MINISTER KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Run Down by a Learner, on a Busy Highway.

The Sunday crop of auto accidents included the running down and killing of Rev. Peter S. Boyden, rector of the New Market, Frederick county, Episcopal Church, the driver of the car being Charles S. Moore, of Takoma Park, Md. Moore is said to have run into Mr. Boyden, who was 72 years old, while trying to avoid collision with another car at Ridgeville. Rev. Boyden had preached at Mt. Airy in the morning and had gone to Ridgeville to take a bus for Poplar Springs. He died at night at Frederick City Hospital. Moore was fined $5.00 for "reckless driving."

The case is being further investigated. The fine of $5.00 was imposed before the seriousness of the accident was known by the Magistrate. E. Austin Baughman, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, says a man may be running his car within the speed limit and still be held for "reckless driving" if he does not take the necessary precautions for safety.

The outlook seems to be that Moore may be finally charged with manslaughter. The investigation of the case reveals the fact that he was operating his car under an "instruction" license which had been issued but four days before the accident, and that he had no business to try learning to run the car on a congested highway, even if the laws of the state may specifically prohibit doing so.

Commissioner Baughman and the State's Attorney are closely investigating the case, through witnesses, and will take whatever action may seem justified by the evidence. There was an instructor with Moore, at the time of the mishap, and there is the feeling that some responsibility rests on him.

Roadside Tree Trimming.

To the Forest Wardens Assigned to tree work:

At this time of the year the active growth of trees necessitates cleaning out under the wires of the various pole line companies in order that clearance may be given. Under the Roadside Tree Law enacted in 1914, it is necessary for a permit to be issued before this work can be done. The original signed permit is sent to the warden who is to have charge of the trimming, and an unsigned duplicate is sent to the company. Therefore, the trimming cannot be done unless warden is present and sanctions the work.

The trees must be trimmed under the jurisdiction and supervision of the warden and his instructions as to trimming followed, as he has the authority to stop the work in case it is not done in the proper manner. All cuts over one inch in diameter must be painted with a good quality lead paint or coal tar. Clearance for one year's growth is enough. This varies with different species of trees. The trees must be made to present the best possible appearance with no scraggly limbs left.

All brush resulting from the trimming must be taken from the road and either dragged back into the woods at least 100 feet from the rights-of-way or preferably taken to some field and burned. Care must be taken that no brush remains scattered along the roadside as this, upon drying, creates a very serious fire menace and until it has been cleaned off, as stated above, the trimming cannot be approved.

KARL E. PFEIFFER, Assistant State Forester.

Strike Threatened on W. W. R. R.

A strike of all firemen and engineers of the Western Maryland Railroad seemed imminent, after it was learned that a cautiously guarded secret meeting of officials of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers was held in Hagerstown, Thursday, of last week, to discuss advisability of a strike.

Added impetus was given to the report by an announcement made by W. E. Jones, of Baltimore, general chairman of the organization, saying that "unless arbitrary measures are effective in the near future, a strike is inevitable."

It was stated that local chairmen are in favor of a strike if the railroad refuses an increase of approximately five percent in wages.—Hagerstown Herald.

Maryland Reformed Classis.

The Maryland Classis of the Reformed Church, met in St. John's Reformed Church, Clearspring, Washington county, from Monday until Wednesday, about 75 pastors and lay delegates being present. The session opened on Monday evening, in charge of Rev. Edward R. Hamme, of Westminster, and Rev. Franklin Main, of Brunswick, the sermon being preached by Rev. Dr. Charles Weller, of Baltimore.

Business sessions were held on Tuesday, and on Wednesday morning. On Tuesday evening, on Home Missions, by Rev. James Mullan, of Philadelphia; and Rev. William Edward Hoy, pioneer missionary of the Reformed Church in China, on the work in China.

DISTRICT C. E. PROGRAM.

Enthusiastic Gathering of Local C. E. Societies.

The District C. E. Union held an interesting and all around excellent program in the Lutheran Church, on Wednesday evening. In addition to members of the Lutheran, Reformed, Presbyterian and United Brethren Societies, representatives of other societies were present, as well as Edward S. Hopkins, vice-president of the State C. E. Union, Mrs. Richards, Sec'y of the Union, and the lady-in-charge of Quiet Hour of State Union. The program was in charge of W. Wallace Reindollar, retiring president of the local union.

The opening service was conducted by Rev. C. W. Shipley, Rev. T. D. Ritter and Rev. W. V. Garrett. Music was furnished by a Union choir, the Lutheran Young Men's Chorus, and the Juniors.

The Lutheran Society was presented with a handsome shield, by Mr. Hopkins, in recognition of the work of the society on Friends of Christ chart, in putting the C. E. World, or the Maryland Endeavor, in the home of every active member of the Society.

Rev. Wilbur F. Smith, pastor of Lafayette Ave., Baltimore Presbyterian Church, delivered the address of the evening in a masterly manner, taking for his theme that portion of the C. E. pledge calling for the reading of the Bible every day.

County President, Merwyn C. Fuss installed the newly elected officers of the district union; Miss Estella Essig, president; B. Walter Crapster, vice-president; Miss Ruth Ohler, secretary, and Mrs. Arthur Angell, treasurer.

The T. B. Test.

The testing of dairy cattle in the county for tuberculosis has caused a considerable amount of discussion not only among the dairymen but among the laymen as well. Despite the fact that some fifteen meetings were held in the county at which Dr. Lockwood, Bureau of Animal Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, explained the need for the eradication of Bovine Tuberculosis and the method by which the campaign would be put on in the county, there are many wild stories afloat about the campaign and manner of testing. Numerous articles have also been published in this column.

A recent article discussing the test ended with "What's the use." The Public Health Service has found that 30 percent of all children that die of tuberculosis from birth to five years of age have Bovine Tuberculosis. If this figure can be eliminated a wonderful work will have been accomplished.

"The Maximum appraisal for a grade cow is $75. If a grade cow is appraised at $75 and she reacts, the Government, the State and the farmer all share alike in the loss and the farmer receives $50. When the animal is slaughtered and inspected she is placed in one of three classes—tanker, sterilizer or beef—depending upon the stage of development of the disease. The above three parties share alike in the returns received from the slaughtered animal. The farmer may receive for a grade cow that has been appraised at $75 from $50 to $60. A pure bred registered cow may be appraised as high as $150 on the same terms, so that a Dairyman may receive from $100 to $110 for such an animal.

A pure-bred bull is appraised the same as a pure-bred cow. A grade bull receives no appraisal and the farmer gets whatever it will bring as beef when it is slaughtered. The above mentioned article said "this discrimination was unjust and unfair." A grade bull cannot be considered as anything more than a beef animal, although he may be used by farmers as a breeding animal but his offspring are never any better than their sire and dam, generally of a lower degree. You can never count on improving a dairy herd by using a grade or mongrel or scrub bull. A pure-bred registered dairy bull will improve the herd from 100 to 300 percent the first generation.

The average cow of the county only produces 3200 pounds milk per year, although we have cows that will produce that much in a month. The income from sale of dairy products is $2,000,000. Should the farmer of Carroll County foster a system which will continue to decrease this return by producing inferior dairy cattle by using scrub bulls as breeders? The Government and State officials do not think so, so no indemnity is given for the scrub bull. If you want any information about the T. B. test ask Dr. Henderson or County Agent Fuller.

What Prohibition Actually Does.

"Years ago," said Judge E. Y. Webb, of North Carolina, "I stood on historic King's Mountain and saw the smoke of 38 government distilleries. I saw no macadamized roads, scarcely a school house. I saw saloons everywhere. There were only two or three factories, giving employment to or three hundred people. Some years after the people had driven out this curse, I stood in the same place. I found macadamized roads in almost every part of the county. I saw magnificent churches of almost every denomination. I found school houses in every district of that county. There was not the smoke of a single distillery, but instead I saw the smoke of forty-three of the largest cotton factories in the United States."

PLAN TO GET RID OF GRADE CROSSINGS.

Cost Estimated at $20,000,000 for the Whole State.

Maryland will likely be asked to appropriate $10,000,000 when the legislature meets in 1927, as half of the cost of eliminating 166 railroad grade crossings in the state, the railroads to pay the other half. So the news goes this week, and the daily newspapers and motorists are whooping it up to be "just the thing." Fine! But how about the taxpayers? Oh, Yes, A Bond issue! But, bond issues mean borrowed money, and interest until paid, and the taxpayers may be asked to furnish both.

Grade crossings are bad things; but they are immensely worse, now, because motorists do not like to slack-up at crossings and "stop, look and listen!" They are in too big a hurry and occasionally drivers and cars get smashed up—killed, in fact.

So, to relieve the situation, it has been discovered that only $20,000,000 will be required to put the 166 crossings up in the air, or under ground.

The railroads are said to have agreed to the proposition. It would stop the employment of safety gates, flagmen, bell-ringing, and the like, and incidentally a lot of damage suits. Perhaps it might represent a good investment of $10,000,000 to get rid of 166 grade crossings, especially considering that there may be double the number of motor vehicles using the roads in the next ten years.

But, perhaps the taxpayers may not be asked to shoulder the whole burden. The whole proposition, of course, is speculative, at this time. Common sense seems to indicate that the taxpayers, as a big class, are not wholly the ones that should do the paying; in fact, it is becoming difficult to see how they are going to keep on paying present taxes, without thinking of adding more for making the roads safer for speeders.

We suggest that this $10,000,000 should be added—at least three-fourths of it—to gasoline tax for motor use, to garages, to increased license fees, or in other ways so as to hit those who are most likely to run into railroad trains. A plan something like this seems to us quite fair.

Western Maryland College Campaign.

The campaign to raise $500,000 for the endowment of Western Maryland College will be put on during the week of May 11-May 18.

A meeting will be held in the interest of the campaign, Monday evening, May 11, at 7:30 o'clock, in the dining room of Western Maryland College. No charge will be made for the dinner.

To this meeting all former students and all citizens of the County, who are interested in the development of a greater Western Maryland College, are invited. We hope to have 400 at this meeting. This will be the most important meeting in connection with the Carroll County campaign. At this meeting we are anxious to hear from all who have a good word for this movement. Important matters of business, connected with the campaign, will be discussed and arrangements will be made to put the canvass on.

I wish to urge a large attendance at this meeting. The outcome of this campaign is of vital interest to this County. We, therefore, feel that our representative citizens ought to be present at this meeting.

A. N. WARD, Pres. W. M. Col.

Mrs. Mary Shank Paroled.

Mrs. Mary Shank, leader of the tar and feathers party at Myersville, last July, has been paroled after serving six months of a nine months sentence in Frederick county jail. The report is that she has gone to a Lutheran home, in Baltimore, and that this had something to do with the granting of the parole. Harry Leatherman and Arthur Rice are the only ones still serving time for complicity in the affair, one-third of their sentence not yet having expired, which makes them eligible for parole.

Must be in Uniform to Stop Motorists

In the future, unless police officers in Pennsylvania are in uniform and show their badges, they cannot attempt to stop any motor vehicle on any highway. The motorists is justified in speeding by any person waiting them to a stop on roads if they are not uniformed.

This law is one of the most desired by motorists in Pennsylvania. It was found necessary by the Legislature to pass such a law because of the ever-increasing number of robberies on highways.

Motorists in the past faced a dilemma every time a man stepped on the highway and flagged down their automobiles. If they stopped, they were just as likely to face a revolver in the hands of a thug; if they sped past, a summons a few days later informed they they had violated a law by not stopping when commanded to do so by an officer.

Between 4,000,000 and 4,500,000 snakes are used annually in Japan for medicinal purposes. More than 200 men make their living by serpent catching in the vicinity of Mount Iouki and Shigan-Ken.

A Check for $146,000,000.

A check for $146,000,000 was given by Dillon, Read & Co., for the Dodge Brothers automobile business, and the amount will be divided among the stockholders of the former Dodge Company, the most of which passes into the hands of widows of the brothers who originally started the business. The Dodge Company will continue to be operated by new stockholders.

Dawson City, Alaska, has one day and one night, each year, each six months long. It would be interesting to know how they manage to keep track of the 24 hour days, and how the time is spent. There is a Masonic Lodge there, and presumably churches and places of entertainment.

From 300 to 500 dozen frogs or frog legs are shipped daily from Oshkosh, Wisconsin, during the summer season.

COOLIDGE EXPECTS BIG DEBT CUT

Federal Taxes Can thereby be Very Materially Reduced.

President Coolidge is planning for a big cut in Federal tax reductions for 1926, and a reduction in the public debt of some $300,000,000. The President, however, is likely to have a fight with Congress, as an effort will almost surely be made to put through a lot of new measures that will absorb some of the reductions, and postpone the making of a tax-reduction record. It is nearly always the case for this to be done.

Although the making up of the budget is not due yet for several months, cabinet officers and heads of departments are getting their figures in shape, and some of them are completed, awaiting final action.

The President also has in mind further reductions in administrative expenses in government departments, and the number of employees. A large portion of the reduction will come from the paying off of war bonds, thereby ending interest payments.

A Memorial Chapel for Gettysburg

Our friend attorney Wm. A. Golden, of Pittsburg, sent us a copy of the Pittsburg Post with a write-up of Pittsburg Councils sending 50 delegates to Gettysburg, to take part in the 27th annual State Convention of the Pennsylvania State Council Knights of Columbus, May 10-13.

One of the events of the program will be the presentation and dedication of a $25,000 memorial chapel, in the form of a new front for the historic St. Francis Xavier Church, at Gettysburg, that served as a hospital during the Civil War.

On Sunday at 3 o'clock the formal presentation of the memorial will take place, with Rev. Mark E. Stock, pastor of St. Francis Xavier's, delivering the introductory address and Michael J. McEnery of Philadelphia, chairman of the memorial committee, presiding. State Deputy Leo G. Griffith, on behalf of the Pennsylvania Knights of Columbus, will present the memorial to the Harrisburg diocese, and the acceptance will be made by Rt. Rev. Bishop McDevitt. Addresses will be delivered by Rev. Dr. Peter Guilday of the Catholic University, Washington, and Hon. Albert C. Ritchie, governor of Maryland.

Be Vaccinated.

Because of the prevalence of smallpox in nearby states, Dr. Jno. S. Fulton, Director of the State Department of Health, urges all persons in Maryland who have not been successfully vaccinated within the past year, to be vaccinated without further delay. Smallpox vaccine is furnished free of charge by the State Department of Health to physicians throughout the counties on application either to the Department, or through the local health officer.

"If it is not convenient for you to go to your own physician to be vaccinated, go to the local health officer," Dr. Fulton advised yesterday in commenting on the seriousness of the present situation.

"Maryland has been more fortunate than many states," Dr. Fulton said, "in escaping the outbreaks that have swept over large sections of the country in the last few years, but that does not mean that we are free from danger now. Present methods of travel—the ease with which we move about from place to place by trolley, automobile, boat and train service, bring us in daily, even hourly contact with people from the places where the disease is now epidemic. Vaccination against smallpox takes less than five minutes, and as the vaccine virus is furnished free of charge by the State to physicians, the fee for such service by private physicians is not large.

"Smallpox has been more prevalent in the United States and Canada during the last three years than in any other part of the world, except China and India. Not only has the disease increased in the United States, but it has occurred in a much more virulent form, and has caused a great number of deaths. In forty states and the District of Columbia, there were 49,587 cases and 871 deaths in 1924; 27,756 cases and 144 deaths in 1923; and 30,281 cases with 491 deaths in 1922.

"These figures are appalling, but they come from reliable sources and are a fact which we have to face in order that we may realize the vastness of the outbreak.

Write Out "Maryland."

It requires but little more time when addressing an envelope, to write out the word "Maryland." So doing may save a letter from being misdirected, as the abbreviation "Md." may easily look like "Mo," "Ind.," "Nev.," "Me.," or perhaps other abbreviations, when not written plainly. Many persons address envelopes hastily in either a scrawl, or with flourishes, or perhaps in very small letters. Better be careful, and write out the word plainly.

Marriage Licenses.

James E. Daniels and Sarah Turner Gray, Baltimore.

Harry C. Gist and Katie E. Knauff, Sykesville.

C. Wilbur Stonesifer and Dorothy Elizabeth Boller, Graceham.

The Bible passage which President Coolidge kissed as he took the oath at his inauguration was the first verse of the first chapter of the Gospel of John—"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God and the Word was God." The verse was Calvin Coolidge's first reading lesson as a child.

If a human being were to be completely covered with a coat of paint, he would die within five hours.

Motorists of the United States paid $80,000,000 in 1924 in a gasoline tax.

THE AUTO PERIL.

The Remedy for it Rests with the General Public.

The Baltimore Sun, on Tuesday, called attention, editorially, to the automobile as a deadly engine of war on the population of the country. We reproduce it, with the hope that its reading may induce everybody to aid in the reduction of the alarming loss of life and injury that is a daily story throughout the land.

"With a daily average of 52 killed and 5,650 injured, the automobile has become a deadly engine of war in time of peace. It is no respecter of persons. The pacifist is in as much danger as the militarist. No one is exempt from its ravages; no one can claim immunity from its conscription of death.

Any civilization is a failure which creates a monster that it cannot curb, which permits a convenience or a necessity to become a worse destroyer than a plague. We have learned how to stamp out typhoid, smallpox and other diseases by science. And, as a matter of self-preservation, we must find an antitoxin that will reduce this human slaughter to the minimum.

But until we feel the same alarm over the auto peril and the auto destruction of human life that we feel with regard to smallpox or bubonic plague, the auto will continue to go about like a roaring line, seeking whom it may devour.

We cannot afford to continue to accept the present scale of fatalities as unavoidable. We cannot control cyclones or earthquakes. We can limit the death toll of the automobile if we are utterly in earnest. It is a question of science applied to everyday affairs. A safety system must be worked out if this auto warfare against life is not to go on.

The auto problem demands the concentration on the whole of the practical genius of the whole country."

Soldier and Orphan Relief.

Annapolis, May 5.—The American Legion's campaign "for those who gave the most"—the disabled veterans and war orphans—has been opened in Maryland. An announcement by Colonel James E. Abbott, commander of the Legion, department of Maryland, made this week said that preparations would be made immediately to raise the state's share of the national $5,000,000 endowment fund.

Maryland's quota in the soldier and orphan relief program, Commander Abbott said, will be $50,000. Other states where the campaign started earlier already have raised their quotas. Almost simultaneously with the announcement of the opening of the Maryland campaign, it was announced that Governor Ritchie had accepted the chairmanship of the state committee which is to be formed with every section of the state represented.

Following the selection of a state committee, local committees composed of prominent citizens, Legionnaires and members of the Legion Auxiliary, will be formed in every community where there is a post of the Legion. Upon these committees a major share of the responsibility for the state's quota will rest. Although the Maryland campaign has not passed formative stage, much rivalry between Legion posts to determine which will be first "over the top" already has been noticed, according to the commander.

"We wish to make a record in this campaign just as Maryland has in every great patriotic and humanitarian effort of the past," Commander Abbott declared. Maryland never has failed to do her part and I know that she will not now.

"A very grave problem confronts the country, and in the solution of it the Legion is taking a leading part. The Legion proposes that temporary care and permanent cure shall be afforded every disabled veteran, wherever humanly possible, and it proposes to see to it that the 35,000 war orphans in America get a square deal.

"In the establishment of a permanent $5,000,000 foundation, the income from which is to be used for the disabled men and the orphans, a long step toward righting some of the war's injustices will be taken."

Write Out "Maryland."

It requires but little more time when addressing an envelope, to write out the word "Maryland." So doing may save a letter from being misdirected, as the abbreviation "Md." may easily look like "Mo," "Ind.," "Nev.," "Me.," or perhaps other abbreviations, when not written plainly. Many persons address envelopes hastily in either a scrawl, or with flourishes, or perhaps in very small letters. Better be careful, and write out the word plainly.

A State Commissioner of school athletics, to have general supervision over the athletic affairs of Ohio high schools, will be reality beginning next fall. Owing to recent difficulties with athletics it was found necessary to appoint some officer to stand between the board of control and the management of high school athletics.

Buffalo, N. Y., is in the midst of a great school-building campaign. Twelve new buildings are under construction, including a $2,000,000 high school; and plans are in preparation for two other buildings. This has become necessary because of failure for years to provide accommodations to meet the needs of this rapidly growing city.

The Spenders.

We have gotten into the habit, as a nation, of wanting more money, more wages, more profit, merely in order that we can indulge in more spending—acquire more habits of frolic and luxury, then gratify them. We are more and more appealing for a "square deal" against the rich, and arguing that because one is poor one ought not to be kept poor, but that all are entitled to the same privileges, and by "privileges" we largely mean getting, and "spending," more money.

Hard work is not sought. If we must work, we want work that pays big, and is attended by short hours and long periods of physical relaxation. We are continually aiming at cutting down work hours and increasing the pay—having a good time—and that is largely what is the matter with the whole country.

Our young people are largely growing up in an unhealthy atmosphere—an atmosphere of swagger and loudness, of boyish girls and girlish boys, and of daring familiarities that unsex, both by comparison with the times when modesty and curbed habits were the rule—and "money to spend" helps along the trend.

It is difficult to comment along this line without being labeled "old grouch;" but just the same there is too much going in the way of "modern" improvements that are not "improvements" at all, and all of it is costing somebody too much—and they are not those who are the beneficiaries of the more pay and less work classes. All one needs to do to prove such a statement, is to look around in every community—and read the newspapers.

Nobody wants to see a panic, or hard times, in this country; no actual need for food, or clothing, or the necessities of life; but, we are living too easily and too carelessly in these days to properly appreciate the multitude of blessings we enjoy, and we have entirely too much of the "come easy, go easy" philosophy mixed in with our daily life. After all, life is a serious experience, but fashion and habit is making it something entirely different.

Quiet at Washington.

President Coolidge, with his customary calm good sense, has practically announced that Washington will be devoid of big plans and political sensations for the next six months, and that the people of the country can afford to take eyes off Washington and concentrate on their own affairs.

He wants the public given opportunity to feel that things are settled; that uncertainties have been removed as much as they can be, and that there is a secure foundation upon which business men can make commitments without the fear that governmental intervention will upset their plans.

The College Boy's "Career."

The following from the Philadelphia Ledger, is all very well, theoretically, and perhaps sometimes, actually; but, we do not want too much of the idea that a young man is sure to find out just what he ought to do, merely because he "goes through College" or perhaps only a High School. What a young man is best fitted to do, is a decision for good common sense—a clear conception of ability—and this our colleges and schools do not always supply along with their diplomas and degrees.

The "old man" may know a good many things, in addition to putting up money for a boy's education; and it is just possible, in a good many cases, that he may know what will "fit" his boy, better than the boy himself knows. There is the danger that a boy may be educated away from work, and business or professional success, rather than toward it. Results demonstrate this conclusion, for thousands of self-picked occupations have resulted in absolute failures. Many a "dad" with a common school education and the teaching of experience, actually knows more than spells success, than does his college decorated boy. The Ledger article says:

"A questionnaire answered by the senior class at Harvard reveals strange reversals of form between fathers and sons. The number of sons choosing medicine as a career is thrice the number of fathers; the same proportion holds for education. But only half as many of the younger generation are electing a career in business or in the ministry. The number intending to adopt the latter calling is negligible—two students only. Yet when Harvard was founded, the confessed intent was to supply learned clergymen when those who had been trained in England passed away.

In this land of the free agent and the elective system no profession is a family transmittendum. There is no tradition that one son becomes a soldier or another a clergyman. Twigs are bent and trees inclined by personal volition. It was the central tenet of the Eliot creed at Harvard that a man for his bread-winning occupation should do what pleased him and not follow an uncongenial profession wished upon him by parental choice. There are gains and there are losses in the abrogation of the old notion of a filio-paternal partnership. It is a fine thing to find a business heritage linked through the years by descent in a family; pride in the accumulated prestige and good will is an asset of demonstrable value. But a young man leaving college ought not to be forced miserably into a lifework for which he is unsuited for the poor reason that his father engaged in it before him. None should step into a career, though read-made, unless it fits him."

Millions More for the Farmer.

The recent announcement by the Secretary of Agriculture that the farm outlook is the best in five years, while of particular interest to the American farmer, is likewise of deep concern to business men throughout the country, for the farmer's buying strength goes far to determine whether times will be prosperous, or the reverse. The statement that the American farmer will have $10,000,000,000 to spend at the end of the crop year next June—a billion more than in 1922—will mean the maintenance of the farmer's purchasing power and a continuance of agricultural support for general prosperity, assuming, of course, that no great change in the general price level of farm products takes place.

The fact that farm products and livestock production in the United States last year had a total value of more than $12,000,000,000—more than half of the entire national debt—is reason for nation-wide rejoicing. The values amounted to more than $1,000 for every person, male or female, above ten years of age, employed in agriculture or its allied occupations. These figures suggest the magnitude and importance of farming in this country. And while the figures cited for 1924 show a tremendous decline from those of 1920, when crops and livestock values were more than $21,000,000,000, one must remember that in 1920 values were enormously inflated. It is not at all certain that in proportion to the prices of the things he must buy, the farmer's values were any higher than in 1924.

Just now there is a slump in the price of wheat. But as practically all of last year's crop, except that reserved for seed, had been sold before the slump came, the speculator in grains, the miller, and the middleman, not the farmer, are more likely to be injured by this decline in prices. In fact, this slump may be a blessing in disguise to the farmer. Had wheat remained around $2 a bushel, he would have been tempted to increase his last year's acreage of spring wheat. Then, with a production larger than the world's requirements, we probably would have had dollar wheat again. That is, since the farmer is not financially able to hold back his crop from the market, and must sell it virtually as soon as it is harvested, the middlemen, the millers, and the speculators would have bought this wheat for perhaps a dollar a bushel, and held it for an increase in price.

The great feature about the present situation, according to the Department of Agriculture, is that the country has finally worked out from under its paralyzing surpluses. The decks are fairly well cleared for a new deal. The world reserve of wheat, corn, cotton, and wool needs to be replenished. Farm production on the whole is in better balance than at any time since the war; both the domestic and foreign demands for farm products are good, and promise to remain so for at least another year. Hogs, cattle, dairy products, wheat, corn, and poultry in the corn belt promise to bring more money than last year.—Dearborn Independent.

In a Hurry.

A traffic observer who is also an observer of human nature remarks that it is the "hurry bug" that causes most of the accidents. He thinks it is almost as definite a thing as the hookworm, which makes people unnaturally and insufferably slow. It simply works in the opposite way, developing a mania for speed.

The victims of this mania imagine they have to be always going at maximum velocity. They try to keep up their speed regardless of obstacles, laws or other people's rights. So they are always getting smashed up or smashing up somebody else. And what does it get them, even if they escape violent damage? In plunging across town at break-neck speed they may save, if they are lucky, say 10 minutes. What do they do with the 10 minutes?

They waste it, in all probability, smoking or chatting, to relieve the strain. Or else they plunge just as feverishly into their work, and waste the time saved, and more, by nervous and unwise action.

It is all right to be in a hurry, but all wrong to have one's mind in a hurry. The biggest and most successful men, the men who get the most done, are nearly always men who do not let themselves get hurried, and who therefore see clearly and act calmly and make no mistakes.—Frederick News.

Swat the Fly.

The first fly of the season buzzed through the open window in the recording room of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases of the State Department of Health, the other day. Automatically, the office force rose, as one individual, to swat it. "Getting rid of one fly, now," murmured one of the combatants, "means the potential loss of many millions by August."

To verify this statement, the statistician looked up the records for fly families and this is what the books said:

Month	Flies
April (wintered over female)	.....1
May 1	.....120
May 28	.....7,200
June 20	.....432,000
July 10	.....25,920,000
July 29	.....1,555,200,000
August 18	.....93,312,000,000
Sept. 10	.....5,596,720,000,000

(These flies placed end to end would circle the world 880 times.)
When the excitement over the slaughter had subsided, it was found that several classics had been collected and duly cherished by these ardent fly fighters. Some of the choicest are given below. The first originated in the department and was as follows:

"There was a man in our town
And he was wondrous wise
He covered up his garbage pails
To keep away the flies."

This served as the text for a poster showing the wise old man with his fly proof garbage pail. Copies of the poster may be had by writing to the State Department of Health 16 West Saratoga St., Baltimore, Number 2 came from Lancashire, England. Here it is:

"Straight from the rubbish heap I come
I never wash my feet
And every single chance I get
I walk on what you eat."

The third came from the Oklahoma Health News, confirming the computations referred to above, and gave this advice:

"Every fly that skips our swatters
Will have five million sons and daughters
And countless first and second cousins
Of aunts and uncles scores and dozens
And fifty-seven million nieces
So knock the blame thing all to pieces."

Dr. Fulton, the Director of the State Department of Health, urges the use of the most strenuous measures possible, against all enemies of personal and community health, to which class the fly belongs. Here is his advice: "The fly breeds in filth and feeds on filth, decaying vegetation, human excreta, and putrefying animal matter. Its favorite breeding spot is the manure pile. It flies from filth to food. It spreads tuberculosis, typhoid, dysentery and other diseases. It is no respecter of persons. It carries infection to children and grown-ups with equal impartiality.

"The time to get rid of flies is now, before they begin to multiply. Clean up the manure piles and all other places where garbage or putrefying waste collects. Screen your houses and your out-houses, and swat each fly that comes your way."

Ponce de Leon's Search

The story of Ponce de Leon, the Spanish explorer, who came to Florida 400 years ago and roamed the new continent in search of the "Fountain of Youth," and finally perished in the wilderness, is familiar to every high school student.

Now comes Col. L. M. Maus of the United States medical corps, who in an address declared that the place for which De Leon was searching was the Hot Springs of Arkansas. That it was tales of the "healing waters" of these springs brought to the seacoast by adventuring explorers of which history has no record, which came to the ears of the Spanish explorer and sent him into the interior in search for the "Fountain." De Leon's expedition, according to Colonel Maus, was not so fantastic as the school books make it appear.

Poet's Odd Experience

There is an instance, recorded some time ago, of the late poet James Whitcomb Riley's experience, when some strange impulse drew him out of bed and prompted him to write his poem "Bereaved," the simple story of the death of a little child. At the time, Riley had no knowledge that the child of any one in whom he was interested was even seriously ill. He could not imagine why this insistent thought should have come to him. But in his mail a few days later came a letter from his old friend Bill Nye, announcing the death of one of his children on the very night that the strange call to write had come to the poet.

Official Terms Vary

Presidential terms in the various republics are as follows: Argentine republic, term six years; Austria, four years, president may be re-elected once; Bolivia, four years, not eligible for re-election; Brazil, four years, not eligible for re-election; Chile, four years, not eligible for re-election; China, five years, president may be re-elected; Colombia, four years, not eligible for re-election; Costa Rica, four years; Ecuador, four years; Finland, six years; France, seven years; Germany, seven years; Latvia, three years, no person can hold office more than six consecutive years; Liberia, four years.

Foiled Customs Officers

The customs cordon between northern and southern Ireland is, of course, a great nuisance to people whose market town lies across the border, and the indignation of those making acquaintance with the law's vagaries for the first time sometimes leads to amusing incidents. The other day a market woman was taking home in her basket a good, school "family" cake. On finding that the duty would amount to as much as the price of the cake itself, she declined to pay. "Refuse ye may," said the official, laying hands on the not-uninviting looking confection, "but we confiscate the cake." "That ye'll not," said she, and snatching the cake out of his hands she retired across the border and, regardless of possible future consequences, proceeded under the eyes of the disappointed official to consume it to the last crumb.

Unsinkable Ships

An engineer named Liebetrau, in the Austrian province of Fararberg, claims to have invented an apparatus which can be installed in ships to make them unsinkable.

The invention consists of a device whereby the water which has entered through a leak is forced back again and the ship's buoyancy maintained.

Experiments with a 12-foot boat were carried out on Lake Boden. The boat in which the apparatus was installed was loaded with 600 pounds of stone and then sunk in 60 feet of water by opening a valve. The boat later rose to the surface, and remained floating.

The engineer states that his invention can be installed in liners and controlled from the bridge.

Beauty Clay

So-called beauty clays are not composed of real clay. Most of the beauty clays on the market consist of fuller's earth with some tincture of benzoin. Fuller's earth is a soft earthy material resembling clay but not plastic. It occurs in nature as an impure hydrous aluminum silicate. Fuller's earth is also widely used to remove stains from such substances as cloth, wool and wallpaper. It is also used as a filter to clarify oils.—Exchange.

Methodists Increasing

In the United States there are 4,711,994 persons who have established active relations with the Methodist church through membership, this figure showing an increase of 51,450 during 1924. This gain takes into consideration the withdrawals through death, removals or transfers to other churches of about 35,000. There are about 28,000 members in foreign areas.

Pima Cotton Valuable

Pima cotton, introduced into the United States as a domestic long-staple product to take the place of Egyptian cotton, makes better mail pouches than almost any other material, the bureau of standards has determined in a series of tests. Two hundred pouches made of Pima cotton and 200 of ordinary cotton were made up by the bureau and put into identical use for a year in the hardest service. None of the Pima bags was torn after a year, but one-third of the ordinary bags were torn badly.

Western Maryland's Opportunity Depends Upon Carroll County!

CAMPAIGN TO RAISE $375,000 FOR ENDOWMENT TO MEET THE CONDITIONAL APPROPRIATION OF THE STATE OF MARYLAND OF $125,000 FOR A BUILDING AND THE CONDITIONAL GIFT OF THE GENERAL EDUCATION BOARD OF $125,000 FOR ENDOWMENT, WILL BE PUT ON MAY 11-18. EVERY FRIEND OF THE COLLEGE IS INVITED TO HELP.

The purpose of the campaign may be briefly stated.

By Act of the Legislature of 1924, the State of Maryland made an appropriation of $125,000 for a building, provided the College should raise additional endowment to the amount of $250,000.

The General Education Board of New York City (the Rockefeller Foundation) announces a conditional gift of $125,000 to Western Maryland College provided the College raises additional endowment to the amount of $375,000, which with their gift means a total additional endowment of $500,000. This condition, if met, will bring a total endowment of the College up to $800,000, and will place Western Maryland College in the front rank of American Colleges. In other words, raising $375,000 secures the State's appropriation of $125,000 and the Rockefeller gift of $125,000, a total of $250,000.

A great movement is on throughout the State of Maryland and elsewhere to put this campaign across. Alumni and Friends of the College recognize the challenge of the present situation as an opportunity to produce a Greater Western Maryland College, and they are preparing to meet the challenge.

Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars will come from outside Carroll County. Our county must do its part in recognition of the worth of a great college to our community and because Western Maryland College is a Carroll County Institution. Our local pride is at stake.

If this campaign is successful, the place of Western Maryland College among the great American Colleges will be forever established. Why should not Carroll County be the seat of one of the really great Colleges of this Country? This campaign will determine this. The Rockefeller Foundation says to us practically: "You have an opportunity to produce a great College. We will give you $125,000 to help you to do this!"

One Hundred Thousand Dollars is the apportionment for Carroll County, --- about one-fifth of the entire amount we expect to raise in this campaign.

The fight is on and we are sure to win!

Explorer Finds Unknown Hot Lake in Cascades

Bellingham, Wash.—Incredible as it may seem, there still are apparently undiscovered bits of land, little nooks, lakes and the like where civilized man has not set foot.

Local United States forest officials were surprised a few days ago to learn that a hot lake of 40 or 50 acres in extent had been discovered in the high open of the Cascade mountains about 20 miles south of the Canadian border. They had not known such a lake existed, they said, although they had supposed they knew, at least from a distant view, every square mile.

A young man, who in exploring in the mountains found the lake, estimates the temperature to be 112 degrees Fahrenheit. The forest officials are preparing to investigate further and "put the lake on the map."

What Makes it Go?

Sam was a coachman by profession and had grown gray in the service of his present employer. When, therefore, the family decided to replace their horses and carriages with an automobile, it seemed heartless to turn old Sam adrift. So it was decided to make a chauffeur of him. At his employer's expense Sam was given a most complete course of instruction by a competent automobile mechanic. He was taught not only how to drive the car, but how to make all minor repairs. The engine was taken down and he was taught every detail of its working from A to Z.

When the course was finally completed, his instructor said: "Well, Sam, I guess I've taught you all I know. Is there anything now that isn't entirely clear to you?"

"Ah tell you, boss," said Sam, "there's just one little matter that's not clear to me yet."

"What is it?" asked the mechanic. "Well," said old Sam, scratching his woolly head, "ah jest don't understand what makes it go without a horse."—The Transmitter.

A Bad Lot

Dr. Woods Hutchinson, disembarking from a liner in New York, said that Europe was in a deplorable state.

"Let us hope the Dawes plan will better things," he went on, "but Europe as I saw her was such a Hades that she reminded me of Spurgeon's stricture on mankind."

"Spurgeon, you know, said that mankind was the limit, that the history of man was a history of sin, that in the beginning there was only one commandment—only one—and yet it was one too many for our first parents."

Mohammedan Legend

The al borak was a marvelous animal of surpassing swiftness on which Mohammed is said to have made a nocturnal journey from the temple at Mecca to Jerusalem and thence to the seventh heaven, under the guidance of the angel Gabriel. Its eyes were like stars, and its body was resplendent with precious stones. It had the wings of an eagle, and a human face with the cheeks of a horse. According to Mohammedan faith the al borak is one of the few animals admitted to heaven. —Kansas City Star.

She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Elliot, and lived in Taneytown with the rest of the family until their removal to York Springs, Pa.

THE WINCHESTER STORE

Action Demanded by Short-Story Readers

"Your work is excellent but unsalable."

In these terse but kindly meant words a literary agent dismissed, a few days ago, a young author who had submitted to him some short stories.

The young author complained later that it was useless to attempt to write artistic stories for the British public, writes a critic in the London Mail.

"I am told that my work is good," he mourned. "But in England there is no demand for work that is above the average. It is necessary to sacrifice ideals in art if you expect to make a living. Every short-story writer has to submit to popular taste if he wishes to sell his stories."

The assumption, of course, was that popular taste is always bad taste. But is it?

There is a certain restricted class of reader who likes to know what people think rather than what they do. Such a reader can find enormous pleasure in books or short stories in which all adventures are adventures of the mind. But by far the greater number of readers of fiction prefer action. They have no patience with the school of writers who believe that to reveal the innermost thoughts of a man or woman who does nothing is the supreme test of artistry.

To expel from the ranks of good books all novels which are novels of action would be to cut out some of the greatest stories written. No longer should we be able to rejoice in the adventures of the Three Musketeers or follow the doings of a David Copperfield.

Popular taste asks for romance, for stories of courage and movement, of human impulses and deep-seated emotions common to us all. Is popular taste wrong?

British War Widows

Cling to Their Pensions

London.—British war widows seem loath to take unto themselves a husband for the second time, and, because of this coyness, the British taxpayer has to suffer.

When the ministry of pensions submitted its budget in March, 1924, for the amount of money to be paid in pensions to war widows, it estimated 7 per cent of them would remarry during the year. Unfortunately, the calculations were wrong, for, up to the present time, only 4 per cent have discarded their widows' weeds. Consequently, the exchequer has had to grant an extra $10,000,000 to pay their pensions.

Burial Place of "Bird Woman" Found

Washington.—A century-old question was cleared up with the announcement by the bureau of Indian affairs that the final burial place of the Shoshone Indian "bird woman" is located at Fort Washakie, Wyo.

This decision was reached by the bureau after an inquiry lasting about three months. It was prompted by a controversy among American historians as to whether the "bird woman" who attained fame as a guide of the Lewis and Clark expedition in 1805, was actually buried in the grave at Fort Washakie marked with a tablet in her memory.

Poet Made Thorough Job of Forgiveness

The poet Browning, Prof. William Lyon Phelps tells us in Scribner's Magazine, was as impulsive as Roosevelt. He could never speak of his wife with calmness. To illustrate his feeling about her, says Professor Phelps, Lady Ritchie, the daughter of Thackeray, told me this story.

There was a rumor that Browning was going to marry again, and in his absence she mentioned it. The next day Browning heard of it in a way that made him suppose she had originated the fable. That night they met at a large dinner, and he was assigned to take her out to the dining-room. She greeted him in their customary friendly manner, took his arm and then to her amazement found that he would not speak to her, but almost spiked her with his elbow every time she turned toward him.

At dinner he devoted himself exclusively to the lady on his left, and if Anne Thackeray spoke to him he made no reply. When the ladies withdrew she asked one of them whether Robert Browning had gone mad.

"Why, don't you know?" was the reply. "He heard that you started a story of a second marriage, and he will never forgive you."

That state of affairs continued for months. They constantly met at dinner parties, but he ignored her. In the following summer she, Browning and his most intimate friend, the Frenchman Milsand, were staying in the same town in Normandy. One day Milsand turned on Browning and told him that he was behaving outrageously, that Anne Thackeray had never meant any harm, had merely repeated what she had heard and was now heartbroken. Browning was smitten with contrition; he immediately started running at full speed to the opposite end of the town where Miss Thackeray lodged. He must have been a curious spectacle, for he was short and heavy and not used to running.

"I was sitting in the window of the second story in a deplorable mood," Lady Ritchie told me, "when I saw Browning running violently toward my lodging. I rushed downstairs and leaped into his arms; we both cried together and had a lovely time."

Prehistoric Mosaic Work Discovered in Arizona

Washington.—The Department of the Interior reported the finding of a cache of prehistoric work in the Casa Grande National monument, Arizona, such as has never before been found in the Southwest.

The mosaics, which were discovered in repairing the walls of the prehistoric old ruin of Casa Grande, show that the artistry of the prehistoric peoples who once inhabited this region was the equal of any other southwestern culture, and it closely approaches that of modern times in beauty of design and workmanship.

Three pieces of mosaic were found, two of them being in the form of birds and the third representing a turtle. The largest bird is the best preserved. This was made on a wooden core, with the mosaics placed in the wax. Each bit of stone had been worked out in a pyramidal shape, and 492 stones were used in the bird alone. The bird measures about 4 1/2 inches from wing-tip to wing-tip, with a large piece of red shell in the center to form a contrasting motif. The turtle, which is the largest design, is composed of 1,129 stones.

With these mosaics were found a set of perfectly matched turquoise pendants and over 900 shell beads.

Have You This Habit?

By Margaret Morison

WALT WIGGIN

WALT WIGGIN'S chop house was famous; no one knew whether more famous for its planked steak or for Walt Wiggin himself. It was an inconvenient little hole to reach, inconvenient that is, for the conventional and conservative; but, unlike other restaurants, it did not move when its boom began.

The chop house was in a basement which one reached by descending a flight of uneven stone steps. The floor was spread with clean sawdust, and there were perhaps two dozen small round tables under the central arc light that hung, round and bright-white, from the ceiling. At a corner of the red brick fireplace was Wiggin's table, and this the old-timers in the room would watch with interest as the chop house became increasingly the rendezvous for fashion, being safely adventurous and Bohemian. For the flavor of the occasion was to sit at Wiggin's table. When Treat 'Em Rough blustered that the coffee was bad, Wiggin quite calmly and patiently would explain why that was impossible. And when Treat 'Em Down descended that the oysters were better than anything else in the city, Wiggin would name the one place that he knew excelled him. Meanwhile the room, delighted, took it all in.

One night a stranger alone was ushered with more air than usual to the seat beside Wiggin, who was quite oblivious to the stir that the new arrival had occasioned. Wiggin took to his guest as he had taken to no one for many moons. Gradually he found himself breaking through his reserve and talking freely of himself to the man at his right. Wiggin finally began telling the story of his life. He had been born in a packing box on the wharves—"like a mongrel pup," he said. Now he was a married man with a business bringing a fair income. This supported his wife and three children and also a ne'er-do-well brother-in-law. Yet Wiggin allowed himself some luxuries; he had a fondness for poetry, and he subscribed to the Atlantic Monthly, and went to the theater whenever there was a Shakespeare play.

"Now, you," he interrupted himself surveying the other, "you must have got on better in the world than I."

"I had a head start, that's all," said the stranger. Then he drew a card from his pocket, after a moment's hesitation, and presented it to Wiggin; and Wiggin, glancing at it, realized that he was entertaining the governor.

"Governor," said Wiggin, "we've had an interesting conversation. There will always be a place at my table for you."

And the chop house breathed again, for Wiggin had remained true to form and his habit of, under any circumstances, "treating 'em equal."

Our Letter Box

Under this heading we will be glad to publish letters from former Carroll-countians, who are now away from home; and especially letters from those whose home is Taneytown. These letters are very interesting, to many, and we should be glad to publish one or more each week. On account of their length, it is not always convenient to use letters on first page, and will hereafter use the 4th, or 5th, page.

FROM EL CENTRO, CALIFORNIA.

For some time I have had in mind to write a few lines for the Record's "Letter Box." Last summer Mrs. Koons and myself spent three very enjoyable months with my parents in Maryland. I like to visit but it does not seem much like home to me any more, having been away from Maryland since I was 16 years of age.

Want to say a word about our return trip to California by auto. We left Taneytown about 2:00 P. M., on September 2, going as far as Hagerstown where we stayed with friends. Wednesday morning, Sept. 3rd, the real trip started. We followed the National Highway from Hagerstown to Ash Fork, Arizona. The roads are good and bad; have to take it as it comes. Some roads through Kansas and Missouri would be terrible if a person hit rainy weather; we were lucky. Left Taneytown in the rain, the only rain after that was in western Kansas and it sure did pour for about fifteen minutes. There happened to be about 40 miles of paved road and we were on it. We drove west about 15 miles, and no sign of rain. That evening we hit Colorado and the next day we made our record, from LeMar, Colorado to Los Vegas, New Mexico, over the Raton Pass, a distance of about 320 miles.

We drove in all about 3400 miles. 200 miles was extra, spent in visiting the Petrified Forest and Grand Canyon, in Arizona. I might add that the Grand Canyon strikes me as being the most wonderful sight I have yet witnessed in the United States. Some people may differ between that and Niagara Falls. Some day I hope to spend about one week in and around the Canyon.

From Ash Fork, Arizona, we came direct south into Prescott and Phoenix, then from Phoenix to Gila Bend where we hit the Lee Highway into Yuma, Arizona and El Centro, California. From Yuma to El Centro we crossed the sand hills, just small mountains of sand that move around when the wind blows. The road across is made out of planks and can be moved, a double track plank road is now under construction. When the wind blows men are stationed there to keep the sand off the road, about the same as snow. One of my cousins in Maryland was worried about us crossing the desert, but for myself I would rather take my chances on the desert than with the storms through the middle west. We just missed that one last summer in northern Ohio by one week.

We arrived in El Centro early Saturday morning, September 17. We stayed two days with friends in Phoenix, Arizona, so we made a very fast trip; too fast. Any person contemplating a trip of this kind, should make up their mind to take their time, but it seems after getting on the road a person wants to "step on it."

Now, a word about El Centro, and this vicinity. This being the county seat of Imperial County, it naturally is the best town in the valley, or at least we think so; has a population of about 8,000 people and all kinds, Japs, Hindus, Mexicans, Chinese, Negroes and many others. They all have, and know, their places.

El Centro is a desert city about 23 years old; has appearances of a large city, modern and up-to-date in every way; all the main business and resident streets are paved. We are 52 feet below sea level. Brawley, 13 miles north, being 105 feet. It gets extremely hot here in summer for about three months, but we can stand 100 here better than you can 80 in Maryland. I have seen it as high as 118. Sun strokes are unknown, the only ones it hurts are the ones that try to drink too much booze. It is healthy, but disagreeable at times. Doctors in the middle west send people here in summer for their health. No malaria, or anything of the kind.

Our winters are ideal, the days are warm and nights cool enough so that we have heavy frosts, and some winters, thin ice. All desert countries have warm days and real cool nights during the winter months.

Three of our main stand-by crops in this vicinity are lettuce, cantaloupes and alfalfa. The lettuce is shipped during the winter months; this year about 8,300 carloads. Now the cantaloupes are about to start. Alfalfa hay is made in the winter months up to last of June; does not grow when it is so hot. Can grow most every thing, some do better than others. Some of our other crops are strawberries, peas, tomatoes, asparagus and grapefruit.

I know what it is to help make the desert bloom. Helped my Uncle to improve a part his desert land. Now we have a home of our own and I am starting a lawn; it is some job as everything has to be watered regular, to look nice. We have not seen a hard rain since the one we were in Kansas last fall. Rains hard here sometimes; may go for several years with only little desert showers, to about lay the dust; so dry soon as the sun hits it, it is gone. We depend altogether on irrigation.

Our water for irrigating comes from the Colorado River and is taken out of the river on the Mexican side of the line then flows back into Imperial Valley, which should not be. You can readily see why the All-American Canal and Boulder Canyon Dam is if great interest to us, and our own Hon. Phil Swing is working so hard for, in Washington, D. C. He being the author of the Swing-Johnson Bill, and is an El Centro man, Congressman for this District.

We are 13 miles from the Mexican border, the town of Mexicali is right across the line. The city of Calexico, California, and Mexicali are built together, only a barb wire fence between. Mexicali is made up of saloons, gambling dens, red light district, etc., and the sad part about it all is, it is mostly run by Americans. Mexicali and right around it, has the third largest population of Chinese in North America. The city has a population of about 10,000 people.

I am glad to state that the present Gov. Rodriguez has orders from Mexico City to clean things up, and they have closed the red light districts, and 80 percent of the girls were Americans; the other 20 percent being divided between Mexicans and Negroes. I understand 20 married Mexicans, so they could stay there; the rest came back to this country. The line closes at 9:00 P. M., every night now, and does not open until the next morning, so anyone caught over there has to stay all night. Mexicali is the capital of the northern district of the state of lower California, so the Governor and the Government buildings are located there.

It is about time I bring this letter to a close; however there is lots I could write about. I have traveled across the United States seven times. Last year Mrs. Koons and I traveled 800 miles in our car through Ontario, Canada, before coming to Maryland. Four years ago we traveled 2,000 miles through the State of Florida. It is a wonderful state, but we like California best of all. We will be glad to welcome Maryland people at any time.

Mr. Pester Observes

"Many a man," began old Festus Pester, "has gained a reputation for vast sagacity simply by keeping his mouth shut and putting on the pomposity of a white elephant, when, if we only knew it, there is nothing of any particular consequence underneath his imposing exterior. A peacock is a most pusillanimous-looking fowl when deprived of his feathers, and many a man who looks like a crown prince would appear even more paltry than a stripped peacock if his dignity was peeled off from him. An owl looks like the concentration and quintessence of sagacity, but that is all there is to him—he just looks it. And many a man's pomposity has caused him to be suspected of being somebody in particular, when in reality he is only a common congressman."—Kansas City Star.

POULTRY

GETTING START IN POULTRY RAISING

The beginner in poultry raising should start in a small way. Mistakes are bound to be made by the beginner and difficult problems will be presented which must be solved before one can expect to make a success in the poultry business. There are two ways of starting in the business. One is to buy fowls in the fall of the year and the other is to buy eggs for hatching or baby chicks in the spring. Perhaps the buying of fowls in the fall is the safer method, but for the money invested the starting with eggs or baby chicks in the spring offers a larger opportunity.

In starting with poultry the beginner should first of all consider the purpose for which he wants to use the fowls. There are four general classes of fowls, the egg breeds, the meat breeds, general-purpose breeds and fancy or ornamental breeds.

The egg breeds include the smaller or medium-sized fowls, which are very active, quick to mature and which produce white-shelled eggs. They are mostly nonsitters or poor sitters and other fowls are usually kept if natural methods of incubation are used. The Leghorns, Anconas and Minorcas are typical breeds of this class.

The meat breeds represent the other extreme and are especially suitable for the production of roasters. Fowls of this class are slow and somewhat sluggish. They are easily confined with low fences, slow maturing, persistent sitters and rather indifferent layers. The Brahmans, Cochins and Langshans belong to this class.

The general-purpose breeds are medium in size and produce a good quantity of eggs, thereby making them appeal to those who want a bird which will supply both eggs and meat. The general-purpose fowls are usually good sitters and good mothers. They occupy a medium position between the egg and meat breeds in size, egg production and docility. However, it should be noted that in the recent work in breeding for high egg production some of the general-purpose fowls have made very creditable egg records. Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds and Orpingtons are typical representatives of the general-purpose fowls.

Ornamental breeds are not generally adapted to farm flocks unless some one has time to develop some special type. The Polish, Silkies, Sultans and Bantams are representative of these breeds.

Treatment Outlined to

Cure Egg-Eating Habit

Hens sometimes acquire a vice of eating their eggs, learning to do this from eating an accidentally broken egg. If one hen learns how to eat eggs the whole flock soon learns from her. Egg shells should never be fed to hens unless they are very finely broken or are mixed with soft food of some kind.

To cure this costly habit cut off the points of the mandibles of the beak, using a very sharp knife. Cut back a little at a time until enough is cut off to leave the tender flesh slightly exposed. As soon as a tiny drop of blood exudes from the cut enough has been removed. Then boil some eggs very hard, selecting those with the thickest shells, and put them on the floor of the poultry house, where the hens can easily get them. They try to break the shells by pecking at them and this hurts the nerves in the shortened beak so they will give it up after a few trials, and thereafter not try to break an egg. In a short time the beak will grow into its normal shape and the hens will have forgotten the vice.

Supplying First Feeds

to the Young Goslings

Goslings should not be fed until they are more than 36 hours old when they should be given stale bread soaked in milk or water, to which finely chopped boiled eggs may be added. This should be fed three or four times daily for the first two or three weeks, with chopped grass or some other green feed added. Plenty of fresh, clean water should be supplied, and 5 per cent fine grit or sharp sand may be added to the feed or kept in a hopper before the goslings. After two or three weeks they will need a light feed daily of a mash made up of two parts shorts and one part of cornmeal. When the grass range is good other feed need not be given until fattening time. While the goslings are young great care should be practiced to prevent them from getting wet. They should be left in the coop until after the dew drips in the morning and should not be allowed to get caught in a rain. It is better to keep them separated from the old stock after they are about two weeks old.

Hen Lots Adjoining

Where it is necessary to have lots adjacent to one another it is advisable to use fine-meshed wire for the bottom two feet in order to keep the roosters from fighting. For the remainder of the fence the regular two-inch mesh is satisfactory. The heavy breeds may be kept in a lot with a four-foot fence, but the light breeds often require a fence seven feet high. One wing of the birds can be clipped to keep the birds from flying over the fence.

Some Famous Tunnels

The following information about tunnels is from a paper by Lester S. Grant, dean of the Colorado School of Mines, read before the Teknik club of Denver: "In 1530 Agricola, a German mineralogist, recorded that the gold and silver mines of Schemnitz, Hungary, had then been worked for 800 years; the lead mines of Goslar, Germany, for 600 years, and the silver mines of Freiberg, Saxony, for 400 years. Subsequent working of these mines necessitated the driving of drainage tunnels of lengths as yet unequalled in the history of mining. The Tiefs Georg tunnel, in Saxony, driven between 1777 and 1799, is 34,529 feet long, with branches amounting to 25,319 feet more. This was driven entirely by hand to obtain a drainage depth of only 460 feet. The Joseph H. tunnel at Schemnitz was started in 1782 but not completed until 1878. It is ten and one-half miles long. The Rothschenberger tunnel at Freiberg, driven between 1844 and 1877, totals over 95,149 feet, the main tunnel being 42,662 feet. These tunnels were all driven by hand, using black powder."

His Ignorance

"A feller driving along in an old Hootin' Nanny car last night with its lights out, ran onto a mule that was laying in the road in front of Hoot Holler's house," related Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "The durn mule started to get up just as the car ran onto him and knocked him over. The driver of the car gave a hoot of his horn and a yell from himself, and the mule laying on his back began to kick and squeal."

"Say, what'n'ell are you trying to do with my mule? yelled its owner, running out of his house."

"You better ask him what he's trying to do to me and my car!" the feller hollered right back.

"And as I'd seed and heered this much and hadn't no desire to mix in a fight, being as I was all down in the back, I just went on and never did find out the rest of it."—Kansas City Star.

Vast Electrical Industry

To few men as it has been to Edison, who celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday recently, has it been granted to see the industry in which they began as pioneers, develop into one of the greatest of all times. Today the investment in electric public utilities alone is second only to that of the steam railroads of the country. Even a Dante would find it difficult to picture the infernal cost that would ensue were all the electric light and power companies, electric railways and the telephone and telegraph companies suddenly to be withdrawn from their places in the economic structure of the nation.

Yellow Enrages Generals

Exasperated at the frequent appearance of lemon-colored collars, large "foppy" caps and canary-yellow strappings on riding breeches, generals of the "old school" at Aldershot, England, recently compiled a set of rules for dress, even including the color of the tie.

WHAT DOES MODERN GIRL REALLY WANT?

Question One of Them Finds Hard to Answer.

When you analyze the question of what modern girls really want, it is necessary to disabuse the mind of the delightfully vague, magazine-cover, tennis-playing, matinee-going creature as a true conception of the modern girl.

In a general way, the modern girl belongs to two recognized social classes—the middle classes—and how many subdivisions are here!—and the class which is generally known as the "upper."

In the middle class you will find that the vaguest and most doubtful feminine member of the family has been taught the art of shorthand and typewriting. In the firm conviction that sooner or later she will become an "invaluable asset to the firm" and find romance in the course of her work. What she wants is either to be taught to spell and write her own language, or to clear the course for the professional girl, "A Most Modern Girl" writes, in the Washington Post.

In the next social subsection there is the girl who works spasmodically—in every sense of the word—and whose family seems to spend its time imploring her to "give it up" and "stay at home and help mother." Whether she realizes it or not, the only possible solution of her problem is matrimony, with a strong accent on the last syllable in view of her general inability to cope with anything for long.

Then there is the real professional girl, by which is meant the girl who works because she must, and who works thoroughly because she enjoys it, and because she means to get there. What does she want? Certainly she smokes too much; she "gads about" too much; spends too much, flirts too much. But why not? Hers is the doubtful privilege of being an important man's right hand for years, and of receiving the "sack" when he dies. The humiliating classification of "surplus" is applied to those of her number who are not fortunate enough to find a man to marry them. . . . She does not know what she wants—so she eats, works and is merry.

The daughters of the super-tax payers present a still more difficult problem. All of them dance, some dope, some get married and unmarried with amazing facility; many have no family life. . . . But they all have a want. It seems strange with unlimited money and pleasure this should be so. Perhaps what they want is work!

Analysis is the dangerous fashion of the age, and self-analysis the most vicious form at that. Calm introspection at times may be good for the soul, but not that continual probing for what is wanted.

Perhaps, after all, what the modern girl wants is not to be reminded that she wants anything.

Lesson for May 10

PHILIP AND THE ETHIOPIAN TREASURER

LESSON TEXT—Acts 8:26-39.
GOLDEN TEXT—"The entrance of Thy words giveth light."—Ps. 119:130.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Man Did What God Told Him.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Philip and the Ethiopian Treasurer.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Philip Won the Ethiopian.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Use of the Bible in Evangelism.

1. Philip Meeting the Ethiopian (vv. 26-30a).
1. Leaving Work by Divine Direction (v. 26).

The Lord called Philip away from a great work in Samaria and specifically directed him to this man. Abrahamlike, he obeyed the divine command not knowing why he should leave the work in Samaria and go into a desert place. As he journeyed on by faith he espied the state chariot of the Ethiopian treasurer. The Spirit of God directed him to go near and join himself to the chariot. The tactful question put to the treasurer gained him a seat by the side of this dignified officer. The mission which at first seemed so unpromising was now clear.

2. An Officer of State Seeking the Way of Salvation (vv. 27-28).

The Ethiopian had been to Jerusalem to worship. Despite his high official position he was not ashamed of the worship of God. The journey from that far off country required much hardship and expense, but to the one whose soul yearns after God, this is all joy.

3. A Providential Meeting in the Desert (vv. 29-30).

The coming together of these two men was clearly the predetermined way of God.

1. Philip Preaching to the Ethiopian (vv. 30b-35).

1. The Ethiopian's Employment on the Way (v. 30).

His occupation at the time of this meeting was reading the Word of God. At the invitation of the Ethiopian Philip joined himself to the chariot and found him reading from the 53d chapter of Isaiah. This is a most excellent way to spend one's time while traveling.

2. The Absolute Need of a Preacher (v. 31).

The Ethiopian was reading one of the clearest testimonies to the Messiah in the Old Testament, yet he was unable to get anything out of it. The fact that the Ethiopian, a great statesman, needed an interpreter of the Scriptures, even such a plain passage as the 53d chapter of Isaiah, shows the absolute need of a preacher. The gospel must be experienced before one can be a witness to its saving power. The human mind is blind to spiritual things, making the work of an evangelist indispensable. If a statesman of this rank was unable to grasp the meaning of such a clear passage, it should not be thought strange that for the rank and file of men a guide is needed. God has designed that through the foolishness of preaching the world should be saved. Preaching the Word of God will always be necessary.

3. Philip's Message (vv. 32-35).

He began at the Scriptures which the Ethiopian was reading and preached unto him Jesus. This shows us that the person represented in the 53d chapter of Isaiah as suffering instead of others was Jesus instead of Israel, also that the central theme of the preacher's message should be Jesus. He did not preach Jesus as a great teacher, but as a Savior who had suffered and died instead of sinners. He preached Him as the one who had offered Himself as a ransom.

111. Philip Baptized the Ethiopian (vv. 36-38).

As a result of Philip's preaching the eunuch proposed baptism. When Christ is truly preached, men naturally desire to confess Him in baptism. Where this feeling is lacking, the gospel in its fullness is evidently not preached. The Ethiopian might have offered many excuses for neglecting this important ordinance, but like every man who is honest before God, he was willing at any cost to render obedience. The proof that men really believe in Jesus is their willingness to render obedience to His Word. It is faith in Christ that saves, but those who have genuine faith desire to seal it in baptism. Having secured from the Ethiopian the proper confession, Philip baptized him.

IV. The Ethiopian Rejoicing (v. 39).

Confession of Christ always brings joy. Those who obey the commandment of the Lord can go on their way rejoicing.

Makes Life Worth While

U. S. TO BUILD PRISON FOR CRIMINAL WOMEN

Provide for Work in Fields Nearly All Year.

Washington.—For the first time in the United States there is to be a federal prison for women—that is, if congress approves the report of a committee composed of attorney general, secretary of the interior and secretary of labor, and makes an appropriation for it. It is to be known as the Federal Industrial Institute for Women—the designation "prison" being in growing disfavor.

About twenty sites were offered, but Alderson, W. Va., was the final selection and a report to this effect was made to congress.

Alderson appears to have many advantages over other sites submitted, not the least perhaps being that the citizens of this and other villages in Monroe, Greenbrier and adjoining counties subscribed $30,000 to pay for approximately 200 acres of land to be offered free to the government. A quotation of $45,000 has been made for an additional 300 acres. At that the government would be getting 500 acres of suitable land at a much lower figure than any of the other localities offer.

Alderson is on the main line of the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad, which facilitates the transportation of inmates; it is on the Greenbrier river, which insures an adequate supply of pure water for all purposes and also on the Atlantic and Pacific highway, which connects with the Midland trail, the main highway from Washington to the Middle West and the South.

Women to Do Farm Work.

The altitude is 1,800 feet and the climate and soil conditions are such that it would be possible for the women to work the ground during most of the year. This is a distinct advantage, since it has been proved that outdoor work and exercise are two of the greatest factors in rehabilitating the woman prisoner.

The 1,600 or so inhabitants of Alderson seem to be of a high moral and religious character. Persons who went to investigate said that there appeared to be no extensive use of alcohol. The town is far enough away from any large city to minimize dope smuggling into the institution and to eliminate to a great extent the possibility of escape.

Another point in its favor is that it is fairly near the estimated center of federal female criminal population, which is said to be within a radius of a hundred miles of Ironton, Ohio. The fact that the center of federal female criminal population is in the East is somewhat misleading. It may be explained partly by the fact that the District of Columbia is largely responsible for this. The district has only federal courts and accordingly any offense against the law must be tried in these courts and the sentenced law-breaker automatically becomes a federal prisoner. It is estimated that about 20 per cent of the federal female criminal population of the nation is in the District of Columbia. This, however, does not of necessity mean that Washington is a more dangerous or wicked place to live than any other.

Not only Alderson but West Virginia as a whole has been tremendously interested in having this industrial institution for women located within its bounds. The governor appointed a commission to help get the location and raise funds to purchase the site.

Women Now Sent to Jails.

At the present time women who are offenders against the federal laws must be sent to state or county institutions—boarded out, as it were. And it is said that these jails or prisons are so crowded that often a new inmate cannot be received until one is dismissed. This often results in a prisoner getting a suspended sentence for the excellent reason that there is no place for the judge to send her.

Persons making a study of prison conditions say that one or two years in a county jail has a bad effect upon a woman. A federal institution for woman delinquents is a very real and immediate necessity.

Out of the 20 proffered sites Alderson had only two real competitors—Delphi, Ind., and Markleton, Pa. While Delphi appeared anxious to have the proposed penal institution it did not offer any free ground. In fact, the price of the proposed site was set at from $125 to $175 an acre. Also, while it was nearer the geographical center of the United States than either Alderson or Markleton, it was considerably west of the center of federal female criminal population.

Sites were offered in Maryland, Virginia, Colorado, Texas, Arizona and in fact in almost all sections of the country. These were discarded for various reasons. Some were too small; one was composed entirely of woodland, and women are physically unable to clear timber. Others were too difficult of access, and one in the Southwest was so situated that it would have been necessary for the institution to purchase its water supply.

Alderson seemed to the committee to be the logical location. Whether congress agrees remains to be seen.

Sparrow Menace

Tonopah, Nev.—Sparrows, millions of them, are appearing in the Carson valley and doing considerable damage eating up the chicken feed on the farms and clearing the stubble fields of grain where the hogs are ranged.

Neglect of Punctuality Often Source of Strife

Perhaps one-third of the unpleasantness that occur between husbands and wives come from not keeping appointments promptly and accurately. One of the easiest things in the world to do is to get mixed up about the place or the hour set for meeting in the heart of a city. Haven't you often seen a woman with knitted forehead standing in a shop vestibule half an hour at a time peering this way and that to look for the friend who never comes? Or an impatient husband walking up and down a hotel foyer, watch in hand, getting wrathier every minute?

In the first place, do not be indefinite about the place, the Kansas City Star enjoins. Don't say: "I'll be at the Main street entrance of Blank & Co.'s" when Blank & Co. have several entrances and you may be thinking of the Broadway entrance when you say Main street. You will go to the Broadway door and your friend will go to the Main street door, and just as you decide that she may be at the other entrance she decides that you are probably at the other door, and you miss each other in passing. An entrance is a poor place to meet, anyway; better go a little farther and set an absolutely unmistakable place, such as a small specialty shop, candy store or one-door shoe store.

If possible, always meet your husband in the same place. Set a convenient, comfortable central building, with chairs to be had, and always go to that same place unless there is some good reason not to. Early in your married life pick out your favorite rendezvous and go there in general, though sometimes it may be best to set some other place. If you change or meet in some strange city be very explicit; and when you have set a place, go there and stay there. Don't move about and try some other stand. Last of all, be prompt. Give up some of your errands, break away from friends or the matinee, cut short a concert—but be there when you say you will unless your train breaks down or you are knocked down by an automobile. The greatest compliment any husband, wife or friend can give is to say:

"He (or she) will be there on time, if it is a possible thing."

The Family Tweezers

When you recall the old days back in the boyhood home there is nothing dark about the picture except the thought of the tweezers and mother's firm inquiry, "Andrew, what are you limping about?"

"I didn't know I was limping," you said, at the same time putting your foot down flat to show her that everything was all right.

Taking your word for what it was worth under the circumstances, she asked to have a little look. She made you get down on the floor and put your foot in her lap, while your brother kindly volunteered to get the tweezers.

You reasoned with her, pleaded with her, and even accused her of wanting to hurt you, but she worked away until she finally brought a terrible scream from you and an ugly splinter from your foot.

Even now a shudder comes over you when you think of those tweezers and those awful words:

"Andrew, what are you limping about?"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Hindu Women Advancing

In 1914 an American woman, Doctor Soudber, founded a school of medicine in India, but it was not till 1918 that the first native students began to attend. "Hindu women are not intelligent enough to take their degrees," was the verdict of the director of the Madras School of Medicine. The results of the last years, however, have proved the exact contrary. Up to the present, 93 per cent of women students have obtained their doctor's degree, while only 20 per cent of masculine students obtained it, the Dayton News says.

If we remember that out of 165,000,000 women there are only 150 who have obtained the right to practice medicine and that many Hindu women would rather die than be examined by a man, we must hope that this feminine victory will spread and that the number of students will increase in the different schools of medicine in that country.

Landmark to Disappear

The ancient Pictish capital of Scotland, Forteviot, is shortly to disappear, and a new modern village will rise in its place. Lord Forteviot having decided to rebuild the hall, school, and dwelling houses. Perth, overhangs the May water, which flows into the Earn. According to the legend of the foundation of St. Andrews, the king of the Picts built a church at Forteviot (then called Fortevioth), and in his palace there Kenneth MacAlpin died in 890. It was on the "Miller's Acre," near the Halyhill, that Edward Balliol's army encamped before the battle of Dupplin (1322).

Remarkable Fruit

The agricultural explorer is the name given to a scientist who is sent to little-known parts of the world by the United States Department of Agriculture in search of new fruits and plants.

One member of this unique profession has discovered in Ecuador an interesting group of fruits. One of these, the cherimoya, is described as vegetable ice cream, because of its white flesh, which has the consistency of a firm custard. It has the combined flavors of pineapple, strawberry, and banana.

Charles Martin, of Philadelphia, the husband of Miss Maggie Faller, formerly well known here, was run down and killed by a truck, one day last week, on the streets of Philadelphia. Chas. A. Elliot attended the funeral.

"The Story of Corn" was given at Shriner's Theatre, on Wednesday evening, before a full house. It was a timely and interesting presentation of the growth of corn—the whole process from the seed to harvesting. The entire program was full of instructive interest to farmers, as well as to others.

Taneytown will not feel comfortable over its school situation until plans are agreed upon, and the contract for the buildings given, early enough this year to guarantee a completed building in time for the opening of school in the Fall. The patrons here are not interested in "who, or which board, "has its way," and are opposed to quibbling over minor details. If the authorities can not agree, then let the matter be arbitrated, and settled. Taneytown must have a new school building, and now is the time to be getting busy.

Monocacy Lodge No. 203 A. F. & A. M., held a social get-together session on Monday night, that was largely attended by the members, and the Lodge had as guests Charles L. With-erow, of Washington, and fifteen other Masons of that city, a number of them being prominent in the order. The delegation first had a 6 o'clock dinner at Sauble's Inn, and that dinner came in for a lot of strong commendation, later, during the speech-making. Light refreshments were served by the Lodge at a late hour, previous to which numerous speeches were made by the visitors and local members. The whole affair was very enjoyable.

Mrs. Byron Stull received word, this week, of the sudden death of her brother, Henry Hess, of Pittsburg, Kansas.

Those who spent Sunday evening with B. J. Hyser and wife, were: Lewis Hyser, wife and daughter, Ruth, Mrs. Davies and son, Edward, all of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Harner, of Frogtown; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kemper, Mr. and Mrs. Steiner Engelbrecht, Mrs. Helen Engelbrecht, Geo. B. Harman and Anna Harman, and Annamae Kemper, all of Taneytown;

Two state "Cops" pulled a lot of auto law violators here, Saturday night and Sunday. We do not know anything about these cases, but we do know that the speed laws are commonly violated here, and it is very dangerous business. We also know that there is a growing local sentiment against such arrests, and that is a dangerous business too. There should be only one sentiment, and that is, obedience to, and respect for, the laws. Guying the cops, or interfering in their business, should not be indulged in.

Ten Cent Hammers.

You can go into any ten-cent store and buy a neat looking hammer for ten cents. For light work, such as driving tacks, it may do very well and last a long time. But for heavier work, or for work requiring good strong metal in a hammer, it will not stand the strain, but will represent a poor investment. It is merely a cheap tool, for cheap work, made to sell, and looks better than it is.

Men (and women too) are like hammers—some are "ten centers"—look well while new, can do a little easy driving, but when it comes to hard knocks and strain, they are not dependable. They may be bright looking, seem to be worth a great deal more than their cost, have a fancy label on them, and on display look like a real tool, but when their appearance is put to actual performance, the ten cent value is demonstrated.

Are you a ten-center? Think it over! How much real worthwhile service do you perform? How much strain can you stand? Do you wear smooth and grow better by use, or are you at your best before you are given a test?

A ten-cent hammer is always a ten-center—the comparison stops there—while a ten-cent boy or girl may develop into something much better—providing, unlike a hammer—the boy or girl has brains, and a spirit to waken. The worthwhile world values performance, rather than looks; in fact, "beauty is, as beauty does"—so it is the "doing" the counts—and it is the wise one who early in life grasps this truth.

Get off the "ten-cent" counter. The world is over crowded with fellows who are equipped to do only light work—tack hammer work. Brains, energy, and know-how are in demand for big jobs, for those who demonstrate strength of character, willingness to work, and are a real force that can be depended on.
