

ORPHANS' HOME BAND CONCERT

Taneytown Fair Ground, on Monday night, August 11th.

The widely known Orphan's Home Band, of Loysville, Pa., is touring this section, giving daily concerts. The band will reach Taneytown next Monday, and give a concert at night at the Fair Ground, beginning at 7:30. The Fair Ground was selected because of its seating capacity for a large audience, as well as for an already erected stand for the band. The Fair officials have very kindly donated the use of the grounds, and there will be no charge except for electric current.

A large number of automobiles will be on hand for taking those from town to the ground, who find the walk too far. While the band is from a Lutheran Orphanage, the concert is in no sense a denominational affair, and all denominations are equally invited and welcome. There will be no admission charge to the ground, but a free will offering will be taken.

This band contains 45 members, and will render a concert of high excellence, for perhaps two hours. Wherever it appears it is greeted with throngs, as its performance is remembered from past appearances, its tours having extended over a number of years.

The band will be entertained, in Taneytown, at numerous homes, there having been more offers of entertainment than were needed. It goes from Taneytown to Hanover.

This opportunity should be taken advantage of by automobilists from miles around, on account of good roads, ample room for all, a fine musical treat, an enjoyable outing, and last but not least, an opportunity to financially aid a most worthy home for orphaned children. Don't miss it!

New Road from Woodsboro to Ladiesburg.

The proposed highway from Woodsboro to Ladiesburg will be built through Woodsboro, the county standing the expense, it was announced Thursday. It had originally been intended that the road should begin at the northern edge of Woodsboro, but this has been reconsidered by the county commissioners.

The highway will start at the southern edge of the town. One mile of road from the southern edge of Woodsboro toward Frederick will be built by the State Roads Commission this summer. As soon as the highway is completed it will be taken over and maintained by the state.

The road will be of macadam surface, 15 feet wide, except that the county has made provision for widening it to 19 feet within the limits of Woodsboro, provided the people of that town are willing to stand the extra expense.

The contract for constructing the highway has been awarded to Thomas, Bennett and Hunter, Westminster. This company started the building of a concrete culvert over a stream between New Midway and Ladiesburg. Three other concrete culverts will have to be constructed along this highway before the work of resurfacing is commenced.—Fredrick News.

Buy Coal Now!

Retailers have plenty of coal of all kinds on hand, and the mines are overstocked. Coal prices are as low as they are likely to be for the year; and relieving the retailers now will help to reduce present mine stocks and bring about more coal in sight for the winter.

This is Presidential election year, and no one knows how soon some labor demonstration may upset things, and set prices of coal jumping. There is nothing to lose, but may be much to gain, by getting your winter's supply of coal safely in the cellar, now. At least, get in a good big part of it.

Mine unions know that consumers have not yet bought much coal—know it as well as you do, so it is not hard to see the temptation. Strikes are usually indulged in when there is a good chance of winning, and when could there be a better chance than with a big election coming, and winter coal not yet bought?

A small advance has already been made at the mines, and further small advances will be made each month, following custom. Play safe and get your winter's supply now!

Dead Soldier's Kin Get Bonus.

Dependents of deceased veterans, who had they lived would have been entitled to benefits under the Bonus law, are eligible to receive an amount equal to such veteran's service credit. The order of payment is as follows: "The payments will be made, on application, to the widow (or widower) if married; if no unmarried widow or widower, then to the children, share and share alike; if no unmarried widow or widower or children, then to the mother; if no unmarried widow or widower or children or mother, then to the father."

Democrats are claiming a chance to carry Maine, for Governor, on the ground that in a close vote, and after a recount, the Republican candidate supported by the K. K. K. has won over Farrington, anti-Klan, who was first declared nominated.

OF INTEREST TO MOTORISTS.

Must use Non-glare Lights in Pennsylvania, Sept. 2.

The following from the Hanover, Pa., Record-Herald, will be of interest to Maryland motorists, due to their frequent travel over Pennsylvania roads:

Harrisburg, Aug. 6.—Beginning September 2 the State Highway department will inaugurate a campaign to enforce in Pennsylvania the use of non-glaring motor vehicle headlights. The three months' warning period in which motorists were required to procure approved headlights expires Sept. 1st.

Members of the Motor Patrol will operate in pairs along principal highways in Pennsylvania on and after Sept. 2. They have been instructed to stop every motorist whose lights do not conform with the provisions of the law. They will advise the operator of the machine to have irregularities in lens or headlights corrected at once.

"Ideal lighting results can be obtained only through the proper adjusting of the electric bulb and tilting of the headlights," said Registrar Benjamin G. Eynon today. "When the motorist gets the proper adjustment of a Class 'A' lens or device he will have better illumination for night driving."

"Our campaign which begins Sept. 1 will be one of education, rather than prosecution. The Patrolmen assigned to this work are being given a special course of instructions on the subject of headlights and their adjustments. The lenses approved in Pennsylvania Sept. 1, are those approved by the Eastern Conference of Motor Vehicle Administrations and are the only legal lenses in 13 eastern states and two Canadian provinces."

Printed instructions for the proper adjustment of headlights furnished by the Department of Highways, Automobile Division, Harrisburg, Pa., upon request or consult a dealer who knows how to make your headlights comply with the law.

Weather and Crops.

The week was favorable for the harvesting and thrashing of grains, harvesting of early potatoes, early tomatoes, early tree fruit, etc.

Corn continues fair to good generally. It is good to excellent in localities where moderate to heavy rains have fallen during the past week; elsewhere it is being unfavorably affected by the long period of dry weather. The early planted is tasseling and silking. Range in growth is great.

Thrashing of wheat and rye has been completed on the Eastern Shore and in southern Maryland, but continues in north-central Maryland and in Washington and Allegheny counties; in the Allegheny Mountain region harvesting of these grains is still in progress. Harvesting of oats has ended and thrashing is under way on the Eastern Shore and in southern Maryland; in north-central Maryland and in Washington and Allegheny counties oats are nearly all cut; while in the Allegheny Mountain region they are still heading.

Pastures and grasses are now poor on the Eastern Shore and poor to fair west of Chesapeake Bay, except still good in the Allegheny Mountain region. In general a fine hay crop was secured.

Digging of early potatoes is now general, except in the Allegheny Mountain region, where this crop is maturing. Late potatoes are making a fairly good stand; planting of this crop is still unfinished in some localities of the extreme southern counties.

Truck crops and gardens are now only fair. The tomato crop is poor. Early tomatoes are fruiting in the northern border counties and are ripening and being picked to the southward.

Insanity Terms.

As showing how terms for insanity vary, an alienist in the Frank murder case, Chicago, on Tuesday, put it this way:

"Insanity? Over on the North shore they call it psychosis. In the Hyde Park region they say weak minded. In the psychopathic hospital they call it mental disorder. In Clark street they say nutty. Down in West Madison Street they say bughouse. And in the outlying country they call it plumb crazy—Well?" and then he waved his hands.

A SCHOOL SITE IS PURCHASED

The New High School Building Apparently Assured.

A public meeting at the Presbyterian Church, last Friday night, ratified a committee purchase of the Calvin T. Fringer lot for the High School site, located at the end of George St., fronting 188 feet on that street, the L shape of the lot also giving it a frontage on the Mill road. The purchase price was $1500., and includes four acres. Mr. Fringer valued the land as high as $2500., but for a school location agreed to accept $1500.

The State School Board had inspected this lot, and the one owned by Hubert Spangler, and had agreed to accept either one, but finally rejected the latter, on account of its being slightly smaller than 4 acres. The Fringer lot was adjudged by those making an investigation to be the only satisfactory lot available, hence its purchase was ratified.

The lot has the advantage of laying high, with good drainage, fairly level, and away from street noises and dust, but somewhat off to the side so far as publicity is concerned. Aside from the latter consideration, the lot seems ideal in every respect.

It is thought that the various "Boards" have now been satisfied, and that work will commence in perhaps a month or six weeks, and the building be ready for occupancy about March 1, 1925. It is also thought that the various schools will be opened in temporary quarters, not yet fully determined, at the regular time in September.

Messrs S. C. Ott, Rev. Guy P. Bready and Walter A. Bower were appointed a committee to solicit subscriptions toward the $1500., which must be paid by local patrons, a number of subscriptions being received at the meeting.

The plans for the school have not yet been received, but it is understood that the building will be brick, two stories, with a large assembly hall on first floor, and so arranged that class rooms and hallways can be thrown together, when necessary. The local committee is waiting for full information, and final adoption of plans before proceeding actively with the canvass for funds.

Radio and Baseball.

Radio is a subject of such worldwide interest at the present time that experiments being conducted on by Wired Radio, Inc., in conjunction with the Staten Island Edison Company are of unusual interest.

How to cover the cost of providing suitable radio concerts to listeners has been a problem. It is agreed that baseball did not reach a high degree of development until it was "fenced in" so that an admission fee could be charged which would provide for the best talent. The fencing in of baseball has not interfered with the progress of amateur baseball but on the contrary, has developed an interest which has made all kinds of baseball more popular.

It is reasonable to suppose the same principle would apply to radio and that the highest degree of entertainment can only be provided by "fencing in" radio so that high grade broadcasting can be supported. Briefly, that is what Wired Radio, Inc., is seeking to perfect.

Wired radio which is sent over electric light wires is not a competitor of space radio for no method has yet appeared of putting space radio on a paid basis. Seemingly there is room for both types of radio to grow side by side, performing their different functions in their respective ways.

Attachments are being worked out in connection with wired radio which can be attached to the regular vacuum tube space set. Thus, by throwing the switch, the space set owner can intercept programs transmitted over lighting wires or programs sent through the air.

Idolized Salt for Goitre.

The Frederick News, this week, says:

"The necessity of an iodine content in various foods and drinking water as a preventive of goitre is being stressed more strongly each day by physicians throughout the country. This, of course, varies in each section of the country where the iodized nature of the soil is greater than in other sections."

It is interesting to note that in a recent compilation made by a prominent physician, based on statistics from all parts of the country, Frederick is placed twenty-sixth on a list of 28 towns reporting on the iodine content in each section from the richest down. In like manner in a list of 35 towns from all sections of the country reported as poor in iodine content, beginning with the poorest, Brunswick stood 23rd, and Thurmont 31st. This alone shows that this county is very poor in iodine content.

This is the reason why County Health Officer, Dr. E. C. Kefauver has recommended the use of iodized salt in the home."

They do things quickly down in New Mexico. A few weeks ago, an editor of a newspaper was sentenced to three months in jail, by a judge, for contempt of court, and was pardoned the same day by the Governor.

NATIONAL POLITICAL NOTES.

Main Events of the Week Affecting the Parties.

Gov. Bryan, of Nebraska, who is opposed to "Defense Day" plans for Sept. 12, has been assured by President Coolidge that the day and its demonstrations are largely for "organized forces of the army" and that states and communities can exercise their own option as to participating, and that the plans do not contemplate interference with business or personal desires.

La Follette controls the Republican machinery in Wisconsin. Despite the resignation of the Wisconsin members of the Republican National Committee who were elected at Cleveland in June and the La Follette "bolt," the La Follette electors will run as Republicans in Wisconsin. If the names of Coolidge and Dawes are to appear on the Wisconsin ballots, they may be forced to appear as "Independents." One of the little ironies of election laws and 1924 politics is being worked out in Wisconsin with that celebrated "bolter," Senator La Follette, labeled as a Republican, and the Republican choice of forty-seven States and six Territories about to go on the ticket as an "Independent."

Henry Ford is reported as a possibility in the Senatorial race, in Michigan, as a Republican. As a report, this is as good as some others, but improbable.

President Coolidge is receiving all sorts of rosy reports from the West, and elsewhere—even from Wisconsin and Nebraska—but is not becoming excited.

The action of the American Federation of Labor on the candidates for President, while not a direct command, is favorable to the La Follette-Wheeler ticket.

Both La Follette and Wheeler are held up as men who "throughout their whole political careers stood steadfast in defense of the right and interests of the wage earners and the farmers."

"We cannot fail to observe that both the Republican and Democratic parties through manipulated control are in a condition of moral bankruptcy, which constitutes a menace and a peril to our country and its institutions."

Both old party leaders are of the opinion that the pronouncement of Labor, as a body, will have little effect on the campaign, except with the "radical" element that is always ready to try experiments, and to stand "against the government."

W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, has made the statement that the Brotherhood has not endorsed any one candidate for the Presidency, and is not likely to do so. He says each of the three candidates have records favorable to the brotherhood, which is not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

70 Percent of Penna. Farmers own Automobiles.

Ownership of automobiles by farmers in Pennsylvania has increased from 7 percent in 1915 to 72 percent in 1924, according to the State Department of Agriculture. The figures gathered by 700 crop reporters of the department during the last ten years, are cited by the department as typical of the buying power of the farmer even in a highly industrialized State like Pennsylvania.

"There are 202,000 farmers in the State and 72 percent of these mean 145,440 automobile owners," says J. M. McKee, Deputy Secretary of Agriculture, in commenting upon the figures. "Some of these own more than one car. If the average value of one car to a farmer is $500 the farm investment in automobiles would be $72,750,000. It is probable that these cars average about 5000 miles a year travel. If a cost of six cents a mile be assumed, or $300 a car, this would be $43,632,000 for annual maintenance."

"It should be of interest to those who manufacture and deal in electric service and equipment," he said, "to speculate on how rapidly electric service will be made available to the farms and the potential market for their good that this automatically will create."

"It is probably conservative to say that the cost of wiring the buildings and electric equipment such as washers, irons, cleaners, lights, motors and other devices would amount to an average of $500 a farm. If the use of electric service should increase as has the automobiles at the rate of approximately 7 percent of the farms annually, it will mean 14,140 at $500 each or $7,070,000 annually within this field."

Ford Plants are "Dry."

Here is a copy of an order posted recently in all of the plants, shops and offices of Henry Ford. The order tells its own story.

"From this date on, dismissal without opportunity for appeal will be the penalty imposed upon any man found to have the odor of beer, wine or other liquor on his breath or to have intoxicants on his premises or in his house."

The Eighteenth Amendment is part of the fundamental law of this country. It was meant to be enforced, and so far as our organization is concerned it is going to be enforced to the letter."

10,517 barrels of Gwynbrook whiskey are to be placed in a storage warehouse in Baltimore. Perhaps it would be safer at Gwynbrook?

COUNTY AGENT WARNS FARMERS.

Moth in Wheat, and best way to give Treatment.

WHEAT.

The indications so far are for a big hatch of angamous moth, commonly known as butterfly in wheat. The wheat crop is rather light, at best, but will only become lighter if the proper measures are not taken at once.

The egg is in the wheat now. This egg will hatch under proper conditions which may be made by long storage in the mow, or heating in the bin. Thresh at once and treat grain in bin with carbon disulphide at the rate of one pound to fifty bushels. This will kill the adult moths and most of the worms, and prevent heating. A second treatment should be given about two or three weeks later.

Care should be taken with carbon disulphide; it is a deadly poisonous gas. Do not shut the pet cat or dog up in the grainery. Keep all lights (except electric) and fires away. Treat it the same as gasoline, and there will be no danger from fire.

The County Agent will demonstrate how to treat wheat for any farmer. Thresh before August 15. Treat at once with carbon disulphide.

BARLEY.

There is no better all around home grown feed than barley. It takes the place of corn and barley. Harvest comes about the time the corn crib gets empty. The prospects for full corn cribs this year are not very good. Better take out some feed insurance in the form of several acres of barley.

Treat barley with formaldehyde, for smut. It will cost about two cents per acre and return about five bushels increase. It, sure is good profit.

Sow alfalfa with your barley. It will insure a stand and give you better hay than clover or grass.

CLUB WORK.

They're off—no not the horse, but the Farm Bureau bus full of Carroll County Club boys and girls. They left Thursday for the week at College Park. The following certainly are having some time by now.

Kenneth K. Kroh, Paul E. Banker, Elsie Brilhart, Grace Null, Margaret A. Stoffie, Vallie E. Brilhart, Naomi M. Burgoon, Frank Bushey, Paul M. Halter, Helen Wolfe, Hubert J. Null, E. Burton Kephart, Jack Bower, Margaret Steele, Wilbur Ruby, Ralph Leister, Bernard Miller and Anna Prough.

Miss Isabelle Cobb, Home Demonstration Agent, went along and will spend the week at the University instructing and supervising the club members.

FIRE

How much insurance did he have? Very often not as much as would be needed to give him a good start to replace his barn or home. The same old story.

About three-fourths of the farmers of the county are dependent upon the Westminster Fire Department in case of fire. They have a good chemical engine and hose truck but no ladder truck. The one is needed as much as the other, at a fire. The Firemen are putting on a drive this week and every farmer in the district covered by this company will be asked to contribute towards the new truck. How about taking out a little permanent fire insurance?

An Appropriate Place?

An editor and a merchant were discussing the virtue of billboard advertising. The merchant contended that more people read the billboard than the newspapers. After a lengthy conversation in which neither man would give in, the merchant came tearing down the street to the newspaper office wanting to know why the obituary of his wife's mother was not in the paper. Especially after he had seen that a copy was taken to the newspaper office. "Well," said the editor, "I knew you wanted the obituary read by the people so I took it out and nailed it up on your billboard."—Dell Rapids (S. D.) Tribune.

Hagerstown After Gambling Devices.

On Monday, the authorities of Hagerstown gave proprietors of stores and pool rooms, 24 hours in which to rid their establishments of all types of slot machines, punch boards and gambling devices. The notice was given by the State's Attorney, following investigation. Those who do not remove the devices will be presented to the next Grand Jury for prosecution.

The rains of last week are estimated to have been worth hundreds of thousands of dollars to farmers of Maryland, chiefly though benefit to the corn and potato crops.

TAX RELIEF NOW LIKELY.

European War Debt Settlements will Help this Country.

The Washington correspondent to the Philadelphia Ledger in commenting on the final acceptance of the "Dawes" plan of settling a basis for the payment of the German and other European war debts, says in part: "German signatures to the protocol drafted by the London conference to give effect to the Dawes reparations program, and evidence of a genuine purpose by political Europe to stop her post-war foolishness, will make it possible for President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes to unfold soon after the November elections their plans for the further relief of taxpayers from the burden of land and naval armaments."

Mr. Coolidge let it be known today through an authorized White House spokesman that he was very well pleased with the allied agreement. There appeared to be slight doubt in the presidential mind but that the Germans would approve the convention.

The President's view is that the agreement will be satisfactory to all concerned. He makes no attempt to conceal his personal gratification over the part which America has played in promoting an accord which had been delayed until the tenth anniversary of the opening of the World War.

The President is a student of psychology regardless of whether people actually give him credit for that faculty. He believes, therefore, that the agreements reached by the British, French and Belgians at the Downing Street conferences are certain to exert a most salutary effect on world business. America's domestic advancement in industry and agriculture also will be stimulated, he feels."

State Camp of the P. O. S. of A.

The State Camp of Maryland, P. O. S. of A., held its 29th. annual session at Hancock, Washington County, on Tuesday and Wednesday. Next year, the meeting will be held at Hampstead, this county. A parade was held on Tuesday night, in which 2500 participated.

The following officers were elected: State president, Charles H. Corbett, Hancock; state vice-president, Chas. W. Schmidt, Baltimore; state master of forms, J. W. Anderson, Cambridge; state secretary, William James Heaps, Baltimore; state treasurer, William J. Carter, Baltimore; state conductor, J. F. Zimmerman, Cumberland; state inspector, E. Earl Harmon, Baltimore; state guard, Jesse Lewis, Solomon's Island.

Carroll County S. S. Notes.

The following detailed report, as furnished by the registration committee, Miss Ruth Little and Miss Pearl Corbin, shows that the annual convention of the Sunday Schools of the county, held in Centenary M. E. Church, Westminster, last Tuesday, set a new record in attendance. Of the 109 schools in the county, 86 were represented.

There were in attendance 23 pastors, 55 superintendents, 152 teachers and 51 visitors, the latter representing schools in other counties, widely separated. In all 540 persons registered. The County Association is already making plans to reach an even larger number of schools next year.

Work Horses on the Farm.

On a farm, horses are often given extremes of work and rest that are very hard on them. If they have not been doing full days' work they should not be put to plow ten or twelve hours at a stretch. They should be given light work during full days for at least two weeks before being plunged into steady spring and summer heavy work, and they should be grained well. Even greater care should be taken with horses that have been on pasture. A horse coming in soft off the grass will go to pieces in a few days of work in hot weather and easily may be permanently injured. Neither is it a good plan to keep a horse on pasture, working him half the days.

In matching up horses, get those of about the same gait. If a slow horse and a fast one are put together the fast horse will do all the work besides pulling the slow one along, and will fret besides, and the slow horse will be hurried out of his natural gait. Both horses will go to pieces. Never hurry a working team out of its natural gait.

Horses should be clipped in the spring when, with their heavy coat, they would sweat and perhaps become foundered or get the heaves. If you have a shaggy dog, clip him in hot weather and see how happy he will be.—From Our Dumb Animals.

Cotton Goods Advancing.

Owing to unfavorable reports concerning the cotton crop, and to the fact that the mills have small stocks on hand, cotton manufactures are advancing in price. Prices have been sent out by some of the large mills, announcing advances of one and two cents a yard. It is admitted that the market, at present, is largely speculative, and not settled.

Baltimore city is faced with the problem of raising about $27,000 with which to preserve its antiquated shot-tower relic, or have it torn down. Why worry over a thing like that? Looks to us as though the owners ought to be paid to tear it down.

Fixed Holidays.

It is beginning to be a real question as to whether we are not having too many fixed holidays—whether they are not, in fact, a nuisance and a hindrance to the business of more people than they benefit. There are too many closed days, we believe, of banks, stores and offices, which carry with them an expense of their own, in unproduction, as well as of public inconvenience.

We do not mean that workers have too many holidays, or days of recreation, but we do believe that these days should not be arbitrarily fixed, by law or custom, to certain dates, calling for the cessation of business. Every bank, store, factory, or office, should give its help time for play and vacation, but not all of the force on fixed days, to the extent of "closing up." The railroads and postoffices of the country, as well as the newspaper offices and many other public utilities so arrange their affairs as to "keep open" on holidays, but give their employees outings, just the same.

We know it to be positive fact that many workers get holidays without knowing what to do with them, because they do not come when they want to go away, or to a certain function. In this way many of our fixed holidays are unappreciated, because of their being untimely. Besides, as a result of many of our big general holidays, there is also a big crop of accidents—and especially now since the roads are crowded with autos, and excursions are overloaded with pleasure seekers.

Holiday interference with business, in addition to costs of production, is one of the facts in which more people should interest themselves. Let us have our holidays, but so that business of all kinds may go on as usual. We can have the same amount of holidays as now, without the present great cost.

More Small Farms.

The Centerville Observer says Queen Annes County farmers are becoming convinced that more farms, and smaller ones, are the secret to a revival of prosperity in agriculture, and that a number of them are ready to split up their 300 and 400 acre tracts. The Record advanced this idea, years ago, but the cost of the erection of buildings stands in the way, which would not be the same problem in Queen Annes, as in Carroll and Frederick, because on "the shore" farm buildings are not erected in groups, as a rule, as on the Western shore. Perhaps the average farm here has too many expensive buildings, which in itself may be a problem in farming.

The idea, however, is right. It is the small farm, operated by the owner, that pays best, is the best taken care of, and represents "home." Large tenanted farms, in many cases, fail to produce all the returns demanded of them, and are frequently, left "run down" because they do not "pay" both owner and tenant, which is asking a great deal. The Observer says, on the subject;

Primarily, the division of large tracts into smaller farms would soon result in a material increase in the county's population. It would bring families here from other counties and states until finally Queen Annes would assume the position of importance in population that is already enjoyed by many other counties with considerably fewer number of tillable acres.

Again, a greater number of smaller farms would make it possible for present-day tenants to arrange for the purchase of tracts which they could till with the help of their own family, without being compelled to be dependant upon shiftless and unreliable labor.

Another big advantage would be more rigid adherence to intensified farming and a natural tendency toward more diversified crops, rather than straight wheat and corn farming. It has been a recognized fact for quite a number of years that wheat and corn growing is becoming increasingly unprofitable, and smaller farms would make it possible for owners to engage more extensively in fruit growing and small crop production.

It is not to be expected that immediate results will be noted from a county-wide consideration of this important economic situation. But the fact that the suggestion is meeting with popular approval is an encouraging indication that eventually the proposals may bear fruit."

Back to the Home.

What America needs most of all is not "back to the farm," but back to the home. More real living, and less "flivving," more good cooking, and less jazzing; more time around the evening lamp, and less in front of the movie flicker.

Recreation is good and needful, but the eager and constant pursuit of pleasure—anywhere but at home—inevitably leads to discontent and unhappiness—if nothing worse!

A real home need not be rich or elaborate. A few rooms, cosy, cheerful and comfortable, are capable of supplying more real home to the square inch than a palace. The home atmosphere cannot be bought; it must be created by loving, unselfish hands. It is a priceless possession, fit for any king; but a joyous reality which few kings have ever known.

With all your getting do not fail to get a home. Nothing else will take its place as a retreat after a hard day's work. Make it something more than a mere place to eat and sleep. Revive the old home circle. Get acquainted with the children. Make home the center of attraction for them.

The breaking down of home life makes itself felt by such contributions to society as the cake-eater, lounge-lizard, final-hopper, bobbed flapper and other breeds of wild women.

Try to imagine a good old Thanksgiving Day observed without a real home circle. You may pay ten dollars a plate for an elaborate hotel dinner, but it will taste flat and insipid when you think of the celebrations of your boyhood in the old home.

"A home for everybody," is our motto, "and everybody at home—at least part of the time!"—Ned Longmeadow, in The Paper Book.

High Clothing Prices.

Washington, July 21.—A bulletin just issued by the Department of Agriculture, dealing with the wool situation at considerable length points out that the present low price of wool is due to a lack of demand and consumption by the American people. While the Tariff is not mentioned in the bulletin, the inference is clear that the experts who investigated this question have not considered the Tariff as a factor. The conclusion drawn from the facts submitted is that the wool growers have been hit through the reduction in wool prices because of fewer clothing sales and the failure of the American consumer to consume the amount of wool ordinarily consumed in the way of clothing.

The present low price of raw wool the bulletin states, cannot continue in the face of reduced-wool supplies, unless a radical change takes place in the consumption of woollen clothing by the American public. American wool growers are receiving 20 cents a pound less for their wool now than a year ago, despite low world stocks, decreased imports during the past ten months, and a decrease in the number of sheep in the principal wool-producing countries of the world.

Curtailed buying of woollen goods and clothing "because of high prices, backward seasons, high rents, changes in style of women's wear, two-pants suits, and increased use of silk and cotton goods" has been advanced by the trade, the report states, as the reason why the prices of raw wool are under those of a year ago despite the existing duty on wool.

The price of raw wool in Boston is approximately 18 cents a pound lower than the London price plus the import duty, resulting in decreased imports and the reexporting of large quantities of foreign wools that were held in bond. Total imports of wool into the United States during the ten months ended April 30, 1924 were 200,000,000 pounds as compared with 438,000,000 pounds imported during the corresponding period of the previous year.

All branches of the textile and clothing trade, the report says, regard clothing prices as too high but each feels that economics can best be effected by the others. The experts who prepared this report evidently endeavored to remain neutral so far as the retailers are concerned and contented themselves with the observation that the "retailers feel that any reductions must take place in the manufacturer's selling prices."

However, it is an open secret in the clothing trade—open so far as the trade is concerned, and suspected only by the public—that the existing high cost of clothing is due almost entirely to the inordinate profits demanded and obtained by the retailer. Statistics of a confidential character well known to the trade prove that the manufacturers of clothing are selling their products on a very narrow margin, and that a buyers' strike follows only when the retailer refuses to yield any of his profits to the consumer.

This report emphasizes the fact that the manufacturer contends that the present wage scale makes it impossible to effect economies in production costs. Some of the manufacturers and wholesale dealers in clothing feel that more efficient organization in the retail trade would bring about lower clothing prices.

The report points out that the value of the raw wool that enters into a suit of clothes is a comparatively small factor in the price of clothing. "The average all-wool suit takes about five pounds of wool," says the report, "so that the difference between a low-priced and a high-priced suit is not so much the quantity of wool used as it is the manufacture of the cloth, quality of linings and findings, and the labor used in making the cloth and the suit."

South's First Railroad
Established a Record

The railroad between Charleston and Hamburg, S. C., was the first in the South, second in the United States and the first in the world to attain a length of 100 miles, says the Detroit News. The South Carolina railroad was chartered in 1827 and in a few years was completed from Charleston to Hamburg and over the Savannah river to Augusta, Ga. In 1834 it was the longest continuous line of railroad in the United States or Europe.

The first locomotive built in the country was constructed for the South Carolina railroad. This engine, bearing the name "The Best Friend," ran for many years with great success. A queer accident happened to "The Best Friend." The engine had a negro fireman, unused to the ways of steam, who became much annoyed at the sound of escaping steam of the safety valve. He tied down the safety valve. The result was an explosion that destroyed him and partly destroyed the engine. "The Best Friend" was soon rebuilt and put back upon the track to do its accustomed work. The distance from Charleston to Hamburg, 135 miles, was performed in daylight, from six in the morning to six at night.

Parrot Long Esteemed

Aristotle spoke of parrots as did a writer who lived a century before him, the latter describing a bird that could imitate sound and speak the Indian or the Greek language, making it over two thousand years that this member of the feathered tribe has been known to talk. Even if parrots had not been able to speak they would have attracted attention because of their brilliant plumage. They used to be favorite pets in Rome, where the great ladies kept them in cages of tortoise shell and silver wire. As the Romans of those days appreciated beautiful fowls more thoroughly when served at table (such as roast peacock garnished with their own feathers), so did they esteem the parrot as a choice delicacy.

Inconstant

The critic was talking about love. "Good writers," he said, "never treat love as an immortal and divine thing. Poor writers always do."

"Poor writers go on about love ridiculously. They are like young Jack Hoskins."

"I like you, Mr. Hoskins," a pretty girl said to young Jack. "But I like Mr. Hemingway, too. Mr. Hemingway," she added with a simper, "says he thinks about me 365 days in the year."

"Huh! He wants one day off every four years, does he?" said Jack Hoskins. "Surely Miss Featherstonbaugh—Ethel—surely you don't compare a lukewarm attachment like that to a burning passion such as mine!"

Object Lesson Should Have Impressed Youth

A boy returned from school one day with a report that his scholarship had fallen below the usual average.

"Well," said the father, "you've fallen behind this month, have you?"

"Yes, sir."

"How did that happen?"

"Don't know, sir."

The father knew, if the son did not. He had observed a number of cheap novels scattered about the house, but had not thought it worth while to say anything until a fitting opportunity should offer itself. A basket of apples stood upon the floor, and he said:

"Empty out those apples, and take the basket and bring it to me half full of chips."

Suspecting nothing, the son obeyed. "And now," he continued, "put those apples back in the basket."

When half the apples were replaced, the son said:

"Father, they roll off; I can't put in any more."

"Put them in, I tell you."

"But, father, I can't put them in."

"Put them in! No, of course you can't put them in. Do you expect to fill a basket half full of chips and then fill it with apples? You said you did not know why you fell behind at school. I will tell you. Your mind is like that basket. It will not hold more than so much, and here you have been for the past month filling it up with chip-dirt—cheap novels."—Bom-bay Guardian.

Cruel Human Sacrifices Part of Aztec Religion

In ancient Mexico, the Mexico of the Aztecs, human sacrifices were not only the custom, but practically the only sacrifice offered. But mostly the sacrifices were composed of offenders, law-breakers and enemies. Enemies were generally offered up in preference to victims of their own race.

Another civilization much like the Aztec was the Incas. The Aztecs and the people of the Incas worshiped a sun god much as the Egyptians and the Babylonians, although the moon was a sort of lesser divinity to each, finding its counterpart in the Egyptian Isis.

The human sacrifices were unnecessarily cruel. The victim was either laid upon a regular sacrificial table and had his heart cut out by a few incisions, or else was put upon an eminence and armed with a blunt wooden sword. He was then attacked successively by men armed with obsidian swords and very sharp. He fought until he was killed. Many evidences of these cruelties have been excavated.

There was another custom, that of a priest praying a person to death. This was believed quite possible. Anyone whom a priest was known as praying to die was certain to die. For the most part they did, killed by terror—Bruce Bryan, in Art and Archeology.

Land Ruled by Insects

After an African trip an English explorer said that on the dark continent the fly was the ruler of man, for the human was constantly battling with it. "Africa," he says, "is but an ant heap. What a land of insects! What a power they wield!" This is the sort of country it is: "We journeyed down to the valley, starting early to miss the heat of the day, black and white men, armed with fly-switches, each with an ear attuned to the buzz of the tsetse fly behind him. In six days we reached the Luangwa river, which runs at the valley bottom." It was a wild spot where the canoe awaited Mr. Barnes and his fellow travelers. The banks were lined with great mahogany trees, raffia palms and hanging monkey ropes. Brilliant birds and butterflies were there. "Elephants came there nightly to drink," says Mr. Barnes. "Hippopotamuses snored in the pools. The broad river alone was alluring after the arid bush behind us."

Monopoly Long Held

The mill near Windsor, England, where paper for bank notes has been manufactured since 1724, was founded by a French Huguenot. Before this gentleman, Henri Portal, undertook the making of the paper, bank notes contained no watermark. He introduced one consisting of a looped border running round the outside of the note, and on the left-hand side a somewhat intricate scroll. The family monopoly has existed for 199 years. It was not held without a struggle in the early days, for a document of 1737 tells us that—"There was an opposition at this time by One Judd at Yewell paper mill by which means ye Price was lowered 18 p. Ream, and the duty, Felting and cargo to London all struck off and to be pd. and done by ye Maker."

Light Cellar Best

If the beams of cellar ceilings are covered with wall board and then given two coats of battleship gray paint, or a lighter tone, dust from ashes, coal and cement floor will not sift into upper rooms. If cellar floor and walls are painted, dust will be further prevented and lighting improved. Outline all corners in white, germs and vermin do not find the painted cellar attractive.

MELROSE.

One evening last week, a machine hailing from Michigan, happened to have tire trouble in front of your correspondents residence. We gleaned from him the following: The Ford industries in Detroit, are working full-time. The lowest wages paid to beginners is $30.00 per week for women and $36.00 to men. The Ford machine from start to finish, is conveyed on a truck along a track, each mechanic along the line adding some material and workmanship, without leaving his station, until the machine in the course of building, reaches the last mechanic, who examines it critically, and finds it a finished Ford automobile, ready to supply the growing demand for the world-famed automobile a big example of brains and labor mixed to reduce the costs of manufacture to the general public.

Elephants at Work

In Burma there are large lumber mills, and elephants are used for rolling the logs into position for the saws, an exchange says. Pushing with their heads, they run the logs up two inclined skids to the platform; two elephants do the pushing and a third elephant acts as boss. In his trunk the boss carries a few links of anchor chain, which he uses as a whip if one elephant falls behind.

When the whistle blows they all know that it is time to stop work and eat. It makes no difference whether they have a log within a fraction of an inch of the platform; the boss drops his anchor chain and gets out of the way, and the pushers step to one side and let the log crash.

Gee but They Go Deep

Pat visited the dentist with his jaw very much swollen from a tooth he desired to have pulled. But when the suffering man got into the chair and saw the gleaming pair of forceps approaching his face he refused to open his mouth.

The dentist quietly told his assistant to prick the patient with a pin, and when Pat opened his mouth to yell the dentist seized the tooth and out it came.

"It didn't hurt as much as you expected, did it?" the dentist asked, smilingly.

"Well, no," replied Pat, hesitatingly, as if doubting the truthfulness of his admission. "But," he added, placing his hand on the spot where the boy had pricked him, "but little did I think the roots would reach down like that."

The Tallest Dwarf

Angry Visitor—I call this a downright swindle! You advertise on your bills "The Most Remarkable Dwarf in the World," and he turns out to be five feet five inches high.

Oil to Protect Tracks

To stop rust on railroad tracks and make the steel fixtures last as long as the chemically treated ties, an eastern road has worked out a plan of oiling its rails, track bolts, tie plates, and other fittings of like character. The cost of putting on this coating is not high, and the saving effected on any one item of the track structure is said to justify the practice.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Their Credentials

For a few minutes at Seventh and Broadway the other afternoon traffic was at a standstill while Beauty and the Beast fought it out.

"My goodness," exclaimed Beauty, "it was all your fault. I've been driving carefully and I've had two years' experience."

"Yes," growled the Beast as he picked himself out of the gutter, "but don't forget that I've always walked carefully and I've had sixty-eight years' experience."

Another Misfit

A visitor to a mountain school in the South, after prodding an unhappy little boy about various matters, asked him if he knew the Ten Commandments.

The boy said he did not.

"You don't know the Ten Commandments?" the visitor repeated in astonishment.

"No, sir," the boy insisted. "What is your name, my lad?"

"Moses, sir."

The visitor gave it up.

Lost Meteorite Believed to Contain Platinum

In the Arizona desert, midway between the Grand canyon and the Petrified forest, the wise men of the Navajos tell a story that is generations old. Like many legends of once savage folks, it parallels with uncanny accuracy the scientific explanation of a weird phenomenon of nature.

Agas ago, the Indians say, three of their gods, seeking eternal rest, rode to the earth on flaming blue thunderbolts that cleaved for them a deep and wide-mouthed grave in which the gods still lie.

That is the Navajo version of the fall of what science calls the Canyon Diabolo meteorite, a huge lump of celestial matter that is believed to lie imbedded in the solid rock, 1,400 feet below the desert sands, beneath the 570-foot crater that it blasted out when it plunged from the sky.

For 40 years the Navajos have been shaking their heads and prophesying evil as they have seen the white man's machinery set up at the crater's edge and his drill bite into the tomb where sleep their gods. For mining engineers believe that the buried meteorite is a giant treasure chest of iron, nickel, platinum, iridium and other valuable minerals. Its size has been estimated as between 300 and 1,000 feet in diameter and its weight as between a few thousand tons and many millions.

Recently, the steel point of an oil drill, boring into the rock, was shattered against a substance harder than itself. Was it the meteorite? The engineers are assuming that it was and have sent for additional mining machinery to sink a shaft. What the drill struck is more than 1,400 feet below the surface.

The sinking of the proposed shaft will enable the engineers definitely to ascertain if the mysterious substance was a part of the long-sought treasure. But its sinking is likely to prove a difficult task.

Natural conditions, climate and the presence in the neighborhood of thousands of rattlesnakes and rats impede the progress of the mining operations. But they are being carried out wherever possible with eagerness by both the scientific and industrial world.—Popular Science Monthly.

Has Anyone Laughed At You Because—

By ETHEL R. PEYSER

You squabble over bills? Looking a bill "twice in the eye" is a mighty good habit. It means that you are a careful spender and that you spend with sense as well as cents. You may be thought to "squabble" just because you analyze the bill. The chap that laughs may think it beneath him to question a bill, so he dubs you a squabbler. Keep up your good work of knowing exactly what you pay for: it is a splendid habit and you will often find that you are paying for some one else's goods, and sometimes you will find that you are being undercharged. However, in any case, you will be an intelligent spender, and the U. S. A. needs such peopling!

Put It Off

The professor was a very absent-minded man, but he looked up as some of his family trooped into his study.

"Well, children, what do you want?" he said.

"We've come to say good-night, daddy!" they all shouted.

"Well," said the professor, absent-mindedly, "wait till tomorrow morning. I'm much too busy now."

MEN YOU MAY MARRY

By E. R. PEYSER

Has a man like this proposed to you?

Symptoms: Looks like a fair-haired giant. At first you fear to shake hands with him, he seems so "mitful." In the summer he dresses to slum off his form. Loves his slight waist—his broad shoulders. Talks continually of his morning exercises, his tub, his endurance, the beds that hotels have to buy for him and his discomfort in the sleeping car berths.

IN FACT

He needs a wide berth everywhere.

Prescription to bride:

Invite small men as well as tall—he likes to prescribe to the puny. Develop your muscles; he takes pride in them.

OGRE AND MERMAIDS

ONCE upon a time there was an Ogre who lived in a castle by the sea and many times he had seen the beautiful mermaids come up to sun themselves on the rocks, but he had never been able to get near enough to speak to them.

While the Ogre possessed some magic power, he was not able to change his form, so he went to a wood witch and asked to be given power to change into a dolphin when he chose, for the Ogre had fallen in love with the mermaids and wished to ask one of them to become his wife.

"A Big Dolphin Came Swimming Along."

If he could get close enough he would be able, he thought, to ask the one he would choose and tell her he lived in the beautiful castle on the high rocks and could change himself into another form.

This the old witch did, and one morning when the pretty mermaids came to the rocks a big dolphin came swimming along, but before he could speak to them two mermaids leaped to his back and drove him through the water.

Then back to the rocks the mermaids guided him with some seaweed reins they made him take in his mouth, and two more mermaids leaped upon his back and again the poor dolphin was driven through the water.

All day back and forth he traveled, the pretty mermaids laughing with glee at the frolic they were having, and when they at last released him the dolphin was too tired to speak, and flopping itself up on the shore it fell asleep.

When the dolphin awoke it wished itself an ogre at once, and away to the woods he ran to the witch that had given him power to change shape.

"Told me of this power to change to a dolphin," he said to the witch. "I have no wish to win a mermaid for my wife. Such thoughtless creatures as they are would not be the sort of wife for me, and I wish to be sure I shall never again be a dolphin, for if once they caught me I might never escape but always be their slave."

The old witch laughed. "I thought you would not care for those water nymphs," she said. "You can't change the nature of those creatures. They are used to having all the sea creatures for their slaves."

The Ogre began to tremble. "Are you sure I will never become a dolphin again?" he asked. "No," replied the witch, "there is only one way in which you are sure never to take on that form again, and that is to be changed into a rock or a high mountain; but if you remain an ogre you may some day, when near the sea, take on the form of the dolphin."

"Change me into a mountain and make it a high one, where those mermaids can never climb," said the Ogre.

So the witch changed him into a mountain and there, looking down on the sea below, where the mermaids sport in the sun, the Ogre is safe from their spell, and the mermaids sometimes, when they catch a poor dolphin and drive him through the water all day, think they hear a roll of thunder sounding along the mountain top; but it is the mountain who was once the Ogre, laughing to think of what he has escaped.

The Why of Superstitions

By H. IRVING KING

NOSEBLEED AND A KEY

IN MANY parts of the country it is believed that a key worn on a chain around the neck will prevent or cure nosebleed. The same superstition is found in many parts of Europe and in Asia. There are superstitions with regard to the key which are of analogous nature. These superstitions would appear to be compounded of two elements; the idea of the ancients with regard to iron as being both a "bane and antidote" in witchcraft and the idea of sympathetic magic. In Asia the iron idea is stressed; in Europe and America the sympathetic magic idea. But in all three regions the mixture is apparent.

In the superstition under consideration the key derives its principal power from the fact that a key is used to lock up things. Therefore, by sympathetic magic a key worn around the neck locks up the nose-bleed and stops it.

An analogy is found in the manner in which the Balkan Slavs in times of epidemic keep the disease from their village. Two women go outside the village, one with a lock and key and one with a kettle of water. The woman with the kettle says: "What do you come for?" to which the woman with the key replies, "I come to lock the village from mishaps." And having turned the key in the lock she throws it into the kettle. This is repeated three times at three different places outside the village and the villagers have greater faith in the efficacy of the ceremony than in all the health boards in existence. For that matter, many an American girl has more confidence in the power of the key around her neck (some say it should be hung down the back) to cure her nosebleed than in the skill of the doctor.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day, lucky jewel

ARABELLA

ARABELLA, which is bestowed in all good faith by fond parents, only to be cut down directly to the more convenient Bella, is a name of great power and dignity. It comes from the "eagle" series of Icelandic names, which is responsible for many of the appellatives popular in English speaking countries.

Arabella signifies "eagle heroine". The first lady to bear the name was the granddaughter of William the Lion of Scotland, who married Robert de Quin. Another Arabella was she, who, with her husband John de Montpyncon, held the manor of Magdalen Laver in the reign of Henry III.

The Normans, who made radical changes in all names that did not sound like French, cut Arabella down to Arbell. "My Lady of Arbell" was the title of the unfortunate Arabella Stuart, whose history is familiar to all of us. It is chiefly due to this poor lady that Arabella gained such vogue and had such widespread usage in England.

Arabella's talismanic gem is the diamond. It promises her fearlessness, success, and, if set in gold and worn on the left hand, true and abiding love. Thursday is her lucky day and 6 her lucky number. The violet is her flower.

YOUR HAND

How to read your characteristics and tendencies—the capabilities or weaknesses that make for success or failure as shown in your palm.

CARRIAGE AND MOTIONS OF THE HANDS

WHEN a person carries the hands in front of the body, or slightly at the side, and moves them continually, or almost always, waving them about as though to keep them from touching anything, or to keep anything from touching them, it is a sign of a nature that is suspicious, looking about for traps, etc. In some subjects, to be judged by other characteristics, this is, of course, a good sign, since it denotes carefulness, watchfulness and a desire to investigate matters before passing judgment upon them.

We sometimes encounter the subject who keeps the hands clasped in front, with the palms together. In very many cases it is a woman who carries the hands thus. She is calm and placid in temper, looking at life through the philosopher's spectacles. Such a person will let the hand be read in a quiet, unhurried manner, and is a good "subject." Of course other types will betray their mental and moral characteristics—to some extent, at least—by the manner in which they submit their hands to reading.

SCHOOL DAYS

Mother's Cook Book

Hundreds of stars in the pretty sky.
Hundreds of shells on the shore together.
Hundreds of birds that go singing by;
Hundreds of bees in the sunny weather.

Hundreds of dewdrops to greet the dawn;
Hundreds of lambs in the purple
clover.
Hundreds of butterflies on the lawn,
But only one mother the wide world

SEASONABLE FOODS

DURING the summer days cooling dishes, not too rich, are most appetizing.

Jellied Bouillon.

Soak one tablespoonful of gelatin in three tablespoonfuls of cold water for five minutes, then add two cupfuls of hot, well-seasoned bouillon; stir until well dissolved. Chill when thick and serve gently stirred with a fork to break into small pieces. Serve in bouillon cups.

Fruit Soup.

Pick over, wash, mash a quart of raspberries or strawberries. Add two cupfuls of sugar and let stand an hour.
Press through a double thickness of cheesecloth. Add two cupfuls of cold water and bring quickly to the boiling point. Add a tablespoonful of gelatin softened in three tablespoonfuls of cold water. Add the juice of half a lemon, turn into a shallow bowl and serve cut into small cubes, in sherbet cups.

Jellied Tomato Bouillon.

Cook one quart of tomatoes for one half hour in a covered dish, with one minced onion, three cloves, two tea-spoonfuls of salt, a little pepper, a bit of bay leaf and a teaspoonful of sugar, with a little minced parsley.
Strain through a double cheesecloth;
add three tablespoonfuls of gelatin softened in one-half cupful of cold water. Stir until the gelatin is dissolved.
Set aside to become firm. Break with a fork and serve with salted wafers.

Chicken Pudding.

Butter a baking dish or casserole,
put in two cupfuls of leftover chicken and pour over the following: Two eggs beaten and added to two cupfuls of milk, one can of corn, one teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of pepper. Put into a pan of hot water and bake in a hot oven until firm in the center.

Have You This Habit?

By Margaret Morison

DOMINEERING

OF THE boys in Centre Newton,
Brown was the brains and Smith
the boss. Brown had been taken once to the theater to see Julius Caesar;
and after that he always said that,
when he was old enough, he would write plays like Shakespeare. Smith laughed. Then Brown said that one day he would write a play with Smith in it.

The years passed. As Centre Newton was used to Smith's putting through "his" game while he was still a boy, so everyone thought it natural that he should find the choice job in the city when he left high school. Then he courted Lucy Gray, a whirlwind campaign. Of course Lucy married him. Smith was well used, by this time, to having his own way. At the wedding he reminded Brown of that childhood determination to write a play—"And remember to put me in it!"
he ended jocosely.

Then Brown went away. It was five-teen years before he came back to Centre Newton. In the newspaper, the morning of his arrival, he read head lines that featured a familiar name. "John Smith," went the caption, "Pirate." Brown decided that the time for his play had arrived. The same evening he called at Smith's mansion. The room in which he waited for his host had a deep bay window, and in it, so noiselessly had Brown entered, two boys of thirteen and fourteen went on whispering in guarded voices.

"He won't know anything about it,"
urged the first.
"You know what he is when he doesn't get his own way," said the second.

Brown coughed and two guilty conspirators emerged. When they saw Brown, they looked relieved. "Oh!
We thought you were Father!" said they.

Then Smith came in. It was the same old Smith. Before Brown had time to speak, he was sitting in a chair chosen by Smith, listening to Smith talk. Although he never smoked, he found himself lighting one of Smith's dangerous-looking black cigars. After a while he brought himself to enquire for Lucy. There was a pause, and then an annoyed expression crossed Smith's face. "You haven't heard?" said he. "My wife died several years ago."

Brown was quite unconscious of what passed after that for some minutes. Then he realized that Smith was asking him a question. "It was pointed by that Frenchman who did so many portraits in this country," Smith was saying, as he pulled aside a curtain. There before Brown stood Lucy Gray after three years of married life. Brown almost groaned aloud.
He was reminded by some trick of memory of a wounded heron he had once found in the surf on the beach.

As he went slowly down Smith's broad stairs, Brown knew that the plot of his play was finished. As he remembered the newspaper headlines, and the frightened children and the old portrait, he knew that his play would be a tragedy. Smith's habit of having his own way had cheated himself most of all.

Gypsy Woman Boss

The wife and mother is the real boss of the gypsy family. She controls the property, manages the children and holds the strings of the family pocket book. They think the men are not wise and discreet enough to deal with such weighty matters. When the suf-this country the gypsies marveled that American women were fighting for rights which their women had been exercising from the days of remotest antiquity.

The "gypsy queen" is a familiar character in the gypsy camps of Europe, but in this country a man is usually in apparent command of the company. But those who have penetrated into the inner circles of their camps tell us that the women are the real leaders.—Detroit News.

Lesson for August 10
FIRST MIRACLE OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—John 2:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—"Whatsoever He saith unto you, do it."—John 2:5.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus at a Wedding.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Miracle at Cana.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Jesus Adds to Joy.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus Enriching Social Life.

I. The Marriage Feast (vv. 1, 2).
Marriage was ordained by God and the first wedding was sanctioned by His presence (Gen. 2:22-24). Indeed, He must have performed the first marriage ceremony. It is not only honorable in all (Heb. 13:4) but when based on true affection it is the highest and best of human relationships next to union with the Lord. It promotes the physical, moral and spiritual well-being of both husband and wife and makes possible an atmosphere for the nurture of children. Marriage is not only an honorable relation but a wedding is a most beautiful occasion for all normal human beings.

1. Attended by Jesus' Mother and His Disciples (vv. 1, 2). The friends at this marriage feast were related to Jesus by blood and grace. To be united to Jesus Christ by the bonds of grace does not interfere with normal human relations but sanctifies them.

2. Attended by Jesus (v. 2). God attended the first marriage on earth (Gen. 2:22) and Jesus, who was about His Father's business (Luke 2:40), set a mark of honor upon every spring of human life by gracing this marriage feast with His presence. The Redeemer of man as He entered upon His exalted career thus lifted the holy ordinance of marriage to its proper dignity and beauty. Man by polygamy, adultery, divorce and fornication has basely degraded it.

II. The Anxiety of Jesus' Mother (vv. 3-5).

1. The Wine Failed (v. 3). Although this was a trying social exigency it seems to have been quite natural. The arrival of Jesus and His disciples put a drain upon the resources of the host, for these guests were bidden after they had reached Cana.

2. Mary Presents the Need to Jesus (v. 3). The clear implication is that she requested Him to embrace this opportunity to present His Messianic claims by working a miracle to supply the lack of wine. We may learn two lessons from Mary:

(1) In our great needs, when our resources are exhausted, we like Mary should come to Jesus for help.

(2) Let us not prescribe to Jesus the manner in which His help is to be given. While it was right for Mary to come to Him in her need, it was not her province to dictate how help should be given.

3. Jesus' Assertion of Authority (v. 3). He respectfully reminded His mother that He had passed from her authority—that His Father's will was supreme.

4. Mary's Confidence (v. 5). Although with calm dignity He asserted His authority, there must have been some sign by which He gave her to understand that He would not fall in this embarrassing emergency. She directed the servants to be ready to carry out whatever instructions He should issue.

III. The Water Made Wine, a Display of Jesus' Creative Power (vv. 6-9).
A miracle is the display of the supernatural. It is not against the laws of nature but the execution of issues beyond nature.

1. The Measure of This Miracle (v. 6). The six vessels had perhaps a capacity of 120 gallons. Jesus is unstinted in His gifts. Twelve baskets were left over from feeding the Five Thousand.

2. Its Freedom From Display (vv. 7, 8). The mighty works of the Lord are not for display, not for the gaze of men. While not for display, it was so real that the disciples and guests knew that it was wrought by divine power.

3. Its Design. Its primary aim was to show the divine glory. Though Jesus would not use His divine power to relieve His own hunger, He responded to the plea to supply the wants of others.

4. Its Reality (v. 9). This was not a sham, a make-believe. To prove its reality it was brought to the governor of the feast, presumably the bridegroom.

IV. The Surprised Table Master (vv. 10, 11).
The excellence of the wine was praised by the ruler of the feast. Christ gives, not only quantity, but quality.

Light and Darkness

A candle is not lighted for itself; neither is a man. The light that serves self only is no true light, its one virtue is that it will soon go out. . . . Light unshared is darkness.—George MacDonald.

Prayer as a Weapon

Prayer is a strong wall and fortress of the church; it is a goodly Christian's weapon, which no man knows nor finds but he who has the spirit of grace and of prayer.—Martin Luther.

Beautiful Things I See in Nature, and Their Lessons
Matthew 6:26-34

In this sixth chapter of Matthew, the Master instructs the disciples concerning four important matters, namely: giving, praying, fasting, and trusting. The life of trust is spoiled by two things against which we are warned. These two things are riches and the cares, or anxieties, of life. Beginning with verse 19, we read, "Lay not up for yourself treasures on earth, but lay up for yourself treasures in heaven. For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

When confronted by teaching of this kind, the human heart begins to doubt or demur. Can I not have treasures on earth and in heaven? Can I not divide my interests and affections so as to make the most of both? Such are the questions which naturally arise. He who knew what was in man anticipated this and said, "The light of the body is the eye: if therefore thine eye be single (or properly focused) thy whole body shall be full of light. But if thine eye be evil (or wrongly focused), double rather than single, trying to see two objects at the same time) then thy body shall be full of darkness."

As it is in the realm of the body, so it is in the realm of the soul. No man can serve two masters. He cannot serve God and mammon. At this point another objection is raised. Suppose I accept this philosophy of Christ and square my life accordingly. Suppose I do lay up treasures in heaven and live with an eye single to the service of God, who will take care of me, who will provide for me? Anticipating this, the Master speaks in the words of verse 25, "Therefore I say unto you, Be not anxious for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things. Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."

At this point, "the beautiful things I see in nature" are introduced to illustrate and bring to a sharp point the lesson of the hour. Behold the fowls of the air; your Heavenly Father feedeth them. Consider the lilies of the field; your Heavenly Father clothe them. Shall He not much more care for you?

Take these two words, "behold," "consider," and give them a place in your thought. Repeat them, ponder them, meditate upon them. They are His words addressed to His own people. No generation of men since the creation has needed these two words more than we do today.

Fear and Grandma Snow
Never Got Acquainted

Grandma Snow, writes a contributor, was tall, well-formed, as straight as an arrow and as brave as any man. We affectionately called her our major general. Like a real Spartan mother, when in '62 her youngest son came home dejected because he had been refused as a volunteer because he was under age, she promptly tied on her bonnet and marched back with him to the recruiting office.

"Now, see here, sergeant," she said, "this boy's heart is set on helping his country as his brothers are doing. He is well and strong and willing, and his father and I think he shows a proper spirit, and we give our full consent to his enlistment. What is more, we are both going to offer our services. You can put my name down now as a nurse for anywhere they wish to send me."

In later years when she was nearing her eightieth year she journeyed to a distant town to visit her son and his family. She occupied a bedroom off the parlor downstairs with another member of the household. One night in the small hours steps sounded on the veranda—and the following conversation took place at breakfast time:

"Mother, I hear there were people on our veranda during the night."
"Yes, John, there were two men," Grandma Snow replied placidly.

"What did you do?"
"I opened the door, of course, and asked them what they wanted."

"Mother! It was a dreadful thing for you to do! Suppose they had rushed in!"
"Well, suppose they had," grandma replied, quite unperturbed; "wouldn't I have rushed them out again?"—Youth's Companion.

Speed of Riveting Hammers

Riveting hammers are made with six, eight and nine-inch strokes, and the speed of the piston depends somewhat on the length of the hammer. The speed of the piston also depends on the piston; the short piston running more rapidly than a long piston. These piston speeds will vary from ten to sixteen blows per second, or from 600 to 1,000 blows per minute. The faster speeds are commonly found in shipbuilding and carbuilding plants, and the slower speeds are found in boiler shops.

Buying a Car

"But $8,000 seems a good deal to pay for a car."
"Now don't be foolish, hubby. He'll throw in a flower holder."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Tax Bills in Season.

Tax-paying is an obligation that can not be escaped. It also ought to be a privilege that we do not want to escape; for the reason that taxes are necessary in order that we may have public conveniences, public safety, law and order, good roads and schools, and we ought not want these benefits without helping to pay for them. Apparently, some do.

While we ought to want to pay taxes, we ought also take all possible personal intelligent interest in how, and for what, our taxes are spent. Tax money may be wasted, and perhaps often is; but we need to be good citizens and financiers and keep close track of what our elected officials are doing, and how we petition and urge for more of the expense that we complain of.

The one big thing that we ought to be sure of, is, that our opinions on public matters are intelligent, and founded on full knowledge of facts. We may be very sure in our own mind, about some things, and yet be very selfish and mistaken. The thing we ought to want is the greatest good for the greatest number, and not the greatest good for self and, our particular interests. A lot of our political wisdom is very narrow gauge.

About the worst citizen there is in the country, is the tax-dodger. Look out for the man—or woman—who will indulge in trickery, or false representations, to save a few dollars a year in his or her tax bill. Such persons simply steal from others, because taxes are essential to maintaining government, and all the things taxes go for, and when one saves, another must pay more.

Keeping taxes down, for all, is good citizenship, when it means economy and good business, and sometimes a check on political bad policy, but sidestepping paying one's just share for the country's good, is quite another matter.

Circumstantial.

Father's umbrella was not, to be found anywhere. So he asked the members of the family if they had seen it.

"I think Mr. Benson took it last night," said Johnny.

"What makes you think that my son?"

"Cause when I was in the hall last night I heard him say to sister: 'Well, I'll have to steal one.'"

VISION AND FAITH IN FARMING.

The unequalled success of the American Nation is largely due to the faith of its people in its future. Vision and faith are as essential in Farming as they are in religion. He who stands wavering between doubts, gets nowhere and accomplishes nothing. Cool judgment and indomitable courage, win the prize.

The present economic farming situation is sound, nothing more than the determination to go forward, is lacking to make farming all that it should be. The time is ripe to start. This Country has never known a general crop failure. With wheat and corn in a sharp advance. Why then should we wait?
