TANEYTOWN MAY LOSE HIGH SCHOOL

Must Have New Building, or Lose High School Grades

The following article on the Taneytown High School situation, has been handed us for publication by one who is fully acquainted with the facts stated, and we recommend their careful reading and consideration;

"On Monday afternoon of this week Dr. Samuel M. North, State Supervisor of High Schools, accompanied by Superintendent Unger, made his annual visit to the school at Taneytown.

After his inspection was completed, Dr. North announced that under no circumstances would he recommend the continuance of a four-year high school at Taneytown, unless by the opening of school next September, adequate room is provided for the operation of the school.

This announcement from Dr. North creates an emergency in the school situation here. Our high school at present is a first group, state aid, four year high school. An appropriation of about $2500. is made annually by the State Board of Education toward the operating expenses of the school. After this year, no appropriation will come from the State. The local high school will drop from first group rating to third; that is, at best, the high school will give only two years of in-struction instead of four. Pupils then who desire to complete the high school course, will be compelled to go to Westminster, Union Bridge, or New Windsor. In response to an inquiry, Mr. Unger stated that no Carroll County pupils can be received at Em-

In view of Dr. North's announcement, Mr. Unger stated that on account of the situation at Taneytown; namely, that the building in which the school is operated is condemned and cannot be used after the first of March 1925, and because there is not sufficient land at the present school plant even to erect any more portable buildings, no high school at Taney-town can be expected after this year unless the new building is erected. At best, only two rooms in the old building are safe, namely the addition that was erected about eight years ago. These, together with the portable building of one room, making three rooms available for school work next citizens and school patrons are not willing for this situation to arise. The committee has therefore arranged for a meeting of patrons and citizens generally for Monday evening, October 27th., at 7:30 o'clock in the Firemen's Hall, at Taneytown, to take immediate and decided action, to secure for this community proper school facilities.

Under the law, Mr. Unger, stated, he is compelled to provide rooms for the elementary school first, before he can make provisions for a high school. Pupils of the first six grades will red. Pupils of the first six grades will need the three rooms at present available for next year, so that unless the new even the seventh grade. In a word, their face value to collectors. as the situation now stands, unless the will probably drop five grades in rank sixth grade, will either have to stop school, or else continue their education elsewhere.

This matter concerns all, high school patrons, elementary school patrons, and people of the community. A vital question is before the community, namely this. Shall the County Commissioners and the rest of Carroll County be allowed to ignore the proper and reasonable needs of Taneytown District for adequate school facilities and an adequate school building? Come to the meet-

This is the situation, expressed in plain words. We prefer not to comment on it at this time, except to urge a large attendance of school patrons at the meeting on Monday night, and to say that no combination of circumstances-whether political, or merely contentious-should be allowed to penalize the students of so large a community as Taneytown district, who are not to blame either for the inadequency of the present school building, or for its unsafe condition.

Last July, according to the understanding of the School Board, the Commissioners agreed to furnish not to exceed $50,000 for a Taneytown building, providing Taneytown would finance the new site required, which was promptly done by the town. Since then, some changes were made in the plans for the building, and a contract price secured for its construction at $45,600, not including heat plant and other furnishings that are estimated to cost about $6,000, or nearly approaching the $50,000 mark.

It is now claimed by the Commissioners, we understand, that no $50,-000 offer was made, and the whole matter is apparently tied-up, and nothing in prospect, notwithstanding that the situation represents an emergency that cannot be ignored by our county officials, without direct injus-

Do Not Feed Garbage to Hogs.

Hog Cholera in Carroll is almost unknown. The report from Dr. Atherton for first nine months of this year, shows a total of five outbreaks in the county against eight last year and three the year before. The outbreak this year could all have been avoided if hog feeders would only put into practice the suggestion published from time to time, which are always alike, however, and that is, do not feed garbage, especially when it contains pork scraps.

Carroll is the largest producer of pork in the state yet we are third place; two counties have had no cholera, Garrett and Calvert, while Allegany had three. Our neighbor, Frederick, had the greatest number of outbreaks totaling 62.

Do not feed garbage. If you have or know of sick hogs notify the County Agent at once. Stay away from your neighbors sick hogs.

Civil War Bible Returned.

A thumbed Bible, worn from constant usage, taken from the apparently dead body of a Union soldier on the battlefield at Gettysburg in 1863 by a Confederate soldier from Texas, was returned Friday to the daughter of the "Boy in Blue," who was severely wounded during the struggle.

REGISTRATION IN CARROLL.

The Parties Very Evenly Divided in their Totals.

The Westminster Advocate, last week, gave a very complete table showing the registration in Carroll County, which we take the liberty of using in part, by showing only the line-up between those who have declared their party affiliation. In addition to the figures for Democrats and Republicans, there are 39 prohibitionists, 5 progressives, 97 who declined to affiliate, and 159 who announce themselves independents. The main party line-up is as follows;

	Dem.	Rep

Farm Labor Supply Easier, but Wage Trend Slightly Higher.

The average wages in Maryland for labor hired by the month were reported by farmers to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. States Department of Agriculture, on D. C. October 1, 1924, at $33.25 with board and $49.90 without board. By the day, including pieceworkers, with board, $2.05, and without board $2.75. On the wholse these are slightly higher wage figures than were reported on July 1, and are about 2 percent above what was being paid in October, 1923, according to farmers' reports.

The supply of labor on October 1 was reported at 78 percent of a normal and the demand 92 percent of a normal, making the potential supply about 85 percent of a normal, same as on September 1. On October 1 a year ago the potential supply was given at 71 percent. indicating an easier farm labor situation at the present time. Public works and industry at higher wages continue to hold labor away from the farms, farmers sav.

Public Interest in Radio.

The value of the radio business is nearly twice as great as that of the carpet and rug business. For every dollare spent on furniture, 33 cents is spent on radio. For every dollar spent on boots and shoes, 25 cents is spent on radio. For every dollar spent in musical instruments—pianos, organs, band and orchestra, phonographs and even the lowly harmonica -75 cents is spent on the radio. The value of the radio business is threefourths of the jewelry business with its clocks, watches and novelties. Radio is not a fad but a utility.

For this reason the public is vitally interested in constructive policies both The semi-annual all day meeting of | national and international, which encourage the universal use of radio communication.

Argument for Higher Pay.

As a plea for increased wages on the part of railroad employees, presented before the U.S. Railroad Lab or Board at Chicago, this week, silk clothing for the family of employees was part of the argument. An average of $2000. a year wages was urged, starting that at present wages the ability of women in the family to purchase silk clothing was limited to "a silk dress in about every 100 years, a silk skirt in every years, and only three pairs of silk stockings in five years.'

The argument even included the "movies," it being stated that on a $1200. income one member of a family could visit a ten cent show about twenty times a year, or a whole famlily four times a year.

PRIZES GIVEN TO SCHOOL CHILDREN.

For Best Essay on the Reduction of Accidents on Highways.

In order to interest school children in the question of safety on the high-ways, and in the reduction of the number of accidents and fatalities on our streets and highways, the National Highway Education Board, Willard Building, Washington, offers more than $6,500 in cash prizes and medals to elementary school teachers, and elementary pupils who submit the best essays on the subject.

All pupils of the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades are eligible to and eighth grades are eligible to compete, whether attending public, private or parochial schools. Four hundred and eighty-eight checks and as many medals will be given for the best state essays, while three national prizes will be awarded for the three ersays, whosen as the best of all three essays chosen as the best of all those to be written throughout the nation. The first national prize is a gold watch and a trip to Washington, with all expenses paid. The second and third state prizes are gold watches of relative values.

All state and national prizes in the pupils contest are given by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, which has incorporated in its safety program a plank calling for safety education in the schools. In addition to the prizes and medals for pupils, this organization offers to the teacher writing the best practical safety lesson a check for $500 and a trip to Washington. ## Now She Can Hear?

A little four-year-old who was brought recently, to one of the child health conferences held by the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, will have every reason to look back upon it as a red letter occasion. She watched the other children with keen, brighteyed interest, but when her turn came to be weighed and examined, she apparently paid no attention to her mother's "Come on, Honey, the doc-tor is ready for you, now." But when her mother took hold of her hand, she turned smilingly and took her place ginia. in front of the doctor. When the examination was finished, the words "deaf, due possibly to bad tonsils and adenoids," stood out on the record

A few days later, following the advice of the doctor, the mother and the little girl went to see a throat and ear specialist. Then there was a brief stay at a hospital, where bad tonsils were removed, and along with them a mass of adenoids that were pressing closely against the ear, and that were responsible for the "bad hearing." Now, she is running around again, and with a good hearing as any of her little playmates

Child health conferences where babies and their older sisters and brothers are given a careful physical examination, and where mothers are taught how to keep their children well are held regularly each month, twenty-nine centers in twelve of the twenty-three counties of the state. Since the first of June, over children under seven years old have been brought to these conferences for a thorough going-over. If medical or surgical treatments were required, the mother was referred to her own physician.

Since it has been shown that children who are kept under medical supervision have fewer illnesses and are healthier than those who see the doctor only when they are acutely ill, the Bureau of Child Hygiene advises mothers who are interested in keeping their children well, to take them regularly, to their own doctor or to the nearest child Health conference for such supervision and advice. The following intervals are suggested: Children under one year-once a

With this week, the Presidential campaign practically ends, the probability being that a very small percentage of voters remains to be converted by speech-making, though there will be, of course, another full week of fervid oratory, and likely some "eleventh hour" bombs hurled, and perhaps some "inside" made. As the election draws near, it is becoming more and more noticable that both the Republican and Democratic campaigns lack the old-time leadership and "pep." The death of Congressman Mudd, who would have been a member of land one of the states in which the in case the election of President goes to the House, is important as an item of the possible political muddle caused by three strong candidates, and no clear election by electoral votes.

Last week, in a National-Political note, The Record said there was little possibility of the election of President getting into the Senate, but in case of no regular election, the result would almost surely be settled in the House. This seems to be the conclusion of some leaders, but it is difficult to see—unless La Follette can control some present state delegations, already elected, in addition to his own state, and would cast them for Davis.

As we last week stated, also, the state delegations now stand as fol- in an orderly manner. lows; Republican 23 (including La Follette's state, Wisconsin) Democratic 20, and 5 states tied, and voting would be by present state delegations.

It would seem that the framers of the Constitution forgot the possibilty of tie state delegations: at any rate, it provides "a majority of all ance with the same, world-wide markthe states shall be necessary to a choice," and the tied states are part for American farm and manufacturof "all the states." Therefore, in order for Coolidge to get 25 states (not counting Wisconsin) he would need 3 more, and Davis would need 5 more than each now have, if we eliminate the votes of the tied states from "all the states."

Even should the Mudd district be represented by a Democrat, this would increase the Davis vote to 21, or 1 Follette cast Wisconsin for Davis that would give him 22, or like Coolidge, 3 votes short. Where would these 3 come from, for either of the candidates?

Secretary of State Hughes seems to be correct in stating the election by the House would be impossible, and ticeable. Perhaps, he is waiting for that it is the La Follette plan to the satisfaction of saying "I told you | throw the election into the Senate, of so," or would feel embarrassed be- which possibility Secretary Hughes

Visionary Schemes.

The presidential election is but a short time away.

The usual appeals have been made to the farmer and laboring man in order to secure their votes by proposing various measures purporting to be in their special interest.

After all the political promises have been made and after all the supplies of political mud have been "slung", one fact stands out remarkably clear-business conditions in this country are returning to normal

With our house set to rights at home and with such a prospect for future activity abroad, it would seem like the height of folly for a country such as ours to jeopardize its chances for prosperity, by the adoption of radical policies of any kind.

Political promises for class favoritism and visionary schemes, will not votes short of the 25. And should La | make a market for the farmers' crops nor will they give the workingman steady employment at good wages. It makes no difference what party makes such promises, they cannot, in the long run, be carried out.

Pertinent Questions Regarding Schools

The opening of schools brings directly to the attention of citizens the importance and significance of our public schools.

Education is so vital to the life of the community that every citizen institution. He may well ask himself the following questions:

1. What do I know about the public schools in my town?

2. What kind of education is being given the children? Are the pupils fitted to become honest, law-abiding, self-supporting, patriotic citizens, loving the flag and believing in constitutional government?

3. Are the children taught to think, to reason, to aspire, to idealize, to last year averaged nearly forty a day | treated simply as elastic containers

4. Have we the right kind of principals and teachers? Are they persons of character, personality, optimism, enthusiasm? Are they up-todate educationally or are they still using the pedagogical methods of ten years ago? Do the children like them? Are they the kind of people I would take into my home? Would I be willing for the men teachers to join my lodge?

5. What do I know about the text books used?

6. What do I know about the school trustees? Are they the kind of persons I would trust in a business transaction? Are they real executives, or cheap politicians, or representatives

7. What do I know about the school buildings? Are they fire-proof, sanitary, well-equipped, and adequate to properly care for the school population, or is my town afflicted with that modern abomination, the half-day ses-

8. Do I kick about the cost of education? Have I any reasonable understanding of what I am talking til an awakening comes; and judicial about when I sneer at "educational

Don't Be Touchy.

As a general rule your neighbors are not out to hurt your feelings or to "get you riled." Most of the hurt feelings in the world are due to imagination; Most of our anger and irritation is due to putting the wrong kind of construction on words and acts which do not exist. Don't walk around with a chip on your shoulder and don't always be looking for a double-meaning that is said to you.

You'll be so much happier if you get it into your head that nobody is going to deliberately stick pins into you, nor insult you, nor make fun of you merely for the pleasure and entertainment they can get out of it. You know that you are very careful not to say things to hurt the feelings of others, so be broad-minded enough to believe that others are just like yourself in this respect—that they, too, don't want to make anyone feel badly when there is no occasion

Don't be touchy. You can't make friends if you are, and, what's worse, you can't very long keep the ones you have.—Ellicott City Times.

Safety Instruction Reduces Number of Accidents.

Thirty-six fewer persons were killed by vehicles in New York City during the first eight months of 1924 than for the same period in 1923. This is attributed to safety instruction in the schools. Essays, debates, singing safety songs, drawing posters, and the composition of safety slogans constitute some of the safety activities in the public schools. A safety banner will be awarded to the winning school in each district for the best safety work performed during the school year ending in June, 1925.

In Shadow of Pyrenees

San Sebastian, Spain, is one of nature's beauty spots. It is sheltered by two mountains which rise up abruptly behind the little town, with its quaint little harbor. Fresh and clean like a well-tended child, the town gathers round the narrow beach, with the Isia Santa Clara straight across the harbor entrance, a refuge from the boisterous Biscay. The promenade is fringed with young trees, whose foliage is soft as swan's down. The air is mild, soft as the fresh water so delightful for a shave. San Sebastian may not be Spain, though it has its Plaza de Toro, but it is a very pleasant port of entry.

More Early Risers

A young couple who had just begun to keep house were not financially able to buy a clock; they determined the hour for rising in winter by watching for a light in the window of a neighboring farmhouse. One night on waking and seeing the light, they rose, did the morning chores and ate their breakfast. Still daylight held off, and so they sat down to wait. To their astonishment, while they were looking out of the window, they saw the light in the neighboring farmhouse go out. Their neighbors were just going to bed!-Youth's Companion.

POULTRY LICE AND MITES ARE HARMFUL

Poultry lice and mites are found wherever poultry is raised and they retard growth and development as well as egg production.

There are several species of lice and they are referred to in respect to the place they are found on the fowls as head lice, tail lice, body lice and so on. They are very active, and, while they do not suck blood, they live on the plumage and scales of the skin and do not spend much of their life off the chicken's body. Their mouth parts are biting and their food consists of the feathers and scales of the skin on which they live. They are pale in color and the eggs or nits are usually found around the vent feathers of the

It takes a week for the eggs to hatch and the adult stage is reached in 17 to 20 days after the laying of the eggs. If they are not checked the birds will be swarming with lice in a short while. Lice are spread rapidly from one bird to another, but they do not live long when off the body, due to lack of warmth.

In treatment of these parasites it is not enough to treat once and then expect the birds to be rid of them. Lice multiply very rapidly and must be kept constantly in check. It is possible to practically rid the poultry of lice by proper care and treatment.

There are several methods of treating for lice and one of the most effective measures is the use of sodium fluoride, says a writer in the Successful Farmer. This is a white powder and can be purchased at the drug store. Only a very small amount is needed for each bird. From the fact that lice live only on the body of the birds it is essential that each bird must be treated individually. The powder is applied with the fingers and a pinch placed in the region of the head, neck, back, tail, vent and under each thigh and wing. Rub it into these spots or place it so that it gets to the base of the feathers where the lice and eggs are. They should be treated as often as necessary and a little pinch of the powder in each of the above places will make short work of the

A homemade powder for dusting may be made by mixing three parts gasoline to one part stock dip and the addition of enough cement to take up the liquid and make a powder. The bird is held with its head down and the powder worked into the feathers. Mercurial ointment is rather widely used for setting hens and is a mixture of one part blue ointment to two parts vaseline. Only a small amount of this, about the size of a pea, is applied in one spot. Rub in well under each wing and the region below the vent. This method will reduce the numbers of body lice but seems to have little effect on the wing and head lice.

Give Pullets Mash in Addition to Grain Feed

Too many pullets have to subsist on a little scratch grain morning and night with no mash. This plan succeeds in a measure when there are a few birds and a large range. When the flock reaches several hundred birds the amount of bugs per bird per day is apt to be quite small. Regardless of the size of the range most pullets are a little shy and will not often wander far from their colony houses. Even when the flock is very small the use of the growing mash pays and results in a better development for fall egg production.

The use of dry mash hoppers in the colony houses does not mean that the pullets will not range to hunt for. bugs and worms. They like a variety of feed but the mash is always there to balance up the feed gathered on the range. Green feed is very essential in keeping the birds healthy.

******* Poultry Hints

Feed and care for your grown pul-

. . . Some mixed flocks containing vigorous pullets may be better than a lot of cull pure breds.

Many pullets are retarded in their growth by giving insufficient feed to avoid a fall molt.

The pullet colony houses should not be overcrowded. Provide roosts as soon as the birds are feathered out and the brooder is removed. Many a poultry farmer is making as large a profit on ten acres as the quarter-section farmer did with his primitive methods a few years ago. If the chickens, either old or young, are not thrifty, look for lice. During hot weather these pests get in their "best licks" and the poor fowls have to suffer unless well treated for lice frequently.

A rapid growth among pullets will require the use of a growing mash. The easily digested ground grains and other elements needed for growth can all be included in one hopper and then you know every pullet has a chance at a full crop any time of the day.

***** HOW=

PACIFIC COAST CITY HAS DRIVEN OUT THE RATS .-As a result of convincing ratcontrol work done last year in Portland, Ore., under the direction of the biological survey, United States Department of Agriculture, the city of Astoria, Ore., which was partially burned, is being rebuilt along lines of rat-proof construction outlined by the district biological survey representative.

Burned piling, on which a portion of the town was originally set, is being replaced by concrete retaining walls on each side of the street. These are constructed in such a way that when the concrete basement walls of the buildings are finished there will be a tunnel under the sidewalk between the building walls and the retaining walls on the street, which will carry all electric wires, waste pipes, gas pipes and the like.

Sewers have been laid down the middle of the street and are inclosed in solid concrete. A fill will be made entirely around this up to the street level and surfaced with concrete. The storm sewer entrances have all been equipped with screens of such mesh that rats can neither get in nor out of the sewers. The sewer mains are inclosed in solid concrete walls. These are covered with earth, and are, in turn, inclosed by concrete walls two sides and the top, which would seem to make them as nearly rat proof as possible. Buildings have all been constructed of concrete.

How Popular Phrase First Came Into Use

The expression making "Ducks and Drakes" of money arises from the old amusement of holiday-makers in making smooth, flat stones skim over the surface of the waves. Wealthy spendthrifts have been known to use coins instead of stones. History does not tell us the name of the inventor, but the game was known among the ancients as "epostracisimus." There are records showing that it was played by one Scipio Africanus and his companion, Laelius, more than three thousand years ago. Perhaps the most famous patron of the game in our own time was Alfred de Musset, the French novelist and playwright, who spent whole days on the beach, picking up pebbles and making them skim over the water. According to an Elizabethan writer, the game was known in his time as "A duck and a drake, and a ha'penny cake."

How Oil Fires Are Fought

An important new invention of great value in putting out fires at oil works is now in use at Los Angeles, London Tit-Bits says.

Large tanks containing oil enough to fill 2,000 barrels sometimes catch fire with disastrous results. The invention consists of a water apparatus placed inside the oil tank, just above the level of the oil; by the touch of a lever it can be made to throw a thin circular curtain of water right over the tank.

The air is thus excluded from the burning oil, and as nothing can burn without oxygen the flames are quickly put out.

Pouring water on burning oil is not only useless; it usually spreads the fire. The new apparatus whirls a sort of water screen over the fire, which quickly produces a smothering layer of steam in addition, and when the flames die out the water will have settled to the bottom of the tank and can be drawn off by a tap.

How to Reduce Weight "I reduced my weight to where I thought it should be," writes Mr. Edison, "by diminishing the daily input of food, and thereafter kept my weight constant by regulating the quantity of food. Not one person in ten thousand will do this." Similarly Cyrus H. K. Curtis declares "the whole question of longevity is summed up in what you put into your body and what you get out of it by elimination." For himself he takes a balanced ration, rarely touching meat or sweets, but using fruit or fruit juices at least once a day.

How Dust Stops Explosions

By the simple method of applying coats of rock dust to the surface of mine entrances coal mine operators have checked the damages and loss of life from coal mine explosions. The accumulations of coal dust found in mines are explosive and inflammable, but rock dust is not. The rock dust acts as a barrier, stopping the spread of explosions from one part of the mine to another. The method has been tried out in Europe with considerable success, though the idea is new in this country.

How Industry Has Grown

Steady progress has been made by the macaroni industry in Canada during the last decade and a recent report on this industry by the bureau of statistics shows that whereas the Dominion imported nearly 70,000,000 pounds in prewar days, imports in 1923 amounted to only 1,096,000 pounds, while exports totaled 2,229,000 pounds. Nine factories, with a capitalization of $873,000, are now operating in Canada, the output of which aggregates approximately 11,500,000 pounds.

THE DEMAND for the strange new Oil that the salt-wells at Tarentum and THE DEMAND for the strange new Oil that the salt-wells at Tarentum and Pittsburgh were producing led to an extraordinary attempt to fathom the petroleum basin by digging to the Oil-bearing rock. In 1856 the Donnelly salt-well was reamed out by Louis Peterson and produced 5 barrels of petroleum a day. A specimen sent to Baltimore was used successfully in oiling wool at the carding-mills and the total production was shipped to that city for eight years.

¶ In 1864 The Tarentum Salt and Oil Co. decided to dig a shaft 400 to 500 feet deep down to the source of supply. The officers of the company argued that with pick and shovel they could discover an enormous cave of brine and Oil! They sent to England for skilled miners and started a shaft about 8 feet square!

¶ Over two years were employed and $40,000 spent in sinking this shaft. The worked progressed to the depth of 400 feet, when the fresh water weakened the brine, and dangerous gas accumulated, to such an extent as to make it unprofitable for the salt works. The digging of the shaft was finally abandoned.

That was a futile attempt, trying to dig down to a cave of brine and Oil! But it is no less futile for the Kerosene buyer of today to try to save money by using inferior Kerosene. The Red C Oil and The White C Oil, same except in color, is the fourteen-karat and sterling of Kerosenes in one. Better light, more heat, and more hours per gallon make it the most economical too.

Traced to Archimedes

The word "Eureka" is said to have been uttered by Archimedes (287-212 B. C.), the Greek philosopher, when the principle of specific gravity first dawned upon him. It is said that the thought first came to him while in the bath, and that he fled half-clad through the streets of Syracuse to his home, shouting, "I have found it! I have found it!" The problem that had been given him to solve was to determine whether a golden crown made for Hiero, king of Syracuse, had been alloyed with silver. This the king had suspected, and the philosopher afterwards proved it to be true.

Moral and Material

Value in Cleanliness

Cleanliness reacts upon the morals of people. A boy or girl brought up in a clean home grows into a better man or woman than if reared in a dirty one, and a town that is kept clean develops better citizens than one where filth is allowed to accumulate. Thus, by being partially clean, a town may get the moral effect, but to get the health-saving effect, it must be sanitarily clean. Individual cleanliness will not do. For instance, in a town of 2,000 inhabitants, suppose 1,999 keep their houses, yards and premises, streets and alleys, so clean that flies have no chance to breed in them, but the other has a horse and stable and is slovenly. He keeps an exposed manure pile, and it is evident will breed countless swarms of flies to nullify as far as possible the results of his neighbor's cleanliness. It is certain that the flies bred in that manure heap will scatter over the town to be a vexation and torture to those who are clean. Hence, in sanitation the whole race must live or fall together. Each in ways unknown is protecting or endangering himself and others, forming the characters and making the history of unnumbered lives, and cannot live for self alone. There is no room for pedantic exclusiveness, but our deeds and words are as far-reaching as life. An epidemic in one locality endangers others, and the consequences of filth in one place may be widely scattered. As it takes social action to stamp out diseases, so cleanliness will exterminate the flies, but it must be social cleanliness. We are a part of this, and whether we realize it or not, we are living for the weal or woe of earth, and should join the longer living legion in a grand clean-up campaign to eradicate the flies and all other sources of disease, so that this globe of ours shall be a cleaner and better place as a home for the human race.—Public Health Service.

Love of Home One of Finest Human Instincts

"Love of home is one of the finest instincts and the greatest of inspira-tions of our people," according to Herbert Hoover, secretary of the United States Department of Commerce, who is one of the foremost advocates in the country of home ownership.

"Buying or building a home requires the best of sound judgment in seeing that the personal needs of the family are best met with the funds available," Mr. Hoover said. "It involves not only the carrying on of transactions of financing and buying or building, but it involves the proper determination of location with respect to school, to work and to neighborhood.

"Maintaining a high percentage of individual home owners is one of the searching tests that now challenges the people of the United States. The present large proportion of families that own their homes is both the foundation of a sound economic and social system and a guarantee that our society will continue to develop rationally as changing conditions demand.

"Whenever a home is bought, with few exceptions, the purchaser is, by his act of becoming a home owner, making himself a permanent citizen of the community. Such citizens are most sought after by cities."

Grounds Most Important

We need to make more attractive and beautiful our city and country homes in order that farm life and country life may be our most worthwhile occupation, then by giving greater stability and intensiveness to our rural life and activities. The well-kept and orderly appearance of the farmstead or country home is the main factor in making the place attractive. The lawn trees, shrubbery and flowers on the grounds immediately surrounding the house which form the framework for the home have much to do with the contentment and happiness of the family, and inasmuch as these grounds are, or should be, a part of the home and the home life, the importance of making these grounds attractive and beautiful needs no further discussion.

Attractive Mail Boxes

Roadside rural free delivery boxes should receive attention this month. The Post Office department urges that such mail receptacles be painted white. In the pretty suburbs near Atlanta, Ga., owners have overcome the crudeness of boxes mounted on the ends of sticks by use of a light wooden framework about the box over which vines are trained. The gabled roofs of the boxes are painted red or blue.

Trees

In the care of one's yard caution should be taken against irregular growth of trees and means adopted to rectify any fault in the tree's growth at the start. Many trees are inclined to lean in a certain direction through being forced into that position by prevailing winds from the opposite point, and, unless braced while young, it will be impossible for them to grow upright as they should. It is well that a sufficient space be spaded up around the tree and the ground kept worked

Cedars of Lebanon

of Wonderful Beauty

The famous cedars of Lebanon, which are so frequently mentioned in the Bible as symbols of power, longevity and prosperity, and continuously sung by poets and extolled by artists because of their stately beauty and strength, grow to a height of from 60 to 80 feet, their branches and foliage covering a compass of ground the diameter of which equals the height of the trees.

Although the number of the famous trees has decreased considerably, of late years they have been carefully tended and preserved and a goodly number still exist. The best-known group in the Lebanon range consists of a group of 12 ancient giants-how ancient no man can tell-in a grove near the village of Eden, surrounded by about 400 younger trees, none of which probably are under a hundred years of age. Two of the "patriarchs" of the celebrated group measure, respectively, from 60 to 80 feet in girth of trunk. One of these is marked with the name of Lamartine, the French poet, historian and statesman. The younger trees in the grove are stately, compact and gracefully reposeful, but the "patriarchs" are wild of aspect and frantic in attitude, flinging their muscular arms about as though struggling with some unseen enemy. In Ezekiel the Assyrian is likened to the cedar of Lebanon, "with fair branches, and with a shadowing shroud, and of a high stature, and his top was in among the thick boughs."

Unfair to Blame Sun for Showing Up Dust Here is a reader who actually

grumbles at the sun!

"I've noticed," she says, "that whenever the sun shines in a room it seems to raise the dust. Now, why is this? Look into any shaft of sunlight and you will see what I mean."

The sun does not raise dust, though my correspondent is not the first person who has thought so. It merely illuminates dust particles which, in lesser light, are not so observable, says London Answers. The dust is always there, floating about; the sun must not be blamed for it.

Why, to blame the sun for the dust is as unreasonable as it would be to blame a pair of opera glasses for the bad actor one looked at through them! Would the bad actor have been raised by the opera glasses?

The sun, of course, is a sort of bete noir to some people, but, all the same, a room flooded with sunlight is much more pleasant than one from which it is rigorously excluded.

Seniority of Sweden

The kingdom of Sweden, which was founded about the year 700 A. D., is the oldest in Europe. It is still a primitive land-half the country is forest and the national population is less than that of London. The people are among the greatest sportsmen in the world, water and ice sports, of course, predominating. For sailing and rowing, Sweden is the first country in Europe, and naturally leads in its ice sports. Though a large part of Sweden lies within the Arctic circle, so clear are the skies that the heart of Lapland enjoys more shine than Rome or Madrid. Incidentally, Sweden is the oldest part of Europe geologically. It was dry land when most of the remainder of the continent was under water.

Quick to Learn

A couple of years ago Ted Winkley was an enthusiastic graduate from the school of journalism at a western university.. He bought a country weekly and settled down to reform the county. The first issue of the paper brought out under his control flamed with promising announcements. The dean of the school of journalism received a copy and read this editorial announcement:

"We aim to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth." Nearly a year later the dean received another copy of the boy's paper, with this proclamation circled with blue pencil:

"We aim to tell the truth-but not so blamed much of it as heretofore!" -Harper's Magazine.

Alexandrian Pharos

Pharos was the name of an island in the harbor of Alexandria. Here Ptolemy I, who had been one of the generals of Alexander the Great, decided to build a gigantic lighthouse. The work was finally completed during the reign of Ptolemy Philadelphus. The structure was 450 feet high and 100 feet square at the base. At the summit was kept a beacon fire which, according to the historian, Josephus, could be seen over forty miles away. Part of this famous lighthouse was blown down in the Eighth century. The ruin was completed by earthquakes in 1303 and 1346.

How Should Water Taste? Although the palatability of water is largely a matter of individual taste. there are objectionable tastes in water that can be ascribed definitely to either chemicals such as iron, chlorine or an alkali, decaying vegetation, microscopical organism or pollution by trade wastes, etc. When tanks or reservoirs become contaminated from any of these causes the cheapes; and easiest way is to clean out the container and start with a new supply, though copper sulphate or chlorine properly used are very effective in controlling organisms in such reservoirs.

DR. LUTHER KEMP.

AN APPRECIATION By the Carroll County Savings Bank, Uniontown, Md.

God metes not out our life in one long length.

But in a tenderer, wiser way,
Day by day."

But in a tenderer, wiser way,
Day by day."

and

"He liveth longest who can tell
Of true things truly done each day."

In this day-by-day and night-by-night life of high and holv service of relief and helpfulness for mortal ills lived our friend anu associate, Dr. Luther Kemp.

As he was returning from one of these errands of mercy: alone in the dark, he was stricken; smitten, never to look upon, nor speak to us again; and so in the grey dawn of an early morn, there came to him that "grave transition," by which he passed out of his limited life, with its humble service, into the limitless one with its longer field of glorified service.

The long funeral cortege the saddened faces, the uncontrolled grief of strong men and women, so manifest, as all that was mortal of our friend was borne up the green hillside to rest facing the place he loved so well, is a lasting testimony more eloquent than words, to the irreparable loss felt; to the worth, the kindness, the charity, and the sacrifice of him who was to them in very truth, the beloved physician."

In memory of such a life, it is but fitting that we of his associates who remain should thus garland his memory. As a long time valued member of our Board of Directors, he was genial in companionship, yet positive in his convictions; his advice was sought, and his counsel followed, in the many problems confronting this Board. He was also a member of the Executive Board, and as such was brought into closest touch with the Bank's most responsible and sacred functions, a trust he never betrayed. He was also the banks efficient Secretary, for many years. His minutes show neatness and accuracy. We shall cherish his memory. In memory of such a life, it is but fit memory.

Resolved, That a copy of this memorial be sent the widow of the deceased, be published in the newspapers of the county, and entered upon the minutes of the Bank.

FROM BALTIMORE SUBSCRIBER.

In renewing my subscription to the Record I wish to express to you the pleasure it affords me each week to receive it, with its clean, healthy and home-like news, which is quite a contrast to our city papers with their sensational and frequently salacious matter, not desirable for home read-ing, and which to me is not interest-

Not that I am any too good, but I do not care for that kind of literature. Reading the head lines is usually sufficient; but I do take an interest in the Record. It contains nothing but what can be read by any member of the family, and is a relief from what is handed out here day after day.

I take quite an interest in the articles from your correspondents in the different sections of Carroll and adjoining counties. I frequently find reference there to some of my old friends and acquaintances, and even if I do not know all of the others mentioned, nevertheless the news is from localities with which I am familiar and is interesting.

I trust these contributors to your paper will continue to chronicle the weekly happenings in their respective sections, with the knowledge that their articles, I feel certain, must be appreciated by all your other readers as they are by me. Your editorials are also a source of interest and which I enjoy reading. In fact I read the whole paper from the front to the last page and wind up with your last page, and wind up with your "last page editorial."

AGAINST THE TIDE

BESETTING you on every hand is the invisible tide which is hourly sweeping humans from their charted course and carrying them into unknown waters.

The captains of courage who have gone before, weathered the treacherous currents and reached a secure haven, are the only ones who can tell you what this opposing tide means to the young or the inexperienced, or the overconfident.

They will tell you how difficult it is to keep your honor bright; how hard it is to steer away from temptation or the habit of loose thinking; how perplexing it is to avoid the sucking shoals when you should keep cool,

You may pose for a hero before the world, but be careful lest the tide pull you under and expose the fraud. If your colors are false, beware!

for the tide knows them.

In spite of its purring voice and shining face it is a restless foe, a bearer of no tales, a silent destroyer of ambition and a wrecker of hope when your star seems to glow the brightest and you stand puffed up in conceit before an admiring world.

Alas! for the man who in such a moment plunges headlong into the tide without first reckoning his endurance. The water is icy cold, swift and treacherous. How many men do you know who have gone down in such a plunge, never again to show their head? Their pride and pomp, their wealth sank from sight and left only a few empty bubbles behind, bursting and disappearing. Be honest with yourself, sincere steer your craft by the unfailing com-

There are those who are not able to enjoy a fresh apple; to those this salad will appeal: Choose fine, large, juicy apples; core, quarter and peel them. Skewer them together with tooth picks. For six apples blend one tablespoonful of butter with six tablespoonfuls of sugar, and a dusting of cinnamon. In each cavity place a little of this mixture. Place the apples in a baking dish with a cupful of water and cook them until tender, but not broken. Cool and chill. Women Who Give Rest

Always Sought After Discussing half a dozen women friends a few days ago, guests at a little dinner party were surprised to discover the popularity of a woman whom none had believed to have an original personality. Pleasant, kind, lively, interesting she undoubtedly is, but it was a man who explained the attraction which makes her companionship desired by all her friends.

"She gives rest," he said. "And rest is the greatest gift a woman has to give. No one in Helen's presence can long be conscious of life's enormous disarrays; she heals. Her very presence is harmonious, she gives a sense of serenity to the restless. That is why everyone loves her."

Very few women are able to bestow the gift of peace on those whom they meet in daily life, says the London

No woman whose mind is restless, who has not accepted with graciousness the reconciliations between the ideal and the real, has power to give

For this power does not come from anything as superficial as the pose of languid ease, nor does it belong to the quiet woman who so often is also the dull woman.

Only the woman whose mind has found rest through discipline, through courage, through strength, can heal the wounds of the disturbed soul.

Women who have this power give to their friends the assurance of security. Very many women who delight today displease tomorrow. One is unable to depend on their stability. But the woman who gives rest does not change her attitude or her convictions or her moral standards; she is no romanticist, but because she is in tune with life and her own setting she creates harmony around her.

Habits of Migration Forced on Bird Life

Ages ago the United States and Canada swarmed with nonmigrating bird life, long before the arctic ice fields, advancing south during the glacial era, rendered uninhabitable the northern half of the continent.

As the ice approached very gradually, now and then receding, enforced retreats and absences—at first only a short distance and a brief time-increased both in distance and duration until migration became an integral part of the being of the bird.

As the ice advanced southward the swing to the north in spring migration was continually shortened and the fall retreat to a suitable winter home lengthened in proportion until the glacial period birds were, for most part, confined to middle South

But the habit of migration had been formed, and when the ice receded toward its present position the birds followed it northward and in time established their present diversified migration routes.-Exchange.

Would Be a Handicap

"I cannot marry you"-that was the burden of the young girl's reply to the old millionaire.

Many, many times he had asked her Take one pound of raisins, two to reconsider her decision, but in the pounds of tart cherries, three oranges | end he despairingly realized that she -juice and rind-and four pounds of could never be his. Almost angrily

"Even Cupid," he said, "could do nothing with you. You're like an icetight jars. The little half-pint glass berg. Why, a hundred Cupids might shoot you all day long, but not one arrow would make any impression on your stone-cold heart."

She thought for a moment, then: "Not if they used an old beau," she replied cuttingly.

Wasps and Yellow Jackets

"Wasp" is the general name of a large class of insects. There are many species, both of social and solitary wasps. "Yellow jacket" is merely the name given to several species of American social wasps which belong to the genus "Vespa." The color of the body of the yellow jacket is partly bright yellow and the insects are noted for their irritability and painful stings. Yellow jackets are also called hornets. Some species live in the ground while others make paper nests suspended from a tree or bush. -Pathfinder Magazine.

Singer's Many Charms

Charlotte Henrietta Haser was a celebrated singer born at Leipzig in 1780, the daughter of the director of music in the university there. In 1804 she was engaged by the Italian opera at Dresden. Her superior voice, her fine execution and her attempt to combine the advantages of the German and the Italian methods, gave her a brilliant success. Distinguished for the correctness of her morals and her great modesty, she was received with applause at all the most celebrated theaters in Italy and Germany.-Chicago Journal.

It was queer reasoning that induced Mr. Flower to change his name. He was a Portuguese—so Felix Weiss, immigration inspector, tells us-and appearing before the board of special inquiry, he gave his name willingly

"What, Mr. Flower, was your name before you came to America?" inquired one of the board.

"Oh, me change him to make easy for American people. In San Miguel Farina that's flour-that's me."-Youth's Companion.

Emotions Have Great Effect on Physical Health

The fact that our emotions affect our health is often overlooked. Many people continue to worry and be despondent without any thought of this danger to health. Dr. R. S. Copeland says worry destroys sleep, reduces the appetite, sets the nerves on edge and results in loss of weight and efficiency. Worry not only makes the sufferer miserable. but it affects everyone associated with that individual. The effects of right thinking on the emotions and its reflex effects on health are said to be greater than would naturally be supposed.

Mental attitudes have a lot to do with health because the emotions affect the heart. To have good health and long life the heart must not miss a minute of its activity. Even under normal conditions the pressure of the heart is tremendous, and when affected by the emotions this pressure is greatly increased. Emotions of every kind affect the heart. Sudden fear, anger, sorrow or any such disturbance of the mental state causes undue demands on the heart. Frequent repetition of such conditions may bring permanent impairment of the heart.

Temperance in all things is about the best way to stop the emotions from producing their ill effects. Temperance in eating, in amusements, in work, in emotional life, etc., will go a long way in making a person comfortable. Temperance will also aid in controlling the number of years of one's life.-Pathfinder Magazine.

Why Iceland Thinks

of Building Railroads

Iceland is one of the few countries in the world that have no railroad. That does not mean it is unprogressive, nor that it is behind the times. So far a railroad has not been thought necessary. The country is small and communication is cut by fjords, mountains and lava beds, Until recent years the only transportation was by means of ponies over stretches of what could hardly be dignified by the name of roads. Occasional ships called at Reykjavik, and at rare intervals went up the west coast of the island. Mail was sent inland by pony express. Now, however, the roads have been improved, and, though ponies are still used more than anything else, there are motor cars in Reykjavik, the capital city; in Akureyri, the second largest city, and in many of the small fishing communities. In addition quite a number of steamships go round the island, all of them carrying mail.

For some time, however, the problem of railroad construction has been occupying the inhabitants in and around Reykjavik and in the southern lowlands. Those in favor of having a small railroad built have gone so far as to have a route surveyed and estimates made of the probable cost Should the plans go through, it would mean a railroad of perhaps eighty miles in length running south and east from Reykjavik.-Maurine Robb in the Current History Magazine.

Why Iceland Is Idyllic

Icelandic women have not yet their sisters in more thickly populated business centers, with regard to fashions. The national costume has remained unchanged for a thousand years. The skirts of the women's national costume always have been homespun. Their bodices are laced with silver thongs, and fastened with large silver buckles, hand engraved in Iceland. Their caps, which they wear in place of hats, are made simply from a piece of black homespun, or silk, and trimmed with a long tassel. Icelandic women and girls wear their beautiful fair hair in two long braids, a most becoming coiffure when crowned by the dainty black cap with its long, flowing tassel. And no Icelandic girl would deign to besmirch her perfect pink and white complexion with artificial aids to so-called beauty.

Why Smokestacks Are Useful

The popularity of an ocean-going vessel is often gauged by the number of smokestacks she carries. Emigrants from Europe have been known to refuse absolutely to sail in a vessel with only one stack because the beautiful poster shown them by the steamship agent pictured a fine, colorful boat, with at least two stacks. possibly three, says the Detroit News.

The desire for the multiple one-stack ships is not confined to Europeans. Many Australians prefer the boats with two stacks. South Americans have the same prejudice, and one reason the Germans captured most of the South American travel in prewar days was because they put at least three stacks on all their ships in the South American trade, no matter what the size of the vessel.

Why They Weren't Annoyed "I was afraid my sermon last Sunday would annoy some of my people, but it didn't," said the vicar. "What was your subject?" asked his friend.

"'The Duplicity of the Average Man,' and I spoke pretty plainly." "You couldn't tread on any corns that way. Every man considers himself above the average."

THE STILLING OF THE STORM

LESSON TEXT-Mark 4.35-41. GOLDEN TEXT-What manner of man is this, that even the wind and the sea obey Him?-Mark 4:41. PRIMARY TOPIC-Story of a Great

JUNIOR TOPIC-Jesus Stills the

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Power of Jesus Over Na-YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Meet the Storms of Jesus was a great Teacher, as was shown in the parable of last lesson, but Mark's aim was to show Him as the Divine Servant doing mighty deeds. Hence after the parables are presented deeds which show Him to be the master of the forces of nature, demons, diseases and death. His mastery of the forces of nature is the particular deed shown in this lesson. I. Jesus and the Disciples Crossing the Sea (vv. 35, 36) Weary with the teaching of the day, He proposes that they take a ship to the other side of the sea, the aim doubtless being to escape the crush of the multitude. They did not delay, for "they took Him even as He was in the ship."

II. Overtaken by a Storm (v. 37). Storms were frequent on Galilee, but this was an unusual storm. It was a furious tempest, so great that the waves beat into the ship so that it was full. Even though Jesus was in the boat with the disciples they were overtaken by a storm. To follow Christ does not necessarily mean smooth sailing or cloudless skies. Indeed, it rather implies that we will have to encounter storms. However, those who have Christ on their boat cannot sink.

III. Jesus Himself in the Storm-Tossed Boat (v. 38).

The day had been a very strenuous one and He was weary. In the midst of the turbulent elements He was resting in sleep. He who made the sea could well lie down and sleep though the storm did violently rage. His being asleep did not indicate that He was indifferent to the need of His

IV. The Terrified Disciples (v. 38). In their minds nothing but disaster and death awaited them. There was absolutely no danger for no boat can go down regardless of the violence of the storm which has Christ on board. The disciples were not only terrified but they chided Him for sleeping while they were in such great danger. It was all right for them to come to Him for help but it was presumptuous on their part to make a demand upon Him.

V. Christ's Rebuke (vv. 39, 40).

ve will be perplexed, for we see a human being sleeping because of exhaustion and then we hear the divine voice of the Creator and Ruler of the universe. He who was asleep has power to rebuke and calm the raging | tates, substituting therefor a generous elements.

1. The Wind (v. 39). This showed that He had power over the elements of nature for at His command the tilled. wind ceased and there was a great

2. The Disciples for Their Lack of Faith (v. 40). They were looking upon their circumstances instead of upon their Lord. For all the disciples had seen and heard they should have been without fear in the company of Jesus. Let us learn to trust Him for He has power over all things.

VI. The Effect Upon the Disciples

They were filled with great fear. A little while ago they were afraid in the face of a storm. Now they are afraid in the presence of the Lord. Frequently marvelous deliverances by the Lord so affect God's children that they are more alarmed over the presence of a divine being than they are by the threatening perils. Let us see that standing in our midst though unseen today is our Lord and that despite the raging of the storms we can hear His voice of peace.

Christianity

Christianity is a religion of the Spirit. And, whatever else a church may or may not have, possession of the Spirit of God is that which makes it Christian. Elaborate formalism, beautiful architecture, ornate discourses may be vehicles for the expression of the Spirit, but they must be understood to be secondary and contributory only. When so understood they are legitimate and praiseworthy.-Charles B. Tupper.

October 26 Why Is Law Enforcement Vital to Our Nation? Isaiah 1:16-20

Law enforcement is essential to the stability of government and constituted authority. Magisterial power is ordained of God. Whosoever resists this power, resists the ordinance of God (Rom. 13:1-7). A stable government is necessary to the peace and prosperity of every country. Without it there must be disorder and chaos which are the great hindrances to progress, and also to the proclamation of the gospel and the work of the church. Violation of any one law indicates a disregard for all law. The Chicago Evening Post recently referred to District Attorney Banton of New York who spoke at a dinner given by the Harlem Chamber of Commerce emphasizing difficulties which officers meet in trying to enforce the law. While he was speaking some promiment business men at the tables de-liberately took from their pockets supplies of liquor and openly violat-ed the law in the use of the same. In a very direct way Mr. Banton called attention to their action and said, "Just realize that in violating this one law, you indicate a disregard for all law. The hold-up man and the burglar commit crimes in this same spirit of disregard for law." To this the Post remarks that every man who breaks the law does so because it interferes with some habit, convenience or desire of his own. Any person who deliberately violates any law of the land is a criminal.

Lawlessness toward constituted authority tends to lawlessness toward God, which is the very essence of sin. Sin is the rejection of the authority of God, and the assertion of the opposite principle of self-will. To this principle there may be traced all the evil and corruption in the world. From this evil principle and practice there is but one way of escape and deliver-ance, and that is the way of the Cross and the redemption which is in Christ

Famous Fraternity

Phi Beta Kappa is an honorary fraternity and the election of members is optional with the chapters. Active membership varies in its details with different chapters, but, as a rule, it is extended to members of the senior class studying for a baccalaureate degree in arts or science as distinguished from those studying for technical or professional degrees. Usually also not more than one-fourth of a class standing highest is elected, and in many colleges eligibility is further restricted to those who reach a certain percentage. Sometimes elections are made in the junior year as a mark of special distinction. Alumni members are chosen from distinguished alumni and honorary members are selected from those who have achieved eminence in some branch of learning.

Leaves Quench Thirst

Water from the surface of the banana-like leaves of a tree in Madagascar, known as the traveler's plant, furnishes a refreshing liquid to the thirsty traveler even in the driest seasons.

It is otherwise a very useful plant, since the leaves are serviceable in house building, as thatch, partition and even in making walls. The hard, external cotex is stripped off, beaten flat and used for flooring.

The green leaves do duty also as wrapping paper, rain sheds, tablecloths and dishes, and when folded properly, as spoons or drinking vessels. The flowers of the plant inclose seeds that are edible, and yield an essential oil.—Detroit News.

Job Printing

No doubt a considerable number of subscriptions to The Record go to points in the U.S. where printing offices are not convenient, or perhaps where charges for printing are high. In such cases.

Why not try Carroll Record Printing?

Write us of your needs, let us send samples and prices—and Parcel Post can do the rest. This office does a large mail order business, in stationery, invitations, announcements, business cards, and printing in general, and can usually deliver all work, free of charge for postage, within 600 miles.

If for any reason we can serve far away partons acceptably, we shall be glad to do so. Our $1.00 offer for stationery, advertised elsewhere, has brought many customers. Try this office for all kinds of printing-it may save you money.

The District Sunday School Convention in Taneytown, on Monday, was well attended, especially at night, when the large crowd overflowed the U. B. Church and had to be transferred to the Lutheran Church. The addresses by Rev. Harry Daniels, of Gettysburg, and by Mr. Emory . Coblentz, of Frederick, were both excellent, and the numbers presented by the Daniels male quartet were greatly enjoyed.

The authorities of Taneytown should enforce the regulations for parking cars that are in use in most towns having a main street as wide as ours, of running cars to the curb on an angle, and not broadside. The angle plan of parking not only accommodates fully one-fourth more cars, but permits backing out easily without disturbing other cars. By making white lines on the bed of the street, the plan would adopt itself without any trouble, and still leave room in the centre for two cars to

Saying "What We Think." It is held to be very manly-or womanly—by many people to "say what we think" on all occasions. This is taken to represent straightness and Mrs. Minerva Harman is spending honesty, as distinguished from hypo some time in Baltimore, visiting her crisy and cowardice, and to be a generally all-around desirable trait in

Like a good many other of our decisions, the one above is not as proper as it may seen to be, for continuous Our thoughts are not always better expressed than withheld, and especially is this true when the expression of them is a purely voluntary act on our part, and uncalled for. We can admire frankness and truthfulness, but it is pure egotism for us to place such a high value on our thoughts as to be continually broadcasting them, "Busybodies" are largely made from this one characteristic —"saying what we think."

"Saying what we think" is different from telling the truth, for our thoughts may not be true; and even "telling the truth" may often do more harm than good, when we are not asked for it for some good purpose. There are times for expressing both thoughts and truths, but these times require a great deal of tact and fine discernment on our part. We can be both wise and brave, both truthful and honest, by guarding our thoughts and inclinations. We can talk too much, as well as too little, and it is the happy compromise between these two that makes the really wise, a good friend and citi-

This is the motto for us "If you your lips would keep from slips, five things observe with care; of whom

We can easily be a "butter in" with our expressed thoughts, and hurt feelings as well as strain friendships Some one has said. "Silence, when nothing need be said, is the eloquence of discretion" and this harmonizes with Carlyle's, "Silence is more eloquent than words" and his "Speech is great, but silence is greater.'

Letter from Miss Miriam K. Britt.

My Dear Mr. Englar: I read your appeal in the "Carroll Record" recently in behalf of Mrs. Fouke, or "Miss May," as I knew and have always thought of her.

Enclosed you will find a money order, which I will thank you to apply to this fund. Am sorry that I cannot make it a larger sum.

I shall never forget "Miss May," she was my first teacher, and I recall having received a penny from her when I learned my alphabet

I was so sorry to learn of the death of Mr. Simon Benner recently. Mr. Benner was another friend of mine. He used to come to church on Sunday morning with a bag of pepper-mints in his pocket and after church he would take me for a little ride in his buggy and make me search through his pockets for the candy.

Taneytown is associated with many happy memories even though I was just a little girl when we moved to Trusting that there will be a gener-ous response to your appael for "Miss May," I remain Sincerely, MIRIAM K. BRITT, Chicago, Oct. 22.

The Printer.

It may be sad, but still 'tis true, There's one thing all us humans do, And that is, blame the printer. He does his best, without our help, For all we do is stand and yelp, Then cuss, and blame the printer.

We write our manuscript by pen. To read it is beyond our ken, Yet we expect the printer To dope it out and get it right. We think not of his time or sight; If wrong—we blame the printer.

We hold our stuff until the last, Then try to rush it through so fast The printer gets snowed under. But still we camp upon his trail, And prod him on with woeful tale, Or rant and roar like thunder.

He shoots it through, the proof we

We ought to thank the printer. But no, The poor gink's out of luck— He overcharged us one whole buck. Once more we damn the printer.

Had Good Authority.

Dora one morning refused to get up. When all other means had failed to coax her out of bed, a very distinguished man of great learning, was called. "Why won't you get up, my child?" he asked.

"Why, Uncle Henry, didn't you tell me to to do what the Bible says?" "Yes, certainly.

"Well, the Bible doesn't believe in early rising; it says it's a waste of Now, the uncle is something of an authority on the Bible, but he was not equal to Dora. For once in his life he was nonpulsed. "You listen, then," went on the child, in reply to his exclamation of astonishment; and, opening her Bible she read the second verse of the 127th Psalm with great emphasis: "It is vain for you to rise up early."—Kansas City Times.
