

THE ELECTION THIS NOVEMBER

Only Four Weeks in Which to Know the Candidates.

The election this year will be most important. With Governor, and other State Officers, U. S. Senator, Member of Congress and a full list of county officers to be elected, this election is, in fact, more important to Maryland than the election of President.

Due to public demand for reduced costs of elections, and to the cry of too many elections, our state is now trying the plan of holding elections only every two years. Perhaps it was only a law, perhaps not. The truth about this has yet to be demonstrated. With a simpler form of nominations and a simpler ballot, we should say that the two-year plan ought to vindicate itself; but, with what we have, there is doubt about it.

The main doubt is based on the intelligence of the masses to handle such a big job in one year, or at one voting attempt, as it ought to be. Sometimes when we attempt a big contract of work that is beyond our capacity, we fail at it, and the coming election holds plenty of chances for failure.

When the ballot is actually lined-up, and the many opposing candidates placed before us, we will have a better idea of the immensity of the task; and then, if we consider the large body of as yet inexperienced women voters, the physically infirm class, the unintelligent, and the tricky politicians, we must decide that we are lucky to complete the job with a fair degree of competency.

Evidently, if we are interested in law enforcement, new legislation, taxes, sound finances, safety to life and property on our public highways, as we profess to be, and ought to be, it is our duty to inform ourselves to the utmost as to just what to expect from the candidates; and to vote for the very best and most trustworthy ones, regardless of party.

And just as evidently, we ought to make a careful study of the ballot itself, in order that we may be certain beyond question that we will make no mistake in marking it according to our honest convictions.

Voting this year, is not an easy task. Even those who see well, read well, and are not nervous, will need to fully familiarize themselves with the big layout of names and the candidates themselves in order to place their X marks in the proper squares.

The election is but four weeks from next Tuesday, a very short time in which to secure all the information necessary to intelligent voting, or even to become familiar with all of the candidates in one's own party, and especially with what they stand for.

Read, ask questions, and in every way possible, get all the information you can, then be as equally sure that you know exactly how to mark the ballot for the 22 candidates of your choice. The two candidates for Judges do not count, as there is no opposition to them.

The Automobile as a Killer.

Last year in the United States approximately 25,000 persons were killed and 700,000 persons were injured by automobiles. The total, 725,000 persons killed or injured, is about equal to the sum of the entire populations of the cities of Washington and Omaha. Five hundred chiefs of police throughout the entire country were subjected to a questionnaire in regard to this matter by the American City Magazine.

Among the major causes of automobile accidents they gave; carelessness of drivers, carelessness of pedestrians, congestion of traffic, lack of standard traffic signals, speeding, intoxication, incompetent drivers, glaring headlights, and physical or mental disability.

Change in Time of Trains.

A change in time for our evening trains, makes the time for the train North at 3:23 instead of 3:48; and the train South 5:11 instead of 5:00. The latter is our connection at Keymar with the W. M. R. R. The time at Keymar of W. M. trains, is 6:05 east, and 6:10 west. While our train South is 11 minutes later, it still ought to easily make the connection at Keymar for distribution of The Record, both east and west.

WBAL May Broadcast the Election Returns.

Station WBAL, Baltimore that will broadcast the World's series games, has replied to a request from The Record for the election returns, that they are at present "trying to make arrangements to have the returns broadcast from the station, and that there is every evidence of the success of the plans."

Clark for Congress, is Dry.

Linwood L. Clark, Republican candidate for Congress in this district, announces that he is not the candidate of the Anti-Saloon League, but that respect for the Constitution, and his own inclinations, makes him a "dry," and that he will run out in the open as such. Mr. Clark is a lawyer, and considers that his oath as such, requires him to "honor and obey" the Constitution.

COUNTY AGENT NOTES.

Warning as to Seed Wheat Treatment with Copper Dust.

In spite of warnings previously issued in the press and given out both verbally and printed at the series of smut control meetings held in the county during the last two weeks, some farmers have been made sick by using Copper Carbonate dust according to County Agent, E. K. Walrath.

In order to control the stinking smut in wheat, it is necessary to use a dust composed of a high percentage of copper combined chemically with lime. This metallic copper is mildly poisonous if inhaled in considerable amounts. Such disagreeable effects are entirely unnecessary if care and time is taken to either treat the seed wheat in the open where the wind will remove the dust from the operators; otherwise a dust mask or wet sponge should be worn.

So far this fall several thousand bushels have been treated with this dust in every kind of treating machines ranging from small barrel churns to power mixers, and where simple precautions have been taken, no harmful results have occurred.

No extreme care should be exercised in not feeding treated wheat to livestock, as excessive amounts will probably prove injurious. If wheat is planted near the chicken range, heavy feeding of grain will prevent the poultry scratching out enough wheat to prove injurious, according to reports of farmers who have used treated wheat successfully in the past.

Farmers in the northern section of the county, who have already sown treated wheat, report that they have been able to sow the right amount of grain per acre by setting their drills to sow one-half to a peck heavier to the acre. The copper carbonate, causes the wheat to flow less freely.

County Agent E. K. Walrath reports that the office of the Extension Service has received from U. S. Department of Agriculture, samples of alfalfa and clover seed which have been colored, treated according to the recent regulations enforcing the Federal Seed Act. Under this Act all imported foreign alfalfa and clover seed must be treated with dyes so that they may be identified by the growers of these crops.

This protection against foreign seed should be very valuable to the farmers of this county; for many of the failures to secure profitable stands of these crops are due to seeds which are not adapted to this locality. These samples can be examined at the Extension Service office in the Times Building, Westminster.

"Inside" Information for Women.

Green tomatoes can be stewed, fried, pickled or made into mince-meat.

It is most important to the palate that lamb chops and all lamb dishes be served piping hot on hot plates. Apples may be canned as sauce, in pie pieces, or whole in syrup. They may also be baked and canned.

Use a thermometer when making bread, to test the temperature of the dough and that of the atmosphere during rising, as well as the heat of the oven.

Have liver and bacon for dinner rather than breakfast. For one thing, people are not demanding the heavy type of breakfast formerly eaten. Liver is one of the most important meats in regard to the protein and calories it furnishes the body and it also contains all three vitamins. Recent experiments have shown it to be one of the most valuable sources of iron in cases of anemia. No distinction in food value is made between the various kinds of liver.

To wash a pillow, transfer the feathers to a muslin bag two or three times the size of the ticking. This may be done easily by sewing the edges of the opening of the ticking and bag together and shaking the feathers from one to the other. The feathers and ticking are washed separately. Scrub the feathers in a weak solution of washing soda, using a good suds. Rinse in two or three lukewarm rinses and then dry. Beat from time to time. After washing the ticking, starch it on the inside with a very stiff starch mixture, applied with a sponge. This closes the pores of the material and prevents the feathers from working their way through. The ticking is then dried and refilled.

Last Call on Calendars.

We must close our Calendar orders for the season, very soon. Numbers are being sold out and some can not be had. We expect the largest sale of Calendars we have ever had, as we are now almost up to the total of last year.

JOINT C. E. CONVENTION OCTOBER 7-10

Maryland and Delaware to Meet at Havre de Grace.

The first Joint Maryland and Delaware C. E. Convention will be held at Havre de Grace, Oct. 7-10. The program will be an extensive one, and will include addresses by Rev. R. Y. Nicholson, Washington; A. J. Shartle, Boston; Miss Catherine Miller, Wilmington; Rev. W. T. Thompson, Philadelphia; Rev. O. F. Blackwelder, Richmond, Va.; Frank P. Mitchell, Wilmington; Rev. Frank L. Freet, Columbus, Ohio, and Rev. Francis Shunk Downs, New York.

The topics will be popular and practical, and the music under the direction of Adam Geibel, of Philadelphia, will be a feature.

Short Tomato Crop.

A record short crop of tomatoes, the shortest since 1921, is being harvested this season on Maryland's eastern shore. The area set out for campaign is estimated at 33,000 acres, say 66 percent of the 1925 area, while yields are reported ranging from one ton to a little over three tons per acre, varying with the locality, and averaging perhaps two and a half tons. Canners' estimates of the pack this year range variously from 1,500,000 cases (basis 3s) to 2,225,000, with the majority opinion favoring about 2,000,000 cases.

On August 12 stands were for the most part good, and some growers said they left little to be desired. But heavy rains set in on that date over a period lasting the better part of two weeks. The vines were prostrated, the blossoms mostly washed off, and the fruit in numerous fields began to rot on the ground. Hot sunshine followed for a while and scalding ensued. At the close of September there is very little fruit, green or otherwise, to be found on the vines. Growers say that even with favorable weather during October the vines cannot stage a "comeback" because there is nothing to come back on the vines.

High prices are prevailing for raw stock, ranging from 40 to 70 cents per five-eighths bushel basket, 55 to 60 cents being the most usual price; and canners say that tomatoes are difficult to get even at those prices. Growers can be seen working over their picked fields in an endeavor to gather the last available tomato, so as to take advantage of the high prices offered.

McAdoo Says Maryland is in Rebellion Against U. S.

William Gibbs McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury and presumably a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President, in an address Sunday night in Los Angeles, Cal., before the National Convention of the W. C. T. U., declared that New York and Maryland, "in effect if not in fact, are in rebellion against the United States."

"The attitude of New York and Maryland toward the dry law is plain nullification of the Constitution," he said.

"It is a revival of the issues which almost tore the country asunder in 1832. By whatever name refusal may be called—nullification, passive resistance or non-cooperation in the performance of manifest duty—it is in effect if not in fact, rebellion against the United States."

"The danger of this doctrine does not seem to be fully realized at present. It seems a mere speck on the horizon, but no one can fail to see its menacing import or the sinister and lengthening shadow it is casting over the land."

Of course, McAdoo fully understands that the convention vote of New York is pretty sure for Gov. Smith, and the vote of Maryland for Gov. Ritchie; so, he can afford to speak his mind on the two states, without any loss.

"Filling the Paper."

"I thought you'd like to have this to fill your paper." It's a "crack" made by a good many people to newspaper reporters and editors. And it is calculated to make newspaper men tear their hair. For it's never the least bit difficult to "fill up" a newspaper. Every newspaper receives enough "stuff" through the mails and by wire each day to fill it up many times. The job isn't to collect enough material to fill with; the job is to select the most interesting, the most worth-while material from among the vast amount of "copy" available.

Few outsiders have any conception of the pressure brought to bear upon a newspaper to publish this and that. Publicity hounds and propagandists of all sorts are constantly trying to get "puffs" and articles which present one side only of a case into a newspaper, disguised as news. That they succeed so seldom is due to the everlasting vigilance of reporters, editors and copy readers, who must ever be alert to curb tainted news.

Don't say to your reporter friend: "Here's something to help you fill up the paper," unless you want to make him froth at the mouth.—Worcester (Mass.) Telegram.

MORE ABOUT FLORIDA STORM.

The Devastated Section Rising Rapidly from its Ruin.

(Three very lengthy written accounts of the Florida hurricane have been offered us for publication—two last week, and one this week. Owing to our small paper and to the fact that the disaster has been so fully described in Northern papers, we have been obliged to decline publication. We use a portion of the last letter from Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Forney for the reason that it came early this week when we had more time to use it, and because the event itself is entitled to a second appearance.—Ed. Record.)

"Our house in which we were living crushed in on Saturday, Sept. 8, as your hand would crush a piece of paper. We escaped with minor injuries as we were able to navigate for ourselves. We were homeless, soaking wet and hungry for a day and a night. Miami had plenty of food on hand, but had to be eaten raw for several days as there were no cooking conveniences.

We managed to save our clothing but everything was wet. As we felt sure the house would go we packed our clothing in a trunk which was covered for two days with wreckage but it did not blow away.

Now everybody is hard at work who is able, repairing damage and caring for the disabled, and by the time the tourist season comes again but little in the way of a reminder of the disaster will remain. What the people most need now, is money, with which to replace losses.

For the time being we expect to remain in Miami. The storm is over and gone; it never struck here before, and may never again. The buildings can be rebuilt, but the shrubbery and palms can not grow a beautiful plumage for this winter. But, since 8 days have passed, the North could hardly believe what has already been accomplished in so short a time.

We have received numerous inquiries as to our safety, so send this account. We are now at 528 N. E. Second Ave., Miami."

Our Florida exchange, The Apopka Chief, says:

"The whole truth that befell Miami and adjacent towns perhaps never will be known. Certainly it never will be known just how many were perished for many bodies were swept away in the swirling waters. We have no heart to attempt to deal with the appalling thing in detail. It is simply impossible."

"Florida will ever be grateful for the warm-hearted response to her call for the suffering ones in the stricken section. No such disaster in all the South has ever brought such an enormous property loss. Responses in money and aid have come from every section, and South Florida will arise from her ruins. The spirit that built it can not be overwhelmed. But, they must have help."

Proceedings of the Orphans' Court.

Monday, Sept. 27th, 1926—Albert E. and Marion F. Grimes, executors of Charles F. Grimes, deceased, returned inventories of personal property, debts and money.

Grace E. Hotson, executrix of Robert C. Hotson, deceased, settled her first and final account.

The last will and testament of Robert A. Harner, deceased, was duly admitted to probate and letters testamentary thereon were granted unto Franklin G. Harner and Edward Wenschhoff, who received order to notify creditors and who returned inventory of money.

Theodore F. Brown, administrator of William E. Six, deceased, returned inventories of personal property, debts and money and received orders to sell personal property.

John H. Elgin, surviving executor of Jacob F. Elgin, deceased, reported sale of real estate on which the Court issued an order nisi.

Christmas Card Orders.

Please let us have your Christmas Card orders now. Last year we had trouble, and could not fill the orders received late. We do not take orders for lots of less than 25 or 50.

All cards are furnished printed, with name of sender, with envelopes to match, and on most of the cards the customer can select the greeting. Two customers can go together on a lot of 50, and divide the cost.

Call at our office, look over the samples, and find out more about our proposition. We have both cards and folders.

No poisonous reptiles and few wild animals are found in Japan.

The annual output of Bibles, Testaments and portions in all available languages and dialects, including those published by commercial houses, is about thirty millions.

"The Republican Woman Voter" published in Baltimore, came to our office last week. It is a neat little 8-page publication, issued monthly, 10 months in the year, at 50 cents.

The part of the United States lying west of the Mississippi River is more than twice the size of the part east of the river. The population of the West has increased from 7,000,000 in 1870 to more than 11,000,000 in 1920; at present it is more than one third of that of the entire United States.

RAILROAD PASSENGER INCOME.

Automobiles and Motor Buses Raise a Big Question.

A matter of great interest to the country at large, is the decreased earnings of the railroads in the general day passenger business, which, if continued, must result in higher freight rates, to the detriment of general business, as well as to investments in railroad securities, all of which involves the question of the desirability of further legislation reducing railroad incomes, and incidentally raises the question of how much further the increased use of automobiles and motor buses can go without injury to the business of the country as a whole.

Statistics are given in an editorial in the Railway Age which show that the earnings of the railroads from day coach business are still declining, while the amount of travel in sleeping and parlor cars to which the so-called "surcharge" is applied is still rapidly increasing. Travel in day coaches declined 22 percent between 1921 and 1925, while travel in sleeping and parlor cars increased 22 percent in spite of the "surcharge." The editorial goes on to say:

"The continuing decline in earnings from day coach service is due to the increasing competition of private automobiles and the motor bus. The obvious reason why travel in sleeping and parlor cars continues rapidly to increase is that an increasing number of people prefer to ride in sleeping and parlor cars and pay the regular passenger fare plus the 'surcharge' rather than ride in day coaches and pay only the regular fare. Their verdict is that the regular passenger fare plus the surcharge is a reasonable charge in proportion to the quality of the service rendered for them.

The earnings of the railroads as a whole from the surcharge are about $40,000,000 annually, and the railroads of the Western District get about $17,000,000 of this. Since the Western lines are not making a 'fair return,' if they should be deprived of this revenue it would have to be made up to them by advances in day coach fares or in freight rates. The railway of Eastern and Southern territory are not seeking advances in freight rates, but the principle involved is the same in all parts of the country. There is hardly a shipper in the country, whether farmer, coal mine operator, manufacturer or wholesale merchant, who would not say that if any general reduction of rates is to be made it should not be made first in the rates charged by the railways for travel in sleeping and parlor cars.

"Nevertheless, men who travel for business concerns constantly, through their organizations, carry on agitation against the surcharge. A bill to abolish it was once passed in the Senate. Another bill to abolish it was introduced at the last session of Congress. No doubt the passage of a similar bill will be urged at the next session of Congress. On every sound principle of rate-making the agricultural and business interest of the country should oppose such legislation."

Know How Your Produce is Weighed.

A farmer is entitled to know how his produce is weighed. He will count his money for wheat, corn, or livestock sold, and it is just as reasonable, says C. A. Briggs of the United States Department of Agriculture, for him to know how the scale is used in getting the weight.

In weighing a thousand-pound steer it is not difficult at times to weigh with a high balance so that the weight shown is ten pounds less than the correct amount, and usually this will go unchallenged. At a price of 10 cents per pound the ten pounds means $1, which is more than ample to cover the total of the yardage and feed charges for the animal at a stockyard. This is about 1 percent of the price of the animal but it may represent 10 percent of the net profit.

This matter of weighing with a high balance has been observed when the weighing was not done rapidly. In many cases, however, the weighing is done too rapidly. The onlooker does not know whether the weighing was done properly or whether the weight recorded is short ten or more pounds on the draft. In many cases the beam just starts to move when the weigher quickly arrests it by throwing the latch at the end of the beam, and the beam has not clearly indicated the balance. Often the farmer sees this, and in his own mind questions the accuracy of the weight but for lack of confidence and want of knowledge he does not find himself in a position to raise any questions.

This quick weighing is wrong. The weighing should be done so that the character of the balance is apparent to any observer.

The proper manner to weigh is to balance the beam so that it has neither a high nor low balance; that is, so that it swings evenly between the top and bottom of the loop. In type registering beams the weight indication changes in steps according to the type figures. In such cases the reading should be used which will bring the beam nearest to an even balance.—The Manufacturer.

THE CLOSE OF THE FAIR.

Financially a Success. The List of Premiums Awarded.

The rain of Thursday night ruined the Fair for the time, but the postponement of the fireworks display until Friday night made up for the interference—and, it was a fine display. Friday itself was a fair day in the matter of gate receipts, and was free to School children.

The Fair was in great luck in the matter of weather, for the entire week was threatening, and at times oppressively hot; but it so happened that rain insurance was not needed and the whole week turned out about as well as thought the weather had been ideal.

Taken as a whole, the attendance and financial income must have been satisfactory to the management.

Friday's races were as follows:

2:30 Inter-County Trot.
Purse $200, Added money
Axie Hale, Crawford.....1 1 1
Hale Bond, Williams.....3 3 2

The Baltimore Sun is wondering why so many more Republican women in Baltimore, registered than did Democratic women; and also why so many men register as Democrats and vote Republican? Well, Republicans in Carroll county are wondering why so many more Democrats voted at the recent primary, than Republicans. "Wondering" is an easy job.

The $2,000,000 prize fight held in the stadium on the Sesqui grounds, during a presumably patriotic celebration of the 150th anniversary of our National independence, lacked just two features of being a complete up-to-date success. It should have been held on Sunday, and the thirsty ones should have had easy access to booze.

Autos now Carry as Many Passengers as Railroads.

It is now definitely correct, that the automobiles and buses carry fully one-half of the passenger traffic of the whole country, and that the railroads are rapidly losing passenger business; and this, notwithstanding that the railroads purchase rights of way, build and maintain their roadways, and in addition are among the heavy taxpayers of the country.

This must raise the question whether or not the railroads are receiving fair treatment by the states in their improved road building programs. Largely, it is a question of the proper taxation of passenger carrying autos, up to the point of fairly equalizing the cost of building and upkeep of the new roads now so largely used by motor companies for their profit.

By far the greatest economic question of National and state importance, is the startling extent of the production and use of motors of various kinds, on state built roads at the expense of the taxpaying public. It is a big and very much involved question of just taxation, and of who is reaping the profit and at whose expense?

And, so far as the railroads are concerned, there must be taken into consideration the tremendous loss suffered by the railroads by autos not operated for profit in passenger carrying, and whether such privately owned vehicles are paying their proper share toward the road fund of the states.

Turbulent Mexico.

There is a pretty wide-spread opinion that Mexican affairs is a good muddle for the United States to keep out of. As a matter of fact, we might about as well get into a serious interference with the affairs of any country in Europe, as with Mexico, for hardly any single one of them is more foreign in ideals, language and customs than Mexico.

Mexico has long been a troublesome neighbor, and a complete spanking and setting down might do her a world of good; but even the thought of so doing is dangerous, and if actually attempted might start a much bigger scrap than one with Mexico. The details of it need not be even hinted at very strongly, for just now our proper course is so clearly "hands off," that speculating about outcomes is distinctly unwise pastime.

The Rage for Notoriety.

It is a disease—an intoxication—perhaps a lack of modesty—and, it may represent some good qualities, too, when instead of notoriety we call it by a nicer sounding name.

We have had some recent examples in the "Miss America" display at Atlantic City, and the navigation, by swimming, of the English channel. Does the winning of the crown, "Miss America," actually mean that the most beautiful lady in the country wins? Not at all. It simply means that out of the number willing to undergo the tests, one was adjudged the most perfect in face and figure. Thousands of ladies in this country, equally or more beautiful, would not so exhibit themselves—for notoriety.

Swimming the English channel is a feat in skill, strength and endurance, as well as a money-making venture, and has no other merit and serves no good purpose.

The Polar expeditions are largely in the same class, entered into for the name of the thing. The discovery of "the Pole" cuts no actual figure in benefitting the world at large—it is merely a big head-liner and a story telling and selling proposition.

Prize fighting is the same, only worse. Men who have been blessed with strength, skill and vitality, are merely willing to pummel somebody and be pummeled, and perhaps shorten their lives, for the notoriety of being a champion of some degree—and share in the gate receipts.

In many ways and in many degrees, and mostly it is disreputable, if the truth be told. And not only is it disreputable for the principals, but it intoxicates others—leads to a 'fastness' and sporting temperament that is foreign, in most instances to the best type of manhood and womanhood.

Our Irresponsible Voters.

Voting is a privilege and a duty, but it is commonly overlooked that it is also a serious responsibility; and this uncovers the greatest weakness of our form of popular government for the very fact—that every registered person over 21 years of age may vote, after a little reflection, makes this perfectly clear.

When we look about us in every community, we can easily find dozens of persons of voting age that we doubt as having proper intelligence, or interest in the public welfare, to have a vote equal to that of the most interested and best qualified. Without doubt we have an appalling number of irresponsibles who are either absolutely ignorant, or who are fickle-minded, or are directly favorable to lawlessness, or who have no personal interest whatever in public expenditures or tax bills.

On the perhaps seventy-five percent of responsible intelligent good citizens, therefore, rests the serious responsibility of good government. There are many questions on which a large number of persons should have no right to vote; but no plan has ever been devised of segregating these classes into safety zones, and likely never will be. That everybody has a just right to vote, on every question is preposterous; but, the laws confer this right, and that is conclusive. The only recourse of good citizens is to try to educate, or to overcome the irresponsible element, and it is a serious problem.

The County Fair.

The harvest moon, yellow as a new cheese, rides high in the heavens. The sun sinks in shrouded majesty, lighting a canopy of clouds banked in the west. A haunting mist softens the lines of the high-board fence, the grandstand and the judge's stand at the race track. The twin lights of hundreds of automobiles are gently blurred like stars beneath a filmy cloud. The evening breeze wafts the scent of new-cut corn across the country. All is in readiness for tomorrow's county fair.

For weeks the children and their parents have been looking forward to the event. The women folk have been canning fruit and making pickles for the exhibit. The men have fed and groomed the colt, the calf and the shorthorn. Tomorrow is the big day. In the households and in the fields and barns careful preparations have been made for the scheduled competitive events. Here also, will be a great open forum for the discussion of the issues which interest the farmer folk.

The astute campaigner for county office will be bustling about with the proverbial box of cigars under one arm, the other free to lift little Johnny Jones and his sister to his knee the while he praises them to their parents. Properly done this means two votes and maybe more. The displays in the agricultural hall are properly arranged, as well as the exhibits of new machinery and other mechanical devices. The county fair is a great institution. Long may it live.—Dearborn Independent.

Neuter Possessive

Originally the pronoun "his" served as the neuter singular possessive. About the Sixteenth century this began to be replaced with "it." Thus Ben Jonson wrote, "It shall fright all it friends with borrowing letters," and Shakespeare, "Go to it grandam, child." About 1600 this form, in turn, began to be replaced by "its," with the apostrophe. Rare in Shakespeare, and not to be found in the King James Bible of 1611, this form became the common literary one by 1623. Later in the same century the apostrophe was dropped, conforming to the possessives of the other personal pronouns, and since then it has almost always been written "its."

Mysterious Spleen

There is still one bulky organ in the human body about which we know little—concerning what its function is, at least. That organ is the spleen. The English physiologist, Barcroft, pointed out recently that its use is a mystery to us even now.

The ancient Greeks, he said, are said to have improved their athletic prowess by cutting out the spleen, their argument being it was the cause of the stich in the side that sometimes stops the best runners. This, however, does not appear to be justified by the records.

Mended "Busted" Egg

What the old story-book legend declares "all the king's horses and all the king's men" could not do by way of repairing "Humpty Dumpty," has been accomplished by an expert of the Field museum of natural history in assembling the fragments of an ostrich egg believed to be some 6,000 years old. It was found in the ancient ruins of Kish.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Ravages of Epidemics

"Four and five centuries ago, the Black plague ravaged mankind with a severity and a ferociousness unparalleled today. During one great epidemic one-fourth of the world's populace was depleted in the short space of two years.

Like a great festering, miasmatic wave, periodically the foul tentacles of plague have swept over the world. Centuries ago it was leprosy, then syphilis, then the Bubonic or Black plague, then smallpox and later the great respiratory plagues of influenza, pneumonia and sometimes infantile paralysis.

One of Oldest Games

The game of lawn tennis, as played today, is not particularly old, but tennis is ancient, for it was played by kings and nobles of olden times. However, the king's game was what today is called court tennis, an indoor game, requiring an expensive building. Lawn tennis was an outgrowth of a game of 1873, called sphairistike, but this clumsy title was soon dropped and by 1877 the game had emerged in its modern form.

In that year the first championship was established at Wimbledon, under rules that approximate those of today. The game was brought to the United States early and the keen rivalry between the United States and England began and has continued without interruption. From that rivalry has sprung international competition at first compassed within narrow limits, but ultimately extended to cover the world.

Spleen in Nature of Storehouse for Blood

For a long time the spleen was associated with an irritable temper. Today we hardly believe that. What we do know is that it is a muscular bag lying on the left side of the body, near the upper end of the stomach, and that it sometimes engorges with blood, and swells. But the blood, strange to say, is not ordinary blood. The spleen seems to be a sieve, and sifts the blood so that only one certain kind of red corpuscles can get through. These corpuscles, which are thought to be the ones that have been in the body the longest time, appear in many cases to die in the spleen, so that the organ has the reputation of being a cemetery for red corpuscles.

The spleen is not selfish, however—when the body needs blood the spleen empties itself. This is the case when exercise is taken or when there is slow poisoning by coal gas or loss of blood by hemorrhage, says Barcroft. But when much blood is in circulation, as when there is undue strain on the heart, the spleen dilates and blood is withdrawn.

Old Rag Dolls More Durable Than Pretty

In many of the early New England homes rag dolls were treasured heirlooms. They were of all sizes, and attired in all sorts of quaint costumes. The only points in common were that their faces were invariably flat, their hands stiff and rigid and their toes turned out in a "west-footed" manner. Sometimes they had black buttons for eyes, but more frequently their faces were painted with beet and fruit juices. However, their eyes, noses and mouths were sometimes embroidered. For hair they had toupees of yarn or hemp or small bunches of real hair. Their clothing was usually of the full-skirted variety and they sometimes wore sunbonnets of the same material as their dresses. One doll of this type is said to have pleased the daughters of one New Hampshire family for more than eighty years, and is still in use. Of course it is a little worse for wear, but it may be made "new" again simply by recovering its face with a new piece of cloth.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Danger in Bullfighting

The bullfight is a very dangerous fighting game, according to the best authorities. The star of the performance is the matador, who kills the bull alone. Authorities give us facts to prove that many matadors are killed, and all are wounded at some time of their careers. The risks they take are marvelous. They sit on chairs before charging bulls, and at the last moment spring from the chair and the bull carries the chair away on his horns. They rest their elbows on the head of the bull. The matador sometimes attempts to leap over the bull with the aid of a long pole, but many miscalculations are made, which end in disaster. There are even rare occasions when a large bull will leap out of the ring and gain the seats occupied by the spectators. The matador, in killing the bull, stands perfectly still and lets the bull rush on his sword, the bull often taking the matador up in his horns and throwing him into the air. Many times the matador is caught up against the wooden inner ring and gored to death.

Royal Tradition

The king of England "never dies." All that is admitted is a "demise of the crown" and the moment the sovereign passes away, his titles, dignity and power are transferred automatically to the heir apparent, who from that moment reigns in his stead. So, too, just as the king never dies, he is always of full age directly he ascends the throne, even though he has not reached his twenty-first birthday.

In practice, however, a regent is appointed for administrative purposes during the king's childhood. On a "demise of the crown" members of parliament, judges and naval and military officers are required to take a fresh oath of allegiance and cabinet ministers must surrender their portfolios.—Montreal Family Herald.

POULTRY

RIGHT ATTENTION TO MOLTING HENS

One of two things should be done with hens around molting time, says a raiser in an exchange. One is to let the older hens go before they fairly get to the time for shedding their feathers. They have now laid out their litter and must have some time to get through their "sick" period, during which they bring in nothing and keep eating. Every hen that is getting along in years should walk the plank, right now, unless she is especially valuable as a breeder. If we would sort our flocks over and do this early, we would be a good deal better off at the end of the season.

For the younger birds a different course must be followed. The one great thing is to get the hens back to laying after the molt as soon as we can, and have them in good physical condition. For that reason our treatment must not be so radical, as some advise, but natural and steady. If you watch a molting hen you will see that she is inclined to be weak and less vigorous than formerly. If she is not really sick, still she is "under the weather." This is because of the drain while losing the old plumage and growing a new crop of feathers.

Begin the treatment by cutting down on the food, especially the heavy, hearty food, for a few days. Meanwhile give the hens all possible chance to roam around at will. It may take some coaxing to get them to do this, but it is better for them than to dump about in the houses. The more the hen stirs around, the healthier she will be.

About the same ration may be given during the period of molting that is used when the hen is laying eggs regularly. But as the molt goes on, it is a good plan to add some oil meal, which enters into feather construction quite largely. Ten per cent of oil meal in a mash mixture, increasing to twice that, will do nicely. Watch the droppings and act accordingly. Don't give drugs; they are dangerous and may lead to trouble. Sunflower seeds are better than medicine. Be kind and patient with the molting birds.

Market Demands Plump, Well-Fattened Turkeys

The market demands plump, well-fattened turkeys and prime birds bring the best prices. In order to get the benefit of this extra price it is necessary that the turkeys intended for market be fattened by generous feeding for a period of three weeks to a month before marketing them. Experiments with confining turkeys at fattening time have not proven very satisfactory. By feeding the flock on good, sound, preferably old, corn sparingly at first and gradually increasing the amount until the birds are getting all they will eat along with all of the sour milk or buttermilk the birds will drink, it will be found that the "finish" put on, as well as the weight added, will more than pay for the extra effort required.

Before deciding upon which birds are to be selected for fattening, select and mark those that are to be kept for breeding stock. To sell the biggest and best is sure to result in a falling off in the vigor of the flock and consequent losses.

Tell Sex of Guineas

The male and the female guinea fowls differ so little in appearance that many persons have considerable difficulty in making a distinction. Usually the males can be distinguished by their larger helmet (comb) and wattles, also by a coarser head; but to be positive one should listen to the cry made by each bird. That of the female resembles "buckwheat, buckwheat," and is decidedly different from the one-syllable shriek of the male.

Brood-Rearing Is Big Honey Factor

Amount of Honey Depends on Number of Bees That Are of Proper Age.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The quantity of nectar gathered by a colony of honey bees does not depend merely on the number of bees in the colony during the honey flow, says the United States Department of Agriculture. It depends, rather, upon the number of bees that are of the proper age to serve as nectar gatherers when the honey flow opens.

Since normally a worker bee, before going to the field, spends the first two or three weeks of its life in duties within the hive, most of the bees should emerge from the brood cells about three weeks in advance of the main honey flow, in order to have the largest possible number of field bees ready at the proper moment. In other words, the queen should reach her maximum egg-laying rate during the period six weeks prior to the honey flow.

Maximum Honey Crop.

Since a colony left to itself does not usually bring forth the new worker bees at the most advantageous time, a correct understanding of the principles governing brood rearing throughout the year becomes of prime importance to the beekeeper, if he is to handle his colonies in such a way as to secure a maximum honey crop. The principles are discussed in Department Bulletin No. 1349, prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture after an intensive study of the brood-rearing cycle of the honey bee.

Lack of knowledge of the principles governing brood rearing may cause a reduction in the honey crop by bringing about in a colony any or all of the three following possibilities:

(1) The population of the colony may not become large enough to provide sufficient field bees during nectar flows to gather surplus adequate to give the beekeeper a fair return for the time spent and capital invested.

(2) Surplus honey may be consumed in regions of early nectar flows by bees which have emerged too late to serve as nectar gatherers, and too early to winter over or even assist in building up the colony for the winter.

(3) Swarming may be stimulated if the ratio between hive bees and field bees does not remain such as will avoid causing a congestion within the hive whenever one of these classes is relatively idle while the other is extremely busy.

The prevention of any or all of these states involves such questions as wintering, stores for spring, requeening, population of the colony at the beginning of brood rearing, swarm control, dequeening, removal of brood and other related factors.

Important Factors.

Among some of the important factors which are within the power of the beekeeper to provide are a prolific queen, sufficient worker brood cells, sufficient stores of good honey, and proper insulation. All of these are factors which must and can be provided in the manipulations in the latter part of the previous season if the beekeeper wishes to take advantage of the natural tendency toward intense brood-rearing activity at the beginning of spring.

Conditions within the hive making for brood rearing during the period of initial expansion may be likened to a charge of explosives set to go off at a certain moment in the spring, the time depending on weather conditions; in the one case the force of the resulting explosion is definitely predetermined by the quantity of the charge; in the other case the amount of brood reared is definitely predetermined by the provisions made in the preceding season to give the colony the conditions most favorable for the purpose.

A copy of the bulletin, Brood-Rearing Cycle of the Honey Bee, may be obtained, as long as the supply lasts, by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Methods of Control of Diseases of Strawberry

The more important diseases of strawberries are described in a recent bulletin issued by the United States Department of Agriculture as Farmers' Bulletin 1458 together with an account of such control methods as are of proved value. The great variety of conditions under which the strawberry is grown necessitates different methods of culture and handling. Methods of control of strawberry diseases must be adapted to local conditions.

Severe attacks of leaf diseases—leaf spot, scorch, and mildew—may be controlled by spraying or dusting. Often, however, frequent renewal of strawberry patches or the use of resistant varieties will serve to keep these diseases in check.

The diseases caused by nematodes may be avoided by planting strawberries in soil which is free from these pests. Infected land may be freed from nematodes by a three-year rotation with immune crops.

Fruit rots may be reduced by proper mulching. Careful handling and adequate refrigeration will greatly lessen the losses from rots which occur after picking.

A copy of the bulletin may be secured, as long as the supply lasts, by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

MANCHESTER.

The first meeting of the Parent-Teacher's Association was held recently. At this meeting it was decided to hold the annual school and community fair, on Oct. 29 and 30. A fine program was rendered.

A new portable building has been added to the housing facilities of the school. Manchester has the poorest school facilities in the county. It seems to me to be a disgrace to civilization to compel children to attend school in buildings which aren't fit for a horse stable. Well, that is the case in Manchester.

The girls of Manchester High School are busily engaged in making preparations for the Girls Carnival to be held in Westminster, on Oct. 22.

Rev. L. H. Rehmyer, pastor of the Lutheran Church, of this place, is improving nicely. Mr. Rehmyer was stricken recently with facial paralysis. Rev. Howard Wink, a member of the congregation, now student of the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Gettysburg, has been filling the pulpit very ably. They have only held morning service for the past two months, but will begin with this Sunday, hold morning and evening services.

Rev. Harry Frederick, who has been a citizen of our town for the past six months, has sold out his store, and will enter the ministry again. He has been assigned to a charge in Virginia, by the annual conference of the Free Methodist Church, which was held at Rockville week before last. We wish him great success.

The old cemetery of the Lutheran and Reformed Churches is undergoing quite a change. The old tombstones have been removed. The ground will be plowed and sowed down in grass, after which two concrete curbs will be made and the stones set in two rows the length of the cemetery. This will add much to our town, because like many other old cemeteries, it had been neglected.

Rally Day and Harvest Home services have been very popular in our town the last two weeks. The Reformed and Lutheran Churches made their display the past two Sundays, and the United Brethren church held their Harvest Home Service the past Sunday evening. The United Brethren Church is holding a week of Home-Coming Services this week.

The Bixler United Brethren Church held their annual Home-Coming services week before last, and the Miller congregation held their first week in September. Ten different ministers assisted the pastor who is closing his third year pastorate. Seven thousand dollars has been raised this year in charge.

The Pennsylvania and Maryland conference of the United Brethren Church, will convene in the first Church, New Cumberland, Pa., on Oct. 5th., and will be presided over by Bishop Bell, Harrisburg. It will close on Friday evening instead of Sunday evening as had been the custom.

NORTH EAST CARROLL.

Preaching at St. David's (Sherman's) Sunday afternoon, at 2:00, by Rev. A. M. Hollinger, Sunday School, at 8:45; C. E., at 7:00.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bowman, Sunday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kopp and children.

Kridler's Sunday School picnic was well attended, Saturday afternoon. A splendid program was rendered, including a few German songs.

Botanist Recalled as Ben Franklin's Friend

When Benjamin Franklin returned from his long stay in England, where he had spent much time with Peter Collinson, the English botanist, he became highly unpopular with the Americans for a time, and his treatment caused Collinson to write warning letters to the English government, expressing the belief that America might attempt a revolution for independence from the mother country.

It was Collinson's information and encouragement that first induced Franklin to interest himself in electricity and Collinson published his friend's experiments to the Royal society, defended him against their criticism, and secured his election as a fellow, says a writer in the Christian Science Monitor.

As a botanist Collinson obtained many native plants from the early colonists in America and distributed them among landowners in England.

THE HARDWARE QUESTION SOLVED

Going to Build

No matter what you intend to build — whether it's a house, barn or merely a shelf in the pantry — you have to have tools. And the better the tools, the better the job. Poor tools are expensive at any price. They last only a short time and never do first-class work.

To be sure of getting tools worth buying, get them from us and you will be proud of your purchase. In addition to the tools, you most likely will need other things in the hardware line.

We have locks, doorknobs, hinges, brackets, nails and everything you will want.

SEEK SECRET OF "INDIAN KIVAS"

Study of Growth of Trees Helping in Work.

Flagstaff, Ariz.—The sciences of astronomy and botany are conspiring to release a secret locked in the decayed heart of an ancient Indian civilization in this region for perhaps hundreds of years.

The secret is the date on which the Indian kivas (Hopi for "sacred chamber") were built, a fact to be learned through a study of solar activity and the growth of trees.

Dr. E. A. Douglass, director of the Steward observatory here and professor of astronomy at the University of Arizona, years ago began a study of the rings found in tree trunks with a view, among other things, of determining the age of the kivas. To date he has found recorded in the trees "annual rings" a history of climatic changes over a period of five centuries. This chronicle tallies with astronomical observation of solar activity for the period.

His studies have taken him during the last twenty years to England, Norway, Sweden, Prussia, Austria, Bavaria and the states of Oregon, California and Arizona. His interest in prehistoric ruins was aroused by observation of the climatic conditions under which the yellow pine, common in the western Rockies, was growing.

Much of Doctor Douglass' work has been done in this vicinity because the limited twenty-two inches of rainfall assured many clear nights and superb skies for astronomical observations. The forest furnished a wealth of material for botanical studies. The critical problem of the tree was to survive periods of drought rather than to compete with other species of plant life in the struggle for existence, and the wax and wane of tree growth is chronicled in the size of the tree-trunk rings.

The greatest drought in this region, Doctor Douglass finds, was from 1573 to 1586, and the tree rings held the record for more than three centuries before man discovered it. However, the biggest drought in the entire southwest occurred during the years 1729 to 1739.

By studying the ringed beams in the kivas of the old Indian ruins of this section, Doctor Douglass believes he will ascertain climatic conditions at the time they were built. Comparison of such data with the records of Arizona trees and of the big Sequoias of California will reveal, he hopes, the actual years in which the "sacred chambers" were constructed.

GROOM, 101, WAILS
 "Perhaps I talked too much about my first seven wives while my bride and I were on our way home from our wedding," mused Juan Magana, one-hundred-one-year-old bridegroom. "At any rate, she refused to kiss me," he said, "and I am going to sue her for divorce for that reason." The "sheik" and his bride eloped from Stanton, Calif., and were married at Santa Ana.

Sensitive Ears of Blind May Aid in Air Defense

London.—That the abnormally keen hearing common to blind men may be utilized in the defense of England against an attack of hostile aircraft is the suggestion of the National Institute for the Blind in a report of official tests at the army experimental station at Woolwich. Experiment showed that the blind follow the sound of an airplane much longer than a person with sight.

The institute also reported the invention of a special rubber ball, which emits a musical note when hit or kicked, thereby enabling blind persons to follow its course. Hitherto blind people have been unable to play ball games.

Beach for Dogs

Berlin.—Dogs are not allowed to go after sticks and rubber balls on the bathing beaches of the Alster basin, reserved for human beings. So the park commissioner of Hamburg has rigged up an elaborate canine bathing beach set off from the rest of the strand by two concrete piers decorated with half a dozen sculptures of pedigreed dogs.

Krim Is Broke

Fez.—Abd-el-Krim is broke. The erstwhile potentate has only something like half a million francs or $10,000 or so. And the economical French government is trying to pick out a place of exile where the cost of living is low.

BARNYARD ANIMALS

QUACK, quack," said Mrs. Duck.
"Honk, honk," yelled Mrs. Goose.
"Cackle, cackle, cackle," said Mrs. Hen.
"Moo, moo, moo," said Mrs. Cow.
"Ma-a-a," whined Nanny Goat.
"We've thought out things for ourselves," said Mrs. Duck. "Quack, quack, we have done that."
"That is the truth, honk, honk," yelled Mrs. Goose.
"You have said words of sense and honesty, cackle, cackle," said Mrs. Hen.
"To be sure, to be sure you have, moo, moo, moo," said Mrs. Cow.
"You have, ma-a-a-a, you have," said Nanny Goat. "Ah, yes, you have!"
"I was a charming young hen," said Mrs. Hen, and a charming Madame

"Yes, I Quack My Genial, Friendly Way About the Pond."

Hen I will always be. But I like my own name better than I do Mr. Rooster's name, and so I have always kept my own. Such has been the way all the hens have done.
"I am very sweet and friendly," said Mrs. Duck, "but I, too, like my own name better than Mr. Drake's family name, and so I have kept my own name. And all the Ducks have done the same. The family name is so splendid a one."
"Just what I have done, honk, honk," said Mrs. Goose. "I told Mr. Gander that I would be his devoted mate, but that the name of Goose was so famous a name I could not give it up for the dull name of Gander."
"And I said the same to Billy," said

Nanny Goat. "I told Billy that I loved the name of Billy, but that I wanted to be called Nanny all my days, and Billy shook his goatee and said that he thought the idea was good."

"I'm so gentle and so placid, but I told Mr. Bull that I like my name of Cow so much. It has such a pleasant, lazy sound."

"Yes, I quack my genial, friendly way about the pond, but I did insist upon keeping my good old family name of Duck," said Mrs. Duck again.
"The Mr. Roosters crowd and seem so conceited," said Mrs. Hen, "but they're not bossy. They said we should keep the good old barnyard Hen family name for ourselves."

"Ah," said Mrs. Duck, "we love our family names. There are people who have great books in which are the histories of their family names."

"Well, we don't need to have histories written about our names."

"Our names speak for themselves! Yes, anyone can tell just by looking at me that I belong to the good old Duck family."

"And anyone can tell by looking at me that I belong to the good old Cow family," said Mrs. Cow.

"And anyone can tell just by looking at me that I belong to the good old Goose family," said Mrs. Goose.

"So can anyone tell by looking at me that I'm a member of the famous Nanny Goat family," said Mrs. Nanny Goat.

"Anyone can tell by looking at me that I belong to the good old Hen family," said Mrs. Hen.

"Ah, yes," she continued, "Mrs. Duck is right. Our names speak for themselves. We don't have books written about our names, nor do we have to trace back the family names in great books in libraries, as I've heard of some people doing."

"We're much more important than that. Yes, we're really important."

"Really important, quack, quack," said Mrs. Duck.

"Really important, cackle, cackle," Mrs. Hen repeated.

"Really important, moo, moo," said Mrs. Cow.

"Really important, ma-a-a-a," said Nanny Goat.

"Really important, honk, honk," said Mrs. Goose.

"Really important, really important," shouted all the barnyard animals together, and then they all sang this song:

We have names so fine
That are really a sign
Of the splendid families
To which we belong!

And now we sing
This song Jing-a-ling,
Of the splendid families
To which we belong.

RAISE FAIR CROPS ON SEMI-ARID SOIL

Zuni Indians Have Mastered Secrets of Nature.

Two thousand Indians in western New Mexico own something like 200,000 acres of land. This is the Zuni reservation. Two hundred thousand seem like a lot of land for so small a number of people to own, but an Indiana farmer seeing the country for the first time would consider it poor pickling for cattle and hogs, says a writer in the Indianapolis News. And yet, the Zuni Indians make a good living off the semi-arid land, which is cut up into hills, mountains, buttes, mesas, arroyos and a few broad valleys, where corn and melons and squashes are raised. There is some irrigation, but even where there is no irrigation an Indian can, with a crooked stick, punch a few holes in the ground, drop in some grains of corn and raise a fair crop. "With all our scientific knowledge of dry farming and our improved machinery we cannot do as well," declare the white ranchers living in the vicinity.

Centuries of fighting for an existence in the midst of adverse climatic conditions have given the Indian an uncanny knowledge of nature in all her moods. In his own country, which was his when Coronado and the conquistadores came 300 years ago in search of the fabled seven cities of Cibola, he knows exactly where the underground water lies nearest the surface. It is there that he plants his corn, his squash and his water-melon seeds.

The Zunis, together with the other Pueblo Indians, have been able, for the most part, to hold on to their land because it came to them as an inheritance, or rather was left to them by the Spaniards when the latter relinquished their rights in the Southwest. In the treaty with the United States it was stipulated that certain lands surrounding the pueblos should remain in possession of the original owners forever.

The Zunis are independent and self-supporting. They know not the meaning of the word rations. The government furnishes them schools, aids them in obtaining water, improves the breed of their horses and sheep and provides dipping vats for the latter.

The Zuni is peaceable, kind in his family and devoted to children. No orphan in a Zuni pueblo is neglected. "I never heard a Zuni Indian speak a cross word in his home or to his wife, and I never will. It simply isn't done," was the statement made to two Hoosier tourists recently by the principal of the day school in the pueblo of Zuni.

Not a Good "Risk"

Joseph Auslander, the poet, recently applied to a life insurance company for an endowment policy which would pay him a good sum of money regularly after 20 years have elapsed. Several days later, an investigator for the company rang the door bell of one of Auslander's neighbors, Annette Margules, who played the role of Tondeleyo in "White Cargo," and asked for information about him. "Why, Mr. Auslander is one of the greatest living poets—listen to this," cried Miss Margules, and, producing a copy of his volume of verse, "Cyclops' Eye," began to read one of the poems, "But," interrupted the investigator, "has he any money in the bank?" "What difference does that make?" Miss Margules almost shouted, "Why, the man's immortal." "My gosh!" the investigator answered, "that's bad for the insurance company."

Theater for Children

A special theater for school children is being organized in Stockholm as an offset to the influence of the more commercial forms of entertainment. At the outset only matinees will be given at the Oscar theater. Under the leadership of their teachers the pupils of the Stockholm schools, public as well as private, will form an organization, the membership fee in which will entitle each member to attend at a low cost a certain number of performances. Classical plays, high-class comedies and recitals by capable artists will make up the program. The idea is to train discriminating audiences, rather than amateur performers.

Famous Monastery Closed

General Pangalos, President of the Greek republic, recently signed an order dissolving the famous religious community of eight thousand monks established in a monastery on Mount Athos.

For thousands of years this monastery has withstood every invasion of the Balkans, Turkish rule and the wars between the states. It was conducted under monastic regulations of the greatest severity. Not only was access to the mountain forbidden to women and girls, but even to female animals.

Spanish Motor Highway

A direct motor highway from Madrid to Valencia, Spain, 370 kilometers long and paved with cement to a width of twenty meters, is proposed by a company in Spain, according to Augustus W. Ferrin, consul at Madrid. This highway would cross three provinces and pass through or near a number of cities and towns, of which the most important are Toledo, Aranjuez, Cuenca, Alabacete and Chelva, crossing six rivers, whose power would be available for industrial purposes.

Chemicals Becoming Important for Soil

Commercial Fertilizers Are Meeting With Favor.

Truck growers, nurserymen, and greenhouse men are finding it more and more difficult to obtain the required amount of stable manure, and are wanting to know what can be used as a substitute.

No undue concern over the situation is necessary, explains A. W. Blair, associate soil chemist at the New Jersey agricultural experiment station, for it must be remembered that there is no special virtue in the nitrogen, phosphoric acid, and potash contained in manure. Indeed, as they exist in manure, these constituents are more slowly available than when supplied in the form of commercial fertilizers. The nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash contained in manure may be supplied in the form of commercial fertilizers with much less expense and in a more available condition.

On the other hand, the organic matter equivalent of the manure cannot easily be supplied in the form of commercial fertilizers. In the last analysis it is this organic matter that makes the manure so valuable, but in some cases the price has become almost prohibitive. Experiments in vegetable growing at the Rhode Island experiment station have shown that with 16 tons of manure and about 1,000 to 1,500 pounds of a good commercial fertilizer per acre, the yields of vegetables were equal to the yields obtained when 32 tons of manure alone were used.

In a rotation modified to include rye grass and clover as green manure, the yields of all crops, with 16 tons of manure, compared favorably with those where 32 tons of manure were used in the unmodified rotation. Even when the manure was reduced to 8 tons per acre, in combination with fertilizers, in the modified rotation containing green manures, the yields of beets, spinach, and carrots were maintained.

When comparing stable manure with green manure supplemented with commercial fertilizers, the losses incurred due to the shrinkage and handling of the manure are not to be overlooked.

If in vegetable growing the manure application can be reduced from 32 to 16 tons per acre by the use of green manures supplemented by about 1,000 to 1,500 pounds of commercial fertilizers, why spend the extra $50 or $100 for manure?

Decline in Prevalence of Parasitic Disease

A noticeable decline in the prevalence of sheep scab, a parasitic disease especially troublesome in range flocks, is reported by the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture. During the last fiscal year the number of scabby sheep found by federal inspectors was approximately 15 per cent less than for the preceding year. The inspectors, working in cooperation with state officials, made inspections of approximately 25,000,000 sheep and supervised the dipping of more than 4,000,000. No infection was found in Montana and Nevada, and the disease is very rarely found in Utah. In other western range states where the disease is still quite prevalent a decrease is reported in all except South Dakota, Washington, and Wyoming.

To Avoid Trouble Give Ewes Proper Attention

Old ewes need good care. They need to be under the eyes of a man who is skillful enough to avoid trouble. Old ewes will die from hardships that young vigorous ewes would survive with little apparent loss. Under the very best conditions the death loss in a flock of old ewes will be much greater than with young ewes, and in the hands of the inexperienced the losses are likely to be so great that a profit is impossible.

One trouble with buying old ewes is that they may be much older than they are claimed to be. The ages of sheep may be determined with approximate accuracy up to four years old by the appearance of the teeth. After that age it is impossible to tell how old a sheep is by its teeth or appearance.

FARM FACTS

Is the ice house ready to fill this winter?

Do not let your seed corn freeze before it is dry.

All grains or concentrates make better feed for dairy cows if they are ground.

"Gunny sack" and other cloth wrappings securely tied to young trees are protectors against rabbit injury.

Cool milk or cream to not less than 50 degrees Fahrenheit within a few minutes after it is drawn or skimmed. Maintain this temperature.

One pound of grain should be fed for each three to four pounds of milk given by the dairy cow, depending on per cent of fat in the milk.

The type of lard hog that is now most economical to raise is one that presents an upstanding appearance, lengthly in body, with a strong well-arched back, deep smooth sides and shoulder and a deep-well-rounded ham.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

BY JOSEPH KAYE

At 21: Owen Davis Was Already a Playwright.

AT THE age of twenty-one I was already writing plays and had decided that my aim in life was to continue doing just that.

"I was, however, still a student at Harvard then and did not leave college until I was twenty-nine. In the meantime I had married, so that I was well established for a professional career.—Owen Davis."

TODAY—Owen Davis is the phenomenon of the theatrical and literary world. Until a few years ago his reputation as dramatist was not high; he had written about a hundred plays, practically all of them melodramas and most of them thrillers of the good old ten-twenty-thirty days. He was the author of "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model" and plays of a similar type without end. About fifty of them were produced by A. H. Woods, who began his producing career with these melodramas, and got them down to such a system that he used to print the posters—great glaring, lurid affairs depicting hair-raising climaxes—and then call in Owen Davis or Theodore Kramer, another melodramatic specialist, and tell them that he wanted a play to fit the posters. In two or three weeks the play was ready.

But suddenly Owen Davis wrote "Icebound," a purely literary production, a serious interpretation of life, and so arresting a picture of American life that it won the Pulitzer prize as the best American play of the year. "Icebound" came without warning. Only a year or two ago he had written "Forever After" for Alice Brady, a play of the typical Davis brand, and Broadway was astonished, to put it mildly.

Since then Davis has written several other plays, all of them in his new style and he has won such acclamation as to be classed with Eugene O'Neill as one of this country's greatest playwrights.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

FRIDAY'S NOSEBLEED

IT BRINGS good luck to have the nosebleed on a Friday—especially in matters of love. This old superstition is a relic of Norse mythology and originates from the fact that Friday is named from the Norse goddess of love, who was often confounded with another goddess of the same name—or of so nearly the same that it is not always certain which goddess is meant—who was the wife of Odin and was the bestower of good fortune. At any rate, Friday was dedicated to Freya who, among other things, was the goddess of abundance.

Now the gods of the olden time, especially to the northern gods and goddesses, there was no more acceptable offering than blood. In high-vaulted and ancient temples on the Asian shores and on the hills of Greece votaries drew blood from their own bodies before the marble altars and human blood likewise flowed before the grim idols on wild Norwegian coasts and in the depths of Teutonic forests. So when one has the nosebleed on Friday it is, of course, the offering of one's blood to the great goddess to whom the day is dedicated. And such an offering might reasonably be expected to bring good luck. In the great world of shadows, the land of superstition, there are not many things that one may safely do on a Friday, but he can have the nosebleed, and that with the most beneficial results. Freya's altars are no more, but human blood is still an acceptable offering to the goddess of Friday, as it was in long, dim centuries before the Viking keels found Vineland.

Lesson for October 3

ISRAEL JOURNEYING TOWARD CANAAN

LESSON TEXT—Numbers 10:11-36.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come thou with us and we will do thee good.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Journey of Long Ago.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Journeying in the Wilderness.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Israel Learned in the Wilderness.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How God Guides His People.

Israel remained almost one year at Sinai. It was a veritable schooling for them. Their stay was necessary.

1. To allow them to recuperate from the effects of many years of slavery.
2. To train them morally and spiritually for the great work before them. The wonderful transactions at Sinai served to inspire them with courage and hope, for through them they came to know God as their king and themselves as His covenant people.

3. To have them thoroughly organized. This was not only necessary for the march, but for the warfare in gaining possession of the land of Canaan.

1. Marching From Sinai at the Hand of Moses (vv. 11-28).

The nation had now grown to a great host—the army itself of 603,550 strong. Allowing three persons to every soldier, there would be 1,810,650. The army was organized into four great sections or divisions with three tribes to each division. The Levites were organized on the basis of the three sons of Aaron—Gershon, Kohath and Merari. The Kohathites had the principal place about the tabernacles—charge of the most precious things. The Gershonites had the next place of honor, while the drugery fell upon the Merarites.

2. The signal given (v. 11).

The lifting of the cloud from off the sanctuary was the signal for the camp to be broken and the march to begin. The signal given to rest (v. 12). Just as the sign to march must be recognized, so the sign to rest must be obeyed.

3. The Commander (v. 13).

God was the Commander through His servant, Moses.

4. The order of the march (vv. 14-18).

As they marched the division led by Judah went forward, followed by Gershon and Merari bearing the coarser part of the tabernacle. Then marched Reuben's division, followed by the Kohathites bearing the sacred utensils of the tabernacle. These were followed by the division of Ephraim and Dan. The ark occupied a central position with the moving caravan.

II. Moses Seeking the Help of Hobab (vv. 29-32).

Hobab was a shrewd child of the desert. Moses thought therefore that his knowledge thereof would be helpful. The children of Israel were going forth under the guiding care of the Almighty. Surely He could be trusted. Certainly He knew that dreadful wilderness.

1. "We will do thee good."

Moses had faith in God's promises to Israel and could well assure Hobab that good would come to him by identifying himself with God's covenant people.

2. "Thou mayest be to us instead of eyes."

Moses still insisted that Hobab should go along, not only for the good he could get but for the good he might do.

III. Marching to Canaan With the Lord as Leader (vv. 33-36).

Even though Hobab did go with Israel, we never hear of his leading the people. The Lord will not have it so. Observe:

1. "The ark of the covenant of the Lord went before them" (v. 33).

The ark, the symbol of the divine presence, moved out of its place in the midst of the camp and took its place at the head.

2. The cloud of the Lord rested upon them (v. 34).

This was an indication that God was not only leading, but governing His people and protecting them.

3. The Lord's vindication (vv. 35, 36).

Moses' unbelief caused a reproach unto the Lord. This action on the part of God vindicated His leadership. Moses gave recognition to this act of God in identifying himself with His people. When the ark rested and set forward, he exclaimed, "Rise up, Lord, and let thine enemies be scattered and let them that hate Thee flee before Thee," and when it rested—"Return, O Lord, unto the many thousands of Israel."

God's Love

We are taught to think that God's love is the biggest thing in the universe. Let us think of some of the biggest things we know, and then we will lift our eyes upon one that is bigger than all.—J. H. Jowett.

Happiness Counts Most

The will of God respecting us is that we shall live by each other's happiness and life, not by each other's misery. Men help each other by their joy, not by their sorrow.

What Is Education? How Get It? How Use It?

2 Timothy 2:15

"Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman unashamed of his work." This was written to a leader in Christian service by a mature and experienced servant of God.

Education is the gateway to service. If it be Christian service, then the gateway must be Christian education. All education is not Christian, nor are all our educational institutions, even though they bear the name of some church or denomination, Christian. In a book entitled The Menace of Modernism, by W. B. Riley, it is stated that the president of a Baptist university in America, said in the presence of Dr. Riley, "Jesus Christ was no more authority upon questions of modern biblical criticism than Thomas Aquinas was upon the modern electric light." No one desiring education for Christian service could find it in that institution. Jesus Christ is the Lord from heaven; He is God manifest in the flesh; He is the object of faith. Anything that minimizes His authority, supremacy and sufficiency in any realm, arrests, retards and sometimes destroys faith. Faith is the supreme qualification for Christian leadership and service. The education of faith is God's supreme concern.

Moses was an educated man, but it was "by faith" that he made the great choices of his life, and "by faith" that he became the great emancipator and leader of God's people, and "by faith" that he endured all the testings of life "seeing him who is invisible" (Heb. 11:25, 26).

Paul was an educated man, but the dominant principle and power of his life was faith. See Galatians 2:20; 2 Timothy 4:7. Faith is being sure of God. "Without faith it is impossible to please God." No educational institution where the Bible is discredited and faith in the deity and atonement of Christ is undermined, can ever be a gateway to Christian service, it is rather a barrier.

Christian parents and Christian young people need to exercise great care in the choice of a college. A course of study in a college where due reverence is given to the things of God and His Word, is a priceless boon, and is indeed the gateway to the highest kind of service. There are several such colleges in our land, the most notable one being Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill. Christian young people anticipating a college career would do well to examine the catalogue of this college.

Pretty Legends Told About "Fairy Crosses"

"Fairy crosses" are natural crosses formed of iron pyrites, aluminum silicate or other minerals and are supposed by some people to bring more good luck than the proverbial rabbit's foot. They are found in great abundance in certain parts of Virginia, Georgia and other states. The mountaineers of the Blue Ridge mountains have an interesting myth as to the origin of these "fairy stones." They say that in the dim past, when the red men were masters of America, the Great Spirit showered down these crosses as a sign of coming salvation to the savage race. Another legend, the one which gives the crosses their name, says that when Christ was crucified fairy messengers carried the sad news to all parts of the world. When the tidings reached the fairies in the mountains they ceased their merry pranks and began to make these crosses as mementoes of the event.—Exchange.

Hoop Skirt Furnished Electrical Men Idea

The Empress Eugenie's hoop skirts made a contribution to the advancement of electricity, according to Frank H. Stewart, a Philadelphia veteran of the electrical industry. The beautiful consort of Napoleon III, just prior to the birth of the prince imperial, created the new-fangled fashion in skirts. At once the fashion spread all over the civilized world. But the wire frames for these skirts rusted and stained the cloth. It thereupon became necessary for these frames to be wrapped in some sort of protective textile. The machinery designed to wrap this wire was at hand and was converted to a new use when electrical men decided that copper wire for carrying electric current ought to be insulated. So the insulating industry evolved out of the hoop-skirt industry.

Water

Absolutely pure water is completely tasteless, consisting as it does only of two tasteless and odorless gases. In fact, absolutely pure water is also invisible and we are only aware of it by feeling it. One reason, of course, why we can't taste it is that our own bodies are very largely composed of water, and that the cells with which we taste are, therefore, aware of no "foreign body" with pure water.

In Practice, however, perfectly pure water only exists when distilled by the chemist. Our ordinary water has either come through perhaps miles of earth, picking up all sorts of salts on the way, while if it is direct rain water, it is heavily charged with soot and dirt from the air.

Shortest Way Home

John Phillip Sousa, famous bandman, said at a banquet in New York: "To succeed in grand opera here at home American girls first go abroad and succeed in Paris, London, Milan and Naples. The longest way round in their case is the shortest way home, you see."

"It's like Smith. "So your beautiful young wife refused to marry you when you first proposed?" I said to Smith in the course of a confidential chat. "Did you keep on pursuing her till she consented?" "Not much," said Smith. "I went out and made a fortune. After that it was she who did the pursuing."

New Yellowstone Planned

Plans for developing the system of parks in Denver, Colo., are so ambitious that if they are carried out, the city maintains, it will have something on a par with the Yellowstone National park. The board has at its disposal 470,000 acres of parks extending from the foothills of the continental divide and between the Platte river and Clear creek to work with. The tract is 30 miles long and 25 miles wide, and includes mountains, game reserves, lakes and highways. The federal government will be asked to aid in some respects. Herds of wild animals and large fish hatcheries will be included.

Proper Fur Treatment

Beginners lose thousands of dollars every year through wrong methods of taking care of animal pelts, says Capper's Weekly. To bring top market prices, skinning, stretching and drying must be done just right, and it pays to learn how before mutilating a valuable skin. Skins of animals like mink, weasel, possum, skunk, civit, muskrat and wolf should be cased, that is, taken off whole. With raccoon, badger, beaver, bear and cougar open skinning is best—ripping the skin down the belly before taking it off. Every bit of flesh and fat should be cut from the skins, being careful to avoid cutting the pelt.

Radium Found in Siberia

Rich veins of radium and other rare metals have been discovered in the Ekimchansky region of the Amur province, Siberia. A telephone line has already been constructed, co-operatives organized, and general signs of life are present in this formerly desolate region.

New deposits of phosphates were recently found in 14 different localities of the government of Voronezh. The total area of these localities covers about 140 square miles and the deposits are estimated at 125,000 tons.

Has Right to Title

"Father of Want Ad"

In 1672 John Houghton, a fellow of the Royal society, established a weekly paper for the improvement of husbandry and trade, and undertook to educate the merchants of England in the art of advertising. First he established a bureau for supplying servants to masters and masters to servants, carrying on operations through advertising. From this he went into the advertising of schools, houses and lodgings to let and so forth, laying down the idea of what has grown into our present "want ads." He instructed the public class by class, including lawyers, physicians and farmers to use his columns, and built up a large miscellaneous patronage for his paper. The clergy in particular found his columns an excellent medium for securing or disposing of second-hand sermons, for there were no Monday morning papers in those days, with ever-present reporters, and a sermon could be preached around in various parishes until it was worn out.

John Houghton was the first "little schoolmaster in the art of advertising," and his efforts resulted in great increases in the use of newspapers as a medium in furthering trade. Books continued to lead among the things advertised—particularly novels, which had an immense vogue during the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries. After the great fire of London the advertising columns of the paper were extensively used as a means of recruiting scattered families, and advertising was also in favor as a medium for perpetuating hoaxes on the public and of setting forth political opinions.

Daniel Defoe was the cleverest and most persistent advertiser of his day—from 1685 until 1728, when he published the last of a long list of miscellaneous books. Known now chiefly by his "Robinson Crusoe," it has been generally forgotten that Daniel Defoe was an active pamphleteer, writing upon topics that were uppermost in the popular mind and taking advantage of each whim or craze to sell his work.—Frank Presbrey in the World's Work.

TANEYTOWN LOCALS

Items of news from town, or vicinity are always wanted for this column. Especially accidents, sales of real estate, fires, important happenings, visits to or from the community social events, and all matters of general interest to those at home, and away from home.

John E. Davidson who has been very ill for the past several weeks remains about the same.

Miss Mary Hesson and Mabel Leister attended the Sesqui, in Philadelphia, last week, returning on Sunday.

Miss Rose Crabbs is spending some time with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Troxell, at Emmitsburg.

Harry L. Feeser has bought the former Dr. F. H. Seiss property, on Baltimore St., from Harry Ecker, on private terms.

Mrs. Edith Mish and grand-daughter, of Washington, were recent guests of Mrs. Margaret Stott and Miss Anna Galt.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. M. Ohler, Jr. and family, removed to Hanover, on Thursday, where Mr. Ohler has a job in the shoe factory.

Mrs. Carroll Dodder and daughter, Shirley, of Littlestown, spent last week with friends in Taneytown and also attended the Fair.

Misses Belva Koons and Anna May Fair, spent last Saturday and Sunday, in Hanover, with Misses Anna and Grace Null.

Please note our first page requests that Calendar and Christmas Card orders be placed with us, now. This is to your interest, as well as ours.

Mrs. William H. Yingling, of Westminster, and Misses Margaret and Jane Yingling, of town, were callers at the home of Mrs. Jesse Myers, on Friday.

Householders should watch the cold damp days of early Fall, and start fires sufficiently to overcome dampness. Coal is still cheaper than doctors bills and medicine.

Mrs. John Marker, of Littlestown, returned home on Friday, after having spent the week with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Merwyn C. Fuss and family.

Pius Hemler shot a heron, or crane, on Tuesday, that alighted on a pond at his place. It measured over 6-ft. in stretch of wings, and 56 inches from beak to toes.

Mr. and Mrs. John Yingling, entertained at dinner, on Sunday, Mrs. Wm. H. Yingling and son, Wm. B. Yingling, of Westminster, Misses Margaret and Jane Yingling of town.

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Koons and son, Carroll, of town, and Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Koons, of Baltimore, visited the former's mother, Mrs. Sarah Koons and family, at Keymar, on Sunday.

The first Parent-Teacher's meeting for this season was held on Monday evening in the new school building. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Pres., Mrs. Albertus Riffle, Vice-Pres., Mrs. Stewart King; Sec. and Treas., Mr. Harry Ecker. The next meeting will be held on Monday evening, Oct. 25th.

J. Frank Royer, of Gull Lake, Canada, visited his sister, Mrs. Jno. H. Kiser, this week. He was accompanied by Mrs. Kiser's daughter, Mrs. Mary Griffin and her daughter, Miss Velma Smith. They will leave for Detroit this Saturday where the latter is due to enter College, on Monday. Mr. Royer is making the trip by auto.

The baseball game this Saturday afternoon at 3:00 with the strong York, Pa., team, will be the last game of the season. The Taneytown Stars have been giving us high class baseball this year, and this game should be very largely attended as a benefit to the team, and a recognition of what it has done—won 9 games and lost 3, with semi-professional opponents.

Carroll Dutera Dern left on Tuesday morning to enter Temple University, Philadelphia. This is the great school that was founded and supported very largely by the late Rev. Dr. Russell H. Conwell, who delivered his famous lecture "Acres of Diamonds" thousands of times, the proceeds of which went to the University.

Jerry D. Overholtzer and Levi Frock returned home, on Tuesday evening, after spending a few days in Philadelphia. They visited the Sesqui-Centennial and other places of interest, and also walked over the new bridge connecting Philadelphia and Camden, N. J., which has a span of 1750 feet long, and a clearance of 135 feet over a width of 800 feet in center of span, above high water.

Mrs. John Spurrier, of Johnsville, Md., spent the past week with Miss Lulu Brower.

At the Bedford, Pa., Fair, this week, Abbie Dryad owned by C. E. Dern, and driven by E. L. Crawford, won the 2:16 pace. Axie Hale owned by Carroll Crawford won third money in the 2:30 trot. Dillen Seymour owned by Scott White won fourth money in the 2:26 pace.

William Anders, wife and daughter, Miss Beulah, and John Moser, of Keysville, were entertained on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Windesheim, at Pikesville, Md., and by Mrs. Anders' uncle, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Fox, at Arlington.

The folks who take shellbarks, walnuts or fruits, without permission, are plain thieves and liable to prosecution as such, as much so as chicken thieves. A few arrests and prosecutions of this class would likely have a beneficial effect in this community.

Louis J. Hemler has sold off from the former McKellip drug store property, back lots to Dr. C. M. Benner, Chas. E. H. Shriner and Taneytown Savings Bank, reserving the width of an alley. This will be a very desirable addition to the properties, as the lots have been only 66 feet deep.

Rev. and Mrs. S. R. Kresge, Miss Ruthanna Rodkey, Miss Evelyn Brown, Mrs. Shreeve and Mrs. Ernest Myers, motored to Hagerstown, on Tuesday to attend the Women's Missionary Convention of Potomac Synod of the Reformed Church, which met in Christ Reformed Church, Sept. 28th to 30th.

Taneytown needs a Justice of the Peace, very much. There ought to be some competent person in the town who would be willing to accept this very responsible and necessary office. Who will find the man, and urge his appointment? The difficulty may be in finding one with a suitable room for office work.

John D. Ohler, while working on the farm of Peter R. Wilhide's, went out in the field for the plow. The cows were out and Mr. Ohler put them in, and while stooping down to fix the fence, a bull butted him over and rolled him for about a hundred yards; knocked one tooth out and one up in the gums, gored him in the ribs, requiring him to be bandaged.

Mrs. M. H. Reindollar was given a surprise party and dinner, on Wednesday night, in honor of her 76th birthday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry I. Reindollar. In addition to the home folks, Mrs. Edgar Thomson and son, Wallace, and Frank T. LeFevre and son, Albert, of Ohio, were present. Mrs. Reindollar and Miss Williams accompanied the Ohio folks home, on Friday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. M. Ott, of Taneytown, are entertaining Mrs. Ott's mother, of Mercersburg, Pa., also her brother, J. E. Ott and wife, of Ottawekansas. On Sunday another brother, D. W. Ott, of Mercersburg, and his daughter, Miss Isabelle, will join the company and spend the day, then all the guests will return to Mercersburg in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Ott will start to their home in Kansas next week. Also, on Sunday evening George Crabbs and wife, and little daughter, Dorothy, and Scott Crabbs and Agatha Harner, visited the same place. Mrs. Harry Wantz also called.

Robert W. Clingan and E. C. Valentine attended the Dempsey-Tunney prize fight, in Philadelphia, last week.

Harry A. Allison has been ill, all week, and his condition does not show any improvement this Friday morning.

LAST PAGE EDITORIAL.

Living on Main Street.

Living on Main Street is not only an advantage, but a responsibility, whether considered actually or figuratively. We owe the Street something; for whether we have gained prominence by climbing or by being boosted, we ought to be an honor to our promotion—our Street.

Unfortunately, there are shabby Main Streeters, who seem somehow to be out of place, because they do not match their surroundings. This may be represented by an ill-kept home, or business place, and their carelessness, or lack of proper pride, discounts the whole street. They do not live up to their responsibilities.

The Main Street of life has the same misfits. Men who are in position to be leaders and ornaments in a community, neglect their chance. They are good citizens—if at all—by a very small margin, when they ought to be out in front marching with the leaders.

No town, nor community can be better than the folks who live in it. Progress, thrift, business, or honored leadership, comes only from the individual, and not from the natural resources of surroundings. We must make our Main Streets by individual merit, and by "living up" to highest possible ideals.

If it is a property that needs "sprucing up" let it have it! If it is a profession that you are in, don't be a loiterer! If it is up to you to be an upstanding man in character, don't be a loafer on the job.

Great Frederick Fair.

The program of entertainment and exhibits at the Great Frederick Fair, October 19, 20, 21 and 22, will be of exceptional merit this year. In addition to the usual excellent vaudeville, racing and fine exhibits in every department, a musical festival by Roy D. Smith's Royal Scotch Highlanders Band, with a corps of famous soloists, will be an outstanding feature every day of the Fair. This will afford a rare opportunity to hear the "Best Band that ever played any Fair," with Miss Dora Hilton, Dramatic Soprano, the "Girl with the Golden Voice," and Bobbie Broilier, the famous Scotch Tenor among the attractions. You cannot afford to miss the Frederick Fair this year.
