

PROGRAM OF THE H. S. COMMENCEMENT.

The Various Features Connected With the Event.

The following program has been arranged in connection with the Commencement activities of the High School.

On Sunday evening, June 6, Rev. Guy P. Bready will deliver the annual sermon to the graduates in the Reformed Church, the services beginning at 7:30.

Tuesday evening, June 8, will be class night. The exercises will be held in the Opera House, at 8:00 o'clock, and the program will include the class History, class Will, presentation and other appropriate numbers of a distinctively class character.

On Friday afternoon, June 11, the dedication of the new school building will take place. A parade, headed by the Taneytown Band, and consisting of the children of the Elementary and High Schools, and members of the local lodges, will leave the site of the old school building on Littlestown street, at 2:15. The route will be from the old building to the square, down Baltimore street to George St., and up George Street to the new building.

On arrival at the new building, the dedication services will begin. These will include choral singing by the school children, the dedication ceremony, an address by Rev. Dr. Albert N. Ward, President of Western Maryland College, and the presentation of a flag and Bible to the school by the local lodge of P. O. S. of A.

The annual commencement will take place on Friday evening, June 11, at 8 o'clock in the new school auditorium, at which time, diplomas will be presented to the graduates by Superintendent Unger. The address will be delivered by Rev. Joseph Shubert, of Downingtown, Pa.

In the graduating class this year, there are seventeen members, as follows: Misses Geneva Boyd, Margaret Crouse, Ida Edwards, Helen Eyer, Helen Fink, Thelma Hahn, Helen Hoop, Viola Ohler, Mary Shriver and Dorothy Spangler; Messrs Ralph Baumgardner, Kenneth Gilds, David Hess, Charles Hesson, Herman Koutz, George Lambert and Ira Witherow.

The public is cordially invited to attend the dedication and commencement ceremonies. Admittance to the class night exercise will be by card.

The graduating class is promoting an Alumni Association of the High School, at a banquet to be served at the Elmer Inn, Frizellburg on the evening of June 16, at 7:30 o'clock. At this time, the association will be organized, officers elected and the general purposes of an association discussed and decided upon. An invitation has been extended to all graduates and former students of the High School to attend the banquet, and to enroll as members of the association. Those who expect to attend are requested to notify Mary Shriver, Taneytown, Md., as soon as possible.

Survey of Taneytown R. D. Routes.

The Rural Routes from Taneytown were accurately measured by Postmaster H. L. Feeser, within the past two weeks, on order of the P. O. Department. The results of the measurement and general survey will be of interest to all patrons of the office.

Taneytown's 30th. of May.

(For the Record.)

Memorial Day of 1926 will long be remembered in Taneytown. Never in the recollection of anyone has the day been so fittingly observed.

Putting aside the Chinese custom of music and much general excitement, and instead just the quiet dignified reverent placing upon the graves of our defenders a tribute of flowers, by members of an order which fosters Patriotism, and from whose ranks one may expect volunteers when the call for present day defenders—rings out.

May the future for the whole world, be peace.

Newspaper Men Sentenced.

Judge O'Dunne, of Baltimore sentenced five reporters and photographers of the Baltimore News and American to one day in jail, an Harold Ellison managing Editor, was fined $5,000, on charges of contempt of Court.

The charges grew out of the two papers publishing pictures taken in Court during the trial of Whitmore the bandit, after the Court had forbidden the pictures. The defendants were released on bail after entering appeals.

Lima, Peru, has an earthquake on an average of once a week, but for ten years there has been no loss of life or property.

THE C. E. CONVENTION.

A Fine Program is Assured for the County Event.

The 35th. Annual C. E. Convention for Carroll County will be held in the Lutheran Church, Taneytown, on Thursday, June 24. County President, Merwyn C. Fuss, has been active in getting good speakers, and now feels that the convention will be the best yet held, which is setting a very high mark for it.

In addition to the program of speeches and the various reports and regulation features, a pageant "God's Beautiful World" will be rendered at night. Mr. C. Harold Lowden, of Philadelphia, well-known composer of music, will have charge of the singing, which guarantees that this feature will be high class. In addition the Trinity Male Chorus will be heard in a number of selections.

The speakers who have accepted invitations to be present, are—Rev. E. A. Sexsmith, of Baltimore, Executive Secretary of Young People's work in the M. P. Church.

Rev. John S. Adam, pastor of Midletown Reformed Church.

Miss Brenda L. Melhouse, of Philadelphia, Secretary of Jr. Work for the United Lutheran Church.

Rev. Roland B. Lutz, of Baltimore, pastor of Faith Presbyterian Church.

Rev. H. H. Beidelman, of Baltimore, pastor of Calvary Lutheran Church.

The detailed program will contain the names of others who will present special features, and the whole event will be well looked after, for the benefit and entertainment of all who will be present. It is believed that the attendance will be a record-breaker.

Mrs. Charles McFadden.

We clip the following from the Emmitsburg Chronicle, of last week, relative to the death of Mrs. Sarah A. McFadden, the mother of John W. McFadden, of Holmesburg, Pa., and grandmother of Miss Percy Adelaide Shriver, of Taneytown.

"Her marriage to Charles McFadden in 1853 was a romance at the Old Tapeworm Railway, that curious piece of railway extravagance in the Blue Ridge, the middle of the last century, of which there is such scant record in the history of pioneer steam transport. The railway which, after the expenditure of nearly a million dollars, still 'began nowhere and ended in the same place' brought to the mountains as contractor one John McFadden of Donegal, father of Charles."

In a little mountain school the son of another John of Donegal, Edward McIntire, was beginning his long, peripatetic career as schoolmaster to which half the old folk of the Frederick and Adams County border owe some part of their education. In the intervals of helping his father at railway building, young Charles McFadden was sent to school to Edward McIntire. There followed the hospitality of the schoolmaster's home, the schoolmaster's sister, a mountain courtship, springtime and a long ride to Gettysburg, where Bishop Neuman insisted on their being the first couple married in the Catholic Church he was then dedicating.

From the futilities of the "Tape-worm" young Charles took away with him ideas and a vision as well as a wife and in the building of the railways of Pennsylvania amassed both fortune and reputation. At his death in 1895 he held the record of having built more miles of railroad than any man of his time.

Despite her great age, Mrs. McFadden remained physically and mentally active. Even in her nineties she "bossed" a suburban farm as well as her family, "made garden" every spring with her own hands, went shopping, read the newspapers daily and took a lively interest in politics and she was all her life a vivacious and aggressive Democrat. A broken arm sustained in her 93rd year while "visiting" threatened for a time to terminate her activities but the bone knitted and she resumed her busy life.

Rev. J. W. Reinecke Married.

Rev. John W. Reinecke, pastor of Carroll Reformed Church, near Westminster, was married on Wednesday evening, to Mrs. M. E. Shower, in Christ Reformed Church, Baltimore, by Rev. J. Barnhart, the bride's pastor, assisted by Rev. A. C. Weber and Rev. J. N. Garner. Rev. Reinecke is very well known in this county, while Mrs. Reinecke is prominent in church and missionary work in Baltimore.

The Church was handsomely decorated for the occasion, and music was furnished by a vested choir under the direction of the organist, Prof. Holzer. Relatives of both bride and groom had part in the event.

After a reception held in the church the couple left for a motor trip, first attending commencement exercises at Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, where the groom was a student.

NOTICE TO PATRONS.

In order to permit the employees of our office to have part in the Dedication and other exercises connected with the High School, next Friday afternoon, the Record will go to press next week, at 10 o'clock. This means that all matter for publication must be in our hands on Thursday afternoon, to insure insertion. Telephone calls on Friday morning are apt to be too late to be given attention. Our office will be closed in the afternoon.

FARMERS DAY DRAWS LARGE CROWD.

Big Delegation Present from Carroll County.

The largest delegation of Carroll County farmers, as well as the largest number of farmers throughout the State, attended Farmers' Day, Saturday, at College Park. Over fifty machines from Carroll County, each loaded to capacity, journeyed to College Park for this banner farm meeting of the year. Many of the local machines bore the name of Carroll county in pennants and banners, and this helped to bring to the county very favorable comments from many sources.

Several of the machines left Westminster in a body, as did another group from Eldersburg. The journey of many who had not made the trip before, was made more pleasant by the many guide signs placed in advance by County Agent Walrath. After travelling home through the several adjacent counties, many of the local farmers have expressed themselves in very positive terms, of not only their pleasure and profit from the trip, but of genuine satisfaction of living in Carroll County.

This big get-together day for the farm families held something of interest for everybody; in fact, some local men have said there was too much to see and learn for one day.

The Public Health Nurse.

There are forty-five nurses engaged in public health work in the counties of Maryland just five times as many as were on the lists in 1920 when public health nursing was first linked up with the work of the State Department of Health. In 1920, nine counties had some form of nursing service; now, each of the twenty-three counties is supplied with at least one nurse and several of the counties have two or three or more. In each section, the activities of the nurses form a part of the county public health program and are under the direction of the Deputy State Health Officer or the local health officer, with advisory nursing service from the State Department of health.

These facts were brought out by Miss C. Ethel Monroe, Advisory Nurse of the State Department of Health in a review of public health nursing in Maryland, at the annual conference of State Health Officers and county and local boards of health, under the auspices of the State Department of Health at the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene, at Baltimore, last week.

"Encouraging as the development of public health nursing has been," Miss Monroe said "if we are to keep pace with the opportunities, and with the needs for nursing service in each county, we should have at least one hundred nurses, not simply forty-five. Throughout the county, where special thought has been given to this subject, it is felt that there should be at least one nurse to each 7,500 of the population—not an extravagant estimate surely, for everybody will agree that any nurse who can give public health nursing service to a 'parish' of that size would have no time for loafing."

"On the basis of that estimate, since the total population of the counties of Maryland is approximately 740,000, we ought to have ninety-nine field nurses, and that number and more are what we hope to have eventually."

The work of the public health nurses is financed partly from State, county or local appropriations and partly by funds raised by voluntary organizations, county public health associations, local chapters of the American Red Cross and by the sale of the Christmas seals by the State Tuberculosis Association. State or county funds finance the work of thirty-four of the nurses, and voluntary organizations that of eleven nurses. Allegany county with a population of 74,201 has six nurses, the largest number in any county; Baltimore County with a population of 85,639 has five nurses; Washington with 53,467; and Anne Arundel County with 42,951 each have three nurses. Carroll, Harford, Howard, Montgomery, Prince George, Talbot, and Wicomico each have two nurses. Each of the rest of the counties has one nurse.

Other phases of public health nursing were discussed as follows: "A County Child Hygiene Program" by Miss Louise MacConney, of Harford County; "Supervising Nurses in the Baltimore City Health Department," by Miss Jane Newman, of Baltimore City; "The Advantage of a Postgraduate Course," by Miss Hermine Badenhop, of Montgomery County; "Preparing a Nurse for Rural Work" by Miss Margaret C. Wohlgenuth, of Anne Arundel County, and "Voluntary Funds for Public Health Work" by Miss Margaret E. Newman, of Frederick county.

Medical Men Guests at Springfield.

Members of the Carroll and Frederick County Medical Societies were the guests of Dr. J. C. Clark, Superintendent of Springfield State Hospital, on Thursday of last week.

The guests were entertained at a delightful lunch by Dr. Clark, served at 1:30 P. M., and later the medical men made an inspection of the hospital plant. The visitors were impressed with the buildings and the work being done. There are about 1,800 patients at the Springfield Hospital, and the grounds cover about 1,000 acres. The property is being splendidly maintained.

COUNTY CANDIDATES.

Will it be Necessary to Draft men for Commissioners?

Just why the job of being Sheriff of this county is so much sought after, is partly a conundrum. There are only nine announced candidates, but there may be more, or there may be a thinning out of the list before the primary election. There are four candidates for the Orphans' Court judgeships; that is more understandable, as it is a comparatively nice easy job, and then, the "Judge" title is attractive to some.

It is quite noticeable that candidates for the good offices, Clerk, Register of Wills, Treasurer, States Attorney, etc., are still in the woods, no doubt waiting their time to safely jump out, and in the meantime do not want to seem too eager.

And how about the County Commissioner job? We do not class it as a "good" one. The fact is, we do not understand how anybody can possibly want it, but it seems rather as a duty that one ought to be "drafted" to perform. There is no office in the County that needs more ability in men, and yet it is among the most poorly paid; and the Commissioners get more criticism than any other officials, and then some.

Speaking without varnish, they are, in their acts, "damned if they do, and damned if they don't." They are criticised as bone heads, and spend-thrifts, partial to some and unfair to others. If they spend large sums of money they are "extravagant," and if they don't, they are "back numbers." Their job is the only "it can't be done" proposition that we know of—for it means, please everybody.

But, we are hoping that there will be candidates for Commissioner—good ones—and that somehow, their pay will be increased. It is worth a lot, just to honestly try to "please everybody" in the job handling of the taxpayers' money; and the cussin' they get ought to be paid for, too.

Then, there has been nobody "prominently mentioned" for Surveyor, and this is another matter to be anxious about, especially as candidates have to put up $25.00 to get a place on the ballot, and this is a large slice of all the surveyor job is worth.

Perhaps thirteen candidates are all that can legally "come out" before June 1st? At any rate, that is exactly the number "out" in Frederick county, but over there four of them actually want to be Commissioners, and only three want to be Sheriff.

SESQUI-CENTENNIAL FORMALLY OPEN.

The Exposition Likely to be under Way by July 1st.

The Sesqui-Centennial, in Philadelphia, was officially opened, on Monday. As yet, it can not be called an exposition, for the reason that there are no exhibits, due to the unfinished condition of grounds and buildings. Addresses were delivered by Secretary of State, Kellogg, and by Secretary of Commerce, Hoover, following a brief address by Mayor Kendrick and an invocation by Rev. Thos. J. Garland, Bishop of Pennsylvania.

Various attractions scheduled, were absent. Outside of the addresses, the only worth while features were demonstrations by detachments of the Army, Navy, Marines and National Guard, the presence of a score of bands and a chorus of 2500 voices.

Some of the larger exhibits will be set up within a few weeks, it is said, and Amusement places will be opened in a month, with the general prospect that the Exposition will be reasonably complete about July 15th.

The officials expressed themselves as entirely satisfied with the opening and it is claimed that over 150,000 were present during the day.

There are 3000 mechanics of various kinds working on the buildings and grounds, divided into day and night shifts, and wonders will be accomplished this month in the way of construction. Exhibitors are also speeding up their plans, and in general an energetic and optimistic spirit is being manifested.

W. M. C. Commencement.

Western Maryland College will celebrate its fifty-sixth Commencement, June 4 to 8, 1926.

The Senior Class will be the largest ever graduated from the college and in consequence a large number of out of town visitors are expected to be present. The friends of the college residing in the county are especially invited to attend all the public exercises of the week, a program of which follows:

Saturday, June 5, 8:00 P. M., Recital. Department of Music; 9:00 P. M., President's reception.

Montgomery Taxes, at $1.15.

Although the expenses of Montgomery County will be greater by $47,000 next year than this year, the tax rate has been fixed at $1.15, the present rate. This is the fixed rate for the county. There are, however, special rates for various election districts, varying from .04 to .45, in addition to the $1.15 rate, to cover bond issues for roads; and certain other special rates, varying from .10 to .50, for local purposes.

While the "rate" remains at the pleasurable $1.15, there is an increase in the bases of taxation of about $4,000,000 on real and personal property, and an increase in securities of $230,000; so it looks as though the taxpayers will make up the $47,000 increase in expenditures, and that a lot of tax "bills" will be higher, even though the "rate" is not.

Extension Service Work.

A large and representative delegation of Carroll County farm men and women appeared before the County Commissioners on Tuesday afternoon in support of the Extension Service work. Delegates from the Pomona Grange, the County and local Farm Bureau, the Union Bridge Farmers' Club, the Federation of Home-makers' Clubs, Boys' and Girls' club work, county dairy breed associations and many other interested farm men and women constituted the largest group to ever appear before the Commissioners for the support of this work.

Dr. T. B. Symons, Director of the Extension Service University of Maryland presented the delegation to the Board of County Commissioners and after briefly outlining the policies of the State Department, called upon the members of the delegation to present their views of the matter.

After hearing the definite, forceful proof of the value of the work to the development of the county as presented by both women and men, Mr. C. W. Melville, Chairman of the Board of Commissioners, stated that other than for roads the farmers and their wives make very few demands upon the county, and pledged his full support to adequately provide the county's share for the maintenance of this work. Mr. John H. Repp concurred in this opinion. With but one dissenting vote, the Board went on record as favoring Extension Work, placing Carroll County in the progressive position she deserves among foremost counties in the State.

Only 12 college graduates are included in the 13,012 convicts in Sing Sing prison, N. Y.

BORAH OPPOSES REFERENDUM.

Must Either Repeal, or Obey the Prohibition Laws.

Senator Wm. E. Borah, of Idaho, delivered an address before Presbyterian clergymen and laymen at the Lyric Theatre, last Sunday, in which he strongly condemned state referendums on the liquor question. He declared that the time had come when the United States must repeal its prohibition laws, or obey them.

Attempts to settle the proposition through action of the individual States, or by any other method which does not take into account the constitutional verdict on the question is "to confess to the world that we have neither the moral courage nor the intellectual sturdiness for self-government," he charged.

"If this scheme could be put into effect," he continued, "forty-eight States would continue the Federal Constitution and the Federal authorities would have to accept the forty-eight constructions. We might have forty-eight different standards of intoxicating liquor and forty-eight different methods of determining intoxicating liquor."

"The Federal Government would be placed in the position of conniving at this condition and compelled to sit silent and supine while confusion reigned supreme over the prostrated and discredited form of the Federal Constitution. Although the Federal Government is the defender and interpreter of the Federal Constitution, it is by this program to be called upon to abdicate to surrender and leave all to the States. This is constitutional anarchy."

"If this referendum interrogatory has any meaning at all it is that every State shall determine for itself its own construction of, and obligation to the Constitution of the United States and that construction to bind the Federal Government."

"That doctrine was shot to death at the Battle of the Wilderness. A reunited and disenthralled and happy nation has put it behind us for all time."

"What the advocates want, when they speak candidly and plainly, is the right to sell and transport intoxicating liquor. What they want is to transfer the control of this question to the States, and these things they want to do by nullifying the Constitution instead of amending it."

"The only way to meet the proposition which they have in mind, if they wish to employ referendum, is to submit the question of whether we shall amend the Constitution in the way provided by that Constitution."

Boy Killed by Tombstone.

Richard Mann, 4 years old, died from a tombstone falling on him, while he was playing in Finksburg cemetery, on Monday. He and several other children were attracted to the cemetery on Memorial day, by the flowers and green grass, and while playing among the grass a tombstone toppled over and pinned him to the ground. His little companions, unable to lift the stone and release him, gave the alarm and his mother and some neighbors removed the stone from his body. The little boy was taken to a physician at Reisterstown where he was given treatment, and then taken to Maryland General Hospital, where he died from his injuries.

Large Surplus of Peas.

Wholesalers of groceries in Wisconsin (which is the greatest pea growing state) report that the price of canned peas has declined from 20 to 25 percent, due to overproduction for the last two years; and for this reason the pea acreage will be cut by one-third. Canners agree that there will be a large surplus to carry over.

In each of the last two years Wisconsin has produced more than 10,000,000 cases, or 240,000,000 cans of peas. Packers admit that either the demand must be increased, or the acreage decreased.

The Most Modern Cemetery.

Elysian Memorial Park, Orlando, Fla., probably will be the most modern burial ground to be found in the South. When finally completed, in approximately 18 months, it will unquestionably be the most beautiful park in the United States, with the possible exception of the Arlington cemetery in Washington, D. C. It will have in it a chapel and mausoleum combined. Walter E. Williams, president and general manager, after a survey of several hundred mausoleums in this and in foreign countries, plans to embody in this building all of the improved methods of mausoleum construction.

There will be no monuments or tombstones in Elysian Memorial Park, excepting in two of the smaller sections, and these monuments will have to be passed upon by the Association, and carry the aspects of life instead of death. In all of the other sections, markers will be made of green bronze and lay perfectly flush with the ground so as not to mar the beauty. The park will be a rolling greensward with beautiful fountains, shrubbery and flower gardens to add to the beauty. There will be an ornamental arch or gateway in the Gothic. There will be sanctuaries, an observation tower, and many other improvements to make Elysian Memorial Park one of the beauty spots of Orlando.—Apoka (Florida) Chief.

Will Ritchie Change his Mind?

Despite the opposition to "third terms" Governor Ritchie seems likely to file his papers for renomination, although many of the leaders of his party want him to reconsider, and be a candidate for U. S. Senator against Mr. Weller. Some go as far as to say that Weller will be a sure winner should the Governor not enter the field against him; and use the argument that with Ritchie a candidate for Governor, the party will lose a Senator surely, and perhaps even the Governorship.

Governor Ritchie is said to be thinking of 1926 and the Presidential nomination, and it seems to be regulation politics that a Governor of a state has a better chance of advancing to the Presidency, than has a Senator. This may be true, but it is difficult to find any sound reason why it should be, aside from the fact that in the past numerous Governors have become Presidents, while but few Senators have followed the same course.

There are others, too, who argue that while Gov. Ritchie may be good Presidential timber, Maryland is not a good state to hail from; and besides it has not yet been demonstrated that states rights and anti-prohibition will be sound planks to stand on before all of the United States, in 1926.

The fact is, our "handsome Governor" as he is called, may wear his pet topics threadbare, should he continue so regularly to use them, even here in his own state. But, getting back to the Senatorial nomination, there is perhaps no man in the state more willing for the Governor to "stay put," than Senator Weller, who at the present time seems to have things in his own party pretty well his own way—unless it is worth while to seriously consider Mr. Hill for the nomination.

The President is Aggravating.

President Coolidge has very frequently been referred to, by his adversaries especially, as a "shrewd politician" who has a view of the political horizon far above the amateur range. And yet, these same critics, when occasion demands, can easily amend the "shrewd" to "poor," and say that the President does not play good politics. This happened last week over the executive order stiffening prohibition enforcement by approving the use of state deputies to assist the government officials, when said use was requested and not objected to by the states.

Those who had a fit over the President's mistake saw proper to read into the order the word "shall" whereas the word actually used was "may," which shows how touchy they are on the subject, even opposing executive help toward prohibition enforcement in states in which it is desired.

The President is evidently not much engaged in playing partisan politics when his conception of right and duty are involved, under his oath of office—even though some of his critics are not so conscientious on the subject, and especially a lot of "wet" Republicans who are seeking election this Fall. Most of these would have raised no objection, had the executive order been issued after November.

It is preposterous that his hands should be tied by every local exigency—by the convenience of every candidate up for re-election—in the face of his repeatedly expressed determination that, so far as his official acts are concerned, "right things come first," and political considerations afterwards. In this instance, he evidently considered it "right" that local officers should serve as Federal enforcement agents when states desired such co-operation, and he did not hesitate to so act.

And, even as a "political" act, it may have been very far-seeing performance, for thousands of letters and telegrams have been sent to the White House commending the action. The President is aggravating to members of his own party, as well as to the Democratic party, in many of the decisions he arrives at; but, so was President Wilson. After all, it would be a limp sort of President who would be popular with everybody.

Of course—oh, very much of course—the "wets" are setting up a howl about the President and his lack of "authority" to issue an order that is directed toward better enforcement of the prohibition laws; because, they do not want to see these laws enforced—very decidedly not. So, the President is wrong, simply because he would help to further "cork up" the liquor supply. Very simple, is it not?

Still "Hickville."

Hickville, New York, voted last week, 994 to 317, to retain its present name. Elias Hick, was its founder, but some thought being named so stood for being a "hick" ville, and that the name was not modernly euphonious, and did not look well on real estate boosting efforts. The Hickites, however, took the view that the reputation of the founder transcended any ridicule attaching to the sound of the name.

Somehow "Hickville" does not sound as badly as "Hicktown." When we make an investigation, there is hardly to be found a "town" in the whole country that ever grew to any size, or to any but local importance. Perhaps this is not in the least the fault of the "town" appendix, but the fact itself remains, and as we naturally look about us for handicaps and hoo-dooes we are apt to conclude that after all there may be something in mere name.

Thousands of "villes," burges" and "towns," have been named in honor of founders; but it does not follow that in reality an honor was actually conferred, except in a very local sense. A hundred years or more ago this idea may have looked differently, but it is a sure conclusion that the Johns-ville, Smithsburgs, Littletowns—or even Taneytown—would not be so named now. The names stick, however, and Hickville voted to stick to theirs.

The subject is not a very important one, when we come down to brass tacks, especially if we can accept Shakespeare's, "What's in a name," but there is still a hint that having to live "up" to a name is better than having to live one "down." Naming boys "Washington" never especially honored the immortal "George," nor has it ever made real Washingtons of the boys, and names pretty generally are misfits.

If we would consult the wishes of grown-ups, there are millions of towns and people too, who would gladly kick-off their own.

Will we Learn by What We See?

If any person wishes to see what socialism in government will do, the result can be witnessed in England today. The great British strike resulted because the government had to discontinue the subsidy which it paid to coal mine operators in order that they, in turn, could pay a higher wage to miners than the price paid for coal by the consuming public would warrant. Also, the dole system in England has encouraged many persons to become idlers instead of workers.

Recent press reports show that out of 40 socialistic business ventures entered into by the British government, all but four or five have failed and cost the taxpayers from a few dollars to as high as $2,175,000 for each venture.

The slogan of the Independent Labor Party in Great Britain is "Socialism in our time." The aim of the party has been nationalization of coal, railroads, electricity, banking and raw materials. Judging from the labor and industrial situation as reported in the British Empire, it would look as if the Labor Party, if it carries out its program, would have to change its slogan to "Bankruptcy in our time."

England has been sending investigators to the United States to find out why this country is prosperous. The visitors have been greatly impressed, by what they saw in the way of labor-saving machinery and of the tremendous size of American manufacturing plants. They found that the American workman produced more with the aid of machinery than does the British workman who, through labor organizations, has always fought labor-saving devices. In view of the fact that the American worker uses more electric power and gets much higher wages than workmen in any other country in the world, and that our labor-saving machinery is the most highly developed, English investigators may be able to see the connection between high wages and high production per man.

Never before were the advantages of the workman under the American system as compared with European systems, so strikingly evident as they are today, and yet we have political enthusiasts in this country who would force us down to the European standards if it was in their power, and have the government usurp the rights of the individual, and make the individual workman a mere cog in the political machine. ODD PENALTIES FOR LAPSE FROM GRACE

Ridicule Once Held Effective Punishment.

The "drunkard's cloak" as a punishment was the system once adopted by the magistrates of Newcastle-Upon-Tyne in order to cure drunken persons, and as the "cloak" consisted of a barrel with holes for the head and hands, the delinquent, who was forced to parade the streets wearing it, would attract considerable attention to his lapse.

Similarly the stocks, once used so extensively for the punishment of petty offenders, were so arranged that the culprits generally received more ridicule than sympathy, and probably our forefathers considered that publicity was likely to discourage wrongdoing. In 1376 a petition was presented Edward III requesting that stocks should be established in every village, and, later on, each parish was so provided. These relics of a bygone punishment are still seen by the wayside.

The whipping post was sometimes an accompaniment of the stocks; occasionally the whipping was done "at the cart's tail." Titus Oates, for instance, was ordered to be whipped from Aldgate to Newgate, and, two days later, from Newgate to Tyburn.

Our ancestors were severe on the woman scold, and the punishment meted out to her was drastic. One known as the brank was a sugar-loaf-shaped fixture for the head, constructed of iron hoops, with a cross at the top. A flat piece of iron projected inwards, which was placed on the woman's tongue. She was then led about the streets wearing this unique head dress.

The duckling stool was built and used in this wise. A post was erected in a pond, and a beam, working on a swivel, was affixed thereto. A chair was then fastened to the beam, and the refractory woman was placed in the chair. She was then swung over the pond and immersed in the water, the operation being repeated "as often as the virulence of the distemper required." This punishment is also said to have been inflicted upon brewers and bakers who violated the laws.

The pillory was another instrument of punishment where the offender was exposed to public view. It generally consisted of a wooden frame or screen, raised from the ground, and with holes for the head and arms of the person condemned to stand therein.

But of all these wayside spectacles surely the gibbet would be the most revolting. It might be regarded as a "comforting sight to the relations and friends of the deceased" to see that justice had been done and the murderer's body suspended by the roadside, but it would be a ghastly sight for other people.

France Preserves Relics

France has taken steps to protect the prehistoric art of the cave man from damage by vandals. Dr. C. E. Resser, geologist of the United States National museum, who has recently returned from the Dordogne cave region of southern France, reports that the government now requires that the caves be locked to prevent unauthorized visits of sightseers who have formerly frequently written or carved their names and initials on the paintings and drawings made probably 20,000 years ago by primitive artists as part of religious rites. In the principal cave man shrine containing colored animal pictures, the low, narrow galleries in which the cave artist worked by the dim light of his lamp, electric lights have now been placed to avoid the damage from the smoking candles.

Resisting Temptation

Many seek to fly temptations, and fall into them more grievously. By flight alone we cannot overcome; but by patience and true humility we are made stronger than all enemies. He who only turns aside from them outwardly, and does not pluck out the roots of them, will make but little advance; nay, temptations will sooner return to him, and he will find himself in a worse condition.—Thomas a Kempis.

By Way of Argument

A visitor at a certain fishing village asked the parson what was the principal diet of the villagers.

"Fish, mostly," said the vicar. "But I thought fish was a brain food, and these are the most unintelligent folk I ever saw," remarked the tourist.

"Well," replied the parson, "just think what they would be like if they didn't eat fish!"

POULTRY

DIFFERENT CAUSES FOR POOR HATCHES

Many small factors in the management of the flock can often affect the results which are attained in hatching eggs. With the present development of the incubators the expert operator is usually able to secure good results if the original hatching quality of the eggs is satisfactory. In the large hatcheries it is often observed that different trays of eggs run side by side will show a marked difference in the number of chicks hatched. The reason for this difference lies in the original eggs.

Some of the factors that help to secure satisfactory eggs for hatching are as follows:

Mature breeding stock. The usual age agreed upon is nine months. Many prefer females in their second year.

Plenty of male birds. Many supply one cockerel to ten hens, but the majority agree that one cockerel to fifteen hens is sufficient with the light breeds.

Remove diseased birds from the flock.

Birds which are otherwise confined should be given an outside runway when it is possible to do so without endangering the health of the birds. Direct sunlight should strike the birds.

Birds should be comfortably housed. Floors should be covered with a litter of straw and changed whenever it shows any indication of dampness, mustiness or filth.

Artificial light should not be used to stimulate laying for 90 days previous to date of saving first eggs for hatching.

A balanced ration of approximately equal portions of scratch feed and mash should be furnished.

The hens should be supplied with some type of green feed such as mangels or sprouted oats as well as hoppers filled with oyster shell and grit.

Regularity and good care for a month or six weeks prior to saving of eggs as well as during the period of saving of eggs for hatching, combined with the above essentials, should produce eggs which will hatch a high per cent of live chicks.

Turkeys With Diarrhea

Diarrhea is one of the prominent symptoms of blackhead in turkeys, though it may also occur from other causes. It is a pretty safe guess that blackhead is present when diarrhea appears and the turkeys begin to drop dead, one by one, as the disease progresses. No remedy of any considerable value has yet been found for this trouble. Each turkey may be given a dose of castor oil, one to two teaspoonfuls, when any looseness of the bowels appear. This will clear out any irritating matter.

Improvement of Flock

One of the most economical methods of improvement of the poultry flock is by the purchase of a few settings of hatching eggs. From these may be raised a few females and enough breeding males to head the flock during the succeeding year. Care should be taken to make sure that the stock from which one is purchasing eggs is superior to his own.

Nests Easily Cleaned

Nests for laying hens can be easily cleaned if they are built in sections, or tiers, of three or more nests, without bottoms, and set on shelves. When the nests are pulled from the shelf all the straw and dirt will fall to the floor.

Poultry Notes

Teach birds to roost early—prevents crowding.

Put young chicks in clean house on fresh ground.

Rest chicks in boxes for a few hours before putting into brooder.

Have brooder house ready before the chicks arrive.

Segregate cockerels from pullets as soon as possible. Keep forcing pullets along with mash, even when on range.

Look out for overheated brooders and brooder house fires. Make an inspection of all apparatus regularly and take no chances.

Do you know why big dressed chickens will not sell readily? The city man is a frugal buyer—he has to be—and chicken soon runs up the price when heavy.

If disease is in your flock, there is a cause. Hunt for it; and burn or bury all dead chicks without a second's delay.

If you have "a good old mother hen for chickens" don't kill or sell her. Even if she only lays five eggs a year, she earns her feed in brooding.

To throw away the addled eggs at nesting or hatching time is to teach some animal bad habits, or pollute the air. Bury them deep or burn them at once.

FEESERSBURG.

The beautiful weather seems to be bringing the city people to the country, as last Sunday a car load spent the evening with the Birely's. They were: Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Cromwell and son, Dick; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Townsend, all of Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil Shoemaker and son, of Middleburg, spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Koons.

Mrs. William Coleman, of Middleburg, who had been paralyzed a short time ago, passed away Tuesday, at 4 o'clock. Interment at Haugh's Lutheran cemetery, Thursday morning.

Alfred Zollickoffer, of Uniontown, took his father-in-law, J. A. Koons and L. K. Birely to a ball game, at Frederick, on Monday. We don't believe the boys enjoyed it as much as they ought to, as they didn't yell for either side. They said there was a large crowd there.

Don't forget to come to Mt. Union next Sunday morning, at 10:30 to the Children's-day exercises; it is going to be good, especially the large girls' drill.

Our town farmer, Mr. Delphy, is busy with his team, working gardens and potato patches.

Work has begun on the state road. The men are giving it a coat of tar and chips.

The measles patients are all out again, enjoying the sunshine and fresh air.

PLEASANT VALLEY.

The Parent-Teachers' meeting, which was held in the High School, on Monday evening, was largely attended and a very good program was rendered. The pupils of the first and second grades gave a very good play. They also held the annual school exhibit on Monday, and a very large amount of things was on exhibition by the Home Economics department; also by the Manual Training department, beside the other rooms had many interesting things on exhibit, which were all done this year.

The Decoration services, which were held on Saturday, were largely attended. The festival, which was held in the evening, by the P. O. S. of A. Lodge, Camp No. 7, was a great success.

Sunday School, Sunday morning, 9 o'clock, followed by church at 10:00 by Rev. A. G. Wolf.

Washington radio stations send out the Washington games, inning by inning, when played away from home, but not when played home. The reason for this is, broadcasting home games would likely lessen the attendance—and the gate receipts. Good business, this.

Smith—Is young Huggies still paying attention to your daughter?

Jones—No; they are married now.

Poetic Legend

There is a great deal of indefiniteness, not only as to the origin but as to the application of the name "Forget-Me-Not," applied to the flower. German legend is full of explanations of its origin. In one myth a knight dashes into a lake to pluck the flowers growing on the further bank. On his return his strength is exhausted. Feeling that he cannot regain the shore, though very near it, he throws the flowers at his lady's feet, and, crying "Forget me not," disappears beneath the waves.

Traveling for Pleasure

After considerable urging, Herr Schulze of Berlin took his wife on a tour of northern Europe.

Arriving in due course at Nordkap, the promontory of Norway, they viewed the midnight sun, and Herr Schulze idly scratched on a rock:

"Sat here with wife. Fine! Schulze, Berlin."

Three weeks later a neighboring rock read:

"Sat here without. Finer! Meier, Hamburg."

Move to Reduce Automobile Accidents

It has remained for the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters to propose one remedy which should prove to be an effective deterrent for reckless drivers.

In the future, when licenses have been denied automobilists, or when the right to drive has been revoked by duly authorized officials, the persons thus affected will be unable to obtain automobile insurance through any of the principal casualty and surety companies which comprise the National Bureau.

Motor vehicle commissioners in different states will furnish immediately to the National Bureau the names of all persons whose licenses have been revoked. This information will immediately be distributed to the companies, and further insurance to reckless drivers will be refused and existing insurance will be canceled.

It is an established fact, say the Bureau officials, that many serious accidents are caused by criminal and careless motorists who continue to operate even after their licenses have been revoked for good cause.

Insurance carried by an irresponsible and reckless driver makes him more careless. The action of the casualty companies is a move in the right direction and if all states would co-operate with these companies in weeding out undesirable drivers, the ultimate result would be fewer accidents, and insurance at lower cost for careful automobile owners who are entitled to it.—The Manufacturer.

Mr. Janney for the Senate.

Stewart S. Janney, attorney, and State Director of Welfare, has filed his certificate of candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate. His entry seems to have been largely a personal act, supported by personal friends, rather than an act arrived at through a political conference. He says in his announcement: "I am opposed to Volsteadism, but I would not like to frame a platform in which that was the principal plank, for I do not think that is the most important issue. I am a Constitutional Democrat and that covers opposition to such legislation as the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead law." He therefore seems to possess the first requirement for eligibility, in Maryland. He is also a close personal friend of Gov. Ritchie.

In Loving Remembrance of MRS. SUSAN A. ECKARD,
who died one year ago, June 4, 1925.

It is said that one we cherish
Should be taken from our home,
But the joys that do not perish
Live in memory alone.
All the years we've spent together,
All the happy, golden hours,
Shall be cherished in remembrance,
Fragrant sweets from memory's flowers.

BY HER HUSBAND.

Farewell, dear mother, sweet thy rest,
Weary with years and work with pain,
Farewell till in some happy place
We shall behold thy face again.
Thine ours to miss thee, all our years,
And tender memories of thee keep
Thine in the Lord to rest, for so,
He giveth his beloved sleep.

Too Much Water for Fish

Even the finny inhabitants of old Father Thames suffered inconvenience on account of the floods of the past season. The first rush of water drives the fish from their customary swims, and in order not to be driven into unfamiliar waters, they take refuge in eddies and quiet corners where they can hold their own against the current, and into which food is borne and collects. As the river rises so the water colors and darkens, until light fails to penetrate to the bottom, so that food becomes invisible and the fish are driven to shallow water. When the stream overflows its banks and spreads over the adjacent meadows the fish quickly follow it in search of quiet water and the feast of drowned insects and earthworms to be found there. There is, however, always the risk that they may be stranded by a rapid subsidence of the flood.

Competition a Stimulant

A runner seldom breaks a record unless he is closely pressed. A baseball team plays its best game against a close adversary. A horse scores its best mark when pitted against fast horses.

The retail dealer plays his best game when pressed by competition. The one sure way to make a merchant slough into mediocrity and slipshod methods is to take away his competition. Honest, ethical competition develops good merchants, and makes fine, alert citizens. A lack of competition breeds laziness and insouciance. The greater your competition, the greater your opportunity for growth.—Good Hardware.

Bagpipe and Organ

Alike in Principle

The Highland bagpipe is a primitive instrument with a quality all its own, says the Chicago Journal. It has nine notes, but they are not like the chromatic scale. The bagpipe scale does not exist in any other instrument and its music, unlike "regular" music, can not be transposed from one key into another.

The bagpipe itself, in its Highland form, consists of an airtight leather bag with three wooden stocks, usually of ebony, fitted into it, one of them holding the mouthpiece, another the chanter, another the three drones. As most people know, it is played with the bag held under the arm, the drones over the shoulder, and with the fingers on the noteholes in the chanter at the front.

Except that its scale is its own and does not exist in any other instrument, the bagpipe is similar to a church organ in principle. The player maintains the wind pressure on his drones and chanter by keeping the bag full of wind and regulates the volume of sound by the pressure of his arm on the bag.

What he produces may not be the sweetest form of music in the world, but even to ears that are far from Scottish it is the most unforgettable of all music. Those who have listened to the pibrochs of the different clans and to the wails of the funeral dirge say that it is like no other music in the world.

Customs of Indians Unchanged by Time

The Indians living in the region of San Francisco bay have not changed their customs or place of abode for 3,500 years, says Dr. A. L. Kroeber of the University of California. "When Troy was besieged and Solomon was building his temple, at a period when even Greek civilization had not yet taken on the traits that we regard as characteristic, when only a few scattering foundations of specific modern culture were being laid and our own northern ancestors dwelled in unmitigated barbarism, the native Californian already lived in all essentials like his descendant of today." This knowledge was obtained from shell mounds submerged around the bay. All classes of objects found in these mounds were unearthed with practically the same frequency from the top, middle and bottom. This shows that these prehistoric people ate the same kind of food, wore the same kind of clothes and had the same customs as their descendants. The age of the mounds is estimated by calculating the time necessary for such shells to accumulate.—Pathfinder Magazine.

WHAT PRICE HEALTH

VALUE of health may not be reckoned in dollars and cents. Two thousand years ago there was perhaps some excuse for the gastronome, but today there is none. The way to health lies in a balanced diet. Hippocrates, the father of medicine, figured along the same lines back 450 B. C. He expressed the belief that the science of medicine had its beginning in the efforts of men and women to find better and smoother diets.

Diet in the home today is becoming a matter of premier consideration. Women are taking cognizance of those important food elements known as vitamins. They have learned, also, the benefit to the human body of such minerals as iron, calcium and phosphorus.

This knowledge has resulted in the housewife planning her menus with an eye open to dietary values, which is the big reason why milk has assumed such a large place in the menu of the American family. Milk contains every structural element for body building. It is an almost perfect food. Despite the best refrigeration facilities, milk will keep sweet only a short time. Millions of American housewives have solved this big problem by using evaporated milk, which is simply fresh cow's milk sterilized in cans to achieve keeping qualities and with sixty per cent of the water removed.

Evaporated milk is not the same as condensed milk, although many persons confuse the two. The condensed product is a combination of milk and sugar cane in a two-fifth cane sugar and three-fifth milk proportion. Evaporated milk has nothing but water taken from it and nothing at all added. Sugar is the preservative used in manufacturing the condensed product, while heat only is the preservative for evaporated milk. For this reason the evaporated product may be used in any way in which market milk is used.

Uncanny Experiment

The appointment of Joseph Barcroft as professor of physiology at Cambridge university, England, recalls the fact that Professor Barcroft once performed an experiment which attracted world-wide attention. He was studying lung diseases. For one whole week he remained in a glass chamber from which all the air was pumped except the smallest amount required to sustain life. Students watched in relays day and night to see that the small motor drawing out the vitiated air did not stop, for if it had stopped even for a few minutes it would have meant certain death to Professor Barcroft. When the scientist emerged from the glass chamber his body had turned completely blue.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Iron-Willed Man

"The saving grace of life is that we aren't compelled to do a number of things we ought to do," a man with an expanding waistline philosophizes. "Now I ought to take exercises, but I don't. Instead, I turn on the radio in the morning and jump back in bed while the announcer is directing the morning calisthenics. I lie there and think of how early the poor announcer gets to work, and of how uncomfortable the poor fellows are who are exercising, and of how pleasant it is to be strong-willed enough to resist the temptation to exercise, and I enjoy it. That little bit of calisthenics in the morning sweetens my whole day for me."—Detroit News

Miners Travel by Plane

Recently to eliminate travel over vast desolate tracts in Alaska on the hard journey to the gold fields, the airplane has been called into use, with the result that the miners have flown into the faraway regions in a few hours at the most. The danger from starvation and of freezing to death have thus been eliminated. The experiment has been pronounced highly successful and more planes will be brought in for that work alone in the Cassiar county district of northern British Columbia.

Any Old Excuse

President Jerry B. Sullivan of the United States board of general appraisers was talking about smuggling. "Nearly everybody can find an excuse," he said, "for doing a bit of harmless smuggling. We're like the little boy who was getting dressed for a holiday party. 'Oh, no, mother,' he said, 'you ain't a-goin' to wash my ears, too! Oh, no, not on your life!'" "Why not?" said his mother. "Why, consarn it," growled the boy, "don't it say on the invitation that this is an informal party?"

American Eagle Well Named Monarch of Air

The American bald eagle is really misnamed. His head is well clothed with feathers, being pure white in the adult, which gives rise to the name "bald." The tail also is white, the remainder of the body is dark brown.

The young bird is dark throughout, three years being required for the assumption of the full white markings. In this immature stage the bird was once considered distinct and was variously known as the Bird of Washington and as the black or gray eagle. Young bald eagles are very like golden eagles and the two are often confused, but on close inspection the bald may be known by the fact that its legs are bare of feathers for some distance above the toes. There is little difference in extent of wing and total length between the golden and bald eagles, but the latter is stouter and heavier in body. It is a strange fact that immature bald eagles, due to greater length of feather, average larger than adults.

In aspect the bald eagle unquestionably is a noble and inspiring bird. The beak is heavy and strangely hooked, while the corners of the mouth have a downward curve, which gives the bird an appearance of severity. A bony place extends over the eyes and has a curious resemblance to the beetling brows often observed in men of strong character. The body is heavy and muscular, with a suggestion of latent strength, while the powerful legs and feet, with their tigerlike talons, confirm the impression of a creature able and willing to hold its own under any conditions.

In flight the bald eagle is magnificent. With pinions wide spread and floating with hardly perceptible effort, it glides through the air with an ease and grace which no man-made machine has ever equaled. Aided by favorable air currents and swinging in great circles, it rises to tremendous heights, often beyond the range of vision of the naked eye.—Lee S. Crandall, in Mentor.

Original Weather Vane

The church weather vane has been handed down to our own day from the time of St. Dunstan. Its form is traditional, and its popular name, weathercock, suggests its shape. The cock was selected to top the spires and turrets because it is the emblem of vigilance. When that symbolic bird tips a church spire it represents the preacher who, after himself awakening from the sleep of sin, proceeds to figuratively flap his wings to arouse the slumbering consciences of his flock. This ancient tradition comes from Europe where the weathercock is almost universal as the finishing touch to a church steeple.

Rye Is Surest for Winter Cover Crop

Makes More Growth on Poor Soils Than Any Other.

Of all winter cover crops, rye is the surest and the nearest fool proof.

"It will make more growth on poor soils, whether clay or sandy, than any other. It is resistant to winter-killing, and may be sown successfully from August to December; but, October 1 is probably the best date of sowing for most localities," says E. C. Blair, agronomist for the North Carolina State College of Agriculture. "A bushel of seed should be used per acre. The seed may be scattered over a corn or cotton field and covered with a one-horse cultivator. This may be done at laying-in time or just after the first picking of cotton. Rye may be sown this way in a corn field, or the corn may be removed, the land disked and the rye drilled in."

Mr. Blair states that rye often gives good grazing in the fall when sown early. It will also give grazing in the early spring. Live stock should be taken off in time for the crop to make good growth for turning under.

The rye should be turned under as soon as the heads begin to show, as at this time it will rot quickly in the soil. If allowed to become too ripe the stems may interfere with cultivation and soil moisture conditions all summer.

Rye is not a legume, Mr. Blair points out and takes no nitrogen from the air. Its value is in the prevention of soluble plant food from leaching out of the soil, the checking of erosion and in adding organic matter to the soil when turned under. It is one of the best crops to improve the tilth of the soil in this way. Whenever the success of a leguminous cover crop is doubtful, rye should be sown with the legume.

Carefully Store Apples for Use During Winter

Care should be taken when storing winter apples to do this job "just right." Apples keep to the best advantage where each apple is wrapped separately in paper. If the apples are not already wrapped the wise householder wraps each one himself; but where this seems to be too much like work, at least be careful to put them in paper-lined barrels or boxes and then "go over" them frequently during the winter to pick out any that may show signs of decay, for "one bad apple will spoil a whole barrel."

Care should also be taken not to store the apples too near strong vegetables, such as turnips, onions, or even potatoes. For apples, like butter, are apt to "take on" the odors of other food that happens to be near them. Everyone knows that apples should be stored in a good dry cellar and in a cellar that will keep them cold but where they will not be frozen.

The tart varieties of apples are the best for canning purposes. All bruised spots, of course, should be carefully cut away from the fruit before cooking it. The most completely satisfactory method of preserving the apple is to make it into apple sauce and then place it in well-sterilized glass jars while it is hot. Of course, some may prefer to can the apples whole, so that they can be used more advantageously for apple dumplings.

Fruit Growers Urged to Order All Stock Early

Prospective fruit growers should order their nursery stock early in the fall, stipulating the grades desired, and that delivery shall be made on a designated date. Nursery trees are usually graded according to height, although diameter measurement an inch or two above the bud should be taken into consideration. Trees for planting should be well grown and stocky, explains E. H. Rawl, assistant extension horticulturist at Clemson college, who points out the method of handling.

When you receive your trees they should be immediately be unpacked and heeled-in where the soil is moist. This heeling-in process is accomplished by placing the roots in a trench a foot or 18 inches deeper than they are to be planted, with the earth packed around them. Trees are usually heeled at a 45 degree angle in the heeling-in trench.

FARM FACTS

Alfalfa may be seeded either spring or fall.

A silo filled with really good silage is about the best assurance for a profitable winter.

Cats are among the greatest menaces to nesting game birds, conservation authorities state.

Make the hoe cut below rather than just at the surface of the ground to get rid of weeds.

Green rye in amounts of 15 pounds or more fed one hour before milking flavors milk slightly but not enough to be objectionable.

The care given the strawberry bed now will largely determine the size of the crop next year. A row well filled (but not too full) of well grown, vigorous plants this fall is a pretty good insurance for the 1926 crop.

Young At 60, Or Old At 40? Diet Decides

Women are as old or as young as their state of health. A woman may be young at sixty years or old at forty. It all depends on her physical well-being.

Youth and beauty have a foundation in sound health. And food is easily the most important item in health. In giving consideration to the subjects of diet and beauty, women should not forget the food essentials that make for the preservation of teeth, hair, figure and complexion.

Blame for round shoulders, flat chest and poor teeth among women is due in large measure to faulty diet, or, specifically, to a lack of lime and phosphorus. Milk, or evaporated milk, which is simply cow's milk with 60 per cent of the water taken away, is especially rich in lime.

Because of the concentration of evaporated milk, which is regulated by government standards, it is of double the richness of ordinary market milk, as is shown in the following table:

Ordinary Milk.
Fat	3.5 to 4 per cent
Sugar (lactose)	4.5 to 4.75 per cent
Proteins	3.5 to 4 per cent
Minerals7 to .75 per cent

Evaporated Milk.
Fat	7.3 to 8.2 per cent
Sugar (lactose)	9.5 to 10 per cent
Proteins	7.5 to 8.2 per cent
Minerals	1.4 to 1.6 per cent

A quart of milk a day for adults is recommended by doctors not only because of its high mineral content, but for the reasons that it helps keep the digestive tract in proper condition, strengthens the body to resist disease, and gives proper balance to the diet.

Salads also play an important part in the dietary. Some sort of a salad, lettuce, tomato, fresh fruit, cabbage or vegetable, should be eaten at least once a day. Neither is the daily menu complete without a generous quantity of coarse, leafy vegetables, valuable for their high vitamin content. Fruit juices also have very beneficial properties.

If a woman follows out the rules of diet, birthdays to her will be nothing more than an excuse for a celebration.

Purity of Milk Protected Now By Scientists

By KATHRYN ST. JOHN

Careful housewives constantly make it a point to ascertain the quality of each item that goes on their tables. Preparing food for the family is an extremely important job, for the proper selection and preparation of foods make in a large measure for the health and happiness of the family.

Milk is the most nearly perfect food, but it is a very delicate one as well. The keeping qualities of milk are slight. Danger from contamination is ever present. Evaporated milk, which is double rich because of the removal of 60 per cent of the water, is science's solution to these conditions.

Safeguarding evaporated milk is worked out as perfectly as man's ingenuity has been able to make the process. From cow to can, the milk which goes into the evaporated product is watched every step of the way.

Cows of the dairy herds are guarded with constant care and are subjected to regular inspections by veterinary surgeons. Herds are carefully groomed, and their yards and barns are kept scrupulously clean, as are all utensils. Milk condenseries are located in the heart of the big dairy regions to facilitate speedy handling, for this is essential if the milk is to be canned at "its moment of maturity." Canvas-covered trucks haul the milk to market, thus protecting the product from contamination on the way. Arriving at the condensery, the milk goes through tests for acidity, sediment, flavor and butterfat content before it is accepted.

Experts watch the progress of the milk through every step of its way. It goes into the evaporating machine; to the homogenizer, which breaks up the fat globules so that the milk may be easily digested by the consumer; by way of the almost human filling machine into sterilized cans; then into the sterilizer, where the cans are surrounded by steam and boiling water, destroying any possible bacteria. Inspectors handle the product as the last step to see that the canning job has been perfectly done. Labeling and packing follow. The housewife obtains the milk as fresh and sweet as when it came from the cow.

Costly Suit of Clothes

A native found the first piece of gold in Australia.

Seeing his master counting gold coins, he said he found a rock which looked like the yellowish coins. He offered to give it to him for a new suit of clothes.

The master later sold the nugget for more than $20,000.

Too Absent-Minded

"That habit nearly cost him his life when he was on his holiday," remarked one.

"How was that?"

NO-NOX

MOTOR FUEL

STOPS KNOCKS

Turns Mountains into Mole hills

FOR years the carbon knocks, clicks, pings or detonation in automobile engines have been a menace to motor efficiency and a sore spot to the motorist. GULF No-Nox Motor Fuel has turned the old time carbon bugaboo into an asset, in fact it has put carbon to work.

No-Nox and Carbon are Power Twins

Compression is power—Carbon adds compression—No-Nox withstands compression and the combination gives wonderful motor efficiency.

GULF No-Nox Motor Fuel not only withstands the high compression of the modern automobile engine—but also the added higher compression caused by carbon deposits on the walls and piston head which increases with the age of the car;—clicks and knocks are eliminated—greater efficiency is accomplished—followed by more power and greater mileage.

This Guarantee goes with it

GULF No-Nox Motor Fuel is Non-Noxious, Non-Poisonous and no more harmful to man or motor than ordinary gasoline—that it contains no dope of any kind—that the color is for identification only—and will not heat in summer driving.

GULF No-Nox Motor Fuel is priced three cents per gallon higher than ordinary gasoline—and is worth it.

JACOB AND ESAU

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 33:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye kind one to another, tender hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.—Ephes. 4:32.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Two Brothers Make Up a Quarrel.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Esau Forgives Jacob.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Brotherly Love and Forgiveness.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—A Lesson in Reconciliation.

I. Their Birth (25:21-26).

In answer to Isaac's prayer, seed was given unto him. Before the children were born God revealed unto Rebekah the fact that the elder should serve the younger. God reversed the ordinary law concerning the position of the elder son.

II. Esau Sells His Birthright (25:27-33).

1. It was right that Jacob should have the birthright and the blessing, for it was according to God's plan which had been preannounced, but his scheme to get them is to be condemned. He took advantage of a brother's weakness to drive a sharp bargain.

2. Esau the profane (Heb. 12:16, 17).

Many think that profanity is only swearing, but swearing is not the most common profanity. To be under the sway of appetite is to be a profane person. Esau was a supreme example. He sold his birthright for a bowl of pottage. This birthright was the right of being at the head of the patriarchal family, a position of honor and influence, as well as being the inheritor of a double portion of the father's estate. This being a gift of God, it should not be despised. In the moment of his distress he thought only of that which would bring him some carnal satisfaction. He was willing to relinquish all claims on the future if only his present desire could be gratified. A profane person, therefore, is one who for the enjoyment of the present will forfeit all claims upon the future.

III. Jacob Secures the Blessing (Gen. 27).

1. Esau requested to get venison for his father (vv. 1-4).

Isaac loved Esau because of his venison (Gen. 25:28). He ought to have loved him because he was his son. It is a sad commentary upon a father that his love for his son had such a sordid basis as that of his stomach.

2. Rebekah's scheme (vv. 5-33). God had said to her that the elder should serve the younger. It was his plan that Jacob should be at the head, but God was able to bring his own plans to pass.

3. Esau's remorseful cry (vv. 34-36). When he came to realize that he had not only lost his birthright but the blessing, his conscience smote him and he earnestly begged for a blessing, even seeking it with bitter tears.

IV. Jacob Meets Esau (Gen. 33:1-11).

1. As a result of Jacob's cunning and deceit he was obliged to flee from home to save his life. In spite of his selfishness and sin God appeared to him at Bethel.

2. Prayer for deliverance from Esau's wrath (32:9-12).

He was about to meet his brother, whom he had wronged some twenty years before.

(1) He made his plea on the basis of God's covenant. Jacob came in line with the Abrahamic covenant, so he had a right to plead that relationship.

(2) He pleaded that he was in God's way. We should assure ourselves that we are going according to God's will, then make our pleas before Him on that ground.

(3) He made a definite plea. He told God plainly of his danger. He said, "Deliver me from the hand of my brother."

3. The angel wrestles with Jacob (32:22-36).

Observe that it was not Jacob wrestling with the angel, but the angel wrestling with Jacob. Jacob did not get the blessing because he wrestled, but he was not blessed until he had been crippled and in his helplessness clung to God.

4. Jacob gets a new name (32:27-30).

This experience at the ford of Jabbok wrought a mighty change in Jacob. "Jacob" with his cunning and deceit was left behind and "Israel," "a prince with God," entered the land.

V. Esau and Jacob Reconciled (33:1-11).

At Jabbok Jacob got right with God, so now he easily got right with Esau. It is easy to get right with our brother after getting right with God.

In a Trackless Wilderness

He who sees no star can never be stable. He wanders vainly in a trackless wilderness.—G. H. Morrison.

III Thoughts Leave a Trail

An arrow may fly through the air and leave no trace; but an ill thought leaves a trail like a serpent.

How May We Create a Spirit of Happiness?

Acts 8:4-8; Matthew 5:1-12

The two Scriptures assigned to this topic teach that happiness may be created and spread by the two forces of evangelism and Christian character. Acts 8:4-8 suggesting the former, and Matthew 5:1-12 the latter.

The result of the persecution that arose against the early church is described in verse 4. Christian believers were scattered abroad and went everywhere preaching the Word. To do this as no small undertaking. Joy and peace in believing on the Lord Jesus Christ must have dominated their lives. People talk about that which concerns them most. They talked of Christ and His salvation. Persecution and the unfavorable circumstances issuing from it were not uppermost in their minds. They preached the Word, that is, they bore witness to their Lord. The joy of their salvation was such that happiness was created and spread wherever they went. They were not molded by their environment, but rather they made a new environment in the power of a living enthusiastic faith. It is this that gives victory over adverse conditions and creates and spreads happiness everywhere.

The second Scripture brings to us our Lord's standard of happiness in the familiar words of the beatitudes. The striking thing about this standard is its conflict with other recipes for happiness. Not in doing, but in being; not in getting, but in giving; not in the assertion of self for gratification, but in yieldedness to God, is happiness to be created and spread. It is quality that counts, and the quality here is that of Christ-likeness made up of the great moral qualities mentioned in these verses.

The principles and ideals presented in these beatitudes show the pattern of life which Christ intended to produce in those who should be the recipients of His redemptive work. Such a life is not the result of a mere human resolve, but is the product of the Spirit of God. The third chapter of John precedes the fifth chapter of Matthew both logically and chronologically. Only to those born again, born from above, is the life described in Matthew 5 made possible and actual.

Wife and Husband Both Ill With Gas

"For years I had gas on the stomach. The first dose of Adlerika helped. I now sleep well and all gas is gone. It also helped my husband," (signed) Mrs. B. Brinkley. ONE spoonful Adlerika removes GAS and often brings astonishing relief to the stomach. Stops that full, bloated feeling. Brings out old, waste matter you never thought was in your system. This excellent intestinal evacuant is wonderful for constipation. R. S. McKinney, Druggist.

Aviation and Diplomacy

Aviation's value as an aid to diplomacy in settling disputes between nations was demonstrated in the boundary quarrel between Colombia and Venezuela. There were in dispute approximately 2,500,000 acres of marsh land and tropical forests. It was estimated that it would take investigators at least two years to cover the district on foot, and would necessitate a strong military force to protect them against the savage tribes that lived there. A commercial aviation company in Colombia offering to make an aerial map of the frontier, a contract was made. It required only sixteen days to cover the disputed territory by hydroplane and to make thousands of photographs of the terrain. It was upon these photographs and topographical maps that the boundary commission eventually reached its agreement.

Latest Diving Suit

The German diving suit used in locating the British submarine M-1 is a rigid suit made of aluminum alloy; the arms and legs are jointed, the joints being made on the ball-and-socket principle. The entire outfit weighs about half a ton and is able to withstand a pressure up to 25 atmospheres, equal to a depth of 750 feet, under test. It is connected with the surface by a light cable containing three independent telephone lines. Inside the suit there is a normal pressure of one atmosphere all the time, therefore it is not necessary to raise the diver by slow stages. The diver also wears over his mouth a mask containing a cartridge which absorbs the carbonic acid, and so enables him to breathe the same air over and over again.

Boston Needed It

A young woman from Indiana who was visiting her married sister in Boston was the guest of honor at a dinner party. During the first and second courses of the dinner she was the center of the conversation with her glowing descriptions of the beauties of her own state. When, for the third course of the dinner, the servant entered carrying a huge fish on a large platter, a Boston lawyer turned to her and said:

"Now you must admit that Indiana is a back number. Who ever saw an Indiana fish of that size?"

"Oh, that's all right," she replied, "the Lord in His infinite wisdom put the brain food where it was most needed."

First Use of Rubber

Rubber first came under the notice of Europeans. Its earliest mention occurring in the records of a companion of Columbus, who noted that the natives of Haiti played games with balls "made of the gum of a tree." The Spaniards in Mexico discovered—either on their own account or from the natives—the use of rubber for waterproofing their cloaks, but some centuries elapsed before its utility was recognized in Europe. It made its first appearance in Britain as a curiosity for erasing pencil marks.

Anonymous Letters.

It may be possible to write some one anonymously, in a very friendly spirit, in order to save the recipient from some danger—for there are said to be exceptions to most rules—but we very much doubt the real existence of such occasions. At any rate, anonymous letters are almost wholly intended to hurt, rather than help, and as such, are mean and cowardly beyond description.

Such letters are stabs in the back. They represent assassination—the principle of it. It is a means of carrying injury that the writer does not dare to carry personally to the intended victim. And besides, the information carried is usually untruthful, when all the facts are known.

Such letters hurt, as a rule. Even when the writers can be correctly guessed at—which is often the case—the hurt is there because everybody dislikes to have enemies, even when they are only the curs on the streets. The little splinters that merely pierce the skin, are annoying.

The disguised hand-writing and the secret mailing of such letters, shows their character. They represent the giving of a dose of poison to a human being—the doing of a disreputable act that would meet with condemnation from decent people, and perhaps get the doer into direct trouble with the law.

The anonymous letter writer is a coward, to make the best of him (or her) and every community has its small percentage of such degenerates—a very "small" percentage, in two ways, fortunately. Don't be misled into engaging in the practice. The best folks don't do it.

When a Chinese host feels that a guest has staid long enough, he serves tea, a signal for departure.

The strike in England is said to have had the effect of cleaning up the newspapers. Space is found only for real news, and scandals and unsavory matters are largely left out. It would be a fine thing to have a big strike in this country if it would result in "cleaning up" a lot of newspapers.
