

COUNTY TAX RATES IN STATE

Average Rate $1.56 Throughout the Counties in State.

We are giving below, the tax rate approved in all of the counties, except Worcester. Some of these rates are hardly fair for comparison, as in some of the counties the rate varies according to the districts in the counties. In Montgomery, for instance, while the rate applying to the entire county is only $1.15, there are districts that have additional rates, varying from 2c to 50c higher, and in the suburban sections of the county, the rate is more than 50c additional.

Calvert, the smallest county in the state, heads the list for high rate; while some of the larger counties have kept the rate down because demands for schools were not so imperative.

Calvert	$2.11
Harford	1.85
Somerset	1.82
Garrett	1.77
Dorchester	1.72
St. Mary's	1.66
Cecil	1.65
Carroll	1.65
Baltimore	1.64
Howard	1.60
Prince George's	1.59
Wicomico	1.57
Charles	1.56
Caroline	1.50
Talbot	1.48
Kent	1.47
Queen Annes	1.47
Alleghany	1.37
Frederick	1.30
Anne Arundel	1.24
Washington	1.20
Montgomery	1.15

"Declare Intention" This Month.

All persons who desire to vote at the important election of next year, who are not now registered, but who have come into the state since the last election, should declare their intention of becoming voters in this state at the office of the County Clerk during this month. All former non-residents of the state, both men and women, must comply with this Maryland law of "declaring intention" to become citizens of the state, one year in advance of an election.

This ridiculous law, that had a distinctly partisan purpose back in the days when "negro voter" was played against the Republicans, is now out of date for that purpose, and in fact perhaps never did any good as intended. Just now, a different spirit should prevail in politics, corresponding to the spirit of broad progressivism that pervades the state in a business way. Penalizing incoming citizens is not creditable to the state.

"Who Makes Our Laws."

Your editorial on "Who Makes Our Laws" in your issue of the 16th, hits the nail on the head, clearly showing the fallacy of the old saw that "the people make the laws." A glaring example of how in Maryland the people do not make the laws is shown by the Taxation Amendment to the state constitution adopted by 20,000 popular majority in 1915. If the people really made the laws, that amendment would today be in effect, but it is not, for the simple reason that the legislature refuses to pass an enabling act. The amendment contains a clause making passage of such an act mandatory, but every legislature since 1915 has never less refused to pass it. The courts have held that the passage of such an act is the plain duty of the legislators, but they refuse to do so nevertheless. That 20,000 popular majority is powerless against some interest which leads the legislators to violate their oaths to uphold the constitution.

However, there is a remedy and it is not the one in the misleading statement that we should wait until the next election and elect some other legislators. It is the initiative and referendum. The referendum is already imbedded in the state constitution, but the initiative is needed. It does not follow that adoption of these would bring about ideal conditions, but it would put more truth in the statement that the people rule or, at least, can rule whenever they wish. And that would open the way to better things whenever we know enough to enter upon it.

Please Pay "Special Notices."

It happens rather too frequently that "Special Notices" are phoned in, or perhaps sent in by some messenger, with the understanding that they will be paid for later—but never are. We think our patrons "forget" the small charge of 15c or 20c, and we dislike to go to the work and expense of sending "statements" for such small amounts, the result being that they stay "charged", are forgotten, or eventually thrown away.

We expect such small charges to be paid, cash in advance, but hesitate to adopt an iron-clad rule to that effect. We therefore request as much care for the "paying" end as for the "sending in" end, or we will have to stop being so accommodating.

Christmas is coming—only about 8 weeks ahead.

TANEYTOWN CHAUTAUQUA.

An Excellent Program will be Rendered this Year.

Taneytown's Chautauqua season, Nov. 5 to 7, is fast approaching. The course will be given in the Opera House.

Chautauqua is an outgrowth of the Lyceum Course, which, in former times introduced to us so many prominent speakers—such men as Lowell, Holmes, Emerson, Phillips, Beecher and Sumner.

In Chautauqua we have however, a greater proportion of high grade musical numbers and programs more entirely entertaining.

Taneytown has never been offered a more pleasing program. If there is one thing we like more than another, it is an entertaining play. The Comedy Drama "Give and Take" promises us "a hundred laughs."

Mr. Taggart a musical humorist, and Ventriloquist, you may have heard many times on your Victor records in his famous impersonations "The Old Country Fiddler," the John Ringgold Co. Miss Johns, a coloratura soprano with a wonderful range, and Miss Ringgold we remember as personally very charming and splendid ability as a pianist.

Petries' singing and novelty quartet will be sure to please everyone, but will be of especial interest to our young folks in the orchestra. They will give us music on Saxophone, trombone, cornet, piano and Xylophone. A special feature "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," had a long run in New York and Chicago—a quartet and Minstrel troupe in one.

Again, we have the honor of hearing Frank B. Pearson, so clever a lecturer that he can capture the young mind and at the same time stimulate the more mature to nobler living.

The Junior program is always full of jollity for old and young. The season tickets for the six programs are $1.50 adults, and $1.00 Juniors, single admission, 75c. There are positively no cut rate tickets.

Church of God Eldership.

The annual Eldership of the Churches of God, held at Westminster made one very important change in the regulations of the church, by abolishing the "Stationing Committee" and adopting the "call" system for charges. It is understood that the change is experimental, but will of course operate until repealed.

Saturday evening services were in charge of the Rev. E. F. Asper. The following missionary program was given. Song service; prayer, the Rev. C. O. Sullivan. The pageant, "The Power of the Cross in India," was repeated. Solo, Miss Charlotte Blizzard, Carrollton; recitation, "Honorary Workers in India," by Esther Copenhaver; songs by the Booster Choir; address on Home Missions by the Rev. J. L. Updegraph, Findlay, Ohio, the field-secretary of Churches of God of North America; Duet, Mrs. Blizzard and Samuel Hughes, Carrollton; address on financing a mission in Hagerstown by the Rev. T. A. Wastler, Cascade. The amount raised was $103.

The morning session on Sunday was by Rev. J. L. Updegraph, who raised by cash and pledges the sum of $1200 for the social hall, recently built by the church. The goal with the offering of the day was more than reached.

The afternoon session was a memorial service for the Rev. George W. Masser, near Frederick. The Rev. J. H. Hoch, Uniontown, read resolutions of respect and the following ministers paid tribute to the deceased: The Revs. P. D. Cunningham, Maple Grove, Pa.; C. W. Fink, near Middletown; T. A. Wastler, and S. A. Kipe, Cascade.

The evening session was in charge of the Rev. J. L. Masemore, of Carrollton, who conducted a prayer and praise service. The Rev. P. S. Page, New Dillsburg, Pa., and Miss Minnie I. Nicholson, Washington, D. C., spoke on Christian Citizenship. An ordination service followed at which time Rev. V. E. Heffner, near Middletown, was ordained to the gospel ministry. The Rev. Mr. Updegraph also brought the evening message.

Uniontown, Frizellburg and Wakefield have called the Rev. J. H. Hoch; Carrollton and Winfield, the Rev. J. L. Masemore; Bark Hill, Pleasant Hill, Friendship and Mayberry to be supplied by the Rev. V. E. Heffner; Woodboro, Oak Hill and Creagers-town, the Rev. F. P. Brose; German-town, Blue Mountain and Friends' Creek, the Rev. C. O. Sullivan; New Baltimore to be supplied by the Rev. P. D. Cunningham; Samples Manor, Pleasantville, Augusta and Mt. Briar to be supplied by the Rev. W. G. Stine; Zittletown, Edgewood and Locust Valley to be supplied by the Rev. T. A. Wastler; Broadfording, Kaisiesville, Maple Grove and Blair's Valley, the Rev. C. W. Fink; South Mountain, the Rev. S. A. Kipe and he will supply Sharpsburg, Brunswick and Antietam. Westminster and Warfieldsburg have not yet called a pastor.

"Evolution in Genesis and Geology."

Prof. Wm. James Heaps, of Baltimore, will deliver his address on "Evolution in Genesis and Geology," at Hampstead M. E. Church, Sunday, Oct. 25, at 2:00 P. M. The address covers to the topic of "Evolution" brought into prominence recently through the Tennessee trial of Prof. Scopes.

BAD ROADS MAY CUT R. D. SERVICE

Postoffice Department Serves Warning to this Effect.

The Postoffice Department is making a drive, either to improve bad road conditions, or to curtail the delivery of mails until roads are improved. This applies particularly to bad short stretches of road that either road supervisors, or private individuals, should keep in good order, and Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Billany has issued orders that where rural carriers or postmasters are unsuccessful in obtaining the prompt improvement of these bad road stretches that the offending portion of the rural route will be cut off from service until such time as conditions are bettered.

The department is working on the theory it is better that a few patrons be incommoded than the deliveries of the majority of patrons be delayed from three to four hours daily on account of the undue amount of time consumed on the bad road sections.

Use of the automobile on rural routes the year around with the result of speeding up service on all routes is the object of General Billany's campaign which naturally will be applauded by all rural carriers, says the R. F. D. News in commenting on General Billany's drive.

It is pointed out that the majority of the bad road stretches referred to are only from two to three miles long and some of them less than this in length.

The first step suggested to be taken by rural carriers and postmasters relative to the remedying of conditions on such routes is the diplomatic statement of the situation to the proper county or state authorities. It is only when co-operation by the local road chiefs is refused that reports should be made to General Billany and it will only be when the department itself fails to get action that curtailment of services on offending routes will be ordered.

General Billany requests that rural carriers and postmasters send suggestions for handling the bad road situation to him in Washington.

The County S. S. Rally.

The indication are that the Sunday School forces of Carroll County will have a big day Sunday, October 25, as they celebrate their fifth annual county wide rally in Westminster. The Men's Bible classes from all the districts, with banners, and in many cases with their own bands of music, will assemble at the Court House Square, promptly at 1:30. At 2:00 the march to Alumni Hall, will begin, in charge of George E. Matthews as chief marshal, preceded by an escort of police. The bands will play sacred music, and traffic will be side-tracked, giving the marchers the right of way.

At 2:30 there will be held three simultaneous mass meetings. The one at Alumni Hall for men, in charge of Rev. J. N. Garner, County Superintendent of adult work, will be addressed by Dr. E. D. Stone, of Baltimore, and the male chorus of Carrollton will sing.

The meeting for women in the Armory will be in charge of Mrs. Martha Shaw and the speaker will be Mrs. C. P. Wiles, of Philadelphia, a leading Sunday School worker of the Lutheran Church. Miss Caroline Wantz will sing.

The meeting for children, a new feature this year, and intended only for little folks under 12 years of age, will be held in the M. P. Church, will be in charge of Miss Ethel Steele, County Superintendent of Children's Work. There will be a program of stories.

To all of these meetings the public are earnestly invited. It is the hope of the County Association, under whose management the Rally is held, that the event will exceed in numbers and enthusiasm anything of the kind ever attempted in the county.

Manchester Hall Dedicated.

The new home of the Manchester Fire Company, costing $26,000, was dedicated last Saturday. The services were in charge of the three ministers of the town, and followed by a supper and dancing. The building will be used as a community centre as well as for the home of the Company.

The services began at 2:30, in charge of the Rev. John S. Hollenbach, the Rev. J. H. Rehmyer and Rev. W. C. Wachter. The dedicatory address was made by William H. Long, of Hanover, foreman of Hanover Fire Company No. 1 and a Past President of the State Firemen's Association.

Music for the occasion was supplied by the Baltimore Evening Sun Newsboys Band of sixty-five members. After the dedication the speakers and band were entertained by the Manchester people at dinner.

The new building is 35x84 feet, built of yellow brick. It is two stories high, with basement, which is equipped with bowling alleys and billiard tables.

The first floor is given over to the department, whose apparatus consists of an auto pumper, hook and ladder wagon and chemical cart. On this floor are provided meeting rooms for the fire company and kitchens. The auditorium, on the second floor, has a capacity of 350 persons, with stage and dressing rooms.

BOARD OF EDUCATION MEETS.

Detailed Proceedings of Last Meeting of Board.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education was called to order at 10:20 A. M., in the office of the Board on October 14, 1925. Commissioner Slingluff was absent.

The minutes of the previous meeting were approved as read. The list of bills presented to the Board was approved and ordered paid.

The application of Mr. Sherman E. Flanagan, Principal of the Charles Carroll High School, for an increase in salary on the basis of advanced credits, was laid on the table for the present and no action taken.

The Superintendent was authorized to send Dr. R. Berryman, Treasurer of the Maryland State Teachers' Association, the usual contribution of $25.00.

The resignation of Miss Winifred R. Masenhimer from the Hampstead School is to take effect at once, was accepted.

After a prolonged discussion, the Board decided to establish a uniform rate of 6c a mile for the transportation of the part-time teachers.

The Superintendent was authorized to pay Wm. A. Myers not more than $2.00 a day to haul the 13 children from Shade School to Pleasant Valley School.

The Board approved of the appointment of Samuel L. Bare, Jr., to fill the vacant scholarship to Charlotte Hall, and of the transfer of the scholarship to St. Mary's Seminary from Edith M. Case to Marjorie Case.

The Board approved of extending the bus service to the Baltimore Co. line to haul the elementary children into Hampstead.

The Superintendent was authorized to extend the contract with Mr. William Umbaugh so as to include the hauling of all orphan children to the Sykesville School, providing the County Commissioners are willing to state in writing that they will furnish the additional money.

The following trustees were appointed: Sandymount, Marian Plater vs. Henry Mancha; Lawndale, O. S. Spencer vs. Franklin Thompson; Pleasant View, T. J. Gunn vs. Othe A. Fleming; J. Crimes vs. William E. Gosnell, George E. Wright vs. Charles J. Gunn.

Katherine Doyle was appointed to fill the scholarship to Western Maryland College made vacant by Ruby Reed from Westminster District.

J. N. Reinecke was appointed to fill the scholarship to Western Maryland College made vacant by Annie H. Spencer from Woolery's District.

The Superintendent was authorized to advertise for sale the old Maxwell and Ford trucks.

The report of the auditor was approved and accepted and is filed with the minutes. A copy of the audit was authorized to be filed with the Clerk of the Court of Carroll County.

Requests for contributions to local funds raised for purposes indicated, were presented to the Board which contributed $10.00 to the amount already raised in each case, with the understanding that the same is to be paid when the necessary funds are available:

Bruceville, raised $12.75, maps; Stoniesfer, raised $15.00, oil stove and lunch kits; Morgan Run, raised $19.60, school supplies; Springville, raised $52.00 school supplies; Royer, raised $10.00, school supplies; Washington, raised $10.00, maps; Mayberry, raised $48.50, phonograph, records, etc.

The Board decided to allow George H. Armacost's child and Bertie Caple's child to return to the grades to which they belong in the Westminster School, for the reason that they have been in the school a number of years. Permission has been refused county children to enter the 5, 6 and 7 grades in the Westminster school, as long as the congested condition exists.

Authority was granted to rent a building for school purposes at Oakland Mills, as the building heretofore used, belonging to John Melville, burned away. Said rent to be $120, a year.

Authority was granted to install in the Charles Carroll School, current from the Hanover Light and Power Company, and to dispose of the Delco plant to the firm of E. M. Frounfelter for $150, less cost of installation and motor to operate the pump.

The meeting adjourned at 12:30.

"Making Up" a Newspaper.

We wish we could give every article that ought to have first page, and every adv. that ought to have last page, these positions. We would like to give everything in our paper, the best there is; but a little fair consideration will convince all that these wishes are impossible; for, aside from the impossibility of placing a large number of items into a smaller number of positions, there must be considered what the printer calls "make-up"—filling out all space.

There must be a plan followed that is largely subject to the "building" material of each week's issue—the size of the various pieces, and the space available in which to fit them. This explains why small items sometimes appear in out of the way small spaces—because they fit there. This also explains why the reader should examine all pages, and all of the corners.

THE W. M. STRIKE SITUATION

Effort Being Made to Reopen Case for Negotiations.

The U. S. Railroad Labor Board, following its meeting in Chicago, has decided that both the Western Maryland R. R. and the union erred in their activities that led up to the strike, and issued instructions to both sides to resume conferences in an endeavor to restore peace. The Board held that both sides should make concessions.

President Byers of the W. M. R. R., after reading the opinion of the Board said the Company will make no change in its policy toward the strikers, and that those who re-enter the service of the Company will be given seniority rights only from the time of their new appointment, but that the Company will carry out its agreement with the old loyal employees and the new employees who have come with the Company since the strike began.

Formal invitation to a conference for settlement of the Western Maryland Railway strike was sent yesterday by labor leaders to Maxwell C. Byers, president of the railroad. It cited the decision Wednesday of the United States Railroad Labor Board, which blamed both sides and directed the parties to resume negotiations. The strike leaders in the letter said they are "willing to surrender any individual opinions as to who was right or wrong" for purposes of conference. A reply is expected to the communication from President Byers today.

Associated Press dispatches from Hagerstown quoted Joseph L. Moore, general chairman of Engineers on the Western Maryland, as saying re-employment with full seniority rights of thirty-six firemen and engineers discharged at Cumberland will be demanded by the unions, no matter what concessions are made in the proposed negotiations.

The business of the Company is said to have been operating at near 100 percent efficiency, all week, with new employees, which places the officials of the Company in a rather advantageous position for further conferences.

Injuries at Football.

Among the football "accidents" of the season, two were experienced at Gettysburg, last Saturday, and two students became patients in the Warner Hospital, as a result. John Ruedesak, a Gettysburg student, suffered from bad contusions of the breast and back, while George Benner, a Western Maryland student, was a victim of concussion of the brain. Are "College athletics" of this sort, worth their cost?

Think ahead, and plan ahead, and you are likely to come out ahead—if you work your thoughts and plans.

There is no law compelling the acceptance of money in exchange for labor, or merchandise. The law simply makes money a legal tender in payment of debt.

WONDERFUL RADIO.

The Greatest Modern Invention for Entertainment.

ARTICLE II.

Real radio knowledge is extremely technical, dealing in many unpronounceable words and newly coined expressions which the average operator will never try to master. Radio is a science in itself, but as yet not by any means an exact one—there are features about it that "just happen" without anybody knowing how, or why, and it is not absolutely necessary that one should.

For instance, just how the many sounds are carried, nobody can definitely explain. Just what "static" is, or the cause of "fading," nobody has yet been able to determine, or eradicate. Radio also brings in a variety of more or less distressing noises that "the best yet" receivers can not tune out, and still give good reception; so while the experimental stage has largely passed so far as satisfactory reception to the "listener-in" is concerned, the experts of the future have a lot of problems to solve.

The present tendency toward producing volume of sound, has not so far been wholly gain. Volume has been produced in many receivers at the expense of tone quality. It is the natural result of amplifying tones beyond their normal volume. The reproduction of musical notes, and tones of the human voice, can not be carried beyond certain limits without distortion and harshness. If one wants "concert" pitch for public entertainments in a large hall, he can not expect the same instrument to produce softer and more natural tones for a small room.

It is true that mere loudness can be tuned down, but even then purity and clearness of tone suffers, and there is a smothered result that does not represent "parlor" pitch. Common difficulties that the operator of a receiver meet, are the variations in broadcasting volume—not always "fading"—interfering noises—not always "static"—and what is called favorable weather is more or less an uncertain thing to depend on.

Ordinarily, we consider the summer months unfavorable, and winter months favorable, to good reception, but this is only approximately true, for there are excellent nights in the summer and very poor ones in the winter; and no one can tell from one day what the next will provide. In fact, in a single evening's experience one can often get all the variety of noises he is looking for. Another experience is that at the same sitting some stations will come in clear and strong, and others faint, harsh and spotted.

Very much depends on the operator—the "tuning" of the set. While we do not positively know that a novice seriously injures a receiver, it is decidedly preferable that if one has a good radio, it will be best not to have inexperienced persons fool with it. Too much current unnecessarily runs down the batteries, and overloads the tubes. While speaking of tubes, it is our experience that the number of tubes does not necessarily rate the quality of receiver—there are some three tube sets better than some five tube sets—and this is true for various reasons.

Storage batteries are not necessarily superior to dry batteries; each has its advantages and disadvantages. Whichever kind your receiver is fitted with, will require careful study to be gained largely by experience and close observation in using, and it will be found wise economy to gain this experience as early as possible, and to "read up" on before taking liberties not based on exact knowledge.

The man who knows about engine and automobile batteries does not necessarily know a great deal about radio batteries. His information may be a help, or a hindrance. No one should take liberties not recommended by the manufacturer of a set—the hooking up of an extra lot of batteries may injure his set very seriously. In fact, in every respect, trying to make "improvements" by the average novice, is apt to result very expensively. When your radio gets "sick," send for a doctor—and don't "monkey with it."

Another R. R. Crossing Fatality.

Two men in an automobile were killed Monday evening at Dorsey crossing, Anne Arundel County, by being struck by a B. & O. special train. The crossing has no watchman but has an automatic bell that was ringing when the engine struck the car. The car was scattered along the track for 400 feet. The engineer applied the emergency brakes, but too late to prevent the crash. One man was instantly killed while the other lived five minutes.

A Motorist's Complaint.

Editor The Record:—In motoring through Thurmont this Fall, I got a good bawling out for passing a traffic signal which I had failed to see; same must have just been put up, as I have never seen it before. There was no traffic going either way at the time. I think Thurmont should teach their traffic man to use a little more respect in addressing strangers going through their Burg, who unintentionally make mistakes. I also notice that wherever there is a signal you will find a lot of "bums" hanging around to give you the laugh for getting called down.

The Locarno Peace Pact.

A peace pact was agreed upon, and signed, by the leading European powers, at Locarno, Switzerland, on Friday of last week. The event was considered at least a long step toward ending war, and was enthusiastically received by the people of all countries. Germany promised to keep her pledges—and so did all of them. Locarno was given over to rejoicing, and the bands played.

So far, so good. Treaties and peace pacts are made, to be kept. But, in times past they have become mere "pieces of paper." We make good laws—well-intended laws—and accompany them with penalties, but these laws and penalties do not prevent crime, entirely. Their influence is good, however, and that is the most that can be expected from the Locarno pact.

Natural Oil Decreasing.

A scare is again being handed around by specialists in investigation and statistics, alleging that the supply of fuel oil is truly alarming, so far as natural petroleum products are concerned. The report is a very voluminous one, and takes into consideration the greatly increased demand for motor fuel oil in recent years that shows no signs of decreasing, but rather of a future great increase.

Already, the plan of extracting oil from shale and coal are being considered, but investigations in this direction are not reassuring, on account of the large expense involved for receiving a comparatively small product. For instance, it is said that 1000 tons of shale would be required to produce enough fuel oil to operate one of our modern warships at full speed for a single hour.

The scarcity of natural oil will naturally affect, very directly, the manufacture of gas and gasoline, as well as many other secondary products. However, the likelihood is that nature's resources are so unlimited that it will require only greater ingenuity on the part of man to find them, and that the world never need stand still for lack of motive power.

Conscientious Newspapers.

Every conscientiously edited newspaper aims to give good practical advice on a wide range of subjects. Its purpose is not to give advice as a know-it-all, or bumptiously, but primarily that good may result from it.

Conscientiously edited newspapers try to prevent their readers from getting into trouble, from violating laws, from meeting with losses and accidents, from making serious mistakes, from giving offense to neighbors, and from being caught as a "sucker."

They aim to educate along business and other lines, to increase morality and sobriety, to strengthen the influence of churches, to warn against bad habits, to publish the results of misdeeds, to boost worthy charities, and in every way to cooperate for community betterment.

The above is a big program, but something like it makes the newspaper job worth while, entirely above and beyond the thought of making money, and publishing advertisements and the current news of the day. A paper may be crowded with "locals," accounts of accidents, deaths, marriages, fires, sales of property, social gatherings and the like, and still fall very far short of filling its highest privilege.

A good newspaper is much more than a bulletin board. Big type, pictures, supplements and funny pages, are not alone worth the price you pay for the lot. A paper in a home carries with it to the children an education and influence of some kind, and this same influence—whether for good or bad—is also absorbed, to some extent, by the more mature readers.

Consider these suggestions, and then make a survey of the papers and other periodicals that come into your homes. Some of them are apt to be evil spirits, and should not be entertained, free of charge.

Financial vs. Political Business.

It is indicated now that the Mellon, or administration plan, for reducing Federal taxation, will be opposed by a combination of Democrats and Western near-Republicans.

In other words, an effort will be made to "scrap" the administration plan, which is said to be based on the idea of retiring the World war debt in 25 years, and replacing it with one that would postpone the retirement of the debt for 62 years, the term of the British funding to the United States.

The Mellon plan is said to be to cut off $250,000,000 a year in taxes, while the opposition plan would cut off fully double that sum, but would string out the term of the debt. The object is to prevent the Coolidge administration from "making a record" in payment of the debt, which might be to the advantage of the Republican party.

The Democratic plan will be popular because it will cut off a lot of taxes on miscellaneous articles, and have immediate effect on lowering a lot of prices, and by lengthening the term of the debt it will seem less burdensome. However, this is like buying on the instalment plan, or financing a bonded debt—it will cost the public more, in the end, because it will extend the interest-paying period.

We do not always exercise "good business" in politics; rather, it is a game of expediency for the sake of party advantage; and in the case of the National debt, and the rapid reduction of it, the ideas of Mr. Mellon, who is a "financial" business man, are apt to be sacrificed in favor of "political" business.

Is the Majority Mistaken?

Not long ago we ran across these expressions in a Magazine article:

"In the majority of cases the majority is mistaken. * * * That the majority rules, is by reason of its weight of numbers, and not through its mentality."

This is likely one man's opinion, and it may be true, but we doubt it; or, perhaps it would be best to say—We hope it isn't true, for on majority rule depends the success or failure of our plan of government, and we can hardly imagine that our big country has been prospering because of a long trial of mistakes.

We suspect that this writer should have said—In many cases the majority is mistaken. For certain it is that majorities have a way of following pell-mell, at times, certain leaders whose doctrines are more popular than sound. The wisest and best political preaching is often much like the best preaching we hear in churches—it does not draw the crowds that attend the sensational upsetter of doctrines that we like to hear upset.

The latter portion of the quotation is the more likely to be true. There are big cities, and sections in this country, where wisdom and honesty and righteousness of all kinds, are in the minority, counted by voters. There are other sections where property and intelligence are in the minority. That is the reason why we have boss rule and corruption so often—the "gang" hangs together, and the selected "boss" hands out the favors.

But, taking the country as a whole, and often a large subdivision of it as a whole, there are still enough strong localities where the best policies do have the majority back of them, and where majority sentiment is not "mistaken" and that has been the salvation, so far, of our form of government.

Church Council and "Wets."

What the prohibition report of the Federal Council of Churches may disclose itself to be when studied is not known here; it has not arrived. But what use the "wet" press of the country has made of it is apparent to all. In this part of the country the pro-alcohol press gave five days of headlines in which they gloated over the report. It was plainly all aid and comfort to them. In such quotations as were made it was also plainly at variance with the sentiment and conviction of the churches. It is just here that the "wets" may find their joy to be rather premature.

The churches of America did not speak through the Federal Council. Inquiry forces the conclusion that 98 percent of the membership of American churches do not know what the Federal Council is, and never authorized it to speak, and were never consulted as to what should be published as the mind of the church. It is probable the report will have no effect whatever on the sentiment of the country, but it may have an effect on the Federal Council.—Dear-born Independent.

Great Crisis Convention.

When the delegates to the biennial Convention of the Anti-Saloon League meet in Chicago November 5-9, which convention will be followed immediately by a conference of workers, these delegates will be considering how to meet a crisis in the affairs of prohibition which is just as important for consideration as was the crisis of 1913 when at Columbus, Ohio, the Anti-Saloon League declared for nation-wide constitutional prohibition.

The ultimate object of the Anti-Saloon League always has been and is the utter extermination of the beverage liquor traffic. The time was held to be ripe in 1913 for a declaration for national prohibition and subsequent history has proved that the Columbus Convention acted wisely.

The Anti-Saloon League immediately began the carrying out of this program to write prohibition into the Constitution and to obtain an enactment of enforcement measures, in all of which it succeeded.

Prohibition has been in the Constitution and the Volstead law on the statute books of the United States for more than five years. America has had the opportunity of presenting to the world the benefits of a national constitutional policy. Despite all reports to the contrary these benefits are so apparent as not to need the calling of special attention to them.

But the leaders of the Anti-Saloon League know, as indeed every one else ought to know, that the prohibition job in the United States is not completed. Enforcement is not on the high level of achievement it should and must reach. The liquor men never gave up the fight, never discarded hope that somehow or other they might be able to do away with prohibition and bring back the legal manufacture and sale of intoxicants.

Their activities have taken almost every form, legal and illegal. Their most insidious proposition is the restoration of scallied light wine and beer under the guise of promoting temperance.

Of course they deny vociferously that they have any notion of bringing back the saloon but every careful observer knows that is just what would happen if they could succeed in bringing back wine and beer or in weakening the Volstead Act.

They also are attacking enforcement every angle and their boast is that they will elect a wet Congress.

The Anti-Saloon League is ready to formulate a national enforcement policy as decisive as the program which resulted in the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment. In 1913 in Columbus a movement was launched that made America dry, now in Chicago, enemies of the liquor traffic from all over the nation will meet to plan and launch the next national advance in the fight against outlawed intoxicating liquor; in short, to inaugurate a movement that will silence the defamers of the Eighteenth Amendment and reawaken the churches and reform forces in America to their duties.

The Convention will hear men prominent in government, state and national, and leaders in fields of religion, commerce, journalism and law. How to get better enforcement, how to get greater respect for the law and how to educate the alien population in this country to the knowledge of the law and the effect of prohibition, will be the salient of the Chicago program.—American Issue.

An Appeal for Lay Preaching.

We have within the church today all kinds of societies and associations and I would hesitate to burden the church with another, but I venture to say there is the greatest need in all denominations today for a union or society composed of Christian laymen for the sole purpose of preaching the gospel.

The late Dr. Arthur T. Pierson, that prince of preachers, once said that the master stroke of the Devil was in dividing the church of Christ into clergy and laity. No such distinction is taught in the Word of God. The greatest loss the church ever sustained was in the practical elimination of laymen (so-called) from the giving out of the gospel.

I can probably go back in Chicago history fifty, or perhaps fifty-five years ago, when the outstanding men of God in Chicago as soul-winners were laymen.—D. L. Moody, Major Whittle, Major Cole, "Quaker" Dean, Charles Morton, B. F. Jacobs, P. P. Bliss and a number of others. There was not a minister in the city whom God used as He used these men. And what was true in Chicago was true in other cities also. Where do you find laymen of this type today? Virtually in the foreign field only.

Ministers by degrees have delegated to themselves the right or privilege of doing all the preaching, while the brethren in the pew are expected to do nothing but put up the coin and keep quiet. There is scarcely a church today that has in it a layman capable of forcefully presenting to the unsaved the gospel of Christ.

It was lay preaching that first made Methodism what it was, and it is a lack of lay preaching that makes Methodism today what it is. It was lay preaching that made Brethren the mighty force they were in their palmy days. The same also as to the Salvation Army. Today lay preaching is virtually a lost art.

Why not, in view of this, move for a Laymen's Union for the giving out of the gospel? Denominational lines would of course have to be ignored and the great fundamentals of the faith emphasized. Mission halls in outlying districts could be opened up and struggling churches without pastors supplied.

"Laymen's Night" even in the large churches could be made a real blessing.

Most of the churches are two-thirds empty on Sunday evenings. Why not give the laymen a chance and see what they can do?

Of course, vital godliness, cleanness of spiritual life, is the great essential. Empty professors from the pew are as useless to God as are empty professors in the pulpit. God demands holiness of life in His messengers, otherwise He will keep His hands off.

I have heard all the great preachers in the last fifty years or more, and I say unhesitatingly, and without apologies to the cloth, that the most forceful, pungent preachers of the gospel I have ever heard have been laymen.—W. S. Manners, M. D., San Francisco.

Depends On Treatment

The wool on the sheep's back is comparatively cheap. When made into cloth and it lands on YOUR back, it costs a lot of money, yet it is the same wool.

The difference in treatment accounts for the difference in price. Its the same with dollars, for if you handle them carelessly, spend them foolishly or invest them poorly, they are worth but little to you. The dollars you handle carefully and invest safely will lay the foundation for a fortune. Their value depends on treatment, the same as wool.

Natural Crossing in Oats Is Very Small

Experiments Show One Per Cent in Iowar Variety.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

It has long been recognized that when two varieties of corn are grown in rows side by side a certain amount of natural crossing takes place. A row of white corn growing next to a row of yellow corn, for instance, will produce ears that have numerous yellow kernels. Also it has long been a general belief that the so-called close-fertilized cereals, like wheat, oats and barley, very rarely cross naturally; that is, a row of white oats, for instance, growing beside a row of black oats would produce white kernels only. Artificial methods of crossing the two kinds of oats were necessarily resorted to when plant breeders desired a cross. Seedsmen, therefore, have grown plots of one strain of oats next to plots of another strain, feeling assured that each seed plot would remain pure.

Such is not the case, however, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. Experimental work with oats at the Akron (Colo.) field station has shown that without doubt natural crosses do occur in oats the same as in corn, although to far less extent. The extent of natural crossing in oats varied with the different varieties. It was greater in some selections than others from the same variety. The greatest percentage of natural crosses was observed in the Iowar variety, in which an average of nearly 1 per cent of crosses was found.

The natural crossing of oats is so small that it is of no particular significance to the average farmer even though he does grow his own seed oats. It is of importance, however, to the cereal investigator and nursery seed producers. The need for formulating better methods in plant and nursery technique in conducting experiments with oats is apparent if the factor of natural crossing is to be eliminated.

Minerals Assist Chicks in Building Framework

The science of feeding growing chicks has developed by leaps and bounds during the last few years. The discovery of vitamins and their relation to poultry feeding, the importance of clean yards and plenty of green feed have made the business of growing poultry more economically successful.

During the last few years more attention has been centered upon the importance of a new element in the ration for growing chicks—minerals or inorganic material. Minerals supply three distinct functions in the chick's ration. They go to build bone, which is the framework of the future pullet or cockerel. A good skeleton is one-half the battle, because on it must be attached the meat and in it must be carried the organs of reproduction, which produce the marketable product, the egg.

Minerals also have been found by scientific tests to aid materially in the digestion of other foods. Lastly, minerals have been found to exercise a very definite relation in building up a natural resistance and immunity against disease.

This is probably accomplished by keeping the birds in perfect physical condition.

What minerals to feed and how to feed them becomes the problem of the feeder of growing chickens during the summer, so that the pullets may be in the pink of condition as to size and vigor for the heavy winter lay.

Using Rape as Pasture for Cattle and Calves

Rape may be used as pasture for cattle but there is danger of bloat. This danger is not so prevalent at first because the animals usually have to acquire a taste for the plant before they will eat large amounts of it, but when they have become accustomed to it the danger of bloat is always present. Milk cows being pastured on rape are usually given a heavy feed of grain before being turned on the field so they will not eat so much of it. Plenty of salt should also be furnished animals that are feeding on rape. It would not be wise to pasture young calves on rape because of the danger of bloat and also because they pull up many of the plants, causing a great deal of waste. The best way to feed rape to cattle is to cut it and then feed it to prevent waste.

FARM FACTS

Weeds sap the soil.

Watch the watermelon vines for anthracnose.

Lime scattered on the fields makes a good foundation for the whole farm.

Watch cornfields for root and ear rot. Select healthy stalks for seed corn.

After crops are laid by make a trip to good farms to see how they are doing things.

Tests show that scrub hogs require 26 per cent more feed than pure breeds to make 100 pounds of gain.

Removing the harness at noon and washing the work horse's shoulder with cold water adds to his efficiency.

MARRIED

POWELL—ANGELL.

Miss Esther Angell, Pleasant Valley, and Denton Powell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Powell, of Pleasant Valley, were married Saturday, Oct. 10, 1925, at St. Mary's Lutheran Parsonage, Silver Run, by the Pastor, the Rev. A. G. Wolf.

The bride wore a blue ensemble suit with hat and gloves to match. The newly weds will reside in Pleasant Valley.

PUNT—COX.

Mr. H. Russell Punt, of Pen-Mar, and Miss Mary Virginia Cox, of Blue Ridge Summit, were married, Saturday, Sept. 5, at the Reformed Parsonage, Taneytown, by Rev. Guy P. Bready. The parents of the bride and Mr. A. Earl Wells witnessed the ceremony.

DIED.

MR. JOHN N. WEAVER.

Mr. John N. Weaver, retired druggist, and one of the best known citizens of Union Bridge, and this country, died at his home on Tuesday of last week, after a prolonged illness, aged 83 years, 9 months, 22 days. He was a son of the late Harrison Weaver, of Uniontown, where he was born. He was in the drug business in Union Bridge 27 years.

Mr. Weaver was generally respected for his amiable disposition and fine character. He was always conservative, and his code of moral, social and business ethics was of the highest standard.

He was twice married, his first wife having been Lydia Ellen Senseney, and his second wife, who survives him, was Mrs. Hattie L. Markel. Funeral services were held on Thursday, Oct. 15, at the home, followed by interment in Mt. View cemetery.

(Our Correspondents failed to send an account of this death, last week.)

Loving Remembrance of my Dear Brother

EDWARD D. FOGLE,
who departed this life one year ago today
October 23, 1924.

The months of affliction are over; The days and the night of distress; We see him a sufferer no more; He is now in his heavenly rest.

How long he struggled against disease, Which baffled skill and care; And long he lingered, racked with pain, And suffering hard to bear.

We shall meet again, dear brother; Yes, we'll meet to part no more; Where there is no pain or sorrow, On that bright eternal shore.

By his Sister, STELLA M. FOGLE.

When you were so suddenly called away Without time to say goodbye, I know your thoughts were with us, When you were called home to die.

You are not dead to us, dear cousin, But as a Star unseen ever near, We feel that you are ever near, Though distant miles in between.

By his Cousin, MELVIN T. HESS & WIFE

Child Health Conferences.

The Fall and Winter schedule of the Child Health Conferences of the State Bureau of Child Hygiene, according to an announcement from the State Department of Health, goes into effect this week. In addition to the conferences that are held all the year around, at regular intervals, in selected places throughout the State, specially arranged conferences have been held all the summer, in connection with the visits of the Child Healthmobile in the counties on the Western and Eastern Shores.

Eleven counties were visited by the Healthmobile; stops were made at 89 towns; 1466 children were given a careful physical examination and their mothers were advised as to general care or diet. The examinations were made by a physician, especially trained in the care of children, assisted by a public health nurse. The children ranged in age from babies in arms to youngsters getting ready for school.

In accordance with the rule of the Bureau, in regard to these health conferences, no medical treatments were given, but children in need of special care were referred by letters, giving the result of the examination, to their family physicians.

A large proportion of the children examined during the summer, needed dental care and were referred to their family dentists. The Bureau of Child Hygiene owns a portable dental equipment and follow up dental clinics were arranged for children on request in Calvert, Charles and St. Mary's Counties. At these dental clinics 114 children were given much needed care. The dentists were kept busy filling, extracting and cleaning teeth, the records showing that 114 fillings were up in, and 183 teeth extracted.

Coal Strike Still On.

Some have lost sight of the fact that there is a strike on hand in the anthracite coal fields; but, it is still on, and no coal is being mined. There is already talk of scarcity of coal in some of the large cities, and this scarcity will rapidly increase. The big question is, what will happen if the strike continues?

Mice Without Hair

A tribe of hairless mice were recently discovered in London and they were regarded as such great curiosities that they were exhibited before the members of the Zoological society.

The little animals were caught in a trap in the northern part of the city of London and several of them have been observed by scientists who are endeavoring to explain their origin.

Several mice have been born in captivity and when the pink little ones are first seen they are much like other mice at the same period of their lives.

The hair appears in the usual way but when they are about three weeks old the hair has commenced to disappear.

That of the top of the head is lost first and then gradually the baldness extends all over the body.

Halcyon Days

According to Greek mythology Alcyon, or Halcyone, the daughter of Aeolus, married Ceyx. Ceyx was drowned, and Alcyone, on learning his fate, threw herself into the sea. The gods were moved by the tragedy of the young lovers; they brought them back to life in the form of halcyons, or kingfishers, and they decreed that for the seven days from December 22 to December 29, the sea should remain calm while the seabirds built their nests upon it. Those seven days, the last of the year, are therefore called halcyon days, days of tranquillity.

Canadian Newspaper Rates.

The Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association has recently engaged in an effort to secure a subscription rate of $2.00 or more, a year. The result so far is 419 papers at $2.00; 234 at $1.50, and 46 still have a $1.00 rate. There are very few $1.00 papers in the whole United States. Of course, there is considerable variation in size among weekly papers, as well as variation in actual value.

Danger of Fire from Hunters.

With the autumn hunting season getting under way in the Northeast and in the South, the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture, issues an appeal to all sportsmen to guard against forest fires.

Ordinarily, say forestry officials, a great number of devastating forest fires are caused each fall by hunters. These fires not only destroy valuable timber but also the better forms of game animals, and thereby defeat the plans of the hunters themselves.

Those whose duty it is to guard forest lands from fire are usually apprehensive of the fall hunting season. From bitter experience these men have learned that hunters are frequently careless with matches, smoking tobacco, and camp fires. A great many sportsmen's associations have for years taken measures to prevent this carelessness by their members. Other clubs and organizations are following suit.

In fact, the time is rapidly approaching when hunters everywhere will seek the woods with full knowledge of forest fire conditions, and these hunters will be of invaluable assistance in protecting the country's forests rather than being the agencies through which so many fires are started.

The Federal Government employs its rangers, guards and lookouts to protect the National Forests. Most States likewise have fire wardens and rangers with police powers. Hunters should take warning and be the first to protect the woods. They should erase from the records any reference to forest fires traceable to hunters.

The citizens of no community want its beautiful autumn landscape blotted out with smoke from burning wood lands.—U. S. Dept. Agriculture.

INDIAN CEREMONIAL SLAP O. K'D BY JUDGE

Rules Chiefs Have Right to Regular Tribal Customs.

Santa Fe, N. M.—"The Great White Father" at Washington smiles when young Indian braves, who violate tribal traditions, are punished by application of "the ceremonial slap" and Pueblo Indian chieftains have the right to regulate tribal customs, costumes and affairs.

This in effect was the ruling of Federal Judge Colin Heblett here when he dismissed charges of assault and battery preferred against a group of Taos Pueblo Indian chieftains by two young bucks, punished for appearing at tribal dances in the garb of the white man.

The punishment was administered after the two young men, home from a government Indian school, insisted on wearing their newly adopted clothing.

The "ceremonial slap" consists of lashing an Indian's blanketed back with a rope or whip.

Early Marriage Blamed For Domestic Strife

Baltimore.—Early marriages and lack of money are two of the principal causes of domestic woe, according to Miss Anna D. Ward, secretary of the Family Welfare association, which settles hundreds of family difficulties each year.

"Men, in a great many instances, do not earn a sufficient amount of money to support their families," Miss Ward declares. "This forces the wife to go out to work in an effort to supplement the family income. And, of course, when the wife is out earning money the home and children are neglected."

The secretary of the association believes that a $1,200 annual income is the least on which a couple should marry. She says that $2,000 is the least on which a family of four can decently live.

Miss Ward declared another cause of domestic difficulties is the lack of training of the wife. Many girls, she says, are forced to go to work early and do not have the advantage of taking domestic science courses, where sewing and cooking are taught. They therefore are untrained to become homemakers at the time of marriage.

She says a girl should not marry before she is seventeen and that a boy should be at least twenty. A few years more make happier marriages, she believes. Early marriages predominate in the cases brought to the attention of the association, according to Miss Ward.

Automatic Beacons Take Place of Lighthouses

Washington.—Every three seconds both day and night for 14 years an automatic light off the Hawaiian Islands has flashed a warning to mariners.

This was disclosed in a report to Secretary Hoover from Commissioner Putnam of the lighthouse service, which showed that the old-time lighthouse rapidly is disappearing in favor of the automatic lighthouse, which needs only occasional human attention.

During the last fiscal year 74 lighthouses along the American coast were replaced by automatic beacons, with a saving of $17,785 in annual expenses.

About 114 more lighthouses are scheduled for eventual replacement with automatic signaling devices, but this is thought about the limit to which the changing may efficiently go, as a certain number of lighthouses and lightships must always be manned by human personnel.

There are now 17,866 of what the department calls "aid to navigation" being maintained in the way of lights and signals. The automatic lights have gas tanks which are refilled by regular visits of light tenders and can be left for months without attention.

PLAN MEMORIAL IN HILLS OF DAKOTA

May Carve Washington-Lincoln Statue on "Needles."

Rapid City, S. D.—A national shrine, modeled from one of nature's vagaries, and situated in the beautiful Black hills of South Dakota, is the vision of Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, and a group of South Dakota residents who view the Black hills as the greatest undeveloped wonderland in the United States.

The shrine would be a monument of Washington and Lincoln, standing side by side, their figures carved from a huge needle-like piece of granite which towers 200 feet above its immediate base.

Borglum has long held this vision. He expects soon to visit South Dakota to discuss details for raising the $1,000,000 necessary to its completion.

Shaft Visible Many Miles.

In the Black hills there is a group of rocks that rise perpendicularly as high as a fifteen or more story office building. The rocks are known as the Needles. One of these has withstood the elements more than its neighbors and there remains a wide base from which there ascends a shaft tapering almost to a point.

This shaft rises to a height greater than any elevation east of the Rockies except Mount Harney, itself in the Black hills.

Situated among virtual mountains of red, purple and gold, their slopes dotted with towering pines, the proposed memorial rock may be seen for miles before the long, slowly ascending trail finally brings the visitor within its shadow.

Financial Backing in View.

With the advice of several South Dakota residents, Borglum chose as the characters for this memorial Washington and Lincoln, two outstanding figures in American history, whom he knew would appeal to the patriotism of every corner of the United States.

Information reaching supporters of the memorial in this state indicates that the financial problem will be met. Several wealthy persons have listened sympathetically to the plan, and it is understood one New York multimillionaire virtually has agreed to finance the project single-handed.

Boy Finds It Difficult to Live on $12,000 a Year

Honolulu.—Mrs. Elizabeth Knight of Los Angeles, Cal., recently appeared with her twelve-year-old grandson, Richard Parker Smart, before Judge John R. Desha of the Court of Domestic Relations, and complained that it has been very difficult for young Richard to live within his annual allowance of $12,000.

The boy, owner of the large Parker ranch on the island of Hawaii, is reputed to be a millionaire. The grandmother, as his guardian, petitioned the court to increase the allowance to $16,500, which was granted.

Mrs. Knight told the court that the servants employed in her home for the benefit of young Richard cost approximately $400 a month. In addition to the increased annual allowance the court authorized an expenditure of $2,500 to cover the cost of the boy's vacation in Hawaii and $1,800 for distribution by the youngster among the employees of his cattle ranch when he visits his property to be the guest of the staff and cowboys.

Would Use Blimp in Flight to North Pole

Washington.—Lighter-than-air machines, like the dirigibles Shenandoah and Los Angeles, are in the opinion of Commander Donald B. MacMillan, the type of craft best suited to overcome the ice hazards that the Far North presents to the explorer.

Continually drifting ice floes, he has radioed the National Geographic society, make uncertain the landing of heavier-than-air machines, as one day a fjord may be open only to be ice-bound the next.

Under such conditions, he said, a cache established by an airplane, "is not a help, but a menace, for if depended upon and a plane arrives out of fuel, destruction is certain."

"The lighter-than-air machines can do the work," he added, "and should do it at the earliest opportunity."

U. S. Tourists to Cuba to Get Tax Exemption

Havana.—Citizens of the United States will receive the same privileges given Cuban citizens by the Immigration authorities, under a recent department ruling.

The treasury department has exempted tourists and other travelers from payment of the one-quarter of one per cent tax on money above $50 taken out of the country by travelers. Secretary of the Treasury Cartaya authorized steamship companies to issue identification cards to passengers, which, on their leaving the country, absolves them from either making a statement as to the amount of money they are carrying or payment of the tax.

Coolidge Sets Record

Swampscott, Mass.—Regardless of all that is said of President Coolidge's aloofness, records show he shook hands with 46,011 persons last year. No former President ever shook hands with so many in one year.

MADE BILLIONS OF BILLS, BUT WORKS

Aged Man Printed Notes for U. S. for 65 Years.

Washington.—If Edward Meyers of this city had kept all the money he made during the 65 years of work since he was a boy of twelve he would be one of the richest men in the world today. Instead, at seventy-seven, gray-haired and bent, he is still forced to work for his living as a watchman in the Treasury building.

Yet Meyers figures that since he was twelve, when he started work as a messenger boy for the Western Bank Note company of Chicago, he has made more than $50,000,000,000. During one period of about six months a few years ago he made something over $1,000,000 every day. For, you see, Edward Meyers before they retired him from active duty in the bureau of engraving and printing three months ago, was a plate printer. The vast fortunes in money he made were not for him, but Uncle Sam, to put into circulation in the banks of the country.

When Meyers retired from the engraving bureau it was with a record as one of the most expert plate printers in the history of the treasury.

Besides printing bills of every denomination since 1904, when he joined the bureau, Meyers has turned out Liberty bonds, certificates of indebtedness, savings certificates, war savings, revenue stamps and other government certificates.

Meyers represented the government as demonstrator at exhibits of the engraving and printing bureau at five great exhibitions.

His last demonstrating service for the bureau was in October, 1924, when he demonstrated the plate printing art at the annual Electrical Industrial exposition in New York, held under the auspices of Thomas A. Edison.

And now, at seventy-seven, they have retired him, and though he has made a matter of $50,000,000,000 during his lifetime, they have availed him naught, and he is still a wage-earner.

BEES DON'T HURT HIM

Charles Bangham of Wilmington, Ohio, who is known as the boy bee wizard of that section. Just to show how he can handle the treacherous honey bee, he scooped up an entire form and covered himself as shown in the picture, and then rid himself of the bees without injury to himself. He is eighteen years of age.

Jew Saves "Church of the Presidents"

Long Beach, N. J.—St. James' Protestant Episcopal church here, in which six Presidents of the United States have worshipped, was saved from the auctioneer's hammer by Ernest Levy of Long Beach and New York, a Jew, who paid in full the city's assessment of $600 for a paving tax.

Bernard Sandler of Long Beach, who presented the check for the full amount of the assessment to Rt. Rev. Albion N. Knight, bishop coadjutor of New Jersey, said on behalf of Mr. Levy that the sale of the chapel would have been a "sacrilege."

"It has become a national shrine, in a way, the Westminster abbey of America," Mr. Sandler said. "Neither Mr. Levy nor myself belong to your religious faith, but we both worship the same God."

U. S. Buys Own Bonds to Wipe Out Big Debt

Washington.—The treasury is taking advantage of current prices for government bonds by buying them for the sinking fund, which eventually will wipe out the national debt.

Since July 1, $26,000,000 worth of third Liberty bonds have been repurchased for this purpose.

The third Liberties which have been obtained would have fallen due in 1928, and because of this early maturity the premium is lower ordinarily than on other government securities.

It is considered probable that the treasury that a very large portion of the entire sinking fund for the current year, which will total upward of $300,000,000, will be devoted to retiring such portions of the third loan as the government may be enabled to buy.

Shoes Require Whole Hide

Omaha, Neb.—A pair of specially made 15½ shoes are being completed by a local merchant for a 250-pound South Dakota farmer at a cost of $20. The shoes, when completed, will have required two days' labor and most of a kangaroo hide. They will be 14 inches long and have a spread of five inches at the widest point.

FURNISHES BOOKS TO WORLD'S EXILES

Church Club Aids Workers in Remote Places.

New York.—The Church Periodical club, a unique co-operating agency of the Episcopal church, has prepared an appeal to the general convention of the church at New Orleans for books, magazines, pamphlets, even newspapers—old and new, and on every subject—to carry on the work which it voluntarily assumed 37 years ago.

This organization's task is to keep the mission workers of the church, especially in the out-of-the-way places of the world, supplied with reading matter.

A globe-trotting lady, entering the hut of a missionary in one of these waste places some years ago, found him perched on a ladder, his head bent back, scanning the columns of an old newspaper which had been pasted over a stovepipe hole. It was the only thing he had to read. That was the inspiration for the founding of the club.

In the intervening years its work has extended to every part of the world: It supplies not only Bibles, prayer books and hymnals, but scientific works, fiction, magazines, newspapers, picture cards and calendars, games, sheet music and phonograph records, all free.

It maintains a score of "traveling libraries" and is practically the sole support of a half-dozen well-equipped permanent libraries in various parts of the world.

The particularly appealing feature of the club's work is in supplying reading material to those who are isolated in the far-off places. Children of the missionaries are not neglected, for to them are sent the latest children's books and games.

During the last year 31,761 current periodicals from 13,000 friends of the club were sent to the workers all over the world; 2,188 Bibles were distributed, 8,866 prayer books, 63,399 books of theological or secular character were supplied to institutions or individuals; and 521,188 old magazines and papers, 212,029 Christmas and Easter cards, 33,052 pictures and games and 9,254 pieces of music and records were put into the hands of workers all over the globe who otherwise would have had little, if any, of these diverting agencies of civilization to beguile their leisure hours.

Planned "Gateway of Peace" for War Dead

Geneva, Switzerland.—Col. E. N. House, once personal adviser to President Woodrow Wilson, on making his first visit to the League of Nations he helped to evolve, revealed that he took an option on 1,000 acres along the shore of Lake Lemán, six miles outside of Geneva, when the covenant was being drafted in Paris. The plan was to erect a league palace and a great "gateway of peace" in honor to the war dead, but the idea was abandoned when the United States did not enter the league.

Colonel House told newspaper correspondents that the league was only half a league while the United States, Germany and Russia were outside, and urged American associate membership without covenant obligations.

"Had the United States maintained her word of enthusiasm and joined the league war would have been banished for all time," declared Colonel House. He added that he had embodied the essentials of the peace protocol—arbitration, security and disarmament—in the first draft of the covenant he wrote in 1918, but President Wilson thought he went too far.

Cowboy Killed in Rodeo at Spot He Shot Enemy

Salt Lake City, Utah.—Roy Kivet, twenty-four, cowboy and adopted son of Charles B. Irwin, rancher of Cheyenne, Wyo., was killed when a horse he was riding in a steer-roping contest in a rodeo here fell with him. The rider sustained a broken neck and fractured skull when crushed beneath his mount.

The accident occurred on almost the exact spot and almost a year to the day that Kivet shot and killed Harry Bowles in a rodeo meet here last year. Kivet was acquitted for murder on a plea of self-defense. He also was the second son of Mr. Irwin to die while roping a steer.

No Babies Born in 30 Years on Japanese Isle

Tokyo.—The population of the Ryukyu islands, which lie between Japan and Formosa, is rapidly dying off, declared S. Sakurai, a health officer of the Okinawa prefecture, who attended the recent health conference in Tokyo. Malaria is blamed principally for the decrease. In eight villages of the Yoyama group, it was said, not a baby has been born for 30 years.

In Nozoko village, Mr. Sakurai said, one sick old woman was the only inhabitant. In 1922 an appropriation of 10,000 yen was made by the government to combat malaria in the islands.

Make Cotton Substitute

Reutlingen.—Cutting of cotton imports into Germany by half may result from a new method of weaving cloth with hemp, invented by the German textile expert, Doctor Gminder. The hemp, it is expected, will replace in part the cotton formerly used in the cloth. There are about 5,000,000 acres of moorland in Germany adapted to the raising of hemp.

Trade Wind Nothing to Do With Commerce

The best-known wind in the world is the trade wind. It is commonly assumed that the word is connected with trade or commerce, because in the old sailing-ship days mariners used to seek this wind that it might blow them steadily in the right direction, be dependable, and not subject to variation or calm. This is a common error.

In Anglo-Saxon it was the treadwind, a wind with a specific tread, trend or direction.

The trade wind, then, is one of uniform track. In the northern hemisphere these winds blow from the northeast, and in the southern hemisphere from the southeast, about thirty degrees on each side of the equator. In some places they blow six months in one direction and six in the opposite.

The mistral is another famous wind. It is a violent northwest wind blowing down the Gulf of Lyons and felt particularly in the neighborhood of Marseilles. The simoon is a hot, suffocating wind that blows in northern Africa and Arabia. The sirocco blows from north Africa over Italy.

Bees Not Permitted to Roam at Large

In the great plum-growing districts of northern California bees are being caged with the trees to insure pollination of the blossoms with pollen only from other trees of equal quality, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Much loss has been occasioned to growers in the past due to cross-fertilization of their pure-bred plums with pollen from wild species and inferior varieties of the domestic fruit, resulting in crops of poorer grade and smaller size. A framework covered with strong mosquito net is built around each tree and a hive of bees is installed in the inclosure when the blossoms begin to appear. Freshly cut flowers from plum trees of equally good grade with the one caged are supplied to the insects each day and from these blossoms the little workers carry the pollen to their home tree. Cages have also been equipped with wheels so that an entire orchard can be covered with the inclosures in a short time.

Romance of Flowers

A great many of the flowers so well beloved bear names taken from human beings and are recorded in classic legends. Take, for instance, the hyacinth and narcissus. "Hyacinthus" was beloved by Zephyrus, but returned the affection so coldly that the latter, in anger, threw the quail (flung by Apollo) so that it hit Hyacinthus on the head, causing his death. In his grief Apollo changed the youth's blood into the flower. Narcissus, according to one legend, fell in love with his own fair image as he saw it reflected in water, mistaking it for the nymph of the fountain. He pined away and died of unrequited love. The flower bloomed from the place where he languished. Crocus is the Greek "Krokos," saffron, to which family it belongs. Saffron is made from the dried stigmata of the purple crocus. The Jonquil gets its name from the Latin word for a "rush," which has similar leaves and flowers.—The Flower Grower.

Gold Mine Rediscovered

A gold mine was recently discovered in Mexico by the presence of cockroaches. The mine was known to the Spaniards in the days of Cortes, who, on account of the number of cockroaches near the entrance, dubbed it Cucaracha, which, being interpreted, is the cockroach. It yielded a steady supply of gold until 1812, and during that troubled year it was sealed up and its site forgotten, though its story was remembered. A young prospector, finding a rock swarming with these insects, recalled the story, followed their trail, and found the mine, which now, after a century of idleness, is again being worked.—Family Herald.

No Pedigree

A rather mussy little urchin wandered up on the porch and began to play with Donald Smith, whose mother is quite fastidious as to playmates for her small son.

"Where's he from?" mother asked Donald in an aside, and not getting a satisfactory explanation, she called Donald into the house, which disgusted him entirely.

"Now, mother," he argued, "can't just this one boy play with me without being from anywhere?"

Tree Yields Rich Milk

A tree in the West Indies, known to the natives as the hyahya, yields from its bark and pith a juice richer and thicker than cow's milk. The people who live where the hyahya grows use its juice as we do milk. The tree when full grown is almost 40 feet high and 18 inches in circumference.

The Singhalese have a tree, the kirighuma, which yields a milky fluid, while in the forests of Para grows the massendodron, another species of milk tree.—Detroit News.

White Gold

This metal is an alloy of gold, nickel and palladium, a rare metal of the platinum group. Pure gold is 24 carats fine. The fine gold most seen is 18 carat—18 parts of gold and six of palladium and nickel. There are various formulas, in which the proportions of the latter metals differ. Green gold is similarly alloyed with silver, red with copper, and blue and gray with iron.

In the JUNGLE

With Cheerups and the Quixies
By Grace Bliss Stewart

DROMEDARY'S TEMPER

NOT in all the Great Desert is there a worse disposition than Don Dromedary's. He just can't help snarling and scolding.

He is the most valuable beast of burden in the world, because he can travel across the hot dry desert for days without anything to eat or drink. There are no trains in the Desert and even horses can't go very far, because there is no water except at the small spots called Oases, and they are many miles apart. The Dromedary, who is a very fast traveler, and his slower cousin, the Camel, are useful in other ways also to the Arab who lives in the Desert. He drinks their milk, makes tents and rugs of their skins and weaves clothes of their fine silky hair.

The Jungle Was Many Miles Away; Don Dromedary Knew It.

Oh, yes, Don Dromedary knew he was useful, but it didn't make him happy.

"I am going to break loose if I can," said he to himself one warm starry night, when the caravan had stopped to rest. "I'm going to find that wise Cheerups everyone is talking about, and ask him if he doesn't think mine is a very hard lot. I guess I can do it now without being noticed; Master's asleep."

The Jungle was many miles away, and Don Dromedary knew it. "But miles are nothing to the Ship of the Desert," muttered he to himself, as he ran with long swinging strides.

"Well, here's for it," said Don, as he plunged down the winding way. "I'm not so well acquainted here though, as out in the open. Maybe I'd better stop and get my bearings. Let me see, there's the tall palm tree and the Great Breadfruit tree, but what in the world is that?"

"That's what I say, too," cried a small jolly voice out of the darkness. "I was just having my first forty winks, and I'd like to know who comes calling on Cheerups at this time of night."

"Oh, Mr. Cheerups, is that really you?" cried Don Dromedary. "I have broken away from the caravan, asleep under the stars, and come many miles to see you. For once in my life I am lucky!"

"Once in your life, you say?" mumbled Cheerups sleepily. "Well, aren't you ashamed, Don Dromedary? You are one of the luckiest in all the Great Desert."

"But I am not satisfied," snarled Don, with a sneer on his surly curly lips. "I'm not satisfied."

"What is the trouble?" asked Cheerups kindly.

"Everything is the trouble, sir," grumbled Don. "Nothing is right. In the first place, when I am on a long journey across the Desert, I rarely get anything to eat. Sometimes my master gives me a few dates, but I'm lucky if I find a thorn bush to nibble on."

"But there's your splendid fat hump from which your body gets its food all through the trip," cried Cheerups. "A very handy way of carrying your lunch when you are traveling, I should say. To be sure, your hump is flat when you reach your destination because it has all been used, but a few weeks of hearty eating fills it up again."

"Of course, that is true," admitted Don, "but I seldom have a drink of water on the journey."

"Now, Don Dromedary, how can you complain, with all those deep cells full of water in your stomach. You can carry over a gallon, enough to quench your thirst for five or six days."

"You are right about the water, Mr. Cheerups," said Don; "but how would you like to tramp along, day in and day out, in soft heavy sand?"

"Just look at your feet," cried Cheerups, who was beginning to be a little impatient with this fussy complainer. "They are made with broad spreading cushions so you don't sink into the sand at all. A horse with his small hard hoofs would be tired in two hours' travel over the Desert. I should think Softfoot had been fitting the magic slippers on you, your feet are so beautifully padded."

"I don't care," grunted the fretful Don. "I have to stand while terrible standstills rage about me and my master lies face downward on the ground and avoids most of it."

"Yes, most of it, most of it, sir, but not all of it, as you do. If you weren't such a naughty, spoiled boy, Don Dromedary, I'd have to laugh," said Cheerups, smiling. "You are really too absurd! Why, you can close your nostrils to keep the sand out, and your long thick eyelashes protect your eyes. I'm ashamed of you!"

"Well, anyway, I'm cross and unhappy," snapped the great black Dromedary.

"That's the whole truth," cried Cheerups gleefully. "It's a new disposition you need! Your bad temper is all that makes you miserable. No one can make you kind, good-natured and contented but yourself, Don Dromedary. Now go back to the caravan and try to be cheerful and look on the best side of things. You will find that not only you yourself will be happier, but every one who knows you."

Poor Don was really ashamed by this time. He knew so well that all Cheerups had said was true that he couldn't look him in the eye. In a very small voice, with his head hanging almost to the ground, he said, "Really, I will try to be good, Mr. Cheerups. Thank you." Then he turned about and dashed back into the Desert.

AN ABBREVIATED STORY

QUININE SPONSON

"WHY so moody, Peroxide?" Quinine Sponson asked his wife as he looked up from the morning paper. "You haven't addressed so much as a comma to me all during breakfast. You're not mad, are you?"

"Yes," snapped Peroxide flippantly.

"Is it because I put that block of ice cream between your sheets before you went to bed last night?"

"No. I didn't mind that so much."

"Are you angry because I brought those six chorus girls home for dinner yesterday?"

"No. Men will be men."

"Can it be that you resent my cutting your allowance in half because of the increase in the cost of cigars?"

"No. I regarded that as a mere whim."

"Well, then, what can it be?"

With one pull of the tablecloth, Mrs. Sponson sent all the breakfast things flying to the four walls.

"It's your miserable habit of sticking your wet spoon in the sugar bowl, that's what it is! You've done it five times in five minutes, and now I'm through with you!—through! through! through!"

Soon afterwards the divorce was granted and they lived happily ever after.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day, lucky jewel

RUBY

THERE seems to be no reference of the first appearance of jewels as feminine names. Neither the Bible nor early history shows evidence of this tendency to name women after gems. Indeed etymologists do not recognize Ruby and her sister names as names at all and they are not listed in the lists of cognomen.

Ruby has many equivalents in Sanskrit and among the Hindus, who regarded the gem as the king of precious stones, but none of them are capable of usage as a proper name. Undoubtedly, Ruby was first bestowed upon a child with the idea of likening it to the pulsing, glowing, flame-hearted gem. It may even be that some superstitious mother believed that she would confer upon her wee babe the heritage of the ruby, which is wealth, power and the adulation of fellowmen.

The name made its first appearance in England, where it was a favorite with music-hall actresses. Its advent in this country was less spectacular but it has never ceased to be a popular stage name. The regal gem, for which it stands, must have given it popularity, for there is nothing striking in either its history or its prevalence.

Ruby's talismanic stone is, of course, the one which she personifies. If old legend be correct, she will be blessed among women in possessing all the material benefits of this world and will, furthermore, be protected from disease and accidents. Thursday is her lucky day and 1 her lucky number. (© by Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

MONGOLS HALT U. S. EXPLORERS

Order American Asiatic Expedition Out of Country.

Urga, Mongolia.—The Mongolian government has ordered the third Asiatic expedition of the American Museum of Natural History, under the leadership of Roy Chapman Andrews, to cease its exploration and scientific work and to leave Mongolian territory, alleging that Mr. Andrews has violated the terms of his agreement with Mongolian scientific organizations.

The Mongolian government alleges that besides carrying out his scientific work in the domain of paleontology, geology and zoology, Mr. Andrews' expedition also has engaged in topographical observation work and has employed a number of suspicious—in a military sense—persons.

Mr. Andrews also is accused of carrying on political propaganda and stirring up the Mongolians against "the Red Bolsheviks."

Long Having Trouble.

New York.—Expulsion of the Andrews expedition from Mongolia was not unexpected, officials of the American Museum of Natural History said, since Roy Chapman Andrews, the leader, recently reported "unusually difficult conditions" in his relations with the territorial authorities.

Museum officials are hopeful, despite the expulsion order, that the situation might be clarified before the expedition actually quits the territory.

Finds Sand-Dune Race.

Peking.—Stone implements and weapons of a race of men who lived thousands of years ago among sand dunes on the shore of a lake since swallowed up by the Gobi desert, have been found far in the interior of Mongolia by the expedition under Mr. Andrews.

These primitive men bored the shells and made ornaments of the eggs left by the dinosaur, the giant reptile that roamed the Asiatic uplands some ten million years ago, Mr. Andrews said. They used for the same purpose the shells of a gigantic ostrich, long since extinct.

Traces of Earliest Man.

Mr. Andrews believes his expedition has uncovered traces of the earliest type of men yet discovered. He has named them the "dune dwellers of Shabarack Ussu," using the name of the site of the find. "In these dune dwellers," he said, "we believe we have found the earliest type of man in his development from the ape."

Since entering Mongolia last spring the expedition has traversed more than 4,000 miles, penetrating as far as the Altai mountains in far western Mongolia.

Learns Stranger Who

Aided Him Is Brother

Lancaster, Pa.—"Hello, need any help?"

"Could stand a little—I'm kind of stuck with this thing."

An automobile bearing a California license had drawn up alongside a small truck that had developed trouble along the old Philadelphia turnpike in the vicinity of Witmer. The driver of the car had seen the plight of the truck driver and was willing to give assistance. The two men joined forces and soon had the truck in running order.

Then the owner of the truck noticed that his newly made acquaintance was a Californian.

"I've got a brother somewhere in California that I haven't seen for 17 years. Maybe you know him? He's Milton Harnish; I'm Aaron Harnish and live over here at Witmer."

"Maybe I do," replied the stranger, as he drove away.

Later in the day Aaron Harnish returned home and was surprised to find his acquaintance of the road sitting on the porch.

"Hello, Aaron," said the stranger. "I'm your brother, Milt. First time home in 17 years. I live in Los Angeles."

Prison Reform Laws Help to Empty Britain's Jails

London.—Probationary methods for adults and the "Borstal" treatment for young people have been responsible for a marked decrease in the population of British prisons, so much so that more than twenty jails in England and Wales, or one-third of the total, have been closed since 1914.

There are now only about forty prisons in use throughout the country and these are not fully occupied.

A home office official says fewer and fewer people are being committed to prison because the tendency now is to reform a man or woman if it be at all possible. The increased use of probationary methods has worked well, and in the opinion of the official the time is not far distant when prisons will be used only for habitual criminals with whom all attempts at reform have failed.

Wobblies in Jail-Break

Foiled by Cold Water

Fargo, N. D.—I. W. W.'s lodged in the Cass county jail here attempted to break for freedom, smashing doors and wrecking cells. Freedom was within reach.

Unable to cope with the prisoners single handed, Sheriff John Ross issued an "SOS" call to the local fire department.

Eight-inch streams of water were played on the rioting prisoners until they retreated to their cells.

Lesson for October 25

PAUL IN EPHESUS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 19:1-41.
GOLDEN TEXT—"For the love of money is the root of all evil."—1 Tim. 6:10.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Tells Idol-Makers About Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul's Preaching Stirs Up a Riot.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Diana or Christ.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Money or Christ.

Apollos, an Alexandrian Jew, an eloquent man and mighty in the Scriptures, had preceded Paul at Ephesus. He had diligently taught the things of the Lord, knowing only the baptism of John. When Aquila and Priscilla heard him they perceived his lack of instruction in Christian truth. Therefore, they took him and expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly. Having thus come into fuller light, the brethren gave him a letter of endorsement as he passed to other fields.

I. John's Disciples Become Christians (vv. 1-7).

These 12 disciples had been taught only the baptism of repentance as a preparation for the kingdom of God. Paul taught them to believe on Christ, i. e., to receive Him as the One on the cross who had provided redemption for them. When they received Christ, Paul laid hands upon them and they received the Holy Spirit.

II. Paul Preaching in Ephesus (vv. 8-10).

1. In the Jewish Synagogue (v. 8). Though the Jews were Paul's inveterate enemies, his rule was to go to them first with the gospel. His preaching was characterized:

(1) By boldness. He realized that God sent him, and that His authority was back of him.

(2) By reason. God's message is in accord with the highest reason.

(3) By persuasion. It is not enough to come boldly with a reasonable message, it must be accompanied by persuasion.

(4) By speaking, "concerning the kingdom of God." He did not discourse on current events, literature or philosophy, but upon the message of salvation through Christ.

2. In the Schoolhouse of Tyrannus (vv. 9-10).

The Jews, being enemies of the gospel of the grace of God, were only hardened by Paul's earnest preaching. Paul separated the disciples from them and resorted to the schoolhouse of Tyrannus. This was followed with glorious results.

III. God Working Miracles by Paul (vv. 11-16).

Ephesus was noted for its wonder workers. If Paul's ministry was to be successful here, God must in an extraordinary way put His seal upon His work. So wonderfully did He manifest His power that handkerchiefs and aprons brought from Paul's body healed the sick and cast out evil spirits.

IV. A Glorious Awakening (vv. 17-41).

1. Fear Falls Upon All (v. 17). News of the casting out of these evil spirits created impressions favorable to Christianity.

2. It Brought to the Front Those Who Professed Faith in Christ, While Not Living Right Lives (v. 18). They believed but had not broken from sin.

3. Gave Up the Practice of Black Arts (v. 19). This means forms of jugglery by use of charms and magical words. They proved the genuineness of their actions by publicly burning their books.

4. Upbraod of the Silversmith at Ephesus (vv. 23-41).

(1) The Occasion (vv. 23-24).

This was the power of the gospel in destroying the infamous business of Demetrius and his followers. It was clear to them that idolatry was tottering before the power of the gospel.

(2) The Method (vv. 25-29).

Demetrius, a leading business man, whose business was the stay of others of a similar nature, called a meeting and stated that much people had been turned from idolatry, and that the market for their wares was materially weakened. He appealed to his followers:

a. On the ground of business, saying: "This, our craft, is in danger of being set at naught." v. 27.

b. On the ground of religious prejudice. He said: "The temple of the great goddess Diana shall be despised" (v. 27). His speech gained his end.

Christianity

Christianity is no mere scheme of doctrine or of ethical practice, but is instead a kind of miracle, a power out of nature and above, descending into it; a historically supernatural movement on the world, that is visibly entered into it, and organized to be an institution in the person of Jesus Christ.—Horace Bushnell.

Our New Americans—How They Help Us and How We Can Help Them

Deuteronomy 10:12-22; Luke 7:1-5

Our new Americans bring to us their history and traditions as well as the numerical power necessary for the development of commerce and industry. According to one authority on the matter, most of the new comers to this country leave their religion behind. This gives an opening to antichristian and radical propaganda offered to our new Americans daily, either in print or by the spoken word. The religion left behind is often of a superstitious nature and fails to hold the new comers in the land where liberty and democracy are enjoyed. A certain percentage of Roman Catholic immigrants are drafted into the church here but the percentage is not large.

We must help them by the process of Americanizing and Christianizing. This work belongs to the government, the schools and the church. The brunt of the task lies with the church and though much has been done by various churches through evening classes, club work and missions, yet far better and more comprehensive work is necessary. Members of Young People's Societies should ally themselves with Christian agencies that help the new comers and especially those that endeavor to carry the truth of the gospel in its saving power to them.

The following facts taken from The Forum, June 1925, show that much is being done along this very line: Thirty-five years ago, there was in New York City only one Protestant Italian Church; today, in greater New York, there is an Italian Ministerial Association which includes more than sixty ministers and as many churches and missions. Recently one of these Presbyterian Italian churches received ninety-six new members at one time—all of them converts from Romanism.

Example of Chivalry Among Lower Animals?

An unusual "big brother" act among animals is described by a park naturalist who saw a large marmot or woodchuck attack and drive off a mink after the latter had captured and fatally wounded a ground squirrel.

The scene of the little drama was near the bridge over Lava creek, a small stream in the northern part of Yellowstone park. After describing the capture of the luckless squirrel, the naturalist goes on to say:

"While the squirrel was struggling in the clutches of the mink a large woodchuck, apparently attracted by the squealing of the squirrel, came and stood on his hind legs a moment to review the scene, then ran straight for the point of battle. The mink raised his head just in time to see the marmot and escape him by rushing to the bank of the nearby creek; the marmot followed, but too slowly.

"The railing of the creek bridge is supported by low uprights with leaning braces of timber. On one of these braces the marmot climbed, facing the squirrel left dying in the road some yards away; then he calmly proceeded to wash his face with his front paws. Apparently the 'big brother' act is an old story in the wild animal world, like so many other things which we have thought human, only to discover, upon investigation, that we have merely adopted them with human procrastination.

"In a former year I once saw a mink deliberately attack a marmot of medium size. In this case the contestants, after a fierce battle, finally called it a draw."

No Give at All

Secretary A. D. Smith of the American Peace Society said in an eloquent and optimistic address:

"The road to world peace looks long, but there is an end to it, after all, and a speedier end, maybe, than we think.

"Let us hope I don't let us imitate the discouraged pacifist, who growled: 'Oh, yes, we pacifists will never give in; but, then, you know the militarists will never give out.'"

QUALITY AT LOW COST

Assertion Made That Lying Is Necessary

Falsehoods are necessary to the maintenance of civilization, in the opinion of a psychologist, as expressed in a talk recently before a large gathering at the Nuuanu (Honolulu) Y. M. C. A.

People could not live together if the world adhered to the principles of "the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth," he added.

"We could not have a group of people, consequently no cities, towns or communities, if we told the truth all the time. We must tell lies. We have to be honest, but at times it is necessary for us to lie for the welfare of the community."

He illustrated his conviction by recalling a wager between two men, one of whom declared he could refrain from falsehood for a period of 24 hours. The men visited the home of a friend where one of the daughters was playing the piano.

"The playing was very poor and when asked his opinion of the music, the man answered that it was punk, whereupon he was kicked out of the house," the lecturer said. "This situation continued throughout the 24-hour period and would be what would happen if we all endeavored to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth."

Cats Dodge Electricity

Attendants at the city dog pound are convinced cats either have nine lives or are quicker than electricity. The men have no trouble executing dogs by electrocution, but they have had difficulty sending cats out of the world. Cats taken to the pound for biting persons and later ordered executed have managed to make a flying leap out of the opening to the electric "chair" the instant the current touched them. Sparks even flew from their fur, but otherwise they seemed unhurt. Now the attendants have adopted the expedient of first knocking senseless cats sentenced to death.

An Editor's Blessing.

Blessed are the merchants who advertise because they believe in it and in their business; for their prosperity shall increase many fold. Blessed are the country correspondents who send in their well-written items every week; for fame of their friendly neighborhoods shall go abroad in the land. Blessed is the woman who sends in a written account of a party or wedding; for she shall see the details of the function and the names of her guests correctly reported. Blessed are those who do not expect the editor to know everything, but who call up and tell him whenever an interesting event occurs to them; for they shall have a newsy paper in their town. Blessed are they who get their copy in early; for they shall occupy a warm place in the editor's heart. Blessed are they who co-operate with the editor in his efforts in behalf of the community; for their town shall be known far and wide as a good place in which to live.—Vilas County News, Eagle River, Wisconsin.

Don't get sore if you are arrested for hunting on land, without permission. How would you like it yourself, if you owned land?

LAST PAGE EDITORIAL.

—or—What?

A lot of school boys and girls—youths and near young ladies—care free and lively, full of the boisterousness of health, and life in the opening. What is their mental attitude toward their big opportunity now before them, but which will never come again. Are they thinking seriously of their chance, or—what?

We want things, because we want them. We see others have them, and we are as good as they—barring the mere matter of not having "the price." We get the desired articles "on time." Do we seriously and surely mean to pay for them, or—what?

We own a home, not paid for. We also own a "kizzie" just about paid for. Our house needs paint, and we need a lot of machinery and household helps. We also want a new "car." Do we go ahead and get it, or—what?

Money is scarce. Somehow we don't have the same sized "roll" in our pocket that we had some years ago, and our bank book does not show where it went. Are the times wrong now, or were we wrong then, or—what?

Somehow, things are not going just right. We don't "get there" fast enough—others do, we think—but somebody, or something, is keeping us back, taking our share. Have we mental indigestion, or—What?

Enough for contentment is a great thing, when we have it. Do we often want more, when we already have plenty, or—what?

Lots of people are smoking 2 for 25, and 3 for 50 cigars, as a regular thing, and lots of others smoke a pipe—also as a regular thing. We wonder whether the latter actually like the pipe best, or—what?

Parent-Teachers' Meeting.

The Parent-Teachers' Association of the Taneytown High School will meet in the Opera House, on Monday evening, Oct. 26, at 8:00 o'clock, to which the public is cordially invited. The following health program will be rendered:

A song by grades 5 and 6, "An Autumn Lullaby." Recitation, Recipe for an Appetite by Robert Benner; Recitation, "Health Rhymes," by Margaret Elliot; "A Tooth brush song" by four girls; An illustrated class recitation "Good Health" by eleven boys and girls; A violin solo by Prof. Sarbaugh, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Sarbaugh; Recitation, "True Cleanliness," by Helen Sarbaugh; Recitation, "We're all good Citizens," by Clara Bricker; Class Recitation, "Health Rhymes," by five boys; Recitation, "Motors," Isabel Elliot; Recitation, "Little Boy Blue," by Albert Angell; solo by Miss Gertrude Morgan, Supervisor of music for Carroll County schools; an Address, "The Proper Foods for Growing Children," by Miss Maude Manahan, Carroll County Health Nurse.

Come and hear this program which we hope will please you; we are sure you will enjoy the musical numbers, and also the address by Miss Manahan. After the program has been rendered the patrons of the school will hold a reception for the teachers of the school.

CARD OF THANKS.

To all those who so kindly helped my wife and daughter with my work while being confined at the Maryland General Hospital. I want to extend to them my gratitude and thanks.
