

GOOD HEALTH FOR ALL MARYLAND.

A Series of Conferences to be held throughout State.

"Good health for all Maryland," will be discussed at a series of regional conferences that have been arranged by the State Department of Health, and that will be held in different parts of the State during the next six months. The subject will be considered with special reference to the work of the Deputy State Health Officers, the Local and County Health Officers, the County Commissioners, who in each county constitute the county board of health, the superintendents of schools, the local public health nurses, and other county and town officials.

The opening conference will be held in Frederick, Wednesday, February 10, and will bring together the representatives of Montgomery, Carroll, Howard and Frederick counties. The next will take place Wednesday, March 10, at Baltimore, and will be attended by representatives of county and town activities of Baltimore, Harford and Cecil counties. The conference in Cecil will be held at Cumberland, Wednesday, April 7; for Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties. Upper Marlboro has been selected as the meeting place for the conference for Anne Arundel, Calvert, St. Mary's, Charles and Prince George counties, which will be held, Wednesday, May 12.

The first of the Eastern Shore conference will be held at Centreville, June 9, and will include Kent, Queen Anne, Talbot and Caroline counties. The conference for Dorchester, Wicomico, Worcester and Somerset counties, will be held at Salisbury on Wednesday, June 7th.

Special attention will be given in the programs, to the importance of full time county health service; to the work of the Deputy State Health Officers; and to the activities of the public health nurses in each of the districts represented. The provisional program for the conferences shows that 10 full time health officers, that is Deputies or Assistant Deputy State Health Officers are in charge of the work in the counties, with whom are associated 46 public health nurses. The nurses are stationed in the counties as follows: Allegany county leads with 6; Baltimore has 5; Anne Arundel and Washington each have 3; Carroll, Howard, Harford, Prince George, Talbot and Wicomico each have 2, and each of the remaining 23 has one public health nurse.

Annual Report of the Home-makers Club, of Taneytown.

During the year 1925 the Home-makers Club, of Taneytown, held twelve meetings. The average attendance was seventeen. Mrs. Walter Bower made a perfect attendance. Miss Cobb gave the following demonstrations:

- 1—Removing spots from furniture.
- 2—Canning chicken in compressed coaks.
- 3—Tie-dyeing.

Mr. Fuller gave a helpful talk on "Gardening" at our April meeting.

On Miss Cobb's return she gave a very interesting account of her trip abroad, at which time the Taneytown High School was also present.

Miss Campbell gave a demonstration in August, on "The One-piece Meal," consisting of beef, potatoes, tomato sauce, string beans, apple pudding.

At one meeting our Club entertained the Emmitsburg Club, at which time Miss Knight, from College Park, gave two helpful demonstrations; the "one hour dress," and millinery. Four dresses were cut, fitted and partly made, and one hat was made. A delicious luncheon was served in cafeteria style to the present.

Mrs. Lavinia Fringer demonstrated the use of sewing machine attachments at our September meeting.

Miss Cobb gave a talk on "Household Management." By proper arrangement of kitchen furniture much energy and time are saved.

Twenty-eight babies were examined by Dr. Stone at the baby clinic.

The Home-makers Club purchased blinds for the second floor of the Firemen's Building. The Club also beautified the Soldiers Monument by planting shrubbery around it.

A COLD WAVE.

The Severest of the Winter Hits
Maryland and East.

The severest cold of the winter developed in the Maryland section, on Thursday and is continuing today, the temperatures ranging from zero to about 10° above. The temperature dropped 17 degrees in Baltimore, on Thursday, at the Weather Bureau.

In Washington and Allegany counties snow has fallen to a depth of 6 and 8 inches, while lighter falls were in evidence in other portions of the state. Wind developed into a gale in Carroll and Frederick counties making it very difficult to keep houses warm, or even comfortable.

Severe cold and wind has been general along the east coast and on the Chesapeake, making it difficult to operate small craft. Scarcity of coal is also beginning to be felt, even in sections reasonably well supplied earlier in the winter. Rising temperature is permitted for tomorrow.

Proceedings of the Orphans' Court.

Monday, January 25, 1926—William H. Armacost, administrator of Lydia F. Armacost, deceased, returned inventory of personal property.

Letters of administration under Chapter 146 Acts 1912, on the estate of William F. Stocksdale, deceased, were granted unto William C. Stocksdale, who received order to notify creditors under said Act.

Letters testamentary on the estate of Robert Charles Hotson, deceased, were granted unto Grace E. Hotson, who received order to notify creditors.

David H. Weaver, administrator d. b. n. c. t. a., of Margaret Weaver, deceased, reported sale of real estate which was immediately ratified.

Martha E. Layton, administrator of John H. Burdette, returned inventory of personal property and real estate and received order to sell former.

Letters of administration on the estate of Harvey B. Caples, deceased, were granted unto Fannie B. Caples, who received warrants to appraise personal property and real estate and order to notify creditors.

Westminster Deposit and Trust Company, guardian to Sarah B. Billingslea, infant, settled their first and final account.

Harry S. Owings, administrator w. a., of Catherine Milter, deceased, returned inventories of personal property and debts due and received order to sell the personal property.

Harry S. Owings, administrator of Florence Milter, deceased, returned inventories of personal property, real estate and current money and received order to sell personal property.

Francis J. Grimes, administrator w. a., of Clara E. Porter, deceased, returned inventories of personal property and current money.

William J. Stansbury and George F. Stansbury, administrators of Joshua A. Stansbury, deceased, returned inventory of personal property and received order to sell same.

Carroll C. Bemiller, administrator of John H. Bemiller, deceased, reported sale of personal property.

Ancillary letters of administration with the will annexed of J. Edward Beck, deceased, were granted unto Edward O. Weant, who received warrant to appraise personal property, returned inventory of personal property, received order to sell same and returned report of sale of same.

William N. Yingling, lately appointed Chief Judge in place of Thomas J. Haines, deceased, was sworn in on Monday, Jan. 25, 1926.

Senator Weller Offers Field Seeds to Farmers.

Senator Weller, in keeping with the interest he has always shown in the farmers of our State, has arranged to obtain from the Department of Agriculture a few packages of rare field seed, which he wishes to distribute free test purposes.

For the information of those who may desire to take advantage of the opportunity which the Senator in making possible in this connection, it may be stated that each package of the seeds contains a sufficient quantity for a satisfactory field test, and that the following varieties are available:

Kansas-grown alfalfa, Koreou lespezea, Virginia soybeans, and Sudan grass. All requests should be addressed to Senator O. E. Weller, 227 Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C.

As the Senator was able to procure only a limited number of these seeds, and since they are all intended for early spring planting, it is suggested that you let him hear from you by March 20, 1926.

4-H Party.

In co-operation with the Extension Service University of Maryland, the Taneytown Savings Bank will give a 4-H party to all farm boys and girls in this community, Saturday afternoon Jan. 30, at 1:30.

The Bank is taking this occasion to present to the 4-H boys and girls who exhibited their products at the 1925 Carroll County Fair, the books they won.

D. J. Hesson, President of the Bank will present the books. E. G. Jenkins, State Boys' Club Agent, and Miss Emerson, State Girls' Club leader, will be the speakers of the afternoon. All farm boys and girls from 12 to 18 years old are invited to attend this meeting. Come and sing and hear "Daddy Jenks" and "Sis," and we guarantee all a good time.

The Bible is now printed in 572 languages.

SENATE VOTES TO JOIN WORLD COURT.

Party Lines Broken in the Final Vote.

The United States Senate, administered cloture to itself, on Monday, the second time in its history, on the motion to close debate on the World Court bill. The vote was, yeas Republicans 37, Democrats 31, total 68; nays Republicans 18, Democrats 7, Farmer-Labor 1, total 26. Previous to the vote being taken, Reed (Dem.) of Missouri, and Robinson (Dem.) of Arkansas, entered into a heated discussion on opposite sides of the question. Vice-President Dawes said nothing, but when he announced the vote he did not try very hard to repress a broad smile.

The original World Court bill has been safeguarded with "reservations" in fact, it may be so loaded down that it will not be accepted by the European powers; as membership of the U. S. in the Court withholds from the jurisdiction of the Court most questions concerning in any important sense the interests of this country.

As it stands, the Court seems far away from the League of Nations compact; in fact, one of the reservations especially provides that the United States shall not be involved in any League of Nations compact or obligation.

The amended bill passed the Senate on Wednesday, by a vote of 76 to 17. On its final passage a large number of additional "reservations" were voted down after a bitter fight. The reservations, which were approved by the Senate, provide, in effect:

That adherence to the World Court shall not involve any legal relation between the United States and the League of Nations.

That this country be permitted to participate on an equality with other nations in the election of judges.

That this country may at any time withdraw.

That there are to be no secret advisory opinions.

That recourse to the Court in cases affecting this country can be had only by treaty.

That adherence to the Court shall not imply an intention on the part of this country to interduce upon foreign countries domestic affairs or to relinquish its attitude toward purely American questions.

The final vote for the Court was, Republican 40, Democrats 36; against, Republicans 14, Democrats 2, Farmer-Labor 1.

Paying Subscriptions to Newspapers, in Advance.

There are some who still object to paying newspaper subscriptions in advance, on the ground that it is "paying for something before we get it." We do not see it that way. The fact is, most things are paid for before one gets all of what is paid for. The man who buys an insurance policy for a one or three year term, pays in advance for the term. When we buy a railroad ticket, we pay before we get on the train. When we buy an automobile—well, some don't pay for them in advance.

When we buy a suit of clothing, or a pair of shoes, we buy the service in the articles which is not received in full for a long time after the purchase is paid for. We buy a horse or cow, the same way—we pay in advance for the value in them, and take chances.

When we buy a farm, or a home, we pay for it, but do not get the use or profit out of the investment for years. We buy a marriage license before we know how the contract it represents is going to result.

The farmer does not sell his wheat, a bushel at a time on a credit of a year, and take the chance of getting his money then, perhaps after sending out a lot of statements. The newspaper publisher does not say to his employees, "as we sell our paper on time, you will have to wait until Jones, Brown and Smith pays up, before I can pay you."

These are only a few instances showing the necessity for the pay-in-advance newspaper subscription plan. The daily paper, the magazines, the church and farm papers, are all "pay in advance." Why not also the little county weekly? Think it over!

Myers Trial in April.

Charles W. Myers, Hanover, is named in three indictments, containing four counts, returned as true bills by the January grand jury in Gettysburg Court, on Tuesday. The indictments charge Myers with the murder of Mrs. W. F. Ebaugh, Littlestown, as the result of an automobile accident last month, illegal possession and transportation of liquor and operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. The case was postponed until the April term.

York County Borrows $75,000.

The County Commissioners of York County, Pa., took action, on Monday, to borrow $75,000 to meet the county's current expenses, as the treasury is depleted and will not regain healthy proportions until the 1926 taxes commence to come in.

Forty-seven Federal prohibition agents have been killed, while on duty, by rum runners and bootleggers.

MOONLIGHT AND RADIO.

Opinions Advanced that Moonlight
Causes Interference.

Moonlight, a commodity generally believed to worry nobody but the writers of popular songs, has been revealed in a role as a radio wrecker. Preliminary tests for the national survey of fading and static to be conducted by the Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation in co-operation with Northwestern University, Department of Physics, on the nights of February 9, 10 and 11 from 8 to 11, central standard time, brought unexpected reports on the insidious activities of the moon.

Published reports of private inquiries into the causes of disturbances that prevent good radio reception so far have dealt with the manner in which atmospheric conditions are changed by sun spots, comets and eclipses. Even the aurora borealis has been investigated, but it has never been suggested that the phases of the moon might have anything to do with the adenoial performance of distant sopranos.

R. C. Therrien, an electrical engineer, of Chicago, has forwarded to J. K. Smith, director of the national tests, a report covering a period of eighteen months. He suggested that it be investigated during the February tests and possibly at other times during the year.

"Eighteen months ago I discovered quite accidentally that distance reception was almost impossible on a night when the moon was full and high in the sky, said Mr. Therrien in his report. "I thought, of course, that this might be merely a coincidence, but I remembered what I had learned regarding the magnetic effect of the moon on the tides, and it occurred to me that such a visible electrical display ought to have a definite influence on the ionized stratum of atmosphere or whatever it is that carries on, deflects or blocks radio waves. So I watched closely. Each silent night I made careful note of reception conditions and lunar phases and gradually I built up the evidence to show that my supposition was at least worthy of further investigation.

"I discovered that during the summer we frequently had nights free from static, despite warm, sultry weather. Invariably, such nights were those when the moon was in the first or last quarter. I discovered also that many nights began with the atmosphere perfectly 'dead,' so far as radio reception was concerned, showed marked improvement later in the night when the moon had gone closer to the horizon.

"The night of December 28th. of last year was a typical one. The air was crisp, cold and clear and there was no appreciable moisture, in spite of which it was impossible to pick up any but the most powerful distant stations, and very few of those. The moon was just approaching fullness. For two hours it was impossible to hear anything but New Orleans and Pittsburgh. After midnight conditions improved and continued to get better until just before daylight when everything went dead again. I have noted similar conditions virtually every Monday night when the moon was full or high.

"I am not attempting to draw definite conclusions from my observations, the record of which is enclosed herewith. But I do believe the results are sufficiently interesting and of sufficient importance to the radio public to warrant an investigation of lunar influences on a comprehensive scale."

As a result of this letter, Mr. Smith sent out notices to the 4,000 observers who will take part in the tests February 9, 10 and 11, asking them to make notations during the period of the survey.

Another Compromise Refused.

The last attempt to effect a compromise of the coal strike, which was practically to resume operations on the basis of the old contract, with a guarantee of the former scale of wages for five years, has been refused by the operators on the ground that it would fix wages for five years, arbitrarily, regardless of the selling market. The miners approved the plan.

The plan provided that the miners return to work at once under a five-year contract at the old rate of wages unless changed by further negotiations. A method for changing the wage rate provided that either party, sixty days before two years of the contract should have elapsed, might call a conference to adjust wages. If no agreement then were reached, the old rate should remain in effect for five years.

The Conference is being continued, daily, but little is being done except to meet and engage in general discussion. It is generally conceded that the waning of the winter renders it the more unlikely that the operators will make any concessions toward agreeing on a fixed five-year wage scale, which is the present stand of the miners.

Delegates to Highway Safety Conference.

Governor Ritchie has appointed five delegates to represent Maryland at the National Conference on highway safety, to be held in Washington under the auspices of the Secretary of Commerce, March 23-25, as follows: John M. Mackall, chairman of State Road Commission; Charles D. Gaither, Police Commissioner; E. Austin Baughman, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles; Allan McLane, president Automobile Club of Maryland, and W. W. Cloud, of Baltimore.

ATT'Y GEN. SARGENT ON PROHIBITION.

Gives his Opinions to New York
Bar Association.

Attorney General Sargent in a recent address to the N. Y. Bar Association, gave his opinions concerning violations and violators of the prohibition laws, and their relation to criminality. His discussion had nothing to do with offenses against the law committed from motives of jealousy, anger, revenge, passion, and ill-will toward society, he continued, since every citizen had come to regard it as a duty to aid in the detection and punishment of such offenders, and in correcting the conditions which make them offenders.

"But no one engages in the liquor traffic from any such motive," he declared.

"Every person who sells liquor does it solely and only because some one will pay a price high enough to make a profit sufficient to offset the chance of detection, conviction and punishment. To put it differently, every such sale is the direct result of the offer and payment by the purchaser of a bribe to commit the offense. Is there any escape from this as a logical conclusion?"

"Now, who do otherwise respectable citizens engage in such bribery?"

"Because they say the law interferes with their personal liberty in that they have an inherent right to drink whisky or any other liquor if they choose. That it is nobody's business but their own whether they shall or shall not injure themselves and therefore no one may decide for them whether the use of liquor is or is not injurious."

"Whether the policy of invoking and exercising the power in this particular matter when and as it has been exercised was wise or unwise is no longer open to discussion. It has been done. It is an accomplished fact. Not only is the law settled, but to all appearances, if we can judge of the minds of the people by the votes of their representatives in Congress, the determination that it shall remain settled and obeyed, is hardening day by day."

"Now what are the portion of the community who would prefer a different policy, a different law, going to do about it? When I ask this question I refer to that portion of the substantial, self-respecting, decent citizenry, who in all other things are law-abiding; the citizenry who in all other matters—and indeed in many things which follow from their conduct in this respect—demand the protection of the law and its agency."

"Can any such citizen say, 'I will pay a bribe to anyone who will violate this law of my country?'"

"Let us carry the matter a little further. If he does say that or saying or not saying or thinking it does offer and pay the bribe and so induces some one to violate the law and make a forbidden sale to provide what he desires to drink, can that citizen logically find fault with the man he has bribed when that man in turn offers and pays part of his bribe to some one to violate another law to get something he wants or to enable him to escape the consequences of the unlawful act the citizen has paid him to do?"

Hog Cholera in 1925.

Carroll County leads all other counties in the state, regardless of area, in hog raising, having during the past year raised 11.5 percent of the entire state production. The entire Eastern Shore raises only 13.5 of the total. Frederick county stands next to Carroll. The information comes through inspector Atherton, who has charge of hog cholera work in the state.

There were 321 outbreaks reported in which 2127 hogs were lost. It has been the custom in Maryland to add 20 percent to the number reported, as a fair estimate of all losses. About 2560 hogs were lost during the year in the state. This loss is approximately 10 in each thousand in the state. This compares favorably with the federal report, which reveals that 30 out of every 1,000 hogs in the United States lost by the cholera.

As in previous reports, it is declared that the greatest losses occurred in garbage feeding plants and in cases where scraps and refuse from tables is fed the animals. It is estimated that in Maryland 463, or 19 percent of all the hogs lost, were in garbage feeding plants. An even larger number contracted the disease by feeding on scraps, offal and swill. It is said that 84.66 percent of the losses resulted from infected pork eaten in this manner.

Another Steamer for Baltimore.

Baltimore, January 22.—The steamship "Chatham" of the Merchants & Miners Transportation Company will be launched at Newport News, Virginia, on February 3rd. The "Chatham" will be 368 feet in length, with gross tonnage displacement of approximately 7,000 tons, and is one of the Company's group of five new steamships. The "Alleghany" and the "Berkshire" are already in service, and the other two sister ships are scheduled to be launched before Summer. The "Chatham" will accommodate 300 passengers. The Merchants and Miners Transportation Company operates steamships between Boston, Providence, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Norfolk, Savannah, Jacksonville and Miami.

ODD FELLOWS HOME.

Opened for the Reception of Inmates on Tuesday.

The Odd Fellows Home at Frederick was opened on Tuesday, and the first residents were received. The Home was started about six years ago, and the total cost of building and furnishings is about $500,000. One hundred and fifty-four beds have been installed and are ready for occupancy. The Home will have a capacity of about 200 aged persons and children.

Secretary Jones and Robert A. Bennett, a local director, will have charge of the institution until a superintendent is chosen, a number of applications for this position having been received.

A meeting of the directors and others officially connected with the Home was held on Wednesday, for the transaction of business.

In addition to the board of directors, the chairman of the finance committee, Joseph E. Cook, of Baltimore, was present at the luncheon. The Home Commission includes Robt. A. Bennett, H. Dorsey Etchison, Eli G. Haugh, Charles F. Seeger, all of Frederick; James W. Chapman, Jr., Baltimore; Henry W. McCullough, Elkton; Charles W. Bennett, Salisbury; Saul Prager, Cumberland; Judge Frank I. Duncan, Towson; John B. Spence, George R. Pray, Baltimore; the Rev. L. B. Hafer, Gettysburg; Howard T. Hartman, Hagerstown; M. M. Carr, Aberdeen; Mrs. Caroline W. Walsho, Cumberland; Miss Mary Horisberg, Mrs. Susan Jones, Baltimore; Mrs. Margaret F. Roberts, Mt. Rainier; Mrs. Adelaide E. Westwood, Baltimore; Mrs. Emma Poole, Frederick. S. Elmer Brown, Frederick city, is treasurer.

To Solve Radio Interference.

A movement is on foot, backed by leading Radio manufacturers, as well as the co-operation of Secretary Hoover and the Department of Commerce, to establish local committees all over the United States to hunt out and definitely locate radio interference.

Such interference comes from electric light circuits, high tension lines, elevators, certain motors, and to the use of regenerative receiving sets. The plan will be to locate the trouble, then take up the question with the Company or individual responsible. The plan, briefly, is to bring expert service to every locality. Robert H. Marriott, president of the Institute of Radio Engineers says:

"As to discovering the source of disturbance, this will be simple. One way is to put a loop apparatus in the automobile and patrol the district. Another is to carry a loop receiver around and get the direction from which the interference comes. All one has to do then is to follow it to its source."

Candy Shop Replaces Bar.

The Christian Science Monitor carries a Cincinnati news story which is not found in any Cincinnati newspaper, and the reason is not hard to find.

In the Hotel Sinton, one of the leading hosteleries of Cincinnati, the room formerly used as the bar is now a candy shop. In that room last year was sold more than $250,000 worth of candy. That was more than twice as much business as the bar did in the days before prohibition. Last December the Sinton candy shop did a business of more than $40,000, while the biggest month's business the Sinton bar ever did amounted to about $25,000. The bar formerly employed twelve persons—bartenders and porters. The candy shop which has taken its place employs seventy-six persons.

In the basement of the Sinton in the wet days was the grill with a fully equipped bar. This grill is now a cafeteria. The hotel management says the profits from the cafeteria far exceed the returns from the grill. In the old days forty persons were on the grill payroll. The cafeteria which replaced it employs 125 persons. Before prohibition the Sinton employed 550 persons in all departments. It now employs more than 700 and has enjoyed its greatest prosperity under prohibition. But the Cincinnati Enquirer and the Times Star do not see any news in the above facts and it comes by way of Boston.—American Issue.

Old Fiddlers.

Since Henry Ford brought Mellie Dunham into the limelight as a backwoods fiddler and incidentally into a profitable theatrical contract, old master fiddlers have bobbed up in many sections of the country to claim more general recognition of their art.

Already there are several fiddlers of this type engaged in teaching dance-mad New York how to do old-fashioned dances, such as "Money Musk," the cakewalk, "Portland Fancy" and other dances of old times, to the old-fashioned tunes evoked from their fiddles.

Henry Ford, as usual, seems to have started something when he called for a reform of modern dancing. If the toddlers, turkey-trotters and dancers of the "Charleston" turn to the old-fashioned square dancing, a reform may be accomplished by means of a fad that pulpits and press have thundered for in vain for many a day.—From the Wilmington Evening.

Man's pet vanity, the crease in the trouser's leg, was introduced by King Edward VII, of England.

Loss of life by snake bites, in India, is very high—16,777 deaths being recorded in a single year.

The whole country is having plenty of evidence, these days, that the Dawes plan for amending the Senate rules, is right. A few iron-framed leather-lunged obstructionists should not be permitted to hold up the most important business of the United States. It is neither good sense, nor good business, that they should be permitted to do so.

It has been figured out that the ballot this fall, will require 33 X marks. It may require that many, but will not get them. A lot of voters will make two or three X marks, and call it a vote. The only way to get a full vote on such a ballot is to amend the law so that one X mark counts for a "straight" ticket. This always should have been the law.

Whether Governor Ritchie wants to be President, Senator, or just a third-term Governor, is nobody's business; and his holding back the announcement of his political ambitions is an example some others might follow, with credit. According to some political ethics, as soon as a man is elected to an office, he ought to say, at once, what he wants next.

It is said that dwellers in cities find it increasingly difficult and expensive to own and operate an automobile. The congestion is such that it is difficult to find parking space, while garage rents are enormous, as well as other expenses. Perhaps this is the solution to the trend away from the country sections? Folks will be compelled to move to the country, or do the unthinkable thing—do without a "car."

Women and Domestic Life.

Hon. James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, in a prepared address to the Women's Industrial Conference, held in Washington, gave the ladies some very pointed facts concerning their labor in various branches of work usually occupied by men, and with reference to their work in general, and the influence of their work on the human race. We should say that his advice was strongly based on facts, but that it will not be seriously taken.

We get from it that indirectly he pretty strongly condemns the increased "mannishness" of women, and their trend away from home-making and motherhood. We also think he meant to point out that women are working too hard, largely in order to secure the means with which to keep up a long list of unnecessary now connected with modern cost of living.

That they are turning to business, and away from domestic life, and thereby defeating the main purpose of women in the world's scheme of proper sex relationship. In his picture of his own mother, still living at over 75 years, who led a vigorous domestic life for the sake of her family, it seems to us he sets up as an ideal of true womanliness, and it is a very different one from many of the women of today.

The serious fact brought out was, that the physical standard of men has deteriorated within the past twenty-five years; that this standard is largely fixed by the standards of the mothers; and the occupations of the mothers largely determines their physical status, and largely that of their children.

Incidentally, it may be mentioned as a fact—even if not one demonstrated by scientific research—that many young men do not seek mates early in life, because they see the evidence of the possible expense of the upkeep of a home and fashions, and the disinclination of young women for home work.

Rural Delivery and the Contract System.

Every now and then somebody makes a more or less big noise over the cost of the Rural Delivery Service, and it is proposed to save a lot of money by letting the routes to competitive bidding, after the plan of the Star Route service in vogue some thirty years ago. Movements of this sort were heard from in some sections of the country, quite recently, but are hardly worthy of serious consideration, as our government is not likely to engage in a proposition so dangerous, or foolish, right after voting increased pay to carriers.

Twenty-five years ago, this winter, Rural Delivery was just getting into something like general operation, and at that time the service was being harshly criticised as impractical. The discontinuance of thousands of post-offices very naturally aroused storms of protest, largely because thousands of personal interests were being interfered with; and aside from this, many more thousands of patrons were fearful that their mail would be lost, or stolen, or damaged, and easily passed their honest opinion that the plan would not work.

But, all of this was twenty-five years ago. The service has vindicated itself, until now a much greater storm of protest would be raised, should it be proposed to discontinue free delivery and return to the post-office plan.

The only criticism that does remain, is the cost of the service, and not the manner of it. Considering this criticism seriously, it may be admitted that the contract system would result in many applicants for routes at perhaps considerably less pay, in the aggregate, than the government now pays. But, the greater question is, whether the efficiency of the service would not, in a little while, deteriorate?

Those not in the service are quite apt to magnify the "pay," and to underestimate the "cost" of serving the routes acceptably. That is the common mistake of the "outs," no matter what class of public offices may be considered. The job one don't have, always looks rosier than it is, after one has it. It is the old, "distance lends enchantment," maxim.

Unless we greatly mistake the situation, the farmers of the country would be the first great body to oppose the contract system, or any other scheme that would possibly lessen the present excellence of the R. D. system; and we should say that the contract system would first have to be effectually tried out over experimental areas, and prove its excellence and economy, before it would be generally adopted; all of which, we believe, is a very far in the future possibility.

Congress and Strikes.

The present coal strike is showing Congress its duty, through showing the danger that confronts the country from strikes and disagreements—not only strikes of organized miners, but strikes by any other form of highly organized labor. Just now, there appears to be no law that can be invoked by Congress to compel miners, or anybody, to go to work; no law to compel miners or mine owners to abide by legal arbitration; no law to protect the great third party interested—the public—when these strikes and disagreements occur.

The Senate has not even taken up the exhaustive report of the U. S. Coal Commission, made several years ago, that contains all of the information needed in the present situation. Congress has been "playing politics" with such questions, for years, for fear, largely, of offending union voters.

The Baltimore Sun, in its issue of Friday of last week, very pointedly referred to the situation, as follows:

"It is fortunate for Congress that the public has not relied upon legislation to save it from the evils which usually follow in the train of a prolonged coal strike. The public has taken this particular strike into its own hands and has practically won it. There has been some inconvenience, some suffering, some waste of money, but by and large the other two parties to the quarrel, the strikers and the operators, are holding the bag."

But there is still serious business before Congress in relation to such happenings. Stoppages of mining are constant occurrences. When they are not brought about in the anthracite mines, bituminous mines are shut down. The worst effects of the present strike were avoided because there happened to be an unusual amount of anthracite above ground when it was called. But it is folly to go along trusting to luck to come safely through these perennial squabbles over a commodity that is essential to the welfare of the country.

The public wants to know whether there is authority in the National Government to do anything, and if so, what. If more authority is needed, this is as good a time as another to determine the advisability of granting it. If matters are permitted to drift, the day will come again when desperate need will be followed by demand for desperate remedies—seizure of the mines, their nationalization, use of the army to assure fuel, the swinging of the "big stick" by the President, or any other measure, no matter how radical, to release a stranglehold on the life of the nation. Excuse may be advanced for letting the present strike alone; but Congress will be inexcusably derelict if it does not now take up the issue and devise ways and means to protect the country from what in the future may easily become a national calamity.

A Party in Search of a Moses.

While it is a long way to the presidential primaries of 1928, several more or less well-known Democrats are moving in that direction. Two well-defined booms are in sight and three not so well defined. The most active work is being done for and by Governor Smith, of New York. His emissaries haunt Washington. His scouts scour the hinterlands.

His most active rival is Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, who is making a good many speeches. Recently he addressed Chicago's Iroquois Club. More recently he spoke in New York. The burden of his plea is the old Democratic doctrine of States' Rights. Like Governor Smith, his "wet" tendencies are marked.

Other possible candidates are Senator Walsh, of Montana, and Governor Donahey, of Ohio. Possible, is the word applying to both men. The Donahey ambitions are not taken seriously either in or out of Ohio. The man from Montana is rather far to the West and North of the seats of Democratic strength.

Hanging over a troubled Democracy is the shadow of one William Gibbs McAdoo. His strength has ebbed since July, 1924, but the forces behind him then are still alive.

There are plenty of aspirants, but issues are another matter. States' Rights will hardly serve. Calvin Coolidge has all but ruined this issue for the Democrats. Governors Smith and Ritchie are not more determined enemies of centralized power in Washington than is President Coolidge. He has shot that horse from under the Democrats.

The cause of Colonel Mitchell, long considered by Democracy, has been definitely dropped. Mitchellism is as likely to be a liability as an asset.

The tussle at present is over whether the party shall turn to the tariff or raise the old Bryan battlecry against "The Interests." Atlantic seaboard and New England Democrats want to smite the tariff hip-and-thigh. Partisans of both Smith and Ritchie can agree on this and on an assault against the Volstead act. The South and West might be mildly interested in the tariff, but will be hostile as hornets to any tampering with prohibition.—Phila. Ledger.

Mighty Policeman

The most important traffic policeman in the United States stands at the junction of Washington and Meridian streets, Indianapolis. With one blast of his whistle he can send automobiles to Miami, Fla., or Seattle, Wash. Then turning his back on Florida and Seattle (figuratively, of course), he can route cars to New York and Los Angeles. This intersection in Indianapolis is the crossroads of the main transcontinental highways of the United States. If he wasn't so busy this policeman might feel he was as important to the country as the man who sits in the White House.—Cap-per's Weekly.

New Niagara Falls Tunnel

The old Boddell stairway leading down past the "Rock of Ages" and into the Cave of the Winds at Niagara falls is to be abandoned, says Popular Science Monthly. A new subterranean passage 200 feet long has been bored through the great cliff over which the falls roar, connecting with a shaft sunk straight down from the surface of Goat island. At the mouth of the shaft is a peninsula named "Clearwater View," which affords a marvelous close-up view of the falls.

Wanted Band at Funeral

When Lorenz Herter recently died in Denver he left instructions in his will that he be buried with simple ceremonies, but that the funeral procession be accompanied by a "musical band," the further instructions being that there be no ostentation about the burial rites, other than that. His body was ordered cremated.

Tree Lover Laments

Passing of Redwood

It was a cross-section of a giant redwood tree brought from Fresno, Cal. . . . I think it was the swan-song of that tree I heard, a message I would willingly give my life if all the world could hear, and understand:

"You have just come from a land where ancient ruins are being dug out of earth and lava. You have looked with awe upon ancient monuments and great cathedrals built when the world is fighting to save these things, to pass them down to other ages. Yet I, in whose veins the life-blood is scarcely dried, am older than the ancient houses of Pompeii or the colosseum of Rome. Only yesterday I was alive, when my human murderers came. They killed me, killed me laughingly, jeeringly, triumphantly, and with me two thousand years of knowledge and of life.

"I was straight and tall when the man you call Christ, and whose teachings have been so poorly followed on earth, was born. For God loved trees, and so did Christ. I was as mighty as your mightiest oak when the Middle Ages began. Yet still I was only shoulder high to my older brothers and sisters when Columbus discovered America, and I was still climbing toward the blue skies which God made for the trees when the Middle Ages ended.

"And I was two thousand years old when they cut me down. And those who killed me, and so many others about me, were not thinking of Pompeii, or Rome, or Christ, or God.—" —James Oliver Curwood, in Hearst's International-Cosmopolitan.

No Immediate Danger

Senator William B. McKinley, senior United States senator from Illinois, tells this one as the best he has ever heard:

In the early days of automobiles, when roads were unimproved, a friend of mine started over the clay hills down South just after a terrible rain. Thinking every minute he would get on better road, he kept on driving until finally the mud was up to the hub. He kept on driving until it was up to the bottom of the car. Then he was forced to stop. Seeing a hat a few yards ahead of his automobile lying on the mud, and thinking someone had lost it he got out of the car and walked toward the hat. By the time he had reached the place where the hat was lying on the mud, he was up to his neck. Raising the hat, he was very much astonished to find a man's head under it. My friend, while up to his own neck in mud, was very accommodating, and raising the hat said to the man underneath the hat: "Well, stranger, can I help you any?" The stranger looked up with a silly grin on his face, and he said: "No, I guess I'm all right. I'm on my horse."—Exchange.

The recent expose of the so-called "secret pardons" and "secret paroles" of the state pardon board caused a certain Los Angeles judge to remark:

"It is no wonder that many of our thinking citizens are beginning to ask where all this is going to lead. We fall autoists on such technicalities as cutting corners or buttons and release our murderers. How they must laugh when they hear a life sentence pronounced. The justice of today reminds me of the old dandy who was brought before me several years ago on a minor charge.

"What have you to offer in your behalf? I asked him and to my surprise he answered:

"I'm sorry, yo' honah, but I've turned over every cent I own to mah lawyer an' a couple ob dem joultry-men." —Los Angeles Times.

POULTRY

IMPROPER FEED IS CAUSE OF BIG LOSS

One of the greatest losses in the poultry business is caused by improper feeding of baby chicks. There are many people who still fail to consider that a chick when hatched does not require food for several days and that it will live more than a week without food. Most poultry raisers who hatch their own chicks have learned this, but many who buy chicks are still inclined to overfeed at first.

Great care should be taken to start feeding the chicks gradually. This applies regardless of the feed that is used. Chicks should be at least 56 hours old when given their first feed. Before this they should be allowed to run on sod or good, clean litter of chaff or finely cut hay.

After the chicks are 56 hours old we give them the first feed. A clean board with strips projecting about one-half inch around the edges, should be provided. This board should be large enough to accommodate all the chicks at one time—several boards being necessary in most cases, as a board 1 by 2½ feet is about the right size for 75 chicks. A little of the feed should be sprinkled over this board, and the chicks allowed to eat for about ten minutes. Then the board should be cleaned off and a little sand sprinkled on it. This in turn should be removed in a few minutes as grit should not be used too freely until the chicks are ten days old. Water should be supplied in small fountains at the same time food is placed before the chicks, but not before.

Sour milk or buttermilk may be used in the place of water for the first feed. Milk is very beneficial when fed properly, but it should be borne in mind that it is necessary to keep up the practice once it is started, and that milk must be fed in galvanized vessels. It is also important that it have the same acid content at each feeding—alternately using sweet clabber and buttermilk or very sour milk is injurious.

Water should be kept before the chicks continuously after the first feed. It is best to supply fresh, clean water at least three times daily and to temper or remove the chill with a little hot water.

Some authorities insist that the baby chicks should be fed five times a day, but we prefer to feed three times a day. In this way we can start by leaving the feed before them only ten minutes and gradually increase the time until we have the mash before them all the time when they are ten to twelve days old.

In mixing one's own feed, we suggest the following mash for the first feed and until the chicks are ten days old: Two-thirds rolled oats rubbed fine and one-third soft wheat bran. This is fed on the boards as mentioned before, and should be increased gradually as described. A little sand and fine charcoal should be added at each feeding or just after. When the chicks are ten days old the sand or fine chick grit can be left before them.

Some form of animal protein should be provided. If sour milk is used, this is supplied. Otherwise it is best to use hard-boiled eggs that have been grated fine. About three eggs per day should be used for each 100 chicks.

So far we have considered only the "chick starter" or mash feed. After the chicks are four or five days old we begin to use a little commercial chick grain or finely cracked corn and wheat. This grain should be used to keep the chicks exercising and should be fed with that idea alone in mind. It should be fed in the litter, just enough being used to keep the chicks busy.

After the chicks are ten days old a mash composed of the following should be added gradually, allowing about a week to change feeds: Twelve pounds soft wheat bran, 12 pounds white shorts, 15 pounds corn meal, 5 pounds rolled oats, 5 pounds screened meat scraps, 2½ pounds bone meal, 1 pound fine charcoal and ¼ pound fine salt. This mash should be mixed thoroughly.—Noel Hall, Extension Specialist, Missouri State Poultry Experiment Station, Mountain Grove.

Protect Meritorious Breed

A meritorious old breed should be recognized and protected to the limit; at the same time, a new breed or variety should not be condemned until its status has been established. This is the safe and sound way domesticated races of fowl can be properly classified and established. By commercializing the new at the expense of the old breeds we undermine the foundation of the standard-bred poultry industry built up by fanciers in this country as well as in all other countries.

Supply Some Mineral

When beef-scrap feeding is discontinued, mineral in some form should be supplied. A very good mineral formula may be made up as follows: Fine salt, 15 pounds; powdered sulphur, 10 pounds; calcium carbonate (or ground limestone), 10 pounds; bone meal, 50 pounds; unleached wood ashes, 5 pounds; and charcoal, 10 pounds. Four or five pounds of this mineral mixture should be used in each 100 pounds of dry mash. The scratch grain should be fed liberally.

Fruit Maturity Told by Tester

Improved Type of Mechanical Pressure Device Just Been Invented.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The maturity of fruit at picking time largely determines its dessert quality as well as its storage or transportation possibilities. Allowing the fruit to become too mature on the tree results in a product which will not carry to the market, whereas picking the fruit in a too immature condition results in an almost inedible product.

Pressure With Thumb.

Pressure of the fruit with the thumb to determine the maturity has probably been practiced as long as fruits have been eaten by man, says the United States Department of Agriculture, but this method is too indefinite for modern demands of fruit dealers and handlers. This need for definite picking standards for certain fruits which will allow them to be left on the tree as long as possible and at the same time assure their carrying through to market in satisfactory condition, has led the United States Department of Agriculture to devise an improved type of mechanical pressure tester, a description of which is given in Department Circular 350 just issued by the department.

The pressure tester is somewhat on the order of an automobile tire pressure gauge, is of convenient portable size, and easy to use. A protruding plunger of the tester, placed against the flesh of an apple or other fruit, penetrates the flesh, recording the maximum pressure required to penetrate the fruit to a given distance, thus giving an indication of its maturity. By means of the tester and storage experiments definite picking standards are being worked out for the various fruits. The rate of softening of fruit in storage and the firmness of fruit in different stages of storage maturity are also being studied.

Test Storage Fruit.

When these schedules have been completed, the fruit grower will know at what pressure he should pick his fruit to enable it to stand the storage and transportation conditions expected of it. The fruit dealer will be able to test his fruit in storage and determine the remaining length of time he can expect it to keep in firm condition.

A copy of the circular may be obtained free of charge, as long as the supply lasts, by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Figures Show Dairying

Steady Source of Cash

All in all, the figures show dairying to be a safe business, especially the production of cream for manufacture into creamery butter, and taken over a period of years, it is not, as a general rule, subject to as sharp price fluctuations as other farm products because of a steadily increasing consumption, and the fact that the increase in milk cows must of necessity be slow and the further fact that when other crops go up in price and feed is relatively high, many cows are not fed for highest milk production and many others are no longer milked, but turned into beef.

These natural breaks in the industry against sudden increases tend to balance production against consumption, maintaining a fairly profitable price level over a period of years, provided always that labor is well employed so as to keep up the purchasing power. A herd of milk cows included in general farming always provides skim-milk for hogs, poultry and calves and, in time of over-production or failure of other crops, is a godsend to every farmer.

Selecting and Selling

Fowls From Farm Flock

Before a fowl is sold, a lot of the best pullets should be picked out, which, with the pullets kept the previous winter, will make up the regular flock. The two-year-old hens should be sold in the spring, as soon as eggs become cheap; they sell better at that time than at any other. A hen has seen her best laying days when she has completed her second year. If eggs are the chief object in view, the cockerels and surplus pullets should be sold as early as possible. The pullets kept for winter layers should be well fed and brought to maturity as rapidly as possible, and if they are cared for will lay steadily all winter.

Safe to Sow Unscarified

Sweet Clover Seed Soon

Experiments conducted in various sections have shown that when scarified seed with a high germination is seeded in the winter months that about 75 per cent of the seed will germinate during a warm spell in the winter and be killed by following freezes, Kansas State Agriculture college agronomists warn.

As a general rule the college recommends that scarified seed be sown at about early oat-seeding time. Unscarified seed may be seeded during the winter months on frozen ground, using about 20 to 25 pounds per acre. Scarified seed should be sown at the rate of about 12 to 15 pounds per acre.

A Type of Performance Never Before Obtained In Any Low Priced Car

Thousands have already driven the Improved Chevrolet.

They know its new smoothness, new stamina, new swiftness of acceleration.

They know that in performance it completely dwarfs every Chevrolet achievement of the past and that it ranks as the finest Chevrolet in Chevrolet history.

And if you are one who has not yet been behind the wheel, you have more than a treat in store. You have yet to experience a type of performance never before offered in any low priced car.

A performance so effortless, so smooth, so powerful, so spirited and thrilling in every phase, that you will call it nothing short of a revelation!

Chevrolet's leadership has been based on giving quality at low cost.

Now the Improved Chevrolet gives another reason for an even wider margin of leadership—performance the equal of which has heretofore been unattainable in the low-price field.

True, the Improved Chevrolet is easier-riding. True, there is striking beauty in the New Duco finishes. True, Chevrolet prices are lower. But the one great and outstanding reason why you and every other motorist should drive this splendid car, is to experience the matchless performance it now introduces.

Drive where you will—and as long as you like, through traffic, through sand, through mud, over hills—and over mountains, if you please. Expect something really new, really worthwhile, something really unique—and you will not be disappointed.

As to Cases of Illness.

Correspondents are requested to be careful how they report cases of serious illness, especially when their information is second or third handed. As a rule, it is best not to say that a person is "not expected to live," nor to write of what appears to be a "hopeless" illness. There are persons, too, who do not like to have their illness published, at all. In writing about any person, always consider whether you would like the same thing said about yourself.—Ed. Record.)

War on Insect Pests

In furtherance of improved agricultural conditions, an entomologist on the Hawaiian board of agriculture has obtained from south China parasites to be used in warring against the ardoretus beetle, a destructive garden pest. Parasites imported into the territory in the last quarter of a century are credited with practical elimination of insect plagues attacking cane, pineapple and general crops. The gain in volume of Hawaii's crops in the last 15 years is attributed largely to freedom from destructive pests.

Improved Type of Glass

A new kind of glass, called polipolus, that will not splinter when broken, is made in Austria by condensation process, like bakelite and other synthetic resins, by the action of formaldehyde on a simple organic chemical, urea. The new resin is perfectly transparent, elastic, magnifying when made into a lens, has considerable strength and a fair degree of hardness.

MARRIED

CROUSE-WAYBRIGHT.

Miss Lida Margaret Waybright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Waybright, Freedom township, and Herbert Crouse, Gettysburg, were married at the home of the bride on last Saturday, by the Rev. L. K. Young, Mt. Joy Charge.

Miss Dora L. Motter, cousin of the bridegroom, played the "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" after which Mrs. Maynard Crouse, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, sang "Oh, Promise Me." Miss Mary Waybright, sister of the bride served as bridesmaid and Robert Crouse, brother of the bridegroom, was bestman. The bride wore a dress of peach colored crepe de chene. The bridesmaid's dress was of blue crepe de chene.

A reception to about 60 persons was held after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Crouse left on a wedding trip by motor to Washington, Philadelphia and other points.

Taneytown Temple No. 23, Pythian Sisters

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God in His infinite wisdom to remove from our midst by the hand of death our Sister, Annie A. Overholtzer, we bow in humble submission to the will of our Heavenly Father, knowing he does all things well. Resolved, That the Temple has lost a good and true charter member, one who could not be with us often on account of ill-health, but one who was always ready to do her duty toward the welfare of the Temple.

Resolved, That the Temple, extend its sympathies to the bereaved husband; that our Charter be draped for a period of thirty days, and a copy of these resolutions be sent the husband of our Sister, also entered on the Temple minutes, and published in the Carroll Record.

Resolved, That we commend the husband of our Sister for consolation to an all-wise providence, who alone can comfort in time of bereavement.

ANNE E. DAVIDSON, LARENA M. CRABBS, MRS. A. G. RIFFLE, Committee.

Sweetly sleep, O Sister, dear, Ever to our hearts so near; Angels waft thee gently o'er To that bright eternal shore.

Pilgrims to a better land, When we in yon Temple stand, Evil never shall us molest, Safely harbored and at rest.

And ever near us though unseen The dear immortal spirit tread; For the boundless universe Is life—there is no dead.

THE PYTHIAN SISTERS.

CARD OF THANKS.

I desire to express my sincere thanks, to my neighbors and friends who so kindly assisted me during the illness and the death of my wife, Annie Overholtzer, and also for the beautiful floral tributes, and the use of autos.

An Electric Washer That Provides
Space for the Whole Home Laundry Outfit

DEXTER Platform Washer

It has the roomiest platform space of any washer built; plenty of room for two tubs and a basket. The steel shelf at the side folds down out of the way when not in use.

The swinging wringer, which locks in any working position, enables the operator to work right around the machine, moving from tub to tub and from tub to basket without a single backward move.

The Dexter Platform Washer is the most convenient of all single tub models, because it gives you a complete washing unit, and real washing efficiency.

Come in for demonstration; no obligation.

"What would you do if I were to kiss you while you weren't looking?"

"Why, I'd never look at you again!"

"Maggie, these eggs are as hard as ever. I thought I told you I wanted them soft?"

"Sure, an' I biled thim five hours this time, mum, but it don't seem to make no difference."

Guide—"On this floor we have our company restaurant, where all of our phone operators eat."

Dan (himself)—"Yes, now where does the switchboard?"

A Sunday School teacher was asking her class what was meant by a man possessed of evil spirits. Finally one little boy raised his hand, and she said: "Johnnie, you may answer."

Johnnie—"A man possessed of evil spirits is a bootlegger."

"A little bird told me what kind of a lawyer your father was."

"What did the bird say?"

"Cheep, cheep."

"Well, a duck told me what kind of a doctor your old man was."

A small boy was scrubbing the front porch of his house the other day when a lady called.

"Is your mother in?" she inquired.

"Do you think I'd be scrubbing the porch if she wasn't?" was the rather curt reply.

Wife—"This article says it's a well known fact that moonlight in the tropics often cause blindness to those who sleep in it."

Hubby—"Well, moonshine is doing the same for the folks up here when they're wide awake."

Statuette of Socrates

What is believed to be the first statuette of Socrates made by a contemporary now reposes in a special niche in the British museum, side by side with portraits in stone of Demosthenes and Aristotle. The Socrates model, the only known genuine portrait in existence, has a romantic history. It was found recently in Alexandria, was smuggled out of Egypt and sold first to a Berlin antiquary and then to a Paris museum. An agent of the British museum learned of its existence, verified its authenticity, bought it and brought it to England. Though one foot has been knocked off, the statuette is in good preservation. It stands about eleven inches high and is in pure Parian marble. Authorities say it is no idealized conception, but a real portrait—with the Socratic snub nose, coarse features, and rough beard. The figure wears the himation and the chiton.

Italy Builds Many Ships

Italians are proud of recent reports that show Italy to be the third ship-building nation on earth, with nearly 250,000 tons of shipping on the docks last summer. Only Great Britain and Germany had more. Various economic factors make it difficult for Italy to compete, but the government often makes up the difference with a money subsidy. Italian shipping is in a flourishing condition, being similarly aided by subsidies. A government committee appointed for the purpose has recommended the establishment of new lines to West Africa and Capetown and lines to connect Italy with Brazil, Vancouver, Hongkong and Japan, besides the regular service from Trieste to Bombay and Calcutta.

Dust to Drive Motors

The use of dust as a positive motor fuel to replace gasoline is being investigated by the bureau of chemistry of the Department of Agriculture. A device which corresponds roughly to a one-cylinder combustion engine is used and small quantities of carbonaceous dust, such as powdered sugar, cornstarch, cocoa, pulverized wood and even finely ground spices or coal dust, are combined in the mechanism, thoroughly mixed with air, and exploded with an electric spark.

Instead of name an Old English initial letter can be used, if desired. Initial stationery should have a box number, or street address.

When desired, ruled paper will be furnished (107 sheets) with 100 size 6 1/2 envelopes.

We do not print envelopes alone, or paper alone, at 50c.

Cash with order, when sent by mail. Write instructions, and copy for the printing very plainly. When mailed to 3rd and 4th Zones, add 5c; to 5th Zone, or further, add 10c.

SPECIAL

$1.00 Stationery Offer.

It is socially proper as well as businesslike to use printed stationery. It is also economical and apt to result in having paper and envelopes on hand, when needed. We have filled hundreds of orders received by mail for our $1.00 offer, and have not had a single complaint.

200 sheets Hammermill Bond paper, 5 1/2 x 8 1/2 unruled, padded on request, with 100 size 6 1/2 envelopes to match.

Printed either in dark blue, or black. Not over 4 lines neat type, the same form on both paper and envelopes. Envelopes printed on back or front. Unless otherwise directed, orders for ladies will be printed on back, and for gentlemen, on front.

Instead of name an Old English initial letter can be used, if desired. Initial stationery should have a box number, or street address.

When desired, ruled paper will be furnished (107 sheets) with 100 size 6 1/2 envelopes.

We do not print envelopes alone, or paper alone, at 50c.

Cash with order, when sent by mail. Write instructions, and copy for the printing very plainly. When mailed to 3rd and 4th Zones, add 5c; to 5th Zone, or further, add 10c.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

BY JOSEPH KAYE

At 21—Senator Willis Was a Farm Laborer.

"AT THE age of twenty-one my ambitions were beyond what I was doing but for a ready means of livelihood I combined the duties of farm laborer and schoolteacher. In my spare time I studied.

"Teaching eventually lead me into a professorship of law at the University of Northern Ohio, from which college I got my B. A. when I was twenty-two.—Frank E. Willis."

TODAY—Senator Willis is one of the most noted politicians in the country. Aside from his legislative work he has established a high reputation as an orator and is in continual demand for public speaking.

In 1915 Mr. Willis was elected governor of Ohio and he was sent to the senate six years later.

GEORGE IV

GEORGE IV seems to have been the last of the ancient order of kings—the last of those who could do as they chose without regard to morals or public opinion. Where, a few generations before him, immorality and extravagance were taken as matters of course by the people, in George IV's time they brought down great unpopularity on his head.

He was the eldest son of George III, was born August 12, 1762, at St. James palace, and was naturally rather gifted. His tutor said he would be either the most polished gentleman, or the worst scoundrel in Europe—and he was both. He opposed his father in everything; took up a separate residence at Carlton house, but gave it up because of his debts; and was constantly having parliament vote huge sums to square him up with his creditors.

There was one good influence in his life: the beautiful Mrs. Fitzherbert, a widow at twenty-five, and older than the prince. He was passionately devoted to her—an open marriage was impossible, of course, and she was a Catholic besides, but the pope assured her that her marriage was valid. For almost ten years they lived together, mostly at Brighton, until his actions caused her to separate from him. Then he consented to marry the German princess Charlotte, whom he treated so brutally that she, too, was forced to separate from him. Twenty-five years after this he became king, and died after a ten-year reign. His treatment of the queen added to his unpopularity. Politically his reign was not so very important.

ON A STORMY DAY

THE winds are fierce, and sharp the air, And yet I shall not heed them.

For in my battles with dull care I somehow think I need them.

'Tis good to have the weather kind.

And free from tempests stormy, Yet in the rougher days I find A tonic better for me.

There's a freshness in the arctic breeze, And all this wintry rigor, That more than comfortable ease Contributes to my vigor.

So rage, ye blizzards, as ye may. What chill it pleases ye fling me!

I'll seize the gifts of health the day Tempestuous shall bring me.

With Cheerups and the Quixies
By Grace Bliss Stewart

ABOUT THE TABBIES

"HERE, puss; here, puss; here, puss!" called Cheerups in his gentlest voice.

"Begging your pardon, sir," purred the animal addressed, "I'm not exactly what you think, and yet in a way I am. That sounds like talking in riddles, doesn't it? Perhaps I have caught the habit from the Sphinx; you see, I live in Egypt. Only the Sphinx never explains and I will."

"Please do," cried the astonished Cheerups, as he looked curiously at his visitor. She was a little larger than one of our North American cats, of a grayish-yellow color with a few dark stripes on her back, and her fine tail was ringed about and tipped with black.

"Well," continued Puss, "it's very probable that the ancestor of all the pet cats in the world was like me,

"My Family Has Lived in Egypt for Five Thousand Years."

for my family has lived in Egypt for five thousand years."

"Bless me," gasped Cheerups. "Think of that, Miss—"

"Call me Tabby, please; it's shorter and more friendly. Now you may think that what I have told you is wonderful, but the best part is coming," said Tabby proudly. "Just listen to this! Long, long ago, the people of Egypt worshipped us. We are wild now, but then they tamed us, petted us and showed us every honor, and to kill a cat was a very great crime. Whoever did so was severely punished."

"Please," cried disappointed Cheerups, "Isn't there any more?" He was so eager by this time for the rest of Tabby's story that he could hardly wait.

"Do excuse me, sir," murmured Tabby, winking and blinking sleepily. "I just dropped off for a minute."

Some folks call it taking a cat nap. Let me see, where was I?"

"You were telling how the Egyptian people of long ago worshiped the cat," said Cheerups. "It seems to me that those cats had a very easy time—all play and no work."

"I was just getting to that," mewed Tabby a little fretfully. "Don't jump at conclusions. Even if they were worshipped and buried in the tombs of kings, cats were expected to be useful, as it's my opinion that every one should be."

"Only a few can be beautiful, But all can be useful and dutiful, is my motto, sir, and Egyptian cats in the long ago had to live up to it, too. There is a picture, thousands of years old, in the British museum in London, which shows a hunter out in a boat, hunting water birds. His pet cat is with him, looking very serious, for she is the most important member of the party. Yes, sir, that grandmother of all pet cats is shown bringing back to her master the birds she has caught. She holds them in her mouth and her paws. That's the story the picture tells, and if you don't call that work," said Tabby, with a proud little whirry purr, "just try catching a bird yourself some time. Now if I may wash my face and paws before going, I think I had better be scampering along."

"Certainly, Tabby, make yourself at home," smiled Cheerups. "And thanks for your interesting tale."

"Dear me," sighed Cheerups, "all this talk about Egypt and India and England makes me restless. How jolly it would be to begin traveling again! I wonder what the Quixies would say to it?"

"Oh, sir," gasped the Quixies in one breath, "how wonderful! We are aching to be off!"

"I say, let's go to India," chattered Softfoot.

"Japan would be nice," murmured Sniffsniff.

"China is better," coaxed Quickie.

"I think Australia would be more exciting, because we don't know much about it," piped Brighteyes.

"Brighteyes is right; we'll go to Australia!" cried Cheerups, "and let's go now!" With that he jumped on a flying leaf and soared away over the still green jungle. Shouting with glee, each of the frisky little Quixies snatched a convenient breeze and followed.

"Isn't this fun?" called Cheerups merrily. "We shall certainly broaden our acquaintance, and perhaps there will be folks in Australia who need help too!"

South American Gold in Solomon's Temple?

Ophir, land of rich gold mines that supplied metal for the decorations of King Solomon's temple, was in South America, according to Dr. Van Hauch of Vienna who has been exploring the forests of Peru. The fabled country has been the subject of speculation for years, and has been variously located in Arabia, India or South Africa, says a writer in Popular Mechanics Magazine. In support of his theory the Vienna explorer declares that he found an Indian tribe of 300 whose features bore a Jewish cast and whose language contained many words like those of the ancient Hebrew. The name Solomon had been given to a number of men in the tribe, and legends were told him of a race of seafaring men who landed on the banks of the river Hualla and carried away quantities of gold ore. They called the region around the river Ophira, Dr. Von Hauch believes that the strangers may have been King Solomon's sailors, and that the three years' absence of his fleet mentioned in Biblical accounts is explained by the long journey to Peru. Columbus believed that he had found the source of Solomon's riches when he set foot on the West Indies. The African theory is based on the discovery of ancient mines among ruins south of the Zambezi river, and a Seventeenth century writing to the effect that one was the Abyssinian mine from which the queen of Sheba obtained most of the gold she gave King Solomon.

Masterpieces Lost to World Through Flames

The world is very much poorer today because so much classical literature of the early centuries has been lost.

Aeschylus is said to have written from 70 to 90 dramas, but only seven, in a complete state, have been handed down to us. Only seven, too, of the 120 tragedies written by Sophocles are known, with, perhaps, 100 fragments of the others. Of the dramatic works of Euripides, which are said to have totaled 92, only 17 tragedies and a play, dealing with satyrs, also a few fragments of the other compositions, now remain. These losses, also of Greek lyrical works, are due to the destruction by fire of the two great libraries of Alexandria in 47 B. C. when the city was besieged by Julius Caesar. In this fire 700,000 volumes were destroyed.

Coffee's "Discovery"

There are many stories as to who first discovered the food value of coffee. In Europe this important discovery is usually accredited to the inmates of an old monastery in Arabia who had observed that their goats were decidedly lively. They decided to taste the berries to see if they, too, would be similarly affected. First they chewed the berries but were disappointed in the taste. Then they boiled them but without success. Then they tried roasting them and found this gave a delightful flavor. Later a monk brewed a stimulating drink by pounding the roasted berries in a mortar.

Sugar From Dahlias

A new dahlia and artichoke industry promises new life for domestic sugar manufacturers, according to Science. At present huge beet-sugar plants are lying idle two-thirds of the year for lack of raw material. It is now expected that after producing beet sugar in the summer the plants will run four months on artichoke, followed by four months on dahlia tubers to produce large quantities of the new levulose sugar. At present levulose is prepared only as a sirup or moist, powder-like brown sugar, but the problems of crystallization are rapidly being solved commercially.

Modesty

The parents had been trying for some time to impress a sense of modesty on four-year-old Betty. The following incident caused them to feel that their efforts had not been wholly in vain.

Betty was seated on the floor, playing with "dress up" paper dolls, when her grownup cousin breezed in. She started toward the child and was prepared to exclaim over the dolls, when she was halted by a frown of disapproval. "Don't look," scolded the youngster. "Can't you see they're dressing?"

In Airtight Bags

Observations were made at the National Academy of Sciences in Washington recently on five subjects (three men and two women) placed in an airtight bag through which a stream of heated, dry air (about 85 degrees centigrade) was passed. Loss of weight was five to thirteen times greater than normal, oxygen consumption increased slightly, while skin temperature was fairly uniform and only one degree or so above normal, owing to the cooling effect of perspiration.

Bran Valuable Food

Bran, the dark, fibrous portion of wheat, is less completely digested than the rest of the kernel. As bran is sold commercially it has some food value from the starch as well as from the minerals and vitamins associated with the fibrous parts, but it is used chiefly for its laxative properties. In moderate quantities, and especially as it comes ground up in graham flour, it is usually considered to be a desirable addition to the diet.

Health and Home

FOOD FOR CHILDREN WHO TRAVEL

Many times, and especially during the summer months, mothers are forced to take their children on trips with them. During these trips, the parent is forced to contend with that ever-present and serious problem of food for the child.

As in almost every other case, the chief source of worry, during these periods, is the milk supply, its source, its purity and its food value. It is not always convenient to get market milk of dependable quality for, in many sections of the country, adequate facilities for its care are not provided. To meet the needs of mothers in these trying situations, science has provided a form of milk, conveniently carried and easily prepared. The cans are in two sizes, the one containing six ounces and the other sixteen.

Evaporated milk is just pure cows' milk with more than half of the water removed. None of its food value is lessened; in fact its digestibility is improved. It is easily mixed with water and is, undoubtedly, the most practical form of milk for use as a food for children. Some of the country's leading pediatricians recommend its use, employing the following formula:

From Sixth Week to Third Month.

Milk, evaporated 6 ounces
Lime water 3 ounces
Milk sugar 2 ounces
Boiled water 26 ounces
Seven feedings in twenty-four hours; 4 to 5 ounces at three-hour intervals during the day and four-hour intervals at night.

From Third Month to Fifth Month.

Milk, evaporated 7½ ounces
Lime water 3 ounces
Milk sugar 2 ounces
Boiled water 29½ ounces
Six feedings in twenty-four hours; 5 to 6 ounces at three-hour intervals during the day and a feeding at 10 p. m.

From Fifth to Seventh Month.

Milk, evaporated 10 ounces
Lime water 3 ounces
Milk sugar 2 ounces
Boiled water 29 ounces
Five feedings in twenty-four hours; 6 to 7 ounces at four-hour intervals, the last feeding to be given at 10 p. m.

From Seventh to Ninth Month.

Milk, evaporated 11 ounces
Lime water 3 ounces
Milk sugar 2 ounces
Boiled water 35 ounces
7 to 9 ounces at four-hour intervals during the day. Last feeding at ten at night.

From Ninth to Twelfth Month.

Milk, evaporated 12 ounces
Lime water 3 ounces
Milk sugar 2 ounces
Barley water 34 ounces
8 to 9 ounces at four-hour intervals during the day. Last feeding at ten at night.

WRITER NO FRIEND OF HOUSEHOLD PET

One Might Almost Think He Doesn't Like Cats.

Of all the impostors who sponge upon the kindness and forbearance of humanity, the cat is the only one that has no single redeeming feature, writes Nell Bell in the London Mail.

How long ago the cat came in from the wild to man's fireside no man may now even hazard a guess; but the only sure thing about that invasion is that the cat slunk in to serve its own selfish ends.

In the makeup of this sponging and hypocritical egoist is no particle of gratitude, of affection, of faithfulness, of pluck, or of honesty.

You may lavish love on one of these beasts, give it the best of fare, the easiest chair, the warmest corner of the hearth, put up with its contemptuous stare, its mincing gait and its evil temper for ten years; and then if you fall on hard times, this creature of mere appetite will leave you for the hand of any stranger that offers it food. Rats will indeed leave a sinking ship. The cat quits it at first sign of a leak.

The loving hand that has fed and cared for one of these cringing gluttons for a dozen years is no more sacred to it than the muzzle of a curious pup. It will turn and rend either with an equal abandon and zest at the slightest threat to its comfort.

The fact that cats were once worshipped in Egypt seems somehow to have become a racial memory with these animals. The haughty and insolent stare of a cat in possession of the best chair would provoke an angel to slaughter. A cat would not give up its seat to dying man; it would rob a sick child of its milk.

History is full of the noble deeds of dogs, of horses, of lions, of elephants—in fact, of most of the animals of the world. You may search the pages of history in vain for one instance of nobility, of faithfulness, or even affection to put to the credit of the cat.

George Wither, the Elizabethan poet, wrote "Hang sorrow; care will kill a cat." But, of course, the point is, as the genial Wither very well knew, cats don't care.

The really curious thing about the whole business is that people in their hearts are only too conscious of the cat's unloveliness; the most opprobrious thing one can say about another person, is, "What a cat!"

Amateur Egg Layers

The ostrich lays the biggest thing in the egg line at the present age in the world's history. Hard boiled, it weighs three pounds, and would make a good breakfast for a large family.

The kiwi, a New Zealand bird, which itself weighs only about four pounds, lays an egg weighing 14 ounces. But the egg of the extinct aepyornis, which may be found in museums, is as large as 150 average hens' eggs. It was a Madagascan bird that disappeared entirely some centuries ago.

Among volcanic sand in New England an explorer discovered a partially burnt egg that was even bigger. A derby hat would hardly serve as an egg cup for it. The bird that laid it was called the dinorin, and its height is imagined to have been something like 14 feet.

THE WHY OF SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

TOUCH IRON

"TICK tack never change back: touch old iron," accompanied by the appropriate action, is a venerable form of binding a contract among boys after they have made a "swap," and may be frequently heard in the rural districts among school children at play.

This is a vestige of the ancient belief in the efficacy of cold iron in warding off witches and other evil spirits. When man first tried to work iron he undoubtedly had much trouble with it and naturally attributed his failures to the interference of evil spirits, thus starting the iron superstition which has persisted ever since, exhibiting itself in various forms among different races. The blacksmiths of Pompeii, because they feared the spirits would be after them for working always in the material most hated by the spirits, placed powerful amulets over their doors: Solomon's Temple was built with "iron hammer nor ax nor any tool of iron" and so was the sacred Sublian bridge at Rome which, also, had to be kept in repair without the use of metal. An enlightened East Indian prince not long ago objected to the use of iron in constructing houses in his domains believing that it would be followed by cholera and other epidemics—the spirits revenging themselves for the using of their abhorred metal.

On the other hand some races reasoned it out that if the evil spirits so hated iron, iron might be a good thing to defy them with. In certain parts of North Africa there is no such efficacious charm against witches as a piece of iron. The Scottish fisherman when he hears a shipmate blaspheming, cries out, "Cold iron," and all the men in the boat touch the nearest piece of iron they can reach. That brings the magic metal into the case and scares off the evil spirits who might pounce upon the blasphemer. When the schoolboys touch cold iron to bind their contract they invoke the aid of the metal against the evil spirits which might try to tempt them to break it.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day, lucky jewel

ABIGAIL

QUAINT and simple and old-fashioned as Abigail is considered in this country, the name has an interesting history in England. It signifies "father of joy," and was used by the Eastern nations to represent the abstract quality of joyfulness. The Biblical Abigail, in her courtesy to David, so recommended herself to early readers of the Holy Book that her name appeared frequently.

In the reign of Queen Anne, Abigail Masham exerted such a back-stair influence upon the worthy sovereign, that the name became a sobriquet for lady's maid. Other etymologists explain, however, that it owes its reputation for belonging to a waiting-woman to Beaumont's comedy "The Scornful Ladde."

In a play of Killigrew's, some thirty years later, the term Abigail was used for a maid servant and its sudden failure was attributed to its reference to the influence of the famous Abigail Masham.

The amethyst is Abigail's talismanic stone. It is believed to protect her from evil of every kind and to be particularly potent in guarding her from deceitful acquaintance. Sunday is her lucky day and 6 her lucky number.

Lesson for January 31

JESUS FEEDS FIVE THOUSAND MEN

LESSON TEXT—John 6:1-14; 32-37.
GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life: he that cometh to Me shall never hunger, and he that believeth on Me shall never thirst.—John 6:35.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Feeds Many Hungry People.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Is Helped by a Boy.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Feeds a Hungry Crowd.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Why People Follow Jesus.

I. Jesus' Compassion for the Multitude (vv. 1-4. Cf. Matt. 14:4).

The sight of a crowd always excited the Lord's sympathy. He knew that they were as shepherdless sheep (Mark 6:34). They were going forth with no one to care for them. Besides, they were so ignorant that they had no appreciation of Him. Added to this was their physical hunger. This condition aroused the Savior's pity. This is true of the multitude today. Sin had so thoroughly blinded them that they are not conscious of their lost condition.

II. Jesus' Conference With the Disciples Touching the People's Need (vv. 5-9).

This was not done for His benefit, for He knew what He would do (v. 6). His object may be summed up as follows:

1. To Teach Them Their Sense of Obligation to the Multitude.
We are workers together with God (II Cor. 6:1).

2. To Teach Them Their True Helplessness in the Face of Such Great Needs.

The loaves and fishes were as nothing in the presence of five thousand men, besides women and children. Well might Andrew exclaim, "What are these among so many?" We may plant and water, but the increase entirely comes from God.

3. To Teach Them That Their Sufficiency Is From the Lord.

Without Him we can do nothing (John 15:1-8). Christians can no more carry on the Lord's work of themselves than the branch can bear fruit without the vine. The branch supplies the life and strength for the production of fruit. Philip's arithmetic was of no use in the face of such need. Jesus has all power, nothing is too hard for Him.

III. The Lord's Method of Accomplishing His Work (vv. 10-13).
Observe here the orderliness of Christ's work. He paused to give thanks for the scant supply, teaching us that we should always bring our abilities and gifts to God that He might bless them to His use.

1. The Lord's Part Was to Bless and Break the Bread, Even to Create the Needed Supply.

The disciples could not perform this part. The same kind of bread was provided for all, rich and poor, young and old, women and children.

2. The Disciples' Part Was to Distribute That Which He Had Passed and Consecrated.

This is true of the Christian worker today. Our part is to take from the hands of the Lord that which He has blessed and consecrated, and distribute it among the starving multitudes. We are not responsible for the supply, but are responsible for its distribution to all those who are hungry and perishing for the Bread of Life.

3. The People's Part Was to Sit Down and Eat.

They had no part in the provision, neither in its distribution, but only to take from the hands of the disciples and eat that which the Lord had provided. This is exactly our situation. The people are responsible for the taking and eating of the Bread of Life; faith with obedience is their part. This is an illustration of the part obedience plays in our salvation.

IV. The Effect of This Miracle (v. 14).

The people recognized Him at once as the prophet who should come. They believed Him for His works' sake.

V. Jesus, the Bread of Life (vv. 32-37).

1. What Bread Is to the Body, Christ Is to the Soul.

Bread is a staple food. It is necessary for the body. One never tires of it. Even so is it with Christ.

2. How to Obtain This Bread.
It is by coming to Christ and believing on Him.

3. The Blessed Issue of Taking This Bread.

The one who eats this bread shall never hunger, nor thirst. Hunger and thirst return after partaking of natural bread and water—not so with those who have partaken of Christ.

Ardent Prayer

As well might we expect vegetation to spring from the earth without the sunshine and the dew, as the Christian to unfold his grace and advance in his course without patient, persevering, ardent prayer.—J. Abbott.

Sin's Ending

There is more bitterness in sin's ending than there ever was sweetness in its acting. If you see nothing but good in its commission, you will suffer only woe in its conclusion.

The Call, the Claims and the Conquest of the Church

Acts 13:1-3; Hebrews 10:24, 25:1
Thessalonians 1:1-10

The call of the church is for volunteers to carry its message to earth's remotest bounds. "Separate unto me Barnabas and Saul, for the work whereunto I have called them." This was the call of God to the church, a call to separation and service.

The call is for the best, the most courageous and heroic. Barnabas and Saul were of that kind. They were loved for their labors and leadership. For a whole year they had labored in the work of teaching, and because of that teaching the church in Antioch became a missionary center. A selfish protest might have been registered against the departure of these two valuable leaders, but the church readily gave them up under the conviction that they had been called to missionary service. After fasting and prayer the church sent away the two men, the best it had to give to the world. The same call persists even until now, for the harvest is still plentiful and the laborers are few.

The claims of the church are presented in our Scripture selection, especially in the words, "the assembling of ourselves together." The church claims our time for this in order that Christian worship may be maintained. Christian fellowship promoted and Christian truth be disseminated. To this claim there should be a joyous and hearty response. Nothing can take the place of "the assembling of ourselves together."

The conquests of the church are seen in our remaining Scripture passage in 1 Thessalonians 1. "Ye turned to God from idols," "Ye became followers of us," "Ye were examples to all that believed." Such a change as these words indicate show how great was the conquest of the church in that early day. This whole chapter should be carefully studied and a complete list made of the Christian experiences and qualities which represent the conquest of the church and the gospel.

Restless Sleep Due to Stomach Gas

The Modern Hostess

She was preparing for an elaborate dinner party at which the guest of honor was to be a distinguished Japanese visitor to San Francisco. To get the desired effects she had called in an interior decorator, a son of Nippon, and ordered him to design a flower scheme for the table. "What kind would you like?" he asked. "Oh, anything so long as there are plenty of cherry blossoms, whether you paint them or make them out of paper." "Excuse me to the remark, lady, that cherry blossoms would never do, because this is not the cherry blossom time." "Oh, nobody will notice that." "You, madame, might not notice it, but what if your guests should do so? At least one of them will smile from the inside of his face, and that will make him sad and spoil his dinner." "Oh, anything you like as long as the guests that don't know better will know that it is Japanese."

Snakes Like Violet Rays

Violet rays for snakes is the new order at the London zoo. So many tropical reptiles were unable to stand the rigors of London winters, even when their cages were superheated, and so many died during fogs that the authorities concluded that it was light as well as heat, that the reptiles needed if they were to live and flourish. Therefore artificial sunlight lamps have been arranged in the reptiles' houses, and new cages made of vitreous glass which allows violet rays to pass through have been installed. So far results have been satisfactory. The snakes seem to be licking up the violet rays.

Over His Head

Dr. William Krusen, director of public health, said at a luncheon in Philadelphia: "Whenever I hear people talking about sex education for little children, I think of Jimmy." "Jimmy came home from school one afternoon and said: 'Teacher learned us a new commandment today.' 'Yes?' said his mother. 'What was it, dear?' 'Thou shalt not kick a duckery,' said Jimmy."

Protecting Fruit Trees

A "windjammer" is the local name in California fruit-growing districts for a machine devised to raise the temperature of an orchard by the process of mixing air during critical periods when the fruit is threatened by frost. The weather bureau has had occasion to make practical tests with a number of these devices, but up to the present time has found no "windjammer" which can be recommended for complete protection from low temperatures. The use of many small orchard heaters is today the only practical means of raising the temperature of the air near the ground sufficiently to protect the fruit on the trees.

Couldn't Resist "Scrap"

A wireless program broadcast brought havoc to the receiving set of Charles E. Finkle of Fargo, N. D. He demolished the loud speaker and had started in on the set before Finkle could interfere.

CARROLL RECORD

No mystery!

THERE are probably some things about the telephone business which mystify you, just as there are things about other businesses which you do not thoroughly understand.

Perhaps it is a charge that appears on your bill, or some practice about the service which puzzles you, even if it does not actually annoy you.

When these occasions arise why not ask the local manager about them? He will be glad to explain.

All of this Company's practices are designed to make it easy for you to do business with us and to improve your service. They are the result of long years of experience and they reflect our best business judgment. But they are flexible and are constantly being revised in the interests of service betterment and satisfaction to our patrons.

Willingness to correct and cheerfully explain every detail of our business are, we believe, two of our principal responsibilities in conducting this important public service.

Advertise Your Public Sale in The Record.

The automobile has changed many old customs, and none of them more than making it easily possible to go long distances to attend public sales. Only a few years ago, Spring sales were seldom attended by persons living more than 6 or 8 miles away. Now, it is easily possible to reach a sale 20 or more miles away, in an hour's time.

This means that it pays to advertise over a wider circle, and there is no better way to do it than through several county papers. The more bidders, the more competition—and better prices.

THE CARROLL RECORD, with its circulation in Northern Carroll, and in Frederick and Adams counties, is exceptionally situated to circulate sale advertising where it is likely to do the most good.

And this year, when the outlook is for few sales of Live Stock and Implements, there is a fine opportunity to secure good prices through wide advertising. Use The Record, and help your sale!

Mrs. Stott and Miss Anna Galt are visiting relatives in Washington.

Mrs. Sue G. Crapster has reached Philadelphia on her tour of visits.

So far as we know, all who were reported ill last week, are on the mend.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Eckard, moved back to Blue Ridge Summit, on Monday.

Walter Fringer and J. Harry Foreney, of Baltimore, spent the week-end with their home folks.

Misses Mary Ellen and Virginia Eyster, of Emmitsburg, were guests of Miss Virginia Ott, on Monday.

Rev. W. B. Duttera, D. D., of Mt. Jackson, Va., paid his brother's family a brief visit, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Miss Mabel Yursik, of Baltimore, is visiting at the home of Louis Hemler and family.

Mrs. George Newcomer visited Miss Rose Crabbs at Md. University Hospital, in Baltimore, on Sunday and found her slightly improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Warehime and Miss Carrie Koontz, of Frizellburg, visited Mrs. Jesse Myers and family, on Wednesday.

Mrs. John Albaugh, of New Midway, and Mrs. John Bell, of near Emmitsburg, were recent visitors at the home of Mrs. Mary Stover.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Ott and Master S. Clifford Ott attended the funeral of their aunt, Miss Elizabeth Frailay, of Emmitsburg, on Monday afternoon.

Thursday night was another of those very cold and very windy nights, that caused plenty of shoveling in of coal, and even then it was hard to keep houses comfortable.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Valentine, John Lentz, and Mrs. Lydia Eyer, of Rocky Ridge, and Mr. and Mrs. John Snook, Frederick, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Duttera and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Wislow, Mr. and Mrs. Earle Harman, and Miss Blanche Shoemaker, of Hagerstown, visited Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Shoemaker and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Angell.

So far as we have learned, no local radioist succeeded in hearing a European station during the International tests of the week. In fact, it was not a good week for U. S. reception.

Potatoes are selling at retail, at 90 cents a peck. A grower sold a load on the streets, on Tuesday, at $3.25 a bushel. These are likely the highest prices ever paid in Taneytown for potatoes.

Somebody's Mother.

The woman was old and ragged and gray,

And bent with the chill of the winter day;

The street was wet with the recent snow,

And the woman's feet were aged and slow.

She stood at the crossing and waited long,

Alone, unheeded for among the throng

Of human beings that passed her by,

Not heeding the glance of her anxious eye.

Down the street with laugh and shout,

Glad in the freedom of "school let out,"

Came the boys like a flock of sheep,

Finding the snow piled white and deep.

Past the old woman, so old and gray,

Hastened the children on their way;

Nor offering a helping hand to her,

So meek, so timid, afraid to stir.

Lest the carriage wheels or the horses' feet

Should crowd her down on the slippery street;

At last came out of the merry troop

The gayest laddie of all the group.

He paused beside her and whispered low—

"I'll help you across, if you wish to go."

Her aged hand on his strong young arm

She placed, and without hurt or harm

He guided the trembling feet along,

Proud that his own were firm and strong.

Then back again to his friends he went,

His young heart happy and well content.

"She's somebody's mother, boys, you know,

For all she's aged, and poor, and slow;

And I hope some fellow will lend a hand

To help my mother, you understand.

"If ever she's poor and old and gray,

When her own dear boy is far away!"

And somebody's mother bowed her head

In her home that night, and the prayer she said

Was, "God be kind to that noble boy

LAST PAGE EDITORIAL.

Teacher and Pupil.

The writer speaks from experience, when he says that the average pupil in a school does not appreciate his or her teacher, until after said pupil has reached somewhere near middle age. It is just as true to say that the average pupil does not fully realize the value of school days until about the same time, and the knowledge in both cases, comes too late. The reason is, the average boy and girl does not have much mature good common sense—the child nature still predominates.

Our very best teachers are often those most disliked by children. Their very efforts toward educating, training and developing the youthful mind, are resented. The personal peculiarities, the physical or other defects of teachers, are matters of ridicule. The teacher is largely regarded as a sort of "necessary evil," and properly a subject for being "made fun of" and aggravated by youthful smartness.

Punishments and penalties are not regarded as necessary disciplinary measures, but rather as inventions for making pupils miserable, and for humiliating them without just reason. The common attitude of the pupil is one of resentment against rules and tasks.

All of these things come back to us when we realize just what we missed in the best time of our life—our school days—and we only then have a clear view of what young fools we were. And, there is apparently no remedy for this deplorable fact, for it seems decreed that after all there are many things in life that can be taught us only by experience—the "looking backward" time.

As boys and girls we take pleasure in making the teaching job as difficult and miserable as possible; and think it right to do so, for it is natural at that period to resent restraint and anything that interferes with play, or with the inclination of the immature mind to avoid serious tasks. This is all natural enough, but, it is a pity that it is, and especially that the "kid" period of life often extends over into the "teens," when all normal children are supposed to be nearing the age of responsibility as young men and women, and to appreciate the seriousness of the fact.

The question arises—or should arise—we think, whether our schools of today are not encouraging this "kiddish" extension by prescribing too much "play" as part of the school course? "Play" is hardly a thing to be extensified in schools, as it comes about naturally without teaching it. Up to the very last year in High School—and in Colleges too—"play" is encouraged, and it does interfere with studies, no matter what we may say in its favor—the benefit of physical development, through "athletics," etc.

Somehow, it seems to many who realize the value of schooling—to those who look back intelligently—that it is becoming more and more the idea of modern schools to throw barriers around the education that represents hard mental work, and to open up the way to the idea that the time of youthful preparation for life's serious tasks and duties has been extended; that all are scheduled for High School, Normal School, College, or some sort of professional course, and need not think of going to work—say at 18 years of age.

It may be "old-timish" and mere "grouch" to make an appeal for more respect for teachers on the part of children, and for an earlier realization of what they are going to school for, but the serious fact is that most of our children can not follow out the dream of a long-drawn-out course at progressive schools—and it would not be good for all of them if they could. Nor should such a dream be provided for them at public expense.

We think the main idea underlying public education should be that perhaps school days may be brief, and that it is of first importance that the early 'teen age be filled as full as possible of sound foundations of a practical common education.
