

FARMERS AND CANNERS IN CONFERENCE.

Better Methods and Better Quality Absolutely Necessary.

The farmers and canners conference meeting held in the County Agent Fuller's office, made a successful start in co-operation between these two organizations. They are very important in the future canning industry of the county. This meeting was presided over by Lester S. Patterson who is president of the Carroll County Farm Bureau. He pointed out the need for co-operation between the producer and the canner so that both might benefit more from this industry. That by producing a better quality product, the canners could improve the quality of their output so they could retain some of the prestige which our Carroll County products held in the past.

He introduced Mr. A. D. Radebaugh Canning Crop Specialist, University of Maryland, and who recently addressed the National Canning Crop Convention, Cincinnati. Mr. Radebaugh brought out the need for co-operation between the canners and producers, pointing out the fact that Maryland used to produce 90% of the corn, beans and tomatoes that were canned. The industry has developed so in the west that now we can only produce about 30% of the goods produced in the United States. It is absolutely necessary that we produce a better quality, both of the raw material and of the canned goods, in order to compete with the West and New England canned goods.

The question was asked the canners, what can a farmer do to improve the raw product delivered to the canner? The general answer was the improved method of cultivating, fertilizing, and varieties of seeds used which would give an increased yield with better quality of product. This has been done by Mr. Radebaugh in his tomato work on the Eastern Shore, and which would also hold good with the sweet corn.

Three big points were drawn up as the sense of this meeting, namely; that to oppose the bootlegging of can crops and urge the adoption of a contract which would tend to eliminate this evil. We must eliminate both the bootleg grower, as well as the bootleg canner, because one cannot exist without the other. It was suggested that a contract be drawn up which would permit a farmer to contract for a crop with only one canner and would not be allowed to sell any of that crop other than to that canner to whom he had contracted.

It was suggested that a black-list be drawn up of bootleggers, and no canner would contract with a farmer who had bootlegged the year before.

The second point was the desire on the part of the farmer to secure a better quality of seed corn. The question that possibly occupied more time, was the desirability of both the canner and farmer of having the product graded when it was delivered to the canner. Under the present system here, everybody is paid a flat rate; the man who produces a high quality of corn does not receive any better price than the man who brings in old dry corn. This penalizing of the grower of the good quality corn has caused considerable dissension among the growers. It is the plan of this committee to call another meeting of the producers and the canners to try to solve some of these problems and to work out closer plans of co-operation.

Mute Couple Faced Starvation.

Rather than tell their neighbors of their plight, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Houck, Gettysburg, deaf mutes, silently vowed they would meet death together by starvation, it has become known.

They have lived at Gettysburg several years. They have no children and no near relatives on whom to call for assistance. During the week they spent their last few dollars, earned through many hours of hard labor by Mr. Houck at a shoemaker's last.

A visit to their home on Saturday revealed that they had no coal, had not eaten solid food for several days and that both were on the verge of collapse. A public subscription was started which last night had mounted to several hundred dollars.—Gettysburg Times.

Seed Corn Clinic.

A number of seed clinics will be held over the county, during the week of March 9th. F. W. Oldenburg, University of Maryland, and County Agent Fuller will aid the farmers in selling their seed corn. Demonstrations will be given at the farms of K. E. Green, March 10, at 1:30; Herbert Snyder, McKinstry's Mills; Mar. 11, at 1:30; and Uniontown Farm Bureau meeting, at 7:30, and at Walter Garrett's, Greenmount, at 10:00.

County Agent Fuller will be glad to help any farmer in selecting his seed corn, and if possible will arrange to have Mr. Oldenburg put on a demonstration in the very important work this year. Due to the fact of the scarcity of seed corn, it is very important that the farmer tests his seed corn, and if it is poor in germination it would be advisable for him to buy new seed. A list of available seed corn is being compiled at the County Agent's office at the present time.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Should they be Published, as News Items, or Not?

Recently, thinking to gain some information from weekly publishers as to their attitude toward publishing birth notices—so-called "visits of the stork"—we sent the following to "The Publishers Auxiliary," Chicago, a publication issued largely in the interests of country weeklies.

"We should like to have information concerning the attitude of weekly newspapers with reference to the publication of births as news items. We take it for granted that perhaps most papers give notice of the coming of 'the stork' into the homes of proud parents when requested to do so, yet we are also of the opinion that most papers do not specialize in the direction of publishing all births.

How to handle the birth items without giving offense, yet without appearing to show partiality, has given us some concern at different times, and we wonder whether this has been the experience of other publishers and how they handle the problem. It is all very well to announce the coming of 'the stork' into a prominent home, if they want the announcement; but this event occurs pretty frequently, and without regard to social or financial standing, among white, colored and mixed conditions—all 'valued subscribers.' How about it?"

The above was published in the Auxiliary, but the results from the inquiry have been disappointing, just two having been received, and these take opposite view-points. One was from "The Hornet" published at Waukomis, Oklahoma, and was as follows:

"Here's The Hornet's creed; by all means, print 'em, making no distinction as to the standing of the parents in the community. Publish the date, the weight, and if possible the name. In the case of the first born, we usually publish the maiden name of the mother.

We have used this style, for a number of years, under the head 'stork special.' People here have become used to it, and generally use the telephone in sending in the announcements, telling us all the information we desire.

We find that as a rule people are glad to have the announcement of their children printed in the paper, and sometimes when we happen to miss one, we always hear from it."

The other letter is from "The North Shore Advocate" Flushing, New York and is as follows:

"Birth announcements should not be published, especially in their prenatal stages. Such latter reports, though flattering to some of your readers, are instantly vulgar to the average intelligent layman.

Make it your rule not to publish any notice that in any manner designates partially to any contributor."

Here are the differing opinions, both pretty strong. The Oklahoma mentions one of the objections to the publication of birth notices, for when he "misses one" he always "hears from it;" and the New Yorker emphasizes the importance of not showing "partiality."

So, we are no nearer the best course to pursue than before the inquiry was made; and as by far the larger number of weeklies that come into our office do not seem to publish births, we rather incline to the belief that this is the safest course to pursue.

Next week, we shall give an article on the treatment of death notices as the result of some investigation, relative to the extent and character of death news notices, the publication of names of undertaker and bearers, etc. Both the present article, and the one to follow, are comparatively unimportant ethical questions connected with the publishing business; and yet, the better these matters are understood by the reading public, the more insight they have of editorial problems.

School Patrons Protest.

A Westminster correspondent to the Baltimore Sun, on Monday, gave an extended account of a protest meeting, in Westminster, on Saturday night, due to the action of the School Board in closing the Pine Knob school, in Freedom district, the meeting being attended by a large number of "patrons of the school." The crowd was in an additionally bad humor because of the fact that the use of the army was denied for the meeting.

The meeting was held on the street, near the railroad, and was addressed by Samuel Solomon, who has been active in the controversy since the closing of the school. He spoke for more than an hour, and closed with the declaration that the Grand Jury would be called on to make an investigation. The Sun says:

"The trouble originated with the plan of the County Board of Education to close smaller schools, where advisable, and transport pupils from those districts by bus to larger schools in the county. Pine Knob students were to go to Sykesville, but their parents declared this to be a plan to influence a move for a new school at that place and also complained that nothing better than ice trucks were provided for transportation of their children.

Protesting the entire plan, patrons of the school reopened it on their own accord, furnishing it with homemade equipment and employing a teacher. They endeavored to get the Board of Education to pay the teacher's salary, but met with refusal.

Tuesday the action was followed by an appeal to the Board of County Commissioners to force the Education Board to pay for the teacher's services. A delegation of 40 appeared before the Commissioners, with Solomon as the spokesman.

The Commissioners refused to act, taking the position that they could not control the schools of the county other than to provide necessary money for the purpose by taxation."

Oil of cedar distilled at small cost from cedar wood waste is used to impart the necessary cedar aroma to boxes and containers used as cigar boxes which are made of other woods.

POSTAL RATES CORRECTED.

Printed Matter Will be Given Parcel Post Rates.

It now develops that our first information concerning printed matter rates in the new postal rates contemplated, was wrong. We had our information from good authority, but the misunderstanding grew out of the interpretation of the new law, which places printed matter in weight of over 8 ounces in the Parcel Post Class, and limits such matter to 8 ounces as Third-class matter. This makes a very material difference, and covers the contention we have urged, that printed matter be given the same rates as other merchandise.

The laws proposed, are as follows; Second-class—newspapers and periodicals from office of publication; the law lets remain free, in county circulation of weekly papers; no change in rate on the reading matter portions of periodicals, but an increase on the advertising portions, of 2 cents per pound in the first, second and third zones, and an increase of one cent in the fourth, fifth and sixth zones. To individuals, mailing newspapers or periodicals, the rate is increased from 1 cent for 4 ounces, to 1½ cents for each 2 ounces, up to and not exceeding 8 ounces; parcel post rates to apply to weights above 8 ounces. Some changes in the above, made in conferences have not yet been published.

Third-class matter (miscellaneous printing) is changed so as to limit the weight to 8 ounces. All matter now in third class, weighing more than 8 ounces, will go at parcel post rates. Packages of 8 ounces, or less, are raised from 1 cent for each 2 ounces, to 1½ cents for 2 ounces, with the exception of books, catalogues and seeds, which will go at present rate of 1 cent for 2 ounces.

Fourth-class—Merchandise etc., is limited to weights in excess of 8 ounces, and embraces all articles in third-class above 8 ounces. Packages of 8 ounces or less, are increased in the zone rates approximately 2 cents per package.

Insurance and C. O. D.—the minimum fee for insurance is increased from 3 to 5 cents, and with adjustments in the higher fees; For C. O. D. service, the present fees of 10 and 25 cents are increased to 12, 15 and 25 cents.

Money Orders, increased from 3 to 30 cents, to 5 to 22 cents.

Registered mail, increased from 10 cents to 15 cents, and 3 cents additional for a return receipt.

Special delivery, present rate of 10 cents on all articles, changed to 15 cents for packages in excess of 2 pounds, but not in excess of 10 pounds and 20 cents for the delivery of packages in excess of 10 pounds.

Weekly newspapers will pay increased postage bills on their circulation, but making printed matter subject to parcel post rates, will likely compensate for the increase. On the whole, the increase in rates now seems to us to be fairly distributed, and at least does not, as we now have them, make "the printer the goat," and we are glad to make the correction.

Transportation of School Pupils.

Transporting pupils to and from school at public expense has raised some common-sense questions that need to be answered, in the opinion of James F. Abel, assistant specialist in rural education of the Department of the Interior, Bureau of Education, expressed in an article of School Life.

All the States and the District of Columbia are transporting some school children. Pupil transportation has been the subject of a generous amount of legislation, and back of it lies the fundamental principle that the State must provide means for an education to every resident child, either by causing a school to be placed within his reach or by transporting him to one.

Where does the responsibility of the parent cease and that of the public begin? The question is asked about most school activities. The answer as to pupil transportation is generally expressed in terms of distance from home to school, and the range under present laws is one-half to 4 miles. Such transportation is not a new item in the expense of education. It is handled in a different and better way and its cost carefully recorded. Twenty-two States reported that 446,226 children were transported in 1921-22, at an expenditure of $14,536,368, or an average of $32.55 per pupil for the year. The cost ranges from $9.36 in Georgia to $73.15 per high-school pupil in some sections of Maryland. Costs differ with conditions, but for safe, comfortable transportation of any considerable number of pupils a State will probably need to expend from $30 to $40 for each child per year.

Man 69, Takes Eighth Wife.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 24.—A marriage record unparalleled in the annals of Kentucky is revealed by the wedding at Whitesburg, Ky., of J. M. Taylor, 69 years old, and Mrs. Matilda Hurst. This is Mr. Taylor's eighth marriage.

"It is the happiest moment of my life," he said.

In his seventh marriage Taylor was to have been married to Mrs. Martha Banks, but instead he wedded Mrs. Martha Brewer, because, he explained she bore such a striking resemblance to Mrs. Banks that he could not tell the difference. Taylor has figured in five divorce suits. He married one of his wives twice.—Phila. Ledger.

THE WHEAT CROP SITUATION

The World Supply Very Low, Benefits the 1925 Outlook.

The year 1924 witnessed the very unusual situation of a large United States crop of wheat coming at a time of short world crop. The result was that the wheat grower in this country with a larger crop than in 1923 realized a much higher price per bushel than he received for the smaller crop of the year before.

The short crop of the world was due chiefly to low yields outside of the United States, and only slightly to a smaller acreage. The greatest decrease in production occurred in Canada, with considerable decreases in Argentina, Italy, and Germany.

The prevailing high price of wheat, as compared with the price for several years past, is due not alone to an 11 percent reduction in the world crop of wheat outside of Russia, however, but also to a 17 percent reduction in the world rye crop outside of Russia, and to the fact that Russia which last year exported about 25,000,000 bushels of wheat and 35,000,000 bushels of rye, has become an importer. The low price that prevailed last year up to midsummer, due primarily to the large 1923 crop and heavy stocks, stimulated foreign consumption.

It appears that the world supplies at the beginning of the harvest of this year's crop will be very low. A small carryover will be a strengthening factor in the market until the movement of the new crop gets well under way, and should help maintain prices for the early crop, but the world's wheat acreage and the developments in the condition of the 1925 crop will determine the market trend and ultimately the price.

Wheat prices declined sharply during the week ending February 7 when it became apparent that the expected shortage of bread grains upon which recent excessive speculation was based was not likely to materialize. May wheat at Chicago closed on Friday, February 6 at $1.91 compared with $2.02½, the previous week's close.

World's commercial stocks of wheat are heavier at this time than any year since the war. High prices are causing a heavier movement of wheat from Argentina and Australia and at the same time are forcing economy in consumption, indicating that no serious world shortage of wheat is apparent at this time.

No serious damage has been reported to date in the winter wheat of the United States and Canadian crops. It is yet too early to determine the damage that may be done by winter killing in the winter wheat area.—John S. Denney, U. S. Agricultural Statistician, Baltimore.

Congress Votes Increased Pay.

With a happy look and a roar of approval the House has voted to raise the salaries of all members of Congress from $7500 to $10,000 a year. The Senate having already passed the bill, the measure now goes to the President.

The bill applies to all Senators, Representatives, Cabinet members, the Vice-President and the Speaker after March 4. The Vice-President, Cabinet members and the Speaker will receive $15,000 a year instead of $12,000. Arrangements have been made to push the bill increasing the salaries of all Federal Judges from Chief Justice Taft down.

Every attempt to force a record vote on the salary increase failed. When several conscience-stricken members demanded a roll-call on the measure their colleagues refused to arise, and the best they could do was to get a rising vote, which was disclosed 237 in favor of the bill to '93 against it.—Phil. Ledger.

Some Tall Fire Stories.

We thought we told some good yarns about the way forest fires are started, but I guess we were mere amateurs. G. T. Backus, United States Forest Service, says that hbit-nailed shoes should be prohibited in the woods, especially in stony country. He claims that the nails striking against the rocks will make sparks set the leaves on fire.

New Jersey, however, wins the moss covered bucket with the following story which appeared in the New Jersey "Forestry News:"

"The poor widow woman stood with her arms across the threshold of her cabin in the woods. The sheriff and the mean, contemptible landlord had come to evict her. Just as they were about to enter the cabin a tall, robust figure came through the trees. It was her long-lost son. Striding up to the sheriff and the mean, contemptible landlord he spoke in a voice of thunder as his eyes flashed fire. 'Stand back,' he cried. But unfortunately the flashing eyes set the adjacent wood on fire. A terrible forest fire resulted in which the mean contemptible landlord was miserably destroyed. The widow woman was rescued by her stalwart son and the sheriff is bringing action at law for a 'Fieri Facias.'"

"The moral of this story is that friction between mortals will start a fire, just as easily as the friction of leaves blowing over the ground as has been reported by our honored contemporary, the 'Forest Wardens News Letter' of Maryland."—Univ. of Md. News Letter.

CHURCHMEN IN CONGRESS.

Their Denominational Affiliation Accurately Summarized.

More than 90 percent of the members of the incoming Congress are adherents of some religious denomination, according to a statement from the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Washington, D. C., which today announced it had completed investigation.

"Methodists lead in both the Senate and House," says the statement, "with Presbyterians and Episcopalians following closely. In the House of Representatives there are 90 Methodists and 27 in the Senate. The Presbyterians have 63 members of the House, and there are 11 Presbyterian Senators. The Episcopalians number 57 Representatives and 22 Senators. Thirty-two Representatives are members of the Roman Catholic Church, with four Senators of that church. There are 8 Hebrews in the House and none in the Senate.

There are 304 Masons in the House and 65 in the Senate. Ninety-eight Representatives are Knights of Pythias and there are 13 Knights in the Senate. The Odd Fellows have 74 Representatives and 7 Senators. Safe and Sane.

President Coolidge has taken a strong stand against "inheritance taxes" as a source of income for the general government, a sum that now approximates $103,000,000 annually, and says this branch of income should be left to the states, but suggests that as long as both the U. S. and the several states use this expedient, there should be co-operation between the two, to prevent what in some cases virtually amounts to nearly full confiscation.

He takes the ground that large fortunes are not necessarily a menace to our country, and ought not to be destroyed; but in many cases have been used for such great public benefit that could not otherwise have been secured.

President Coolidge may lack "personal magnanimity," and not be a flowery orator, but in matters of financial economy and sound practical business sense, he usually voices good doctrine, and is never likely to make serious blunders. "Safe and sane" are appropriate words to attach to his administration, so far.

Farmers Better Business Men.

The average farmer of today is a much better business man than the average farmer of twenty-five years ago. Not a harder worker, nor as close a saver; but he knows more about the details and economies of his business, and is more resourceful, largely because he is better educated and has learned to take advantage of progressive ways and up-to-date methods.

The old-fashioned farmer, nowadays, is not a winner. No matter how much men may profess to despise "book farming," it is largely experimentation, and the publishing of successes and failures, that makes the difference between the modern and old-time farmer. We have learned that but few things just come along by chance, and that there is more to do than take old chances. We have come into the clearer realization that men, every day, are making chances, and making them better and surer; and that after all, success depends on how fully we can get rid of chance, and replace it with certainty.

"Necessity is the mother of invention," it is said, and this is largely true in the farmer's case. Some of the present development and change has come about naturally, but much of it has been forced—a matter of necessity. Life, and work, is a sort of game; if we want to win, we must play to win—study the game. That is about all there is to any success—the know-how of it, and making good use of the know-how.

But, after all the best use of our modern intelligence, there is a large amount of chance left—much left to "beat." If good planning and industry were all that we need to make crops grow, both the farmer and every other business man would have a simple enough job, largely depending on ourselves. But, we must continually provide margins and surpluses to make up for miscarried hopes and plans, and right here is where the best exercise of good business comes in—the financing end of business.

Are the Young People Guilty?

"The Open Road" a magazine especially for young men, is conducting an open inquiry concerning the following serious charges frequently made against the young folks of the present; that they are "Ignorant, Immoral, Indifferent, Irreverent, and Irresponsible." The magazine gives to young people the opportunity of making their defense against the accusations. It will also give space for the accusations, which will make the magazine of special interest to the young.

These articles are now running, and prizes are offered for the best articles. The magazine costs $1.00 for six months; and can be had by remitting $1.00 to this office, or sending it direct to the publishers, 248 Boylston St., Boston, Mass. This is partly in the nature of an advertisement, but the Editor of The Record has been reading "The Open Road" for several years, appreciates its value, and sees the earnestness of the editors back of the subject, which is one of the most important before the people of this country today, as the young folks of today will be the older people of tomorrow, and "as the twig is bent, so is the tree inclined to grow."

Young people ought to know what a large number of serious minded thinkers are saying about them—concerning their schools, their habits, their morals, and their attitude in general toward the serious problems of life. Young people do not live to themselves alone; what they are doing is being commented on, and estimated. They are being weighed in the balances. This series of accusations and defenses, therefore, will be of vast interest to both old and young alike. The following shows the gist of the inquiry.

"What are the young people in your town up to?"

Some people claim they are up to everything but good. You hear them accused of carrying pocket flasks, holding mixed strip-poker parties, loafing, philandering, raring around the country in high-powered cars.

Probably a great deal of the stuff the young folks are accused of is practiced by some. But it's getting to the place where people are talking as though all youth is rotten.

The Open Road is founded on faith in young men and young women. We believe this faith is justified and to find out whether or not we are wrong we are asking the young folks themselves to answer some of the charges being brought against them."

Another Penitentiary Escape:

Another convict escaped from the Maryland Penitentiary yesterday—the eleventh since Colonel Sweezy became warden.

This latest escape has roused Governor Ritchie, who is determined to begin a thorough investigation and find out what is wrong about the management of the Penitentiary but to place the responsibility for these escapes on the shoulders that should bear it.

It is high time for action—drastic action—by the Governor. There must be something radically wrong with the management of the Penitentiary when not only thieves but assassins who do not hesitate to slay the guards and who when free are potential menace to the lives of law-abiding citizens, walk out and disappear.

The American yesterday published a report that the criminal who formerly drove Colonel Sweezy's car, and who only recently took "French leave" from the Penitentiary, is reported to be enjoying life in Havana. The Grand Jury tried to find the seat of the trouble through a prolonged investigation. That body reported only this week that the prison is insanitary, its locks antiquated, its system of communication faulty, its inmates too closely crowded, its "trustees" over-trusted.

Warden Sweezy disagreed with the report on nearly every point.

The Grand Jury did not find why so many prisoners have escaped. Warden Sweezy explains it with the naive statement that all prisoners want to get out.

For a generation before Warden Sweezy took office prisoners wanted to get out of the Maryland Penitentiary. They stayed in—all of them—until they were legally released.

Warden Sweezy has held his job four years and three months. In that time eleven dangerous criminals have escaped. Why?

Sometimes the answer to a question is so utterly obvious that it is overlooked by earnest seekers.

The failure to find it in this situation by both the Welfare Board, which has supreme authority over the Maryland Penitentiary, and the Grand Jury, with its extremely broad inquisitorial powers, may be because the record itself has not yet been viewed by them in perspective. Here it is again:

From 1890 to 1920, inclusive, no escapes; from the end of 1920 to date, eleven escapes. Warden Sweezy took office in November, 1920.

Governor Ritchie has stood loyally behind Colonel Sweezy, but he, at last, apparently realizes that the only way to prevent further escapes from the Penitentiary is to make sweeping changes. The time for action is here.

The Wrong Congress.

Congressmen should have an increase of pay. They are now getting $7500 a year. Both houses, in a manner that can be described as furtive, have voted to increase these salaries to $10,000 annually. At the same time the bill raises Cabinet honorariums from $12,000 to $15,000. These are reasonable increases. Living costs everywhere, and in Washington particularly, have doubled since "Uncle Joe" Cannon maneuvered an increase from $5000 to $7500 back in 1908. Rail workers, miners, plumbers and bricklayers have doubled their wages in that time. So has most every one else.

The trouble is, that a do-nothing, blundering and discredited Congress has taken upon itself the job of raising congressional pay. The instant reaction of the average citizen is that the Sixty-eighth Congress has been overpaid. It will be admitted that an able Congressman is worth every dime of $10,000 a year. This Congress has been anything but able. An exasperated public, tired of its wrangling, its heap partisanship, its blocs and selfish minorities, has reason to wince when, without debate or a record vote, it undertakes to increase salaries $1,327,500 a year.

These salaries should be raised but this is not the Congress to raise them. Along with most other matters of importance, this had best go over to the Sixty-ninth Congress.—Phila. Ledger.

Inauguration Simplicity.

The decision to keep the Inauguration as simple as possible has nothing to do with the ceremony itself, which is the essence of simplicity. The election of a president being certified, he is sworn into office upon the expiry of the preceding term, and that is all there is of it. It may take place in the front parlor of a Buffalo residence as did Roosevelt's, or in a Vermont farmhouse as did Coolidge's. The rest is all extraneous and save when it is the spontaneous ebullition of a people's rejoicing it is apt to become showy. Of recent years it has degenerated into sheer commercialism.

Still, there is value in public demonstrations of loyalty and rejoicing. The Fourth of July was once the occasion of great national recollection of American history and American principles; and the Inauguration was once an occasion for the American clans, the States, to gather about their chief. But until the spirit returns, the picnic atmosphere of commercialized trivialities will remain. And it is just as well that they have as little government countenance as possible.

Washington is open to all who wish to attend the Inauguration. The central event itself will be in no way diminished. All the high dignity required by the induction of a Chief Magistrate into office will be observed. There is really no reason why Washington should have fewer visitors because the gewgaws are cut out.—Dearborn Independent.

You Tell Him!

Johnson had obtained work in a railway yard and was told to mark some trucks.

"Here's a piece of chalk," said the foreman. "Mark each of 'em eleven."

A little later the foreman came around again to see how the new hand had been getting on. He found him sitting on a bucket regarding a truck thoughtfully. Marked upon it was a large 1.

"What does this mean?" asked the foreman. "Only one truck done, and the number wrong at that. I said eleven, not one."

"I know," said Johnson, "but I couldn't think on which side of the '1' the other '1' goes!"

Sexton Kept Track

"I canna git over it," remarked a farmer to his wife. "I put a twa-shillin' piece in the plate at the kirk this mornin' instead o' my usual penny."

The beadle had noticed the mistake, and in silence he allowed the farmer to miss the plate for 23 consecutive Sundays.

On the twenty-fourth Sunday the farmer again ignored the plate, but the old beadle stretched the ladle in front of him and, in a tragic whisper, hoarsely said:

"Your time's up noo, Sandy."—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Frog That Liked Eggs

A little girl who studies birds made the discovery that a frog will eat a blackbird's eggs, the London Morning Post reports. She found a low-built nest with two eggs, one having a small hole at the big end. Next day she found a frog on the nest, its tongue flicking in and out of the hole. "Either the noise of the grass under my feet, or the gasp I let out," she relates in a kind of affidavit, "frightened the frog away." On the third day she found both the eggs with holes and empty. Unlike toads, frogs boast teeth, but are not usually reckoned among egg thieves.

HARNEY.

Mr. Geo. B. Baker a resident of Ohio, who came to Harney about two years ago, to visit his sister and brother, Mrs. Emanuel Fuss and D. Albert Baker, and his brother William Baker, of New Midway, after visiting for some time, decided to remain here for a while, and secured a position as night watchman at the B. F. Shriver cannery.

Last Sunday evening he had gone to make fire in the factory office to have it comfortable for the night, and it was noticed by the neighbors that there was something wrong with him, however, he managed to cross the street to his boarding place but had to be helped into the house, and suddenly became unconscious and a doctor was hastily summoned, who rushed him to the Warner hospital at Gettysburg, where it was discovered that he had a stroke.

He died about 1:30 A. M. on Monday morning, C. O. Fuss & Son were notified and his remains were brought to the home of his sister, Mrs. Fuss, this place, about noon, Monday.

Mr. Baker has four sons living in Ohio, who were notified, and one of them arrived here on Tuesday, about noon, to accompany the body back to Ohio, and left from Taneytown on the 4 o'clock train and expected to reach their home about 10 A. M. Wednesday morning, where the body will be interred in Rock Creek cemetery, located about 7 miles from Tiffin.

Mr. Baker was in his 73rd year, and being of a kind and jolly disposition he made many friends while here, who were greatly shocked to learn of his very sudden death. Only a few days previous he had written to his boys and informed them that he was enjoying the very best of health, and liked his work very much, and when they received the telegram announcing his death, they could scarcely believe it.

D. P. Sents has his new mill about completed, and from personal observation must say that he now has a nice up-to-date little mill, and will soon be turning out his usual good quality of flour again, and many people in this community will do their own baking again, which is much cheaper than buying bread.

Our dirt roads are now in a terrible shape; the bottom seems to have fallen out this week, and many machines were unable to pull through some of the worst places. Many who want to get to Gettysburg are going around by Taneytown and Emmitsburg; that makes a drive of 25 miles to get about 8 miles from home.

Of course, we have come to the age when nothing but the very best of hard roads are required to stand the test of the heavy traffic.

In Sacred Remembrance of our dear Sister
MAGGIE M. C. SAUBLE, who died one year ago, Feb. 26, 1924.

Just one year ago today,
Since our dear Sister passed away;
From the world of woe and pain,
To Heaven, where we hope to meet again.

From her death-bed so sweet and strong,
Her favored hymns she loudly sung;
God called her home, it was his will;
But in our hearts we love her still.

One by one the broken circle;
Missing links from love's shattered chain;
We can see through faith eternal,
Which awaits us, united again.

Her Sister, CARRIE G. STONESIFER.

In Sad But Loving Remembrance of our
Dear Father,
GEORGE ROOP,
who departed this life two years ago,
February 25th, 1925.

Oh Father, must we give you up;
You whom we loved so well.
How can we drink the bitter cup,
And say the last farewell.

Oh, how sudden was the summons,
When word came that he was dead;
Time was so short to say farewell,
To those he loved so dear.

Yes, we

Our Letter Box

Under this heading we will be glad to publish letters from former Carroll-countians, who are now away from home; and especially letters from those whose home was Taneytown. These letters are very interesting, to many, and we should be glad to publish one or more each week. On account of their length, it is not always convenient to use letters on first page, and will hereafter use the 4th or 5th page.

Twenty-five Years Ago in Taneytown.

Miss Effie E. Hess was principal of Hampstead High School.

Rudolph Martin died at his home near Sells Mill.

Mention was made of the fact that Col. Jos. A. Goulden had been re-elected President of the G. A. R., of New York City, and of the Tax-payers Alliance.

Sergt. H. L. Baumgardner, 17th. U. S. Infantry returned to his home on the 17th, having received his discharge in Manila, on Dec. 24, coming home via the Pacific and San Francisco.

Among the weddings was that of M. Ross Fair and Miss Lauretta R. Hess, the ceremony being performed by Rev. C. A. Britt, at the bride's home, on Feb. 21.

Simon Frelang and Miss Josephine Cook were married on the 21st., by Rev. B. J. Lennon.

Harvey T. Ott and Miss Annie L. Aulhouse were married on the 14th., by Rev. E. L. McLean, in Frederick.

Wm. H. Crouse, formerly a Taneytown hotel keeper, died in Emmitsburg, Feb. 15th.

The following Justices of the Peace had just been appointed for Taneytown; John H. Diffendal, Henry T. Williams, Joel Blizard and Norman B. Hagan.

Sheriff Geo. W. Motter, State's Attorney E. O. Weant and Justice Baer, conducted an inquest over the body of George Ford, which was found near Taneytown, the verdict being that he met his death by freezing.

There were 40 sales in the sale register.

Markets were as follows: Wheat 70c; Corn 37c; Oats 30c; Rye 45c; Hay $7.00 to $10.00; Bran $19.00; Middlings $19.00; Potatoes 30c; Beef Cattle $4.00; Hogs, gross, $5.00; Butter 20c; Eggs 11c; Hams 10c.

Do You Remember—

When catching rabbits and selling walnuts were the chief income of country boys?

When each boy and girl had a money bag with a draw string, in which their pennies were saved?

When the first big ambition of every boy was to own a "Barlow" knife—the two-bladed being out of his class?

When the boy with a good home-made sled, or a wagon with sawed out board wheels, was considered fortunate?

When red ink was sometimes made from "poke berries" and blue ink from indigo?

When slate pencils were hand made from soft blue or yellow slate stones?

When linen and cottonade suits were the common garments for men and boys, during the summer—Sunday and Week-day—linen being especially "tony."

When unbleached muslin was the almost universal material for men's shirts?

When a home-made cap and woolen mittens were a necessary part of a boy's winter school costume?

When candy in the home was largely limited to molasses taffy and popcorn balls?

When the popular indoor games were fig-mill, and home-made dominos and checkers—and not much of either?

When finger rings were carved out of black gutta-percha buttons and when silver rings for gentlemen and ladies were considered a valuable ornament.

When "button strings" were in fashion—buttons being given by friends, and the owner of the largest string was an object of envy?

Musk Oxen Muskless

The musk ox of North America is a true connecting link between wild cattle and sheep. It has horns like the wild Cape buffalo of Africa, cattle-like hoofs, and its flesh looks and tastes like beef.

It has next its body a dense coat of soft, clean woolly hair, and through this grows a rain coat of very long, straight brown hair like that of the Tibetan yak. It has a tail so short and small that the animal seems tailless.

The horns meet in a broad base over the top of the skull, drop far down then sharply curve upward for several inches, terminating in sharp points. They are specially designed for puncturing the vitals of wolves and polar bears.

The musk ox lives and thrives even up to the farthest north for hoofed animals, says the Detroit News. Its supply of "musk" and its "musk" odor are both wholly imaginary.

The Why of Superstitions

By H. IRVING KING

CAT'S BLOOD

IN FOLK-LORE medicine the blood of a black cat plays an important part. It is recommended for a sty, the shingles, and for a spavined horse, among other things. As a rule it is a few drops of blood from the tip of a black cat's tail which is specified as possessing the magic and curative qualities. For ringworm blood from either the tail or the ear will do. Canada and New England appear to be the regions in which this bit of folk-medicine is most popular.

This superstition, like all the other superstitions connected with cats—and there are many of them—has its derivation far back in the past. It is a remnant of the cat worship of the ancient Egyptians and of pussy's mysterious connection with the moon-goddess, Isis—a connection which may have at first been suggested by the physical peculiarities of a cat's eyes, their faculty of adjusting themselves to light and darkness so noticeably.

In all ages and in all mythologies the cat has appeared as a mystic creature, but her first appearance as a creature of magic was in Egypt; in which country, indeed, the animal is supposed to have been first domesticated and from which country both its name, "cat," and the reputation of mystic qualities attached to it, spread throughout the world. The use of the black cat's blood in folk-medicine is an appeal for relief to Isis—or, perhaps, to the cat-headed goddess Pshat.

FLY-AWAY NANNIE

"AND be sure to lock the door after you," ended Nannie's mother. But by this time Nannie was out of sight and hearing. It was always that way. This was just like her—going off half-cocked and losing the end of her mother's directions. Now the chickens would all escape while she was bringing in the eggs. Nannie was what the neighbors called a "fly-away child."

Then she grew up. She was pretty and she was pursued. Christopher pursued her with slow and deliberate methods. Christopher always weighed the consequences before acting. The ground was solid, not only beneath Christopher's feet, but also several yards in advance of him. Indeed, he cut a poor figure beside young Dashwood, who would take a situation by storm, who won—if he

The SANDMAN STORY

TOM KITTEN'S LUCK

TOM KITTEN had had a hard time of it ever since he could remember. If he ever had a mother he did not remember her, and he never had a home.

Tom slept anywhere he happened to find a place when he was tired running away from big dogs. In fact, most of his life, it seemed to Tom, had been spent in running from dogs and dodging stones and brooms.

One day Tom found himself in a place where there were no high buildings or noisy street cars. Tom Kitten did not think there could be so many trees in the world as he could see now.

He felt so happy he ran, and the farther he ran the nicer things looked, little white houses and more trees and flowers, and, best of all, Tom found garbage cans.

Awakened by a Big Dog Barking Right in His Face.

"This is a pretty good country to live in," thought Tom that night when he crept behind a barrel on the soft grass to sleep, but he was rudely awakened in the morning by a big dog barking right in his face.

Tom was city bred and quick at jumping, and he was on top of a fence before the dog had recovered from his surprise at a scratch Tom gave him on the tip of his nose, and pretty soon the dog tired of barking at Tom, ran away, and Tom went hunting for his breakfast.

He found plenty to eat, and that night he slept under some steps, where he found an old bag, the nicest bed

Tom ever had known, and in the morning, when the sun shone in through the cracks nice and warm and awoke him, Tom Kitten for the first time in his life did not have to jump and run.

Instead he stretched himself and yawned, and if he were not so hungry Tom thought he would like to stay there the rest of his nine lives, for he was certain something dreadful must be awaiting him outside.

But when he crawled out from under the steps and looked around all was still, so he walked up the steps and sat in the warm sunshine to make his toilet.

Tom eyed a bottle of milk on the steps. There was no way of getting any, and he had tasted milk only a few times. That was when someone broke a bottle and he was able to get a few licks before he was driven away.

While he was washing his face someone opened the door, and instead of a bang from a broom a pleasant voice said, "Hello, puss, where did you come from?"

Tom was quite surprised at the nice sound he made as he rubbed against the nice voiced person. He had never done much purring, and he was pleased with the sound.

The kitchen door was open, and as Tom looked in he saw a mouse, and forgetting brooms and stones he ran in and caught it.

"Well, if this puss can't catch a mouse!" exclaimed the nice person. "You are a real cat. You don't wait for your breakfast to be brought to you on a plate. You shall have a saucer of milk."

Tom crawled under the stove. He had never seen one before, but somehow he knew just what to do, and while he was dozing he heard someone say, "We'll keep that kitten. He knows how to catch mice."

That night behind the stove Tom found a nice bed made for him. "This is what I call luck," said Tom as he curled up for a good night's sleep. Not all night, of course, for Tom knew that mice run about mostly in the dark, and he wanted to show he was grateful for such a good home, so he slept with one ear open, ready to catch the faintest sound.

The Appleton Family

Mr. Lysander John Appleton
Mrs. Lysander John Appleton
Miss Daysey Mayme Appleton
Master Chauncey Devere Appleton

MRS. LYSANDER JOHN APPLETON claims to be the neatest housekeeper in her town. Her kitchen floor was painted two months ago, and she points to it with pride now. Not a vestige of paint left on it. Ordinarily, it takes three years to scrub all the paint off a kitchen floor, but Mrs. Appleton did it in two months.

If Lysander John Appleton gave the guests all the chicken his wife begs them to eat, there would be nothing left for the Appleton family but the neck and the gravy.

Daysey Mayme Appleton has issued a card to the public as follows: "Perhaps, being only a simple little girl, my influence in this great world will never amount to much, but what little weight it may possess I wish to throw in the interests of peace. I desire to ask kind friends that they no longer invite my father, the Honorable Lysander John Appleton, to any evening entertainments. When he gets the invitation he roars till he has reached the hostess's door, and is cross for a week afterward. He always says he won't go, and my mother always makes him, and he gets so riled up that it is almost impossible for me to coax any money out of him for a month later. If kind friends will add to their invitations, 'Mr. Appleton Not Expected,' I may get him back to that calm, submissive state of mind where it will no longer be necessary for me to pick his pockets after night."

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

A RAY OF SUNSHINE

IT MATTERS not how lowly we may be, nor how dread life-tides about our little selves may ebb and flow, there is always some one among our friends and acquaintances upon whom we can shed a ray of sunshine.

Some one is living under darker skies than we, longing for encouraging words or cheering smiles; some one is starving for affection which means to him or her a lamp of hope; some one is striving to overcome ruinous habits, too weak to hold his or her frail craft on a safe course.

Each one needs a ray of friendship, the blessed boon which if used aright would make the whole world brighter, knit mankind closer in happiness, soothe aching hearts, dry burning tears and hide from cold stares the beggar's outstretched hand.

There is something in soul-sunshine that penetrates the toughest fiber in human nature.

So send forth this mystic cheer far and wide.

There are hungry hearts everywhere, behind walls of marble and slabs of hovels, praying for appreciation and sympathy.

Find one if we can and blow to flame the spark that kindles love. Scatter sunshine across the sea and over the land until it shall turn night to noon-tide.

We may speak different dialects, but we can punctuate our sentences with cheer and make ourselves understood, not clumsily nor dimly, but easily and clearly as the sunlight of heaven.

And if we have within us the right spirit, we can continue this beneficent work until love shall canopy the earth, faith and hope flood the dark places with glorious light and sorrow turn to gladness. Whatever the number of good deeds we may have done, however far we have flung the sunshine, there will be times in our lives when we shall feel that we have not done enough to merit the peace which is ours—unspeakably sweet and rich beyond price.

Up Against It

"You've heard of a person being in a quandary, haven't you?" Peterson asked.

"Sure," replied Brown. "Why?"
"Well, I just had a letter from an old friend, and he's in one. He's been in rather bad health for some time, so the other day he went to see a doctor, and the doctor advised him to take two or three months' complete rest. That's where the quandary comes in. He's been working for the government for 15 years and doesn't know where to look for a more complete rest."

Settled Manhattan Island

In the first ship sent to the present territory of the United States by the Dutch West Indies company, the New Netherland, which landed in the Hudson river in 1623, Walloons, led by Jesse de Forest, were passengers. The eight families left on Manhattan, which was named "New Avesnes," constituted the first settlement of that now famous and valuable island and the first homesteaders, in fact, in the Middle Atlantic states.

Orthodoxy

The orthodox Jew is bigoted and austere. He is a glutton for pain and sorrow. He likes to brood and pity himself. He has no instinct for the joy of living and disapproves of such a trait in others.

But he does not take life indifferently; neither is he bumptious about it. He has strength of character and is able to thrive in the face of adversity. He believes in work. He is seldom a drunkard and eats with prudence, and clean food. He is a man of spiritual ideals and a moral man. He loves law and order and seldom gets into the criminal class.—Sonya Leven, in Hearst's International.

Immense Icebergs

It is easier to understand the menace from icebergs in the northern Atlantic when it is realized that they often reach huge proportions. Some icebergs in the north Atlantic above the Arctic circle have been found by computation to weigh 10,000 tons.

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean of the Evening School, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for March 1 CHRIST BEFORE PILATE

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 27:11-31.
GOLDEN TEXT—"He was wounded for our transgressions; He was bruised for our iniquities."—Isa. 53:5.
PRIMARY TOPIC—How Tried Men Tried Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Trial of Jesus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Trial of Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christ Before Pilate.

In order to have a proper perspective for this lesson it will be helpful if we view in their proper relations our Lord's trials.

A. Ecclesiastical.
1. Before Annas (John 18:13).
2. Before Caiaphas and the Sanhedrin (Matt. 26:57, 59-66; Mark 14:53, 55-64; Luke 22:54; John 18:19-24). This was an irregular meeting and held at night.
3. Before the Sanhedrin (Matt. 27:1; Luke 22:66-71). This was held at daybreak and was a formal meeting.
B. Civil.
1. Before Pilate (Matt. 27:11-26). The ecclesiastical powers had voted a sentence of death upon Jesus, but they lacked the right to inflict capital punishment, as this power had been taken from them by the Romans. For this reason they delivered Him to Pilate, the Roman governor. It was in the early morning after the mock trial before the high priests and Peter's denial that they bound Jesus and delivered Him to Pilate. It turned out, therefore, that both Jews and Gentiles were guilty of the crucifixion of the Savior.

1. Pilate Questions Jesus (vv. 11-14).
(1) "Art thou the King of the Jews?" (v. 11). When the trial was transferred from the Sanhedrin to Pilate they changed their charge of blasphemy to that of sedition or treason.

(2) Jesus' answer (v. 11). He admitted His claim to being a king but explained that His Kingdom was not of this world, else would His servants fight to put Him on the throne (John 18:3, 37). He declared that He was born and had come into the world to this end.

(3) "Hearst Thou not how many things they witness against Thee?" (v. 13). The members of the Sanhedrin—the priests and the elders—joined in their accusation against Him. They brought a three-fold charge (Luke 23:2).
(a) Perverting the nation—guilty of sedition.
(b) Forbidding to pay taxes to the Roman government.
(c) Claiming to be a king, thus changing the charge from a religious to a political one.

(4) Jesus' Behavior (v. 14). His silence under such provocation greatly astonished Pilate.
2. Pilate Giving a Choice Between Jesus and Barabbas (vv. 15-26).
(1) The offer made (v. 17). It was the annual custom at great festivals to release a prisoner chosen by the people. Because he knew that for envy they had delivered Jesus he gave them the choice between Barabbas and Jesus. After several unsuccessful efforts to escape responsibility the expediency of letting the people choose between Barabbas and Jesus was resorted to. Pilate no doubt thought they would choose Jesus rather than the notorious Barabbas.

(2) A message from Pilate's wife (v. 19). She warned him against having anything to do in the condemnation of Christ.
(3) The choice made (v. 21). Influenced by the warning from his wife Pilate wished to give Jesus another chance by having the people choose between the innocent and the guilty. They actually chose the notorious criminal Barabbas instead of Christ.

(4) The demand that Christ be crucified (vv. 22, 23). Pilate, the judge, showed great weakness in asking the crowd in the court room what should be done with the prisoner. With one voice they cried, "Let him be crucified."
(5) Pilate washes his hands (v. 24). This was the sign that he was innocent of the blood of Jesus, but guilt could not be so easily removed. The blood of Jesus was on his hands.

(6) The people's awful choice (v. 25). The history of the Jews from that day to this shows how awful has been the execution of this curse upon them.
(7) Jesus scourged (v. 26). It seems to have been the custom to scourge before crucifying. This was so terrible that sometimes the victim died as the result of it. Pilate stands for the man of expediency. The opportunist is a most contemptible man.

II. Before Herod (Luke 23:7-11).
The best man is the one who wishes and seeks best. His ability to do may be limited, but he touches his restrictions.—Presbyterian Record.

The Cost of Friendliness

1 Samuel 20:1-4; 2 Samuel 1:26;
John 15:13, 14

No finer example of human friendship can be found than that which is seen in the story of David and Jonathan. This friendship began when David returned from the fight with Goliath. Possibly the faith and courage of David called forth the admiration of Jonathan. He, too, was a hero as later events disclosed, and doubtless this element in his nature was stirred by the heroic act of David. In 1 Samuel 18:1 we read that "the soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David." That was the beginning of a friendship which ended only with death. Its maintenance through passing years was costly but the price was gladly paid. Jonathan knew that the throne of his father which by right of succession was his, would pass over to his friend David and that he would be ruler and leader of the nation, yet there was no envy in Jonathan's heart. He gladly espoused the cause of David, risking his interests and even his life in loyalty to his friend. In return he received from David that implicit confidence and trust that broke down all limitations and reserves. David's estimate of Jonathan and his feelings towards him find expression in 2 Samuel 1:25, 26. Again in later years when David reigned over a peaceful and prosperous kingdom, he remembered Jonathan and said, "Is there any left of the house of Saul that I may show him kindness for Jonathan's sake?" When that some one was found, the friendship of David found another expression even though it cost something.

The divine friendship also is costly. "Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you." Through faith in Jesus Christ, believers are brought into saving and vital relationship with Him, but this of itself does not guarantee continued fellowship. The condition for that is found in the words already quoted from John 15:13, 14. Much depends upon meeting the condition, "if ye do whatsoever I command you." His commands are not grievous. He commands a life of love one to another and a life of labor for the lost. "Lift up your eyes and look"—then pray, give, go. Yes, it costs, but it is worth the price.

Old Scottish Buildings Something of Mystery

All over Scotland are hundreds of forts built on hilltops. The White Caterthun, in Forfarshire, is a good example of these. It consists of four circles of stone, the diameter of the inner circle being 80 paces. The stones are 25 feet thick at the top and over 100 feet thick at the base.

Beyond the outer circle is a ditch with an earthen breastwork round it, while beyond this, again, runs a double entrenchment. The entrances to these various circles are zigzagged, so that each remains covered by fortifications.

The fort at Bamukin, in Aberdeenshire, has five great stone circles, all flawlessly built, although there are no toolmarks to show how they were shaped.

These buildings are interesting, but not puzzling, but there are others, commonly known as Picts' Burghs, to which no use can be assigned.

A burgh is a single tower, round in shape, wide at the bottom and narrowing towards the top from the outside. The outer walls of these towers, shaped into circles, have no openings of any sort except the entrance. Obviously, then, the buildings were never intended for forts.

Inside the walls slope the reverse way, and between the two are countless rooms, often too small for people ever to have lived in them. The largest of these mystery towers is that of Rousay, in the Orkneys.

Giants Credited With Building of Causeway

The Giants' causeway is a group of basaltic rocks on the north coast of Antrim, Ireland. This promontory, which is a portion of the basaltic formations found in the country of Antrim and near Londonderry, projects into the North Channel. It is called Giants' causeway from the legend that it was the beginning of a road which the giants began to build across the channel to Scotland. In past geological periods the basaltic rock seems to have been forced upward. After long periods of erosion a long line of perpendicular cliffs 500 feet high is left. For a distance of about 500 or 600 feet are many thousands of vertical columns. Most of them are six-sided, although some of them have five, seven, eight and even nine regularly formed sides. In diameter they range from 20 to 30 inches. The tops of these pillars form an uneven pavement, hence the name "causeway." Strictly speaking, the Giants' causeway is formed of three causeways, the Little, Honeycomb and Grand causeways.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Over a period of years

THE Ford car has remained the undisputed leader for value in the motoring world. There are certain fundamental reasons why this is true. It is a car, properly designed and staunchly constructed, having a motor which has proved itself reliable, long-lived and economical.

It is adequately serviced by an organization reaching to every community and neighborhood. These combine to give the Ford car the highest resale value in proportion to list price.

And as production volume of the Ford has grown the purchase price has been steadily reduced.

Many Ingenious Ways of Ascertaining Time

In the Sixteenth century, in polished Parisian society, there came into vogue the etiquette of the watch. One of the rules was that it should not be consulted in the salon, such an act being taken as an indication that the owner was tired of his company.

An ingenious watchmaker therefore brought out a watch with raised figures and a fairly solid hand. When the owner wished to know the time he slipped a surreptitious finger into his pocket, passed it along the pointer and read the hour as the blind man reads Braille.

The watch with the luminous dial, from which the time may be told in the dark, had a number of strange prototypes. One of the most curious was the timekeeper invented by a celebrated member of the French academy, M. de Villayer. He had constructed a clock which, face upwards, was attached to the head of his bed. In the place of the figures marking the hours, there were small cups which sunk into the dial, and were filled with 12 kinds of spices.

In the night M. de Villayer would moisten a finger, pass it along the pointer, dip it into the cup to which it pointed and taste the spice. The cinnamon might stand for three o'clock, nutmeg for four o'clock and so on.—Kansas City Times.

Cruel Old Custom

There was a time when "laughing" faces were actually manufactured to meet the demand of those who wished to be amused. Up to the end of the reign of James II, human "sculpture" work was carried out by roving tribes of gypsies called Comprachios, who were of Spanish origin. They bought and even kidnapped children, and practiced a science or art of human disfigurement.

Children thus treated grew up with an immovable and fantastic grin. They were an attraction at all successful traveling booths and entertainments until the custom was repressed by William III.

Various Kinds of Seal

Hair seal is the term applied to animals of the sealod family. It is found in extra tropical portions of the sea, along temperate and colder portions of the globe. Only the variety known as Greenland seal is of significance to the fur trade. The two-months-old cub of the Greenland seal has a skin used in the trade, and is known as white coat seal. According to age this animal passes into grades known as small spot seal, meddling spot seal (two years old). Later it becomes spot seal, and, when finally full colored, harp seal.

Old-Time Delicacy

The following is a recipe for old-fashioned hominy, which was recently published in a farm paper: In three quarts of water dissolve one tablespoonful of lye. Shell a quantity of good corn, put it in the kettle of lye and boil until the hulls are removed. Pour off the lye, wash and rewash, and boil in clean water. Pour off the water several times and supply fresh. This is much the same as the hulled corn of the New England states, which is eaten with sweet milk, but which may be served stewed with gravy.

All Art Combination of Hands, Brain, and Heart

In one of Ruskin's essays he talks about art, and points out the difference between manufacture, craft and art. How would you define them? What does "manufacture" mean? You know from your music lessons, as well as from your Latin lessons, that "manus" means hand, and "facto" means do, or make. Therefore, manufacture is to make with the hands, says a writer in the London Times. Nowadays, however, machines have been invented to help the hands, and thus more can be made in a given time. The fine work of the brain is not required but is left to others who show the workers what to do.

Craft, he tells us, is anything that is done with the hands and the brain; so more mental control is required and skill results. Thus each worker depends upon his own brain and invents his own methods of producing results, and executes his own ideas.

Art, he asserts, is that which is produced by the hands, brain and heart. Thus, painting, sculpture and music are on a higher plane because they require the co-operation of the head and heart (soul or spirit, some may prefer to call it). Nothing can be called real art which is produced only by the hand and head; although it may be very clever, precise or skillful. It lacks the inner appeal—the appeal of the heart.

Possibility Venus of Milo Never Had Arms

It may be some consolation to art lovers throughout the world, who have wondered in what position were the missing arms of the famous Venus of Milo statue in the Louvre, to learn that even the ancients themselves were perplexed on this point, according to a letter to the Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

Doctor Edde, a French physician, has just made known that during a recent visit to Egypt he came into possession of a small bronze statuette of the same period as the Venus of Milo. This statuette is an exact copy of the famous Venus, and like the original, it has no arms. Doctor Edde therefore concludes that the Venus of Milo never at any time had arms, and he believes that the sculptor, when he had carved out of stone such a divine form, gave up all idea of adding arms. When the Venus of Milo was discovered on the Island of Milo a large reward was offered to anyone who could find the arms, but, in spite of extensive search, nothing was discovered.

For Umbrella Protection

A well-known business man had a bad habit of losing umbrellas, and as they were usually expensive ones, he hit upon the happy idea of having his telephone number engraved on the handle. Since then he lost his umbrella half a dozen times, but owing to the telephone number he had always recovered it. The finder does not have to send it back; he rings up the number and the owner gladly calls for it. If the finder is dishonest he will not feel comfortable with that tell-tale number, and if he himself loses it, as ten to one he will, a more honest person will eventually inform the original owner. The latter, of course, will know nothing of the umbrella's adventures. If only the umbrella could talk!

Last week, a subscriber in this district told us that recently, while talking of dropping The Record, the little girl of the family said, "No, don't stop it, and I'll do without new over-shoes this winter." Now, that is very, very, fine; but should it come to a case of necessity, when the Record, or a pair of overshoes must be done without for a little girl in the country, who goes to school, we would have to advise buying the overshoes.

Another Lincoln Story.

This story was told by Hon. Adlai E. Stevenson: "Several months before President Lincoln issued the great Proclamation of Emancipation which gave freedom to the whole race of Negro slaves in America, my friend, Senator Henderson, of Missouri, came to the White House one day and found Mr. Lincoln in a mood of deepest depression. Finally the great President said to his caller and friend that the most constant and acute pressure was being brought upon him by the leaders of the radical element of his party to free the slaves.

"Sumner and Stevens and Wilson simply haunt me," declared Mr. Lincoln, "with their importunities for a proclamation of emancipation. Wherever I go and whatever way I turn, they are on my trail. And still, in my heart, I have the deep conviction that the hour has not yet come."

"Just as he said this he walked to the window looking out upon Pennsylvania Avenue and stood there in silence, his tall figure silhouetted against the light of the window pane, every line of it and of his gracious face expressive of unutterable sadness. Suddenly his lips began to twitch into a smile and his somber eyes lighted with a twinkle of something like mirth.

"The only schooling I ever had, Henderson," he remarked, "was in a log schoolhouse when reading books and grammars were unknown. All our reading was done from the Scriptures, and we stood up in a long line and read in turn from the Bible. Our lesson one day was the story of the faithful Israelites who were thrown into the fiery furnace and delivered by the hand of the Lord without so much as the smell of fire upon their garments. It fell to one little fellow to read the verse in which occurred, for the first time in the chapter, the names of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego. Little Bud stumbled on Shadrach, floundered on Meshach, and went all to pieces on Abed-nego. Instantly the hand of the master dealt him a cuff on the side of the head and left him wailing and blubbering as the next boy in line took up the reading. But before the girl at the end of the line had done reading he had subsided into sniffling, and finally became quite quiet. His blunder and disgrace were forgotten by the others of the class until his turn was approaching to read again. Then, like a thunder-clap out of a clear sky, he set up a wail which even alarmed the master, who with rather unusual gentleness inquired:

"What's the matter now?" "Pointing with a shaking finger at the verse which a few moments later would fall to him to read, Bud managed to quaver out the answer: "Look there, marster—there comes them same damn three fellers again."

"Then his whole face lighted with such a smile as only Lincoln could give and he beckoned Senator Henderson to his side, silently pointing his long, bony finger to three men who were at that moment crossing Pennsylvania Avenue toward the door of the White House. They were Sumner, Wilson and Thaddeus Stevens."

Loyalty to Employer.

Ten men may be employed by one firm, each of whom are equally good workmen, yet five of them be worth much more to their employer than the other five. The difference between the men may be entirely in their interest—their loyalty—toward the employer and his interests, and the latter often counts for as much as the actual work done or more; in fact, it is considered, very often, in the salary payments.

The most valued employees are those who stand by, and in every way represent, the employer and his business. The man who works for pay alone, and who considers his full duty done to his employer when he has put in so many hours a day at his job, then feels independent enough to perhaps, on the side, do things contrary to his employer's interests, is not a loyal employee, and is not in line for promotion, nor even for holding the place he has.

When any man feels that he can not hold full respect for, nor interest in, his work—can not be a partisan for his employer—there are but two honorable things for him to do; one is to resign, and the other is to change his attitude, and in this consideration, the character—honorable or otherwise—of the employer and his business, forms a real part in the decision of the employee. An honest man can not afford to work for a dishonest business.

No man can successfully serve two opposing interests, at the same time, and the truth is as old as Holy writ itself. Many try it; in fact, it is a sort of free-for-all spirit that has pretty wide performance, and is backed by the argument of personal freedom, and the you "can take it or leave it" point of view. But, in the long run it does not pay, because it does not result in that strong bond of mutual interest that should always be present between an honest employer, and equally honest employees.
