

THE STATE C. E. CONVENTION.

Will be Held at Frederick from Oct. 30 to November 2.

An elaborate program is being prepared for the State C. E. Convention. For the first time there will be separate conventions for the Intermediate and Junior departments, which will meet in different churches and will have their own speakers.

A group of the country's foremost speakers and conference leaders will attend the convention, including Rev. Daniel A. Poling, LL. D., New York City, association president of the United Society of Christian Endeavor; Rev. Charles R. Erdman, D. D., Princeton; E. P. Gates, Boston, Mass., general secretary; Frank D. Getty, Philadelphia, associate director of young people's work; Miss Catherine Atkinson Miller, Philadelphia, secretary of the Board of Young People's Work; Chas. F. Evans, Chattanooga, Tenn., southern secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor; Miss Caroline A. Boyer, Columbus, Ohio, field secretary; Rev. Frank Linn Freet, Columbus, O., general secretary and treasurer; Carroll M. Wright, Baltimore, field secretary of the Maryland and Delaware Christian Endeavor Unions.

In order to boost the attendance a novel contest has been arranged. To the first county union, as listed below reaching its quota, a cash prize, equal to 10 percent of the amount of fees collected, with $5.00 as a minimum, will be awarded; to the second county 5% with a minimum of $2.50. Baltimore city, has 500 registrations; Allegany county, 50; Carroll county, 200; Frederick county, 300; Garrett county, 15; Harford county, 40; Kent county, 10; Montgomery county, 15; Prince George's county, 30; Washington county, 75.

A "Workers' Library," consisting of about 30 books and booklets, will be given to the society scoring the greatest number of points, according to the following schedule: For registering pastor, 5; for registering president, 3; for registering correspondence secretary, 2; for each other person registered, 1. Additional points will be given for following: If pastor attends at least two days, 10; if president attends at least two days, 5; if corresponding secretary attends at least two days, 5; for each other person attending two days, 1; for each person attending all four days, 3.

A beautiful prize will be given to the member of any society sending in the greatest number of registrations during this contest. The winner is given the choice of a sterling silver pencil with gold C. E. monogram on end, a gentleman's sterling silver belt buckle with C. E. monogram, a lady's nurse or card case with sterling silver buckle and gold C. E. monogram, Dr. Clark's autobiography, "Memories of Many Men in Many Lands"; and Dr. William Shaw's autobiography, "The Evolution of an Endeavorer."

The registration fee is $1.00 for seniors, seventy-five cents for intermediates, and twenty-five cents for juniors. Entertainment, meals and other expenses will cost about $5.00 for the four days.

Gambling Devices at Fairs.

Several near riots occurred at the York Fair, last week, growing out of crooked games operated on the midway, their operators being saved only by police interference. With but few exceptions, the game concessions were in violation of law, but were allowed to operate until they tried to make a big "clean up" on Friday, and overstepped the submission of their victims.

It is largely the custom of officers of law to permit such games as are permitted by Fair authorities. This is not right, but it is the custom, and makes Fair officials responsible for the victimizing of guests of the Fair—those present by invitation, and paying their entrance fee, certainly not with the expectation of being "beat."

It will be only a matter of time, when all the off-color attractions, and doubtful or plain gambling games, must go. They are not a proper part of any Agricultural Fair, and serve no good purpose other than to furnish Fairs with income—and income not connected with honesty and decency, is not the kind to receive by anybody. "The end does not justify the means."

Rev. C. A. Shilke Accepts Call.

Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of the Lutheran Church, at Walkersville, has resigned to accept a call to Clarksburg, W. Va., and will take up his duties there about Nov. 15. Rev. Shilke has been a popular and energetic pastor at Walkersville (Utica charge) and his parishioners regret to have him leave.

The Prince of Wales, who recently left the East for Canada, has hopped back into the U. S., and is giving Chicago a looking over. He was greatly interested in the Stock Yards where he rode a colt through the yards.

The Baltimore Baseball Club lost the series with St. Paul. The score was 5 games for St. Paul, and 4 for Baltimore. The Orioles had a score of 3 games to 1 when the teams left Baltimore for St. Paul—the weather in Minnesota must have been too cold for the birds.

THE U. B. CONFERENCE.

Some of the Results of the Deliberations of the Session.

Among the acts of the U. B. Conference, held last week, was that fixing the minimum salary of pastors, at $1250. Where the charges are not able to reach that amount at present, but hopeful and will reach the amount or more in a few years, such charges will receive the necessary amount of appropriation from the conference to reach the above sum; and where the charges cannot now, and in all probability never will reach the amount named, the boundary be changed so as to reach the minimum of $1,250 and parsonage. In isolated places where boundaries cannot be changed to bring the charge up to the standard named, such fields will be served independent of the minimum salary by means of local help or other available help.

Plans were laid whereby for the first time in approximately forty years, Lebanon Valley College, the United Brethren college for the Eastern Pennsylvania district is free of all debt. The General Education Board, better known, as the Rockefeller Foundation, made the college an offer of an endowment fund of $175,000 provided the co-operating territory raise a fund of at least $350,000. During the year the Pennsylvania and East Pennsylvania Conference raised an endowment fund of approximately $400,000, which with the $175,000 given by Rockefeller fund makes about $575,000 for the year. The Eastern Association of colleges has placed Lebanon Valley on the accredited list as a first-class modern institution, thus giving its students an equal standing with the graduates of the leading institutions of the country.

Dr. C. M. Short, of Harrisburg, represented the Anti-Saloon League, and gave a strong address on "The Present Status and Outlook in the Prohibition Situation."

"He who argues that conditions are worse simply argue that which he would like to see, but that is not to be admired nor approved. The churches are responsible for the Eighteenth amendment, and the Pennsylvania annual conference of the United Brethren church, holds second place to no other in this great victory," he said.

During the past years some churches in the Pennsylvania territory have been handicapped in general church finance because Near East and kindred organizations have come into church and taken monthly subscription for non-denominational work. To overcome this danger, the conference passed a resolution that no organization save the Anti-Saloon League and denominational departments may take subscription in the churches of the conference. All other charitable bodies must limit their appeal to a cash offering.

The conference next year will be held at Shippensburg, Pa.

A Response that Counts.

We take pleasure in publishing the following letter. It speaks for itself, and comment is unnecessary.

"I have just noted the needs of Mrs. G. May Fouke, and the situation over the Teachers' pension matter. It is deplorable that a noble woman of her remarkable character, gifts and public service to the cause of religion and education, should want for anything in her declining years. Please use the enclosed in any way that will best accomplish your purpose to meet the situation.

Just think what she meant to the town, the school, the church, her neighbors and her family. No finer type of womanhood, self-sacrificing, cheerful, gentle, sincere and uncompromising, ever crossed my pathway in life.

She was wonderful in her influence for good in that community. Her life has been a blessed benediction to thousands."

An Interesting Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Shoemaker, of near Otter Dale, have returned from a trip in Pennsylvania, on a visit to M. M. Howard, of Harrisburg, their itinerary being as follows:

On Saturday, October 11, visited the Masonic Home, at Elizabethtown, Pa., going by way of Steelton, Highspire and Middletown. Also saw the new Odd Fellows' Home in course of construction at Middletown, Pa. Went to Hershey Park by way of Hummelstown, and saw the famous Hershey chocolate works, came back to Harrisburg by way of Union Deposit, Paxtonia and Pennbrook.

On Sunday, Oct. 12, visited the hard coal fields in Schuylkill county to Keffer's Station on top of Broad mountain, 57 miles north of Harrisburg; went by way of Rockville, Dauphin, Sreereville, Halifax, Millersburg, Elizabethtown, Loyalton, Lykens, Wiconisco, Williamstown and Tower City. Came back on the same route to Clark's Ferry, crossed the river at Duncannon, Coveallen to Peedix, to Marysville, Enola, West Fairview, Wormleysburg, and over the river again at Harrisburg.

Former representative Albert A. Blakeney, died on Wednesday at Franklin Square Hospital, Baltimore, after an attack of paralysis, aged 75 years. He was twice elected to Congress from this district.

THE WORLD'S WHEAT PRODUCTION

Figures of Interest Showing How the World is Fed.

World wheat production is estimated this year at 3,056 million bushels as compared with 3,409 million last year a decrease of say 353 million bushels. The total of the Northern Hemisphere crop is nearly 300 million bushels short of last year.

Harvesting in the Northern Hemisphere is practically completed, and official estimates received from 27 foreign countries representing 60% of the Northern Hemisphere crop show an apparent decrease of 18% in those same countries compared with last year. This includes all of the important producers in the Northern Hemisphere except the United States, France, Romania, Russia and China.

Canadian wheat is estimated at 296 million bushels against 474 million in 1923, and 269 million average for the period 1918-22. Carry over into the current year 23 million bushels compared with 12 million last season. This is said to be the largest carry-over Canada has ever had.

Mexico expects to produce 10 million bushels against 8,217,000 in 1923. Official estimates from France place the crop between 286 and 293 million bushels, compared with 276 million last year. And private reports indicate a normal carry-over. The French Government is fostering a "Save Bread" campaign to cut down the import requirements.

Romania's crop approximately 71 million bushels; 101 million last year. Concerning the Russian crop reports are conflicting. It is believed that sowing seasons of 1923-24 were considerably increased. But unfavorable weather conditions have reduced yields. Even the highest production estimates are below those of last year. It is not expected that Russia will have any wheat for export this year.

Official reports from China say a normal crop may be expected in all China except Manchuria. Manchuria is said to average about 10 million bushels annually. China produces considerable wheat. But it is difficult to say just how much. 300 million bushels annually may be somewhere near the figure.

Australia's crop is placed at 120 million bushels against 126 million last year. Argentina with average yields will harvest about 222 million bushels; last season 247 million were harvested.—John S. Dennee, U. S. Statistician for Md.

Bank Robber Kills Policeman.

A masked bandit robbed the Abbotstown, Pa., state bank of over $1400.00 on Tuesday, by holding up the cashier at the point of a pistol, about a half hour before closing time. The bandit then fled in a red car, going in the direction of Gettysburg. He was in such a hurry to get away that he did not examine the vault where there was $30,000 in bills.

The state police was notified, and patrolman Haley caught up with the bandit at the Graffenburg Inn, on the Lincoln Highway between Gettysburg and Chambersburg, when the latter slowed up his car and shot Haley in the right breast, killing him almost instantly. The bandit then speeded up and quickly disappeared.

The dead policeman was 25 years of age and had been in active service only about 6 weeks since passing his examination.

On Wednesday morning an abandoned car was found on a mountain road near Fayetteville, lodged between two rocks, showing that the person who drove it was unfamiliar with the road. An effort had been made to burn the car and destroy the license tags, but without complete success.

According to a dispatch in the Baltimore American this Friday morning from Reading, Pa., a man giving his name as Phil. A. Hartman, has confessed to the robbery and the shooting of the policeman. A queer thing about this is that the story is in some copies of the American, and not in others. Hartman voluntarily surrendered himself and first stated that he had been hired by a man named Roth, of Columbus, Ohio, who did the robbing and shooting, while he acted as a lookout. Afterwards, on close examination, he confessed that he alone planned and carried out the job. His confession is being carefully checked by the police.

The Tar and Feather Case.

Arthur Rice, one of the Myersville group in the tar and feathers case, has been found guilty in "aiding and abetting" Mrs. Mary Shank, the principal in the case. Sentence was suspended, and Rice released on $3000.00 bond. There are nineteen others under similar charges, one of them being a brother of Rice.

The remaining cases are expected to enter pleas of guilty, as they mainly relate to being present as witnesses of the occasion.

"Lefty" Groves, the Baltimore International League pitcher, has been sold by Manager Jack Dunn to the Philadelphia American League club for $100,000. This is one of the highest prices ever paid for a baseball player.

DEATH OF CONGRESSMAN MUDD

May Cause Serious Complications in Election of President.

The sudden death of Hon. Sydney E. Mudd, on Saturday, may cause the loss of the state to the Republicans, in case the election of President should go to the House. Mr. Mudd, and his father before him, always carried the 5th. district of Maryland for the Republicans, but it is not so sure that a new man can do it at a special election that will be called to fill out the unexpired term, and it will be the present, and not the newly elected Congress, that will act on the Presidential problem, should nobody have a majority of the electoral votes.

Prior to Mr. Mudd's death the House of Representatives, by states, stood as follows:

States controlled by Democratic delegations 20.

States controlled by Republican delegations 23.

States with tie delegations 5—Maryland being one, the others being Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire and New Jersey.

While Wisconsin is counted with the Republican 23 states, it is practically sure that La Follette controls the delegation, which would reduce the Republican states to 22.

If the Democrats carry the Mudd district, this would give the Democrats 21 states, with Maryland removed from the tied list, bringing about a situation distinctly susceptible to "jockeying."

Owing to this particular phase of the situation, it is a pretty sure bet that the 5th. Maryland district will see some strenuous "politics" between now and November 6.

However, an election in the House must be by a "majority" of the 48 states, which means 25, and neither of the parties has this number, counting Maryland either way. It is difficult to see, therefore, how an election could be brought about in the House, as the La Follette influence in states other than Wisconsin could hardly throw enough other states to Davis to give him the required 25.

Thomas B. Mudd, a brother of the late Representative, will make the fight in the district, having been nominated by the State Central Committee, on Wednesday, Charles E. Chance, the regular Democratic nominee in the district, resigned under pressure that "he was not the man" for the contest, and State Senator Gambrill was named in his stead.

The S. S. Bible Class Rally.

The fourth annual county wide rally of adult bible classes of Carroll county, will be held in Westminster, Sunday afternoon, October 26, under the leadership of Rev. M. E. Ness, superintendent of the adult department of the County Sunday School Association.

These events have grown in interest from year to year and have attracted some of the largest crowds Westminster has ever seen. The parade will form on Court House square at 1:30 P. M., and march to Alumni Hall, Western Maryland College, where a great mass meeting will be held, addressed by Dr. Joseph H. Apple, President of Hood College. The Lehman Quartet of York will sing.

At the same time, starting at 2:30, there will be held in the Armory a mass meeting for women, under the leadership of Mrs. Martha Shaw. The speaker will be Mrs. L. M. DeFilva, of New York and there will be special music.

Every Sunday School and Church in the county is urged to send as large a delegation as possible to take part in this demonstration. A number of schools are bringing their own band with them.

Captain Gibson, military commandant of Western Maryland College will be chief marshal of the parade.

School Exhibit and Community Show at New Windsor.

A school exhibit and community show will be held at New Windsor school, on Thursday, October 23, 1924, from 1 to 5 P. M. At the same time there will be a sale of sandwiches, cakes, pies, candies, etc.

The teachers ask the hearty co-operation of their patrons, friends, and members of the Parent-Teachers' Association to make the community show a big success.

At 2:00 P. M., Dr. Stone and Miss Gibson, assisted by Dr. Craft, will hold a baby clinic. Mothers are urged to bring their babies, especially those who were entered last year. This opportunity is offered to all children up to six years. Parents are urged to respond as they well know the health of the child is of vital importance.

THE ENFORCEMENT OF PROHIBITION.

Report of the Federal Director for Maryland.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 20.—Prohibition enforcement is becoming more effective every day, and this improvement in curbing the outlawed liquor traffic is due to better co-operation between Federal and local authorities, imposition of jail sentences instead of fines for violators, more general use of the "pad lock" on liquor nuisances, and steps taken toward stopping leaks of liquor from bonded warehouses to the illicit market, according to a resume of prohibition enforcement by the Federal Government during the present administration at Washington, received today by Edmund Budnitz, Federal Prohibition Director for this state.

The report covers the period from June 11, 1921, to September 11, 1924. It shows that the main sources for obtaining genuine liquor in this country have been largely cut off. This has caused bootleggers to turn to smuggling, but with the Coast Guard rapidly getting this situation in control, the prospect for obtaining liquor from overseas is growing dimmer daily.

R. A. Haynes, Federal Prohibition Commissioner, said that the more general realization that over 90 percent of the so-called bootleg liquor being sold is poisonous, was also a contributing factor in bringing about victory of law and order over the outlawed liquor traffickers.

"Jail sentences," said Mr. Haynes, "are proving the real deterrent to law breaking. The violator may pay a fine and continue business in a different locality under a different name, until again apprehended. But when he is put in jail his activities are at an end, his income stops, and he has an opportunity to reflect upon the importance of upholding the Constitution." Commissioner Haynes continued:

"Co-operation between Federal and State authorities is improving. All forces for upholding law and order should co-operate. More than 177,000 arrests have been made by the Federal authorities during the last three years. During the same period violators have been sentenced in Federal courts to serve an aggregate of nearly 7,000 years.

More than 400,000 stills and parts of stills and about 39,000,000 gallons of distilled spirits, malt liquors, wine, etc., have been seized during the last 3 years. A total of 11,077 automobiles and 444 boats and launches have been captured.

"During this period, more than 138,200 criminal cases have been taken to Federal Courts. Of this number, over 120,000 have been terminated, resulting in more than 94,300 convictions.

"Thousands of other cases have been turned into local courts, of which there is no complete record. Fines of nearly $18,000,000 have been imposed, over $12,300,000 of which has actually been collected and turned in to the United States Treasury. Last year alone, the fines, forfeitures, etc., imposed totaled over $7,000,000, of which more than $5,000,000 has already been collected. In addition, about $1,000,000 was paid by brewers during the year in compromise of civil liabilities. Tax penalty figures are not yet compiled, but will swell the total collection considerably.

"The injunction, or 'padlock' is another effective weapon. Injunction cases have been instituted in both Federal and State courts. Since July 1922, over 4,000 such cases have been instituted. In more than 3,200 cases injunctions were granted, over 2,650 of which have been made permanent. Particular attention has been devoted to securing injunctions in brewery cases. About 180 such cases have been instituted against breweries. Of those granted, 72 have been made permanent, and 29 breweries have been actually closed.

"Many important cases have been prosecuted under the provisions of the Criminal Code for conspiracy to violate the law. The heaviest penalty ever imposed in any one case was for conspiracy and involved a fine of $21,000 and a sentence of 20 years in jail.

"A well organized permit system has effectually curbed the leak from bonded warehouses. There has been a reduction in withdrawals of about 7,000,000 gallons from that in 1921, the first fiscal dry year. Although more industrial alcohol is being used legitimately now than ever, due to expansion in the volume of legitimate alcohol-using industries, diversions to the bootleg trade are decreasing. It is estimated that less than 10 percent of the entire production is involved in illegal transactions, a substantial quantity of which is later seized and destroyed.

"An extreme reduction in the use of medicinal wines as a beverage has resulted from medicating the wine, rendering medicinal preparations containing wine unfit for beverage use. Withdrawals of wine during the last year were only a little over 4,000,000 gallons, over half of which was used for sacramental purposes.

For Maryland, the following activities are included in the general report; distilleries seized and destroyed 217; gallons of spirits seized 15,727; gallons of beer 43,681; gallons of wine 180; gallons of mash 237,314; automobiles seized 89 valued at $31,025; persons arrested 748.

NATIONAL POLITICAL NOTES

Main Events of the Week Affecting the Parties.

Sydney E. Mudd (Rep.) representative in Congress from the 5th. Md., district, died suddenly on Saturday. This may mean the loss of this district to the Republicans, as Mr. Mudd had a political popularity all his own—and his death may bring about important complications, noted elsewhere in this issue.

Gen. Dawes says his attitude with reference to La Folletteism can not be changed by either Republicans or Democrats, as he conscientiously regards it the chief issue in the campaign, and intends to keep on hitting it.

These states will likely solve the contest; Colorado, Delaware, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Washington and West Virginia. The other 31 are pretty surely placed.

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, an alleged supporter of La Follette, so far has not uttered a word against President Coolidge, nor has he come to his support. He is, however, supporting the Republican candidate for Governor.

The Republicans are growing quite confident of carrying Tennessee. At any rate, the Eastern half of the state will be strongly Republican.

Secretary Hughes is engaged in the Indiana campaign, and urges that it is the sole hope of the third party to throw the election into the House, and there dictate who the President shall be—and not Coolidge.

Mr. Davis is campaigning in Indiana, emphasizing honesty and economy in government, and attacking the Tariff laws.

The probability of the election of President going into the Senate, is generally discounted by all leaders. If the electoral votes do not decide, the election is almost sure to be decided by the House.

A La Follette campaign cartoon, is a picture representing Coolidge and Davis as dancing figures operated by wires controlled by J. Pierpont Morgan of "Wall Street," entitled the "Wall Street Twins."

The Cincinnati Enquirer's poll of Ohio, so far, shows Coolidge to have a decided margin over Davis and La Follette combined.

The bitterest campaign of all, seems to be in Minnesota. Prejudice of various sorts is rampant there, exceeding even that in Wisconsin. Socialists, Farmer-Laborites, the I. W. W.'s, the Stuebenites, and foreign elements generally, are for La Follette. The outcome is in doubt, the fight being almost solely between Coolidge and La Follette.

U. S. Senator Brandegee (Rep.) of Connecticut, committed suicide by gas asphyxiation, Tuesday morning. Financial troubles are intimated to have been the cause. He was one of the "old guard" style of Republicans, and one of the strongest opponents of the League of Nations. A special election will be required to fill the vacancy. Like the vacancy caused by the death of Representative Mudd, this Senatorial seat may be of importance in the Presidential contest.

It is practically assured that hereafter Senators La Follette, Brookhart and Fraser, masquerading as Republicans, will hereafter be "read-out" of the party and be given no committee assignments nor honors. A strong effort is being made to defeat Brookhart for re-election in Iowa.

A financial firm in New York has been commissioned to wage $100,000 against $35,000 that Coolidge will be elected President. Also $5000. to bet that three states can not be named that La Follette will carry; and money at 5 to 1 that the election will not be thrown into the House.

The Literary Digest poll gives Coolidge 1,066,214, La Follette 432,660, Davis 384,205. The Hearst papers poll is Coolidge 233,776, La Follette 201,436, Davis 110,827.

Proceedings of the Orphans' Court.

There will be two amendments to the State Constitution voted on—

The first relates to the salary and expenses of the State's Attorney of Baltimore City.

The second permits the state to pledge its credit for raising funds with which to pension citizens of the state who served during time of war.

Who says President Coolidge has no "backbone?" He was an enthusiastic "rooter" for the Washington baseball team for the World's series, against the Giants, of New York. The District of Columbia has no electoral votes, while New York has 45! And Coolidge needs the 45!

Judge Gorter, of Baltimore, is extremely gallant when a question involving the ladies is concerned, and in a recent case ruled that a husband should never strike his wife, no matter what the provocation. Perhaps there are some wives and some provocations that the Judge has never seen?

Now that the baseball scores are out of the way for this year, a lot of valuable newspaper space can be devoted to—more news of the political game, which in some ways is a very "base" game, full of "hits," "errors" and "fouls," with a lone "home run" winning at the end of the score, a four year's championship.

The Frederick County Court is handling boot-leg cases as though law enforcement was a real duty. Those who get caught, and plead clemency, have only themselves to blame when they feel the teeth of the law. Unfortunately, all of the counties of the state have not been as law-abiding as Frederick, and it is such counties that are responsible for many violations that would not occur, were the laws enforced.

Doubt Until Votes are Counted.

Notwithstanding all of the "straw ballots," and the classes that are supposed to have a personal interest between candidates, the Ku Klux and various other features of the present campaign, the result of the election is bound to be in doubt until the votes are counted—and perhaps afterward.

There never was quite such a situation, and it is perhaps a sensible wish to make that there may never be such another one. It would not be a good thing, but perhaps a very dangerous situation, should the contest not be decided by the electoral vote. The constitution, in its provisions, aims to cover such a possibility, but in these troublous times it will be best not to test how these provisions would work out, as there is too much of an inclination abroad to discredit this document that has stood the test of 150 years.

The important thought is, that the constitution is not self-enforcing. It has not back of it a police force that automatically holds Congress and massed people to simple obedience. Our form of government, after all, rests upon laws and courts respected and enforced, and this means united opinion and effort in this one direction.

The effort of all good citizens should be toward cultivating and strengthening this one vital spot. With our army disorganized and mutinous, and our police unresponsive to authority, our courts would be powerless, and red anarchy would run riot.

We are happy in the feeling of safety that this is America, and that no condition of this sort could possibly prevail here; but our present America is not the same America as that of our forefathers, and we may be closer to real anarchy than we think.

The greatest safety that this country can provide for in the present situation, is for all of our best citizens to go to the polls and vote—the other kind will vote without persuasion. This is the first thing to do. After that, we shall see what we shall see.

Our Duty as Jurors.

Have you ever served on a jury? Before you answer, wait a bit. In the strictest sense, a jury means a body of men legally sworn to inquire into and decide on the evidence in a case before them. Omit the word "sworn" and we have what a jury means in the broadest sense—a body of men (or women) legally entitled to inquire into and decide important questions.

Taking this view of jury duty, every person who votes at an election is a juror. The laws of the land provide certain legal qualifications, established under oath, for the performance of the rights of citizenship or the most important real juryship in this country of ours.

So, we are all "jurors" and it will be wise to think of voting from this point of view. It may not be a "sworn" duty, if we look for excuses, but those of us who value our rights, and place the proper valuation on our responsibilities and opportunities, will not quibble over such technicalities.

As citizens claiming the protection of government and justice from laws, we are obliged to examine the evidence now before us, the witnesses, the possibilities involved, and hand in our verdict, and there is no appeal from our decision.

"The Don't Care" Type.

One thing about the "Don't care" type of man is that he deceives no one; he does not even deceive himself. It is a piece of bravado that will not pass. It is a flimsy bit of counterfeit; a pitiful piece of bluff.

It has often been said that the bravest man is he who fears a danger but faces it. He confronts peril without flinching because he knows it is his duty; because he is in earnest. The bluffer may approach the trouble with an outward show of confidence, but he is more liable to panic should anything unexpected happen.

Indifferentism is the bane of the world today, and shows itself in a multitude of ways. A gigantic wave of indifferentism is the main obstacle to the efforts of those who are trying to make prohibition an impregnable bulwark in this country. Look at the indifferentism of those who are called upon to put their strength into some movement for the public welfare. They will stave it off by remarking, "This is none of my business; this matter does not concern me," ignoring the fact that all that is for the good of their fellow men is for the good of themselves.

Indifferentism is, therefore, another name for selfishness. Were selfishness once to get a firm hold of the world, it would mean the end of Christianity, and with Christianity would perish the precious quality of unselfishness. Indifferentism predisposes a man to "pass by on the other side," but unselfishness makes him the "neighbor" of those who lie bruised by the way-side.

The most fertile cause of accidents is indifferentism. Through it buildings collapse, trains are wrecked, lives are lost. Careless workmanship, neglect of duty, the "let-it-go" sort of attitude form the foundation for all kinds of trouble. Wherever indifferentism prevails in regard to ethics it almost always exists in regard to things material. Carelessness dulls the intellect, paralyzes the energies, and clogs the actions. "A sound mind in a sound body" is an age-long axiom. That which we call stupidity arises from indifferentism as much as it does from sloth or lack of intellect.

Ideas which if put into practice would have played an important part in the welfare of mankind have been lost through indifference. Inversely, many of those things that have been of the greatest benefit have been rooted in alertness.

A farmer passing one morning through a field of grain that had been devastated by a storm saw, amid the acres that had been laid low, one stalk which stood upright amid the general ruin. Had indifferentism prevailed that farmer might have gone on his way without a second glance at the stalk of grain, if he had noticed it at all. But a keen vision was wedded to a sound imagination, the apparently trifling circumstance was noted and from that single stalk of grain was originated an entirely new variety which left all others behind in its vigor and quality.

Big things arise from little things, but indifferentism kills both.—Henry Ford, in Dearborn Independent.

Is Your Child's Birth Recorded? If Not, Why Not?

A cartoon that is to be seen on the walls of a number of health department offices, represents Uncle Sam as a bookkeeper, seated before a desk on which are spread out various documents. He looks disturbed, and pointing to the reports of births, is pictured as saying "And my most important record is incomplete!"

Maryland is one of the twenty-seven states in what is known as the Birth Registration Area. This means that in these states at least 90 per cent of the births that occur each year, are fully recorded in Uncle Sam's big books.

What this ten percent omission may mean, can be better understood when we remember that approximately 36,500 births occur annually, in Maryland. If one-tenth of that number are not registered, 365 children each year—or nearly 4,000 in ten years, will be without the records that are necessary to secure the protection that is afforded by the laws, not only of Maryland, but of the whole country, in certain important matters. Here are some of the things for which a child's birth certificate serves as the official record:

To prove his age and citizenship.
To prove his right to go to school.
To prove his right to go to work.
To prove his right to an inheritance.
To prove his right to marry.
To prove his right to hold office.
To prove his right to secure passports for foreign travel.
To prove mother's right to a widow's pension.

The laws in Maryland require a baby's birth to be reported within four days by the physician, nurse or midwife, to the local registrar, through whom it is forwarded to the Bureau of the State Department of Health. On receipt of the report, the Bureau communicates directly with the mother to be sure that the name, address, date and place of birth are correct. When these details have been checked up, a card certifying that the birth has been duly recorded on the Maryland records, is sent to the mother, who is urged to see that it is kept with her marriage certificate and other family records.

Parents who are uncertain as to whether or not their children's births are reported, can find out definitely by writing to Dr. F. V. Beitel, Chief of The Bureau of Vital Statistics, of the State Department of Health, Baltimore, giving name place and date of birth of each child.—Md. Dept. of Health.

What is Americanization

The word "Americanization" has fallen under a shadow because it has been used too frequently as a cant phrase, but it is too good a word to be relegated to the limbo of discredited terminology.

What does it mean? Not merely an ability to read and write the English language and to understand all the modus operandi of the American government, with a smattering of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution. There are unnumbered American citizens of both native and foreign birth who know all these things and more and yet fall far short of being good American citizens.

To be an American in truth is to have an understanding of American tradition and American history, whereby there has been developed upon this continent a new social order different from and better than any social organization that history has known, distinctive because for the first time here is a social order dedicated to justice, liberty, brotherhood and righteousness. It means further, a profound appreciation of those principles and of that spirit that has made this nation great, not only in populations but in moral force and spiritual ideals.

When a man of foreign birth or ancestry assumes the obligations of the American citizen he by that act specifically repudiates the culture and ideals of his fathers insofar as that culture and those ideals conflict with the spirit and purposes of the American commonwealth. There can be no divided allegiance; no other country, no dual love.

Alan P. Plevé, addressing the Jewish Federation in Indianapolis, is reported to have said that he is "opposed to attempts to force foreigners to adopt American customs and abandon their native traditions and habits." Very well, then, if those native traditions and habits are antagonistic to the traditions and spirit of America, people who hold that belief have no place in our country and certainly have no rights to the benefits and privileges of citizenship.—The New Age.

Every Day.

There are days when it seems easy to be happy and simple to be good; there are other days when sixes and sevens are the only numerals on the calendar. What is the difference? Is it in the conspiracy of fate and the combination of odds against us? Or is it in the disposition that we bring to the business of living, the acting of our part in the never-ending drama of courage and good cheer?

Today brings its own problems and flings them at us for solution, heeding not our protests that, like the unready child at school, we are not prepared. So often life seems to get the jump on us to a point a little in advance of our readiness to live it. Our duty confronts our courage at the lowest ebb; manifest destiny bars our track when our resolution is at its irreducible minimum. We cannot refer its insistent demand to yesterday's performance or to the auroral promise of tomorrow. Here and now we are responsible; decision is critical and imminent; the responsibility must be at once assumed, the choice immediately made.

We look in the glass and know that the years are taking their inevitable toll: day unto day is writing its record, and what was said or done five minutes ago is irrevocable. But if the evil cannot be blotted out, neither can the good. Today is forever offering a fresh chance after a false start. Today has turned a page. Heaviness endured for a night; joy came in the morning. Not the fool's irrational exuberance of mirth, not the silly cackle of the witless, but the firm serenity of mind that holds its own and carries on with a smile that conveys a benison.

For one day, by an effort, a sinner might impersonate a saint, a weakling seem heroic, a poltroon masquerade as a plumed knight. But those who wear the borrowed robes of virtue grow weary of the guise and doff it soon. The followed leaders and the heard commanders—and the good soldiers of the rank and file as well—are they who do not spurt at the beginning of the march and lag midway, but continue steadfast to the end of the long journey of the days.—Phila. Ledger.

Ancient Custom

"There's a chap I've been in a quandary about for a year," said a man, indicating another who had just passed. "I don't know whether I like him. You see, he has a prejudice against shaking hands. He just naturally won't if there is a possible chance of getting out of it. He always manages to have something else to do when a person to whom he is introduced gets ready to extend the glad hand. That chap says that hand-shaking is a survival of an ancient custom that has no reason for existing today. He insists if there is anything he dislikes it is to grasp some stranger's moist paw and give it a shake, for when he does so he wants to sneak away and wash his own. I've heard him expatiate upon the subject just after avoiding a handshake with some one to whom I introduced him. I almost guess I don't like him."—Detroit News.

Ye Puritan Pessimist

Ye worlde is fulle of woe. Ye pathway of manne from ye cradle to ye grave is lined with brambles. Laughter is ever wetted with tears. An unscrupulous viper lurketh in ye glasses of sparkling wine, or, anyhow, it used to did so e'er prohibition came uponne us. You fancy you cannot live without a certain female, and a little later, behold, you cannot live with her. You sniffle ye fragrance of ye dewy rose and a gadsnapper stiteth you on ye nose. And thus it goeth, and thus, I wot, it will continue to go until ye end of time. Such being the case, there is nothing for us to do but hump our backs like an olde sheep in a hail-storm, pull down our hattes and thank providence for what it hasn't done to us.—Kansas City Star.

The SANDMAN STORY

PETER AND THE FAIRIES

PETER loved the beautiful green fields and all the wild flowers, but best of all he loved the pretty golden-eyed daisy with her ruffled bonnet, and never would he disturb a daisy though it grew in his very garden.

All around the poor cottage where he lived alone grew the daisies in profusion, and one night Peter awoke and saw all the daisies dancing in the moonlight. He jumped out of his bed and ran to the window, thinking he must be dreaming.

It was true. The daisies were all dancing, and among them, taller than the others, was a little lady wearing a ruffled cap, but instead of one golden eye she had a pretty face and two eyes though they were not golden.

Peter slipped on his clothes and ran into the yard, and the little lady smiled and ran, but she beckoned to Peter to follow her.

Peter was so intent upon watching the running figure that he did not notice he was in a strange palace right in the midst of a daisy field.

The little lady ran up the marble steps and held out her hand to Peter. "Come," she said. "You are the friend of the daisy fairies and they sent me to bring you here for tonight. We are to have a grand feast and dance and the fairies said it would not be complete without you, because you never harm the daisies."

Then into the marble palace she led Peter, and for the first time he thought of his ragged clothes. "Don't worry about your clothes," said the little lady who seemed to know his thoughts. "I shall take you to our Queen and she will make everything right for you."

Peter next was taken to a big room hung with white and gold, and on a throne made of daisies sat a tiny little creature with hair of gold color and dressed all in white. She wore a ruffled cap, too, just like the little lady who had brought Peter to the palace.

"You are the daisies' friend," said the little creature on the throne, "and for your kindness we invite you to the grand ball and feast we shall have tonight. Kneel, that I may touch you with my wand."

A touch light as a feather on Peter's shoulder, and when he stood up he was dressed in a black velvet suit trimmed with gold lace, silk stockings and black shoes, shiny ones with bright buckles.

"Now let the dance begin," said the Queen with a wave of her wand; and up from the floor sprang hundreds of daisy fairies and began to dance. They caught at Peter and pulled him with them, and away they all whirled, until a silvery tinkle was heard and the panels at one side of the room slid open and there was a table loaded with goodies such as Peter never expected to see, much less taste.

A big gold chair was at one end of the table and another one at the other end, but this was tiny, such as a fairy person would use, and in this sat the Queen, but she told Peter he was to sit in the other, for tonight he was king of the feast.

Peter's plate was piled with good things, and all the time soft music sounded, though where it came from Peter did not know.

When Peter had eaten all he could and was wondering if he would be able to get up from the gold chair, a silvery tinkle sounded again and Peter rubbed his eyes.

He wasn't in the palace of the daisy fairies at all. He was in bed in his own poor cottage and the sun was shining in the window.

But the bell he still heard, and when he looked out of the window, in the midst of the daisies stood a beautiful white cow with a silver bell around her neck.

The cow proved to belong to a rich man who prized her very much, and when Peter returned the cow the rich man gave him a big reward, and, best of all, he asked Peter to come and work for him and live in a comfortable house on his big farm.

And all of this Peter says he owes to the daisy fairies, for though it may all have been a dream—the night he feasted and danced with the fairies—he still believes that because of his fondness for the pretty daisy the fairies brought all of his good luck by sending the white cow to his door.

The Why of Superstitions

By H. IRVING KING

THE MOUNTAIN ASH

ANYBODY who knows anything at all about witches knows that a branch of the rowan tree—or, as it is more generally called, mountain ash—will keep those objectionable persons at a distance and act as a counter-charm to their sorcery. In some parts of the country the rowan is accounted equally efficacious against thieves. In Maine housewives stir their lye, in making soap, with a stick of rowan, in order that the soap may be hard and of good quality. And everywhere they will tell you that to beat a child with a rod of mountain ash stops its growth.

The superstition with regard to the mystic qualities of mountain ash has northern Europe as its country of origin and flourished there in the early days. In northern Europe it still lingers and from northern Europe we inherit it. Formerly in some parts of Ireland the villagers used to appear on May day bearing a hoop covered with marigolds and sprigs of mountain ash, within which hung two balls, one covered with gold paper and one with silver, to represent the sun and moon. The marigolds were, of course, to supplement the yellow ball, the sun. Which would indicate that anciently in Celtic mythology, at least, some connection was conceived to exist between the other deodation, the rowan, and the moon-goddess.

Be that as it may, it is reasonable to suppose that the rowan got its mystic reputation in Norse mythology—as it got its common English name—from the resemblance of its foliage to that of the true ash, the sacred tree of our Scandinavian forefathers—Igdrasil, the tree of life. One old name for the rowan was "the quicken tree"—quicken in the sense of to make alive—which would seem still further to connect the mountain ash with the sacred Igdrasil.

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day, lucky jewel

LETTY

ONE of the "glad" names is Letitia. It comes from the Latin adjective laetus, meaning glad, from which the substantive, "laetitia," was formed. Whether ancient Rome underwent a "glad" period, etymologists do not record, but the fact remains that Letitia as a proper name was adopted by the fashionable maids and matrons of that bygone empire.

Laetitia first made her appearance as Letizia, a name favored by the Italians during the fashion for extreme novelty that prevailed in the Cinque cento. Spain adopted Letizia.

In Ireland Lettice was extremely popular. One famous bearer of the name was Lettice Knollys, the wife of the Earl of Essex. Letitia was evolved in Ireland, and is still a favorite with Irish lassies, though Letty, the diminutive, is by far the most popular form.

Letitia and Letty are both in vogue in this country. The touch of propriety which has become associated with Letitia has somewhat lessened her vogue, but Letty flourishes after the manner of all contractions in America.

The turquoise is Letitia's talismanic stone. If set in gold, it will protect her from all danger, especially when traveling. According to an old legend, the stone will break at the approach of evil. Letty if possible good luck is promised Letty if she can see the new moon reflected in her turquoise. Saturday is her lucky day.

Vessel's Weight Varies

According to Direction

Attention was called recently in a scientific magazine to the difference in the weight and the displacement of a ship steaming east and one steaming west on account of the centrifugal force acting upon it. A specific example was cited of an American 1,100-ton destroyer traveling westward at 25 knots and adding 262.8 pounds to her weight, while the same craft speeding eastward would subtract 480.62 pounds from her weight.

The Engineer, London, has taken pains to look into the matter and gives us some additional facts. Inasmuch as a vessel running at 25 knots has a speed of 42 feet a second, and as the peripheral speed of the earth at the equator is 1,560 feet a second, it is clear that in steaming westward, with the two speeds opposing each other, the true linear velocity of the ship would be 1,518 feet a second, while on an eastward course it would be 1,602 feet. The centrifugal force exerted on a vessel of the aforesaid size and speed is 8,410 pounds on a westward course and 9,366 pounds on an eastward journey—indicating a difference of 956 pounds between the two conditions.—Compressed Air Magazine.

Community Building

Heart Interest Counts in Establishing Home

Too many homes are built merely of wood, concrete, brick and stone when the fact of the matter is you have just a house and not a real home at all.

It is true that these concrete materials are necessary yet it is equally true that it requires more—much more than these—to build a real home.

With the wood and stone and mortar one must mix a liberal amount of careful consideration, personal planning and real heart interest, else you will have a house—not a home.

Build your home on paper first—carefully plan every room, take into consideration the years that you and your loved ones will probably occupy this home.

In the choice of the materials one must be guided by personal preference. If you finally decide that a frame construction is the type best suited to your needs, then by all means that is the kind of house you should build.

If on the other hand, you decide that you prefer some other kind of material, the choice is yours, but it is well to give this angle of the home you are going to build considerable study and be absolutely sure.

Then comes the type of home or rather the style of the building you will erect. It is a good plan to go around and see the different types, thus getting a fairly good idea as to just how any particular style will look.

When you have done this and finally decided, then go over and check up on all of the details and see if there is anything you have missed or not considered. Get every detail of the new home firmly fixed in your mind—then build, and you may be sure that you will not only have a house, but a home as well.—Indianapolis Star.

Money Expended on Paint Well Laid Out

Paint, says an authority, is an essential factor to sanitary conditions as well as to surface-saving properties. Paint, when used inside and out, will protect a building, prevent deterioration and practically eliminate repair bills. Compared with the value of the property, the cost of the insurance paint gives one is slight.

"You always pay dearly for the painting you do not do," he asserts. "Unprotected surfaces quickly rot, boards split and joints become loose. Rundown buildings sooner or later need repairs, which are always expensive. From an investment standpoint, whatever you spend for painting and decorating always pays big returns. Paint and redecorate—it is the most economical thing you can do. Decorating makes new homes out of old ones.

"Property that is painted and decorated is always worth more because it looks better. From a selling standpoint, a building with a good appearance is always much more desirable than an unkept one. You will be proud of the appearance and the ownership of your building and convinced that the outlay for painting and decorating is money well spent. If you are not satisfied with the interior of your home, redecorating should go a long way toward remedying your feeling."

Turn to Regional Planning

City planning, especially in large cities, sometimes involves tremendous expenditures. It may be described as a big job of replanning and reconstruction. It means correcting past errors, changing things to meet new and unexpected conditions.

A notable example of city planning was that undertaken in Paris in 1859 under the leadership of the emperor Napoleon III, and under the strong hand of Baron Haussmann, says Frederick A. Delano in National Municipal Review.

Regional planning, on the other hand, is planning for the future in the suburbs and the open country. This is the sort of planning that has been carried on so successfully in Europe.

Trees on Highways

The American Tree association predicts that tree planting, especially that along roadsides, will set a new record this year. The enrollment in the association now has reached 72,000, the association announces, and every member is active either in planting new growths or in preserving old ones. The European scheme of roadside beautification might well be followed in this country, where tourists and sightseers travel in far greater numbers than in the Old world. The walnut, for instance, is a vanishing specimen which once was almost as common as the oak. It is a tree with a high commercial value and has few peers for beauty.—Meriden Record.

Canadian City's Boast

Weston, Ont., with a population of but 4,500, has what is probably the best "White Way" of any community of its size in North America. For nearly two miles Main street is now lighted by the most modern street-lighting fixtures. These are placed 110 feet apart through the business section and 180 feet apart in the residential section. These lighting units consist of fluted iron poles with urn-shaped translucent globes at the top, inclosing either 350 or 400 watt electric lamps.

HOW

BUILDERS OF STONEHENGE ACCOMPLISHED WONDER.—How the builders of Stonehenge, on Salisbury plain, with the appliances of, say, 3,500 years ago, managed to get the vast stones upright and place others on their tops has always been one of the marvels of primitive engineering, says a writer in the London Daily Mail.

In his book "Stonehenge," Mr. E. Herbert Stone has a most interesting series of photographs taken from large working models "by means of which the various operations connected with the raising of the stones of Stonehenge as here described have been rehearsed step by step in full detail."

A figure representing a Neolithic man, who has an elf-like smallness beside the huge monoliths, is introduced in the different views to give an idea of scale.

For the purpose of his experiment in this "reconstruction," Mr. Stone has taken the average weight of the stones of the outer circle at Stonehenge as, for uprights, 26 tons each, and for the lintels placed across their tops, 6½ tons. The appliances used, he points out, would be mainly ropes, rollers and shear logs, plus man-power working in carefully rehearsed unison.

Mr. Stone suggests that the man who designed Stonehenge was probably a foreigner.

After the upright stones had been firmly bedded in the ground, "an earth bank is thrown up around the pair of upright stones on which a lintel is to be placed." The outer part of this bank is "brought to a smooth surface and rammed hard, to make a track up which the lintel is to be hauled."

Then with everything in place the well-drilled man-power takes the strain and drags the great mass up the slope till finally it rests on the tops of the two embedded stones. The bank can then be removed, leaving the huge triliton towering clear above the ground.

How Electricity From Air May Be Utilized

The idea of utilizing the electricity in the atmosphere for industrial and other purposes has always been a fascinating one.

Mr. Bhattacharyya, of Patna, Bengal, has experimented with large paper and linen kites. These were wound with a network of copper wires, and it proved desirable later to replace the copper wire by silver, owing to the rapid oxidation of the copper surface.

The kites rose to eight or nine hundred feet, when it was found that sparks could be drawn at short intervals from an insulated rod attached to the lower end of the metal kite-string. The intermittent sparks were made to yield an alternating current by means of a special transforming device.

Experiments are now being made with aluminum balloons filled with hydrogen gas.

How Octopus "Works"

During the war large deposits of coal, thrown over from the various warships which were centered about the island of Crete accumulated at the bottom of the sea; but not being mechanically minded, and being devoid of dredging apparatus, the Cretans retrieved this treasure by attaching an octopus to a string and lowering the mollusk over the coal dump, says Sir Arthur Shipley in the London Times.

As soon as it had attached itself by its tentacles to its resting place they gently pulled it up; the adhering lump of coal was then detached, and the octopus dropped in again.

As in southern Italy, the octopus is used as an article of food, but this is the first instance I have come across of this mollusk's being of practical value as a coal heaver.

How Ocean Will Be Plumbed

Plans for the most complete survey of the ocean from top to bottom ever attempted recently were inaugurated by scientific branches of the government and allied institutions, under auspices of the hydrographic office of the United States navy. Instead of a globe-girdling expedition, a comparatively small section of the sea will be selected for intensive study. The Aleutian islands region of the Bering sea and the Caribbean sea are now under consideration as offering the best opportunities for scientific investigation. Ships will be fitted out with complete laboratories and equipped with the most modern scientific apparatus for the first cruise.—Popular Science Monthly.

How Boy Captured Salmon

An almost unbelievable fish story comes from Selby, England, where a young fisherman claims to have captured a 35-pound salmon by jumping into the water on top of it, while his father killed it with a mallet. However, his straightforward statements are convincing. "I jumped into the water, landing on top of the fish and encircled its body with my arms. We rolled over. I came on top. The fish tried to knock me out with its tail. It was only fair to say that the struggle took place in 18 inches of water."

MELROSE.

On Saturday evening, about 9 P. M., when the stillness in our staid old town was visibly felt, and we were in a deep reverie, a weird but pleasant music from the beautiful, moonlight street broke forth, opposite our home in melodious strains. After a season of strange tunes, an automobile started to leave the shady side of the street, with the musician, the accordion, and all was quite again. The musician, from a neighboring town who seemed to have imbibed of the elixir of life, was gone, and all was quiet.

One day last week Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Tracy, had an unexpected visit from an unwelcome visitor in the form of a huge blacksnake, nearly six feet in length, in their front yard. It was quickly dispatched with a stout broom stick and a hoe.

Harvey Yingling is making extensive improvements to his home, on the highway between here and the Mason and Dixon line.

Having the privilege of visiting the well-known Shultz bakery, on Pleasant Street, Hanover, we found Mr. Shultz, in his advancing years, with his corps of workmen, just as busy, fat and jolly as when he drove a bread and pretzel wagon a dozen or more years ago through here over the then rough old road.

Several weeks ago some miscreant set fire to a straw stack on the farm of George Richard, burning it to the ground. The Bible says, "The way of the transgressor is hard."

PLEASANT VALLEY.

The Zepp property at this place was destroyed by fire, Sunday night, and the occupants, Benjamin Myers and family, had a narrow escape from death. Mr. Myers had no insurance on his household goods.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Myers who was awakened about ten minutes of 12 by the smell of smoke in the bed room. She called her husband who was driven back by smoke and flames when he opened the door at the foot of the steps. He called his wife's sister. The latter took the week-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Myers and Mr. Myers took care of his wife. Together they dashed through the blazing room downstairs to safety. Mrs. Myers and her baby were protected with covering, but Mr. Myers and his sister-in-law were badly burned about the face and head.

They went to the home of the next door neighbor Edward Devilbiss from there they sent in a phone call for the Westminster firemen who arrived at 12:15 o'clock. On account of the road being closed they had to go through Mt. Pleasant by a round about way.

Our canning factories are busy canning tomatoes, which are now coming to the best.

The trip around the world given by the High School was largely attended, and everyone enjoyed themselves.

LITTLESTOWN.

An accident occurred on Saturday evening, about 6 o'clock, when Oliver Reaver, of near town, was riding a motorcycle in the yard at Sneeringer's stone quarry, on the Gettysburg pike, at the edge of town. Mr. Reaver run the motorcycle with side car attached out on the road, and it seems the brakes refused to work as he could not turn the front wheel, and the motor ran over an embankment of between 35 and 40 feet, in to the stone quarry. A rolling stone which fell off the bank struck him on the head, cut a large gash which required several stitches to close, besides a few other little cuts and bruises, and a badly sprained wrist. Dr. H. S. Crouse dressed the injuries. The motorcycle was a Harley-Davidson and belonged to Eugene Foreman, of near Taneytown, and it was not damaged to any great extent.

Millard Engle spent the week-end in Frederick, where he attended the funeral of his uncle, Joseph Wiles, who died early Friday morning, after a weeks illness, from a stroke of paralysis. IN LOVING REMEMBRANCE of my Dear Husband, NEWTON TROXELL, who died one year ago 1923.

Days of sadness still comes o'er me,
Hidden tears so often flow,
Memory keeps my dear husband near me,
Though he died one year ago.
Dear hands that toiled for me are folded,
His poor weak heart one year is stilled,
Which never can be filled,
His spirit is hovering o'er me,
His memory dwells in my heart,
For I know that some day he shall meet me
Never no more to part.

Now Jesus I pray that you help me,
Tread in his footsteps so grand
And finally, dear loving Savior,
Let us meet in that heavenly land.
His Lonely wife, A. C. TROXELL.

CARD OF THANKS.

We take this method to express our thanks to our friends and neighbors, who so kindly helped us in any way during the illness and death of our father, J. A. C. Baker, also for the floral tributes, and to those who furnished automobiles for the funeral.

Start Your Pullets and Moulded Hens to Laying

You have had your summer's poultry cares.
Now is the time for you to cash in on eggs.

Go after those dormant egg organs that moulting threw out of gear.
Go after them with the "Old Reliable"

Dr. Hess Poultry PAN-A-CE-A

Pan-a-ce-a puts the egg organs to work. It starts the feed the egg way. Feed Pan-a-ce-a—then you will see red combs and red wattles.

It brings back the song and scratch and cackle.

It gives hens pep. It makes music in your poultry yard. That's when the eggs come.

I spent 30 years in perfecting Pan-a-ce-a.

Our Letter Box

Under this heading we will be glad to publish letters from former Carroll-countians, who are now away from home; and especially letters from those whose home was Taneytown. These letters are very interesting to many, and we should be glad to publish one or more each week. On account of their length, it is not always convenient to use letters on first page, and will hereafter use the 4th. or 5th. page.

From Nat. Soldiers' Home.

Editor Record:

I noticed your invitation to write something for the Record's "Letter Box" and at first thought I could not do it, as I am past the age for writing, but finally concluded that I would write in appreciation—you know what Rip Van Winkle said, "How soon we are forgotten, when gone."

I always enjoy receiving my copy of The Record every Monday morning, and I read it all, for it is all good, and I would miss it very much. I think the "Letter Box" a good addition. Just now, Dayton is having a grand time with the airplane races. I would love to attend them, but am too old.

Now, regarding the Home—the central branch of the National Military Homes. I first came here June 9, 1905. I then thought it the most beautiful place I had ever seen, and I have never had any cause to change my opinion. It is located on rising ground about a mile south of the Miami river. It contains about 600 acres of land with many shade trees, shrubbery, and flowers. We have two churches—Protestant and Catholic—a theatre, library, postoffice, store, restaurant, hotel and shops of all kinds, laundry, carpenters, machinist, plumber, tin worker, blacksmith, electrical plant, ice plant, besides the Hospital buildings with a corps of medical attendants. Then there are head-quarters buildings and other buildings too numerous to mention—in fact, this is a little city in itself, with fine streets and walks, all electrically lighted.

Our quarters are good; steam heated, with hot and cold water, toilet and bath rooms, elevator, everything to make it easy and pleasant for the soldiers, old and young, and we have both here—Civil war, Spanish war and World war—all well cared for; good rooms, everything kept clean, good clothing, and the food could not be better.

In the Company I am in, we have our own kitchen and dining room, with women cooks and waitresses. We always have plenty of fruit and vegetables in season; in fact, no one could have better, or be better served than we are, or more comfortable.

I have often wished that people from Maryland could, or would, visit this Home, and see for themselves. Our weather is much like yours, and by the way I want to visit "Old Maryland" again next Summer if I am well enough.

Automobiles always take us out to vote, about a half-mile. I believe Ohio will go Republican and I shall vote the ticket "straight."

With best wishes, I am yours very truly,

H. C. EDWARDS,
Nat. Military Home, Ohio.

JAMES DECIDED TO MARRY

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(© 1924 McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"James must marry, of course, and we hope he will marry well." The voice was that of Miss Maria Clegett and she was talking to her two sisters, Jane and Fannie; the fourth sister, Helen, had married, twenty-five years ago and lived in a distant city. She had grown sons and daughters, and her husband was a prominent lawyer—the name of James Germaine was well known throughout his own state and many others.

"Don't worry about James getting married," protested Jane Clegett; "he is bound to in time; with the careful way he has been brought up he is bound to pick out some nice girl of good family. There is plenty of time for him to look around."

Mr. James Clegett, the bachelor brother of the three maiden ladies, paused in the kitchen where he had come to get a drink of water. He had been working in the garden among his early vegetables and thirst had driven him indoors in time to hear his own name uttered. Carefully he tiptoed across the kitchen and let himself out of the back door.

"Are they going to begin that marrying business again?" he asked himself. "I've been thrown at the head of every confounded girl in Middleboro or they've been thrown at me—and as for widows—Lord help!"

After long thought James made up his mind. He would retire to his own cottage that Uncle Philemon Clegett had willed to him three years ago. He would tell the girls that he wanted a change of air and he would stay there until they got over this spell of wanting to marry him off. Why didn't they get married themselves? He wished young Jimmy, Helen's oldest boy, was down here; they could have one good time fishing and tramping around; Jimmie was still in college, but he would be home soon and perhaps they could camp out at the cottage. The good thing about the cottage was that there were no near neighbors, though the land on either side belonged to strangers.

The more James thought about his own cottage the more he yearned for its quiet refuge. He had not been there since last fall, but he would go this afternoon, right after the midday dinner.

If his sisters had any matrimonial plans for him, James thought they accepted his departure very gracefully. He promised to bring the car back again in the morning and ride his bicycle back to the cottage, for Jane could drive the car and he didn't need it anyway. So James drove away with the little machine packed with bedding, clothing for himself, two baskets of eatables, all his fishing tackle and a bundle of old magazines. Major, his hunting dog, accompanied him joyfully.

"I wouldn't have believed it of James," murmured Maria as the car disappeared from their view. "I never heard about those new houses until just before dinner—and women on either side! I heard one was a widow!"

In the middle of a glorious June afternoon James Clegett came in sight of his lonely paradise—paradise no more! On either side of the wee house of Uncle Philemon was a brand new bungalow, built close to the dividing line, painted white, and in each front yard was a woman planting flowers.

Morosely he got out of the car and opened the double gate and drove in. Both women glanced up with interest. He picked out the widow immediately. She was the plump one with light-blue eyes and faded yellow hair. She had taken no pains to conceal her interest in his arrival. The other one was younger with big soft brown eyes and bright brown hair; she had looked quickly away and disappeared around the corner of the house after their eyes had met.

"Good morning, neighbor," said the stout woman pleasantly. "Are you Mr. Clegett?"

James doffed his hat and managed a smile. "I am Mrs. Latham," she explained. "I was just telling Miss Wright, your little neighbor on the other side, that some one ought to come and take care of the fruit. There are some wild strawberries in the orchard grass that are too tempting!"

"Help yourself," said James stiffly, as he unlocked the house door and began to carry in his things.

"I'll make a shortcake and we will all have some," she exclaimed.

A month later James Clegett wheeled into the yard of his home in Middleboro and surprised his sisters at dinner. James looked sun-browned, handsome, and years younger than his thirty-nine. He was taking great pains with his clothes these days, and Maria looked at Jane and Jane looked at Fannie.

"Which one is it?" asked fearless Maria.

"The widow or the old maid?" put in Fannie.

"Her husband is there, too, and the other one is younger than I am and the smartest little thing—laugh, I knew you'd laugh or cry!" blurted James guiltily. "The very day I went out to the cottage I overheard you three saying: 'James must marry,' and now—"

"We didn't mean you, James," interrupted Jane sweetly. "We were talking about young James—our nephew, Jimmy Germaine!"

"Oh!" cried James blankly, then, blushing defiant: "Well, I'm going to be, too! It's little Miss Wright!"

"Oh, James, how nice, and what is her name—her given name?"

James blushed again, and looked remarkably young and handsome. "Cherry," he said softly.

And to the everlasting credit of his three sisters, not one of them smiled.

Don't Be Discouraged; Get the Forward Look

By KEMAL STRAIGHT

You, young man, who have lost your job. Are you permitting the little blue devils of despair to clutch your heart? STOP—just where you are. Those hopeless, depressing thoughts of loss and poverty are taking shape even as you think them, to pursue you relentlessly with further so-called "ill luck." Wipe them out quickly, by replacing them with thoughts of success and happiness.

Go find some quiet spot—get very still, very relaxed, very comfortable—and give a forward look. Paint it on the silver screen of your imagination just as you would like to live it.

See yourself filling just the sort of position you want. Look long and earnestly at the vision.

Then without worrying about where you are going to find this position or when you will realize it, go out and take what offers, sure in your mind that it will prove a stepping stone to the fulfillment of your desire.

Providing always that you look clearly before you and never waver, you must realize your ambition. It is the law. Whatever your picture is yours.

John Borg of Wall Street began his business career in a broker's office in 1899, at four dollars a week. He retired December, 1923, worth two million dollars. His advice is "Concentrate. Don't gamble. Stay with the business in hand."

Concentration is nothing more or less than making a picture of the thing you want and continuing to look at it.

If you do that you will have no difficulty in staying with the job. You won't WANT to do anything else.

You will find yourself bending every energy in the one direction. Opportunities will open before you, friends come to your assistance. Your ambition is your "Alladin's lamp"; as long as you keep it in sight you have power to draw to yourself whatever you desire.

You don't believe it? You ask, "How do I know Mr. Borg looked forward—wasn't just lucky?"

Because he could not have succeeded otherwise any more than Colonel Goethals could have built the Panama canal without a working plan.

Besides, Mr. Borg has tacitly admitted the forward look by graphically describing the plans he now cherishes. He sees himself enlarging his activities in various business connections, and improving his golf game.

You might as well try this looking-ahead business. It worked with Mr. Borg—why not with you?

Bengali a Musical Tongue

The speech of men is the ring of gold in which may shine the precious stone of thought; and there is no speech so attractive as Bengali, unless it be Spanish—"a language of caprice and orderliness." Tears came to my eyes when I heard the train porter say: "The parched tongue needs a cool drink or the voice of the beloved to slake its thirst."

Of course we Bengalis are tremendous talkers. But what a picturesque speech we utter! The best poet of India, as well as the best scientist, is a Bengali, and Jagadish Bose is as much of a poet (read his inaugural address before his institute) as Tagore is a scientist.

So when I am accused of being a talkative Bengali I am complimented, as I say to myself, "If you had such a tongue as mine you, too, would talk." —Dhan Gopal Mukerji, in the Atlantic Monthly.

Poetry in Byron's Time

The plain truth is that the romantics are very much less for workmanship (in our sense of the word) than either the critics or the anthologists will allow. Byron was, it is true, an imperfect artist. Most of his contemporaries were, in the same sense, imperfect artists. It was inevitable that they should be so. Literary art, for perhaps the first time in English history, had come to grips with society and was struggling with it. For perhaps the only time in English history the poets had undertaken the task of social reform which nowadays is the burden of the novel. How to move the great, shapeless mass of Europe by divine inspiration—that was their problem.—Howard Mumford Jones, in the Yale Review.

Pompeii Lives Again

The glories of ancient Pompeii were brought to life recently when the seven hundredth anniversary of the Royal University of Naples was celebrated. The ruins of the buried city were adorned with laurel wreaths and flowers, games similar to the old Olympic games were held in the amphitheater, and at sunset the "Carmen Saeculare"—a professional hymn composed by Horace—was sung by composed choirs.

WHY

Insects Are Able to Endure Intense Heat

Tolerance of heat to a most astonishing degree by insects that live in deserts is indicated by the results of researches published at London in the "Proceedings of the Royal Society," by P. A. Buxton. Observing insects in the deserts of Palestine, he found some species active and cheerful when the mid-summer sun raised the temperature of the sand to 140 degrees Fahrenheit. Temperatures of the insects themselves were also measured, and were found to be lower than might have been expected, due probably to evaporation of water—though how the insects get the water to replace evaporation losses still remains a question. Mr. Buxton also found that the color of the insects had considerable influence on the body temperature; dark specimens were frequently eight or ten degrees warmer than their lighter-colored brethren. One possible source, of water in the desert is suggested in the same research. The scanty plant growth in these regions has high powers of absorption through the leaves and stems, and can thus gather in much water from the dews that fall at night, even in the desert. Fragments of plant material with their absorbed water are eaten by the insects, which in turn become a source not only of food, but also of water for birds, lizards, and other animals.

Why Bad Eating Habits Have Stunted Growth

People of America have lost two inches in stature since the Civil war, according to Dr. John Harvey Kellogg, dietitian.

"Stunted growth is resulting from our modern 'eat and run' habits," Doctor Kellogg said. "The American public gives little or no thought to the proper consumption of food. Our modern business activities are so hurried and intense as to allow no consideration for the most important element of healthful living, the proper selection and careful mastication of food consumed."

"The stature of the American people has dropped two inches in the last sixty years, due to the modern American custom of bolting our food like pythons."

"Food is fuel to the body, and poor fuel means a deficient output of energy just as too much chokes the fire of health and retards normal development."

"A height in stature of over six feet prevailed in the early sixties. Today the average normal stature of the American people is much below six feet, a condition attributable to our modern quick lunch counters and hurried mode of living."

Why She Persevered

The Woman Who Sees spent the Fourth in one of the many nearby suburban towns where the powers that be had not ordained a safe and sane observance of the nation's birthday. In consequence there was an abundance of all kinds of crackers, torpedoes and even snappers. There was also in the family of the woman's friend a small girl aged five and rather timid. Time and again she essayed to light a small cracker, but courage failed; indeed she found it impossible to muster enough fortitude to hold even a sparkler when lighted. Finally the woman said: "But, my dear, why do you make the effort if you have so much fear? Let the others have the fun of the noise and the firing and you watch. To which the young patriot made answer: 'I would like to do that, but you know, I'm afraid if I do not fire off just a few George Washington won't like it.'—New York Sun.

Why Fence Was Valued

Did you ever have a fence? One that went all around your home and had a big gate at the front and a little gate always broken from your swinging on it? And did you ever pretend that everything inside the fence was your kingdom and that the neighbor's chickens and his cat were sneaking foreign thieves who would stoop even to stealing radishes out of your father's garden and your own cat's mice out of your woodshed?

There is something alluring about a house inclosed by a fence and something comfortable about living in that house. There is a sense of dominion which only a fence can give and also an attitude of dignity and restraint which apparently the world has lost.

For fences have gone out of style and now the neighbor's chickens board regularly on your father's garden patch, and the neighbor's cat and your cat pool the few mice they catch in your garage.—Exchange.

Why She Was Irritated

Phyllis—Yes, she was furious about the way her marriage was reported. Mary—Why, did it allude to her age? Phyllis—Indirectly. It stated that Miss Brown and Mr. Wallace were married, the latter being a well-known collector of antiques.

Why It Went On

Aunt Lucy—I saw Mr. Huggins kissing you for ten minutes while he was saying good night. Why didn't you make him stop?

Phyllis—Why, I never thought of that.

Why It Was Broken Off

Muriel—I hear you've broken off your engagement to Dick. Alice—Yes, he was becoming a nuisance—he wanted to get married!—London Mail.

Origin of Expression

"Skeleton in Closet"

"There is a skeleton in every house" is said to be an old saying taken from an Italian humorous story. But the expression "skeleton in the closet" has been popularized by an English story. A woman had an only son who obtained an appointment in India. One day the mother received a letter from her son with this strange request: "Pray, mother, get someone who has no cares and troubles to make me six shirts." The mother searched in vain for such a person. Finally she called upon a woman who invited her to go with her to a bedroom. The strange woman then opened a closet which contained a human skeleton. "Madam," she said, "I try to keep my trouble to myself, but every night my husband compels me to kiss that skeleton, who was once my husband's rival and whom he killed in a duel. Think you that I am happy?" The mother immediately wrote to her son and told him her experiences and the son replied: "I knew when I gave the commission that everyone had his cares, and you, mother, must have yours. Know then that I am condemned to be executed and can never return to England. Mother, mother! there is a skeleton in every house."—Pathfinder Magazine.

British Capital Once Site of Vast Forests

Large areas of the land on which the British metropolis stands once formed a great charcoal district from which practically the whole of the city's fuel came. Vast forests of oak, beech and ash trees covered these areas, which included Norwood—the Great North Wood—Croydon, Sydenham and Forest Hill. In those far-off days of the Fourteenth century coal was not allowed to be burned, as it was considered that the smoke was dangerous to health. It is not exactly easy to see how this could be so, for the smoke from charcoal burning is, to say the least of it, most unpleasant. One bishop, who had his palace at Croydon, was greatly annoyed by a charcoal burner, who lit his fire right under his lordship's windows, filling the palace with the fumes of the smoldering wood. The charcoal burner was regarded in those times as a sinister figure, and was often credited with being in league with witches and devils.

Betel Nut Mars Beauty

The country folk (of Java) themselves, conscious of their ornate setting, were dressed for the part. A group of those women, moving in a musical comedy, would give a theatrical manager complete assurance in the matter of his box office receipts.

They are so modest and polite that they never stare at a stranger; though with such figures, eyes and coloring, I doubt whether he would object greatly if they did. Their manners are perfect, except that most of them chew betel nut, and casually make railway platforms and footpaths distressing with red maculations.

It is shocking to see a beautiful woman laugh, when her opened mouth looks as though a savage blow had just seriously wounded it.—H. M. Tomlinson in Harper's Magazine.

Building Trades' God

Lupan is the name of the god which the members of the Peking building trades worship. Lu is the name of a kingdom, in the Chow dynasty (1122-220 B. C.), and Pan is the name of a skilled mechanic of that time. He is frequently mentioned in the classics as an inventor of mechanical devices. From him the guild of the building trade derives its name, says the Detroit News.

The guild includes carpenters, masons, bricklayers, blacksmiths and painters. The meeting always takes place in the Tsing-chung temple, outside Chienmen, which was erected for the worship of Yo Fel. The latter is the famous patriotic general of the Sung dynasty (960-1276 A. D.). It is not known why the building trades chooses this temple for its meeting place.

Brings Good and Bad Luck

There are numerous superstitions associated with the hearing of the cuckoo's first call. In the maritime Highlands and Hebrides, if the cuckoo is first heard by one who has not broken his fast, some misfortune is expected. Indeed, besides the danger, it is regarded a reproach to one to have heard the cuckoo while hungry. In France, to hear the cuckoo for the first time fasting is to make the hearer "an idle do nothing for the rest of the year," or "to numb his limbs" for the same period. There is a similar belief in certain parts of the west of England. In Northumberland one is told, if walking on a hard road when the cuckoo first calls, that the ensuing season will be full of calamity; to be on soft ground is a lucky omen.

Grease and Diamonds

In South Africa mines grease is an important aid in the extraction of diamonds. A table with a rifled top is smeared with about half an inch of grease. Concentrated ore is then passed over the table with the aid of running water. Garnet and olivine have no affinity for grease, but diamonds adhere to the greasy surface. The grease is later removed, heated, and run off, the diamonds being left in the vessel. They are then boiled in sulphuric acid, for cleansing purposes, and sorted.

Fields that Feed Us Are Plowed One Furrow at a Time.

When one sees the farmer and his faithful team plowing, little does he realize the food which feeds the world, is grown in fields that are turned over one furrow at a time.

The saving of One Dollar at a time with the regularity the farmer turns his furrows will start a money supply, which will feed opportunities' demand for cash.

"Rome Not Built in a Day"

This expression, in one form or other, is very old. It means that great things are not achieved without much patience and effort. Many centuries were required to make Rome the chief city of the world. The city was the accumulation of the products of knowledge, art and war for many generations. Claudianus, one of the last great poets of Rome, wrote this sentence: "What Roman power slowly built, an unnamed traitor instantly overthrew." Many other early writers make reference to the long years required to build Rome. The expression, "Rome was not built in a day," was published in a book of proverbs in 1562.—The Pathfinder.

THE PARABLE OF THE SOWER

LESSON TEXT—Mark 4:1-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—The sower soweth
the word.—Mark 4:14.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Garden of the Heart.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Good Soil for Good Seed.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR
TOPIC—How to Receive and Use God's Word.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT
TOPIC—How May I Improve the Soil
of My Heart?

The method of teaching by parables was not employed by Jesus until the rulers had set their hearts against Him. When, in the light of His wonderful works, they turned against Him and attributed His works to the Devil (Mark 3:22) He denounced them in scathing terms and began to teach them by parables in fulfillment of Isaiah 6:10. The parabolic method of teaching makes clear the truth to those who love it and conceals it from those who dislike it.

A great multitude gathered to Him
at the seaside (v. 1), so that, in order to escape the pressure of the crowd,
He was obliged to enter a boat. From the boat as a pulpit He taught many things in parables. In this parable the sower and the seed are the same in all instances, but the results are entirely different. The difference lies in the condition of the soil. The central purpose of the teaching of this parable is to show that the results of preaching
the Word depend upon the condition of the human heart.

1. The Wayside (vv. 4; 15).
The wayside means the track beaten down by the hoofs of animals and the feet of men. Because the soil was unbroken and uncultivated the seed
could not get beneath the surface, therefore was devoured by the fowls that came along (v. 4). The great truth taught here is that the heart unbroken and hard is not fit soil for the Gospel. Such a heart it penetrates not, but lies loosely upon the surface.
It is not recognized as God's means for restoring them unto Himself.
While in this condition the evil one finds some way to snatch away the truth. The fowls that devour the seed represent the agents of Satan (v. 15).

11. The Stony Ground (vv. 5, 6; 16, 17).
This means not stones mixed with soil, but stones with a thin layer of soil on them. With such conditions a seed springs up quickly and likewise scorches quickly, as it has not much depth. The great lesson is that hearts superficially impressed receive the Word with joy, but when affliction or persecution arises for the Word's sake, immediately they are offended. They wither away and die.

14. The Thorny Ground (vv. 7; 18, 19).
In this case the ground is good, but has thorns in it. It is mellow enough and has sufficient depth, but has not been cleared of the thorns. Such really hear the Word, but "the cares of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, and the lusts of other things entering in, choke the Word, and it becometh unfruitful" (v. 19). The thorny ground hearers of this age are those:

1. Who are so immersed in worldliness, business and anxious cares that the good seed cannot mature.

2. Who are rich. Anxious care in business brings riches and the effect of riches is to blunt the spiritual perception of men and women, thereby rendering them unsuceptible to the call of God, to higher things in life.

3. Who are running after the pleasures of life. All these things choke the Word. Many of the enjoyments of the world may be innocent in themselves, but they attract so much attention and consume so much energy and time that one has not time for Bible reading, meditation and prayer.

IV. The Good Ground (vv. 8; 20).
This ground differs from all the rest.
It is soft and mellow, deep and moist;
therefore, is capable of bringing forth fruit, some an hundred, some sixty and some thirty-fold, indicating different degrees of fruitfulness even of the good ground. In the measure that the heart is kept free from worldliness, riches and pleasure, the good seed matures.

Blaming Nature

You fall into the very common mistake of charging upon nature matters with which she has not the smallest connection, and for which she is in no way responsible. Men talk of nature as an abstract thing, and lose sight of what is natural while they do so.—Dickens.

Opportunity; Responsibility

If God writes "opportunity" on one side of open doors, He writes "responsibility" on the other side.—J. T.

My Denomination—Its Organization and Aims

1 Corinthians 12:1-13

In the writings of Paul the apostle,
we are taught that there is one body,
the Church, and one Spirit permeating that body, even the Holy Spirit of God. Our present Scripture reading in 1 Corinthians 12 instructs us concerning that Spirit in His relation to the one body, the Church. According to verse 13 we are made members of that one body by the power of the Holy Spirit. In other words, no one can become a member of the body of Christ, the true Church of God, unless he is baptized of the Spirit. This baptism is not water baptism of any form; it is that act of the Holy Spirit
by which a believer in Christ is made a member of the body of Christ. It has to do with the position of a believer rather than with power for service. All that Christ died and rose again to secure is made available to us by this baptism. Henceforth we are "in Christ Jesus" who is made unto us wisdom, righteousness, sanctification and redemption (1 Cor. 1:30).
A great inheritance is entered into and the law of appropriation comes into operation—"Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto you."

The gifts of the Spirit are also displayed in this same Scripture lesson.
It is the evident purpose of God to bestow upon the members of the body of Christ some spiritual gift so that each member may perform his proper function and the whole body be built up. In the bestowment of these gifts the Holy Spirit is sovereign. In the words of verse 11 He gives to every man as He will. He knows what manifestation or gift is best and acts accordingly.

In the church we are dependent upon the Holy Spirit for effectual service, spiritual knowledge, wisdom, discernment and power. He dwells within every true believer and imparts gifts and grace for Christian service and holy living. As we gather together in the name of our divine Lord, not in the name of any man or any denomination, the Holy Spirit is present to unfold the things of Christ to our hearts and to lead the people of God in their praise and worship.

Eye Trouble? Try Camphor Mixture

For eye trouble there is nothing better than camphor, hydrastis, witch-hazel, etc., as mixed in Lavopuk eye wash. One business man says it relieves aching eyes and improves sight.
Another man with red, watery eyes reports that Lavopuk helped wonderfully. One small bottle usually relieves ANY CASE weak, strained or sore eyes. Robert S. McKinney, Druggist.

Goths a Divided Race

The Goths were a warlike race which at one time inhabited the country in the vicinity of the Baltic, and afterward moved toward the Black sea and the lower Danube where, about 250 B. C., it divided into two branches.
Those that remained in the eastern part of the Roman empire were termed western (Visi) Goths, says the Kansas City Times. The Ostrogoths, after ravaging eastern Europe, established under Theodoric a kingdom in Italy which lasted from 493 to 554 A. D., when the country was recovered by Narses and annexed to the eastern empire. The Visigoths, after various successes against the Romans, sacked Rome under Alaric in 410. They afterward settled in Spain and founded a kingdom that lasted until that country was conquered by the Saracens.

Gibbet Superseded Cross

Crucifixion as a method of punishing criminals remained in force throughout the Roman empire until the early part of the Fourth century. The death by the cross was abolished by the Emperor Constantine and was replaced by the gibbet, which continued as a means of execution until comparatively recent times. It figures frequently in the history of England. It was also used as an instrument of punishment in the British colonies and was so employed in the island of Newfoundland, where there are several "Gibbet Hills," marking the site of hangings.

Bird Thrives in America

The Chinese starling, or crested mynah, perhaps the largest and most beautiful of the widespread starling family, has obtained a firm foothold about Vancouver, B. C. The certainty that this Oriental visitor will extend its range has caused considerable anxiety along the Pacific coast for,
like all starlings, it has a reputation for raiding fruit orchards. The bird now has a radius of about fifty miles about the Vancouver waterfront. It is advancing in all directions about a mile a year, according to local bird students. An individual specimen has been noted as far south as Portland, but it is not certain that this was not an escaped cage bird. This starling is about the size of a robin, with a yellowish white bill overhung by a fan-like crest. Its glossy black plumage is in striking contrast with a large, white marginal wing patch. It makes a good pet but in the wild state it is a marauder, and steals the eggs and nests of other birds.

HOW

SEA ANEMONES DO THEIR WORK UNDER THE SEA.

At first glance the sea anemones are more flower-like than animal-like. These delicate, richly colored organisms with their numerous tentacles have received names derived from flowers; sea anemones, passion-flower anemones, crimson anemones, etc., are names which charac-terize their outer appearance correctly, for they change the naked rocks of the shore to floral beds. But, says Nature Magazine of Washington, the life of these animals is in no way flower-like. They are very voracious, catching young fish,
worms, crayfish, snails, etc.,
which are often much larger than themselves. They have peculiar protective ability in their tentacles, which also serve to daze their prey.

These are stinging organs.
tiny, microscopical, bottle-shaped glands filled with a burning alkaline fluid. When touched, hollow coiled threads suddenly project, dart toward the touching object with their tiny hooks, and press out the fluid of the capsule, which then enters the wound. Such stinging glands are very numerous on each ten-tacle; in fact, thousands being located in one.

Sea anemones which have congregated in groups, and live in colonies and have excreted
a more or less hard skeleton.
whose branches have become cal-careous, are corals. Every coral branch or colony had its beginning in one individual which happened to attach itself to that particular place and grew up in the shape of a tiny sea anemone.

Upon the under surface of the cylindrical body the animal secretes calcareous plates which join it intimately to its support.
Then the calcareous plates grow upward radially, and the outer side of the animal is bounded by a skeleton of lime which grows higher and higher, drawing the polyp before it.

Thus it happens that at the branches of a coral colony often thousands of animals continue to build upwards, while the lower animals have long since died. In this way these delicate little animals build mighty reefs and many tropical islands are built up by unceasing and untiring work.

How Cotton Is Treated to Prevent Shrinkage

Mercerization is the process of treating cotton under tension in a caustic-soda solution, thus preventing its shrinkage and so giving it gloss. The yarn, after being washed and dried,
is put into the caustic soda for about fifteen minutes. Then it is stretched back to its original size, and possibly again put through the caustic-soda solution under tension. While still being stretched it is washed in water containing a chemical; in most cases sulphuric acid. This chemical coun-teracts any harmful effect which the caustic soda might have on the cloth and keeps it from stretching, says the Detroit News.

Usually the material is bleached after the mercerizing, though the order of the processes may be reversed.
Finally it is dyed, singed and calendered. The yarns may be gassed before they are mercerized, so that ends of the fibers are burned off. Calen-dering, on the other hand, is merely passing the material under rollers, engraved with fine lines, which so press
the threads of the cloth that it reflects the light and has high luster.

How Magic Lures Fish

Joseph Hand has broken all hand-line fishing records on the New Jersey coast. While fishing in Cold Springs Inlet Hand, who is known in fishing circles as the Harbor Pike, caught more than 1,000 pounds of weakfish, for which he received $200 in the local market, says a Cape May dispatch to the New York Times.

Hand said that he had been offered a big sum by a syndicate to divulge what bait he uses to make the fish rise to his lines while other fishermen within a stone's throw of his boat get never a nibble.

Hand said that he could not be tempted to sell his secret. It was told to him, he explained, by an old Indian chief who passed through this city some time ago with a medicine company.

How Water Cuts Stone

As closely as mathematicians can measure it, 150,000 cubic feet of water goes over Niagara falls each second.
Of this amount only 5 per cent goes over the American falls. The great volume going over the Horseshoe falls or the Canadian falls is rapidly eroding a kind of gulf or throat which is drawing more and more water from both sides of the Horseshoe, and before many years, it is feared, will eat a huge "V" into the limestone. Conservation experts are studying the situation which may have grave consequences.

The Work of Samuel M. Kier

WELLS sunk for brine to supply the salt works were troubled with what the owners called "odd, mysterious grease". Samuel M. Kier a Pittsburgh druggist, conceived the idea of saving the "grease", and in 1846 he bottled it as a medicine. He believed absolutely in the greenish fluid, at first as a medicine and later on as an illuminant. The Oil was sold at fifty cents a half-pint.
About 1848 Kier experimented with it for light, racking his brains for some means to get rid of the offensive smoke and odor. To be entirely successful, the Oil must have some other than its crude form. A Philadelphia chemist advised distillation, but Kier's first attempt was not very successful. Slight changes in the camphene lamp enabled him to burn the distilled Oil without smoke. Further improvements, especially the "Virna Burner", as well as in the quality of the fluid, brought "Carbon Oil" as it was usually termed nearer perfection. "Carbon Oil" sold readily for a dollar-fifty per gallon, and provided a market for all that the neighboring salt wells could produce. The dawn of a new day was breaking.

Fifty cents a half-pint crude—and later on a dollar-fifty a gallon refined! The imperfect "Carbon Oil" of seventy-five years ago cost practically seven times as much as the highly perfected Red C Oil and White C Oil, same except in color, that you can obtain so conveniently today! But if The Red C Oil and The White C Oil cost that old-time, sky-high figure of a dollar-fifty a gallon, we could give you

TANEYTOWN LOCALS

Items of news from town, or vicinity are always wanted for this column. Especially accidents, sales of real estate, fires, important happenings, visits to or from the community social events, and all matters of general interest to those at home, and away from home.

Miss Mary Erb visited her mother, Mrs. Erb, near Pleasant Valley, on Sunday.

Oak Grove School will hold a social on their school grounds, Wednesday, October 29th. (See ad.)

Miss Nellie Selby is visiting at Uniontown, and attending the Eldership which is being held at that place.

We suggest to our local readers, that they read the short letter from Rev. D. Frank Garland, on the first page of this issue.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Kreeger and son and Miss Lillian Dunkleberger, all of Middleburg, Pa., were visitors at the Lutheran Parsonage, on Monday.

Mrs. Jos. A. Goulden and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Blanchard, have returned to their home in New York, after an extended visit to their country home, "Glenburn."

Misses Celia and Millie Brown, returned home Monday evening, after spending several weeks in Waynesboro, Greencastle, Hagerstown and Shippensburg.

Frank Crouse and wife, and Mrs. Jesse Myers and daughter, spent Sunday afternoon at Pleasant Valley, and visited the old home place where Mrs. Myers used to reside.

Rev. Martin Schweitzer, of Ephrata Pa., Rev. K. O. Spessard and wife, of Annville, Pa., and Rev. Murray E. Ness, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Koons, this week.

Mrs. Milton Ohler sent a sweet potato to our office, the shoot to which grew through the broken off neck of a small bottle, and formed a perfect potato about five inches long.

Last week, we again ran short of extra copies of The Record, due to the special demand because of two death notices. Some were disappointed who depend on buying single copies.

Rev. I. M. Lau has resigned as pastor of the Lutheran Church, at Catawissa, Pa., to accept a call to West Chester, Pa. Rev. Lau was formerly pastor of St. John's Church, near Littlestown.

George Stover, wife and son, Ernest, Mrs. Emory Cleveland and daughter, Mildred, and sons John and Ray, all of Gettysburg, Pa., spent Sunday last with W. D. Ohler and family.

Mrs. Jacob D. Nul, Mrs. Margaret Nulton and Miss Mary Hesson, attended the Woman's Missionary Society convention, Lutheran Synod of Maryland, at Martinsburg, W. Va., this week.

A number of our town folks attended the public sale of the property of the late Joseph Englar, at Linwood, on Monday. They report that good prices generally prevailed, especially for the household goods.

Sterling Nusbaum, has commenced the building of a new house, beside that of his father, in the East End extension. He has had his bee colony on the lot for quite a while. This makes the third new home in that section, this Fall.

Monocacy Lodge A. F. & A. M., held a largely attended Banquet and Social, on Monday night; the Knights of Pythias held one on Tuesday night, and the P. O. S. of A., followed with a special meeting and refreshments, on Thursday night.

The Sunday School Bible Classes of Taneytown should have a prominent part in the Big Rally and Parade in Westminster, on Sunday, Oct. 26. What is being done about it? Every School in town should get busy, and be largely represented.

The Emmitsburg High School has just issued the October number of their school paper, "The Tattler," the work being done at this office. The paper is a very creditable and entertaining first issue, and the "copy" as it came into our hands, was the best prepared of the kind that we have ever handled—handsomely written, carefully punctuated, and generally fit.

Mr. and Mrs. James Welty, entertained, at their home, on Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. James Shorb, Mr. and Mrs. John Sauble, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Eckard, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Welty, Mr. and Mrs. Tolbert Shorb, Mrs. Claude Biddinger, Mr. and Mrs. William Welty, Evelyn and Mable Biddinger, Mary, Oneida, Helen and Viola Welty, Ethel Shorb, Catherine Welty, Earl Wolf, Ralph Eckard, James and Howard Welty.

Nineteen persons went from here on the excursion to Niagara Falls, last Saturday evening.

Rev. W. C. Wachter has been returned by the U. B. Conference, to the Manchester Charge.

Miss Margaret Hedge, of Walkersville, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Ohler.

Mrs. Geo. J. Stricker, of Baltimore, is spending the week with her daughter, Mrs. Bernard J. Arnold.

John L. Zimmerman, Miss Esther Hilterbrick and Mrs. Walter Hilterbrick, at Frederick Hospital, are reported to be getting along as well as could be expected.

Information about the new school building seems to be lacking. In the meantime, our school patrons are wondering how they stand with an old school building condemned as unsafe by three contractors. What is the answer?

All ladies who signed to have the order of Pythian Sisters founded, together with those interested in the cause, are asked to meet with the members of the K. of P. Lodge on Tuesday, Oct. 21, at the Lodge Hall, at 8:00 P. M.

Rev. Milton Valentine, D. D. and wife, of Gettysburg; Mrs. Edgar Miller, of Philadelphia, and Frank Cunningham and wife, of Washington, were guests at the home of Mrs. Margaret Stott, last Sunday. Mrs. Woodward, of Washington, is visiting the same home, this week.

(For the Record.) Mr. and Mrs. Frank King, Mr. and Mrs. Norman King and family, Mr. and Mrs. Birnie Ohler, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Rifle and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Cleason Plunkert and son; Mr. and Mrs. James Rodgers, Miss Viola Bowers, Edward Fraley and Wm. Koontz, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John M. Staley and family.

"Long Live the King." Don't forget this movie on Tuesday, Oct. 21, for the benefit of Taneytown Public Library. This story by Mary Roberts Rinehart surpasses everything she has written, and Jackie Coogan, the boy prince of the film has come into his own in "Long Live the King." Performance begins at 7 o'clock, and there will be two shows, as usual.

At a recent session of the Pa. Conference of the U. B. Church, Rev. T. D. Ritter was returned to the Taneytown charge. On Thursday evening of this week, a large number of the members of the church in this place gathered at the parsonage to show their appreciation of his return for the second year. The evening was pleasantly spent in social conversation and song. Refreshments were served and a fine lot of good things left for the pastor and his family. At 9:30 they left wishing their pastor a pleasant and profitable year.

"Statements."

Many persons dislike receiving a "statement" of an account coming due, or past due, even when the sending out of statements is a monthly, or quarterly, part of a system of transacting a business. On Oct. 1, this office received a bill, and a statement for the bill; the bill being dated Sept. 30, and the statement Oct. 1. This clearly demonstrated the rule in force by the firm, to send a statement of all outstanding accounts on the first day of each month. It was not a "dun"—merely a business rule.

There is no justification in being offended, at any time, by "statements" whether sent as a formality, or when meant as an invitation to "pay up"; and very frequently the customer who becomes so offended, is not the most reliable sort of customer to extend credit to, because he is apt to consider only his own convenience, and not that of the person, or firm, to which he is indebted.

Men fail to realize that the giving of credit is in itself a favor and it is therefore not properly an act to be resented, when attention is called to a credit account.

Manufacturers and wholesalers meet occasions when they are willing to make special offers in order to meet their own financial necessities; and the small dealer, in his desire to buy, at a low price, in order that he can in turn sell at a low price, is induced to accept these offers, hoping to meet the bills by making collections.

Another likely occasion for the sending of special urgent statements, is a dull business season, the continuation of regular overhead expenses, and the falling due of bills contracted before the opening of the business season. Merchants must take care of their buying credit, whether their own customers take care of theirs, or not; hence, their effort to collect, in order that they may pay bills.

Those who receive "statements," instead of becoming offended, should consider the credit favor received, and return the favor by finding the cash with which to "pay up" even if necessary to borrow it at a bank. Merchants must frequently do this in order to meet their bills, thereby in effect paying interest that their own debtors properly ought to pay.

3 Slate Land Farms for Sale.

CARROLL RECORD.

Parent-Teachers' Meeting.

A musical programme consisting of choruses, vocal and violin solos will be rendered at the Parent-Teachers' Meeting, on Friday evening, Oct. 17, at 8:00 o'clock.

The Glee Clubs, under the direction of Miss Dorothy Robb, will make their first appearance at this meeting and Miss Robb will sing several solos assisted by Miss Janet Crebs and Prof. Royer.

Prof. Royer, director of high school orchestras in this county, will render the following violin solos, "Souvenir" and "Carry me back to Old Virginia." The literary part of the program will consist of a recitation by Miss Ethel Sauble and a reading by Franklin Fair.

Following are the members of the Glee Clubs: "Boys' Glee Club: Merle Conover, Franklin Fair, Herman Koutz, David Hess, Ralph Baumgardner, Earle Brown, James Burke, Donald Sentz, Ralph Yealy, Clifton Zepp, James Baumgardner, Jack Bower, Delmont Koontz, Alfred Hilterbridge, Ray Shriner, Guy Stager, Robert Baumgardner and Ezra Stuller.

Girls' Glee Club: Louise Chenoweth, Margaret Crouse, Janet Crebs, Vada Smith, Ethel Sauble, Gladys Baker, Helen Koop, Mary Shriner, Ida Edwards, Dorothy Spangler, Thelma Hahn, Virginia Ott, Eleanor Shoemaker, Mary Alice Chenoweth, Isabel Eckenrode, Marianna Sell, Alice Stager, Leah Katherine Reindollar, Elizabeth Wilt, Marion Myers, Frances Delaplane, Mary Baumgardner, Ethel Ohler, Dorothy Wilhide, Annie Lutz and Helen Feeser.

The subject for discussion will be as follows:

"What Steps can be taken to make the new School Building a Reality?"

Home-made candy will be on sale by the Domestic Science Department. All patrons and others interested in the school are requested to make an effort to be present at the meeting.

After all, the Baltimore shot tower has been saved to the city, and the sentimentalists are pleased. A little matter of $2000. remains to be collected on the cost price, but it will be found. All in all, Baltimore as a whole was not excited over the "saving"—most of the citizens not caring anything about it.
