ANOTHER WEEK OF CATTLE TESTING

A Convincing Demonstration Given at Mehring's Plant.

The clean-up of tubercular cattle continues to be a main item of discussion in this section, especially among the losers, and as time goes on the feeling is growing that the clean-up is justifiable and that it is being fairly and skilfully conducted, setting at rest a variety of reports, all unfounded in facts. Cattle owners have generally accepted the situation, in agreeing that the tests are correct; that the animals are unfit for dairy purposes, likely to carry tuberculosis to consumers of dairy products, and may explain the main cause of the increase in the disease among the people of this state.

Last Saturday two reactor cows were slaughtered at Mehring's reduction plant. It was pretty widely known that this would be done, and about 200 spectators were present. If there were any doubters in the number, they left with all doubts removed, as both cases were so badly diseased as to impress the fact even on those not familiar with the internal organs of cattle. The demonstration was well worth while, for numerous reasons.

There is some adverse comment on the fact that the two cows slaughtered were in the advanced stages of disease, some arguing that the better looking, and apparently healthy cattle, would not show up with anything like the same evidence. We have been assured that the only reason why cattle are shipped to Baltimore, for slaughter, is because the carcasses can be disposed of there, for their actual value, which is advantageous to their owners in their returns they receive; and that even in cases in which tuberculosis is not so plainly in evidence, after slaughter, it is none the less present, and would later reach the advanced stages.

There seems to be a persistent report, evidently circulated by somebody with influence, that advanced cases frequently do not react. This is as untrue as any report could possibly be, as the exception to the rule is so rare as not to be worth considering—perhaps not one in 5000 cases failing to react, being the experience of those qualified to report on such cases.

The result of the past week's testing in Taneytown district was 385 tests made, with 58 reactors, a slightly lower percentage than for the other weeks. In Uniontown district the percentage of reactors has been slightly higher than in Taneytown, up to the present time. The work there has been temporarily discontinued due to the fact that Dr. Hallman, in charge of the work, had a thumb nail torn off, and will not return until next week.

Dr. McCoy expects to finish the work in this district the week after the Fair, as it will not be possible to do a great deal of work during Fair week. He tested the few cows in town this week.

Most of the herds being tested in Freedom and Berrett districts are being retested. Dr. Henderson who is doing this work has been averaging about 20 reactors a week.

Carroll County W. C. T. U.

The 32nd. Annual Convention of the Carroll County Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Maryland, will be held in the Methodist Episcopal Church, Hampstead, Thursday, September 10th, beginning at 10:00 o'clock in the morning. There will be but two sessions morning and afternoon, and it is most important that all delegates be in their places on time.

Mrs. Martha Shaw, of the Westminster Union, will respond to the address of welcome. Mrs. Mary R. Haslip, State President, who has recently returned from the world's W. C. T. U. Convention in Edinburgh, Scotland, will be present and address the Convention in the afternoon.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the church will serve lunch at a nominal price.

Beaverdam Churches Robbed.

The two churches of the Brethren, at Beaverdam, near the Union Bridge and Johnsville road, were entered some time last week, and robbed of a large quantity of bedding and table linen, dishes and other articles used on lovefeast occasions.

The theft occurred without anybody knowing about it for several days. The doors were noticed to be open, but no investigation was made as it was supposed some of the church people were doing some work. The goods stolen were stored in the attic, and were not frequently used.

Dairying.

A meeting of the officers of the Breed Associations met in the County Agents Office, Monday night. Mr. Conover, Dairy Specialist University of Maryland, met with the breeders to discuss the dairy situation in Carroll. Due to the loss of over 20% of the dairy cattle, the breeders are planning to aid those losing cattle, due to the test, to replace with better cattle than those now being offered for sale. Plans for a Pure Bred Bull sale, in November, were discussed. This will be the subject of another meeting next week.

THE TANEYTOWN CANNERIES.

A Big Crop of Corn, but Small one of Tomatoes.

The A. W. Feeser & Co., corn cannery has been a very busy centre, the past three weeks, and the season will not close for another two weeks. Last week and this week were the big weeks, most of the time requiring work late at night to dispose of the hundreds of wagon loads of corn, with the sixteen machine huskers kept busy, and in fact every part of the process has been speeded up to about full capacity, most of the time.

It is estimated that over 80,000 cans are packed each day, or at the rate of about 120 cans a minute, requiring about 500 tons of corn for a full day's operation. An ample force of hands is at work and working conditions are good, and the entire plant represents an exhibition of modern canning at its best.

At the Bankert Bros. tomato cannery, part time work has been going on, this week. The long continued hot and dry weather has been greatly against the maturing of the crop and much of the fruit is small and sunburned; in fact, the season throughout has been very unfavorable for tomato growing, and it is unfortunate both for Bankert Brothers and the growers here, that the first year should hold such an experience. But the best use is being made of the situation, and there will still be a fair pack.

Another Accident at R. R.

A large Standard auto, occupied by two men from Emmitsburg, ran head-on into a freight train standing on the Baltimore St. crossing, shortly after 2 o'clock Monday morning. The radiator, wind-shield and lights were smashed completely indicating a pretty rapid speed. This is the fourth or fifth like accident at this crossing. About two weeks ago, another Emmitsburg driver narrowly escaped the same accident by swerving his car to the right, hitting the end of a freight car standing on the switch. Strange to say, although the crossing is brightly lighted overhead, some car drivers declare they cannot see a train on the track.

This crossing, like all other grade crossings, is very dangerous, especially at late hours of the night; and in view of the number of accidents, both day and night, that have occurred at this point during the past few years, there ought to be more safeguards in use. With the recent installation of the new danger signals, it would seem that auto drivers at night should come to a full stop, or very nearly so, when approaching the crossing, and be sure of safety ahead.

We would suggest the use of side lights—and perhaps a red light over the track—as an experiment, to clearly show such an obstruction as a train of unlighted box cars standing across the street. Either that, or trainmen acting as watchmen.

Meeting of Republican Women.

(For the Record.)
The Executive Committee of the Federation of Republican Women of Maryland holds four meetings during the year—two in Baltimore and two in the counties. The meeting in May was held in Rockville, Montgomery County, and the Fall meeting will be held in the State Armory, Westminster, Monday, October 14th. The committee, consisting of the officers of the Federation and City Wards, and County Chairmen, will convene at 10:30 A. M. It will be an open meeting, and all Republican women of Carroll County are invited to be present. The afternoon meeting will be addressed by prominent speakers, and will be open to the public.

Every woman member of the County Central Committee should make an effort to be present and bring as many as possible with her, and not only meet the women workers from other parts of the State, but hear the reports of work done, and also planned for the campaign next Fall.

A local organization will serve luncheon at 50c a plate, to all who wish it at the noon recess. The men of the party will also be most cordially welcome, as it is proposed to make this a "get-together" meeting of all Republicans interested in the future political welfare of the county, and to express the loyalty of the friends of the administration to our good President, Calvin Coolidge.

MARY B. SHELLMAN, Chairman.

Hay Fever Treatment.

During the hay fever season considerable relief may be obtained if simple precautions are followed. Strenuous exercise such as tennis and baseball should be avoided as unusual exertion induces vigorous breathing and correspondingly increases the dose of pollen inhaled.

The sleeping room should be kept closed during the day to exclude as much of the pollen-laden air as possible. Upon retiring the windows should be opened, since the dampness of the evening air and the lessened breeze will allow but a relatively small amount of pollen to gain access to the sleeping room.

Hay fever patients who suffer from distressing eye symptoms may find relief by wearing amber glasses.

It is most important that those who suffer from hay fever understand that they should present themselves to their physicians for medical treatment about three months before their symptoms usually begin.

THE STRIKE IS ON IN COAL REGION

No Predictions Made as to Final Outcome.

The miners strike is on, and almost anything possible, may happen. The unions are well supplied with funds with which to carry on the strike, and there is said to be 9,000,000 tons of anthracite in storage, or in the hands of dealers, and 5,500,000 tons of bituminous coal now above ground, which will easily supply demands at least until after Christmas. Non-union mines are expected to further augment the supply of bituminous; and the oil men are active in urging oil fuel as a substitute, especially for hotels and other large buildings.

The government apparently will pursue a hands-off policy until the needs of consumers demand attention. The bituminous fields of West Va. and Maryland are rushing coal to market at the rate of near 2000 cars a day. These mines are not working to full capacity, and unless labor trouble develops, increased production may be looked for.

Considerable interest centers in the question of sympathetic strikes among bituminous miners and rail employees, but at present there are no outward signs of trouble. In fact, the whole country is very quiet, and apparently unconcerned, so far over the strike.

The strike went into effect, on Tuesday, with promises of no disorder from the miners, and with a force at work to keep the mines in good order during the suspension, President Lewis of the workers issued a lengthy statement charging the mine owners with the failure to make a new working agreement, and that the owners will use the suspension for profit making, and for getting rid of a large lot of low grade coal. The workers claim that they have no alternative but to await the time when the operators, having exploited their opportunity to the fullest extent, are willing to sanely discuss the problems of a new contract.

The following figures are given concerning the strike: number of mines closed 823; number of miners on strike about 150,000; men working to care for mine property 10,000; daily loss in wages $1,000,000; number depending on pay of miners 500,000; average earning per year, each man $1950; percentage of foreign born miners 52.7; cause of strike, demand for 10% increase, full recognition of union, maintenance of "check off" and other minor points.

WALDEN FARMS SOLD.

Largest Sale of Real Estate in Recent Years.

Edward O. Weant, attorney, and Alexander Preston, of Baltimore, trustees of the estate of the late R. W. Walden, sold at private sale, on Thursday, the various Walden properties at Middleburg, as follows:

The Home Farm, containing 230 acres, on which are the celebrated Walden racing stables and training track, was sold to Robert J. Walden for $30,000. Mr. Walden also bought the adjoining Bittering farm of 112 acres for $2,750. Francis J. Harbaugh and wife bought the Cloverbrook farm of 330 acres, for $26,025, and Jesse Reiser the Lynn farm, of 147½ acres for $5,000.

The store property in Middleburg was sold to Clayarchus Six and wife for $2,700; a frame dwelling in Middleburg to Francis J. Harbaugh and wife for $750; dwellings in Union Bridge to John Kohler and wife for $3,000; Norman E. Bohn and wife, for $3,250, and George E. Fowble and wife for $3,500. Blue Ridge College.

Preparations are being completed for the opening of the twenty-seventh session of Blue Ridge College Tuesday Sept. 8, 10:30. Dr. Walter B. Yount, of Westminster is scheduled to deliver the opening address. A most cordial invitation is extended to friends and patrons to be present at the convocation exercises.

Prof. Nevin Fisher, director of music in Bridgewater College for past three years, has returned to Blue Ridge as music director.

Prospects for another large enrollment are most encouraging. Rooms in dormitories are rapidly being filled. The teachers have returned either from their vacation rest or from attending summer school.

Prof. Roy Wolfgang arrived Monday to take charge of Athletics. Mr. Wolfgang is the first three major sport coach ever engaged by the school. He comes well qualified for his position. After playing on all varsity teams at Juniata College, where he graduated with B. S. degree in 1923, Mr. Wolfgang made further preparation for his work at University of Michigan, under "Hurly" Yost. He is putting his football men through thorough training getting ready for the opening game with Milton University at New Windsor, Saturday, Sept. 19.

Professor John J. John returns to his class work in mathematics after two years leave of absence.

Carroll County Weeklies.

The Publishers' Auxiliary, Chicago a weekly published in the interest largely of country weeklies, had the following nice things to say in a recent issue about Carroll County weeklies:

"The Carroll Record of Taneytown, one the very best of Maryland's weeklies, might well be taken for a model. In press work and typographical appearance it stands in the very front rank, and its editorial and news departments are handled in a way to elicit the admiration of any printer. P. B. Englar, publisher, as well as the community of Taneytown, are to be congratulated on the result of his careful and painstaking efforts."

"The Union Bridge Pilot is a good example of what may be accomplished in a small town by enterprise and progress. The Pilot always carries a very heavy volume of advertising and is most capably handled and managed. J. R. Galt and O. J. Stonesifer, editors, can view their work with a large degree of satisfaction."

"Westminster is a town where all three of its weeklies are printed on book paper. The Times, the American Sentinel and the Democratic Advocate are unusually prepossessing on this account. All are prosperous papers, due to the fact that they are located in a thriving agricultural section which is also the home of Western Maryland College."

Read advertisements for information and profit.

The Record is worth its cost for its advertising news, alone.

Preparations for Winter.

With the opening of September it is in order to begin many preparations for the winter.

The first is to carefully overhaul all furnaces and stoves, flues and chimneys. Get your order in for grates and pipe; clean out chimneys, and see that the brick-work is sound.

Naturally, the uncertainty of the length of the coal strike, makes it important to get in a good coal supply.

The fall of the year is a good time for the outside painting—many prefer it to the Spring.

Look after clogged-up drain pipes and clean them before freezing sets in.

Begin to clean up yards and gardens of dead vegetation—do it while outdoor work is still pleasant.

TWO DISASTERS IN AIR THIS WEEK.

The Dirigible, Shenandoah, and a Seaplane Lost.

Fourteen of the crew of the giant dirigible, Shenandoah, the pride of the U. S. Navy, met death early on Thursday, when the aircraft broke in three pieces in a storm, and dropped 5000 feet to the ground, near Caldwell, Ohio. The men killed were in the control cabin section; 33 men in the other two sections, escaped with their lives.

Seaplane P N 9, while attempting a flight from San Francisco to Honolulu, is missing, and is believed to be lost, with the Captain and four men. The plane is believed to have been compelled to drop, due to storm and exhaustion of fuel supply. Search for it has been under way for several days without result.

Stop! Look Before you Drink.

Going on an automobile trip? If you are, you will be interested in these suggestions from Mr. Abel Woman, Chief of the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering, of the State Department of Health:

"In the midst of the vacation period, and with the season of greatest typhoid fever sickness approaching, a word of warning to the tourist and camper may be helpful in combating the unseen foe of health that so frequently lurks in springs and wells, even in those that produce a water refreshingly cool and of sparkling attractiveness."

"In the State of Maryland a project is now in development to maintain makers' for the guidance of tourists to water supplies that are regularly inspected, analyzed and found safe by the State Department of Health. This plan includes, in addition to public and camp water supplies, the possible marking of private supplies at convenient intervals as may be found practicable."

"It is the practice of the State Health Official to inspect the existing tourists camps and to suggest such sanitary improvements as may be necessary. This practice is resulting in an increasing number of safe camping grounds throughout the State, but until the above mentioned plan is placed in effect, much unnecessary risk may be avoided, if campers will use reasonable care in selecting their camp site, or if tourists will take the precaution of using water only from a public supply, all of which in Maryland are under the constant supervision of State Health authorities."

"If at any time the water must be obtained from a well or spring of unknown quality, the owner's claim that it is the best water in the county should not be given as great consideration as the nature of the surroundings and the protection furnished by the supply. If there is a toilet, stable, chicken yard, or other source of contamination near the supply; or if it is not effectively protected against surface wash and pump drippings, the water is at least potentially dangerous and should not be used for domestic purposes until it has been boiled."

"In general, if the tourist will bear in mind that typhoid and other intestinal bacterial diseases can be contracted only by getting the germ from another human body into their own—by swallowing it—and will avoid ill-kept locations for camping and doubtful water supplies for drinking and domestic uses, the chances of the pleasure of their trip later being destroyed by sickness can be reduced to a minimum."

An Old "Show" License.

The following is a copy of a document handed to us by Burgess S. Miller, as a curiosity of "old times." It represents a copy of license issued under the first act of incorporation of Taneytown, to hold a show on what was then called "the commons" on the present location of the Presbyterian parsonage. George Miller, the Burgess, was Burgess S. Miller's father. The name of the showmen is not given.

"Corporation of Taneytown, Set; Whereas application has been made to me by . . . to exhibit a show to consist of tumbling, balancing, etc., these are therefore to authorize and license him the said . . . to exhibit his show in all its various branches in the corporation of Taneytown on the 2nd. day of June inst., he having paid the sum of $1.00 for the said Corporation. Issued the 2nd. day of June 1843 by George Miller, Burgess."

Long Term Subscriptions.

The Woodbury, (N. J.) Constitution has a subscriber who is paid up until 1956, having paid fifty years ahead in 1906, during a circulation campaign. The same paper also boasts of two employees, one of whom has been with the paper 50 years, and the other 35 years.

The Williamson (W. Va.) daily news has a subscriber who in 1920 paid up for fifty years, until Feb. 1, 1970. So far as heard from, these two cases represent the long-time record for newspaper subscriptions.

The Record prefers fifty paid one-year subscriptions, over one paid for fifty years.

PUBLISHING TAX PAYMENTS.

Senator Weller Will Urge Repeal of Publicity Law.

The daily papers this week, have been full of long lists covering practically all payments taxes, on account of Federal income taxes, in their respective states, and we can easily see how the publication is both very objectionable to individuals as well as possibly injurious to their private interests. Among many others, Senator Weller is a strong opponent of the publicity law, and will urge its repeal. He says:

"What the people want is to allow a man in business to go on with his business. Opening the tax books to the public is one of the worst forms of meddling with business."

"The greatest harm is done to the business man who has been going along for many years, has a fine standing at his bank and then happens to have a bad year, with some losses, and finds his income exposed in such a way that the bank calls him up."

"LaFollette took the lead in this effort. Democrats joined with him partly because there was an election coming on. Now it will be possible to have the question judged upon its merits and upon the results of this broadcast publication. I have heard the names of Senators who voted for the publicity measure who have since regretted their step."

"There are some other Senators who will oppose it when the President speaks out, because they will be facing election and will find this is the attitude of the people."

Some Income Tax Payments.

The following are a few of the income tax payments made to the Federal government this year, by prominent firms and individuals so far reported:

Ford Motor Company	$16,493,160
U. S. Steel Corporation	11,005,219
General Electric Co.	7,245,900

Henry Ford	2,608,806
Standard Oil Co.	2,336,436
Edsel Ford	2,158,055
B. & O. Railroad	1,957,181
Andrew W. Mellon	1,882,600
J. Pierpont Morgan	574,579
Henry Walters	475,851
Elbert Gary	322,680
Douglas Fairbanks	182,190
John D. Rockefeller, Sr.	128,420
William Randolph Hearst	49,259
John W. Davis	49,583
Vice-President Dawes	24,834
President Coolidge	14,081
Rex Beach	10,076
Chief Justice Taft	1,723
Charles Evans Hughes	1,554

There are many more payments, made and still to be reported, that run up into six and seven figures.

August Mint Coinage.

Coinage by the Philadelphia Mint in August comprised the following number of pieces: Double eagles, 21,750; quarters, 608,000; dimes, 5,250,000; nickels, 5,513,000; and cents 7,900,000, a grand total of 19,292,850 pieces, having an aggregate value of $1,466,655. Foreign coinage included 440,000 2-zlot for Poland, 580,000 unsoled for Peru, and 100,000 one-half quetzal, and 46,000 one-quarter quetzal for Guatemala.

Cotton Crop to be Short.

A cotton shortage is predicted for the South, this year, in a statement issued by the State Commissioner of Agriculture, of South Carolina. He says:

"Cotton that promised to make a bale to the acre two weeks ago," he says, "will not make over half a bale today. Bolls as large as marbles are falling off, and there is much immature opening. The bolls are small and the lint short."

It does not believe that more than 12,000,000 bales will be produced, or at the outside 13,000,000. He urges farmers to warehouse their cotton and use the warehouse receipts at the banks.

If this prediction holds out, still higher prices will prevail for all cotton manufactures, unless the world's supply in other countries should operate to keep down market prices for raw cotton, a possibility that is hardly likely.

Dahlia Show, September 26-27.

The Dahlia Show under the auspices of the Flower Committee of the Civic League, will be held some place in Westminster, on the above dates. Everybody is asked to exhibit dahlias at this show. Be sure to attend this exhibit of the most common of flowers but the most beautiful of fall flowers.

C. E. Topic Omitted.

As the "copy" for our weekly comments on the C. E. topic became lost in our office by some means, the feature will not appear this week. The topic itself is—"Learning How to Pray"—a consecration meeting.

When five of his flock of thirty pure-bred Buff Orpington chickens died during a recent heat wave, a Milwaukee man attached an electric fan to the hen house light socket, and revived the other members of his flock.

Lubricating oil made from crickets has been found suitable for aviation, since it does not congeal even at high altitudes.

The Tax bills are over-ripe now, the discount period having passed and the interest period approaching. Those who have their winter's coal supply in and paid for, and taxes paid—no matter what they think about their ugly size—are at least over the pain of them for another year.

The County Fair season is at hand, when perhaps more real enjoyment will be gotten out of a day's visit than in any other one day in the year. With all of its short-comings, the County Fair is still a very valuable institution, and the more the gamblers and fake shows are driven out, the more valuable it will be. Even just "seeing the people," is worth while.

Lots of people in business go away for a week, spend a lot of money, and think they have had a vacation. For many of them it takes several days more or less of discomfort to become "acclimated," about the time this has been accomplished they must go home again, then spend nearly another week getting down to business again. The main thing accomplished in a week's vacation is spending the money.

Bathing beauty contests, and the publication of pictures of almost nude contestants, is about the rankest stunt of the year to be flaunted before moral people. Showing off the female figure, is largely the sole object of these contests, and "Skinny" expert swimmers are not eligible. A Catholic priest, at Butler, Pa., characterizes these so-called "contests" as "being unwomanly, non-Christian, immodest and immoral."

Maryland to be Dried Up.

Maryland, rated as the wettest state in the union, is to be given a treat of the best efforts of the new National prohibition director, in the near future, as soon as the working force can be perfected. Maryland's distinction for "wetness" is based largely on the fact that both the city and state political organizations are not actively co-operating with the government, and are closely wedded to the state's rights doctrine that even the Constitution of the United States has its limitations when it runs counter to state authorities.

Maryland has encouraged all sorts of dry law violations by not passing an enforcement law paralleling the Volstead act; and Washington, the Capital of the Nation, is all the wetter because of its proximity to Maryland. As the unit operating together is now made up of Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia, it is believed that co-operation between the three will greatly help enforcement in all.

The Law "Failure" Advertisers.

Quite a number of newspaper writers, and others who publish their opinions by word of mouth, are still greatly concerned over the large number of failures of the Prohibition law. The fact is, these failures, are conspicuous by their comparative scarcity. We do not minimize the fact that prohibition is still very far from unanimous, especially here in the east; but the truth is that thousands of liquor brawls and misbehaviors were so common, under the open saloon laws, that they were unmentioned, and never given big headlines, while almost every case is made use of now, in an effort to prove prohibition a failure.

The fair way of treating the present situation, would be to try to imagine the number of fatalities and accidents on our public highways, by autoing alone, should it be possible to secure liquors, legally and openly, at licensed places. Common sense tells us that if there are still too many "drunks" driving cars due to securing "bootleg" illegally, there would be

One can generally get what he wants to get, if he tries hard enough, and is willing to take chances. So it is that the playing up of the violations of the prohibition law is largely a matter of personal desire. We try to show the failures of the law because we want it to fail, and in effect regardless of the number of deaths and accidents.

Of course, there are statisticians on the other side, and these greatly outnumber the "failures" of the law. People are building and buying, as never before. The predicted "killing" of towns and depreciation of hotel properties, and the like, has not materialized. As a whole, people are living better and have more money in bank—notwithstanding increased expenditures for everything—than ever before. Expensive hotels are being built every where, and in hardly a single instance can the prohibition laws be charged with financial losses.

The fact is, there are but few who openly say they want the saloon back; still, they want to get liquors somehow, without saying just how, or in what ways the laws should be amended. There is a better sense conviction that stands like a wall in the way of legalized liquors, and all but a few know it and admit it; still, they will advertise the failure of the laws that they can not themselves agree on how they should be amended.

A Coal Strike Again.

The right angle ought to be found with reference to coal mining, and the proper pay for it, and then the "striking" business ought to be prohibited by law. We have always been of the opinion that the miners should be given fully adequate and just pay. It is a dangerous business. The actual work is said not to be hard, with modern mining facilities but it is dangerous, both to life and health, and should be one of the best paid jobs there is.

If "strikes" are merely a representation of force—of combined power—they represent a hold-up, a monopoly, a "stand and deliver" proposition, as much so as holding a gun at a banker's head, or "cornering" a product and demanding a price, both of which acts are illegal under the law, and the offenders punishable.

All labor strikes, when clearly based on combined force without justice back of them, are mere exhibitions of unjust demands, representing power to compel the people to pay the price, and neither miners nor any other class of labor, have any defensible position in such cases. Mere might, does not represent right.

In the matter of such a prime necessity as coal, this country ought to be able to find some way of preventing a scarcity, and abnormally high prices. Wages and conditions, it seems to us, ought to be fairly standardized as easily as legal rates of interest. And when conditions differ in different mines, then the labor scales should also be made to differ.

"Striking" against the needs of the public, should not be permitted, and those who engage in it should be regarded as fighting the government. Right to work, or not, at a standard price, is unquestioned, and perhaps organized quitting the job is also a proper right, but our big strikes do not represent any such simple right, and everybody knows it.

If it is true, as stated, that there are too many miners in the country, and that these strikes are staged in order to keep the whole number profitably employed, this should be clearly established as a fact. There are many other features of the situation that ought to be clearly established, not only as they refer to the miners but to mine operators, and Congress ought to handle all of the facts in the interests of the whole people.

If this government has at present no power to exercise such protection, under present laws, then it ought to get the power, as it does in other cases, by providing the necessary laws. To argue that we cannot do this, is to argue that government by the people has its limitations—and it must be because the people are willing that this should be so.

To the average bystander, or consumer of coal, this question naturally arises—why don't the miners chuck the job, and do some other kind of work? Only about 158,000 men are engaged, which is not a big number of men, considering the size of this country and the demand for labor. Why not simply let the mine owners see what they can do in the way of operating their mines? If they can't get along without skilled miners, they would be compelled to bid up for labor. There is no compulsion in this country, for any man to engage in a hazardous occupation, for there is plenty of other work to do. Why should not the miners be independent enough to say—"Run your old mines the best you can, we will take more congenial and profitable jobs."

These Reckless Drivers are Never Arrested.

A highway engineer was talking. He pointed to a map showing an acute curve in a roadway which dived blindly through a cut through a railway embankment.

"We rebuilt that road in such a manner that the thousands of cars which travel it on a big football day could be moved around what had been known as 'Dead Man's Curve' at thirty miles an hour."

He thought in terms of getting traffic moved. To him thirty miles an hour on that curve was safe when he had rebuilt it so that it was "blind" at no point.

This is a lesson worthy of study. Town and county fathers have come to have a great faith in regulation, signal systems and heavy policing expenditures.

In many instances one good whack at a horse and buggy curve still doing duty in a motor age would add years to the expectation of life of members of the community. But sizzling motorcycle policemen, whose mere appearance on a road will slow motorists from a legal thirty to a twenty-mile gait that is no more legal and no safer, are considered to be infinitely more important.

No sane person holds a brief for reckless speeding; but the most experienced drivers will tell you that fast driving is not the only menace on the highway today. There is the very "safe" driver who turns suddenly without signaling to the car behind. Then there is the meandering individual who signals a turn to the left, swings the car to the left, then turns to the right. Also the timid soul who has never yet driven faster than twenty miles an hour and who eases around curves at fifteen—on the wrong side of the road. If these could be taught that the road is there to move traffic and that nowadays the driver need think like a railroader!—Dearborn Independent.

Inevitable Waste.

Nations about to move into war go in with a certain exaltation. The inevitable losses are ignored in the thrills of the coming struggle. On the eve of any great strike both sides wander in the mental fog of war. To some extent the public also forgets and ignores the dangers and damages of industrial warfare while watching the first moves of the antagonists.

This year the steps that precede the perennial struggle in the anthracite fields are being watched with apathy and indifference. Very little is said of the appalling wastes that accompany these strikes. There will be lost wages, lost beyond any hope of their ever being earned. There will be lost time that can never be restored. Hundreds of thousands of days and hundreds of millions of dollars will be fed into the teeth of the strike.

If an enemy landed and began destroying millions of dollar in property daily, the whole Nation would rally to defeat him. If a rebellion was wiping out the labor and the property of the citizen, it would be put down summarily and swiftly. We spend millions in protecting harbors against tidal waves and river valleys against floods and freshets, but we are helpless in the face of strikes that do more damage and more lasting injury in many cases than minor invasions and revolts or great floods and tidal waves.

We are about to enter another such period as we have had many times before. We are as helpless to prevent it as we have always been. No weapons have been forged to meet it. We can build against floods and tidal waves and defend ourselves against invasion or revolt. Yet it is a melancholy fact that Society is no more able to defend itself against the losses and damages of a great strike than it is against the sweep of a tornado. The world is no more than partly civilized, after all.—Phila. Ledger.

The Lonely Man.

He is a lonely man on a fast train. Maybe he and his fireman do not exchange words on a run of 50 miles. On some engines he does not see the fireman when he is in his seat.

During the night, when passengers are sleeping and when only head and tail lights are burning, when lights in villages and towns are low, when the countryside is silent, no one is farther away from touch with his fellow human beings than the engineer in his cab. Constantly he is plunging into space as one goes into another world. Every mile of track ahead of him is an adventure.

How much better for his own peace of mind on these nights and long days would it be if the automobiles, the carriage and wagon drivers and the pedestrians would keep away from the crossing when the fast train, in charge of the anxious engineer, approaches.

We know of no class of men who have greater responsibility day in and day out than the locomotive engineer. It is up to all of us, then, insofar as we are able, to keep his burden light and we can do this by stopping, looking and listening.—From the Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial Appeal.

Pay of Rail Officials.

The executive officials and staff assistance of the Class 1 railroads of the country received less than 3 percent of the total wage bill paid by the roads in 1924, according to official reports of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

In a letter answering the question "Why not reduce the high salaries of officers of the railroads?" the Western Railway's Committee on Public Relations quotes this fact and says further:

"These men are in direct charge of railway operations in forty-eight states; they are in direct charge of a business whose gross earnings in 1924 were almost six billion dollars; they direct the activities and are responsible for 1,800,000 men under them; they are in charge of and are responsible for a plant worth more than twenty billion of dollars. They were directly responsible for the safe transportation of the more than 900,000,000 passengers carried by the railways in 1924.

"In view of the magnitude of their duties, of the amount of business which is done, and of their responsibility, do you consider that they are over-paid when they get less than 3 percent of the total pay roll?"

"The average annual salary of these men in 1924 was $5,227. Do you consider this excessive in view of what these men have to do, and the responsibility which they have to carry?"

Long Travel in Airplane

Sir Sefton Brancker, British director of civil aviation, returned to London recently after having completed in four months a 17,000-mile journey by air to India and back in the same airplane in which he started. The machine made the entire flight without a single mechanical breakdown. The purpose of the trip was to investigate the possibility of commercial aviation under tropical conditions. Sir Sefton declared upon his return that there should be no difficulty in crossing India by air, the route to be followed being up the valleys of the Indus and the Ganges, all flat country and where conditions were not at all bad for flying. Sir Sefton said the actual flying time of the plane was 210 hours from London to Rangoon and back. He has reported on sites for airship masts at Calcutta, Colombo, Delhi and Rangoon.

Roman Ruins in England

It is supposed that the Romans first landed in England at Folkstone on the Strait of Dover. Here the ruins of a camp probably used by the Romans were recently discovered. The ruins consist of two buildings each containing seven hearths. These buildings probably were used as cook houses and dining halls by the legions of Caesar. Not far from these ruins is the base of a watch tower built in a well which apparently surrounded the camp. Several excellent specimens of Roman urns and glasses were dug up in the vicinity. The excavations are being made under the supervision of experts from the British museum.

Clothing

How did civilized man come to look upon clothing as an unassailable necessity? I leave this branch of research to the professors who hold exclusively to the theory that clothes were first worn as ornament and enticement. Their thesis is that the bad habit started when vain savages first painted and tattooed themselves.

Even medieval society, however, still considered clothes more as ornaments and protection than as adjuncts to modesty and morals. The latter view became a creed first with modern times.—Karl von Wiegand, in Hearst's International Cosmopolitan.

Don't Talk—Telegraph

A traveling man went into a railway restaurant and gazed discontentedly at the profusion of pies and cakes on the counter. "Haven't you got anything solid to eat?" he asked.

"Shall I give you some beans?" asked the proprietor, with his most persuasive smile. The traveler assented and, making short work of them, asked: "How much?"

"Twenty-five cents," was the bland response.

"What!" cried the drummer; "25 cents for a spoonful of cold beans?" The proprietor continued firm in his price, the man paid it and departed. But late that afternoon a telegram was handed in to the restaurant keeper, for which he paid 25 cents.

It ran thus: "Don't you think your price a little high on beans?"—American Mutual Magazine.

FARM POULTRY

ERADICATE MITES TO SAVE POULTRY

There are few poultry producers who do not know of the ravages caused by the common chicken mite. It is very common in all parts of the country and while it is more prevalent in mid-summer it is well to eradicate it from the chicken houses before the young chickens arrive in the spring.

The removal of all interior fixtures and a thorough disinfection with a strong dip applied with a force pump is recommended by the Kansas experiment station. They state:

All rubbish should be removed and burned. Care must be taken to get the spray into all crevices. Kerosemulsion, crude petroleum, and wood preservatives may be used for spraying, followed by whitewash. Whitewash aids mechanically by helping to fill up many crevices. Spraying should be repeated after a week in order to get any mites that may escape. Roosts should be painted frequently with wood preservative or crude petroleum. A treatment of the roosts, nests, boxes, etc., each spring with undiluted crude carbolic acid or sheep dip is usually sufficient to reduce the action of the mites to a minimum. The fact should be kept in mind that mites are blood-sucking parasites and do not remain on the birds as do lice. Mites are more harmful to poultry than lice and in treatment it is necessary to treat the house and not the bird, as is the case of lice.

The construction of roosts and nesting places so as to reduce hiding places to a minimum is an excellent control measure.

If new birds are brought to the farm, or birds to new quarters, they should be isolated for a few days in a pen separate from the permanent quarters so that all of the mites will leave them, thus preventing the infestation of new quarters. If birds are moved in the daytime mites will not be carried on them.

Poultrymen Use Mites in Greater Quantities

New Jersey poultrymen are finding that for greatest success poultry should be made to supply plants with an abundance of greens. They find that vegetation usually becomes tough and coarse in the summer and free range conditions do not provide the proper type of green food for poultry.

To offset this the principal crops sown in yards or on range are oats, rape and alfalfa. An alfalfa sod makes an ideal range because of the new growth constantly coming out. Rape also makes a new growth as the old is eaten off. It produces dark yellow yolks, however, and must be avoided if light yolks are desired. Oats make a very good crop for a few weeks. They should be planted in small quantities, because if not consumed while young they soon become too large and coarse.

In addition to range crops, cabbage, kale and swiss chard are often grown in a side field and fed to the birds. Kale has proved particularly well suited for summer feeding as it continually sends out new shoots after being cut. Cabbage makes a fine feed for late summer and fall.

Regardless of the kind of succulent feed used, successful poultrymen aim to provide six to eight pounds daily per 100 birds. When fed the first thing in the morning or the last thing at night, the green feed does not interfere with consumption of other feeds, and egg production is improved by its use.

Poultry Facts

A Leghorn cockerel may become a rooster, but never a roaster.

Painting the roosts and nests with a good preservative or creosote is insurance against mites.

It is a good rule never to let a sick chicken die on the premises. It should be killed before it reaches that stage.

If you are expecting to get the best results from your poultry flock, feed a balanced ration and do not over-feed.

The ancient buncombe about hens getting too fat to lay is still widely credited when, as a matter of fact, no hen except a fat hen can lay.

A full feed early in the day tends to make the hens listless, while a small feed encourages them to take the exercise which they need in order to keep in the best of health.

A hoe with 15 or 18-inch blade is very satisfactory for scraping the dropping boards, and if used regularly once a week or oftener, will assist materially in maintaining the health of the flock.

A good scratch grain ration consists of equal parts of cracked corn and whole wheat. Feed a little of the grain in the morning to make the flock exercise and give all they will clean up at night in fifteen or twenty minutes.

Results of Soft Pork Experiments

Government and State Representatives Agree on Certain Findings.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

At a meeting held in Atlanta, Ga., recently, representatives of the United States Department of Agriculture and of a number of state experiment stations agreed to certain conclusions on the soft pork problem. Their announcements made below are based upon the evidence accumulated in recent years, including additional data made available during the past 12 months. The states represented at the conference were Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, Pennsylvania and Indiana. In addition there were men from the United States Department of Agriculture, including those from the department's Coastal Plain experiment station in Mississippi and its Iberia live stock experiment farm in Louisiana.

Effects of Rice Bran.

The first results regarding the effects of rice bran on the softness of carcasses were incorporated for this year for the first time.

The conclusions agreed upon are as follows:

1. Peanuts grazed or self-fed in dry lot with or without minerals to pigs starting at weights ranging from 85 to 115 pounds and making gains of approximately 40 pounds or more on that feed through a period of approximately eight weeks will not produce firm carcasses at the usual market weight of 200 to 225 pounds attained by subsequent feeding of corn with tankage after the peanuts.

Results have shown, in fact, that gain on corn with tankage up to approximately 120 pounds, this maximum being produced during a feeding period of approximately 16 weeks' duration, following gains of 40 pounds or more on peanuts, usually will not produce hard or medium hard hogs. As the gain on peanuts increases the subsequent gain on corn with tankage necessary to produce a certain degree of firmness likewise increases.

2. Soy beans grazed alone or with minerals self-fed to pigs starting at weights ranging from 85 to 100 pounds and making at least a moderate rate of gain through a period of from six to eight weeks will not produce firm carcasses in the usual case even though a subsequent gain in weight has been made by the pigs on corn with tankage double that previously made on soy beans.

3. Soy beans grazed with a supplementary ration of 2 1/2 per cent of shelled corn with or without minerals self-fed to pigs starting at weights ranging from 85 to 115 pounds and making gains of approximately 20 to 60 pounds through a period of from six to eight weeks will not produce firm carcasses in the usual case even though a subsequent gain in weight has been made by the pigs on corn with tankage equal to that previously made on the soy-bean 2 1/2 per cent corn ration.

The Heavier Pigs.

4. Soy beans grazed with a supplementary ration of 2 1/2 per cent of shelled corn with or without minerals self-fed to pigs starting at weights of 115 pounds and over and making gains of approximately 40 to 90 pounds through a period of from six to eight weeks will produce firm carcasses in the usual case provided a subsequent gain in weight is made on corn with tankage one and one-half times that previously made on the soy-bean 2 1/2 per cent corn ration.

5. Rice bran and tankage self-fed free choice on rye pasture or in dry lot and with or without a supplement of five pounds or less of skim milk per animal daily to pigs starting at weights under 100 pounds and making gains up to 100 pounds through a feeding period of from eight to sixteen weeks produce soft carcasses.

6. Rice polish and tankage self-fed free choice on oat or rye pasture or in dry lot to pigs starting at weights under 100 pounds and making gains of 85 pounds or more through a period of from five to eight weeks will not produce firm carcasses in the usual case even though a subsequent gain in weight has been made by the pigs on corn with tankage equal to that previously made on the rice polish ration.

Getting More Money for Eggs in Summer Season

Without a little effort the quality of summer eggs is likely to be so low that prices will decline rapidly. The poor quality of the eggs laid in hot weather is largely to blame for the low summer price of eggs. Several precautions are necessary to keep up the quality of the summer egg. The following are important:

1. Segregate all males, even the spring cockerels. An infertile egg keeps better.

2. Gather eggs twice daily, if possible, during hot days, and store in a cool, well-ventilated place, free from strong odors.

3. During hot weather, market eggs twice a week.

4. Keep broody hens off the nests.

5. Sell no eggs from stolen nests. Use them, as well as small, dirty and cracked eggs, at home.

6. Supply at least one nest with clean straw for every six hens.

Where these precautions are adhered to, a reliable dealer should pay a premium for the better quality of eggs produced.—Extension Service of Purdue University.

Old "Pilgrim's Progress"

An Old Testament Pilgrim's Progress has been found in four of the psalms by Dr. Herbert H. Gowen, professor of oriental language and literature at the University of Washington. Doctor Gowen's translation differs from the standard one. He says he has preserved as nearly as possible the original meter of the Old Testament songs and has diligently connected the four chants into a continuous story of the pilgrims' return to the Promised land.

"The conception behind the four psalms, which begin with the 120th, was the return of the Jewish exiles from Babylonian captivity," Doctor Gowen said. "The joy of the returning captives as they noticed the hills of their native land and the towers of Jerusalem is reflected in the songs."

Twenty layers of bottles line each wall, making a total of some three hundred dozen bottles that attest the mighty thirst of the unknown "desert rat" who constructed the unique habitation.

FOND MEMORIES OF THE OLD HOME TOWN

And the Boys Who Have Made Good in the World.

Julien Monnett has been visiting in the old home town this week, according to the old home paper. Don't remember Julien Monnett? Well that indicates that you are a tenderfoot in the old home town and not entitled to membership in the old settlers' society.

Ask any of the oldtimers about the Monnett family, and they will recall them, and gave you the names and ages of all the children—Leon, Louise, Mary, Ulysses, Julien, Cora and perhaps one or two others. For the pioneers of the old home town had great respect for large families. One reason, perhaps, that the old home town has been losing steadily in population during the last twenty years or more, is that the modern family is so much smaller than the first families were.

Lena Strickling, who used to be the leader of the neighborhood kids in that part of town where the old Strickling home stood, after a recent visit to the old home town, asked one of her former schoolmates: "Do you remember the big crowd of children that played with us on the commons up there by our house? Well, there isn't a child now in that end of town."

The old home town has been accusing, among other things, the free mail delivery and the motorcar for its gradual decline in population. But the fact that there are no more large families in the town, such as there were in the old days, may have had something to do with it.

All the oldtimers will readily recall that Ulysses Monnett went away to Chicago and became a big business man. For short, we called him "Uly," and those of us who were kids with him in that day, when we felt sure we could outrun him, called him "Useless" Monnett. Julien, whose mind turned to the law, went away to the state university, and now he is the head of the law school of one of the big southwestern universities.

When Julien Monnett comes home we always expect to hear some news of the old boys who have drifted away and made a place for themselves in the world. And, sure enough, he brings back word this year of one of the choicest of the kids who formed the kingdom of boyville in the old home town of long ago.

Remember "Woody" Bleakmore? "Woody" Hicken Henry Scott one night because "Hen" mimicked him when he stuttered. Ah, we will not forget that fight for many a day, because "Hen" Scott was a bigger boy than "Woody" Bleakmore. Well, "Woody" Bleakmore is one of the real, big lawyers of his present home state. He has been on the Supreme bench and has reached the top as a lawyer.

"Are you the boy that we pulled out of the millrace one day, back in the old home town?" Julien Monnett asked this big lawyer one day when he was a member of the Supreme court. And right there court was adjourned while Judge Bleakmore retired into his chambers to take up the more important matter of living over again the days in the old home town, with Judge Julien Monnett, head of a big law school.

Oh, boy! It is great to have these old boys come back occasionally and give us an opportunity to call the roll.—Kansas City Star.

Menus in Various Lands

Apples, it is said, are rapidly outdoing tomatoes in popularity as an accompaniment of fried bacon for breakfast in some London hotels. But this dish is by no means a new one, having long been a favorite in certain parts of the west country, remarks London Tid-Bits.

Cheese and cold apple tart are familiar items on the tables of Yorkshire country folks, where they are usually served together. In Sussex cheese and jam are often eaten together, though to the unaccustomed palate the mixture is not a specially enjoyable one.

Most people know how good red currant jelly is with mutton, but few have tried prunes with roast veal. This is a common dish in Sweden, where food combinations are carefully studied. Milk with broth, again, seems unappetizing to us, but you will often find it relished in Belgium.

Left-Handers Self Reliant

Dr. W. S. Inman, a European physician, has come forward with the opinion that left-handed people are particularly susceptible to stammering and squinting, but that they are to a great degree more self-reliant than right-handed persons. Correcting a left-handed person and training him to be right-handed, he says, may disturb his temperament.

Lewis' "Main Street"

Sauk Center, Minn., made famous as the scene of Sinclair Lewis' "Main Street," was founded by a woman, Mrs. Rachel Moore, one of Minnesota's pioneer women, who opened the first store in that town. "Gopher Prairie," as Lewis called it in his book, was the scene of the famous Sioux Indian uprising in 1862.

Moral Independence

What other folks may say too frequently has more influence than what conscience dictates to be our duty. It would be better if more of us were true to ourselves regardless of how we may appear to our friends. Moral independence is a valuable asset—Grit.

BRING BIG MONEY, BUT ARE COSTLY

Dead Letters Result of Careless Mailing.

Washington.—While it is generally accepted that this is not the age of miracles, nevertheless there are thousands of patrons of the United States mails who take it for granted that Uncle Sam has many wonder workers on his pay roll.

The very fact that there are wizards in the employ of the Post Office department—men and women who are uncanny, to say the least, in deciphering illegible handwriting—has caused no end of trouble and expense to the government as well as to the taxpayer, along with inconvenience in the receipt and delivery of mail matter.

Yet, with all this expert handling and careful study of handwriting on the part of the postal clerks, the annual revenue from dead mail matter received by the government amounts to approximately $300,000.

Wealth in Dead Letters.

Last year the dead letter office received $120,000 from the sale of orphaned packages which could neither be forwarded to the addressee nor returned to the senders because of inadequate addresses. The same office turned into the United States treasury $55,523.96 in cash removed from misdirected letters or found loose in the mails.

Postage stamps were taken from letters or found loose in the mails having a value of $12,165.67, almost double the entire revenue of the postal service in 1789.

Three-cent fees collected for the return to senders of letters which could not be delivered totaled $92,007.54.

But this is not half the story. Checks, drafts and money orders, whose owners could not be located, and amounting to $3,546,542.43, finally found a resting place in the dead letter office.

For want of correct or complete addresses 21,000,000 letters were deposited in the dead letter office, not to speak of 800,000 parcels which had been improperly addressed or wrapped.

Strange to say, this depositing of letters and packages in the mails with incomplete, inadequate or incorrect addresses and wrappings comes, in a large majority of cases, from those patrons who are the most liberal contributors to this branch of the United States government.

Big Business Is Big Loser.
It has been estimated by postal officials that 300,000,000 pieces of mail are given "directory service" every year, which means that employees must take time from the regular handling and dispatching of mail in the endeavor to provide correct addresses for this huge volume of misdirected matter. In New York city alone the cost of this service approximates $500 every day in the year, and the total amount through the country is stupendous.

While the revenue from the dead letter office is sufficient to keep that branch of the postal service functioning, it is not nearly enough to pay the annual toll for support of the "nixie."

A "nixie" is a letter or parcel so improperly addressed that it can neither be delivered to the addressee nor returned to the sender without special treatment. This special treatment costs the Post Office department, or the taxpayer in the final analysis, approximately $1,740,000 every year.

Viking Sailors to Pit Skill Against Yanks

Gothenburg, Sweden.—Viking sailors from each of the four Scandinavian countries will match their seamanship against some of the best American yachtsmen off the coast of Long Island next September, according to an announcement made here by Director Ivar Lignell, president of the Scandinavian Sailing association. Its challenge for a test in American waters has been accepted by the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht club of Oyster Bay.

The plan is for each of the four northern countries to send over its fastest boat of the six meter class, and against this invading flotilla the Long Island club will send out its four best racers of the corresponding dimension. The Swedish boat will in all probability be one of the new sixes now under construction here in Gothenburg, but before receiving the honor of carrying the Swedish flag in American waters, it must prove its speed against all comers.

Read Bible Through in 69 Hours, 15 Minutes

Yucaipa, Calif.—The Bible can be read from cover to cover in 69 hours and 15 minutes by any ordinary church congregation with a taste for the task. This was demonstrated by the 130 members of the First Methodist church of Yucaipa when they completed at 9:15 p. m. Tuesday a Bible "marathon" begun at midnight Saturday.

Though attendance lagged at times during the long relay reading, in which one volunteer after another took up the sacred text, there was a throng of several hundred persons in the church as the marathon swung into its last lap—the Book of Revelations. All joined the readers in pronouncing the final verses of the book, then concluded the long service by singing the Doxology and adopting unanimously a resolution to make the Bible marathon an annual event.

HISTORIC SPOT TO BE MEMORIAL

Plan to Preserve Earliest Western Railroad Depot.

The spot where ground was broken in 1853 for the first railroad west of the Mississippi soon will be dedicated as a memorial to one of its most enthusiastic promoters, Anton Le Claire, whose home was the railroad's first depot in Iowa.

Le Claire was a familiar and important figure on the frontier. Indians and white men alike depended upon him as a go-between. He himself was of Indian descent and married to an Indian princess; but the federal government had educated him and the United States used him as an interpreter in making treaties with the Indian tribes of Illinois and Iowa.

When General Scott was negotiating with the Sac and Fox tribes Chief Keokuk gave the intermediary, Le Claire, the site on which Davenport, Iowa, now stands, on condition that Le Claire build his house near the spot where General Scott's tent stood. Here was signed the treaty between the United States and these Indian tribes in 1832.

Le Claire built his house the following year, the first residence in Davenport. Twenty years later the Missouri and Mississippi railway broke ground beside it and Le Claire turned his house over to the railroad to be used as a depot, moving to a more sumptuous dwelling on a hill, for meantime he had acquired wealth.

In the little house, with front and back porches and two dormer windows, Le Claire heard the grievances of his Indian neighbors. Here inquiries of the government were translated and the responses of the red men were drawn up into formal proposals that later went to congress and became historic treaties, underlying the rights of title and possession of the western country. Here Le Claire met Indians bent on war and white men bent on litigation and brought harmony and co-operation into their dealings. Here, too, he took counsel with those determined upon the development of the West and with them planned the pushing across the Mississippi of the "iron horse."

The little house, shorn of most of its trimmings, huddled on its historic spot for many years after it was abandoned as a railway depot. Now it is coming into greater honor. It was presented a short while ago by the owner of the land on which it stood, to the Rock Island railway, with which its early history was associated. The railroad put back its porches and its dormer windows and restored it completely. Under the supervision of the curator of the historical, memorial and art department of Iowa it was moved a few feet and rebuilt as nearly as possible in its original condition.

It will be turned over for safe keeping to the Davenport chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. They will preserve it as a museum and surround it with such flowers and shrubbery as might have been found there in the early days of Iowa. —New York Times.

Long Jaunt of Whaler

After completing a remarkable voyage, the world's largest whaling "cookery," the Sir James Clark Ross, has returned to Norway. On board was the body of the captain, who died after the ship had reached the Ross sea. The result of the expedition was fairly good, and doubtless would have been better had not extremely low temperatures and rough seas created unusual difficulties. On this voyage the Sir James Clark Ross accomplished a real trip around the world. On the way out the ship passed south of Africa and proceeded by way of New Zealand to Ross sea. The return journey was around Cape Horn. The total distance traveled was 32,000 nautical miles, or the equivalent of one and a third times around the earth at the equator.

Siamese Advancing

Siamese students are coming in increasing numbers to the United States. The brother of the present king is a graduate of Harvard. The assistant director general of the Royal Siamese railway and a son of the minister of the interior were educated in this country. Associations have been formed in Siam and in America to promote interest in educational institutions in the United States. As foreign-trained Siamese become available they are gradually supplanting Europeans employed in the various branches of the Siamese government. —School Life.

Cyanide Process Growing

Of the three well-known processes of separating gold and silver from their ores, the cyaniding process is now used for the production of about one-third of the world's annual production of precious metals. The other two methods are smelting and amalgamation. In the cyaniding process the ores are crushed finely and mixed with water containing cyanide in solution. The gold and silver are dissolved, the solution filtered and the gold or silver then precipitated by the addition of zinc dust or shavings which replaces gold or silver in solution.

Conscience Hurt

The postmaster of Arcadia, Kan., has received a letter from a man in California saying that he stole a lunch basket there in 1887. The man said he recently joined the Salvation Army and wants to make restitution.

SAYS COLDS COST BILLION A YEAR

Doctor Declares America Has 100,000,000 of Them.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Dr. Beaman Douglass of New York, in an address before the annual convention of the Laryngological, Rhinological and Otolaryngological society, in the Ambassador hotel here, said there were 100,000,000 colds a year in the United States, causing a loss in time from work of $1,000,000,000, at an average of three days each at $5 a day.

"If we men," he declared, "were to appear on the street in midwinter wearing dancing slippers, silk hose, trousers rolled to our knees and our shirts turned down to the apex of our breastbone, we should most certainly die of pneumonia, but the ladies of today dress that way and yet suffer less from colds than men. This is because the women are out more and become hardened."

Doctor Douglass stated that dry air in homes during the winter is largely responsible for the number of colds.

"When a person goes from the open air, with its natural moistness, into his home," he said, "the dry air there makes the membranes of the nose crack and cold bacteria find lodgment, causing a head cold."

WISE MAN FROM WEST

Dr. William W. Peet of Minneapolis, Minn., chairman of the Near East Relief in Constantinople, has sailed for the United States after forty years of philanthropic service in the Near East. He went to Constantinople in 1885 as head of the American Board of Foreign Missions, and has been confidential adviser to every American diplomat in the Near East since the days of Gen. Lew Wallace. Among the natives he was known as the "Wise Man From the West."

Student Economy Causes Oxford Tailors to Close

Oxford, England.—Notwithstanding the rage among Oxford students for "elephant leg" trousers, which are considerably more loose and roomy than the bloomer effect worn by the United States navy sailors, the boys here are buying fewer clothes than formerly. Three long-established tailoring firms, one of which had been in business nearly a century, have gone out of business lately because, it was said, they could not make a living.

The boys haven't got the money they had in other days to spend for clothes, and the tailors. The students wear knickerbockers a great deal, one or two suits for the season, and cannot afford to have a different suit for every occasion, as a great many did before the war.

Tames Jail Birds

Los Angeles, Calif.—C. E. Jennings is no fake hypnotist, according to guards at the Los Angeles county jail. Arrested on a check charge, Jennings was placed in a cell. There were several "toughs" in jail and jailers soon noticed these had developed sweet dispositions. Some even hopped and jumped and went to sleep for Jennings, who revealed that several years ago he was the principal in a hypnotism sketch on a vaudeville circuit.

Norfolk Wall Safe Yields Valued Relics

Norfolk, Va.—Two commissions engraved on sheep-skin parchments, the first signed by President John Adams, and the second by President Thomas Jefferson, making Jonathan Cowdery a surgeon's mate and a full surgeon in the United States navy, have been uncovered by Dr. John C. Sleet of this city, who will make an attempt to have the documents restored to their lawful owners. The first commission bears the date of 1800 and the second 1808.

The documents include a Masonic diploma from Washington lodge No. 26, making Mr. Cowdery a Master Mason, and another from the Hudson (N. Y.) lodge, making him a Mark Master.

The papers were found in a steel case hidden in an old brick wall of a house under repairs.

REAL MEANING TO VISIONS OF SLEEP

Fantasies by No Means to Be Disregarded.

While men will not admit it, women usually are more intuitive.

Their more natural expression of emotion, which so early meets with repression from the men, is an acceptable explanation.

With the male of the household, providing he is strongly psychic, anything that passes the censor of his subconscious mind is a "hunch." But with the female such visions are presentiments, which carry tokens of good or clouds of depression, says a writer in the Chicago Evening Post.

But instead of allowing dreams to depress, they should serve as a warning to prepare us for whatever happens. In such a state of mind we often may be able to sidestep that which would bring sorrow.

Sometimes it is the striking of a bell, the crying of a dog, the creaking, creaking noise, a figure in black. There are many accounts of the appearance of one about to die, to the loved one, even though distance be great. Great rulers of Europe have awakened from sleep and summoned their servants to protect them from objects in their rooms. Soon they would be replaced on the throne and driven from their homes.

If you will search your mind you will recall the dream or warning that came to you of something that was about to happen. Did it happen? A great many will find that it did.

Many have experienced thinking of a friend very intently and then receiving news from him.

When you dream or have a presentiment, do not be alarmed. Think it over. If it carries a message of good fortune, all well and good; if it carries a depressing message, be ready to meet the situation—maybe you can prevent it.

For one to cut a finger or suffer other laceration of the hands or face warns the dreamer to set up a barrier against the treachery of one whom she believes to be a friend.

However, should it appear that no blood comes from the wound, it is indicated that the treachery will be quite concealed and may work great harm.

To be lonely and unhappy in a dream means that you will be happy and quite contented in wakened hours.

Dream records show that visions of unhappiness nearly always are followed by much happiness for the dreamer.

A lover is quite often visioned by a dreamer and his or her appearance brings both good and bad omens.

Ardent love will come if the lover is happy, while unhappiness is quite sure if the lover seems angry or indifferent.

Dreams of collisions mean but one thing; you are about to face difficult problems which will end seriously for you unless you exert yourself.

Such dreams of caution must not be taken lightly. When such a vision comes to you, prepare yourself to meet the emergency and you will be protected.

Deception can readily be noticed in some of these dreams which will give you ample warning to beware of false friends. Unless your companions are jovial and show good cheer, be on your guard. All other visions are bad omens.

Often the sweet strains of music can be plainly heard in dreams. It heralds for the dreamer peace of mind in wakened hours and success in love and business. It is a good omen to seem to be singing alone, while good times are ahead if you are singing with a group.

One of the predominating dreams that enter the nightly visions of young women is the bridal costume.

Nearly every young woman will admit that she has at some time seen herself attired in bridal attire. Such a dream is often important.

If one seems happy while in such attire, good fortune, happiness, success in love and business are destined for them. While, on the contrary, attire forebodes of illness, unhappy marriage and loss of friends and money.

Longings and Cravings

Lady Diana Manners visited one day in Greenwich village a studio where most of the young men wore sandals and Russian blouses and trousers that bagged deplorably at the knees.

Lady Diana, surveying that rapt company while a super-realist read a free verse poem, whispered to Theodore Dreiser.

"I see that here, as in England, literary longings mean long teeth, long hair and long faces—everything but long pocketbooks, in fact."

Mr. Dreiser nodded gravely. "To put it in another way," said he, "the universal literary craving is hunger, just hunger, ma'am."

Intelligent Cow

A pet cow which pumps water from a well in a pasture has made herself one of the leading attractions of Tekamah, Neb. The animal belongs to James Matthews. She will push the pump up, then down, quickly bringing her head beneath the water to get it fresh from the pump, continuing this for ten or fifteen minutes. One kind-hearted citizen endeavored to assist the cow by pumping water into a tub, but the cow looked upon his effort with disdain and, as soon as the citizen had gone a short distance, proceeded to pump herself a cool, fresh drink from the well.—Indianapolis News.

Says Women Owe Debt to Immortal Writer

Shakespeare was a great student and admirer of women, said George Gordon Merton, professor of English literature at Oxford university.

In the history plays women had a hard time, and had to fight principally with their tongues. They sometimes threatened to scratch, but as a rule it would have been unnecessary to use their "ten commandments."

In the comedies young men were splendid fellows, but were better at talking than doing. When any real business had to be done or when any difficult arrangements had to be made it was the young women who acted. Shakespeare was so consistent about this that he must have meant it, and Mr. Gordon believed that in private life it was pretty near the truth.

Shakespeare appeared to have believed that it was one of the paradoxes and one of the puzzles of the feminine character that love as a rule made women not less but more practical.

Considering what Shakespeare had done for women, Professor Gordon thought it was singular that women had done so little for Shakespeare in the way of interpreting him and studying his character.

Shakespeare had done women more honor than any other dramatist, except possibly Moliere, and yet hardly any women had applied to his works those powers of analysis peculiar to their sex, which they exercised daily in all the drawing rooms of Europe on the characters of their friends.

Shakespeare paid women the high compliment of supposing that they might have knowledge, shrewdness, wit, and courage, without ceasing to be wholly feminine.—London Telegraph.

Alexandra

Alexandra, queen of Judea, the widow and successor of Alexander Jannaeus, was a wise and virtuous princess, who, contrary to example of her husband, studied to please her subjects and preserved peace and prosperity during her reign of seven years.

She died in the seventy-third year of her age, B. C. 70. She was the mother of Hyrcanus and Aristobulus and the latter years of her reign were disturbed by the attempt of her younger son, Aristobulus, to obtain the sovereignty, as he was exasperated by the favor his mother showed to the sect of the Pharisees and the authority she allowed them.—Chicago Journal.

Two separate decks and accommodations for 100 passengers are features promised in a giant airship of stainless-steel framework that is planned for traffic between England and India. Its motors are to use a heavy gas oil, eliminating the fire hazard to such an extent that passengers will be permitted to smoke during the voyage. A smoking room is included in the plans. The ship will be 720 feet long, 140 feet in diameter and will contain two-bed sleeping cabins.

May Return to Executions

There have been no executions in Berlin since 1921, and it is now being asserted that the number of brutal murders has increased in the German capital because of the disposition of the courts to impose sentences of life imprisonment instead of death. Berlin has no executioner and the discussions in the papers as to the advisability of restoring capital punishment have brought more than 100 applications from men who want to serve as hangman.

Lesson for September 6

PAUL WRITES TO THE PHILIPPIANS.

LESSON TEXT—Phil. 3:7-16; 4:8.
GOLDEN TEXT—"I can do all things through Christ, which strengtheneth me."—Phil. 4:13.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul and His Friends.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Pressing Toward the Goal.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Choosing the Best Things.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian's Goal.

The contents of the epistle may be summarized as follows:

1. Salutation (1:1-2).
2. Thanksgiving and prayer in which he shows his loving interest in them (1:3-11).
3. Triumph of the gospel in spite of opposition (1:12-26).
4. Duties enjoined (1:27-2:18).
5. Paul's promise to send Timothy and Epaphroditus (2:19-30).
6. Exhortations and warnings (3:1-4:1).
7. Renewed appeal for unity (4:2-9).
8. Personal matters (4:10-23).

The essential message of Philippians is a revelation of the mind which should dominate the Christian.

1. All Things Loss for Christ (3:7-9).
The occasion for this remarkable declaration was the claim of the Judaizing teachers for legal righteousness. In chapter 3:4-6 he enumerates the grounds upon which he had a right to base his claims for legal righteousness.

1. "Circumcised the eighth day," in keeping with the demands of the law.
2. "Of the stock of Israel," related by blood and birth.
3. "Tribe of Benjamin," from which the first king was chosen, and which always remained loyal to the nation.
4. "An Hebrew of the Hebrews," in contrast with some of mixed parentage.

5. "Touching the law, a Pharisee," the sect most zealous for the ritual of Judaism.

6. "Concerning zeal, persecuting the church." A passionate effort to crush the church.

7. "Touching the righteousness which is in the law, blameless," as to the condition of life demanded by the law.

All of these, valuable in themselves, when placed alongside of the excellency of the knowledge of Christ were abandoned for a better thing. The vision of Christ gave him the true perspective of values. In this light he saw the utter worthlessness of these things. After some thirty years of such trials and sufferings as perhaps no other human being ever knew, he has no regrets, and still counts them as refuse in comparison with what he had gained in Christ.

11. Paul's Present Desire (vv. 10-11).

1. "That I May Know Him."
Personal acquaintance with the Lord was his supreme desire. To know the saving grace of Christ is good, but to know Christ is infinitely better.

2. "The Power of His Resurrection."
This is an advance thought over personal acquaintance. It is the expression of the life of Christ through the apostle. It is the power you gain to overcome, the mastery over sin and self.

3. "Fellowship of His Sufferings."
Not only identified with Christ in His sufferings by imputation, but that he might fill up that which is behind of the afflictions of Christ (Col. 1:24).

4. "Attain Unto the Resurrection of the Dead" (v. 11).
This will be accomplished when the Lord comes (1 Thess. 4:16-17).

III. Pressing Toward the Goal (vv. 12-16).

Paul clearly grasped the meaning of his perfection in Christ, yet he was keenly conscious of his personal limitations. Herein is expressed the true law of progress in the spiritual life.

1. Conscious of Limitations (v. 12).
The first step towards progress is to be profoundly dissatisfied with personal attainments. No intellectual advancement is ever made by those who think they know enough, who are satisfied with what they have.

2. Conscious of a Transcendent Goal (v. 13).

The Christian life is an upward calling.

3. A Resolute Determination to Reach the Goal (v. 14).

He declares, "This one thing I do."

IV. The Right Occupation of the Mind (ch. 4:1-8).

The ideal controls the man. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." When once the mind is guarded and controlled by the peace of God, it will dwell upon spiritual things.

Faith

"Every man may lose the sunshine for a time because of the clouds but happy is he if he still retains his faith."

Introducing a NEW AUTOMOBILE FUEL

NO-NOX is a new automotive fuel that increases fuel efficiency, increases power, lessens waste, eliminates fuel knocks and the poor operating conditions that such knocks indicate, and prevents all harmful effects of carbonization.

With NO-NOX in the tank of your car you may step on the accelerator without a motor knock thus accelerating quicker, handle your car in traffic better and go over the hills with greater power and ease.

For an extended period of time, extensive experiments and research work have been carried on in the Gulf Refining Company Laboratories, and test cars driven thousands of miles to develop this more efficient fuel for internal combustion engines—we know it is right—but

The only way to realize the benefits of this new fuel is to make an actual trial of it in your car. Drive to a Gulf Service Station or Gulf Dealer today, and ask the attendant for NO-NOX.

NO-NOX is guaranteed to be no more harmful to man or motor than ordinary gasoline and is priced only three cents per gallon higher than That Good Gulf gasoline.

Buddha's Dignity Restored

The Daibutsu, the colossal bronze Buddha of Kamakura, is once more seated in his ancient position on the lotus flower dais from which he was jolted a few feet in the great earthquake in Japan. For nearly a year work of restoration has been in progress. The huge casting, weighing 145 tons, was raised from its pedestal and kept suspended while the base was rectified. Thereupon the image was lowered carefully into position.

Passing the Buck

The new cook gave some pork chops to a relative who called while the lady of the house was out paying a few calls.

"The missus will miss them," warned the parlor maid.
"Oh, I'll blame that on the cat."
"We have no cat."
"Then be a good girl," urged the new cook earnestly, "and let the canary out of its cage."

Match Industry Large

An export industry of importance in Latvia is the manufacture of matches. Six factories are in operation at the present time, with a daily output of 1,000,000 boxes of matches, 75 per cent of which is exported to England. Match splints are also produced, approximately 125,000,000 a day. Practically the entire output is exported, chiefly to England, the Netherlands, Belgium and Switzerland.

Collie Held the Sheep

Wonderful sagacity was displayed by a sheep dog of Cliviger, near Burnley, Scotland. A farmer driving a flock of 50 sheep along a lonely road had a heart attack and collapsed by the roadside. When he regained consciousness his dog was whining and keeping the sheep in a compact bunch near the farmer's prostrate body. The dog's feet were swollen and sore with constant running in circles to prevent the sheep from breaking away.

Swine Production of Big Importance

Necessary Feeds Should Be Considered First.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In utilizing farm wastes and in converting the concentrates raised on the farm into a marketable product, the hog is by far the most valuable farm animal, points out the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, in its new Farmers' Bulletin 1437, Swine Production. All regions of the United States may be considered suitable for raising hogs. The feeds used to grow and fatten hogs can be produced to a greater or less extent in practically every part of the country. Without the hog, profits in the big cattle-fattening industry of the Central West would be jeopardized.

The feeds necessary to grow and fatten hogs should be given first consideration when the question of location of a farm for hog raising is being contemplated. Feeds can be produced more abundantly in some localities than in others. Other factors, such as markets, climate and quality of soil also should be studied. It is best to start with but a few sows. As the herd increases in number a careful study of the farm should be made to determine what crops it will produce most successfully and how and to what extent hogs fit into the general plan for that particular farm.

It is always advisable to use pure bred animals in founding a herd. Much time and money are lost by starting with low-grade sows and building up the quality of the herd by the use of pure bred boars.

Copies of the bulletin may be had free, as long as the supply lasts, from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Apple Scab Is Cause of

Large Losses of Fruit

That apple scab is one of the most serious apple diseases in Pennsylvania is a fact recognized by growers throughout the state, says a new bulletin, "Comparison of materials used in spraying and dusting for apple scab control in Pennsylvania," just issued by the agricultural experiment station of the Pennsylvania state college.

Figures of the plant disease survey of the United States Department of Agriculture show a reduction in yield due to scab, of 15 per cent in Pennsylvania as an average for the four years, 1919-1922, the bulletin further states. This means an average reduction of over two million bushels of apples per year in this state for the same four years. Apple scab is caused by a parasitic fungus which lives during the winter on the dead leaves under the trees.

While it has long been known that certain sprays, if applied at the proper time and in the proper manner, would serve to protect the leaves and fruit against infection by this fungus, the most efficient and practical materials and the best time to use them present a problem upon which the station has been working for six years.

During this time experiments have been conducted in 26 commercial orchards in Adams county, as well as in the experiment station orchards in Centre county, and one orchard each in Franklin and Chester counties. Eighteen different materials were applied on nine varieties involving over two hundred separate plots and 111 different combinations as to material and time of application.

The results of the various sprays and dusts are given in the bulletin so that growers interested in the control of apple scab may easily get the latest information on this vital subject.

FARM NOTES

Forest fire protection costs little and saves much.

Weeds are weeds and should be treated as such.

Sweet corn needs the germination test fully as much as field corn, this spring.

Plant sound seed in a well prepared seed bed to be assured of a good crop stand.

Pumping water by hand is all right—when a man needs exercise and has plenty of time.

The potato is a staple crop which can profitably be grown in either a large or small orchard.

Pity the little chicks and keep their hover warm. They'll repay you in eggs when they grow up.

The garden is no longer a plaything, but a very valuable aid in producing the food supply of a farm.

Proper spraying of the early Irish potato crop has increased the yield 74 bushels per acre, according to tests made by Dr. R. W. Leiby of the North Carolina experiment station.

Rape should be drilled on plowed ground at the rate of six to eight pounds per acre. It grows well during the cool periods of the spring and is in shape for feeding in June. It can also be seeded between the corn rows at the last cultivation and makes an excellent crop for fall forage.

Wrigley, the chewing gum man, has explained how he built up a business of millions of packages a day. He has done it by sticking to his one line and advertising it. He spends over a million dollars a year in buying newspaper space to tell the world about 5 cent chewing gum. He has educated people to chew gum and to chew Wrigley's. He did not stop shouting as soon as he attracted attention.

He says you must keep it up or the buyers will forget you. Whether yours is a 5 cent or a $50,000 business, keep telling about it.
