

AIMED TO FIGHT LEE SOUTH OF GETTYSBURG

General Meade Expected Battle to be in Carroll County.

A dispatch from General Meade to General Halleck, commander-in-chief of the army in 1863, but which never reached Gen. Halleck, because the messenger was shot to death, has just been made public for the first time. The dispatch came into the hands of a member of the Gettysburg National Park Committee, through George Bair who shot the dispatch bearer thinking him a confederate raider. The identity of the bearer has never been learned.

Just before the runner got to Hanover Junction he stopped at the Bair home for information about the right road, when he was shot and killed. Bair was taken before a Court martial at Carlisle, and was acquitted of shooting the bearer. According to the Philadelphia Ledger, the dispatch from General Meade was in part as follows:

"Upon assuming command of the army and after carefully considering the position of affairs and the movements of the enemy, I have concluded as follows:

"To move today toward Westminster and Emmitsburg, and the army is now in motion for that line, placing two corps at Taneytown, one at Frizzellburg, one at Uniontown, one at New Windsor, my cavalry guarding my flanks and rear. If Lee is moving for Baltimore, I expect to get between his main army and that place. If he is crossing the Susquehanna, I shall rely on General Couch with his force, holding him until I can fall upon his rear and give him battle, which I shall endeavor to do.

"I have ordered the abandonment of Harpers Ferry, a detachment of not more than 3000 to proceed with the property, by canal, to Washington, and strengthen your forces there against my cavalry raid, the remainder to move up and join me. The line from Frederick to Baltimore will necessarily be abandoned.

"While I move forward, I shall incline to the right toward the Baltimore and Harrisburg road, to cover that and draw supplies from there, if circumstances permit it, my main objective point being, of course, Lee's army, which, I am satisfied, has all passed through Hagerstown toward Chambersburg. My endeavor will be in my movements to hold my force well together, with the hope of falling upon some portion of Lee's army in detail.

"I send my courier with the hope and expectation that it will reach you safely. Headquarters tonight are at Middleburg, three miles from Uniontown and thirteen from Westminster, Md. There is rail communication from Baltimore to Washington."

"Do You Remember?"

William A. Golden, our long-time Pittsburg subscriber and occasional contributor, who has just returned home from an Alaskan trip, gave us good evidence that he still reads the "old home" paper, by sending us clippings headed "Remember" from the Pittsburg Post, evidently in response to our effort, noted in last issue, to establish a "Letter Box" particularly for the use of our patrons far from home who are solicited to write us of both present experiences and old memories.

The Post contains a number of "Remembers" relative to Pittsburg, back thirty or more years ago; just the same sort of "remembers" that one can have as to any place, large or small, a few of which relative to Taneytown, will be found in H. C. E.'s letter in the present issue in "The Letter Box."

Who will be the next—avoiding disagreeable personalisms—to send us a bunch of "do you remembers?"

CHRISTMAS CARDS & FOLDERS.

We have our line of samples of Christmas Cards and Folders, both engraved and embossed, ready for orders. Most of the designs can be had in lots not less than 50, but some can be had in lots of 25.

These cards and folders are printed up at our office—with most of them containing engraved greetings—the purchaser providing his or her own message, the printing being done in such a style as will harmonize with the card.

This opportunity is especially desirable for Pastors, Teachers, Professional or Business people, who can use a large lot of cards at Christmas time. The prices are much lower than when bought at retail, and have the additional advantage of having the sender's name and special message printed on them.

Please remember that we can not handle late orders, near Christmas. All orders should be in our hands not later than Dec. 1, and in order to be sure of getting the design wanted, orders should be placed before Nov. 1, but delivery and payment will be withheld until December, when desired.

Lotta, the once famous actress, died in Boston, last week, leaving a fortune estimated at over $5,000,000. As she has no relatives, considerable curiosity is manifested as to the provisions of her will, as she once stated that it would give New York a "shock."

THE BALTIMORE PRESBYTERY.

Will Hold Meeting in Taneytown Next Monday and Tuesday.

The Presbytery of Baltimore, Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., will hold its 358th. stated meeting at Taneytown, Md., October 6 and 7. The meetings will begin the evening of Oct. 6, at 7:30 o'clock. They will be presided over by Rev. John W. Douglas, D. D., Moderator, of Baltimore. Rev. David Hughes Ph. D., also of Baltimore, will report concerning the progress of National Missions, and Rev. William R. King, D. D., of New York, Promotional Secretary of the Presbyterian Board of National Missions, will address the Presbytery on the work of that Board, which extends from the northernmost hospital in the world, that at Point Barrow, Alaska, across every point of the United States and on to Porto Rico.

Rev. J. J. Coale, of Baltimore, will report for the Presbytery's committee on programme and field activities, and will announce details concerning the National Presbyterian Conference to be held at Chicago, Dec. 9-12, and at Philadelphia, Feb. 9-14.

Rev. G. Wilbur Shipley, Ph. D., of Taneytown, will be the host of the Presbytery.

Possibly the most important action will be on an overture sent down to the Presbyteries by the 1924 General Assembly, relative to a change of basis in electing representatives to the General Assembly. The number of Commissioners from any Presbytery is now fixed by the number of ministers in such Presbytery. Each Presbytery sends one minister and one Ruling Elder for each twenty-four ministers enrolled. It is proposed to change the basis of representation to the membership of the churches, allowing one Commissioner for each 3500 members or majority fraction thereof. For many years there has been a feeling that the General Assembly is too large. The last Assembly consisted of 919 Commissioners with a large addition of others who had business with the Assembly. The proposed change will reduce the Assembly to 565 members. The Synod of Baltimore would be reduced in its representation as follows: Baltimore Presbytery 5 instead of 8; New Castle Presbytery 3 instead of 4; Washington City Presbytery 3 instead of 6. The whole Synod would have 11 instead of 18.

Observe the "White Line."

"Show me the automobilist who fails to keep to the right of the white line and I'll show you a careless driver."

This statement was made by Commissioner of Motor Vehicles E. Austin Baughman in commenting on the alleged practice of automobilists who drive in the center and wrong side of the road while rounding curves on the state highways.

"I will venture to say that approximately 80 percent of the motorists pay no attention to the white lines appearing in the center of all curves," said the commissioner. "And I will say that of this 80 percent at least 60 percent are violating other automobile laws; failing to have their operator's or registration card with them, improper headlights or obscure license tags.

"The careful motorist when he sees a white line on the road realizes that it is put there for his safety. By keeping on the right side of the road while rounding curves collisions are less likely."

Members of the state police force have been ordered by Commissioner Baughman to warn all motorists of the danger incurred by their failing to observe the white lines.—Frederick News.

C. E. Rally in Taneytown.

The Carroll County C. E. Union has planned a big rally to be held in Trinity Lutheran Church, Taneytown, Oct. 10, at 7:30.

We will have inspirational songs, conferences, special music and splendid addresses.

Carroll M. Wright, Field Secretary will be present, as will other State and County Officers, and take part on the program. This is a real treat for endeavorers. Come out and enjoy this service—the public is invited!

MERWYN C. FUSS, Pres.

Taneytown District S. S. Meeting.

The Taneytown District Sunday School Association will hold a convention in the United Brethren Church, Oct. 20, afternoon, at 2:00 P. M., and evening at 7:30. In the afternoon Mr. Emory L. Coblenz, of Frederick, will be the speaker, and in the evening Rev. Harry Daniels and his male quartette from Gettysburg, will furnish the address and the music.

Washington Wins Championship.

Washington "went off" on Monday night, when its baseball team defeated Boston and won the years pennant from the New York Americans, by a close margin in a long fight. Even dignified government officials joined with the "fans" in whooping things up in honor of the first time Washington has won the distinction since the inauguration of big baseball—about 40 years. The Washington "Americans" will now play a series of games with the New York "Nationals" for the world's championship.

NEXT TUESDAY, Oct. 7, is the last date this year on which to register, or transfer. Everybody qualified ought to want to vote, this year.

TAR AND FEATHER CASES NOW ON TRIAL.

Much Conflicting Testimony is Given. Will End Next Week.

The tar and feathering case that occurred at Myersville, this summer, and which has attracted a great deal of notoriety, was placed on trial on Monday, in Frederick. Harry Leatherman, of Myersville, was charged with applying the "feathers" and Mrs. Mary V. Shank, the "tar," to the victim, Miss Dorothy Grandon, of Martinsburg, W. Va.

Mrs. Shank at the formal opening, admitted her part in the act, alleging that Miss Grandon was two familiar with her husband, Lloyd Shank. Sentence was suspended in her case pending the hearing of others indicted in the affair.

Miss Grandon gave her testimony in detail, alleging that while walking on the public road toward Middletown with Miss Viola Kennedy, she was suddenly attacked by Mrs. Shank who beat her, tore off her clothes and applied the tar and feathers. Leatherman passing them to Mrs. Shank.

An effort was made to introduce evidence regarding the personal character of Miss Grandon, as well as her relations with Mr. Shank, but all such efforts were ruled out, the ruling being that only circumstances directly connected with the tarring and feathering were admissible.

Leatherman entered a plea of not guilty as indicted, and asked a jury trial. The events of the first day were very disappointing to the audience, which expected character evidence to be admitted, in justification.

Mrs. Shank, on Tuesday appeared as a witness against Leatherman, and testified that he was the leading spirit in the job; that he handed her the tar and feathers and he with others threatened her with the same fate if she failed to punish the Grandon girl. She said she had planned to beat Miss Grandon with a club for her associations with her husband. The mob, she said, forced her to tear off the woman's clothes.

Witnesses were called testifying that Leatherman was a man of good character and orderly habits, the most of the witnesses being prominent churchmen and business men. It was also testified that at the time of her arrest, Mrs. Shank took all the blame for her acts; also that in the hearing before a Magistrate she did not implicate Leatherman.

Mabel Mills, chum of Miss Grandon testified that Leatherman gave Mrs. Shank the tar and feathers, and said that she (Miss Mills) should receive the same treatment. She also said Leatherman was the leader of mob.

Leatherman testified on Wednesday, making denial of charges made against him by Misses Grandon and Mills; that he did not hand Mrs. Shank the tar and feathers, nor even saw it until after it was applied.

A number of others testified that they were merely on lookers, and did not assist Mrs. Shank. None of the witnesses appeared to know where the tar and feathers came from, nor who assisted Mrs. Shank.

Testimony in the Leatherman case was concluded, on Thursday. There are other indictments that will be heard next week, but the ones against Mrs. Shank and Leatherman are the main ones.

Fatal Accident to Father and Son.

Mr. William Curfman, of Baltimore, and his son, Albert, were both fatally injured by being run down by a street car on Belair road, on Tuesday, Sept. 23. Father and son had assisted in moving furniture from their former home on Darley Ave., to East Echodale Ave., and were on their way to purchase groceries, while Mrs. Curfman and three daughters were awaiting their return at the new home.

Father and son were talking to each other, and as they crossed the car tracks at Belair road and Idaho Ave., failed to see a northbound car approaching rapidly. The motorman instantly applied the brakes, but before the car could be brought to a stand-still, both father and son were struck and both front wheels passed over them. Mr. Curfman was evidently killed almost instantly, as his body was mangled almost beyond recognition, with both arms and legs amputated.

The son was rushed to a hospital. Both legs were amputated below the knees, and was severely injured about the head, and he died in about five hours after his admission at the hospital.

Owing to their continued absence, Mrs. Curfman became alarmed and in company with Mrs. Bessie Klinghofer, Mr. Curfman's sister, made inquiries and were told of a street car accident, in which a man and boy were run over and removed to a hospital, and later found the hospital and her dead husband and son, Mrs. Klinghofer falling in a faint at the sight.

Mr. Curfman was aged 37 years, and his son 10 years. He was an employee of the B. & O. R. R. Besides his widow and three little daughters, he is survived by his mother, Mrs. John Curfman, and by three sisters, Mrs. Annie Burger and Mrs. Bessie Klinghofer, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Mary Baker, of Taneytown.

Citizens of Australia who do not vote at federal elections must pay a ten-dollar fine for their negligence.

THE PHONE RATE CASE.

Considerable Interest Manifested throughout State

The hearing in the phone rate case has been going on, in Baltimore, during the week, largely marked by clashes between opposing counsel, and by disputes over the correctness of figures and valuations, the Company contending that the methods of procedure are unfair on the part of the objectors to the proposed increased rates.

The book-keeping methods and deductions, in use by the Company, were also declared to be misleading by the contestants. The Company contended that it had a right to make its own statements based on experience and results, while counsel for the other side contended for more detailed information.

A plea was also entered that the Company should be required to show exhibits separating its Baltimore revenue from that of the counties in the state, based on the value of 1914, with net additions to date.

On the whole, the case so far has not been very illuminating to the average reader. An effort is being made to use the Maryland Company as a medium to bring the parent company, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, into the fight.

The full hearing is apparently blocked, for the present, due to the fact that the Telephone Company takes the position that the Company, being an inter-state corporation, is not under the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission of the state, which has no power to order the company to produce its books and records, and the Company will refuse to do so. The case, therefore, is likely to go into the courts before it is finally ended.

The Gettysburg Hospital.

House patient number 2,000 was admitted to the Annie M. Warner County Hospital, Tuesday, the total number of bed patients treated since April 1, 1921, when the hospital doors were thrown open to the public. Of these, 350 have been admitted within the last six months, a large increase over any previous six months period in the history of the institution.

A summary of the work and results of treatment by departments has just been published by the medical staff, giving detailed statistics on 1650 house cases treated from April, 1921, to April, 1924.

Hospital authorities feel greatly pleased with the results of the hospital service and that the results shown by the triennial report justify in every way preparations for the future of the institution.

Expansion has gone on, through the gifts of loyal citizens throughout the county, until the nurses home now is well on the way to completion, and sun porches for special cases and convalescents are rapidly being built. With these two additions the hospital can easily accommodate 65 to 70 patients, and treatment rooms sufficient for careful work are provided.

Never has a charity patient been refused treatment and care equal to that of full pay patients, while pay patients rates have been kept consistently below those of neighboring institutions—the hospital not keeping its doors open for profit, but charging only the rates necessary for the maintenance of adequate service. It speaks well for the management to have accomplished so much in three short years.—Littlestown Independent.

WHAT "BOOTLEG" LIQUOR MEANS

Some of the Dangers Connected with Beating Prohibition.

The following is clipped from a lengthy article in "The Dearborn Independent" on "Gambling with Death—What 'Bootleg' means," the extracts quoted being by Wilbur B. Linder, chemist in charge of the Washington laboratories in the Treasury building. In writing of the constituent of "moonshine whiskey" he says:

"The moonshiner and home distiller have no scruples regarding the health and life of their customers, neither do they have the facilities with which to work or the necessary time to produce a drinkable product," said Mr. Linder. "Orders are taken one day, the stuff made during the night, and delivered the next day. The illicit manufacturer wastes no time in aging his product, which helps to eliminate poisonous products of fermentation. Stills are hastily set up, often in swamps under most unsanitary conditions, far from the source of water supply and inaccessible in many cases. The modern moonshiner possesses none of the good qualities of the moonshiner of old, but has all the vices of his predecessor plus a lot of city-bred vices which the old-timer would have considered illegal and unmoral, to say the least.

"The generally recognized knock-out constituents of moonshine whisky, such as fusel oil, aldehydes and other products of fermentation other than ethyl alcohol, remain in the whisky because it is not aged. It is made one day and drunk the next, while to make good whisky aging from four to eight years is required, as the longer it is aged, up to a certain point, the less organically harmful it is. These poisons are cumulative and remain permanently in the system, frequently producing a condition of stupor which resembles drunkenness, but without the exhilarating effects for which the liquor is taken. Other results are depression of respiration, tetanic convulsions, muscular relaxation, destruction of tissues, action on the central nerve system, and finally death if taken frequently.

"Moonshine liquor often contains metallic poisons, due to the practice of bootleggers of peddling it in fruit jars which have zinc lids. The acids in the liquor form what is known as zinc salts, the drinking of which causes acute gastritis and other serious ailments. The presence of these salts cannot be detected by taste alone, but a thorough chemical analysis is necessary, which the average drinker can neither afford nor considers essential.

"The almost inconceivable conditions under which moonshine whisky is manufactured lend further elements of danger in its consumption. The illicit still by its very nature must be clandestine. It hides itself in thickets, fields and barns. The containers consist of old barrels, rusty ice-cream cans, galvanized oil cans, milk cans, wash boilers, and other metal vessels, unspeakably filthy and ill-smelling after repeated use without cleaning. The unrepented fermenting mixture attracts animal life of every description which feeds upon the material and often drowns in it. The materials used are of the worst, and even though it were possible to procure a pure yeast culture, the contamination produced by wild yeasts and bacteria would result in poor fermentation.

"The ingredients of one batch of liquor mash confiscated by raiding agents were lemon and orange peelings and watermelon rinds which had been taken from garbage cans, the water used being pumped from a pool into which the garbage had been dumped. Concentrated lye is sometimes put in the mash, thus reducing the period of fermentation six or seven days, and increasing the number of deaths from poisoning alarmingly. Hydrofluoric acid is sometimes used to stop fermentation at a given point. Illicit wine makers have been known to add permanganate of potash, a deadly poison, to freshly made wine to give it the appearance of age. With these deadly poisons put into the mash, who can wonder at the strange burning sensation or at the deaths which occur after the use of whisky thus made by unscrupulous persons?"

Industrial Notes.

Both wool and cotton are steadily advancing in price, which precludes any hope for lower prices in manufactures in fabrics this season, and likely next.

The wheat crop yield in the northwest is large, the average per acre in Minnesota being placed at 17½ bushels, when a 15 bushel average is considered good. The average in North Dakota will be around 14½ bushels per acre, the best recorded since 1915, and almost double that of last year.

Orders in the steel industry have improved, the output now being about 60 percent of full capacity. The prices, however, are not advancing.

General business conditions in Eastern centers are making strides toward normal, considering all factors.

The price of corn advanced 6 cents, last week, chiefly due to unfavorable crop reports, while wheat advanced 3 cents.

NATIONAL POLITICAL NOTES.

Main Events of the Week Affecting the Parties.

There will be ten women candidates for Congress, this year, five of whom are in Pennsylvania. Only 6 of the 47 states made such nominations.

Mrs. La Follette, wife of the candidate for the Presidency, made an appeal, on Sunday, in the auditorium at Mt. Lake Park, for her husband, to an audience mainly of West Va. women. Her theme was largely against monopolies, and in favor of public ownership.

The political battle for Governor in New York, this year, will be only secondary in importance to that of the Presidential contest. The renomination of Governor Smith, and the nomination by the Republicans of Theodore Roosevelt, guarantees a royal fight, which may have National political significance four years hence. "Al" and "Teddy Jr." will undoubtedly be wakened up by the big state, and prevent the election from being a dull affair.

Louisiana has refused the La Follette electors space on the ticket, on the ground of conflict with the state law. President Coolidge gave out a statement that so far as he was concerned he desired, as far as possible, in every state, a full and free opportunity for voters to express their wishes between candidates, and regretted the existence of state laws preventing such opportunity.

Candidate Davis delivered an address at Frederick, on Wednesday afternoon, in which he charged spokesmen for the present administration with "silence" as to numerous public matters, and entered into a criticism of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. He went to Baltimore, later in the afternoon, where efforts were made to interview him on "prohibition" and "states rights," but without success, as he declined to commit himself.

In an address in Baltimore, at night Mr. Davis renewed his attack on the party in power, insisting that it has proved unfaithful to its trust. He expressed himself as in favor of the fullest measure of home rule and personal liberty, and qualified these rights as standing for freedom of speech and press, freedom from search and declared that the Democratic party pledges to the world a readiness to share any burden, both foreign and domestic.

The Hearst papers Nation wide poll having been taken mainly in the cities, now stands: Coolidge 99,676; La Follette 96,437; Davis 47,905. In Maryland only, Coolidge 4,000, Davis 3,777, La Follette 2,790.

The betting in New York is $70,000 to $20,000 on Coolidge to win, an increase from 3 to 1. The odds are 6 to 1 against La Follette, and 5 to 1 against the possibility of the election being thrown into the House. There are several betting pools in operation in the city.

A big deal is charged in the political situation by Chairman Butler of the Republican Committee, who says the Democrats and Progressives in the western states have taken steps to bring about a coalition of forces to beat Coolidge, and throw the election to Congress, which would likely result in the election of Charles W. Bryan as President.

The Literary Digest poll now stands: Coolidge 397,522; Davis 118,250; La Follette 164,366. The poll, so far, gives La Follette only Wisconsin, his home state. There are no Southern States in the vote but Texas and Virginia.

Resolutions Adopted by W. C. T. U.

Gathered in this the 31st Convention of the Carroll County W. C. T. U. in the M. E. Church, of Sykesville, we trust that all the members have come prepared to work together for the best interests of the Master, and that we are all earnestly asking His help in the work, he would have us do in making the world a better and purer home for His children.

Resolved, That we delegates to this Convention have so prepared our minds and hearts that we may not only work together while thus assembled, but may be so inspired that we may be able to take to our home unions a full account of the work done, that will encourage them to accomplish greater work in the future.

Resolved, That we press forward with renewed earnestness to prove to the world that the 18th Amendment is "In the Constitution, and there to stay," and that we will do all in our power for its enforcement, and to combat the efforts of the opponents to the Volstead Act and prevent any action for the return of wine and beer.

Convinced that our hearty co-operation is necessary to convince the world that war shall never again be allowed to devastate our land, let us earnestly endeavor to prove that by love, only, we can banish all desire for war and thus maintain universal peace.

Resolved, That as obedience to the Constitution is the only means of obtaining peace, prosperity and happiness, we will pledge ourselves, and induce others to give support, only to the candidates who will promise to enforce the laws of the land. To accomplish this, let every woman consider it her duty to register and vote.

Resolved, That by example and precepts, we will educate our children to avoid the use of tobacco, and prove to them that it is an enemy to their physical and moral welfare.

Resolved, That we persist in our efforts to prove that Ract-track gambling is an evil, and endeavor to have the practice banished from our State.

We desire to express our thanks and appreciation to our fellow members of the Sykesville Union, to the members of the M. E. Church, and to all who have in any way contributed to our comfort and pleasure, and added to the success of the Convention.

Committee:
MRS. LYDIA SMITH, Union Bridge.
MRS. BLANCHÉ BUCKINGHAM, Sandyville.
MRS. SHREEVE, Finksburg.
MRS. J. D. BOWERS, Westminster.
MRS. GATES, New Windsor.

POULTRY

PREVENT SPREAD OF DISEASE OF CHICKS

The method of spread or transmission of white diarrhea is well known. That method is this: Chicks that survive the white diarrhea, contain the organisms in their bodies and a certain percentage of the eggs laid by that hen when grown are infected before hatching. The chicks come out of the shell with the disease and immediately show symptoms of white diarrhea and this spreads through their first four days of life to all the other chicks in the flock. During the first four days of life, if one chick comes out of the batch infected, others of that particular batch will become infected.

Prevention consists in hatching chicks from eggs free from infection. If your chicks get the disease, treatment is practically useless. Attention would be better given to prevention than to treatment. Kill all noticeably diseased. Remove all free from disease away from infected premises.

The only satisfactory method of determining whether a hen is infected is by means of blood test. Draw a small vial of blood from each hen that is to be bred from. The college is testing blood free of charge at the present time and will soon have a bulletin available explaining this method.

The proper time to test for white diarrhea is in the fall after culling. Test all hens you propose to keep over for breeding purposes. One test may not eliminate all disease. Test at least every year, or every six months, until you know they are free. Do not add to your flock any bird you do not know to be free from this disease.

All may soon be forced to test as people are going to stop buying indiscriminately from hatcheries or breeders whose eggs come from unknown, untested stock. They will buy from the hatchery that tests the hens that lay the eggs. The blood test is the only means at all satisfactory for the elimination of white diarrhea, as it eliminates the hen that lays the eggs that are infected.—Dr. H. E. Newsom, Pathologist, Colorado Experiment Station.

Convenient Nests Easy to Keep in Good Order

Good nests are easy to clean and easy to get at when collecting eggs. They are most convenient to reach when located under the dropping boards or on the side walls. Unless the dropping boards are at least four feet from the floor, the nests should not be under them.

There should be one nest for every four birds in the pen. A box 12 by 12 inches is the most suitable size for the average bird. A 1 by 4-inch piece placed about four inches in front of the nests will give the hen a place to step from into the nest. By hinging this strip it can be used to close the nests against pullets in the fall and the broody hens in the spring.

The New Jersey experiment station ranks nesting materials in the following order: hay, shavings, sawdust and straw. To make cleaning easy, they suggest building nests in sections 12 by 12 by 16 inches, with a strip in front of 1 by 4-inch material to hold in the nest filler and a similar strip for the back of the nests. This sets on a platform the width of the nests and as long as the row of nests is to be. The nests are covered with a top of matched lumber which answers for the platform for the second tier of nests. When it is desired to clean the nests, they are simply pulled off the platform and all the nest material falls to the floor. These nests can be used either under the dropping boards or on the side walls.

Chicken Lice Destroyed by Dipping in Solution

Chicken lice can be easily destroyed by dipping the birds in a solution of sodium fluoride and water. Five ounces of sodium fluoride dissolved in a tub containing five gallons of water will be sufficient to treat 100 adult birds or twice that number of chickens ten to twelve weeks old. Every bird on the place should be drenched in this solution to entirely eliminate poultry lice for the next few months. Select a warm day and dip the birds early in the forenoon.

Meat in Growing Mash

Do not feed over 10 per cent meat in the growing mash, as a high protein ration will mature the pullet instead of developing growth. Thirty-five pounds of cornmeal, 25 pounds bran, 25 pounds middlings, 10 pounds meat scrap and 5 pounds bone meal is suggested. Milk may replace the meat, but do not leave out the bone meal, particularly in this case.

Remedy for Scaly Leg

Scaly leg is a common summer disease among poultry. It is caused by a small parasite that burrows into the scales of the bird's leg, causing them to protrude. One good way to cure it is to fill an empty fruit can with coal oil and keep the legs of the bird immersed in this for a few minutes. If this is done twice a week for a month it will usually kill the parasites, but it is well to supplement this treatment by using lard as an ointment for the legs.

Rely on America for All Sorts of Goods

From a Peruvian mining camp in the Andes came by mail to a New York department store not long since an order for food. The shipment made the last leg of its journey with the help of fifty pack mules, each of which carried 250 pounds of the steep ascent, says The Nation's Business. And from Alaska came an order for silk feminine underwear and a hat which would wear six months. "The styles change only twice a year up here," the customer explained.

A woman in Paris wrote to another New York shop for a certain powder used to clean false teeth. A woman in Maracaibo, Venezuela, wrote for a certain brand of face cream. Another in Bermuda wanted just one drinking cup and got it. A customer in Peru got camera films, and books were sent to India and China.

Germans are America's mail-order customers for table delicacies, starch, salt, pepper and soap. Liberia and Beirut, Syria, buy our foodstuffs by letter. Moscow, Warsaw and Latvian villages write for our canned goods. Italy, Denmark, Finland, Norway, Belgium, Switzerland and Sweden are on our department store books. In some cases missionaries are credited with the sales, in others returned immigrants.

And wherever the goods go they are voiceless ambassadors of the American policy of a dollar's worth for a dollar.

Joke Would Seem to Be on Paragraphers

Newspaper paragraphers like to poke fun at advertisements announcing the loss of an "open-faced man's watch," announces the Montreal Herald. Who and where is this open-faced man? they inquire. But, truly, he is no joke, the open-faced man. May his tribe increase.

The countenance of the open-faced man is no mask, concealing guile. His character is written on it, so that all can read, for he has nothing whereof to be ashamed. The open face is an open book.

Scrambling metaphors, one may say the open face is also a mirror, reflecting and reflecting light. The countenance of the open-faced man is a cheering illuminant when other men's faces are shadowed by gloom and despair.

But he is no professional Sunny Jim. The light in his countenance is the faith that is in his heart and other men find strength and courage in his presence.

Despite the paragraphers, there are indeed such persons as open-faced men. There are many of them, but still not enough. Scripture gives honorable mention to the men of open face, for in Corinthians it is written: "We all with open face beholding as in a mirror the glory of the Lord, are transformed into the same image from glory to glory."

Goat's and Cow's Milk

In taste goat's milk is like rich cow's milk, except that it is somewhat whiter and a trifle sweeter. The uninitiated would not be able to distinguish it from cow's milk either by taste or odor. It is slightly more viscous than cow's milk, the consistency being smooth like first-run cream. Over 3,000 goats are used by various government hospitals for milk-producing purposes. Tuberculosis sanatoriums especially use large amounts of goat's milk. Experts declare that it is a good body builder for patients suffering from wasting diseases such as tuberculosis. Goat's milk being alkaline in its reaction, the same as human milk, is about the best substitute for mother's milk for babies. The curd of goat's milk, being tender and flaky, is digested in the shortest possible time. It is pure and wholesome and can safely be taken in a raw state. Goats are considered immune from tuberculosis, so their milk needs no pasteurizing, and runs no danger of losing any of its vitamins or having any of its lime salts altered by the application of heat.

Told in an Epitaph

There had been a motor car accident resulting in injury to the driver and two passengers. The magistrate conducting an investigation of the matter summoned several witnesses, among them a farmer living near the scene of the accident. There was a great deal of testimony offered regarding the high speed at which the car had traveled. Witnesses, moreover, said that the road was in bad repair. The magistrate finally reached the farmer, who lived near the scene.

"What would you say about this accident, Mr. Gately?" he asked.

"Well, ef I was writin' the driver's epitaph," drawled the witness, "I'd say he died tryin' to get 60 miles out of a 10-mile road."

Dante's Accuracy

Dante wrote parts of the "Divine Comedy" with a map spread out before him. So think scholars who have found brief descriptions of regions in that great poem extremely incisive and accurate. Certain passages in the "De Vulgari Eloquentia," a work in which the great poet lays down the rules of poetic composition, could hardly have been written without reference to a map. Though Dante wrote no treatise devoted specifically to geography, he had a clear understanding of the relative positions of places in Italy and its neighboring lands and his greatest poem is based on the orthodox geographical theories of his time.

Reins of Power Held in Hands of People

As far back as the Middle ages, the doctrine was held in England that ministers of state were responsible, not only to the crown, but also to parliament, according to a writer in the London Times. For instance, in 1341 a pledge was exacted from Edward III that the chancellor and other great officers should be appointed in parliament, and their work tested by parliament. In 1378 another similar pledge was given. These pledges were not always kept, but parliament never lost sight of them, and their spirit survived. At times this responsibility bore down upon bad ministers with tragic effect. Several such ministers were impeached by parliament, found guilty and beheaded—Stafford, for instance, in the reign of Charles I.

What may be called the modern doctrine of responsible government was first put into practice in the reign of William and Mary, that is, a few years after the revolution of 1688-89. Before that time the ministry was often composed of men of different political affiliations, and it was no uncommon thing for the secretary of state and the lord treasurer to vote on opposite sides in parliament. A ministry so composed was not efficient or harmonious, and William began the practice of selecting all the ministers from one political party, that party being the one that had the majority in the house of commons. From that beginning has grown our present system of a responsible ministry that is absolutely dependent for existence upon the will of the house of commons.

English County Has Its Own Salt Lake

Every one who has swum in a lake or pond as well as in the sea knows the extra buoyancy of salt water as compared with fresh. This effect of salt on water is demonstrated strikingly at Droitwich, the Worcestershire spa, where there is water in which it is impossible to sink.

You can float on the water, sit on it, and even go to sleep on it, without fear of drowning. The better the

WHY

Periods of Playtime Must Be Set Aside

"A prominent physician," says the Ohio State Journal, "occasionally writes a novel prescription for a patient. His practice keeps him in touch with business and professional men. Many come with complaints of feeling bad, headaches, inability to sleep. His questions mainly are directed to the habits of life of the patient. He wants to know if they ever take exercise, take a day off, go to a picnic, get out and play, get out in the fresh air, and all that sort of information. Many times he finds the man has been working, has no outdoor recreation, is not taking exercise, just wearing and rusting out. Such men get the novel prescriptions.

"Most men, this wise physician says, have in the back of their heads a plan, some wonderful thing in which they are interested, to which they intend giving their attention when they make their fortune and can retire and do as they please. His experience is that such plans are kept alive, such dreams never die. Many of these plans call for activity out of doors. When he diagnoses the case as nature's objections to lack of physical exercise and can get a glimpse of the dreams of the patient, he writes a prescription to go join a golf club and play twice a week, to go buy a little piece of land and establish a chicken ranch, to develop a dairy farm, to cultivate flowers, the prescription calling for the development of the ambition long in storage in the back of the patient's head. In such cases it is not medicine but play the patient needs."

Why Fight on Disease Must Not Be Lessened

In the course of a conference on tuberculosis held a few years ago it was stated that tuberculosis alone costs Great Britain no less than $13,500,000 a year. Think of it—more than a million a month, or about $40,000 a day! Rheumatism is not usually counted as a serious malady; yet it cripples or partially cripples so many of us that it is reckoned that the labor lost through the affliction in this country is worth between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 yearly, says London Tit-Bits.

Influenza is with us every year, and when a really bad epidemic strikes the country, as happened in 1919, about one in five of the whole population suffers. The sick roll from influenza in that year was 9,000,000, and there were nearly 150,000 deaths.

The cost of treatment and value of lives lost did not fall far short of $10,000,000 and absence of work and dislocation of trade must have cost at least as much more. So that one visitation left the nation no less than $20,000,000 poorer.

Day by day about one in forty-five of the population is on the sick list. If only one-fifth of these are wage-earners there is a loss of 1,500,000 working days in each week.

While exact figures are unobtainable, it is safe to say that illness is costing this country at least $4,000 an hour day and night all the year round.

Why the "R" Is Rolled

Why do telephone operators habitually say "thr-r-ree?"

It has been found that sounds such as th, f, v, s and z are the most difficult to catch over the phone because they depend upon very high frequencies. Some frequencies of th, f and v exceed 5,000 a second, which is about the maximum frequency of human voice waves. This explains central's fondness for rolling her r's when she pronounces the word "thr-r-ree."

In her training for telephone work she has been instructed that the th sound is difficult to hear over the wire and must be accented if it is to be understood. In her effort to speak the difficult sound intelligibly she usually puts so much stress upon it that it becomes something like "thuh." This causes her to make two syllables of the word "three."

Why One Shudders

The hardy person who plunges into a cold bath experiences the same feeling as he who shudders when looking down from a great height. Shuddering is caused when the brain receives a sudden shock, and the heart momentarily ceases its function of pumping blood, says London Answers.

Perfectly ordinary things make some people shudder. Many people, for instance, experience a strange thrill when they touch silk. Lord Roberts was always uneasy in the presence of cats, and Shakespeare refers to certain people who "love not a gaping pig." Some years ago, too, a man declared to a magistrate that whenever he saw smoke issuing from a chimney it caused him to shudder violently.

Why the Name Angora

Certain long-haired cats and goats are called Angora because they were originally supposed to have come from Angora, a province in Asia Minor. It is said that many of the cats, dogs, goats and other animals in this region have exceedingly long and fine hair. This is believed to be caused by some peculiarity of the climate or atmosphere, because these animals taken to other countries lose much of this distinctive characteristic. But the facts are disputed. Some authorities maintain that Angora cats and goats did not originally come from Angora, but from Persia and Arabia.

HOW TO CONDUCT THE WEDDING WHEN HELD IN CHURCH.

"No credit for a perfect wedding belongs to the bridegroom," says Emily Price Post in McCall's Magazine. "He has only to order the bride's bouquet, boutonnières, ties and gloves for himself and his own attendants, and to provide the wedding ring and the clergyman's fee. On his wedding day he puts on clothes matching those of his ushers and best man, and goes to the church with the latter, and—waits.

"The church is decked with flowers, the wedding guests are assigned their places, the bride's family on the left, the groom's on the right. When the mother of the bride is seated, the organist begins the wedding march. The clergyman enters from the vestry, followed by the groom, who, with his best man beside him, stands at the chancel steps.

"At the same moment the procession starts. The ushers, two by two, come first, then two by two the bridesmaids; then the maid of honor, alone. Last of all, with her left hand within her father's right arm and in all the glory of her wedding raiment—comes the bride!

"At the chancel the ushers divide, taking their places on either side. The bridesmaids follow and stand in front of the ushers. The bride transfers her bouquet to her left hand, hands it to her maid of honor, and gives her right hand to the groom, who draws her hand through his left arm and takes his place beside her, facing the clergyman.

"At the end of the ceremony, the maid of honor gives back the bride's bouquet, the bride takes her husband's right arm and the procession leaves the church in reverse order from its entrance, while the flower girl strews the aisle with petals.

"The bride and groom first, then the maid of honor. (In many cities the best man escorts the maid of honor, although in New York it is the fashion for him to leave the church by way of the vestry). The bridesmaids follow the maid of honor, and the ushers go last."

How Figures Originated

The derivation of the Roman numerals is quite easy to understand. They are based on the simple principle of holding up the fingers of one hand. Thus, I, II, III, IV, V, and so on symbolize holding up one, two, or three fingers, the succeeding numbers by the fingers extended. Further on, the C is the initial letter of centum, Latin for a hundred, while M is mille, for a thousand, and so forth. The 1, 2, 3, 4 figures that we generally use are called Arabic, because the Arabians, when masters of Spain, first brought them into Europe. The usual theory is that these were founded on the idea of the square with strokes drawn across. One dash straight down makes the 1. A diagonal line with only the top and bottom of the square left in makes a 2, while 3 is a joining up of the two diagonal lines to a stroke drawn lengthways through the square. And on this square idea and the various angles that could be made with different lines through it, all our numbers from 1 to 9 can be worked out. The square itself is the 0, and so we start tens, twenties, and so on.

How Mosaic Glass Is Made

Mosaic glass is produced by arranging vertically side by side threads or small canes of variously colored opaque or transparent glass, uniform lengths, so that the ends shall form a ground representing flowers, arabesques or any mosaic design.

The mass is now submitted to a heat sufficient to fuse the whole, all the sides at the same time being pressed together so as to exclude the air from the interstices of the threads.

The result is a homogeneous solid cane or cylinder, which, being cut at right angles or laterally, yields a number of layers or copies of the same uniform design.

This process was practiced with great skill by the ancients, who are supposed to have produced pictures in this way, says the Detroit News, but in existing specimens the pieces have been so accurately united, by intense heat or otherwise, that the junctures cannot be discovered by even a powerful magnifying glass.

How Golf Balls Are Made

Once fashioned of feathers stuffed into a leather cover, golf balls now are delicately constructed spheres, made with exacting care on complicated machines under the eyes of experts.

Resiliency, durability and perfect shape are the essential requirements. About a live core yards of rubber tape are wound in machines which turn out thousands of the pills a day, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The speed of the ball depends on the winding, according to tests. The hard covering is manufactured of balata, a product of trees grown in Venezuela. This is mixed with gums of various kinds to give it toughness.

The cover is tightly joined to the tape-wound center by a special process and after indentations have been made in the surface to give the ball accuracy in flight it is coated with a special kind of paint to resist blows of the clubs and to make it visible on the greens.

All communications for this department must be signed by the author; nor for publication, but as an evidence that the items contributor are legitimate and correct. Items based on rumor, or such as are likely to give offense, are not wanted. We desire correspondence to reach our office on Thursday, if at all possible. It will be necessary, therefore, for most letters to be mailed on Wednesday, or by Fast Mail, west, on W. M. R. R., Thursday morning. Letters mailed on Thursday evening may not reach us in time.

MELROSE.

A number of visitors were present on Sunday afternoon, when Wentz's Union Sunday School closed for the season. As country Sunday Schools usually after a celebration, dwindle in attendance, this school maintained a good average. A treat will be given to the school between now and Christmas. The school closed by singing, "God be With Us."

On Sunday last, Galen Fifer, of Pocomoke City, Md., and Jacob Hoover, of Salisbury, Md., students at Blue Ridge College, New Windsor, Md., hiked to Washington, by the kindness of chauffeurs who were kind enough to give them a "lift" along the way, reaching the home of J. Albert Zipp at about 10:30 A. M. After dinner they renewed their hike, headed for Hanover, Gettysburg and New Windsor, expecting to be in time for classes on Monday. There are about 200 students from different states stationed there.

Your correspondent has a yellow pie pumpkin of last year's growth that is yet solid and sound. Perhaps it will be good for another year.

Recent visitors from the Eastern Shore of Maryland speak of the scarcity of good melons, but say peaches are plentiful.

It is reported that the Greenmount Canning Company, even though the sweet corn crop was only a half crop on account of the drought, received its share. As there was a large amount of corn received and weighed at their receiving station here in town, would verify the above statement. This their first year in business has been as successful as they can expect.

H. C. Sheffer, who sold his farm north of Melrose, to Samuel G. Frederick, of Manchester, with his family moved to the Elmer Leese property in Manchester, the first part of the week. Mr. S. G. Frederick and family took possession of the Shaffer residence this week.

Some time ago, Wentz's Union Sunday School decided to sell a lot of second-hand lumber. One of the members made a cash offer but when he was ready to remove the boards, they could not be found. The officers of the school would be glad to have some one come and offer at least their thanks for the boards.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Bishop on Sunday last were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wentz, Mr. and Mrs. David F. Sterner and son, Kenneth; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Houser and son, Gilbert; Mr. and Mrs. Milton Blettnier and children, Evelyn, Nadine and Henrietta; Mrs. David N. Sterner, Mrs. John Hesson, Mrs. Edward U. Wine, Elsie Jones, Mazie Beachtle, and Ivan Frock.

CLEAR DALE.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blizard and Mr. and Mrs. William Shadle entertained at their home, on Sunday evening; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Winthrope and daughters, Jesseline and Louella; Misses Dorothy, Mary, Ethel, Roxie and Sprenkle Dubs, of Hanover; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sentz and daughter, Ava, and sons, Oswald and Junior, of Kingsdale.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crouse and sons, John, Woodrow, Lawrence and George, spent Sunday with Mrs. Crouse's sister, Mrs. William Rodkey and family, of Brunshtown.

Mr. and Mrs. John Crabbs and son, Ralph, of Linwood, spent Sunday with the former's daughter, Mrs. William Hawk and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Spangler and daughter, Mary, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Palmer, of Gettysburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Hesson and daughter, Esther, motored to Baltimore, on Sunday, where they spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Fern Sullivan.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Crouse, Mr. and Mrs. Saylor, of Columbia, were recent visitors at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Crouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Myers and daughter, Pauline, and son, Walter; Mr. and Mrs. William Bankert and daughter, Ruth, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Miller, of near Littlestown.

NORTH EAST CARROLL.

Wentz's Union Sunday School closed for the winter. The school has had a very successful year. And a very substantial sum remains in the treasury, which will be used to give the pupils a treat. The date to be announced later on.

Many of our residents attended the Hanover Fair, last week.

Henry Zepp, of Melrose, who had public sale on Saturday, will move to the tenant house on the C. N. Myers farm, along the Baltimore pike.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Leppo visited at the home of George Grogg and wife, on Sunday.

Claude Leppo is erecting a large new house, 34x18 feet.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodger Zentz and sons, Harland and Norbert, visited at the home of Claude Leppo and wife, on Sunday.

Due to the recent heavy rains, many farmers have been kept idle, thus making the sowing and the corn cutting still later.

KEYSVILLE.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Miller and daughter, Violet, of near Littlestown; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Reinaman and daughter, Reda; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Shirk, all spent Sunday last with Mr. and Mrs. John Frock.

Gregg Kiser and wife, entertained the following, on Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. Brown and child; Mr. and Mrs. James Fair; Maurice Fair, of near New Chester, Pa.; C. H. Valentine and wife, L. R. Valentine and daughters, Ethel and Hazel.

T. C. Fox has improved his dwelling, by building a new porch.

The following were visitors of Earl Roop and wife, Sunday: John Kiser and wife, of Taneytown; Mrs. Grace Meding and daughters, of Sparrows Point; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Beatty and daughter; Miss Betty Sinaster, Ernest Wolfe and Harold Bentzel, of Sabillasville.

R. A. Stonesifer has been on the sick list.

Walter Shoemaker, wife and family, of near Harney, were visitors at W. E. Ritter's, Sunday.

HARNEY.

Harney is on the job, putting away the tomato crop. About 40 people are working in the canning factory, taking the peel off of the tomato and canning them. This employs the people of the town and community during the season, but what we need is something to give the people permanent employment.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Harner and daughter, Doris, of Cleveland, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Lake Harner and sons, Claude and Franklin; Paul and Seymour Henkley, of Adams Basin, N. Y., spent some time, last week, visiting their parents and friends in this community.

H. J. Wolf and wife, returned home on Wednesday. Mr. Wolf had been employed up near Pittsburg. They expect to return to Harrisburg the last of the week.

Our newly built roads will be a great improvement to this place, when completed. The road from Harney to the Pennsylvania line has been graded, and when it is completed it will not be bad; but it should have been stoned, while the machinery was all here.

We still have a few people to register next Tuesday. We hope that all will attend to it, and see that their names are on the books. Voting is a duty as well as privilege, and every good citizen will take advantage of it, and see that their vote is put in the ballot box on election day.

UNIONTOWN.

Scholars having perfect attendance for Sept., in the primary school were Annie Hull, Charles Segafosse, Norman Hull, Caroline Shriver, Steuart Segafosse, Margaret Lee Johnson.

Mrs. Mary Beard is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Slonaker, this week. Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Hann and daughter, Miss Nellie, Mrs. Harry Haines, and Doris, and Clarence Lockard, motored to Philadelphia, last Friday, returning Monday evening.

Reconstruction work in France, since the war, presents some big figures; over 20,000 factories have been rebuilt, more than 25,000 miles of roads and over 600,000 homes, while over 2,000,000 persons have returned to their peaceful pursuits.

DIED.

Obituary, poetry and resolutions, charged for at the rate of five cents per line. The regular death notices published free.

MRS. ALICE ERB.

Mrs. Alice, widow of the late Emanuel Erb, formerly of Marker's Mill section, died at the county home, on Sept. 26, aged 84 years, 9 months, 1 day. She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Mary McGuigan, of Taneytown. Funeral services were held on Saturday afternoon in charge of Rev. T. D. Ritter of the U. B. Church. Burial in the U. B. Cemetery.

MR. JOHN E. E. HESS.

Mr. John E. E. Hess, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hess, died at his home north of Taneytown, on Sept. 26, 1924, aged 60 years, 5 months, 3 days.

Mr. Hess had been ill from seven paralytic strokes in about six years, the last one occurring on Sunday, Sept. 21, during all of which time he bore his affliction with the utmost christian fortitude and cheerfulness, part of the time being able to attend church and other gatherings, and to do light work about his home.

Mr. Hess had been a farmer most of his life, but for some years was engaged in the mercantile business in Taneytown, and twenty-five years ago was a member of the firm of Reindollar, Hess & Co. He was also prominent as a member of Trinity Lutheran Church, having served a number of terms on the church council, and always an exemplary and upright citizen.

He is survived by his wife and three children: Mrs. Marian Sherald, of Annapolis; Mrs. Margaret Alexander, near Keymar, and Ralph Hess, on the home farm; also by the following sisters, Mrs. John D. Belt, of Westminster; Mrs. Jacob D. Null, Mrs. M. Ross Fair, and Miss Nannie Hess, of Taneytown, and Mrs. Lilly B. Watson, of Mt. Rainier, Md., and by one brother, Rev. Chas. W. Hess, of Brunswick, Md.

Funeral services by his pastor, Rev. W. V. Garrett, were held at the home on Monday afternoon, at 1 o'clock, followed by services in the Lutheran Church, and interment in the adjoining cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS.

We take this means of thanking our neighbors and friends for their sympathy and assistance during the sickness and burial of our father, John E. E. Hess. Also to telephone exchange for excellent service, also for floral tributes, and to those who furnished automobiles for the funeral.

BY THE FAMILY.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT

Whereas, The Angel of Death again entered our ranks on September 26, 1924, and called from his earthly labors our esteemed Brother,

JOHN E. E. HESS,

And Whereas, We always found him standing for the principles of our Order in upholding the Institutions of our Country, and feeling the loss to our Camp and community.

Be it Resolved, That we extend our sympathy to his bereaved family and assure them that his life will ever be remembered with kindest feeling by those who knew him best, and that we believe he is enjoying a more mature life for which his life here was but the preparation.

Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be printed in The Carroll Record, and a copy be presented to our deceased Brother's family.

New E. T. Paull March, Popular.

"The Four Horsemen," E. T. Paull's new descriptive march, has been widely acclaimed as his masterpiece. Based upon the theme as described in the Book of Revelation, the story evolves upon the prophetic vision of St. John of the "Four Horsemen," the first riding a white horse, indicating "peace, prosperity and happiness." The second rider, with sword in hand, mounted on a red horse, symbolizing the reign of war, with its bloodshed and murder. The third rider on a black horse signifies depression, sadness and sorrow, while finally a pale horse and rider symbolizes famine, terror, frenzy and death, generally known as "Death on a White Horse."

The story is set to music that admirably illustrates and conveys the ideas and characteristics of the four horsemen. It is extremely versatile in nature, ranging from the soft and sweet melody—interpreting joy and happiness—to strong and powerful strains visualizing war and its horrors.

"The Four Horsemen," published by E. T. Paull Music Co., of New York City, N. Y., gives every promise of being E. T. Paull's greatest contribution to his popular series of descriptive marches: a number of which have become famous the world over.

Our Letter Box

Under this heading we will be glad to publish letters from former Carroll-countians, who are now away from home; and especially letters from those whose home was Taneytown. These letters are very interesting to many, and we should be glad to publish one or more each week. On account of their length, it is not always convenient to use letters on first page, and will hereafter use the 4th or 5th page.

CALIFORNIA LETTER.

Some time ago I read a letter from my old friend, Chas. R. Angell. It did me good to hear, even indirectly, from one of the old boys who have made good. I think all of us who have removed from our childhood surroundings and friends, often wish to see our schoolmates and playmates.

Personally, I would like very much to see any of the boys, even as they are today, fat, thin, grey or aged. It would still be a joyful reunion. We can fall in with the changes time makes among men. For my part, I prefer to remember the girls as I know them; not because I am not interested in them now, but because I do not want to share memories of old times with changed people today.

I notice in the Record that Edna Shriver visited Riverside while in California. No gentleman would kick, a lady, but I believe I am entitled to think about kicking her for not traveling 7 miles over to Colton, and saying "howdy" to yours truly. Now I would travel more than seven miles to see her—I've done it before.

Just a few words about California politically. There is a surprisingly large La Follette following here. He will draw heavily from both Republicans and Democrats. Hearst's Examiner's daily straw ballot, September 14, 1924 shows the following: Los Angeles, La Follette 12,258, Coolidge 11,533; Davis 2,682. San Francisco, La Follette 6,551; Coolidge 5,327; Davis 1,123. Total in California's largest cities, La Follette 18,809; Coolidge 16,858; Davis 3,805. Coolidge will poll largest popular vote, unless the unforeseen happens to prevent. La Follette's apparent strength is surprising. I don't admire the sphinx, but I can't see La Follette at all, while Davis is out of the question.

Just a few words for "Miss" May Forrest, I don't remember her new name, but I remember something infinitely more important. I remember her life of Christian training of children, begun before my earliest recollection, and terminated only recently. A record of service we are proud of. A record seldom equalled and never surpassed. She has done her work well, and everyone of us who knows "Miss May" hopes she may be spared to us for many years to come.

Letter writing has dropped out of my daily routine, as I do very little corresponding, but I promise to answer gladly any letter I receive from anyone who may write me.

Sincerely,
H. C. ENGLAR,
501 S. Marengo St. Alhambra, Cal.
N. B.—Here are a few "Do you remember."

Do you remember when Jesse Roberts used to throw pennies into a tub of water at Charlie Currens' saddlery shop, for us kids to dive for?

Do you remember the terror in our hearts, when we'd hear some one say "here comes Birdy Miller?"

Do you remember when Jesse Haugh and Mr. Sherman amused themselves by shooting at each other across the square?

Do you remember Edw. Kemper's dog "Jim?"

Do you remember when Artie Angell used to spit tobacco juice on our white bare feet, first day barefooted?

Do you remember what terrors Jonie Sell and Clate Harner were to any of us kids who entered the cigar factory over the saddlery shop?

Do you remember when we used to skate back of the Lutheran Church, on the marsh?

Do you remember the fire which destroyed Baker's coach factory down by the railroad?

Do you remember Joe Barnum Thompson's soda pump, and what good customers Garfield Haugh and gang were?

Do you remember Edw. Burke's old pony "George" and the cart we used to put on Elliot's barn roof?

Do you remember how well "Uncle Dick" Reid could handle the stick?

Do you remember how some of our Democratic friends could cry on election night, and how fast a certain man could cover the mile to his home in the country?

Twenty-Five Years Ago.

The Maryland election was for Governor, State Senator, and County Officers. The candidates for Governor were Lloyd Lowndes (Rep) and John Walter Smith (Dem.) For State Senator, Dr. C. Birnie (Rep) and Johnnie Beasman (Dem). The candidates for Sheriff were Jacob Thomson (Rep) and George W. Motter, (Dem). Judge Bond was nominated for Chief Judge by the Republicans.

Work was commenced on the Jacob Fleagle dwelling, on Baltimore St., now owned by William G. Myers.

A notice, urging all to register, appeared in The Record, much in the same form as such notices of the present year.

H. B. Miller, agent at the R. R., was suffering from a sore foot, due to a large boiler having fallen on it.

D. J. Hesson, Arthur Feeser, Nelson Hawk, O. T. Shoemaker, Mr. Copenhaver and J. W. Reck, were delegates to the State Convention of the A. O. K. of M. C., held at Lonaconing.

One of E. O. Garner's interesting letters from College Park appeared in the issue of Sept. 30.

Among merchant advertisers were: Eckenrode & Son, Wm. F. Derr, Weant & Koons, Geo. C. Anders, Sharer & Gorsuch, Q. E. Weant, Miller Bros., Reindollar, Hess & Co., J. Wm. Hull and R. S. McKinney.

The markets were: flour $4.00 to $4.50, bran $17.00, middlings $19.00, wheat 68c, oats 25c, rye 50c, corn 40c, potatoes 30c, butter 15c, eggs 15c, hams 10c, hogs $4.00, beef cattle $4.00.

Tom Moore

This popular "movie" star was born in County Meath, Ireland. The family eventually moved to America and settled in Toledo, Ohio. He began his theatrical career in Chicago and, after several years in stock and road work, turned to motion pictures. He lives in California. Tom is a brother of Owen Moore, also prominent in the business.

Have You This Habit?

By Margaret Morison

ROBBED OF INITIATIVE

TURTLE LAKE was the haven of all young married people for the first five years. Of the little settlement, Mrs. Strong alone had children in their teens. Certain frivolous citizens intimated that Mrs. Strong had so long been saying that Turtle Lake was a garden spot in a tone of voice that defied gainsaying, that she could not openly go away.

During the June of Althea Gay's arrival at Turtle Lake, Mrs. Strong gave a garden party in her honor. When Althea was about to take her leave, Mrs. Strong asked: "Have you seen my onions?" Althea said "No." "You can't go home without seeing my onions," was the reply. "Oh, your husband will understand—you must see my onions. No, tomorrow is uncertain; you can't miss my onions." And as Althea followed her vociferous hostess, her ears seemed to ring with "Onions! Onions! Onions!"

The next day at the local grocers she caught the accents of an easily recognized voice. "You won't forget to send my order? You'll remember that I want my order before lunch? I must have my order without fail—you'll see to it yourself, won't you?" Then Mrs. Strong turned away and Althea heard one clerk tell another, "Oh, she always goes on like that."

One rainy morning that summer Althea was at the Strong house when Mrs. Strong was getting her family off to their several destinations. Her husband was on his way to a town meeting, and Althea knew that if the village missed having a community incinerator that year it would not be Mrs. Strong's fault. The children were warned ten times to put on their rubbers and take their umbrellas. There was simply no chance for independent incompetency on their part.

Three years later Mrs. Strong's joy and pride, her only son, was sent away to school. Of all the human beings upon whom she had expended her force of character, this was the one whom she had most closely followed up, whom she had most talked to and at and over. Althea Gay was present when he went off amid a perfect broadside of adjuration. And several months later Althea Gay was calling on Mrs. Strong when the tragic blow to her pride fell. Her son had been dropped. He had no vices, no evil ways—if so, his masters wrote, there would have been more hope for him; he was simply weak, he had no force, no character, there was no place for him in the school. His mother's habit of overemphasis had pounded all the spring from his makeup and left him flabby.

Oil from Coal—"Coal Oil"

COAL distilled at moderate temperatures produces Oil. These "hydrocarbons" being inflammable, naturally attracted attention and in 1781 their use as fuel for lamps was suggested. But not until 1820 were the light oils obtained by distilling coal-burned to some extent in the Holliday Lamp, which burned the vapor rather than the Oil itself. In 1847 petroleum was found in a coal mine in England, but soon gave out. However the discoverer, James Young, had found that this Oil was valuable for lubricating purposes and he began experiments in distilling Oil from shale found in coal deposits. In 1850 he began production commercially, but the high price of the Oil prevented its use as a popular illuminant. In 1846 a Mr. Gessner had manufactured an illuminating Oil from the asphaltic albertite of New Brunswick. In the years 1853 to 1858 "Coal Oil" refined from both oil shale and cannel coal was produced on a large scale in America, between 50 and 60 refineries being built.

Strange experimental Oils and uncertain methods of refining have given way to the perfected Kerosene of today, represented in all its excellence by The Red C Oil and The White C Oil, same except in color. It is the truly fine Kerosene for your Lamps, Stoves and Incubators.

SCHOOL DAYS

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

WILDERNESS OF THOUGHT

MANY of the highest prized things in life, often through carelessness, neglect or perverted habits, are lost amid a wilderness of weeds, whose rankness had been permitted to overtop a wealthy soil.

Penelope's flower garden, which she elected to call "her own," was beautifully laid out and gave great promise, but in an evil day, when she grew weary of pulling out the tares and watering the buds, the weeds ran amuck and ruined the plot about which Penelope had dreamed for weeks.

When put to the test she preferred the melancholy weeds to the rose and the lily.

And so it was with William, who had planned great things while in college, but the weeds crept in among his cherished ambitions and led him far, far afield in a direction he never suspected.

Up to a given point he was a faithful worker, so long as his boyish hopes brightened his sky, but when they faded he lost interest and did not care.

Then came the day when the garden was choked with weeds.

He smiled complacently and accepted his fate because he believed in luck. He had never been taught to hold to the anchor of faith.

But William had learned some risky games of chance, and could, when suddenly called upon to do so, shut his mouth very firmly and exhibit not the slightest sign of fear or discouragement.

He meant to be good and true, and he sought to be fortunate and happy, but the weeds smothered him.

The brilliant course he had considered must wait till another season, or at least until he shall give proof of his change of heart.

He has ample ability, but even with his fine talents there springs up at regular intervals a crop of hot-headed weeds, sometimes growing in the night to present a sickening spectacle in the morning.

William is but a name for a thousand young men who, in spite of paternal advice, insisted upon sowing their wild oats.

William has won the name of being wild and reckless, which he admits.

He recognizes that he is a sort of moral cripple, too weak to strike out alone, too proud to accept advice. He is to be pitied, for he really is not bad at heart and is nobody's enemy but his own.

A MYSTERY

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

HAPPENED on a mystery, Anyday it was to me; On the bank I found a book Down beside a shady brook. Yes, sir, yonder by "the creek" Found a brown arithmetic. How it got there, hard to tell; Maybe put there, maybe fell. There it lay, a book of sums Bearing marks of smudgy thumbs, Looking blankly at the sky Just as though it wondered why, How it got there. That to me Also is a mystery. Near it was a fishing-hole. I could swear I saw a pole From the bushes sticking out— It was there without a doubt, Not a split bamboo affair, Just an alder cut somewhere. And it seemed to me the line Wasn't silk, but cotton twine. On the water, seemed to me, Something else that I could see: Just a cork, a cork of brown. Slowly bobbing up and down. It's a mystery, as I say; For I'm sure there's school today.

Community Building

Attractive Lawn Adds Much to Property Value

"One dollar intelligently spent on the grounds about a home will afford more beauty than ten spent on the house itself," is a common remark. It is very true that the attractiveness of a home is increased greatly by the beauty and fitness of the grounds.

Who has not at some time, perhaps while traveling, been struck with the beautiful picture created by some one from a plain, ordinary house surrounded by carefully selected plantings of shrubs and vines and flowers tastefully arranged? Appropriate plantings at but little expenditure of time and effort had brought about beauty and a sense of satisfaction from plain, unattractive surroundings; had reflected a degree of culture, and had caused the passerby to think, if not actually to remark, "Somebody lives there, all right."

The lawn is, of course, the foundation upon which the remainder of a pretty picture can be developed. Many homes can improve their beauty a hundred per cent by the simple expedient of a well-kept grassy lawn. Perhaps no other single thing can be done that will so improve the appearance of a home as to have a nicely-trimmed lawn.

The best time to do the grading and seeding of a lawn is very soon after the house has been completed. Those who have neglected to complete the grading at the time it should have been done usually have cause to regret this as time goes by. After grass comes in they hesitate about plowing up the sod in order to put the necessary finishing touches on the grading.

"Let Your Light Shine"; Advice Worth Heeding

Probably not one village in the United States has been planned and built to look picturesque, a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat laments. Yet how fruitfully that would be rewarded in this day of motor touring—if properly advertised.

Distinction is possible to every hamlet and to all small cities if they will go about it. Consider Sarcoxie, Mo., where the peony season brings 20,000 visitors; and Door county, Wis., which when the cherry blossoming is on, entertains excursionists, besides other multitudes at cherry-picking time. If you can't be a big town, you can be noted and make all the lanes about resonant with the honking of tourists, whose presence so enlivens the rather monotonous round of village life.

Commonplace as it may have been made in its beginning, by means of gardens and a little architectural inspiration, not appallingly expensive, a town may get itself favorably talked about throughout the land. It must not palter at $100, here and there, or withhold the sweat of its face when there is work to be done.

Every vendor in the community will profit by it, and consequently every resident. The price of real estate will go up; and no man's rentable cottage be tenantless. It pays to be famous.

Beautify Grounds

One of the objects in planting about the ordinary home is to offset the angles and fit buildings to surroundings. To achieve this foundation plantings are desirable—plantings designed to hide the foundation of the home. Along with these go plantings for the hiding or softening of sharp corners, plantings to create an atmosphere of peace and rest. This can be attained even on a busy street, serving to beautify a place both from the street and from the windows of the home itself.

For houses with south exposures, planting of cannas, salvias, or geraniums, either alone or in combinations, are desirable. These may be followed with autumn plantings of spring-flowering tulips, to come up the following spring and give one a start at the following season's "game."

Mr. Cady, whose work on the campus of Minnesota college of agriculture has attracted attention from the people of the whole Northwest, put many of his ideas into a bulletin on "Attractive Farmsteads," issued by his college. The ideas he has developed in the bulletin, however, apply to the city or village home almost as well. Copies of the bulletin are available without charge on application to the college.

Labor Cost

Keep in mind that it costs as much to install cheap material as higher grade.

Unnatural Mothers

When lions and tigers bring forth young in captivity, the greatest care has to be exercised to keep them for several days in the dark and undisturbed, as otherwise the mothers will almost invariably destroy their cubs.

Health in Gardening

The cultivation of 20 feet or more of back yard should prove a healthful, restful, and profitable diversion for the busy man or woman, after the labors of the day.

WHY

Lighting Fixtures Are Important in Home

"A house may have adequate wiring and include the desired number of outlets and still be a failure from the standpoint of illumination unless care is exercised in the selection of lighting fixtures," states a prominent lighting fixture dealer.

"It has been truly said that the charm of a room is contingent upon its lighting effects, and as the fixture is the determining factor in creating these effects, the style, shape and color to be used in the various rooms is worthy of consideration.

"In years past we resigned ourselves to the glare of center domes and chandeliers, unshaded lamps and ugly fixtures, because we thought we had to accept whatever happened to be installed when the house was built. Fortunately, however, there has been a marked change in the marketing of fixtures, so that today we are able to change them as readily as we change our floor coverings or wall papers. The quality and design of fixtures are now determined by the texture and color of the furnishings, and by the size and shape of the room.

"The size and type of the house, likewise, must be reckoned with when in the market for fixtures, as those that would be effective in a cottage or smaller suburban house would be quite out of place in a town house or on a palatial country estate."

Why Glaciers Form in Valleys of Mountains

Many valleys of the Alps and of other high mountain ranges are filled with ice which extends from the snow fields above to well below the tree line. This mass of ice is called a glacier. The winter's snow, falling on the lower part of the glacier, melts away the following summer and exposes the ice, which also melts to some extent, and which, if there were not some source of supply, would entirely disappear. In the snow fields above, the annual snowfall is not all melted in summer, and there is an accumulation of snow. It is evident that in time the snow would grow indefinitely high if there were no means of relief. The necessary relief is found in the flow of the ice, which carries off the surplus snowfalls of the snow fields, consolidated into ice, to the lower part of the glacier. A glacier, therefore, has two distinct parts—a reservoir, where the snow is collected, and a dissipator, where the ice melts. The line separating these two regions is usually called the nerve line. The following is therefore a fair definition: A glacier is a body of ice and snow formed in a region where the snowfall is greater than the waste, and flowing to a region where the waste is greater than the snowfall.

Why Gregorian Calendar Now Is in General Use

The name Gregorian calendar is given to the reformed calendar introduced by Pope Gregory XIII in 1582 to correct an error in the civil year, which in the Julian calendar had been eleven minutes and a few seconds too long. This disparity, although a small one, increased as the years rolled by, so that in the sixteenth century the civil year was ten days behind the solar year. To remedy this difficulty ten days were omitted from the Julian calendar, thus causing the vernal equinox to fall on March 21 instead of on March 11. Between the years 1582-1753 the Gregorian calendar was introduced into all the principal countries of Europe except Russia, Greece, Turkey and some of the smaller states. The Julian calendar now has been superseded by the Gregorian almost everywhere in the Western world.

Why Pen Does Not "Sputter"

If there was no hole in the back of the pen nib, the pen would "sputter" when used. The hole also aids in retaining more ink on the nib when writing. It is to avoid blotting that pens are made in two segments. By cutting away a section between, greater flexibility still is attained. At the same time, a pen cut to certain angles will either take up only a single coating of ink, so needing too frequent dippings, or will take up such a "blob" that it blots the writing. A hole is therefore cut to take a film of ink, kept in place by air pressure, and this film, gradually descending down the nib, causes a regular and even flow of ink.

Why Radium Is Cheaper

There was a break in the radium market not long ago. The price suddenly plunged from $3,300,000 an ounce to $2,500,000, due to the discovery in Katanga in the Belgian Congo of extraordinary deposits of a radium-bearing ore, from 25 to 30 times richer than the earth ever before yielded. Even more recently new fields of unusual promise came to light in some old copper mines in Czechoslovakia, a circumstance that may drive the market price down still further, though not to such an extent as 25 per cent.—Popular Science Monthly.

Why New York State Leads

New York state leads all the others in the amount of water-power development—1,300,000 horsepower. The largest single development is at Niagara Falls. The second state in the use of "white coal" is California, where more than 1,100,000 horsepower is developed. Washington holds third place, using 454,000 horsepower. Maine is fourth with a few thousand horsepower less, and Montana fifth.—Popular Science Monthly.

Fields that Feed Us Are Plowed One Furrow at a Time.

When one sees the farmer and his faithful team plowing, little does he realize the food which feeds the world, is grown in fields that are turned over one furrow at a time.

The saving of One Dollar at a time with the regularity the farmer turns his furrows will start a money supply, which will feed opportunities' demand for cash.

Alas, Quite Uncivilized

If there is any doubt that the inhabitants of New Guinea are uncivilized beings, we need cite only their attitude toward paying taxes—which, according to the Argonaut, is as follows:

Travelers in New Guinea occasionally pick up good stories concerning native manners and peculiarities. A tax collector had an amusing experience when he was on his rounds. He had been to one village to collect taxes, and when he left he was met by the people of a neighboring village.

"What wrong have we done that we should be ignored by the government?" they asked. "Come, we have money; we will show it to you. The idea of those Kerepunu people paying taxes and we not! We are just as proud as they."

The tax collector had to pacify them by taking their money.—Youth's Companion.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL
Sunday School Lesson
(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean of the Evening School, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(C. 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for October 5

THE CHOICE OF THE TWELVE

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 10:1-42.
GOLDEN TEXT—Freely ye have received, freely give.—Matt. 10:8.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Chooses Twelve Friends.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Twelve Apostles.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Partners With Jesus in His Work.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Urgent Need for Full Time Christian Workers.

Having set forth the laws of the kingdom in the Sermon on the Mount, and His power to administer the affairs of the kingdom in the miracles of the eighth and ninth chapters, Matthew now sets before us the methods which the King adopted in the propagation of the kingdom. It should be clearly noted that this chapter does not outline the policy of missionary endeavor in this age. To teach it thus will be a grievous blunder. The following divisions of the chapter suggest the dispensational aspects of the lesson.

1. Instructions Bearing Immediately Upon the Apostles' Work to the Death of Christ (vv. 1-15).

In strictness of interpretation these teachings have no application to any later period.

1. The Ministers Chosen (vv. 1-4). These twelve humble men were chosen and commissioned to carry forth the work of the propagation of the kingdom. They were not commissioned with church truth. These twelve stood in a peculiar relation to Israel.

2. The Sphere of Their Mission (vv. 5, 6). They were to go only to Jews. They had no message for Gentiles, or even Samaritans. After Pentecost this sphere was widened. (See Luke 24:46-49; Acts 1:8). This would be a strange restriction to place upon ministers today.

3. Their Message (v. 7). "The kingdom of heaven is at hand." This meant that the promised kingdom of Israel was at hand, that Jesus Christ, the promised King, was present and ready to set up His kingdom if they were willing to have it. This differs widely from the message of the ministers today. After the church is translated, the same message will be taken up for a brief time by the remaining remnant. (See Acts 15:13-18; Rom. 11; Rev. 7).

4. The Supernatural Authentication of Their Mission (v. 8). They were clothed with power to work miracles. These wonderful works were really done by the twelve. Where is the minister today who is so foolishly as to try to fulfill this?

5. Their Maintenance (vv. 9, 10). They were to make no provision for their support, but to depend wholly upon the Lord who sent them. They had received the message and power gratuitously, and they were to give it in the same way (v. 9). Happy, indeed, would we be today if we had more ministers who are willing to trust the Lord for their support instead of bargaining for a stated salary!

6. Responsibilities of Those to Whom the Message Was Delivered (vv. 11-15). Upon entering the city or town they were to inquire for a respectable place to stay. Into that home they were to bring peace. If the people would not receive them or hear their message, they were to pronounce judgment upon them, and the turning of the Lord from them was symbolized by the ministers wiping the dust from their feet when turning from the people who rejected their message.

II. Instructions Concerning the Testimony From Pentecost Onward (vv. 16-23).

After Pentecost, testimony for Christ would be fraught with great danger. Both Jews and Gentiles would assail the messengers with the most bitter persecutions. They were scourged in the synagogues before heathen magistrates. Instead of bringing peace to the homes they brought divisions of the fiercest kind among families. In their defense they were to rely upon the Holy Spirit to aid them. These conditions were literally fulfilled in the period from Pentecost to the destruction of Jerusalem. Since the fall of Jerusalem no one has ever been scourged in a synagogue.

III. Teaching Applicable in All Ages (vv. 24-42).

The disciple has the position of oneness with his Master. He is to courageously declare the whole counsel of God, though violently opposed, for so completely is the Lord identified with His disciples that He accepts treatment of them as treatment of Himself.

In His Steps (10)

How Jesus Cheered the Fearful

and Discouraged

Matthew 9:2; 10:24-33; John 14:1-3
These Scripture verses suggest that our Lord cheered the fearful and discouraged in three ways; By the forgiveness of sins; by revealing God as Father; by the unfolding of the future glory awaiting His believing people.

1. The Forgiveness of Sins. The power of Christ as God manifest in the flesh, is seen in the first Scripture reference. The critics charged Christ with blasphemy, knowing that forgiveness of sins belonged unto God alone. In answer to their criticism, He gave them demonstrations of His divine power in both the spiritual and physical realms by forgiving sin and overcoming disease. There is no cheer for the human heart apart from the forgiveness of sins. Now, as then, our Lord cheers and encourages human hearts by a free, full, and sufficient pardon for sins, based on His own vicarious atonement through His shed blood on Calvary's cross.

2. He Dispelled Unholy Fear by Making Known to His Disciples the Care of God over Their Lives. The words "fear not" occur three times in our second passage of Scripture. Fear not men who have power to kill the body, for man is more than body. The life of the soul or spirit is safe in the keeping of the Father. Therefore fear not. The Father's care extends even to sparrows. "Ye are of more value than they, therefore fear not." Here is the remedy for undue or slavish fear. Think of life not in terms of fatalism, but fatherhood—the fatherhood of God in Christ Jesus, as made clear in such Scriptures as Galatians 3:26 and John 1:12.

3. The Revelation of the Future Glory for His Own Believing People. Brief, yet beautiful, are the words of John 14:1-3. The uncertainty of the future is often a cause of fear. To a Christian believer there should be absolutely no uncertainty. The "Father's house," the "many mansions," the coming of the Lord, as explained in 1 Thessalonians 4:13-18, should all enter into the vision of the believer's future. In view of this, the opening words of the chapter are most appropriate. "Let not your heart be troubled." Confronted by perplexity and adversity, "believe in God." When cast down by the problem of sin, "believe in me, the sin-bearer." And if attacked with doubt concerning the future, rest assured that He who loved us and gave Himself for us, is now preparing a place for us. "If it were not so, I would have told you." Believe Him then, and rejoice.

Quakes Caused Panics

Recent earthquake tremors felt throughout Northamptonshire, England, have called to memory the shocks experienced in England 174 years ago. In February and March, 1750, violent earth tremors shook London, causing the bells of Westminster and other churches to ring, and throwing people into a panic. Thousands went ten miles out of London, and hundreds of thousands refused to live in their houses, sleeping out at night in specially designed "earthquake gowns," a sort of specially warm dressing gown. The shocks continued at intervals until September, and so terror-stricken had the folks become that they were prepared to turn to anything for safety, and quacks made fortunes from the sale of "earthquake pills" which were supposed to render folks immune from danger in earth tremors.

Blast Displaced Hill

What is believed to have been the biggest blast ever set off in the history of industry, was recently fired near Ogden, Utah, to provide material for constructing the fills that are the approaches to the great Salt Lake trestle of the Southern Pacific railroad. Earth and rock to an estimated volume of 550,000 cubic yards were raised and shattered by the explosion which used 301,200 pounds of special process powder, equivalent to 600,000 pounds of black powder. A hill 275 feet high, and covering a face of approximately 1,000 feet in length, was lifted up and separated into fragments. The placing of the explosives in tunnels, aggregating 4,100 feet in length, occupied twenty-five men for forty-five days.

New Duty for Old Ship

The old ship Discovery, which carried Captain Scott on the expedition which ended in his reaching the South pole, is now being fitted for an expedition into the far South to investigate means to save the whaling industry, which is being threatened by the extermination of the whales east of the Falkland Islands and South Hebrides.

PLAN GREAT FUTURE FOR SAHARA DESERT

Barren Waste May Yet Bloom Like Garden.

In addition to providing an avenue of access to the natural resources and manpower of French central Africa, the construction of the trans-Saharan railway will make possible an intensive exploration of the hidden resources of the great desert.

Until recently the Sahara has been viewed not as a territory to be explored and developed, but as an obstacle to be overcome. Today engineers are awakening to the mining possibilities of the desert itself, where deposits of many metals, of coal and oil have been found, in addition to the large phosphate beds now under exploitation.

Like the "great American desert," practically the entire Sahara is underlain with a great subterranean body of water, and an abundant supply of water is obtained wherever artesian wells are sunk, says Matthew Craig in Current History Magazine.

This fact alone has already radically changed the aspect, in places, of the caravan routes.

Where once there was only sand, extending like a vast and boundless ocean to the horizon, brilliant spots of verdure, small gardens of vegetables and fruit trees and patches of grain are now to be seen. The desert tribes have been quick to follow the lead of the French garrisons and rare colonists, and more than 100 wells have been bored throughout the region.

Thus, to cite but one of many examples, Ben Gardane, which fifteen years ago was an arid halting place, is now the center of an olive tract extending six kilometers, where a population of 20,000 natives is definitely settled on the land, which feeds them and their flocks.

There would seem to be no reason why the growing oases, spreading as they do a little farther each year, should not continue to extend indefinitely with the continued augmentation in the number of wells and thus, in time, modify the entire character of the country; convert the nomad tribes into a settled population—for the nomad, ever forced to seek the water he must have or perish, is nomad not from choice but from necessity—and ultimately cause the desert itself "to blossom as the rose."

Certainly, when one considers the effect on history of the change of the Egyptian climate or the increased aridity of China, it is not too much to believe that the reduction of the temperature of the European Mediterranean littoral from its present mean average to that of our New England states is fraught with the greatest significance for the future of humanity.

Woodpeckers and Putty

The theory of ornithologists that the woodpecker pecks for worms and insects alone has lately been upset. There is a water tank in Sully, Iowa, that supplies the town's water. In 1922 woodpeckers drilled so many holes through the wooden sides of the tank that the insulation against freezing was demolished. These holes were puttied over, and the putty was afterward painted. But in the summer of 1923, the persevering woodpeckers pecked all the paint and putty out of the tank.

In a late cold spell in Sully, the water supply suddenly gave out. Upon investigation, the tank was found to be full of ice, and the putty all gone. Mayor Fred Andrews has decided that the old plant will have to be torn down and a peck-proof one erected in its place. It is now left to ornithologists to explain why the woodpecker prefers putty to wood—or grubs.

Boat Travels Fast

Seventy miles an hour in three inches of water is the astonishing performance claimed for a revolutionary type of air-propelled glider boat developed by F. W. Davies of Dudley, England, writes a correspondent of the Detroit News.

An airplane propeller and engine drive the hydroglider, says Popular Science Monthly. Thus the enormous friction exerted by the water upon high-speed propeller blades is avoided and the navigation of the glider in shallow water is made possible. Even the main rudder operates by deflecting air instead of water. There are two small auxiliary rudders, which are used for maneuvering the boat into dockage or for similar purposes, but these are lifted from the water as soon as the craft is under way. The hull is scow shaped and about 15 feet long.

Grandfather's Stomach

Vivian, age three, was busily engaged in putting her dolls to bed. Her grandfather, who has been having trouble with his stomach, entered the room and mournfully exclaimed: "I just don't know what is the matter with me; my stomach is all torn to pieces."

Vivian thought for a moment, then ran downstairs to her aunt and said: "Hasn't grandpa got any stomach?" Her aunt, very much surprised at the question, said: "Why, sure he has a stomach." Vivian said: "Why, I just heard him say it was all torn up."

Faint Heart

"Faint heart never won fair lady," said the ready-made philosopher. "That's right," answered the bashful man. "The way the ladies dress sometimes you've got to have your nerve with you to look at one long enough to feel acquainted."

Registration of voters, next week, in the First Precinct, will be held upstairs in the Firemen's building, the first floor being used for the entertainment of the Baltimore Presbytery.

Attention is called to the Announcement in the adjoining column, concerning an appeal for assistance for Mrs. G. May Fouke. We commend it to your thoughtful consideration.

A grand-father's clock was sold at public sale, on Thursday, as part of the personal effects of the late Joshua Koutz, to Mrs. O. M. Crouse, of Westminster, for $175.00. There was spirited bidding for the clock on the part of antique dealers.

Rev. Wm. F. Sunday, who will give an illustrated lecture in the Lutheran Church, this Friday evening, on "Egypt to Jerusalem," has just been elected pastor of St. James Lutheran Church, New York City. Rev. Sunday is a native of York, and is a graduate of Gettysburg College.

A representative of Senator La Follette's candidacy distributed literature in town, on Wednesday. From present indications, this is not a very promising field for votes in that direction, on election day. The agent held a public meeting, at night, on the square, and addressed a small crowd, elaborating on the aims of radicalism.

The County Commissioners visited Adamstown, Frederick county, this week, and inspected a new school building under way there, and are reported to have been much pleased with its construction and cost, as being near the ideas of what Carroll County schools can be built for—perhaps for the one in Taneytown. We do not know anything about this building, but Adamstown is a very much smaller place, and likely has smaller needs, than Taneytown, for a school building.

A bad wreck occurred at the bridge over Piney Creek on the Emmitsburg road last Sunday, when two autos going in opposite directions attempted to use the one-way bridge at the same time. It is possible for two cars to cross this bridge at the same time by careful driving, but this was not exercised, and both cars were badly wrecked. One of the cars was from Baltimore, driven by a lady, and the other carried a Pennsylvania license. Both were fined; the latter for not having a drivers license, and the former for reckless driving. The Baltimore car was the most injured. None of the occupants of either car were seriously hurt, but both made extremely narrow escapes.

The clothing, belonging to Miss Ruth Eyley and Miss Lulu Zentz, that disappeared at the Carroll County Fair, at Taneytown, has been found and returned, through the efforts of Leo Zentz, who is employed at Ohler's Garage, Taneytown. Mr. Zentz "looked up" listed cars similar to his, one of which was owned by a party in Mayberry. He went to see the person but found him away from home, Leo took chances and left the key that the girls took when they placed their clothing in the car. Saturday night the man brought the clothing to Taneytown. As it happened the owner of the car had no occasion to use the rear compartment, and upon arriving home and being told of the affair, was much surprised, to find about $50.00 worth of feminine wearing apparel.

A Statement-Appeal

To Whom it May Concern.

As may have been noticed from an article in The Record, Sept. 19, the last legislature failed to appropriate sufficient money for the payment of Teachers' pensions, to cover the increase of such pensions from $200. to $400, a year, and the material increase in the number now entitled to pension. Apparently, there are now 36 such pensioners in the State, who are told that there is "no money" available with which to pay them, and it is strongly intimated that they must wait until the legislature meets again, in two years.

It is not our purpose, at this time, to say what we think of this situation, nor of where the responsibility rests. The matter for immediate consideration, so far as Taneytown is concerned, is the case of MRS. G. MAY FOUKE, who is now on the retired list, entitled by law to the pension, and is in urgent present need of it—who can not wait two years, nor even two months, for money.

Therefore, putting aside all other arguments, we make an appeal in her behalf, to the citizens of the community, and especially to her hundreds of former pupils who have been benefited by her long and excellent services, covering a period of over 35 years, to make such donations for her relief as conscience and liberality may suggest.

In the highest sense, this is not an appeal for charity. Mrs. Fouke—or "Miss May Forrest" as she is familiarly called—taught for many years, at small pay. She not only performed the service of a good teacher, but in addition left an influence for good and uplift, quite out of the ordinary, both on her children and on the community at large—parents, as well as children—not to be estimated in dollars.

We know what the answer will be. Hundreds will respond, willingly and promptly. No other answer will fit the situation, nor reflect credit on this community.

Contributions will be received at this office; or, they may be handed or sent to her, direct. Acknowledgement will be made of all donations through The Record, either of individual gifts, or the totals, as may later be decided best.

An effort is of course being made by her friends to see whether a way can not be found for making her granted pension claim payable in the very near future; but there is no assurance that this can be done, and the case is too urgent to depend on the uncertainties of such involved legislative situations. We therefore repeat our solicitation for immediate response.

Can You Figure This?

Suppose the "widow's mite" was the equivalent of our penny, and that it had been invested at 5 percent semi-annual interest, compounded, 1900 years ago, instead of having been used for the needs of the temple, what would it have amounted to today as a lump sum.

LAST PAGE EDITORIAL.

"Youth's Companion" Stories.

Some of the prettiest stories—stories with fine moral conceptions, and examples in honor and character—to be found anywhere, are common to The Youths Companion. No one ever found an ugly character in this publication that was not subordinate to a better character, and no one ever has to guess which is best and finest for our models and ideals.

It is not, however, our intention to write an advertisement for this excellent publication, but rather to ask the question whether our young folks in their reading, ever go far enough into the intent of stories containing high moral examples, and situations exemplifying real tests of honor, to resolve to adopt such ideals in their own lives?

We read of sacrifices made by children that their parents may be made happy; of situations showing how in the end—against selfish inclinations—it pays to be square and honorable; how one should always play fair; be honest in study, and have pride in the real things of life; and yet, may it not be too often true that we think of these specimens only as "stories," and not as lessons to guide us toward better things in our own experiences?

There is situation in the average story, such as we have in mind, that is not duplicated in substance in the average young person's real life. There are occasions for moral and physical bravery, for right and wrong decisions, for the uplifting word and act, every day of our lives, no matter how we may be circumstanced; but, we are quite apt not to recognize them—and miss being the hero, or heroine, in as fine a little story as has ever been written.

We rarely appreciate, as we should, our would-be teachers and ideal builders. We have our entrances and exist on the stage of life and fail to realize that we have been a character in an impromptu play before a little audience, perhaps just at home. Life is full of unrecognized and missed opportunities, some of which—the most of which—we fail to recognize until too late.

The Great Frederick Fair.

The 1924 dates of the Great Frederick Fair are October 21, 22, 23, 24. In keeping with the progressive spirit of the management this year's Fair is destined to outrank any previous exhibition, many improvements having been completed for the better display of exhibits and for the comfort of the patrons of the Fair. Five hundred additional free seats have been provided within the grandstand paddock, and other changes made that will enhance the pleasure of all. The free attraction program is the best ever offered, and the racing will be of the usual high order.
