

DUNCAN FOUND GUILTY AND SENTENCED.

Gets Six Years for Shooting his Father.

Lawrence Duncan, on trial in the Frederick County Court, was found guilty, on Friday last, of shooting his father, Harvey Duncan, at the home of the latter, near Harney, several months ago. The accused is but 23 years of age, and he and his wife, aged 19 years, live in Adams county, Pa., north of Harney. He has a son two months old.

The shooting occurred following an altercation between father and son, and seems to have largely been due to the effect of liquor drunk by the young man. The evidence, and the circumstances connected with the case were of such a character as to cause Judge Worthington to withhold his sentence until Monday.

Harvey Duncan, the father is a miller, and owns the small farm tenanted by Mr. and Mrs. Pauley with whom he lived. He was shot in the right breast, the bullet striking a rib and coming out under the arm, the wound proving not to be serious.

On Monday, sentence was imposed, as follows: Assault with intent to kill, six years in the penitentiary; assault, four years in the penitentiary, the terms to run concurrently, concealed weapons, sentence suspended. The total length of the term, therefore, will be six years.

Judge Worthington stated that with reference to the wife and baby, the innocent always had to suffer with the guilty, and he had in mind a sentence anywhere from six to twelve years.

Lutheran Brotherhood Banquet.

A local event out of the ordinary, occurred on Thursday night, following the recent team contest for new members for the Lutheran Brotherhood when the losing team No. 1 entertained the winning team No. 2 at a banquet at Sauble's Inn. A touch of St. Patrick's day was given the event, in the wearing of an elaborate green headgear by the No. 1 team, on the march from the church to Sauble's.

The menu was one for which this popular inn is famous, and consisted of turkey and fixin's too numerous to mention. The event, by the way, was the first to be held in the enlarged dining room which can now seat 150 guests. Of the 140 members of the Brotherhood, 126 were present, as well as the choir of the church and a number of special guests.

Following the feast a business and social session was held, enlivened by the following attractions; vocal solos by Mrs. W. V. Garrett; violin solo by Ralph Davidson; solos by the Hess male quartet; several short addresses; and the address of the evening by Mr. C. A. Gundersdorf, of Baltimore, who was at his best in a medley of humor and remarks of a more serious character in harmony with the spirit of the occasion. There were also various vocal stunts provided by some of the guests, largely referring to the recent contest.

Inspecting Carroll County Camps.

(For the Record.) George A. Curtiss, National Organizer for the Patriotic Order Sons of America, is spending some time in Carroll County inspecting the Camps of the county and looking into the advisability of placing a Camp of the Order in Westminster.

Before coming to Maryland, Mr. Curtiss placed a Camp in the suburbs of Lancaster, Pa., with over 300 charter members. The officials of the State Camp of Maryland who have met him pronounce him an affable, courteous christian gentleman. Mr. Curtiss may be seen any day the coming week in Westminster, except Saturday afternoon and Sunday. In all his work for the order, successful though he has been, he refuses to talk order matters on the Sabbath day.

Canning Outlook Not Bright.

According to news reports from the Eastern Shore, prospects for the growing of peas, corn and tomatoes this year, is not bright. Contracts so far made are few, by comparison with other years, and contract prices are low. The canners are said not to be seeking contracts, but will largely depend on the open market.

Tomatoes are said to have the best outlook of the three crops, but present stocks of all are very heavy, due to the supply being greater than the demand. In recent years the number of canneries has greatly increased, with the result that the market is overstocked.

The situation during the next few weeks will be closely watched, and perhaps after all the way may be opened to a fair season.

Stills Void Fire Policies.

Judge Frank, of Baltimore, instructed a jury to find a verdict for a Fire Insurance Company, on the ground that operating a still on the premises nullified a Fire insurance policy, under the clause against "extra hazards."

The suit was brought against the Hartford Fire Insurance Co., to recover $500 loss on furniture in a fire occurring in Anne Arundel county. It was testified that during the fire, a still had been carried from the house.

NAME YOUR FARM.

It is Good Business and Good Advertising.

If we owned a farm—especially a good one along a much travelled road—we would give it an appropriate name, and put up a handsome board containing it, where passers-by could easily see and read it. There is something very business-like about it, it is good advertising, and shows a certain laudable pride in ownership that is bound to dignify the profession of farming.

Such names are often suggested by the farm itself, or its location, or its product specialty. Such names as "Oak Grove," "Meadow View," "Spring Valley," "Overlook," "Shady Lane," "Thrifty Acres"; or by adding "Dale" or "Heights" to the owner's name; or "Upland Orchard," or if dairying or stock raising is a specialty, names can be fitted to these.

A little thought can easily develop an appropriate name; possibly an old deed may suggest one, or there may be some historic or legendary connection that will supply it.

Named farms are growing quite popular in some sections, and these names are placed on printed stationery for use by the owner. Some names may be inspirational, too, and supply a motto to live up to, or may easily stand for a sort of trade-mark for quality products. Think it over, and try giving the farm a name. It is an experiment that will cost too little to pass by.

Summer Camps for Boys.

Applications for permission to enroll for summer camps run by the National Government are coming in much earlier this year than last. Looks as if the quota for this section would be filled early. These applications are for C. M. T. C. Camp run by the National Government, with the object of training in better citizenship. Health, athletics, citizenship military training, first aid, are some of the things gone into.

The afternoons at these camps are devoted to athletics such as baseball, football, basketball, track, swimming, tennis, etc. All branches have experts in their line as coaches, and every boy attending camp must take part in some form of athletics.

Mr. Eugene Walsh, Chairman for Carroll County states there are a great many more applications coming in from Carroll County than in previous years at this time, and expects the quota for the county to be filled early. Mr. Walsh is handling these applications, and blanks can be had from him. Applications from Westminster so far in, includes the following: George M. Parke, Henry B. Kemmy, Vincent A. Tubman, Weldon B. Benson, John Woodward.

All boys from Maryland attend camp at Fort Eustis, Va., on the James River, near Yorktown and Jamestown Island. The boys from Eastern Pennsylvania go to Fort Howard, Maryland on Chesapeake Bay. Any boy from 17 to 24 years of age; of good moral character, is eligible to attend these camps. All expenses from the time the boy leaves home until he returns home are paid by the government.

Last year, Taneytown was fairly well represented at this Camp, seven or eight boys attending, and it was the second year for several of them.

"Inside" Information for Women.

Ruffled tie-back curtains of cream-colored voile or marquisette over a glazed chintz shade are charming for a girl's bedroom.

A pretty garnish for salad is made of sharp-flavored club cheese rolled in the shape of a carrot, with a sprig of parsley at the big end.

Colors in foods add attractiveness to a meal. Green or other bright fruits and vegetables, egg yolk, yellow cheese, browned meats or bread or cake crusts, are all examples of appetizing colorful foods.

Very sweet foods have a tendency to blunt the appetite for other foods that supply materials the body needs. It is best, therefore, to serve sweets in small quantities, or toward the end of a meal.

An appetizing dessert or salad can be made of cooked prunes with the pits removed and the cavities stuffed with cream cheese or cottage cheese seasoned with salt and thick cream. Dates and figs can be used in the same way.

In making boiled icings for a cake, if it does not seem to be cooked enough after it has been taken from the fire, it can be reheated in the top of a double boiler, even after the sirup has been poured over the egg white.

Rich, heavy foods should be served with lighter, more succulent foods. This evens up the calories and avoids too heavy tax on the digestive system. For example, a light lettuce salad is relished with a heavy meat dish.

Contrast in flavor is important in a meal. Don't repeat the same flavor too often. For instance, even though we liked tomatoes, we would not relish a meal commencing with tomato soup, followed by tomato sauce on the meat, or stewed tomatoes, and fresh sliced tomato salad.

Homes for Birds.

Farmers' Bulletin 1456-F, "Homes for Birds," contains detailed information relative to the construction of bird homes and also illustrations of several types of houses. A copy of the publication may be obtained free, as long as the supply lasts, upon application to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

NEW GASOLINE TAX IN EFFECT APRIL 1.

To be Used for the Building of More Roads.

The new gasoline tax bill adding 1½ cents to be used for constructing lateral roads that has passed both houses of the legislature, will go into effect April 1. The bill provides that one-fifth of the tax shall go to Baltimore City, and the remainder to the counties, distributed according to the mileage of roads in each county.

The operation of the legislation will be as follows: "With the purchase of each gallon of gasoline by motorists all over the State, except those exempted, a cent and a half will be added to the cost. Motorists claiming exemption will have to apply to the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles for special license tags in place of their present tags and pay the regular transfer fee of $1.00. With the issuance of the tags each person receiving them will be given a pad of blanks.

With the purchase of each quantity of gasoline the motorist will have to have the dealer sign one of the forms in which shall be stated the amount of gasoline purchased and the number of the tags on the vehicle in which the gasoline was put.

At the end of each month the motorist will have to send the forms to the State Comptroller, together with an affidavit that they are correct. The State Comptroller will return to the respective motorists 1 cent for each gallon of gasoline purchased.

The State Comptroller will collect from each of the wholesale dealers of gasoline in the State 1½ cents for each gallon of gasoline the dealer sells in Maryland. All the funds will be placed at the disposal of the State Roads Commissioner for expenditure in the several counties and in Baltimore city, except that paid by the motorists who are exempt.

After making the rebates to those who claim them, the Comptroller will distribute the remainder to the cities or towns in which the exempted vehicles are operated.

It also will be his duty to investigate all claims for rebates.

It is pointed out that owners of tractors would not be in the list of those entitled to rebate from the tax despite the fact that few tractors in the State use public roads. Interpreters of the bill explained that exemption of tax for tractors was not mentioned in any part of the measure. Aside from the many tractors used on farms in the State, large factories in Baltimore and other cities use the tractors to assist in moving freight and other materials in their plants.

In the Senate Wednesday Senator Colgan attacked the legality of the bill, contending that the measure was unwise, not necessary and a foolish piece of legislation. He maintained that the bill was invalid and that the courts would hold it so.

Information for Farmers.

Heifers get their inheritance for producing ability equally from their sire and their dam.

Pasteurization doesn't destroy food value in milk. A temperature of 145 degrees Fahrenheit for 30 minutes hasn't any marked effect on the chemical make-up of milk or its growth-promoting properties. Some scientists say that pasteurization makes the vitamin which prevents scurvy, less effective. But this same vitamin is also found in fruits and vegetables, so it probably doesn't matter so much. Pasteurization kills disease-producing bacteria in milk.

You can continue a strawberry patch more than two years if you will keep it clean, well cultivated and fertilized, and take out the old plants and save strong young plants each year. It is usually preferable to set new plants each spring and take out the two-year plants after they have fruited.

The chief advantage resulting from the green sprouting of seed potatoes in the light, is that of indicating the strongest eyes. In cutting such tubers it is possible to discard the weak and blind or dead eyes, thereby insuring a practically perfect stand of plants of uniform vigor. When grown for an early crop the plants from sprouted seed are usually ready to dig a few days earlier than those from unsprouted seed and the yield is usually greater.

You can't expect tonics, which the hens take internally to kill coccidiosis, mites, blue bugs, fleas, and those sorts of parasites. Don't waste your money that way. You won't kill the bugs—but you may kill the chickens. Don't sprinkle the dropping boards with hydrated lime. You'll lose a lot of the ammonia that way. A better practice is to mix acid phosphate with the droppings when they are stored.—U. S. Dept. Agriculture.

Dedication of Hall.

Washington Camp No. 7, of Pleasant Valley, P. O. S. of A., will dedicate their new headquarters on Saturday, April 2, and have the promise of the presence of Wm. James Heaps, P. N. P., and other members of the State Executive Committee for the event. Members of the Camps throughout the county have been invited to be present.

The girl or woman who bobs her hair forfeits her membership in the Christian Catholic Apostolic Church of Zion, Illinois.

SUIT AGAINST HENRY FORD.

Million Dollars Libel Claimed from Dearborn Independent.

Aaron Sapiro, on behalf of himself and other prominent Jews, has entered suit against Henry Ford publisher of the Dearborn Independent, for $1,000,000 libel. According to the suit, the Ford publication charged that Sapiro and others were backing a plan to control the co-operative marketing of farm products, and this is denied by Sapiro.

Other articles published in the Independent are also under fire as they refer to certain charges against Jews. Judging from the number of points made by Sapiro's counsel, the case is likely to be long drawn out, and may have a far-reaching effect.

Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, is the chief counsel for Ford. In his opening statement he pictured Sapiro's goal as the control of all the markets of the world. If this dream had come true, said Reed, Sapiro would have headed a gigantic agriculture empire for his own profit and the exploitation of American farmers.

Against this background, Reed described Ford a publisher who owed it to American agriculture and the 600,000 readers of the Dearborn Independent to warn them against Sapiro and the latter's "dream of Empire." This duty was enhanced he said, when investigation showed that many farmers had lost money through the Sapiro co-operative.

In brief, Reed declared, Ford's only defense to the million dollar libel suit was that the charges against Sapiro were true.

Guard Against Scarlet Fever.

"If parents could be taught to realize that the after effects of most of the so-called children's diseases are often more serious than the original illness, greater care would be taken to protect children from catching each others' diseases," Dr. R. H. Riley, Chief of the State Bureau of Communicable Diseases, said in commenting on the prevalence of scarlet fever in the counties this winter.

"Scarlet fever," he continued, "is one of the most serious of these 'neighborly' diseases because of the damage it so often does to the heart, the kidneys or the ears. It is very contagious and grown-ups as well as children are likely to take the disease if exposed to it. Studies of the records show that one out of every two children who come in contact with scarlet fever, comes down with the disease, and one out of every twenty grown-ups. Out of a total of 1383 cases reported to the State Department of Health in 1925, among people of all ages, over one-half occurred among children from five to fifteen years old."

"Each new case comes directly from some previous case. A mild case is just as catching as the more severe cases and just as damaging in its after effects. The disease is spread through the discharges from the nose, throat and ears of those who are ill with scarlet fever. A number of cases have been traced, too, to milk handled by a 'carrier'—a person who had recovered from the disease or who had been in contact with it."

"The first thing to do after a child develops any of the symptoms usually associated with scarlet fever—a chill, vomiting, sore throat and high fever—is to send for a doctor and then follow his directions. The sooner you get the doctor, the better. The sick child should be kept in a room by himself, carefully isolated from the rest of the household. Handkerchiefs or cloths used by the sick child should be burned; knives, forks, spoons, dishes or other utensils used in the sick room, should be sterilized in boiling water. Only by the careful observance of these precautions and keeping all persons away from the sick child except the doctor and the mother or other person who is nursing the one who is ill, can the disease be kept from spreading to others."

Radio Commission Meets.

The new Radio Commission held its first meeting, on Tuesday, and its first order was to extend, indefinitely, thousands of amateur licenses until some plan of action with reference to them is reached. A series of public hearings was provided for, on March 29 to April 1 inclusive.

The tentative schedule of main topics includes widening the broadcasting band, limitation of power, reducing frequency separation, simultaneous broadcasting with same frequency, time division, consolidation of broadcasting service and limiting number of stations.

Following its initial meeting the commission made an appeal for public support.

"It will proceed," the statement said, "just as rapidly as possible, but in order that it may work with justice and fairness to all, it must be in full possession of the necessary facts and, accordingly, it asks the public to be patient and to realize that it is far more important to have the work done right than to have it done so fast that much of it will have to be done over again."

Petition for New Road.

A delegation headed by Thomas Baumgardner, near Emmitsburg, appeared before the Frederick County Commissioners on Monday morning and asked that three miles of road be improved beginning one and a half miles east of Emmitsburg off the state road and extending to the Monocacy river at the Carroll county line. The two to one proposition was offered.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE LEGISLATURE.

Summary of the Week's Leading Events at Annapolis.

The House bill authorizing an increase in Mt. Airy tax rate was passed.

A large number of local bond issues and increases in tax rates, have passed, also a number of laws authorizing incorporated terms to borrow money.

Unless the clergyman concerned is serving as a pastor of an established and organized congregation, or holds the written authority from the proper officers of an ecclesiastical body, it will be a misdemeanor for "any minister of the Gospel, priest or rabbi" to perform a marriage ceremony under a bill introduced by Senator McCordell, Frederick county. The proposed legislation, it is understood is directed at certain so-called "marriage mills" in the State.

The Governor, on Friday, signed the bill providing a $1,000,000 state loan to eliminate one-way bridges on state roads, one-half of the amount to be spent this year and one-half next year.

A bill was introduced in the House, last Friday, that would prohibit the use of convict labor on state roads, or on state institutions.

The lateral roads gas tax bill passed in the House, on Tuesday, 74 to 40, and it seems likely to pass the Senate. The bill adds 1½ cents to the present tax of 2 cents. The bill provides that one-fifth of the amount of the tax shall go to Baltimore city, and the rest to the state for lateral roads.

Four bills were passed in the Senate, limiting the power of direct appointment by the Governor, in that such appointments provide for "the advice and consent of the Senate." One of the bills relates to the appointment of members of the State Board of Education, the others to certain commissions.

Senator Engler introduced a bill authorizing Carroll County to borrow $600,000 for schools. This is likely a bond issue, with a referendum provision.

The bill authorizing Thurmont to borrow $200,000 for improvements, passed the House; also one authorizing the borrowing of $5000, a year, for certain purposes.

A bill was introduced in the House authorizing a loan for $220,000 for Washington county.

A bill has been presented in the House requiring 48 hours notice before a marriage license may be issued.

The Senate, on Wednesday, passed the House bill increasing the effectiveness of prohibition laws in Montgomery county.

A bill was introduced in the House, Wednesday, prohibiting the employment of children under 14 years of age; and another prohibiting children under 16 years working more than 8 hours a day.

A bill was presented authorizing Montgomery county to issue $800,000 of bonds for roads and bridges.

Senator Engler introduced a bill to require the W. M. R. R. Co. to place a flagman at the High St. grade crossing at New Windsor.

The bill extending the corporate limits of Westminster passed on Monday.

Increased Cost of Schools.

The following information is clipped from an article in last Sunday's Baltimore Sun, relative to the increase in cost of schools.

"In 1900 the public schools of the United States cost $215,000,000. That amounted to a tax of $2.83 on every man, woman and child in the United States."

"In 1924 the public schools cost $1,820,000,000! Making due allowance for the large increase in population, that equaled $16.25 per capita, including infants."

In the quarter century the increase in the amount spent for primary and secondary education was 747 percent. And the per-capita tax jumped by 474 percent.

Strangely enough the biggest increase comes not in the cities, but in the country and small towns. In the 257 cities with a population of more than 30,000 the per capita expenditure is about $15, which is $1.25 smaller than the average for the country at large."

Roads to be Oiled.

One-third of macadam roads of Maryland will be oiled and resurfaced before July 1, according to Mr. Mackall, chairman of the State Road Commission. The work will be done before hot weather sets in, which is also before the heaviest traffic. The cost will be about $108,000, and $26,000 is estimated for 52 miles of gravel roads. The total mileage to be oiled is 474 miles.

Returned $7500. to Government.

Senator Greene, of Vermont, who was seriously shot on the streets of Washington during a battle between bootleggers and revenue agents, has returned to the government a check for $7500, voted to him for medical treatment. The Senator was ill for a long time, and still walks with a limp, but holds that the government was not responsible for a personal misfortune.

THE ONTARIO LIQUOR LAW.

"Wet" for some, but Apparently "Dry" for Others.

The Ontario, Canada, Liquor Act, that is held up by some of the "wets" in the United States, will hardly meet the approval of "wets" in general, there or here.

First, there is strict government control, and the full force of the government will be exerted against all forms of bootlegging.

Second, there will be no public drinking, but drinking will be limited to those who hold government permits. The use of liquor is strictly confined to residences, and what constitutes a residence is clearly defined by the law. The principle of local option prohibition is preserved and may be applied to new areas as desired by the electors.

While local option and temperance areas in Canada are respected by the proposed bill for government sale of liquors, residents of those areas will not be prohibited from purchasing liquor from government stores in wet territory and taking it home with them.

The Premier, Howard Ferguson, who offered the control bill for first reading in the Legislature, made this point clear today. "A man living in a dry municipality can take out a permit, purchase liquor from the nearest vendor and take it home in perfect safety," he said. The bill places administration of the Control Act in the hands of a commissioner and the Premier said the commission would be empowered to determine where liquor stores shall be established only in wet areas. Dry territory may change by a three-fifth vote.

Under the bill, liquor can be purchased only by persons holding permits, which are to be granted irrespective of nationality, to those over 21 who have been residents in the province more than one month and to tourists. They may be revoked for abuse and law violation. The fee for the permits, which it is understood will be nominal, will be fixed by the control body. The commission also has power to refuse a permit to an individual without explanation.

"Liquor must be purchased through the government agency. Permits are of five classes:

"Individual permit to a resident of Ontario;

"Individual permit for any period not exceeding one month to a tourist or temporary resident;

"Special permit to physicians, dentists, veterinarians, and those in scientific or mechanical pursuits;

"A special permit for ministers of the Gospel for sacramental purposes.

"The board has further authority to issue a special permit as authorized by the regulations for the purchase of liquor for the special purpose named in the permit.

"Druggists are not permitted to dispense liquor.

"Breweries and distilleries can only sell in the province to the board under a permit from the board.

"No liquor may be consumed in a public place. All liquor must be consumed in the residence or temporary home of the purchaser."

Taken as a whole, we do not believe that the "Canada plan" would be popular in the United States, especially as the Canadian government subdivisions require enforcement of both the spirit and the letter of the law. Of course, the law may be evaded to some extent, but it looks to us very much as though some very large classes of Canadian citizens will have to be "dry," under the law.

Keys to Law-making and High Taxes.

When we talk about taxation, and the high cost of government, we are apt to do so in such general terms as not to know specifically how it all comes about, that public expenditures are increasing and tax rates do not fall, even though the basis of taxation is always growing. Perhaps we take it all as a matter of course, and because we can't help it.

After all, the reason why expenditures and taxes are high, is simple. Somebody, some organization, some interest, some following with a key to the law-making machinery, is always "wanting something," and these wants are "put over" on the tax-payers whether they want them or not.

For instance, there is the $1,000,000 bond issue for doing away with all one-way bridges on state roads. Who is it that wants the wide bridges? Is it the farmers and general tax-payers, or is it the growing class that wants to use state roads for safe and speedy motor travel? Twenty-five years ago, good one-way bridges were wanted, in order to avoid fording the streams; now we want the wide bridges in order that speed may not be slackened in case somebody else wants to cross a bridge at the same time.

And this is the fact, notwithstanding the other fact that $1,000,000 would build quite a considerable mileage of the other roads that are not "state" roads, that a lot of back country taxpayers want and would like to have. Their crowd, however, does not hold a key to the legislative mill, but have their taxes to pay just the same.

The automobile is a great invention, and a mighty costly one—costly even to those who do not own one. This cost is not only immense, as individual investments and upkeep, but immense as a tax bill increaser. And, the automobile is just one of the increasers.

The schools are a good close second. But, one must not "knock" the schools, for so doing places him in the "back number" regiment. But, if we want high cost of government, and high tax bill facts, we must look to these two "modern improvements" for them.

Then, there are all sorts of pension and retirement bills, increase in salary bills, public building bills—and a lot of miscellaneous wants by key holders, that one can easily discover if one thinks it worth while to spend the effort to find them out.

Dawes, Not a Dead One.

Mr. Dawes, it will be remembered, entered upon his duties as Vice-President, with a bang. Apparently, he had designs on a "Dawes plan" for the "rules" of the Senate, and left everybody know it. But, the Senate was not easy to manage, and when it had its inning played all sorts of funny stunts with the Dawes "bang" and applied the "third degree" method of taming the would-be reviser of the rules; and the president of the Senate had to quietly take the taming process, with the best grace possible.

But in the course of time the fun died down, and somehow Mr. Dawes refused to stay tamed. As soon as his duties permitted he toured the country, still lambasting the "rules." Not much came of it, but what did come, was Daweward.

Then came along another session of the Senate, and again "somehow" the chastened but unregenerated reviser of the "rules" developed into a generally recognized able presiding officer. References to "Helen Maria" were not revived, and the "Dawes pipe" went into obscurity.

Mr. Dawes paid strict attention to the business in hand. It would perhaps be difficult to prove, but the conviction is soaking in, that the "Dawes plan" was in working, actual evidence during the past stormy session. Some things happened that showed direction from somewhere, somehow, and some folks accuse Mr. Dawes as being "it."

At any rate, the new "rules" idea is not being so much scoffed at, either in the Senate or out; and again somehow Mr. Dawes seems to be looming up—not as a "dead one"—but as a possible nominee for the Presidency in 1928.

Lots of things may happen before nomination time comes; but this man who is credited as having used in the past some very unusual expressions, and to have unwisely attempted to "big stick" the dignified Senate, is at least, at this particular time very far from being a "dead one" in future political calculations.

Answer These Questions!

Manufacturing places are busy, pay big wages, drain the country districts of labor, and keep up prices. Who buys the product of the manufacturers?

Many of these products are the "pretty" things, the up-to-date luxuries, and the price is "up" because somebody pays it. Who does the paying?

Out in Iowa, thousands of farmers are paying about 13 percent of their crops on mortgage debts. How can anybody pay 13 percent of their income, in interest, and prosper?

Public debts and individual debts represent high taxes and high interest payments. Who are responsible?

A lot of people do not like to hear of supply and demand regulating prices—but they do. How many are trying to increase their supply and cut down their demand?

Living within income is a sure road to financial success. How many are using the road?

Labor strikes for higher pay are pretty generally condemned by those who buy the product of labor. How many engage in a "buyers" strike for their own protection?

A lot of people are yielding to temptation and salesmanship, then complaining about it. Who are at fault?

There is still a lot more of freedom in this country than most people are willing to exercise. What are you doing about your freedom—giving it away?

Public government is largely the kind that "the people" make; and there is a government that one can exercise on his own account. Why run to the former for relief, when you do not use the latter?

In general when you can help yourself, but don't do it, why complain about the cost, and hard times?

Your Responsibility and Mine Toward Prohibition.

We now have the complete address of William Gibbs McAdoo, delivered Jan. 28, before the Ohio State Bar Association, on "Prohibition, Nullification and Lawlessness," without doubt, it is the strongest and most comprehensive address on the subject ever delivered. From it, we select the following paragraphs that go a long way toward summing up the whole matter as covering individual responsibility.

"The campaign to secure nullification of the Constitution by action of the State governments is only one part, although a very significant part, of the widespread advocacy of lawlessness by the opponents of prohibition. Supporters of the Eighteenth Amendment are not engaged in lawlessness. They are yielding obedience to the Constitution and laws.

If those who oppose prohibition would yield the same measure of obedience, there would be no prohibition question. Not only do they refuse obedience but they do not stop with attempting to establish nullification by State action; they are engaged in a vast propagandist enterprise to secure nullification by the private action of individuals.

For this purpose, men of prominence and standing are advancing arguments which they would, no doubt, be the first to condemn if they proceeded from some ignorant anarchist or communist fresh from the oppressions of old-world tyranny, and excusable for not yet understanding the principles of constitutional government.

"Is there no way out? If there is a way, as I believe there is, it will and must aid in providing for the honest and efficient enforcement of the liquor laws no less than of the laws against robbery, murder, and other crimes of violence; the two problems are one, and if it is possible to secure honest enforcement in the case of our ordinary criminal laws, it is equally possible to do so in the case of our liquor laws.

There is a way out—it is the path of duty and obedience to law. It will require the time and the effort and the continual vigilance of honest and patriotic citizens, which they seem reluctant or too indifferent to give except in times of crisis, but which we used to be taught—and rightly taught—is the price we must pay for liberty and good government.

The long hard road which lies before us and the long hard battle for which we must gird ourselves is to break down the power of the corrupt political machines and rings which form the connecting link between crime and politics; and which, not content with holding so many of our large cities in their grip, are now insolently reaching out to control the politics of some of our great States and even of the National Government itself."

American Forest Week.

The week of April 24-30 has been officially designated for nation-wide observance as 'American Forest Week' by President Coolidge, in a proclamation made public by the United States Department of Agriculture.

This year will mark the seventh annual observance of the week, President Harding in 1921 having issued the first proclamation which brought the Federal Government behind the movement. Of the numerous weeks observed in the country, this is the only one to which the Government of the United States has given recognition and support.

The President proclaimed the 1927 American Forest Week "in the belief that no other of our internal problems is of greater moment than the habilitation of our forests, now so hopelessly begun but needing the strong support of our collective will and intelligence." He emphasized the importance of farm forestry as a means for lessening agricultural surpluses and meeting the problem of agricultural overproduction, and the resulting depression in the farming industry. Regarding the part forestry might play in farm relief the President said:

"One-fourth of our soil is better suited to timber-growing than anything else. I can not escape the conviction that our industrial and agricultural stability will be strengthened by bringing into full productive use this great empire of land. Although much progress has been made in public forestry and hopeful beginnings in private forestry, we still have a vast aggregate of idle or semi-idle forest land, and another large aggregate of poor farm land that might more profitably grow timber instead of adding to the problem of agricultural overproduction."

Agriculture would find in timber growing a strong ally, the President said, providing markets for farm produce and for surplus labor.

American Forest Week this year will assume an international scope through the fact that Canada will observe forest week at the same time. Through the Department of State, the Mexican Government also has been invited to participate in this year's campaign for the protection, perpetuation and right use of the forests.

In making public the President's proclamation, Secretary of Agriculture Jardine pointed out that special significance is attached to the observance of the week in 1927 in view of the disastrous fire season through which the country passed last summer and of the need for bringing home to the people of the Nation the necessity for adequate protection of the forests. Co-operation between the Federal Government and the States under the Clark-McNary Act has just got into full swing as well, he said, and 41 States and the territories of Hawaii and Porto Rico are now co-operating with the Government in the forest protection and reforestation activities for which the law provides. Thirty States have appointed Extension Foresters and are co-operating with the Government in assisting farmers in the handling of their woodlands.

The Week will be directed by an American Forest Week Committee, of which Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois is chairman. Nearly 100 organizations, representing a wide variety of interests, are co-operating, among them associations representing outdoor, wild life, and recreational interests, foresters and forestry associations, the lumber industry, consumer of forest products, labor, scientific, civic, and women's organizations, as well as the State and Federal Governments.

The American Federation of Labor, the Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange, the American Legion, the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, the Boy Scouts, and Camp Fire Girls, the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, General Federation of Women's Clubs, Young Women's Christian Association, National Catholic Welfare Conference, the Daughters of the American Revolution, and the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America are included among the co-operating organizations. Local Forest Week Committees are being organized in every State.—U. S. Dep't Agriculture.

Concrete Resembles Coral

"Gassing" concrete to give it added lightness is a novel idea recently developed in Sweden. While the concrete, a mixture of sand, gravel and cement, is still soft, gas is introduced into the mixture. This, says Popular Science Monthly, has the same effect on the concrete as yeast has on bread, filling it with small holes. The concrete so produced is said to be just as strong as the ordinary product, but much lighter, requiring less steel to support it.

SEEKS DEATH TREE IN DARKEST AFRICA

Explorer Goes on Long, Dangerous Trip.

Cape Town—A man who is searching for what is termed "the death tree" arrived in South Africa recently. He is Alex Clive, and he intends to penetrate into the heart of Africa to seek for the tree which means death to those who drop asleep beneath. The death tree, Mr. Clive declares, grows somewhere in the heart of Africa. It gives off a very powerful perfume which probably means death to an unwary person in its vicinity, for if anyone rests beneath it he is overcome by the scent and falls asleep never to wake.

This tree, Mr. Clive believes, contains some powerful drug which might possibly mean a great deal to science and humanity, but the death tree is not the only reason for the expedition, as he is also keenly interested in entomology, geology, and botany, and intends to collect specimens for exhibition in London, which, he hopes, will lead to reach in about 18 months, and will place his specimens before the board of scientific research.

Mr. Clive states that he is proceeding to Bloemfontein and Durban, and thence to Lourenco Marques, Beira, Mozambique, Nairobi, and on to the Victoria falls, and Nyanza, where he will cross the lake to Kampala. At Kampala his quest for the death tree begins in earnest, as he will have to strike inland on foot.

Making of Matches Gives Jobs to Many

Wadsworth, Ohio.—"Got a match?" A simple request easily complied with, but not so prosaic is the story of the making of the wood sliver with inflammable tip.

The match starts its journey to somebody's vest pocket in a towering pine forest, hundreds of miles away from the final center of manufacture. Forests, railroads and sawmills are owned by the match companies, which have great factories here.

One company owns a great tract of timber in the Coeur d'Alene mountains of Idaho. A company railroad, 24 miles long, takes the logs to the main line of the Spokane International railroad, which hauls them to Coeur d'Alene lake, where they are put into booms and towed to the company's sawmill on the Spokane river.

The logs are sawed into two-inch planks and seasoned for a year or 18 months. When ready for use, they are sent to the company's block plant at Spokane. Selected lumber there is cut into blocks 2 3/4 inches long, which is the exact length of a match. The blocks are sent to the factory here, a 2,000-mile journey.

The first manufacturing step is to feed the blocks into a match machine, which cuts them up and forces the sticks into holes in an iron plate, holding 500 sticks.

Over sprigs and brushes the plates are carried and all the weak and imperfect ones are automatically culled. Next comes treatment by paraffin and chemicals. Then the first composition is put on the head. The sticks pass over a roller, which turns in a box containing the composition. The ignition tip is applied the same way. The use of phosphorus as an active ingredient in match making was barred by congressional act in 1913. The poisonous phosphorus used to affect the bones and the jaw of workers. Sesqui-sulphide of phosphorus now is used, which is nonpoisonous.

Willows, Calif.—Children in Glenn county are happy. All the high schools are on an enforced vacation pending settlement of a controversy between the teachers and the county treasurer over salaries.

London.—"Brighter" burials have been determined upon by the British Undertakers' Woodwork association. New casket designs are for beautiful and graceful workmanship.

Emulating Elephant Is Urged for Longevity

New York.—To be cool and calm at all times and impervious to the unpleasant titillation of nerves emulate the elephant, says Thomas R. Gaines, a lecturer before the Brooklyn institute on "The Science of Health."

The longevity of the elephant, Mr. Gaines asserts, is directly attributable to his poise and repose, and those in turn may be traced fairly certainly to his habit of slow breathing. The elephant breathes only five times a minute as compared with eighteen for the normal human.

While his audience made experimental sniffs, Mr. Gaines enunciated the requisite remainder of his theory: "The general attitude should be one of wholesome indifference."

Explaining Law Term

Barrraty is an old term of English law, derived from an Italian word signifying to cheat. Common barrraty consists in habitually stirring up or maintaining quarrels or lawsuits, or in continually disturbing the peace by brawls, or in taking or detaining possession of property the right to which is in dispute. Habitually breeding discord between neighbors is also barrraty. In marine insurance and in contracts relating to shipping generally, the term barrraty means any fraud or knavery or willful wrongdoing on the part of the master of the ship or the crew, by which the interests of the owner are injured.

Man's Food Supply for Seventy Years of Life

If a man of seventy years were starving it would probably be of little comfort to him to reflect that he had consumed in the course of his life 53 1/2 tons of solid food and 42 1/2 tons of liquid, or about 1,280 times his own weight in both solids and liquids, but it would be quite true.

Being a man of average appetite and purse, he would have eaten 15 tons of bread, which would have made a single loaf containing 1,200 cubic feet and appearing about as large as the average suburban home, and on this bread he would have spread one ton of butter. If his bacon had been cut in single slices the strip would have been four miles long, and his chops, placed end to end, would have extended two miles. Twenty ordinary-sized bullocks have supplied him with beef, some 18 tons of which he has eaten, along with 5 tons of fish and 10,000 eggs and 350 pounds of cheese. If he had elected to have all his vegetables served at once, they would have come to him on a train of cars, the pod containing all his peas being over three miles long. He has had 9,000 pounds of sugar, 1,500 pounds of salt, 8 pounds of pepper and 100 cans of mustard. Three pints of liquid a day would have amounted to 76,000 pints or 42 1/2 tons.—Washington Star.

Old English Monarch Man of Modern Ideas

Burglary insurance is no modern institution. It seems to have existed from the time of King Alfred and was probably introduced by this king who, had he lived in these times, would have made a name as a successful business man.

The town of Ripon, England, he gave in 866 into the charge of a council, who appointed a watchman to blow a horn every night at nine o'clock. Between that hour and sunrise the town was quiet and no one was supposed to be abroad. But Ripon was not altogether a law-abiding place and presently the town authorities found it necessary to protect its peaceful citizens against raiders and robbers.

And so a law was passed that any householder wishing so to protect his house from robbery should pay 4 pence a year to the authorities. Then, if his house was entered and his goods stolen or damaged between the blowing of the horn and sunrise, he could claim from the town council, who undertook to compensate him.—Music and Youth.

Franklin a Good Swimmer

Franklin was a great swimmer. On one occasion he swam for four miles in the Thames, "performing on the way many feats of activity, both upon and under the water." He obtained such a reputation as a water dog that he thought seriously of becoming a teacher of swimming. Even at forty he still swam for two hours at a stretch. He astonished his fellow printers by carrying two forms of type to their one, and, in his old age, he was fond of displaying his strength by lifting heavy books.—Scientific Monthly.

In Sad, But Loving Remembrance of our dear son-in-law and brother-in-law, LUTHER A. ECKARD, who departed this life, March 1st., 1927.

Today brings back sad memories. Of one we laid to rest; But the ones who think of him today, Are the ones who loved him best.

We do not know the pain he bore, We did not see him die; But only know he slept away, Without bidding us good-bye.

By his Father-in-law and wife, MR. & MRS. JOSHUA T. REINAMAN.

We had a brother who was kind and true, And when you met him, he had a smile for you; But now he has left us, we shall see him no more.

He has gone to join the Angels on that beautiful shore.

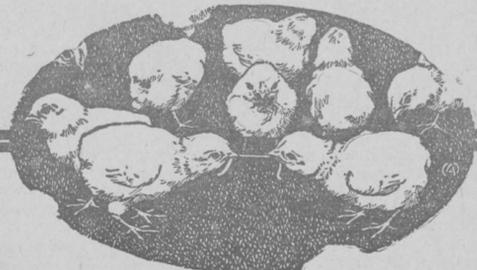

Jesus must have loved him dearly, That he took him home so soon; But we cannot tell the reason, Why he taken him away.

By his Brother-in-law and wife, MR. & MRS. SAMUEL REINAMAN.

Oh, how we loved you, brother, No heart on earth can tell; But Jesus loved him better, And called him home to dwell.

Yet again we hope to meet thee, When the day of life is fled; And with joy in heaven to greet thee, Where no farewell tears are shed.

By his Brother-in-law and wife, MR. & MRS. RAYMOND COE.

Originality Shown in Ordering of Funerals

Two Englishmen and one English lady, who certainly did not know each other, decided practically at the same time to have fantastic funerals, Pierre Van Paasen writes, in the Atlanta Constitution. Harry Armour, one of them, twenty-four years old, who committed suicide, left a note in which he ordered that he was to be buried in hunting costume, booted and spurred, with rifle in his arms and a plentiful supply of cartridges in his coffin. Then there was Colonel Samson of Hastings, who demanded that his corpse be dumped in the middle of the channel. We learn from the Dover Gazette that his funeral had at least the compensation of a "jolly trip on a bright, sunny day." In London, a young lady, Miss Edith Koll, aged twenty, asked that she be laid out in her best evening gown, with dancing slippers and a small gramophone in the casket. She personally selected a number of jazz records, which were buried with her. All three expressed themselves believers in the resurrection of the body. The lady is the most original of all. When that last morn comes, and Gabriel blows his trumpet, she wants to organize a two-piece orchestra, no doubt.

Dog's Smart Trick

An old hunter says that on one occasion a small dog belonging to him chased and caught up with a very large raccoon. The dog flew at his enemy and tried to shake him, but the raccoon, being quick, caught the dog by the side of the head.

His teeth were sharp and his hold firm, so that the dog found it impossible to break loose. Suddenly, as if a bright idea had occurred to him, the dog began to drag the raccoon into a neighboring creek.

Once in the water the dog held the raccoon under the surface, adroitly keeping his own nose out, until the raccoon released his grip. Then the dog easily mastered the half-drowned animal.

I COME TO WELLAND
By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I COME to Welland on a day; I come to Welland: right away My mind remembers bush and tree And ev'rything the eye can see, The binder plant, the distant town, The walls of red, the roofs of brown— And I remember now once more I came to Welland once before.

I came to Welland long ago To take some train; I hardly know Just where it went or what I found. But here's the little station ground, The fence of pipe, the wooden posts, The clean brick pavement that it boasts, The smooth white rails, the cladders rough— Yes, this is Welland sure enough.

I came to Welland. Where I went, What train I took, with what intent, I don't remember. Many plans Were mine, the same as any man's— I don't know what, but do not doubt A lot of things I fussed about, I haven't any doubt at all; But what they were I can't recall.

I came to Welland, with a mind Filled full of things of ev'ry kind: Of words that grieve, of hopes gone wrong— A heavy load I bring along Of woes and worries, hurts and cares, The most important of affairs, Of things I won't remember when I come to Welland once again. Mother's Cook Book

Being a parent used to be one of the most simple, natural and inevitable developments in the world. But nowadays, one has no business to be married, unless, sleeping or waking, one is conscious of the responsibility. —Abraham Flexner.

FROM LEFTOVER BEEF

EVEN a small cupful of leftover beef, if added to a gravy and served on toast will make a fine luncheon dish.

Roast Beef Sandwiches.

For four good-sized sandwiches make one cupful of brown sauce. When cooked add one tablespoonful of minced pickle. Cut the roast beef very thin. Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter or other sweet fat, add it to a quarter of a teaspoonful of mustard; spread the bread with this. Dip slices of beef into the hot sauce and place them on the bread. Sprinkle with a very little chopped bacon on the top slice. Serve on a hot platter and pour boiling sauce over all. To make the brown sauce, melt two tablespoonfuls of butter; add two tablespoonfuls of flour and stir until well browned; add salt and pepper to taste, and a cupful of beef gravy.

Beef Pie.

Cut cold roast beef into inch squares, using two cupfuls. Put into a quart baking dish and season with half a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of red pepper, a tablespoonful of tomato catsup or one cupful of tomatoes strained and seasoned. Pour over the meat one cupful of broth, or gravy mixed with water. Cover with a crust made of baking powder biscuit dough; cut with a small cutter and place over the top. There is no more delicious way of serving cold roast beef than in thin, rosy slices on a well-garnished platter. Serve with cucumber or horseradish sauce.

Roast Beef With Mexican Sauce.

Cook one onion finely chopped in two tablespoonfuls of butter for five minutes. Add one red pepper, one green pepper and one clove of garlic, each finely chopped, and two tomatoes peeled and sliced. Cook fifteen minutes, add one teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of celery salt and salt to taste.

WHAT THE GRACIOUS HOSTESS SAYS:

By DELLA THOMPSON LUDS

THE HOME TABLE

THE home table should always present, not only a neat, but an attractive appearance. This is not so difficult as it sounds, even for the woman who does all her own work. There should be, to be correct, a long white cloth on the dinner table every night, but many of us who want to live according to all the tenets of polite society, cannot afford to do so. If we have to consider laundry bills, as most of us do, we can use place mats as we do for lunch. We should, however, have dinner, with the cloth, the silver, and the dishes that go with dinner, often enough to accustom ourselves and our families to the proper usage.

There should be a decoration of some kind on the table every day and at every meal, and here we will allow no excuse, no swerving from the rule. This decoration on the table stands for something in our lives. The centerpiece itself may be simple or elegant—the meaning is the same. If it is of flowers, two things should be remembered: the flowers should look as natural as possible in whatever vessel they are placed, and they should not be so high as to obstruct the view. Flowers massed into a bouquet so that no individual flower has a chance to show its loveliness, lose half their effect.

A floral centerpiece need not be an expensive one. The country woman, or the woman of the small town who can get to fields and roadsides, is especially fortunate. For the woman who has to buy her flowers there are other things to do. A round mirror, not too small, surrounded with artificial moss, and one little sail boat riding on the surface of the "lake" is a pleasing thought for a summer day. The same mirror banked with cotton batting "snow" sprinkled with diamond dust and a skating doll on the "pond" is another idea. A small pretty basket of apples, or some ornament, may be used. The table centerpiece does not have to be of flowers, although we often think of it in that way. At any rate, let us every day have some decorative feature on the table that pleases the eyes and stirs the heart.

If we are at some pains to dress our table attractively we shall be less likely to come to the meal ourselves carelessly clad or slovenly groomed. (Copyright, by The Eastment Syndicate.)

FOR THE GOOSE—

YOU can make the richest cake in somebody else's kitchen.

Even laughin' ain't good for you if you're gonna laugh yourself to death.

Tryin' to think back on years, you can on'y remember moments. The way to have the longest life is to have the most moments.

Some people is like the bullets that got cooked in with the rabbit stew. They don't do no good, but they don't do no harm neither.

FOR THE GANDER—

If a feller broke his leg it might make him feel better to be told about somebody that got theirs mended—but it don't help him none to hear about somebody that broke their neck.

A SPRING ANNOUNCEMENT

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

YOUR ASPIRATIONS

THE real turning-point in your career does not manifest itself until you have definitely decided whether you shall drift about like a fallen leaf in the forest, or hold steadfastly to a predetermined course.

Up to that time your aspirations have been vague. You have not been on intimate speaking terms with them. It is doubtful whether you could describe their dress, whether they are pirates bent on scuttling your ship or whether they are friends proffering their hands to lead you beside still waters.

You have promptings in common with all mankind, ready to believe that you are endowed with various excellences, superior in most respects to those to be found in any of your associates.

You have no delinquencies, no shortcomings such as you glimpse from time to time in these associates when they are off guard, yet they are getting ahead in spite of failing while you are going round and round in circles.

Perhaps you explain this by saying you are waiting for the big opportunity, and when that comes you will distinguish yourself.

The commonplace, humdrum things do not inspire you. They fail to draw out those latent abilities and wonderful impulses which you know are yours—yours alone.

When the time comes you will make a spring, leap to the goal, cover yourself with renown and go down to posterity covered with honors.

Great resolutions of this character unless supported by sincere, earnest effort, never amount to anything.

Unfailing and familiar companionship with work is the only key that will unlock the door of conquest. You cannot pick the lock with self-adulation. The road to failure is worn bare by millions who have tried it.

Your success must come from your own endeavors, long hours of close application, confidence in the laws established by our Creator, cheerfulness in doing with all your might the irksome things, and faith in yourself.

There is no other way.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

BY JOSEPH KAYE

At Twenty-One—Robert Underwood Johnson Was the Associate of Famous Editors.

AT THE age of twenty—I set foot in New York for the first time and went to the offices of Scribner's Monthly, little knowing that I was about to establish a relationship which would last for more than forty years.

"My family was already known to Roswell Smith, the publisher of the magazine, for his wife, as Miss Annie Ellsworth, had been a friend of my mother's in Washington, and as young women both had been present on the 24th of May, 1844, when Morse transmitted the first telegraphic message ever sent, passing from Washington to Baltimore.

"Mr. Smith greeted me cordially, but soon began to make a test of my mettle by trying to discourage me, but I saw that he was not serious about it and he took me back to present me to the editor, Dr. J. G. Holland. Doctor Holland received me genially and introduced me to his associate, Richard Watson Gilder, who was most cordial, and after a little conversation it was agreed that I should have a trial of three months as clerk and editorial assistant.

"My novitiate on the magazine did not occupy the designated three months, for after three weeks, Doctor Holland came to me one day as I sat at my desk and putting his hand in a fatherly manner on my shoulder, said very gently, 'Johnson, if you like us as well as we like you, you may hang up your hat and call it a bargain!' From that time on, for forty years, I was part of the corps and (what was equally delightful) of the spirit of the corps of the magazine.—Robert Underwood Johnson."

TODAY—Mr. Johnson has distinguished himself greatly both in literature and statesmanship. He succeeded the famous Gilder as editor of the magazine which became in time The Century Magazine. Later he became ambassador to Italy and a noted leader of political thought.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

THE MINSTREL

OUR conception of a minstrel today is a blackface comedian, and, accordingly, the far-famed Dan Emmett, said to have been the first man to use burnt cork on his face, has been called the inventor of minstrelsy.

But minstrels existed long before the days of Dan Emmett. Their origin is written in their name, for "minstrel" comes from the old French "menestrel," which goes back to the Latin "ministralls," meaning servant. And the first minstrels were of the class of musical entertainers attached to medieval households, particularly those who sang to the accompaniment of the harp or other instrument.

Later the name came to be applied to street singers and traveling troubadours of whom frequent mention can be found in contemporary literature. For instance, in a Flemish book entitled "Adventures of the Fox Rhenelhardt," written in the twelfth century by one Willem, we read of "minne-streels" or troubadours.

Anatole France refers to Homer as a minstrel who traveled to the military camps to entertain the soldiers with his epic songs. But the first valid minstrels and the first to answer to that name were the medieval troubadours of whom the burnt-cork gentry are a comparatively modern variation.

Something Lacking in Men of Great Minds

Many great philosophers have shown an extraordinary inability to carry out their teachings in daily life. Their precepts are sound enough; their wisdom is undoubted. Yet they are foolish fellows, after all.

The reason is not so obscure as it seems at first sight. A man may have a fine brain, so that, in the quiet of his study, he can put in words great wisdom. But along with that fine brain may go a weak character which balks him whenever he attempts to cope with stark reality.

John Stuart Mill was a great philosopher. But in his daily life he committed every conceivable blunder. Thomas Carlyle concentrated his profound mind on the causes of misery in the world, and made his own home utterly unhappy by an uncontrolled and irritable temperament. He could give the world a lot; but for his long-suffering wife, whom he loved in his own way, he had little but harsh words, scoldings, and churlishness.

Anatole France, greatest of modern French writers and commentators on life, said, shortly before he died: "I have never known a moment's happiness." Why had he not known happiness? Surely because, for all his wisdom, he had not, after all, mastered the art of life.

The great German philosopher, Schopenhauer, whose treatises on metaphysics are classic, was a fool in the affairs of life. While writing his monumental treatises on philosophy he yet contrived to be so peppery, suspicious, and quarrelsome that his own mother, with whom he lived, requested him to go away from her. It is said that he had not a single friend.

Many a simple, ignorant man possesses more real wisdom than a learned professor. The true test is action; those men are wise, who live wisely.

Successful Book Thief

Fortunately for our literary treasures, dishonesty among librarians is extremely rare, but the arrest of the curator of a Paris library for trying to sell a valuable Thirteenth-century MS. in his charge to a London bookseller recalls the depredations of the most successful book thief on record—Count Guglielmo Libri, for many years Inspector general of public libraries in France. In the course of his visits of inspection Libri contrived to remove from the various collections a remarkable number of valuable books and manuscripts, and before discovery managed to accumulate some $200,000 by the sale of his plunder. In 1848 a warrant was issued for his arrest, but he had friends at court and was enabled to escape to England, where he lived very comfortably for many years on the proceeds of his stolen treasures.

Providing Beauty

It is delightful to have something done without regard to the returns to the doer, to have something spontaneous, ample, gloriously useless; thousands spent for the mere pleasure of spending it on others; to have the savings of years bottled in a flask, and then pour it forth on feet and head . . . and then break the flask. To some it seems like a criminal waste to put all the skill and labor of a lifetime on a few feet of canvas, while the painter can scarcely get bread, and then give that canvas to the world. But it will impart pleasure to thousands. . . . Pour out your money on the beautiful. Encourage the workers in the beautiful. . . . You who are rich ought to provide the beautiful for yourselves and for the poor.—Charles F. Deems, in "Religion in Beauty."

One of the Collection

Edsel Ford, who is a great collector of automobile anecdotes, said the other day:

"A man once went to the Blank headquarters to try a Blank car. A stock car was brought round and a demonstrator drove the man 20 miles out into the country. Then the car stopped. The demonstrator got down to see what the trouble was.

"My goodness me!" he said.

"What is it?" was the demand.

"What ails her?"

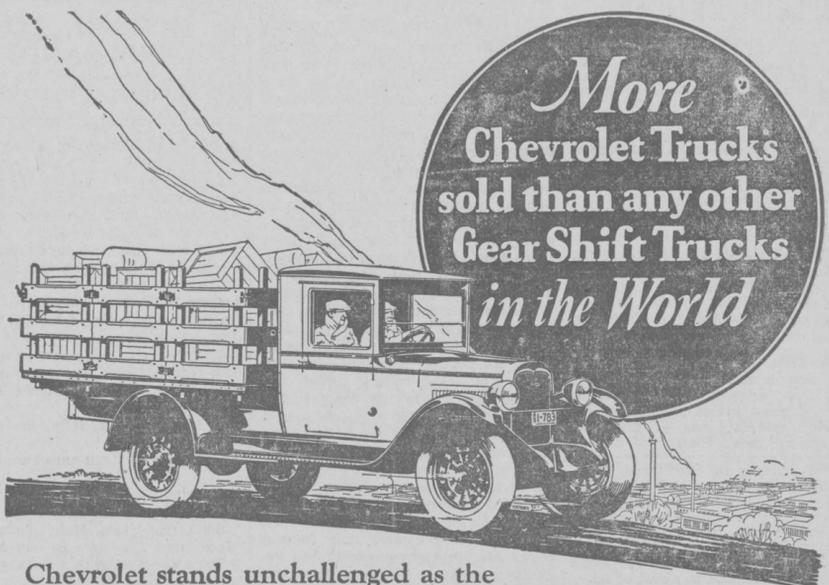

"They forgot to put a drop of gasoline in the tank," said the demonstrator. 'The car has done these 20 miles on its reputation alone.'"

Recording Land Sales

The Torrens system has been described as follows: It is a system of registration of titles to land (as distinct from registration of deeds). It was introduced into South Australia by the Real Property (or Torrens) act (laws of 1857-58), drafted by Sir Robert Richard Torrens (1814-84). The essential feature of the Torrens system is the guaranty by the government of properly registered titles. The system has been generally adopted in Australia and British Columbia, and in its original or a modified form in some other countries, including some states of the United States.

New Business Idea

A retail drug store at Seattle, Wash., bought up the street car capacity of the city for the hour between 9 a. m. and 10 a. m. During this period any one might ride to town free. The result was that twice as many people as usual entered the retail district that forenoon. The store playing the host regarded the deal as good business. Soon there were enough applications for the same innovation to sell the car service each day for a month.

REVIEW—STUDIES IN THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

GOLDEN TEXT—If ye love Me keep My commandments.—John 14:15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—What Jesus Wants Us to Do.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Christian Way of Living.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What It Means to Be a Christian.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Marks of a True Christian.

The following methods of review are suggested:

I. A Descriptive Essay Method.

Each member of the class should be assigned to the task a week ahead of the preparation of an essay on the topics involved in the quarterly lessons, as for example: What constitutes a true Christian. Following Christ. The prayer life of a Christian. The Christian and his Bible. The home life of a Christian. Christian stewardship. The Christian and the missionary obligation.

II. The Question Review Method.

The teacher will prepare a list of questions dealing with the various phases of the quarter's lessons. These will be written on slips of paper and the members of the class will draw them. As examples of questions note the following: What does following Christ involve? What is the Christian's responsibility as to his Bible? What is the Christian's obligation as to stewardship? What are the duties of the members of the home? What is the Christian's obligation as to the evangelization of the world? What is the Christian's hope? Is Christ coming again? Will there be a resurrection of the body?

III. The Summary Method.

This method can always be used to good advantage with the advanced classes. The outstanding fact or facts should be grasped and the principal teaching of the quarter's lessons stated. Suggestions:

Lesson for January 2.

Jesus first calls men to be His disciples. He then calls them to have fellowship in His service. Those who receive this two-fold call will walk as He walked.

Lesson for January 9.

The one who really follows Christ shall be hated and opposed. Having fellowship with Christ, he will love his enemies, do good to those who hate him, bless them that curse him, pray for those which spitefully use him.

Lesson for January 16.

The Bible furnishes the Christian with full knowledge of God and man's obligation to Him. The only way to be able to stand firm and true in the coming perilous times is to be thoroughly grounded in the knowledge of the Scriptures.

Lesson for January 23.

Jesus, though divine, resorted much to prayer. If he needed this fellowship, how much more do His followers need it.

Lesson for January 30.

Followers of Jesus may expect temptations, but divine help is available for every need.

Lesson for February 6.

To every believer has been given certain talents such as gifts for service, knowledge, time, money, to be used for the honor of His Lord. A time of reckoning is coming at which reward will be given for fidelity, and judgment meted out for infidelity.

Lesson for February 13.

The home is the oldest and most important institution in the world. The most effective way of making strong and pure the church, society and the nation is to make the home Christian.

Lesson for February 20.

The subject of the kingdom is under solemn obligation to permeate society and let his light shine so that the heavenly father may be glorified.

Lesson for February 27.

Every believer has two natures—the flesh and the spirit. The only way to overcome the flesh is to be filled with the Spirit.

Lesson for March 6.

The Lord permitted persecution to fall upon the church to cause the disciples to be scattered in order for the widening of the testimony.

Lesson for March 13.

Christ has imposed upon every disciple the obligation of witnessing for Him to all the nations of the world.

Lesson for March 20.

The Christian's hope is the personal return of Jesus Christ to take him to His heavenly home. When Christ comes, the body of the believer who has fallen asleep will be resurrected and living believers will be caught up into glory with Christ.

Harder to Do Right

There never has been an age where it was not harder to do right than to do wrong, just as there has never been a time when it was not harder to swim upstream than down.—Herald of Gospel Liberty.

Let Your Light Shine

A light under a bushel, besides being hid, will go out in a short time for want of air. Unless our lights shine for others, they will soon perish in ourselves.—Herald of Gospel Liberty.

REAL "CLASSICS" IN PROSE AND POETRY

Qualities That Render Them Immortal.

In literature the word classic was originally limited to Greek and Latin prose and poetry. It has now come to mean any piece of literature whose quality is such that it has survived for fifty or a hundred years and is by common consent regarded as so good as to be permanent. A literary classic should possess one or all of the following qualities:

1. It should reflect the mode of thought and the customs and manners of its time.

The travels of Herodotus, the dialogues of Socrates, and the novels of Jane Austen are examples.

2. It should be written in a beautiful and striking style.

Lincoln's Gettysburg speech is an example.

3. It should spring from and appeal to a cultivated imagination.

The poems of Keats are an example.

4. It should be a contribution to the thought of the world and should stimulate the thought of the world.

The essays of Ralph Waldo Emerson are an example.

5. It should possess a universal human interest and express all phases of human experience.

The Old Testament and Shakespeare's plays are examples.

No one generation can determine what classics it is producing. The final judgment must and will be pronounced by succeeding generations.

Walt Whitman and Lincoln were looked on with contempt by many of their most highly educated contemporaries. And yet Whitman's "O Captain! My Captain!" and Lincoln's Gettysburg speech will live as long as the English language lives.

Nor does a classic have to be "high-brow stuff." It is a genuine intelligent and witty picture of a certain aspect of society, even a "best-seller" may become a classic; although I am bound to say that most of our modern best-sellers have very little chance of achieving this immortality.

The "Pickwick Papers," the "Biglow Papers," and "Night With Uncle Remus" were all best-sellers and are all classics. I hope I shall shock nobody by saying that I think "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" is more likely to become a classic than many contemporary novels or stories that are much more pretentious. Artificial and pretentious writing never makes a classic. Sincerity, simplicity and spontaneity are qualities that every true classic—whether in music, painting, prose or poetry—possesses; all others pretending to the titles are counterfeits. Let nobody hoodwink you into supposing that the classics are pompous, stilted, and boring. If they were, nobody would read them—not even your teachers and professors.—Lawrence F. Abbot, in the Outlook.

Plant Societies

The science of botany has been greatly advanced by the development of what may be called the sociology of plants—that is, the study of their relations to one another as well as their adjustments to surroundings.

Botanists recognize that plants are not scattered haphazard over the globe, but are organized into definite communities. A pond has its plant society, all the members of which fall into their proper places. A swamp forest consists of trees possessing a certain social relationship and differing from those that form a forest on dry land. There is progression from one social organization of plants to another. A lily pond may give place to a swamp moor, this to a society of swamp shrubs, and this again to a swamp forest of tamarack, pine and hemlock. So societies of plants on dry land succeed one another as the conditions change.

Two Schools of Thought

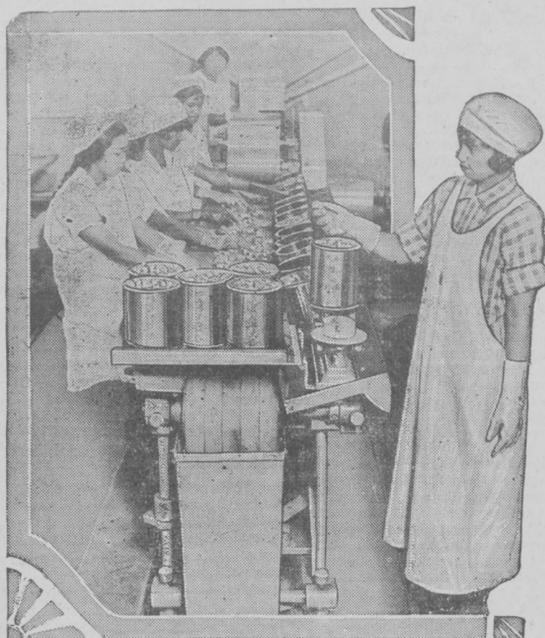

Fundamentalists believe that the canon of the Scriptures is closed and that revelations are not now made. They also affirm belief in the miraculous happenings which are related in the Scriptures; that they are of divine origin and that the Bible was written through divine inspiration and is not subject to modern interpretation. Modernists believe that revelations are still being made and that it is quite possible according to developments of modern science to account for the so-called miraculous happenings in the Bible. They do not accept such doctrines as that of the virgin birth without question.—Washington Star.

Egg for Radiator

Does your radiator leak? Try white of egg—an old farmer's remedy, which several motorists have used with success. The theory is that after the white of egg is poured into the radiator the hot water carries it to the leak and cooks it there until it becomes virtually hard boiled. The remedy has lasted in some cases for two or three years at a stretch, indicating that the egg does not rot even in that length of time, or else attracts enough sediment to keep the hole plugged up.

Not a Farmerette

Little two-year-old Anita went to the country to visit her grandparents and was taken out to the rabbitry to see the New Zealand Red rabbits. When she saw the red rabbits, her eyes fairly danced and reaching out her little hands and beckoning with her fingers, she exclaimed, "Come on, little cows. Come on, little cows."

THIS FOOD IS PUT UP IN A VARIETY OF FORMS

WHEN a food outgrows the stage of being a delicacy and becomes so universally used as to be a staple, a demand is created for various forms of that food on the market. Not so long ago, tomatoes grew in old-fashioned gardens as "love apples," to be looked at but not eaten. Later it was discovered they were good to eat. The first tomatoes canned were a delicacy, but today, tomatoes can be bought in some dozen different forms—ranging from whole tomatoes to tomato paste.

Pineapple used to grow in royal gardens under glass. When it was discovered that Hawaii could grow better pineapple in the open fields and ship it, sun-ripened in cans, pineapple was a delicacy. Today, with the discovery that pineapple is a complement to meat and vegetables, it is known, also, that it contains valuable food elements. It is not only a delicacy but an important food product and is packed in a variety of forms, ranging from sliced pineapple to the pineapple juice.

The most popular forms in which Hawaiian pineapple is available are sliced, crushed, "tid-bits" and broken slices, and pineapple juice. Both sliced and crushed pineapple may be had in what is known as "fancy," the choicest pack, and "standard," almost as choice but costing less, and very delicious.

Crushed pineapple is primarily a culinary ingredient. It is just as choice as the slices—in fact, it is even better as far as flavor is concerned as it comes from the outer portion of the pineapple, nearest the shell and this shell is nearest the sun.

The juice is pure juice of the pineapple, unsweetened so that it can be mixed with other liquids in sundaes, pudding sauces, etc. It contains all of the rich mineral properties and vitamins which make pineapple so vital a part of the health diet.

Pineapple is put on the market in various size cans. They are: Buffet can, containing five slices of pineapple or nine ounces of the crushed product; No. 1, a slightly larger flat can containing six larger slices; No. 2, a tall can, containing ten slices, or one pound of crushed; No. 1, a tall can, containing nine slices of pineapple, or eleven ounces of crushed; No. 2 1/2 can, containing eight large slices of pineapple or one pound five ounces of crushed pineapple.

Pineapple tid-bits and pineapple juice are obtainable in No. 2 tall cans. These tid-bits are especially suitable for salads or any dish in which small pieces of pineapple are needed.

A penny could have saved him!

The man who owned this chick saved a penny. It would have cost him a penny more to have fed Purina Poultry Chows, and nine chances to one, Purina Poultry Chows would have saved the chick, but—the man thought he'd save a penny.

We want to see the man who likes to save his pennies. We can save him baby chicks—and dollars instead of pennies!

PAY YOURSELF

IT'S great to "spend" money when you pay it over to yourself: There's a thrill about it—a peculiar satisfaction—a feeling of security. Hundreds of our depositors enjoy this sense of security as they make regular deposits in their accounts. They know they are just taking it from themselves now, in small sums, to be used later for a home, a farm or a business or for investment. To what they save we add 4% compound interest and this makes their balance grow.

Scotland Finally in Line

Here in America, where not only every county of every state but practically every hamlet, has telephone connection, it is difficult to imagine in these days an entire county without telephones.

However, such a situation has existed in Great Britain up to just a few weeks ago.

A recent issue of the Telegraph and Telephone Journal of London states that the telephone has just penetrated the county of Sutherland, in northern Scotland, for the first time, exchanges having been established at Dornoch and Golspie, and adds the rather interesting information that "we believe that telephone exchanges now exist in every county in England, Scotland and Wales."

Miss Reta Shaum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Shaum, of near town, was taken to Hanover General Hospital, on Friday last, and operated on for appendicitis and is getting along very nicely.

LeRoy Smith had the misfortune of cutting off his thumb, on Wednesday, while splitting wood. He was taken to Frederick City Hospital to have another small part taken off in order to make proper healing.

Robert B. Everhart is preparing the foundation for his new double dwelling on York St. A new building boom has evidently struck Taneytown, inside of the present corporate limits, as this makes the fourth dwelling within the past six months. Let the old town grow! More dwellings are needed, for rent.

About seventeen members of Taneytown Lodge No. 36, K. of P., attended Charity Lodge at Westminster, on Tuesday night. The rank of Knight was put on by the degree team of Charity Lodge in first-class style to six of their own candidates and one from Taneytown. After the closing of Lodge, refreshments consisting of ice cream and small cakes were very much enjoyed by all present.

The fire bell on Thursday evening called the Fire Company to Raymond Zent's farm, on the Keymar road, where a straw stack was burned. Can't Eat, but Can Drink.

Chester, Pa., March 16.—Fred MacEwen, of 4th. and Hinkson streets, claims the coffee-drinking championship of Delaware County. He drinks fifteen cups with his dinner and averages forty cups a day.

"Got to have it," he says, "to wash my meals down." The man in whose restaurant he eats has given up waiting on MacEwen. "You wait on yourself," he says "when you want coffee. I get out of breath." MacEwen says when he is real thirsty he can swallow six bottles of soda water, one quart of milk and wash those fluids down with "about ten" cups of coffee. "Can't eat much," he says. MacEwen weighs only 143 pounds.—Phila. Ledger.

LAST PAGE EDITORIAL.

The "Water-mark."

Many persons have no doubt observed what is known to paper dealers and printers as a "water-mark" that appears in certain better grades of paper, commonly used for letter writing, that can easily be observed by holding the sheet up and looking through it toward the light. It is a name, or mark, that is placed in the paper in the process of manufacture, and means that the maker wants his product to be recognized, for quality.

The same grade of paper may be made without this "water-mark" and sold at a lower price, but the public may be skeptical. In the final analysis of one's knowledge, as to matters and things in general, it is limited. We prefer to depend on sure guarantees, and not depend on our judgment. We take the word of responsible firms, or individuals, and that what they say, or do, is our "water-mark" guide and assurance. Character and dependability are wonderfully valuable qualities. They fix standards for the guidance of others; and as these paper "water-marks" represent grades or qualities, so do we, in the course of our contact with the public, display our individual "water-marks;" or if we do not display them, we leave the public in doubt.

Some of the "water-marked" paper is higher grade than others; but that is no discredit. The mark largely fixes the "grade," for a "price." A paper worth 15 cents a pound, does not pretend to compete with one worth 50 cents a pound, but each marks its place in standard values, without false pretensions—and that is the main thing—being what we pretend to be.

Whatever our "water-mark" is, we ought to live up to it, and keep up, or improve, its standard. We have just as much real genuineness and value in doing our modest best, as have others who have the ability or opportunity, to do their greater best—each one in his station in life, doing the best that his hands find to do.

"My Town Can't be too Good for Me."

My Town can't be too good for me, Nor I too big or good for it; Though small in size My Town may be, I'd have it big in "Push" and "Grit." My Town must meet emergencies With dauntless courage, vim and pep; Though progress is not bought with ease,

My Town must not get "out of step". My Town must tackle every task—Go forward always—ne'er back down. 'Neath foreign suns though I may bask,

I'd think with pride of this, My Town. My Town, of course, is good enough, No matter how my fortune swell, Nor yet how fortune may rebuff. My Town's defamers I would quell. —And yet deep down within my heart I know My Town improved could be; To help improve I'll do my part—My Town can't be too good for me! —"Wib" Chaffer, in The American City Magazine.

Hitting the Nail on the Head.

Tommy was asked by the teacher to write an essay on safety. It was a very good essay, indeed, and one sentence we take the liberty of quoting. Says Tommy:

"One of the many advantages of crossing crossings carefully is that you get to the other side."

We have been for five years or more teaching safety and preaching safety, and all we have said could be boiled down to Tommy's one sentence:

"To get to the other side." Traffic regulations were not made to keep policemen busy. They were made to protect you. If every one would look at them in that light, they would not need any boosting.

The Instalment Plan.

Mr. Spendix—Any installments due today?

Mrs. Spendix—No, dear, I think not. Mr. Spendix—Any payments due on the house, the radio, the furniture, the rugs, or the books?

Mrs. Spendix—No. Mr. Spendix—Then I have ten dollars we don't need. What do you say to our buying a new car?

New Telephone Desk Set.

A new type of telephone instrument will soon be available to subscribers of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City according to a statement just made by A. C. Allgire, manager. These instruments have the receiver and transmitter on a single handle and stand lower than the present instrument. There will be a small increase in monthly charges for these instruments plus the usual change of instrument charges to anyone desiring them. As regular production of the new type of telephone has only recently been started a limited number only will be available for some months.

These instruments are not better telephonically than the usual desk sets and wall sets but will be supplied to meet the wishes of those subscribers who feel they are more convenient," Mr. Allgire says. There have been experiments on hand sets in the Bell System for many years, but the engineers were not willing to adopt the hand set until one could be devised that would give the same high and uniform grade of service which the best desk or wall sets give.

However, about five years ago, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, in its Bell telephone laboratories, discovered a principle by which the difficulties of giving good service when using a hand set could be overcome. Even after the principle was discovered it took an immense amount of work to embody it in a hand set capable of manufacture on a large scale and at a price that would not greatly increase the cost of telephone service to those who wish to use the hand set. These problems have now been solved by the research engineers and later in the year as manufacture proceeds, the telephone company will be in a position to give an installation of hand sets in reasonable numbers.
