HOW A PRESIDENT

In Case Election is not Decided by Electoral Votes.

In view of the three-cornered contest for President, this year, with a third-party candidate expected to secure the electoral votes of several states, the method of procedure in case no candidate receives a majority of all the votes, is of vast importance.
The Constitution of the United States,
Amendment XII to original Article II, covers the situation as follows;

"The electors shall meet in their respective States, and vote by ballot for President and Vice-President, one of whom at least shall not be an inhabitant of the same State with themselves; they shall name in their ballots the person voted for as President, and in distinct ballots the person vot-ed for as Vice-President; and they shall make distinct lists of all persons voted for as President, and of all persons voted for as Vice-President, and of the number of votes for each, which list they shall sign and certify, and transmit, sealed, to the seat of the Government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate.

The President of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate snail, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the certificates, and the votes shall then be counted; the person having the greatest number of votes for President shall be the President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed; and if no person have such majority, then from the persons having shall choose immediately, by ballot, the President.

But in choosing the President, the votes shall be taken by States, the representation from each State having one vote; a quorum for this pur-pose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the States, and a majority of all the States shall be necessary to a choice. And if the House of Representatives shall not choose a President, whenever the right of choice shall devolve upon them, before the fourth day of March next following, then the Vice-President shall act as President, as in the case of the death or other constitutional disability of the President.

The person having the greatest number of votes as Vice-President shall be the Vice-President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed, and if no person have a majority, then from the two highest numbers on the list the Senate shall choose the Vicenecessary to a choice. But no person constitutionally ineligible to the office of President shall be eligible to Pastures and grasses are now only

MILK SHIPPERS BARRED.

Bacteria in Milk Causes Temporary Suspensions.

Orders barring them from ship-ping milk into Baltimore, for two weeks were issued last week at the State Health Department to 23 Maryland dairymen, 15 of them being Frederick county men.

A. R. Gaddis, chief of the division of milk inspection, said the suspensions were ordered because the high bacteria count in the milk shipped by them into the city showed they had not been handling their product according to health regulations.

Commenting on the large number of exclusions, Dr. J. H. Shrader, director of the bureau of chemistry and "They are a result of about one month's intensive activities in the campaign, which we started June 15, to raise the quality of city-used milk. We began with a series of tests at the farmers' places and brought sam-ples to our laboratories.

"When we found the milk showing a bacteria content above the safety limit we warned the dairymen to improve conditions. Some of them heeded us and some did not. The ones excluded were the unheeding ship-

It was learned that since July 1, eighty-five percent of the Baltimore dairies have employed chemists of their own to co-operate with the Health Department in its campaign.

Those suspended are W. H. Dinterman and A. D. Sauble, Rocky Ridge; Frank Martin and C. C. Spencer, Forest Hill, Md.; F. C. Fisher, Harry T. Fisher, Samuel Stambaugh and George J. Krom, Loys, Md.; R. Weather and Crops.

The dry, sunshiny week ending on Tuesday, July 22, was excellent for thrashing grains, cutting oats, cultivating, hay-making, etc., but a little too cool for normal plant growth. Corn is fair to good and cultivation continues. Its height varies greatly, owing to the wide range in dates of planting. The early-planted is in excess of 4 feet and is tasseling.

In the Allegheny mountain region harvesting of wheat has begun, but not of rye. Elsewhere over the section thrashing of these grains is in President; a quorum for the purpose shall consist of two-thirds of the whole number of Senators, and a majority of the whole number shall be progress, with fail to good years are being harvested on the Eastern Shore, except in the extreme northern portion; they are ripening in the other divisions, except still be allegheny mountain progress, with fair to good yields.

Early potatoes continue to bloom in the Allegheny mountain region. They are maturing elsewhere over the section. Digging continues in the southern and central portions of the Eastern Shore, and has begun in the counties to the northward. Late potatoes are coming up.

Truck crops and gardens, though late, are fair to good, and improving. Early tomatoes are ripening or being harvested. Late tomatoes are blooming or fruiting. Tomatoe plants are poor to fair on the Eastern Shore and fair to good west of the Chesapeake Bay.

Tobacco plants are doing well and are making a good stand.

Picking of early apples is now in progress and early peaches and early pears are ripening, except in the Allegheny mountain region; in the last named division picking of strawberries has ended.

After a two weeks' period of dry weather, rains would be beneficial, especially for corn.

HARPER'S FERRY BRIDGE WANTED.

Maryland and West Virginia will Sue to Obtain it.

According to announcement made, on Thursday, by John N. Mackall, of the State Road Commission, suit will be entered by Maryland and West Virginia to obtain possession of the toll bridge between the two states at Harper's Ferry. The owners of the bridge have refused an offer of $30,-000 for the structure, and claim a perpetual right to the property, and deny the authority of the states to obtain it by condemnation.

The bridge is apparently a profitable investment as a piece of private property, on account of the tolls. This Spring it was badly damaged by the foods, and is now being operated after temporary repairs, with the expectation of replacing part of the structure permanently at considerable expense. The owners at first asked $100,000 for the bridge but are reported to have dropped to about $70,000, on account of the estimated cost of re-pairs. The bridge proper is in Mathe estimated cost of reryland, but the southern approach to it is in West Virginia.

Annual S. S. Convention.

The annual convention of the Carroll County Sunday School Association will be held in the Methodist Episcopal Church, Westminster, on Tuesday, July 29. There will be three sessions, morning, afternoon and evening, beginning at 9:30 A. M. Unusual interest centers in this meeting because of the organization work done over the county during the past year, all of which will be re-viewed, and because of the effort being made to have every single one of the 107 Sunday Schools in the county represented. Pastors, superintend-ents and Sunday School workers generally are cordially invited and are urged to see that every suchool sends at least two delegates. Two from each school is the minimum. There is no limit to the number. Everybody is invited.

Peach Growers Urged to thin Crop Heavily.

It requires courage to strip a peach orchard of half its crop of young fruit but that is the procedure which S. B. Shaw, horticulturist for the University of Maryland Exten-sion Service, is recommending that the peach growers in Maryland follow this year with trees that are heavily laden.

to a large crop of peaches throughout the country but to bumper crops of other fruits that will likely effect the sale of peaches," says Mr. Shaw. "Conditions in the Baltimore market already reflects the heavy production es are selling at prices that usually prevail during August when the crop movement is at its height.

"While the peaches now being offered lack the quality of the later varieties, prices are low even for arrivrivals that present a good appear-Indications are that later in the season there will be abundance of medium and poor quality peaches and the grower who has peaches of good quality and of good size will be able to command the higher prices."

According to Mr. Shaw, most or-chards in Western Maryland will stand a thinning process which will remove from fifty to seventy-five per cent of the green fruit. To obtain good size, peaches should not be closer together on a branch than four inches, and six inches apart is better. The better price that high grade fruit will bring will more than offset the loss that thinning will entail, in the judgment of Mr. Shaw.

The other advantage pointed out in thinning is that next year's crop is more likely to prove satisfactory if the trees are not over-taxed in maturing the crop this year.

All Liberty Bonds are now worth more than 100 cents on the dollar, and are likely to so remain. Ever since the war, wise investors been snapping up bonds offered below par, and of course have made a good thing out of their wisdom. That is the way some folks become "bloated bond-holders" and how "Wall Street" gets rich—merely by having cash and confidence when others lack confidence, and prefer the cash.

Hold on to the bonds you have, and try to get more. It is bad policy to lose faith in Uncle Sam, for his promises are worth more than those of any other enterprise on earth.

NATIONAL POLITICAL NOTES Main Events of the Week Affecting the Parties.

Senator Johnson, of California, and Borah, of Idaho, are more or less uncertain Coolidge supporters, in point of enthusiasm, but both are expected to "stick to the party" rather than ally themselves with La Follette, who is not specially liked by either of them. Senator B. K. Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana, has accepted the nomination for Vice-President on the La Follette ticket. He gives as his main reason that he is a "Progressive," and could not support Davis, whom he calls a "Wall Street" candidate. On account of La Follette's health, Senator Wheeler will likely do most of the campaigning.

Hon. John W. Davis has selected his personal friend, Clem L. Shaver, of Clarksburg, W. Va., for his campaign manager, a man heretofore unknown in National politics. The party is therefore taking him on faith in Mr. Davis' judgment, and without any evidence as to his ability to handle such a big job.

Republican Chairman, Mr. Butler, predicts that not less than 30,000,000 men and women will vote, this year, which will represent a great increase over any other Presidential year.

President Coolidge is not expected to tour the country, but will likely accept a few invitations to appear at important points during the cam-

Religious Affiliations of the Candidates for Presidency.

It ought not make a great deal of difference to what church a candidate for President belongs, just so he is a man of sound religious convictions; but, the public is curious about such things, and we give the this information concerning the candidates, so far as it has been made public, thinking it may be of general interest.

President Coolidge, as is generally known, is a congregationalist, the only member of that denomination to occupy the White House.

John W. Davis is said to from Presbyterian stock, but it is claimed that he is a member of the Episcopal church.

Charles G. Dawes, Republican nominee for the Vice-Presidency, is a Presbyterian, but attends the Congregational Church, of which Mrs. Dawes is a member.

Gov. Charles Bryan, Democratic candidate for the Vice-Presidency, is said not be a member of any church, but "leans" toward the Baptist but "leans" toward the Baptist church, to which his wife and children belong-

The County Agent, with Mr. Conover, Dairy Specialist, visited a number of dairymen to help them improve the quality of their milk. The following suggestions were Club Week. The Boys and Girls are making preparations for Club Week at the University, August 7-12th. The week this year will include Sunday, for which day special services are being arranged. Lessons, work, plan and sight-seeing will fill the week which will pass all too quickly. The cost of the trip is $6.00 for board and room. The club members will also pay travelling expense. The County Agent expects to help with this work at the University. About 325 club members from all parts of the state will enjoy this week.

All cattle exhibited at the County Fair will have to be T. B. tested under the Bureau of Animal Industry. Applications should be made to the county Agent, at once, for testing. Several sections of the county will be cleaned up this fall. Dairymen should take advantage of this opportunity to have their herds tested.

Gets Even with Tormenter.

Some time ago a farmer living near Yellow Springs found a turkey buzzard tangled in some bushes and after making the bird a prisoner, with the assistance of another individual, fastened a sheep bell about its neck and turned it loose.

The bird remained in the community and persons began talking about the "bell buzzard."

Saturday morning, the farmer who fastened the bell about the buzzard's neck, was driving along the road when the buzzard appeared and perched itself upon a fence ahead of the team. The bird frightened the horse which ran away, almost turning over the vehicle and nearly threw the occupants out. At last reports the buzzard was still flying about.— Blade-Times, Brunswick

JAIL BREAKER SHOT BY DETECTIVES.

Another Escape Made from the Baltimore City Jail.

George Gross, one of the Cohen diamond murder bandits, escaped from the city jail, early Wednesday morn-ing, by striking down one of the guards, after which escape was comparatively easy. The police took up the case, and through the information of a lot of small boys, Gross was located hiding in a vacant lot, only a short distance from the jail, on Wednesday afternoon.

Gross hurt himself in jumping over the jail wall, and was without shoes, and it was due to his plight that the boys became suspicious and notified the police.

When he was found he put up a fight and attempted to shoot with a revolver that he had taken from a jail guard, but it refused to act. The detective fired five shots, four of which took effect. He was rushed to Mercy Hospital, where he died several hours

The probing of the escape showed very unsatisfactory conditions prevailing in the jail; the guards being old and untrained, as well as underpaid, and not equipped with effective weapons. One of the guards said he had not shot off a pistol in 18 or 20 years, while enother confessed to not having while another confessed to not having shot off one for 30 years.

A Priest, on Prohibition.

Father Joseph McNamee, pastor of St. David's Church in the Chicago Stockyards district, says in the Union Signal:

"Mayor Dever has given us prohibition with all the blessings that the most sanguine prohibitionist anticipated. As we priests visit the people we find that the cases of charity are few and accidental, and not chronic as formerly. The workingmen's weekly check, instead of being cashed over the bar, is now cashed by the wife or one of the children in the grocery. The voluntary offerings in church are two or three times as much as they were in the saloon days. People do not move away from the district as of old; the flats in the vicinity of the former saloons are more in demand, and command a higher rent. Once in a while an oldtimer calls to take the pledge against moonshine. For the life of me I have not been able to discover newly-made drunkards. STATE HEALTH EFFORTS.

LEAD FOR PROF-IT, NOT AS MERE HABIT. MAKE IT PAY

How the State is Assisting in Preventing Disease.

Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the State Department of Health, says;

"Some idea of what the State Department does for the people of Maryland can be gathered by estimating in dollars and cents the amount that has been saved to individuals and communities in the State, in the last six months by the care that is taken to keep down diseases like typhoid.

"It is a joint responsibility of all parts of the Department, involving protection of water supplies, disposal of waste, protection of milk and other foods from contamination, and safeguarding the individual from infection spread by careless "carriers". But the Department team work does not end with community measures. By providing free typhoid vaccine, the Department makes it possible for any individual in the State to be protected against typhoid.

"Since the first of January, 1924, over 7,600 complete doses of antityphoid vaccine have been prepared in the laboratories of the State De-partment of Health, for this purpose. Over 3000 doses were hurried to Western Maryland in the early spring, for use among the people living in or near the districts that were flooded during the storms of early April. The effect of this prompt action was shown in the fact that not a single case of typhoid was reported from that district during the dangerous weeks before the water sup-plies could be protected again.

"Suppose that one thousand of the people who were exposed to the possibilities of the fever from the polluted water supplies, had come down with typhoid and then consider what a saving has been effected not only in health, but in money!

"It has been estimated that each case of typhoid costs the individual or the family in which it occurs, not less than $100 in medical and nursing care and in loss of income. $100x 1000=$100,000, represents the amount saved to the people of the state by preventing the illness alone, without considering the possible death of many and the accompanying pain and suffering and grief.

"When it comes to the prevention of the disease it is within the power of every individual in the State to protect himself or herself, from the disease, by the simple device of vaccination. Very little inconvenience is caused by the treatment; and any physician can get a supply of the vaccine by applying to Dr. R. C. Salter, Chief of the Bureau of Bacteriology of the State Department of Health, 16 West Saratoga Street, Baltimore.

"This is the time of the year when typhoid is likely to occur. If you haven't protected yourself against it,

"Mrs." the Magic Word.

A recent article in a weekly devoted to giving "tips" to country weeklies, says the word "Mrs." is the most important that can be used, as a source of real news and interest. A portion of the article is as follows;

"Whatever famous editors and news writers may say, and whatever they may think as to the greatest piece of newspaper reporting or news getting they all have to take off their hats to three letters—"M-R-S". The three letters have the greatest news value of any three letters in the alphabet, for about them the entire structure of real news and newspaper building is erected.

The "Mr."—the male—may read the editorials, or the sports, or even the scandal, but it is the "Mrs."---the female—who reads the society notes, the latest in fashions and household items and throngs the stores to buy the things advertised in the display space of the paper. It is the "Mrs." to whom most advertisers make their appeal—even the automobile makers tell in their advertisements how comfortably their cars ride or how easily they drive. Washing dishes is also the subject of campaigns and a new kind of soap is put over and sold in large quantities. Where there is one thing of masculine appeal in the advertisements, there are a thousand appealing to the feminine; to the "Mrs." so strongly featured in those one or two columns buried away back somewhere in the

For the home town paper—the small daily or weekly—there is magic in the word "Mrs." which few of the editors really understand. Most of them pray for the day when some-thing big will break in their towns so they can have real news to tell. When it does, it usually hits so many persons that the least said the better "ye editor" is cheated out of his big chance at journalism.

But the big news item-"Mrs"they fail to see because it is too close to them. They look afar to some distant thing instead of near at hand, where the real news is, waiting to be published.

The publisher who overlooks the importance of "Mrs." as a source of real news is passing up his best bet, whether it is a metropolitan daily or the small weekly in the smallest town in the country

Get that title "Mrs" in the paper as often as possible, and along with it "Mr." and "Miss"—and advertising and subscriptions are bound to come.

The word "reactionary" in general, means to favor old and worn out policies and methods, to oppose progress -to be the opposite, in fact, of ligent as any other vote, by classes, "progressive". There are no confessed "reactionary" parties or politicians anywhere in this country. Somebody is lying about, and misusing, the word. The article also says, "what people really want, is not quiet, shape of a referendum to increase but a different sort of noise" and that is correct, too.

The writer went for twenty years about the poorest priced of public of- to Mt. Lake Park, and during that time interested a lot of people enough "to go along," but the same people never went the second time. They evidently were not pleased, or did not go often enough to get pleased-and form a pleasurable habit.

The best advice to give as to vacations is to go where scenes and conditions are very different from those ordinarily encountered for the most of the year. It is the "change" and not the special attractions, the atmos-Follette is going to affect the two phere, or the quiet, that makes the most enjoyable vacation. A lot of country folks enjoy themselves in a city in the summer, while city folks want to get out into the country, and both are right-it is the change of scene, that rests, when one does not combine some sort of special entertainment, or benefit, worth a vacation.

> To many, just meeting and talking with new people, is a big benefitperhaps the greatest there is, in all vacations. Just "seeing things" that are different, is a help, and some have a good time, all alone, with other folks and scenes. But, the average man or woman of mature age, wants companionship; somebody to talk to who knows a lot more about things, other than those with which they are themselves acquainted, and thereby finds profit in just talking to new people about "their jobs".

Long trips—just travelling—are likely to be poor sort of vacations, very expensive, and largely minus of that "rest" that one presumably wants. There is a "rest" in even travel, but it is likely to be mental rather than physical, and many people need this. All in all, while vacations are good things, we are apt to miscall them; they are not vacations at all, in so far as the imagined rest is concerned, but only "change" from regular life and routine-like those who rest, while standing or walking.

Catholic Statistics.

A writer in a recent issue of The Catholic Review, gives a lengthy article on the more or less unreliable reports concerning the strength of Catholicism in this country, from which we reproduce the following paragraphs:

"It would be very interesting to know the total Catholic population in the United States, and to be able to compare the figures from decade to decade. We could tell in that way whether the Church was really makbecause of lack of orders? The regularity of "Uncle Sam" as a paymaslate thought information to clear up in the Army and Navy depends upon our proportion of the total population of the total population. It is too general. What is needed is And so it is important that we should

It would seem obvious, too, that an pretation. There isn't anywhere a accurate knowledge of vital statistics in a diocese would make for efficiency in many ways. The priests could be claim to be properly progressive; so, it is evident that the word is being limited for a school could be deterned for a school could be deterned. mined, whether an existing school was reaching the school population could be known, and finally the financial resources could be estimated more

At first sight one might think that all this could easily be learned from the "Official" Catholic Directory. But one would be sadly mistaken. total Catholic population, for instance is given as 18,559,787. But when one goes back of this total and finds that some dioceses frankly admit the figures are merely estimated, and that twenty-eight dioceses report extory had the same story, he realizes how little reliance can be placed on any totals. Even the dioceses changing their figures from year to year and giving them to the last digit, are for the most part not to be taken seriously

But while we shall never know the total Catholic population for any past year, there is some hope for the future, and it comes from an unexpected source. The Archdiocese of New York reports the same figures in 1924 as in 1923. And they happen to be just an even 200,000 less than in 1922. Of course, it is absurd to think that the population of this great diocese decreased while the baptisms marriages, deaths, children in school all increased. Still more absurd would it be to believe that it decreased just an even 200,000, not one more or one ess. Somebody in the chancellor's office probably made a mistake in 1923 by putting a 2 in the hundred thousand column when it should have been a 4, as in the previous year.

And in spite of the fact that no change was made this year, yet New York has seen a light. New York made a house-to-house census recently. For the economic motive has come into play very strongly. The desire of raising a million and a half for charity impelled the authorities to try to learn of every Catholic in the contributors. Perhaps other dioceses will see the same light, and in time we may get an accurate census of the road work and bridges and other expenditures.

Familiar to Indians

A sort of primitive sundial was sometimes set up by a Bellacoola Indian traveler to record, for the benefit of those following him, the time which had elapsed since he had left. This was used only where one followed another, not as a true sundial to tell the time of day. The Carrier Indians and the Chilcotin Indians also used it.

This time recorder consisted of a twig made into a circular hoop about six inches in diameter, by twisting the ends together, and fastened firmly to a slanting stick stuck up in the smooth earth. The Bellacoola, who so commonly traveled up and down the Bellacoola river, frequently put one of these upon the sandy river beach. The more or less circular shadow of the hoop was marked in the soil, and the distance that it had traveled from the mark indicated how long the recorder had been standing.

If the one following was traveling in a river canoe and saw the shadow was near the mark, his canoe party might pole hard in an effort to catch up, but if the shadow were far away he knew that it was probably useless to try to overtake the one ahead.

Many Names for the "Root of All Evil"

Money is money under any and all conditions, but in its transfer from one person to another it has many special names. Here are a few of the terms in common use:

Wages for workmen; salary for the office-force; emolument for the clergy; honorarium, or fee, for the medical man; dividend for the shareholder; remittance for the boy or girl at college; alms for the beggar; alimony for the divorcee; dowry for the widow; legacy for the lucky heir.

Indemnity for the litigant; royalty for the literary man; interest for the money lender; stipend for the college professor; retainer and fee for the lawyer; commission for the salesman: premium for the insurance agent: "dot" for the engaged girl, and "dough" for everybody, to say nothing of "kale," "mazuma," "jack" and other appelations not yet admitted to good standing in the dictionary.—New York

Water Digs for Gold

There are many forms of gold mining, but probably the easiest is that known as "hydraulicking," which is nothing more nor less than sending against the gold-bearing rock or soil a jet of water of enormous power, which disintegrates the hardest earth, or even stone, and converts it into a mud wherefrom the precious particles can be easily reclaimed.

There is a special apparatus used for this purpose. The current of water or jet may be supplied from a reservoir or a mountain torrent of great force, but in many cases a full-powered steam fire engine of a special type, such as can be carried on poles over trails where wheels would be impossible, is the source of power.

Umbrella's Long History

The umbrella is of very ancient origin. It had its origin in the East. and was used quite commonly in the ancient Empires of Ninevah, Persia and Egypt. The "Satrap" of Persia was so called because he carried an umbrella and the word itself means "Umbrella fellow." The Eastern umbrella was in reality a sunshade, for it was against the roasting rays of the sun that it protected. "Lord of the Umbrella" is one of the titles of many an Eastern monarch. In the Imperial days of Greece and Rome, only women carried umbrellas in times of peace, but in times of war they were served out to Roman troops, to assist them in avoiding sun-dazzle in battle.

St. Peter's Chair

Since the Eighth century, the festival of St. Peter's chair has been celebrated annually at St. Peter's at Rome, with great pomp solemnity. The chair, old, ugly and worn, on which St. Peter is said to have been pontificated, is enshrined by a magnificent throne, supported by four gigantic figures, and mounted upon a tribune decorated by Michelangelo. The throne stands in the great nave, behind the altar of St. Peter's. The Venetians once claimed to possess the Chair of St. Peter, but it was discovered about a century ago that this supposedly sacred article bore the inscription: "There is but one God and Mahomet is His Prophet." It is supposed that this chair was brought from the East by the Crusaders.

PURE SILK HOSIERY

at $1.50 a Pair

They come in white, black and forty-two shade BUT ONLY ONE GOOD QUALITY

WOMEN AND GIRLS WHO BUY AND WEAR SILK STOCK-INGS HAVE A PLEASANT SURPRISE COMING IF THEY ARE NOT ALREADY BUYING AND WEARING HUMMING BIRD PURE SILK HOSIERY. THE SURPRISE WILL BEGIN WHEN THEY SEE WHAT FINE SILK HUMMING BIRDS ARE. IT WILL INCREASE WHEN THEY BUY A PAIR FOR SO LITTLE AS $1.50. AND IT WILL CONTINUE THROUGH THE LIFE OF THE STOCK-INGS, ESPECIALLY THAT TIME BEYOND THE USUAL TERM OF SILK STOCKING SERVICE.

FEATURES YOU'LL LIKE ABOUT HUMMING BIRD HOSE NO. 1-EXTRA LENGTHS.

The whole stocking is over length, measuring 30 inches against the standard 27 inches. This extra length gives additional comfort and wearing qualities.

NO. 2-DOUBLE TOP.

The mercerized top is doubled to the silk, which gives extra strength, superior finish, and makes the top extra elastic. NO. 3—PURE SILK REINFORCING AND DOUBLE SOLE.

The advantage the sole and high splicing all silk is the fact that after the stocking is washed it does not come through and look shabby like hose that is reinforced with cotton.

NO. 4-ANTI-RUNBACK STRIPE, NO MORE LADDERS.

A safety device consisting of an anti-run back stripe or run-ner stop at the junction of the silk body and mercerized top pre-vents "runs" from garter injuries going below the knee.

NO. 5—ALL SIZES ARE KNIT.

Every size of Humming Bird Hose is knit on the machines. No sizes are knit and then stretched larger. This is one reason why Humming Bird Hose fit so well and retain their shape after NO. 6—PURE DYED, RICH, LUSTROUS, FAST COLORS.

Our process of Dyeing tends to strengthen the fabric instead of weakening it. Perhaps among your family heirlooms is the wedding dress of your great-grand-mother, and the fabric is in spite of long years, still strong and beautiful. It is pure dyed. NO. 7—SPLENDID ANKLES AND FEET.

Insuring a perfect and permanently snug fit.

NO. 8—WEAR-RESISTING HEELS AND TOES.

You will be delighted with the extraordinary wearing qualities of Humming Bird Hosiery.

NO. 9.—ALL LEADING SHADES IN STOCK.

We carry a stock of all the leading shades at all times for your convenience.

NO. 10—ABSOLUTE GUARANTEE.

We stand behind every pair of Humming Bird Hose. They must give you satisfaction.

JUST WHAT YOU'VE ALWAYS WANTED. Stockings you are always proud to wear at a price you can afford to pay. Close knit from sole to knee, high grade lisle heels, toes and double tops, an anti-run strip at the knee. All these things make "Humming Bird Hose" Wear Longer. One is proud to wear these fine hose on the street and for evening wear, aside from their being splendid for sports wear.

The Country Weekly Press

tish wizard of sage celebrated by Sir | The city dailies often josh about the country press, But the small-town country weekly is an all-around success.

It beats the daily paper for a sheet that's read clean through; And its patent insides function and hysteria and pose, Less of ballyhoo and brainstorm, less divorce and human woes. And the sanest folks will tell you,having watched the passing show,

There's a lot of frothy piffle that is not worth while to know. It buries us in literature, and keeps us home from church. It corrupts our wives and children with its freakish, morbid show, For its jokes are often night-mares and its ideals often low.

The city daily has a man who reads the country press, And the news he cribs and rewrites is what makes for his success. And as he clips and butchers it for all that he can use; He ridicules the makeup of the heads and local news.

Radio Over Lighting Wires. The baffling question as to who is to pay for radio broadcasting is being solved in Staten Island, N. Y., where for the last 8 months an engineering staff has been developing the "wired radio" inventions of Major General George O. Squier. Apparatus has already been perfected by which two different radio programs can be transmitted over the lighting wires from Tentative plans for Wired Radio, Inc., a North American Co., subsidiary which is doing the development work, call for the eventual establishment of a nation-wide "wired radio" service. This service will consist of dios in New York, Chicago and a Pa-cific Coast city, which will be sent over trunk wires to central generating

From the central stations these national programs (supplemented by local programs) will be transmitted to convenient lamp socket. Campaign Paper Made

No Money for Greeley In 1840, when Gen. William Henry Harrison was nominated for the presidency against Martin Van Buren, Horace Greeley started a little campaign paper in New York city, which he called the Log Cabin, which is said to have been incomparably the most spirited thing of the kind ever printed in the United States, says the Detroit News. It had a circulation of unprecedented extent, beginning with 48,000 and rising week after week until it reached 90,000.

The price, however, was so low that its great sale proved rather an embarrassment than a benefit to the proprietors and when the campaign ended the firm of Horace Greeley & Co. was rather more in debt than it was when the first number of the Log Cabin was published. The last number of the Log Cabin announced the forthcoming Tribune, price 1 cent, which was a short time ago consolidated with the New York Herald.

Five thousand copies of the first number of the Tribune were printed, and Greeley found it difficult to give them away. He began with a subscription list of 600. But the little paper soon caught public attention and began its fourth week with 6,000 paid

Brave Mother Bass

Snakes are destructive of fish. Many students of nature have seen the reptiles injure or kill fresh-water fish, even the swift trout. It is astonishing therefore to learn that the tables may be turned. In a recent bulletin of the American Game Protective association is an account of the courage of a female black bass in protecting her nest of eggs against an attacking water snake.

A student of fish life was watching the mother bass. Many times fish would come near the nest, but the vigilant mother would drive them off. Presently a water snake came swimming along the bank in the direction of the nest. As quick as a flash the bass was after the reptile. She made her savage attack from the rear, thrashing the water into suds.

When the ripples had quieted down the student observed that a large part of the snake was in the mouth of the bass. Once more the surface of the water became agitated; when it was again smooth the snake was gone and the bass was returning to her nest .-Youth's Comparion.

July Clearance Sale Begins July 26, and Lasts One Week.

OUR ANNUAL Clearance Sales

January and July, have become so well known in the minds of our customers as an outstanding feature in our business that a bare announcement is all that is necessary for those who have profited by them. No announcement of sales of other stores in this county, to our knowledge, has exercised the same influence or brought the same response.

This has been brought about by the fact that when we advertise a Price Reduction Sale —it means what it says.

This July Clearance embraces price cuts in every department of the store. No matter what your needs are you will probably find them in our large stock at less than our own regular prices—which are as low, or lower than same quality of goods can be bought at elsewhere. We ask you therefore to come to see us as early as possible during this SALE and get full benefit. The Gettysburg Times of issue July 24th., will have a partial list of the clearance prices-not space enough for all-if you do not find named what you are most interested in, come to see us in the full confidence that this Sale is a real money saving event.

Management of the second ROBERTA HOOD

R OBERTA HOOD had lived all her life up to eighteen on her father's old farm at Pleasant Valley. So when it came time for her to begin to think of her own financial future, she naturally turned to the city. And in two months she was one of five girls working in the pressing room of the big garment factory that supplied up-town shops with children's fine dresses. From eight to five she ironed dainty ruffles and tucks and plaits. The other workers rarely spoke to her; all went about their business in a dull, determined way; at intervals the manager looked in; and once in two weeks she drew her pay envelope. She became so used to the four mustard-colored walls that she was no longer conscious of anything beyond her ironing board and the shelf above.

Then one week she went home for Sunday. It was April and the woods were full of violets. Roberta Hood picked a big box of violets and moss to take to the city with her. When with a new motor-horn, the woman she left for her work on Monday morn- with a new phonograph, the boy with ing the blossoms were so fragrant that she took a few with her in a glass and put them on the shelf above her ironing board. All that day as she looked up at intervals they seemed something living amid the mechanical routine of her motions. The head of the room, came over to take a sniff and said that he came from the country, too. On her next visit home Roberta brought back some ivy, and the five workers took turns watering it and washing down the glossy leaves. Through this common interest they began to eat lunch together. Then they started a window box, and finally they achieved curtains, and a table where they spread their sandwiches and hottles of milk.

The pressing room had become a matter of interest in the factory. Finally, one day, the president of the company strolled in. He was a progressive man and he appreciated the business value of the esprit de corps of this little group. The upshot was a clubroom for the workers of the factory-a room of their own-freshiy painted, with geraniums, and a disreputable yellow cat that they had adopted as their mascot.

To open the new club they had a party. The head man in Roberta's room sat next to her.

"This is your doings!" said he.

"Aw, go on!" laughed Roberta. But the next spring, when they were married, Roberta put extra effort into "fixing up" their rooms. She had learned the value of the habit of bringing beauty into everyday life. HAVE YOU THIS HABIT?

SO MANY times, so many nights, When locked the door, and out the lights.

My mother comes and looks at me While I am sleeping, just to see If I'm tucked in, and haven't thrown The covers off, as I am known To do sometimes; if I am warm, And safe from harm and fright and storm.

I'm sound asleep, of course, and so I cannot see, and yet I know.

So many times my mother stands And smooths the pillows with her hands

And sees the quilt is folded right. Yes, in the middle of the night She comes and stands beside my bed And holds her light above my head To see if everything is well. Perhaps you wonder how I tell? She steps so gently, walks so slow, I cannot hear, and yet I know.

So many times our mothers creep To where the little children sleep And watch our breathing. Many a

We know the stairs our mothers climb, For so our mothers keep on guard All day and all night afterward. Of course we cannot hear nor see: We're sound asleep as we can be: They gently come, and softly go: And yet, some way, we somehow know, (@ by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND

NOBODY is quite so blase and sophisticated as a flapper, who is just recovering from a baby-grande

If a man is looking for an innocent, simple, unsophisticated wife, with a sweet childlike faith in men, he should pick out a widow of over thirtyfive, in these days.

When a brave, beautiful young girl goes into the world prepared to resist its temptations, it is an awful disappointment to her, to discover that a "temptation" is as hard to find in the average business office as a pet fly in a candy shop.

Oh, yes, every woman needs a husband, if only as an instrument of selfdiscipline to keep her from EVER growing vain and self-satisfied.

The only perfect husbands are widows' husbands. To recall tenderly "a voice that is stilled" is no feat, beside listening patiently to a voice that is continually wondering why dinner isn't ready, where you keep the matches, and what you paid for those "fool shoes."

Heaven deliver us from the man with a new phonograph, the boy with a new whistle, and the neurotic with a new complex!

The foolish woman says "yes," and robs love of its uncertainty; the tactless woman says "no," and robs it of hope; but the wise woman says nothing-and keeps it simmering at just the right temperature.

The task of a modern girl's life is to keep her mother away from the sort of movies that no woman over thirty should see.

Why will a man worry more intensely over throwing away an old tomato can that "might have been used for bait," than over losing his watch, burning holes in the real lace curtains, or spilling the glue on the Persian rugs? (© by Helen Rowland.)

WHALE SHARK LARGE New York Village Has BUT GENTLE MONSTER Memory of Tom H

Ocean Leviathan Is Without Trace of Ferocity.

A truly delicate monster is the whale shark. A small-scale model of a 30-foot specimen has just been placed upon exhibition in the American Museum of Natural History in New York, and the public pauses to admire the creature for his fancy coat and his coy eye without appreciating his amiable disposition. The whale shark is as harmless as a guinea pig. He has never tasted man. He does not even eat his brother fish, although he himself is the largest fish in existence-the whale, of course, being not a fish but a mammal.

Whale sharks have been measured up to a length of 45 feet, and whale fishermen, whose keen eyes are accustomed to taking such measurements, declare that they have seen whale sharks 70 feet long. How strange, then, to discover that the teeth of this giant of the ocean are no longer than one-eighth of an inch!

But he has six or seven thousand of them, including both jaws. He wears his tiny eye in the upper jaw, where it can observe his continuous dinner.

Possessing teeth so dainty, the whale shark has but one weapon of offense-his tail. He never harms men unless he happens to rub up against the side of a boat, probably to rid himself of barnacles, and if he overturns or smashes the craft upon these occasions it is not with malice afore-

When he dines he does not gobble large fish, like the other sharks. Instead, he swims with his mouth open and collects the small animals that float upon the surface of the sea. The water passes over his gill-rakers, and these sift out the food. It then passes out through his gill-slits. He swallows everything that is taken in, and of course the quantities of little jelly fish, crabs and other small fry that he requires in a day are enormous.

Why do they call him a whale shark? Because he is a whale in size and in his manner of feeding, and because he is often found with whales. More generally, he is seen in company with other sharks, but he is so much larger than they that by comparison with him they seem no bigger than the pilot-fish or shark-suckers when seen beside the ordinary small shark. This statement was first made in 1840 by a pearl-fishery inspector, who amazed the world with his account of a giant fish seen in the Indian ocean.

If the whale shark's behavior is handsome, so is his appearance. His coat is a delicate smoke-gray, thickly covered with white spots, which cause him to resemble a marine Milky way. Unfortunately, one is not likely to see him on a fishing trip. Only five specimens have been taken in the Atlantic ocean-four off the coast of Florida and one off the southern coast of Brazil. He is encountered throughout East Indian waters, particularly near Java, and is known in the Philippines, on the coasts of Japan, New Guinea and Australia.

States Write Insurance

New Zealand and nearly every state of Australia have developed a system of public life insurance. A booklet issued by the New Zealand insurance department informs us that "its purpose was to give those who insure 'the greatest possible amount of se-curity at the least possible cost.'" The department is self-supporting. Profits are divided at regular intervals of three years among policyholders.

There are almost no limitations, says the New York Times. A policyholder may commit suicide the day after this policy is written, but if his heirs can prove that he did not take out the policy with the intention to defraud the insurance is paid. A great variety of policies are written and the rates are comparatively low.

The same may be claimed by the insurance departments maintained by the several states of Australia. In both Australia and New Zealand much private insurance business is annually written. But most of this is done by friendly societies or by companies which are largely co-operative in char-

Use For Wornout Films

Thousands of miles of film are being used and discarded daily in the world's moving picture theaters. So great has this industry become that it would take a mathematical genius to figure out the quantity of celluloid used. What becomes of disused films? When a film has been thrown aside as "junk," it is cleansed by a special process, which removes the chemical coating. This coating is capable of yielding silver at the rate of 112 ounces to the ton. The cleansed celluloid strips pass into the hands of boot and shoe manufacturers, and a considerable proportion of the patent toe-caps worn in England and on this continent are the result. You may at the present moment be wearing on your feet a bit of film which has once held the charming curls of Mary Pickford or the feet of Charlie Chaplin!

About Fifty-Fifty

A little Boston boy was told on one occasion by his teacher that he was to stay after school for a period of one hour and study his lessons. Paul looked at her with a grin and asked: "Are you going to stay with me?"

"Of course." "If you don't mind telling me," continued Paul, "are you punishing me or am I punishing you?"-Kansas City

Memory of Tom Paine

Grove court in New York is one of those little gems in the residential quarter of Greenwich Village which have been transformed from back alleys into bizarre homes for those of artistic and exclusive tastes; not exclusive so far as income goes, for the rents are well within the means of the middling well-to-do.

You might know where Grove court is located and then walk right by it at night, and, unless you are acquainted with its neighborhood, you would have to hunt for it in the daytime. But open a gate at between Nos. 10 and 12 Grove street, and if the time is the night a veritable fairy scene is opened to your gaze. The houses are quaint, two-story affairs, arranged in the form of an arc, with soft lights framed by the windows upstairs and down and with shaded old English lanterns above the doors and brass knockers on the panels, for all the world like a miniature Pomander walk.

Walk down Grove street to the east and, before reaching West Fourth street, stop at No. 59, and there read on a brass plate the inscription telling you that the house stands on the site of the dwelling where Tom Paine spent most of his declining days. But if you pause at Bleecker street and turn to the right, at No. 309 is the same old tumble-down shanty where he lived for several years before being rescued by Mme. Bonneville. Patriot, soldier and writer, left in soldtude because of his "Age of Reason," called infidel and atheist, his friends were few after his return from France, after his providential escape from the

One of the new friends who visited him in the Bleecker street home was Robert Fulton, who had many and long talks with him while he was working on his invention, the first steamboat ever built. The old house on Grove street stood in the middle of a block, which was cut away, but always in such a manner as to preserve the site.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Marie Corelli's Appeal

It cannot be said that a light of literature went out with the passing of Marie Corelli, but it will be impossible for the historian who essays to describe the literary taste of her generation to ignore the author of "The Romance of Two Worlds." Her appeal was not to the intellectual elite, and yet she was one of the favorite novelists of Queen Victoria, was found fascinating by the exquisite Elizabeth of Austria, was read by the elegant Alexandra of England. This royal favor denotes nothing as to the artistry of her work, but it signifies the remarkable catholicity of her appeal, declares the New York Evening World. The melodramatic quality, the weird touch of mystery, were enough to have placed her among the "best sellers." But her vogue has been due in large measure to the spiritualism which permeates her novels.

The queen in the castle and the peasant in the cabin are alike in a hunger for impressions of the life beyond. Miss Corelli ministered to this desire to penetrate the veil. Whatever the critics may think or say, they cannot deny her the distinction that few among the greater artists have shared, of numbering her followers from the man with the hoe to the woman with the tiara and the crown.

The Doughboy Booster The young duke of Sutherland said at a reception in New York during his American visit:

"It is no wonder you Americans are so successful-you are such enthusiasts, such boosters.

"One day during the war the life of an English military attache was saved by a brave American doughboy in the Argonne. "The doughboy accepted the attache's warm thanks and compliments with a modest, shrinking air. "'Where are you from?' the Englishman finally asked. "His shrinking air vanished at this question. His eyes flashed, he stood very erect, puffed out his chest and said in a loud voice:

"'I am from Marion, Ohio, the world's greatest steam shovel producing center."

Victory Over the Tempter.

I. Its Purpose (v. 1). The Holy Spirit led Him into the wilderness with the specific purpose that He there meet and overcome the one whose works He came to destroy (Heb. 2:14). His temptation was not a preparation for His work, as usually thought, but rather the opening of the dreadful conflict between Christ and Satan, which was to issue in Satan's defeat. It was not to test Jesus to find out as to whether He would stand fast-to see whether He would sin. The eternal purpose of God as to redemption absolutely could not fail. It was rather to exhibit Him as an object upon which faith might rest, to show that a union between God and man had been effected which would insure man's reconciliation. II. The Conflict (vv. 2-11).

1. The Combatants (v. 1). (1) Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ, the Divine Man, is now entering upon His mediatorial work. He went immediately from the place of anointing and heavenly recognition as the Son of God to meet the arch-enemy of the

(2) The Devil. He was a real person and, while always filled with cunning and malice, in this case the initiative was taken by the Lord. He was dragged into the presence of Jesus Christ and forced into the struggle.

2. The Battle Ground (v. 1). It was in the wilderness of Judea. The first man was tempted in a garden with the most pleasant surroundings and failed. The second man was tempted in a barren wilderness, surrounded by wild beasts, and gloriously triumphed.

3. The Method of Attack (vv. 2-10). Since as our Redeemer Christ sustained a threefold relationship, the Son of Man, Son of God and as Messiah, each one was made a ground of attack.

(1) As Son of Man (vv. 2, 3). This was a test of the reality of His humanity. To demonstrate whether the humanity which He obtained through the virgin birth was real, the appeal was made to the instinct of hunger. Hunger is not the result of sin. While the appetite is not sinful, to have satisfied it in a wrong way would have been

(2) Son of God (vv. 5, 6). This was a test as to whether the personality which had come from heaven and taken upon itself humanity was divine. The Devil quoted from a Messianic psalm to get Him to presume upon God's care. God does care for His own, but to neglect common precaution-to do the uncalled for thingjust to put God's promise to a test is sin and death. Satan tempts men today to do the spectacular things in order to get publicity, to gain the ears of the people.

(3) As Messiah (vv. 8, 9). Christ's mission as the Messiah was to recover this world from the Devil. The Devil offered to surrender to Him on the simple condition that He would adopt his method, thus obviating the neces sity of the cross. The kingdoms were really Christ's and He knew that they would ultimately become His. The inducement was to get immediate possession without the sufferings of the

4. The Defense (vv. 4, 7, 10). Christ met the enemy each time and repulsed his attack with the Word of God. Each time He said, "It is written" and quoted from Deuteronomy, the book which the higher critics would discredit. Christ had enough confidence in it to use it in this, the most crucial, hour of the world's history.

5. The Issue (v. 11). (1) Satan vanquished. The enemy was completely routed. The strong man was so bound that the spoiling of his house was possible.

(2) Angels came and ministered unto Him. This event was so notable that these glorious beings were sent from heaven to give it recognition and to minister unto the triumphant King.

Man's Sorrows

Man's sorrows are a mystery, but that sinners should not have sorrows were a sadder mystery still. And God pleads with us all not to lose the good of our experiences of the bitterness of sin by our levity or our blindness to their meanings.-Alexander Maclaren.

A Prayer

We pray Thee, O God, that Thou wilt help us to be faithful, earnest and true in all of our work, whatever it may be.

Clear Conscience

Lots of people regard a clear conscience as more of a luxury than a necessity.

Considering Others

It is always easier to discuss the duties of others, than to do our own.

— From — Moody Bible Institute Monthly Chicago, Ill.

July 27 Zeal: Getting It; Guarding It Isaiah 6:7-9; John 2:17; Revelation 3:14-16

Zeal has been defined as enthusiastic devotion to a person or a cause. For Christ and the Church our enthusiastic devotion must be intelligently directed. Sustained zeal is usually the product of deep convictions. To be intelligent, these convictions must be the result of truth the truth concerning God and His saving grace in Christ. The facts of the gospel are of such a nature as to produce joy, hope, and enthusiasm. The things that limit and bind, such as superstition, unholy fear, misconception, and prejudice, are all overcome by the power of the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. The realization of this truth in experience creates an enthusiastic devotion, or zeal, for Christ and His church. This is deepened and in-tensified by the cultivation of fellowship through Bible study, prayer, and the provided means of grace. The loss of zeal, or enthusiasm, is a serious matter. It is an indication of spiritual weakness. Any such loss calls for the admonition that Paul gave to his spiritual son Timothy when he wrote the words, "Stir up the gift that is in thee." This means that we are to stir it up into a flame, thereby overcoming the condition of coldness and apathy. Against this condition, the last part of our Scripture reading warns us. According to Revelation 3:14-16, this condition of lukewarmness is offensive to our divine

Our zeal should be guarded by spiritual intelligence. Not everything that is called church work or charity merits our time and strength. As men are careful concerning their financial investments, so must the Christian be careful in the investment of his time and talents. Choice has to be made frequently between the good and the best. There is nothing better or bigger for a Christian than to adjust his life to the will of God (Rom. 12:1-2) and the work of Christ as expressed in the words of Acts 1:18, "Ye shall be witnesses unto me". A life keyed to these things will need all the enthusiasm, or zeal, it can possibly get, and will find in the doing of these things safeguard against

Evidence of Prehistoric

It was last fall that "The Vast Unknown," a region of mystery in Utah, was explored for the first time by an expedition of the National Geographic society in charge of Neil M. Judd of the department of American anthropology of the National museum, Mr. Judd and his assistants spent two months in complete isolation in this unknown section of Utah. During that time they did not see a single wild animal and remains of prehistoric Indians. Through signs placed on the rocks thousands of years ago by ancient Indians, Mr. Judd was enabled to find trails over many difficult places. number of habitations of prehistoric people were found in canyons.

the only traces of human beings were

The present Indians have a horror of the locality and tell many strange tales about it. It is a country of rare beauty to those who appreciate desert scenery. Mr. Judd describes the sandstone as varying in color from a light yellow to a blood red, and the shadows in the canyon range from hazy blue to deep purple, with occasional patches of green marking the rare vegetation. -- Detroit News

Courts Hold Tomato to Be a Vegetable

Technically, the tomato is classed by botanists as a berry. In the strictly scientific sense a berry is a simple fruit in which the entire pericarp or edible portion is fleshy except the outer skin. According to this classification, tomatoes, grapes, currants and bananas are all berries. All berries are fruits: that is, the berry is only a species of the larger division of plants called fruits. But popularly there is much confusion as to whether tomatoes should be called vegetables or fruits. The fact is there is no welldrawn distinction between fruits and vegetables in the popular sense of the terms. However, courts in this country have held that all those plants, like potatoes, cabbage, carrots, peas, celery, lettuce and tomatoes, which are eaten, whether cooked or raw, during the principal part of a meal are to be regarded as vegetables, while those used only for dessert are fruits. But this comes a long way from the difficulty.

Famous Patrons of Art

The Medici was a distinguished Florentine family, which rose to supreme power in the Fifteenth century, and became famous as the restorers of literature and the fine arts throughout Italy. Its most illustrious members were Cosimo de Medici, surnamed II Vecchio (The Ancient) and Pater Patriae, and Lorenzo, his grandson, surnamed The Magnificent, and The Father of Letters. This latter ruled Florence from 1469 to 1492, and proved himself a most munificent patron of art and literature. The family of the Medici became extinct on the death of its last male representative, Gian Gastone, seventh grand duke of Tuscany, in 1737.—Kansas City Star.

U. S. Department Urges More Houses for Birds

Birds may be gathered about us in all seasons of the year with ease and certainty, according to a bulletin from the Department of Agriculture, merely by offering what they desire. In winter they are often pushed for food, and if we supply this need they will report daily at the lunch counter and help to relieve the tedium of our indoor life.

In summer they care less for food provided by their human friends, and other means must be sought to attract them about the home. They appreciate fresh water for bathing and drinking. A shallow pool of varying depth, if only a foot across, becomes on hot days a center of attraction for all the birds in the vicinity, and it may be made with little effort and material: only a small quantity of cement is required, or if that be lacking, a pan with stones in it set in the ground will be equally serviceable.

Birds are desirable about the premises not only on account of their beauty and song, but because of their economic worth, says the bulletin. They are especially useful during the breeding period as insect destroyers, when they have to work early and late to obtain sufficient food for their nestlings, and their movements at this time are more interesting than during any other season. If safe retreats are furnished in which birds can rear their young comfortably, most of them will be occupied. If feathers, bits of wool or twine are put out, a dozen birds will make use of them.

The practice of erecting bird houses in this country, while now nationwide, is not so common and uniformly distributed as it should be, and more extended provisions of this nature cannot fail to result in a largely increased number of house birds, says the department.

Imitations of Nature

Man's inventions are frequently only imitations, more or less clumsy, of nature's own devices. It would appear, for instance, that even insects have sounding board, although they may be supposed to know nothing of the laws of acoustics. Entomologists have found on the under side of the forewings of two Japanese insects, of the families cicaria, a curlous pit or hollow, closely connected with an organ believed to be used by the insect for producing stident sounds. The pit would evidently serve to concentrate the sound of the shell-shaped orchestra stands and reflect the melody of the instruments to the ears of the auditors. In the Khari hills of India another specie of the same insect has been People Found in Desert found which possesses a similar set of organs. The shrill, creaking sounds that insects produce seldom fall pleasantly upon our ears, but they must produce a different effect on the insect world, else nature would hardly have provided these little musicians with sounding boards.

Three-Wheeled Automobile

The three-wheeled automobile is growing in popularity in Europe. There are today in Europe seven manufacturers of the three-wheeler. This machine is not to be mistaken for the side car, from which it differs in having a roomy body like an ordinary automobile, the difference being that one wheel at the rear supplies the tractive power. The three-wheeler, in competition with the motorcycle combination and four-wheelers, has won 23 gold medals, and 15 silver medals in meets. It holds an economy record of 67.1 miles per gallon, also a speed record of 82.2 miles an hour .- Scientific American.

Why He Laughed

"Is there anything the matter with that piece of bread?" asked Mrs. Flapjack, as her new boarder examined the bread very carefully.

"I don't see any butter on it." Mrs. Flapjack placed a piece of cheese on the bread, whereupon the new boarder began to laugh.

"Why do you laugh?" he was asked. "Because now that I look at it through my eyeglass, I can see the butter through the cheese."

Fanatics in Philippines

Religious fanatics have become quite prominent in the Philippine islands, and the recent "colorum" outbreak on the Island of Bucas was a religious outbreak that accounted for more than 20 dead. The "colorum" took place among the country people who live in bands in the mountains and each leader of a "colorum" band thinks he is a personal emissary from Christ. A few of the chiefs have even claimed to be the Savior himself.

Touching Wood Old Custom

Many persons, whether they are superstitious or not, conform to the habit of "touching wood" to erase the "curse" of bragging of good luck. The origin of this custom dates back to the tree worshipers among the Aryans, and the practice was carried down through the Egyptians, Etruscans, Greeks, Romans and modern Europeans. It is a custom more universal in Europe, of course, than in America.

An Honest Opinion

A business man, on retiring, wrote a book which he sent to a publisher. The latter promptly returned it. Considerably incensed, the author sent his work to a friend in a newspaper office, writing on a top corner of the manuscript: "What do you think I ought to get for this?" The friend returned the manuscript with the laconic reply written in the opposite corner: "Five years !"

MRS. WALLACE MOSER,

LAST PAGE EDITORIAL. "Costs Too Much."

We have a way of saying that a certain thing "costs too much" when we really mean that it costs a great deal, in our estimation. Actually,we know very little about the righteousness of costs, aside from the particular line of work, or business, in which we may be engaged, and even then our ideas of proper costs are at times ill-founded.

We look at a piece of machinery and say "it costs too much" without knowing anything about the cost of the separate items, or processes, involved in the cost—without information as to the overhead charges. We say the same thing of the services of individuals, of taxes, of insurance rates, of public service rates, and dozens of other things, without any actual knowledge on the subject.

We know that a certain thing may cost—or be sold at—more than we can afford to pay. We know that the complained of price is double, or more, its price several years ago. We imagine that the maker, or seller, is taking an immense profit, but when brought down to a statement of detailed particulars, we can not produce the evidence.

Very few people are dependable experts on the just costs of things, to any wide extent. A mechanic may complain of the cost of a tool he uses, while those for whom he works com-plain of the cost of the mechanic's time. The term, "costing too much," is usually applied to something we must buy, and not to something we
