VOL. 31

TANEYTOWN, MARYLAND, FRIDAY, MARCH 13, 1925.

NO. 37

BOARD OF EDUCATION MONTHLY MEETING.

Numerous Important Matters, Pertaining to Schools of County.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education was called to order at 10:15 A. M., in the office of the Board on March 4, 1925. All Commissioners were present.

The minutes of the previous meeting were approved as read.

The following resolution was passed.

Resolved, That this Board counsel advised the President and officers of this Board that they shall execute and acknowledge a confirmatory deed conveying to the heirs of the late George B. Murphy a fee simple title to the Poole school, Berrett District, the former deed for this property dated March 15, 1921, consideration of $600, then paid by George B. Murphy, contains an error in that in one part of the deed appears the name Howard H. Devibiss, of New Windsor, who was not the purchaser of this property and did not pay anything on it.

The resignations of Miss C. Margery Eveler and Mr. Parker Monath were accepted, as they were teaching on provisional certificates.

An emergency arose when the furnace in the Union Bridge school broke down, and the broken equipment could not be purchased due to the fact that the furnace is no longer being constructed, and, thereupon, the Superintendent removed the furnace from the Taneytown school, and set it up in the Union Bridge school. This action was approved by the Board.

The demand for a two-room school at Detour, was laid on the table for further consideration.

A committee consisting of President Wantz and Superintendent Unger was appointed to advise with the Attorney of the Board with respect to furthering the matter of the Collins Brown estate.

The request for a reconsideration of the amount to be allowed for the school-room heater for Priestland school, was refused.

The Board found it advisable to transfer the four small school-room heaters which are now being used in the two Westminster Portable buildings to rural schools, including Retreat, Priestland and Johnsville, and to place two large school-room heaters in the Westminster portables.

Requests for contributions to local funds raised for school equipment were presented to the Board which contributed $10.00 to the amount already raised in each case, with the understanding that the same is to be paid when the necessary funds are available.

Baust $10.00 library; Oak Grove, $13.00 dictionary and records; Snydersburg, $21.00 phonograph; Wesley $10.00 maps; Frizellburg $10.00 records and supplementary readers; Highland View $10.00 phonograph; Otterdale $23.00 phonograph; Emory $10.00 maps; Bish $15.00 phonograph; Lowe $31.11 library; Cranberry $21.64 library and maps; Finksbury $22.20 playground equipment; Patapsco $24.86 maps, etc.

The Superintendent was authorized to return the remainder of the building fund amounting to $3766.84 which has been lying in the treasury to the credit of the Pleasant Gap building fund, to the County Commissioners, with the suggestion that this sum be either returned to the common treasury of the county, or be used for the purpose of reducing the debt on the Mt. Airy school, and the accumulated interest to be credited to the general funds. The disposition of this fund to be a matter for the County Commissioners to determine.

In view of the fact that the Good Hope school did not have the required average, the school was closed. Frank Yingling was awarded the contract to transport these children to and from Charles Carroll school at $4.00 a day for the remainder of this school year.

The request of the Pleasant Valley community to have an outside stairway, or fire exit, built to their school building was granted, in view of the fact that they agreed to furnish the heavy lumber, and the danger from fire imminent on account of the numerous stoves in the building.

The Board was advised by its counsel that he had secured by prescriptive right, a good and sufficient title to the Retreat school property which has been in the care of the Board for the past twenty some years but for which it had never received a deed.

The Board of Education and the Board of County Commissioners held a joint meeting for the purpose of hearing the requests of delegations from Taneytown and Sykesville, respectively, for a new school building in each locality. No definite action was taken by the joint Boards.

The petition from the Lineboro school patrons were laid before the Board. The Superintendent was authorized to support the teacher and to ignore the requests of the patrons for the removal of the teacher.

The Board decided to ask for not less than $60,000 in the Budget for 1925-1926, so as to erect a new school building at Sykesville next year.

A committee of two, consisting of Commissioner Allender and Superintendent Unger, was appointed to represent the Board to take up further with the County Commissioners the matter of the Taneytown building.

The Board adjourned at 1:30.

Wm. A. Golden Reappointed Notary.

William A. Golden, Esq., Pittsburgh Saturday last was "sworn-in" for his ninth quadrennial term, inclusively 33rd-36th. year-period, as a notary-public; with Statewide authority. Unlike many aspirants for official appointment, he had not the least hesitancy in advance-subscribing to the present Governor's special condition for positive fidelity when, particularly instancing the XVIII Amendment to the Nation's Constitution; since he's been the strictest teetotaler always, or throughout his well-nigh three score and ten years of life.

Coupled with his 47½ years' career as a lawyer (as well as a forefront civic and lay religious worker, editor and author betimes), this boyhood-Taneytowner has honorably attained veteran-service in his home-community.

A Cross-word Puzzle.

More through curiosity than seriously, the Editor of The Record recently attempted the construction of a cross-word puzzle. He is neither a "fan," nor a "bug," in this direction, but was inveigled into trying to solve one of the popular fancies, and as the attempt required so much time, he made the mistake of declaring that it was "easier to make one, than solve one," therefore felt compelled to make his assertion good.

The result will be found on another page of this issue; but, this is the first and only, indulgence of the kind that this artist is likely to engage in. Should any of our readers solve this puzzle we will publish their names, after two weeks. The "two weeks" time is given for two reasons; first to give ample time in which to master its solution; and second, to prevent the possibility of showing up how easy it was to do in one week.

The thanks of the Editor are due to William F. Schmick, Business Manager of the Baltimore Sun, for the making of the plate by the stereotyping department of The Sun.

The Wishing Well.

The Taneytown High School Glee Clubs will present "The Wishing Well" a musical comedy in three acts at the Taneytown Opera House, on Tuesday and Wednesday, March 24 and 25, at 8 o'clock.

This is a new undertaking for the local school, and patrons and friends of the school are asked to support and encourage the boys and girls by their presence.

PENITENTIARY TO HAVE NEW HEAD

Col. Sweezy Resigns, following Criticism of His Course.

Col. Claude B. Sweezy has retired as head of the Maryland Penitentiary, recent escapes from the institution being the direct cause leading to the resignation; due, it is claimed, to Col. Sweezy's modern, humane policy that has been taken advantage of by the most hardened inmates, thereby likely to result in harsher regulations on all confined in the pen.

Since the last escape, about two weeks ago, that resulted in the death of one of the guards, the affairs of the penitentiary in general have been under investigation, and the management subject to much public and private criticism. What is known as the Morgan case, in particular, has been very unfavorably criticised, in which it appears that Morgan, an inmate, has been permitted to continue conducting his private business, by which it appears he has not only made considerable money, but has paid off some of the persons he defrauded.

Sweezy has been warden since 1920, and had charge of the House of Correction since 1923. During this period twelve prisoners have escaped, the last one murdering a guard, and one prisoner met with death trying to escape. Sweezy was generally popular with the prisoners, and while his ideals did not always work out as intended, it is believed by many that his influence for good over many of the inmates was quite pronounced, and that many have left the institution better men.

An Expression of Thanks.

Editor Carroll Record:-

The very deep and sincere feeling of gratitude which I express to you, and through The Carroll Record, to the numerous friends, who have rallied to my assistance in an unforeseen and distressing emergency, impels me to make a general acknowledgment to all, through the medium of this letter.

Having rendered through many years, the best services of which I was capable, to the community, and finding my physical condition such that I could no longer carry on my former work, as teacher, I believed that under the law I was justly and reasonably entitled to go upon the teacher's pension list.

The shock, when I discovered that this hope would probably be delayed of fulfillment for three long years, was indeed severe.

At this crisis, you and numerous others met the situation with an open handed generosity that has been truly helpful, and I wish to return my heartfelt thanks to each and every one.

I have accepted their kindly gifts as tokens of appreciation for what I have tried to do during the years that have gone, and out of sympathy for me in the unexpected dilemma that has befallen me.

I pray that God's richest blessings may come to all for their kindly thought sympathy, their words and generous acts, and that during the years I may be spared I shall prove worthy of their confidence and esteem.

Most Sincerely,
G. MAY FOUKE.

In explanation of the above, to those who may not understand the situation, Mrs. Fouke's name, under the law, has been placed on the Teacher's retired list, and is entitled to an annual pension from the state of $400., an amount ample to enable her to live modestly without need of other financial help; but, the legislature failed to make the necessary appropriation to provide for additions to the Teachers' pension roll, and she is apparently left to get along the best she can until the necessary legislation is enacted—or about another two years, or more, if then.

Efforts have been made with high state and school authorities to find some way to overcome the situation, but all in power seem to pass the case by as one for which there is no other recourse but to wait. Mrs. Fouke has been only temporarily provided for, and her anxiety for the future may be imagined. We still think that her case needs help from the source that provided a situation for which she is in no way responsible.

ED. RECORD.

The Opening of Spring, and State Road Accidents.

Last Sunday, the State road showed signs of the coming of Spring in the increased number of autos on parade. With this Spring opening will come also the increase in accidents, due to fast and careless driving, and sometimes to only the attending risks of motor travel on much-used highways. "Safety first," will be a good motto to adopt, and stick to, throughout the season. Hospitals and repair shops need not be made more profitable—just for pleasure.

Especially on Sunday, inexperienced drivers should not operate cars on the state roads. The wheel should always be in charge of a level head, and one not only looking out for his own car, but taking proper observation of crossroads, and of the cars both in front and in the rear; and when a complication occurs, the first thought should be safety, and not "taking a chance." It is better to "arrive" a little late, than not arrive at all.

BEFORE YOU INVEST.

Investigate Thoroughly—then prepare to Take Chances.

(For the Record).

Doubtless upon advice of more or less eminent counsel, Banking institutions which underwrite and sell securities to the public, including every Stock Exchange house, make a stipulation in their printed circulars and advertising which is what the common people call a "Joker." Securities are offered with what is known as the "hedge clause," which reads something like this—

"We do not guarantee the statements and figures contained herein, but they are taken from sources which we believe to be reliable."

Some day a Stock Exchange house will take its courage in both hands and at least get itself some gratuitous and well deserved advertising. Its statement will run as follows:

"We guarantee the statements and figures contained in every piece of printed matter we issue upon securities. The statistics and the information we present are trustworthy. We go on record as assuming full responsibility for every statement we make in regard to any securities we recommend to the attention of our customers."

Suppose the Stock exchanges adopted this as a regulation and required its use by all its members? Suppose it were proposed as a postal regulation to be required of all financial literature sent through the mails? Suppose reputable advertising agencies declined to handle financial advertising without the incorporation of this clause? Suppose newspapers and periodicals made the same requirement of their advertisers.

Would it not do more good than all the blue-sky laws enacted by state legislatures and all the congressional debating nut together?

Suppose a real estate dealer sells us a house and tells us after the transaction is completed that the roof may leak, that the foundations need testing and that there may be a flaw in the title. Suppose an automobile manufacturer after selling a car, is not sure the crank case is not cracked or that all the parts are there. Suppose a Jeweler after selling a diamond, concedes that it may be glass or have a flaw in it, or a druggist, after making up a prescription, declines to guarantee the absence of poison.

Would you take the medicine before being sure? Some people do, once only. Or the surgeon after operating for appendicitis is not sure that he has not sewed up his gloves in the patients interior or that he has not removed the gall bladder by mistake. Isn't that exactly something like the string attached to the sale of securities?

Moral: "Investigate, before you invest."

When Our Fathers were Young.

The following letter written by J. L. Switzer, formerly of Union Bridge now and for many years living in the far west, is clipped from last week's Pilot, for its interesting showing of the difference between the present, and the time indicated by the letter.

"The farmers raised sheep, and they raised flax. When our fathers were young, our mothers were young, too. The farmers took the wool away from the sheep to William Shepherd's Fulling Mill and Cloth Factory, just a half mile up the creek from Union Bridge, where the wool was made into an excellent grade of broadcloth.

And what did our mothers do but take scissors and cut out breeches and stitch them up on the sewing machine—Oh, hold on! There wasn't a sewing machine within a thousand miles of Union Bridge, and the man that invented it was probably still wearing home-made "jumpers." No, sir! Our fathers' breeches were made by hand, a stitch at a time, after night by the light of lard oil lamps that smoked like blazes; and our mothers ought not to be blamed if the breeches did not always fit as O. K. as they might. And by the time we discarded our breechclouts, and papa had worn his clothes to church a few times and thrashed around in them a year or two, they were made over for us to go to school in.

Such was the tenacity and worth of the excellent goods made at that Friends' Fulling Mill, on Little Pipe Creek about a hundred years ago. They there also made wool into rolls for yarn. And before we could wear socks the mothers and the daughters had to spin the yarn and knit the yarn into shape, stitch by stitch. Oh, how grandmother did make the knitting needles fly! And oh, how the girls did make the old Spinning Wheel hum!

"What did our fathers do with the flax?" They run it through a flaxbrake. They combed out the shells from the fibre; and then, on the little flax wheels they spun that flax into line thread, and on the looms it was woven into tablecloths, towels, &c., and made up into summer clothing.

Maybe you think our foreparents had lots of time to go running around in their automobile."

SENATE REJECTS WARREN FOR CABINET.

President Coolidge Will Fight For His Confirmation.

Charles B. Warren, of Michigan, was rejected, on Tuesday, by a vote of 41 to 39, for the Attorney Generalship, the Democrats uniting with Republican insurgents on the vote, and Vice-President Dawes being absent.

President Coolidge will re-submit the appointment, and another vote will be taken, as a result of a conference with Mr. Warren. Telegrams have been sent to all absentees to be present, and the second vote is in doubt.

Objections to Mr. Warren were rested largely on his record as a lawyer, and the suspicion that he has been too closely related to "big business." It is also claimed that his nomination represents a reward for political services rendered, and that he was especially objectionable to the La Follette bolters.

The President, however, is evidently fully satisfied with both his ability and qualifications, and shows his fighting qualities in making another effort to put the nomination over.

Letter from Miss Isabelle Cobb.

The following letter is from Miss Isabelle Cobb, Home Demonstration Agent, dated at Cadiz, Spain, Feb. 10, 1925:

"We made our first stop in Madeira. Everything was very interesting. The native boys came out in small boats and dived for coins. They rarely ever missed one. Sometimes they caught them in their hands and sometimes they held them between their toes. The coins sink rather slowly so they generally get them when they are about 6-ft. from the surface. Some of the boys were very small, not over 8 or 9. Some were men. If a little boy missed it a larger one would get it.

As we are on an ocean liner we could not go to the dock. Tenders ran back forth every few minutes. As soon as we landed we took a two mile drive up a steep mountain. The view was lovely. The roses and other flowers are in blossom. We had a Portuguese luncheon and then slid down the mountain on sleds guided by two men. They went very rapidly. Of course there was not any snow. The track was made of cobble stones worn smooth by years of use.

When we got to the bottom safely we took a ride in a bullock car. These cars are also on sleds. The animals are horrible, slow, ugly and ill smelling. Two or three blocks to the shopping centre was plenty far enough.

Of course you know Madeira is world-renowned for its embroidery. The shops were fascinating. There is also a great deal of basketry and hand made chairs. They were very cheap. Madeira is also famed for its wine. A great many shops serve wine to their American guests.

The natives gave a ball in our honor. It rained so much that I did not go. Most of the people in Madeira speak English. Some one asked the word for "Postoffice" in Portuguese. The boy said the word and then added "Better ask for it in English, everybody speaks English here." The children all know how to say "Give me penny."

When General Sam Houston took Santa Ana, the Mexican general, prisoner, he drew a gnawed ear of corn from his (Houston's) pocket, saying: "Sir, do you ever expect to conquer men who fight for freedom, when their general can march four days with one ear of corn for his rations?"

WRITE TO SENATOR WELLER

Pure Seeds for Distribution Among Farmers.

Senator Weller has arranged to obtain from the United States Department of Agriculture a few packages of the following rare field seeds. Kansas grown alfalfa, Korean lespezea, soybeans, and Sudan grass. Each of these packages contains a sufficient quantity of seeds for a satisfactory field test.

The Senator desires to distribute these seeds for test purposes among the farmers of Maryland. Should any readers wish to make a test of one variety of these seeds and will write Senator Weller at 227 Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C., the Senator will be glad to have the Department of Agriculture mail the seeds to the applicant.

As the Senator has only a limited number of these seeds, and they are all intended for early spring planting, it is suggested that you let him hear from you by March 20, 1925.

Only One Pair of Eyes.

"We have only one pair of eyes to last us throughout our entire life, and when they are worn out we can't install a new set, but we are as heedless in our treatment of them," says Dr. J. H. H. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, in a bulletin to mothers, as though we could buy new ones whenever we want them from the nearest cross-roads store.

"Grown-ups, as a rule, know something of the care that should be given to their eyes, but children do not, and we can not start too early to safeguard these precious possessions for them.

"Babies, for instance, should sleep in a well ventilated but carefully darkened room. If they take their day-time naps out of doors, some arrangement should be devised for shading their eyes from the light. If the baby goes out in a carriage or go-cart for his daily airing, the hood should be tilted in such a way, that his eyes at all times are comfortably shaded.

"Equal care should be taken as the children grow older to see that their eyes are adequately protected. Children should always have as much sunshine and fresh air as possible, but a direct glare of light into the eyes should always be avoided. It is well to remember, too, in connection with any indoor arrangements that the eyes of children, like those of adults, are best protected when the light comes from the left side. Indoor play quarters should always be well lighted.

"Eye strain develops very early in life, and children should be carefully watched for any signs of it. If they squint or squint when they look at a toy or at their picture books, if they seem dull and listless it is a wise plan to have them examined by an eye specialist. Cross eyes should not be neglected but should be brought promptly to the attention of an eye specialist. Children's eyes should be examined as a matter of routine, before they are sent to school.

"Experience has shown that many boys or girls who are regarded as 'backward' or 'stupid' after they enter school, are suffering from some eye trouble that could either be prevented entirely or could be greatly benefited by attention during the preschool period.

School Buildings for Frederick Co.

The Frederick County Board of Education has undertaken an extensive program in new school building construction, due to the fact that for a number of years school buildings have been neglected. The plans will be financed by bond issues of $595,000 by the County Commissioners.

New buildings have already been constructed at Walkersville and Emmitsburg, and additional buildings have been decided on, as follows:

Middletown $40,000; Myersville, $20,000; Liberty, $20,000; Jefferson, $16,000; Thurmont, $15,000, addition to old building; Knoxville, $12,000; Sabillasville, $10,000; Brunswick, $10,000; rural schools $10,000. Urbans, $8,000; Creagerstown, $7,000; Kempstown, $7,000; Lewistown, $10,000; Sabillasville, $2,000 addition from sale of old buildings; Jefferson, $2,000, addition from sale of old buildings. These amounts total $189,000.

As to "Church Notices."

The Record is glad to publish, free of charge, all of the church notices sent in, as they are items of news to many of our subscribers. However, we must insist that they be confined to bare news facts; to announcements of regular and special services, place, date and hour, and in some cases, the name of a special missionary, or minister. Special invitations to the public, or other elaboration, are apt to be out of place, and possibly unfair to other churches.

We also insist that all notices be written out, when handed to our regular correspondents; and that only in cases of emergency should the notices be phoned to this office. The object of this is to prevent errors, and to place responsibility for correct notices on ministers, or others, who send the notices for publication.

Lengthy church notices, or notices concerning fairs, festivals, or programs for the benefit of some organization of a church, will be published, when desired, at regular advertising rates.

He is survived by his wife and eight children: David Franklin, Edward and Charles, and Miss Sarah V., at home; Harvey, at White Hall, Pa.; Robert, at Westminster; and Howard, near Westminster.

MR. MARTIN L. FOGLE.

(For the Record).

Mr. Martin L. Fogle, a life-long resident of Detour, Md., died March 3, 1925, after a brief illness due to infirmities of age. He was born near this village, March 30, 1842, and shortly after the outbreak of the Civil War enlisted as a volunteer at Frederick, Md., in Company B, 7th. Regiment Infantry in which he served until mustered out of service at Arlington Heights, Va., in May 1865. His military campaign covered service in the neighborhood of Harper's Ferry, W. Va., (then Va.), Antietam, Md., and in the battles of Northern Virginia, until his capture by the Southern forces in the seven days battle of the Wilderness Va., where the whole regiment was either killed or captured, those captured being taken to Libby prison near Richmond and later removed to Andersonville, Georgia, where he was confined 6 months, being released from there in December, 1864.

In spite of his 82 years, he seemed never to grow old but through his sunny temperament, made and kept friends as well as kept abreast of the events of the day, and only recently with his aged wife made several trips by train throughout the state of Indiana, where they have relatives and friends.

Mr. Fogle was in the continuous employ of the Western Maryland Railway for 45 years, and until his retirement about 8 years ago, and his many friends will mourn his loss.

Besides his widow Elizabeth Jane Fogle, now 81 years of age, the following children survive: Sheridan A., Walter H., and Charles A., of Baltimore; Mrs. S. Royer Weybright, of Detour; and C. Ray Fogle, Westminster, also a number of grand-children and great-grand-children.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to convey our sincere thanks to all those who assist in the many ways during the illness and death of husband and father.

Our Letter Box

Under this heading we will be glad to publish letters from former Carroll-countians, who are now away from home, and especially letters from those whose home was Taneytown. These letters are very interesting to many, and we should be glad to publish one or more each week. On account of their length, it is not always convenient to use letters on first page, and will hereafter use the 4th, or 5th, page.

LETTER FROM MIAMI, FLORIDA.

As some of my friends have asked me to write a letter, and as you have made the appeal, I will attempt to write, giving some of my experience during our trip. Messrs. Dutterer, Wagner, Hiltzberg and myself left Taneytown, Friday, Dec. 12th. The day being very cold, we were pretty well chilled through when we arrived in Baltimore, but when we entered the waiting room of the Merchants & Miners Transportation Co., we found it very comfortable, and we were soon warm again. After getting warm, we went out to lunch, and it being the holiday season, we went to the shopping district to take a glimpse at the display windows. After tiring of this we went back to the M. & M. Co., and waited until it was time to go on board, as we were not allowed on board until 4 P. M. We did not go on board until 5 P. M.

On entering the boat, we were given the number of our table, and then shown to our rooms. We then looked over the boat and waited until it was scheduled to leave, which was 6 P. M., but owing to the large amount of freight they had to load, which included twenty-eight automobiles, we did not leave port until 9:15.

Of course, all were anxious to leave, and as we glided slowly away, we looked back over Baltimore to say good-bye for a while. As we went down the bay, we passed the big sugar refinery, which was all illuminated making a beautiful sight, and impressed all who saw it. After passing that, there was nothing else to see, so we sat around and talked until Mr. Wagner suggested that we retire.

I looked at my watch and was surprised to find that it was 11:30. Then looking around I discovered that all but a few, beside ourselves had retired already. I told them that I was not sleepy, but if they all retired there were nothing else for me to do, but retire too. When we entered our room we found it very uncomfortable, hot, and the first thing I did was to try to open the transom, but it did not respond, so there was nothing else to do, but take things as they were.

The next morning we reported the trouble to one of the porters, who opened it, and it made our room more pleasant afterward. We were very unfortunate to get a room near the engine room, and the grinding and knocking of the engine did not add any to the comfort of the room. I heard some others complain who were unfortunate like us.

Then there were two men in a room nearby, who talked until about 2:30, when some one told them to stop talking and go to sleep. Of course, their talking did not induce any sleep and there was a man right across the way that kept snoring all through the night, and he was the man I was envying just then, wishing I could sleep only half as good as he.

The next morning I learned he was from Indiana. Well if all the "Hoosiers" are as good a sleeper as he is, they are some sleepers. At five o'clock the porter called those who wished to arise at that time. As I spent a sleepless night, I decided to get up at 5:30 and go out on deck, which I found very refreshing.

During the day we sat around talking and reading most of the time until late in the afternoon. Mr. Wagner said he was going to lie down for awhile, as I did not have any sleep the night before, and as I was not feeling so well otherwise, I thought I would lie down too. After lying for about an hour or so, and having a good sleep, I arose and went back to the reading room, but I found that I was not feeling any better, but rather worse, and the boat began to swing a little more.

It just came to my mind then, that the fish had been neglected, so I began to do my duty to them, and after I did my part, I staggered to my room and hurriedly got into bed. As I came to my room I heard the lady across the way—the wife of the man from Indiana—spelling New York. Well I joined her right then, and it was not long until there were quite a few others joining us, and it took us all night and part of the next day to settle that question.

We were at the point where bay and ocean meet, and it seemed as though the boat was running a hurdle race, at this time the call bell was ringing continually, and the stewardess and all the porters were busy running to all parts of the ship, answering calls of distress, but the man from Indiana snored through it all.

I was told that only about one-third came to the tables to eat on Sunday. Mr. Wagner was the only one in our crowd that did not miss a meal. I suppose that was due to his having the same experience in the past. The others missed a meal or two, and I missed four, one of which was a turkey dinner on Sunday.

By Sunday eve the ocean was behaving real well and the boat had quieted down and we were going along right smoothly, and on Sunday night most of us had a good night's rest. About five o'clock on Monday morning Mr. Wagner called at our door and said we should get up, as we were entering Savannah harbor.

I got myself together as fast as I could, but when I came on deck I found we were just entering Savannah river, and it was one of the most beautiful sights that I ever saw. It was just about day break, and the colored sky in the eastern horizon reflected in the waving water making all colors along with the picturesque banks of the river, reminded one of the paintings we often see. I think we just arrived here at the right time when it was the most beautiful.

We did not arrive at Savannah until some time after nine o'clock that morning, and I think it was about ten o'clock until we got docked. We were then allowed to leave the boat, as it was docked for the day, to unload and reload freight.

As one enters Savannah from the dock, one is very much impressed with the city, as you enter the old part of the town at this point, which happens to be the colored section, and some of the houses look to be a couple of centuries old; but as one goes further on we come to the business section and then the residential section.

By its appearance it looks to have been a very wealthy city at some former time, as there are many old mansions and many monuments erected to quite a few famous men, but just at the present time the city looks to be on a standstill. Of course, we should not judge a place until we have seen it all, for the parts we did not see might be just the reverse. I am just going by the part of the city we saw.

Here, like in Baltimore, we were to leave port at 6 P. M., but owing to the large amount of freight, it was 9 o'clock, or a little after when we left port. As we sailed down the river we were all watching for the "Waving Girl," which we missed on our way up the river. Some may want to know who the "Waving Girl" is.

I heard a couple of stories of her; one is that a few days after a young couple were married, the husband was lost out at sea, and this, I suppose unbalanced the young wife's mind, and now she signals every boat that passes her home, which is near the river, using a lantern after night, which she waves, and every Captain recognizes her by giving three salutes, and also throwing the search light on her, by which means you can see her very plainly.

Soon after this, we all retired with expectation of arriving at Jacksonville the following morning the end of our boat journey. I think all had a good night's rest. I know it was my best night's rest I had on the boat and I know the man from Indiana slept well too, for he was snoring as usual, but with it all he was a jolly good fellow.

As we awoke the following morning we were anchored at the mouth of the St. John's river, waiting for the fog to clear away that we could enter the river with safety. We had to wait until eight o'clock before the fog cleared sufficient for the boat to enter.

St. John's river is one of the few large rivers in the United States that flows north. Here in Florida we find all the water in the streams black in color, due, I am told to the condition of the soil. We arrived at Jacksonville at 10 A. M., Tuesday morning, and all seemed to be anxious to get off the boat.

Here is where all the passengers separate, going in all directions, to the different parts of the state, some few of which we met again and some we never saw afterwards and perhaps never will see again. Some few remained in Jacksonville with the intention of staying there for the winter.

In regards to traveling by boat, it would be the most pleasant mode of travel, if it were not for sea-sickness, for the passengers just seem like one big family, or something on the order of a picnic, but when one thinks of having to go through with sea-sickness, he feels like making the resolve "never again."

I had intended to write something about Jacksonville, and on our travel through Florida, but I find my letter getting rather lengthy, and I am afraid it might become tiresome, so I will bring it to a close, and if you desire I will write on our travels through Florida, and on the city of Miami, in the future, as there is quite a lot of interesting things to write about from this state, especially appealing to me, and perhaps to some others who have never been here.

My fellow travelers have all deserted me, and have gone back to the old home town, leaving me here to fight my battles alone, where I expect to stay for a couple of months yet, if my work continues and nothing else interferes, but if my work gives out, I suppose it will not take me very long to hit the trail back home, as living is real expensive here in Miami.

FARM POULTRY

GATHER EGGS OFTEN IN SEVERE WEATHER

Success in selling hatching eggs or in getting good hatching eggs for your own incubators to supply you with chicks for the baby chick trade is dependent a great deal upon gathering the eggs during the winter months at frequent intervals; but even market eggs require the same attention in order to get the best results.

In freezing weather the eggs may lie in the nest three or four hours before freezing, but there is no reason for subjecting them to such a temperature for any length of time. If they are to be used for hatching purposes, or sold for hatching eggs, you owe it to yourself or your customer to gather them as soon as laid, if possible. Any unnecessary exposure to the temperature will affect, more or less, the hatching quality and the vigor of the chick.

Where it is at all possible, especially in severe weather, it is advisable to visit the nests every 30 minutes and gather such eggs as can be gathered without disturbing hens on nests. So long as there is a hen on a given nest, the eggs under her are in no danger. Those who are fortunate enough to have double-walled and frost-proof houses are not in as much danger of loss as those whose hens are indifferently housed.

The ideal way to handle winter hatching eggs is to put them in the incubator the same day they are laid, says a writer in Successful Farming. However, this is not often possible, unless one has a large flock laying enough to fill the incubators. Some hatchers remedy the situation by having small incubators and setting them every day or two during the season; or, where large machines are used, setting separate compartments.

Where this is impossible and the eggs must be stored a few days before placing in the machines or shipped to customers, it is best to place them in a clean and dry, but well-ventilated place, where an average temperature of about 40 to 45 degrees is maintained. A regular incubator cellar is good for this purpose; but do not place the eggs in a damp, poorly ventilated or musty vegetable cellar. If you do not have a clean cellar, it is better to place them on a ground floor where the room is heated sufficiently to keep it from freezing.

In storing eggs for hatching purposes, it is best to place them in flat wooden trays. Incubator trays not in use are good for this purpose, or trays may be made along that style. A cabinet may be made of a number of these trays nailed together which will be handy and serviceable.

Turn the eggs every day from the time they are taken from the nest until they are placed in the machine. This is to prevent the germ sticking to the shell and rendering the egg worthless for incubation purposes.

Get the eggs into the machine or under hens or off to the customer at the earliest possible moment. Every day that passes lessens the chances of the utmost success. Evaporation is the constant enemy of the held-over hatching egg, and the longer this progresses the less the chance of getting a strong, viable chick.

Scientist Finds Goiter in Minnesota Chickens

Two cases of that rarest of poultry diseases, goiter, have recently been diagnosed by Dr. H. C. H. Kernkamp, assistant professor of veterinary medicine, University of Minnesota. Both were in White Orpington hens which came from the same farm in Ramsey county.

In one of the specimens the thyroid gland had become so enlarged that it pressed against the trachea and inferior larynx and caused the former to become flattened. The heart had also become slightly displaced by the growth and the lungs were pressed against the walls of the thorax.

Records of the veterinary medicine division at university farm show that of 2,400 autopsies on poultry sent in from all parts of Minnesota for investigation and study the last six years, these two cases were the only ones of goiter observed in birds. Carpenter, a veterinary scientist of California, did not find a single case of goiter in 1,000 autopsies on chickens.

Height for Perches

Dropping boards should be level, and the perches arranged about six inches above them. The perches should be on a level, also, and of 2-by-2 material. They should be fastened to 2-by-4 supports that are hinged at the back end of the house so that the roosts can be raised out of the way while scraping the dropping boards.

Damp Sawdust Is Bad

Damp sawdust is not very desirable to use as insulation in a wooden walled poultry house, not only because the dampness is likely to increase rather than decrease, and is bad for poultry, but because damp sawdust has only a small part of the insulating value of dry sawdust. If the coal cinders were crushed into fairly uniform small pieces, it probably would work very well for insulation, but the ordinary cinders are too coarse to have much value for insulation.

Wise Plan to Treat Oats to Avoid Smut

Operation Is Simple and Gives Good Results.

When most farmers are making ready to sow oats, they know whether or not smut is present in their seed, but a considerable number of farmers do not know how significant oat smut is. Losses from this disease are commonly as high as 5 to 10 per cent. They may run less, or may destroy 25 to 50 per cent of the crop. The actual losses from smut are not often accurately observed in the field on account of the early spread of the smut masses. The casual observer is wont, therefore, to underestimate the damage and lay the poor yields to other causes.

With but a small amount of trouble, and an expenditure not exceeding 2 cents per bushel, any farmer can treat his seed oats with formalin solution and eliminate the smut in one season. The treatment consists in sprinkling the grain with a solution, made by mixing 1 pint (1 pound) of 40 per cent formalin with 40 gallons of water. It is applied at the rate of one gallon to the bushel of grain, the grain being shoveled thoroughly during the application. The grain is piled after treatment and covered with wet cloth or canvas. After 8 to 12 hours the grain is spread out to dry.—H. E. Vasey, Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colorado.

Swiss Chard Is Worthy of Place in Any Garden

Swiss chard or leaf beet is a crop worthy to be grown in every home garden. Planted in April, a row 15 or 20 feet long of this vegetable will produce a good supply of greens for the average family from early summer until freezing weather.

Sow the seed the same as the beet, to which family chard belongs, and thin the plants to eight or ten inches apart in the row as soon as they start to crowd, using the thinnings for a good pot of greens. As soon as the outer leaves of the remaining plants get ten to twelve inches long, they are cut off close to the point of attachment at the base, and the central part of the plant allowed to continue growth until again large leaves are produced, when again these are cut and used. Continued cutting of the outer leaves does not harm the plants and they will flourish until October.

Some housekeepers strip the green leafy portions from the thick white midrib of the leaf, use these as "greens" and serve the midribs in the same manner as asparagus.

Swiss chard is easily canned for winter use, and is successfully dried if the thick midribs are split thin so they dry evenly with the leafy portion.

As greens this vegetable is most excellent served with melted butter, bacon grease or cream dressing in the same way as spinach.

Handling Milk for Home Use Is a Big Problem

The farm home has its problems in handling milk for family use. The fact that milk is produced in abundance on the farm does not necessarily mean that it is used in large quantities in the farm home. There are farms where the production of milk is the principal line of work, yet there is but little milk used in the home.

It is in the home on the farm where only a few cows are kept and where butter is made and sold, or where cream is sold, for butter making purposes, that the use of milk is often neglected. It has been said that some such homes use less fresh milk per person than do many homes in the cities. The reason is apparent after a moment's consideration. The principal cause of so small a quantity being used is the fact that the farm does not have the equipment for cooling the milk and placing it on the table in a really appetizing condition. The city housewife receives the milk in a clean, attractive-looking bottle. The milk is cool when delivered.

Farm Hints

Quality should begin on the farm.

Farming without plans is like sailing without charts.

A good colony of bees ought to give 200 pounds of honey a year.

Burning off the woods to kill the bugs is a pretty sure way to kill the trees.

In 1925 the biggest profits will be made by producing the highest quality stuff at lowest cost.

Diversification and orderly marketing are as outstanding farming needs as are the hip bones of a poor horse.

Where sugar beets are to be grown, very great care must be taken to maintain a high degree of fertility in the soil.

In planning the year's farm activities it is well to remember that bankers do not usually consider one-crop farmers as safe credit risks.

Repeated experiments indicate that best corn yields come after fall plowing. It is an advantage also to get the plowing job out of the way before spring.

Way to Judge Age

A moving picture man delights to tell of a proposal that happened while he was directing one of his latest pictures. It seems that a young writer had laid his heart at the feet of the leading woman and had been coldly turned down.

"Perhaps it's best, after all," he remarked, acidly. "After all, a man of twenty-five would soon tire of a woman who hovers around thirty-two."

"But I'm not that old," gasped the woman. "Whatever led you to believe that I'm thirty-two?"

"Well, perhaps you're not," admitted the young man, "but it certainly struck me that you must be somewhere near the freezing point."—Los Angeles Times.

Early Advertising as Practiced in Old Rome

The restored ruins of Pompeii still show wall inscriptions and regular election campaign posters which often are signed by women. The same ruins tell us also about business advertising in ancient Rome. The show windows of Rome during the oldest time cannot be compared with their parallel in our modern trade world. For a long time it was impossible to buy the necessary glass, which was tremendously expensive. Besides, the window glass was milky and dim and often iridescent, at any rate not sufficiently clear and transparent, writes H. Doelling in Frankfurter Zeitung as translated for the Milwaukee Journal.

The Roman retailers therefore were content to exhibit their goods in an open stall in front of their homes; the shop itself was built into the home and served merely as a storeroom. The only means of advertising was the voice; he who barked loudest got the most customers!

Only after trade received a new stimulus by the conquests in the Orient and Occident did the Romans begin to adopt the business tricks of their tributaries, the Ponters and Asiatic Greeks. They installed regular show windows in their shops. Their goods were safe from theft behind bronze grates and were provided with price tags and annotations. The merchants indicated on their shop doors the goods they furnished and their own names.

Sees Resin as Basis of Diamond Formation

Similarity between the X-ray pictures of the lattice structure of diamond crystals and of decaterpene, a resinous substance, is the basis for the claim advanced by Herr Decker, a Jena chemist, that diamonds originated from this material under enormous pressure and possibly heat, during long periods of time, according to the Berlin correspondent of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry.

Diamonds have long been known to be pure carbon in crystalline form, but what the original carbonaceous material was out of which they developed has been a subject of dispute. Resins contain hydrogen as well as carbon, and the theory of the German scientist assumes that, under the conditions of diamond formation, the hydrogen was literally slowly squeezed out of the raw material until at last nothing but pure crystalline carbon was left.

Father of Mail Service

Mail coaches were introduced into England in the year 1784 by one John Palmer of Bath. This worthy gentleman suffered much inconvenience from the mail leaving London on Monday and not reaching Bath until Wednesday. He traveled the country advocating reform, and was set down as a bore. But the system of flying mails he was able to inaugurate lasted until the days of railways. Still, it was not much better than the system of the Roman mails, as established in the Third century, by which it seems possible that letters might have reached Rome from England in three or four days if relays of galloping chariots could cover a thousand miles at 14 miles an hour.

"Oh, This is so sudden!"

THE mad scramble of the "promoters" to grab every bit of possible Oil-land in sight led to all sorts of complications. Within a few weeks after the discovery of Oil, farmers who had been unable to clothe their children were worth thousands, sometimes millions of dollars. On the other hand, several farmers refused to sell their ground, for hundreds of times its normal value, until they had harvested their corn or potatoes from it! One case is particularly amusing. A maiden lady, who had every reason for trying to forget her age, refused to sell. Finally one wide-awake promoter came back a second time, and in all innocence said, "I have returned, Miss Blank, to make you an offer." He got no further. He had no chance to speak of buying the land. With one jump from her chair the lady flung herself into his arms and cried, "Oh! this is so sudden, but I'm yours!" ¶ Already having a wife and five children, and not wanting the land that badly, the promoter left in great haste.

OUR LORD'S RESURRECTION

LESSON TEXT—John 20:1-29.
GOLDEN TEXT—"The Lord is risen indeed."—Luke 24:34.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Rises From the Dead.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Risen From the Dead.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Christ's Victory Over Death.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Proofs of the Resurrection of Jesus.

The resurrection of Christ is one of the foundation truths of Christianity. Its entire superstructure stands or falls upon its reality. It is the grand proof that Christ was what He claimed to be, the Messiah, the Son of God (Matt. 12:39-40; John 2:19-21). His resurrection authenticated his claims. If Jesus did not rise from Joseph's tomb, He was not the Son of God, nor a true prophet (He said frequently while alive that He would arise), neither a Savior; not even a good man, for He would then be a falsifier. However, if He did arise, all that He said concerning Himself is true. His resurrection declared Him to be the Son of God with power (Rom. 1:4).

I. The Empty Tomb (vv. 1-10).
John does not enter into a description of the resurrection of Christ, but says the tomb was empty, and that Jesus had repeatedly manifested Himself after the tomb was found empty. To see the body of Christ with a spear thrust and nail prints, and then the empty tomb was all that faith needed.

1. The Testimony of Mary Magdalene (vv. 1-2).
This woman out of whom Jesus had cast seven demons (Mark 16:9; Luke 8:2), announced the fact of the empty tomb to Peter and John. Prompted by great love to Him for His kindness to her, she went early to the tomb even "when it was yet dark." "She was last at the cross, and first at the grave. She stayed longest there and was soonest here." This woman's love for the Master was genuine though her knowledge as to His resurrection was defective. She had realized great good at His hand, therefore she could not rest until she had done her utmost for Him.

2. Personal Investigation by Peter and John (vv. 3, 10).
The news of the empty tomb which Mary brought with breathless haste so moved John and Peter that both ran to investigate. When John came to the empty tomb he gazed into it, but Peter entered it. This investigation convinced them. The removal of the stone from the sepulcher and the arrangement of the grave clothes convinced them that the enemy could not have done this.

II. The Manifestation of the Risen Lord (vv. 11-29).

1. To Mary Magdalene (vv. 11-18).
(1) Mary Weeping at the Empty Tomb (v. 11). Peter and John went home, but Mary could not. She stood weeping. Home was nothing to her while her Lord was missing. Earnest love need not weep long for Jesus is found of those who love Him. She should have been rejoicing that the grave was empty, for the empty tomb was eloquent proof of His messiahship and deity. Had His body been there she would have had real cause for weeping.

(2) Mary Questioned by the Angels (vv. 12-13). She viewed through her tears angels at the tomb who inquired as to the cause of her sorrow. She replied, "Because they have taken away my Lord and I know not where they have laid Him."

(3) Jesus Reveals Himself to Mary (vv. 14-16). She first saw the angels and then her eyes lighted upon the Lord. As soon as He called her by name she recognized Him and fell at His feet weeping.

(4) Jesus Forbade Her to Touch Him (v. 17). This showed that she was coming into a new relationship to Him; besides there was not time for such familiarity while the disciples were in darkness. "Go tell my brethren," was the message she must carry.

(5) Mary's Testimony (v. 18). She told the disciples that she had seen the Lord.

2. To the Disciples (vv. 19-29).

(1) When Thomas Was Absent (vv. 19-23).

a. His message of peace (v. 19).
b. He showed His hands and His side (v. 20).
c. He commissioned them (v. 21).
d. He defended the power that was bestowed upon them (v. 23).

(2) When Thomas Was Present (vv. 24-29).

a. Victory of sight and touch (vv. 24-28).
b. Greater blessings for those who believe, not having seen (v. 29).

Preparation for Winning Others to Christ

Matthew 4:18-20; Acts 1:14; 2:1-4

The first requirement for this work is whole-hearted conversion to God. The promise in verse 19, "I will make you to become fishers of men" is conditioned on the preceding words, "follow me." This following must have a beginning, and this beginning may be regarded as conversion—turning to God. It should be intelligent and whole-hearted as in the case of the disciples who left all and followed Him. This means that they forsake all that would hinder the fulfillment of the divine purpose for their lives.

In addition to a whole-hearted conversion to God, one needs the anointing of the Spirit of God in order to win others to Christ. This is given to those who unreservedly turn to Christ in recognition of the fact that they belong to Him. It is a real part of our equipment as soul winners. "Ye have an unction (or anointing) from the Holy One" said the Apostle John to his converts, and as a consequence they were quick to perceive truth and reject error (1 John 2:20-28) and also quick to improve an opportunity to win another for Christ.

The working knowledge of the Bible is another indispensable qualification for this work of winning others to Christ. In the Bible there is a remedy for all spiritual ailments, but those who would win others to Christ must know what the remedy is and where to find it. People differ in temperament and training; they are subject more or less to prejudice, passion and pride. The skilful soul-winner learns how to deal with each separate case, diagnosing the ailment and bringing from the Scriptures the necessary and effectual remedy. The course of study for Christian workers provided by the Correspondence School of the Moody Bible Institute is splendidly adapted for this. Write for information.

ADOBE HOME OF KIT CARSON RESTORED

Will Be Preserved as Memorial to Pioneer.

In a dusty, narrow street, just off the plaza at Taos, N. M., is the original home of Kit Carson, a long, low abode which has recently been restored from a crumbling half ruin to the rude comfort of its original state. The simple house in this ancient Spanish village seems a fitting memorial to the man who lived in it. Carson was also a man of affairs, a pioneer leader, as fearless in the council chamber as he was on the trail. His shrewd diplomacy won over many an obstacle, and his deeds of daring were as spectacular as those of a motion picture hero of today. He was the friend of governors, army officers, Indians and settlers. There are pioneers in New Mexico today whose eyes light at the mention of his name, and his generosity is still a tradition among Indians and Mexicans, says a correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor.

As a scout, working lone-handed in the most trying conditions, Carson developed a remarkable resourcefulness, combining the Indian's outdoor craft with the white man's natural inheritance. Men of every sort came to the Taos home seeking Carson's advice and services. He carried government messages of the greatest importance, guided exploring parties, and helped poor Mexicans recover stolen property or perhaps wife or children who had been carried off by the Indians. His sense of justice was keen and he unselfishly championed the cause of the oppressed. Like most lovers of the open he liked also a home and a fire-side. His wife was a proud and beautiful Spanish woman who appreciated his heroic qualities.

For years the adobe house was left untenanted. Vagrant Indians and Mexicans who remembered Carson as their friend claimed its hospitality. They built mesquite fires in the great fireplace, slept on the floors of the deserted rooms and went their way again. Sand storms picked holes in the walls and roof. Wandering cattle and burros crowded through the broken doors. Finally the women of Taos decided that the old house must be repaired. They gave musical programs and various other entertainments, and little by little they raised the necessary money. The foundation was rebuilt, a new roof put on and the adobe walls replastered by native workmen in the traditional fashion. Doors and windows were replaced with exact duplicates, and the hospitable fireplace again invites the friendly council.

Modern Ark to Cruise

What is announced as a replica of Noah's ark has been built in the mud-flats near Baltimore, Md. The craft is 50 feet long, 12 feet high and contains six rooms. Allan Risley is the owner and he intends to cruise in this odd-shaped houseboat.

HARBOR PIRATES GET $1,000,000 LOOT

New York Boat Owners Protest Over Robberies.

New York.—Pirates have caused a total of maritime losses in New York harbor during the last year which amount to from $750,000 to $1,000,000. This has been shown by a survey of the reports of pirate raids during 1924.

A letter to Mayor Hylan from steamship owners and maritime interests requesting adequate police protection and enforcement of policies to meet the situation brought to public attention the news that the adventurous practice of piracy is flourishing at the very doors of the largest city in the world.

The letter bore the signature of officials of the leading trans-Atlantic and coastwise steamship companies and other maritime firms operating along the New York water front.

The conditions which make possible such a financial loss as estimated were described as "intolerable and needless" and as "a stigma" on the port of New York, which represents hundreds of millions of dollars of investments.

The pirates work mainly at night. They add to their incomes by rum running as a side line.

During the war they flourished for a time, but the police of New York soon got it under control, and heavy losses of the marine trade were stopped. But recently piracy has become once again a flourishing business, with few apprehensions and fewer convictions.

The modus operandi is a fast motorboat, with an engine of 50 to 100 horsepower. These boats lie hidden along the shores of the inlets, the East river and the creeks about the harbor, Perth Amboy, Port Reading and Elizabeth and anthracite coaling stations.

At these terminals hard coal to be delivered in and about New York city is unloaded from trains on barges to be delivered to destination.

Several barges attached by towing lines to a tug make their way across the harbor. One man is in charge of each barge. This is easy prey for the harbor pirates.

Coal is not the only commodity stolen by pirates. Coffee, sugar, lumber, wool, copper ingots, sardines, condensed milk, carpets and other imported and exported products prove profitable hauls to the river rats.

Cargoes also are stolen while lying alongside the piers; not only cargoes, but the very ropes that hold the boats to their moorings.

Ancient Indian City Is Dug Up in Nevada

Tonopah, Nev.—Another prehistoric city was found recently 30 miles east of Beatty, at the head of Forty-Mile canyon.

The discoverers, Judge W. B. Gray and W. E. Bond of Beatty, have been investigating their find for two months, and they say it promises to rival in archeological importance Pueblo Grande, Nev., the ancient city found recently in the "valley of fire."

A considerable quantity of pottery has been uncovered, and it is said to be unlike anything hitherto found on the American continent.

As soon as weather conditions permit further explorations will be undertaken by W. H. Harrington, representing the Heye Foundation of American Indian Research and the Smithsonian Institution.

Mr. Harrington at present is superintending excavation at the Pueblo Grande, where almost every day he is finding evidence that convinces him this city existed some 2,000 years ago and was occupied for 1,000 years before it was abandoned for some unknown cause. He has uncovered 18 tombs, containing vessels decorated in turquoise and pearl shell cut into small beads. The length of the city of antiquity has been established at six miles.

F. W. Hodge, curator of the Heye foundation, has recommended an appropriation ample to excavate the entire city. It is estimated the work will cost around $100,000.

Princeton Man to Aid Excavating of Corinth

Princeton, N. J.—Princeton university will have a considerable part in the new project of the American Archeological school of Athens to excavate the city of Corinth. Theodore Leslie Shear, art and archeology lecturer at Princeton, recently sailed for Greece and he will have charge of the excavations of the great theater of Corinth.

The location of the theater has already been determined by the peculiar depression in a certain part of the city. The theater faces north toward the Gulf of Corinth and is directly opposite Mount Parnassus. Professor Shear declared: "It will be an enormous undertaking, as every bit of the work must be done by hand, and we estimate two years as a minimum for the complete excavation."

Discoveries of an important nature are likely, according to Professor Shear. Corinth of old was one of the greatest cities of the "glory that was Greece," and the excavations may shed light on many hitherto debated questions.

Historical Record of Use of "Poison Rings"

Throughout history the "ring of death" has played a dramatic part. At first it was designed as a means of quick and easy escape from a terrible fate, the horrors of the torture chamber or the disgrace of slavery to a hated enemy. Hannibal, the Carthaginian general, turned to the poison contained in his ring when he was on the point of being given up to his enemies. The Athenian orator, Demosthenes, is said to have carried a similar ring, relates the Mentor Magazine.

Time brought about the invention of a new kind of ring of death, the poison ring, designed for the purpose of premeditated murder. The poison rings of the Borgias are famous in history. Some of them still exist, one bearing the date 1508 and the motto of Cesare Borgia. Beneath the bezel of this ring there is a sliding panel, and when this is displaced there appears a small space where the poison was kept. Such rings simply afforded a ready supply of poison at need, but another type constituted a death-dealing weapon. The bezel was wrought in the shape of a lion, the hollow claws of the animal admitted the passage of a subtle poison through them, and it is conjectured that the death wound could have been inflicted by turning the bezel of the ring inward, so that a hearty grasp would produce a slight puncture in the victim's hand.

Exhibition of Fakes to Help Out Critics

An exhibit of counterfeits, imitations and copies of works of art was held in London a short time ago. The object of the exhibition, which included pictures, drawings, furniture, carpets, metal work, ceramics and sculpture, was to help students, collectors and critics in the study of problems of quality and originality, as also of period and school. In many cases this object was furthered by comparison of the copy with the original, or the imitation with an authenticated example of the style and period aimed at; and works produced for innocent purposes of record, reproduction, duplication and repetition and examples of restoration and repair, as well as works intended to deceive, are included.

At any rate, as regards the pictures, one comforting conclusion is that it is, on the whole, easier for the forger to imitate those qualities which appeal to the collector as collector—such as "the tone of time" and cracks in the surface—than the basic qualities of a great work of art, such as drawing and design.

Island of Legend

The Island of the Seven Cities was an imaginary island, abounding with gold, and adorned with superb houses and temples, whose lofty towers were visible at a great distance. According to a legend that prevailed at the time of Columbus, this island was settled by seven bishops who, having fled with a great number of people from Spain and Portugal, when those countries were conquered by the Moors, took to the ocean, and finally landed on an unknown island. After their arrival, the bishops burned the ships to prevent the return of their followers, and founded seven cities. It is said that those navigators who visited the island in after years were never permitted to return.—Kansas City Star.

Fish's Change of Color

As a quick-change artist the parrot fish has few equals. Swimming about in the tropical waters, the parrot fish is a clear turquoise green during the daytime. Finding a quiet nook among the stones and weeds, its color fades to a dull olive. Further changes go on whilst it sleeps. Numerous reddish brown spots appear on its body.

Placed in an aquarium having a plain green bottom, the parrot fish retains its coat of green and does not put on night clothes. But if a few large stones are dropped into the aquarium, corresponding blotches appear on the sleeping fish.

The Glove in History

The use of gloves dates back to remote times. Xenophon sneered at the Persians for wearing gloves to keep their hands warm. The Greeks and Romans also scorned the use of gloves. The glove appears to have become a well-known article of dress in England about the Fourteenth century. The materials used for making leather gloves are principally the skin of deer, sheep and lambs, goats and kids, the latter being the most important, though far more kid gloves are made of sheep than of kid leather.

Natural Steam Harnessed

At Healdsburg, Cal., 75 miles from San Francisco, is a power-generating plant operated by natural steam from underground. The steam comes from a depth of 300 feet and engineers say that there is enough of it beneath some 4,000 acres of volcanic land to light and heat San Francisco and run all nearby factories once it had been completely harnessed.

Doubtful Compliment

Bobby, aged six, was playing with a little girl. One of his schoolmates passed by and began to sing: "Bobby's got a girl, Bobby's got a girl!" "Aw, go on!" retorted Bobby. "You've got one yourself, and she's worse'n mine!"—Everybody's Magazine.

His leg was badly broken between the knee and hip. He was hurried to Frederick hospital for treatment.

Ada Reindollar and Bobbie Reindollar, met with a bad auto accident on the Emmitsburg road at the cattle branch bridge. Suicides from Baltimore Monument.

A young lady, named Miss Margaret Koontz, aged about 20 years, leaped from the top of Washington's monument, Baltimore, on Tuesday, falling 180 feet to the base of the monument. Death was of course, instantaneous.

Her home is said to be in St. Joseph, Mo., but she had lived in Baltimore for several months, where she was taking treatment for a nervous disorder, and despondency is supposed to have been the cause of her act. She has a sister, Mrs. John L. Wisler living at Mt. Jackson, Va.

LAST PAGE EDITORIAL.

Crying Children.

One of our exchanges, the other day, called attention to how a crying child in an audience broke up the act of a professional player, who happened to be a man who had helped to raise a million or more dollars to feed children of the poor. The point made by this newspaper was, that as audiences insist on good programs and performances, they should also give platform people a fair show, by removing crying children, or other like diversions.

Some public speakers profess not to be disturbed by children who fret, or cry, while others are disconcerted by even the restlessness and moving about of prattling children who do not cry. Audiences are affected in the same way. Some people can keep their attention fixed on a program and performer, while others are disturbed easily—it is a matter of temperament.

The same question applies to church services, and there is as great a variety of effects. Some preachers can easily "keep on going," while others are visibly influenced, and there is also a wide difference between parents, and others, who have charge of noisy children; some remove them very promptly, while others seem bound to "break in," the noise-maker by letting it remain—perhaps in the end, teaching the child to be quiet in audiences, but not helping the rest of the folks to enjoy the discourse while the "breaking in" is going on.

In public places, where admission is charged, we have seen stage performers stop and request children to be removed; and while this may be considered justifiable on the part of a nervous lecturer, such requests, unless most tactfully and agreeably made, are apt to react unfavorably against the one making them.

The question is largely one for which there is no one fixed solution, because all are not constituted nor affected alike; but it would seem a duty devolving on those having the care of little children in public assemblies, that they should consider, first of all, the comfort and pleasure of the majority, rather than their own preferences especially when there are convenient and comfortable rooms to which they may withdraw.
