THE FREDERICK - YORK

Another Link Completed and Opened to the Public.

The Frederick correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, on Wednesday, gave the following write-up concerning the Frederick to York improved highway, that is being gradually completed.

"Work on the last two-mile link in the Woodsboro Pike between Walkers-ville and Woodsboro has been com-pleted, and the highway has been thrown open to traffic.

This gives that section of the county a modern highway from Frederick through Ceresville, Walkersville, Woodsboro, New Midway and Ladiesburg to the Frederick-Carroll county line at Keymar.

This is part of the proposed high-way from Frederick to Hanover and York, Pa. The State of Pennsylvania already has built a modern highway from York through Hanover and Littlestown to the Maryland line.

The State of Maryland constructed another link on this proposed high-way this summer. A one-mile link, of concrete road, extending from the square corner at Taneytown toward the Pennsylvania State line has been built and thrown open to traffic. The road will more than likely be built the remainder of the distance some time next summer.

Carroll county is to improve the six-mile gap between Keymar and Taney-The county authorities have just completed the work of scarifying the entire stretch. It is not known when they will begin laying a surface of meadow."

Court and Sesqui in Conflict.

The Dauphin County Court, Harrisburg, has issued an order against the Sesqui-Centennial Association, holding that it is also the least the exing that it is illegal to keep the exposition open on Sunday if admission is charged. Mayor Kendrick has ordered that Exposition will remain open, pending an appeal.

The court held the exposition is "worldly employment" that it is not work of necessity or charity and that the appropriate the expositions withthe amusements and recreations within the grounds are clearly in violation of the Sunday laws of 1794.

The action was brought by the State of Pennsylvania, the Attorney-General contending that the centennial association by correcting commercial association by operating commercial features on Sunday exceeded its charter rights.

The State also pointed out that the Legislature appropriated $750,000 for the State's participation in the Ses-

Simultaneously Mayor Kendrick issued a statement in which he said: "In view of the above memorandum received from Mr. Gaffney, the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition will remain open Sunday."

A TRIP TO OHIO.

Labor Day Vacation from Detroit to Bowling Green.

Having noted from time to time, accounts in the Record, of pleasure and other trips which have been taken by former residents of Taneytown and vicinity, I would like, with the Editor's kind permission to tell the readers of the Record about the three-day trip taken by myself and family,down to the city of Bowling Green, in the state of Ohio, over the Labor Day

It is customary for the factories in Detroit, in years in which they are not very busy, to close down on Friday evening before Labor Day, so that the employees may have three whole days for pleasure trips, or as a vacation, and this year was no exception to this custom.

we left Detroit on Saturday morning, and went by way of Toledo. After passing through this city, we drove along the banks of the Maumee River, to the town of Maumee, where we consider the River, and storned at the crossed the River, and stopped at the little Park, which is located on the site of what was known as Fort Meigs, in the War of 1812.

This old battlefield is national prop erty, and there you can see the old breastworks, now covered with a thick growth of lawn grass, and the monugrowth of lawn grass, and the monu-ments erected by the states of Ohio and Pennsylvania, to the memory of their soldiers who were killed there during the siege of the Fort by the combined British and Indian forces. The defeat of the besiegers by the troops under the leadership of Gener-el William Henry Harrison is said to al William Henry Harrison, is said to have saved the great Northwestern territory as it was then known, from falling into the hands of the British

This place, on account of the siege of which is mentioned in every school history of the United States, was very interesting to me, and we all added the memory of our visit here to those of many other historic places we have visited since we moved to Detroit, which we never expected to see while living back in Maryland, but which are close at hand now, in these days of the automobile. After spending some time at Fort Meigs, we went on to Bowling Green, which was reached about 2:30 P. M. The roads in Michigan and Ohio are exceptionally good, and travelling was certainly a pleasure, as there was was certainly a pleasure, as there was always something new to catch the eye, and also to the fact that road traffic was very light over the roads we covered.

And the towns, especially Bowling Green, were made beautiful by more than the usual number of shade trees, and flower beds could be seen everywhere. I do not know as I have ever been in a town, (Taneytown excepted, of course) that looked so desirable from every viewpoint, as a from all over the State. The principal industry is the Heintz Pickle factory, of the "57 varieties" fame. The buildings cover quite a large acreage, and the factory buys large quantities of tomatoes from the surrounding farmers, and converts

community was derived from it. Even now, the owner of a farm may have six or more wells, producing from 5 to 10 barrels of oil a day, which at the rate of 50c a barrel, with no expense, as the wells are leased, makes him a nice income, especially as he can work or rent the rest of the farm, as these wells take up very little room, but do kill all vegetation for a short distance all around them.

Some of the finest corn, oats and sugar beets are raised on the farms uncle tells me that when he settled there, coming from the vicinity of Littlestown, Pa., in 1865, this great stretch of land, now selling for as high as $300.00 an acre, was a huge swamp, and that you could push long rake handle clear down its whole length before getting to the bottom of the mass of rotted leaves and vegetation. Even now very little fertilizer is used, and I wish my farmer readers could see the crops of corn, oats, tomatoes and sugar beets they raise without it. I must say a word about the roads in Ohio. You know that all government land was laid out in square sec-

RITCHIE, MULLIKIN AND WELLER WIN NOMINATION.

Governor Ritchie (Dem.) easily won the nomination over William Milnes Maloy, who made an aggressive one-man fight for the nomination, without any organization or press support back of him.

Mullikin (Rep). the organization candidate for Governor, defeated Humphreys, the candidate of the Anti-Weller faction by a comfortable margin.

Weller (Rep.) for Senator defeated John Philip Hill, who carried Baltimore City, but by only 4,089 votes. Hill was the candidate of the extreme "wets" and his defeat puts a crimp in the boastfulness of the "wet" crowd in the Republican party. Weller carried 17 of the 23 counties.

The WellerHill fight was a battle royal, politically. Hill was supported by the ultra wets, as well as by W. Bladen Lowndes, Ex-Senator, Dr. France, National Committeeman Wm. P. Jackson, and "Tom" Parran, Reno S. Harp, and other leading men; while Weller was backed by Galen L. Tait and the present state party organization. It is quite probable that the real Weller strength came from the "dry" vote of the counties, to which Mr. Hill was particularly objectionable.

There is a rumor that John Philip Hill, who declined re-nomination for

There is a rumor that John Philip Hill, who declined re-nomination for House of Representatives from the Third district to enter the Senatorial contest, may yet receive the discarded honor, and that the nominee, Dr. John J. McGinity, may resign to make room for him. Such action seems quite improbable over if partials to this custom.

So, as has been our custom for several years, we planned to visit my only living uncle, (who came to Ohio in 1865, and has resided on what is known as the Jackson Prairie ever since), and also to visit the families since), and also to visit the families of his children.

FARM TAX FIGURES.

History of Prices and Taxes for Seventy Years.

College Park, Sept. 10—Farm taxes doubled more than four times in seventy years on a forty-four acre farm in the northwestern part of Harford County, Maryland, according to records recently unearthed by Roger F. Hale, who is making a historical study of Maryland farm prices for the University of Maryland Experiment Station and the United States Department of Agriculture.

In 1852, taxes on this particular farm amounted to $4.71. By 1859 they had increased slightly over 100 percent or to $9.48. Shortly after the Civil War the amount paid on the same acreage had again doubled, the actual levy being $19.11. During the next twenty-seven years, however, the total amount paid for the support of state and local government remained practically constant, only slight annual variations occurring from year to year. The third doubling in the tax bill occurred in the sixteen year period from 1895 to 1911, the actual amounts paid in these two years being $18.79 and $38.32 respectively.

In the eyes of this farm owner, tax rates jumped overnight before, during, and after the World War period of inflation. According to Mr. Hale, the tax bill of $38.32 in 1911 increased on tax bill of $38.32 in 1911 increased on this same farm to $70.77 in 1919. However, it was not until 1920, when prices of farm products dropped to a new low level, that the peak was reached and Mr. X paid a bill for taxes of $99.75 on the forty-four acre farm that took $4.71 out of his gross income for that purpose in 1852.

income for that purpose in 1852.

Nevertheless, Mr. Hale says, the full significance of this stupendous increase cannot be fully realized until a comparison is made with the prices received for farm products from time to time. For example, Mr. X hauled his crop of wheat to Baltimore when the Civil War was raging in 1865 and sold it for $2.30 per bushel. At that time, 5.3 bushels of wheat were required to pay his tax bill of $12.11. In 1919, he sold his wheat in Bel Air for $2.26 per bushel but, unfortunately, it took 30.0 bushels of wheat to pay his tax bill of $70.77 on the same farm for that year. Taxes have slightly decreased since 1920.

It is undoubtedly true, however, that each and every citizen is now receiving as much or more for the money he spends in taxes than he did in previous years. Seventy-five years ago governments could exist on a mere pittance. Macadam and con-crete roads were unknown. Educa-tional facilities for farm children were practically nil.

At the present time money, collected by taxation, provides many benefits that, heretofore, were not enjoyed by the rural population. Good roads have brought markets closer to the scene of agricultural production, and the agricultural citizenry in closer contact with its neighbors and the a high school education in their local county.

Many other interesting sidelights have been unearthed in the search for prices farmers received for their products before 1910. Still more information is needed, however. Anyone having farm records account books, diaries or mill records containing prices received for farm products will add a great contribution to the agricultural history of Maryland by notifying Mr. Roger F. Hale, College Park Maryland, and making such manuscripts available for his use.

Good School Lunches.

Here are some things you may not have tried in the school lunches; sliced meat loaf; rolls hollowed out and filled with chopped meat or fish, moistened with salad dressing and seasoned; salad; cheese straws; stuffed eggs; tomatoes and whole fresh fruits; cut-up fruit; brown-sugar or maple sugar sandwiches, made with crackers or hot biscuit so as to melt the sugar; sausage turnovers; stuffed prunes or dates or figs; cup custard; a small box of raisins; a cake of cho-colate; little tarts, cookies or frosted cakes; sandwiches of two kinds of bread; a bottle of orange or grape juice; lemon juice sweetened ready to make into lemonade at school.

See that sandwiches, cookies, slices of cale, fruit—in fact, everything that goes into the lunch box—are wrapped separately in waxed paper. This not only prevents crushing, but keeps them moister or crisper, as they happen to require. Provide paper napkins, to keep hands and clothing clean, and to spread on the desk un-

FREE TREE PLANTING OFFER MADE.

Roadside Planting by the State Forestry Dept.

The State Department of Forestry offers to furnish either this Fall or next Spring, a sufficient number of trees for planting 5 miles of improved, public highway. Seven species of trees are available, black walnut, American elm, white ash, black locust, honey locust, tulip poplar and cypress. This list offers a sufficient variety to meet a wide range of conditions. The trees will be distributed to responsible organizations, or individuals, for planting not less than one-quarter mile, nor over one mile, on both sides of the highway. There must be suffi-cient space to place the trees within the right-of-way of the highway, and far enough from the center of the roadway to meet road requirements.

Applications will be filed in the order received, but preference will be given to the locations that are best adopted for tree planting and where the greatest public benefit will be se-cured. The Forestry Department will examine locations where plantings are proposed, to determine their adaptibility for tree planting, and to what extent each meets requirements. In cases where planting is practicable a definite plan will then be prepared and submitted to the parties interest-

Sleeplessness and Indigestion.

A prominent physician who has made a close study of the question, says;

"It is a common thing to regard sleeplessness as a symptom of worry. Of course, it is in many cases. It takes a lot of willpower to keep from worrying at night. Things look so black between midnight and three o'clock in the morning that to begin to worry at that time of night means that you will get no sleep until you are ready to get up. Then you find yourself fagged and sleepy.

Nine times out of ten sleeplessness is due to some form of indigestion. It is a common symptom of chronic constipation. The uncomfortable symptoms of indigestion and the stimconstipation. ulating qualities of the poison absorbed in constipation are likely to drive sleep from the pillow.

Whenever one of my friends talks to me about sleeplessness I immediately inquire regarding his digestive apparatus. Almost always I find that he is eating the wrong things or is a victim of constipation. A good many times the constipation exists when its victim believes he has no troubles of

The line up of candidates is now complete for the big battle of the ballots in November. In the meantime voters should go to school, as it were, in order to educate themselves for the job of marking their ballots.

We wonder why "Miss Baltimore" did not win the beauty prize at Atlantic City? Perhaps is was because the event came just at a time when the Sun, the American and News, were too busy with the more important job of making the United States

The Primary Humbug Takes First Prize.

The "people" in Carroll county have apparently nominated part of a county ticket; another part has been nominated largely by the influence of party leaders, and the two parts are the products of the same law. Which part is the best, it would perhaps be impertinent for us to attempt to decide; but if the people's part is the best, we would like to be shown why?

After the eliminations, voluntary and by advice, had been made, there were 18 Democrats and 19 Republicans still left to be voted on at the primaries, for county offices and House of Delegates. In Baltimore county there were 49 Democratic and 51 Republican candidates. In Cecil county, there were 63 Democrats and 32 Republicans seeking county offices; in Howard county there were 51 Democrats contesting for 26 offices; in Frederick county there were 62 Republicans and 28 Democrats; and in other counties there were many more than in Carroll-we had an easy job of it here.

The point is this. Even in Carroll, how many voters knew all of the 18 Democrats, or all of the 19 Republicans, sufficiently well to say which were the best qualified to fill the positions which they were presumably ambitious to fill? And even supposing that every candidate was fit, how do we know that even better men could not have been found by a properly elected deliberative convention of picked party men? The primary plan simply throws down the bars to all, and we can not lose sight of the fact that in the "all" there are apt to be those who are better located elsewhere than in the public service. And, the primary does not necessarily represent the opinions of the majority of votersin most cases, in fact, the winners do not receive a majority vote.

We write this in general, as giving a few of our objections to the primary law, and before the result of this election is known; therefore we have no present examples in mind. No doubt the figures by districts will show a great deal; they may show how, after all, the so-called "bosses" passed out the orders as to who should be voted for as standing in with the "organization"; they may show how the most ambitious ones, won out by drumming up votes; and they would be sure to show, if the truth could be him often become exceedingly impaknown, that hundreds of voters merely made a stab at choosing intelli-and who flaunt their extremism in Frederick News. such a manner as to appeal only to their own kind.

They simply have never learned how to be gentlemanly in speech; they dissespect all opposing views, and are in fact bullies, or actual blather skites. When we can edge away from these people and not be offended by their rank arguments, we are in luck; but when we get their product dished out to us daily in newspapers that we are almost compelled to read, we are distinctly out of luck.

There are newspapers coming into our office, the editorial pages of which are of the class named. No one who wants honest, unbaised opinions on certain topics, can get them from these papers, for they are regularly intemperate, extreme and unfair, in presenting their views.

On the other hand, we read other newspapers on the same topics, which while holding in the main to the same conclusions of the previously named class, do so in such a manner as to cause thought and respect. There is just the difference that exists between a gentleman and a "tough."

Cost of Living Going Down.

The cost of living in the United States has been declining since November, 1925. From June to July it decreased eight-tenths of one percent according to the monthly study of living costs made by the National Industrial Conference Board.

The decline in the average cost of living since November, 1925 has been 3.4 percent. the Conference Board's index for July being 166 as against 171.8 in Nevember, 1925. This decline s due principally to reductions in the retail prices of food.

Wholesale prices have been decreasing ever since August, 1925. The average wholesale price index for July of this year is 6 percent lower than for August, 1925. As the movement of wholesale prices precedes and generally indicates the later movement of retail prices, some further reduction would appear to be in sight. At any event, there is nothing to indicate an increase in the cost of living in the immediate future.

Roughneck Drivers.

Complaint is made of the number of automobile and truck drivers who act in an arrogant way toward the rest of the traffic.

One of their worst tricks is cutting around a corner at a high speed. A pedestrian desiring to cross at such a corner usually looks only to the left and the right, but does not pay much attention to the traffic that may be stealing up behind him with the intention of turning the corner. If such cars come around that corner at a high rate of speed, he may be caught before he knows it. If a person drivers slowly and cautiously, people coming along behind tient and yell at to him as they pass to get out of the way, which may not do special harm, but is very disagree-We venture this assertion to be able, and might tend to rattle nervous

Of course there is such a thing as driving too slowly on a crowded road, where most of the cars desire to move rapidly, and such drivers, do well to go elsewhere on less crowded roads,

Politics in America Got Napoleon's "Goat"

Napoleon had an unusually deep interest in world politics, extending even to the internal politics of a remote section of the United States, it was revealed when Col. Duncan K. MacRae of North Carolina went to Paris as consul general more than a century ago. Napoleon was puzzled as to why the people in one part of a country embraced one party, while their neighbors held opposing views. In some manner he had learned that Edgecombe county, in North Carolina, was Democratic, while Pitt county embraced the Whig faith. Informed that Colonel MacRae was from that state, he said to his courtiers: "Now, I will find out the riddle of North Carolina politics." So he gave Colonel MacRae an extraordinary welcome and said to him:

"I understand that the same river flows through the counties of Edgecombe and Pitt in North Carolina, that the people of both counties till the soil and own slaves. I am told that practically all the people in Edgecombe county belong to the Democratic party, while most of the people of Pitt are Whigs. Why is it?"

Any other person than Colonel Mac-Rae would have been flabbergasted, remarks the Raleigh News and Observer, but not so the eloquent colonel, known as North Carolina's first orator. Nobody knows the answer he made, but he was quick to give a reason that satisfied the monarch.

Asbestos Long Known but Little Employed

People of modern time are engaged in a ceaseless search for ways to improve living conditions. Safety, comfort and reduction of expense rank among the principal things to be considered. Asbestos, a material known for centuries but put to use only a comparatively short time ago, has done as much or more toward the realization of these three fundamentals than any other one thing in its class. Traces of its use have been found in ancient China, in Persia, by the early Greeks and Romans, and later, in about the sixteenth century, in the island of Guam, now a possession of the United States. The sudden emergence of asbestos, from the long period in which it was almost entirely the subject of myths and legends, or treated merely as a costly curio, into one of the world's most important minerals and industry's most important aids, is remarkable. Even electricity did not have quite so sudden a transformation.

British Army Club

The Union Jack club is a national institution of Great Britain where soldiers, sailors and airmen can go when on leave or passing through London, a place where they may deposit their kits and valuables, where they may obtain at moderate charges good meals and comfortable bedrooms to themselves and where they find the usual amenities of a club, including library and writing room, billiard room, baths, barber shop and also a club shop in which articles of everyday use and almost everything that service men require may be purchased. The Union Jack club was erected by public subscription as a national memorial to those who had fallen in the South African war and other campaigns, and was opened on July 1, 1907, by his late majesty, King Edward VII.

Trust to Pictures

In these days of hustle and bustle. hyper-activity and constant "go," there is one thing that every one can do to neutralize to some extent the restlessness that has invaded our life. That one thing is to surround oneself with beautiful and restful pictures. Pictures take the mind off the worrisome, petty details that are so irritating to the nervous system. A good-natured jolly Cavalier to look down on us understandingly from the wall, or a lovely Madonna to fill us with peace and contentment are like real companions and friends, and have an advantage that even the best friends do not have; they make no demands and expect no favors; they are always equally dependable and ever ready to serve.

Genius and Freedom

Genius can only breathe freely in an atmosphere of freedom. Persons of genius are more individual than other people, less capable, consequently, of fitting themselves, without hurtful compression, into any of the small number of molds society provides in order to save its members the trouble of forming their own character. If, from timidity, they consent to be forced into one of these molds, society will be little the better for their genius. If they are of strong character and break their fetters, they become a mark for the society which has not succeeded in reducing them to commonplace, to be pointed out as erratic, much as if one should complain of the Niagara for not flowing smoothly like a Dutch canal.-John Stuart Mill.

Old Turkish Capital Presents Two Views

Approaching Constantinople one may get the impression that it either is the world's most beautiful city or that it is the most squalid city on earth, depending upon whether it is approached from the sea or the land. From the land the city's 680 mosques and minarets, its 500 palaces and gardens, rising in the form of an amphitheater above the Golden Horn, give it the appearance of the type of oriental city described in the Arabian Nights, says E. Alexander Powell in the American Magazine.

Alexander von Humboldt, noted traveler and student of nature, de clared Constantinople was one of the three most beautiful cities in the world, Naples and Salzburg being the other two. Lord Byron also extolled Constantinople's position as being incomparable to any he had ever seen.

The historical interest that abounds in Constantinople even surpasses, for many, that of its beauty. The city's history extends back nearly 3,000 years. Since the corn-laden galleys from the Black sea glided through the Hellespont in the days of Darius and Alexander, and the Phoenicians moved in from the Marmora sea, down to the present time, when gigantic battleships swing at their moorings off Seraglio point, Constantinople has been an object of désire for ambitious military leaders and land-seeking nations.

Unwise to Disregard Danger in Lightning

There are cases of persons having garments torn by lightning while they themselves have suffered no serious harm. The body is largely composed of water, and if the clothing is dry the bolt will pass through the body. If the clothing is saturated the bolt may follow the clothing instead of the body. It is advised by some that anyone caught in a thunderstorm in the wilds should immerse himself in order to saturate his garments, or, if this be impossible, to expose himself fully to the rain in order to be drenched at - THE STATE OF THE There are few manifestations of nature's power more awe inspiring and at the same time more fascinating than a violent thunderstorm. Comparatively few adults acknowledge a feeling of terror in the presence of this majestic display. There is, however, a distinct difference between fear and caution. The danger from lightning is never great, but it exists and it should be reduced as nearly as possible to the vanishing point.

First Animal Protection

The first step in the enactment of humane legislation was taken in 1822, when a bill providing punishment for the ill treatment of cattle was introduced into the British parliament by Richard Martin, an Irish nobleman, later nicknamed by King George IV "Humanity Martin." To Richard Martin belongs the credit for the first conviction under the law for the protection of animals. The misused animal was dragged into court to show evidence of its master's cruelty, and the driver was found guilty. Two years later, Martin formed a society for the enforcement of his anti-cruelty act. The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was thereupon organized. From this society originated the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, founded in New York in 1866 by Henry

Trees Live Long

Thomas Parr, who lived to be one hundred and fifty-two years old, is credited with a record, but this longevity, as well as that of all other members of the animal kingdom, is easily surpassed by those of the vegetable kingdom. The life of the great forest trees varies from 100 to as much as 5,000 years, says London Tit-Bits. Cypress trees are said to live for 350 years, ivy 450, chestnut 600, cedar 800, oak 1,000 to 1,500 years, yew 2,500 and the baobab tree 5,000 years.

CARE REQUIRED IN PICKING BREEDERS

With the hatching season soon to get into full swing, poultrymen are observing their breeders and their surroundings. For weight, the breeders should meet the standard requirements for that breed. Leghorn hens, says W. H. Allen, poultry specialist at the New Jersey College of Agriculture, New Brunswick, should weigh four pounds, and the American breeds at least one pound heavier.

Handle every bird and see that it is free from foreign color and disqualifications such as side sprigs on the comb, feathers on the shanks, crooked toes and poor tail carriage. Then treat the bird for lice.

Good size, health, and vigor, as well as weight, must be observed in the individuals that go to make up the breeding pen. Depth from the center of the back to the front of the keel bone, a long keel bone, and a distance of three inches between the keel bone and the pelvic bones, together with a long, wide, flat back are the essential qualifications for which to look. These factors apply to the males of the breeding pen as well as to the females. A male bird with a pedigmonth gree is worth twice as much as one having the same qualifications but no pedigree. The lighter breeds require only one male to a pen of 15 breeders, and the heavier breeds require one with every ten.

Breeders need more exercise than do the layers. Allow at least 4 square feet of floor space for every bird. See that the litter is deep and that the flock is kept hungry enough to work for the scratch grain. Range should be provided when it is possible. Feed plenty of green feed, such as sprouted oats and cabbages. Fresh air is another essential. Don't close the curtains unless it is freezing weather, stormy, or the wind is blowing from the front of the pen.

Less than 50 per cent production gives best results. Collect the eggs often and do not hold longer than a week in a dry room before setting

Treating the Fowls for

Diseases During Winter If the flock develops colds, or kindred diseases first give a dose of epsom salts, about one pound to each 100 birds. The salts can be dissolved in water and the water used in the mash. Use about a pound to three gallons of water.

Then treat the individual birds by painting their eyes and nostrils with iodine or a 20 per cent solution of argyro. If there is canker in the mouth, remove it and paint the spots with iodine, or if there are pox scabs on the comb, remove them and treat the same way.

Very little is known about the control of chickenpox, roup, and canker, but the main is in preventive measof these diseases is to keep visitors out of the poultry house.

Remove sick birds from the flock when they show the first symptoms of sickness. One sick bird may contaminate the whole flock.

Cull Flock Rigidly at

Beginning of the Year One of the largest costs of running a poultry farm is the death rate among the laying hens. One authority figures this loss at 1 per cent a month or 12 per cent a year, calculated on the number of hens on hand from a given point to the correspond ing period the following year. This loss will not take care of an epidemic if it hits the flock.

It can be readily seen that the wise thing to do is to cull out very rigidly at the beginning of the laying year, and carry only the most healthy and vigorous hens through the winter.

Feed Hens Liberally

In a laying pullet feed will pass through the crop, stomach, gizzard, and five feet of intestines in less than four hours. This fact shows the necessity of feeding liberally late in the evening and early in the morning throughout the winter to shorten the night as much as possible and increase production.

Poultry Facts

Gather eggs at least twice a day.

Have sufficient nests clean and disinfected.

Hens ought to have a dust box to help them keep free from vermin.

Birds that show signs of weakness should be removed. Pale and shrunken combs are good indicators of weak-

The birds need a constant supply of oyster shell, grit, minerals and charcoal, readily accessible or mixed in the dry mash.

Egg production depends upon two factors: (1) The inborn capacity of the hen for egg production, and (2) the conditions to which the hen is subjected.

Forest Profits in Short Period

Not Necessary to Wait Lifetime to Realize Returns From Trees.

Contrary to the current belief one does not have to wait a lifetime to realize returns from forest planta-

In fact, continues E. L. Scovell, specialist in farm forestry at Rutgers university, trees established on idle lands next spring will yield the owner a very substantial profit in six to ten Interplanting Favored.

Interplanting of pine and Norway spruce or Douglas fir is the answer. In a plantation of this sort Norway spruce is planted at intervals of six feet in rows six feet apart. Pine, preferably white or red pine, is then planted in the alternate intervals. As the pine grows much more rapidly than the spruce during the first few years, it is best to postpone the planting of the pine at least two years from the time the spruce is set. This allows the spruce trees sufficient time to become firmly established and to assure their not being crowded too quickly by the pine. When planted at this spacing, 1,200 trees of each species are required on an acre.

Under ordinary conditions the spruce will be suitable for Christmas trees when six to ten years old. Trees of this size are now bringing 50 cents to $1.50 per tree delivered at the market. If two-thirds (800) of the planted trees reach maturity—the mortality is generally much lower-the harvested crop per acre at present market prices would be worth from $400 to $1,200 delivered.

Profit From Thinning.

The pine is left to grow to timber size. When harvested at forty years of age it will yield 20,000 to 25,000 board feet of lumber per acre, worth $150 to $250 at present market prices standing in the field. In addition it will yield a small profit when the first thinning is made, usually fifteen to twenty-five years after planting, and substantial returns from thinnings at regular intervals thereafter.

The total investment, including taxes and compound interest for a tenyear period, when the Christmas trees are harvested, will not exceed $35 an acre. The additional cost of carrying the pine to maturity is practically negligible.

Winter Green Feed Very

Important for the Hens If one has cabbages or mangels stored in a cellar where they may freeze, it often pays to keep a thermometer in the cellar and give it additional protection, or use a lantern to bring up the temperature if the mercury begins to stand close to 32 degrees. Frozen green feed is not good for hens, and constant freezing and thawing is not good for the keeping qualities of the feed.

Hens do not like rye grain, but they will eat sprouted rye, and it seems to be a satisfactory green feed. Sprouted are generally used. If you make homemade grain sprouter with wooden trays, heated with a kerosene incubator lamp, be sure the fire risk is not greater than the value of the sprouted oats. In most cases, I think the metal sprouters are a good investment, because the fire risk is greatly reduced.

When mangels are sliced and thrown in the litter, they pick up more or less dirt and straw. Cutting them in halves and laying them in wooden troughs may be a better way. Then the hens can peck out the succulent feed more readily than when the pieces are half-buried in the litter.

Make Garden Plans

Plan your garden for this year. Use as a basis the amount of vegetables needed by your family for a healthful diet. Plan for the greatest quantity of the vegetables your family particularly likes. Make the location and size of plot fit the garden you want, whenever possible, rather than plan the garden to fit a space that may be too cramped or inconveniently lo-

Aggravates Insect Damage The continuous cropping of land to the same crop frequently aggravates insect damage. Where corn is grown year after year in the same fields, the yields may show considerable reduction. Much of this loss may be due to insect activities. To practice the rotation of crops as a means of lessening insect damage is a good plan.

Many chinch bugs may be harbored in those old fence rows and roadsides.

Manure that is thrown out in the weather in a barn yard pile will lose half its plant food in six months.

Crop rotation systems, manuring, fertilizing, are some of the ways that the natural fertility of the soil may be

Half the pleasure of a garden is in planning it before hand-and half the work may thus be saved. It is winter-evening fun that will pay juicy dividends all next season.

It's Just Like That.

If you work for a man, in heaven's name work for him. If he pays wages that supply you your bread and but-ter, work for him, speak well of him, think well of him, and stand by him, and stand by the institution he represents. I think if I worked for a man I would work for him. I would not work for him a part of his time, but all of his time. I would give an un-divided service or none. If put to the pinch, an ounce of loyalty is worth a pound of cleverness. If you must vilify, condemn and eternally disparage, why, resign your position. But I pray you, so long as you are part of an institution do not condemn it. Not that you will injure the institution-not that-but when you disparage the concern of which you are a part, you disparage yourself. And don't forget—"I forgot" won't do in business.—Elbert Hubbard.

WHERE RUSSIA HALTED FOR HALF A CENTURY

Oxus River Long Russian-Afghan Boundary.

Washington.—The world is taking a new interest in the Oxus river, which figured in the war news back in the days of Alexander and his conquering generals. Recent dispatches report the seizure by Soviet soldiers of an Afghan post on the river. The region is described in the following bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society:

"The Oxus river has the distinction of standing longer as a Russian boundary in southwest Asia than any other natural feature," says the bulletin "One of the outstanding bits of empire building during the Nineteenth cen tury was the glacierlike but sure ad vance of Russia toward India, an ad vance that profoundly affected British diplomacy and kept British military men constantly on a nervous tension. Khokand was gobbled up in 1863, Bokhara in 1868 and Khiva in 1873. Some people had visions of a great Russian army some day swarming through the Khyber pass on to the plains of India in an effort to make that peninsula a part of the Muscovite dominions.

Fixed by Commission.

"To combat this possibility Great Britain sought to encourage a strong Afghan state as a buffer. By 1885 she induced Russia to join her in the formation of a Russo-Afghan boundary commission which settled on the Oxus as the boundary between the two countries, for some 680 miles of its length. Since then there have been 'battles' of British and Russian commercial agents, each trying to gain the ascendency in Afghanistan; but the Oxus has remained the physical boundary between Russian and Afghan territory.

"The Oxus, or Amu Daria, as it is called locally, rises in the lofty Pamirs near the common corner of Russian, Afghan and Chinese territory. For nearly 500 miles it runs through a narrow, deep gorge. Then the mountainous banks fall back, and it becomes suddenly a river of the plains, a character which it keeps for its remaining 200 miles as the Russo-Afghan border, as well as for the final 500 miles during which it strikes across the Bokharan and Khivan plains to the Sea of Aral.

"On the Bokharan side, the Oxus valley, after the river leaves its gorge, is more fertile than on the Afghan side. Reed swamps border the stream on the latter side. Then comes a strip of willow and tamarisk jungle which A delightful birthday party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Snyder, Thursday evening in There is much game in this jungle, and even tigers. At places, however, the Afghans have cleared the immediate river valley, have constructed irriga-

"The world has learned but few details of happenings in the Oxus valley in recent years. Afghanistan is a selfelected hermit, a buffer for news as mation has leaked out through Soviet Russia. Before the World war Russia had built the long Trans-Caspian railto the non-Oxus border of Afghanistan near the northeastern corner of Persia.

Frowns on Railroad.

"A second branch was under construction from Bokhara to the Oxus, and for the past few years this road has been shown on maps as completed through Kalif on the Oxus, along the river to Termez, about midway of the northern Afghan border. Recent British information, however, was to the effect that the road would be completed early this year. The report of a Russian-Afghan clash about coincided with the supposed time of completion of the road. The statement that the Afghan post seized was on an island points, too, to the Kalif-Termez region, where the river's biggest island is situated. It is even asserted that the capture of the island is preliminary to the bridging of the Oxus and the extension of the railway into present Afghan territory. So far the Amir of Afghanistan has stood adamantly against all suggestions that his territory be 'defiled' with rails.

"At Kalif is the most used Oxus ferry. Horsepower is employed in this ferry in a unique way. From the front of a large flat-boat two poles extend out over the water. A rope is suspended from the end of each pole and tied to a belly-band, passed around a horse. Thus the ferry supports the animals, and they, swimming at ease, tow the loaded boat from bank to bank.

"At Kalif the Oxus has hard banks on both sides and the stream maintains a permanent width of about 540 yards. Elsewhere the river varies greatly with the seasons. In flood it is from 1,000 yards to a mile wide. Its winter width is much less. River steamers ascend the stream to the Merv-Bokhara railway bridge about 180 miles downstream from the Afghan boundary, and have been an important factor in Russia's transportation system in southwestern Asia."

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE BY JOSEPH KAYE

At 21-Henry Holt, the Publisher, Studied Law.

T THE age of twenty-one I A T THE age of twenty one was a student at Yale, but with the ambition to be an author.

"When I got out of college, however, I did as the other boys without any particular bent did in those daysstudied law.

"I married at the end of my first year in the college law school. My patrimony was not quite equal to matrimony and I began to think of quicker avenues to a livelihood than law.

"Having always had an itch for authorship, I also had doubts whether depending upon authorship for a liv-ing is either good for the authorship or the living. So I began to think of the publishing business.

"A classmate of mine had become clerk in the internal revenue office in New York, The collector of the district was G. P. Putnam, who had a publishing office, but his publishing ion.
Interests were subordinate to his collectorship. He was then doing the 'Artists' edition of Washington Irv-ing's Sketch Book.' It was costing much more than he expected and he gave me an opportunity to invest a little to complete it.

"All my experience in the venture, however, was restricted to going, by Mr. Putnam's advice, to the bindery and printing office to see how the work was done.-Henry Holt."

TODAY-Mr. Holt is one of the most noted publishers in America. He has now retired from business, having reached the good old age of eightysix. He founded the firm of Henry Holt & Co., and for some years he published the "Unpopular Review," a famous publication in its time, distinguished by its wit, cleverness and high standards. intended to make of you a better man or woman, by giving you glimpses of

Use of Dependable Disinfectants Urged

Proper Sanitation Essential With Farm Stock.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In the disinfection of premises and buildings and in preparing dips for live stock, products of known dependability are essential for satisfactory results. This timely counsel is issued by the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, in connection with a recent ruling which requires cattle owners to disinfect their premises before the government will pay indemnity for animals found to be tuberculous.

For many years the bureau has conducted extensive research and thousands of field tests with dips and disinfectants. Accordingly, it is prepared to give detailed information on the subject. Live stock owners may consult the bureau's veterinary inspectators or may obtain suitable bulletins dealing with disinfection and sanitation on application to the United State Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Disinfectants differ greatly in their effectiveness against various disease organisms and parasites. Hence it is essential, first, to select one known to be suitable for the particular purpose in view and, secondly, to use it in the proper strength. When commercial preparations are used, it is usually the part of economy to select a standard product. The cost of the materials is small in most cases compared with the item of labor in doing the work, and a few cents saving by purchasing an inferior product may reduce greatly the thoroughness of the disinfection.

Sanitation is an important principle in keeping live stock and poultry healthy, and a small quantity of disinfectant kept on hand will often prevent serious losses. Prompt disinfection of barbed wire scratches and cuts is one instance of such practical aid aside from the more extensive use in the disinfection of buildings and

by Winter Cover Crops Winter cover crops give returns five ways. They will preserve the existing fertility. There is always some plant food left from the fertilizer applied in the spring and much of this will leach away un-less there is a crop growing to take It up. Second, the cover crop helps to prevent the loss of soil and plant food by erosion. Third, the cover crop when turned under will fill the soil with organic matter making it easier to till and increasing its water-holding capacity. Fourth, leguminous cover crops when turned under will add more nitrogen per acre than is ever likely to be applied at one time in commercial fertilizers. A good crop of vetch or crimson clover will furnish more nitrogen than 300 pounds per acre of nitrate of soda. Fifth, cover crops will furnish an abundant yield of high grade hay the farm is apt to be getting short of

Treatment Required for

Blackcap Raspberries Practically the only different treatment required for the blackcap raspberries is in the pruning. The black cap varieties form new plants where the tips of the canes touch the ground. These canes have to be cut back so they may be supported on wires or tied to stakes. The canes should be cut back to about 30 inches or so in the spring. After the fruit is gathered, all fruiting canes should be cut out close to the ground and burned. This is to get rid of diseases or insects that may be on them. It is always better to cultivate a raspberry patch, but a mulch assists in keeping the fruit clean. Three to six canes are sufficient for a hill. Too many raspberry patches are ruined by allowing them to produce too many canes and plants.

Most farmers fail with alfalfa from too thick seeding.

Culling poultry is one of the bestpaying jobs on the farm.

Rats can be largely eliminated by constantly making the farm a disagreeable place for them. Keeping farm accounts is one of the most important activities on a successful farm. Don't neglect them during the busy season. The corn harvester and the potato digger should come in for their share of attention long before it seems necessary. Then they'll be ready on time. A short hay crop means less to handle and more dollars to the ton, which is all very well except for the farmer who planned on a large crop to feed his stock.

Studies made of all trees in a 40,000acre German forest show that oak trees were most frequently struck by lightning. Beech, birch, and maple were almost never struck.

Varied Ideas About Money and Its Uses

Probably more has been said and written about money than any other subject under the sun. Fielding, who spoke with the authority of a magistrate, once commented that "money is the fruit of evil as often as the root of it." Doctor Johnson said, "Money, in whatever hands, will confer power." In "The Way of All Flesh," Samuel Butler wrote that "money is like a reputation for ability-more easily made than kept." His modern disciple, G. Bernard Shaw, goes farther and says, "Any fool can save money; it takes a wise man to spend it." Bacon wrote, "Money is like manure; of little use unless it be spread." quotation from Horace reads, "Money amassed either serves or rules us."

John Stuart Mill, in his monumental work, "The Principles of Political Economy," points out that furs, cowrie shells and even cubes of compressed tea have been used in various places as money. He goes on to say that "money is a commodity and its value is determined, like other commodities, temporarily by demand and supply, permanently and on the average by cost of production."

No article about money would be complete without quoting an American. It seems typical of the American mind always to couple money with work-they rarely refer to the one without the other. Thus John D. Rockefeller: "I determined that, in addition to working for money, I would make money work for me."—John o' London's Weekly.

Authors Who Evinced

Interest in Cookery

If the stories of Brillat-Savarin which it is proposed to publish in commemoration of his centenary reveal their author to the world as a successful writer of fiction as well as a gastronomer, he may perhaps be regarded as repaying the interest which some noted novelists have taken in matters of the table. Balzac took a keen interest in cookery, as befitted a man of gigantic appetite. So also did George Sand, whose cookery must have been pretty good, since it was reputed to be as exciting as her romances. Joseph Conrad, as he admitted in connection with a cook book written by Mrs. Conrad, gave a high place in his esteem to the culinary arts, while George Meredith left a book of cookery receipts in his own handwriting which figured in a book seller's catalogue some years ago and may possibly yet appear in print.

Food and Hibernation

Hibernating animals enter the state of hibernation more quickly and remain in it much longer when they do not get much to eat and when their air supply is limited. This fact seems to have been established by experiments performed by Dr. George Johnson. He found that ground squirrels on limited rations retired to winter quarters earlier and woke up less often than those given ample food, Animals when in a state of hibernation, he found, have a body temperature much lower than that in ordinary sleep. The results were similar placed in cans where the air supply was limited. Strangely enough, variation in light and darkness seemed to have no effect whatever upon the dates of hibernation.—Pathfinder Mag-

Modern Dyestuffs

Modern dyestuffs can be just as fast and give just as beautiful colors as any used in past times, says the United States Department of Agriculture. It is sentiment chiefly that makes us cling to the idea that the natural dyes obtained from plants and animals are best. Many of them are lovely colors, it is true, and the time that has passed since the cloth was dipped in the dye pot has in many cases mellowed the tones and made them even lovelier. Many of the so-called artificial dyes used now are exactly the same from the chemical standpoint as those from berries and bark and other natural sources. In some cases the new dyes are better than the old. The modern manufacturer of dyestuffs knows exactly what is in them, and for that reason is surer of results.

Dog Lives in the Present

The great difference between dog and man is that the dog has hardly any power of looking into the future. Man spends most of his time thinking of what is going to happen tomorrow, next week, or next year, and preparing for it. To a dog the present is the only thing that counts.

It is true that a dog will bury a bone to be dug up later on, but in doing so he does not say to himself, "I am not hungry now; I may be hungry tomorrow. Therefore, I will make provision." The act is merely instinctive, and to be compared with the storing of nuts by the squirrel or the dormouse.

Weaving Genius

Until the close of the Eighteenth century all fabrics carrying colored designs were woven entirely by hand. About 1801 Joseph Marie Jacquard invented an attachment which is placed at the top of a loom and automatically selects strands of yarn required to form the patterns and draws them up to make the surface of the cloth and at the same time leaves the other strand to form the back of the fabric. The attachment has ever since been called the jacquard. The invention was first put into commercial use in 809 in France.

Lesson for September 19

(Temperance Lesson.)

OBEDIENCE TO LAW

LESSON TEXT—Leviticus 26:1-46.
GOLDEN TEXT—Do not drink wine
nor strong drink, thou, nor thy sons PRIMARY TOPIC-Daniel Chooses

JUNIOR TOPIC-The Self-Control of Daniel. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-

IC—Why Obey the Law.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC-Enforcing the Law.

I. Some Fundamental Laws Stated (vv. 1, 2).

1. God alone to be worshiped (v. 1). God is a jealous God, therefore He cannot tolerate a rival. There must be no idolatry. God is to have full place in our lives or no place at all. 2. The Sabbath must be observed (v. 2).

The one who has enthroned God in his heart will reverence His Sabbath. The Sabbath was ordained that man might better cherish God in his heart. 3. Reverence for God's sanctuary (v. 2).

The believer needs to frequent the sanctuary of God in order to have his soul refreshed. Respect for God's holy day and the frequency of the sanctuary are inseparably united in those who fear and reverence God.

II. Blessings for Obedience to God's Laws (vv. 3-13). 1. Fruitful seasons (vv. 3-5).

Temporal well-being is secured through obedience to God's government. Godliness is profitable unto all having the promise of the life that now is and that which is to come.

2. Internal security (vv. 6-8). In addition to the fullness of temporal blessings, God assured them that for obedience to His Word He would grant peace and safety. No robbers were to invade the land to disturb their tranquillity by day or night. No wild beasts would be allowed to devour them.

3. Numerical increase (vv. 9, 10). Their number would be multiplied according to God's covenant to Abraham and the produce of the land increased to support them.

4. God's abiding presence (vv. 11-

The greatest of all God's blessings is His abiding presence. Happy is that nation and people in whose presence God chooses to dwell.

III. Calamities for Disobedience (vv. 14-39).

1. Judgments in general (vv. 14-17). For disobedience and rejection of God's laws, general calamities would be permitted to come upon them. They include: (1) Physical diseases. Their health would be taken away and they were to be afflicted with diseases. (2) Bereavement. Physical disease would take away kindred and friends, thereby causing sorrow of heart, and mourning. (3) Famine. God would withhold the rain, therefore food supply would be lacking. (4) Conquest. They would be slain before their enemies. (5) Oppression and dispersion. God would allow the enemy to overcome and oppress them and ultimately take them out of their own land and scatter them. 2. The specific judgments (vv. 18-19)

Mercies rejected and warnings unheeded must be followed by more severe strokes of wrath. Four series of warnings are pointed out by Kellogg, each conditioned on the supposition that they did not repent as the result of the preceding experiences. Each series is prefaced by the formula, "I will punish you seven times more for your sins" (vv. 18, 21, 24, 28). The thought is that each new display of impenitence on Israel's part shall be marked by increasing severity.

(1) The rains will be withheld (vv. 19, 20).

(2) Their children and cattle will be destroyed by wild beasts (v. 22). (3) This to be followed by war, pestilence and famine (vv. 25, 26).

(4) Increasing terror (vv. 29-32). If the previous judgments were not heeded then severer ones would follow so that in their distress they would eat the flesh of their sons and daughters and their seed should become waste and their land so desolate that even their enemies would be astonished at it.

5. Scattered among the Gentiles (v. 33).

God would scatter them among the heathen and pursue them with a sword. How awfully this has been fulfilled in the history of that people

Missionary Advance in India Isaiah 11:1-10

There is no real connection between the topic and the Scripture verses assigned to it. Isaiah, chapters 11 and 12, deal with the kingdom as covenanted to David in 2 Samuel 7:10-17, and established on earth under the Messiah, who is at the same time both David's son and David's Lord. The root of David still lives. The tree has been cut down. When Christ came to earth the root was living. See Mat-thew 1:1; Luke 1:32, 33. It is now living in heaven. See Revelation 22: 16. When Christ comes the second time to establish His kingdom on the | cans. If one celebrates in the traearth the conditions revealed in Isaiah 11 and 12 will be realized. For this our Lord taught His disciples to pray in the words, "Thy kingdom

Missionary advance in India from the days of Carey until now has been constant and steady. Prior to Carey's arrival no permanent fruitage resulted from the Christian testimony presented, although heroic efforts were made. From the World Missionary Atlas of 1925 we learn that there are now 150 societies at work in India, with a missionary staff of about 6,000 workers. The residence stations number nearly 1000, with more than 5,000 native workers, and 8,500 organized churches, the communicant members numbering nearly 1,000,000.

A greater advance needs to be made once. According to statistics gathered from the Progress of Worldwide Missions, by Dr. R. H. Glover, we find that of the 493 districts into which India may be divided, with an average area greater than that of Delaware and Rhode Island combined 185 districts, or 37 percent are without a resident missionary, 23 percent are very inadequately occupied, and only 40 percent are fairly well occu-

Educational work from the kinder-garten up to college and Bible train-ing schools has had a distinct place in the work of Christian missions in India. This now includes young women as well as young men. The first Christian college for women not only in India but in all Asia, was estab lished at Lucknow in 1886, by Miss Isabelle Thoburn, of the Methodist Episcopal mission. Government colleges were also opened to women in 1870, and during the first thirty years over 1300 women passed the entrance examination. Miss Lilavati Singh B. A., a young Hindu lady professor in Lucknow college, made such an impression by her address at the missionary conference of 1900 in New York City, that the late President Harrison remarked, "If I had given a million dollars to foreign missions I should count it wisely invested if it led only to the conversion of that one

These facts are culled from Dr. Glover's book, which every Christian and missionary worker ought to possess. It is an up-to-date book, in-forming and inspiring to the last de-

CABLE REPAIR AT SEA IS THRILLING

Broken Strand Calls Out Ship in All Weather.

New York .- Stretching out and away, like a tiny thread of life itself. the transatlantic cable from Cape Cod to Brest usually connects the Old world with the New.

But sometimes it breaks! When this happens there is much concern in the offices of the French Cable company—a breathless suspense, while delicate instruments are locating the break. Often it is near the middle of the ocean, and when the break is located the cable repair ship Edouard Jeramec is dispatched to the scene.

A marine oddity, the Jeramec is one of the finest cable ships afloat. Huge tanks below decks house 250 miles of deep-sea cables. Grappling hooks of all descriptions, weighted to sink them three miles below the surface, are stowed properly away. Buoys to mark the ends of cable when located, are lashed on deck. Powerful winches. fore and aft, are ready to roll in or out the heavy strands.

It is heart-breaking work, this locating the broken ends of a deep-sea cable, Capt. Julien Le Martelu and his crew will assure anyone. In Europe and America, cable transmission is hindered while the Jeramec steams slowly back and forth, groping about the ocean floor. Howling winds and lashing seas must be disregarded. Huge lights transform night into day, and the work continues.

Often the cable is located and the business of bringing it to the surface, a matter of eight hours' work, is begun. And ofter it almost reaches the deck of the ship, only to break again and slide mockingly back to its resting place in the mud and slime of the

AUSTRIA PROLONGS CHRISTMAS FEASTS

Annual Celebrations Solid and Lasting.

In Austria and south Germany the holidays are combined with fetes inherited from pagan days. The Christmas holidays here really begin December 6, which is called "Nikolo." "Nikolo," of course, is none other than St. Nicholas, but is recognizable only by the fact that he brings gifts. He does not come down the chimney nor drive a team of reindeer, and the red, ermine-trimmed cap gives place to a bishop's hat in the Austrian edition. He visits only good children, and the fun of the occasion is furnished by the "Grampus," a veritable bogey, black, with horns and red eyes, a miniature devil, who brings sticks with which to beat bad children.

In Austria one eats at Christmas time quite differently from Ameriditional manner one has on Christmas eve a six-course dinner, consisting almost entirely of fish. The usual Christmas dinner, eaten next day, at noon, is roast goose. The turkey is known here except among wealthy people who have traveled. It is regarded as purely American and is called an "Indian." writes Dorothy Thompson, in a letter from Berlin in the New York Evening Post.

December 26, "Stefan's day," is also celebrated by a special dinner. This time one eats game, venison or hare. The game is served with preiselbeern, the Austrian substitute for cranberries, similar to cranberries in flavor, but slightly smaller than currants. The chief vegetable is usually red cabbage, hashed fine and cooked sweet with caraway seeds.

New Year's eve is the next big holiday. It is usually celebrated outside the home, in an elegant restaurant if one can afford it, in a modest cafe otherwise. One drinks as much and as good wine as one can afford, and at midnight a waiter brings around pinkey, fresh-washed sucking pig, which is usually squealing horribly. It is the symbol of good luck and all scramble for a chance to tweak his tail and thus double the charm. The chimney sweep, smoky black and carrying his brushes, is also a good-luck symbol which never fails to appear punctually at midnight.

And since Christmas begins with December and lasts till Fasching, and Fasching lasts until Lent, one celebrates something or other the whole winter through.

Sharing Alike.

It was an amateur dramatic performance, and the audience was bearing up bravely. But toward the end the fortitude of the gathering was broken down.

It happened when Mr. Smithson, who was playing the hero, rushed on in the last act and embraced Miss Matthews, the heroine.

"My darling!" he said, "now that all has ended happily we will be mardied. Through life we will pull together, and share and share alike."

Then it was that the audience laughed, and when Smithson saw Miss Matthews he understood why. He had been a little too anxious to begin "sharing," for he had left half his false mustache on the heroine's upper

Trained in Story Telling

A story-telling club as a class activity furnishes to girls in the upper classes of Brockton (Mass.) high school an opportunity for self-expression. At monthly meetings held in the school library a carefully planned program is carried out, and stories appropriate to the season are told. The stories may be learned verbatim or told in the girls' own language. They are rehearsed with a faculty supervisor before telling, the aim being to tell a story that will appeal to children of the first to the fifth grade. The girls are frequently called upon to speak on special occasions in school, and often go out in teams to entertain children in their schoolroom celebra-

Postal Stations' Supplies

To keep its patrons supplied with writing implements for next year the Post-Office department will furnish 6. 185,000 pen points for distribution to the nation's 52,000 stations. The public will also be provided with 480,000 holders to accommodate the great volume of knibs, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The pens are almost every style, so that a point may be found on the post-office desks to suit practically any writer. For the same period of time at least 900,000 quarts of writing fluid will be required to keep the inkwells filled and 500,000 large sheets of writing paper will be used up.

Will Jupiter Devour Us?

Some day the planet Jupiter is going to reach out and gobble up the earth. So says Prof. W. D. MacMillan of the University of Chicago, on the basis of new mathematical studies.

His explanation, as reported in Popular Science Monthly, is that all of the planets, as they soar along in space, sweep up star dust. As they gradually get bigger the attraction between planets increases, and the bigger planets gather in their neighbors. Jupiter, being the largest, will end by getting them all, including the earth, and become a star, probably 500,000,-000,000 years from now.

Name of Washington Handled Too Freely

The practice of naming negro slaves and grog shops for George Washington brought a vigorous protest from the Missouri Intelligencer of Old Franklin a quarter of a century after the death of the "Father of His Country." This was the first newspaper in the United States published west of St. Charles, Mo. In the issue of April 29, 1823, the Intelligencer registered this editorial protest against the promiscuous use of Washington's

"This is the Christian name of oneeighth of the masculine inhabitants of the United States. This name was dear to every American when it conveyed the idea of the father of free men, but now it serves no other purpose than that of distinguishing one part of mankind from the other. It is universally made a very packhorse. Every stupid blockhead thinks it the greatest tribute of respect he can possibly pay to the memory of the hero to call a son, a negro or a grog shop by the same name. It is a practice scandalously common for publicans to paint the likeness of the hero on a board, hang it on a post by way of a sign, hold it up to the vulgar to gaze at as boys gaze at a monkey, and to beguile silly travelers to become their guests, who judge of what is in the house by the sign. What has the father of liberty done that his name should thus be consigned to infamy and his likeness to contempt?"

History's Long List of Great "Southpaws"

Cheer up, all ye southpaws. A delver into obscure matters of history has unearthed something that should please each and every one of you. It is really something to give you reason to put on airs of superiority. Are you not pleased to learn that Alexander the Great used his sword with his left hand? Charlemagne, the patron of scholars, used his pen with his left hand, if he did any writing at all. Also the Pharaohs were left-handed and so were the greater Caesars. In the period between 2500 B. C. and 15 B. C. a left-handed man was considered "the darling of the gods" and was rushed into high office. Yet, the left-handed have had to suffer under instructors who tried to make them change a physical habit. Even some educationalists claim that left-handed pupils fall far below the average level of school efficiency. In fact, the lefthanded have been jeered at probably everywhere except on the baseball field.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Old Monarchical Idea

The name "Divine Right of Kings' is given to a doctrine that was promulgated in England in the Seven teenth century. It asserted that kings held their authority by divine appointment and were earthly repre sentatives of the Deity. This principle relieved the sovereign of all responsibility toward his subjects, and gave him absolute claim to their obedience. The chief defenders of this dogma were Salmasius, Hobbes and Sir Robert Filmer; while Milton, Algernon Sydney and Harrington were its uncompromising opponents. The controversy died a natural death on the accession of the House of Hanover. In the Bill of Rights (1689) the right of the people to depose the sovereign, to alter the order of succession, and to confer the sovereignty on whomsoever they may think proper is distinctly set forth.-Kansas City Star.

Initiative Wins

When initiative is absent, we become mechanical beings with no keenness for advancement; and if all were afflicted that way the world would cease to progress; for we are here today just because men of initiative have acted in the past. So it is well to be buoyant and brisk to take another step which will bring a benefit both to ourselves and others.

There are thousands of things in life that are ours if we will but claim them; but we have failed because we have never heard their call, or thought the call was to someone else and not to us. We need to arouse ourselves and go in and possess, otherwise we shall be left behind.-Exchange.

Craw in a Tattie Field

There was recently appointed to a country parish church a young minister who, although a clever chap, is very much attracted to his "paper" during his sermon.

This failing of his does not find favor with a few of his congregation, and the other Sunday, as a few of them were going home from church, one of them, the village schoolmaster, remarked: "That was a very scholarly address we got today from the minister. Don't you think so, Mr. Blunt?"

"Humph!" replied Mr. Blunt, a plain old farmer. "He jist minded me o' a craw in a tattie field; twa dabs an' a look up!"-Toronto Globe.

Crops North of "53"

Wheat, oats and similar grain have been found to ripen satisfactorily in that part of Canada north of the fiftythird parallel. Four varieties of wheat have been tried, some ripening in ninety-eight days. The yields varied twenty-three to forty bushels, depending on the variety, and from fifty-four to seventy-three bushels of oats to the acre were obtained, depending also on the variety planted. The experiment is considered important for Canadian development.

The Dictionary.

Reading, writing and arithmetic are commonly estimated to be the three most essential studies—that these three alone represent a liberal education, when fairly mastered. But, we are not apt to either read or write very intelligently without a good knowledge of spelling, of the meaning of words, and how to compose sentences and tell a story.

The dictionary, therefore, in many espects, is the greatest of all books. It is a mine of information. Its close study of the spelling, definition and derivation of words, will help the student in all branches. The more we understand of etymology, the less need we have of such studies as Latin and Greek. In fact, if we are dictionary perfect, we need but little else in the way of learning.

And,a good dictionary is a most interesting book. It not only teaches correct spelling, but in its definitions carries one far off into unknown fields, and makes them familiar to us. Just to ramble through its pages—seeking for knowledge, of course—not only interests, but creates desire for more knowledge.

We venture to say that the old-time "spelling bee" that caused a study of the dictionary in youth thereby laid the foundations of a practical education that lasted throughout adult life. We think too much merely of reading, without the understanding of it; of words without knowing how to spell them; or sounds without their proper interpretation and prefixes and suffixes have little meaning to the average high school student.

There ought to be some way of getting the dictionary into our school curriculums as a text book, and not merely as an occasional work of reference. Every pupil should be required to owne one, and to make practical school use of it; for there s not the slightest doubt about it, that the greater one's familiarity with the dictionary is, the more complete his real education will be.
