe regardless of the fashion in women's footwear.

QUEER FACTS ABOUT DRESS

Cut and Make of Some of Our Common Articles of Apparel Explained.

We still have buttons, but no buttonholes, on the cuffs of overcoats. They were originally introduced in the Seventeenth century, when coat cuffs were intended to turn back.

The stripes down the sides of some trousers are a survival from the time when breeches were made so close in fitting that they had to be buttoned on.

The buttons are forgotten, the stripes alone remain, says Pearson's Weekly. The swallow-tail coat is the descendant of that which was buttoned back to save the lining from getting dirty by rubbing against the hide of a horse. Side pockets on coats were the outcome of the slash made to permit the projection of the sword handle.

Stockings were once made from a straight piece of material. The clocks down the sides are the survival of the seam that made a fit possible.

The leggings worn today are "direct descendants" of the leather stockings

Buttons were at one time regarded as ornaments, and many people, because of this, refused to wear any buttons but those which were absolutely necessary to keep their clothes together.

Lower Berths for All.

Spaciousness and comfort both day and night, and a lower berth for everybody, are provided in an ingenious new design for sleeping cars proposed by M. C. Krarup, consulting engineer, and described in Popular Science Monthly. Two rows of seats, of the design of armchairs, are proposed for each side of the car, these doubling its seating accommodation in the daytime but without crowding. At night, partitions similar to Venetian blinds divide the car into compartments and the chairs are converted into berths by lowering the back cushions and extending the seats. Each compartment would contain comfortable headroom, a wash basin and a large mirror.

Figures Were Not There.

The class had been told to draw a picture of a river with two figures sitting on the bank. Going round the class the teacher came to a boy who had finished his drawing. She looked at his paper and was surprised to find only a river.

"Why, Jack," she said, "where are the two people I told you to draw?" "Well, you see, miss," he answered, "I'm not very good at drawing people so I put up a notice: 'Trespassers will be prosecuted."

Dignity Respected.

Among the less familiar stories about Charles M. Schwab is this one: "Mr. Schwab, who is very fond of farce comedy, one day bade his secretary get him two tickets for 'Charlie's Aunt.' Summoning the office boy the secretary said: 'Go round to the theater and get two tickets for 'Charlie's Aunt."

The boy hesitated anud said: "But hadn't I better say Mr. Schwab's aunt, sir?"—Boston Transcript.

Unprofitable Producers

Should Be Fowls to Eat (Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Ability to choose between the laying hen and the nonlayer is easily developed by poultry owners and should be put into practice in culling the flock if the best returns in both eggs and meat are to be had. In any flock some hens will be found which are such poor producers that they are unprofitable; and these should be the ones to eat.

All hens molt in the fall or early winter. This molting characteristic is easily observed and, when it starts to take place, means that the hen has about finished her laying season and is turning her attention to growing a new crop of feathers for a vacation before she starts her next year's work. If it is desirable to use a part of the flock for meat, says the United States Department of Agriculture, the early molters are the ones to select for eating first because they are laying very few or no eggs during this molting season which usually lasts about three months. The hens in the flock should not be killed until they begin to molt and their combs begin to lose size, color and flexibility, for if these changes have not taken place the hens will probably still be laying when eggs are especially valuable.

As a rule hens of the general-purpose breeds are not profitable layers after they are two years old, and Leghornhens rarely lay profitably after three laying years. Many of the hens should be culled before they reach these ages and replaced by well-matured pullets in the fall.

Oyster Shell Required

by Egg Producing Hens Oyster shell should be kept constantly before laying hens. Experiments show that fowls will draw lime from the body skeleton if oyster shell is not obtainable in sufficient quanti-

That oyster shell is an essential part of the feeding ration and that it should be kept before fowls continuously is clearly shown in the following excerpt from circular 27 of the West Virginia experiment station, entitled, Feeding for Egg Production, by Prof. Horace Atwood:

"A relatively large amount of lime is required in the formation of egg Wheeler found that crushed oyster shell when fed to laying hens was the principal source of the lime present in the shells, and he advised feeding oyster shell, especially during the laying season. That his conclusions were correct is indicated by the almost universal use of oyster shell for this purpose. One pound of oyster shell will furnish lime for about seven dozen eggs.

finds that, contrary to popular belief, a lack of calcium or lime in the feed has not caused the production of softshelled eggs, the hen apparently drawing on her skeleton for the needed calcium. Soft-shelled eggs, therefore, appear to be due to some pathological condition rather than to a lack of calcium in the feed. A scant supply of calcium seems to decrease egg production. This result is important from poultry raisers, believing that softshelled eggs indicate a lack of calcium, do not feed oyster shells unless their hens lay soft-shelled eggs. It is thus possible that a lack of egg production during the late winter months may be due to a lack of sufficient calcium.

"Since oyster shell is relatively cheap and since fowls need lime from this or a similar source, at least when they are laying, it is good practice to keep a supply constantly available."

* Practical Poultry Notes

Hens more than thirty months old seldom pay.

Never ship in cedar boxes, as cedar taints the flesh.

A spring chicken is a young bird weighing over two pounds.

A broiler should not be more than sixteen weeks old, nor weigh more than two pounds. * * *

To establish a regular demand and income, marketing must be done on regular fixed days.

The head of the dressed carcass should be tucked back under the wing, when packed for shipment.

Do not sell or kill off the old geese or ganders on account of their age alone. Old geese are better breeders than young ones unless decrepit.

All carcasses to be shipped should be dry-picked, as scalded poultry will not stand long shipments. The home trade, however, prefers birds scalded.

necks or crooked legs should be killed at the time the clutch is put in the brooder. Such chicks are useless and die sooner or later.

ANCESTOR OF GARDEN GREENS

Sea Cabbage a Weed That Grows Wild Near Dover and Sometimes Is Eaten.

If you are walking on the chalk cliffs near Dover you may notice a tall weed with pale yellow flowers which begins to bloom in May and continues to do so right through the summer. It grows about two feet high and has leaves of a deep green tinged with yellow and purple.

This homely looking plant is the sea cabbage, and is actually the ancestor of all our garden greens, cabbages, cauliflower, broccoli and the various kales. It is, or was, very common on the Dover cliffs and is sometimes collected and the leaves stripped off and boiled.

Many of the vegetables we cultivate in our gardens come from the coast, where their ancestors still grow wild, says London Tit-Bits. The sea beet grows in many places on the shore, and has green blossoms and thick, wavy leaves. But the thick, red, fleshy root has been obtained only by centuries of cultivation.

Sea kale is purely a maritime plant, and this is proved by the fact that a little salt-not too much-is an excellent fertilizer for the cultivated va-

WOMEN STILL DOWNTRODDEN

Management Won't Let the Oppressed Creatures Even Smoke in This Office Building.

Poor woman! She gained the right to vote, to smoke, to go to boxing matches, to participate in athletics, to enter business—in fact, she's on a par with man in every field of activity, says the New York Sun and Globe. And not on an equal footing with man, but surpassing him in many things, she insists.

But, alas! In one instance at least she is doomed to defeat. The scene is a downtown office, where smoking is prohibited. Yes siree, not even the manager can use his favorite weed while sitting at his desk, but must join the office boy and lowly salesman out in the corridor when he desires to smoke. Not so for milady, who has just as much work and responsibility as at least half of the office force. She likes a "drag" occasionally, too, but where can she have it? The rule denies her the privilege of deriving inspiration from the weed while she types, and only the men occupy the hallway and in the lounging room the matron absolutely refuses the girls the right to smoke. Poor girl, what good do women's rights do her?

Few Aliens in New Zealand.

At present in New Zealand less than one-half of 1 per cent of the population consists of aliens, according to a recent report to the Department of Commerce from Vice Consul John E. Moran, Wellington. Of the 5,440 aliens, more than four-fifths remained in North island, where climatic conditions were more to their liking. The majority of the Syrians, centered in Dunedin, are merchants and manufacturers of clothing, while the Indians follow no particular occupation. Of the 3,270 Chinese registered, 21 per cent are merchants, 39 per cent market gardeners and 12 per cent launderers. The aim of the New Zealand government is to enforce the immigration restriction act and prevent as far as possible an undue increase over the present percentage of any aliens.

Fourteen Miles in Nine Years. Augusto Baldenweck, a merchant of Colmar, Germany was in Metzeval on August 5, 1914, and from there mailed a postcard to a friend, Paul Hatz, officer of the One Hundred and Seventyfirst regiment of infantry at Munster, a small town near Colmar. The card never reached its destination, but on July 7 of this year it was returned to the sender in Colmar, thus taking nine years to travel 14 miles. The distance from Metzeval to Munster is about three miles, and from Munster to Colmar it is 11 miles.

Wasting Pencils.

With twice the population of the United States, Europe uses only half as many pencils a year. This is the statement of Lothar W. Faber, one of the leading pencil makers of the world. Why should the American use four times as many pencils as the European? Mr. Faber says the prime reason is waste. The American throws away a pencil when it is only half used. He cuts off a lot of it in unnecessary sharpening. He is thoughtless, careless. The European holds on to the pencil to the last fraction of wood and lead.

The McMahon Transportation Company, of Hampstead, is considering the advisability of putting a passeng-er truck on our recently furnished macadam highway between Hampstead and Hanover, taking in Man-chester, Melrose, and Pleasant Hill, making daily trips, or, perhaps twice each day. We know it would be a great accommodation, as many people, especially in the towns named, do not have a touring car, whether it would be a paying proposition, remains to be seen.

A number of army trucks passed through here, last week, bound for Elkridge, Md., a reminder of the great World War of 1914 to 1918, pointing out to us the useless expense and heartaches incurred by that grim

The Pennsylvania Railroad has just completed at its Altoona Works a passenger locomotive of new type, forty-five percent more powerful than its present standard heavy passenger engine, the Class K-4s, Parific type. The new locomotive, known as Class M-1, is of the 'Mountain' type, which has not hertofore been used on the Pennsylvania. This type may be distinguished from the Pacific type by reason of having one more pair of driving wheels.

The M-1 type has been designed in anticipation of the future demands of the passenger service for more powerful locomotives, and the one locomotive just built will be thoroughly test-ed in service to insure that it will efficiently and economically meet the requirements. It is expected that in coal and steam economy, the M-1 will duplicate, in the passenger service, the very satisfactory performance of the new Class I-1s locomotives in the freight service. Higher boiler pressure, longer piston stroke, and smaller diameter of driving wheels are the principal features which give the new engine a forty-five percent increase in power with an increase of but twenty-five percent in weight, as compared with the class K-4s locomotive. To facilitate shop work and maintenance, the front and trailer trucks, and certain other details of the new engine have been made interchangeable with those of other classes of passenger locomotives The M-1 has cylinders 27 inches in diameter, with 30 inch stroke, and driving wheels 72 inches in diameter. With a boiler pressure of 250 pounds per square inch, it develops a tractive or starting power of 64,550 pounds. In working order the locomotive and tender weigh approximately 544,000 pounds. Their total length is 84 feet % inches

This is the second new design of passenger locomotives developed by the Pennsylvania Railroad in recent months, the other being the ten-wheeler, Class G-5s, designed for heavy local and suburban service. The first of the G-5s class was turned out last July, and an order for forty has since been completed at Altoona Works. These locomotives are giving very satsfactory service at different points on

During the month of November Mrs. Biddle made nine comforts and three quilts."

DOWN through the centuries, from the time of the Cave Man to the present day, the Story of Oil takes us through many interesting chapters. The ancient Egyptians, the Greeks, the Romans, and countless other nations of history, ancient and modern, have written strange stories about Oil. Hand in hand with the development of the uses of Oil go weird fables, highly interesting to us now.

EACH WEEK, beginning next week, one of these interesting stories will appear in this paper. Watch for the first of the Story of Oil series, "The First Oil Lamp," next week.

The Worm Turned

By MARTHA WILLIAMS

(@, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) Lucinda said spitefully: "If Gorwell save our time, temper and wear and tear by staying at home. Not a man there will pay the least attention to us unless she sulks and won't look at anybody."

"Must be aggravatin'," Lem Lenox bantered. "Running against sixty thousand—and father. It must be like bluffin' when the other fellow holds four aces—and a pair of bowie knives."

"You go to Halifax," Lucinda flung at him. Lem bowed grandly, saying: "With all the pleasure in life-if only I'm told what to go for."

"Heap of things you might try to find-almost anywhere," Lucinda returned acidly. "A civil tongue, for instance, and common decency; and not to make a fool of yourself-same as all the rest."

"Dear me, I'm learning things. Until now I didn't dream Halifax kept school for all that." L'em returned, shaking his head, but meekly: "Say, Cindy," he ran on, "let us plot against the Endowed One. Seven sorts of a fool in spite of her thousand-dollar edjycashun she's forever talkin' about. It should be easy-"

"It isn't-just because she is such a fool," Lucinda interrupted. "Tricking her into makin' a show of herself would be the same as eggin' on an

"Or even a widower-man?" Lem twinkled wickedly over the query. Lucinda flung an apple at his head-because it was the thing handlest. He caught it with both hands, saying loftily: "Ah, ha, young person, I'm getting on your curves. The whitehaired one among Eve's daughtersthat's what you must be tempting one thus with apples from the happy paths of folly-" "Quarrelin' as usual-you two! I wonder you haven't worn the tips off your tongues at that game," Sue Davis Thompson hurled at them through the opening door, following the speech herself in a gale of laughter, and thereby moving Lem to say: "You forget, Sue Davis, rubber don't disintegrate in the strongest acid."

"Go to-Guinea," from Sue Davis. Lem bowed gravely, saying: "Delighted, but I'm already under orders for Halifax. Ladies, settle it betwixt you which it shall be."

"I say, you better go home-or to heaven," Aunt Peg called from the dining room, where she was setting down cakes hot and spicy, fresh from the oven. Lem sniffed and sighed, saying: "My nose forbids-and always I follow it. Peggy, darling, cain't ye produce the cake of peace? Stop our mouths with-what I'm smellin'and I'll murder the next one who dares to speak a cross look."

"Carried? Unan-i-mously!" Sue Davis shrieked. Aunt Peg came to the door, a glistening white cake held in both hands higher than her head. She shook it and said, smiling and twinkling: "Bait for your betters! Think I'll waste it on you rowdy drap-shots? No, sir-ee, Bob! Billy Barlow can eat every crumb of this; he's so cake hungry, with a wife three months buried. I'm almin' to cut out Gorgeous Jones with him. Cindy is such a stickin-the-mud, she won't even try-and I do want that man in the family-his life insurance is so handsome and he's Hable to make collection of it easy next time he gets real cussin' mad. Then think of the dignity-Mrs. Judge Barlow! That alone 'll be worth this cake and another-'

"Peg, you mercenary wretch," Lem exploded. Sue Davis couldn't speak for laughing-even Lucinda was giggling nearly as hard as she. It was relief to hear lusty hallos at the lawn gate, even though it meant Lem's ushering in Judge Barlow, red and puffing. Ruddy, massive, quivering when he walked, he smiled at all hands, saying as he sank upon the settee: "Now ef I didn't love everybody in this house I'd have ye up for keepin' sech pizen mean dogswouldn't let me come nigh the yard gate, ner get back in my buggy. Chased me inside the horse lot and made me climb a wagon and stood there yappin' and snappin' and dancin' like everything-

"I know, Cindy's trained 'em that way," Lem interrupted gravely. Aunt Peg hissed at him:

"Liar!"

Sue Davis cried: "Yes, she does, judge!" Whereat Lucinda, with the courage of desperation, nodded, saying a little thickly: "I see I must explain. I'm trainin' them, you see, to give to poor, dear Gorgeous. We all know how she is bothered with all sorts and conditions of men. Don't believe I could count her proposals since her old man died, yet I'm pretty good at 'rithmetic over ordinary things. Aunt Peg is right ashy over the way she takes all eyes, and Sue Davis turns like a spitting cat at thought of her. Now. I like her.

"Don't try to pull any of that book stuff," Lem managed to gasp. The others were too stunned for speech. The worm had turned with a vengeance. Cindy was running on, "No book stuff at all. Lemuel. Real frozen truth. You see, she confides in me, knowing I don't aspire to rival her anywhere, so I'm going to tell the Judge. She said to me only yesterday she's so naive-almost infantile-" that he was the man she'd like to marry because he had more money than she did, so would be entirely disinterested."

"Did she say that sure enough?" Judge Barlow asked breathlessly.

"You go ask her if she didn't," Cindy counseled recklessly. "Quick! I'll keep the dogs off while you get a start, and offer both of you advance congratulations."

The judge beamed. "I could kiss ye for that, Cindy," he said, as they went together outside.

"But he won't," said Cindy over her shoulder in a stage whisper. Next minute she was whistling up the dogs. "A nice kettle o' fish you're fryin',"

Aunt Peg flung at her when she came back, head up, eyes dancing. "Fineif you happen to like suckers," she said airily. "I've made a fine match -and rid the neighborhood of the incubuses that were spoiling everything-'

"The plural is incubi," Lem broke in loftily.

Cindy made a face at him, then turned sternly upon Sue Davis with: "Unless you marry Lem inside of six months I'll tell the curate how daffy you were about him-until you found out his curls were a wig. Understand -I'm desperate-tired of being put upon, picked on by all of you. I've kept Lem in hand for you, to save him from fool entanglements-now I'm through-he may do whatever he pleases-whether it leads to hanging or matrimony."

"Tell me this," Aunt Peg broke in: "Did Gorgeous really say that about Billy Barlow?"

Cindy giggled. "No-she only thought it-without knowing that she did. You see, I'm a mind-readerwhen the words are only of one syllable."

"I'm sure he never really thought of her," Aunt Peg speculated.

"But he will-never you fear," Cindy said, rising,

Lem stayed her retreat. "I meant not to tell you till we were all at the party," he said. "But Lee Delbert is coming to it, a whole thousand miles, to find out if you haven't changed your mind. I've been writing him that you would-if he gave you the right chance. By way of helping him to it, hear this: Gorgeous, poor soul, proposed to him outright-after he'd played round with her a bit, trying to make you jealous. He didn't tell meshe herself did. You told me once if one found the values wrong the picture ought to be changed. Willing to take your own medicine?"

"Yes," said Cindy bravely, with a lovely blush. "But don't you dare tell him so before I have the chance."

LETTERS THAT WRECK LIVES

How Pests of the Pen Are Tracked by Various Methods and Sometimes Caught.

More anonymous letters are being written today than ever before. This is the alarming verdict of a well-known handwriting and forgery expert.

Seventy per cent of the writers go undiscovered, the remaining 30 per cent being traced by various methods, says London Tit-Bits

The investigator ascertains, in the first place, whether the recipient of the letter suspects any particular person. If he does, the inquiry naturally is confined to one direction, steps being taken to secure an example of the suspected person's handwriting. With this to guide him, the investigator compares the handwriting in the example with that in the anonymous

He uses the microscope to enable him to detect minute similarities and differences, and the camera to record and enlarge these details.

Usually the anonymous letter is photographed and enlarged bodily, each individual character in the enlargement being cut out afterward and pasted in a reference album.

All the A's are pasted in one row, all the B's in another and so on. This makes the work of comparing the letters considerably easier.

Frequently it happens that the writer of the anonymous letter is given away by a trifling detail. An uncrossed "t" repeated three times in the same letter sufficed to convict one of these criminals, while joins in the middle of strokes have often led to their downfall.

SHOWS WASTE OF WATER

Pocket Piece With Holes Issued to Enable Average Person to Visualize Amount Lost.

Those best qualified to express an interest in waste of water are those who have the bills to pay. It is in communities where water is not metered that waste is most apt to be ignored, but in the long run the waster pays the bill. To enable the average person to visualize the amount of waste that can result from leaving tiny streams running, a Mattoon, Ill., maker of waterworks equipment has issued a pocket piece resembling a $20 gold

This will assure its attention at the start, says the Scientific American. Of three tiny holes which are bored through it, the largest is only oneeighth of an inch in diameter, yet the pocket piece bears the legend that in a day of twenty-four hours, 3,600 gallons of water would be wasted from an opening of this size. Another hole which will not permit the insertion of a pencil lead is stated to be the potential waster of 960 gallons per day; while a third hole just large enough to receive a pin is nevertheless large enough to permit the flow of 180 gallons or over 31/2 barrels. This corresponds to about 140 cubic feet per

The figures given are for a head of forty pounds. Higher pressures would increase the waste, though not in direct proportion to their values. The next time you see a tiny leak remember that it is capable of making a larger dent in the purse than appearances would indicate, and do not be surprised if a rigid inspection of plumbing is carried out at times when a water famine is a possibility.

Nut Trees for Wayside.

The American Tree association, an organization devoted to the encouragement of arboriculture, asks why nut trees should not be planted along the waysides of this country, both for use and beauty. The obvious answer is that they should. It happens that the nut trees of this country are almost without exception desirable, not only for their nuts, but for every reason that makes tree planting worth while. They are mostly trees of large size; they are beautiful; and when they are cut the timber which they supply is of high quality.

In his recent work on "Trees as Good Citizens," Charles Lathrop Pack mentions an instance where a black walnut grew from the seed in Pennsylvania and bore seven nuts in its fourth year. That, of course, was an extraordinarily precocious walnut, but the tree in ordinary cases grows rapidly enough to satisfy any reasonable man, and, unlike the growth of poplars and soft maples, it lives to a great old age.-Detroit Free Press.

A resort to a brilliant color scheme in order to change the policy of a great public service corporation is distinctly a new departure and a triumph for the theories of the decorators. It is being done in New York city, where, in an effort to turn patronage from the overcrowded subways to the elevated railroads, the cars and stations of the latter are being painted a brilliant orange with black letters. The gorgeous orange and black cars, flashing overhead like huge orioles.

LESSON FOR DECEMBER 2

THE POWER OF THE EARLY CHURCH

LESSON TEXT-Acts 2:1-4; 37-42. GOLDEN TEXT-"Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."—Acts 2:21.

PRIMARY TOPIC - Peter Telling About Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Three Thousand Converted in One Day. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—A Brave Preacher and a Great

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC -The Source of Missionary Power.

The power of the early church was the Holy Spirit. This same Spirit has been the power of the church in all ages. The watchword of God's mightiest men throughout the centuries has been, "Not by might nor by power, but by my spirit saith the Lord of Hosts." (Zech. 4:6.) The mightiest forces in the world are spiritual.

1. Time Of (v. 1). It was on the day of Pentecost. "Day of Pentecost" means the feast which was held fifty days after the wave sheaf was offered (Lev. 23:15-16). It was observed by presenting two loaves made of the new wheat (Lev. 23:17). These loaves were baked with leaven, while leaven was excluded from the Passover feast (Lev. 23:6). The reason Christ's sacrifice, while Pentecost represented the church, composed of Jews and Gentiles-the two loaves. Christ had no sin in Him while the men and women composing the church have sin in them

The feast of Pentecost in a figurative sense still continues, for the body of Christ is not yet complete. Pentecost was a most fitting time for the coming of the Spirit.

2. Upon Whom the Spirit Came (v. 1; cf. 1:13-15).

The twelve and others to the number of 120. The coming of the Spirit was not merely for the twelve but for all believers-members of the body of Christ. They were in "one place, with one accord" waiting for the fulfillment of "Father's promise" (Luke 24:49). With a group of believers thus with eyes fixed upon Christ in expectation of the fulfillment of His promises, wonderful blessings are sure to come. If the church would be with one accord in one place wonderful blessings would come still.

II. The Marks of the Spirit (vv. 2-4.) These marks were external and internal.

1. External.

(1) The Sound of a Mighty Wind. There was no wind-only the sound thereof. This suggests the all-pervasive life-giving influence of the Holy Spirit.

120 was crowned with such a tongue. The tongues show the practical purpose of the Spirit's gifts, and the fire indicates His purifying energy, purging the dross and making fit witnesses

(3) Speaking in Foreign Tongues. For these humble Galileans to thus speak caused great amazement.

2. Internal. This is seen in the transformation wrought in the disciples. They have great courage and self-possession. Peter, who a little while before was cowering before a Jewish maid, now with lion boldness stood before the thousands of Jerusalem and a little later before the chief rulers of the city and declared that they had murdered their King.

III. The Converting Power of the Holy Spirit (Acts 2:37-42).

Many people were convicted of their sins-about three thousand repented and were baptized. This revival was real because:

1. They continued steadfast in the apostles' teaching. They did not grow cold or run after every fad that came along. This is the real test of conversion.

2. They continued in fellowship with the apostles. The surest way to grow is to keep in fellowship with Christians. Death is sure to follow the neglect of the fellowship of the brethren in Christ.

3. In using the means of grace, "In the breaking of bread," God has instituted ordinances in His house and those who are genuinely converted will avail themselves of their use.

4. In prayer the apostolic church was a praying church. The Christian life cannot be lived without prayer.

Good Deeds.

The influence of a good deed is great upon the world, but the reflex influence upon the doer is a priceless thing. -Gospel Banner.

False Prophets.

False prophets and teachers have ever been speakers of pleasing words and glorifiers of the conditions of their times. Thus only can they hope to secure popularity, ease, and the other things they are after.

Insufficient for That Day.

I have been driven many times to my knees by the overwhelming conviction that I had nowhere else to go. My own wisdom and that of all about me seemed insufficient for that day .-

December 2 Lessons from the Psalms-the Life-Obedience Psalm Psalm 40:1-11.

Chicago, Ill.

The thought of life-obedience in this Psalm finds its chief expression in verses 6-8. It is recognized by the writer of the Psalm that sacrifices of itself is not sufficient as an offering to God; but rather the sacrifice of onesself in a life of devotion and service is required. See Romans 6:13, 12:1 for further development of this truth.

Prior to the recognition of this principle there is the lesson of the opening verses, 1-5, in which grateful acknowledgement is made for deliverance from the pit of sin and establishment of the walk of faith. This is the order of experience, deliverance must precede devotion and service. In other words, life-obedience issues from a grateful heart constrained to sacrificial service by the mercies of God in salvation.

In verses 9 and 10, cheerful testimony is given in the congregation to the righteousness, faithfulness and loving kindness of the Lord. Then in 1. The Coming of the Spirit (Acts verse 11 petition is offered that the tender mercies of the Lord by which deliverance had been effected, might continue in all the subsequent experiences of life. This corresponds closely with New Testament teaching, of which Titus 3:5 is an example where we read of the mercies of God manifest not only in our regeneration but in our renewing as well. Salvation is both an act and a process, and the mercy of God is just as necessary for the process as for the initial step. was that the Passover feast typified It is well to remember this lesson, for out of it come the courage and strength for life-obedience. Hebrew 10:5-14 should be read together with Psalm 40:6-8 for this is a Messianic Psalm and the perfect fulfilment of devotion and sacrifice even unto death is found only in Him, the perfect "Son of Man."

It is wonderful how large a little bit of a fraction will grow, if you only multiply it enough.—Robert Beverly Hale.

A VARIETY OF GOOD THINGS

Who does not enjoy a good cake? Packed eggs when carefully kept may be used for such a cake. Silver Loaf Cake .-Take two and threefourths cupfuls of pastry flour, one and one-fourth cupfuls of granulated sugar, two-thirds of a cupful of water, one-half cupful of butter, the whites of seven eggs, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of flavoring extract and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Cream the butter and add the sugar, mix until well blended, then add the flour sifted with the dry ingredients, alternating with the water; fold in the stiffly beaten whites and bake in a moderate oven for one hour.

Pound Cake.—Take ten eggs, one pound, or two cupfuls of sugar; one pound, or four cupfuls of flour; threefourths of a pound, or one and onehalf cupfuls of butter; two teaspoonfuls of lemon extract; add one teaspoonful of salt. Cream the butter and sugar until white and foamy. Separate the egg yolks from the whites and beat well. Add alternately one heaping tablespoonful of flour with a small portion of the beaten volk and white, beating the mixture well between each addition of flour and egg. The success of a pound cake depends upon the beating and the baking. Put into a very slow oven and increase the heat to a moderate oven and bake one hour and a half.

Sweet Apples and Quinces.-Core a half-dozen sweet apples, fill the centers with chopped quince, add sugar and water and bake until well done. Serve as a dessert with whipped Honey Hermits.—Take one cupful of butter, one and one-half cupfuls of honey, strained, one teaspoonful of soda, three eggs, five cupfuls of flour, one teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of cinnamon, two and one-fourth cupfuls each of chopped raisins and nut meats. Dissolve the soda in the honey which has been slightly warmed, with the dry ingredients. Add the fruit and nuts last. Drop from a spoon on a buttered sheet and bake in a moderate oven.

Mr. Wombat is always looking for the perfect office boy-like the one in the third reader who picked up the pin. He had never yet found him, but the other day thought he had him. The boy didn't seem so promising, but was told to look in again the next morning. As the kid went out he stooped over and salvaged something. "Call him back," directed the boss.

The bookkeeper called him back. "What did you pick up just then, my fine little fellow?" asked the boss.

The kid extended a grimy palm. In it reposed a cigar butt.

Something to Think About By F. A. WALKER

WHERE the oceans, seas and rivers are, where happiness dwells, where progress wends its way among the nations, the tides are running day and night in perfect harmony with the mysterious force which is prompting swaying, driving and compelling every animate creature to action.

Slowly we learn that these unfore seen tides which seem so irresistible, so destructive to our fondest dreams and aspirations, can be made subservient to our wishes, and how by a stroke or two we may swim strongly with their currents and reach our

To some of us the very thought of the constant motion of these tides suggests that they are opposing us, seeking to sweep us under, when in reality they are intended to develop our prowess to keep our heads above the waters and carry us safely on to our destination in spite of ourselves.

We balk at doing this or that because of opposition. We lack the courage to breast the flood. In a moment of despair we feel that it is preferable to destroy our ambitions and forget them than it is to make the fight. It is pleasanter to sit by the fire and picture castles in the air than it is to erect them on a substantial foundation. And frequently, while we are thus idly dreaming, the tides pick us up and whirl us off to some destitute island. If in our temporary isolation we regain our senses and see ourselves as we really are, we summon our spiritual and physical strength and strike out boldly for the main-

Whatever our sensations may have been in the grip of such emotions, if we have within us the right qualities, we are likely later in our careers to become more earnest, capable and pa-

The old egotism, narrow selfishness and churlish temper, which were pulling us down beneath the waters, have scurried away.

We have become more charitable, more neighborly, more inclined to pull with the tides than to oppose them when opposition is of no avail. We need cheerfully the advice of our superiors instead of rejecting it with ugly words of protestation or rising up in rebellion against well-meant authority.

And this is as it should be. The secret of success is to know when to buffet the tides and when to float complacently with them. (©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

HOPELESS LAGGARDS

Sense John BLAKE

M<sup>OST</sup> men are irritated by a driving boss. It is natural to want to take your time-to do things in our own way. The man who stands at our elbow, always urging us to speed up, annoys us. We resent his nagging. We feel that we could do much better if we were left alone. But you will notice, if you are observing, that the boss doesn't waste much time urging hopeless laggards to work faster.

The reason he keeps after you is because he has found out that you are capable of speed. And if he can get it out of you, thereby teaching you to get it out of yourself, he has done you service.

Nobody hurries a turtle. It would be utterly useless to do so. The turtle is utterly indifferent as to whether he ever gets anywhere or not. He speeds up only when falling off a log into the water, and then only when he fancies his life is in danger. You ought to be complimented by the demand that you do more. It shows that there is something in you worth cultivating. Attention from the man higher up is a good thing. He wouldn't bestow it on you if you weren't worth

In these modern days speed in business is absolutely requisite. The leisurely methods of fifty years ago would drive any firm into bankruptcy. "DO IT NOW" is posted in most offices, and for excellent reasons. Only by hurrying the work along can the inertia of the average business office be over-

Only by knowing that you have got to get things done in time can you escape the habit of procrastination, the most vicious and persistent that you can acquire.

Be cheerful when you are asked to accelerate a little. With practice you can learn to do it without being told. And when you can work rapidly and skillfully, you will soon begin to pull far ahead of the other starters in the particular race you are engaged in. (© by John Blake.)

The young lady across the way says constitutional prohibition may not work with absolute perfection, but it's certainly a grand thing to have the question out of politics.

The Receiver Off the Hook

When a telephone user fails to replace the receiver on the hook a serious interruption to the service results. In such cases incoming calls cannot be completed, and the operator is compelled to report the line "out of order."

On party lines, if the receiver is not replaced at any one of the stations, not only is that telsphone affected, but none of the other telephones on the line can either make or receive calls. Thus an entire line is put out of service, until the receiver of one telephone is replaced.

Sometimes the receiver is accidentally permitted to rest upon a book, or some object which prevents the hook from coming all the way down. When this occurs it produces the same effect as if the receiver were not replaced.

In cases of this sort a repair man must be sent to inspect the telephone. Some little time must therefore elapse before the receiver is replaced, and during this interval calls of great importance may be lost to the subscriber.
