TANEYTOWN, MARYLAND, FRIDAY, MARCH 25, 1927.

FIRE PROTECTION NEGLECTED.

Prevention is Better Than Fire Fighting Apparatus.

Taneytown is careless about en-forcing regulations for the prevention of fire. We have a good water supply and an excellent fire equipment and Fire Company, and our support of the Company is fine. But, we are plac-ing too much dependence on fighting fire, and not enough on preventing the need of a fight. While shingle roofs—new ones— are prohibited, we still have a lot of more or less dilapidated and useless shingle roofed stables and buildings of other kinds and no building regulations of any sort, either as to old buildings, or new frame construction, and none covering the construction of chimneys and flues.

There is also little or no account of the accumulation of combustible material in the rear of buildings, or around out-buildings. If any town was given a thorough inspection by Fire Underwriting officials—and they may be, some time—it would not be done from the street front, but from the rear, and we fear that such a report would not be a good one for low insurance rates in Taneytown, and

A bulletin issued by the Insurance Department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, gives the following chief causes of fire, and

Comment on them;
Improper building construction;
defective installation of equipment supplying power, heat and light; improper or careless storage, handling and distribution of explosives and in-flammable liquids; handling and use of nitrocellulose films; storage of trash and rubbish; storage, handling and use of matches.

The best way of launching a cam-paign against fire waste, it is suggested, is by concentrating the attack upon the hazards arising from these six sources. This can best be done by the enactment of fire codes or or-

"Most cities," the bulletin states, "have ordinances or state laws dealing with at least some of these subjects, but in many cases they are incomplete or obsolete. Frequently the enforcement of these ordinances is so poor the community does not profit from them." Not only Taneytown, but other small towns everywhere, should be interested in this important question, and take reasonable action to better existing dangerous conditions. And not only the towns, but buildings everywhere are unnecessarily endan-gered because of lack of proper clean-

Let Us Have Your Order for 1928 Calendars!

There is nothing gained by holding off Calendar orders, but several advantages in placing them early. We expect the largest business we have ever handled, judging from orders already placed. Last year, three customers ordered 1000 of the roll style; this year the same three have ordered 1500.

One of these, living in another town, said he had looked at two "drummers" samples, but held off and gave us the order at a saving of several dollars per 100. We can, and do, handle calendars at much lower prices quality considered, than the Calendar salesmen, one of whom seems to have the same line of samples.

WARNS AGAINST DOGS.

Special Precautions Against All Stray

Following attacks on a number of persons a few days ago, by dogs believed to be mad a general round up of stray dogs has been ordered by the Grand Jury of Baltimore County, to protect men, women and children from further injury by rabid or vicious animals running at large, and to prevent the spread of rabies—hydrophobia, as it is also called—among dogs and other animals.

Commenting on this announcement, Dr. C. W. G. Rohrer, Chief of the Pasteur Division of the State Depart-ment of Health, said that measures of this sort have become a necessity in every part of the country as a means of checking the marked increases in rabies in dogs and other animals, and the corresponding increase in the number of persons bitten or otherwise injured by such animals.

In some places, he said, the Japa-nese plan of requiring vaccination of all dogs against rabies, is being followed. As this has not been undertaken in Maryland except by a few private individuals, the impounding of all stray dogs and the close observation of sick animals is a necessary safeguard.
Some idea of the increase of rabies

Maryland can be gathered, Dr. Rohrer said, from reports made to the State Board of Health. Since the Pasteur Division was organized in 1915, over 2,000 persons have been bitten or otherwise injured by mad or vicious dogs or other animals, and have applied to the State Department of Health for the Pasteur treatment, which, if administered in time, protects from the terrible and fatal consequences of injury by rabid animals. Of that total, nearly half 1012, were injured in the last two years. The total number applying for treatment in 1926 was 404 and in the case of 138 persons, the animals inflicting the injuries were found to be rabid and the Pasteur treatments were given, 37 by the Department and 101 by the family physicians.

The fact that not only dogs but other animals may become rabid was emphasized by Dr. Rohrer in explanation of his advice:
"Let all stray dogs alone.

Don't fondle sick animals. Keep them under careful observation, and call in the nearest veterinarian."

Dogs, cats, dairy cattle, sheep, hogs, horses and one rabbit, were found to be rabid in tests made in connection with injuries to persons in Maryland in the last two years.

Have corn fritters once in a while They go especially well with an all vegetable meal in such combinations as spinach, creamed onions and stewed tomatoes; or string beans, carrots, and lettuce salad; or quick-cooked cabbage, beets and buttered mashed rutabagas. The corn fritters add richness and crispness to any of these vegetable combinations. The United States Department of Agriculture will tell you how to make them.

Here's a recipe for 24 easily made macaroons; 2 egg whites, 1 cup sugar, 2 cups flaked toasted breakfast food, 1/8 teaspoon salt, 1 cup shredded coconut, almond flavoring. Beat the egg whites and salt until stiff. Add the sugar, fold in the cocoanut toasted flakes, after crushing them, and add the flavor. Drop by teaspoon on an oiled paper and bake in a moderate oven for 18 to 20 minutes, until delicately browned and well set.

Peonies may be planted now or during the early fall. They want a rich soil. Some authorities claim that manure should not be placed in direct contact with their roots, but that the ground should be heavily manured in advance of planting them, and the manure mixed with the soil very thoroughly.

COUNTY AGENT NEWS FOR FARMERS.

Tomato Culture, Tree Spraying and the Corn Borer.

On March 30th., there will be a tomato growers meeting at the Pleasant Valley High School. This meeting is to be held under the joint auspices of the Pleasant Valley Parent-Teachers' Association, the local tomato can-neries and the Extension Service cooperating.

Mr. L. N. Goodwin, one of the foremost tomato specialists in this section of the United States, has been secur-ed to address this meeting and lead the discussion on the problems in tomato growing of most interest to the farmers present. Pleasant Valley is fast becoming known as a section producing high grade tomato pack, and this meeting should do much to even improve the kind of tomato grown in this section.

After touring the county, the officials of the University of Maryland, who are conducting an apple and peach spray service for the fruit growers of the State, have decided that apples should receive the first or delayed dormant spray just as soon as this can be applied. The unusually early season has caused the trees to make remarkably early growth.

Aphids, or plant lice, have made their appearance in unusual numbers, so it will be necessary with the application of concentrated lime sulphur at the rate of 12 gallons to 100 gallons of water to add % pint Nicotine Sulphate to each 100 gallons of spray. County Agent.

The demand for first hand information on the Corn Borer and sources of seed corn has been so great in the Myers and Mt. Airy districts that two meetings will be held in the county. The first one will be held at Union Mills, at the Charles Carroll School, on Tuesday evening, March 29, at 7:30 P. M. The other meeting will be held at Mt. Airy on the evening of April 1st. County Agent Walrath has secured government motion pictures and slides to show the exact situation of the Corn Borer as it concerns Carroll County.

At this same meeting we will also present the seed corn situation in the county, this spring. Farmers who desire to have samples of their corn inspected for germination can bring their corn to these meetings, which will be held under the auspices of the Agricultural Vocational Depart-ments of the Charles Carroll and Mt.

Early hatched chicks are usually more profitable than the late hatched Leghorns should be hatched by the fore part of May in most parts of the country—that is, if you want them to be in good laying condition by the middle of October or the fore part of November. Heavier breeds such as Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds, and Wyandottes, should be hatched not later than the middle of April—if you are going to have them laying at the most profitable season of the year. Dairymen should provide sprayers and traps to keep the flies in control, If you will write to the U. S. Department of Agriculture they will send you a bulletin on fly traps and their

When this vitamin is not supplied by pasture grass or green-leaved roughage or good quality hay, which probably contains an abundance of this substance, yellow corn should be fed. Sacks of seed corn may be protected from mice by scattering naphthalene flakes over and around the bags. Mice dislike the odor of the flakes and will usually keep away.

A generally rising trend in per acre yields of leading crops over the last 40 years in the United States is indicated by a survey concluded re-cently by the Federal Department of Agriculture. The average yield per acre of corn has increased 18 percent since 1885, wheat 17 percent, oats 14 percent, and potatoes 39 percent. The total area of the four crops expanded about 52 percent but the total production has increased 77 percent.

BETTER HOMES CONSTRUCTION.

Department of Commerce Offers Valuable Information.

House builders and prospective home owners will find most useful the publication issued by the United States Department of Commerce, "Recommended Minimum Requirements for Small Dwelling Construction." Although a section of the pamphlet is for the use of municipalities in promoting greater uniformity in building codes, the pamphlet contians a quantity of information which should be most helpful to every house builder.

The Building Code Committee appointed by Mr. Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, Washington, D. C., compiled the report. Mr. Hoover states piled the report. Mr. Hoover states in his letter to the Chairman of the Committee: "This report has been built up by co-operation of the Government and the public, which I feel will appeal to everyone. The Committee itself represents the great voluntary organizations most interested in public service in this direction." Mr. Hoover believes the report will be directly useful to home owners and builders. owners and builders.

Since Better Homes in America of which Dr. James Ford, of Harvard University is Executive Director, encourages home ownership and since the organization is endeavoring to promote sound construction as well as better planning of small dwellings, the pamphlet, Recommended Minimum Requirements for small dwelling construction, is called to the atten-tion of all communities erecting demonstration houses for the Better Homes Campaign, and to all other builders of homes. Minimum standards for safe and economical construction of small dwellings are outlined in the pamphlet. For instance, those who are building brick houses may obtain information on the necessary thickness of exterior solid brick walls for certain heights, and for the quality of brick used in this exterior wall construction. The builder who is contemplating walls for his small house of hollow building tile, hollow concrete block or hollow walls of brick, may determine the minimum thickness necessary to support these walls of given heights. The number of pounds of necessary compressive strength of hollow building tile is also listed. Requirements for walls for concrete dwellings for frame, for stucco on frame may also be found here. In regard to wood framing, an excellent table has been included for structural timbers in small dwellings.

Other sections of the pamphlet deal with beams, joists, girders, rafters, and foundations. Others with floor loads, roof loads, heating plants plastering and chimneys. Among other requirements are also thost for garages combined with dwellings.

The appendix of the pamphlet consists of explantant materials as sim-sists of explanatory material, so simply and interestingly presented that any home builder, whether or not fa-miliar with the subject of building miliar with the subject of building tory of personal property and receiv-may well profit by it. For instance ed orders to sell personal property, tion, in addition to the necessary requirements the following information is included: "It is essential that penetration of moisture behind stucco surfaces be prevented. Poorly drained stucco surfaces should be avoided copings, cornices, exterior trim, and the frames of all openings should be carefully flashed or otherwise designed to carry water away from the stucco. Roof drainage should be built to prevent leakage and carried well away from the stucco surface. Wooden sheathing laid horizontally is less apt to result in stucco cracks than when laid diagonally."

Copies of "The Recommended Minimum Requirements for Small Dwelling Construction" can be secured from the Government Printing Office at Washington, D. C., by sending fifteen cents in coin, or money order not postage stamps. They will also send upon request their Price List 72, They will also on Publications of interest to Suburbanites and Home Builders.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE LEGISLATURE.

Summary of the Week's Leading Events at Annapolis.

Last Friday, Senate bill was passed authorizing Westminster to borrow $75,000; also authorizing a bond issue of $40,000 for Carroll County.
This session of the legislature is breaking the record for passing bills increasing salaries, and for approving hond issues for state, counties and incorporated towns.

J. Wilmer Cronin. Harford county introduced a bill to require justices of the peace to give bond for $1,000. It was pointed out that notaries public, who do not collect money for the State, are required to give bond, while justices are not, and that in these days of automobile fines many of them impound considerable sums, which sometimes are incollectible, as in case of death. Delegate Bouchelle, of Cecil county, introduced a bill which would authorize the appointment of Motor Vehicle Department clerks in every county of the state outside of Baltimore City, and in some instances provide for an assistant. Salaries would range from $2,000 to $2,500 and salaries of assistants would be $1,500. Delegate Cobourn, of Howard county, on Wednesday, introduced a statewide "dry" bill, or prohibition enforcement measure, that practically represents the Funhouser bill that was defeated by one vote in 1924. The bill will meet the opposition of the dominant political "organization" in the state. The Chesapeake Bay bridge bill passed to its third reading in the House, on Wednesday.

Senator Englar introduced a bill concerning the salaries of Carroll County Commissioners. Also a bill to require payment of taxes on au-tomobiles owned in Carroll county,before the issuance of a license.

Senator Englar introduced a bill increasing the penalties for violation of the prohibition laws in Carroll

A bill was introduced in the House by Mr. Barnes appropriating $250,000 for roads in Carroll County.

Many insurance Companies have notified their agents of the abnormally high fire losses on unoccupied dwellings, and certain high-valued properties that are unprotected and unoccupied for the greater part of the year. business is undoubtedly a factor that will eventually reach something like What is known as 'personality" in plays a prominent part in business success. The personality—the agreeableness, the individual influence, the likeableness of the salesman-gets and holds customers, and creates business reputation. It stands for friendliness in trade relations—and popularity.

This personality, plus good merchandise and fair dealing, makes the third term tradition into the Con-"personality, plus," that is a catchy phrase of modern times, and it is worth considering-and adopting. Of course, there are some not greatly impressed by it. There is a hard-shell manner of dealing that knows nothing but "getting" things regardless of anything else. It reaches out to long distances, overlooks home community interests, and the only personality considered is that of the buy-

In the newspaper field, there is also a local personality that counts, other directions. The "news plus" or generations without any apparent but not so much perhaps as in some "sensation plus," or the "quantity for reason; it is to distrust the people's the money plus" has a strong pull, and the local paper gets the job of doing the best it can without being given the full support that increases its chance to do its best.

The "personality plus" is strong in politics; perhaps stronger there than anywhere, and perhaps also the most dangerous. Ability and fitness, unfortunately are not always strongly accompanied with the "personality," although the "plus" for service may be full strength.

And so, we go along through life, some being influenced by one thing and some by another, but mostly by the "plus" of what we get, and not the how, or from whom, we get it. But this fact should not discount the cultivating of personality, plus service, for the combination represents the acme of endeavor, even though we often fail to make the combination work as it ought.

This may be due to re- out a form of partial prohibition, and duced incomes that do not permit of we believe that the chances are in the expense of repairs, or it may be favor of better results there than that there is an increasingly large here, because the Canada laws are demand for money for other purposes enforced more rigidly than here, and -notably automobiles-that cannot there is greatly more respect for law

Our partisan politics, and an exaggerated "freedom of the press" and "free speech," are more powerful here than in Canada. Whether we full enforcement of our 18th. Amendment, remains to be seen: as does also the outcome of the Canadian law. Both countries are simply trying, through different means, to combat an evil. Laws, at best, are experiments.

The Third Term.

The attempt to incorporate the sitution will probably get nowhere. As a tradition, the 'third-term' custom serves a useful purpose; as a law it would lose such value as it now has. So far the country has never been convinced of the desirability of any President's selection for a third time. It is just conceivable, however, that in a time of crisis the nation might require a President to serve more than two terms. But to limit the office arbitrarily to eight years or ten or any other number, as is now proposed, is to bind the future

Washington's refusal to be a thirdterm candidate-from which the third-term tradition dates—was wise statesmanship and an excellent psychological move. It did as much as any other single thing to establish the Republic on a firm foundation, for it definitely ended the possibilities, and the fear, of Caesarism. The new nation was pitifully weak; the federal government was still an ex- yield the resinous liquid known as periment; predictions were rife it Canada balsam, which is used among would fail. But the Republic is weak no longer. Caesarism or any form of monarchy is unthinkable.

The third-term tradition, once of greatest import, has now become a dubious political weapon. The people who elect the President are the best judges of his service. They have the Constitution to define their rights; they have tradition to define terpretation. "Getting into a scrape" the national continuity of attitude; came from Scotland, and the expresthey have their own good sense to guide them in the immediate in- honorable game of golf. They can elect something, no matter how small, out | them and impeach them; they can defeat them; they can elect them in-Bear in mind you can't spend your definitely if they choose. And this fact by naming but a slight penalty for servance of Law.

In view of the frequency with would have far less poverty, crime which public officials criticize prohibition and wink at the breaking of the law, it is interesting to hear a earn in days of prosperity and have different note sounded by an import-

> At a recent meeting of the Dickinson Club on the occasion of its annual dinner in Harrisburg, Lieutenant-Governor Arthur H. James made this plea;

> "Whether we believe in Prohibition or not, we've been talking a lot, perhaps too much about enforcing Now let us start talking about observing the law actually observing the law and get the benefit of that psychology in its relation to good citizenship.

still have the vision, courage and good judgment to keep up in the procession of progress.

No. you can't waste your dollar and No. you can't waste you waste you waste your dollar and No. you can't waste you waste observed enough to agree absolutely with that old axiom that 'virtue is its own reward.' The 'easy-money' fellows get nowhere. They seem to do so for a time but for every seemingly successful bootlegger you point out to me, I'll point out to you a hundred of them who have come to no good

> "It pays to be honest and decent. It doesn't pay to be otherwise. More and more I'm grateful to those professors at that little institution nineteen miles down the Cumberland Valley from here who talked of industry and honesty and honor. What they taught us in that regard I have found from observation in life to be absolutely true and dependable.

> "And that's what as American citizens and above all as college men, we ought to be teaching and preaching. 'Short-cuts' don't lead to success. They only seem to. What difference the money make anywhere?

> "Happiness is the thing which counts in life and by doing the straight thing we are more likely to attain happiness, certainly more likely than doing the crooked things, the snide thing, the shoddy thing, whether we are in the professions, business or what not. When we get to thinking these things and doing these things in practice, then we will be observing the laws of our Country and the job of enforcing them will become less difficult."

Under Which Flag?

State Chairman Mellon was quoted, at second hand, in Harrisburg Saturday as saying that he is "in full accord with the Governor's policies in the election-bill matters and always have been." Just what this cryptic utterance may mean is uncertain. Only a few days ago Mr. Mellon clearly indicated he was about to "compromise" with those elements which are bent on defeating ballot reform altogether or on so emasculating the Governor's bills as to make them useless. Whether Governor Fisher has changed his mind or Chairman Mellon has reversed himself because of the Statewide protest against his position remains to be seen. If there is any wisdom left in the leadership of the Republican Party in Pennsylvania, the counsels of the foes of honest elections will fall on deaf For if there is any one thing calculated to rouse the State, it would be the failure of Governor Fisher to keep his pledge to procure "the encount of the ballot of every qualified Governor Fisher, with the backing of the State Chairman, can get from this session of the Legislature anything he wants. The Governor should want, he is morally bound to want, the passage of laws that will guard the ballot. The situation confronting him is plain. The Commonwealth is waiting to see on which side he proposes to stand .- Phila. Ledger.

Douglas Fir Entirely

Distinct Tree Species The Douglas fir, a native of the Northwest but now being planted extensively in the East, is becoming a popular Christmas tree, according to the American Forestry association. The species was named for a Scotch botanist who discovered it on an expedition in 1825, but its scientific name is pseudotsuga, meaning "false hemlock." As a matter of fact, it is neither a hemlock nor a fir, and, though it is sometimes called a spruce, it isn't that either. The tree belongs to an entirely distinct species. The tree most commonly used for Christmas trees is a real fir—the balsam, so called because its blister-like pockets other things for attaching cover plates to microscope slides.

Ay, That's the Rub

The word "scrape," meaning a difficulty or some unfortunate predicament, has several synonyms, as "rub," a "squeeze," a "pinch," etc., all of which are younger than the term "scrape," and of slightly different insion is as old as the ancient and "scrape." When a player's ball rolled into one of these holes it was manifestly impossible to play it, and the rules of the game recognized this scrape."-Chicago Journal.

Natural Pendulum

A giant pendulum, formed by a strange freak of nature, swings in Yellowstone National park, not far from Old Faithful geyser, according to the official government naturalist in charge of the lecture and nature study work of the United States national park service. It consists of the trunk of a lodge pole pine, suspended by its top between two other trees of the same species and swinging by its base, so that a mere touch will set it to swaying. Apparently the tree fell or was blown over many years ago, its top becoming lodged in the tops of its neighbors, which grew out and surrounded it, supporting it seactment and enforcement of such laws curely. Subsequently several feet of as will insure the free use and fair its base rotted away, leaving it suspended in midair. Signs of Success

It is said that early in life success expands the hat-band. Later in life it usually expands the waist-band. Possibly so.
But these are not the only signs of success. There is the comfortable feeling that provision is made for old age, and that the comforts of life may be had, that children may be educated, that you may travel occasionally. It's fine. Who will succeed? Only those who lay a careful foundation by forming a saving habit and keep their funds in a safe Bank like ours.

BAD WEATHER OF 1926 EXPENSIVE

Research Fixes Cost at Over $500,000,000.

New Haven, Conn.—The inclement weather this year has cost the United States $500,000,000 and that of last June more than $100,000,000 alone, Prof. Ellsworth Huntington, research associate at Yale university and meteorologist, said here. This astonishing loss never was realized by the populace, however, because they were "still extraordinarily stupid," Professor Huntington added.

"Ever since the earliest men began to think," he said, "they have known that their happiness depends to a considerable degree upon the weather.

"Nevertheless, even in our day, we still have only the crudest conception of just what the weather is doing to us. The relationships between the sun and the weather and between the weather and the crops, and between crops and general circles of business. are very complex.

"A solar condition which brings prosperity in one region is almost certain to bring calamity somewhere else," he explained. "When one region has unusually warm weather others may be cooler than normal; when one region is unusually stormy or rainy others are practically certain to be free from storms and to suffer from drought.

He pointed out that the financial panics of 1837, 1874 and 1893 came after several years of low rainfall over a wide area. He also said a short, overly hot spell would take more than the usual number of lives. He valued each life at $7,000, and showed that these willing heat spells had a very definite effect upon financial equilib-

His Family of Three Holds Down Ten Jobs

Morrisville, Vt.-Vermont's busiest family is the Sweetsers. Three of them-Truman H. Sweetser, his son Percey and his daughter-in-law Minnie—have between them ten jobs that they are actively engaged upon. Not political sinecures nor soft public service berths are these, but good, honest, every-day occupations.

Down on Brooklyn street they have just finished a new "business building" that houses most of their endeavors. In the front of the structure is the grocery store, managed by Mrs. Sweetser, who also is an expert stenographer and bookkeeper.

On the other side of the building the activities of her husband are housed. He is a plumber, tinsmith. steamfitter and dealer in stoves and heavy hardware. The rear of the establishment is given over to the young man's father, Truman H. Sweetser, who is a photographer and has his studio and laboratory there.

Besides taking pictures, Mr. Sweetser is a master mechanic and a carpenter, "turning his hand" to these tasks when he is not busy with his graflex and view camera.

While Percey Sweetser was serving in France with the Yankee division his wife was a yeoman at the Charlestown navy yard.

Russian Students Must

Take Military Training Moscow.—Military training for all university students, both men and women, has been ordered by the commissariat of war. Under the order all students are required to take 180 hours of instruction in military science during their regular four-year course and two months' field practice during the summer. When their university course is finished the men must rerve nine months in the army or, if they prefer, one year in the navy. While the women students are required to take the course equally with the men, they are exempt from the two months' field practice and active service in the regular army.

As the new regulations apply to all universities and academies in Russia, tens of thousands of students will thus become potential soldiers.

Warn Against Rabbit Germs; Produce "Flu"

Washington.—An infectious disease known to science as "hueremia," which mysteriously emanated from the skin of a rabbit some six years ago, was made the subject of warning bulletins issued by the public health department.

Humans contract the disease during the process of skinning the rabbit. If the person has a slight cut on his hand, or a rash of any sort, he is more susceptible to the disease, which brings on an illness similar to the "flu." If the rabbit is properly cooked the consumer is in no danger, doctors said.

HAVE ENDURANCE AND SPEED

Bircs of the Gull Family Can Keep Going Longer Than Any Other Known Creature.

A small party of savants and almost savants at a university club luncheon debated this conundrum, according to "Girard" in the Philadelphia Inquirer. What living creature can go a hundred miles in shortest time?

One big-game hunter said certain kinds of deer. He was contradicted by another who declared a wolfhound could run any deer to death in fifty

A man last week drove seven such hounds 100 miles in less than fourteen hours The horsy gentleman present mentioned that Man o' War could go a another. Kangaroos leap more than sixty feet, but the slightly-built wild pigeon could cover 500 miles in a day.

Then up spoke a scientist: "You now see our airplanes traveling faster than anything on wheels or afloat. Well, it copied the bird, which can, little though it be, go faster and farther in a day than any other living creature."

Birds of the gull family, which fly over great spaces of water, can, he insisted, keep going longer without stop or rest than any other known creature. What a heart!

God called our mother to her home Three years ago today, Left us in this earth alone To strive from day to day.

Sad and sudden was the call
Of one so dearly loved by all
The blow was great, the shock severe

Powerless to Resist

Sweep of Avalanche

There were several destructive avalanches in the St. Gothard region in 1925, when the railway was damaged at several points, and many peasants and workmen were killed. But one rainy Sunday in September, forty-five years ago, 150 persons perished when a large portion of the Plattenbergkopf split off and slid down on the village of Elm.

Early in the day great boulders began to come crashing down with disturbing frequency, and quite a number of men were out watching them. Suddenly they saw a whole cliff sway and topple over. Seventeen minutes later another cliff fell, and, to their horror, the doomed villagers saw that the mountain had thus been undermined, and was poised over thin air far above them. Four minutes later it fell, shattered into millions of fragments, and came slidgold walking corn plow, Black Hawk corn planter, with fertilizer attachment; 7 milk cans, and other articles the tranquil meadows of the valley, and up the opposite mountain-side for TERMS—Sums of $5.00 and under, a couple of hundred feet, when it dicash. Beauty and Good

Indeed, the beautiful is inseparably unifed to the good and the true, . . for the very nature of the sense of beauty is such that through it we gain a clearer concept of the other two values. The history of the race has shown that at the height of materialistic success, the desire for artistic enjoyment has been a potent factor in bringing a people back to the higher ideals which underlie a peaceful intercourse between nations. -Herbert Sidney Langfeld, in "The Aesthetic Attitude."

APPLIED SCIENCE USED BY INDUSTRY

Bureau of Standards Report Indicates Advantages.

Washington.-American industry is more and more turning to applied science to aid in solving its many and intricate technical problems. This is indicated in the annual report of George K. Burgess, director of the bureau of standards of the Department of Commerce. The bureau, it shows. has contact with industry through approximately 80 advisory committees and through a large number of "research associates" sent by industrial groups to work on problems of interest to their respective industries.

Results are applied quickly by the industries concerned, so that the public soon benefits from impraved processes. In the fiscal year 1925-26 there were 62 of those associates at the bureau, representing 36 separate indus-

About 180,000 tests, having a fee value of $675,046, were completed by the bureau in the year. The character and scope of these tests spanned the province of applied science from sugar to cement, from thermometers and pyrometers to paints and varnishes, and from aerial photography to studies in city planning. In addition to a vast amount of consultation and specification work from various governmental departments, specific research covering 40 projects was performed from 15 government establishments.

Forty-five simplified practice recommendations have been accepted by industries, resulting in great savings in the production of articles in common use. This is one of the most important ways, it is pointed out, in which an industry can effect immediate economies. The demand for publication on this work is evidence of interest manufacturers are showing in

Attention to building and housing produced important results. A standard building code, submitted for general adoption, was drawn up by a special committee. A report was issued on the important subject of city planning and zoning, containing a list of 436 municipalities which have adopted zoning ordinances.

Among outstanding research undertakings of the bureau was that in connection with increasing the wearing quality of paper currency. By introducing certain changes in the manufacturing process, a paper was developed which it is believed will increase the life of bills by 50 per cent.

Want to Be Housewives Lawrence, Kans.-Gentlemen who prefer homemakers will have to look some place other than the University of Kansas in their search for such, if statistics made public here as a result of a questionnaire bear up. Of 1,513 young women students at the university who turned in their preferences as to what line of work they wish to follow after graduation, only seven expressed a desire to become homemakers. There were 97 diff listed by the men and women of the university in the report. Of these, 24 appeal alike to the men and women. Forty-eight were listed by the men which did not show in the women's list, while 25 were chosen by the women which the men passed up.

The teaching profession came first with 816 women and 144 men desiring to enter this field. The medical field was next with 412 men and 20 women; business came third with 361 and 27; law next with 301 and 7, with the various branches of engineering listed in the next place. Journalism appeals to 89 men and 70 women.

PLANNING TO PUT VOLCANO TO WORK

Scientists Seek Method of Harnessing Crater.

Not so many years ago the people of Iceland conceived the idea of harnessing the famous hot springs which abound in that country and, by means of pipes, conveying the hot water to their homes for heating and domestic

The wise men of Naples, Italy, are seeking for some method of impressing the volcano, Little Vesuvius, into service, and utilizing its heat for train car operation.

For 800 years the crater at Pozzuoli was considered extinct. A few years ago it awakened, and two volcanic cauldrons opened at the crater base, while more recently an eruptive mouth appeared.

Men of science consider that if the forces, heat and electricity, at this point were controlled by a power plant, it would be possible not only to provide sufficient electricity for the supply of the surrounding towns, but for Naples as well.

The great difficulty is in finding a piping which can resist the corroding power of the hydrosulphides and sulphuric dioxide of the soil near the vol-

The commune of Naples had a huge iron pipe sunk, but after a short time it was entirely destroyed by the action of these gases. Later a smaller pipe of white metal was used, but, this, too, corroded.

So far it has not been possible to find a piping which lasts more than a few weeks, after being sunk.

The Solfatara, ever since Roman times, has been celebrated for its curative properties. In Roman days its baths were famous and today remains of them can be seen in the hillside. Since the war the sulphurous vapors from the different apertures have brought health to many ex-soldiers suffering from lung trouble. During the past five years vast quantities of kaolin have been taken from the crater basin, for the Neapolitan industry of chalk statuettes. It was this extensive digging which caused the ground to cave in, when a volcanic cauldron of lava mud made its appearance. A small observatory was erected, in order that the crater could be studied. The volcano was given the name of "Little Vesuvius." though it is miles away from Mount Vesuvius, and situated on the other side of Naples.

Experts consider the Pozzuoli crater as far more wonderful than Vesuvius itself.

The heat generated by the mud cauldron is 100 degrees hotter than boiling water, and is thus capable of generating power for electrical pur-

Its vapors also carry a positive charge of electricity.

The only recorded eruption of lava from Solfatara is one of doubtful authenticity ascribed to the year 1198.

Early Life Insurance

Originally life insurance was not much more than an incident of marine insurance. When the success or failure of a voyage depended largely on the personal qualities of the master of the ship, the owners of ship and cargo would insure themselves not only against the perils of deep, but also against the ganger of loss through the death of the master-that is, they took out insurance on the life of the master for the voyage. These early life insurance policies were written by individuals long before life insurance companies came into existence. The earliest policy of which anything definite is known was issued in London in 1583, insuring the life of one William Cybbons for 12 months. This was underwritten by 13 persons acting individually; the premium was $80 per thousand. A similar policy would cost today about $10, at age thirty-five.

Storms and Headaches

Each of us is carrying through life an enormous weight in the form of the pressure of the outside atmosphere upon our bodies. We don't, it is true, notice it, because inside our bodies is another pressure (in our blood, and so forth) which exactly balances the outside pressure.

Were it not for this equalizing pressure, we should experience grave discomfort just as do mountain explorers who go to great heights where the air is "thinner."

Roughly speaking, this is generally what causes many people trouble in a thunderstorm. The atmospheric pressure alters suddenly and disturbs the balance, with the result that the arteries swell up and probably affect the brain and nerve centers, causing a headache.

Sun and Fire Symbols

There are to be found occasionally upon the walls of old brick houses, at about the line of division between the first and second stories, flat pieces of iron 5 or 6 inches in length and shaped somewhat like the letter "S."

The use of these articles was clearly brought from England, where it is still continued, and there is a curious origin and meaning attached to them.

The figure in question is an early symbol of the sun. It is still used in Herefordshire and other parts of England. There one is informed that the reason for the particular form of these irons is that they were made thus in order to protect the house from fire as well as from collapse.

Standards Vary as to Man's Hours of Sleep

An older school of moralists, and possibly an older school of doctors, would have been gravely shocked by the suggestion, just made by an expert in mental diseases, that even eight hours' sleep a day is not necessarily enough for a man.

"Eight for a man, nine for a woman and ten for a fool," was given by Sir Robert Armstrong Jones in his lecture to the Medical society of London as the old standard, but he added that he would reverse the order and give ten to the men.

Even the lecturer's version of the old standard seems more generous than the facts; not eight hours' sleep but seven was definitely laid down in the famous health rules of Salerno, and enough for either a young man or an old one, and some ancient authorities were ready to brand as sluggard the man who slept for longer than six hours out of twenty-four. Indeed, to judge by its proverbs and precepts the world of three or four hundred years ago was constantly at war with the sluggards, and forever maintaining a stiff fight against the undue claims of sleep.

Here and there an isolated hero like Sancho Panza stands up to praise sleep and its inventor, or the Venetians produce a proverb which recommends slumber as a sort of medicine, but in general both doctors of medicine and divinity seem to have agreed that sleep was the enemy of their age. Like the Dormouse at the Mad Hatter's tea party, the public at large was always being well shaken and told to cast off dull sloth and joyful

The picture is the more curious because so little is heard of such rebukes today; though we are flercely warned by our medical advisers not to do many things, from overeating to underexercising, we are hardly ever expected to refrain from oversleeping. It is the one possible excess which no one bothers to rebuke; and here one eminent authority boldly declares that five-twelfths of the whole day may be spent in sleeping without reproach. Are we, then, so active that we need urging to slumber? And were our forefathers so sleepy that only the constant thunder of the sages could keep them awake? Strange as these conclusions seem, the facts appear to justify them.

Early "Sunday Closing"

The Sunday closing of saloons got its first impetus from Peter Stuyvesant, governor of New Amsterdam, about the middle of the Seventeenth century, when he forbade the sale of intoxicants on the Sabbath day until after preaching.

In those days the town was dotted with taverns. It has been estimated that a fourth of the buildings were devoted to the sale of brandy, tobacco and beer. Some of the places had become nothing more than fight clubs, with a brawl every night. Stuyvesant bent on cleaning up the town, ordered that no new taverns should be licensed except by the unanimous consent of the town's officials. He also ordered the proprietors to occupy decent houses, report all brawls, and stop selling liquor to the savages, who were given to getting full of "firewater" and testing their lung power and their tomahawks in the public streets.

Victorian Orators

The marquis of Huntly knew most of the leading political figures of the Victorian era, and in his recent book of reminiscences he contrasts the methods of some of the great parliamentarians. The most successful speakers, he says, are not those who wave their arms with perfervid declamation. Parnell, who never moved from an erect attitude, and spoke in measured sentences, with a cynical manner, was very effective. Dilke, on the other hand, in speeches crammed full of knowledge, was too verbose. and seemed to tire the house. Joseph Chamberlain, in his clear-cut tones. with a penetrating and incisive voice, his right arm moving slowly to point or emphasize a remark, was one of the most delightful speakers to listen to. The marquis of Huntly adds that Sir William Harcourt was fluent and bombastic.

Strawberries Beauty Aid

Dr Walter J. Swingle, a field agent of the Department of Agriculture, has arrived at San Francisco with specimens of strange and exotic fruits from the Orient. Among them is what is described as a giant strawberry, a strawberry wonder said to grow on a tree.

The idea of plucking strawberries from trees is sufficiently novel in itself, but it is further set forth that this fruit of the tree has remarkable beauty-giving powers. Those who eat of it may, as a result, reduce their weight, and, at the same time, beautify the complexion. Its native habitat is on the Chinese coast, south of the Yangtse river, but it is believed that it may be grown in many parts of the United States.—Boston Transcript.

Largest Loom

At Rodewisch, in Saxony, the center of the German textile industry, there is in operation what is thought to be the largest weaving loom in the world. This huge crank loom is 77 feet long and 60 feet wide. It stands 10 feet high and weighs 35 tons. The shuttle is of corresponding proportions, and travels to and fro at the rate of 15 times a minute.

This machine is capable of turning out seamless disks of felt, such as are used in paper mills, up to 233 feet in circumference.

"AVERAGE" OWNERS OF CARS

More or Less Interesting Statistics Concerning Fortunate Ones Who "Honk" at Pedestrians.

Philosophers, politicians and others have spent a great deal of time and devoted a world of high-powered thought to finding Mr. Average Citizen. In order to carry it along further, a finance corporation has been working to discover who and what is Mr. Average Automobile Buyer.

Through vital statistics the survey in question was taken from the medium to higher-priced cars, thus eliminating entirely all the low-priced lines, says Farm Life. This was done to get an impersonal view of the average man who drives the average car of the higher grade.

Thus we learn that the average age of motor car buyers is thirty-four years; that 74 per cent of them have wives; 82 per cent of them have money in the bank and 69 per cent of them carry life insurance. Basing the next deduction on figures obtained by the acceptance corporation on sales between January 1 and June 1, we find that 85 per cent of the purchasers have owned cars before and that 45 per cent of that number bought on

MUST USE EGYPTIAN DESIGN

Only One Way to Mount Scarabs, Just Now Coming Into Great Popular Favor.

Speaking of scarabs, and the wave of Egyptian influence brings the scarab again into prominence, Leonide C. Laveron, Chicago, a recognized authority on jewelry design and kindred subjects in art, says:

"To mount scarabs correctly, follow the design of the Egyptians used when the scarab was worn by the kings in the Valley of the Nile. Any departure from this design is utterly lacking in artistry.

Miss Laveron sketched off in pencil the correct design. The king wore the scarab in a ring. A gold bar passed through the body of the scarab ending in knobs at either end, so the scarab revolved on the bar. This was attached to a ring, on the sides flanked with twisted gold wire. The cartouche of the king was on the obverse side of the scarab. The king used the ring as a seal. The other correct mountings, according to Miss Laveron, is the scarab in the center of a bar pin, flanked by wings or by the head of the sun god or the asp. All of these motif were used in the days when scarabs were worn as a sign of rank.

Ask for Large Sum.

Something like $925,000 is required to establish women's colleges at Oxford, and while women have been taking advantage of the educational opportunities offered there, no women's colleges have yet been possible. The London Times in an editorial calls attention to the fact that many of the endowments have been made by women and that "piety," never lacking in the national character, should inspire all those who have had the advantage of such endowments to help the good cause of the "women's colleges" at Oxford. It is hard times in England and it is not easy to raise such a large that "no one in theory grudges the money, or would deny a university education to as many women as are worthy of it."

Harvard university in Radcliffe college has long had a woman's college of which it is justly proud.

Rain-Making Not Feasible.

Rain-making is a futile undertaking, according to the weather bureau, United States Department of Agriculture. To produce one inch of rainfall over an area of an acre, approximately 113 tons of moisture would have to be drawn up into the air and then precipitated. There are 640 acres in a square mile, for which 72,320 tons of moisture would be required. A square mile, however, would be scarcely a dot in the center of any section where drought prevails, as in Arizona or parts of Texas. It would be less than oneseventh of the area of the District of Columbia.

Odd Incident.

Just recently I went hunting. I had only gone a little way when I saw a rabbit and fired at him with my shotgun. There was a tremendous noise and for a while I couldn't hear or see a thing. Then I noticed that the gun barrel had disappeared and I was left holding the stock. Later I found the gun barrel, which was bent from the accident, lying in the weeds about ten feet from where I had been standing. I considered myself very lucky as I wasn't injured in any way.-Chicago Journal.

Fish Smothered by Ice.

Tons of fish were smothered in Glenmore lake, Orange county, New York, by the ice which covered the lake two feet thick from shore to shore. When the community found the water supply objectionable they investigated, and when a hole was cut through the ice thousands of dead fish came to the surface togeher with many live fish in search of air.

Many Tires Exported.

The available market for automobile tires outside the United States for 1923 is approximately 6,000,000 casings. Considering the rate at which American tires were exported the first ten months of 1922 it seems reasonable to suppose that the 1923 export figures will be about 1,350,000, or about 23 per cent of the total available.

Music of the Desert

During the holy month of Ramathan, when the Mussulman feasts only after sundown, the Sudanese reveille awakes the sleeping soldier at midnight. It is the voice of the desert itself, expressed by sons of the desert. The golden notes of massed bugles rising in the silent night, and the swelling roll of the drums, are thrilling beyond description, because they are the vocal spirit of an intangible something that always touches the soul of man. The deep velvet sky, the glowing planets, the vastness and silence of the desert, the utter absence of distraction, make it a blending of perfect beauty; so perfect that one scarcely breathes for fear of breaking an illusion.-William A. Anderson in Adventure Magazine.

Maoris Put Up Brave Battle for Country The history of the Maoris of New Zealand is a most remarkable one. Primitive and even cannibalistic up to sixty years ago, they have in a brief space of years achieved equality with the white man.

It is hundreds of years since six large canoes, each holding about 200 persons, arrived there from the Tahiti archipelago. Maori tradition has preserved the names of these boats, and the New Zealand fleet now employs them. By the time of the British landed, utterly exhausted by their tremendous journey, had become 100,000 -a small population for such a large territory.

The Vastfold district of Norway where many of the old Vikings had their homes, is still the recruiting region for one of the most romantic callings of modern times-whale hunting. Leaving their small farms in the care of wives and children, the men set out for south Georgia and the Ross sea in September and return at the beginning of the following summer. The Norwegian whale-hunting fleet numbers about 20 ships and employs 4,000 men.

The work is very hard, but is extraordinarily well paid, every man receiving a royalty from the catch. Some men average $6,000 a year, and the ablest, after years of good service, is trusted with the harpooning.

THE CHRISTIAN'S HOPE

LESSON TEXT-John 14:1-3; II Cor. PRIMARY TOPIC — Our Heavenly

JUNIOR TOPIC-Christ Preparing a Home for Christians.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Our Heavenly Home.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Beauty and Power of the Christian's Hope.

I. Assurance of a Heavenly Home (Jno. 14:1-3).

The announcement concerning the death of Christ, accompanied with the shaping of events which pointed to a speedy accomplishment of the same, shattered the disciples' hope. The Lord told them that He was going away and that they could not follow Him. This brought great grief to their hearts. They perhaps began to doubt His Messiahship, but He did not leave them comfortless.

1. He asked them to believe and trust in Himself as God (v. 1).

"Ye believe in God, believe also in me." Faith in the God-man, Christ Jesus, will steady the heart, no matter how great the sorrow or intense the grief. If we will but place the cares and burdens of life upon Him our tears shall be turned into joy and our despondency transformed into a

2. He assured them that He was going to prepare a place for them in His Father's house (v. 2). He assured them that that place would have an abundance of room, for there were "many mansions" in His Father's house. We should learn from this that heaven is not an imaginary place. It is a prepared place for a prepared people.

3. He assured them that He would come again and escort them to heaven (v. 3).

Jesus will not wait for His own to come to Him, but will personally come back to the earth and call forth from the graves those who have died in the faith (I Thess. 4:16, 17), and transform living believers and take them all to be with Himself in the heavenly home for evermore. When He said, "I will come again," He no doubt meant His personal, bodily and literal return

II. Assurance of the Resurrection of the Body (II Cor. 5:1-10). That which nerved Paul for his conflict even when physical death threatened was the as-Surance that even such violence would but hasten his presence with the Lord. As he faced the uncertain future he was sure:

1. That his present body was only a tabernacle, a tent in which he lived temporarily (v. 1). Though this tent Were destroyed he had nothing to fear, as there was a building to take its place. This house which is to take ne place of the tent is

(1) From God.

(2) Not made with hands.

(3) It is eternal. Our natural body at best crumbles to dust in about three score and ten Years, but the resurrection body shall abide forever.

(4) It is to be "in the heavens." 2. He earnestly longed for the change (vv. 2-4). The human personality instinctively shrinks from a state of disembodiment, but the intelligent Christian earnestly longs for the exchange of the natural body for the Spiritual. We long to put off the perishable and take on the imperishable. 3. This plan was wrought by God

God did not fashion the body for death, but for life. God is not the God of the dead but of the living.

4. Believers should be of good courage (vv. 6-8).

While we live in this body we are absent from the Lord, but because of the Holy Spirit dwelling within us, we confidently walk by faith, being more anxious to be absent from the body and present with the Lord.

5. The believer's chief concern in this life should be to please the Lord (vv. 9, 10).

Nothing matters—health, sickness, strength, weakness, fame or obscurity, friends or loneliness-provided at the end of the journey we hear the Lord's "well done, good and faithful servant." III. Glorified With the Lord (I Jno.

We are now God's children, but the change which awaits the resurrection has not come yet. When it comes it Will reveal our wonderful future. When the Son of God shall be manilest we shall be like Him in glory. When Christ shall come again the Saints shall share His glory. This glorlous hope will transform the life. The one who has it will keep himself pure even as He is pure.

Tribute to Loveliness

Age Does Not Wither

It was long a reproach against our countrywomen that, while America was admittedly a land of pretty girls, their beauty did not wear well; too often it vanished with their youth. But the famous Spanish artist, Zuloaga, has noted that nowadays things are different. He praises the beauty of American women, not merely of American girls, declaring indeed, with gratifying emphasis, that it is "of a kind which increases with age."

England, not the United States, has been long the country of beauty wellpreserved, and the beautiful grandmothers of England-vigorous and charming women of ageless beauty, not silver-haired old ladies in capeswere long the marvel not only of traveling Americans but of the continental nations of Europe. Edward Lear, the author of "The Owl and the Pussy Cat," "The Jumblies" and much other famous and delightful nonsense, has told how, while he was staying in Malta, he was invited to a dinner party at which were present, besides British officers from the garrison, several naval officers from foreign ships lying in the harbor.

"Sitting next to the captain of an Austrian frigate," he recorded, "a German officer said to a subaltern-the conversation was about the good looks of women-'I do think the English woman conserve her aperient galship longer than all the women; yes, even as far as her antics!'

"The poor subaltern withered with confusion till I ventured to interpret: 'The Englishwoman preserves her appearance of youth longer than all women, even if she be old."

No wonder the subaltern was puzzled; not every one would have guessed as quickly as Lear did that "galship" meant girlhood and "antics" neither sportive agility nor unseemly gambols, but simply antiquity or age. -Youth's Companion.

Toys Thought Wonderful

Mechanical toys, such as trains, dancing figures and swimming ducks, were produced as scientific wonders for grownups by the great experimenters of early days instead of as playthings for children, according to a writer in the Montreal Family Herald. The more ignorant people of the time believed them to be miraculous and sometimes the makers had narrow escapes from execution as wizards. One scientist made a fly which, after a flight about the room, would return to his hand. He also produced a mechanical eagle in honor of the visit of an emperor to Nuremburg. The eagle flew several times about the emperor as he entered the city. Lifelike canaries that sing naturally when wound up, are common today. The first of this type of toy was exhibited in 1851.

Hawaiian Relic

The famous Naha stone, one of the finest relics of early Hawaiian history, after having for many years been allowed to remain in obscurity, was not long ago moved and placed in a conspicuous position in the city of Hilo, the second city of the territory.

From the earliest ages there existed a prophecy concerning this stone to the effect that he who could turn it over would become king of the whole of the Hawaiian group. The great feat was eventually accomplished by Kamehameha the Great, then king of Hawaii, and undoubtedly inspired him to embark upon the brilliant career which finally brought the whole of the islands under his sway.

A suitable tablet commemorating the history of the relic has been placed near the stone.

London Fogs

Those Londoners who speak of the present-day white mists and darkened skies as fogs are very young. In 1881 the fog was so thick during cattle show week that several cattle were suffocated by it at the Agricultural hall. A really long fog was the one which began in November, 1879, and lasted until February, 1880. Incidentally, it sent up the death rate 48 per thousand. And we cannot blame our Victorian forefathers for our fogs, either. As long ago as 1306, when London was a mere handful of 50,000 inhabitants, the city's fog problem loomed so large that the sin of burning smoke-producing coal was punishable with death .- London Daily Mail.

Wives Welcome Polygamy

The first wife usually is the head wife in the African jungle and her rule is unquestioned except on those rare occasions when a man actually feels some glimmer of affection for one of his wives, and promotes her to head of the harem.

Polygamy not only is accepted by the women, it is favored by them. For one thing, each new wife proportionately reduces the burden of the others. Doctor Fowzer attended a palaver at which an only wife, through her brother, petitioned the chief to compel her husband to take on more. She said the job was too much for one woman.

Forced to Call Halt

Rev. George Potter, vicar of St. Chrysostom's, Peckham, England, who has always permitted all his 8,000 parishioners to use his telephone, has announced that he will censor all calls in the future. He declared youths' lengthy calls to girl friends and "delayed at the office" calls, cannot be permitted from his home. "One man came in recently," he said, "and asked if he might use the phone. He called his bookmaker and asked him to 'put $1.25 each way on that horse."

An Ancient Symbol of Hospitality

A PICTURESQUE old rectory in Rhode Island was recently being restored. Covered with vines, its colors mellowed by age, so the rectory had stood for over one hundred years. The north doorway on this old home was formerly the doorway of the French Admiral deTernay, and is one of the famous carved doorways of New England. When the dust of years was brushed from the of years was brushed from the crisp bacon, tomato center, and one ancient carvings and the central onion. Add medium size can of ornament disclosed, it proved to be an ancient warmth of greeting. The newest aid to the hostess who serves pineapple are Hawaiian pineapple "tid-bits". They are made from the same sun-kissed Hawaiian pineapple as the sliced or crushed product, and they lend themselves to dishes in which smaller pieces of pineapple are preferable to larger pieces.

Here are some delightful ways of serving pineapple tid-bits:

OLD RECORDS THAT TELL OF AIRPLANE

Revelations in Ancient Irish Manuscript.

Some of the most thrilling results which have been brought to light in the deciphering of ancient manuscripts in the various libraries of Europe, Great Britain, and Ireland are those which contain romantic stories which indicate a foreshadowing of discoveries which we look upon as altogether the result of material development pertaining to the present era, says a writer in the Christian Science Monitor.

One of the most curious of these is the tale of the appearance of an airplane, the account of which was written between the years 944 and 956 A. D., in the reign of an Irish king named Congalach. The authenticity of the date of the manuscript is beyond question, and the description is as follows:

Congalach reigned in Meath, and was evidently given to farming purhis one day attending a fair at a place now called Telltown, on the Meath blackwater, midway between the towns of Navan and Kells. While he was inspecting horses, for which that county is famous, a sound in the sky caused him, and all the people, to look up, and they beheld a large ship floating far above them.

It appeared to be fully equipped with a numerous, and evidently intelligent crew. After a time, in which the people in the fair gazed in silent wonder at the phenomenon, the huge vessel gradually floated toward some clouds into which it entered, and the awe-struck crowds saw it no more. This same story is told with slight variations by the Norse documents, named Kongs Skuggio.

Yet another tale is told in one of er prophesies that a time would come when carriages without horses would run through the streets of Jerusalem. These stories are, of course, mere legends of imagination but it is interesting to find them noted in documents of undoubted antiquity, and in local as well as in ancient runes and sagos; also that such shadows of the actualities of the Twentieth century should have emanated from the thoughts of people in the Tenth.

It would be interesting to understand the mental capacities, and the outlook of the persons who inspired such tales; and who thought them of sufficient importance to have them recorded on vellum.

Grains of Salt

Lot's wife was turned into a pillar of salt instantaneously. The rest of us, according to Dr. Jean Bouchon, eminent French surgeon, are undergoing the same process more gradually, but with hardly less eventual thoroughness.

Salt, says the learned surgeon, is a poison which dries up and hardens the muscular tissues, couses appendicitis, gastric ulcer and liver and renal calculus. Moreover-most ominous threat of all-salt has an injurious effect on the intelligence.

Those who habitually reach for the salt cellar before even tasting food will read this pronouncement and ponder. Even the layman knows that salt has an affinity for water and draws out the juices from animal tissues, juices which are not replaced by the water imbibed to quench saltcaused thirst. In the light of that knowledge the French doctor's theory carries at least enough conviction to make one thoughtful. A moderate amount of salt is necessary to the bodily chemistry. Too much may indeed be a poison.—Cleveland Plain

Vitality and Hustle

American vitality is a function, mathematically speaking, of the prosperity and the modernity. An insufficiently nourished human being requires a great deal of rest.

Reduced to an Indian diet, Americans would be a good deal less interested than they actually are in business efficiency, uplift and the charlessuits, for the story goes on to tell of | ton. They would spend most of their spare time in doze, or in the doze's first cousin, meditation. But they have enough to eat—a great deal more than enough, in fact. They can afford to hustle; indeed, they must hustle or else die of plethora.

Men and women who wash down beefsteaks with glasses of rich, creamy milk need to do something pretty strenuous in order to keep alive at all .- From "Jesting Pilate," by Aldous Huxley.

Time Will Remedy That They start 'em young out in Hollywood. According to reputable informationa, Jackie Coogan and his director had a bit of an argument recently while filming the youthful star's latest picture.

Victims of Progress.

There are always some unfortunates—it is the way of the world. There are always men who make unwise ventures, or who play too strong ly the element of chance; those who make a little success, then plunge, hit or miss, into an undertaking and an investment too big for their capacity, or for their opportunities, to handle, and failure overtakes them.

Some are unfortunate because they unintentionally get in the way of big movements, and can not get out of the way without being hurt. What we call "general results" or the "greatest good to the greatest num-ber," often comes about through in-jury to a few. For instance, land, or buildings, must some times be condemned, and the owners ousted; and even a lot of good but slow-moving people must give way to a more efficient crowd

These are things that, in the interest of real growth and progress,can't be helped. There is a law of the "survival of the fittest," and it is a harsh law, sometimes, much like painful surgical operations and the weeding out of weak growths that the stronger may more profitably

In the nature of things, the good must sometimes suffer through no fault of their own. Storms, fires, casualties of many sorts, are no respectors of persons, ages or conditions, and there is no way of plaining very satisfactorily why this

And this same truth follows in every day experience. Justide for all, in all things, seems an impossibility; at least, the personal and apparently rightful claims of all cannot be granted. If they were, a condition of staggration would result dition of stagnation would result. The Indian had the first, and apparently the best, right to this country; but the Indian had to go. When we go any way deeply into the question of "personal liberty," we must find that it does not work out right. There must always be a giving way to healthy growth and progress.

Wrong Idea About Storms

The weather bureau says that there is no reason why storms should be more frequent or severe on September 21 or 22 (autumnal equinox) than on September 10 or 11, say, or 29 or 30; nor, in fact, are they. The same is true of the spring or vernal equinox. This whole notion about "equinoctial storms" is erroneous, and it even is uncertain how, where, when or by whom the idea was started. We only know that in one form or another it goes back at least to 1748.

Readjustment of Power and Light Rates.

The Union Bridge Electric Manufacturing Company, through its Manager Mr. C. E. Easterday, announces a readjustment in its power and do-mestic lighting rates, effective April 1927, which readjustments results in a substantial reduction to power and to domestic lighting consumers.

The reductions received to domestic lighting consumers through this decrease, are but a part of the benefits accruing to the public through this readjustment. One of the principal features in addition to the rate decrease contained in the new rates, is the fact that it makes possible the domestic public availing themselves of the many labor saving electrical appliances and devices which this modern age has developed, at a current cost of approximately one-half that offered by the present domestic lighting rates.

Another feature of advantage is that the new rates are so designed as to permit the using of all electrical appliances of every size and kind, up to a single phase motor of 5 horse power, on one service, thereby saving the patron the inconvenience and annoyance of having a number of services, as well as the incidental expense in connection with such duplicate installations.

The general design of the new rates is in line with the form of rates adopted by many large progressive utilities, and should prove very popular to the

The new domestic lighting rates are as follows. For town service: First Block 9.6c net per kwh per month 2nd. Block 5c net per kwh per month.

Third Block 4c net per kwh per month The first block of the rate will be based on the first 5 kwh per room used during any one month. The number of rooms in any residence used in calculating this block will be only living rooms, bed rooms, hallways and bath rooms. This basis was arrived at after a careful analysis, from which it was found that this was the approximate amount of lighting used in the average home. The second block of the rate schedule is the next 100 KWH used during the month. The third block will cover all consumption in addition to the sum of the first and second blocks. The monthly minimum charge will be $1.35 net. No residence will be considered as having less than six nor more than twelve rooms.

In installations of large appliances such as electric range in excess of 2KW, an additional monthly minimum of $2.00 will be charged. In installation having single motors of 1-horse power or over, an additional minimum of $1.00 per month per horse power will be charged.

The consumption of the first block will be subject to a prompt payment cash discount of 4 mills per KWH when net bill is in excess of the net minimum charge. monthly charge is also subject to a 10c discount for prompt payment. It will be noted however, that the above rates and minimums are quoted as net, meaning that the discounts have been deducted.

The rate schedule for rural service is identical with that given above for town service, the only exception being that the minimum charge will be $1.90 net per month.

The power schedules will effect a substantial reduction to motor users who operate their factories through
