State vs. Clyde Davis, charge, selling liquor; tried before the Court. Verdict of not guilty. Edw. O. Weant, Attorney for traverser.

Poultry Shippers Warned.

A warning to poultry shippers to be on guard against unknown and unreliable individuals who pose as reputable poultry dealers has been issued by Dr. F. B. Bomberger, chief of the State Department of Markets, at the suggestion of J. W. Lloyd, chairman of the Committee on Sales and Consignments of the National Association of Marketing Officials.

"Nearly every year shortly before Thanksgiving and Christmas," says Mr. Lloyd, "certain unreliable persons, posing as poultry dealers of repute, send out quotations to farmers soliciting shipments of poultry and making quotations considerably higher than the market conditions warrant."

"Many farmers are attracted by these high quotations and ship their poultry to these persons who are utter strangers to them and about whose financial standing and reputation know nothing. Farmers who make shipments to such firms are assuming a great risk, for in many cases it has happened that the receivers of the poultry fail to pay for the goods and if the farmers try to look them up and secure settlement, it is usually found that they have moved to another city and left no forwarding address."

"Shipments of poultry should be made only to firms whose financial standing and reliability are fully assured. In the absence of personal information regarding the dealer to whom a farmer contemplates shipping poultry, it is perfectly feasible to find out the standing of any city firm by consulting your local banker, since he has the rating of every city dealer who has any real standing in the business world. It is not safe to risk shipments to any firms which have no commercial rating."—Md. Extension Service.

Marriage Licenses.

Gorman A. Hann and Katherine B. Eaton, Reisterstown, Md.

Roy M. Mann and Florence R. Myerly, Westminster.

Robert F. Dinast and Helen Taylor Knight, Patapsco.

Maurice T. Wilhelm and LaRue V. Leister, Westminster.

Melvin E. Bull and Mildred C. Cox, Hampstead.

Charles Arthur Martin and Anna Ethel Wolfgang, Parkton.

Roy F. Grimm and Helen M. Barnes, Woodbine.

Harvey L. Auckey and Blanche F. Miller, Codorus, Pa.

George K. Gettings and Carolyn G. Bevard, Sykesville.

THE BLUE PRINT JOB.

Its Importance in a Large Manufacturing Plant.

Our friend, and former employee, John J. Reid, now has charge of all the "blue prints" in a large Detroit manufacturing plant, and some may wonder, as we did, just what this job means. In a recent personal letter to the Editor, John made the matter clear, and as we are sure the story will be of interest to many who know him, we are reproducing the essential facts connected with such a position.

There are five cribs in all, containing over 50,000 prints. In every large factory, everything from the smallest rivet to the largest piece used—whether it is made in the factory or bought outside, is on a print. These prints are made from tracings on vellum, or specially tough thin paper, and then run through the blue print machine, where by the aid of powerful electric lights they are transferred on the special blue paper, which is like paper used in photography, not so highly sensitive.

Girls usually run these machines and cut the prints apart, and the ones that go into the "Crib" are sent to me, when my work on them begins. I must check them with my books, so that the same number is in the crib as on the Records in the office. Then all the old prints must be pulled out of the Crib, or be collected from the men in the factory, and the changed ones—or up-to-date ones—given to them. The new ones are entered in books, and placed in file.

When I first took charge, I found that the man who preceded me, and who was with the Company over 14 years, had kept his records mostly in his "noodle," as my assistant said. I had the crib checked, as I did not like the idea of being responsible for what another man had been doing so many years. Two young fellows from the Engineer's office spent from two to four hours overtime every evening and Saturdays, for 13 weeks, in that work, so you can see that I have a large lot of prints to look after.

They found hundreds of mistakes, and how the Department ever got away with it I cannot imagine, for the blue print crib, is called, in factory language, the "Heart of the Factory" for everything, as I said above, is worked out from Prints furnished by it.

I have a good assistant, who hands out the prints and takes in the tool checks for them. So do not have to worry about the window of the crib. I must be doing things near right, for all my superior officers have complimented me on the condition the crib is kept in, and have especially approved the new system of book-keeping I have worked out for the Department."

For Near East Relief.

The authorized chairman in Carroll county in the sections named, for Golden Rule Sunday, December 6, as announced by Maryland Headquarters Near East Relief, are as follows:

Carrollton, Mrs. Gussie J. Blizard, Miss Sue E. Kelley.
Detour, Mrs. Scott Koons.
Eldersburg, Miss Jennie Backer.
Finksburg, Mrs. O. D. Buckington.
Gaithersburg, Mrs. O. M. Griffith.
Gamber, J. C. Shasman.
Hampstead, Gordon Armacost.
Mrs. J. Wm. Kelbaugh.
Harney, Mrs. Cora Lambert.
Keymar, T. M. Stoner, J. A. Koons.
Kaysville, Mrs. Alfred Stonesifer.
Kump, T. B. Bowers.
Lincolnton, Miss Doris Stick.
Linwood, Jesse P. Garner.
Manchester, Miss Margaret Crouse.
Millers, Emory W. Hare.
Mount Airy, Jesse P. King.
Patapsco, H. G. Weaver.
Pleasant Valley, John Sent.
Piney Creek, Norman R. Hess.
Silver Run, Samuel B. Hawk.
Sykesville, Harry J. Koller.
Taneytown, Carroll C. Hess.
Union Bridge, Harry Wolf.
Union Mills, George W. Bankert.
Watersville, Miss Hattie Porter.
Westminster, J. Pearre Wantz.
Woodbine, John W. Shoemaker.

Not Giving Advice.

We do not intend to "advise" anybody to do their Christmas shopping, early. That was out of date, twenty years ago—Nobody wants such advice, and nobody takes it. Some do shop early without anybody advising it, just as some always display good judgment, and some do not, all the year around. A little thing like the coming of December 25 will not change anybody's habits.

Neither will we "advise" anybody to read the advertisements in the Record. The best we can do is put them there, for anybody to read, who cares to. Of course, we think it pays people to read them, as well as it pays business men to pay for them; but, giving advice of this kind don't pay.

Most people, somehow, resent advice from others, even though they like to give it, themselves. It's queer, but true. We do not even "advise" sending the Record to somebody for a Christmas gift. We think it would be a good thing to do—but, we merely suggest it, and do not "advise" it. We have subscriptions to sell; so, should we "advise" people to buy, we would merely be forwarding our self-interest, and people prefer to forward their own interests.

Italy has passed a law abolishing "secret societies," largely for the reason that "secret" societies, over there are not mere fraternities, but political organizations.

PLAN TO FINANCE RETEST OF CATTLE

Held to be Justifiable as an Emergency Measure.

The Governor has approved a plan for raising $50,000 for the retesting of tested herds of cattle. The plan is to borrow from banks, on notes or warrants, that will provide that the farmers will repay the banks if the legislature fails to make the appropriation.

The plan is practically the same as that proposed by the Commissioners of Carroll County for financing the completion of the Taneytown High School building—the issue of "warrants" to bridge over the time until the county treasury can meet them. It is a way of meeting an unusual emergency, without violating the laws, but it requires the co-operation of a second party, or co-borrower.

Pressure was brought to bear on the Governor to call a special session of the legislature, which he declined to do. "That request could not be granted," he asserted, "because, obviously, the fact that a board spends in one year nearly all the money appropriated for three years, when there is no emergency requiring this, does not justify a special session of the Legislature in order to meet the deficiency and get more money than was appropriated."

The Governor will recommend that the legislature pass an act covering this sort of borrowing, both for the re-test of cattle, as well as to cover the warrants already issued for carrying on the first test, due to the annual appropriation of $125,000 having been exceeded. He says:

"This plan does not violate the law prohibiting departments from borrowing in excess of their appropriations, because the farmers borrow the money and not the State, and the State is not legally obligated to repay it. It is true, however, that the State will be morally obligated to repay it."

"I see nothing to justify even this course except the very real and very serious emergency in the case of herds now under supervision which I have explained. If the money is raised, then the herds already tested will be tested again and protected from reinfection, so that the benefits from what has been done will not be lost and new work can start again when the next Legislature makes an appropriation for it."

"If this sum is raised then there will be no cause to fear that herds now clean will be infected again, which, after all, is the important thing to guard against. The new era work must necessarily stop until the next Legislature provides funds to go on with it. The only substantial result of this will be the delay, and actually there will be no delay, because what has really happened is that the work has been done ahead of the legislative schedule for it."

"But if the retesting work is not done the result in herds now under supervision is sure to be that in practically every such herd a comparatively small number of cattle which were infected but not sufficiently infected to react at the original test will develop tuberculosis and reinfect the whole herd."

"This would mean a double loss to the farmer, because instead of losing only the very few cattle which did not react to the first test but did react to the second, his entire herd would be infected all over again, and the benefits from the first test would thus be lost."

"It would also mean a double cost to the State, because the State would ultimately have to pay indemnities for a reinfected herd, instead of for only a few cattle which reacted to the second test."

Mount Airy Water System.

The Frederick News says: "Plans have finally gotten underway in Mt. Airy to equip the town with a water system. Within the next few days or a week drilling will begin on the Amos property, a short distance west of the town, for water. It is hoped that a sufficient flow will be found at this location to provide water for fire protection as well as for domestic use."

The town authorities will erect a large steel tank, with a capacity of 125,000 gallons, on an elevated site near the high school. The tank will be placed on a tower about 90 feet high, which will afford sufficient pressure to convey water to every section of the town. Fire hydrants have been installed in the business section and it is probable that other hydrants will be added later.

Recently a well was sunk to a depth of about 200 feet on the north limits of the town without obtaining a flow of water. The Amos property was then leased and drilling will soon be started at this point."

Frederick Hospital Gets $150,000.

Gifts totaling $150,000 were announced on Wednesday, at a meeting of the hospital managers. Of this amount $100,000 is the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. D. Baker, of Frederick, and $50,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Chas. M. Shank, of Middletown. The money will be used to erect two additional wings, a portion of which will be for colored patients.

LARGEST FARM IN WORLD.

110,000 Acres Under Cultivation, in Montana.

Thomas D. Campbell, of Hardin, Montana, operates the greatest wheat farm in the world—110,000 acres under cultivation, with 90,000 acres more in reserve for future breaking. One of his crops passed the 500,000-bushel mark, 250 men and modern machines doing the work. Each man is equipped to earn the $250 paid in cash and board with a bonus at the end of the season. A tractor pulls a plow, a disc, a seeder and a drag harrow, breaking the land and seeding it at one operation that covers 30 acres a day with two men on the operation.

Another operation used hook-ups 60 feet of drills behind a tractor, two men again handling the operation that seeds 150 acres a day. A discing hook-up covers a 50-foot strip and 120 acres a day with two men.

With 14 tractors following each other, 640 acres were plowed and packed each day without a stop for mechanical trouble, according to Mr. Campbell recently. The harvesting of the wheat is done by two ways the combine thrasher-header averaging 50 acres a day with three men involved, and the binder operation with each tractor pulling six 8-foot binders at a speed of three miles per hour and covering 120 acres a day. The shock loader is used when the binders are operated, these doing the work of 10 men and 20 horses.

By harvesting flax by combine harvesters from windrows, the cost is reduced from 13 to 6 cents a bushel.

In marketing the grain, good roads play a big part. Tractors pull 8 to 16 wagons, each string carry 1,000 to 2,000 bushels of wheat to the elevator 40 miles away. Deep wells furnish water for hot and cold showers, laundry, cooking and drinking.

Management of Furnace for Bituminous (Soft) Coal.

No change in grates is needed to burn bituminous coal in furnaces heretofore using anthracite, except in the case of grates adapted to fine sizes of anthracite where the air passages are small and not easily cleaned.

1—Keep heating surfaces clean.

2—Carry a medium fire (8 to 10 inches).

3—Do not let the fire burn too low.

4—For quick heat fire only a small amount of coal.

5—Study carefully the proper use of the three dampers. Usually it will be found that (a) the pipe or flue damper should be open when firing fresh coal and should be partly closed when the fire is well started; (b) the ash pit damper should be open to start up fire, open a little during the day, but shut at night; (c) the check draft damper should be shut to start up fire, open partly the day and night as experiences shows to be necessary.

6—When fresh coal is fired, admit air over the fire through the slide in the fire door until smoking ceases, and then close the slide.

7—Do not open the fire door to check the fire; learn to use the dampers to control the rate of burning. All air admitted above the fire in excess of that needed for combustion simply cools the heating surfaces which furnish the heat for the house.

8—When firing coal for a long run, or banking for the night, use any fine coals for this purpose that may have accumulated. When banking, live fire should be evenly distributed over the entire grate surface; then apply the fresh coal, banking heaviest along the sides, resulting in a bowl shape formation.

9—Shake out the ashes when necessary, but do not waste coals into the ash pit. Close the ash pit door while shaking.

10—Do not let ashes pile up under the grates. In this way grates "burn out." Grates should last many years.

11—To save the heat made by burning coal, the following suggestions may appeal to some.

(a) Do not heat unused rooms; (b) let in sunshine; (c) pull down shades at night; (d) do not ventilate unnecessarily all night; (e) do not overheat the house—65 to 70 is sufficient for most people; (f) get a thermometer and watch the weather.

To avoid the soft coal dust the fuel should be well wet down before being put into the cellar and the front of the pile kept moist with an occasional bucket or two of water.

Proceedings of the Orphans' Court.

Monday, Nov. 23, 1925—William J. Baker, executor of John A. C. Baker deceased, settled his first and final account.

Clara Smith Billingslea, executrix of Charles Billingslea, deceased, received order to invest funds.

Tuesday, Nov. 24, 1925—James A. C. Bond, executor of Selina Wright Bond, deceased, reported sale personal property and settled his first and final account.

Harvey H. Nott, administrator d. b. n. c. t. a., of Kate L. Sherman, deceased, received order to sell personal property and real estate.

Carrie L. Boone, administratrix of John W. Boone, deceased, filed additional report of sale, settled her first and final account and received order to deposit funds.

Letters of administration on the estate of Mattie M. Stricklin, deceased, were granted unto E. Benton Hann, who received warrant to appraise personal property and order to notify creditors.

THE COAL STRIKE'S NEW SITUATION

President May Ask Congress to Pass New Legislation.

Various reports are afloat as to the coal strike situation, some of which may lead to important results. Early in the week John L. Lewis, on the part of the anthracite Union, sent a letter to President Coolidge that is generally taken to represent a threat, that, unless the President intervenes favorably to the Union, certain actions may be taken by the Union looking to a walk-out, or strike by bituminous miners, or some other action calculated to enforce their interests.

One of the reports is that Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, may call a special session of the legislature, the purpose of which may mean state control of the coal industry; also, that the profits of the operators, and the whole coal situation, will be investigated.

A second report is that President Coolidge is drafting a message to Congress, asking that such legislation be adopted as will protect the public's interest with reference to coal; and also to adopt such legislation as will cover the general subject of strikes in the future.

William Green, the successor to Samuel Gompers as president of the American Federation of Labor, has been in consultation with the President, this week, and it is thought that Mr. Green does not want Congressional legislation dealing with strikes and other industrial matters.

On the other hand, it is also stated that the President does not intend to take any arbitrary personal action in the situation, such as would line him up as either for, or against, either side, but that he considers it a job for Congress to face and settle.

Taking the situation as it stands, and assuming that both of the reports may have foundation, the question may arise as to which has the authority, the state of Pennsylvania, or the National Congress, to interfere by law in the situation; and not only which has the real authority, but which source would best conserve the interests of all concerned? Evidently, the whole subject is heading for a climax.

Windstorms are not Seasonal.

At all seasons of the year nearly every section of the country is subject to windstorms. But when seasons change (as we are now going from fall to winter) storms are even more prevalent. The velocity of the wind ranges from a strong "blow" to a tornado and no locality is immune. It is simply a matter of atmospheric conditions, over which man has no control—and if your property is in the path traversed by the storm, you are the one who loses. Of course, some parts of the country do have more terrific storms than others, but even the milder disturbances do untold damage each year against which there is no protection.

So many people think of insurance against this hazard as "tornado insurance." The tornado, it is true, demolishes buildings, making it necessary to rebuild the entire structure. But the lesser storms occur more frequently, causing partial damage to dwellings, out-buildings and factories, which must be repaired. This kind of loss is covered by a Windstorm Policy.

Golden Rule Universal.

An indication of the golden thread that runs through all religions, ancient and modern, pagan and Christian collected from here and there expressed sentiments upon ideals; Duty, for example, or Diligence, or Tolerance, or Individuality, or Integrity. Everywhere is found exquisite simplicity and inimitable brevity, and everywhere the central idea was the same. Take the precepts on Justice.

Hindu. Do not force upon thy neighbor a hat that hurts thine own head.

Persian. Avoid everything calculated to injure others.

Chinese. He who strives to treat others as he would be treated by them will not fail to come near to the perfect life.

Grecian. He who commits injustice is always more unhappy than he who suffers from it.

Roman. Let not another's guilt make you sin.

Jewish. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

Christian. Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them.

The likeness of the late President Wilson will be used on a 17 cent stamp, that will be issued soon.

San Francisco is the prize telephone city of the world with 28 phones to each 100 persons. The average for the United States is 13.7 per 100 as contrasted with one phone for every 185 persons throughout the rest of the world.

President Coolidge has declared that his Administration stands for prosecution of all the laws, from the worst crimes against society down to the humblest violations of the liquor laws, but he thinks the big jobs ought to be handled first.

WANTS TO BUY BONDS.

U. S. Treasury Makes Offer to Holders of Third Liberty's.

The Treasury of the U. S. will buy $50,000,000 of Third Liberty bonds direct from holders for the account of the cumulative sinking fund. The purchases are to be in the nature of an auction of Third Liberties to the Government, the Treasury accepting the lowest offers of sale and the procedure of buying direct from bondholders constituting a trial of an entirely new method of handling retirements of the public debt.

It has been the practice of the Treasury from time to time to make purchase of Government securities in the open market or through brokers for the sinking fund. The securities thus purchased are retired and the public debt is correspondingly reduced. Mr. Mellon now proposes to determine the feasibility of making such purchases direct from bondholders, which would save commission charges to the sellers and the Treasury.

To give the plan a trial the Treasury now solicits from all holders of Third Liberty bonds proposals to sell these bonds. From the lowest proposals received the Treasury expects to purchase Third Liberty bonds to an aggregate amount of $50,000,000, or thereabouts, if offered below or at 101½ and accrued interest. That is, 101½ is the highest price the Treasury will pay for Third Liberties under the present offer. Proposals to sell must be received by a Federal Reserve Bank not later than December 10, 1925. Payment for the bonds accepted will be made by the Treasury on December 29, 1925.

Killing the Farmer's Friend.

A rural mail carrier shot a hawk on the road the other day and when he went to pick it up, the supposed dead bird took a peck that put out one eye—for which no one can blame the hawk, says the Salem, Oregon, Capital Journal.

This federal employee broke several laws and regulations. It is against rules to carry a gun on duty, while delivering mail. It is a violation of the state law to shoot on a public highway. A hawk is one of the most beneficial of birds and one of the farmer's best friends, daily destroying its weight in vermin, and as it is useless as food, there is no justification in its slaughter.

As a result of similar wanton slaughter of eagles, hawks and owls, all birds that justify their existence, the balance of nature has been destroyed and a great increase in rabbits, diggers, gophers and mice is causing an economic loss to every farmer in the land. All of these birds should be protected by law to prevent their extermination, which is now threatened.—The Manufacturer.

Raise More Sheep.

Time was when sheep stood for sparsely settled districts and extensive systems of farming. With the settlement of the country, and the intensifying of the farming system sheep decreased in number. When the above conditions held, sheep were used principally for wool production.

The world has grown more populous, more prosperous, and with prosperity has come the masses the liking for the good tasting things, principal among which is meat and meat products. Today, sheep husbandry must consider, first of all, sheep as a source of meat food and then as a source of wool.

Lambs fed grain continuously almost from birth are fit for sale at any moment the buyer comes. Lambs fed earlier than lambs not fed grain. Suckling lambs on cow's milk gain 1 pound live weight for each 3-4 pound dry matter fed.

Fattening sheep usually takes ten to twelve weeks to secure high quality flesh; when there is no question of quality of meat the fattening may require as long as 5 months.

The Tuberculosis Christmas Seal Campaign.

The annual sale of Tuberculosis Christmas Seals commenced on Thursday. Following the usual custom, 70 percent of all funds collected in this county will remain in the county to be spent in the battle against tuberculosis. Dr. H. M. Fitzhugh, of Westminster, is chairman of the Carroll County branch of the State Association.

The money received from the sale of these seals has been used in combating the scourge for 17 years, and the death rate has been cut in half in the last 20 years, which means a saving, at the present time, of about 120,000 lives a year.

Carroll County is expected to dispose of its share of 23,000,000 seals allotted to the state; and remember that 70 percent of the proceeds will be used for Carroll County cases. Buy the seals, and help along a most worthy cause.

R. E. Thompson, Radio Corporation of America, reports unfilled orders for 18,000 sets and 10,000 speakers, with an aggregate value of more than $1,400,000. Radio enthusiasm grows steadily.

Chicago plans for a 39-story building, the Acropolis, with a convention hall seating 25,000, 21 stories of offices, and 4,000 hotel rooms; the whole to cost $40,000,000.

Why don't the President enforce prohibition, and why don't he make the coal miners and operators get together? These are two questions occupying the minds of many who would like to find that the President isn't doing some big things he ought to do. On the other hand, there seems to be a convenient forgetfulness of "state's rights," and the first duty of the states, in both cases. It's a good plan—when no better one presents itself—to "put it on" the President; for, hasn't he more authority than anybody else in this country?

The platform announced by the Humphreys-Broening-Hill combination, that stresses "We, the people of Maryland," sounds almost like some of the Southern states' proclamations before the Civil War. Boiled down, the document centers in violent opposition to the 18th. Amendment to the Constitution of the U. S., and its accompanying Volstead Act, and proclaims that the "Constitution of Maryland" and the "Bill of Rights" are sufficient on which to base American freedom and Liberty. "Rah for old Maryland! Why not 'scrap' the whole constitution of the United States, and adopt the Maryland state?"

Anthracite Losing Out.

It begins to look as though anthracite coal mining will be permanently injured as a business, unless the strike situation is very soon ended. In fact, a certain amount of injury has already been done that will have lasting effect, in that thousands of users have turned to bituminous coal who are not likely to turn back again. They are finding that bituminous, or soft lump coal, is almost equally as desirable as anthracite, and costs much less.

There are also prepared sizes of bituminous, from which all of the fine coal is screened, that is said to work well in most stoves, and that too is much lower in cost per ton than the anthracite, soft and hard coal commonly used for stoves.

Even on the terms in effect before the strike, the anthracite business was having hard work to compete with bituminous, and now, no matter what may be the end of the strike, it will still be harder to compete.

Unfavorable Recollections.

It is an essential motto in business or social life, to aim at making good impressions; in other words, not to leave unfavorable recollections. The customer who buys an article that does not "turn out right" never forgets about it; and if by chance, or design, it was the seller's fault, the purchaser remembers the seller unfavorably thereafter. This makes it highly important that the business man should be most careful in his recommendation of an article, and never to sell one under a misrepresentation, purposely.

It is better to lose a sale than to have a dissatisfied customer—the future business demonstrates this. Likewise, in all of our intercourse with the public, aside from business, it should be the aim of all not to leave an unfavorable recollection of any sort in the minds of any. It is true, there are many who are hard to satisfy; there are touchy and suspicious characters that make life and business miserable, and these need not be considered; but there are plenty of opportunities for exercising great care in dealings with persons who are worth while.

Whenever possible, in the matter of poor work, or rendering poor service, it is best to do the work, or service, over again, rather than take the chance of the patron not objecting. The best plan is not to permit any cause for objection to exist. What we call "reliability" is constructed on just such foundations—care for little details, as well as for the larger causes that lead to dissatisfaction and unfavorable recollections.

And all of this means, looking ahead for our future transactions and relations with those with whom we are associated. It means character and reputation building, as well as business building. It means the sort of reputation we have, and will leave. It explains why unfavorable reports of some men do not get far—they are too well known for honesty and conscientious transactions for slander to seriously touch them.

The trouble is, we are apt to place a too high value on present gain, and not enough value on the importance of future relations. The chance to "put over" something to our advantage today, overshadows the possibilities of loss tomorrow—it is the "bird in hand" that tempts us—and unfavorable recollections are chances as being among the troubles that may never happen; but the chance is a dangerous one to take.

Coolidge Talks "Business."

President Coolidge delivered an address, last Thursday night, at the Annual banquet of the New York State Chamber of Commerce, in which he declared strongly against the government going into business of any sort not absolutely demanded for the safety of the country, and for the utmost independence between government and business, so that both might be free and unhampered from the influence of each other.

Carrying out his thought that government and business "each ought to be sovereign in its own sphere," the President said:

"When government comes unduly under the influence of business the tendency is to develop an administration which closes the door of opportunity, becomes narrow and selfish in its outlook and results in oligarchy."

"When government enters the field of business with its great resources, it has a tendency to extravagance and inefficiency, but, having the power to crush all competitors, likewise closes the door of opportunity and results in monopoly."

"I can think of no more assuring action," said Mr. Coolidge, "than the declaration of America that it will wholeheartedly join with others in the support of the tribunal for the administration of international justice which they have created."

Citing George Washington as a leader who did not hesitate to meet peril, encounter danger or make sacrifices, the President, appealing for support for World Court adherence, declared that "we must meet our perils; we must encounter our dangers; we must make our sacrifices; or history will recount that the works of Washington have failed."

An Impossible Task.

We so often wish that we might be able to run this newspaper in a manner that would conform to the ideals of everybody or of all the diversified elements which make up the newspaper's clientele. What a happy condition of mind and body it would be to know and realize that nobody is calling us names, that nobody is picking flaws in or finding fault with the policy of the paper. It would be like a heaven on earth, to be sure. We try, in our weak way, to treat people fairly; to do those things and to print those things which tend to bring the least pain and sorrow to fellow-beings; in fact, to spread sunshine in as many dark places as possible. But it is impossible to please everybody; it is impossible to avoid creating antagonisms; impossible to run the paper as everybody would have it run.

Those who imagine that the running of a newspaper is "one grand, sweet song" of peace and happiness; those who imagine that they could run the paper without stepping on somebody's corns; those who imagine that they could make a success in the field of journalism without expressing opinions that run counter to some other people's opinions; those who imagine that they could run the paper in a way that would please everybody, ought to get astride the editorial tripod and try the experiment.

It may be possible that they have missed their calling and that the Supreme Architect of the Universe, when He blew into their nostrils the breath of life and they became living souls, really intended that they should be editors. It may be that the men, including the writer of these lines, who have spent almost a lifetime at the editorial desk trying to please everybody, are misfits and have mistaken their calling. Who knows?—St. Marys (Ohio) Evening Leader.

Labor's Latest Demand!

Almost before the shade of Samuel Gompers has passed into his greater sphere the spectre of renewed labor trouble arises to remind the world of the man who has gone. It is now proposed that The American Federation of Labor define a new policy, demanding that wages be increased, and that the working day be shortened. It is proposed to cut the hours of labor in proportion to the degree of development in labor saving machinery and water power. Where is this kind of radical thought to end? No sooner does industry get back on a sane basis of prosperity for labor than some one comes along to kick over the milk pail.

The report of the National Industrial Conference Board just made public shows that the average working hours today stand at 47.5 per week. There is a well defined increase in employment, and weekly earnings increased rather than decreased as a result of our slow reconstruction. Total employment in all industries is 10 percent higher in September this year than it was a year ago.

No workman today can complain of a poor wage, even in the face of present living costs, nor can he complain of unemployment. In the country it is next to impossible to get work done at any price, and for the most part the results bear every evidence of either incompetence or carelessness.

There is of course little or no quarrel with the high wage. Everyone wants to see the American working man self-respecting and well rewarded. But when it comes to shortening the work day, when it comes to handing over to industrial workers the gross result of genius in developing production, it is getting time to call a halt. Labor would like to burn the candle at both ends and leave the farmer sizzling in the middle.—Centerville (Md.) Observer.

Railroads Lose on Dining Car Service.

The average check paid by the traveler for a meal in the dining car is $1.00 but each meal costs the railroad about $1.35, it is stated in an analysis of the dining car business made by Popular Mechanics. This figure, it is further pointed out, does not include interest on capital invested in the car nor depreciation.

More than 80,000 travelers are served daily in the 1,500 dining cars of the American railroads, it is estimated. The analysis goes on to say: "These figures are based on reports from 40 roads, which showed that last year over 30,000,000 meals were served at a loss of approximately $10,500,000. This is explained by fluctuating patronage, high upkeep costs and the limited time each day a diner is in service."

"Food supplies represent slightly more than 51 percent of the total expense. Ten thousand stewards, chefs and waiters draw wages totaling over $11,000,000, representing about 46 percent of the total outlay."

"Fuel, water, ice, stationery, printing, medical examinations (two are given each year to every member of the crews), telephone, laundry and room rent for employees compelled to lie over between runs, are among the additional items that must be paid for out of every dollar received for a meal."

"The steward must stock his car to meet the demands of both the epicure and the man of simple tastes. He knows that out of every 100 persons, about 85 will want coffee and 15 tea; 35 will ask for roast beef, with chicken fish, chops and steaks following in the order named. Fruit leads all other dishes among the desserts, and then come puddings. Apple is the favorite pie."

"He orders every article of food, and is responsible for all stocks on his car, including the 150 kitchen utensils, 1,000 pieces of crockery and glassware, 800 pieces of silver and 900 tablecloths and napkins, with which the modern car that seats 36 persons is equipped."

A Hopeful Sign.

Two long jail sentences for drivers whose cars brought death to others indicate that the Baltimore courts are becoming aware of the recklessness which is the usual cause of such mishaps.

A jail term can not undo the mischief nor bring the dead to life, but a few more examples of this kind will be certain to make the naturally reckless drive with a degree of caution.—Baltimore American.

On to Success

Michael Arlen, the Armenian novelist, said on his visit to New York: "To succeed in the arts you must push right on with absolute self-confidence, tramping down all the rebuffs and attacks and insults that are bound to be strewn in your way."

"A chap, with success stamped all over him said to another chap: 'I kissed the beautiful Lotta Golde last night.' 'How did she take it?' 'She screamed for help.' 'What did you do?' 'I gave her, of course, another helping.'"

Amusing Error in Bible

Comical mistakes are not all confined to early Bibles put out by obscure printers. At even so late a date as 1904 no less an institution than the Clarendon press, maintained within the sacred precincts of Oxford university itself, perpetrated what is known as the "ear" Bible. In all well-ordered family Bibles Matthew 13:43 reads, "Who hath ears to hear, let him hear." Hence one can imagine the horror of the meticulous English sages when an edition of the Holy Book came from this press with this particular verse reading as follows: "Who hath ears to ear, let him hear." All of which goes to show that the cockney influence will occasionally make itself felt even within the dignified quadrangle of England's oldest university.—New York Herald.

London Inn Fastidious

Although the old Inverness cloak that flourished as a gentleman's covering in Victorian days has disappeared almost entirely and is seen only rarely on elderly clubmen still clinging to a forgotten past, a modification, in the form of an opera cloak or cape, cut very full is being shown by smart West end tailors as the latest thing for wear with evening dress. The dinner jacket became popular after the war for evening affairs, and for a time it seemed that the tail coat would be relegated to the past. Recently, however, there has been a revision of opinion, and a number of smart hotels that formerly permitted the entrance of diners in the more unconventional attire, now insist upon the tail coat and white tie.—New York World.

Heat and Lightning

One of the stereotyped statements of the textbooks is that lightning is made visible by the "heating of the air." Just as the filament of an incandescent lamp is made to glow when an electric current passes through it. As no physicist, says Nature Magazine, has ever succeeded in making air luminous by any ordinary heating process, this explanation will hardly pass muster. The real explanation, according to Dr. W. J. Humphreys, must probably be sought in electrical phenomena within the atoms of the atmospheric gases rather than in the molecular movements that constitute heat.

Rain Needed Washing

One afternoon when Richard Mansfield was conducting a dress rehearsal, he and his entire company began coughing violently from a shower of dust which suddenly filled the wings. "Where does all this abominable dust come from?" the actor demanded. One of the stage hands, more courageous than his associates, ventured the explanation, "I think it comes from the rain-box, sir."

"And can't you wash the rain?" inquired Mansfield in all seriousness.—Boston Transcript.

Would the Keymar correspondent, like to be a County Commissioner? Yes, the Keymar correspondent would like to be a County Commissioner for just one year, although we do not know what the success would be, but during that year the effort would be made to see that the taxpayers were benefitted by the Keymar and Taneytown, so called pike, having a good hard road, for the present one has been badly in need of rebuilding, for two years. We admit the job is anything but a soft one, but we are all longing for a smooth solid road from the Frederick line to connect with the good roads of Pennsylvania.

A number of people have complimented the Record on the news of last week pertaining to the road question, and hopes it will create enough interest with the Commissioners, that they will soon give us the much needed good road.

(We'll bet a big shiny red apple that the County Commissioners would be mighty glad to make every road in the county, a good hard one.—Ed. Record.)

High Aim in Teaching
Kindness to Animals

Several years ago, writes M. L. H. of the Humane Education Press bureau, Boston, the well-known American journalist and poet, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, wrote:

"Many times I am asked why the suffering of animals seems to call forth more sympathy from me than the suffering of human beings; why I give more time and effort in this direction of charitable work than toward any other.

"My answer is because I believe this work includes all the educational lines of reform which are needed to make a perfect circle of peace and good will about the earth.

"A majority of the people who hear about the societies for prevention of cruelty to animals imagine the work of those societies consists in arresting and punishing cruel drivers and in furnishing homes for vagrant animals. But these are only side issues of the main work. The real work is the education of the growing generation in kindness to all weaker and lesser creatures of earth.

"Thoughts are things. Thought is energy—thought is creative power. That is why it is important to direct the minds of human beings to good, kind, helpful thoughts."

It is, therefore, the aim and object of the humane education organizations in this country to instill in the minds of the boys and girls in the schools today the principles of justice, kindness and mercy to all living creatures.

Finest Chinese Teas
Regarded as Dessert

Of course, Chinese do not eat ice cream, for the whole cult of cold foods and cold drinks is contrary to their dietetic principles. Many centuries ago when China was swept by cholera one of the sages recommended that the water be boiled, and in order to make the heated fluid more palatable a herb was steeped in it, now known as tea. Hence the development of tea culture throughout the Flowery kingdom and the ceremonial significance of tea drinking. John W. Harrington writes in the New York Herald Tribune. In the chop suey restaurant ordinary tea is served in pots, just as though it were water, but the superfine teas are in reality dessert drinks, just as a port wine or a champagne was once considered in the days of the three-bottle men. When one is offered after dinner a small cup in which is such tea as "Mist on the Mountain," costing many dollars the pound, one knows that something most complimentary and luxurious is intended.

Land "Reclaimed"

At Turners Falls, Mass., on a tract of high, sandy land considered "worked out" and abandoned for farming long ago, the local electric service company has for several years past been conducting a model electrically irrigated farm. Now approximately 20 acres are under cultivation and produce an income of from $400 to $500 an acre. Water for this irrigation is pumped from the Connecticut river, 175 feet below the level of the farm, by electrically run irrigation pumps. Not only is this farm-producing garden "truck" but also high-grade leaf tobacco and small fruits.

A Surprise Party.

(For the Record.)

A surprise party was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Null. Those who were present were: Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Null, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wolfe, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Staley, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Harner, Mr. and Mrs. John Staub, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Study, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Null, Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Feaser, Mr. and Mrs. David Yealy, and Mrs. Granville Study; Misses Lamora Study, Margaret Staley, Helena Null, Edna Leister, Dorothy Null, Catherine Staley, Genevieve Yealy and Margaret Yealy; Messrs Elwood Haines, Charley Plank, Arnold Stottamar, Robert Feaser, Raymond Feaser and Curvin Study.

Surprise Birthday Party.

(For the Record.)

A birthday party which was a complete surprise, was given Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shriner in honor of their daughter, Mildred. The guests arrived about 7 o'clock. Miss Mildred received a number of nice and useful presents.

The evening was spent in the enjoyment of games, after which all were invited to the dining room, where the table was loaded with good eats. A large birthday cake graced the centre of the table, with the number of lighted candles of Miss Mildred's age. The refreshments were ice cream, cake, candy, potato chips and pretzels.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shriner, Mrs. Jane Shriner, Misses Mildred and Catherine Shriner, Mrs. John Byers, Misses Margaret Hitchcock, Lillian and Evelyn Eyer, Ruthanna Flickinger, Mable Graham, Catherine Baker, Margaret Crebbs, Helen Sarbaugh, Iona Boyd, Alice and Naomi Riffe, Viola Wantz, Edith Goodermuth, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Warehime, Ruth and John Warehime, of Littlestown; Harman and Tom Albright, of Walkersville; Delmar and Wilson Riffe, of Delmar; Baumgardner, Jacob K. Shoemaker, John Ecker, Franklin and Donald Baker and Ray Shriner.

"Hog Latin" Lost Art

"The younger generation may be able to brag about lists of accomplishments that we old timers didn't have," said an Atkinson avenue resident of long standing, "but there is one art that we cherished as boys that is dying. When I was a youngster we conversed frequently in 'Hog Latin' and got the greatest thrill out of believing that no one else could understand us. The other day I happened to think of that, and I haven't forgotten a bit of the stuff. I can still rattle off those twisted syllables just as well as I ever could, and the youngsters of mine who go to college and talk French and Spanish and very modern English eat in wonder and thought that I had gone crazy. I guess that they had just the feeling I have when they shout at me in French or that very modern English."—Detroit News.

The Bible Class

At a Brooklyn reception President Butler of Columbia said of the fundamentalist-modernist quarrels:

"These quarrels about whether man evolved from the ape or was created in Eden, and whether Joshua really made the sun stand still and so on—well, they remind me of a Bible class.

"In the Deluge," said the teacher, 'all living creatures were drowned except those taken aboard the Ark.'

"I deny that," said a member of the class. 'Millions escaped.'

"How dare you? That is false," said the teacher. 'What millions are you talking about?'

"The millions of fishes," said the class member."

Stolen Tombstone Is Found in Roadway

New York.—The title of champion finder of strange things in New York goes to Reginald P. Bolton, consulting engineer, who found a tombstone in Riverside drive near his house.

Mr. Bolton stumbled on the tombstone in the middle of the roadway and heralded the find in the lost and found columns.

From the fact that the back of the tombstone had been split off, leaving only the face, Mr. Bolton surmised it had been thrown from an automobile. The stone is about two feet high, carved from gray schist, which is found in New England.

The workmanship is very fine, Mr. Bolton said, and the designs over the inscription similar to those found on headstones in graveyards of the early English settlers in New England.

Mr. Bolton surmises some souvenir fiend touring through New England stole the gravestone, but changed his mind as to its desirability.

"You are not safe any more even after you are dead," Mr. Bolton declared.

Rare Map of Gulf of Mexico Found

Austin, Texas.—A map of the Gulf of Mexico coast made in 1775 and dedicated to King Fernando VI, bearing the Spanish coat of arms, is now in the hands of Dr. Lota Mae Spell, in charge of the Garcia collection at the University of Michigan. As this map is not listed in the Library of Congress and other large collections, it is considered very rare, Mrs. Spell said. Its chief value lies in the information given concerning what was known of the entire gulf coast at that time.

WHO SAID

"Labor conquers all things."

IT IS said that when Homer, the great epic poet of ancient Greece, was alive he lived in poverty and traveled about from place to place existing on the sparing hospitality of those who would shelter him for the sake of hearing his adventures related. Years after his death, when his work began to be properly appreciated, no less than seven cities of Greece fought for the honor of calling him a native of their locality. And to this day it remains a mystery where the man's real home was located.

Modern knowledge of Homer rests upon his known works. When he was born is as much a mystery as where he was born. Historians agree in fixing the year of his birth sometime between 1000 and 700 B. C., and his birthplace "somewhere in Greece."

The poet's best known works are his Iliad and the Odyssey. The Iliad is the story of the siege of Ilium, or Troy, and relates the attempt to rescue Helen, wife of the king of Sparta, whom Paris, son of the king of Troy, had abducted.

The Odyssey concerns itself with the adventures of Odysseus or Ulysses, as he is better known, on his way home from the battle of Troy and of his welcome by his faithful wife, Penelope, and the punishment of her presumptuous suitors.

By all of the great poetry critics of the world Homer's work is ranked as among the finest. His memory has been further kept alive by numerous busts—all of which, of course, are wholly ideal.—Wayne D. McMurray. (© by George Matthew Adams.)

Long Search Rewarded

Lead is now tempered and hardened by a new process worked out by scientists of the Western Electric company. It is done chiefly by a special heating process and the addition of a very small amount of alloy. The experiments have been highly successful and have achieved what scientists have been working toward for centuries.

AN ABBREVIATED STORY

THE CAMEL'S BACK

THE scene of today's story, just for a change, is the wild Harhar jungles of Abyssinia.

The natives were in a state of the wildest disorder, for their troubles were proving too much for them, and a revolution was brewing. Yet the Harhar savages were a cautious bunch, and Blubjaw, their champion orator and worker-up, harangued them in vain to take the decisive step.

Squax eraw Dimbo spawl!" he cried. ("King Dimbo is a tyrant and should be dethroned. He allows us only six wives apiece and imposes ruinous taxes for every additional wife!")

"Skrix shrox!" ("No use acting hastily"), muttered the populace. "Kincan yaybo wimbo yan!" ("He allows the common people one meal a day while he eats seven!") cried Blubjaw.

"Dithy rambus!" ("Don't let's be rash!"), murmured the mob.

"Shux nindo yithter wow!" ("He has forbidden us to smoke!").

"Osh kosh!" ("We'd better not do anything reckless!").

"Tooral Chaplox ninski Fairblinx! Ylnx!" ("He's ordered all the 'movies' to shut down and now we can never see Charlie Chaplin or Doug Fairbanks any more!")

There was a mighty guttural roar as the long-suffering public rose to arms and rushed toward King Dimbo's bungalow. (© by George Matthew Adams.)

177,000 MILES OF U. S. ROAD IN FIVE YEARS

Federal-Aid Highways Being Completed Rapidly.

Washington.—Predicting that the entire 177,000-mile system of federal-aid highways would be completed in five years, the United States bureau of public roads here has announced the completion of a record-breaking fiscal year in which 11,329 miles of federal-aid roads were built. The total of completed federal-aid roads built since 1917 now amounts to 46,485 miles, representing a cost of $845,000,000.

This year's record-breaking progress marks the completion of more than half of the great system of interstate roads that reach every town of 5,000 people or more and put 90 per cent of the population of the United States within ten miles of an improved highway.

Much of the federal-aid system had been built when the huge program of highway development was laid out.

A billion dollars' worth of highways a year is the rate at which road builders are now working, according to the bureau's estimate. This rate is expected to remain nearly constant at least for several years, representing as it does the capacity of road-building forces in the country. That a greater volume of work could be undertaken is regarded as improbable, due to the fact that expansion of the program would have to be made at the expense of other activities.

$243,000,000 Expended.

Cost of the federal-aid system completed during the fiscal year ending June 30 is $243,000,000, of which the federal government's share amounts to $111,000,000. Under construction at the present time are 12,462 miles of federal-aid roads, most of which will be finished during 1926.

Gravel road led in the type of highway completed this year with 4,203 miles. Concrete was next, with 2,803 miles, constituting the largest paved mileage. It is significant that only 129 miles of water bound macadam, formerly the standard type, was constructed, and that 912 miles of bituminous macadam, with 341 miles of bituminous concrete and 107 miles of brick are the only other types of paved roads completed.

Graded Earth in West.

Graded earth stood third in the classification of types with 2,064 miles. Forty-seven miles of bridges were constructed.

Most of the graded and drained

earth roads were built in the West, where funds are low and good-roads progress is just starting to make itself felt. The construction of graded earth roads as a foundation for a future highway system that can be improved as money becomes available and traffic increases, is a fundamental principle initiated by Thomas G. McDonald, chief of the bureau of public roads, when he was chief engineer of highway forces in Iowa.

The stage construction principle, as Mr. McDonald's plan is called, consists first in making initial improvements such as grading and draining and installing permanent culverts and adequate bridges. The road is thus improved at low cost to serve the immediate necessities of light traffic. When traffic becomes heavier and it is deemed advisable to improve with gravel or a more durable surface, such as concrete, the original improvement has provided a subgrade on which the high type surface can be laid at less additional expense and with far better results than if the original work had been left undone until necessity demanded final improvement.

WHAT'S AGE TO HIM?

Chief Hashke-Yazbe of the Navajo tribe at one hundred and two took unto himself a bride and at one hundred and four became the father of a bouncing boy. The chief is now one hundred and ten years old and says he plans to live for a considerable time.

Willis—How was that?
Nillis—Knocked two of my teeth out, and then had the nerve to give me a bill for $2, saying he was a dentist.

Mother Was No Cook

"Gerald," said the young wife, noticing how heartily he was eating, "do I cook as well as your mother did?"
Gerald stared at her through his monocle.
"Once for all, Agatha," he said, "I beg you to remember that, although I may seem to be in reduced circumstances now, I come of an old and distinguished family. My mother was not a cook."

SCHOOL DAYS

Among the NOTABLES

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY, born August 9, 1780, made himself immortal by writing the "Star Spangled Banner."

It happened that, in the War of 1812, towards its close in '14, the British invaded Washington. Some friends of Key's, who lived on a plantation nearby, were being held as prisoners and Key obtained the permission of President Madison to secure their release. With another man who had charge of the release and exchange of prisoners, he went out to the plantation and was courteously received by the British. They agreed to let the owners go, but said the entire party would have to stay over during an attack on Baltimore. Consequently, they were detained on board the frigate Surprise, part of the fleet firing on Fort M'Henry.

The battle raged during the night, a puny enough fight, as battles go nowadays, but was watched with anxiety by the Americans. From his place on the deck, Key could see the American flag flying in the glare of the guns. Then there was a lull, and only darkness and smoke, and he lost sight of it, and had to wait the first rays of dawn to see whether the Stars and Stripes still floated. When he saw it again, in the first faint light, he was so overflowing with relief and exultation that he wrote the first part of his immortal poem on the back of an envelope. It was printed and sung by a Baltimore actor, that very day, they say, and swept through the country as the greatest song of the time.

Key was a lawyer, though he did publish a book of poems with this song included. He died in Baltimore in 1843, and since then several monuments have been erected—one in Frederick county where he was born.

Russian Press Writers

In a recent report of a bolshevik "congress of press workers," it was disclosed that there were, last year, "about 150,000 newspaper correspondents from the masses of workers and peasants," and that measures are to be taken to "equip this multitude of new writers for regular and systematic work on the press."

THIS KEEPS US TWENTY

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

A SHADOW will fall Across us all, There never yet was a year all summer, And men will win To an empty inn Where never a light will greet the corner. But the cloud will pass And we'll find the grass, And the spring will come with the buds returning, And we'll trudge along When the inn goes wrong Till we come to a house where the lights are burning.

The wind will blow From the north, you know, And the snow will drift, and the ice will gather, But the wind will swing To the south and bring Us clearer heavens and better weather Why, all we need Is to wait, indeed, And to smile a little and pray a plenty. The days we scold Are what makes us old, And the days we hope are what keep us twenty!

FOR THE FAMILY TABLE

FEEDING the family is a very important business and one which every mother will do well to study. Simple food well prepared is much more wholesome for all ages than the rich foods and hearty meats so often considered necessary.

Panned Chicken.

Separate a chicken into pieces at the joints; set into a buttered baking pan, adding a bit of butter to each piece; pour in a cupful of boiling water or veal broth, add salt, cover closely and set to cook in a hot oven; let cook an hour and a half; baste the chicken once or twice and turn over the pieces when half-cooked. When done remove the chicken to a platter, surround with savory rice and serve with

Sauce for Panned Chicken.

Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter; in it cook three tablespoonfuls of flour and a scant half-teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of pepper; when bubbling hot stir in three-fourths of a cupful of cream and the broth from the pan which should make a cupful or more. When boiling, strain into a bowl.

Raisin Pie.

Grate the rind and add the juice of two lemons and one orange, add one cupful of light brown sugar, two cupfuls of seeded raisins, one cupful of coarsely chopped walnuts, one and one-fourth cupfuls of water and bring to the boiling point; add four tablespoonfuls of flour blended with two of butter. Cook until the mixture is smooth, pour into a well-lined pastry plate, cover with a crust and bake for thirty minutes in a moderately hot oven until delicately browned.

For a family with a member or two who cannot eat sauerkraut, those who do must deny themselves a wholesome, tasty dish. Isn't it too bad that we cannot all sit down to such a dish as this?

Big Importance of Trees to Mankind

Many Useful Purposes Are Served by Large Plants.

Trees serve so many useful purposes that it would be quite impossible to mention them all, but if you will try to imagine for a moment, living in a world without trees and without any of the products that come directly from trees, you will at once begin to realize their true importance in relation to mankind.

1. Trees absorb poisonous gases and exhale health-giving oxygen, thus preserving our health.
2. They shade us from the hot sun and cool the air by evaporating moisture from their leaves, and they shelter us from the cold, blustering winds of winter.
3. They give us many medicines to cure our ills and nurse us back to strength.
4. They furnish protection and nesting places for birds that destroy insects and sing for our entertainment.
5. They make our homes, schools and cities more beautiful.
6. They furnish us with books, papers and pencils we use in our homes and business.
7. They furnish employment to many thousands of men and women and are a source of wealth in our forests.
8. They furnish wood, the most important and extensively used material in the construction and furnishing of the home in which we live.
9. They cover our hills and valleys with a forest growth that helps to store the rain water we drink, which might otherwise become torrents, washing away the fertile soil, filling up our wells.

Yellow Corn for Chicks

Can Be Used Extensively

Heat and vitamin A, two factors required in chick nutrition, are present in yellow corn to a greater degree than in any of the grains commonly used. Hence yellow corn can be used extensively in chick feeding with every assurance of success. Oats, barley, wheat, white corn do not contain vitamin A in appreciable quantities, so are not now considered in the same class as yellow corn when used as chick feeds. A ration made up of 80 pounds of yellow corn meal, 20 pounds wheat middlings, 5 pounds raw bone meal, 5 pounds pearl grit, and 1 pound salt, mixed as a mash and fed dry from hopper or pan, will give excellent results providing liberal quantities of skim milk and clean fresh water are also supplied. Direct sunlight will complete it.

Broody Hens Often Not Profitable to Breeder

Figures collected by poultry specialists show that it costs 18 to 20 cents a month to feed a hen. A hen that averages 18 eggs a month more than pays her way, even when eggs are cheap. Those that go broody often are not profitable.

Visit the hen house each night and put all hens found on nests in the broody coop; leg banding them at the same time. Here they are confined for 72 hours and fed laying mash, green feed, and plenty of water. If the broody coop is roomy and in a cool place they will soon "come out of it."

—New York State College of Agriculture.

Bran and Middlings

Bran and middlings have quite a similar chemical analysis, the bran usually being a little higher in fiber than the middlings and consequently a little lower in digestible carbohydrates. The bran is just about as valuable for animals that can handle considerable fiber as are the middlings. For hogs, however, the middlings have an advantage over the bran because of the smaller amount of fiber they contain.

FARM NOTES

Your entries will make the county fair exhibit just that much better.

Successful poultry breeding rests on records of ancestry performance on which to base breeding programs.

Never try to change the size of the bundles on your binder with the tension or compress spring; use the bundle sizer spring.

One of the very best feeds for poultry is green bone. It can be cheaply secured at any meat market, and every farm poultry department ought to have its own bone cutter to use as needed.

Whenever there is enough moisture in the soil to prepare a good seed bed for alfalfa and enough moisture to enable the seed to sprout promptly, August seeding of this crop is as successful as spring seeding.

The farmer cannot control the market price of his products, but he can in a very large degree control the cost of production and one of the best means for doing this is to maintain his land in a high state of cultivation.

The Mississippi experiment station has found that corrosive sublimate is effective for sterilizing against alfalfa anthracnose. A 1:1000 solution, applied for eight minutes, does the business and does not injure germination.

Scientists See Ending of Niagara's Grandeur

Once more the scientists have been casting a calculating eye upon Niagara falls. In the news headlines we are told of a situation gaining in gravity on the Canadian side through the recession due to the wearing away of the limestone bed of the river. In a report to the Smithsonian institution, says the New York World, we read that, in effect, the falls are committing suicide and that the speed of the operation increases relentlessly.

However, as we read on in these forecasts we find comfort for wedding tourists and exposition promoters alike. The falls, it appears, have taken 10,000 years to go seven miles in their recession to date. On the Canadian side they are now receding five feet a year, at which rate it will take rather more than a thousand years to score only another mile.

While a thousand years may be but yesterday in the sight of science, it is really quite a space of time in the affairs of commerce and the tourist trade.

Combined Attack of Gulls Drove Off Hawk

Seagulls' victory over a hawk is described by Albert R. Keen of North Devon in a recent issue of the London Times. He says: "I was visiting Lynton recently and from the high cliffs above the sea I witnessed a most remarkable air battle between about a dozen or more seagulls and a hawk. Their organization and method of attack on the hawk was very much like air battles in the World war. The attack lasted for about fifteen minutes, until the gulls had driven the hawk entirely away from their domain where they were nesting and chased him off down the coast for a mile or two. The gulls all together cleverly pounced on him with severe pecks and then the other gulls closed in around. It was a very interesting sight."

Leather Retains Strength

That leather of good quality kept for ten years, under ordinary conditions, does not lose more than 15 per cent of its strength was shown by experiments of the bureau of standards. Belting stored in the laboratory for a decade was found to be only slightly weaker than new material of the same grade, indicating that articles made from it would be preserved for an indefinite period if subjected to normal atmosphere, ventilation and light, while dampness and sunlight appear to have a harmful effect on the leather. It is believed the results of the studies will enable manufacturers of shoes, luggage and similar goods to alter shipping and storage practices, since such articles may be capable of many years of service even though they might not reach the user until one to three years after they are made.—Exchange.

His Lambs

On the occasion of a special service at a village church the vicar of a large London parish was persuaded to preach. The congregation was naturally an agricultural one.

After the service the London clergyman stopped to speak to a very old shepherd in the churchyard, and asked him how many sheep he had in his flock.

"Three hundred," replied the old man.

"That is nothing," said the other; "my flock is over five thousand strong."

"My word!" gasped the old shepherd; "you must have had a terrible busy time last lambing season."

Pigeon Aids Identification

A homing pigeon was the means of discovering the identity of a man found unconscious and badly injured at the foot of a steep hill at Woodseats, near Sheffield. On the back of the cycle was found a basket containing homing pigeons, of which the police took charge. All attempts to identify the man by sending out a police description and by an appeal from the Sheffield relay wireless station failed, and recently the police liberated two of the pigeons, with notes attached to their legs. Shortly afterward they received a message from one of the owners of the pigeons, living near Chesterfield, who telephoned information which gave a clue to the man's identity.—Family Herald.

Sugar or Candy

Granulated, lump, pulverized and brown sugars, though differing in texture and flavor, are practically alike in composition. They contain little or nothing but sugar. A pound of candy may be considered the equivalent in fuel value of a pound of sugar. Water, which has no fuel value, is used in making candy, but so, too, are chocolate and nut meats, which have higher fuel values than sugar. The proportion of sugar in thick sirups, such as honey and molasses, is about three-fourths of a pound to the pound, and in jellies, jams and rich preserves, about one-half of a pound to the pound.

By Direct Command

They were discussing the advent of their baby sister, but neither could give a satisfactory explanation of the new arrival.

At last the elder boy said: "I know how it was."

"How?" asked his brother.

"Why," he exclaimed, with an air of relief and decision, "God said, 'Let there be Phyllis,' and there was Phyllis."

Lesson for November 29

PAUL BEFORE AGRIPPA

LESSON TEXT—Acts 25:1-26:32.
GOLDEN TEXT—"I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision."—
Acts 26:19.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Tells Why
He Obedied Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Tells a King
About Jesus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—Obedience to the Heavenly Vision.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—Paul's Defense of His Mission.

More than two years had elapsed since Paul had been tried before Felix, during which time Jewish hatred for him had not abated. As soon as Festus, the new governor, went to Jerusalem he was besieged with accusations against Paul. His accusers desired that he be brought to Jerusalem for trial, intending to lie in wait and kill him on the way. Festus refused their request, but agreed to give them an opportunity to accuse Paul if they would go down to Caesarea. They were unable to prove anything against him. Festus, willing to please the Jews, proposed to send him to Jerusalem for trial. Paul rebuked Festus for this, declaring that he knew very well that he was innocent. Seeing that it was impossible to get justice before Festus, Paul made use of his right as a Roman citizen and appealed to Caesar. This surprised Festus. His failure to release an innocent man placed him in an awkward position for he could give no explanation as to why an innocent man should go to Rome for trial.

I. Paul Before the King (25:1-27).
The occasion of his appearing before Agrippa was the visit of Agrippa and Bernice to Festus. Upon their arrival they expressed a desire to hear Paul, whereupon Festus told them of his perplexity. So it was arranged that Paul be brought before them for examination. The gospel should be preached to all regardless of wealth or station in life.

II. Paul's Defense Before Agrippa
(26:1-27).

1. The Introduction (vv. 1-3).
He expressed his delight that he now could speak and tell his case to one who was able to follow his line of argument, for Agrippa was an expert in questions concerning the Jews; but most of all he was now happy in witnessing to him of the Savior, and perhaps leading him into the light of God.

2. His Manner of Life (vv. 4-12).
This he showed had been in strictest accord with the most rigid sect of Jews. He possessed the same hope,
i. e., that of a coming Deliverer, and reminded them of the fact that formerly he was most bitterly opposed to Christ as his zeal would prove.

3. His Supernatural Conversion (vv.
13-15).

Jesus Christ appeared to him on the way to Damascus and revealed Himself to him.

4. Jesus Christ Commissioned Him for His Work (vv. 16-18).

He was sent unto the Gentiles:

(1) To open their eyes so awfully blinded.

(2) To perform the blessed work of turning them from darkness to light.

(3) To turn them from the power of satan unto God.

(4) That they might receive forgiveness of sins.

(5) And that they might obtain an inheritance among the saints.

5. His Consecration (vv. 19-23).

As soon as he received his commission, he obeyed. Every man should instantly obey the call of God and devote his life to carrying forward the work entrusted to him. The vigorous prosecution of his work brought him into conflict with the Jews, for which they sought to kill him.

6. The Interruption by Festus (v.
24).

Seeing how thoroughly in earnest
Paul was, Festus attempted to account for it by calling him a crank, attributing it to the ravings of an unbalanced mind.

7. Paul's Appeal to Agrippa (vv.
25-27).

Still maintaining his courage, he appealed to Agrippa's knowledge of the work of Jesus and of the prophets,
for they have an intimate connection.

III. Agrippa Almost Persuaded (vv.
28-32).

Whether Agrippa's answer was a contemptuous sneer or not, it is quite evident that his soul was wrought upon. He saw the claim of Christ upon him but was unwilling to yield. Sad, indeed, that a man should be so near to eternal life, and yet lost! Paul took Agrippa seriously. His heart longed that Agrippa, and all concerned, might accept Christ and be saved.

For Religious Peace

It would make greatly for religious peace in this country if we all learned to rejoice when we hear of others finding God in any way, and ceased to insist that our own way is the best.—
A. Herbert Gray.

Dignity of Manners

A certain dignity of manners is absolutely necessary to make even the most valuable character either respectable or respected in the world.—Lord Chesterfield.

— THE — CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

— From —
Moody Bible Institute Monthly
Chicago, Ill.

November 29
Victories of Christian Friendliness
in China.
Acts 2:38-47

The choice of the Scripture passage in Acts 2 indicates that in the mind of the committee on prayer-meeting topics, there is a close and vital connection between the preaching of the gospel and Christian friendliness.
From the beneficial results of such preaching as recorded in verses 43-47
it is certain that Peter expressed his friendliness towards others in the most effective way by proclaiming to them the truth as it is in Christ Jesus.
The results are always beneficial. A spirit of unity, sympathy, helpfulness and love is the direct result of such effort. The darkness of selfishness is scattered by the Sun of Righteousness, who sheds abroad in the hearts of believers the warmth and energy of the divine love. (See Romans 5:5; Galatians 5:22, 23). The Holy Spirit brings new life, new motives, new thoughts and new courage. As a consequence new adjustments to all the relationships and problems of life are made. If sacrifice, initiative and achievement mark the new life in Christ, as history and experience attest, how can friendliness be manifested better than in giving the Word of life to those who are without it?

Victories of Christian friendliness
in China would include the sending forth of Christian missionaries as evangelists, teachers and physicians;
the building of hospitals and schools;
the care of orphans; the activities of the Red Cross in times of great distress; the remission of the Boxer indemnities, and the general interest which America has expressed in her relations with China.

The Christian Endeavor Society
supports two field secretaries in China.
One of them, Mrs. Strother, writes as follows: "This is a very serious time in China. The situation is quite pitiful. Pray for this distracted land that strong unselfish leaders may be raised up and a stable government established so that this patient peace-loving people may have a time to quiet. Please do not fail us in this matter for this is the hour of crisis."
Christian friendliness may achieve another great victory by a hearty response to this appeal.

Skeletons Go Back to Prehistoric Age

Two prehistoric skeletons, more than 80 feet in length, recently were uncovered near Hoquiam, Wash., by workmen in a railroad cut, according to an Associated Press dispatch from that place. Rev. J. Herbert Geoghegan, who examined the find, pronounced the bones those of ichthosaurs.

The skeletons were imbedded in from 40 to 60 feet of limestone deposit and were partly petrified. The railroad excavation cut through the animals'
ribs, which could be seen extending for a distance of several feet in parallel lines.

No skull was found, but a long tearing tooth discovered among the debris was taken as indicating that the animals were carnivorous. The ribs vary from three to twelve inches in thickness, while a portion of shoulder blade is four feet long and five inches thick.
Knee joints and other bones discovered vary in size from several feet to only a few inches in circumference.

"The character of the rock indicates that it was once sea or river bottom, which through a fault has been overturned," said Rev. Mr. Geoghegan.
"The layers of strata have been upended, leaving the animals lying in an unnatural position."

"The upheaval which placed the bones on the top of a hill probably took place at the time the Cascade range was formed."

"The animal was a vertebrate and probably stood 40 feet high, counting the long expanse of neck found. The classification of the bones could be determined more exactly if we could locate the skull of one of the beasts."

"This entire country appears to have been tropical or subtropical in character and the absence of rocks and gravel proves that the glacier which covered the northern part of the continent at one time never touched this section."

"From the character of the soil, either river or ocean bottom, I am inclined to believe the animals were ichthosaurs, or maritime reptiles, rather than the dinosaur, land reptile or pterodactyl, flying reptile."

Temple of Diana One of World's Wonders

The temple of Diana of the Ephesians stood in the ancient city of Ephesus in Asia Minor, where St.
Paul resided for some time and established a church. It was accounted one of the seven wonders of the ancient world, and was built at the common charge of all the Asiatic states, remembering that the term Asia then meant about what is now known as Asia Minor. Pliny states that 220 years were employed in building the temple, the Family Herald says.

The first temple of Diana at Ephesus was 425 feet long, 225 broad,
and was supported by 127 columns, each 60 feet high. In 356 B. C., on the night of the birth of Alexander of Macedonia, later Alexander the Great,
the temple was set on fire by He-rostratus, who confessed that his sole motive was the transmission of his name to future ages.

It was the second temple that stood in Ephesus when St. Paul resided in that city and when the riot took place, stirred up by Demetrius the silversmith, who saw his trade in images injured by the spread of Christianity.
This temple was burned by the Goths,
256 A. D. In April, 1869, J. T. Wood of England discovered the site of the second temple, and a little later sculptured marble columns from the ruins were removed to the British museum, London.

Gave Oriental Tales to Western Readers

On February 17, 1715, there passed into the great unknown a man whose name is all but forgotten, but to whom a vast multitude of readers owe a great debt of gratitude. Antoine Gal-land was the discoverer and the first to translate and introduce to the western world the "Arabian Nights" entertainments, or "The Thousand and One Nights." Galland was born in 1646 of humble parents, but he early manifested such talent that he was enabled to secure an excellent education.

He was appointed as attaché to the French embassy at Constantinople, and devoted himself to the study of eastern authors and the collection of oriental literature. He traveled much, and in Bagdad he gained his first knowledge of the classic tales of the days of Bagdad's glory, under the regime of the immortal Haroun Al Raschid in the Ninth century. He began his work of translation at once and in 1704 his "Mille et une Nuits"
was published.

Galland's learning was prodigious,
and he ranks among the greatest orientalists of all time, but it is to the "Arabian Nights" that he owes his lasting fame.

"Polarized" Light and Plants

All plants grow by the action of light, which a substance in their leaves converts into energy. Different species of plants, however, thrive best on different varieties of what we call "light." This really consists of an infinite number of vibrations in the ether, the medium which fills all space and through which our wireless waves travel. But while in the case of the sun these vibrations run in all directions, the vibrations of moonlight are
"polarized" and run in one direction only. This polarized light is best suited for the growth of certain plants, such as, for instance, cucumbers, and indeed, in some experimental farms, light has been artificially polarized for their special benefit. How far the system may be developed we do not yet know, but it is literally true that some plants do grow better in moonlight.—Family Herald.

When Barnum Was Mayor

P. T. Barnum, the circus owner, closed his term as mayor of Bridgeport, Conn., by this address to the common council. He was entertaining a motion to adjourn sine die.

"Now, gentlemen, let us fold our tents like the Arabs and silently steal away, congratulating ourselves that this is the only stealing which has been done by this honorable body."

Barnum's gavel fell and he turned and winked at the councilmen. "Now you are all dead cocks in the pit," he remarked.

Harvey W. Root discovered this and other forgotten incidents of Barnum's term as mayor, which he included in an article upon the great showman in McClure's Magazine.

Cop Had Been There

A rickety diver chugged down the street faster than the cop thought the owner ought to be driving.

The cop signalled him to stop, but the diver kept right on going.

After a pursuit, the cop demanded angrily: "What's the idea? Why didn't you stop when I told you to?"

"Well," answered the man, "it seemed a shame to stop after I spent two hours gettin' the ol' bus started."

It is reported the cop let him go.—
Southern Tourist.

Germans Work Many Dogs

In Germany there are many dogs of all descriptions. Big dogs, little dogs, long-legged police dogs, legless dachshunds and others go to make up the four million dogs in that country—one to every fifteen persons. Over three-fourths of these dogs live in the country or rural districts, where they perform duties enough to earn their daily bread. There are more than five thousand dogs in the military and police services and they all must work hard for their living.—Exchange.

HIS THOUGHTS

Bride—And you think of nothing but me?

Groom—Nothing but you, my dear,
nothing but you.

Bride—And what at this very moment?

Groom—Why, I was thinking that you might be thinking that I was thinking it must be near dinner time, my love.—Chicago Daily News.

Her Last Employment

"Where were you employed last?"
asked the manager of the fair applicant.

"In a doll factory, sir."

"And what were your duties there?"

"Making eyes."

"Very well. You are engaged; but please don't demonstrate your capabilities when my wife is around."

Word Meaning Trouble

"Dad," said Clarence, "what's a three-letter word meaning trouble?"

"Yes," growled his father, who was wishing he had been struck dumb the day he proposed.

TO KEEP AWAY FROM HIM

"How did you come to decide to buy a six-cylinder car?"

"Well, I heard the collector for this automobile concern drove a four-cylinder."

Shingle Facts

East and West have never met.
Their ways have never mingled;
So Chinamen will never get
Their pigstails bobbed or shingled.

Nothing Wasted

The young wife was in tears when her husband came home from work.
"What is wrong, darling?"
"Oh, that maid! She smashes everything she touches."
"Good! Send her over next door at once. Mrs. Spuggs wants some one to help her move her victrola."

Competent Source

Mrs. Muddle—Well, John, I have heard both sides of the story of the trouble between Mrs. Nagg and her husband.

Mr. Muddle—And from whom did you hear both sides of the story?

Mrs. Muddle—Why, from Mrs. Nagg, of course.

He'll Have No Competition

Mrs. Bangs—Jane, put that parrot in the closet, and close all the doors and windows.

Servant—Why, what's the matter,
mum?

Mrs. Bangs—Mr. Bangs is going to fix his car.

MILKING ENERGY

"It's said the hand-shaking done by a noted politician in Washington before election would milk every cow in the country twice."

"You don't say! And just to think he has to use all that energy in order to milk the government."

Struck Out

He struck a match to gaze
Upon his gasoline—
No more he'll travel
On the village green.

A Mere Cipher

"A proverb says 'Add naught to the truth.'"

"I suspect that is what those movie stars do when they are telling what salaries they get—$500 becomes $5,000."

The Traffic Problem

First Inmate Passenger (in crowded car)—Do you mind taking your foot off mine?

Second Inmate Passenger—Certainly,
if you'll take your pipe out of my mouth.

S. P. C. A. Supporter

"Maw, isn't paw kind to animals?"
"Suppose so. Why?"
"Cause I heard him tell Jim Hawkins that he'd come over and feed the kitty if you'd let him out."

Events and Shadows

"The way you trail after Anita seems as though you were in love with her shadow."

"I am. She lives next door to me."
—Princeton Tiger.

Fixed, but Free

He was a reformer, and he was giving the audience a few homely truths.
Every now and then he would thump a clenched fist into his palms as he emphasized some vital point in his speech.

"Yes, my friends," he said, "although you are all above sin, you must beware of the demon. The demon is chained to the wall, waiting to jump out and catch you. If you give him the slightest chance he'll stretch out his hand in front and grab you! Or he'll stretch out to the right and grab you! Or he'll stretch out to the left and grab you! He'll even stretch out behind and grab you!"

This was a little too much for a man in the middle row of seats, and,
rising to his feet, he shouted: "Well,
the blessed thing might as well be loose."

Coming Back

They had quarreled seriously. Finally the wife declared, angrily:

"I'm going home to my mother!"

The husband maintained his calm in the face of this calamity, and drew out his pocketbook.

"Here," he said, "is the money for your fare."

The wife took it and counted it.
Then she faced her husband scornfully:

"But that isn't enough for a return ticket."

Dog Spells Own Name

While dogs have a general reputation for intelligence, there are few whose education is as far advanced as that of Chum, a terrier owned by Mrs.
Young, of the Studio, Cuckfield, Sussex, England, who spells his own name, placing the letters which compose it in their order without ever making a mistake.

He fetches his mistress's shoes and gloves when she begins to take off her slippers, and then puts the slippers away, and brings to those requiring them cigarettes, matches, crumb-brush and tray, books, sticks and letters.

"He learns a lot simply from his own observation, as we have not time to teach him properly," said his owner
to a Daily Mail reporter.

Odd Occupation

A recent trial of a tangle of domestic troubles in a New York court brought to light an odd occupation. The man's wife said he worked in a barber shop,
and didn't bring home any of his tips.
The husband protested that he was not a barber but a "capper." Answering a question from the court for an explanation of his occupation, he said that he put on a barber's coat, and stood in the doorway. "Customers," he said, "duck in as long as there is a 'barber' standing idle in front of the shop." The proprietor seems to profit by it, as he pays the "capper" $35 a week.

Coffin to Suit All

Taste in Coffins is being educated by British manufacturers of such products, by means of an exhibition of caskets in London. A great range of coffins is displayed from the old-fashioned affair to modern rectangular chests.
They include the mahogany and Chippendale style and the oak and Jacobean style. Both are richly lined with silk.
There are also white coffins for babies,
and "earth to earth" coffins, which dissolve and disappear shortly after burial.

Costly Forgetfulness

Sergeant Lewis of the Wilmington (Del.) police force returned from a two weeks' vacation spent in New York, beaming with good cheer. He entered the police station and regaled his colleagues with his adventures and then went home, where his pleasure turned to gloom. He had neglected to turn off the water in the bathroom. Rugs were floating on the first floor and there was a foot of water in the cellar. The damage is estimated at $800.

Business Long Established

In North Walsham, Norfolk, England, is a business firm that was established 817 years ago and still is flourishing. It is that of R. W. Farman, basket makers, founded in 1108, only half a century after William the Conqueror won the battle of Hastings.
The business has been handed down from father to son through the centuries and now its little factory, still doing well, employs six workers.

TANEYTOWN LOCALS

Items of news from town, or vicinity are always wanted for this column. Especially accidents, sales of real estate, fires, important happenings, visits to or from the community social events, and all matters of general interest to those at home, and away from home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Marker, of Littlestown, visited Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Fuss and family, on Sunday.

Eli M. Dutterer left on Monday morning for Plant City, Florida, where he expects to spend the winter.

Richard S. Hill, visited relatives and friends in Baltimore, over Thanksgiving and the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Renner and family, of Littlestown, visited Mrs. Sarah Null and sister, on Sunday.

Last Sunday was "visiting day" in town, judging from the large number of out-of-town autos hitched in front of our homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crouse, and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Overholtzer, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Brown, near town.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Conrad and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Conrad, of Hanover, visited Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Koons, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Morelock and children, of Harrisburg, Pa., spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Morelock and family.

Charles B. Kephart attended the annual meeting of the Inter-State Milk Producer's Association, held at Philadelphia, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Stieley and son, Harry, of northern Minnesota, spent from Wednesday until Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Cleve LeGore.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hesson, Mrs. Calvin Fringer and daughter, Miss Mary, and son, Walter, spent Sunday with Dr. and Mrs. Maurice Wentz and family, at York, Pa.

G. K. Duttera and daughters, Miss Virginia and Mrs. Nellie Dorn, spent Friday in Baltimore, with Mrs. Daniel Buckey and Mrs. Lula Clemson. Mr. Duttera remained until Sunday.

Mrs. Nettie Weaver entertained a number of invited guests at a card party, on Tuesday evening, in honor of her sister, Mrs. Oliver M. Crouse, of Westminster, who is visiting Mrs. Weaver.

C. O. Fuss & Son, conducted three funerals, last Saturday, and were assisted in the emergency by a neighbor in the same line of business. Three funerals in one day are unusual, even for our busy funeral directors.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eckert had as out of town visitors, last Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. Denton Yingling and daughter, of Silver Run; and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Weaver and son, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burgoon, of Gettysburg.

Mr. and Mrs. George Albaugh and son, Harvey, and daughter, Hazel, of New Midway, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John L. Zimmerman, and attended Thank-offering Service in the Lutheran church in the evening.

G. Walter Wilt and wife entertained the following at dinner on Thanksgiving day: Rev. W. V. Garrett, wife and son, Robert; Norman R. Rein-dollor, wife and daughter, Leah; Miss Mabel S. Leister and Miss Clara C. Brining.

Thanksgiving dinners were numerous in town and vicinity, as well as the lists of "those present"; the result of which was that many a fine fowl did not adorn the tables of our city friends, notwithstanding attractive prices.

Some sort of market report "scare" seems to be responsible for the big jump in the price of potatoes. Government reports indicate that there is no shortage in the year's crop to justify the price of last week, and a big tumble is expected soon.

The regular meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association was held in the Opera House, on Monday, with a very large attendance. Dr. Beasley, the representative of the department of forestry, from Agricultural College, gave a lecture along with pictures in the line of forestry. The next meeting is to be held on Dec. 11.

Elwood Nusbaum, son of Sterling Nusbaum was run down on Friday last, by a truck belonging to Frances Shum and driven by Wilbur Shorb. He was picked up with a broken leg and other injuries and rushed to the Frederick City Hospital, and at this writing is getting along very nicely. The mishap occurred on the state road near the Nusbaum home, and is reported to have been purely accidental.

Miss Elizabeth Annan, of Washington, spent her Thanksgiving vacation at home.

Misses Edith and Dorothy Hess, spent the week-end in Baltimore, with their sister, Miss Nellie B. Hess.

Mr. and Mrs. Claudius Long and daughter, Jane, spent Thanksgiving at Arendtsville, Pa., with Mr. and Mrs. Wolf.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Daley and children, of Gettysburg, spent Thanksgiving day with Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Duttera.

Harry Buffington and Miss Martin, of Union Bridge, spent Sunday with the former's sister, Mrs. Ralph Shirk and family.

Mrs. Jacob Strawsburg, Miss Mildred Wantz, Mrs. Annie Troxell and Levi Frock, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hoffman, near Johnsville.

Miss Janet Crebs, who is a student at Millersville State Normal School, and Miss Eva Crebs, of Baltimore, spent the Thanksgiving holidays with their mother, Mrs. Alice D. Crebs.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Zeiber Stultz, daughter, Naomia, and son, John William; Mrs. Wm. Airing and daughter, Effie; Misses Catherine and Eleanor Kephart and Master Buddie Kephart, spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Airing and family.

Those who spent Thanksgiving day with M. Ross Fair and family, were: Mr. and Mrs. John D. Belt and son, John Hess Belt; Mr. and Mrs. Jacob D. Null, daughters, Anna and Grace, son, Hubert, Miss Gladys Zepp, Miss Nannie Hess, Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Fair and two children, of Baltimore.

The Thank-offering Service at the Lutheran Church, last Sunday night, attracted a full house, at least 700 being present. Two pageants were presented; "Thanksgiving Gates" by sixty members of the Light Brigade, and "To Lighten the World's Darkness," by seven ladies of the Young People's Society. The offerings to the three Societies totaled $218.07.

LAST PAGE EDITORIAL.

Holding On.

There is a time that comes in every life—if it is long enough and important enough—when just "holding on" and putting up a desperate resistance to things that are going wrong, is the all-important thing to do. Perhaps our plight is the result of not "holding on" as we should, in times past; we may be largely, if not entirely, responsible for our present condition. Perhaps we have "played hob" with good finance, and indulged expenditures unnecessary and unwarranted; but, when the pinch comes—as it usually does—we must buck against it, and "hold on" to the last minute.

The lessons of prudence, and good management of health, fortune, and the future outlook in general, are hard to learn. We dislike denying ourselves. We unconsciously, sometimes, follow the crowd when it is going the wrong way. We do not "stop, look and listen" for ourselves, until right up against danger.

Let us be as cautious and rational as we may, we at times find ourselves in danger. We may get there through the faults of others; through trusting them, and in them—through the failure of apparently safe guides and dependable signs—but, there is then only the more reason for "holding on."

Contact with the world of activity causes us to be responsible for our own, as well as the acts of others. Like a motorist on a highway, we are in danger of the "reckless driver." We do our best, and yet, our "best" sometimes fails us. Then, the true mettle that is in us must show out. We must not only "hold on" but redouble our efforts to beat the fate that has overtaken us—and as a rule, we can do it, if we but make the big effort.

"Holding on," fortunately, is an inherent trait, and we practice it almost unconsciously. No sane person ever drowns without making an effort to save himself; we see a danger approaching, and we run from it. So, in the face of dangers not physical, we are apt to exercise the same defensive action. It is only the weak and unbalanced—the morbidly inclined—that do otherwise. Many a man has not only "held on" after some great loss, but was the better and stronger in course of time for having had the severe test.

And here is where clean character, and strength of character, comes in. The man worth saving is generally saved, in social and business circles.

Any man with an honorable credit character back of him, who has exercised the best of care in his transactions with mankind, can not only "hold on" but command help in doing so. The world about us is not as heartless or unobserving as we think.

Like a Buzz Saw.

The daughter of a certain strict-principled old deacon had attended a dance the previous night, much against her father's wishes. When she appeared for breakfast the next morning, he greeted her with the words:

"Good morning, daughter of Satan."

To which she respectfully replied:

"Good morning, father."

No Wonder!

A Philadelphian committed suicide and left the following note:

"I married a widow with a grown daughter. My father fell in love with my step-daughter and married her—thus becoming my son-in-law, and my step-daughter became my mother because she was my father's wife."

"My wife gave birth to a son, who was, of course, my father's brother-in-law and my uncle, for he was the brother of my step-mother."

"My father's wife became the mother of a son. He was, of course, my brother—and also my grandchild for he was the son of my daughter."

"Accordingly, my wife was my grandmother because she was my mother's mother. I was my wife's husband and grandchild at the same time—and as the husband of a person's grandmother is his grandfather, I am my own grandfather!"

Chicago's city council has passed a resolution expressing a desire to secede from the state of Illinois, to form a new state named Chicago.

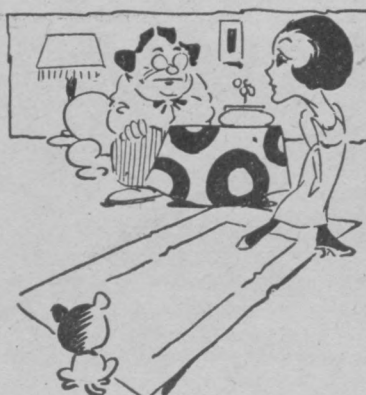

Concrete ties are being tried out by railroads throughout the country to see whether they will safely take the place of wood.

Natural Aversion

Friend—I hear that your son doesn't take kindly to the law.

Big Lawyer (grimly)—Perhaps you wouldn't, either, if you'd been arrested three times for violating traffic ordinances.

ABLE TO EXERCISE

Old Aunt—So your husband ain't really able to dig in the garden any more? Don't he play golf?

Niece—Oh, yes; but that's exercise, auntie dear.

One Dial sets them all—

The Grebe Synchronphase offers the first Flexible Unit Control

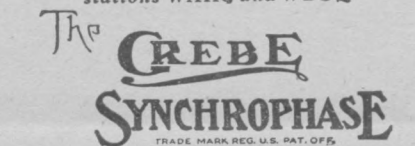

Two or all three dials may be set by rotating one—or each dial may be adjusted separately. Thus, in the Synchronphase you have, at your option, a receiver of one, two or three-dial control. It means ease and speed in accurate tuning, not enjoyed by owners of other receivers.

The new famous Grebe Binocular Coils and S-L-F Condensers which give extreme "Selective Sensitivity", and the new Grebe Low-Wave Extension Circuits, place the Synchronphase at the forefront of radio receivers.
