CATTLE FOR THE FAIR. Valuable Hints on Preparing Cattle for Exhibition.

It is now the season when special thought and attention must be given to dairy cattle that are to be exhibited at the coming shows. Exhibiting animals in their everyday clothes is poor advertising and puts them at a disad-vantage when the competition is keen. Since it takes several weeks to put a dairy animal in good show condition, preparation should be started well in advance of the date for exhibiting. In the selection of an animal to be fitted there are some important things to be considered. In the case of dairy cattle, the animal should have good size for its age and be in a fairly thrifty condition. Clean-cut features. a strong back, level rump and deep middle are important. In the case of females, good udder development must be considered, including size, shape, quality and placement of teats. Cows that are about to freshen or that have recently freshened, show to an ad-vantage. A cow that has been milk-ing heavily for several months is usu-

It is important that a dairy animal when exhibited be in good flesh. A good covering of flesh adds to size and smoothness and indicates that the animal is thrifty and in good health. To secure these results, it will be necessary to offer extra feed and it is advisable to take animals off pasture and barn feed them in order to speed up the fleshing process. A fine qual-ity of clover or alfalfa hay and corn silage, if available, are excellent as a part of the ration. A good grain mix-ture is one made up by weight of equal parts of hominy, ground oats, wheat bran and linseed oil meal. The bran and oats tend to lighten the ra-tion and give it variety; the hominy puts on a soft flesh, and the oil meal helps to make the skin pliable and the hair sleek.

hair sleek. Stabling and blanketing are great aids in putting the hair and hide in condition. As a result of stabling during the day, the animal is protect-ed from the hot sun, which makes the hide harsh and stiff to the touch. A roomy box stall that is kept clean and well bedded makes desirable quarters. Continuous blanketing helps keep the animal clean and sweats the hide, which improves its handling qualities, and makes the hair lay to the body. Every dairy animal that is to be exhibited should have the hair clipped from the entire body about five weeks previous to the date of the show or sale. This will get rid of the old hair and allow a nice new even growth to develop, which will greatly improve the appearance. Farmers who do not clip the old hair from dairy cattle that are to be shown put their animals at a disadvantage both from the standpoint of the judge and the spectator.

Clipping, in addition to getting rid of old hair, adds to the ease of wash-ing an animal as well as to the massaging of the hide. As one of the final touches just previous to showing the face, ears, udder and tail above the switch should be clipped.

The condition of the horns is a fac-

Defense Objects to the Opening of Court with Prayer.

The evolution case made progress, this week, in the selection of a jury, after which counsel on both sides indulged in verbal fireworks over a mo-tion made by the defense to quash the indictment, on the grounds of unconstitutionality and defective con-struction, Following the various arguments of counsel, Judge Ralston withheld his decision and adjourned

Attorney Darrow, for the defense, objected to opening the Court with prayer, as has been the custom, stating that they were conducting a law suit and not a prayer meeting, but the Judge over-ruled the objection. A resolution was then offered to hear prayers from ministers who were not opposed to the evolution theory, the ruling of the Judge being that he would refer the matter of opening prayers to the ministerial association of the town, which precipitated a long debate on the subject of prayers in a court room.

The reply of the Judge to all ob-jections was "I do not want to be unreasonable about anything, but I believe I have a right. I am respon-sible for the conduct of the Court. It has been my custom since I have been Judge to have prayers in the court-room when it is convenient, and I know of no reason why I should not follow up this custom, so I over-rule the objections." The, question of opening the court with prayer occu-pied portions of the first and second days proceedings.

The state quickly completed its side of the case, on Wednesday in less than two hours, most of the witnesses being Dayton high-school boys. The defense then called Dr. M. M. Metcalf, of Johns Hopkins, as the first scientific witness, which was immedi-ately objected to by the state, and the jury was sent out until Judge Ralston prepars his decision. Counsel on both sides, on Thurs-day, made speeches for and against the admission of expert evidence. The speech of Wiiliam Jennings Bryan, which lasted for an hour and a half, was generally regarded as not being up to the Bryan standard, and was a disappointment. Judge Ralston will hand in his decision today, and on it will depend the length of the case.

Your Medicine Chest.

Have you cleared out your medicine chest, this season? In sudden illnesses or emergencies, can you put your hand on what you need? Are your supplies fresh? Properly labeled? Poisons in a separate compartment? These are some of the tests suggested by Mr. Robert L. Swain, Deputy Drug Commissioner of the Bureau of Food and Drugs of the State Departalth, and editor of the Maryland Pharmacist. 'No matter how careful householders may be in other matters," he said, "they are inclined to let the family medicine chest take care of itself. There is no more important adjunct to a well ordered household than the medicine chest with its array of time-tested remedies, but it rarely receives the attention its importance warrants. It is remembered only when illness develops,or when somebody has met with an accident. It is a source of first aid, and for that reason it should be. 'always ready,' "In addition to simple remedies, such as are usually found in the home it should always contain a supply of bandages, sterilized absorbent cotton and some commonly used antiseptics, such as iodine, peroxide of hydrogen and boric acid. Your physician will be glad to advise you as to other articles. "But the greatest care should be taken to keep these antiseptics and all poisons, in a separate compart-ment, so that there will be no chance of confusing them by mistake with some of the harmless remedies. Many serious accidents have been caused by the careless handling of poisons, and by failure to take proper precautions in storing them in the medicine chest. "Labels are also a matter of great importance. Don't use medicines that are not plainly and properly la-beled. Indistinct labels; carelessly written labels, are a source of great danger and are yearly responsible for their toll of human life. Go through your medicine chest; see that you are familiar with its contents; see that the labels on the various boxes are plain and definite; reduce to a minimum the chances for mistakes. Dis-"Many drugs in common use be-come either useless, or greatly im-paired with age. It is much safer to throw away old medicines than to run the risk of having them go back on you in an emergency. Many of the well known household remedies, such as sweet spirit of niter, aromatic spirit of ammonia, and also peroxide, due to peculiarities of composition, are rendered practically inert, if not properly stored. While it is true that many medicines do not deteriorate with age, it is a safe rule not to depend upon any medicine after the lapse of a few months. Drug stores are near enough to most of us, for there to be no necessity for storing large quantities of domestic remedies in the home.

On Farm of J. E. Formwalt, Tenanted by Jesse Stonesifer.

Fire destroyed the barn on the farm of J. E. Formwalt along the Uniontown-Westminster road, near Un-iontown, tenanted by Jesse Stonesifer, shortly after midnight, Monday morning. The building and contents were completely destroyed. Mr. Stonesif-er was awakened by the noises caused by the fire, but was too late to save anything; the horses and mules were lying on the ground, suffocated by smoke, when he got to the burning building. The alarm was quickly given in Uniontown, and the Westminster firemen summoned, who saved the wagon shed adjoining. Two horses and five mules and a calf were destroyed; also about 700 bushels of wheat, 19 loads of hay, a large wagon, all of the harness and a few farming implements. The fire is supposed to have been caused by heat-ing of the have or grain. A portion of ing of the hay or grain. A portion of the wheat crop, stored in a shed, was not burned. The cattle, fortunately, were out in pasture.

The barn was partially insured in the Carroll County Company, and Mr. Stonesifer had about $750.00 insurance on the burned items, in the Taneytown Mutual Company, which will not near cover the loss. Mr. Formwalt gave a check to the Westminster firemen, of $50.00, for their services. He is planning to build a new barn, at once.

Grasshoppers As Food.

Everyone knows that cats catch grasshoppers and eat them with great relish, though housewives will tell you that they grow thin on that diet. Fabre, the famous naturalist, believes that grasshoppers and sim-ilar insects would be palatable food for human beings too, and in one of his books, says Mr. Percy F. Bicknell, he quoted with approval this passage from General Daumas's book The Great Desert, explaining in a footnote that the grasshopper (sauterelle) referred to is more exactly the cricket, which must not be confused with the true grasshopper:

"The grasshopper is good eating both for men and for camels. Either fresh or picked, it is eaten after the feet, the wings and the head have been removed; the rest is broiled or else stewed and served up in the form of meat balls. After being dried in the sun it is ground to powder, which may be stirred into milk or made into dough and then fried in fat or butter with salt.

Camels greatly like to eat grasshoppers, which are served to them either dried or after being roasted in a heap in a large hole between two layers of live coals. The Negroes also eat them cooked in that way.

"The Virgin Mary, having asked God for some meat that should have no blood, He sent her some grasshoppers.

"The wives of the prophets, when anyone sent them a present of grass-hoppers, always shared them with the

MACMILLAN HEARD FROM BY RADIO. Broken Propeller and Mosquitos Delay the Expedition.

Messages were received by radio from the Macmillan North Pole exfrom the Macmilian North Pole ex-pedition at various places in the United States, on Thursday, telling of troubles with the propellor of their vessel at Hopedale, Labrador. The temperature is given as 70° and swarms of mosquitos are interfering with their work. There is nothing of interest in the communication, ex-cent that the great value of radio cept that the great value of radio communication in such cases is being demonstrated. The report said they were trying to fit another propellor to the vessel, under great difficulties, after which they would proceed. The mosquitoes and heat at this latitude are abnormal and both are serious handicaps for the men.

One of the radio messages was picked up as far south as St. Petersburg, Florida. Many whales and seals are in sight, and great flounders are being speared by the men.

"Miracle House" for Children.

Eighty-nine malnourished and underweight children are now being cared for at the "Miracle House," which is maintained by the Maryland Tu-berculosis Association at Clairborne, Maryland. Since the opening on June first, approximately one hundred and thirty children have received the beneficial treatment afforded at the "Miracle House." Pure food, fresh air, plement their regular and dairy crops with a short season cash crop of some kind. Tomatoes and sugar corn loomed up as the best substitutes and this year sees by far the greatest acreage in both these crops ever planted in the county. In tomatoes alone there are more than seven hundred acres planted and under contract while it is almost impossible to get an accurate estimate on the acreage in truck patches. It is safe to as-sume that the total acreage in the county will run well over one thousand acres. When this figure is considered in comparison with tomato acreage of a few years back some idea can be had of the growing popularity of the crop as a favorite among the farmers. A few years back some farmers experimented with an acre or two while this year there are many who have twenty and thirty acres.

The Baltimore Sun, of Monday, in a special report from Washington, says; "According to the estimates based upon a survey of 25,000 farms, ex-perts of the department have found that there was a net exodus from the farms to the cities in 1924 of 679,000 persons or 2.2 percent.

The farm population, however,during that period, according to the statistics sustained a loss of only 182,-000, births among the farmers during 1924 being estimated at 763,000 with deaths only 266,000 leaving an actual increase of 497,000 to offset the net desertion of 679,000 persons.

noted that the outbreak of the war in Europe caused the 1912 price .75, to jump to $1.03 and $1.06 in 1915 The estimated farm population January 1, 1925, was placed at 31,-134,000, compared with 31,316,000 on January 1, 1924. This estimate includes not only agricultural workers, but all men, women and children living on the American farms.

The movements from farms. The movements from farms to ci-ties, towns and villages, in 1924 is estimated at 2,075,000; the move-ment to farms was 1,396,000 making a net movement from the farm pop-ment of 6270 000 ? ulation of 679,000."

The above is only an estimate, and the above is only an estimate, and subject to inaccuracies as picturing the exact whole situation, but it is likely approximately correct. It is alarming, in that this is the result, after all efforts put forth by the Department of Agriculture and organ-ized associations of farmers to re-habilitate farming, and to make the business more attractive. Some of this loss of help is being compensated for in the use of improved labor-saving machinery, and some of it represents idle land and tenantless farms. Perhaps on the whole those who are "sticking to" the farm are not greatly the losers, if at all, because of the exodus of population from the county to the cities, as this means more consumers of farm products; so, the "alarm" in the situation may be attachable more to consumers than to producers.

The Dog License Law.

The probability is that the Dog Tax law is pretty widely violated. Dogs must wear collars with tags attached, at all times. Any unli-censed dog may be killed if it comes into a field, or yard, by the owner of field or yard. Any dog may be killed held or yard. Any dog may be killed that is seen in the act of pursuing, worrying, wounding or killing, any poultry or live stock, or attacking human beings, whether or not the dog wears a license tag. Failure to get a license is punishable by a fine of not less than $5.00 nor more than $25.00, or imprisonment in county jail of not more than 30 days, or by both fine and impris-

Improved Road Wanted.

Following the allotment of about $66,500 by the state for the building of highways in Adams Co., Pa., residents of the southwestern section of Adams County will now ask the commissioners to assume onefourth of the cost of building the road from St. John's Church, Littlestown, to the Maryland near line. The road is one of the most traveled in the county and has been in bad condition for a long time.

Residents of Germany Township, through which it runs, have agreed to assume the township's one-fourth share of the total cost, and the state appropriation takes care of one-half. All that is now needed is the county commissioner's assent to spend the other quarter.

The matter is expected to come up for final decision at one of the early meetings of the board within the next week or two, as it is the desire of the people most directly affected to have the work done during the present summer. The highway is always in specially bad shape during the winter months and in the early spring.

If this road is improved, a strong effort will be made to have the Maryland state road system connect up with it.

Presbyterian Pen-Mar Reunion.

The Presbyterian reunion will be held at Pen-Mar, Thursday, July 30. Rev. Dr. Walter L. Hogue, of the First Presbyterian Church, York, will be the chief speaker whose subject will be, "The Contribution of Presbyterianism to American Life and Leadership." Dr. Hogue is a fine preacher, a popular lecturer, and an orator of great power. Mr. James McKin-ley Rose, New York City, will sing again this year. The program will maintain the high standard of former years.

all taken hold of tomatoes. There are several reasons advanced as contributing factors in the rapid growth of this industry in the coun-ty. First, the farmers' knowledge of a necessary change; second, the suc-cess of the Boys' and Girls' Tomato Club at Alpha under the leadership of Charles Ridgley; third, a known price in advance of the harvest and lastly, the fine quality tomato produced on Howard County soil. One canner at least cancelled contracts for two hundred acres of tomatoes on the Eastern Shore and placed contracts for a like acreage in Howard County because of the better quality .--- Ellicott City Times.

A Good Local Paper.

"A good local paper makes a good local community," says the Spokane Spokesman-Review. "The well-edited paper is a distinct advantage to its community and serves a need that will always exist. It prints the current news of the community and, with a capable editor, it becomes a real factor in the upbuilding of the community. It can and does accomplish much for the common weal. It reflects the character of the commu-nity itself. It aids materially in the direction and assistance of all community development, both industrial and educational. It could not survive one year if no need existed or it failed to fill the wants."

This is all very true, but it was said by a newspaper editor, who was likely rather partial in his opinions -kind of self-interested like. As an actual fact, a very large number of persons in every community seem not to care whether they have a paper, or not, and actually operate against it at times in various ways.

A new Masonic Mosque is being built in Los Angeles, Cal., by Al Malaikah Shrine. This will be one of the finest of its kind in the country the theatre alone seating 7,000. The stage will be one of the largest in the United States and will hold 2,000 persons. The cornerstone was laid in the spring and the work is proceeding rapidly.

Cultivate personality. Personality is to a man what perfume is to a flower.

"The Calif Omar, cnc day when he was asked whether the use of grasshoppers for food was permitted, replied: 'I should like to have a basketful of them to eat.'

"From all this testimony it is clearly evident that by the grace of God grasshoppers were given to man for food."—Youth's Companion.

Beware of Dogs.

Avoid familiarity with dogs at this time of the year, especially. Mrs. Wm. A. Marley, of Baltimore, died from hydrophobia, on Wednesday, having been bitten by her pet collie about a month ago. The only safe plan is to take the pasteur treatment after every dog bite, whether they believe the dog has rabies or not. Dogs need close watching through hot weather, and it is best for children not to play even with pets, and for pedestrians to be shy of all dogs.

Why the $2.00 Bill?

Here is the secret of the use of the $2.00 bill—it is to save the Treasury Department a lot of money. $1.00 bills wear out very rapidly, and come back to the Treasury for re-issue. As a $2.00 bill takes the place of two $1.00 bills, the more two's used the less the cost of paper and printing will be.

It is said that the currency Department has entered upon a drive to save $4,000,000 per year in the printing of paper money, and as a help toward that end will put out more $2.00 bills.

Eastern Shore of Virginia.

Almost everybody knows that down at the end of the Eastern Shore of Maryland, are two eastern shore counties of Virginia-Accomac and Northampton-but very few are aware of the considerable import-ance of these two counties in the value of their products. The crops of Accomac in 1924 had the value of $11,990,000, the highest of any Virgi-nia county, while Northampton came third with $6,700,00. Accomac county's agriculture is said to be among the most valuable of any county in the United States.

Will Mr. Dawes Continue his Fight Against Senate Rules?

Vice-president Dawes is reported to be contemplating one, if not two, tours of the west in advocacy of his ideas about revising the rules of the Senate, in order to create public sentiment that will in turn be felt by the Senators, the course of reasoning is regarded more in the light of a being that even Senators can not afford to run counter to the sentiment in their states after it is once clearly out in the open in opposition to the present rules.

In our judgment, as far as we understand the rules, and their effect on | rests on France to pay its debt to the legislation, they are obstructive, stand in the way of clearly ascertained majority sentiment, and their like is not in operation in any other body in this country, public or private. There is such a thing as a man being almost aggravatingly proper, which is as much a strong' political asset as brilliant oratory, joviality, remembering names and faces, and keeping a level head under the pressure of aggravation; and what the President lacks in some ways, he compensates for in others. The political nurses are wasting time in trying to prescribe political dietetics and etiquette for him.

French Attitude on Paying Debt to United States.

A peculiar condition is said to exist in France concerning the big debt that country owes the United States. The French people are said to be firm in the opinion that they owe this country nothing, on the ground that American manufacturers made fortunes out of the war, and that Amer ica is immensely wealthy. That because France had such a big and expensive war on hand, their manufacturing was largely closed, and America reaped the profits that France should have had.

This popular opinion is said to be so strong over there, that it is immensely unpopular for the French government to even consider paying us back, and that even in governmental circles the matter of paying thing that must be done, rather than as an act of honest debt paying.

There is apparently a propoganda going on, through which even French school children are having it drilled into them that no moral obligation United States.

That this country saved France from being completely over-run by Germany, appears to be largely lost gratitude at all, it is largely taken as thankfulness is a matter largely aside Apparently, he has already done from making good any financial debt, consequently ought not have it.

They Need Our Products.

Reports of the Department of Commerce show that the United Kingdom is still our best customer, with Canada as second best. For the eleven months ending with May our exports too young for the responsibilities of to the former were valued at$1,007,- a housewife, and declared that she 759,970 and to the latter at $587,-694,320. For the like period of last year our exports to these countries amounted, respectively, to $845,847,- riages, many young people enter 767 and $553,846,988. It thus appears that our so-called "high Tariff" is not ruining our export trade, as Free-Traders so confidently predicted. Instead, our exports have increased to a very marked degree.

Other nations buy of us because we have the products needed by them and because it is, for some one or more reasons, more advantageous to them to buy here rather than elsewhere. We buy of others for the same reasons. Anyone with common sense a little careful consideration. Nations do not, as a rule, buy of other nations. Individuals and companies buy and sell, and the buyer is seldom also a seller in international trade.

Our wheat is sold in England, but those who sell it do not buy English | big doll. products. We buy a great many yards of English textile fabrics, but those who sell them to us do not also buy our products. The grain dealers and the textile dealers belong to two different classes of people and have nothing in common, so far as direct dealing is concerned. Hence the sale of our wheat to England does not depend upon our purchase of English textiles, and vice versa.—American Economist.

The New Vigilantes of the West.

A new Vigilante movement, recalling the "Days of '49" and the hecktie artists immortalized by Bret Harte, is spreading over the Middle West to fight the spread of sporadic and organized crime. Syndicates of cracksmen operating out of Chicago have made the country banker's life a burden in Illinois, Indiana and Iowa. Rural law officers have been proved helpless to stop the wave of safecracking and bank robberies.

Insurance rates advanced anywhere from 33 to 150 percent on such risks early this year. In Illinois in May the rate was $4 per thousand. The movement to put an end to this reign of robbery and murder began in April and reached a new milestone the other day when Chicago bankers offered a reward of $2500 for a dead ank robber and $1000 for all those taken alive.

Too Early Marriages.

A justice presiding in the children's court at Jamaica, New York, acting on the case of a 15-year-old girl who had been married, ruled that she was needed strict discipline and care. He was quite right. While many moralists are disposed to favor early marmatrimony before they have any conception of the duties they are assuming.

A good many young folks 15 to 18 years of age, and perhaps older, think that getting married would be a very fine lark. It would be a "grand good" joke to play this trick on their friends, and enjoy at once the supposed felicities of matrimony. Such young folks sometimes get the consent of parents, who may be unable to control their off-spring, or may would realize this if he would give it | feel, under the circumstances, that | marriage is the best way out of it. the most tiresome and most expensive great legislative body on earth, but it has not brought any other disgrace upon itself because of its "rules."

The Vice-President, it seems to us, should be guided by the President and what we call "the administration" in this matter. Should he head a personal effort to fight the Senate -any further than he has already gone-he is apt to bring about, not only trouble for his party, but for the country, and make things worse rather than better and create a situation which many involve legislation on much more important matters, National and inter-national.

He has given a "tip" to Senators in his own party; let them pursue it individually, and fight it out to a conclusion. Perhaps Mr. Dawes knows public sentiment, and feels that it is strongly back of him, but if it is it has not been very loud about it, and it may be that in case he has improperly estimated sentiment, he may bring about a condition of division in the Senate itself that may seriously involve the propriety of his remaining as the Senate's presiding officer. Mr. Dawes seems to us to be right in his estimate of the Senate's rules, but wrong in his plan for correcting them.

Iowa started the new Vigilante movement. The State had fifty-six bank robberies and losses of about $250,000 in 1920. Captured bandits were receiving light sentences and quick commutations. Iowa bankers armed 3876 Vigilantes with 2289 pistols, 1200 rifles, 240 sawed-off shotguns and 712,000 rounds of cartridges Vigilantes policed 781 towns. Result: a half-dozen robberies last year, total losses $2500; eighty out of eighty-nine bank robbers killed or convicted, and every man of them sent to prison still there. Headstones mark the resting places of divers gunmen, and the Iowa bank-insurance rate went down to $1 per thousand. regular monthly meeting, at the home of Mrs. Edwena Bowman, on Tuesday night. A very enjoyable evening was spent.

A very needed rain greeted us Wed-week in Baltimore.

IN SAD BUT LOVING REMEMBRANCE of our dear Daughter and Sister, Mrs. Guy L. Winters, who died July 5, 1925.

Life is sad, oh God, how dreary; Lonely are our hearts today, For the one we loved so dearly, Has forever passed away.

Peaceful be thy rest, dear daughter, It is sweet to breathe thy name; In life we loved you dearly. In death we do the same.

By her Loving Parents, MR. & MRS. J. T. REINAMAN.

'Tis lonesome here, dear Sister, And sad the weary way, For life is not the same to us, Since you was called away.

There is one who still will linger, At the spot where you are laid, Who still comes and scatters flowers Over the grave that Christ has made.

By her Loving Sister and Husband MR. & MRS. LUTHER A. ECKARD.

Call not back the dear departed, Anchored safe where storms are o'er; On the border land we left her, Soon to meet and part no more.

Far beyond the world of changes, Far beyond this world of care, We shall find our dear Sister, In our Father's mansion fair.

By her Loving Brothers, SAMUEL and FRANKLIN.

0. Sister dear, we loved you so; How sad it was to part; One dear thought of your sweet face, Will cause the tears to start.

Never shall we cease to love you; Never shall your memory fade; Sweetest love forever lingers, Around your sweet and peaceful grave.

By her Loving Brother and Wife, MR. & MRS. RUSSELL REINAMAN.

Sister, I am Jonesome and sad today To think how sudden you passed away, And my heart is aching sorely, As I think of you each day.

Dear Sister, we did not see you suffer; We did not see you die; We only knew you were called away, And could not say good-bye. By her Loving Sisters, EDNA & ANNIE.

HARNEY.

Among the sick in this community are: Mrs. J. D. Hesson, Jones Ohler, J. J. Thompson; the last two seriously ill.

Mrs. Thomas Koontz was brought home from Frederick Hospital, where she was compelled to undergo a serious operation. She is reported im-miss Anna Weybright was taken to Frederick Hospital, the beginning of the week, to be operated on for appendicitis. She has had symp-toms of the trouble for a year, but it was only recently that it became necessary for an operation.

There has been several cases of whooping cough in this community, and from our information, we would say that it was in a bad form.

The Mystic Chain Festival, on Wednesday evening, July 22, promis-es to be an elaborate affair.

We are told that Emanuel Fuss, who has been suffering from some mental derangement for over a year, is now confined to his room. He has been a great care to his wife, who had to watch him constantly.

Ambrose Eckenrode, who had his arm broken while cranking an auto, is now able to go to work again.

Strangers tell us that the worst piece of road between Washington and Gettysburg, is right in Harney. This should be improved but just how to get it done is a problem. Mr. Angell was instructed to put it in good condition, nearly a year ago; but when he wants the material to fix things up, it is refused. The Commissioners know that the material must be hauled, and should order stone enough to make it right. Mrs. E. M. Staub died on Wednesday evening about 8 o'clock. Funeral arrangements are not known at pres-

The Weybright Reunion.

The Weybright family of Maryland held their reunion in the home of Challice and Martha L. Weybright Baker. Mr. and Mrs. Baker have a large fruit and poultry farm on the west side of Blue Ridge Mountains near Edgemont, Md.

They have recently erected a large modern stone house with a large porch from which a beautiful view of the Cumberland Valley can be had. The greeting of loved ones, the music, both vocal and instrumental, the singing of familiar hymns, made the social part of the reunion very delightful.

The reunion consisted of the direct descendants of the late Samuel and Mary Ann Snader Weybright who lived in Detour, Md. Those present of the family were: Elder John S. and Annie E. Sayler Weybright; D. Sayler and Anna R. Royer Weybright and their daughter Mary Ruth Wey-bright; Ruth E. Weybright, all of Thurmont; Jesse P. and Irene Stoner Weybright, Margaret I. Weybright, Ralph and Emma Long Weybright, all of Detour, Md.; George David and Elizabeth Weybright Hoover, and their daughter Gloria, of Frederick, their daughter Gioria, of Frederick, Md.; Prof. John T. and Anna M. Moonshine liquor is killing off the bees in West Virginia and imperiling the honey industry, according to T. K. Massey, president of the West Virginia Beekeepers' Association.

The bees, he says, are attracted to illicit mountain stills by the sugar in the mash, but the stuff is poisonous to them and they die almost immediately after tasting it. The poisonous alcoholic content of the mash has an acid which is detrimental to bee life. The great slaughter occurs in spring and early fall when plants and flowers are not blooming, but thou-sans of bees are being killed all through the summer, Massey says.

POR an Italian prince, Fabriano was exceedingly good company for an American doctor. He rode and shot like a cowboy, kept a stud of 17 polo ponies, and had traveled this little world from end to end. Above all things, he was a connoisseur of wines, and his cellars were stocked with cask upon cask and tier upon tier of cobwebbed bottles of rare old vintages. Indeed, it was indirectly through this passion of Prince Fabriano that Doctor Hardy made his acquaintance. Hardy was consulting physician to the Protestant hospital in the Villa Betania, outside the Porta Romana, and the prince, on a flying visit to the Tuscan capital to secure a vinous treasure, and incidentally witness the annual festival of Santa Croce, brought with him a touch of Roman fever which caused his commitment to the care of the American doctor. His illness was short, but long enough to ripen the acquaintance with the doctor into a warm friendship, resulting in an invitation to the physician to visit the princely estate of Fabriano. In this Umbrian fastness, where his ancestors had exercised sovereign power, Fabriano was regarded as the lord of the soil, by all but a few adherents of a deposed house under the leadership of Lugi di Folengo.

One evening, as Hardy went to the prince's rooms for their usual smoke and game of cards, he found the prince sitting by the table, holding a bottle of amber-colored liquid.

"Why not pull the cork, Fabriano, and let us have something more than a sight of this richly colored fluid?" said the doctor in a bantering tone.

. To his surprise, the prince answered quite seriously, and with almost a shudder:

"I would not drink one sip of the wine that comes in that flask—not even for the polo pony Gustavo that we saw in the royal stables last week, and you know how much I coveted that pretty little beast."

A second look showed Hardy that the bottle was of peculiar shape and peculiarly stoppered, and he asked the question which he saw the prince was ready to answer.

"You remember the trip to Florence to which I owe the pleasure of your acquaintance? Well, I had another reason besides my interest in the Santa Croce festival. You have heard of the monastery of La Certosa, out on the Galluzzo road, beyond your hospital? The government had abolished it, and there was a store of valuable wine to be put up at auction, including a few bottles of Pantinelli. Fate has seemed to be against my getting any of that wine, until today. I have tried for years to get one small bottle, but never yet have tasted it. Pantinelli was a rich old banker in Genoa, who owned a vineyard on the sunny slopes of the Riveria di Ponente. He never sold his wine, but presented it to his friends, and, as he was a cousin of Holengo his appointment. Doctor Hardy watched the man as he stared at the bottle, half-guessing what was to come. Folengo mumbled words of thanks for the paper, but his eyes never left the wine.

"I see you looking longingly at your present of the afternoon," said the prince pleasantly, "and instead of selfishly drinking it all by myself tomorrow, I will be generous. Of course, this wine has not the novelty of charm to you that it has to others unrelated to its famous grower, but yet no one could get enough of such a drink, and, in honor of our new-formed friendship. you must drink my health in one small glass of the famed wine of Pantinell!.' He poured out a brimming glass and set it down in front of Luigi di Folengo, who sat shaking like a leaf, his drooping eyelid fluttering with strong excitement.

"I am to play tonight, with my friend the doctor, here, a game for very high stakes, so I must keep my head clear, but tomorrow you may think of me as steeped in Pantinelli's generous vine juice."

As the prince spoke the last sentence "he took from the table drawer a handsome gold-mounted revolver, which he held up to the light so that glittering rays darted from its polished barrel as he said to the trembling Luigi, "I wish also to present you this pistol, with which I have never missed a shot, and which has sent more than one of my enemies down the long road."

While Fabriano spoke, the man's eyes anxiously searched the room for a means of escape, and finally came back to the calm face of the prince. He glanced from the heavy amber liquor before him to the shining weapon with which Fabriano lovingly toyed, and then, with a quiet heroism which Hardy could not help but admire, he raised the glass to his lips and drained it.

He sat there for a minute or two gazing stupidly at the empty glass. Then, of a sudden, he began to tremble violently; his teeth chattered, and great beads of perspiration stood upon his forehead. On his lips there came a yellowish foam, and he started to his feet, clawing at his breast as if it were on fire, while a hoarse, cackling noise came from his throat. Doctor Hardy knew that the man must be suffering horribly, and, guilty as he believed him to be, could only pity. Rocking to and fro, Folengo threw himself upon the floor, where he lay writhing and twisting in his death agony. His face turned black, and his eyes started from his head, like those of a strangled man. After that he lay quite still.

Doctor Hardy stooped and felt for the man's heart. There was not the trace of a beat. He turned to the prince, who had sat through the whole scene with a smiling face, and said, "You are amply avenged, Prince Fabriano. That man died the most terrible death I have witnessed in twenty years of practice."

Fabriano still smiling strangely, poured out two more glasses of the wine which the dead man had just drunk. "So be it with all assassins!" he said. "Drink to the downfall of my enemy!"

"No, thank you!" answered Hardy, dryly, thinking the ghastly deed was being carried too far, "life has still a few attractions."

"Oh, as you will," replied the prince

NOT SO BAD

An old farmer sat on his back steps and moodily regarded the ravages of the flood. A neighbor pulled up in a rattling wagon.

"Whoa!" yelled the neighbor. "Say, Jed, your hogs was all washed down the creek an' they're all dead."

"How about Flaherty's hogs?" asked the farmer.

"They're gone, too."

"And Larsen's?" "Washed away."

"Humph!" ejaculated the rustic, cheering up. "Taint as bad as I thought."—American Legion Weekly.

Barberry Plants Menace to Grain

Harmful Native Species Has

case Decertoris.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) The common barberry, which has merited and received so much public condemnation because of its reputation as an accomplice in spreading the black stem rust of small grain, has several relatives of the same family name scattered here and there in the United States. There are some forty or fifty of these barberry relatives cultivated as ornamentals in this country, and they are all to be regarded with suspicion, says the United States Department of Agriculture, until definitely proved harmless.

Common European Variety. Heretofore but little attention has been paid to any barberry except the common European variety, now widely naturalized in this country. During the last few years, however, a harmful native barberry species has been found abundant in the Appalachian mountains of southwestern Virginia, southern West Virginia, and western North Carolina. This species is naturally susceptible and spreads stem rust to grains and certain wild grasses. In some localities, at least, it is as much a menace to grain production as is the common barberry. Numerous clumps of bushes of this species have been found also in Indiana along the Tippecanoe river, but not in the woodlands or fence rows of nearby farms, Put in Rogue's Gallery.

Most of the species of barberry now present in the United States have come in during the last ten years, as a result of the impetus given the barberry as an ornamental by the explorers in China. It is not known definitely whether all of these species are harmful, although it is reasonable to assume that most of them are. In order to give the public the benefit of any of them which may be harmless, so that they may be safely used as ornamentals, the United States Department of Agriculture is gathering into one "rogues' gallery," for future conviction or acquittal, representatives of all of these suspicious members of the barberry family, as well as the Mahonias, a closely related genus. All species will be grown in a special "barberry garden," recently established at Bell, Md., propagated, interbred, and hybridized, and the resultant plants sent to the testing station at St. Paul, Minn., where they will be inoculated with stem rust in order to determine their susceptibility and resistance or immunity.

This information about the diseasecarrying powers of all species of the barberry family is sought in order that the propagation and dissemination of undesirable foreign importations may be prevented in this country. Some of these barberries are very desirable ornamentals. They will be given a hasty "pardon" as soon as possible if their innocence is fairly established.

Calf Raising Involves Many Different Factors There are a good many factors involved in calf raising. In the first place the cows should be healthy. They should be free from tuberculosis. Fortunately this is now recognized as a fact by the great majority of progressive farmers, although such has been the case for only a comparatively few years. Contagious abortion is another disease that must be carefully guarded against. This disease has perhaps done more harm to the dairy farmer, so far as the production of his herd is concerned, than tuberculosis, and every possible precaution should be practiced to keep it out of the herd. Then, too, the cows must be kept in good condition. By this we do not mean that dairy cows should be kept fat. In fact, it is impossible to keep a dairy cow fat. If she is of the dairy type, she will convert excess feed into milk fat and not body fat.

Luigi di Folengo, of whose hatred for me I have already told you, he naturally, never included me in his list of beneficiaries.

"There was nothing peculiar in the appearance of Pantinelli's wine, but it was invariably put up in bottles just like this. He was an eccentric old fellow, and always corked his bottles by means of this peculiar device, which he claimed to have invented. He gave as a reason for his oddity the belief that if he used the customary seal his friends would keep his beverage for years unopened, without discovering its flavor, and that he meant them to taste its superiority at once on receipt. He seems to have relied on his friends themselves to prevent the fraudulent substitution of another wine, which would, in his queer bottles, have brought an enormous price. However, any one lucky enough to receive a bottle of the famous beverage usually followed the old man's request to the letter, and drank it the same day.

"This afternoon, while you slept, a messenger brought this bottle with a message from Luigi di Folengo, expressing the wish that we might live in amity hereafter, and begging the acceptance of a gift which he believed that I, more than any one else in all Italy would appreciate, a flask of genuine Pantinelli.

"Now, I do not absolutely know that the wine he sent is poisoned, but I think I know Folengo pretty well, and I am going to try an experiment this evening whick I should like to have you witness. I answered him immediately to the effect that his overtures were gladly welcomed, and on my part I should be pleased to give him an important appointment in my service and hand him the papers tonight. I ended by telling him that tomorrow, seeking out a quiet spot, I should enjoy my Pantinelli to the last drop."

The prince put the bottle away in a sideboard and produced from a desk a folded paper as Count Luigi di Folengo was announced. He was a swarthy person, with a saber cut across one cheek and a droop to the eyelid which, to Doctor Hardy, was singularly unprepossessing. The physician highly approved his friend's course in leaving the Pantinelli untasted.

The conversation was general for a few moments after the guests had been introduced, and then the prince, taking out the queer-shaped flask, silently placed it upon the table as he handed carelessly. "Then I must drink alone," and he emptied the glass.

"But you are missing something choice," he continued, wiping his lips. "That wine has been in my cellars for fifty years. The stuff our late friend sent is safely locked away for analysis, together with a poisoned dagger and an infernal machine, both of which, I believe, I owe to him or his followers. If you were coroner in this case, what would your verdict be—death from a guilty conscience, supplemented by a vivid imagination? Come, I believe it's my first deal this evening."

Ancient English Book Thought to Be Unique

In an out-of-the-way corner of Worcester (Eng.) Cathedral library has been found an ancient book, believed to be the only one of its kind in existence. It gives an account of the Benedictine music in the cathedral in the Thirteenth century. The choir music and services are interspersed with many details of the rubrics and ceremonials, and the whole is exquisitely written. Canon Wilson, who found R in rearranging the library, displayed it at a meeting of the Worcestershire Archeological society. He said it probably escaped the general holocaust of such books in 1549 because it was at the time in the care of the precenter, and was not in the cathedral itself. It was almost the sole survivor of an antiphoner. The only book that could compare with it was that of Peterborough, which was in Magdalene college, Cambridge, but that was much less complete. Reproductions of the Worcester book, he added, were being made in Belgium. A valuable historical account of it has been written by Dame Lucretia McLachlan, 92 Stanbrook abbey.

Practicable Method of Destroying Sheep Tick

The only practicable method of destroying the sheep tick is by dipping the sheep. This consists of immersing the animals in a liquid that will kill the parasites. Since the liquids used do not destroy the eggs a second dripping is necessary and should be done about 24 days after the first. Because some of the ticks have probably dropped from the sheep, it is best not to put the dipped sheep back into ticky quarters. In warm weather eggs that have been dislodged may hatch out and reinfest the flock. If all the litter is cleaned up around the sheds and lots and the ground sprayed with the solution about double the strength of that used in dipping, the sheep may be safely put back in their old quarters.

Determine Sex of Calf The common belief that male offspring is the rule when a female carrles her young longer than normal is not well founded, according to a recent study at the Iowa State college. The gestation periods of 369 cows in the experiment station herd were examined. No periods were considered where twins or premature calves were born. There were 189 male and 180 female calves produced. Bulls and helfers were carried the same length of time.

I. Paul and Barnabas Preaching at Iconium (vv. 1-7).

Their experience here was similar to that at Antioch. They entered the Jewish synagogue and preached, causing a multitude of Jews and Gentiles to believe. The unbelieving Jews stirred up the Gentiles to the most bitter opposition.

1. Their Manner of Preaching (v. 1).

This is suggested by the little word "so" in verse one. They so spake that a great multitude believed. They were true preachers. Only that which brings conviction of sin and induces decisions for Christ can be truly called preaching in the Biblical sense. It is not enough to merely bring the truth to the people. It must be brought in such a way that men and women will decide for Christ. This is also true of the Sunday school teacher.

2. Their Attitude Towards Opposition (v. 3).

This is suggested by the word "therefore." Long time therefore they tarried. The opposition did not prevent their preaching, but incited them to continue preaching. 3. The Lord Accompanied Their

Preaching With Miracles (v. 3). Since the opposition was so fierce, the Lord granted special help which was needed.

4. The Effect of Their Preaching (v. 4).

The multitude of the city was di-Where men faithfully preach vided. the gospel, there will be division. Paul and Barnabas Assaulted 5. (vv. 5-7).

The Jews and the Gentiles united in this assault. Being apprised of their effort, they fled to Lystra and Derbe. II. An Attempt to Worship Paul and Barnabas as Gods (vv. 8-18).

1. The Occasion (vv. 8-10).

It was the healing of the lame man. God's gracious power shown in healing this lame man occasioned a new difficulty. That which ought to have been a help was turned into a hindrance. This was a notable miracle. The man was a confirmed cripple. He had never walked. On hearing Paul preach, faith was born in his heart (Rom. 10-17). When Paul perceived that he trusted Christ, he

July 19 Great Women of the Bible Luke 10:38-4.; Esther 4:1-17

If asked to mention the names of the great women of the Bible, many of us would have passed over the two names found in our New Testament verses. Can any claim to greatness be established for the woman who is described as "careful and troubled about many things?" Yes, she had the greatness of spiritual perception she received him into her house. Ability to see in Jesus of Nazareth the promised Messiah and to receive Him as Saviour and Lord is a mark of true character and an indication of real greatness. It is the key to "the life that is life indeed."

The greatness of Mary is seen in her choice of the best. She sat at Jesus' feet and heard His Word. It was not enough for her that the Master should be in the house. She wanted the best that His presence made possible. When one has received Him, according to John 1:12, then the part of wisdom is to learn of Him and find rest as promised in Matthew 11:29. This was "that good part" which Mary deliberately chose and and for which she was commended of her Lord.

In these days when many are "cumbered with much serving," when rest-lessness and feverish activity permeate and dominate so many lives, we need to recall the word of the prophet, "In quietness and confidence shall be your strength." Greatness of character or achievement is the product of quiet meditation and thorough preparation.

The other woman, named in the Old Testament verses, is Esther. The qualities that make her great, in our estimation, are those of courage and sacrifice. She faced known danger in order to save the lives of others. Scores of women have done the same thing. thing. Loving not their lives even unto death, they have gone forth into this and other lands beyond the sea, in order that men and women in spir-itual darkness may be enlightened and saved through faith in the gospel of God's only Son.

French Cling to Customs

It may be claimed that French institutions are progressive, but the French people remain conservative and faithful to old traditions. Customs that have existed for centuries are still followed in various parts of France. Even cosmopolitan Paris maintains some of its ancient customs. Strangers who walk or ride in early morning through the Rue Turbigo, in the heart of Paris, are surprised to see hundreds of young women awaiting employment. In the Thirteenth century during the reign of Saint Louis, Paris authorities granted special permission "to all needy women who are respectable and trustworthy and want to do the laundry of the burghers to gather on the Rue Turbigo and hire themselves out for the day, week or month." The square from which two city officials

Principal Got More Than Decision Over John "L."

At the end of the school term, in June, 1870, the school authorities informed Sullivan senior, father of John L. Sullivan, that, incredible as it bladders, like small berries, keep the might seem, they would struggle along thereafter without the presence of his in the 100-fathom limit-within 600 son on the roster.

"Jawn," said his mother, grimly, "ye are too young to go to Boston college, where the brothers will mend yer manners. But meantoime ye shall go to the Dwight Grammar school in Springfield street, where Professor Page will cure ye iv yer indacent misbehavior-r-r."

Prof. James A. Page was the first man to whip John L. Sullivan! To the end of his long and useful lifehe died in 1917, at the age of ninetytwo-Professor Page liked to tell of the few incidents he remembered in connection with his famous pupil. He sent the new student to his room and told his teacher to fasten a wary eye on him. The first thing she saw, an hour later, was a note being passed of spores, but near land the waves from desk to desk. She captured it | render unique assistance. and read:

"My name is John L. Sullivan. I whipped every boy at the Concord primary, and I can whip every kid in this room. I'm going to do it, too. Read this and pass it on."

In less than a month young Sullivan had made good. His recesses consisted of one combat after another. His progress after school was a series of fights that strung out for the full halfmile home. He even went to his classes a half-hour before the bell rang, charming his mother by such industry. Alas! it was only to have more time to hunt boys he had not yet whipped!

Professor Page recalled that his reports showed John was fairly interested in arithmetic and English, soon losing the brogue he was saturated with at home, but was hopeless in geography.

One day, in answer to a question as their whereabouts, he told his to teacher that the Rocky mountains were in Maine. A shout of derision followed, and John punched the nearest boy on the nose. Into the free-for-all that followed the teacher plunged. emerging with a firm clutch on Sullivan's collar. She sent him to the principal with a note. Page returned with him, and in front of the pupils gave the future champion a sound beating with a two-foot ruler.-Joe Dorney and Sid Sutherland in Liberty.

Squirrel Pest

Despite his pretty appearance and amusing ways, the common red squirrel is said to be one of the most destructive pests found in the woods today. Ornithologists claim that his depredations among birds rank second only to those of the hunting cat, and that he not only kills young birds, as does the cat, but he will destroy the eggs before they are hatched. Around farm buildings he is considered a nuisance because of his propensity for chewing a hole through some building which he has selected as a likely place to store his winter's supply of food.

Cookery and Slang in Odd Relationship

Why the business of the cook should be used as a vehicle of scorn and revenge is a mystery of our mysterious language.

We boast that we "have settled his hash" when we have "squashed" a man and when counsel very severely cross-examines a witness, or a mistress gives a servant what is commonly called "a piece of her mind," we say that both got "a jolly good roast-If anyone has been thoroughly ing." bamboozled or made a fool of we say he has been "done brown."

Why do we say that certain circumstances or happenings have put a man "into a pretty stew," or that a certain young man has "got himself into boiling water," which almost certainly refers to the dropping of some living animal, like the lobster, into the pot? And why do we refer to some one who has shown a lack of intelligence as only half baked?"

The phrase "I've cooked his goose" has an ancient origin. When Eric, king of Sweden, reached a certain town with very few soldiers, the enemy hung out a goose for him to shoot. Finding, however, that it was no matter for jest, the townsfolk sent heralds to learn what he wanted. His reply was: "To cook your goose for you."-London Tit-Bits.

Calvaries of Paris Are Rapidly Passing

Slowly the calvaries of Paris are vanishing. The old walls on which penitence and adoration erected them have crumbled, have been swept away, and the new walls know no calvaries. Here and there, however, writes "F. G. H." in the continental edition of the London Mail, the great and sorrowful symbol of the Christian faith may still be seen.

In remote corners, just out of the swift current of the city's life it stands unheeded by the busy crowds. Only the birds sometimes flutter round it, and in the manner of some medieval legend, we might believe the feathered things cared for something that humanity had almost forgotten. Of such calvaries one may be found at the corner of the Rue d'Aubervilliers and the Rue de l'Evangile.

It has its place not in one of the loveliest parts of the great city, and we might be disposed to question the work itself from the standpoint of mere art. But there it stands, and a creeper droops half caressingly around the head of it. It breaks suddenly the level contour of an ugly wall. And sometimes it may seem that nothing was ever broken in a manner more wonderful than this poor wall is broken by the dolorous calvary.

Police Dogs "Wolfish"

The police dogs are not a distinct breed, but are shepherd dogs police trained. The German police dog should stand 22 to 26 inches at the shoulder and show in every line the qualities which he is supposed to possess-intelligence, alertness, loyalty, gentleness, courage, obedience, willingness and devotion. While the standard allows great range of color, those most often seen in this country are of the so-called "wolf" colors, dark tipping of hair over a tawny or buff ground. The muzzle (unlike that of a wolf) is usually blackish. Both the German and Belgian dogs may be divided into three general types-namely, rough-haired, wire-haired and smooth-haired. By their erect ears and general expression they betray their near relationship to the wolf.

called with a loud voice that all could hear for the man to stand upright. The cure was instantaneous for he leaped up and walked (v. 10). The Method (vv. 11-13).

Barnabas they called Jupiter and Paul, Mercurius, because he was the chief speaker. The priest of Jupiter brought oxen and garlands ready to offer sacrifice unto these men (v. 13). 3. Their Efforts Frustrated (vv. 14-18).

This foolish act was happily averted by the tact of the apostles.

(1) They denied that they were divine beings, and declared that to worship beings with like passions to themselves was criminal.

(2) They directed the people to turn away from these vain things unto the living God who made heaven and earth, and has left witness of Himself in that He has always done good, giving rain and fruitful seasons, and filling their hearts with gladness.

III. The Stoning of Paul (vv. 19-22).

Wicked Jews from Antioch and Iconium pursued Paul with relentless hate to this place where they stirred up the very people who were willing to worship them a little while before. This shows that satanic worship can soon be turned into satanic hate. This hatred took form in stoning Paul and dragging him out of the city for dead. God raised him up, and with undaunted courage, he pressed on with his missionary duties, bearing the good tidings to the lost.

IV. The Organization of Churches in the Field (vv. 23-28).

Evangelization with Paul did not mean a hasty and superficial preaching of the gospel, but the establishment of a permanent work. Elders were appointed in every church. The work of the missionary is not done until self-governing and self-propagating churches are established on the field

Find Rich Relics in Japan

What is believed to be a remarkable archeological find has been made in Tango province, just north of Kyoto, in the shape of a great stone chest 6 feet high, 7 feet wide and 16 feet in length. In it there reposed five ancient sword blades, five neck decorations and six magatama, or royal beads, besides many fragments of earthenware, the New York World says.

The age of these relics is said to be about 1,000 years and there are indications that they date back to the reign of Emperor Go-Shirakawa, and possibly may be even connected with that ruler. He built a temple in that vicinity, and the magatama are one of the three sacred emblems or treasures, the others being the swords and mirror, which are passed on at a ruler's death.

Her blond prettiness and dainty attire attracted a woman as she stood beside her in the public library. From her chic satin hat to her trim little shoes she was the last word in feminine smartness.

She had asked the librarian for the most widely read book of the day and the librarian was doubtful whether there was a copy in at present, but after searching a few moments returned and handed her the desired book.

Certain musical instruments are used almost entirely by one sex, others by both. The harp is largely a woman's instrument, but when men do take it up they show marked ability to master it. The piano is very evenly divided between the sexes. Brass instruments are played mainly by men, ukuleles by women. The banjo is a man's instrument, while mandolins are well divided between the sexes. The saxophone, the most popular of all instruments at the present time, is played by both men and women .- John Howe in the American Magazine.

A nearly new Ford automobile was stolen from the barn of Dr. N. A. Hitchcock, last Friday night, or early Saturday morning. There were several other garages broken in, and the Ford cars tampered with, but the parties left without taking anything. The Hitchcock car has not been heard from. The thief appears to have known the location of Fords pretty well.

Mr. Henry A. Yancey, who has, with Mrs. Yancey, been visiting Rev. and Mrs. G. Wilbur Shipley, unexpectedly received a telegram Tuesday requesting that he come to Covington, Va., at once to confer with the officials relatives to accepting the position of City Manager in that place. They left Wednesday morning for Charlottesville, their home.

Chas. E. H. Shriner and family party returned home Thursday night of last week from a 13 days trip of 2030 miles through New England and Canada, by auto. The only mishap of the trip was one punctured tire. They passed through the New England Coast cities to Boston, then through Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, up the White Mountains to Montreal and Quebec, and back down the Hudson through N. Y., the whole section covered playing an important part in the early history of this country, and quite interesting for summer tourist travel.
